Ask Us

Q—Earth Day is April 22 this year. Is the city sponsoring activites for Earth Day and has it in the past?

A—According to a spokesperson from the city, No to both questions. However, the city does sponsor a city wide clean-up campaign around the same time.

In Brief

LA tense

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles was a city on edge today as a federal jury weighed the fate of four policemen in the Rodney King beating.

Hundreds of National Guardsmen reported to staging areas Monday to await the verdict. Police put more officers on the street. Civil rights leaders and the mayor pleaded for peace. And rumors of a verdict swept the city.

Trustees approve faculty contracts, property transfer

Board members also approved a bid for a greens aerator and the transfer of property to Snyder Independent School District.

Prior to Monday's board meeting, trustees and administrators toured the indoor gun range at the National Guard Armory. The range is used to train correctional officers for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Because of the uncertainty of state funding, college personnel were asked to sign 1993-94 contracts which do not contain salary figures. Trustees unanimously approved those contracts Monday evening.

"From top to bottom we appreciate these people...and it is with a great deal of pride that I offer this list to you," Dr. Harry Krenek, college president, told the board.

Over the past two years, the state has authorized salary increases, which when coupled with local funds, have amounted to six percent.

Dr. Krenek told the board Monday there is no indication yet whether the state will continue to fund its portion of the increases for the 1993-94 school year. If the state does not, college trustees will have to decide whether to rescind those raises, or cover them with local dollars. Therefore, WTC faculty, staff and administrators have signed contracts which have no salary figure.

In other business, the board accepted, with regret, the resignation of Dan Dever, registrar and veteran's officer. Dever, who has been with the college for 20 years, will resign Aug. 31. He will continue to serve as veteran's office for the county, with his office possibly relocated to the Senior Center.

The board also agreed to transfer a small piece of property to Snyder public schools. The property, across from Central Elementary, is jointly owned by the school district, college, city and county. The school district is asking the other three entities to transfer their ownership. In return, the district will pay all taxes on the property.

SISD wants to use the property for a parking area.

During discussion, Trustee John Fagin asked administrators to look into possible energy source options, including an REA such as Midwest Electric or Caprock Electric.

Fagin cited a rate increase request of 15.32 percent by TU Electric as a motivating factor in the request. "We are still dealing with taxpayer money and we owe it to them to research all alternatives," said Fagin.

The board was informed that WTC will be going out for bids to repair one of two boilers. The cost

Rodeo queen to be crowned Thursday night

Crowning of the 1993 Rodeo Queen will take place Thursday at the opening performance of the Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo.

The rodeo will be held at 8 o'clock nightly through Saturday in Scurry County Coliseum.

The queen contest, which has two candidates this year, is sponsored by the WTC Rodeo Club and student activities office.

Candidates are Tommi LeAnn Whitley and Stacy Bratton.

Whitley, of O'Donnell, is the daughter of B.L. "Tom" and Sharon Whitley. She is an animal science major and ag business minor. She is a member of the meat judging team and is the recipient of the Dora Cunningham Scholarship.

Bratton, of Voca, is the daughter of Jerry and Linda Bratton. She is a radiology major and a member of the rodeo club.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students.

Tickets are available from queen contestants and rodeo team members, and will be sold at the door.

Koresh attorney may re-enter negotiations

WACO (AP) — The attorney for cult leader David Koresh will be allowed to re-enter negotiations today, the FBI says, although negotiators are unsure the doomsday prophet will accept the offer.

"We were told that those inside the compound may not wish to speak with their counsel today, because it is the last day of their Passover," FBI agent Bob Ricks said.

Dick DeGuerin, who last met with Koresh over a week ago, said he remained hopeful that the 33-year-old cult leader and 95 followers would leave their heavily-armed home at the end of Passover. Authorities have questioned that expectation.

The Houston attorney said he had received assurances from Koresh that the Branch Davidians would surrender perhaps as early as Wednesday.

DeGuerin said two letters released by Koresh were encouraging.

"In fact, I think the letters are a very good sign," DeGuerin said. "I read them differently, understandably, than the FBI analysts. The letters are a sign they have resolved where they are in their community and are ready to come out and tell the world what really happened on Feb. 28."

Ricks said he hopes DeGuerin's analysis is correct, although FBI specialists say the letters seem to threaten a violent end to the standoff which stretched into its 45th day today.

Ricks said negotiators spoke with Koresh for five hours early this morning, but made no progress toward ending the stalemate.

Authorities say they are considering proposals to end the standoff that range "from storming the place to waiting them out no matter how many years it takes."

FBI spokesman John Collingwood said Monday any tactical plans calling for force are being weighed carefully against potential loss of lives.

"Our intent has been and will be to do whatever we can do to give maximum protection to life on both sides," said Collingwood, who is based in Washington, D.C. "We certainly don't want to do anything that will jeopardize law enforcement officers."

Busy Monday greets local police officers

Officers also worked a traffic accident which sent two people to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for treatment. The mishap occurred at 12:05 p.m. in the 3400 block of College. Involved were a 1989 Chevrolet driven by Otis Craig of 3804 Galveston and a 1968 Ford pickup driven by Samuel Ridge of 2705 Avenue Y. Also struck was a parked, unoccupied 1987 Chrysler owned by Donald Unruh of 2308 41st St.

Ridge, 41, was treated for lower back pain and released from the emergency room. Craig, 74, was admitted to the hospital for a possible head injury. She was listed in "very satisfactory condition" this morning.

Police arrested an 18-year-old male for exhibition of acceleration at 9:09 p.m. in the 3100 block of College Avenue. At 11:02 p.m., officers arrested a 22-year-old man in the 1400 block of 20th Street on a warrant for criminal mischief.

Employees of The Shack notified police at 7:32 a.m. of a possible burglary. Police determined that someone had entered the restaurant by breaking out a back window. It is unknown if anything was taken. A report for burglary of a business has been filed.

At 7:37 a.m., a Class A criminal mischief report was filed in reference to someone shooting several windows at the post office with a BB gun.

An officer located two male juveniles behind the College Park Apartments at 11:30 a.m. Monday. The youngsters were in possession of property which belonged to Wal-Mart. Store employees declined to press charges and advised the juveniles not to return. The boys were taken to the police department and later released to their parents.

At 11:49 a.m., employees of Rent 'N Own filed Class A theft charges against a customer who would not pay for a VCR.

A report for 3rd degree felony theft was filed at 1:19 p.m. Monday in reference to 21 batteries stolen from Wal-Mart sometime during the weekend.

At 5:06 p.m., Teri Partain contacted police in reference to some stolen jewelry. A report for felony theft was filed.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The successful fellow looks for work after he finds a job."

A recent study concluded that church-going women are more likely to assault their mates than those who stay home from services.

We discreetly conducted our own poll and arrived at only one explanation. The constant reminder and reference to "man's sins" causes the little woman to become agitated, and she then takes it out on her spouse.

Women are a fickle bunch. According to another poll, women were asked whether they prefer to watch a man wash dishes or dance naked. Sixty-one percent said wash dishes.

Asked if they'd prefer to marry a guy who looks like Danny DeVito and who does half the household chores, or one who looks like Robert Redford and does none — 43 percent chose Danny and only 46 percent picked Redford.

The survey also found that 42 percent of women and 35 percent of men argue about chores. Forty-six percent of men have cleaned a toilet in the past week and 60 percent have vacuumed and 57 percent have changed sheets.

Only 26 percent of women still do all the housework, and 61 percent of the females washed the car in the last month. Some 14 percent of the men say they've botched chores to get out of doing them again.

Our survey revealed that not only do women expect men to clean up the kitchen, they expect 'em to clean up their act (fully clothed)...or get a fat lip.

We have a friend that reached a perfect solution with his mate. He explained:

"Yep, I brought her true happiness. I know I'm not perfect, and she just loves to nag."

Roby girl wins teen speak event

ROBY — Deanna Kitchens, daughter of Glenda Kitchens of Roby, has been chosen as the 17th Congressional District winner in the RespecTeen "Speak For Yourself" letter-writing contest.

Her entry on smokeless tobacco written to Rep. Charles Stenholm was judged the most outstanding letter in the district.

Kitchens' entry was among 12,000 letters from junior high school students across the country who entered national competition.

Kitchens has earned a certificate and a $50 savings bond for her accomplishment. She is an eighth grade student at Roby Junior High School and a member of Mrs. Pam Osuna's 8th grade U.S. history class. She is also a student of John Fenton of Snyder who teaches in Roby.

Kitchens is the niece of C.J. and Dorothy Lankford of Snyder and the granddaughter of Glenn and Nell Baker of Roby.

Conductor hired

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — The Abilene Philharmonic has announced the hiring of a new music director and conductor, Shinik Hahm, whom they called one of the world's most sought-after young orchestra conductors.

Hahm's selection was "by an overwhelming vote of the selection committee," Tom Boecking, president of the Philharmonic board of directors, said Monday.

Hahm agreed to a three-year contract, Boecking said.

Distance running benefits praised by newest study

DALLAS (AP) — A new study shows marathon runners have better blood flow to the heart than their couch potato counterparts, suggesting that the harsh regimen of long-distance running might have clearcut health benefits.

A team of Stanford University researchers examined the arteries of 22 middle-aged men. Half of the men ran at least 40 miles per week and completed at least two marathons or 100-mile races in the past two years.

The other 11 men were sedentary with no signs of heart disease.

Preliminary findings in the study show that the coronary arteries of endurance runners have about twice the capacity to dilate, thus allowing improved blood flow to the heart.

Dr. William Haskell of Stanford was lead author of this month's report in Circulation, a journal of the Dallas-based American Heart Association.

More study is needed on patients between the two extremes of physical fitness to find out how much exercise is needed to produce the benefit, said Haskell and his colleagues at Stanford.

The researchers plan to recruit a group of inactive men and study their arteries before and after a year of moderate training.

An exercise physiologist, Haskell said that lesser amounts of exercise could prove helpful, "but we don't have any firm data on that yet."

Yet to be determined is whether the increased dilating capacity is caused by the running or by some genetic trait. Researchers also wonder whether the benefits can be provided by drugs.

"So this study is really just a first step," said Haskell.

Dr. Steven Blair of the Cooper Institute for Aerobics Research in Dallas called the research an important start but stopped short of calling it a breakthrough.

"I think they're probably breaking new ground," said Blair. "It suggests that people who really do a lot of exercise may get a benefit."

Mother can't join others who are suing

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Alma Montelongo says there's no difference between her baby born with an undeveloped brain and others who have suffered the rare, mysterious birth defect in Cameron County.

But the law says there is.

The 25-year-old Harlingen woman wants to join those suing 88 companies with border factories, contending that industrial pollution caused neural tube defects in their families.

But because her child was born more than two years ago, the statute of limitations for legal action in Mrs. Montelongo's case has expired.

Emphysema surgery is experimental

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have emphysema [illegible] to clear up this condition to a great extent. Have you heard of such a treatment or was I watching a science fiction channel?

DEAR READER: This may be science fiction; the technique has yet to be thoroughly tested.

Emphysema is marked by blockage of the airways, which leads to breakdown of lung tissue and the appearance of large sacs filled with stale air. The emphysema patient is unable to empty these sacs, which displace normal lung tissue and make breathing difficult.

The purpose of surgery is to collapse or remove these air sacs, thereby permitting healthy lung tissue to expand and function.

In the past, such surgery was technically difficult and fraught with complications, such as infection. With the laser operation, however, there is less damage to normal lung and fewer complications. Despite some surgeons' relative success with the laser operation, the procedure remains [illegible] most emphysema patients are to be content with non-surgical therapy, such as special breathing exercises, supplemental oxygen and drugs to dilate the bronchial passages.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm in a dispute with my in-laws, as they don't see any harm in using the kitchen sink to wash their hands as long as they use a germicidal soap. What do you think of this habit?

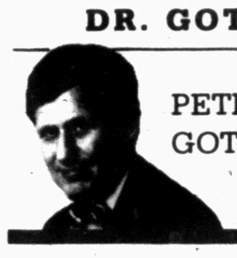

DEAR READER: I think it's OK. Water from the kitchen sink joins waste water from other sources in the house and drains into a septic system or sewer.

I assume that you are concerned that the germs from your in-law's hands may somehow contaminate the kitchen sink and, by extension, the food that is prepared in it [illegible] ly. Hand-washing in any sink in the house is appropriate. (Incidentally, germicidal soap is unnecessary for routine washing, either in the kitchen or elsewhere; soap is soap.)

Find less pedestrian matters to dispute with your in-laws, such as where your children will go to college or whether President Clinton's energy tax favors certain parts of the country.

Illinois town fights EPA lead cleanup

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP) — Norman Soechtig picked out some small, hard pieces of black rubber mixed in with the gravel in his driveway and wondered why the government wanted so badly to take the stuff off his hands.

"Shoot, ain't nothing wrong with it. They're just going to come in here and spend a whole lot of money," said Soechtig, who hauled in the shredded rubber by the truckload more than 30 years ago, when a lead smelting company gave it away for the asking.

The driveway of the home where Soechtig raised two children became the starting point Monday in a $35 million Superfund cleanup that eventually will involve the scraping away of 6 inches of topsoil from a 55-block area.

The Environmental Protection Agency also is trying to figure out what to do with a 250,000-ton mountain of lead tailing, or mining waste, left behind by National Lead Industries, the lead smelter and automotive-battery recycling company that gave Soechtig and dozens others their landfill material.

In the first phase of the cleanup, Soechtig's driveway and 15 other driveways, alleys and parking lots in Granite City and nearby Madison and Venice will be excavated because they contain crushed rubber battery casings contaminated with lead.

No one will be evacuated during this cleanup, which is expected to remove 13,000 cubic yards of dirt, cost $4 million and last four to six weeks. The waste will be put in a landfill in Peoria.

But Granite City is fighting the EPA's plans for the 55-block area of south Granite City and Madison, where 1,400 properties are believed contaminated by a half-century of the lead smelter's belching smokestacks.

In an unusual move, Granite City has joined NL Industries and other companies and is asking a federal judge to order the EPA to re-evaluate its plan. The EPA is suing NL Industries and the other companies for cleanup costs.

City officials fear property values will plummet because of the publicity from the 55-block cleanup and say the larger cleanup is unnecessary because federal officials failed to show the lead in the soil has harmed anyone.

"If the EPA is serious about getting rid of lead, it should worry about home interiors before thinking about digging up property," Alderman Craig Tarpoff said.

EPA officials say soil samples from some neighborhoods have shown lead levels ranging from 500 to 20,000 parts of lead per million parts of soil.

The agency considers anything over 500 ppm to be hazardous; lead can cause neurological problems, particularly in children.

EPA spokeswoman Gina Rosario said no date has been set for the second phase of the cleanup, in which all the topsoil will be removed and replaced.

She said that phase will take years but will not require any evacuations from the area, a rundown section with many weed-choked vacant lots.

Among the 36,800 residents of Granite City, an industrial hub across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, the cleanup has sparked a heated debate. Many want widespread digging to start immediately. Others just want answers.

"Do I go ahead and plant my tulips or what?" asked Mae Ahring, who has lived in her Granite City home for about 50 years and raised a family here.

Orlo Dermott, a retired steelworker who raised two children here, lives a half block fromthe 20-foot-high lead pile on the former NL Industries property. The plant closed in 1979 after NL Industries was bought by Taracorp.

The EPA had planned to cap the heap with rock, clay and the topsoil scraped from the neighborhood, but when it wwa discovered the groundwater underneath the pile is contaminated, the agency said it was reconsidering.

Woman drowns after helping rescue child

MOUNT IDA, Ark. (AP) — The body of a woman who drowned after helping rescue a 5-year-old girl was pulled from the chilly waters of Lake Ouachita by searchers who had to use an underwater video camera.

The body of Penny E. Leach, 33, of Stafford, Texas, was recovered about 5:40 p.m. Monday, a little more than two days after she drowned.

Montgomery County Sheriff James Roy Carmack said Ms. Leach and her two children were aboard a party barge on Saturday, along with the boat's driver, who was a friend of Ms. Leach, and the friend's three children. Ms. Leach reportedly dove into the lake from the barge about 4 p.m., to rescue the boat-driver's daughter, who had fallen into the water.

Names of the other people involved weren't available Monday night.

The friend also dove in the water after she realized that Ms. Leach and the child wouldn't be able to make it back to the boat, Carmack said. The youngster was wearing a life jacket, the sheriff said, but Ms. Leach was not.

The young girl and her mother managed to reach the barge, but Ms. Leach could not, Carmack said. The children aboard the barge waved down a passing fisherman and his wife, who helped pull the friend and her child out of the water, the sheriff said.

The girl who fell into the water was treated and released at a local hospital, Carmack said.

Your Birthday

April 14, 1993

Your financial prospects look very encouraging for the year ahead, thanks to Lady Luck's new interest in your affairs. She'll do most of the spade work, but the rest will be up to you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could prove to be lucky for close friends today and they, in turn, might be fortunate for you. It will be up to you, however, to initiate the activity or action. Aries, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Aries' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of modifying or eliminating significant objectives today, think in terms of enlarging them. During this particular cycle, big could indeed be bountiful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Social contacts could be especially important for you now in helping to further your plans. Don't be afraid to consult with people whom you have a friendly rapport with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unruly development that you've had to contend with recently could take a turn for the better today. Instead of impeding your progress, it may accelerate it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make a point today of showing the same consideration to your mate as you do to close friends. It could trigger something fortuitous that neither of you have counted on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to devote as much attention as possible today to situations that could either make or save you money. You might be quite lucky in the greenback department.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Situations or endeavors you either create or control should work out to your satisfaction today. Delegate as little work as possible and try to do most things yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In situations where you look out for the welfare of others, as well as your own, the end results could exceed your expectations. If selfishness prevails the opposite might be true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to be a bit more farsighted than your peers today, so adhere to your assessments instead of theirs, especially if their projections have a negative bent.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial conditions are trending in a favorable direction for you at this time. There are indications you should be able to generate larger gains from something that is already productive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes it's unwise to pursue a course along the lines of the least resistance, but not today. What comes easily is likely to be best for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't foolishly try to alter situations that are presently running smoothly. Keep things on track, because what is good now could get even better.

Lewis Grizzard improved after heart surgery

ATLANTA (AP) — Humor columnist Lewis Grizzard is out of intensive care, and a hospital official says he may be able to go home this week.

The 46-year-old underwent a triple heart bypass operation as well as surgery to repair a leaky valve and replace most of the aorta and the aortic root.

He was moved out of the intensive care unit on Monday, Emory University Hospital spokeswoman Lee Jenkins said. Jenkins said Grizzard's fever is under control, and he has no sign of infection.

Grizzard, a columnist for The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, is syndicated in 450 newspapers nationwide and has written 20 books.

Kids turn TV off, activity on

For AP Special Features

Your kids watch too much television, you say? So does nearly every other kid in America, according to Ladies' Home Journal Parent's Digest.

The magazine says kids 2 to 11 years of age watch at least two hours a day — and teens tune in even more often. But you can trim kids' viewing hours by paying attention to what they watch, and offering them alternatives such as sports, clubs and music.

For example: your child may like only shows that are just for kids. But those shows are not necessarily the best ones for kids to watch. Some sitcoms are better for children than some kids' shows because they present nicer relationships between children, and between kids and adults.

Some kids' shows are sexist; girls get to do little aside from watching the action. These shows often make fun of people, depicting old women as hags, foreigners as villains. In addition, kids' shows are often filled with violence. They tend to encourage kids to act out, bully, or ignore the rights of others.

So consider trading bad Saturday-morning TV for good nighttime TV. It's a smart way to set a pattern for discriminating viewing. Your children will limit their TV watching on their own as long as television is just one of a large variety of activities in which they participate.

It's up to parents to make sure their kids are involved in sports, clubs and music after school and on weekends. If they have to stay indoors because of the weather, get them started on art, science, or cooking projects, and have plenty of games on hand to play.

Buy a few good videos that they can watch when there are no appropriate programs on TV. Though of course you can rent videos, it makes sense to build a small home library. Like books, if videos are around, children will watch them again and again. By providing kids with activities or videos and by tuning in to your kids when they tune in to the tube, you can create an environment in which TV plays a role, but is not all-important.

Keep a low profile

I was amused by a comment in a recent issue of New Zealand Bridge. While describing his team's match against an African nation at last year's world championship, the writer mentioned that on an early deal the opposing South made a strong jump overcall in diamonds while holding a weak 5-5 in the majors. North, taking his partner seriously, bid a slam, which the Kiwis doubled for 2300. New Zealand won the match, but not by a wide margin. Apparently there were "too few opportunities for the opposing South to do his thing."

Today's deal was also in the magazine. How should South plan the play in four hearts against the lead of the club jack?

New Zealand is a land of four-card majors; hence North's single raise. If North knows of at least five trumps opposite, a pre-emptive jump to four hearts has much to commend it.

Declarer made short work of going down. The first trick comprised the jack, queen, king and ace of clubs. South drew trumps and drove out the diamond ace. However, West led his second club to East's nine. Back came a spade and the defenders had four tricks: two spades, one diamond and one club.

From the bidding and lead, it is almost certain that West has the spade ace. Therefore every effort must be taken to stop East from getting on play. Low clubs should be played from both North and South on the first trick. After winning the club continuation, declarer draws trumps and attacks diamonds. Now, though, East has no entry, and one of dummy's spade losers disappears on the third round of diamonds.

Spring, arthritis

ATLANTA (AP) — Spring cleaning is a chore for anyone but it can be much more difficult for a person with arthritis, according to an Arthritis Foundation spokesman.

"There are many ways to cut down on housecleaning chores," says Dr. Arthur Grayzel, senior vice president of medical affairs for the foundation. "Depending on the extent of your arthritis, one way is to delegate certain jobs to others."

For those who cannot delegate housecleaning jobs, the foundation suggests:

— Make cleaning part of your daily exercise routine. Work in rhythm, playing music if it helps.

— Let both arms share jobs such as dusting.

— Remove surface dirt before it becomes embedded. A daily light pick-up accomplishes more than a monthly heavy cleaning and serves as a beneficial exercise activity.

Seven small ways to stop one big problem.
The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out – STOP! Here's what to do instead:

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult.
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or, better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Phone a friend.
6. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
7. Write for parenting information: Parenting, P.O. Box 2866, Chicago, IL 60690

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The other day I was in the beauty parlor getting a perm. I had my 2-month-old baby with me. While my hair was processing, I placed a baby blanket over my shoulder and breast and started to nurse my child.

Another patron turned to me and said, "How dare you flaunt your breast in a public place!"

I replied, "I thought I had the right to nurse my baby anywhere I needed to."

The manager of the salon was walking by at the time, so this complaining woman said (pointing to me), "Are you going to let that woman expose herself like that?"

To my surprise, instead of defending my right to nurse my baby, the manager tapped my operator on the shoulder and said, "Please hurry up — your patron is offending the clients!"

Abby, I am a rather large woman and am built proportionately, and I have nursed my baby in grocery stores, waiting rooms and the zoo, and no one has ever said a word to me. Nursing is natural. I don't believe in bottles; that is why I nurse my child. Doesn't a mother have any rights these days?

I will [illegible] ty shop again. Do you blame me?

BREAST-FEEDER

DEAR BREAST-FEEDER: No. You have every right to nurse your child wherever you happen to be if, as you say, you cover yourself discreetly. The complaining woman was out of line, and so was the manager [illegible]. You should have no trouble finding a beauty salon that will be more appreciative of your patronage.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been an ardent reader since you began your column and agree with almost all your advice.

I've been married for more than 50 years to a fine man. We have a wonderful family, scads of grandchildren and a few "greats." I adore them all.

My husband started off with very little, but he is a hard worker, and he has provided for me and our family so that I've never had to work outside our home. I lack for nothing, and have never had a clue about how well-fixed we are financially. He's never told me, and I've never asked.

[illegible] and we live well, and so do our children, but Abby, I am kept totally in the dark about my husband's finances. I once asked what I would do if anything happened to him. He said, "Don't worry, dear, you will be all right."

I can't understand why, after all these years, I can't get him to tell me where I stand. I have charge accounts in all the nicest stores, and my husband pays the bills. If I want money, I ask him, and he never says no.

Do you have any suggestions for me with this problem?

IN THE DARK IN CANADA

DEAR IN THE DARK: I am sure there are many other women with the same problem. I am not suggesting that you wrestle him to the floor — but I think you should be a bit firmer about insisting that he share information with you about his assets, insurance policies, and the contents of his will, etc. That would not be asking too much of a partnership that has endured for well over half a century.

Parole board reviewing thousands of cases

HOUSTON (AP) — Cases of up to 20,000 Texas prison inmates are under review in what could be a mass exodus of inmates in an effort to eliminate prison overcrowding, according to a published report today.

State officials deny that parole floodgates are poised to open. But critics say it's "open season" on the public, the Houston Post reported in a copyright story today.

The 18-member Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles began last Friday to review the cases of state prisoners already eligible for parole, panel chairman Jack Kyle told the newspaper.

Capitol Almanac

AUSTIN (AP) — The current legislative session is shaping up to be the worst to date for environmental issues, says the state director of the Sierra Club.

"Never before have I seen such a variety of anti-environmental legislation being introduced and getting such a positive response from Texas legislators," Ken Kramer said Monday.

Kramer and members of other environmental and public interest groups cited more than 30 bills they say are the "baddest of the bad" of an array of anti-environmental legislation.

They said the measures would overturn several pro-environmental measures passed two years ago.

But Rep. John Smithee, sponsor of one of the bills on environmentalists' hit list, says the state must strike a balance between protecting the environment and securing its other interests.

Smithee's bill would create a Rapid Action Council, composed of the governor, lieutenant governor, speaker of the House and two others, to speed up the time in which pollution permits are issued to industries.

Under the measure, the council would have to issue permits within 30 days of receiving an application. The House Environmental Regulation Committee is scheduled to consider the bill Tuesday.

Smithee, R-Amarillo, said the legislation is needed for Texas to be competitive in attracting new businesses.

"We're losing jobs to New Mexico because they respond to permits more quickly," he said. "We're not trying to relax restrictions, we're just trying to move quicker."

SAVING SOCIAL SERVICES

People who say they have been directly affected by the state's human services programs are urging lawmakers to boost funding for social services from current proposals. The House is scheduled to consider Wednesday a $67.4 billion, two-year state budget that includes $8.7 billion in state general revenue funding for health and human service programs. That's a $215.1 million increase over current funding, but about $819 million less than the budget plan earlier passed by the Senate.

POTTY PRIVILEGES

A men's rights activist is criticizing a "potty parity" bill, saying men deserve as much privacy in the restroom as women. Hugh Nations, of the National Coalition for Free Men, is protesting the measure, which would require new stadiums and other public gathering places to have double the number of women's restrooms as men's. Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin and the bill's sponsor, said the proposed 2-to-1 restroom ratio "is simply an effort to face reality and provide restroom facilities in proportion to the different needs of men and women."

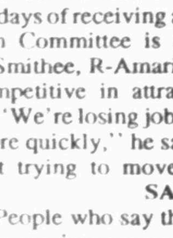

AND ...

Lawn care companies would be required to post signs on lawns treated with pesticides and herbicides under a bill by State Rep. John Hirschi, D-Wichita Falls. The signs would warn people that a lawn has been chemically treated, and that it would be best to avoid contact with the grass for at least 48 hours.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"We don't want to be treated like cattle." — Hugh Nations, of the National Coalition of Free Men, on the so-called potty parity bill.

7th body found in prison riot

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The body of a seventh inmate was found in a state prison where hundreds of barricaded convicts are holding eight guards hostage.

The unidentified inmate was recovered at about 10 a.m. in a section adjoining a cellblock where the siege began Sunday afternoon, said Tessa Unwin, a spokeswoman for the state Department of Rehabilitation and Correction.

The guards were taken hostage at the maximum-security Southern Ohio Correctional Facility as they rushed in to break up a fight that authorities believe was a trick. The inmates took the guards' batons and beat to death fellow prisoners.

Some 450 prisoners were still in control of the section of the prison where the riot started, state officials said.

"It appears as if there was a staged fight," said Reginald Wilkinson, who heads the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction.

Ms. Unwin said authorities were investigating whether the latest death was a homicide or a suicide. No other details were disclosed.

Administrators also noted they are researching the possibility of expanding telephone service to each dorm room. Under such a proposal, WTC would receive a percentage of funds generated from long distance telephone calls. Administrators indicated that the service would pay for itself within two to three years. It would also allow accessibility to more telephone service throughout the campus.

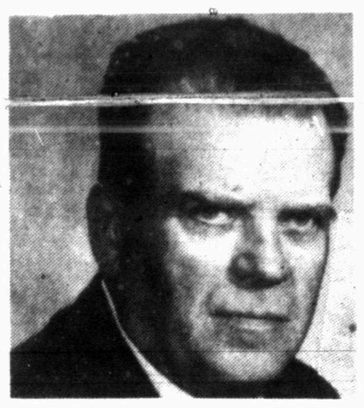

During their tour of the indoor gun range Monday, trustees were told that the range is currently the only indoor range in use at a National Guard Armory in the state. Exclusive use of the range by the college was made possible, in large part, because of the efforts of State Rep. David Counts, said J.D. Barham, director/instructor of criminal justice training at WTC.

Conducting the tour were Barham; Leanord Dodgen, instructor of criminal justice training; Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education; and John Gibson, director of continuing education.

All trustees were present Monday, to include Fagin, Carolyn Barbee, Carl Williams, Jay Kidd, R.C. Patton, Bill Wilson Jr. and John Gayle.

Also attending the tour and meeting were Krenek, Bettie McQueen, dean of instruction; and Gay Hickman, vice president for business and finance.

CLEO G. VAUGHAN

C.G. Vaughan

1927-1993

Services are set for 2 p.m. Friday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Cleo Garland Vaughan, 65, of Merkel. Burial will follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Vaughan died Sunday in the VA Medical Center in Dallas after a lengthy illness.

Born on Sept. 26, 1927, in Scurry County, Mr. Vaughan was the son of the late Jesse T. and Mary Francis Vaughan. Following 21 years of service with the U.S. Army, he retired in 1969 as a Chief Warrant Officer-2. He served in Korea and Vietnam.

Reared in Snyder, Mr. Vaughan returned to Snyder from 1969 to 1974 and then moved to California where he worked as a commercial fisherman. He and his wife, Tomiko Nomura Vaughan, moved to Merkel in March, 1992.

Survivors include his wife, Tomiko Vaughan of the home; four daughters, Bobbie McCollum of Salinas, Calif., Dale Neves of Snyder, Billie Costa of Fresno, Calif., and Mary Hicks of Nashville, Tenn.; two sons, David Vaughan of Salinas, Calif., and Don Vaughan of San Jose, Calif; four brothers, Bascom Vaughan and Odell Vaughan of California, A.W. Railey claims he was only unfaithful

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — With defiance and tears, Walker Railey says he devised a phony alibi six [illegible] for an attempt to kill his wife.

The former minister of the First United Methodist Church in Dallas told a jury Monday he sexually betrayed his wife but did not try to strangle her.

"I was lying to my wife and creating an alibi to go see Lucy Papillon," he said.

Ms. Papillon was his psychologist-lover.

The testimony cut to the heart of the state's case against Railey, 45, on trial for the attempted murder in April 1987 of his wife Peggy, now 44 and irreversibly brain damaged.

It was the first time the defendant has told his story under oath.

Prosecutors allege Railey wanted his wife out of the way so he could run off with Ms. Papillon, 51, the twice-divorced daughter of a Methodist bishop and a member of Railey's congregation.

The trial, in its fourth week, was expected to reach the jury today.

A panel of seven women and five men must now determine Railey's motive for a series of phone calls that April night in which he gave erroneous times and locations on a home answering machine.

Mobile phone records provide indisputable evidence of deception.

START A FAMILY TRADITION

Have you been to a family reunion lately? If not, you could be the one to start a family tradition.

Family reunions are increasingly popular. Thousands of Americans across the country attend family reunions every year. Family reunions reinforce a sense of belonging, family continuity and family pride. Interaction between generations increases respect of both younger and older family members for each other. Younger family members can gain a new sense of worth, while older family members may experience renewed purpose.

Most family reunions are informal eat and chat gatherings. Some include family business meetings, especially those that have a family group which sponsors the reunion every year and has monetary and everyday decisions to make. Your family might especially enjoy a dance, auction or entertainment. The possibilities are endless.

Several main steps are involved in planning a successful reunion. Select a date and location convenient to most family members. Decide on an appropriate facility at which to gather. make sure everyone understands what food or other items to bring and what costs will be involved. Organize a central gathering time and focus for the reunion. Send out notices early.

Summer dates are usually best for reunions. Families can plan vacations while children are out of school. The weather may be hot, but will still allow outdoor activities. Choose the date sufficiently far in advance for all family members to make plans. Depending on the location you choose, you may need to check to see when facilities are available before setting the reunion date.

Prepare and plan reunion activities with all ages in mind. Races and outdoor activities can occupy the young at heart if weather permits. Make rain plans in case of poor weather. A family member may agree to paint faces or tell stories to children. Older family members may enjoy indoor activities such as board games or sharing family photos.

Getting ready for the reunion could include some work on family history. Making a simple chart which shows common ancestors will provide entertainment for everyone. Many younger family members do not have the "common knowledge" about family history that older members take for granted. Even blank family tree structures posted on the wall will be fun to fill in with various family information. Provide enough family tree structures so that all branches of the family can have a place for their name.

Making a family video is another idea. Have one or more "reporters" from the family develop some simple questions about family history and then interview family members on camera during the reunion. This helps people to remember who is who and have a record of family history to watch later or pass on to others not able to attend.

The gathering time of the reunion might feature a family talent show or family storytelling time. Most reunion organizers recognize winners in categories like oldest family member, youngest family member, and family member who has come the farthest distance. During the gathering time, recognize different branches of the family by naming ancestors and having their descendants stand up.

Most important of all, provide plenty of time and a comfortable setting for informal get acquainted and get reacquainted activities so you can sit back and enjoy the results of your efforts. Then ask someone else to plan the event next year to make sure it becomes a family tradition.

SUBSURFACE DRAINAGE — A subsurface drainage is being installed on a field owned and operated by Kent Holmes. The ditcher utilizes a laser leveling process to properly grade the pipe to the outlet. (SCS Photo)

SCS Notes

By Michael Squires
Range Conservationist

Subsurface drainage: what is it and how can it help your farming operation?

Subsurface is a system of underground conduits, such as corrugated plastic pipe, tubing, or tile installed beneath the ground surface to collect and convey drainage water to an acceptable outlet.

When would you use such a system? This practice applies to areas having a high water table where the benefits of lowering the water table or controlling ground water justify installing such a system.

Many producers have utilized this type of system to literally "dry out" areas of their fields so that they can farm these areas again with conventional equipment.

There can be several purposes of installing a subsurface drainage system. One can be to improve the soil environment for vegetative growth, reduce erosion and improve water quality by:

(a) regulating the water table and ground water flows,
(b) intercepting and preventing water movement into a wet area,
(c) relieving artesian pressures,
(d) removing surface runoff,
(e) leaching of saline and sodic soils,
(f) serving as an outlet for other subsurface drains and
(g) regulating subirrigated areas or waste disposal areas.

There are minimum standards set for the design and installation of these systems.

Special tubing and special ditching equipment must be used when installing subsurface drainage systems. When properly installed and maintained, these types of systems can assist a producer in recovering farmland which had formerly been too wet to farm due to high water tables.

It can also eliminate or reduce the leaching of sodic and saline soils which can prevent vegetative growth.

Scalping lawns has no benefit

With the return of warm weather, it's not unusual to see homeowners out scalping their lawns. This is a practice that has been the subject of some controversy. As with most subjects, there are two sides.

One side says there is no agronomic benefit to the lawn from scalping. All this scalping activity generates is a great deal of organic material, much of which ends up in the city landfill.

The other side states that while the above may be true, scalping "cleans" up the lawn and makes it look better. Some say scalping keeps all winter weeds in the lawn from going to seed.

The bottom line is there is no reason to scalp a lawn in the spring. It doesn't harm the lawn, but there's no benefit to the lawn either. Many homeowners feel it's a dirty job and would rather not do it if at all possible. They don't scalp golf courses or footballs fields, and they get along very well ... so why scalp lawns?

Aquaculture industry growing at rapid rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. aquaculture industry grew more than 15 percent annually in the past decade as fish farming expanded to help feed a growing interest in low-fat diets.

The industry grew from $200 million in 1980 to $860 million in 1990, according to a recent issue of Agricultural Research magazine published by the Department of Agriculture.

"Why this growing interest in fish?" writes Lewis W. Smith, national program leader for animal nutrition and aquaculture at the Agricultural Research Service.

"Fish is rich in protein and low in calories, a nutritional profile that appeals to consumers watching not only their waistlines, but also their intake of substances such as cholesterol and food additives," he said. "Fish is also a good source of calcium, phosphorus, potassium and vitamin A."

One of the big segments of aquaculture is catfish farming, and 166,000 acres nationwide now are submerged in catfish ponds. In addition, an estimated 13,000 acres of ponds are under construction, being renovated, or currently out of production.

"In 1990, U.S. catfish growers sold more than 360 million pounds of catfish to processors — a gain of 5 percent over the previous year, but perhaps still a letdown of sorts to those who had enjoyed double-digit increases in years past," the report said.

But despite the growth in U.S. fish farming, it said, the country imported $9 billion worth of fish products in 1990, a level of imports exceeded only by petroleum products.

"Gains in fish farming not only help alleviate that trade imbalance, but also create demand for other U.S. farm goods, such as soybeans and corn," Smith said. "Fish farming offers new crop choices for farmers, as well as providing jobs for off-farm workers."

He said per-person consumption was about 16 pounds of fish and fish products in 1990. "Experts predict this total will jump to 20 pounds by the year 2000 and to 25 pounds by 2010," Smith added.

Trout also is a major aquaculture product, he said, and crawfish, salmon, shrimp, bait fish and even tropical fish are significant segments of the industry.

Sheep, lamb production down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheep and lambs on feed for the slaughter market in the 16 major producing states totaled 1.18 million head on March 1, down 28 percent from the 1.65 million head in January.

The inventory included 1.16 million lambs and 29,000 mature sheep, according to a report by the National Agricultural Statistics Service.

Of the total lambs on feed, 69 percent were in feedlots and the remaining 31 percent were on pasture or crop residue.

Colorado had the most sheep and lambs on feed with 241,000 head, followed by California with 219,000. Wyoming was third with 157,000, narrowly surpassing Texas, with 156,000.

SHS claims twin loop golf championships

Jacobi leads Tigers to District 2-4A crown

LUBBOCK — Snyder boys' golf coach Bob O'Day had said all run was a three-team race between SHS, Plainview and Lamesa.

O'Day's Tigers, led by senior Chad Jacobi's 72, turned it into a fight for second place by shooting a season-best 303 Monday at Elm Grove Golf Course, finishing the year at 1594, 21 shots ahead of runner-up Plainview and 27 strokes in front of defending 2-4A champion Lamesa.

"I'm very proud of the way both teams performed in the final district tournament," O'Day said. "All year they have represented the City of Snyder, Snyder High School, their parents, their coach and themselves very well on and off the golf course.

"We won four out of five fights, district tournaments, and won the war, the district golf championship.

"I can't remember a Snyder team ever shooting a 303," said O'Day, who guided the Tigers to their first loop crown since 1972.

CHAD JACOBI

Jacobi wound up the season as the 2-4A individual medalist, posting a five-round 380. The SHS senior topped defending medalist Chad Huddle of Lamesa, who finished at 393.

CARL STRELECKI

Jacobi and Huddle lead the 1993 all-district squad, which also includes Strelecki, Ramey Kimbrough and Shawn Reeves of Plainview, and Lamesa's Bryan Hawkins and Travis Renfro.

The second team features Patterson, Wunderlich and Armstrong from the Tigers and Bobby Edwards and Jay London of Plainview.

Lamesa's Clint Culp, Derek Cobb and Aaron Moran, Levelland's Tref Lair and Chad English of Plainview were honorable mentions.

Snyder's B team, paced by an 83 from James Pilgrim, wound up the season in fifth place with a combined 328-1746.

Other SHS B scores included from Bucky Williams, Matt Parker's 440 after an 80 on Monday, and Bryan Word, who finished with an 83-438.

Snyder and Plainview will represent the district in the April 27-28 Region 1 Golf Tournament at Riverside Country Club in San Angelo.

The top two teams and individuals at the regional tourney will advance to the state Class 4A event in Austin.

All-stars earn tourney spots

LEVELLAND — Two of Snyder's three entrants in the Regional Little Dribblers Tournament in Levelland earned berths in the national tourney with second-place finishes over the weekend.

The Minor League All-Stars from Snyder, who beat host Levelland, 43-40 in overtime Thursday, fell to Amarillo North, 52-50, Saturday, then nipped Lamesa Black, 48-46, for second place.

The Minor Leaguers will play Silsbee at 6 p.m. April 28 in the opening round at nationals.

Snyder's Majors will also play April 28 in first round action. The 11-12 year olds will battle Mid Cities from the Dallas-Ft. Worth Metroplex at 8:30 p.m.

Snyder Majors earned their spot at nationals by beating Levelland Blue, 52-39, then falling to Lamesa Black, 35-34, in Saturday's championship contest.

Snyder Senior Division All-Stars were eliminated in two games at regionals.

Lowrance paces Snyder girls to third title

LUBBOCK — Snyder's Lady Tigers, led by sophomore Brooke Lowrance's 77, made it three District [illegible] Snyder hammered out a 371 at Elm Grove Golf Club to post a season-total 1,911, 40 strokes better than loop runner-up Lamesa's 1,951.

"The girls were just outstanding," said SHS coach Matt Glenn. "After last week's let-up, they came back and played real solid golf.

"We'll have to keep it up, though. There'll be some tough competition at the regional tournament."

The Lady Tigers and Lamesa will represent the district at the Region 1 tourney April 26-27 in San Angelo.

Lowrance, besides winning individual honors in Monday's round of the district event, claimed her second straight loop medalist crown with a 412 total on five rounds.

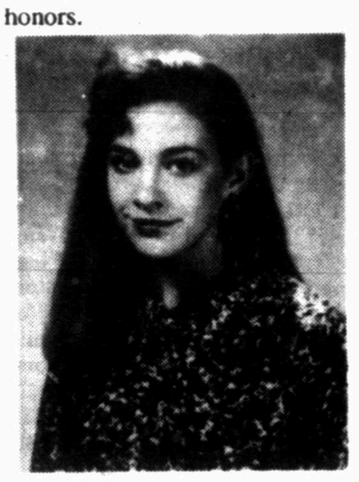

BROOKE LOWRANCE

She was 65 shots better than Plainview's Becca Emmert, who posted a 477 on the season for second place.

Other Snyder scores from Monday include Kelli Lacik's 95, a 98 from Kayla Drain, Paige Bell's 101, and a 108 by Kelly Hart. Mandy Baker, playing as individual for SHS, notched a 109.

Lowrance also led the all-district selections Monday. Em[illegible] Tiffany Everheart and Shelly Brandon were tabbed first team while Lacik, Drain, Dayna Davis and Julie Eversole of Plainview and Gina Braden and Julie Beaty of Lamesa earned second-team honors.

KAYLA DRAIN

The Lady Tigers cruised through the 1993 loop campaign claiming an 18-shot margin on their home course in the 2-4A opener, and winning at every stop except last week's fourth at Plainview.

"They've done really well," said Glenn. "They've really started to gel as a golf team."

Their appearance at the regional tourney will be the fourth straight for the Lady Tigers.

Lady Cards visit Winters

The Hermleigh Lady Cardinals will get to know the Winters Lady Blizzards very well this week.

The two District 1 softball teams will square off in loop meetings today, then again on Saturday.

Today's battle will be in Winters while the Lady Cards will host the Saturday game, rescheduled due to bad weather earlier in the season, at Snyder's North Park.

The Lady Cards carry a 4-0 ledger into Tuesday's game, including a 17-6 road win at Merkel a week ago.

Senior Jennifer Herl, who was the winner versus MHS last week, is the expected starter in Winters.

SHS boosters slate awards banquet

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and are available from boosters and the main office at the high school. Event though tickets will be available at the door, boosters ask that anyone interested in attending get advance tickets.

The hamburger lunch and the following presentation of awards will honor participants in football, volleyball, tennis, basketball, track, golf and baseball.

WTC rodeo exes set homecoming

Team roping competition, a golf tournament and the annual Exes Rodeo will highlight this weekend's homecoming activities for the Western Texas College Rodeo Association.

The team roping, set for Saturday at Scurry County rodeo Association Arena on Gary Brewer Road begins at 1 p.m. Entries will be accepted until noon for the 3-head progressive event. Cost to enter is $100.

The roping is open to anyone.

The WTC Golf Course will host a 4-man scramble Saturday. Registration is $80 per team and entries must be posted by 8:15 a.m. Tee-off is set for 9 a.m.

The 3rd Annual Exes Rodeo will be held Sunday at Scurry County Coliseum. Books open Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. at 573-6701 and Thursday at (806) 756-4461.

The rodeo, which is open to WTC exes only, features all standard college rodeo events. Vold Rodeo Co. will provide the stock.

Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for students.

Also included in homecoming festivities is a Saturday dance, featuring Bareback, at 9 p.m. at Scurry County Rodeo Association Arena. Cost for the dance is $5 per person.

Plainview to host Tigers in 2-4A tilt

The Snyder Tigers will try to claim their first District 2-4A baseball win of the 1993 season today when they visit Plainview for a 6:30 p.m. game.

The Tigers, 6-14 and 0-3, are coming off a 17-9 loss to a powerful Frenship Club Friday.

In spite of the loss, Snyder had a bright spot in sophomore John Clinkinbeard, who slammed a leadoff homer in the first on his way to a 4-for-5 night with three RBI.

Senior Raymond House is expected to draw the start for SHS.

Plainview, in its first season in the district, will counter with either Chad Feris, a right hander with a 5-1 record and an ERA under 2.00, or left hander Adrian Gonzales, who carries a 4-2 mark.

The Bulldogs' offensive leaders are Feris, who is hitting .436 with 15 RBI and seven extra-base hits, and second baseman Cleat Bell, who is hitting at a .395 clip.
