TODAY IS ELECTION DAY

Three things to look for in the at-large race

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Today a special election will be held to determine who will fill the at-large City Council seat vacated when Jerry Morales was elected mayor in November. The following are things to look out for in the at-large race.

Turnout

If the 2008 at-large election is any indication, expect between 6 percent to 7 percent of registered voters to turn out for this one.

Only 6.79 percent, or 4,028, voters participated in the special at-large election on July 22, 2008, four months before a presidential election. Back then, there were 59,364 registered voters.

The most recent City Council election in November, featuring races for mayor, District 3 and District 4, brought out 20.35 percent, or 14,772, of 72,579 registered voters.

Neither candidate expects a high turnout for today's election. Keith McLelland previously said people are fatigued from the November City Council elections and the March primary. Spencer Robnett previously said that because election day is Mother's Day weekend, turnout will be low.

Who votes

Because this is an at-large race, registered voters in all four districts are eligible to cast ballots.

But what remains to be seen is who exactly will come out to the 10 voting centers. Three of the centers are in District 3, three are in District 1, two are in District 4 and the final two centers are in District 2.

Furthermore, it remains to be seen if there will be a large turnout in precincts outside of Council Districts 3 and 1.

In the November mayoral election, the precincts with the highest turnout were all in District 3: Precincts 205, 206 and 207. Precinct 204, the fourth area with most active voters, is located in District 1.

The same trend held true on July 22, 2008, the last time a special election was held for a vacant at-large seat. Precincts 205, 212 and 402 had

Here are some takeaways from Crude Fest 2014

By Rich Lopez
jrlopez@mrt.com

For my first Crude Fest, I think I may have lucked out. Based on what veteran attendees had told me, I should expect heat, hot drunk messes, heat, sand and more heat. This was nary the case Friday as clearly the weather made a deal with Crude Fest founder Cody-Baker for nice breezes and clear skies. Here's hoping the same can be said for Saturday.

But before you go, here are some takeaways from Friday that might add to your Crude Fest experience.

KNOW WHERE TO GO: Especially for new attendees, know where you're going. Thinking there would be large signs directing me to the fest, this was not so. Fortunately, Crude Fest does have an address. Just Google or enter in 5209 South County Road 1270 into your phone

VA hospital wait times investigated in Texas

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The Department of Veterans Affairs is investigating scheduling practices at its hospitals in Texas as part of a nationwide audit of access to care.

A whistleblower at San Antonio's North Central Federal Clinic said he and other clerks were instructed to manipulate scheduling data so it appeared there were no wait times, according to the Austin American-Statesman.

The clerk, Brian Turner, said employees at the Austin VA Outpatient Clinic and the North Central Federal Clinic were told to ensure that wait times appeared as close to "zero days" as possible.

Turner said he had received whistleblower protection from the U.S. Office of Special Counsel.

"The goal is to get the true numbers of wait times so that hopefully these clinics get what they need," Turner said.

Catherine Gromek, a spokeswoman for the VA's Office of the Inspector General, said it is initially focusing on San Antonio, where the agency has received allegations from different sources.

VA officials in San Antonio, however, said in a statement Thursday that Turner's claims were investigated and could not be substantiated.

Turner's allegations mirror data manipulation claims made in New Hampshire and Colorado.

VA Secretary Eric Shinseki announced Thursday a "face-to-face audit" of every clinic and hospital in the nation.

Shinseki said he would continue to lead the federal agency despite calls for his resignation by the American Legion and some in Congress following reports that patients died because of delayed treatment at a hospital in Phoenix and of a secret list the hospital kept of patients waiting for appointments to hide the delays.

The Department of Veterans Affairs has long had a backlog and exceedingly long delays for treatment.

Numbering more than 600,000 when it hit its high point in March 2013, the backlog in VA cases had been cut in half to 308,000 by early May, the VA said. The department deems cases to be part of the backlog once they've gone 125 days without being processed. The VA said it completed more than 500,000 of its oldest claims last year.

At the same time, the VA has acknowledged that 23 patients have died as a result of delayed care in recent years.

Police find suspected burglar in Dumpster

From staff reports

McCabe

A Midland man is suspected of throwing a brick through the back door of a home near Wadley Avenue and Midland Drive and stealing multiple items.

Buddy Ray McCabe, 39, was arrested Thursday evening after police found him in a Dumpster in an alley about one block west of the house, according to an arrest affidavit.

The man had a checkbook, gold watch, rings, a coin collection and stamps, all of which were items the homeowner reported missing, the affidavit said.

The homeowner was inside the home at the time and McCabe immediately fled from the house after he heard another person. The homeowner, however, followed McCabe to the site of the Dumpster, the report said.

Once officers arrived on scene and ran McCabe's information, they found he also had an arrest warrant for a separate burglary charge and for parole violation, both of which are felony charges.

McCabe was charged with burglary of a habitation, a second-degree felony. As of Friday evening, he was still being held with a combined $75,000 bond.

If convicted for the new charge and two warrants, McCabe could face up to 32 years in prison.

Texas man on run since 2007 arrested in India

Associated Press

McALLEN — A man who was able to escape a 2007 murder conviction in a scheme that sent a former South Texas prosecutor and judge to prison has been captured in India, authorities said Friday.

Amit Livingston was convicted of murder and sentenced to 23 years in prison in the slaying of his former lover, Hermila Hernandez, a 31-year-old mother of three whose body was left on the beach at South Padre Island in September 2005. Hernandez had been shot in the back of the head after telling Livingston she wanted to end their relationship, according to the Cameron County district attorney's office.

"The mishandling of the Livingston case and flight from justice were the cornerstone and the centerpiece of the corruption scandal suffered by Cameron County," District Attorney Luis Saenz said in a statement. "With the convictions that followed in federal court, the citizens of Cameron County were ready to turn the page and move forward, but something was still missing: the capture of Amit Livingston."

Livingston, now 46, disappeared after the judge, Abel Limas, took the unusual step of allowing him time to get his affairs in order before reporting to prison. Limas, and the district attorney at the time, Armando Villalobos, were both later convicted in a bribery conspiracy.

The scheme that allowed Livingston to escape featured prominently in the federal corruption trial of Villalobos.

Villalobos had arranged to have a friend and former law partner represent the interests of Hernandez's three children in a related lawsuit. By agreeing to convict and sentence Livingston on the same day, Limas freed up the $500,000 bond that had been posted for his release before trial. An agreement was reached to use that bond money to settle the lawsuit. The lawyer representing the children took $200,000 of it in fees, passing $80,000 on to Villalobos and $10,000 to Limas.

At Villalobos' sentencing in February, Hermila Garcia, Hernandez's mother, told the judge, "(Villalobos) robbed us of justice to sell the murderer his freedom." Villalobos was sentenced to 13 years in prison. Limas, who pleaded guilty to racketeering, received six years in prison.

Livingston was captured Tuesday in the south-central Indian city of Hyderabad. He's being held in India pending extradition to the U.S. It was not immediately clear Friday what led authorities to Livingston.

North Texas cleans up after strong storms

Associated Press

DALLAS — Homeowners, businesses and utility crews cleaned up around the Dallas-Fort Worth area Friday after savage thunderstorms with winds of up to 70 mph tore through North Texas, leaving widespread damage in their wake.

The storms Thursday afternoon toppled large trees, tore holes in warehouse roofs and peeled away the front wall of a church. In west Dallas, the wind flipped a semi-truck trailer.

By Friday morning, about 200 homes remained without power in the area, according to Oncor — a significant improvement on the 34,000 homes reportedly in the dark Thursday afternoon.

Strong winds on Thursday had destroyed a mobile home near Joshua, about 45 miles to the southwest. Johnson County Emergency Management Coordinator Jamie Moore says a mother and child were hurt, but their injuries didn't seem life-threatening.

Hours earlier, emergency workers rescued five teens from a rapidly filling creek in southern Dallas after up to 4 inches of rain flooded the stream.

A neighbor noticed the five teen boys, who had skipped school Thursday, in the Woody Branch Creek Thursday morning. It was unclear if they had been playing in the water or were swept into the creek. All five were taken to a hospital for evaluation.

"They were very lucky to make it out OK," Lt. Robert Brey of the Fire-Rescue swift water team told the Dallas Morning News.

Pope Benedict XVI urged Middle East Christians to persevere in their faith as 20,000 people filled a Jordanian sports stadium where the pontiff celebrated the first open-air Mass of his Holy Land pilgrimage. Russia defended its gold medal at the World Hockey Championships in Bern, Switzerland, beating Canada 2-1 in a rematch of the previous year's final.

One year ago: The Internal Revenue Service apologized for what it acknowledged was "inappropriate" targeting of conservative political groups during the 2012 election to see if they were violating their tax-exempt status. TAKEAWAYS to get clear directions. It's not that hard to get to. The lesson: Don't be like me and assume a large music fest in the middle of the fields is easy to see from Interstate 20.

BRING CASH: There is an ATM on-site, and some vendors take cards, but cash is easiest, really. And then use that cash to purchase the most amazing funnel cake ever. Simply called The Original Funnel Cake, they create an extraordinary fluffy cake about an inch high with a doughy center. The generous piling of powdered sugar with a touch of cinnamon finishes off what is basically a cloud of deliciousness. Also, share it.

HAVE A GOOD MEMORY: Remember where you parked, but more importantly remember where you walked in. Coming out of the stage and vendor area, everything looks the same, so just make your mental landmarks to keep from wandering into campsites on the furthest end of where you parked.

WATCH ON THE BIG SCREEN: The Jumbotron is a welcome addition for those who want to enjoy the show without having to get in the thick of the crowds.

FEEL SAFE: Police and security are everywhere and were courteous and helpful.

BONUS: If your phone is at low charge, check the official merchandise booth and look closely for an outlet strip. Some plugs will be used, but the vendor was nice to let me charge up for a bit.

Texas sues Xerox over Medicaid dental claims

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texas on Friday dropped Xerox Corp. as its longtime Medicaid claims processor and sued the company to recover hundreds of millions of dollars for dental work the state says wasn't necessary.

Xerox responded in a statement that the lawsuit is misdirected and doesn't target dentists who took advantage of the system. "Dentists were putting braces on children who clearly didn't meet the Medicaid standard for that care, and Xerox didn't have the processes in place to review those cases before paying them," Texas Health and Human Services Commissioner Kyle Janek said.

Texas has used Xerox to handle Medicaid processing for the last decade, when the state spent $1.1 billion on orthodontic claims, according to the lawsuit filed in Austin.

Thinking about our daughter's gentle ways and giving heart
I can hear her whisper these words of comfort:

See the dove rest in the arms of the tree;
Know I am at peace, my burdens set free.

Hear the dove sing amid blossoms anew;
A song for your heart: "I am always with you."

See the wings rise to the blue sky above
As comfort surrounds you in the warmth of my love.

And watch the dove fly with the sun shining bright
Then know I am home as I soar toward the light.

Mija it's been fourteen long years since we last held you. Our goal is to hold you again one day. And with that in mind we strive to walk the path you walked to get home. We love and miss you immensely, always know, mija, que tu eres nuestro corazon y que te amamos.

This election could be about what you don't know

■ My perspective is city government hasn't been open about certain issues

KEITH MCLELLAND
City Council candidate

I am a resident of the city of Midland, not a politician.

The reason I ran for mayor and now the Midland City Council are the same: I do not agree with the way things have and are being done. I have some information to share with you that will help you understand my perspective.

It is my belief the financial package given to Energy Tower developers was a done deal even before a City Council meeting took place when public comments were taken regarding the use of $60 million in incentives for the tower project. I also believe that the tower and many other decisions are being made in closed-door meetings and that we are not allowed to see the minutes unless we obtain a court order. Did you know that making decisions behind closed doors is a violation of the Open Meetings Act?

Did you know the term sheet for the tower was not to be voted on by the City Council until after the mayoral election? So why did they rush to get it done before? And why did the mayor and several City Council members abstain from the vote due to a conflict of interest? Why did Jerry Morales and John James both hide the fact that the City Council agreed to tear down the Building of the Southwest and build a parking garage for Hotel Fuel (according to comments made at a mayoral forum in 2013)? Did you know when asked about it they both claimed no knowledge of it? Why?

Do you know that the current fire chief's policies has caused the department to lose several captains and seasoned firefighters and dropped the morale in the department? This is what fire department officials have told me. Did you know that we still do not have enough fireman or policemen but we have enough money to study trash?

Did you know that when government on any level is not transparent it means they are hiding something? Did you know that I believe that government should be "of the people, for the people, by the people?" Did you know that transparency is what I will bring back to the Midland City Council and your voice will again make the decisions on the direction of this city?

Did you know that I intend on bringing the Constitution back into local government? So if you did not know, now you do, and if you agree, vo... Keith McLelland for City Council. It will be my privilege and pleasure to serve.

It's important to stay connected with residents

■ No matter the issue, constituents will know how I stand

SPENCER ROBNETT
City Council candidate

If elected to represent Midland, I will focus my time on the most critical issues Midland currently faces. Adequate infrastructure, proper first responder funding, a sensitive water supply and prudent development are all areas where Midland must be persistent. As we continue to grow, we, of course, will face unexpected challenges. It is important you understand some of my background that affects how I lead and how I will arrive at the decisions that will lead Midland forward when those challenges arise.

After graduating from Texas A&M, I moved to Washington, D.C., to work for Republican Congressman Kevin Brady, who represents the 8th District of Texas. My time in our nation's capital in the spring of 2010 coincided with HR 3590, the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act. Back on Earth we know HR 3590 as Obamacare, which is far from affordable and is more than likely the single-most intrusive piece of federal legislation I will see in my lifetime.

During the Obamacare debacle, I had a crash course of exactly the wrong way to exercise decision making on behalf of a voting populous. The one thing that continued to perplex me was how disconnected the representatives in Washington were from their constituents. Merely days after Obamacare passed the house, Rasmussen polls showed the American people still favored a full repeal by up to 13 points. This was a shining example of how elected officials with good intentions can make poor decisions when they become disengaged from the people they vow to represent. If elected, I promise to stay connected to the residents of Midland and govern with openness and transparency. While I cannot assure you we will agree on every subject, I can promise you will know where I stand on every issue and you will know how I arrived at the decisions I make. I will always be prepared through diligent study, active listening and careful evaluation of the issues all focused on achieving principled decisions that will lead Midland forward.

I also want you to know how serious I take the responsibility of serving on the Midland City Council and the workload required of this job. I think an adequate benchmark of how serious a candidate views the responsibility of serving on the city council is directly reflected in the effort shown during the campaign season. We have shown our respect to the city and to the position by running a thorough, honest and well-planned campaign. We are proud of our fundraising efforts and endorsements from numerous community leaders and truly appreciate their faith in my ability to serve the residents of Midland. While some may criticize fundraising, yard signs and endorsements, it is these elements that validate your campaign and decision to run for public office. If elected to represent Midland, I can assure you I will commit the time and energy required of the position, just like I have to my previous two campaigns.

Throughout this campaign and also my District 3 campaign I have been flooded with calls, texts and emails of encouragement and also regarding various issues the city currently faces. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate everyone reaching out and how important these calls are. The most careless action I can take, if elected, is assuming office and not remaining acutely aware of the pulse of the community I have been elected to represent.

Additionally, I am a Midlander through and through. I was born in Midland, raised in Midland, graduated from Midland public schools, and my wife and I look forward to raising a family here someday. My parents and grandparents are lifelong Midlanders, as well. Midland values are ingrained in me and are a large part of who I am. Our city is unique in the fact that it provides world class business opportunities with the small town quality of life we all enjoy. Couple that with enhanced oil recovery techniques and nearly 300 days of annual sunshine, and it is easy to see why Midland is growing. I now look forward to serving the city that has given me so much. I'm not looking to change any of the reasons we all love Midland, I'm looking to preserve them. There is a way to do that prudently as we grow and keep the best interest of Midland at heart. I would be honored to go to work for the city of Midland and I would appreciate your vote today for Midland City Council at-large.

the highest turnout, all in District 3.

Precinct 403, also in District 3, gave Robnett and McLelland the most votes for their respective elections in November.

Age

If Robnett, 25, wins, he would be the youngest person to ever serve on City Council.

McLelland, 53, is at an age more in line with the current council members.

If the November District 4 race between J. Ross Lacy and Michael Trost was an indication, Midlanders don't seem to hesitant to vote for a younger candidate.

Robnett, who was 25 when he ran against Sharla Hotchkiss in November for District 3, lost by 24 votes.

In 2007, then 21-year-old Jonathan Dumire ran against Scott Dufford and Berry Simpson for an at-large seat. Dufford, a District 3 councilman at that time, came out victorious.

And in 1972, Brad Patterson, who was 18 years old at the time, ran for mayor and lost to Ernest Angelo Jr. Patterson is the youngest candidte to ever run for City Council.

Nigerian communities look home in grief

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Pastor Michael Osifo recalls being able to play soccer until nightfall as a child in Nigeria. Augusta Ekong remembers sleeping in her boarding school bed, with no fear and no need for security workers.

That Nigeria is gone, they say, replaced with violence, bloodshed and fear.

Thousands of miles from their home countries, in Houston and Dallas — which have large Nigerian populations — Osifo and Ekong are gathering their communities, seeking to help resolve a crisis in which nearly 300 girls were kidnapped from a school by Islamic militants and more than 100 others were killed in a marketplace in Borno state in northeastern Nigeria.

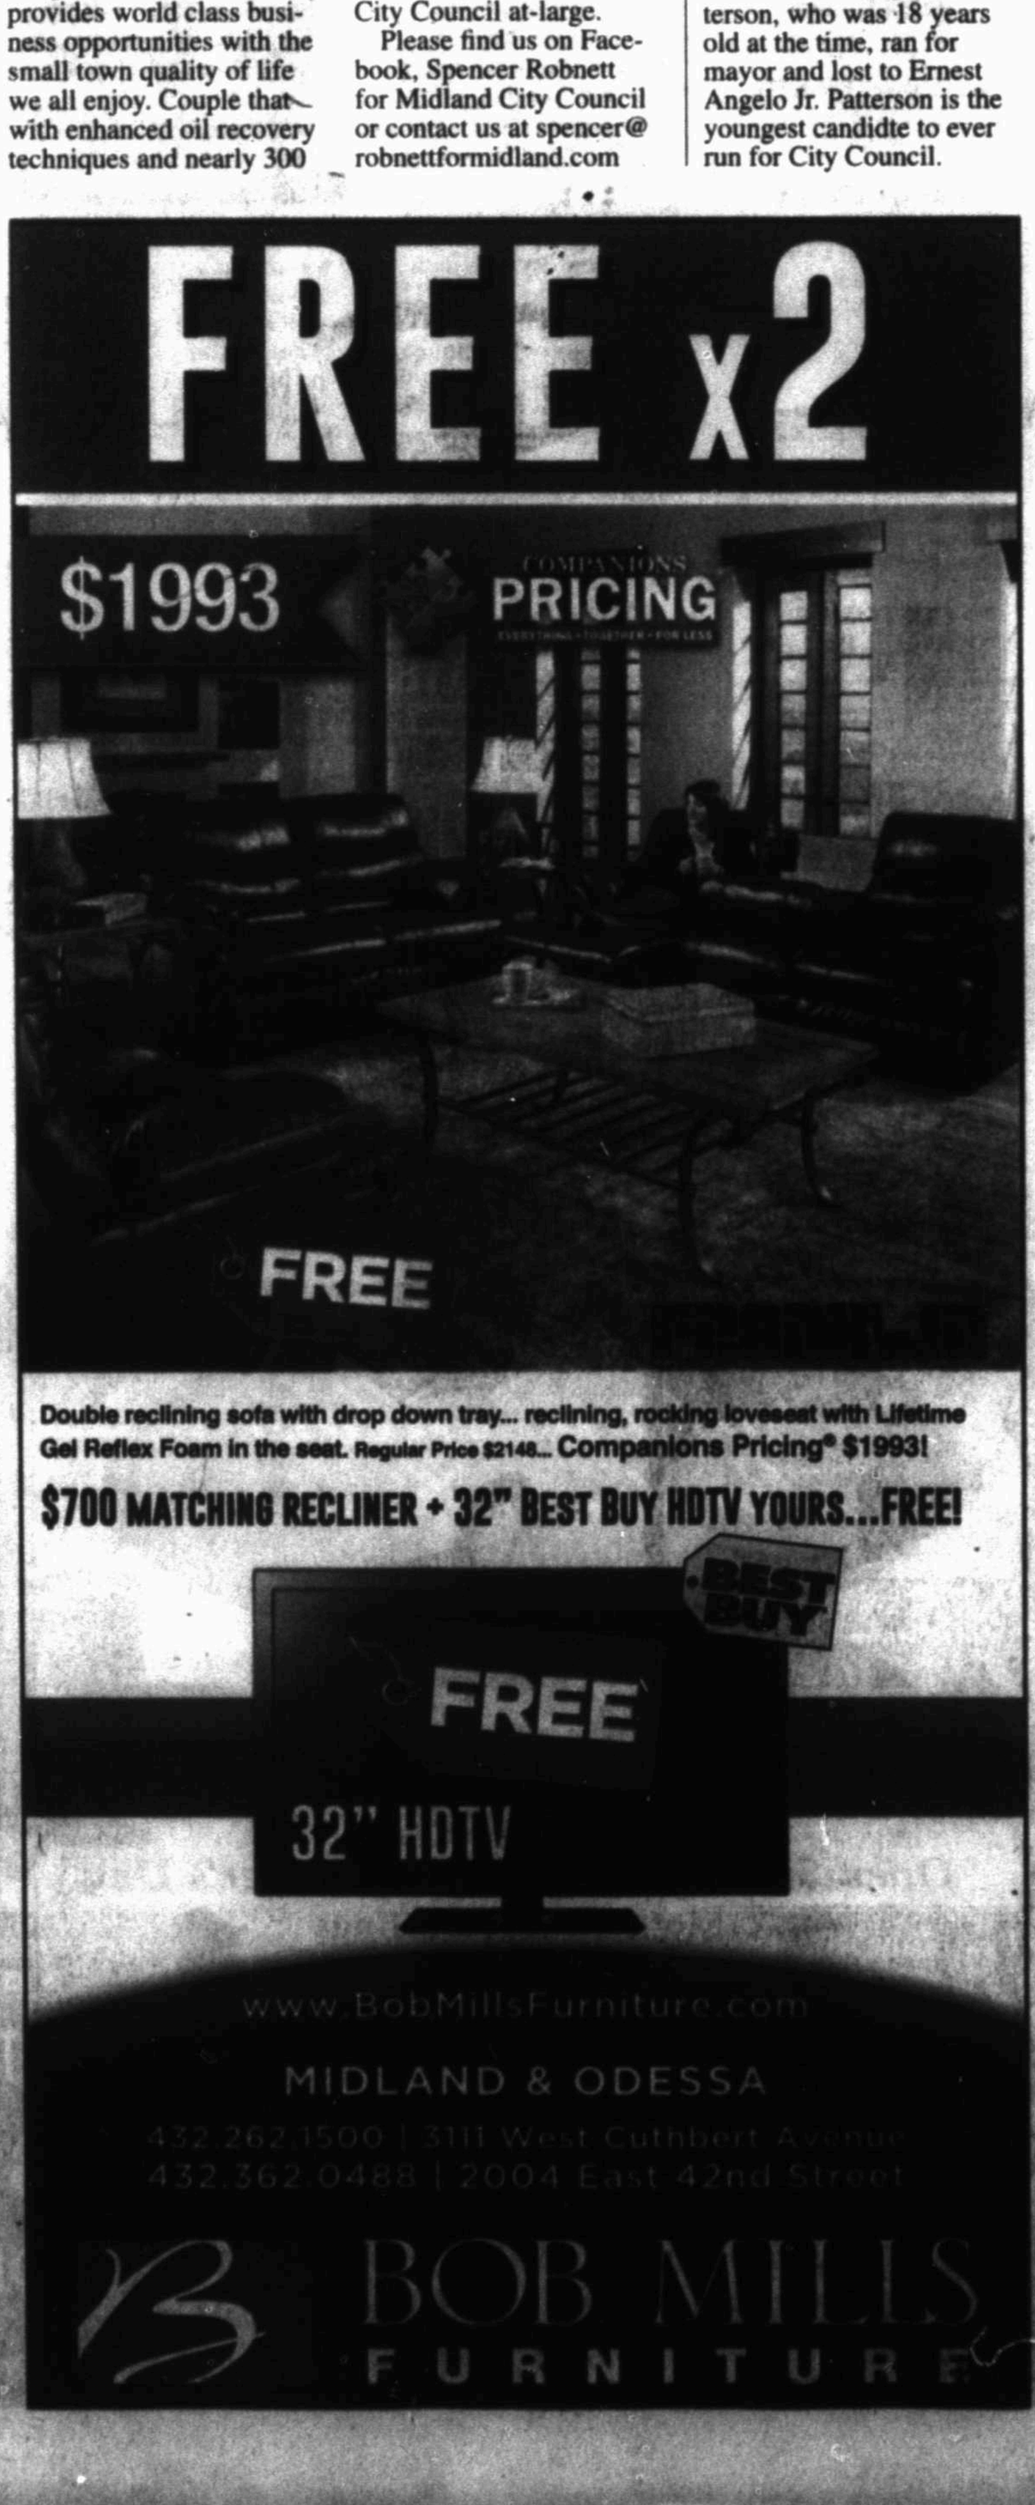
Osifo will gather his congregants Friday in Sugar Land to discuss how they can connect with other ministries to send aid to Nigeria.

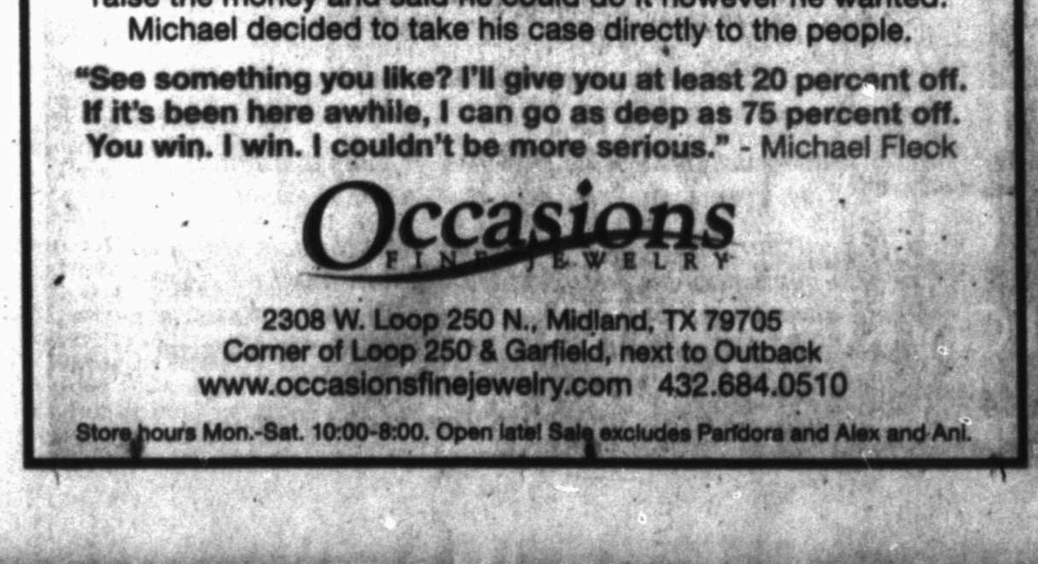
Ekong is working with other groups, including a Muslim organization, to hold a rally Sunday in front of Dallas' City Hall.

"What can we do?" asked Osifo, pastor of The Redeemed Christian Church of God. "We need ideas. How can we take this thing to the next level?"

"We know the Western world has agreed to help us," Osifo said, referring to U.S. and British assistance in helping to obtain the release of the 276 girls being held by the Boko Haram militants. "But that's not enough."

Boko Haram, a Muslim extremist group that aims to impose Islamic law in Nigeria, kidnapped the girls April 15.





Arkansas judge strikes down gay marriage ban

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — A judge on Friday struck down Arkansas' ban on same-sex marriage, saying the state has "no rational reason" for preventing gay couples from marrying.

Pulaski County Circuit Judge Chris Piazza ruled that the 2004 voter-approved amendment to the state constitution violates the rights of same-sex couples. He didn't put his ruling on hold as some judges have done in other states, opening the door for same-sex couples in Arkansas to begin seeking marriage licenses, though it wasn't clear whether that would happen before Monday.

"This is an unconstitutional attempt to narrow the definition of equality," Piazza wrote. "The exclusion of a minority for no rational reason is a dangerous precedent."

State Attorney General Dustin McDaniel's office said he would appeal the ruling and asked Piazza to suspend it during that process.

"We respect the Court's decision, but, in keeping with the Attorney General's obligation to defend the state constitution, we will appeal," spokesman Aaron Sadler said.

Piazza issued his ruling late Friday, about half an hour after the marriage license office in Pulaski County closed.

Arkansas courthouses typically aren't open on weekends, but with the state in its early-voting period for a May 20 primary, several clerks' offices will be open Saturday. However, clerks reached by The Associated Press after Piazza issued his ruling said they hadn't been formally notified of it and weren't prepared to begin issuing marriage licenses.

At least one couple who sued over the ban said they hoped to wed quickly. Kathy Henson said she and her girlfriend Angelia Buford planned to seek a marriage license in neighboring Saline County as soon as offices opened.

"We think that (Piazza) did a really great job and that he ruled on the right side of history," Henson said.

The ruling came a week after McDaniel announced he personally supports gay marriage rights but would continue to defend the constitutional ban in court. Sadler said McDaniel sought the stay because "we know that questions about validity of certain actions will arise absent a stay."

The amendment was passed in 2004 with the overwhelming support of Arkansas voters. Piazza's ruling also overturns a 1997 state law banning gay marriage.

In his decision, Piazza cited the U.S. Supreme Court's 1967 decision that invalidated laws on interracial marriage.

"It has been over 40 years since Mildred Loving was given the right to marry the person of her choice," Piazza wrote, referring to that ruling. "The hatred and fears have long since vanished and she and her husband lived full lives together; so it will be for the same-sex couples. It is time to let that beacon of freedom shine brighter on all our brothers and sisters. We will be stronger for it."

Marine Corps counsel to review raid on law offices

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Military criminal investigators raided Marine Corps defense counsel offices at Camp Pendleton, opening files during a 2 1/2-hour search and potentially compromising scores of cases, the attorney who oversees Marine defense lawyers in the region said Friday.

Investigators raided the offices May 2 in search of a cellphone tied to a case being tried at the base, north of San Diego, Lt. Col. Clay Plummer told The Associated Press.

"This is just unacceptable," said Plummer, the Marine Corps' regional defense counsel for the West. "Just think of the U.S. federal Marshals or FBI raiding a public defender's office, that's what this is the equivalent to. It's crazy."

Marine Corps officials called it a "rare event" and said a neutral, independent judge advocate has been appointed to review the seized evidence to identify whether any potential privileged material was improperly disclosed. Also to be reviewed is how the search was conducted.

Officials said they could not comment further because of pending litigation and the independent review.

Defense lawyers were contacting dozens of clients to inform them that military law enforcement officials had opened case files, Plummer said.

NEW YORK

US oil price flat for week

The price of oil slipped Friday to just under $100 a barrel, leaving crude nearly flat for the week.

Benchmark U.S. crude for June delivery fell 27 cents to close at $99.99 in New York. The contract ended last week at $99.76.

Brent crude, a benchmark for international varieties of oil used by many U.S. refineries, declined 15 cents to close at $107.89 in London.

Crude supplies in the U.S. fell this week, which surprised traders and gave some support to prices. But supplies remain ample and refineries are pumping out enough fuel to meet demand. That suggests refineries won't need to quickly draw down supplies in the coming weeks.

Overseas demand for crude appears muted and supplies are plentiful, but worries over the political turmoil in the Ukraine and continued disruption of oil exports from Libya have kept Brent prices up.

"Libya's two most important oil terminals, Ras Lanuf and Es Sider, will remain shut for the foreseeable future which is likely to continue to severely hamper the supply of oil," said analysts at Commerzbank in Frankfurt in a note to clients.

Pro-Russian insurgents in eastern Ukraine are planning a referendum on independence over the weekend, in apparent defiance of a call by Russian President Vladimir Putin to put off the vote.

Traders worry Russian energy exports could be interrupted if further instability in Ukraine results in stronger Western sanctions against Russia.

The average U.S. retail price of gasoline fell less than a penny to $3.66 a gallon.

In other energy futures trading in New York:

- Wholesale gasoline fell 0.9 cents to close at $2.896 a gallon
- Heating oil fell 1.3 cents to close at $2.907 a gallon.
- Natural gas fell 4.1 cents to close at $4.531 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Corn price falls on record crop forecast

Corn dropped Friday after the government forecast a record crop for this year.

The price of corn for July delivery fell 9 cents, or 1.7 percent, to $5.08 a bushel.

The loss pared this year's gain for corn to 20 percent. The price of the grain has climbed this year as planting was delayed by unseasonably cool weather in the U.S. and on concern that corn exports from Ukraine would fall due to tensions with Russia.

U.S. farmers are forecast to produce 13.9 billion bushels of corn this season, according to the Department of Agriculture's forecast. The government is predicting that higher crop yields will offset a reduction in the number of acres of corn that are planted. The report also said that corn production globally would remain at record levels.

"Wheat and corn supplies may be tight here in the United States, but between what we're growing now and what will be grown around the world, that supply tightness will be alleviated," said Mike Zuzolo, president of Global Commodity Analytics and Consulting.

Wheat prices also fell after the report.

July wheat fell 12.75 cents, or 1.7 percent, to $7.23 a bushel. Soybeans for July rose 17.50, or 1.2 percent, to $14.87 a bushel.

Metal prices were mixed.

Gold for June was little changed from Thursday at $1,287.60 an ounce.

July silver fell 1.7 cents, or 0.1 percent, to $19.12. Palladium for the same month fell $8.20, or 0.6 percent, to $1,429.90 an ounce. Palladium for June dropped $4.30, or 0.5 percent, to $799.75.

Copper for July rose two cents, or 0.7 percent, to $3.08 a pound.

Watchdog: Pipeline safety oversight inadequate

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal agency responsible for making sure states effectively oversee the safety of natural gas and other pipelines is failing to do its job, a government watchdog said in a report released Friday.

The federal effort is so riddled with weaknesses that it's not possible to ensure states are enforcing pipeline safety, the report by the Transportation Department's Office of Inspector General said. The federal Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration, or PHMSA, isn't ensuring key state inspectors are properly trained, inspections are being conducted frequently enough and inspections target the most risky pipelines, it said.

The findings come more than three years after a gas pipeline explosion and fire killed eight people, injured 58 and destroyed much of a subdivision in San Bruno, California, a suburb south of San Francisco. Accident investigators cited weak state and federal oversight.

The nation's network of about 2.5 million miles of pipelines moves millions of gallons of hazardous liquids and 55 billion cubic feet of natural gas every day. Eighty-five percent of these pipelines are under state authority. The report doesn't address the safety administration's oversight of interstate pipelines like the proposed Keystone XL oil pipeline.

Associated Press

A massive fire roars through a mostly residential neighborhood in San Bruno, California, in 2010. A report released Friday by the Department of Transportation's inspector general says the federal agency responsible for making sure states effectively oversee the safety of natural gas and other pipelines is falling down on the job.

Cynthia Quarterman, head of the safety administration, defended her agency's record, pointing to a two-thirds decline in the number of accidents and incidents involving gas distribution pipelines over the past 30 years.

There were 21 serious incidents on distribution pipelines in 2013 and 24 incidents in 2012, "which were the lowest number of serious incidents on record for the past 30 years," she said in response to the inspector general's findings included in the report.

Since 2010, when the San Bruno and four other major accidents occurred, she wrote, there have been no serious incidents to date on intrastate transmission lines, which are larger than distribution lines. But the agency also fully or partially agreed with seven recommendations made in the report.

Among the weaknesses cited in the report is that the safety administration is using an outdated formula to calculate the minimum number of inspectors states need. More inspectors may be needed to carry out new inspection methods and responsibilities since the formula was developed in the 1990s.

More than 20 percent of the nation's total gas distribution pipelines are more than 50 years old or composed of material such as cast iron or bare steel that are more susceptible to failure than newer pipelines made with more resilient materials. However, the safety administration's staffing formula also doesn't take into account whether more personnel are needed to inspect these riskier pipelines, the report said.

The agency also hasn't set minimum qualifications for state inspectors who lead inspection teams, the report said. In one state, for example, an inspector with less than one year's experience was allowed to lead inspections, it said.

"Because it has not set minimum qualifications for state inspectors to lead standard inspections, PHMSA cannot be sure that state inspections cover all federal requirements and ensure pipeline operators maintain safety," Assistant Inspector General Jeffrey Guzzetti said in the report.

The safety administration requires states to use 14 risk factors when deciding how to prioritize pipeline inspections, but the agency isn't explicit on how the risk factors are supposed to be weighed, the report said.

As a result, four of five states examined by the inspector general's office were simply scheduling inspections based on how long it had been since the previous inspection, ignoring other risk factors, the report said. The safety administration also doesn't tell states how often pipelines must be inspected. Investigators found one state was allowing as long as eight years to lapse between reviews.

House votes to make research tax credit permanent

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House voted Friday to make permanent a tax credit that rewards businesses for investing in research and development, pushing Congress toward an election-year showdown over a series of expired tax breaks that are popular back home but add billions to the budget deficit.

The research tax credit expired at the beginning of the year, along with more than 50 other temporary tax breaks that Congress routinely extends.

House Republicans said Friday's vote was the beginning of a broader effort to add more certainty to the tax code. In the coming weeks, they hope to vote on bills to make more temporary tax breaks permanent, though they have yet to decide on which ones.

"Beyond having the dubious distinction of the highest corporate rate in the world, the United States is also the only country that allows important pieces of its tax code, like the research and development tax credit, to expire on a regular basis," said Rep. Dave Camp, R-Mich., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. "Businesses cannot grow and invest when the tax code is riddled with instability and uncertainty."

Camp noted that the research credit has been around since 1981 and has been renewed many times with broad bipartisan support. Friday's bill passed by a vote of 274 to 131, with 62 Democrats joining nearly every Republican in support.

Some House Democrats called Friday's vote a corporate giveaway that would add $156 billion to the budget deficit over the next decade. They goaded Republicans for calling themselves fiscal conservatives while adding so much to the nation's long-term debt.

"It's not only fiscally irresponsible, it's also hypocritical," said Rep. Sander Levin of Michigan, the senior Democrat on the Ways and Means Committee.

President Barack Obama supports making the research and development tax credit permanent. But the White House threatened to veto the House bill because it isn't offset by other tax increases. The veto message noted that if all the 50-plus temporary tax breaks were made permanent, it would "add $500 billion or more" to the deficit.

"The administration wants to work with Congress to make progress on measures that strengthen the economy and help middle-class families, including pro-growth business tax reform," the White House said in a statement. "However, making traditional tax extenders permanent without offsets represents the wrong approach."

To generate support in Congress, lawmakers routinely pair tax breaks that affect millions with more narrow ones that don't.

Among the biggest of the tax breaks allowed to expire at the beginning of the year: an exemption that allows financial companies to shield foreign profits from being taxed by the U.S., and several provisions that allow businesses to write off capital investments more quickly. There is also a generous tax credit for using wind farms and other renewable energy sources to produce electricity.

The biggest tax break for individuals allows people who live in states without an income tax to deduct state and local sales taxes on their federal returns. Another protects struggling homeowners who get their mortgages reduced from paying income taxes on the amount of debt that was forgiven.

Among the more narrow ones: tax breaks for film producers, motorsport race track owners, the makers of electric motorcycles and teachers who buy classroom supplies with their own money.

"What one person thinks is pork and misguided tax policy is someone else's critical economic development program," said Jon Traub, a former Camp aide who is now a managing principal at Deloitte Tax LLP.

Court: Justice Department doesn't have to turn over cell-tracking info

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department does not have to turn over information on cases involving warrantless cellphone tracking if the cases ended without a defendant's conviction, a divided federal appeals court ruled Friday in upholding privacy protections for people acquitted of crimes.

The ruling came in a public records lawsuit brought by the American Civil Liberties Union, which had requested information on federal cases in which law enforcement had obtained cellphone tracking data without a warrant to track a user's whereabouts.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit had previously held that the Justice Department was obligated under the Freedom of Information Act to disclose case names and docket numbers for warrantless cellphone tracking prosecutions that ended with a conviction. But in a separate 2-1 decision Friday, a three-judge panel of the court said defendants who have been acquitted or who have had charges against them dropped enjoy extra privacy protections that outweigh the public benefit in disclosing that information.

"While this attention would have been warranted at the time of indictment, now that these defendants have been acquitted or had the relevant charges dismissed they have a significant and justified interest in avoiding additional and unnecessary publicity," Judge David Tatel wrote. He said a person acquitted of financial fraud looking to rebuild his life "might be especially dismayed" to learn of the information's release.

Though the appeal centered on a small number of cases, the dispute nonetheless unfolded against the backdrop of ever-advancing law enforcement technologies and the ongoing debate over privacy protections.

"Once a person has been publicly indicted, and that information is easily available on the Internet, it's just unrealistic to say that the person has an ongoing interest in the privacy of his public indictment" that outweighs the public's right to know what happened, said Arthur Spitzer, the legal director of the ACLU of Washington, who said he was disappointed by the decision.

Greenwood's McKee takes silver medal in high jump

By Chris Hummer
MRT correspondent

AUSTIN – Greenwood's Morgan McKee appeared at state as a freshman, sophomore and junior, but one accomplishment remained elusive despite her sustained success – a medal.

McKee finally reached the podium Friday afternoon, earning a silver medal in the girls Class 3A high jump by clearing 5 feet, 7 inches at Mike A. Myers Stadium.

"It feels awesome, such a blessing," McKee said. "I can't believe I got to go out with a medal my senior year."

McKee came close to pushing the event past 5 feet, 8 inches, but she clipped the bar following the apex of her final jump, giving Bridge City's Alexus Henry the gold. McKee, the top qualifier entering the event, was a little disappointed, but thrilled overall to have finally earned a Top-3 finish. She credits her success to the experience she's compiled over the past four years.

"I felt really relaxed," McKee said. "I wasn't as nervous as I was my freshman or sophomore year. I just felt like it was just another meet."

The competition came down to a height of 5 feet, 7 inches with three competitors remaining. After missing twice at the height, McKee had the opportunity to win at least a silver medal on her third jump. The senior streaked in from the left side of the field — the only competitor to lead up from that side — and just cleared the bar.

The difference between bronze and silver can be huge, but McKee felt relaxed on the attempt because she had already clinched a medal.

"It was pretty nerve-racking," McKee said. "But at that point I knew I had a medal, so if I could clear it, I could clear it. If I couldn't, I couldn't."

McKee has not missed the UIL State Track & Field Meet in four years, but her latest appearance is particularly notable after she underwent a knee scope in December. The operation cleared a calcium deposit in her jumping leg, but may have proved a blessing in the long run as it may have caused her to drop

MHS silences Richland

Grebeck, Bullin lead Bulldogs victory

Bulldogs 9
Rebels 5
Midland High leads series, 1-0

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

LUBBOCK — Sean Grebeck likes to talk about how mistakes are going to happen in high school baseball.

Friday afternoon, the Midland High senior infielder and pitcher took advantage of a pair of Richland mistakes to prevent a run and then used another mistake to score a key run in the seventh inning.

Plus, he also pitched the final 2 2/3 innings to preserve a 9-5 Bulldog victory against Richland in the first game of a Class 5A area round series at Hays Field.

"Those (runs) in the seventh were huge and we executed but once again that's high school baseball, guys mess up things all the time," said Grebeck, who earned a save for his efforts.

Midland High (23-8) will try to sweep the series from the Rebels (25-10) when the series resumes at 12:30 p.m. today at Hays Field.

Grebeck had been playing third base as regular third baseman Lance White was on the mound on Friday, but with one out in the fifth and the Rebels already having scored three runs Grebeck went to the mound not having had a chance to loosen up and Midland High up 7-3.

Grebeck struck out the first batter he faced, but then walked the bases loaded and two more runs scored on a Jason Raughton throwing error.

And what once was a 7-0 MHS lead was now 7-5, and the Richland bats were starting to heat up.

"It was a little different coming in with zero warm-up pitches but we did what we had to do," Grebeck said.

Grebeck again got himself into trouble in the sixth with a walk to put runners on first and second, and then an intentional walk to Ryan Ward

The Chaparrals (35-22), who have won 22 of their last 26 games, next face McLennan Community College — a 7-2 winner over Frank Phillips College earlier on Friday — in a 5 p.m. quarterfinal game today at Dan Law Field at Rip Griffin Park. Grayson County (40-13) falls into the loser's bracket and will play FPC at 10 a.m. today.

Cowboys trade up to acquire pass rusher

By Tom Orsborn
San Antonio Express-News

IRVING — Demarcus Lawrence welcomes the daunting task of replacing the Dallas Cowboys' career sacks leader.

"I know it's big shoes to fill," he said of following DeMarcus Ware, "but I'm going to work my butt off and give it my all."

Determined to bolster their horrific, pass-rush weak defense, the Cowboys selected the Boise State defensive end with the 34th overall pick Friday night.

Dallas moved up to grab Lawrence by trading their second- and third picks (Nos. 47 and 78) to Washington.

"In the area of putting pressure on the passer," owner Jerry Jones said, "he certainly was a first-round player for us."

The Cowboys envision Lawrence playing right defensive end after he registered 10½ sacks and 20½ tackles for loss last season. Dallas had Lawrence ranked as the draft's third-best pass rusher behind Jadeveon Clowney, who Houston selected first overall, and Anthony Barr, who Minnesota grabbed with the No. 9 overall pick.

With Barr and other defenders they coveted gone in the first round, the Cowboys selected Notre Dame offensive lineman Zack Martin 16th overall Thursday night. Desperate for a pass rusher, Dallas began talking to the Redskins about a trade shortly thereafter.

"We really wanted this guy," said Cowboys executive vice president Stephen Jones, who admitted it was "painful" giving up a third-round pick. "We didn't want to take a chance on

Midland High leads series, 1-0.

LUBBOCK — The Midland High softball team scored two early runs against Richland against Friday afternoon.

And those two runs were enough for the Lady Bulldogs to upend the District 4-5A champion Rebels 2-0 in the first game of a Class 5A regional quarterfinal series at Plains Capital Park.

Richland (28-8) did everything it could to score runs against the Lady Bulldogs and starting pitcher Stefani Baeza. But Baeza worked out of multiple bases-loaded jams to keep the Rebels off the scoreboard and set Midland High (25-8) up to sweep the series when it resumes at 11 a.m. today at Plains Capital Park.

"I just knew that my defense was there for me," said Baeza, who gave up 10 hits in the game. "I just pitched the ball and they got the outs. I knew I had some cushion, I guess you could say, and that was helping."

Brooke Ryan's RBI triple and Aubrie Elliott's run-scoring single in the first gave MHS a 2-0 lead. Ryan was 2-for-3 on the day with an RBI.

Pair of Mustangs walk on at Houston, Baylor

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Koym

McClendon

The impact Mason McClendon and Jarrod Koym had on the Midland Christian football program will be felt for a while, both in terms of wins and in the program's record book.

But where the two might end up playing football beyond high school was still in doubt into this spring.

This week, though, the two players finalized their plans for college football as both will be preferred walk-ons at FBS (Division I) programs.

McClendon, who will leave Midland Christian as its most prolific passer, will go to the University of Houston, and Koym, who was a standout both as a receiver and defensive back, will be going to Baylor. The two also helped the Mustangs win three consecutive TAPPS Division II state titles.

McClendon said earlier this spring the plan was to go to Texas Tech as a preferred walk-on, but a few weeks ago he said "it just didn't work out." McClendon added that they began looking at other schools such as University of Texas-San Antonio, Houston and Texas State.

McClendon said that he had backed off some offers from smaller schools because he kept telling them he was going to Tech. But he said once he made contact with Houston, things fell into place.

"Houston was one school that said they were very interested in me," McClendon said. "I went down last Monday and had a visit, and fell in love with it."

McClendon added that the recent recruiting process will help motivate him to succeed.

"My whole life I've faced adversity, and kind of looked at this like that as well," McClendon said. "Why would it be easy now? It just gave me a chip on my shoulder even more."

Koym said with the help of Kevin Mannix he was able to send out some film, and in late February Koym's father received a call from Baylor coaches offering him preferred walk-on status.

He said that he will play defensive back at Baylor.

"I had a small offer from Angelo State University, and other than that didn't have anything else," Koym said. "I went on an official visit there, and was really thinking about it. I went home (after the visit) and talked to my parents and ended up choosing Baylor."

He admitted he didn't get started in the recruiting process early enough in his career and is pleased that he ended up with a Division I program.

"I didn't really understand it all until my junior year, and I was surprised how well it went," Koym said.

Mustangs fall to FW Christian in state semis

From staff reports

WACO — Midland Christian's season came to end on Friday afternoon as rival Fort Worth Christian jumped out to an early lead and then held off the Mustangs for a 9-4 victory in a TAPPS 4A state semifinal at the Waco ISD Sports Complex.

The game, which was scheduled to start at 9 a.m. on Friday, was delayed more than four hours as the two teams didn't hit the field until 1:30 p.m. and the Cardinals didn't waste any time putting pressure on the Mustangs.

Fort Worth Christian, who MCS swept in a pair of district games this season, scored two runs in the first inning and then extended the lead to 3-0 in the fourth.

But the Mustangs (34-8) came back with four runs in the top of the fifth to take the lead at 4-3 as Nolan Schattel and Nathan Slayter each had RBI singles.

The Cardinals, though, rallied with six runs in the bottom of the inning to help put the game away at 9-4.

Fort Worth Christian starter Richard Burgess didn't allow another run in the sixth and seventh to give the Cardinals a berth in today's TAPPS 4A state championship game. Fort Worth Christian will take on either Houston Second Baptist or Fort Bend Christian.

Slayter finished the day at 3-for-4 with an RBI and Jeran Rodriguez was 2-for-3.

UTPB SOFTBALL COACH RESIGNS
UTPB athletics director Steve Aicinena announced Friday afternoon that Annalyn Burch has stepped down as UTPB softball coach in order to spend more time with her family.

This past season, the Lady Falcons went 13-40 overall and 10-14 in Heartland Conference.

"I'd like to thank the university and the athletic department for the opportunity," Burch said in a press releas. "I'm excited in the direction the team is going. I know that they deserve someone that can give 100 percent to them and with my two new children my family deserves my 100 percent."

Aicinena said, "The softball team is in a better place than it was upon her arrival. That is a great positive for UTPB and our softball program as we move forward. We will begin the process of finding a replacement immediately."

Darvish 1 out shy of no-no, Rangers rout Red Sox

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

Rangers	8

ARLINGTON — Yu Darvish came oh, so close again.

The Japanese ace fell one out shy of a no-hitter for the second time Friday night, giving up only a ninth-inning single to David Ortiz in the Texas Rangers' 8-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Rookie second baseman Rougned Odor, positioned in shallow right field, made a diving attempt but the ball was out of his reach. If the Rangers had not shifted their infield — a standard practice against Ortiz — it probably would have been a routine grounder to second.

Darvish lost a perfect-game bid with two outs in the ninth inning last season against Houston. This time, he bent his knees and put his glove on his hips after the base hit. Texas manager Ron Washington then made a slow walk to the mound, with the 45,392 in attendance cheering and chanting "Yuuuuuu!"

Darvish struck out 12 and walked two while throwing 126 pitches.

The 20-year-old Odor, playing his second major league game, and Ortiz were also involved in the seventh-inning play that ended Darvish's try for a perfect game.

Darvish struck out eight of the first 11 batters he faced and retired 20 in a row until Ortiz hit a high popup to right field with two outs in the seventh.

Odor was also shifted into shallow right then and drifted back for the ball while right fielder Alex Rios was coming in before suddenly stopping. Odor lunged with his glove extended above his head but the ball dropped between them.

An error was charged to Rios after official scorer Steve Weller looked at replays and conferred with several others.

Darvish, who was coming off the mound in case he needed to back up a base, crouched down when the ball hit the ground. Former Rangers catcher Mike Napoli then drew a walk before Grady Sizemore's inning-ending flyout.

Darvish came within one out of a perfect game during his first start of the 2013 season in Houston, where Marwin Gonzalez singled to break it up. Darvish then lost a no-hit bid with one out in the eighth against the Astros last August.

Four weeks ago, Darvish was perfect through five innings at home against the Astros before a leadoff single in the sixth. He threw eight scoreless innings that night in a game the Rangers won 1-0 in 12 innings.

Elvis Andrus had four hits and scored three times for the Rangers.

CHAPS

inning when Justin Clarkson reached on a single and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Blaine Prescott.

The Chaps then took the lead for good with a three-run fourth inning, and then took an 8-3 lead with a four-run fourth inning that was highlighted by a two-run single by Anthony Reyes.

But the Vikings started to chip away at the lead with two runs in the fifth to cut to 8-5.

Chris Shaw extended the lead to 9-5 for MC with a solo home run to left in the sixth inning and then added another solo homer to left in the eighth to make it 10-5.

Grayson again rallied with three runs in the eighth and then added an unearned run in the ninth, before Thomas McIlraith closed out the win for the Chaps.

Cade Davis picked up the win for MC in relief as he allowed three runs (two earned) on five hits with two strikeouts and a walk.

Offensively for MC, Shaw was 3-for-4 with two home runs, a double, two RBI and three runs scored; Clarkson was 3-for-4 with a double, two RBI and two runs scored; Chris Thibideau was 2-for-4 with two runs scored; and Brent Stewart was 1-for-4 with a double, a sacrifice fly and two RBI.

'Hounds fall to Missions, lose fourth straight game

From staff reports

Missions	4
RockHounds	1

Rymer Liriano homered for the second straight night to help the San Antonio Missions defeat the Midland RockHounds 4-1 Friday at Security Bank Ballpark.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Rock-Hounds, who have also dropped the first two games of the five-game series to the Missions.

Midland's only run came on a solo home run by Beau Taylor in the third inning for an early 1-0 lead.

San Antonio got on the board with a run in the sixth and then took a 2-1 lead in the seventh when Jason Hagerty scored on a sacrifice fly by Kyle Gaedele.

Liriano then gave the Missions some insurance in the eighth when he connected for a two-run home run to left for a 4-1 advantage.

Chris Jensen (2-2) took the loss for the Rock-Hounds.

James Needy (1-3) got the win for the Missions, while Johnny Barbato picked up his ninth save and second in as many days with a shutout ninth inning.

The teams will play a doubleheader to make up for a rainout earlier in the season beginning at 5 p.m. today at Security Bank Ballpark.

Minneapolis changes ordinance for 2014 All-Star game events

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — The Minneapolis City Council on Friday shortened the window of time around Major League Baseball's July 15 All-Star game during which other events in the city can be limited.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Minnesota sued the city, alleging that an ordinance adopted in February that limits other events is unconstitutional.

The ordinance said the city wouldn't issue permits or event licenses between July 5 and July 20 in an area that includes all of downtown Minneapolis without additional approval from MLB.

The City Council on Friday approved a clarified ordinance that shortens the so-called "clean zone" limits from 15 days to seven, ending July 16. The resolution also makes it clear that the ordinance applies only to temporary permits or licenses for commercial vending, marketing or both, and that the city, not MLB, has final approval authority, city spokesman Matt Laible said in an email.

LADY DAWGS

As it turned out that was it for either team the rest of the game.

The Lady Bulldogs put runners in scoring position in the third and fifth innings but couldn't bring another run across. Midland High had three of its eight hits in the first inning and had multiple hits in two of the final five innings against Richland hurler Haley Freyman.

"We felt like it was going to be a tight ball game, and we didn't feel like it was going to be a slugfest," Midland High coach Shawnda Vines said. "We hoped that those two runs would hold up but we were hoping we could add to it. We kept getting runners on but we just couldn't push them across."

The Rebels, meanwhile, loaded the bases in the second, fourth and seventh innings, and all three times came up empty. In fact, Richland had runners in scoring position in all but one inning on Friday.

Baeza induced Lauren Oatman to fly out to shallow center field to end the second, and two innings later Baeza struck out Oatman to end the fourth.

And then finally in the seventh, Freyman hit a leadoff double and Vines replaced Baeza with Kendra Evans. Evans walked Destiny Deaton with two outs but then struck out Shelby Watson to end the game.

"We have been in situations where we had to pull through and we pulled through, and this was odd for us not to pull through," Richland coach Brenda Jacobson said. "Even in that last inning, I'm like, 'OK we got it.'"

Baeza also benefited from some nifty defense in innings where the Rebels didn't load the bases. The Lady Bulldogs ended the fourth with a double play when Baeza caught a Skylar Castro bunt and threw out Nyka Wood. Two innings later, Oatman hit a shot to center field that Brittany Baggett tracked down and caught at the fence.

"We had a couple of game-saving plays that took place and when the defense steps up and make those it makes a pitcher feel even better," Vines said. "I think they understand that this is going to be a very, very tough game (today). They will come back ready to play and we have to make sure we can match that."

loaded the bases. But with cleanup hitter Brandon Maine at the plate, Grebeck caught Hayden Turkington going early at third base on a 3-2 count and tagged him out in a run down between third and home that ended the inning.

"That was humongous, and that's pure Sean on the mound, doing Sean stuff," Midland High coach Barry Russell said. "Sean had to come in in a very tough situation with not getting him loose. It's tough to do that. But fortunately he got loose and then we were fine."

The Bulldogs built that 7-0 lead over five innings as Lance White, who pitched four scoreless innings, Travis Wilbanks and Gilbert Sanchez (3-for-4) each drove in runs early in the game, and Browning Houser's two-run single in the fifth extended the lead.

But in the sixth, MHS was up by two and losing momentum. That momentum was stopped in the seventh.

Raughton led off the seventh with a single to right. One batter later Grant Edmondson laid down a sacrifice bunt, but Raughton was alert enough to realize when he rounded second that no one was covering third. Then an errant throw allowed him to score.

Grebeck, who was hitting ninth and was 2-for-3 on the day, came to the plate and slapped a triple to right and as he was sliding into third the throw from the cutoff man skipped into the dugout for the game's final run.

Grebeck then retired the Rebels in order in the seventh to end the game and give Midland High a 1-0 series lead.

"Grant gets the big bunt down and (Raughton) was paying attention and nobody was covering third and beats the guy throw and throw it away, and then Sean with the triple and they throw it away again," Russell said. "That's opportunistic and that's things that we talk about."

Pacers beat Wizards to lead series

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

Pacers.....85
Wizards.....63
Indiana leads series, 3-1.

WASHINGTON — Paul George had his best game of the series with 23 points and eight rebounds, and the Indiana Pacers held the Washington Wizards to a franchise-low playoff total Friday night in an 85-63 victory for a 2-1 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Roy Hibbert was again a factor for Indiana with 14 points, five rebounds and three blocks.

Washington made only 24 field goals, another team postseason worst, on 73 attempts, 32.9 percent. That included 4 of 16 on 3s, and it didn't get much better on free throws, where the Wizards were 11 of 21.

So much for the bandwagon-hopping in Washington. There were boos on occasion, and most of the fans started heading to the exits after George's 3 with 3 1/2 minutes left made it 75-58.

Game 4 is Sunday night in Washington.

George came in averaging 14.5 points and six rebounds after two games against the Wizards, but he overcame a slow start on a night filled with plenty of ugly offense from both teams.

The score was 17-all after the first quarter, and Indiana led 34-33 at halftime. It was only the 13th NBA playoff game in the shot-clock era, which dates to the 1954-55 season, that two teams combined for 67 or fewer first-half points, according to STATS. The record of 60 came in a 2004 game between Indiana and Detroit.

Rangers fend off elimination, top Penguins

By Will Graves
Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Derick Brassard scored twice, including New York's first power-play goal in 10 games, and the Rangers avoided elimination with a 5-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference semifinals Friday night.

Brassard ended New York's 0-for-36 slide with the man advantage by beating Marc-Andre Fleury late in the first period. Ryan McDonagh added another power-play goal in the second to help the Rangers force Game 6 in New York on Sunday.

Chris Kreider and Kevin Klein also scored, and Henrik Lundqvist stopped 31 shots.

Evgeni Malkin had his third goal of the series for Pittsburgh. Fleury made 30 saves but lacked the crispness that allowed the Penguins to sweep Games 3 and 4 in New York.

Jets take Tech's Jace Amaro in 2nd round

By Dennis Waszak Jr.
Associated Press

FLORHAM PARK, N.J. — The New York Jets needed depth at tight end and wide receiver in the NFL draft.

Jace Amaro gives them a little of both.

The Jets selected the Texas Tech pass-catching tight end with their second-round pick Friday night. The 6-foot-5, 265-pound Amaro had 106 catches and seven touchdowns last season in Texas Tech's spread offense, where he often lined up as a slot receiver.

"Jets nation, I won't let you down," Amaro wrote on his Twitter page moments after being drafted.

With his size and speed, he could create some serious mismatches in offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg's system — whether it's Geno Smith or Michael Vick at quarterback.

"I think they'll use me similar to college, just throw me around on the field everywhere," Amaro said. "From the backfield to in line to the slot and outside at the receiver position. I think that's something I bring to the NFL, playing everywhere and being very versatile."

Fans gathered at the draft site at Radio City Music Hall cheered the pick of Amaro loudly as the Jets filled one of their biggest needs by adding a pass-catching target who set the NCAA record for yards receiving (1,352) by a tight end in a season. He was the first tight end in Big 12 history to catch 100 or more passes in a season.

That monster season under first-year coach Kliff Kingsbury came after he caught just 32 passes during his first two years at Texas Tech. Amaro had 25 catches and four touchdowns in seven games as a sophomore before missing the final six games with a lacerated spleen and fractured rib.

"I felt like I was coming on in my sophomore year," he said. "It wasn't until my junior year with a new coaching staff that really helped me rise to my potential and play the best I could play."

Wide receiver and tight end were expected to be the focus by New York on the draft's second day. After a run on wide receivers early in the second round, the Jets went after Amaro. He often lined up wide or in motion in college, and Mornhinweg could use him in dual tight end packages with incumbent starter Jeff Cumberland.

"I feel like we complement each other very well," Amaro said. "I think it would be a good deal."

Cumberland, a converted wide receiver, is considered more of an all-around type of tight end who led the Jets with a career-high four touchdown receptions last season. The Jets also have the inexperienced Zach Sudfeld and Chris Pantale, along with veteran Konrad Reuland, who's coming off a major knee injury, at the position.

Despite a knock that he's not much of a blocker, Amaro insisted that it's actually one of his better assets. In fact, he said, he had 10 or 11 pancakes — or knockdowns — in games during his first two seasons at Texas Tech.

"Of course, I'm going to feel more comfortable at the slot right now," Amaro said. "There were times growing up that I played in line, so it's not tremendously different. ... I think it's just going to take me a couple of weeks."

It was the second of the Jets' 12 draft picks. They selected former Louisville safety Calvin Pryor with their first pick at No. 18 overall Thursday night. New York also had a third-round pick later Friday, and then nine picks on the final day.

Amaro, a San Antonio native, had a feeling the Jets would draft him, but thought he might be a first-round selection. He ended up being the third tight end taken, after first-rounder Eric Ebron (No. 10 overall to Detroit) and second-rounder Austin Seferian-Jenkins, who went 11 picks before him to Tampa Bay.

"On the visit, I felt like I fit really well there," Amaro said of the Jets. "I thought I was going to get picked in the first round to them. It didn't happen, and that was something that was disappointing because you go into the second round, you don't really know who's going to pick you.

"That was the place I wanted to play."

Texans choose UCLA G Su'a-Filo in 2nd round

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Xavier Su'a-Filo had a two-year layoff between his first season of football at UCLA and his final two years, thanks to a Mormon mission.

The guard, taken by the Texans with the first pick in the second round on Friday night, believes the time off helped him improve as a player and a person.

"Obviously I was away from the game for two years, but I think it helped me be physically more mature and mentally more mature and helped me just become a better football player," he said. "When I came back I was an older guy. I was more suited to be a leader at UCLA. I look at it all positive."

Despite a need at quarterback, the Texans went with another position again after selecting defensive end Jadeveon Clowney with the No. 1 overall pick on Thursday night. They continued that trend in the third when they took Iowa tight end C.J. Fiedorowicz with the 65th pick. Houston traded the first pick in the fourth round (101st overall) and the first pick in the fifth round (141) to the Eagles to move up and select Notre Dame nose tackle Louis Nix at No. 83.

Despite their need at quarterback, the Texans have also drafted defensive end Jadeveon Clowney with the No. 1 overall pick and guard Xavier Su'a-Filo in the second round and picked up tight end C.J. Fiedorowicz with the 65th overall pick.

Nix started eight games in 2013 and finished with 27 tackles and two tackles for losses.

In 2009, Su'a-Filo became the first true freshman in UCLA history to start 13 games before leaving for his mission in Alabama and Florida. He picked up right where he left off in 2012 when he started 14 games at left guard for an offense that averaged 466.5 yards a game.

He split time between left guard and left tackle last season and won the Morris Trophy as the Pac 12's top offensive lineman. Su'a-Filo isn't sure how the Texans will use him, but he's looking forward to showcasing his versatility in Houston.

"I can play either," he said. "I just want to get in there and I want to compete and contribute and help the team as best as I can."

Fiedorowicz had 30 receptions for 299 yards and six touchdowns last season. Houston re-signed tight end Garrett Graham this offseason, but lost tight end Owen Daniels in free agency. The 6-5, 265-pound Fiedorowicz said he has always looked up to New England tight end Rob Gronkowski and that despite his own skill as a blocker he wants to prove he can be a well-rounded tight end.

"I feel like I'm going to really prove to everybody that I'm a dual-threat," he said. "I'm going to catch the ball, I'm going to block on the edge and do everything (O'Brien) asks."

Su'a-Filo has fashioned his game after veteran New England Patriots guard Logan Mankins and raved about his skills.

"I love the way he plays," Su'a-Filo said. "I think he's physical. I think he's nasty. You know, I try to implement as much from his game that I can."

The 6-foot-4, 307-pound Su'a-Filo, perhaps unsurprisingly, is looking forward to the culinary delights in Houston.

"The whole state of Texas is pretty great, but I'm looking forward to eating at Pappadeaux and Whataburger," he said of the Houston-based Cajun restaurant and the burger-chain, which started in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Nix started eight games in 2013 and finished with 27 tackles and two tackles for losses.

He can't wait to join a defensive line with 2012 Defensive Player of the Year J.J. Watt and Clowney.

"I never thought ever in life that would happen," Nix said. "I'm super excited."

losing him, so we sweetened the pot a little bit and got the deal done."

The 6-foot-2, 251-pound native of Aiken, South Carolina, doesn't come without concerns after he was hit by three suspensions in college for violating team rules.

"I put my childish behaviors behind me," Lawrence said.

Dallas sported one of the worst defenses in NFL history last season. During the offseason, they cut Ware in a salary cap move and watched 2013 sacks leader Jason Hatcher join Washington in free agency.

"I love trying to mirror his game, steal some of his pass rush moves," Lawrence said of Ware, who signed with Denver.

So would Lawrence like to don Ware's No. 94 jersey?

"No, I'm my own Demarcus," he said. "I don't like trying to be nobody else. I'm going to be me, and I'm going to do it well."

Jones feared Manziel circus: One day after passing on Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel to lasso Martin, Jones said he had no regrets even though he admitted Manziel was the highest player on the team's draft board at the time of the selection.

But with Tony Romo due a guaranteed $55 million, the addition of Manziel would have created an "explosive" media circus, Jones said.

"Manziel said it better, it's just bigger than you could take," Jones said. "...It's not the usual development guy behind an accomplished quarterback. He's a celebrity. He's Elvis Presley."

So if Manziel is Elvis, who is Romo?

"George Strait," Jones said.

Kaymer takes 1-shot lead over Spieth at Players

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Martin Kaymer and Jordan Spieth are having a blast at The Players Championship — one because he's playing good golf again, the other because that's all he's been doing.

Kaymer followed his record-tying 63 on the Stadium Course on the TPC Sawgrass with a 3-under 69, capping off his round by hitting a pitching wedge to 3 feet on an island green with a back pin on the 17th hole.

He had a one-shot lead going into the weekend as he tries to end more than two years without a victory.

"Everything is coming together nicely," said Kaymer, a former PGA champion and world No. 1.

Spieth, in his first big tournament since his runner-up finish at the Masters, hasn't shown any signs of a letdown. He pieced together another bogey-free round and converted pure swings into tap-in birdies on consecutive holes on the back nine that carried him to a 6-under 66.

"I don't think it's going to be possible to stay bogey-free for two more rounds with the greens firming up," Spieth said, not sounding at all like someone making his Players Championship debut. "That's a nice goal to have, I think. When bogeys come, it's going to be how I rebound."

Kaymer was at 12-under 132. That matched the best 36-hole score on the Stadium Course at the TPC Sawgrass in 20 years, dating to Greg Norman's record-setting performance. Norman made only one bogey that week.

Spieth hasn't made a bogey all week — he has gone 51 holes without a bogey going back to the third round at Hilton Head — though he had to make a couple of tough chips look easy to keep a clean card.

The 20-year-old Texan was still on the practice range when he saw Kaymer finish at 12 under, a score that felt impossible to catch in warm, blustery weather. The grass remained soft on the golf course, however, allowing players to take aim at the flags.

Some players had no choice.

Adam Scott, in his first tournament as a married man, kept alive his hopes of going to No. 1 in the world this week with three birdies in his last four holes for a 67. That was a 10-shot improvement from Thursday and enabled him to make the cut on the number at even-par 144.

Teenager's low self-esteem drags her boyfriend down, too

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 16, and I need help. I have been in a relationship with my girlfriend, "Bailey," for six months and things are complicated. She's very insecure, and it's hard to keep her happy for any extended period of time.

I have thought about breaking up with her because I want her to be happy, and the same goes for me. But then I think I'd rather be miserable at times and happy at others and be with her, than end it and possibly feel worse.

Please give me some advice. I love Bailey and I don't know what to do. — LOST IN ARIZONA

DEAR LOST: Have a talk with Bailey and tell her that although you love her, her insecurity and mood swings make it difficult. If you do, it may give her something to think about. The problem with insecurity is it can eventually drive a boyfriend — or girlfriend — away when it becomes smothering.

P.S. There is truth to the saying that you can't MAKE someone happy; happiness has to come from within.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I are in our 40s and have been living together for several years. The house we live in is in his name only, and he pays the mortgage.

I own a townhouse I bought before I met him, and I make the payments on it. People often ask us why I don't sell it. I usually give some excuse, but the real reason is, when he drafted his will, he left everything to his mother — at her insistence.

He seems to think it's too much trouble and expensive to change his will to include me. I want to be sure I have a place to live, so I have kept my townhouse.

Needless to say, our views on this situation differ. What's your opinion? — HEDGING MY BETS IN TEXAS

DEAR HEDGING: I think you are behaving rationally, because it should be quite clear that your boyfriend wants his assets to go to his mother — not you — in the event of his death. I hope you have your townhouse rented and are saving the income, because you may need the money later. That way, if your boyfriend suddenly keels over or the romance sours, you won't be left with nothing but memories.

DEAR ABBY: My niece confided in me that she and her fiance eloped. Her parents are planning her wedding for next month. I tried to advise her to tell her parents, but she still hasn't. She's living at home and her "fiance" lives in a different city.

I don't pretend to understand why they felt like doing this. Should I just sit back while she continues to lie to her parents while they plan on her getting "married" in a month? I'm at a loss.

I wanted to give her a chance to come clean, but because she hasn't, do I intervene? Do I threaten that if she doesn't fess up, I'll spill the beans? Or should I just let her keep heading down the road she's on? — ANXIOUS AUNT

DEAR ANXIOUS: What do you think you will accomplish by breaking your niece's confidence? If you divulge what she told you, she will never trust you again. I'll give you my advice in four words: Keep your mouth shut.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

This year you will attempt to be as understanding as possible, yet often people do not get your intensity and caring. Pace yourself, as you have a lot to say and do this year. Learn to say "no" more often, and try not to take on additional responsibilities. You need time for yourself, too. If you are single, you could meet someone at work or at the gym. You do not need to push yourself or put yourself in a position to meet someone immediately — it will happen on its own. If you are attached, your feelings will help loosen up your significant other. Remain nurturing, and eventually that attitude will be returned. LIBRA often seems frivolous.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Work with someone directly. Opportunities come through this person, so be receptive to what he or she has to say. If shopping for a large item, you'll need to do some price comparison. You also might want to speak to someone who has made a similar purchase. Tonight: Dinner out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Be more forthright in how you express concern to a loved one. This person has been relatively distant and appears to be opening up. You don't want to challenge him or her, so just listen and let him or her talk. Maintain your budget at all costs. Tonight: Time to be frisky.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ Convey more than intellectual feelings to a loved one or child. You might be more comfortable keeping the conversation light and easy. Get into a project, but be ready to stop if you become tired and overburdened. Tonight: Do what you think is fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Examine an alternative with care, but know that it might not be as appealing if you do. You could feel as if you can't make a difference to a loved one, as this person appears to be closed off. Worry less, and relax with the moment. Tonight: Go to your favorite haunt.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You could be in the mood to stay home. Invite friends over for a fun dinner. You naturally seem to have a wonderful time at home, as do your visitors. You even might decide to invite a friend you have not spoken to in a while. Tonight: Get into a flirtatious moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Curb a tendency to be possessive or a need to have matters fall as you would like. Control could be more of an issue than you might have thought. Your upbeat attitude and personality will melt someone else's resistance. Tonight: Hang out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Consider letting a friend come in closer. This person has been unusually difficult and stern. Do not make a comment about this recent tendency, but help him or her feel as safe as possible in your company. A call from someone at a distance might be important. Tonight: The lead actor.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Visualize more of what you want from a situation. You might be in the mood to be quiet. Let a loved one open up, as this person seems to have a lot on his or her mind. You might need some additional time to reconsider your response to a serious matter. Tonight: Play it easy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Friends surround you. As a result, your sense of humor will emerge. You could be a little down and not ready to share some of your thoughts at first. Later in the day, when you are more relaxed, you might choose to express your thoughts. Tonight: Only where you have fun.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Make a point of calling a parent or older friend before you make plans. Once you have a discussion, you might want to do something totally different. A friend could be disappointed if you cancel plans. Don't worry — you'll make time for everyone. Tonight: In the limelight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ If you want to take off at the last minute, do. You might enjoy your weekend away from the grind much more than you thought possible. Honor a child's request. You will be able to do something that often isn't even an option. Tonight: Surround yourself with music.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You'll see a situation far differently from how you have in a substantial amount of time. It might be necessary to have a conversation with the person who has the opposing view. At this time, you could see more logic in this person's thoughts. Tonight: Be with a favorite friend.

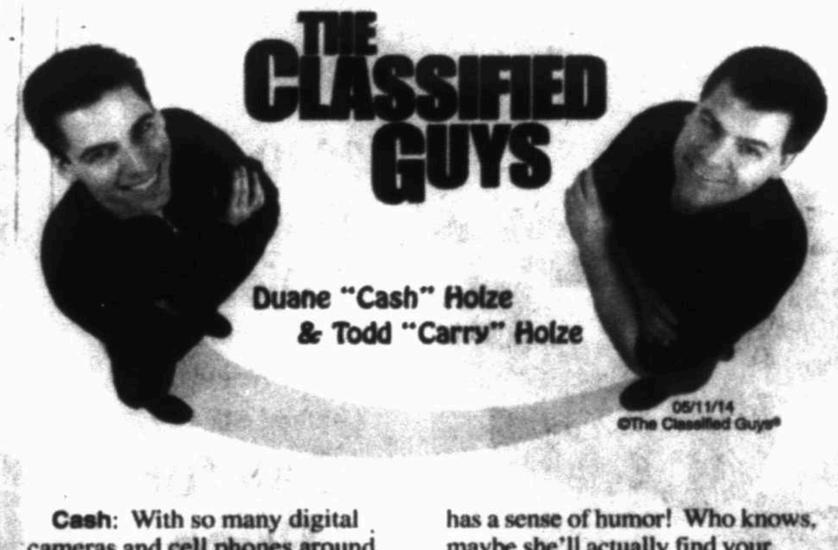
Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I've always been the comedian type. In high school I was the class clown. I spent days in detention for making wise cracks. In college I became a bit more refined and occasionally tried my hand at amateur stand-up night in the student lounge. Once I even won the grand prize of a $100 bookstore credit (it seemed like a lot back then). Now I'm five years into a serious job with a promotion on the horizon, but there's a problem. A few weeks ago, I was traveling on business to entertain a client. After a night on the town and sealing the deal, my client went off to bed while I stopped in a comedy club next door. There I heckled a comedian who ended up inviting me on stage to do a two-minute takeoff on my boss. Everyone laughed. I thought it was fun and harmless, until a co-worker emailed me this week. It seems someone in the audience captured me on their videophone and posted it to the web. Now I'm worried my boss might see it and she might let it affect my promotion. Do you have any ideas on how to handle this one?



Cash: With so many digital cameras and cell phones around these days, you just never know when to smile for being on Candid Camera. You're not the first to be in this dilemma, but you may need to warm up your sales pitch to get yourself out of it.

Carry: As you already know, things on the web can spread quickly. Unfortunately, there's probably little you can do to have the video removed or keep it from spreading around the office. You could ask the person posting it to remove it, however the video may have been downloaded or emailed to others already.

Cash: If the video lands in the hands of your boss, let's hope she has a sense of humor! Who knows, maybe she'll actually find your stand-up routine funny.

Carry: However, if your newfound fame doesn't go over well with your boss, your best bet is to be straightforward with her rather than avoiding the subject. You may find that regardless of what you said on stage, your success at work takes precedence. After all, you did close the deal with your client.

Cash: For future reference, you may want to be a little more careful, especially on a business trip. And remember, if things don't go well with your promotion, maybe you have a future in stand-up comedy!

Fast Facts

15 Minutes of Fame

With each generation, the world is going more and more digital, and the job market is included. Video resumes are now becoming a popular way to advertise your talents. While not everyone is cut out to star in a video demonstrating their skills, it may work well for some industries. The idea is still in its infancy, and it does have its drawbacks. Already many recruiters and employers don't accept photos attached to resumes for fear of discrimination and some worry that video resume's could invite further bias.

Getting Personal

Finding a job can be an exhausting process. However, it's important to do the proper preparation to enhance your chances of success. Before you apply for a position, search your name on the web and see what comes up. Then take the time to clean up your image. For example, review your blog, facebook or myspace page for inappropriate content. Remove pictures that don't flatter a professional image. Even if you can't correct all the information or photos floating around, at least you'll be prepared for any questions that may arise.

Executive Lunch

My company is fairly generous with the allotted expenses for their salesmen. However, I've learned if you don't use it, you loose it. Therefore, my fellow sales rep and I make every attempt to keep our lunch expenses around the same number every month.

Last week we got together for lunch to discuss some new business. Our waiter was extremely helpful and brought the check when we finished our meal. My colleague and I both pulled out our credit cards knowing we were each short on expenses for this month.

As we sat arguing over who would pay for lunch, the waiter politely interrupted, "Gentlemen, I think I can help." Grabbing both cards, he continued, "I'll charge one of you for the meal and the other for my BIG tip!" (Thanks to Andy J.)
