LUBBOCK, TEXAS, "THE HUB OF THE PLAINS," TUESDAY AFTERNOON, FEBRUARY 2, 1926

Leased Wire By Associated Press

CITY NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

J. D. NORRIS, OF SLATON, a proprietor of a barber shop there, is in the city on business today.

MERCHANTS WHO ARE ENTERED in the California tours campaign report that collections for January are being stimulated by ladies in the drive. In many cases the candidates are personally making collections so that they can get credit in votes toward the free trips. One such merchant who is not in the campaign told the Daily Journal recently that in his opinion the California Tours campaign was one of the best pieces of "stunt advertising" ever put on here.

VAUGHN E. WILSON, LOCAL ATTORNEY and candidate for county attorney has moved his offices from the Conley building to the third floor of the Temple Ellis building. His new office number is Room 303.

W. A. INLOW, LUBBOCK MAN, has returned from a business trip to Ft. Worth.

WATSON L. LIVELY, OF LAM-PASANA, is attending to business here this week.

HARRY N. ROBERTS, CONSULTING engineer for the city of Lubbock, has returned from a business trip to Amarillo. Mr. Roberts reports that Amarillo is "oil mad" and that the very atmosphere of the North Plains city is reeking with petroleum. A large number of oil companies, which will lease and drill in the Panhandle field, are certain to be formed there in the near future, Mr. Roberts believes.

MRS. TOM ARNETT AND MRS. Robert Steen, of Littlefield, have returned to their home after a visit here yesterday. Mrs. Steen is Mrs. Arnett's daughter.

MISS NELLIE EASTON, Terry county health nurse, is in the city today conferring with Miss Anna Brueker, who holds a similar position in Lubbock county. Miss Easton is Terry county's first public health nurse and is just preparing to start her work in that county.

RUBBER MEN WILL MOVE OFFICES TO LUBBOCK

The Selterberg Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio is moving their West Texas Branch from Abilene to Lubbock according to A. R. Perry, traveling representative for the company who called at the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday morning, to think officials of that organization for their assistance in making local arrangements for the location of the branch house here.

In moving the wholesale distributing branch from Abilene to Lubbock, the company believes a better service can be rendered the north, central and south Plains section of West Texas, according to Perry.

The branch here will be known as the "Plains Tire Company" and will be housed in a new modern fire proof brick building 45 by 165 feet which is now under construction by D. N. Eastover. The building is being built by Wm. D. Green at 1308 and 1310 Avenue H and has already been leased to the Plains Tire Company.

Lamesa Men Come Here

H. H. Austin and R. R. Ragan, Selterberg dealers from Lamesa will be in charge of the branch here. The branch is being temporarily housed at 1308 Avenue H until the new building can be completed.

The entire building will be occupied by the Plains Tire Company which will be exclusive tire dealers. The company will have from one to two city salesmen and will carry an average of two car loads of tires as stock. The branch house here will serve the territory as far north as the Oklahoma line, west into New Mexico, south to Sweetwater, Big Springs, and Midland and east to Wichita Falls.

In coming to Lubbock the Selterberg Rubber Company has fallen in line with a host of other large companies who realize the advantage Lubbock holds over other West Texas cities as a wholesale distributing point. In a check up several months ago, the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce found over eighty-five wholesale distributing houses located in Lubbock and serving the Panhandle South Plains territory. Since that time many others like the Plains Tire Company have located here increasing the number of wholesale houses and adding to Lubbock's prestige as the "Dallas of the Plains."

BURKETT'S DIVORCE AIRED IN COURT

FINANCIAL DEALS WITH OWNERS OF COMPANY TALKED

BURKETT BORROWED $500 FROM HOFFMAN MEN IS SHOWN IN COURT

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 2.—In arranging a divorce settlement last fall Joe Burkett agreed to give his wife a note for $5,000 signed by G. A. Davidson and Elmer Starnes, stockholders of Hoffman Construction Company.

This statement was made today in Hoffman trial by Joe Burkett, former highway commissioner, charged with "connivance in effect" in letting the Hoffman contract. The note was never demanded by Mrs. Burkett, and she was stricken from the final property settlement, he declared.

Situation Explained.

Mr. Burkett explained that at suggestion of his wife, he had promised to furnish such a note; but that in the end she did not demand it and the note was not drawn.

His testimony on this point was given as Earl Conner, defense attorney was on his feet objecting.

"Let him go to it, if he desires, I see he has been talking to her about the matter," Burkett declared referring to Attorney General Dan Moody's question.

"There's been too much extraneous testimony in this trial already, and the attorney general has no right to interrogate this man on his domestic affairs. We feel he is doing so to prejudice the jury," Burkett said.

"I did not want to pry into his domestic troubles; but on direct examination the witness himself opened the way by referring to his domestic difficulties, and in fairness to my side of the case, I had to develop that phase," Moody answered.

"At any rate, we'll pursue it no further," Judge Calhoun ruled.

In recounting borrowing of about $500 from Starnes to make a road inspection trip to California last June Mr. Burkett said one of the reasons he wanted to make the trip was "my wife and I had domestic troubles for some time and I hoped to iron them out."

ENROLLMENT IN SCHOOLS 4,100

Estimate of Supt. M. H. Dunsen, Made 2 Months Ago

Passed, Figures Show

Enrollment in the Lubbock public school system has passed the 4,000 mark, which was set by Supt. M. H. Dunsen to be reached by February 1. It was announced by the superintendent here Tuesday following a complete check-up on enrollment in the various departments effective last Friday afternoon at the close of the school month. The total now stands at 4,098, including the negro and Mexican schools that are a part of the Lubbock Independent School district.

Enrollment in the various departments was given out as follows:

High school 655; junior high school 1,029; central ward, 529; Geo. M. Hunt school 723; K. Carter school 742; Southwest ward, 56; Northeast ward, 41; Southeast ward 31; Northwest ward 75; Mexican school 49; negro school 148.

New Ones Still Coming

A few new pupils are still being received into the system in various departments, the most of whom are coming to the schools within the city limits. It is estimated by the superintendent that at least 100 more will be taken in before the close of the year.

Announcement was made Tuesday at the office of Peters and Haynes, architects who are preparing plans and specifications for the three new building projects recently voted here, that the plans on the study halls which will join the present high school building will be completed today, and that plans for the north ward building probably will be finished Wednesday. The other project, which is a modern building for the southwest part of the city, will probably be finished Thursday, the announcement said.

The school board plans to meet Tuesday, February 23, when it is expected that contracts will be let for the three projects.

ARREST COUPLE IN WIERD CASE

Death Of Foster Son, Who Had $10,000 Insurance, Will Be Investigated

(By Associated Press)

DAVENPORT, Ia., Feb. 2.—Ralph A. Bogie and his wife, Eda Bogie, are in jail following a recommendation last night by a coroner's jury that the death of their foster son, Harold Barker Bogie, be investigated by the grand jury. The boy was adopted early in January and died a few weeks later. The foster parents were beneficiaries under a $10,000 insurance policy on his life.

It was at first believed the boy was apoplexiated. His body was found in a room adjoining the kitchen in the Bogie home. The theory was advanced that he placed a kettle of potatoes on a gas range and that the water boiled over, extinguishing the flames.

Authorities also have indicated an inquiry might be started into the sudden death in 1922 of Mrs. Bogie's former husband, James Healey, a prominent Muscatine county farmer. Healey died twenty-four days after their marriage. At that time Bogie, her present husband was a roomer at her home.

Jones' Bill Given Unanimous Support

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—For the first time in the present congress the house today overruled its appropriation committee in passing the annual agricultural department bill, which now goes to the senate. By a vote of 138 to 141 an amendment proposed by the committee was adopted to provide $200,000 for the distribution of pamphlets and their information on the diseases of horses and cattle.

The proposal for the pamphlets was sponsored by Marvin Jones, democrat, Texas, and was supported by practically the entire democratic membership and a number of republicans.

As approved the measure carries $126,000,000 for the various activities of the agriculture department during the next fiscal year. Of this amount $30,000,000 is for aid to the states in road construction.

COURT DECIDES NEGRO TO HANG

(By The Associated Press)

LEIGHTON, Ky., Feb. 2.—Ed Harris, negro, pleaded guilty here today to an attack on Mrs. Clarence Bryant, whose husband and two children he had confessed to murdering and was sentenced to be hanged Friday March 5 in the Fayette county jail yard. The trial lasted exactly 16 minutes. It was one of the speediest trials in the history of the county. Court was called promptly at 9 o'clock. Prosecuting Attorney Maury Kemper elected to try the defendant on the charge growing out of his attack on Mrs. Bryant here January 19. Conviction in this case carried the penalty of hanging. Charges against the negro for the murder of Mr. Bryant and the

OFFICERS TAKE HOMELESS WAIF

Custody of the new born baby found on the doorsteps of the Little Rankin home here early Monday morning just before the chilly air of the morning hours had taken its life, has been taken under advisement by county officials, and applications for custody of the child will be received by the commissioners' court Wednesday. It was announced Tuesday by County Judge Chas. Norfley following a conference with County Attorney Owen W. McWhorter.

The child will remain in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Estep, of the Q Avenue Grocery, where it has been since early Monday afternoon, until final disposition of the case is made by county authorities, the announcement said. Mr. and Mrs. Estep took charge of the child after Mr. and Mrs. Rankin abandoned the hope of keeping it due to the ill health of Mrs. Rankin.

Mr. Estep was the first adult to reach the infant after it was discovered by school children, and has shown a great deal of interest in the child and its future, but reports here Tuesday morning to the effect that final award had been made to Mr. and Mrs. Estep, were denied by the County Judge.

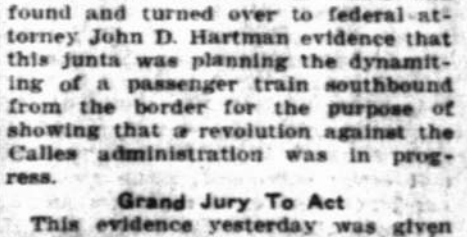

Many Applications Made.

Since the child was found, it is known that more than a score of applications for its custody have been made, but these must now be made before the court and legal steps taken in the award, Judge Norfley said.

Those who have seen the baby pronounce it as exceptionally pretty, robust and plump, well developed, and normal in every respect. The exposure to which it was subjected when left in the cold morning air, nude except for a thin and worn baby quilt in which it was wrapped, apparently has not affected its health, examining physicians said.

The award will probably be made by the court Wednesday, Judge Norfley said.

WHITFILL IS FOUND NOT GUILTY ON RUM CHARGE

J. W. (Shorty) Whitfill, whose case charging sale of intoxicating beverages was called in criminal district court here Tuesday morning, was found not guilty on an instructed verdict this afternoon after Hanson King chief states witness had retracted his statements made before the grand jury and denied that he knew or had ever seen the defendant.

Kink, the only witness produced by prosecuting Attorney Walker, who charged Whitfill with the sale, never brought liquor from Whitfill, or that he ever had any dealings with him in any way, and failed to corroborate his statements made before the grand jury that brought the indictments of the defendant. His sworn statement, made before the grand jury, was not introduced into the case. The instructed verdict followed insufficiency of evidence for conviction, District Judge Mulligan said.

The second case against Whitfill charging manufacture of intoxicating beverages, was continued until next Monday due to the unavailability of the court to secure a jury from the county summoned for this week. This case will be called next Monday, court attaches said.

MEXICAN REBELS ARE FRUSTRATED BY FEDERAL MEN

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 2.—Uncovering of evidence showing that a revolutionary junta of Mexicans is active here and in conspiracy to overthrow the Calles government of Mexico, was announced to the Associated Press today by Gus Jones, in charge of the San Antonio office of the department of justice.

Mr. Jones declared his office had found and turned over to federal attorney John D. Hartman evidence that this junta was planning the dynamiting of a passenger train southbound from the border for the purpose of showing that a revolution against the Calles administration was in progress.

Grand Jury To Act

This evidence yesterday was given Mr. Hartman who will lay it before the federal grand jury due to convene here February 15 and indictments charging violation of the neutrality laws would be sought against the leaders of the alleged revolutionary movement.

Mr. Jones issued a statement to the Associated Press giving these details in reply to charges made last night by E. Estero Martinez, one of the Mexican refugee leaders and a de la Huerta sympathizer, that department of justice agents had seized his documents and private correspondence and allowed them to be examined by an agent of the Calles government. His latter charge was declared by Jones to be "wholly unfounded and scurrilous."

Mr. Jones statement follows:

Jones Makes Statement

"On September 10, 1925, there was a meeting held in San Antonio attended by 30 or 35 Mexican revolutionists. They perfected an organization calling itself 'the revolutionary junta of San Antonio' and appointed an executive committee of five with full authority for the junta, the purpose being to use every means possible for the overthrow of the government of Mexico. R. Esparraco Martinez was made secretary of the junta. We obtained evidence that the executive committee and members of the junta were conspiring to violate the BELTON, Feb. 2.—Atticus Webb of Dallas, state superintendent for the Anti-Saloon league, and the American Publishing company of Austin were made defendants in a $100,000 libel suit filed in district court here by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson.

Interview Is Blamed.

The petition alleges that the American Statesman has been published an interview represented as coming from Mr. Webb which criticized the prohibition enforcement policy of the governor in a manner reflecting on the character of plaintiffs. The article, it is asserted, was "malicious in its intent" and caused Governor Ferguson to suffer "mental anguish, distress and humiliation."

The case probably will be set for trial during the March term of court.

Menus for the Family

By SISTER MARY

Breakfast — Apples, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, raised buck-wheat pancakes, maple syrup, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped codfish, corn-bread, carrot salad, canned peaches, cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled halibut steak, baked macaroni and tomatoes, beet salad, raisin cream pudding, bran bread, milk, coffee.

No potatoes are suggested in this dinner menu, macaroni supplying the necessary starch and tomatoes the vitamins and mineral salts. Too often we think of a potato substitute as being a food merely rich in starch and forget to take care of the mineral salts and other properties when planning the dish to be used in place of the vegetable tuber.

Scalloped Codfish. One pound salt codfish, 4 good-sized potatoes, 2 tablespoons olive oil or cooking oil, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 2 cups canned tomatoes, paprika.

Cover fish with cold water and let stand one hour. Drain and rinse well in fresh water. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. Drain and divide into four parts. Heat oil in casserole, add minced onion and cook five minutes without letting onion brown. Remove casserole from fire and add one-fourth of the fish. Cover with 1 potato pared and cut in very thin slices. Add 1/2 the tomatoes. If the tomatoes are not very juicy add 1/2 cup of water. Sprinkle with paprika and cover casserole. MAN'S TWO WIVES ARGUE OVER HIS BODY

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 2. (AP)—Unable to decide privately whether the deserted wife of the late Charles Ward, who died last Wednesday or the woman with whom he had lived for the last 14 years should be entitled to his body and the privilege of arranging for its burial, the matter was placed before probate judge F. A. Bartlett, who decided in favor of the deserted wife.

It was held that Elizabeth Carter Ward, this city, and Ward's two sons born to her, had no standing in court.

Mrs. Charles Ward of West Haven was given an order directing that the body be removed at her direction and that of no one else.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carter Ward had completed arrangements for Ward's burial in a plot in Lakeview cemetery. His West Haven wife will remove it to New Haven for burial.

Both women were aware all through the years of the existence of the other and the part each played in the life of Ward. Mrs. Ward of West Haven received $5 weekly from her husband up to the time of his death.

TOURNAMENT TO DECIDE COUNTY BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP TO BE HELD IN SLATON GYM THIS WEEK

The Lubbock county interscholastic basketball tournament, which will decide a county championship for competition in the district meet that is to be held under supervision of Tech college officials, will be held this week at Slaton, it was announced at the office of superintendent M. H. Duncan, of the Lubbock public schools system Tuesday.

Original plans were to hold the county tournament in the high school gym here, but for various reasons it has been decided to transfer the meet to Slaton, primary among which was the fact that the Tech college Matadors have four games scheduled this week that will conflict with the tourney if played here.

The Lubbock high school Westerners, who last Saturday in the South Plains tournament sponsored by Slaton school authorities, are slated to meet the winner of the rural school division in the first game of the tournament Friday night. Play pursuant to decision of a rural champion is now under way here, and will be finished probably tomorrow.

Following this game, Estacado will meet the Slaton Tigers, and at 10:30 Saturday morning Idalou will meet the winners of the Slaton-Estacado game. Then at 7:30 Saturday night, the Westerners will play the winner of the Saturday morning game for county championship.

District Tourney Follows. The following Friday and Saturday representatives from 20 counties that comprise district 2 of the interscholastic league will meet in a tournament sponsored by the Tech college at the college gym. The tournament will be under supervision of Athletic Director Edwin V. Freeland, of the college.

Nothing is yet known of the number of teams that will be present for the tournament, but advice has gone out from the office of Mr. Freeland to the effect that county championships must be decided not later than this week end, and that this information must be in the hands of college officials here not later than the following Monday, so that plans for entertainment, and a schedule for the tournament may be arranged.

Radio Fans Buncoed In ANNOUNCERS FOOL 'EM European Tests, Report

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Fully one-fourth of the fans who announced happily that they "got Europe" during international radio week, were the innocent victims of radio fakery, in the opinion of officials of the test.

Not only were these fans not getting Europe, but they probably were setting some station within a stone's throw of their own home, L. A. Nixon of the radio week committee said.

On one night at least 600 persons at Omaha, Neb., reported they heard Cardiff, Wales, and Aberdeen, Scotland. Since points east failed to hear these stations the radio committee investigated and decided that a joker was on the air. The wave length was different from the genuine stations.

Another broadcaster announced himself as Lyons, France, but was detected when it was determined that Lyons did not broadcast during the test. The "Elfel Tower" was another station reported to have been heard but which did not participate.

The fraud, Mr. Nixon said, was easy to engineer, simply by inserting a microphone between the aerial and ground leads of a receiving set.

News and Views of the World of Sport

BRITONS PREPARE FOR INVASION OF AMERICANS

LONDON, Feb. 2. (AP)—The American offensive on British sporting grounds this year will surpass all the previous and mostly successful enterprises in international sporting contests on British soil.

The names of Haggen, Collett, Watts, Gunn, Bobby Jones, Tilden, Wills and Paddock already are on the receiving list of English sport organizations and scores of lesser lights are among the entries for the 1926 tournaments.

In recent years the English have come out offense second in their athletic contests with Americans, but 1925 saw the rise of several stars which makes the nation hopeful that the tide will turn.

It is the loss of the open golf championship, captured by Americans in 1924 and 1925, that the British feel most and they expect it to be recaptured by the Manchester professional, Archie Compston, who made a rapid rise to the premier position among English professionals last season and now is playing in America.

Compston will have to play against his compatriots Mitchell, Duncan and the usual long list of leading British golfers as well as the Yankee contingent, including Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, the present open champion, Gene Sarazen, Francis Ouimet and Bobby Jones.

Abe Mitchell has staged a remarkable comeback, but he is not steady.

The open championship will be played the week beginning June 21, at Lytham and St. Anne's course in Lancashire, an event for the first time this old course has been the scene of the open. Instead of holding the qualifying rounds immediately before the championship, they will be held three weeks in advance on three different courses, one in the south of England, one in the Midlands and another in Scotland.

It is likely that the American women as well as men golf invaders will arrive in England early in April from then on there will be international golf contests continuously for three months. The U. S. Walker cup team will appear first in friendly matches with the Oxford and Cambridge golfing society and later will enter for the Royal St. George's Vase, won by Ouimet in 1923.

The amateur championship is to be held on the Muirfield course, near Edinburgh, the week of May 25, and lasts six days. The entrance of Bobby Jones, Sir Ernest Holderness, the present champion, Cyril Tolley and possibly Roger Wethered will make this the best amateur struggle of recent years. The Walker Cup matches will be held the week following at St. Andrew's.

The women championship will take place about the same time as the amateur, over the Royal St. David's links at Harlech, Wales, for which Glenna Collett and Joyce Wethered have entered.

Tennis matches also will bring out the best stars of both countries. W. T. Tilden may join Vincent Richards and R. N. Williams in making the trip, while Helen Wills is to head a women's delegation. They will play against Lenzien, Borotra, Lacoste, Joan Fry and Kathleen McKane, among others. The contests start at Wimbledon about the third week in June and probably will extend to three weeks. America's women stars will contest for the Wightman cup.

The track meets at Stamford Bridge, Oxford and Cambridge probably will attract several Americans. The New York Athletic club already is on the books for the games at Stamford Bridge.

If all the channel swimmers who have announced an attempt to cross the channel make good their threats they will be doing so in schools and all summer long. Gertrude Ederle and Helen Watwright are the most conspicuous American entrants so far but there are eight from England,

Several Leading Golfers Entering Hot Springs Meet

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 2. (AP)—With an entry list including many of the leading golfers of the United States, the Second South Central Open Golf Championship tournament will open in the course of the Hot Springs Golf and Country Club here tomorrow.

Several score of entries have been received from golfers other than those who joined in the general itinerary of a mid-winter golf tournament that started in Southern California with two events and two others in Texas. This will be the fifth tournament of the itinerary.

The program, in which $7,000 in prizes will be distributed, will last through Wednesday.

Leading the list of entries of golf notables is Harry Cooper, young Texan, who three weeks ago won the $10,000 California Open Championship at Los Angeles.

Others include Macdonald Smith, consistent professional golfer; Al Watrous of Grand Rapids, Mich., who won first prize here last year; Al Espinosa, who was third in the California event; Joe Kirkwood, famous trick golfer; John Black, Wichita, Kan.; Dave Truffell, Wichita, Kan.; Dave Black and Dave Ayton, Vancouver, B. C.; Bobby Cruickshank, who had a play-off with Bobby Jones in the 1923 national open; Paddy Doyle, White Plains, N. Y., who holds the local course record of 69, five below par; C. W. Hall, Birmingham, Ala.; "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn and Joe Turnesa, young New Yorker, who won the Texas open in 1925.

Mitchell Groomed To Win Golf Supremacy

ST. ALBANS, Eng., Feb. 2. (AP)—Abe Mitchell, the great golf match player, has become the protegee of Samuel Ryder, a wealthy resident of this Hertfordshire town, and will not follow the trek of his compatriots across the Atlantic. Mitchell has taken up an appointment as private golf professional to Ryder, who is deeply concerned at the continuous success of Americans in the open championship here. He believes Mitchell free of all cares attached to a post as club professional, will be able to devote his attention to playing a game which may assert British supremacy.

Johnny Butler Will Wear Brooklyn Suit Big Leaguers Report

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—The Brooklyn Nationals today announced they had closed a deal for Johnny Butler, star shortstop of the Minneapolis American Association club, in exchange for five players outright and the choice of a sixth under optional agreement.

The Minneapolis club obtains two veteran infielders, John C. (Cotton) Tierney and Horace Ford, outfielder Dick Loftus and Pitchers John Hollingsworth and Wilbur Hubbell under the terms of the transaction.

In addition the Millers will have their choice of three young infielders on the Brooklyn roster—Corgan, who came here from Wichita, Kans. late last season; Bishonett, with York, Pa., in the New York Pennsylvania League last year; and Herman, who played with Topeka, Kans. in 1925.

Billy Evans Says

STANDARD OF BASEBALL IN MAJORS NOT AS CLASSY AS 20 YEARS AGO

Manager John McGraw of the Giants who knows his baseball stuff, says the players are on the decline.

High salaries, automobiles and numerous other diversions are held responsible by the leader of the Giants.

In all other respects McGraw believes the game has progressed. The parks are better and the accommodations for spectators and players much improved.

I am inclined to think that McGraw is correct in his observations. Over a period of 20 years of umpiring it is obvious to me that the standard of play of today is not equal to that of 15 years ago.

The old players really loved the game more than the modern athletes. In other words the chance to play was about as welcome as the salary.

The love of the game, the fighting spirit, is what makes all college sports. There is no question but that college football has more of the old fight stuff than the pro brand.

PLAYERS DECLINE

McGraw also makes another very interesting statement. He says the dumb player is always dumb. You can't get it out of them.

"He's just dumb," is an expression ball players often use in discussing certain players who seemingly have plenty of ability but make little or no progress.

In this connection I have observed that a high order of intelligence does not necessarily mean that the athlete possesses it in a smart ball player.

Take the case of Joe Jackson, now out of baseball as a result of the White Sox scandal. When Joe entered the majors he could neither read nor write, yet Joe Jackson was a smart ball player. I never saw him pull a "bone-headed play." He always knew what to do with the ball, never threw to the wrong base and at the bat was a tough baby to fool.

On the other hand I can recall three or four players recruited from the college ranks, with several degrees dangling to their names who could do the dumbest things possible at the most inopportune time.

I guess McGraw is right when he says a dumb player is dumb, but there are exceptions to all rules.

FUNNY EPISODE

Several years ago a certain major league club tried out a rookie southpaw who proceeded to become a sensation overnight.

He had plenty of stuff but the players realized he was "just dumb" and that a smart base-running club could make plenty of trouble for him.

Opposed to the New York Giants one day, McGraw ordered his club to start running wild. The first batter stood on the rubber proceeded to steal second base un molested.

When the inning was over and the players returned to the bench, the manager took the pitcher to task for his dumbness. He was rendered almost unconscious when the rookie insisted he didn't know there was any one on first base.

The manager, who had a keen sense of humor, proceeded to handle the rather embarrassing situation most diplomatically.

Calling over the catcher and the members of the infield he said to them:

"Any time there are runners on any of the bases I want you to keep reminding this pitcher of the fact. There mustn't be any secrets on this ball club."

Fisher Co. Fresh Water District Votes Bond Issue

Special to the Journal. ROTAN, Texas, Feb. 2.—The Fisher County Fresh Water District number 1, issued bonds in the sum of $175,000 recently. This district includes the city of Rotan and a small area adjacent thereto.

A part of the bonds will be sold and the money used to put down test wells in the Camp Springs vicinity with regard to quantity, the water having been proved 96 per cent pure. J. O. Guin of Camp Springs has donated the city enough land for the wells, and if necessary, for a reservoir site. If the quantity proves to be sufficient it will be piped to Rotan. The water will flow through the pipes after being raised to the top, by force of gravity, as the land on which the wells are located is some 200 feet above the street level of Rotan.

If the wells do not prove up, some other source of supply will be found, Rotan has advised the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. With good water, Rotan has everything necessary to make it one of the most desirable towns in West Texas.

EXPORT EFFORT TO BE SHOWN OVER FIVE YEARS

CHICAGO, Feb. 2. (AP)—Five years of progressive effort in the extension of America's export business will be summed up in reports of the fifth annual meeting here January 26 of the American Manufacturers' Foreign Credit Insurance exchange, a corporate organization of 1,100 firms and corporations in thirty-four states.

These members have pooled their credit information on 250,000 foreign buyers of American products, the index to this vast amount of business information providing a basis upon which the exchange issues insurance policies upon exports of its members.

Almost $100,000,000 of such insurance has been written, covering exports to ninety-one countries in every part of the world and every line of American exports.

The actual loss on the first $75,000,000 of insurance written was slightly in excess of $550,000, or approximately three-fourths of one per cent. Officers estimate that at least $200,000,000 more of American export business was done on the basis of information supplied by the pooled ratings.

In the last eleven months more than $2,000,000 worth of orders to Latin America were refused and unworthy of credit. Ordinarily fully one-half of those orders would have been filled, it is pointed out, but due to the immense mass of "inside" information of the exchange, the buyers were unable to obtain shipments from any of the exchange members.

The vast supply of ledger information reveals the first signs of over-buying, so members are warned against over-extending credits. It also is possible to forecast actual bankruptcy and by speedy diversion of shipments en route hold losses to a minimum.

The following courses will probably be added next year: Accounting, Economics, Banking, Business Law, Business Psychology, and Business Organization and Administration.

New Department Added To McMurry College Courses

Special to the Journal. ABILENE, Feb. 2. (AP)—Next year when the fall term opens at McMurry college, Abilene, the students will have the opportunity of taking work other than the regular literary course that the college now offers. Plans have been completed for a business administration course to be offered that will give four years of work in the department. Students may major or minor in the new department the same as they do at present in literary work.

J. E. Freemond, of Arlington, Texas, will have charge of this department next year and the college authorities expect a big enrollment in this course. Mr. Freemond is a graduate of Southern Methodist university and at present he is working on his M. A. degree at S. M. U., which he will receive before the year is over. He is also a member of the department of business administration at North Texas Agricultural college at Arlington, Texas. He is a man who is thoroughly capable and a man who will help McMurry to grow.

The following courses will probably be added next year: Accounting, Economics, Banking, Business Law, Business Psychology, and Business Organization and Administration.

CONSIDERATION NECESSARY

Ex-Governor James E. Ferguson broke loose again yesterday—this time lambasting the Dallas News for issuing a report that it had the information authoritatively that Mr. Ferguson would be a gubernatorial candidate in July.

Although Mr. Ferguson, as has been his wont every time he has been quoted during the past several months made an attack upon his enemies and covered his remarks with a heavy verbal barrage, he failed to deny that he was to make the race.

All the ex-governor said was "When I get ready to announce I will issue my own interview."

In other words he conveyed the idea that he probably would make the race to succeed his wife as the chief executive of Texas.

While his candidacy has often been rumored few people have taken the report seriously until now. Just how Old Man Texas will feel about it is subject for thought.

Since the passage of the famous "amnesty bill," Mr. Ferguson has just as much right to run for governor as has Dan Moody, Mrs. Ferguson or anyone else—that is from a legal standpoint.

But whether he should run as a matter of principle is an entirely different matter.

When Mrs. Ferguson made the race which ended in her being placed in the mansion at Austin she had as her principal platform plank the vindication of the Ferguson name. This was granted.

Yet now that the Ferguson name has been officially purged of all stains of misconduct, whether real or imaginary, it appears that Mr. Ferguson wants another chance at the gubernatorial chair.

Regardless of Mr. Ferguson's ability as an executive and notwithstanding his strong following over the state, it must be admitted that as long as the Ferguson continue to dominate Texas politics there will be strife and discord among the people. He has a strong and loyal following, true, yet he also has a strong and determined group of enemies. Whichever group is on the right side of the fence, is, of course, up to the individual to decide. Yet it cannot be denied that strife and discord will follow the state as long as Mr. Ferguson stays in the public limelight.

His candidacy, if announced, is more than a mere political announcement. It involves a struggle which will continue to keep Texas in an uproar.

From more angles than one Mr. Ferguson's political aspirations are subjects for thought. It behooves Texas to consider seriously the situation.

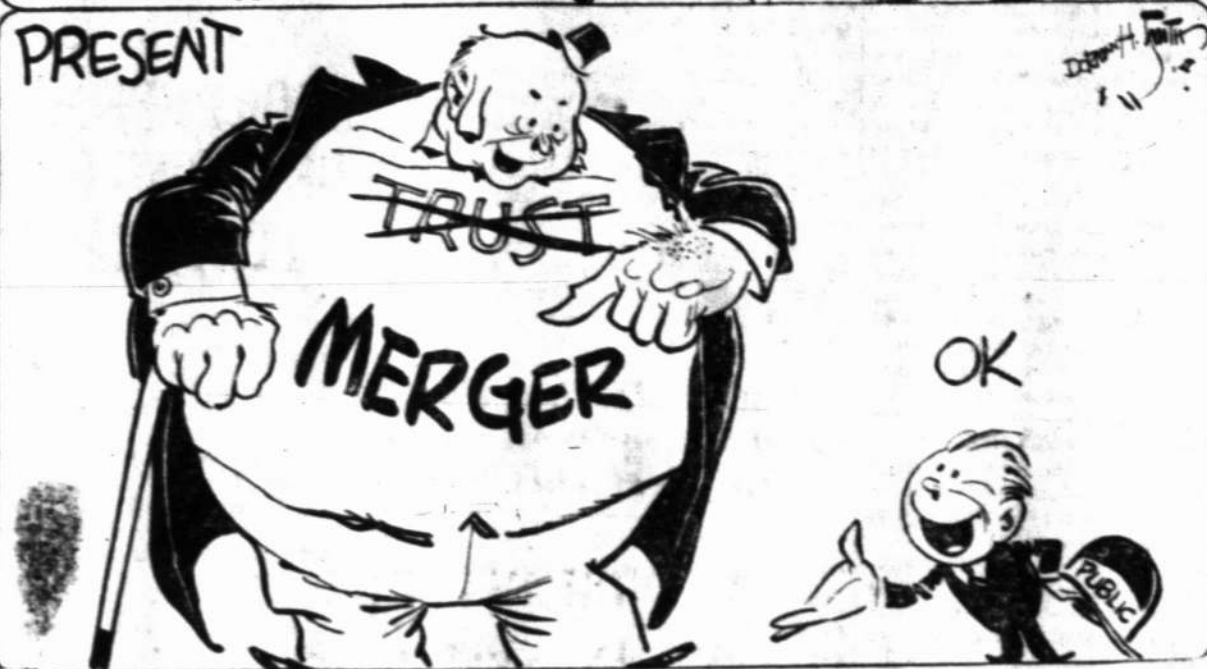

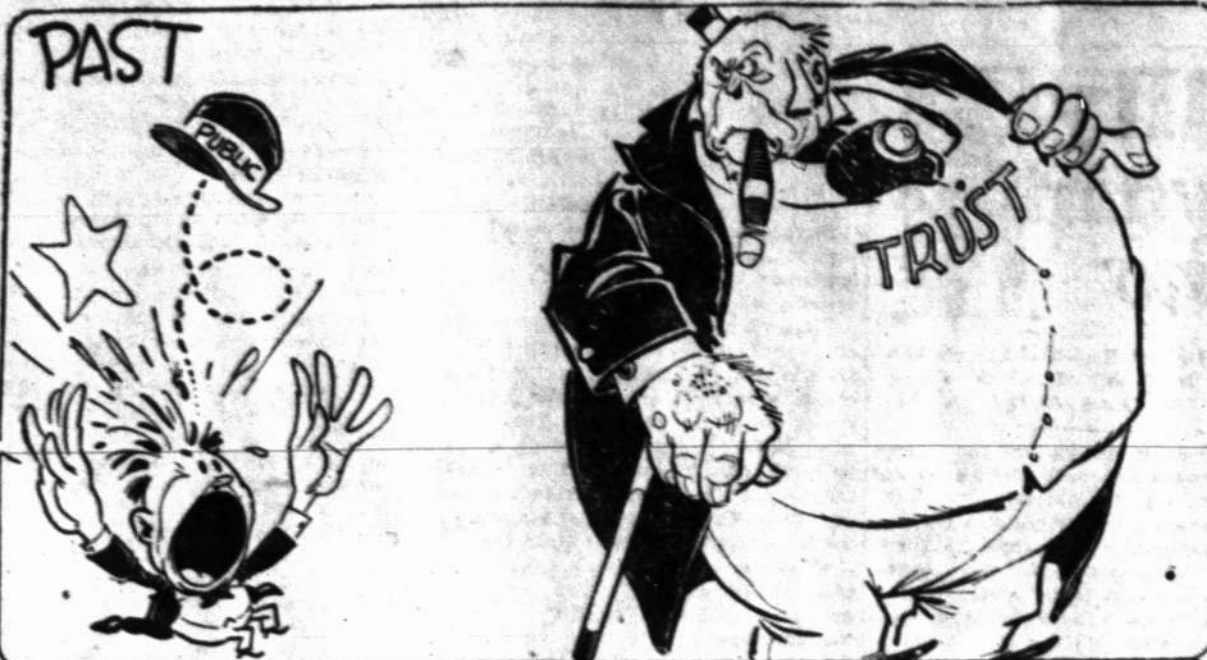

GOOD BUSINESS

Lubbock business men started yesterday upon a brand new month as far as 1926 is concerned, and it's a safe bet that as a whole they looked over their January balance sheets with a sigh of contentment.

When the early freeze hit the South Plains cotton crop the moaning and groaning which followed could be heard to high Heaven. "After Christmas," folks said in the same tone of voice that the sweet girl graduate employs in reciting of Poe's "Raven," "There won't be any business at all."

Yet there was business, good busi-

GAG-RULE IN SENATE HAS DOUBLE APPLICATION

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. — At first thought it may seem as if there'd be nothing very severe in a rule limiting senators to an hour's speech so discuss any given subject before the upper house of congress for consideration.

It speeds up business, of course. But there's another principle involved, which most folk who favor gag-rule appear to overlook.

It's the principle that the senate as originally created, is supposed to act as a brake on the house of representatives—to prevent half-baked legislation. Gag-rule keeps it from acting that way.

It's perfectly true that a senate minority frequently has kept the majority from doing what it wanted to do, by talking everlastingly, and tying things up until finally the majority had to give up and drop some measure it had had its heart set on.

Nevertheless, minorities do have their right, or ought to.

At any rate, the "founding fathers" thought so.

That's why they stood for unlimited debate in the senate. Limitation of all right in the house of representatives. That's the popular body—supposed to be responsive to national fads and whims, and to go off at half-cock occasionally. Its creators' theory was that "Stop, Look, Listen" was the correct motto for the senate.

And unlimited debate there is the minorities' one white alley. It's obstructive, certainly. It was meant to be.

Carrie Nation achieved considerable fame with a hatchet. George Washington did as much, but so far as we know the hammer hasn't put the spotlight of fame on anyone.

Nature's best use for genius is to start the stream of public opinion running so that it will purify itself.

Take a careful look around and then tell us just what part of the earth the meek inherited.

The man who tries to do something and fails is infinitely better than the man who tries to do nothing and succeeds.

ness in January.

And there will continue to be business, good business, in every other month in the year, because Lubbock is on a firm foundation, early freeze not to the contrary.

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, middle-aged credit manager of a department store, is reminded by his family that the next day is his son, JAMES RAND'S 27th birthday. Jimmy plans a theater party for his mother and father and his sister, JANET, and her fiance, BARRY COLVIN.

The following evening Henry Rand, a stickler for punctuality, fails to arrive home for dinner at his accustomed time. While he is wondering, police telephone with word that he has been found dead in the Canfield Hotel. Jimmy goes to the hotel. His father is in a gas-filled room that had been registered for by H. A. Jones of New York.

Police believe it is suicide. Jimmy doesn't agree. A woman's handkerchief is found in the room. The coroner arrives and discovers a small welt at the back of Henry Rand's head. While they are talking, Jimmy discovers the yellow stub of a theatre ticket, evidently used two nights before.

Jimmy learns that the theatre is in Cleveland and decides to go there. Janet Rand breaks her engagement with Colvin, because of the "disgrace." Jimmy learning that the stub is from the Paragon Theatre in Cleveland, leaves for that city with Detective MOONEY.

quarters was short. He found what he was looking for after answering a couple of classified "ads."

It was a large room, and spotlessly clean, with a double bed, two comfortable chairs and a mahogany finished dresser. The bath was nearby in the hall.

There was even a telephone—an extension of the one downstairs. Mrs. King, the landlady, a tall, angular woman with a tired look in her eyes, explained that the gentleman who had been occupying the room and who had just moved out—"to get married"—had been particularly insistent on having a phone in his room.

"Of course, if you don't want it," she added, "we can have it taken out. It will cost you 50 cents a week extra."

"I think I'll have it," decided Jimmy. "How much is the rent?"

"Eight-fifty a week, with the phone—in advance."

"Here's a week's rent," Jimmy handed her the money and she stuck it in the large pocket of her checked gingham apron.

"The phone, Mr.—Mr.—"

"Rand," supplied Jimmy. "James Rand."

"About the phone, Mr. Rand. You can use it all you want for outgoing calls. The incoming calls ring at the one downstairs. I'll have to call you when someone phones you and you can answer it right here."

Jimmy walked to the window and looked out. The room was on the sec-

There was frank friendliness in his voice, and the ticket seller appeared mollified.

"That's all right, you're not bothering me. I'll be glad to help you out if I can, but there isn't much we can do about it. It's almost like trying to trace the purchaser of a yard of ribbon in a department store. Let me see the ticket." He held out his hand.

Mooney took out his wallet and fished out the handkerchief and the yellow stub. He replaced the handkerchief and tossed the stub beneath the brass window grating.

"The young man picked it up and studied it." "Monday night, November 23," he read. "That was last Monday night." He returned to the stub again. "Row H, Section C, Seat 31." He looked at Mooney and Jimmy and shrugged.

"I might have sold the ticket myself, friends, but I'm darned if I could tell you who bought it."

"Well, thanks very much for your trouble—" began Jimmy.

"Wait a minute. The man behind the window had picked up a seating chart. There's an outside chance that this seat might be a permanent reservation. We have quite a few seats laid away for regular patrons, and H Center is a pretty good seat. H-m-m-m, let me see." His forefinger raced over the floor plan.

"By gosh, you're in luck!" he cried excitedly. He reached for a little leather-bound book and opened it. "This record says that Seat 1131 is reserved

"A chance in a million," said the ticket seller, "and you hit it!"

New Go On With The Story

CHAPTER VI

"NOT much to go on, Rand, but better than nothing." Detective Mooney folded his wallet, in which he had just replaced the yellow theater stub and the handkerchief.

The train was pulling into Cleveland. "As far as I'm concerned," observed Mooney as they were leaving the Pullman, "the first thing to do is to get in touch with the local police. Courtiesies of the profess, you know."

He continued, more seriously, "I'll have to let the detective bureau know I'm here and what for. Chances are they'll be glad to give us a lift if they can be of any use. After that I'm darned if I know our next move, unless it's go down to this Paragon Theater and see if there's any chance of running down the guy who bought this ticket." He tapped his chest, where the wallet reposed in the inner pocket of his coat.

"There's about as much chance of doing that," he added, "as of finding a needle in a haystack."

"But still a chance, Jimmy persisted."

"Well, I'm not overlooking any bets, no matter how slim they look. Give me credit for that."

"Look here, Mooney," Jimmy hastened to add at sight of the other's injured look, "don't think I have any idea that this thing is going to be cleared up in a day. I haven't. As a matter of fact, I've come here prepared to stay for some time and the first thing I'm going to do is to hunt up a rooming house and a job. I haven't the slightest idea of how to go about running down a clew. I'm not one of these story-book amateur detectives. I'm darn glad you're along with me, Mooney."

"I have an idea, though, that I can be of some help. Besides," he added, "when we catch this—this man we're looking for, Mooney, I want to be there."

Mooney looked at him shrewdly. "So that's the way the land lies," he said. "I've an idea, Rand, that you intend to make it hot for this customer if we do find him. Look here, now, if he's turned on Jimmy, you'll not be pulling any rough stuff on anybody while I'm along. The law will take care of 'em."

Jimmy was staring vacantly at the passing crowd in the station. He did not answer. When he spoke he gave no indication that he had even heard.

"While you're down at police headquarters, Mooney, I'll be looking around for some place to live, and perhaps for a job. And if I want to do any job hunting," he added, "I'll have to get a hustle on. Today is Saturday and most places will be having a half holiday. Suppose I meet you at two o'clock."

"Two o'clock," agreed Mooney. "In front of the Paragon Theater. We might as well start out on the right foot."

Jimmy's search for suitable living

ond floor, front and overlooked a neatly kept yard in a neighborhood where business was fast changing what apparently had once been a desirable residential district.

What especially pleased Jimmy about the room was its nearness to downtown. Close enough to walk to and from work, he thought, and there would have to be strict economy. A saving of car fare would help.

He washed and changed into fresh linen. Then, armed with his newspaper, he set out in search of a job.

When his search for a room, though had been short and successful, his job hunt was long and fruitless. It seemed to him that he had been going up and down elevators all morning only to find that some successful applicant had been ahead of him or to listen to the polite "regrets of office managers and other executives who murmured hastily something about 'lack of experience. Sorry.'"

He met Mooney promptly at two. The lobby of the Paragon Theater was crowded, it being Saturday matinee.

"When the crowd gets inside," declared Mooney, jerking his thumb toward the entrance, "we'll have a few words with the bird who sells the tickets."

"It does seem like a waste of time," admitted Jimmy forlornly. "Like taking a shot in the dark."

"Who's throwing cold water now?" jeered the little detective. "This morning you were saying it was a chance at least."

The lobby gradually emptied. "Come on," said Mooney, "we'll take that chance now."

"Sold out for the matinee, the young man behind the barred window informed them before Mooney could ask his question."

"We're not looking for matinee tickets," replied Mooney.

"Advance sale over at the other window." The young man was preparing to close up for the afternoon.

"Not so fast, brother, not so fast. We want to get some information." Mooney pulled back his coat and allowed the ticket seller a glimpse of his badge. "Do you ever keep a record here of the people who buy tickets?"

"What do you mean, keep a record?" The man behind the window was scornful, and annoyed at being held up.

"Here's what I mean," Mooney persisted. "Suppose John Smith calls up and asks for a reservation on Monday night. Would you have a record of the sent you had laid aside for him?"

"Not after he had called for it. We write his name on an envelope and hold the ticket until a certain time. If he doesn't call for it by then we put it on sale. If he does, he takes the envelope with his name on it."

"We've got a ticket stub here," put in Jimmy, "and we're trying to locate the man who used it. I suppose we're crazy to bother you, but it's pretty important."

every Monday night by Thomas Fogarty—address Mayfair Hotel. A chance in a million, and you hit it."

"Imagine that!" Jimmy exclaimed softly. "Just imagine it, Mooney. The luck of it."

Mooney was still staring at the ticket seller.

Finally he found speech. "Thomas Fogarty!" he ejaculated. "That's big Tom Fogarty. I'll bet a million dollars! One of these hard-boiled political bosses and as crooked a bird as ever managed to stay on the outside of a jail."

SARGENT

Of two sphinx-like figures about the national capital today, one John Sargent is a fitting companion for the silent one of the White House. And occasionally he says something worthy of the general ear of the public, whom he is delegated to serve as Attorney General.

Mr. Sargent made observation that when the so-called good citizens cease to place a premium on law violation by patronizing the bootlegger, then will come real enforcement of the Volstead act. He would make loyalty to the constitution and its amendments universal. Bootlegging thrives because it has patrons who are above the law. Punishment should be meted to those who break the law as well as to those who contribute to the delinquency of another and are in fact an actual party to the crime. Aye, punish the patrons of the bootlegger, and that weakling will soon cast about for more profitable and honest pursuits.—San Angelo Standard.

There is a natural law that requires payment for everything we receive. It is true in every line of activity, whether it be industrial, physical, mental, social or recreational. No two individuals have to pay the same price for the same thing but both must pay.

Now that Senator Capper has told the Chamber of Commerce "What the West is Thinking," who can tell us what the east is thinking?—Boston Globe.

Perhaps sixty per cent of our farmers have their own meat but we find them neglecting this more than they should, as we have plenty of feed in the county.

AUSTIN, Feb. 2.—The scholastic records of the engineering students transferring to the University of Texas from the "other colleges" of Texas during the fall term of the session of 1925-26 has been completed by Dean T. U. Taylor of the College of Engineering. "There were about 165 transfers but omitting those from colleges outside of the state and those from colleges in Texas whose records show that they were not doing good work in the college from which they transferred, the records of 46 students were studied whose credits indicated that they were capable of doing good work in the university," Dean Taylor explained.

15 PER CENT WORK WAY IN SCHOOL AT McMURRY

Special to the Journal. ARILENE, Feb. 2.—Some recent investigation has revealed the following facts concerning working students in McMurry College. About forty boys and girls are working for part or all of the expense of an education. In other words, nearly fifteen per cent of the literary students (not including those taking fine arts courses) are at least helping to pay their way through school. Nearly all of these are taking a regular course of study, and most of them are engaged in some form of student activities.

Engineers To Study Conservation Of Fuel

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 2.—Professor E. J. Fernier, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, A. & M. College of Texas, has gone to Chicago where he will attend a fuel conference along with nationally known engineers from all parts of the United States. The discussion of the conference will be centered around the possibilities of the more economical use of fuel, not only oil, gas and solid fuels, but more particularly powdered fuel. While in Chicago the engineers attending the conference will visit the Power Exposition where the latest power plant equipment will be on display. They will also visit the great power station of the city and see the most modern of equipment in use.

FARM PROGRAM AT FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

UNION SCHOOL IS GIVEN BOOST

Special to the Journal. SLATON, Texas, Feb. 2.—On Thursday night, January 28th, the Union community people were called together by Slaton's Commercial club in the interest of the diversified farm program for 1926.

J. J. Ross, secretary of Slaton Commercial club; H. D. Tally, county commissioner; T. J. Able, deputy sheriff; and T. D. Johnson, all of Slaton, were here to fully explain the object and purpose of the farm program.

There was organized and perfected a unit of this program which will be the purpose of this unit organization to enter into and become a cooperative part in the application of this program and we are calling upon every man and woman, boy and girl to be present on next Thursday night, February 4th, and join in and become a member of this home and community program.

John Lamb, secretary of the organization said.

Special to the Journal. AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 2.—In a report covering university extension work throughout the United States which has just been completed by T. H. Shelby, dean of the division of extension of the University of Texas, for the United States Bureau of Education, the remarkable progress of this form of university work is clearly shown.

Statistical data gathered in the preparation of the report showed approximately 50 different courses being offered by correspondence in the different universities and colleges, and some 300 near 45 courses offered in class centers.

Reports furnished by different extension directors indicate the growth in enrollments in correspondence work from 42,834 in 1922 to 57,011 in 1924. Individual students enrolled increased from 26,326 to 31,251 during the same period.

It is stated by Mr. Shelby that the data gathered indicates very clearly that Texas takes high rank in progress made in general university extension during the period. The increase in correspondence enrollments in the University of Texas has been 60 per cent, which is the greatest increase of any institution having so large an enrollment in correspondence work as Texas.

Texas also has the distinction of having the largest and most effective organization for handling literary and athletic contests in the form of the University Interscholastic League. Its membership of 4,000 schools, with 28 different contests, and its 1,200 students participating in the state championship contests, render it unique among the state of the Union in this type of work.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Feb. 2.—The highest tide in nine years continued today to lash the coast of Southern California.

The heavy surf, advancing far beyond its usual line, pounded to pieces 19 beach cottages in Santa Monica bay region yesterday and last night. Twelve of the cottages were at Castle Rock, while the others were at Lar Tuna beach, three or four miles further north.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—Stock prices moved within rather narrow and irregular limits at the opening of today's market, but the main tendency was again upward. Initial gains of a point or more were recorded by American Woolen, DuPont and Gold Dust, the last named touching a new record high. Oils were slow in response to the announcement of higher crude oil and gasoline prices.

Public Utilities sprang into speculative favor on a revival of merger reports, electric power, Philadelphia, company and Montana Power selling 1/4 to 2 points higher before the end of the first half hour. Bullish demonstrations also were successfully conducted in a number of sugars, tobacco, and specialties.

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (AP)—The cotton market opened at a decline of one to six points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, but further covering by near month shorts and additional buying of new crop deliveries for foreign account, gave it a generally steady undertone. Active months sold about three to six points net lower, with May declining to 19.57c, and October to 18.17c, but the market was a few points up from the lowest at the end of the first hour.

Except for the light foreign buying of new crop months which absorbed sales against near month purchases, the market showed not special trading feature later in the morning. At midday trading was dull with May selling around 19.58c or about 3 to 5 points net lower.

Jenks Players Are Greeted By Crowds

Long before time for the curtain last night, the big Lindsey theatre was filled and overflowing. To greet the Jack Jenks Players in their opening performance. For two and a half hours the big audience witnessed what is said by all to be far the best performance of this kind that has ever given in the city.

The performers are far above the average and the play new and high class, reports said.
Reports from neighboring towns, where the Jenks Players have been working for the past several weeks, are most flattering. Mr. Jenks promises that his shows are all high class and clean and if last night is a sample, Lindsey patrons are in for a week's most enjoyable entertainment.
The vaudeville between acts was exceptionally good and this alone was worth the price of admission.
Tonight, the play is entitled "Foolish Wives." Mr. Jenks promises this to be a wonderful play with a big moral as well as abounding in comedy.

BOOKLET WRITTEN BY DUNCAN IS GIVEN OUT

"Writing the Book of Life." is the subject of a sixteen page booklet being distributed today to children in the Lubbock public schools with the urge that they take it home, study it, then give it over to their parents for them to study also.
The booklet was written by M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the Lubbock public school system, and deals with the habit formation, especially as this is related to the growing child. The central nervous system and what it means in education is very ably discussed by the school man, who points out that "the development of the nervous system is, without doubt, the important problem in the education of children, and the question that should be foremost in the minds of parents and teachers is, How can such development be brought about?"
In the first place, one paragraph of the booklet reads, "parents should begin early to help their children form correct habits. If they depend upon the school and wait until the school age, the battle will be largely lost. By the age of seven, the child has formed the habits that will largely determine his future career."
The booklet is being distributed free in an effort of Superintendent Duncan to aid parents and teachers in the work of moulding the future leaders of America. 2,500 copies of the booklet will be distributed.

COOLIDGE HOPES PUBLIC WILL BE ABLE TO SEE MANY ATTACKS MADE AGAINST HIS ACTIONS 'POLITICS'

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—President Coolidge has not been insensible to the repeated attacks against his administration, made recently in and out of congress...

There were plain indications today that some of the recent assaults on administration policies had greatly impressed officials at the White House.

He is hopeful the public will not pay too much attention to speeches made in congress or elsewhere charging failure to enforce the law and promote the best interests of the public.

He holds that he and his cabinet are doing their utmost to enforce laws impartially and promote the prosperity of the American public.

The country can rest assured, he believes, that this is being done despite efforts to make the situation appear otherwise.

He thinks it ought to be remembered in taking stock of the situation that this is the reason why there is a tendency to inject politics into public discussions.

On such subjects as the recent attacks on the department of justice and criticism of his own course in handling the tariff commission the President prefers to remain silent.

So far as the world court is concerned, Mr. Coolidge is perfectly sure that the American adherence to the tribunal in no way indicates a virtual membership in the league of nations.

The King pointed out that the improvement in trade and industry at the end of 1924, which it was hoped would increase employment, was unfortunately checked early last year by a widespread depression in the coal mining industry.

Announcing that the result of the commission of inquiry into the coal industry would shortly be published, he continued:

"I am well aware of the difficulties inherent in the whole situation but the interests of the nation are paramount and I appeal to all parties to face the future in a spirit of conciliation and fellowship and avoid action which would again postpone the return of good trade and prosperity for which we have so long hoped."
