ROBBERIES IN TEXAS IN PAST MONTH CITED IN REPORT; $5,000 REWARD OFFER GIVEN STRESS IN APPEAL FOR PROTECTION

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 13.—The Texas State Bankers' association, which, several years ago posted a standing reward of $5,000 each for "dead bank robbers" has issued a renewal appeal to "shoot to kill."

The latest offensive was suggested by an advertisement in the Texas Bankers' Record, official publication of the association, which exhorted members to "oil up the rifles" and "fight robbers with lead."

"Necessary to Kill"

Pointing out that there had been nine robberies and hold-ups of banks since January 1 this year, the advertisement comments that "it seems necessary to kill a bank robber to stop attacks on our banks."

"Do you realize that more banks have been robbed in Texas since January 1, 1931, than were robbed during the two years 1929 and 1930?" reads the advertisement. "This is true. It isn't because of the 'depression,' cold winter months, and a lot of other alibis we generally use. It is because we have become lax in our precautions.

Is Sure Way

"A sure way to stop the hold-up boys, whether they be local, ambitious gangs, or imported bad men is very simple.

"It is only a matter of killing a bank-robber and paying $5,000 for the carcass. One dead robber will save 25 robberies in the next two months in Texas.

"So there is nothing to do but go gunning for a robber. Your bank may be the next. They may come at the noon hour, or as early

The bill of Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, was described "as the important piece of social legislation to come before you at this time or any other time," by Mrs. Thomas Hepburn, of Hartford, Connecticut. She declared the question of birth control is at the bottom of all prevailing social ills, including poverty and unemployment.

Interference Claimed

Mrs. Margaret Sanger of New York, the country's foremost birth control advocate was introduced by Mrs. Hepburn. Speaking in an earnest voice, she contended the federal law now in force "interferes with the laws in 47 states

WEATHER TURNING COLDER IN STATE

OIL PRORATION IS UPHELD

RAILROAD COMMISSION WINS IN DANCIGER SUIT TODAY

AUSTIN, Feb. 13—District Judge C. A. Wheeler today upheld the legality of oil proration in Texas. He returned a judgment for the state railroad commission in the suit brought by the Dancigier Oil and Refining company of Amarillo. The case will be appealed.

The Danciger company contended the proration order issued by the railroad commission was unconstitutional because it deprived an oil operator of property without due process of law and that it was void because the legislature had not given the commission such power.

QUEEN HELEN OF RUMANIA TO RESIST CAROL'S EFFORTS AND MARRY OFFICER

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Bucharest society reports that Queen Helen, unable to hold the love of her handsome prince, now King Carol, plans to marry a Rumanian officer, Colonel Skeletti, were published here today.

Helen is said to have written Carol, whose friend in Paris, the red-headed Magda Lupescu is understood to be lodged now near the royal quarters, that she will resist all his efforts to nullify the divorce she obtained from him in Absentia in 1928.

While the holy synod of the Rumanian Orthodox church declared that divorce null and void shortly after Carol became king last June, it has been explained that this made it only moral non-existent, since legal annulment would have to come through the courts.

Such a marriage as is reported to be contemplated by Helen would be almost unheard of in European royal circles. A princes of the dethroned Grecian house, she and Carol suffered more than their lot of matrimonial vicissitudes from the very beginning of their life together.

After his return to Bucharest in June last year in a coup d'etat which dethroned his son, Michael, and put the crown on his own head, he is said to have attempted a reconciliation and meeting with rebuffs to have sought to make her feel the brunt of his scorn.

Go Right To Work

They gathered first around the luncheon table and immediately after the noon day meal was disposed of they formed their permanent organization, elected officers and went into an executive session. Their deliberations are expected to be completed late this afternoon.

P. R. Friend, former mayor of Lubbock and now vice-president of the Board of City Development, welcomed the visitors here and his brief address was the only one recorded.

Action Expected

Complete discussion of the gas situation as it affects the various cities throughout Northwest Texas will be made at the afternoon session and, although announcement to that affect has not been made, some action on the part of the officials is expected.

Facts pertaining to the problem will be presented by the various men assembled and efforts will be made to determine a concerted line of procedure on the part of all cities.

The Lubbock City commission Thursday sat in special session to hear complaints of local citizens regarding gas bills. These complaints were tabulated and will be used in further consideration and investigation by the body. In addition to a petition, signed by more than 450 citizens complaining of high gas bills, 37 other complaints have been received by the commission within the last week.

A meetnig similar to the one being held here today has been called for Oil Belt cities in Abilene on February 18, according to information received here yesterday.

BODY OF BELL MERCHANT IS MUTILATED

W. C. SANDERSON DIES AT HANDS OF BRUTAL SLAYER

BELTON, Feb. 13.—His features mangled almost beyond recognition by eight blows from an ax on his head and face, W. C. Sanderford, 55 was found slain in his place of business at Little River a small community six miles from here, early today.

Sanderford's body was reclining on a cot, it having been his custom for some time to sleep in his store, where he sold gasoline, groceries and other supplies to travelers on the highway between Taylor and Temple.

Officers said Sanderford had been robbed of money, his watch and jewelry. Entrance to the store was gained through a window after molding had been removed before the window could be opened. Investigators said they were certain Sanderford was slain while he slept, as there was no evidence of a struggle. Physicians said any one of the blows dealt the man would have caused death.

DR. MYERS

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

DELAYED PAIN DOES NO GOOD SAYS EXPERT

THOSE WHO have been reading my articles have observed that I advocated spanking the child under four or five years of age, as a means of teaching inhibitions in respect to safety, even in respect to care of property and others' rights.

But those who spank—and nearly all parents do, whether they believe in it or not—do so, as a rule, without a definite, carefully thought through plan.

If you do not believe in spanking be ashamed of yourself to be so weak in character as not to be able to stand by your convictions.

If you believe in spanking you will avoid some things:

Don't spank just to make yourself feel better for the moment. Perhaps 80 per cent of spanking is for no other reason. You will not so punish a child unless you had planned long beforehand the type of instances for which you would spank.

Don't spank unless it can be immediate. If the child of two has run out into the street it is too late to spank him after you have carried him into the house. It may even be too late when you have captured him.

For good results he should get the pain immediately after he has stepped off the curb, so he will surely get the right connection in his nervous system. No use to punish the child who has run away after he has been found. Merely bring him back and do nothing. Show him exactly where the dead line is—the gate, or tree, or stone, or mark on the sidewalk. Then be on hand every time he has the opportunity to cross that line, to give him immediate pain. Don't punish him for being caught. Connect the pain only with crossing the line.

How absurd and cruel to punish a child on arriving home, for bad conduct at the grocer's. How stupid the tattling mother and the brutal father of the young child punished in the evening for an "offense" committed in the morning! Many an innocent infant never knows what the spanking is for. It must be immediate to be effective.

To get best results from bodily pain with young children, the spanking should immediately follow the first act to be prevented, and on every one thereafter. In most instances, however, the child over three or four should not get pain on the first offense. The offense should be defined and the pain for the second offense announced and certainly received. After a child has got pleasure from doing something several times, think of the pain it will take to keep him from repeating the act. Anything which promises him more pleasure than pain he will do. How unlikely he is to avoid the act if he is spanked occasionally for it and gets satisfaction from the deed at numerous other times. There must be no exceptions.

To repeat, effective spanking must be immediate, upon the first offense—certainly upon the second—and without exception.

Therefore, you would not use spanking or any other kind of bodily pain to prevent such habits as thumb-sucking, nail-biting, swearing, bed-wetting, or masturbation.

SOAP-BUBBLES VS. SERVICE

TAKE this big package of soap-bubbles in your left hand. Take this smaller package of White King in your right. Which is the heavier? . . . Well, you see how it is!

The answer is that White King's granulated form permits it to pack closer in the carton, like sugar. So you really get more for your money from the smaller package. The suds are more significant than size. And when it comes to actual washing value, White King Granulated Soap admits no equal.

White King's economy will surprise you. A teaspoonful in a basin of water for fine lingerie—a cupful for the washing machine. And it's absolutely pure—anything water won't hurt, White King won't. At your grocer's.

RECIPE GIVES COFFEE ROASTER IDEA FOR PERFECTING FLAVOR

Applies Rule for Mixing Muffin Ingredients to Patented Roasting Process

Success in muffin making depends to a great extent on the care with which the batter is made. That is why most recipes state that the milk should be poured into the flour a little at a time rather than all at once. Such care prevents lumps from forming.

This rule, "a little at a time," is the basis of Controlled Roasting—a process patented and used only by Hills Bros. in roasting their coffee. By automatic control, coffee passes continuously through the roasters, a few pounds at a time. Accurately controlled heat is applied with the result that every berry is roasted evenly—to the degree that insures a rich, uniform, full-bodied flavor. The common method of roasting coffee is in bulk—just the opposite of Hills Bros.' process.

Hills Bros. Coffee is always fresh because it is packed in vacuum. By this process air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out of the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde I. Sherman, R. #1, Lickdale, Pennsylvania.

St. Paul Youngster Suffers His 22nd Bone Fracture

ST. PAUL, Feb. 13 (AP)—Maurice Breslau, 9, has a brand new fracture today, the 22nd such injury he has suffered in the past five years.

His latest injury occurred when he stumbled and fell while hurrying to his seat in school. His right thigh was fractured.

Twenty-one times before he has gone through similar experiences. Once his collar bone was broken. Seven times his left arm bone had been fractured. And 13 times before the present injury he has had broken legs.

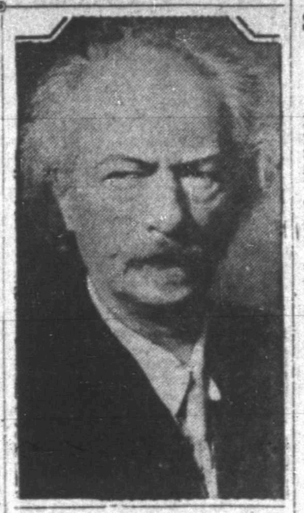

Maurice appeared to be a healthy normal boy until he was four years old. The brittleness appeared in his bones. A fall or a bump that an ordinary boy would not notice sends Maurice to bed in a cast.

PADEREWSKI PREMIER PIANIST WILL APPEAR IN CONCERT IN AMARILLO SOON

Paderewski, premier pianist, will arrive in Amarillo on February 20 in his special car and will appear at the Amarillo auditorium that night at 8:15 o'clock under the auspices of Emil F. Myers, of the Amarillo College of Music.

The Superb de lux car of the Pullman company has the distinction of being Paderewski's home sometimes for six months at a stretch. Unlike most musicians Paderewski does not favor hotels when he is on tour. The car, where he makes his home, is an nearly as possible the appointments of a home—his piano, his books, comfortable chairs and attractive hangings. It has its own lighting and heating system, it is connected by telephone with each city where Paderewski stops for a concert and has a special chef and accommodations for the pianist's entourage of eight people.

Workmen Listen

Those who have traveled with him tell of how in the evening when the car is side-tracked he will start playing. Outside his window a brakeman stops and listens, then an engineer, then other yard employees until a fair sized group is standing silently beside the car, listening with rapt attention to the wonderful music.

Mme. Paderewski is traveling with the pianist on this tour.

Tickets for the concert in Amarillo are selling rapidly with the house about sold out at this time. Those desiring seats should place them early as indications are that the house will be sold out, according to Mr. Myers, who is in charge of the sale.

Is Your Face Covered With Pimples?

Wichita Falls, Texas — "My son was in poor health when he was about twenty years of age. His blood became thin and he was pale. He was also troubled with his stomach and his face broke out with pimples. Finally, I decided to have him try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. By the time he had taken a few bottles of the 'Discovery' he was completely relieved of all these troubles, his blood was healthy, and he had no more stomach trouble."—Mrs. Beufah Singleton, 1101 18th St. Tablets or liquid. BLACK-DRAUGHT BROUGHT RELIEF

Saved Needless Suffering, Says Lady Who Used To Have Severe Headaches.

Columbia, S. C.—"I have taken Black-Draught for thirty or more years and considered it a family medicine," writes Mrs. Luther Senn, 815 Eighth Street, this city. "I gave it to my children for colds and children's ailments. It is very helpful. I took it myself for constipation, and indigestion. "I used to have very severe headaches that would leave me weak and trembly. I found that Black-Draught relieves this, so I do not let myself get without it. Black-Draught has saved me a lot of needless suffering. I am glad to recommend it to my friends and neighbors."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable cathartic or laxative medicine, composed of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

This medicine has been in use since 1835, with constantly increasing popularity because of the good it has done to the men, women and children who have taken it. BA-508

Thought For Today

They that plow iniquity and sow wickedness, reap the same.—Job 4:8.

Wickedness resides in the very hesitation about an act, even though it be not perpetrated.—Cicero.

The Artist Pays

JASCHA HEIFETZ, attaining his 30th birthday recently, remarked that he hoped his small daughter would not become a famous violinist.

"It's too hard a life," he explained.

Here, apparently, we have one of those little slips that a great artist occasionally makes; a chance remark that lets us peer behind the veil and see what being a Heifetz, a Caruso or a Cezanne is really like. We feel that these men are to be envied, and so indeed they are; yet now and then one or another of them gives the show away by admitting that reaching the summit of an art does not always give the happiness it is supposed to.

Consider Heifetz's own case. At three he began studying the violin. At five he gained considerable local renown. Before he had reached his teens he was famous; and ever since he has been a world celebrity, honored by music lovers from Moscow to San Francisco. In all of this time he has not let a day go by without practicing, generally for many hours.

Remembering that he became a serious student of the violin at an age when the ordinary child has not even been taught its A B C's, it is not difficult to see why he feels that it has been too hard a life. Childhood generally is not quite such a happy time as grown-ups pretend; nevertheless, it has a carefree, irresponsible aura that clings over it throughout a lifetime, and makes it an enchanted time to look back upon. But for this man none of that is true. There was nothing but hard work, and lots of it.

Of course, he has had his compensations, material and otherwise. For a long time he has known a large income. He has been famous, he has known what the applause of great crowds is like. And, far more important, there has been the peculiar ecstasy that comes only to the great artist—the ecstasy reserved for those fortunate few who, by picking up a violin or a paint brush or a pen, can demonstrate that man is, after all, little lower than the angels.

And yet—"it's too hard a life."

To reach greatness in any of the arts one must make heavy sacrifices. One must sacrifice, indeed, one's self; must make one's self an instrument through which one's art can be produced. One cannot live as other men live; and if there is, for reward, a greater delight than other men know, there are, also, greater sorrow, greater pain, greater discouragement. Life becomes a business of high peaks and deep valleys. If the peaks gleam with a light not of this earth, the valleys are filled with the blackest of shadows.

The rest of us can only guess at all of this, to be sure. We share the artist's exaltation at second hand when we see the pictures that he has painted, or read his poetry, or hear him play his violin; but it is only in a chance remark, like this of Heifetz's that we get a glimpse of the shadows.

Not Encouraging

The man who wants to retain an unquestioning and child-like faith in the workings of democracy in the modern state is advised to pay very little attention to the mayoralty campaigns in our two largest cities.

At its last election New York gave a stupendous majority to a young man whose chief qualification seems to be that he is amiable, dapper, very well dressed and unusually quick at repartee. And now in Chicago we can see a mayor who wants a fourth term seek it, apparently on the theory that all one needs to do is provide a good show for the populace.

In neither case is the spectacle at all encouraging. New York has its Jimmy Walker, Chicago has its Big Bill Thompson. The believer in democracy can hardly get much encouragement out of either situation.

THE PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says no man is ever half as important as he feels after doing some odd job about the house.

OLD WILL ROGERS is getting to be quite a much. The Plainsman can remember the day in Lubbock when Will's main claim to fame was being kin to Daddy Dickinson's kinfolks, but them days is gone forever. Will's getting so important now that they're talking about running him for President on the Democratic ticket.

Since Will has been beating the bushes, helping his home folks of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas to get three squares a day, he has captured popular fancy even more than ever. There's no doubt but that he'd run a whale of a race for anything they nominated him to, and Parker Prouty, the business manager of the paper, says he'd be elected in a walk.

Although The Plainsman is an ardent admirer of Will Rogers in more ways than one, he doubts seriously that Will would fit himself into the Presidential picture. In the first place, he probably wouldn't consent to run, and in the second place, Presidential problems would be just about as foreign to him as they would be to Babe Ruth.

THE PLAINSMAN is one person who doesn't want to see Will spoiled. He's the best humorist this country has ever produced, one of the most widely loved men the stage has ever seen. Why spoil him by running him for President? We can get lots of Presidential candidates but The Plainsman can't think of a soul to replace Will Rogers.

While we're on the subject of Will, here are a few pointers on him, printed in a Bartlesville, Okla., paper, which is published right near where Will Rogers was 'fotched up.'

"Will tells his wife about everything he writes. She passes on his jokes and his lines and if she doesn't like them, Will changes them.

"Clothes mean little to Will Rogers. He has no use for a dinner coat or a dress suit. When he goes out for an evening engagement, he usually wears a double-breasted, blue suit, and a black bow tie. His movements are spontaneous. When he sits down to dine he may pick up a fork and pound it on the table."

HE NEVER buys a suit. After his wife tells him that he needs one—and repeats it two or three times—she orders it from his tailor.

"He can never remember where important papers are. His wife always finds them for him.

"He types his manuscripts himself, with two fingers, single-spaced and never makes a carbon copy. If he loses a sheet he re-writes it.

"He reads the newspapers at the table and throws them on the floor". (Isn't that just like the average husband?)

"He snores moderately, sings in a high tenor and owns a piano, banjo, violin, drums and mandolin. While he has tried them all he can't play any of them.

"He can't pack his own bags and misses trains unless someone sees that he catches them.

"He never chews gum at home."

YOU might read these inside pointers on Will Rogers one time and think he is queer. But if you'll read them over again, you'll see that he isn't queer—only human. He's like a lot of men in his habits and because he is so human he has endeared himself even closer to the hearts of his public.

Will Rogers, in The Plainsman's opinion, is one swell guy, because he hasn't let his success turn his head; because he has in his system more than his share of 'the milk of human kindness,' and because he's one celebrity of the stage a screen for which it is not necessary to make excuses.

That Man on Avenue Q says when a woman has nothing to say she usually calls someone up on the telephone.

* * *

A Tech boy traded his flivver in the other day and wanted George Benson to allow him an extra hundred dollars for the wisecracks.

THE PLAINSMAN is in receipt of a carefully disguised letter concerning unemployment, which lays married ladies to task because a lot of men are out of work.

It may be that the married women are filling too many jobs to the detriment of the married men who are out of work—then again, it may be that the married ladies have nothing to do with it.

Unemployment is just like cancer. There isn't anybody who knows so much about it that he can put his finger on it from beginning to end.

After all, unemployment, like the flu, comes in epidemics. We don't have any for a long time—then for a short period we have a lot. Who among us can say why? If anyone can explain it he's in for riches and honor.

There is a certain number of ills that man is heir to. We know that it has been the case for a good many years, for even old Bill Shakespeare commented upon the situation. Unemployment is one of those ills for which we've thus far found no clue.

Will You Be My Valentine?

"Without-Or-With, Offense To Friends Or Foes, We Sketch Your World Exactly As It Goes"—Byron

Senator Robert J. Buckley Of Ohio, Who Won His Seat With A 'Dripping Wet' Campaign, Quiet On Prohibition

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13—Have you ever wondered what became of Senator Robert J. Bulkley, who won such a surprising victory last November with a "dripping wet" campaign in supposedly dry Ohio?

You can see him out on the Senate floor, but you can't hear him. Like Dwight Morrow of New Jersey, he has been keeping quiet during his first couple of months here. Anyone who expected some hot speeches from Bulkley in favor of repealing the 18th Amendment can consider himself disappointed There haven't been any Bulkley speeches at all.

"The issue is being kept before the country," he explained when asked why he wasn't making wet speeches. "But we can't really do much here yet. We must elect some more fellows who run on sound platforms for repeal. You see, we're still a minority."

On Banking Committee

The Democratic senator for Ohio, meanwhile, has been active on an issue which he considers at least equally important and on which he qualifies as an expert. A member of the Senate banking and currency committee, he is serving on the Glass subcommittee which is investigating the national banking laws. While serving in the House —1911 to 1915—Bulkley helped write the Federal Reserve act and his examination of witnesses has demonstrated his broad knowledge of the subject. Discussing the investigation, Bulkley indicated why he considered the work of more moment than wet speeches at a time when the wets are virtually powerless.

"There's nothing more important," he declared, "because the whole question of national prosperity is directly involved. We are trying to find out why 6000 banks have failed in the last 10 years. We are going into the causes of the Wall Street crash. We are examining the operations of the Federal Reserve system and the comptroller of the currency. We want to know what changes should be made in the law and I think we can find some valuable remedies."

Makes Many Friends

Bulkley has been making many friends. Although he is a millionaire, he is the type of man who does. Both conservatives and progressives on the Republican side of the aisle speak well of him. He dresses plainly, sometimes almost slouchily, and talks genially and frankly to everyone. He has a chauffeur, but drives his own car, as he did when campaigning in Ohio last fall. He lives in a large house on lower 16th street with Mrs. Bulkley and a 12-year-old daughter, Katherine. The Bulkleys are popular in Washington society. The senator enjoys music; in Cleveland he was one of the sponsors of the Metropolitan Opera seasons.

He is on three Senate committees. Those besides banking and currency are manufactures and privileges and elections. Both are important, the latter especially when there's a question about a senator's right to a seat.

Speaking again of Bulkley and prohibition—the issue which first brought him before the country in a big way—Bulkley is one of that esoteric group which read the Wickersham report all the way through. And one who thought there were "many sensible things" in the report, but that the conclusions and recommendations looked silly when compared with the rest of it.

Favors Repeal

"I'm flatly for repeal," the senator says. "I wouldn't resist a revision that would let the federal government protect the dry states from smuggling across their borders, but the federal government shouldn't have the job of enforcing state laws internally.

"I think it is becoming more and more clear that this administration, with regard to enforcement, is just letting things ride. The Wickersham report, of course, was used as a stall. Neither the president nor the Department of Justice is going to do a single thing to carry out the recommendations which the Wickersham commission made in the interest of better enforcement. The administration people in the Senate have been perfectly content to fiddle away with the Howell bill for the District of Columbia, which everybody knows can't become a law."

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

EDITOR'S NOTE: Four pamphlets and six articles by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each pamphlet and 2 cents in coin for each article, with a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Reducing and Gaining." "Hygiene of Women." "Infant Feeding" and "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes." The articles are: "Normal Diet," "List of Books for Mothers," "Bed Wetting," "Diet of the Expectant Mother," "Ear Troubles" and "Tuberculosis."

MEANING AND FUNCTION OF ROUGHAGE IN DIET

One of the advantages claimed for whole wheat bread over white bread is that it contains more roughage.

Dr. Clendening

Some of my readers have asked me to explain what is meant by roughage. A group got into an argument and wanted to know whether spinach and lettuce were "roughage. Both spinach and lettuce contain roughage, as do nearly all vegetables (potatoes being a notable exception.) Roughage is any indigestible or unabsorbable part of the food. The fiber or cellulose of fruits and vegetables is roughage. If you chew a sliced orange or grapefruit until you have chewed all the juice out you will have a quantity of pulp in your mouth that no amount of chewing will further reduce. This is the "roughage" part and will be reduced in size very little during its passage through the intestines.

The roughage in whole wheat bread is in the form of bran. It is one of the most indigestible substances on earth, at least for the human digestive tract. A goat or a rabbit or a cow has an enormous prolongation of the intestine where our vermiform appendix is, and when their food enters this pouch, which contains many bacteria, the bacteria attack the vegetable cellulose and finally break it down. It is a long and uneconomical process and requires the goat or rabbit or cow to spend most of its time chewing.

Roughage to a certain amount is good for the human digestive tract, but unlike the goat, we can take care of only a limited amount. Some people require more than others. Only a small proportion of people can use much bran comfortably, and therefore whole wheat bread is adapted to only a small part of the population. For others it is irritating and results in intestinal discomfort, and colitis of varying grades. It is also productive of a great deal of rectal trouble and irritation.

The idea, then, of imposing whole wheat bread on the entire nation is thoroughly unscientific. The damage which has been done is that the advocates of whole wheat bread have frightened people so about white bread, that the people who find they cannot eat whole wheat bread do not eat any bread

This is a great pity because bread still is the staff of life. White bread on the average, contains 9 per cent of protein. This is vegetable protein, of course, in one of the most easily assimilable and most valuable forms in which it can be obtained. There is one and one-half per cent fat and 53 per cent carbohydrate in white bread. So the fuel value is high.

That the removal of the bran and wheat germ from white bread removes some vitamin is true, but bran is so indigestible that little of the vitamin in whole wheat bread is absorbed. The amount of vitamin lost is made up by putting on butter and baking bread with milk By drinking a glass of milk with a slice of bread you get all the vitamin you need.

GIRL FOUND SHOT

JEROME, Idaho, Feb. 13 (AP)—Miss Frances Elizabeth Perkins, 18, honor student at the University of Idaho last year, was found shot to death in her home yesterday.

Coroner J. R. Wiley said she committed suicide. Officers quoted her mother as saying he had reprimanded the girl for staying out late.

In Barbary With Gilbert Swan

SWAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—It happened something like this:

The morning papers contained the information that six more plays had folded up on Broadway and been carted away to Cain's warehouse.

For weeks the amusement world journals had been weeping for the dying night clubs.

When I went to lunch with friends from the writing world, I listened to the moaning of publishers over books that would not sell.

A sort of pessimistic pallor seemed to be creeping over the face of people and things I encountered

And seeking a few moments of surcease from such realities, I started to drop in on a news reel picture house, just to see what the king of Spain had been up to. In the lobby I met a cameraman who had trailed news events in every corner of the earth.

"Aha," he chirped cheerfully, "what a break this season is for the travelogue boys. The whole country has gone ga-ga over dear old romantic scenes and quaint customs. Do you realize that 151 different camera expeditions are going to set out within the year to get short release subjects on strange things? Now just take me, I'm going to North Africa next week and get some pictures of the sultan changing shirts."

"Aw, pipe down," I returned enviously.

"Really—I'm not kidding," my movie friend went on. "People are a bit worried. They want magic carpets. They want to be whisked away for a few moments to far-away lands. They want a bit of the Arabian Nights in their soup."

"Well, lots of luck . . . as though you needed it!"

And I went into the picture show

It was mid-afternoon of the same day.

As usual, the phone rang for the two-dozenth time. This time the gent calling was one Clay Morgan an amiable and portly representative of the French Line boats.

"Say Gil, why don't you take that column of yours over to Morocco?" came a voice.

"Yeah, and why don't you take that foo-foo powder out of your coffee and come back to earth," I replied curtly.

"You don't seem to understand me! I think you should take a look at that swell new auto road that runs down to Marrakesh. You know the people are in the frame of mind for romance and glamour."

"Yes, yes. I've heard all about that once today. I've got work to do."

"But Gil, I'm serious. I think it's about time you saw the Kasbah of the Oudaias."

"And about time you say purple panthers, old dear, if you keep on the way you have started."

"I'm telling you that we're going across Africa by automobile — we land at the Canary Islands on a regular Mediterranean cruise. And from Tenerife we're going to Casablanca in North Africa . . . from there we tour south to Marrakesh and spend a few days and we drop down to look at the spot where the Garden of Eden used to be."

"Hey, wait a minute," I interrupt. "Can you fix it to get me the apple concession there? I'd like to make my first million."

"What I'm trying to tell you is that you can meet the sultan and spend the week-end with a couple of caids . . . you can look like a Shriner in Fez or like a pirate in Algiers. . . . That's what we're going to do."

"Say, what do you mean . . . we are."

"Why you, me, a cameraman and a couple of other guys. You've only got nine days to get a passport, so you better step on it."

At that moment Jimmy, the office boy, brought the smelling salts

And that, my children, is the beginning of this adventure which will be continued in our next. Station SWAN signing off. Cherrio!

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KIM

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

SAID Coppy, to the kindly gent. "How did you make that instrument? It surely is a clever job and neat as it can be. And, is it hard to play that thing? How do you always know what string to strum upon to make your tunes? Gee, that's what puzzles me."

The old man smiled and said, "Well, son, I learned to strum them, one by one. Each string brings forth a different tone and I have learned them all. Now, some of them are loosely bound and others tightly. That makes sound. When once you understand this thing, it isn't hard at all.

"And as to how I made it—well, I must admit that's hard to tell. I guess I simply slit off strands and fastened them in place. That made it like a harp, you see. I'll play some more. Now, just watch me." So Coppy stood and listened, with a smile upon his face.

And then the Travel Man said, "Say, it's time that we are on our way. Let's hike back to our ox cart. To a coast town we will drive. The name of it's Tulear and there we'll see some new sights that are rare. I know that you will like the place as soon as we arrive."

They paid the old musician well and with a merry "Goodby" yell, they scampered to the ox cart and went slowly o'er the ground. It wasn't long till near at hand they spied a town and it looked grand. "That's Tulear," cried the Travel Man, "and that's where we are bound."

They drove right down a village street and very shortly chanced to meet a group of old rice sellers who had bags and bags of rice. The old men squatted on ground and, as the Tinies gathered 'round, wee Scouty said, "Let's buy some rice and cook it. 'Twill taste nice." (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

COURT IS TO BE RECESSED TODAY

Grand jury in 72nd district court will probably be recessed late today following a busy week of investigations, according to announcement by court officials this morning.

Homer L. Pharr, judge of the court, this morning refused to order a public announcement of the grand jury's decision in the case of Alvis Graves, charged on two counts with murder. The case was taken up last Monday.

"Such announcement regarding indictments is dependent upon order from the court and we do not have to parade the proceedings before the public to make something sensational for the newspapers," Judge Pharr declared.

Graves has been held in the Lubbock county jail since January 11 and is charged with murder of Horace L. Smith and Robert Averett as result of a shooting which occurred the night of January 10.

SCOUTS WILL HOLD MEET

ROUNDUP SESSION ON ANNIVERSARY TO BE TONIGHT

Following a similar meeting held last night by Troop No. 4, present and former members of Troop No. 6, Lubbock Boy Scouts, will meet in a roundup session tonight at the Cumberland Presbyterian church, the institution which sponsors the troop.

According to those in charge of the affair, the program will begin at 7:30 o'clock and is a part of the troop's observance of the 21st anniversary of the American scout movement. A pageant, "A Year's Scouting," will be presented by scouts. Persons present will be asked to make short talks.

A group of 54 members and former members of scout troop No. 4 of the First Presbyterian church, attended a reunion dinner Thursday night at the Lubbock hotel.

Durwood Bradley, district attorney, was principal speaker. He spoke of the beneficial influence of the scout program upon the individual boy, who in turn serves as a vehicle transmitting the ideals of the scout code to others.

K. N. Clapp, area scout commissioner and former scoutmaster of troop No. 4, served as toastmaster, and called upon most of the men present for brief talks.

Games and songs were included on the program.

Men present at the reunion, highspot of troop No. 4's anniversary week celebration, included:

The dinner began at 7 p. m.

NEW PLAN ON PAVING UP

LIGHTENING OF BURDEN ON OWNER WOULD BE MADE IN CITY

A plan for lightening the cost of city paving to the property owner was advanced at a meeting of the Lubbock City Commission Thursday afternoon by City Manager J. Bryan Miller.

Highlights of the plan offered follow:

1. Bids would be taken on several different types of paving, including concrete, asphalt and brick, when a project of 30,000 to 50,000 square yards had been effected.

2. The city would pay 10 per cent of the cost of paving where the front of a lot abuts on the street, and at least 25 per cent of the cost where the side of a lot abuts on the street.

3. Property owners would pay 10 per cent of the assessment on paving certificates within a year from the date of completion and acceptance of the paving, and the balance in nine equal annual installments; all deferred payments would draw 6 per cent interest.

The city could care for its part of the program out of general revenue without issuing bonds or warrants, or increasing the tax rate, City Manager Miller said.

An opinion was expressed by the city manager that adoption of the plan would be a major factor in expediting start of paving residential streets, annual cost to the property owner paying the assessment being lightened to a marked extent.

Charles A. Guy, editor and publisher of the Avalanche-Journal newspapers, was elected unanimously by the commission to fill the unexpired term of L. Herbert Quinn, late Lubbock publisher, as a member of the board of city development.

The city commission passed second reading of ordinance No. 483, requiring advance payment of a license fee of $5 a day for operation of a bowling or similar alley in Lubbock.

Development of a water well drilled for the city at the extreme edge of the county park is underway, casing having been set, and the well probably will be put on test early next week, it was reported to the commission.

The well has shown 38 feet of water-sand and is 97 feet in depth, according to the city manager.

A request that East Avenue E adjacent to block 67, Wheelock second addition, be opened across the Fort Worth & Denver City railroad right-of-way was declined by the commission, which held that opening of the avenue would increase railroad-crossing hazard and that there was no need for such an opening.

Cancellation of a $22,000 issue of electric plant six per cent warrants of 1924 was ordered by the commission, which instructed the city manager to request the state comptroller to cancel a like amount in refunding bonds and send them here. The electric plant warrants were purchased recently with interest in the city sinking fund account.

Bids for the annual audit of books and records of the city will be received by City Manager Miller through March 15, he announced after being advised to receive such bids.

Installation of concrete walks at the municipal airport was approved by the commission.

Losing Beauty

FOOCHOW, China — The bridge of the ten thousand ages, one of the wonders of old Cathay and the delight of tourists, is losing some of its beauty in moderinisation. Formerly only a dozen feet wide, it was only large enough for pedestrians. It is being made 20 feet wide so autos can use it to cross the Min river. It was built about 1300.

TWO GRAINS OF SUGAR

but... most women know better when it comes to brands. There have always been "just-as-goods." And, as always, most women prefer to buy the really, the genuinely best. That's the reason for the overwhelming preference for Imperial Sugar. Some sugars may look alike, but most women have found that it's safer and more satisfactory to insist on Imperial. Use it in this recipe—for certain success!

7 Minutes Icing

1 egg white — ½ t. cream of tartar
1 cup sugar — 3 T. cold water
½ teaspoon vanilla

Put ingredients in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly and cook 7 minutes or until icing will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, flavor and beat until thick enough to spread.

Too Much Mother-Love Responsible For "Hardest Crook," Says Science

How St. Louis psychiatrists, familiar with the environment which "made" Leo Brothers, accused of Lingle's murder in Chicago, attribute the gangster's rise in crime to his mother's belief he was persecuted by his 74 police roundup arrests

"They've always been after my boy. . . . The police have never let him alone." . . . So Mrs. Cordell Jessen, mother of Leo Brothers, complains . . . as she rallies to the defense of the son she has always defended.

LEO BROTHERS may be a calloused killer of the most heartless type, or he may be just a bad boy who took to running around with rough playmates. He may be the hired and coldly commercial murderer of Alfred Lingle, or he may be just a labor slugger.

The outcome of his trial in Chicago on charges of murdering Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, gives the law's answer, but regardless of that, many people may have been wondering about the background of this nice looking boy whom Pat Roche, special investigator of Chicago, called "the hardest man I ever saw."

Study of Brothers' more than 70 arrests, which resulted in not a single conviction, show the course of his career pretty definitely, and St. Louis psychiatrists who know his background have described it graphically.

"There are probably a hundred of Brothers' type in St. Louis," says Dr. Paul E. Kubitschek, director of the Child Guidance Clinic in St. Louis.

And he hastens to add that St. Louis is not at all unique in this respect. Brothers, the labor racketeer, the gangster, could be duplicated in all important details hundreds of times over in New York and Chicago and the other large cities of this country.

Dr. Kubitschek, although he has investigated the family backgrounds of several big shots in the St. Louis gang world, in connection with the activities of younger brothers and sisters, never chanced to encounter Brothers. Nor did Brothers ever come under the attention of Dr. William Nelson, director of St. Louis' municipal psychiatric clinic.

But both psychiatrists are thoroughly familiar with the conditions that produce a gangster of the Brothers type. A great deal of their work is directly aimed at preventing little gangsters from becoming big ones. And now and again Dr. Nelson has tried his hand at reclaiming a full-fledged racketeer for society. A much more difficult process, he says, than checking anti-social tendencies before they are confirmed in adult life.

WHILE Dr. Kubitschek does not presume to analyze Brothers without examining him, he points out that the family is the first source of anti-social tendencies that have their final expression in the gangster's career. And it is not what the youngster is told by the adults that make up his family circle, but what he sees there, that shapes his ideals and formulates his ambitions. The example of older brothers is much more powerful than the moral precepts of father, mother or teacher.

A great many gangsters, Dr. Kubitschek points out, believe they are persecuted by the police. This belief is often fostered by the mother. This was apparently true in Brothers' case. When his mother, Mrs. Cordell Jessen, was told by St. Louis police that he was held for the murder of Lingle, her answer was, "Persecution again." She was separated from Brothers' father 21 years ago and has remarried.

"They've always been after my boy," she said. "The police have never let him alone. They've accused him of everything. And they've never been able to prove that he did a thing. It's the same this time. He wasn't even in Chicago at the time that the Lingle man was killed. He must have an alibi."

She left as soon as possible for Chicago to help her son.

Margaret Farmer. . . . Her picture was found in Brothers' room. . . . She didn't believe in his guilt. . . . "The fellow ain't got the nerve," she said.

Betty Cook, close friend of Leo Brothers . . . divorced from one husband, estranged from another. . . . With Mrs. Jessen, she visited Brothers in jail, but remained silent.

THIS attitude has a bad effect on a youth with law-breaking tendencies, says Dr. Kubitschek. It tends to blunt all distinction between right and wrong and to enable the lawbreaker to justify his every wrong deed. Dr. Kubitschek is working in his clinic at present with a boy of 15 in whose home there is precisely this influence.

"He has been guilty of a long series of misdemeanors, but each time he is arrested the mother hugs him to her and says he couldn't possibly have done anything wrong, that it must have been another boy, that the police are always picking on her son. There could be nothing worse than this attitude. We even find it occasionally with parents who have started their children in wrongdoing, by forcing them to pick up coal along the railroad tracks and whipping them if they do not return with a certain amount. But if the child is arrested for a more serious offense, they are outraged. The youngster, of course, finds it difficult to distinguish between taking coal from the railroad tracks and taking an object from the counter of a 10-cent store."

DR. NELSON of the municipal clinic believes that the police practice of arresting gangsters indiscriminately leads to the persecution manias under which the Brothers of present-day society labor. Say they are arrested 74 times, as was Brothers. It is fair to assume that possibly 60 times they were innocent, merely having been picked up on suspicion or in a general roundup.

"Naturally they resent this," Dr. Nelson says. "They tend to have the same sense of persecution when they are guilty as when they are innocent. They cease to make any distinction. And soon they are able to justify every action they may undertake, however criminal. And to a certain degree I feel that their resentment of the indiscriminate police roundup is reasonable. It is a bad practice, like so many of our police procedures. Its whole effect is to create the gangster point of view rather than to check it."

The modern gangster, according to Dr. Kubitschek, who had wide experience at the Child Guidance Clinic in Philadelphia before coming to St. Louis, tends to regard his career in crime matter-of-factly, as a business. The frequent assumption that it is the adventure involved in a life outside the law that appeals, is wrong, in the psychiatrist's opinion. Usually the gangster is too unimaginative to consider this motive; his intelligent quotient is too low.

Brothers' case is a typical example. He was brought up in a fairly well-to-do home. Early he developed certain wayward tendencies. He began to go around with a neighborhood gang. Some of the older members were friends or had brothers who were friends of full-fledged gangsters, members of the notorious Cuckoo gang that for so long dominated the underworld of St. Louis.

BROTHERS, as an adolescent, observed these men. He saw that they didn't work very hard, they never lacked money, they spent freely, there were apparently no periods of depression in their business. He graduated into gangsterism as easily and as naturally as the young college graduate goes into the bond business.

"I have a number of cases that indicate this attitude," says Dr. Kubitschek. "One in particular has interested me. The boy is about 15, with an I. Q.—Intelligence Quotient—of about 75, considerably below normal. For two or three years he was guilty of a long series of truancies. He hung around the river front with police characters. He was acquainted with several gangsters, called them admiringly by their first names.

"I said to him, 'Do you think you could be a gangster?' He said yes, he thought he could, it didn't seem to take much brains. And they always had a lot of money.

"I finally asked him if he thought he'd like to be a gangster. And he said he thought not. He said he had two older brothers who both had good steady jobs, and although they didn't have as much money as a gangster, they were a lot more free, they could come and go when they wanted to and they didn't have to hide out like the gangsters. 'And besides,' he added, 'my father told me he'd give me a licking if I tried anything like that.'

"There, you see, you have a borderline case. It wouldn't have taken very much to have pushed this youngster into the criminal class. The example of one of the brothers or an attitude of indifference on the part of the father and the boy would doubtless have been committed to an anti-social career. It was perfectly clear to us that he became defiant after he discovered that he couldn't keep up in school. A sense of inferiority took its outlet in truancies and misdemeanors."

AND occasionally, of course, these youngsters on the borderline between right and wrong have the example of a Brothers. While the gangster's mother is the chief person who has professed to believe in his innocence, his wife takes an entirely different attitude. She has resumed her maiden name and is living in a respectable neighborhood in North St. Louis with her father and mother and her small son. Authorities are trying to shield her from publicity. Brothers deserted her when their son, now seven years old, was very small.

"I never want to hear of him again," she says. "I had lost all touch with him long ago, and I prefer to think of him as dead. I have nothing to say. I want to keep free of it."

Dr. Kubitschek and Dr. Nelson are none too optimistic that the process by which Brothers was made into a gangster is being in any way impeded by society. They both feel that the principal tendency of the present penal system is to create more criminals. There are very few agencies of any sort working to check the growth of gangsterism, in their opinion. But gang domination will be tolerated only to a certain point, Dr. Kubitschek believes. There will come a time, he is certain, when the American public will rise up en masse and put down this monster that has been created in its midst.

Here is the way it has made Brothers whatever he is today:

UNTIL his arrest in connection with the Lingle case, Brothers' criminal career had been comparatively inconspicuous. He was merely a private in the small but ever increasing army that makes a living by practices outside the law. He engaged in various form of sabotage in connection with several labor rackets, specializing in garage and taxi warfare.

He threw stench bombs into garages and into taxicabs. Numerous times he was arrested and positively identified by victims. It was a regular custom of the police to run him in whenever there was a roundup of criminals. He was frequently arrested on suspicion in connection with one crime or another.

Examination of his record shows that his crimes grew increasingly serious in nature. While in the first three or four years of his career, he was charged with throwing stench bombs, later records implicate him with the dynamiting of delivery trucks and homes. His name figures often in the accounts of a long conflict between union and nonunion cleaners and dyers.

In March of 1929 he was arrested for tossing a dynamite bomb into a cleaner's truck. It was arrest No. 63 on his record. And no convictions. In most instances no charges were preferred. Even when definite charges were brought, Brothers never had any difficulty in making bail, the case would drag along under the ministrations of skillful lawyers, and finally be dismissed for lack of evidence. The witnesses who had so positively identified Brothers at the time of the crime could not be sure; they were certain they were mistaken in their identification. Something had happened. No one ever took very much trouble to find out. Such an occurrence is a commonplace of the criminal courts. Intimidation is always assumed, but there is never any proof. Delay is on the gangster's side.

BROTHERS was advancing, he was getting beyond the minor sabotage of the labor racketeer. The next step was inevitable. It came five months later, in August of 1929. John de Blasi, 18, a service car driver, was murdered, and a friend who was with him at the time, John Prosperito, named Brothers as the murderer.

The service car is a rather special institution in St. Louis. Drivers owning their own cars, for the most part large sedans and limousines, supplement the street cars and busses on the principal streets, charging passengers a quarter for rapid transit to the business district. Most of the drivers are young men. It was an ideal field for union organization of the type in which Brothers specialized—organization and the levy of excessive dues by intimidation and threats. Young John de Blasi had quarreled with Brothers the morning of the murder. He had announced that he would be blankety blanked if he'd pay tribute to the new union. Prosperito was riding with him and heard this quarrel. The two friends were still together when De Blasi turned into an alley and drove up behind his home that evening. A car in which three men were riding in the front seat followed them and a moment later there was the rapid bark of gunfire and De Blasi slumped over the steering wheel.

The case never got any further than the coroner's jury. Brothers had disappeared. He did not reappear until he faced charges in the sensational Lingle case.

Harveg Brothers, barber, father of Leo. . . . Separated 21 years ago from his wife . . . yet he appears to have had communication with his son . . . since the murders of De Blas and Lingle.

Police photo of Leo Brothers. . . . He left school in the seventh grade . . . saw honorable service in the navy during the war. . . . But since then has always walked shady paths.

MATCH PLAY BEGINS IN TECH GOLF TILT

WHITWORTH PICKS RAIL JOB

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

With Collier Parris
Journal Sports Editor

Tech's Matador cagers are with us no more this season. The McMurry games were the last home events of the 1931 season. They depart Wednesday for Canyon, playing the Buffaloes of West Texas Teachers a return series, come back home for the week-end of rest and make another exit Monday for New Mexico, where the School of Mines and the University of New Mexico await them. They wind up the season in El Paso on the last two nights of February. A number of Lubbock sportsmen plan to meet the Matadors in the border town and help them break training.

The Lubbock Westerners also may have played their last. They may have one more game before the district tournament and they may not. At this writing no game is scheduled. They will represent Lubbock county in the Class A division of the district tournament here next week.

We salute the Lubbock High school coaches who have administered to the local basketball cause this season. To "Jew" Keeling and Lovie Liston go sincere compliments and congratulations. Both men have worked tirelessly all season with as poor a bunch of material as we have ever seen under a single gymnasium roof. A majority of the players who wear the Gold and Black never dribbled a basketball before the cage season opened. When the season began, one letterman reported, but by the time for the first game he had been graduated to college.

Keeling is a good boy and a good coach, and he is to be commended for his work this season. But he does not deserve nor claim all the honor for developing a bunch of inexperienced school boys into a pretty fair basketball combination. Liston, his first assistant, deserves a lot of credit. He has worked with the cagers while Keeling roamed the countryside looking for engagements. Liston is a quiet fellow and doesn't have much to say, but he knows his basketball ropes and works faithfully with the lads. Aside from his duties at the high school, Liston is director of athletics for the ward schools here.

We're glad to note that constant improvement prevails in the condition of Dutch Luenberger, Lubbock sports promoter and manager of Lubbock's baseball and basketball teams. He underwent an operation for appendicitis Monday night and is recovering rapidly.

It is with the utmost graciousness that we accept the apology of Prexy Anderson, popular scribe of Abilene and vicinity for the alleged "belittling of Lubbock's athletic teams" as more or less humorously charged herein some few days since. It has been the custom of the Abilene scribe when announcing games that Abilene college teams would play on the Plains to suggest that the Taylor county boys would play with Canyon's Buffs, and on the way home would stop at Lubbock for a workout with the Matadors. Perhaps we overemphasized the matter. At any rate, Anderson says honor will be given where honor is due and expresses "profound apologies."

Rockne of Knutre Dame sped through Texas this week and stopped at Big Spring long enough to talk about football to a bunch of interested and curious fans. "Texas colleges are producing teams as good as those from the east and middle west", he told the boys. He said he had learned new methods from young Texas coaches at a school in Dallas, and that the brand of football as played in the Lone Star state compared with that where football is perhaps more popular and draws greater crowds. "Texas players", he said, "now reach college well schooled in fundamentals by virtue of good high school coaching".

And some of them reach there because they're sent for. "Texas college coaches and athletic men are smart when it comes to gathering good material from the high schools", Knute Rockne did not say, but which he might have said and still be right.

In a session with a few sportsmen yesterday someone said that if Tech would produce great athletic teams that attendance at high school games would undergo a great decrease. If it decreased much more the reserves would have to sit in the stands as a cheering crew. The observer cited the fact that until a few years ago Fort Worth schools enjoyed large crowds at athletic contests, but since the rise of T. C. U. the high school interest has subsided. If Lubbock fans turned out as they should each institution here would draw full houses and grandstands without making it necessary for the same man to see both high school and college games. Lubbock will have good teams when sufficient interest is taken by the fans to warrant bigger and better things.

Sportsmen of Charlevoix, Mich., have proposed that Fox Island in Lake Michigan be stocked with foxes.

TWENTY-FOUR COLLEGE BOYS VIEING FOR ANNUAL PRIZES

First rounds in the match play of the second annual Texas Tech student golf course will begin this afternoon. Twenty-four students make up the field. Pairings were made last night following the qualifying round yesterday and announced by W. G. McMillan, owner and manager of the club, this morning.

Mendal Hughett of Lubbock shot a neat 73, three over par, to win medalist honors in the qualifying round yesterday. Bill Holmes of Shamrock and Newell Hughes of Lubbock tied for second place with 74's.

Two Flights Slated

Two flights of twelve men each will play in the matched rounds today and tomorrow. Semi-finals are due to be played tomorrow afternoon with the final rounds scheduled for Sunday. Students are asked to set definite hours for their rounds so there will be no class room conflicts. Valuable prizes, subscribed by local firms will be awarded the medalist, winners and runners up of the tournament.

The following players and their qualifying scores have been paired in the first flight: Mendal Hughett, 73 vs. W. Pendleton, 81; Newell Hughes, 74, vs. J. N. Koger, 81; Bill Holmes, 74; vs. Fred Poffenbach, 80; Buster Kaufman, 80 vs. H. H. Hickman, 80; Lyle Holmes, 77 vs. Ed. Harris, 78; Harold Crites, 79 vs. Ernest Nix, 79.

Second flight players and their scores as paired for the first round today follow: A. Smith, 86 vs. Gus Joiner, 94; Gene Womack, 87 vs. Jack Wilson, 93; Crawford Black, 89 vs. J. R. Bremond, 91; Murray Ballenger, 95 vs. Weaver Nedlin, 103; Jack Mickle, 103 vs. George Lemon, 103; L. G. Gordon, 105 vs. W. T. Thomas, 108.

The championship throne is vacant, having been won by Herschell McFarlane of Lubbock last year. McFarlane has since moved away.

CHAMPION OF 160 POUNDERS LOOMS

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—A return bout between Len Harvey British middleweight champion, and Vince Dundee of Baltimore heads Madison Square Garden's weekly card tonight.

Harvey dumped Dundee on the floor twice in their first meeting but the rugged Italian got up to carry the fight to his British rival and win a decision in 12 rounds.

Harvey was just off the boat when he battled Dundee the first time. Now with a few more weeks of training, the Briton thinks he can wipe that defeat off a record that shows only two reverses in something like 350 ring engagements.

Harvey rules a slight favorite in betting although Dundee does not lack support. The bout is at 12 rounds and there is a possibility that the New York State athletic commission will recognize the winner as 160-pound champion of the world. The crown has gone begging in this state since Mickey Walker was stripped of it by the commission several weeks ago.

Griffiths May Meet Levinsky In March

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (AP)—Negotiations were under way today, to match Gerald Ambrose Griffiths the Sioux City, Ia., tough one, with King Levinsky for a 10-round engagement in the Chicago Stadium March 6.

It was reported that Levinsky interests would take 50 per cent of the receipts out of which they would undertake to guarantee Griffiths $25,000.

TO PRESENT PLAY

A three-act comedy drama, "The White Lie," having the South Plains as its background, will be presented by Lubbock Community Players at 8 o'clock tonight in the high school auditorium at Hurlwood.

"The White Lie" will be the third and last play to be presented by the Lubbock players at Hurlwood this season. The presentation will be under auspices of the Hurlwood dramatic club.

CUBS STINGY WITH HACK'S SUITS

STAR HOME RUN SLUGGER ONLY GETS TWO SETS OF UNIFORMS; GETS THEM DIRTY EASILY

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 — Poor Hack Wilson! The major league home run champion recently signed a fat contract with the cubs, and now the club has retaliated by limiting him to eight uniforms for the 1931 season.

Wilson has a propensity for getting his suits dirty in a hurry, so the management decided to buy him four uniforms for home use, and four for the road.

The rest of the Cubs also will be pretty well outfitted. Each will have two home uniforms and two for the road, and all four sets will be of different pattern. To cope with changes in weather, two heavyweight and two lightweight sweatshirts have been purchased for the athletes.

BECTON MEETS MONROE FIVE

CLASS B ENTRY FOR DISTRICT TOURNEY TO BE DECIDED

To determine who shall represent the Class B element of Lubbock county's high school basketball campaign in the district tournament to be held here next week, the teams of Becton and Monroe meet this evening at 6 o'clock at the Texas Tech gymnasium.

In a game featured by hard fighting and no little roughing, Becton defeated Woodrow, 29 to 19, in the semi-final round last night on the Tech hardwoods. Becton, Woodrow and Monroe won their divisions in the county tournament last week here, and settle the Class B controversy this week. The contest between Becton and Monroe is expected to be one of the best so far played during the county tournaments.

According to the scheduled released by G. C. McWhorter, county athletic director, a series of girls' games will be played this afternoon at the high school gymnasium. Beginning at 4 o'clock and playing a game every hour until 9 o'clock, the following teams play: County Line vs. Hurlwood; Monroe vs. Becton; McClung vs. Woodrow; Wolffarth vs. Acuff, and Foster vs. Canyon.

Rodeo Stars Ready To Name Champion

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 13 (AP)—Prominent wild west performers gathered here today for the annual convention of the Rodeo Association of America. Clay Carr, Visalia, Calif., youth will be crowned king of the cowboys in the closing event tomorrow.

The championship is awarded annually on the basis of each performer's record in the thirty rodeos represented in the association's membership.

Two Shooters Break 100 Successive Birds

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 13 (AP)—Fred Etchen, southpaw shooter, Wichita, Kas., and Oscar Hanson, the crack amateur from Fremont, Neb., both broke 100 "clays" in succession in century events at the fourth day's program of the 27th annual interstate trapshooting tournament here Thursday.

Aside from these two records, the program was featured by the interstate team target championship which was shot along with the classification races at 200 targets. Kansas No. 1. team won the team title by scoring 954. Texas and Illinois, the favorites, tied for fourth, each scoring 936.

Baseball To Be Cut At Tulane

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13 (AP) — Assigning lack of interest on the part of the student body as the cause, the athletic council of Tulane university has decided to abandon intercollegiate baseball at Tulane this year.

"The student body neither cares for nor supports baseball," the athletic council said in a statement. "This decision was reached with greatest reluctance but the logic of the facts seems to permit no other course."

ASIA COTTON TO RUSSIA

TASHKENT U. S. S. R. (AP)—Middle Asia, which contributed 250,000 of the 260,000 tons of cotton collected in the soviet union in 1929, has been called upon by Moscow to furnish a half million of the 650,000 tons planned for all Russia in 1931. Seventy per cent of the cotton area will be plowed by tractors.

SERAPHIN MARTIN STAGES COMEBACK TO WIN MEADOWBROOK 660 FEATURE

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13 — A three-thousand-mile ocean voyage and two weeks of intensive training on indoor tracks has been crowned with success for Seraphin Martin, leading middle distance runner of France and holder of the world's record for 800 meters.

After a disappointing race in the International half mile in the Millrose games lat Saturday, Martin showed a return to form last night in winning the classic Meadowbrook 660, feature event of the annual indoor games at Philadelphia's arena.

The blue shirted French runner led Eddie Blake and Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland to the tape. Blake was six yards behind and the doctor was half a lap back, in sixth place.

The time of 1:22.4 was the second best time ever made in the Meadowbrook games.

The French automobile mechanic's performance served notice on American speedsters that he must be reckoned with in the rest of his American campaigns, which closes late this month in the national championships.

TEXAS HURLER DECLINES CUB CONTRACT

MAJOR RECRUIT SAYS HE WOULD LOSE HIS RAIL SENIORITY

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 13—The Chicago Cubs management has taken the name of Richard O. Whitworth from the club's roster because Whitworth would rather be a railroad man than try for a place with the National league champions.

Whitworth, a recruit from the Fort Worth club of the Texas league said he couldn't see his way clear to join the Cubs because he would lose his seniority rights as a railroader. Hence his contract was tossed into a wastepaper basket.

PONIES FACING TOUGH GO IN CAGE RACE

FARMERS, FROGS AND PORKERS MUST BE CONQUERED

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 13—Safely past the mental hazard of playing its first game away from home, Southern Methodist university's powerful basketball unit, undefeated in five starts, will try to hurdle another obstacle in its path to the Southwest conference title when it meets the Texas Aggies here tomorrow night.

In the Aggies, the Mustangs will face the team that their coach, Jimmy S. Clair, professes to fear more than any outfit in the conference. Although the Farmers have managed to win only half of their six games, they have proved themselves the closest guarding team in the circuit.

Porkers Meet Bears

Still harboring a faint hope that will come through and win their sixth straight conference crown, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks play host to the Baylor Bears tonight and tomorrow at Fayetteville.

The Texas Longhorns, who have lost five straight, will attempt to break thir jinx against the Rice Institute Owls tomorrow night in Houston.

DAILY MARKETS

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13. (AP)—Bullish activity in coppers, utilities and specialities turned the stock market upward again today after profit-taking in the first half hour had caused small general declines.

Trading became comparatively dull on the rally, however, and price eased from the top. There was particular strength in Westinghouse, Timken, Vanadium and Utah Copper, up 3 points or more. Auburn converted a 4 point decline into a net gain of 2 and J. I. Case, which had been 1 1-2 lower, rose 3 above the Wednesday close. American Telephone and New York Central were heavy.

In the copper group, Anaconda, Kennecott and American Smelting advanced a point or two and there were gains of 2 and 2 1-2 in Public Service in New Jersey, American Water Works, Allied Chemical and Lorillard.

Call money renewed at 1 1-2 per cent.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13 (AP) — While cotton opened somewhat easier here today, in sympathy with lower Liverpool cables than due, and declined five to seven points in the early trading, it soon rallied. The cause of the improvement from the early lows was announcement from Manchester that the labor lockout was ended and that work in the mills would be resumed Monday.

There was also trade buying and short covering with contracts rather scarce. May advanced to 11.22 and October to 11.75, or 11 to 12 points up from the early lows and five to six points above yesterday's close. At the end of the first hour, the market was very steady and at the highs.

Trading was less active this morning than it had been in the earlier days of the week.

Prices fluctuated nervously, easing off a few points and then rallying to 11.25 for May and 11.75 for October, or 12 to 14 points above the early lows and five to six points above Wednesday's close. The market eased off slightly near noon due to bearish week-end statistics and unfavorable British board of trade returns for January.

At noon, the market was quiet and steady three to five points under the highest.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—Cotton opened steady 2 to 4 points lower, with May selling off to 11.11 and October to 11.65 in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and some over holiday selling orders from the south.

The initial offerings were readily absorbed by a renewal of trade buying or covering which may have been promoted by reports that the Lancashire labor trouble had been settled and that work would be resumed on Monday. May sold up to 11.22 and October to 11.73, with the active months showing net advances of about 1 to 5 points at the end of the first half hour. The price of January contracts touched the 12-cent level on this bulge.

The volume of business tapered off somewhat later in the morning, but the market held very steady on continued trade buying while there was probably some rebuying by recent sellers for a reaction. At midday May was ruling around 11.21 and October 11.73, with the active months showing net advances of 2 to 4 points.

NEW ORLEANS OPEN

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13 (AP) — Cotton opened steady, March 10.85; May 11.11; July 11.37; Oc. 11.66; Dec. 11.84; Jan. 11.92 bid.

NEW YORK OPEN

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (AP)—Cotton opened steady. March 10.87; May 11.14; July 11.39; Oct. 11.67; Dec. 11.84; Jan. 11.94.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 13. (AP)—Sharp downturns in grains resulted early today from acute weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool associated with increased shipments by Argentina and Russia. Corn receipts in Chicago, 355 cars, were largest than either a week or a year ago. Starting 1-8 to 2 1-2c off wheat afterward held near to the initial range. Corn opened 3-4 to 1 3-4c lower and subsequently displayed little power to rally.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (AP)—Wheat: No. 2 red 79 1-2; No. 1 hard 79 3-4; No. 1 northern spring 80; No. 1 mixed 79 1-2.

Most of Them Caught

"Fortunately most of these robbers have been caught. But those still at large must rob banks to get money to liberate their buddies who are caught.

"Besides using all the usual precautions against the bandits, like closing during the noon hour, leaving blinds of bank windows up, having the minimum of cash out, throwing the bolts on the vault door, etc., see if you cant' work out a scheme to pour some hot lead into one or more of these gentlemen who are accustomed to come in and demand that you 'stick 'em up.'"

Shortly after the Bankers' association offered its standing reward for dead bank robbers, stipulating that "not a cent for live ones" would be paid, Frank Hamer, Texas Ranger captain, protested that a proposition of that kind was likely to move unscrupulous persons to frame robberies and shoot supposed "robers" to collect the reward. He was subsequently instrumental in working up one or more cases in which it was alleged persons had been killed in the act of robbing banks as a part of frame-ups to collect the rewards. Grand jury indictments were returned but the cases never have been disposed of and still were pending.

TRIO BEING HELD

ed about $1,900 in travelers checks in addition to cash amounting to about $3,000. Five men executed the robbery, three entering the bank and two remaining outside as lookouts.

Throw Away Arms

Menace of a sawedoff shotgun convinced the three suspects arrested Wednesday midnight that resistance was useless, they told officers after their arrest. The shotgun caused two of them to throw away .38 calibre revolvers, the third suspect being unarmed at the moment. A large quantity of cartridges also was found in the trio's possession, and one of the three had stuffed a pocket with the bullets, according to officers. The suspects were traveling in two automobiles, a light coupe and a light sedan.

The armed trio stopped at a farm house seven miles southeast of here at about 11:20 o'clock Wednesday night. One of them was acquainted with a man living there Lubbock county officers, who for several days had been working toward such a capture, arrested the three at about midnight.

Officers in the group were Sheriff Hardy, Chief of Police John Lemond, and Ed Sanders, Joe Rieger and Will Earnest, deputy sheriffs.

Little Cash Found.

Poorly clad and driving small cars, the trio bore no outward appearance of having money. Little cash was found on the suspects, although they admitted cashing a series of travelers checks at filling stations and elsewhere, officers said.

The trio had moved eastward from New Mexico, having been in vicinity of Lovington, officers indicated. A piece of paper which one of the suspects had used to tighten his hat band proved to be from a street edition of an Oklahoma City newspaper for January 8, the day following the Cyril bank holdup.

One of the trio is wanted at Pauls Valley, Okla., for jail breaking and at Sulphur Springs, Okla., for robbery with firearms, it was said at the sheriff's office.

One of the suspects was arrested here in November with another man and two women. The arrests led to discovery of three pistols, a rifle, ammunition, liquor manufacturing equipment and more than $100 wrapped in inner tubes, in a Lubbock house. One man was taken to Pauls Valley to face charges there.

Natural Gas Usage To Set High Record

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (AP)—President Albert E. Peirce of the Central Public Service corporation said today that natural gas usage probably would establish a new high record in 1931.

"Hundreds of towns and cities provided with this low-cost fuel will for the first time use natural gas a full year in 1931, and there will be the normal increase in consumption that follows the introduction of natural gas at lower rates. Without any addition to facilities, the send-out of natural gas should easily be the greatest in the nation's history, but several big pipeline systems under construction will be completed this year, and these will contribute substantially to t total usage."
