Architecture plans for spinning plant take shape

Textile engineer shows basic concept to DCOS

Layout of the soon-to-be-constructed Lorber Industries spinning plant is proceeding, a textile engineer told Development Corporation of Snyder board members, who got their first look at preliminary plans Thursday.

Emerson Tucker, a consulting textile engineer from Lubbock, said however that it is "optimistic" to expect construction to begin in October.

"You could start moving dirt, though," he said.

Tucker outlined the process being taken into consideration toward design of the building, which is being conducted by the design and construction firm of Brown-McKee, Inc.

"You don't want to build the building and then cram everything in. First you design the flow of the equipment...and then decide what size building you need. We have been fine tuning it to get the best operation possible," he said.

Phase I of the project will be a building approximately 70,000 square feet in size, which will house all of the equipment necessary for the spinning process, plus a laboratory, storage, offices, restrooms and an employee canteen. The plant will be capable of processing some 25,000 bales of cotton a year, Tucker estimated.

Its location will be at the northeast corner of Rogers and Lorber Streets in SnTx Park I, some 200 feet from the road.

Phases II through IV are expected to be added in time, eventually bringing the facility to approximately 250,000 square feet and capable of processing about 100,000 bales of cotton.

The building will be designed so that each phase can be added while existing phases are kept online, said Tucker.

That four-phase facility, plus parking, will fit on lot 9 at the industrial park. The addition of weaving and finishing operations in the future would necessitate taking up a portion of another lot, the board was told.

The facility will be temperature and humidity controlled, Tucker said. Ideally, the temperature will range between 72 and 78 degrees, with a relative humidity of 50 to 55 percent.

He also discussed filtration systems with the board, noting, "This will be a clean operation. There won't be any clouds of dust or smoke. From a distance, you won't be able to tell if it is running or not."

Architects are considering ribbed cinder block construction for the walls, with a standing seam, structural-type steel roof.

Tucker didn't have a construction timetable for the board, but said, "We are trying to work as fast as we can."

With that in mind, board members approved a plan to allow the president and vice president, or another board member, to handle any action in regards to building codes and the like.

Addressing other items Thursday, the board voted to release Big Country Incinerators (BCI) from its incentive agreement in regards to the old Hermleigh gin property in exchange for a settlement of $9,000 that voids the agreement made in August, 1995.

SHS homecoming is tonight

Snyder High School got its annual homecoming celebration off to a rousing start Thursday with a parade and pep rally at the courthouse square.

Tonight, the varsity Tigers take on rival Big Spring at 7:30 in the traditional homecoming ballgame at Tiger Stadium. A dance will follow.

A pep rally is set for 3 o'clock this afternoon at the high school. For fans wanting to grab a bite before tonight's game, a hamburger supper is being held in the high school cafeteria from 5 until 7 o'clock. Snyder Junior High School Show Choir will perform. Tickets are $5.

Two churches are also offering up pre-game suppers.

Guadalupe Catholic Church is serving $5 enchilada dinners until 7 o'clock. Children's plates are $2.50.

First Christian Church, located a half a block from the stadium, is sponsoring a "fajitas and football" feed from 5 until 7:30. Tickets are $5 and $2.50 at the door.

Tickets for the ballgame are $5 at the gate. Halftime will feature crowning of the homecoming queen. Nominees are Lila King, Michelle Lewallen, Jill Willingham, Brooke McGuire and Brooke French, all seniors.

Following the game, a dance will be held in the student center for high school students, their dates and exes. The dance will end at midnight.

Saddle Tramps among groups to perform here

The Saddle Tramps — Steve Shick, Tater Paschal and Dennis Flynn — will make a return trip to the White Buffalo Festival for a noon performance here Oct. 4.

Shick is the main vocalist for the group, while Paschal and Flynn lean toward cowboy poetry. When they are not performing together they accept engagements as individual entertainers. The group will be going to the Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium at Glenco near Ruidoso, N.M., on the weekend after the Buffalo Festival.

Shick, who hails from Cleburn, enjoys bringing some of the cowboy music of the 1800s into modern times to make people aware of the American cowboy. He wrote the theme song for "The Great American Cattle Drive."

Paschal, a working cowboy, lives at Adell. Flynn runs an insurance agency in Azle and is a partner in a cow/calf operation in Parker and Jack counties.

Following the Saddle Tramps will be Chuck Cusimano, a cowboy entertainer from Trinidad, Colo., at 1 o'clock, and the Old Time Fiddle Show at 1:30.

Members of the Fiddle Show are Bobby Boatwright, Jimmy Young, Troy Jordan and Valerie Greene. The Made in Texas Band will be backing them up.

Next will come the Hays County Gals, who have become favorites with Buffalo Festival audiences. The Snyder band Texas Sand and the Deep Creek Cloggers will close out the entertainment at 5 o'clock. CowJazz will play for a street dance starting at 8 o'clock, with tickets at $5 and $3.

Festival visitors are also invited to see a western art show and a quilt show. Sculpture by Ben Miller of Fluvanna and paintings by Jodie Boren of Abilene will be displayed in the Snyder National Bank from 10:30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The quilt show will be on the north side of the square at 1813 25th St.

"Ragweed Cowboy Joe," a melodrama, will be performed in the Ritz Theatre at 7:30 on Oct. 3, 2:30 and 7:30 on the 4th and again at 2:30 on the 5th.

HISD grads return Saturday

Hermleigh celebrates homecoming in a big way Saturday.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. in the high school. From 10 until 4 p.m., exes and visitors can view the recently-renovated buildings. The high school renovation was completed in 1996; the elementary school got a new look this past summer.

The junior and senior classes will serve a brisket dinner from 11:30 to 1:30 in the cafeteria. Tickets are $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12.

A business meeting will begin at 2 p.m.

Highlighting the evening activities will be the Cardinals' varsity football game with Trent at 7 o'clock. Crowning of the homecoming queen and football hero will take place during halftime.

Queen candidates are Melissa Brasuel, Ester Martinez, Randi Kay Herrington and Miranda Terry. Hero candidates are Larry Lambaren, Ricky Luna, Billy Joe Digby and Jason Hernandez.

Homecoming kicks off tonight with a bonfire behind the gym. It will begin just after dusk.

Congress sends defense bill to Clinton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is signaling its willingness to accept a $247.5 billion defense spending bill after lawmakers gave the White House flexibility to stop building B-2 bombers and extend the Bosnia peacekeeping mission.

The 1998 defense appropriations bill was sent to the president after passing by a vote of 356-65 in the House Thursday afternoon, followed a few hours later by a 93-5 vote in the Senate.

It still contains language cutting off funding for the Bosnia troop deployment by June 30 and allowing the president to spend money expanding the B-2 bomber fleet. But companion provisions give President Clinton an escape hatch on both issues.

Clinton can decide to spend the B-2 money repairing and modernizing the existing fleet of 21 B-2s — as he undoubtedly would, given his firm opposition to buying any more of the $2 billion radar-evading planes.

On Bosnia, Clinton could remove the funding cutoff merely by going to Capitol Hill by next May 15 and explaining why and how the Bosnia mission must be extended.

"We feel now that the Bosnia language fulfills our minimum commitment, so, at least on Bosnia, we no longer have a veto threat from senior presidential advisers," said Lawrence Haas, a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget.

Bang Big Spring!

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

The Colorado City Record reports that the school tax rate there for 1997-98 will be $1.57.

It has prompted some questions from Scurry County residents who saw the figure, saying they were under the impression that $1.50 is the cap on school taxes.

The cap of $1.50 is for operations. A school district may exceed that amount to service bonded indebtedness. C-City uses the seven cents for debt service.

Go Tigers!

Several area papers have told of scam artists working in the area.

One report said that citizens should be aware of callers pretending to be an IRS agent.

One report said a woman received a call from a man identifying himself as Jim Price from the Internal Revenue Service.

The caller said the IRS suspected somone of using her name to file for a tax refund and needed to check a little personal information.

When the woman asked for more information, he promised to send her a fax, but it never came. She then called the number he gave her, but it was disconnected.

Law enforcement officials can recount similar stories of scamsters posing as IRS agents, asking for personal information so they can run up a big bill on the victim's credit card.

Others may insist the victim owes taxes and should wire the money to a special collection office.

One IRS official said it is unlikely that the IRS would be contacting a taxpayer by telephone or in person without having previously corresponded with them by mail.

Dehorn the Steers!

The Seminole Sentinel reports that Seminole ISD, a Class 3A school, has set a tax rate of 83 cents.

There are folks in Scurry County who can remember when mineral values paid 95 cents out of each tax dollar spent.

In Gaines County, where oil values remain substantial and where there are fewer students, Seminole has a school budget of $26.6 million compared to Snyder's $17.5 million.

Seminole's 83-cent tax rate compares to Snyder's $1.50.

Oil does make a difference!

President Clinton hails blacks who integrated high school

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — After all the speeches were finished and only a handful of people from a huge crowd remained, Minniejean Brown Trickey strode onto the front lawn at Central High School.

Forty years ago, she and eight other black teen-agers had crossed the same lawn to attend classes as armed U.S. Army paratroopers cleared their path through hate-filled white mobs.

"It was good to be walking on the grass without soldiers with me or screaming mobs of lousy souls," Ms. Trickey said Thursday. She and the others received a presidential welcome during a special ceremony commemorating the 40th anniversary of the day they broke Central's color barrier.

President Clinton pulled open the front door of Central High and stood back to welcome nine blacks who integrated the school. He was assisted by Gov. Mike Huckabee and Little Rock Mayor Jim Dailey.

"It was pretty strong symbolism," said Ms. Trickey, "exactly the kind of drama that must happen so that people realize that we are taking this seriously.

"How do we undo 40 years ago the governor saying no? We reverse it, we turn it around and we do it over."

Clinton hailed the bravery and perseverance of the nine throughout a racial drama that wrenched America.

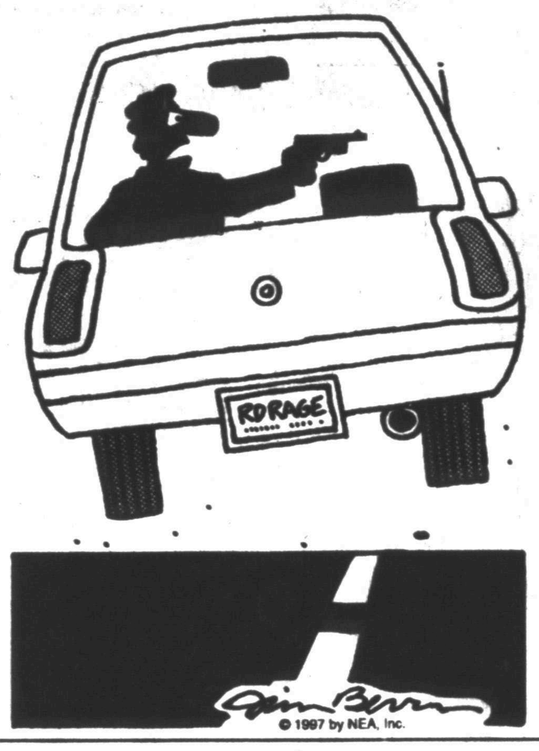

"What happened here changed the course of our country forever," he said.

The audience — blacks and white together — roared approval.

But he also warned that American schools are resegregating, opportunities for jobs and education remain unequal, and affirmative action programs are being rolled back, "slamming shut the doors of higher education on a new generation."

"Segregation is no longer the law," Clinton said, "but too often separation is still the rule. And we cannot forget one stubborn fact that has not yet been said as clearly as it should: There is still discrimination in America."

Southwest jet, business jet almost collide

DALLAS (AP) — A Southwest Airlines jetliner had to take evasive action when a business jet turned into its path 2,500 feet over downtown Dallas, setting off a collision warning on the commercial airliner. It was not known how many people were aboard the planes.

"It was close," said Doug Murphy, air traffic division manager for the Federal Aviation Administration's Southwest region.

The planes, a Boeing 737 and a Lear 35, came within less than a mile of each other early Thursday. The planes should have been at least three miles apart or separated by at least 1,000 feet of altitude to meet the FAA's minimum safety standards.

The scare came just before 8 a.m. as Flight 858 from San Antonio was on final approach to Dallas Love Field. The Lear 35 turned slightly less than a mile in front of the Southwest 737, which then went into a sudden climb after a collision warning sounded.

A preliminary FAA report indicated the air traffic controller who was in charge of both airplanes "may have forgotten the Southwest jet was there," Murphy said.

It was not immediately known how many people were aboard the planes.

Scott Keller, president of the National Air Traffic Controllers Association Local at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport radar room, which is in charge of the airspace over most of Dallas and Fort Worth said "some questionable procedures that management forces us to use" contributed to the error.

Keller also said that a $3 million Litton communications system that has clipped off the first part of controllers' conversations for more than a year had helped distract the controller.

"This situation was inevitable. It was an incident waiting to happen," Keller said today in The Dallas Morning News.

Murphy said the FAA has "a working group of controllers and management involved in ongoing meetings to address some of the concerns about some of the procedures," Murphy said.

He said he did not know whether problems with the communications system contributed to Thursday's near-miss.

Ex-officers released on bond

McALLEN (AP) — Three ex-lawmen accused of taking bribes to help drug traffickers smuggle marijuana are free on bond today after they were admonished against threatening anyone associated with the case.

The stiff warning was issued Thursday by federal magistrates after prosecutor Terry Leonard disclosed he had videotapes in which one suspect discusses "past violence that he's committed."

The revelation came at a detention hearing for former Donna police Sgt. Homero Cisneros Gallardo. He is accused with six other men of helping drug traffickers smuggle about 1,700 pounds of marijuana into South Texas.

One of the men was expected to turn himself in today.

Leonard declined to provide further information about the tapes. But Gallardo's attorney, Jack Wolfe, told the court the tapes were several years old and that his client was "not going to run or persist in any of these types of activities."

Wolfe also declined further comment.

Gallardo, who pleaded innocent, was released on a $50,000 unsecured bond. He also was placed on home confinement and ordered to wear an electronic monitoring device.

Gallardo and the others were indicted this week on drug-trafficking and money laundering charges stemming from a two-year investigation of the Donna Police Department. A town of about 13,500 people, Donna is 12 miles east of McAllen near the Mexico border.

Others accused are former Donna police chiefs Clemente Garza Jr. and Antonio Lopez, who also was a Hidalgo County deputy constable; and former police officers Modesto Gonzalez Jr. and Pedro Castillo.

Overcoming Adversity Is Not Restricted to Males

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl who read your column about "Winning Against the Odds." I was surprised to see the names of only five women included, so I decided to add to your list of names.

You once printed a list of African Americans who were born into a society filled with heavy prejudice. Well, that same prejudice was once practiced against women. Women who wanted careers or the same rights as men were shunned. I offer a list of 10 more women who overcame various hardships:

— Rejected by medical schools in London because of her gender, Elizabeth Garrett Anderson became the first female member of the British Medical Association.

— Born into poverty was author Louisa May Alcott.

— Struck with Marfan's syndrome was Flo Hyman, who won a silver medal in Olympic volleyball. She is the namesake of the Flo Hyman Award.

— Orphaned at age 10 was former first lady Eleanor Roosevelt.

— Raised as a slave was evangelist and reformer Sojourner Truth.

— Ridiculed, shunned and arrested for standing up for their beliefs were suffragettes Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

— Orphaned at 13 was Oksana Baiul, Olympic figure skating champion.

— Denied admission to most medical schools and blind in one eye was Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman in the United States to earn a medical degree.

— Incapacitated for a decade as a result of a spinal injury and a lung ailment was Elizabeth Barrett Browning, poet and feminist.

ALISON IN FLORIDA

DEAR ALISON: My column titled "Winning Against the Odds" inspired many responses. Read on for another:

DEAR ABBY: One need not go back to Abe Lincoln or Albert Einstein to find someone who succeeded despite adversity. One need only go to the family next door, or perhaps one down the street.

There are millions of us who were born into abject poverty during the Depression, who lived on bread and potatoes, whose parents couldn't afford to send us to the dentist, who never owned a suit until we were adults, who attended a one-room country grade school with no electricity or indoor plumbing, but who still managed to learn a skill or work and complete our education. Now we live in the 'burbs and have sent our kids through college.

I've been there and done that. And it can still be done. All it takes is hard work, perseverance, and forgoing instant gratification. You have to figure out where you are going and how you are going to get there — and stop whining and using the excuse that you are a victim.

CALVIN S. HOLM, THIENSVILLE, WIS.

DEAR MR. HOLM: No discourtesy intended — but you said a mouthful, Cal!

Your Birthday

Sunday, Sept. 28, 1997

Considerable opportunities could be in the offing for you in the year ahead. Most of these developments will come from situations which you yourself seeded in the past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you're rather optimistic, but today if you're around negative individuals, they might alter your attitude to one of self-doubts. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're socializing with friends today, plan in advance how much you intend to spend. Once you've reached your limit, call it a day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might not work out too well for you today if you try to pressure a newly-acquired contact to help you further your personal ambitions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually it doesn't pay to act on impulse, but today it may be better to move swiftly. The more you analyze, the less assertive you're likely to be.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not try to pry into the personal affairs of a friend today. If there is anything your pal wants you to know, he or she will introduce the topic.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Common objectives cannot be achieved today unless you and your mate work in harmony. Each must pull together, not in different directions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ideas will have merit today, but you might not present them to others with enough clarity to generate their enthusiasm and participation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you'll have to use all your business smarts in order to get value received. If you're indifferent, you might be put upon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It will be poor judgment today to say or do something in front of others that presents your mate in an unfavorable light. Know his or her sensitivities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will be a good self-starter today, but if you run into impediments, you may use this as an excuse to leave what needs doing until tomorrow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today, it is best not to become too deeply involved with or loan money to a person you only recently met. Get to know this individual better.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, be willing to share what you have with a friend who treated you generously in the past. You will regret it later if you could have helped but didn't.

upon the declarer as "the man who keeps the table." Usually, he has greater control over the play than the defenders. Yet there are times when the defenders can influence the outcome. Here is an example.

After the second-shortest auction to three no-trump, West placed his fourth-highest spade face-up onto the table, a good choice here. (Sometimes, with a very weak hand, it works better to lead your shorter major in the hope of hitting partner's long suit.)

Unfortunately, though, East let his partner down, winning the first trick with the ace and returning the queen. Declarer ducked this trick, won the next, and took the club finesse, not caring whether it won or lost. If East had a spade remaining, presumably the suit was splitting 4-4. Here, though, declarer garnered an overtrick.

When the dummy came down, East could account for most of the high-card points. Also, he could anticipate winning an early trick with his club queen. So, at trick one, East should have taken out insurance by playing the spade queen.

If West has the spade king, the queen will win and East can continue the suit. Here, though, South will have to be psychic to play low. For all he knows, West has led from A-J-x-x-x of spades and the club finesse is working. Furthermore, after taking the first trick, South is a beaten man.

One chance is better than none

Ambrose Bierce defined insurance as "an ingenious modern game of chance in which the player is permitted to enjoy the comfortable conviction that he is beating the man who keeps the table."

Tigers look to take next step against Big Spring

The Snyder Tigers, who are gaining experience and showing improvement each week, will be looking to take that next step and break into the win column when they face Big Spring tonight at Tiger Stadium.

The Steers enter tonight's 7:30 kickoff with a 2-1 mark, after defeating Monahans and Ballinger before losing to Estacado a week ago.

It is homecoming for the Tigers, who are looking to erase the memory of last Friday's heartbreaking loss to Abilene Wylie.

Snyder will need to cut down on its number of penalties against Big Spring and control the potent Steer rushing attack.

"Offensively, we can't kill ourselves with penalties," Snyder coach David Baugh said. "And defensively we have to play a solid game to stop their rushing game."

The Steers rushing attack is based on the speed of senior Antwayne Edwards and junior Tory Mitchell.

Speed has proven to be a liability for the Tigers so far in '97, but the Snyder defense held a quick Wylie offense to only 16 yards on the ground last week.

When the Tigers have the ball, look for junior tailback Cheyenne Robinson to be toting the pigskin.

Robinson gained a season high 174 yards a week ago, as the offensive line opened holes for him most of the night.

"We want to establish the running game again," Baugh stated. "But when we control the ball and sustain a long drive, we can't commit any penalties and back ourselves out of scoring position.

"We have to stay out of first and long or second and long situations tonight."

A plus for Snyder tonight will be the return of lineman Sean Duncan, who had missed the last two games with an injured rotator cuff.

But the Tigers will be without the defensive services of Todd Collum.

Collum suffered a torn anterior cruciate ligament and a strained medial collateral ligament against Wylie. Surgery to repair the injury is expected to be done in San Angelo.

The return of Duncan will give the Tigers a little more size, as they go up against a Steer team that averages 205 pounds along the defensive front and 208 on the offensive line.

If Snyder can hold off the Big Spring pass rush, Tiger QB Chad Carter has shown the ability to put the ball where it needs to be.

Entering tonight's game, Snyder fullback Jacob Hodges ranks second in the district with nine receptions.

After tonight, the Tigers have one remaining non-district game at home next week against San Angelo Lake View.

Snyder then opens up 2-4A competition Oct. 10 at Lamesa.

Lady Tigers ready for next district match

The Lady Tigers will be trying to even their district record at 1-1 Saturday when they host Levelland in a 2-4A volleyball match at the SHS gym.

Snyder is coming off a three-game loss to Lamesa, while the Loboettes downed Plainview on Tuesday.

"We worked on our serve receive and our passing this week in practice," Snyder coach Patty Grimmett said. "Those were our two weakest points against Lamesa."

The serving of Lila King, combined with the net play of Halea Huestis, Alicia Peoples and Amanda Huff, has proved to be instrumental in the Lady Tigers' victories this season.

This will be only the fifth match at home for Snyder, where it holds a 3-1 record.

"These girls play better at home," Grimmett remarked. "Some teams play better in their own gym and some teams play better on the road. These girls have shown the ability to get it done at home."

Following Levelland, the Lady Tigers hit the court again on Tuesday at Frenship.

Smith's TD drought puts record in doubt

IRVING (AP) — Emmitt Smith has gone three games without a touchdown.

He's beginning to wonder if he's ever going to catch Walter Payton.

Smith has scored 108 touchdowns for the Dallas Cowboys, just two behind the former Chicago Bears star, who in second place on the NFL all-time list. No. 1 on the all-time list is Kansas City's Marcus Allen with 113 and still counting.

"I really can't be worried about Walter," Smith said. "I just want to get into the end zone. Period. It's been a long, long time."

Smith's touchdown production has dropped from 25 in 1995 to 12 last year to a flat zero this season.

"I need to get that monkey off my back," Smith said. "It's hard to a finger on why I haven't scored this year but we've been working hard to get all of our mistakes corrected."

Smith will be going against the winless Bears on Sunday in Texas Stadium. He got a trip to the hospital the last time he played against Chicago.

It was the opener to Monday Night Football last year and Smith, carrying out a fake, landed on his head. It looked serious at first. He was carried carefully off the field and spent the night in a Chicago hospital. As it turned out, he suffered only a sore neck.

"I sure remember that game," Smith said. "It was kind of scary. I learned my lesson. I haven't dove like that since."

Smith said some of the criticism of the Cowboys' running game this year, particularly inside the 20-yard line, isn't totally justified.

"Overall, the running game hasn't been all bad," Smith said. "We've just had problem scoring touchdowns. We have a strong offensive line and I'm feeling good. I'm over all my injury problems from last year. I feel good. We'll get the job done."

Smith said he has taken many lumps against the Bears.

"One of our toughest games is the Chicago Bears," Smith said. "When they play us they feel they can win. They know that if they beat the Cowboys, like they did last year, they will be back on track.

"Just like last year after they beat us they felt they could play with anybody in the league. Beat us and they'll have a successful season."

Asked how he would celebrate if he scored against Chicago, Smith smiled. He's already been penalized this year as a victim of the NFL's so-called "Emmitt Smith" rule against players who remove their helmets.

"I might have to think about it," Smith said. "I just hope I won't get too excited."

District 2-4A Outlook

Estacado (2-1) at Lubbock High (1-2)

Estacado will likely keep the ball on the ground again tonight, as it faces cross-town rival 5A Lubbock High.

The Matadors sport the district's leading rushing attack with 850 yards through three games, while the Westerners have given up an average of 177 yards on the ground on their way to a 1-2 record.

Levelland (2-1) at Andrews (3-0)

Andrews' Shaud Williams could get the ball more times than usual tonight against Levelland.

Andrews lost starting QB Daniel Kessler for the season last Friday. Kessler suffered a torn anterior cruciate ligament during the first half of the Mustangs' game against Midland High and is scheduled for surgery a week from today.

Williams is averaging 8.2 yards per carry this season, but Andrews might not pose much of a passing threat without the services of second-year starter Kessler.

Levelland leads the district in team defense, surrendering only 185 yards per outing.

Canyon (1-2) at Frenship (1-2)

Frenship, which has the top-ranked offense in District 2-4A, goes up against a Canyon team with a 1-2 record, including a 30-9 loss to Levelland two weeks ago.

The Tigers have racked up 1,035 yards this season, with 440 of those coming through the air.

But the Frenship defense has allowed a district-high 863 yards on the ground. That could be good news for a Canyon team which doesn't pass much with Eagle starting QB Cody Kidd in his first year of varsity competition.

Amarillo High (2-1) at Plainview (1-2)

It is Plainview's turn tonight at trying to stop Amarillo's Ricky Hill, who averages almost seven yards per carry for the 2-1 Sandies.

Plainview could find things extremly tough if it falls behind early, as the Bulldogs have tallied only 35 yards passing through three games.

Lamesa (0-3) at Crane (3-0)

Lamesa will need outstanding play from its defense tonight when it travels to Crane.

It's homecoming for the Golden Cranes, who have outscored their opponents 146-38 this season, which doesn't bode well for a Golden Tornadoe defense that has allowed an average of 425 yards per game so far.

Coyotes want to soar over Samnorwood

Borden County broke into the AP top ten poll this week, when the Coyotes debuted at No. 8

Bobby Avery's boys will be looking to remain undefeated and move up in the rankings, when they face 2-1 Samnorwood starting at 7:30 tonight in Silverton.

"They have some size," Avery said of the Eagles. "We're not all that big, so they probably will try to just line up and run over us."

To combat the Eagles' strategy, the Coyotes might mix their defensive calls and blitz more than usual.

"We will probably have to bring a few more people than we normally do," Avery remarked. "That way, maybe we can disrupt their running game."

When Borden County has the ball look for it to be in the air, as the Coyotes should be passing quite a bit tonight.

"We want to throw the ball again this week," Avery stated. "Colt McCook had a great game last week at quarterback and I expect to have him throwing it again."

After Samnorwood, the Coyotes will face Whitharral in what should one of the area's marquee match-ups.

Whitharral is currently ranked No. 3 in the state and will travel to Gail next Friday for the Coyotes' homecoming.

Borden County begins district play Oct. 10 at Loraine.

U.S. finishes first Ryder Cup matches tied with Europeans

SOTOGRANDE, Spain (AP) — A brilliant eagle by Jose Maria Olazabal and inspired play by Swedes Jesper Parnevik and Per-Ulrik Johansson allowed the Europeans to remain even with the Americans after today's opening matches of the Ryder Cup.

On a day when fierce thunderstorms delayed the start of play by an hour and 40 minutes, the two teams were tied at 2-2 after splitting the opening four better-ball (foursome) matches at the Valderrama course.

Three of the matches went down to the 18th hole, while Tiger Woods and Mark O'Meara won the fourth, easily by beating Europe's top pairing of Colin Montgomerie and Bernhard Langer, 3 and 2.

Olazabal and Costantino Rocca rallied to win the first match 1-up against Davis Love III and Phil Mickelson; Fred Couples and Brad Faxon beat Nick Faldo and Lee Westwood 1-up; and Parnevik and Johansson were 1-up winners over Tom Lehman and Jim Furyk.

The shot of the opening session came from Olazabal, who holed a wedge from 131 yards for an eagle 2 at the 370-yard 14th. That shot tied the match against Love and Mickelson, who had been 2-up after 12 holes. After retrieving the ball from the cup, Olazabal kissed it and tossed it into the gallery.

Two holes later, Rocca put the European pair ahead for the first time by hitting an approach to 5 feet and holing the putt for birdie 3.

The United States had a chance to halve the match at the 18th, but Mickelson missed a 6-foot putt, pushing the ball left and 3 feet past the hole. It was Mickelson's first Ryder Cup defeat after three straight wins.

"I think the turning point was the putt Costantino made on the 13th," Olazabal said, referring to the Italian's 12-footer for birdie. "At the time we were 2 down. Somehow, he opened the door."

The birdie triggered a stretch where Olazabal and Rocca went 5-under for five holes with birdie-eagle-par-birdie-birdie.

Parnevik and Johnansson, who were 2-down after three holes, staged a remarkable turnaround to beat Lehman and Furyk. The rally was inspired by Johansson's 9-iron to within 18 inches at the eighth.

Lehman responded by chipping in at the 15th, jumping up and down and pumping his first in the most exuberant display of emotion in the opening session. When Furyk birdied the 16th, the match was all-square.

Parnevik, making his first Ryder Cup appearance, sank back-to-back 15-foot birdie putts at the 17th and 18th to give the Swedes the win.

Faldo made history by appearing in his 11th Ryder Cup. But he also hasn't won a fourball match since 1989.

The normally unflappable Englishman, paired with rookie Lee Westwood, missed two putts on the last two holes that would have halved the match against Faxon and Couples.

On the 17th, after hitting an approach to 12 feet, he missed his eagle putt. At the 18th, Faldo missed from 6 feet after backing off the putt and starting his entire routine all over again.

Faxon then nailed a 6-footer to close out the match. It helped atone for missing a similar putt on the last hole to lose his singles match on the final day to David Gilford in the 1995 Ryder Cup at Oak Hil in Rochester, N.Y.

"I got lucky," Faxon said. "I got to watch (Faldo's putt). I was thinking about Oak Hill. I told myself: just hit the ball in the middle of the hole. It feels awfully good."

Tiger tennis team goes for 2-0 mark

The Snyder High School tennis team will be looking to improve its district record to 2-0 Saturday when it travels to Lamesa.

The 15th-ranked Tigers are coming off a loss to 5A Midland High on Tuesday. But coach Chad Redwine expects his players to be more focused against the Golden Tornadoes.

"The kids just weren't ready to play on Tuesday," Redwine said. "Sometimes its hard to get up to play the non-district teams between district matches.

"But the kids are really focused on trying for another 18-0 victory against Lamesa."

The Tigers blanked Frenship, 18-0, a week ago in their opening match of 2-4A competition.

Snyder is currently tied for the district's top spot with Levelland and Plainview.

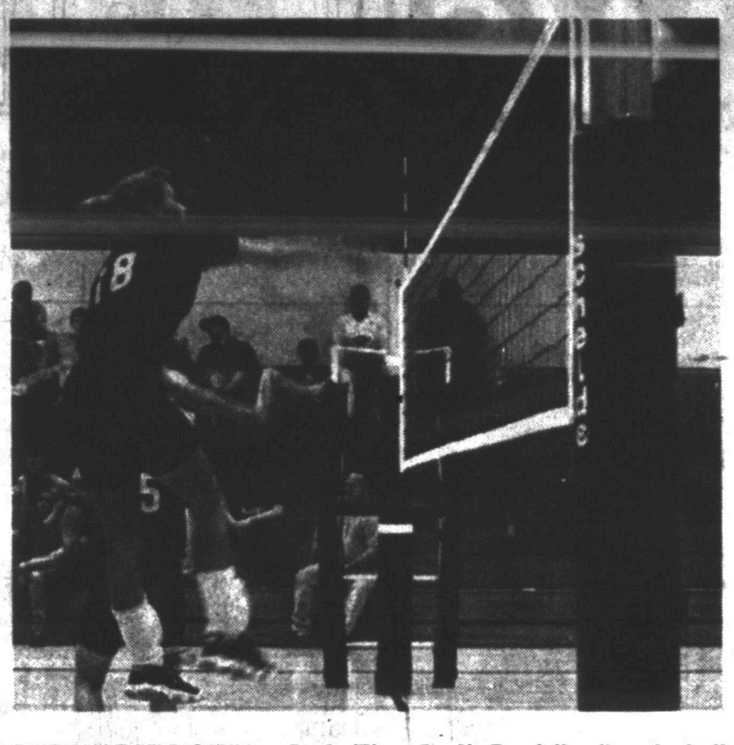

The Lobos downed Lamesa 14-4 and the Bulldogs trounced Estacado 17-1 last week.

The loss to Midland High left Snyder's record at 9-4 on the season and Redwine believes that the defeat might actually help his team in the long run.

"Since it was non-district, and because nobody else that we might face at regionals has played them, the loss might have helped our kids to realize that they still have to go out and perform like they know how in order to win.

"They learned a lot on Tuesday. Probably most importantly, they learned that they have to finish off matches when they have the lead."

After Lamesa, the Tigers face another non-district opponent Tuesday when they travel to Lubbock Coronado, before returning home Oct. 4 to square off against Estacado.

Big plays dominate in 9th grade game

So much for three yards and a cloud of dust.

Snyder's freshman football team was topped by Big Spring, 42-28, Thursday night in a game which saw six touchdowns of more than 30 yards.

Tiger QB Jared Thornhill passed for an astounding 212 yards, including scoring tosses of 47 and 70 yards.

Snyder got on the board first at the 7:12 mark of the opening quarter with Thornhill's 47-yard strike to Josh Arizmendi. The conversion failed, giving the Tigers a 6-0 lead.

The Steers came back with TD runs of 10 and 55 yards, jumping on top 16-6 at the half.

Big Spring kept it going in the third, as it found the endzone twice on pass plays of eight and 12 yards, extending its lead to 30-6 entering the final quarter.

Then the big-play festivities began.

First, Snyder's Edwin James raced 31 yards to paydirt, closing the margin to 30-12.

Then Big Spring scored in under a minute on a 40-yard run, to lead by 24 again.

But just 42 seconds later, Arizmendi bolted 56 yards into the endzone. Following a Thornhill to Max Blackwell two-point conversion, the Tigers were within 16 of the Steers.

Then, with 2:11 left in the game, Thornhill launched a pass to Jessie Heines and the Tiger receiver took it 70 yards for a touchdown. Another Thornhill to Blackwell conversion made it an eight point ballgame.

But Big Spring would post the final TD of the night on a 7-yard run to take the victory.

Snyder drops to 0-4 on the year and is scheduled for an intrasquad game Thursday at Tiger Stadium.

Astros clinch division title

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros raised the championship banner and Jeff Bagwell hit the Astrodome ceiling.

It all happened in a fun night for the Astros, who finally won baseball's worst division with a 9-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Thursday night. The victory was highlighted by Brad Ausmus' three-run homer in a six-run seventh inning.

"This team never gave up," rookie manager Larry Dierker said. "They had a lot of bad games here and there and we had a losing streak or two, but we always held on and never gave up. This team believed in itself. We kept fighting and that's why we're here."

Houston (82-77) reached the playoffs despite going 23-28 since Aug. 1. Second-place Pittsburgh, which dropped four games back going into its season-ending three-game series in the Astrodome, was even worse, losing 18 of its last 29 games.

The Astros, who have been runnersup the past three seasons, aren't counting and neither are their fans, who streamed onto the field following the clinching victory.

Players and fans are just happy to be going to the playoffs.

"This is my fifth season and the first season I've done it (reach the playoffs)," Ausmus said. "It seems like a long time, but it's a great feeling. When I hit it, I didn't know because with me you never know if it's going out."

This time, it did, and the Astros are making their fourth playoff appearance. They were Western Division champions in 1980, they shared the strike-shortened title in 1981 and they won the West again in 1986.

"This team has so much heart," left fielder Luis Gonzalez said. "We finally have a chance to relax and enjoy it. The next three days are going to be fun around here."

Houston led the division since July 18, going 18-5 following the All-Star break.

"They blasted us when we didn't make any trades before the deadline and said the Astros didn't want to win," general manager Gerry Hunsicker said. "But we're one of the teams going on in the playoffs."

The Astros last clinched a title on Sept. 25, 1986, when Mike Scott pitched a no-hitter against San Francisco to ensure finishing atop the NL West.

Mike Hampton (15-10) pitched a four-hitter for his seventh complete game, struck out six and walked one. He retired 11 in a row at one stretch, starting in the second inning.

Bagwell hit the Astrodome ceiling with a popup in the sixth inning. It is believed to be the first fair ball to strike the top since the stadium opened in 1964. The ball appeared to be headed toward third, but pitcher Jeremi Gonzalez (11-9) caught it for an out.

"I had a lot of emotion on that hit," Bagwell said. "Craig (Biggio) had gotten hit in the head in the inning before and I was mad. I put a lot into it.

"I wanted to hit it out of the stadium. When I looked up and saw it hit the roof I was mad I actually hit it. I was hoping that I could knock it right through the roof."

Before a crowd of 35,623, Biggio's RBI double put Houston ahead in the third, and Gonzalez hit a sacrifice fly in the fourth.

Mike Hubbard pulled the Cubs to 2-1 with an RBI single in the seventh, but Houston pulled away in the bottom half.

Bulldogs ready to run against Slone, Eagles

The Ira Bulldogs might need their track shoes tonight when they face Southland, starting at 7:30 in Southland.

The 1-2 Bulldogs have the daunting task of containing Southland runningback Billy Slone.

Slone scored every Eagle touchdown last week in their loss to Borden County.

"We have to be focused and not over pursue," Ira coach Russell Gee said. "Slone will cut back against the grain and when he does there is no catching him."

The Ira offense has been progressing each week as the Bulldogs prepare for district play and Gee expects more of the same tonight.

"We have been executing fairly well offensively," he remarked. "But we have to cut down on our number of turnovers."

The Bulldogs should stay with their basic offense, led by the running game and complimented by the passing of QB Jerek Brown.

Defensively, Ira doesn't expect to make any scheme changes to contain Slone.

The play of 6'6" Logan Daves, who has the ability to make plays from sideline to sideline, should help slow the Eagle runner.

After Southland, Ira returns home for two games.

The Bulldogs will face Grady before hosting Westbrook on Oct. 10 in their district opener.

Cardinals set to do battle with Trent

The 2-1 Hermleigh Cardinals face Trent this week, but they'll have to wait an extra day to do it.

The non-district contest is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday due to Hermleigh's annual homecoming festivities.

When the Cardinals finally do hit the field, they will be up against a strong rushing attack from Trent.

"They like to the run ball a lot," Cardinal coach Juan Rios said. "They line up with an unbalanced line and it will be key for us to be in the right alignment to prevent the big play."

Offensively for Hermleigh, the running game has been its primary weapon, but that might not hold true on Saturday.

"We need to work on our pass protection and our routes before district starts," Rios stated. "So we will probably throw a little more than usual."

Hermleigh has had success moving the ball all season, so the key this week might be the defense.

"In order for us to win, we have to be really focused on the defensive side of the ball," Rios said. "I believe defense wins ballgames. And if our defense can get us some field position, our offense can put the ball in the endzone."

After Trent, the Cardinals will hit the road for the two games. Hermleigh will play at Wilson next week, before opening District 6-Six Man competition at Highland on Oct. 10.

Home owners issued citation for keg party

Two people were arrested Thursday on separate charges and law enforcement authorities broke up an apparent keg party east of Ira on CR 3109 last night.

Officers arrested a 23-year-old male at 1:25 p.m. in the 3000 block of College Avenue for failure to identify.

Following a report of a disturbance on the Hobbs school bus at 3:15 p.m., officers arrested an 18-year-old male at the bus barn for disorderly conduct.

Deputies were called to a residence on CR 3109 at 10:48 p.m. in reference to a keg party. Sheriff Darren Jackson said some 75 to 100 college students were at the residence and citations were issued to the owners of the house. Two kegs of beer were seized as were several cases of beer.

At 10:20 p.m., an offense report for family violence was submitted.

Officers investigated a minor accident on the parking lot of Lawrence IGA at 30th and College at 12:20 p.m. Involved were a 1996 Chevrolet driven by Patricia Parmer of 302 32nd St. and a parked and unoccupied 1997 Saturn owned by Pamela Everett of Rt. 1, Box 249.

A minor two-vehicle accident occurred this morning at 8:13 in the 2900 block of Towle Park Road. Involved were a 1989 Pontiac driven by Calley Estes of 2611 48th St. and a 1994 Chevrolet pickup driven by Betty Elam of 206 36th Place.

Diagnosing colon problems

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: There is a history of colon cancer in my family. For this reason, I recently had a flexible sigmoidoscopy. The procedure was very painful and unsuccessful. I eventually had a barium enema that was, fortunately, normal. Subsequently, I learned that my three siblings (who live in different cities) had colonoscopies, during which polyps were removed.

Why didn't my doctor perform colonoscopy? Should I have this test the next time? How often should I be checked?

DEAR READER: Certain forms of colon cancer are inherited. Thus, the various physicians concerned with your family were correct that you and your siblings should have periodic colon exams.

I do not know why your doctor chose the testing that he did. Flexible sigmoidoscopy involves only the lower colon; small tumors can be missed during a barium enema. Given your family history of colon cancer, I would have opted for a colonoscopy. Ask your doctor about this.

If you had been found to have colonic polyps, the physician would probably have examined you annually for two or three years. If everything were all right, you would be a candidate for repeat colonoscopies every four or five years.

Similarly, if you were free of polyps (benign growths) on the initial testing, your doctor probably would have advised a colonoscopy every four or five years.

Share your concerns with the doctor. It's reasonable for you to be examined at scheduled intervals.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

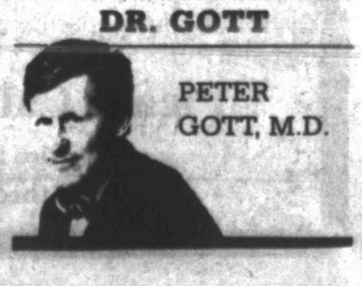

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been taking over-the-counter weight reduction pills (Dexatrim). My husband and I are considering having a family. Will the drug affect fertility?

DEAR READER: Dexatrim and other nonprescription appetite-suppressants have not been reported to cause infertility, according to their manufacturers. The drugs can cause heart problems, stroke and mental changes — serious but unusual consequences — but will not affect your ability to conceive.

Remember that such products should be used only for short periods (not exceeding three months) and that a well-balanced, low-calorie diet is still the preferred method to lose weight.

Man gets convicted of killing

Baby murdered 26 years ago

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — The man accused of killing an infant and framing his 2-year-old daughter for the death 26 years ago was found guilty today of murder.

Jan Barry Sandlin, 47, was convicted in the 1971 death of 4-month-old Matthew Golder.

The jury of five men and seven women deliberated two hours Thursday and less than two hours today before reaching the verdict.

Judge Hilton Fuller immediately sentenced Sandlin to two life sentences.

"Matthew Golder is speaking to you from the grave, ladies and gentlemen. He's saying ... I was robbed of my life," said prosecutor Lee Anne Mangone during closing arguments Thursday. "He's crying for justice."

Prosecutors contended Sandlin beat Matthew to death and then placed his daughter, Tracy, now Tracy Rhame, in the boy's crib to make it appear as if she threw him to his death.

Defense attorney Corrine Mull said the children's mother, Kathy Almon, did it.

"No one ... wants to see Ms. Almon go to jail. It was an accident, but one that she was responsible for," Ms. Mull said.

She hinted that Ms. Almon may have been depressed, after the mother admitted earlier in court to taking anti-depressants.

Ms. Mull also told the jury that Ms. Almon told different versions of the way the baby died to deflect guilt away from herself.

"How desperate do you have to be to point yet another finger?" Ms. Mull said. "First it was her daughter and now it's her ex-husband."

Ms. Mangone defended Ms. Almon, saying that the basic facts in the stories have always been the same.

Sandlin's first trial in July ended in mistrial when Mrs. Rhame admitted violating a court order not to watch or read any media coverage of the case.

Sandlin fathered Mrs. Rhame while Ms. Almon was married to Ted Golder, Matthew's father. Sandlin and Ms. Almon married in 1973 but divorced six years later after he went to prison for armed robbery in Florida, where he is serving a life sentence.

First to use license

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Ted Danson took the plunge and became the first one on his block — and in the state — to attach to new whale-tail license plate to his car.

Danson, who is president and founder of the American Oceans Campaign, placed the new plate on his solar-powered car in a waterfront ceremony Thursday.

The whale-tail license plate features a whale painted by the artist Wyland.

Proceeds from the special plate will go to environmental causes including the Adopt-A-Beach Program and the Environmental License Plate Fund, which raises money for acquiring and maintaining parks and animal habitats.

More than 9,500 state drivers have ordered the whale-tail plates so far.

THE PENITENT PRIEST!

EZRA WAS THE FAMOUS SCRIBE AND PRIEST LIVING IN BABYLON DURING THE REIGN OF ARTAXERXES (464 B.C.–424 B.C.). IN THE SEVENTH YEAR OF THIS KING'S REIGN, HE WAS GIVEN ORDERS TO GO TO JERUSALEM WITH A COMPANY OF JEWS BECAUSE THE REPORTS ABOUT THE PREVIOUS COMPANY, WHO HAD GONE EIGHTY YEARS BEFORE, WERE NOT SPECIFIC ENOUGH AS TO THEIR CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS CONDITIONS! IT WAS EZRA'S INTENTION TO TEACH JERUSALEM'S JEWISH COMMUNITY GOD'S LAW AND SEE TO IT THAT THEY CONFORMED TO ALL THE MOSAIC LAWS! EZRA WAS SO HORRIFIED TO LEARN THAT THE JEWS, IN JERUSALEM, HAD STRAYED AWAY FROM THE LAWS OF MOSES, TO SUCH AN EXTENT, THAT MANY OF THEM HAD EVEN MARRIED HEATHEN WIVES, THAT HE EVEN ACCEPTED BLAME FOR THIS HIS OWN SELF AS HE PRAYED TO THE LORD FOR FORGIVENESS. (EZRA 9:5-7). HIS WEEPING AND OTHER PENITENT GESTICULATIONS SO IMPRESSED THE CONGREGATION THAT THOSE WHO MARRIED, CONTRARY TO THE MOSAIC LAW, WERE ALMOST ALL PERSUADED TO GIVE UP THE FOREIGN WOMEN THEY HAD MARRIED! (EZRA 10:1-3)

THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

Hurricane smacks Baja, California

SAN QUINTIN, Mexico (AP) — Hurricane Nora was downgraded to a tropical storm today after pummeling Baja California with high winds and heavy rain. Nora was headed toward the U.S. Southwest, where people hurried to fill sandbags and stockpile emergency supplies.

Nora was downgraded when its sustained winds dropped to 70 mph, and forecasters said further weakening is expected as it moves up the Gulf of California.

At 2 p.m. EDT, Nora was about 65 miles south of Yuma, Ariz., and moving north at 28 mph with sustained winds of 65 mph.

A gradual turn toward the north-northeast was expected during the next 12 to 24 hours, the U.S. Hurricane Center in Miami said. The center of Nora will likely move into northern Sonora state in Mexico and then into southwestern Arizona later.

An isolated tornado or two is possible later today over southwestern and south-central Arizona, the center said. Forecasters predicted up to 8 inches of rain for the Yuma region — double the area's average annual rainfall.

Nora hit the Baja California peninsula early today near Punta Eugenia, about midway down the 800-mile-long coastline.

Sea swells were estimated at 12 feet and winds at 60 mph at Bahia Tortugas, a village on Punta Eugenia, said witness Ruben Garcia.

"At the moment, there there is a lot of rain," Garcia said by telephone.

People living in homes scattered around the peninsula gathered in town for safety, he said. Paperboard roofing had been blown off a few homes, he said.

Nora was expected to move north up the Gulf of California, weakening as it approached southern Arizona. Meteorologists warned, however, that Nora would still be a tropical storm when it entered the United States — a rarity for the desert Southwest.

Authorities prepared for flash flooding in southeast California and Arizona. Meteorologists said rain was possible from the Southern California coast, north into Nevada and possibly southern Utah, and as far east as western Colorado and western New Mexico.

In Yuma, firefighters' shovels flashed as crews busily filled thousands of sandbags late Wednesday in preparation for the expected arrival of today's storm.

"People are worried, concerned — 'Should I evacuate?'" said Richard Benson, communications supervisor for the Yuma County Sheriff's Office. "We're in a pretty low-lying area down here, and it's a big concern."

Yuma resident Shirley Ball waited in a blocks-long line for sandbags.

"We went to the grocery store and bought extra water and batteries for our flashlight, stocked up on groceries and we're getting sandbags from the Fire Department because water comes through the front door," she said.

Sportscaster pleads guilty; fired by NBC

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — It was a confident, almost defiant Marv Albert who strode up to the microphones outside the Arlington County Courthouse in the spring and predicted: "I will be proven innocent at trial."

That was before his longtime mistress sobbed on the witness stand and described how Albert violently bit her and forced her to perform oral sex. It was before another woman testified that she, too, had been bitten by Albert in a sexual attack.

That was before millions of television sports viewers learned of his penchant for wearing women's underwear and for pornographic movies and three-way sex.

Inside that same courthouse Thursday, the bravado was gone, the booming sportscaster's voice barely audible when Albert pleaded guilty to assault and battery, ending the trial that threw a spotlight on his kinky sex life — and left his broadcasting career in tatters.

"I just felt like I had to end this ordeal for myself, my wonderful family, my fiancee, Heather, my friends and supporters," Albert said outside court in a weary voice.

Hours after he pleaded guilty, NBC fired him.

Albert, 56, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge for biting the woman, which could send him to jail for a year and cost him $2,500 in fines at sentencing Oct. 24.

In exchange for his plea, prosecutors dropped the felony charge of forcible sodomy, which could have sent Albert to prison for life.

At least one juror was surprised by the plea.

"I was trying to keep an open mind, but if someone had to ask me at that time, I still had some reasonable doubt," the juror, Kerri Nelson, said today.

Nelson, 27, a therapist, said that the credibility of the accuser and Albert had been diminished. "I don't think anyone was completely innocent in this. It's so nebulous where these people have known each other, even the surprise witness knew him. It's real murky."

Another juror, Michael Selig, told the New York Post that after the second woman testified, "it seemed the (defense) was in trouble."

Albert was accused of flinging the woman onto a bed, viciously biting her and forcing her to perform oral sex in an Arlington hotel room Feb. 12 for failing to bring another man into their bed. The defense portrayed her as an unstable liar.

The Brooklyn native, who for three decades has been one of America's most distinctive sports voices with his exuberant "Yesss!" call, had been allowed to continue as NBC's play-by-play man after the May indictment. Outside court, Albert thanked NBC for standing by him.

Less than four hours later, the network issued a statement saying it only stood by Albert because he gave assurances the charges were untrue.

After Senate hearings...

IRS overhaul now the target

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emboldened by three days of allegations of IRS abuses, members of Congress now turn to a variety of proposals to repair and improve the tax collection agency.

"Americans are looking to us, to this committee, to ensure that integrity and fairness are the foundation of the IRS," said the Senate's chief tax-writer.

"We have identified many egregious problems in these last three days, problems that have devastated the lives of honest taxpayers," the Finance Committee chairman, Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., said as he concluded hearings Thursday.

Roth's office, deluged by telephone calls, faxes and letters about problems with the Internal Revenue Service, said he felt "a tremendous responsibility" to ensure such abuses do not recur.

One top item on the committee's agenda will be confirmation hearings for Charles O. Rossotti, President Clinton's nominee to head the IRS. Unlike previous commissioners, Rossotti is a manager rather than a tax practitioner: He is chairman of American Management Systems Inc., a technology systems development and consulting firm in Fairfax, Va.

Much of the recent criticism focused on the IRS' need to improve technology and management skills, which the administration says Rossotti can deliver.

"Charles Rossotti has the combination of leadership skills, understanding of what serving customers means, and expertise with information technology that the IRS needs at this critical juncture," Treasury Deputy Secretary Lawrence Summer said Thursday.

IRS acting Commissioner Michael Dolan acknowledged problems exist and apologized to abused taxpayers. He said the agency has embarked on a variety of reforms itself that have led to improved telephone tax service, expanded telephone tax filing and a sophisticated Internet Web page loaded with tax tips and forms.

There are competing IRS restructuring bills. One is backed by the Treasury Department and liberal Democrats; the other is a bipartisan bill that arose from a yearlong study by the National Commission on Restructuring the IRS.

The two bills share broad goals — improving IRS operations and management through outside oversight — but differ fundamentally in one major aspect. The bipartisan bill backed by Rep. Rob Portman, R-Ohio, and Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., would create a nine-member board of private citizens to oversee the agency.

Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin strongly opposes this approach, saying private citizens should not oversee an agency with tremendous law enforcement powers. He describes it as a situation rife with potential conflicts of interest.

Rubin's proposal calls for an oversight board of executive branch officials, which House Republicans strongly oppose as injecting potential political influence over the agency.

The House Ways and Means Committee chairman, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said he has a commitment to have an IRS restructuring bill clear the House before the end of the year.

Court allows suit against U.S. agents in shootout

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Citing a "wild West school of law enforcement," a federal appeals court has given the go-ahead to a lawsuit by a man shot and wounded by federal agents at the 1992 Ruby Ridge shootout.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Thursday rejected attempts by U.S. marshals and FBI agents to dismiss the survivor's $10 million damage lawsuit. The three-judge panel's decision was unanimous.

Three were killed in the shootout at the Idaho cabin of white separatist Randy Weaver: his wife, Vicki, their 14-year-old son, Samuel, and Deputy U.S. Marshal William Degan.

The suit was filed by Kevin L. Harris, a friend of Weaver's who was staying at the cabin and was hit by the same FBI sniper's bullet that killed Mrs. Weaver. He surrendered nine days after the standoff began, and Weaver surrendered the following day, ending the siege.

Thursday's ruling upheld a federal judge's decision that Harris can sue 13 federal agents for allegedly subjecting him to excessive force and false arrest in violation of his constitutional rights.

The lawsuit challenged the adoption of special FBI "rules of engagement" for the Ruby Ridge standoff that allowed officers to shoot any armed adult male they saw near the cabin, regardless of whether the target posed an immediate threat to the officer.

DCOS board

At the request of DCOS president Roy Baze, the board took no action on an agenda item to consider reimbursing Lorber Industries for a feasibility study. Baze said additional information is needed from Lorber before action can be taken.

The board heard brief status reports on construction jobs related to the city industrial park and discussed grant reimbursements. Baze noted that a pre-construction conference with city officials, Utility Contractors of America and others will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at City Hall. Utility Contractors is the firm which has been awarded a $1.1 million bid to construct water and wastewater lines to SnTx Park I.

John DeLille, DCOS executive director, told the board he is ready to proceed with budget work and asked that the operations committee work with him. That committee consists of DCOS board members Jack Gorman and Gary Landes.

All board members were present, to include Landes, Gorman, Baze, Roy McQueen and Bill Wilson III.

The meeting was the final one for Baze as a member of the board. He announced early this month that he would be resigning, effective Sept. 30. He has served on the board for 4½ years.
