Another son-in-law, Wathal Littlepage went down to drive back for them and only a few miles out of Post, Mr. McClintock became deathly sick and was given emergency treatment by a Post doctor and rushed to West Texas Hospital in Lubbock. He was in Critical condition for several hours in intensive care unit. On Monday, he was moved to a private room and is some improved at this writing.

Phebe K. Warner Club To Sponsor Blood Drive

On July 8, 1974, from 4:00 to 8:00 the Phebe K. Warner Study Club will sponsor a blood drive at the Fellowship Hall of First United Methodist Church. Blood Services of Lubbock, serves 37 hospitals in the South by 4,000 patients who have blood approximately 15,000 pints a year. There is a shortage of voluntary blood donors nationwide and this shortage exists in the South Plains as well. In fact, it is getting more critical all the time.

In addition to there being a shortage of voluntary blood donors, there is a growing need for blood as the medical facilities of Lubbock and the South Plains increase, i.e. the expansion of Methodist Hospital, Highland Hospital, and others in the South Plains, the construction of new hospitals such as the Medical School Hospital, West Texas Hospital, Seminole Hospital and others in the area.

Blood is needed to literally save the lives of people in the community. On the other hand, the people of the community must provide themselves with this needed blood. The Blood Center is simply the intermediary agency where the blood is given, processed, and furnished to the hospital. The support of everyone and total

Each donor who gives blood will be given six-months protection for himself, his wife, and his children against blood service fees incurred, except for hemophilia.

A SHORT REPORT

By REPRESENTATIVE E. L. SHORT

Branch Banking prohibited. Foreign Banking prohibited. No limitation on holding companies. This presently follows the old constitution.

As Chairman of the Agricultural Sub-Committee studying cotton contracting, warehousing, and other related subjects--a public hearing will be called in Lubbock in early August to finalize our committee's work.

Being consistent is sometimes hard to do--this week the Convention is working on Gereral Provisions, one section on gambling included pari-mutual betting, lotteries, bingo, raffles and others--many amendments were offered to permit one or more to be permissible a vote against bingo or lottery was a vote for the others. My position was to prohibit all gambling in the new Constitution.

Bingo and raffles will be permitted for nonprofit charitable organizations.

Lotteries will be prohibited. Pari-mutuel enterprises will not be in the Constitution--it will be a side issue to be voted on separately. The issue will be, put it in either the old or new Constitution or leaving this decision to the Legislature.

For your information, the present Constitution permits the Legislature to enact laws to protect these rights. This would have infringed on freedom of press. Would also prevent wire-tapping of criminals' activities.

Right to work passed 96-94--will be a separate issue--if approved will be put into new Constitution or old Constitution.

Preventing busing of school children against their will was defeated -- mainly because it would disrupt school district boundaries and local school boards would lose the power to accept or reject student transfers.

A new one -- rights of the handicapped was adopted -- sounds good -- though it could increase lawsuits--also it might be mandatory they be employed. 3 of the 4 handicapped delegates voted against it.

Rights to Health Care--was adopted. In debate it was said everyone, regardless of ability to pay could be provided health services.

Garnishment of up to 20 per cent of current wages for court-ordered support--failed.

Refinancing of homesteads was rejected, 128-17.

I contacted Congressman Mahon requesting Congress restrict beef imports because of the depressed cattle prices--his answer was that he has appealed and personally talked with the One-fourth Texas children on welfare have significant health deficiencies.

City officials of Sundown report test now show water quality is up salt and oil content down.

Amendment failed 92-36 to limit state spending.

Several state-wide newspapers have interviewed house members concerning their position on the upcoming Speaker's race. Representative Short of Tahoka releases the following statement. "I was the first person to pledge Representative Bill Clayton to be Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 64th Legislature." "I have felt for many months that North and West Texas, encompassing half of the land area of the state, deserved and needed representation in State Government in some high position."

Representative Bill Clayton of Springlake, a 12 year veteran, is a person that knows the problems and is closest to the people. He is presently serving as an official in the National Chairman of the Southern Environmental Resources Conference. He is sought after and recognized throughout the United States for being one of the most knowledgeable and outstanding individual on water and water resource development.

It speaks well for Mr. Clayton that his bid for the speakership began in his district and most of the money that has been from his own constituents. Mr. President of a corporation and is a partner in a cattle feeding operation as well as having banking interest.

Proof of Mr. Clayton's reliability and credibility as a Legislator cannot be challenged by the other speaker candidates because he authored and passed more constructive legislation of statewide significance in the 61st session than the other two leading candidates in their combined total of years they have served.

I am appalled about 2 or 3 West Texans supporting other candidates. Most of us strongly believe we are first obligated to the wishes of our constituents in serving our districts.

cluding the man we elect as Speaker of the House, then Political alliances for personal gain and self-serving become secondary.

I hope the people of Texas get involved in the Speaker's race by lending their support to Representative Bill Clayton. I commend my friend Billy Clayton to you. Mr. Clayton has the complete trust of his colleagues. Mr. Clayton has never distorted the truth. He has reached a plateau of nearly 50 pledges. He has not been questioned by anyone on his integrity, his honesty and moral character. Together we can put a man in this high position with his vast knowledge of water resource development that will guide Texas and the destiny of generations to come.

Rep. Short, Mary Ann & Dr. Nooble Rumbo

Mary Ann and Dr. Noble Rumbo are shown visiting with Representative E.L. Short of Tahoka, in his Austin office last week while Dr. Rumbo was serving as Doctor of the Day for the Constitutional Convention.

Dr. Rumbo and Mary Ann lived in both Tahoka and O'Donnell for several years where he practiced medicine before moving to Richardson.

In explaining the Doctor of the Day Program, Representative Short said "the Texas Medical Association is to be commended in lining up a doctor for each day the Legislature is in session." "Doctors come from all over Texas and donate their medical services and time at their own expense." "We are so far from home that it is hard to get proper medical attention for the members of the Legislature and their families without this service." "I know all of the Representatives and

Special Day Of Music At Lakeview

The "Gloryland Two", a gospel singing duo from Lubbock, will highlight a special day of music and fellowship on Sunday, June 30, at Lakeview Baptist Church. Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Kinnison, formerly called themselves the "Gloryland Quartet" when 2 daughters were at home and a part of the group. It is all a part of special fifth Sunday activities, according to Paul Kenley, new pastor, and a native of Tahoka. Activities will begin with the regular Sunday School and morning worship service, followed by a covered dish lunch. Then, an old fashioned singing will be held, featuring some of the members and groups, culminating in a special service at 4:00 featuring the "Gloryland Two". This will be the 54th church in which the Kinnisons have sung this year. In their 10 years of singing together, they have been hundreds of churches in New Mexico, Texas, and Oklahoma.

Fair Pavilion Will Be Walk Through Past

AUSTIN—"The Food and Fiber Pavilion at the State Fair this year will provide a nostalgic walk through the lives of early Texas farmers and ranchers," Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

A country store, complete with pot-bellied stove and barrel of crackers, will be built to reproduce the favorite gathering place for old-timers. Shelves will be lined with Texas agricultural products.

Each of 20 agricultural commodity organizations exhibiting will carry through the theme of western heritage with a piece of farm equipment and antiques from their fields such as churns, scales and early packaging. Exhibitors will be those who participate in the Texas Agricultural Products (TAP) promotional program.

"The western heritage theme is a natural for the Texas Department of Agriculture. The Food and Fiber Pavilion organizers are truly enjoying planning this year's exhibits and hope that the tour will be a memorable one for visitors," White said.

Wheat Yield

AUSTIN--Texas wheat production is expected to decrease from a record 98.6 million bushel yield in 1973 to 63 million bushels, a drop of 35.6 million bushels, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White has announced.

White's projection was based on field studies of wheat conditions by Texas Department of Agriculture inspectors and U.S.D.A. statistical data.

Most of the decrease is due to the failure of the dryland wheat crop on the Texas High Plains. Growth of dryland wheat has been slow because of drought conditions throughout most of the area.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

Official figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Austin show 2,888,600 bales of 480-pounds net weight produced in the 25 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock-based cotton producer organization. The production came from 2,784,000 harvested acres for an average of just over 498 pounds per acre.

The figures were given to PCG by phone on June 20. The TCLR's publication "Texas Cotton Statistics" for 1973 is expected out in about 10 days.

The total production was the highest ever for the Plains, well above the previous record of 2,443,900 bales set in 1961. The yield per acre was the second highest in history, falling behind the 513 pounds per acre made in 1965.

The joint PCG-Lubbock Cotton in its final 1973 guess on December 1 of last year placed production at 2,725,000 bales.

Dawson County, with 315,390 bales, for the second year running edged out Lubbock County as the area's top producer. Lubbock's total was close behind at an even 310,000 bales. In third place was Lynn County where 275,800 bales were harvested grown in Gaines County, the 1972 third ranking county.

The highest per-acre yield in 1973 was achieved by farmers in Borden County where each harvested acre turned out 644 pounds of lint. Following Borden in this category was Martin County with 599 pounds per acre and Howard with 593 pounds. Floyd, Crosby and Borden Counties were the top per-acre producers in 1972 with 616, 605, and 559 pounds per acre, respectively.

The joint PCG-LCE Estimate in July for its first estimate of what are acknowledged as greatly reduced 1974 crop prospects. Most observers are agreed that drought, hail and winds have cut Plains acreage for this year to around 2.1 million acres, and that yields can't possibly equal the excellent out-

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS

Cattlemen who are faced with grub infestations in their stock ought to be considering control measures now.

In the High Plains region, heel flies have laid their eggs on cattle and the grub larvae have penetrated the skin, beginning their migration through the body. Since these larvae are more effectively controlled when they are small, cattlemen should be stepping up their treatments now.

Cattle grubs damage the animals in a number of ways. Cattle infested with grubs may produce less milk which in turn results in less weight gain of calves. The affected animals are more restless and excitable, generally causing a breakdown in the normal health of the cattle. Grubs usually reach the back of the animal in late summer, fall or winter, forming and developing a "cyst" just under the skin. This penetration damages the hide and depreciates the value of the animal on the market.

turn of 1973. At least one knowledgeable source is placing production potential at 1.5 million bales, but there are others considerably more pessimistic.

The chart below shows 1973 planted and harvested acres, yield per harvested acre and total production in 480-pound net weight bales for each of the 25 PCG counties.

Although cattle grubs can be killed after they reach the animal's back, earlier control is best, particularly in beef cattle.

Systemic insecticides, which are administered as sprays, dips, pour-ons or feed or mineral additives, are distributed through the animal's body by the circulatory system, destroying the grubs by contact action.

Grubicides suggested for control are coumaphos (Co-Ral), crufomate (Ruelene), porlate, trichlorfon (Neguvon), famphur (Warbex), Fenthion (Tiguvon) and ronnel. All of these grubicides are animal systemics.

Treating for grub control and drenching the animals should not be done on the same day. Sick animals or those under stress should not be treated.

The label on treatment containers should be checked carefully before application for instructions on treating various cattle breeds. Precautions and directions should be adhered to strictly. Information on grub control is available at the County Extension Agent's office.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Curfew

Curfew laws, designed to youngsters off the streets at have been around for almost years. But only recently have courts been taking a close at their validity. Does a city the legal authority to put limit anybody's freedom of move-

The basic idea has been approved. One youth rested under a curfew law, challenged it as a form of discrimination against younger people. The court pointed out that the law lawfully singled out with regard to everything from going to driving, from attending school to buying liquor.

Upholding the law, the said: "Children are under recognized disabilities in many respects, cause of their lack of mature judgment, they are subject to constant supervision until they be of age."

Nevertheless, a curfew law be struck down if it is too broad. Another case involved a court that banned all minors from streets after 10 p.m., with no leeway for exceptional circumstances.

In a court test, the judge that this law could punish youngsters coming home from evening classes, from work at the library from school games or dancing even from church activities.

Finding the law invalid, the court said it violated "the right every person to enjoy and engage in lawful and innocent activities."

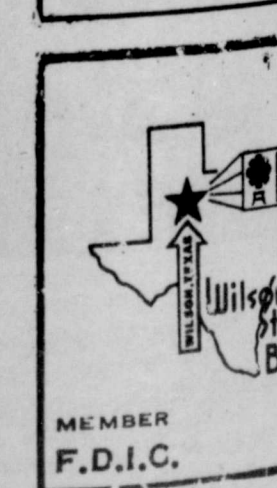

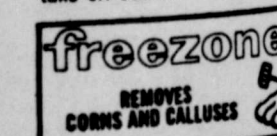

In one recent case, the court booked the father of a 16-year-old boy for "allowing" him to be out after the curfew hour.

The court conceded that it constitutional to punish the parent in such a situation. However, seems the father had been told and had honestly believed his son was spending the night the home of a friend. Dismissing the charge against the father, the court said he could not have "lowed" conduct of which he not even aware.

In choosing a freezer to fit your needs, be aware of the differences between chest and upright types.

A chest type freezer costs less to operate than a similar sized upright one because when you open the lid of a chest-type, there is little exchange of air since hot air rises.

But when the upright freezer is opened, cool air moves out toward the floor and warm air rushes in from above. This causes the motor to cut on more often and makes frost collect faster—using more electricity.

Larger freezers use more electricity than smaller models but the kilowatt-hour use per cubic foot is less than for larger models than smaller ones.

A freezer in a warm room or located next to ranges, heat vents or pushed into very tight spots will cost more to operate. Air circulation space is essential when condenser coils are on the back of the freezer.

No frost models use at least one-fourth more energy than a manual defrost model.

Ice-making, food freezing and cooling, the number, and length of door opening all effect energy use.

Potential mobile home buyers should be particularly aware of safety considerations. Use this checklist for mobile home safety:

Are there at least two outside doors, preferably on opposite sides of the unit in case of overturn?

Does each bedroom have a window large enough to escape in an emergency?

Do you have to pass the furniture to escape from any bedroom?

Are there different floor levels which could be dangerous in darkness?

Does the unit have built-in anchorage straps for anchoring against wind damage?

Safety should be the most vital factor when choosing a mobile home.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK: Lemony Watermelon Pickles

(Makes about 6-1/2 pints)

Rind of 1 medium to large watermelon

Hot water

9 cups sugar

1 1/2 cups white vinegar

2 teaspoons fresh grated lemon peel

1/2 cup fresh squeezed lemon juice

1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

Peel skin from rind and remove most of pink flesh. Cut into 1-inch cubes. Place in large kettle, cover with hot water and bring to a boil. Cook until rind is tender but not soft, about 25 minutes. Drain, place in large glass bowl or earthenware crock.

Combine remaining ingredients in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil and pour over rind. Let stand overnight again. The third day, bring rind and syrup to a boil. Pack rind into hot sterilized jars, cover with syrup and seal tightly.

Family Land Heritage Program

AUSTIN—Farmers and ranchers in Lynn County whose families have held the same land since 1874 or before will be honored by the Texas Department of Agriculture's "Family Land Heritage Program", according to Commissioner John C. White.

The program, which will be initiated July 1, will "pay tribute to those families who have proved their respect for and dedication to the land," White said.

This county has some of the oldest establishments in the state, with a long history of dedicated service to the agricultural community and I hope that every qualified family will take this opportunity to be recognized by the people they have served, White said.

Watermelon Weather Hits Texas

AUSTIN--Thump. Thump. Thump.

It's watermelon pickin' and eatin' time in Texas, and, as any old-timer will tell you, a good thump is one way to find the best melon in the lot.

According to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, however, there are other— and possibly better— ways to judge a ripe, juicy melon.

"The best one is to cut a plug so the meat can be seen and tasted," White said. "But your neighborhood grocer or supermarket manager may not understand when you start cutting away at his melons before you buy. So here are a few other tips to go by."

Though nothing offers proof positive, several outward signs are a guide to ripeness and quality. These include a firm, symmetrical shape, fresh attractive appearance and good color. Color will vary from a deep solid green to gray, depending on the variety.

Mature melons have a velvety bloom or dull rather than shiny surface. The underside is yellowish.

White noted that Texas is first in the nation in watermelon production. This year, however, the yield is expected to be down because planting dropped 10,000 acres and the growing season was dry. Growers expect quality to be high.

Though recent predictions indicated melons will be smaller and prices higher this season, the early harvest has not borne them out. Charleston Grays and Stripes or Jubilees from South Texas have been in the 16-28 pound range and prices per hundred pounds have been $3.50-$4.50.

Pintos On The High Plains

Retail prices for dry pinto beans have soared over the dollar a pound mark, causing many High Plains farmers to think seriously about switching to this premier income producer.

"But hold on," says an agricultural economist, "That dry frijole probably will not produce that $1,000 per acre profit. And there are sound reasons for this gloomy speculation."

Marvin Sartin, area specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, lists these facts:

The dry edible bean crop last year was poor. The acreage in the U.S. was down slightly from the previous year and yields were below average. Continued interest in protein alternatives was spurred by high prices and meat boycotts. Foreign trade in dry beans was lagging until the last few months.

These factors spell increased demand and short supplies, which always create high prices," he says.

The March Planting Intensity Report showed dry bean acreage in the U.S. up almost 100,000 acres from 1973, a 20 percent increase, Sartin points out. With a return to normal yields and in spite of reduced carry over, the 1974-75 market could see total supply of dry beans 15 percent greater than last year.

Simultaneously, we are currently experiencing low farm prices for both beef and pork. The reduction in retail meat prices and consumers' adjustment to meat price levels will tend to decrease the demand for protein alternatives. Export of beans has slowed recently and imports of beans, though small, have risen.

The ultimate impact of these factors on bean prices is still uncertain. However, it seems safe to think that prices received by growers will be lower this fall even though they will probably not be as low as the 1971-72 period.

OTHER PROBLEMS

In addition to price problems, potential pinto producers also are facing other uncertainties, the economist warns. The culture of this crop on the High Plains is open to question since little research is available. The unavailability of high quality or preferably certified seed of the proper varieties is also a problem, especially at the current costs for seed. Fertility requirements, planting date, irrigation management, and insecticide applications necessary for optimum yields are among the unknown that farmers must deal with.

Sartin figures that the costs of producing pinto beans under irrigation (Table 1) are similar to the production costs for cotton.

The possibility of using beans as a catch crop following hauled-out cotton looks attractive," he says. "However, late plantings would be handled differently, harvested later, and probably compete with beans produced in Colorado and Idaho. The market price could be substantially lower for these beans compared to beans harvested in early September. Variety selection could partially compensate for the later planting date."

The future of pinto beans on the High Plains is just a guess, he emphasizes. However, beans are adapted over a wide geographical area, and much of this area of adaptation lacks alternative crops as attractive as cotton, grain sorghum, and corn. While beans may work this year, their continued high profitability is questionable.

Texas Third In Vegetable Production

AUSTIN--Texas was first in the nation last year in harvested acreage of cabbage spinach and watermelons Agriculture Commissioner
 John C. White has announced.

The state ranked in the top five in cantaloups, carrots, green peppers and onions and was third nationwide in total production of fresh market vegetables.

These and other facts are contained in a new Texas Department of Agriculture publication, 1973 Texas Vegetable Statistics.

Statistics were compiled by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.
 They contain a detailed breakdown of 16 vegetable crops grown for fresh marketing and processing in Texas. Estimates are also made for Irish and sweet potatoes, beets for canning and snap beans for processing.

With maps, charts and graphs, the booklet breaks down vegetable production into eight major growing areas, planting and harvesting dates, principal counties, areas, acreage, yield, cash value survey methods and other information pertinent to the state's vegetable industry.

Screwworm infestation Reported On Increase

AUSTIN--There were 590 confirmed screwworm infestations in Texas during May, an increase of 414 over the previous month, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White reported recently.

Most of the cases were in South Texas, though smaller numbers were reported in the Coastal Bend and the Hill Country.

Webb County reported 81 cases, the highest in the state. Nueces and Aransas were the only South Texas counties without a confirmed case in May.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Screwworm Eradication Program in Mission estimated that 75 percent of the 8,913 screw-worm cases in Texas last year were in South Texas. Eighty to 90 percent of these were from tick-readied bites in the ears of cattle.

According to entomolo-gists, the tick is already appearing in extraordinarily large numbers and heavier infestations are expected in July and August.

Ticks feed on the ears of large animals and drop to the ground, leaving a large wound ready for the screw-worm fly. The best protection to slow or stop tick and screwworm injury is to spray or dip regularly.

Smears applied directly to the ears are also helpful.

Female screwworm flies deposit their eggs on the edges of wounds. Emerging larvae enter the wound to feed on live flesh, often creating illness and, in the case of cattle, lowering beef quality.

Sterile screwworm flies are released in the area of known infestations. The female screwworm fly mates only once in her short lifetime. If she mates with a sterile male, any eggs she produces will not hatch, thus ending the life cycle.

White recommended that cattle owners examine their cattle more closely. He emphasized the importance of controlling the pest for health purposes and to maintain the high quality of Texas beef.

Personnel of the Screw-worm Eradication Program urged that samples from the center of every larvae-infected wound be submitted to their headquarters, P.O.
 Box 969, Mission, Tex.
 78572.

Larvae should be removed from the wound and killed.
 Those dropped on the ground alive pupate and continue their life cycle, infesting new animals within three weeks.
