LUBBOCK SCHOOLS OPEN WITH A LARGE ATTENDANCE MONDAY A. M.

THE METHODIST CHURCH WAS PACKED WITH PUPILS FROM THE GRAMMAR AND HIGH SCHOOL

MANY FORMER TEACHERS ARE HERE AGAIN

Ex-Graduates of the School Take Part in the Opening Exercises—Senior Class This Year Begins With Fifty-Five—Largest in the History of the School. Enrollment Will Show Increase.

Another great day has dawned in Lubbock.

From every avenue, street and lane came the hosts to participate in the opening exercises of the Lubbock schools Monday morning, at the Methodist church.

Little, big, old and young seemed to catch the spirit of the day, realizing, it seemed, the bigness of the occasion, for they were all radiant with smiles, and the enthusiasm with which the whole town seemed to be enveloped will most surely last throughout the term, for those whose hearts are made glad on the opening day of school are usually those who are most capable of retaining that wonderful attitude, and we judge from a survey of the things that have been accomplished in our schools in the past that everything is now keyed up to a high pitch, as the school board has very wisely chosen the same instructors in almost all departments who proved their worth in the last term, and as Supt. Dupre and these other teachers are so well acquainted with one another that they can immediately understand what to expect and what is to be expected of one another, this term will no doubt eclipse all others, and place Lubbock a great deal farther ahead as an educational center.

Promptly at nine-thirty Monday morning the services which marked the opening of the 1922-23 term of school began, when Mrs. Hopkins announced America as the first song, which was entered into with the true spirit of the occasion. The school children gave the music of this grand patriotic song volume, that indicated a lot of pep and enthusiasm. After the singing of this song, Rev. Dunn, pastor of the Methodist church at Lorenzo, offered prayer. "Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung and Superintendent Dupre addressed the audience to the effect that on account of the extremely crowded condition of the church that all speech-making would be eliminated and the exercises would be confined to the making of the necessary announcements. He began by stating that the Senior Class of 1922 would give a play at the Community Auditorium next Saturday night, the proceeds of which would go to the Class "Westerner" fund, to help make up the deficit that the class was carrying at this time. He explained that on account of the unavoidable delay in getting the annual finished that they were in a manner handicapped but stated that it was one of the best High School Annuals that he ever saw, and that he had not seen but few college publications of the kind that beat it. The members of the class are working along various lines, and will earn enough money to pull them out before long. They are a live bunch and are sticking together to the last ditch. On the platform with Mr. Dupre were ex-graduates of the Lubbock High School, and there was a great bunch of them. At this juncture, Prof. Dupre stated that he would introduce the teachers of the various departments of the school, and those connected with the various departments were asked to come forward for introduction. In the number were many faces familiar to most of us, which we were indeed glad to have with us again. Others, who were new to Lubbock folks, were given a hearty applause and a warm welcome to our city, and upon the recommendation given them from other places where they have worked, we feel safe in saying that their work will be most satisfactory in Lubbock.

The lamentable thing about the school opening is the crowded condition which the management faces. The senior class of 1923 numbered fifty-five as they stood on the opening day, and others will be added before the week is out. Seventy-one were registered the first day in the junior class, eighty-seven in the sophomore class and more than a hundred in the freshman classes. This gives you an idea of the crowded condition of the High School, and the other departments are really worse.

The Avalanche is more vitally interested in the educational advantages of the young people of this country than anything else. Lubbock's future does not depend solely upon the material developments of the town, but upon the development of the educational facilities, and we are proud of our schools as they now are.

There is little fault to be found with our schools.

There are those who think that the most conspicuous way in the world to gain attention is to show their knowledge of the fineness of an institution by knocking on the rougher edges of it, and offering an endless sevies of would-be constructive criticisms, which are too often the products of a misapprehension of the greatness of the issue involved, but we hope schools are free of this hindrance, and believe they are. No one should find any degree of satisfaction in offering criticisms of our schools. Lubbock has been growing by leaps and bounds, and to keep a pace with the town, our schools have been placed thru several almost instant changes which have added materially to the problems of their operation, but even at that, we are still growing along those lines, and our schools are able to meet the demands placed upon them.

The services at the Methodist church yesterday were impressive throughout, and we are in hopes that the program added greatly to the interest of those present. We hope that something was done or said at that meeting that will quicken and deepen the interest of parents in the education of their children.

"God give us men," is still and shall always be the most spoken prayer, and the one tangible solution to that problem, and the one tangible medium through which to deliver the solution, is our school. We must not hope to gain much through giving little, but to receive the full benefits of our schools we must put the most possible efforts back of every proposition in which a school problem is involved.

If there is an institution upon which you depend for the security, happiness and significance of your home the school is that institution, and your interest in school should be, and truly is, the mirror of your heart, reflecting upon the world your true self.

Let's boost our schools.

DEAD BODY OF ABILENE IS FOUND IN CATTLE CAR

Abilene, Aug. 31.—The body of J. E. Ducourt, 50, of Abilene, was found at an early hour this morning in a cattle car at Trent, 35 miles west of here, when some men started to load the car with cattle. Ducourt's body was still warm when found, and authorities said his death was due to natural causes. He was seen last midnight in Sweetwater and the body was found at 2 a. m., ten miles away.

Man Found Dead In a Cattle Car Last Thursday

J. E. Ducourt, 50 years old, who formerly lived in Big Spring, was found dead in an empty cattle car in the Texas & Pacific yards at Eskota, 10 miles east of Sweetwater, about 2 o'clock Thursday morning. The body was still warm when it was discovered by men inspecting the car, preparatory to loading cattle. The car had been taken from the Sweetwater yards leaving here about one o'clock Thursday morning and was spotted at Eskota about 2 o'clock, when the discovery was made shortly after.

The body bore no bruises and only a slight bruise was evident on the back of the head, which was not thought responsible for death. Death was assigned due to natural causes, according to Dr. S. N. Leach. Friends of the dead man said that he had been in ill health recently.

The clothing of the dead man bore no identification marks, and the only thing his his possession bordering upon means of identification was a spectacle case, with the initials J. E. and the name partially eligible.

Several people had seen Ducourt here as late as midnight Wednesday and had talked with him at the T. & P. station. Identification was secured through information of men who had known the dead man, who had been formerly connected with a hamburger stand in Big Spring and later was employed in a store at Abilene. His clothing were clean and of good quality, although only a small amount of money, together with some keys were found in the pockets.

The body has been turned over to the Fisher county officials, pending communication from relatives and further arrangements.—Sweetwater Reporter.

State General Fund Went On Deficiency Basis Sept. First

Austin, Aug. 31.—The general fund of the State of Texas went on a deficiency basis today. It was the last day of the fiscal year and the last day of the month, which made it pay day for all those who presented their warrants at the Treasury window before noon. Those coming later were turned down and their warrants will be registered under a system now being arranged. They will be paid in the order of their registration as funds accumulate from time to time. The last warrant cashed was that of Marvin Newton, the Capitol carpenter. The $40,000 pay roll of the A. & M. College was returned unpaid, as were scores of others.

This deficiency does not affect any other State funds and accounts against same are payable in cash. The 16,000 pensioners will receive cash for their warrants of $25 each for the quarter, the largest in the history of the State. All warrants on white paper are on the general fund, and it is there that are to be registered. Warrants on other funds are printed on colored paper, blue being for the pensioners, and they are payable in cash.

More Taxes Delinquent

It has been some years since the State was on a deficiency basis and the general fund would not be exhausted today if all the money due it was paid or payable. More taxes are delinquent than ever before in the history of the State, according to the State officials. Nearly $2,000,000 in cash is due to the general funds from banks and West Texas counties, which borrowed money to buy seed and plant crop following the long drouth. These counties owe the fund about $450,000. Closed banks contained $300,000 of State funds which have not been repaid and depository banks which obtained extensions to repay the State's money hold $1,200,000 of such funds.

None of the State officials are able to estimate how long the deficiency will last. The only relief in sight is in the tax income of this year. This money does not commence to come in in large amounts until December.

REVIVAL MEETING NOW IN PROGRESS AT SLIDE

A Union meeting which is being conducted by the Methodist and Baptist, is now in progress at Slide. Revs. Pickens of the Methodist church and Sowell of the Baptist church are doing the preaching. Good congregations are hearing the messages, and everybody is urged to attend the services, so the greatest good possible may be done in the community. These two preachers are the pastors for the church, and preaches once a month, at this place. They have the confidence of the people, and we hope the hearty co-operation of the entire community in the revival work.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES HELD FOR JAIL PRISONERS

Last Sunday afternoon the laymen of the Baptist church joined by a number of laymen of the Methodist church held religious services at the county jail, and a very spiritual service was reported. There were four white men and three Mexicans in the jail at the time. Aside from the good talks and scripture readings a good song program was given by a male quartette which added much to the enjoyment of the service.

Senator Bledsoe Interested in the Better Road Prog.

"An adequate road building program for Texas will be one of the foremost considerations in the next session of the Texas legislature, and I would be glad to see your Panhandle-Plains Chamber of Commerce, Board of Civic Development and other civic bodies take an active interest in the question and give expression of their opinions," declared Senator W. H. Bledsoe of Lubbock, who was in Amarillo Friday enroute to Fort Worth on legal business.

In discussing the proposed road building program, the Senator declared that East and Central Texas are not situated like this section of the State, and legislation which might be of great value to those portions of Texas, would in all probability be a handicap to this section, the Senator pointed out, and he expressed his desire for the opinion of the western people on the subject.

Senator Bledsoe has represented the twenty-ninth senatorial district, and the redistricting bill which will be effective in 1924 will place him in the thirtieth district, he declared. The entire Senate will have to be re-elected to conform to the new district lines, Senator Bledsoe declared. The twentyninth district has provided territory for three entire districts, he declared.

Senator Bledsoe expressed regret that Representative Lee Satterwhite would not offer himself for speaker of the house at the next legislative session, declaring that in his opinion he would have easily been elected.—Amarillo Tribune.

Signs On Main Roads Leading Into Lubbock

Another big job has been finished. The advantages of team work, plus power of civic pride has been demonstrated in that there are now one hundred and twenty four miles o froads leading into Lubbock on which are placed in all fifty-seven signs, directing one to the city, and telling the distance.

This task of placing signs on our roads for the convenience of tourists was discussed some time ago, and the funds for having the signs built and painted was raised by a committee of which E. A. Morgan was chairman. Morgan and his crowd called on the merchants, selling to each of them the sign, they having to pay for the work of erecting it and the painting, which was done by our efficient and artistic local sign man, H. H. Jons. Morgan found the work easy, the merchants responding so freely to the proposition that only one half day was required to complete the work.

The task of putting up the signs was allotted to a committee from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, composed of O. L. Peterman, S. F. Cone and Louie F. Moore, who immediately got busy and solicited sufficient funds to have the work done, the contract having been bid an by several, and finally awarded to Mr. R. A. Woods, who completed the work Saturday.

These signls are placed on six of the main roads leading into the city, and their value to the merchants as advertising mediums, and as a method of showing the tourist that they are interested in him to the extent hat they would have him properly directed to the city, is hard to estimate.

The aggressiveness of our people is not to be doubted in the least, and the fact that these signs were not erected several years ago, though badly needed, indicates that they were too busy with other things, and in nowise that they were not willing to build the things needed here.

BOB HENRY RESIGNS KLAN MEMBERSHIP

Waco, Sept. 1.—Robert L. Henry, one of the candidates for United States Senator in the first primary, and who was an avowed member of the Ku Klux Klan has resigned from that organization.

A statement by him today said: "I have resigned as a member of the Knights of the Ku Klux through the regular procedure of the organization. On account of the conduct of the high officials of the order in power at Atlanta, Ga., and in Texas, I am no longer willing to continue my membership."

Mr. Henry lauds the principles of the order and says he will continue to defend them and the rank and file of membership, but declines to affiliate with the order for the reasons stated.

SCHOOL LANDS FORFEITED FOR NON-PAYMENT INTEREST

Austin, Aug. 31.—The General Land Office today declared forfeitures of public land for non-payment of interest. Acreage forfeited has not yet been totaled. Payments on this land amounted to $305,916, payments during June, July and August totaled $739,910. Payments on land received in the Land Office for the two years ending today amounted to $4,976,057.

"What does the Red Cross Secretary do during the summer months."

That was the question asked this past week by one of the citizens of the city and for the information of others interested in this work a special trip was made to the Secretary's office and the following information secured from her monthly report to Division Headquarters, under whose supervision she handles the local work:

During the month of August five Community Clubs were organized in the rural communities of Lubbock County with an average membership of 20 ladies to the club. The work of these clubs not only includes the regular Red Cross work of keeping in touch with destitute families, relieving suffering, assisting in nursing the sick and kindred interests of that side of community life, but the community clubs take part in every phase of community life.

Regular meetings are held for the discussion of community problems and their solution, a monthly or bi-monthly social meeting where the ladies of that community meet to work out their problems, exchange receipts, discuss their neighbors—in a friendly way, of course, and otherwise develop a spirit of friendship, co-operation and constructive progressiveness in that community.

Idalou is one of the communities that was organized this month and they plan some very effective work in the way of improving their school grounds, planting trees and developing a better spirit for their town and community. New Hope, Posey and others were organized and are undertaking each its own problems and plans for the coming months.

Every community club in the county is adding the Red Cross committee to its regular organization and planning to care for the many problems that come up each winter following the cotton picking season when whole families get stranded away from home, without money, with sickness, privations, etc. During the past years only two cities, Lubbock and Slaton, have had the advantage of expert direction in this work and it has been found to be a money saver—as well as a humanitarian service worth while. But with the new Ford bought for the Secretary by the Rotary and Kiwanis ball games, the secretary is able to cover the entire county and look after every phase of her work in a direct, efficient and personal way.

She is spending an average of three days in each week thru the summer months in the rural communities of the country, getting acquainted with their individual problems and situations, organizing Red Cross committees and preparing to care for whatever the winter may bring.

One day each week is spent in Slaton, with frequent special visits to that city to look upon the Red Cross interests of that growing town. The Lubbock and Slaton Red Cross Chapters are separate organizations as far as their local work are concerned but each county is organized as a county unit and the Red Cross Secretary directs and assists in the work of every town in the county until the individual towns are large enough to warrant a full time secretary in each town. In Lubbock county none of the towns are that big yet—so the secretary assists in both towns.

Mr. B. M. Holland is chairman of the Slaton Red Cross Chapter and is a very efficient and willing help in Red Cross work. He is also president of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce and prominent in the business life of the city. Some of the plans for the winter of the Slaton Chapter include free medical examination of every child in the public schools, a rest room in their new City Hall, and other community matters as well as the regular Red Cross charity work.

It has been found that with the coming of the cotton picking season—when there is loose change in this section that the beggars and pencil sellers on the streets of West Texas towns increase at least 500 per cent. Through the summer months or early spring months—few beggars make the town—they are all away for the summer working the bathing beaches and summer resorts. But with the movement of our fall crops they are all back on the job. Some of them do plain begging; some of them have it down to an artistic science; some of them use crooked means to supplement what they get on the streets—but most of them are fakes, pure and simple. If you refer them to the Red Cross Secretary—and expect them to get to her—you had better go right along with them—for they know even better than you and I—that their story won't stand up under the examination she puts them through before she aids them. Worthy charity should be helped and not one citizen in the city or county regrets a dollar spent on some worthy man or woman in hard circumstances. But it sure does get a man's goat to learn after he has contributed a dollar or five dollars that the pitiful beggar owns a few brick buildings and a good bank account.

A good example of just how this may work out was found in Lubbock last year when two beggars worked the town on the same day. One of them was taken by a citizen to the Red Cross office—where the Secretary questioned him as to his condition, why he couldn't work, where he lived, etc., etc. (And she finds out the history of the case and if his own people can help him, not one cent does he get from the Red Cross treasury—or if he is direct from some town where he has lived six months or more—he gets sent back to that town—at the expense of the town he is from instead of the town that he is WORKING).

He started out with his usual story—but before she got through with him he was so mixed up he didn't know what he was saying. He declared that he didn't even know there was another beggar in town that day and a lot of that sort of stuff. But his story didn't hold up and he got no help.

Five days later the Secretary got a letter from Denver, Colorado, signed by both of the beggars that were here that day sarcastically thanking the organization for the help they DID NOT give to them.

Fakes—Both of them. A dozen such cases might be cited to show the amount of money the Red Cross can save every town in Lubbock county this winter if the merchants, businessmen, and farmers on the streets will quit giving the beggars money. Send them to the Red Cross office. Bring them to the Red Cross office. Tell them that the Red Cross takes care of matters of that kind and that you contribute your money direct to the Red Cross.

And then to keep from telling a big black —fib—send the Red Cross a check for what they save you. (This is not a solicitation from the Red Cross for funds—for they only make one big drive each year, but is thrown in just to remind you that if they save you money—you should remember them when they do come around).

One woman in Lubbock last year got away with $80 in one morning, and was picked up as a fake in Plainview and arrested. Regardless of what the stranger pretends to represent or what sort of condition hs is in—be sure that he is not a fake—and the quickest way to do that is through the Red Cross and Chamber of Commerce—depending upon the kind of proposition they have to put over on you. These two organizations can save Lubbock County $50,000 during the coming winter in stopping fake promoters, sales, beggars, solicitors, etc., over the county. But they can't do a thing without the co-operation of the everyday citizen of the county.

Possibly worse than beggars and fake solicitors are the flood of cheap carnivals, trashy shows, street hawkers and petty peddlers of tarnished trash that floods the whole Plains country through September, October and November. (Thank goodness they can't stand the cold weather of the winter months and leave for the sunny South and more comfort. Begging is about the only job that a man can afford to move to suit his feelings that we have heard anything of lately).

The established places of amusement in Lubbock county, the established places of business throughout the Plains section carry a quality of goods, or programes, and entertainment to suit the folks in this section and at a price that is right. If they are not right, competition soon comes in and makes it right. They are a part of the town that they do business in and stay with us year in and year out. They are entitled to your patronage—and these fly-by-night trash hawkers should be put out of business in Lubbock county.

In your local communities call upon your Red Cross organization, your Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations to help you rid your town of these fakes. It will save money.

Bonus Bill in Detail as Passed By Senate

Washington, Aug. 31.—As amended by the Senate the soldiers' bonus bill would become effective January 1, 1923, and would provide three optional plans for veterans of the world war other than those whose adjusted service pay would not exceed $50. These would be paid in cash. The options are:

Adjutsed service certificates, payable in twenty years or sooner at death and containing loan provisions.

Vocational training aid at the rate of $1.75 a day up to a total of 140 per cent of the adjusted service credit.

Aid in purchasing a farm or home the total amount to range from 100 per cent of the adjusted service credit if the money were advanced in 1923 to 140 per cent of the adjusted service credit if the money were made in 1928 or thereafter.

Adjusted service pay or adjusted service credit would be figured on the basis of $1 a day for domestic service and $1.25 a day for foreign service, less the $60 paid at discharge. But in no event could the amount of the credit of the veteran who performed no overseas service exceed $500 and the amount of the credit of the veteran who performed any overseas service exceed $625.

Adjusted service certificates would have a face value equal to the sum adjusted service credit of the veteran increased by 25 per cent plus interest thereon for twenty years at the rate of 1 1-2 per cent per year, compounded annually.

Until January 1, 1926, any national bank or any bank or trust company incorporated under the laws of any state, territory, possession or the District of Columbia would be authorized to loan to any veteran upon his promissory note secured by his adjusted service certificate any amount not in excess of 10 per cent of the total of the adjusted service credit plus interest thereon from the date of the certificate to the date of the loan at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent a year.

Should the veteran fail to pay the principal and interest of the loan within six months after its maturity, the government would pay the bank the amount of such principal and interest and take over the certificate. This would be restored to the veteran at any time prior to its maturity upon receipt from him of the amount paid by the Government to the bank plus interest on that amounted at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent a year, compounded annually.

The rate of interest charged the veteran by the bank could not exceed by more than two per cent a year the rate charged at the date of the loan for the discount of commercial paper by the Federal Reserve Bank for the Federal Reserve district in which the bank was located.

If a veteran died before the maturity of the loan the Government would pay to the bank the principal and interest and to the beneficiary named by or to the estate of the veteran the face value of the certificate less the amount paid to the bank.

After January 1, 1926, veterans holding certificates could make direct application through postmasters for government loans.

If such loan were made at any time not more than three years after the date of the certificates it could not exceed 50 per cent of the sum of the adjusted service credit of the veteran plus interest at 4 1-2 per cent a year from the date of the loan.

If the loan were made at any time more than three years after and not less than six years after the date of the certificate the sum could not exceed 35 per cent of the adjusted service credit plus interest at 4 1-2 per cent from the date of the certificate to the date of the loan.

If the loan were made at any time more than six years after the date of the certificate the sum could not exceed 70 per cent of the adjusted service credit increased by 25 per cent plus interest at 4 1-2 per cent from the date of the certificate to the date of the loan.

The veteran will repay the loan upon an amortization plan by means of a fixed number of annual installments sufficient to cover interest on the unpaid principal at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent and such amount of the principal as would extinguish the debt within an agreed period not exceeding the life of the certificate. If a veteran failed to make any payment when due, the Secretary of the Treasury at any time prior to the maturity of the certificate would cancel the note and restore the certificate to the veteran upon receipt of all installments in arrears together with interest at 4 1-2 per cent compounded annually upon such installments from the time when due.

In event of the death of the veteran before the maturity of the loan the loan and note would be cancelled and the government would pay to the beneficiary named by or to the estate of the veteran the face value of the certificate less the principal of and the interest on the Government loan.

The certificate of a veteran would be cancelled only in case he failed to redeem it before its maturity or if he failed to make any payments when due and such defaults continued to his death.

The land settlement aid option of the House bill has been stricken out and the Smith-McNary reclamation bill substituted. Under that measure veterans would be given preference in employment on reclamation projects and in obtaining homesteads of land reclaimed. They would be required, however, to pay for such homesteads without further Government aid, on the same footing as other homesteaders. Settlement would be open to all veterans of the world war, the Spanish-American war and the Philippine insurrection and irrespective of whether they had received any compensation from the Government under the bonus bill or other legislation.

The veterans' choice among the options proposed would be made by application filed with the Secretary of War, if he were serving in or his last services was with the military forces; or with the Secretary of the Navy if he were serving in or his last service was with the naval forces. Such application might be made at any time after the passage of the bill and would have to be made personally by the veteran, except in the case of physical or mental incapacity, in which event it would be made by representatives of the veteran and in such manner as the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy might jointly by regulation prescribe.

ITALIAN PEDDLER WAS NOT PREPARED TO DIE

Rev. L. W. Williamson is missionary for the Staked Plains Baptist association, and ministers to a number of churches in this district, and is a very familiar figure as he goes about in his car. He is genial, kindly, and always ready to do a good act for his fellowman, and often picks up persons along the road and gives them a ride. He also often talks with such persons on religious matters.

Recently while coming in from a trip out in the country, he overtook an Italian peddler, carrying a pack on his back. Bro. Williamson stopped his car, and invited the peddler to ride. The Italian carefully stored his pack in the back of the car and climbed into the seat beside the preacher.

For some time the two talked pleasantly, as the Italian could speak broken English. Then, there was rather a long pause, and, thinking to improve the occasion in a religious sense, the preacher turned and asked a little loudly, as the car was making some noise, "My friend, are you prepared to die?"

With a wild shriek the Italian jumped from the car, hit the ground running, and disappeared in a nearby maize field. The calls of the preacher only hastened the fellow's flight, and neither the preacher nor anybody else has seen him again in that neighborhood. It seems that the peddler was not prepared.

INTERNAL POULTRY PARASITES AND HOW TO CONTROL

(By F. W. Kazmeier, Poultry Husbandman, A. & M. College

In the summer time more than at any other time worms affecting or rather infesting the digestive system cause considerable trouble and a large mortality.

Most chickens are infected with one or more of parasitic worms, which usually are not numerous and do no great harm. We have found a few round worms in nearly all hens, especially grown chickens. They do not appear to cause any trouble until they increase in such numbers that they obstruct the digestive system. We have found that the overcrowding on small yards is one of the most common causes of the spread of these worms.

When it is noticed that the infested fowls become weak, thin, and appear bloodless and unproductive, it is time to make a close examination of both the fowls and the premises. Fowls infested with the worms have a characteristic halting walk, they grow weaker and weaker, altho apparently eating all the time, they sometimes get so weak they can not stand on their legs without trembling, their comb and wattles appear pale and white in color.

How To Make a Post Mortem For Worms

Open one of the birds that dies showing worm infestation, or kill one that is very thin and weak. Open the intestines and empty contents into a pan of water. The white worms can then easily be detected. The two most common worms found are the round worms and tape worms. The round worm is by far the most common, and we have found them in many fowls. In the poultry dressing plants they may be found in a large number of the fowls killed and dressed.

Roundworms

The most common form of round worm is about one to four inches in length and generally found in the digestive system. The most common place for the round worm is in the small intestines. Many different treatments are recommended. The worm as a rule is easily expelled from the digestive system. This cannot be said about the tape worm. The following treatment is recommended by the Agricultural Experiment Station of California: For 100 birds steep one pound of finely chopped tobacco stems for two hours in water enough to cover them. Mix the stems and liquid with one half the usual amount of ground feed. The day previous withhold all feed, giving nothing but water and milk to drink. After the birds have been starved for 24 hours, feed the medicated mash and two hours after it is cleaned up, give them one-fourth of the usual ration of ground feed mixed with water in which Epsom salts has been dissolved at the rate of 11 ounces for each 100 birds. The treatment should be repeated 10 days later.

To prevent a new infestation of worms, it is best to move the poultry houses and yards onto uncontaminated ground. If this is impossible, clean the houses and yards thoroughly and remove the fertilizer to a place unfrequented by the fowls. The round worm eggs sometimes are hard to destroy. Keep the houses and yards clean and dry. Use plenty of lime on the yards.

The round worms are cylindrical in shape, tapering slightly towards the head. They are white to pinkish white in color. They multiply by producing eggs which pass out with the droppings, and then may come in contact with food and thus reinfest other birds when the food is eaten.

Other treatment recommended is ten grains of areca nut, mixed with shorts and water. Make the mixture about the consistency of butter. The above treatment is for one fowl. Enough of this may be prepared to treat the entire flock.

Individual treatment may be given by dosing each bird with turpentine and olive oil. Give each bird a teaspoonful of olive oil and turpentine separately.

The Tape Worm

The tape worm is a flat segmented worm sometimes many inches long. They are more serious than the round worm. They lay many eggs which are passed off in the droppings and the infestation is thus spread. The tape worm lives on the nourishment in the digestive system and when found in large numbers, they cause the fowl to die from a lack of nourishment.

For individual treatment, we recommend fasting the birds for 24 hours and give a teaspoonful of turpentine and a teaspoonful of Epsom salts. Some people also use the same treatment recommended for the round worms.

The Bureau of Animal Industry recommends dosing each bird with a teaspoonful of castor oil to which has been added ten to twenty drops of oil chenopodium (American worm seed oil) according to the weight of the bird. The medicine should be given after a fast and repeated in 10 days.

Another treatment is to give each fowl a one grain dose of santonine, combined with seven grains of arecanut.

Gape Worms

Gapes in chickens is a trouble caused by the gape worms infesting the internal sides of the windpipe causing the fowl to frequently be gasping for breath. Some times the worms increase in such numbers as to suffocate the chicks. It is most common in small chicks. The gape worm is red in color and forked in shape. The gape worm reproduces by laying large numbers of eggs, which in some way get into another chicken either directly or indirectly. Sometimes they infest common earth worms, and when eaten reinfest the chicken. The mode of spread is through contaminated ground. To control the infestation, it is necessary to grow chicks on clean ground or to raise them in houses with wooden floors, and then not permit them to run on the ground until they are four or five weeks old.

In controlling this disease, it is best to prevent the disease, because, it seldom pays to try to doctor chicks between the ages of ten days and four weeks, because treatment is too expensive in comparison with the value of the chick at that age. Some have used so called gape worm extractors successfully. To make a gape worm remover, take a small quill feather, strip it of all its feathers except small tuft on the end and this may be used either dry or moistened with kerosene or turpentine. To use the extractor run it down the windpipe and give a few twisting motions before removing.

Good results have been had by medicating drinking water with 15 grains of salicylic acid or 3 drams of salicylate or soda to a quart of water.

In conclusion we wish to say that the best way of controlling and preventing any serious trouble from gape worms, is by raising the small chicks on clean and fresh ground each year. Cleanliness will do much to keep down all worm infestation.

We have also found that the fowls that are fed a properly balanced ration are much less subject to all kinds of poultry diseases. The under nourished flocks are always the first ones to become sick and ailing. After all is said and done your success in the poultry business depends upon your ability to prevent rather than to cure the diseases. Successful poultry raisers have realized this by past experience long ago. They would rather employ a Chinese physician to prevent diseases than an American doctor that is not called until a person is seriously ill.

GALEY SAYS AVALANCHE IS FAR BETTER FOR HIM

R. M. Galey was in town Saturday from his home on Route 3, transacting business

Mr. Galey had a fine mule to stray away from the Worsham pasturs several weeks ago, and just to save a great deal of worry and time, he had an ad placed in the classified department of the Avalanche, which we are sure will get results, and we are glad that he looks upon this paper as a means of helping in a place like that, as well as a source of information.

"I get a daily Fort Worth paper all the time, and think that so far as help to a farmer is concerned the Avalanche has it beat, for I have observed very few things of current interest to farmers in this section but that can be found in your paper, and the semi-weekly editions get to me just as fast as I have time to read them," emphasizing the fact that the various articles devoted to help the farmer, poultryman, etc., which the Avalanche is so particular about selecting for its readers, are of vital importance to anyone interested in the growth of the various industries on the farms.

The Avalanche management has done everything possible to secure the very best articles on farm hints available, and it is encouraging to know that the farmers of this section are taking advantage of that service.

The Avalanche is your paper, and anything that the management can do to make it serve you better is gladly done.

WARD WINNER OVER RAY IN HURLERS' DUEL

Abilene, Aug. 31.—Lefty Bill Ward, recently sold to the Saint Louis Cardinals, was the winner of a nifty pitchers' duel over Ray and the Abilene Eagles evened up the series here today with the San Angelo Broncs, winning 1 to 0. Ward got three hits out of four times up. An errer by Bean in the seventh let in the winning score.

SLAUGHTER INSTALLED FIRST RADIO IN GARZA COUNTY

Jay Slaughter, well known West Texas ranchman, was here the first of the week transacting business. He took time to call at the Martin Radio Equipment Company office to tell the force how proud he was of the instrument, and said he had been successful in picking up much news of current interest, together with various concerts, lectures, etc. Mr. Slaughter has the distinction of owning the first radio set to be installed in Garza County, and though his ranch is fifteen miles from Post City, he has no occasion to wish for better entertainment than can be received through the wonderful apparatus. The equipment was sold and installed by the Martin Radio Equipment Company.

A FRIENDLY FEELING TOWARD THE FAIR

There is a general friendly feeling in the counties nearby regarding the fair, and it is the general opinion among the people of the twelve or fifteen counties that comprise the South Plains proper, that there is need for a fair of the nature that Lubbock has started, and is trying to build up, and that Lubbock is beyond any question the place where the fair should be held. They are willing to join in the fair, and there is nothing but praise for the manner by which the South Plains Fair has been conducted in the past, and we are confident that there will be no occasion for other than good words and commendation of the way things will go this year. Lubbock, of course, bore the expenses to a large extent in carrying the fair thus far, but there will come a time we believe, in the very near future, that with the financial aid of the several counties that will eventually come in, in a very substantial way that the burden will in a measure be raised from the Lubbock business men and each county will share in the proposition, which in all probability will not continue to be a burden but rather an asset, and that it will become one of the real attractions of the Southwest. This year there will be a great increase in the exhibition building floor space, and this will give the county exhibitors a chance to show their exhibits more satisfactorily. It will also give the individuals a better opportunity to display their products, and everything will be more convenient, and much better in every way than ever before. There comes to the management of the fair words of encouragement from every part of the South Plains, and the success of the fair seems assured this year, which is probably one of the hardest that we will ever have to cope with. Lubbock is proud of the progress that has been made in the fair, and we are glad of the good feeling that comes to us from our neighboring counties. We bid all a hearty welcome to the city and to the fair, and hope that you will be even more favorably impressed with the way it is conducted after you have attended the Ninth Annual Exposition than ever before.

CUT OUT THE TOWN FIGHT

There is really nothing that so vividly identifies a place as a small town as does the "town fight" stuff. When towns really get into the city class, they stop such stuff as always picking at the neighbor towns. The really progressive town is the one where the people all work together for the upbuilding of their own town and bid the other cities Godspeed, and good luck. It shows real littleness as well as acknowledges defeat or deficiency when a person has to try to build up their town on alleged demerits of another. The South Plains is reasonably free from such as this, but once in a while some little upstart, who expects to set the world on fire every time he writes a few lines, thinks this is a popular string to jerk among his home people, and continues to harp, harp away, abusing his neighbor towns, trying to belittle them every time he speaks and seems to think that will build his own town up. Few people believe in that kind of stuff, and it is not appreciated by the broadminded, sensible people of the community. It is only the dry goods box whittlers, the fellows who sit on the street corners and "aches" that voice that kind of stuff as the way to build towns. The Avalanche has no patience with such methods or the folks that try to put it over. Lubbock has enough to do to build and take care of the needs that the public demands of them and no time to knock on the other fellow. Every fellow should get in the collar and pull for the development of the South Plains. The growth of every town helps the development of this section, and we should everyone be in line to put forth the best effort possible for this great undeveloped country. Thousands upon thousands of acres of rich, fertile land remain yet untouched. Do your bit toward getting people on it, and make it productive of the things that is needed to feed and clothe the increasing millions of inhabitants of the land and you will be counted among the number that has accomplished something for your town and the South Plains.

School days are here. The school has started on another nine months lap. Let everyone co-operate with the management and help them to pull through this year, which will probably be the hardest in the history of the school on account of the terrible crowded condition. The new building will not be completed for use at all this season, and the scholastic population has increased very materially, hence the school board will have grave problems to work out on the housing of the school this year.

INCREASING DEMAND FOR GRAPES

Grape growers, in fact, report an unprecedented call for grapes, resulting in a rapid increase in prices obtained for certain varieties. Where formerly the growers received about $35 a ton, they are now getting about $100 a ton. Naturally this has stimulated grape growing where vineyards flourish.

Shippers report the demand to be for grapes in large quantities. This has exhausted the supply to such an extent that small package shipments of Delawares and Concords that formerly were sent to many cities throughout the country have been almost discontinued.

Why the demand for grapes? They are wanted, it is claimed, to make grape fruit beverages and also for home brew. Of course home-made wine is frowned on by the law, but home-made grape juice is not barred. Only it must not be fermented.

If the demand for grapes continues to increase as it has increased during the last two or three years, greatly enlarged vineyards may be looked for where cultivated grapes are grown, and new vineyards may spring up in sections where grapes can be grown to advantage.

Wine may be sold only for medicinal or sacramental purposes. The demand being so limited that the wine cellars of California are stocked to overflowing, but the California grape growers have had no trouble marketing their fruit in the East at a greater profit, it is said, than by turning it into wine.

Grapes grow wild in many parts of Texas, but there are few vineyards in the State. If the demand for cultivated grapes continues there is opportunity for a new and profitable industry in Texas.—Fort Worth Record.

The South Plains is a splendid grape growing region, and this, no boubt could be made one of the great money-making propositions in this section. The grape crop is reasonably sure. The late freezes seldom ever destroy the crop. With the demand increasing for the grape products, we believe that our people would do well to pay more attention than heretofore to the production of grapes on the South Plains. There is a section of country two hundred miles square around Lubbock that is unquestionably well adapted to the growth of grapes.

DESCRIPTION

You will just simply have to drive around over Lubbock if you want to get an idea of the rapid growth of this town. We just simply cannot do the subject justice.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Calling attention to the fact that such a condition does exist in your city is in itself going far toward doing the subject justice for by that means you not only are putting your people to thinking about the matter but you are informing everyone who sees what you have written of the fact that you have indeed a place which is showing rapid strides in building and progress and advancement. Clip & Comment has not been to your city but by reading the above, he at once gets the idea vividly presented to his mind, that there is one place where there is true progress and development, for the editor of the Avalanche has just driven over the town and come back and started to write about what he had seen, but he has to throw up his hands and exclaim, "We just simply cannot do the subject justice." There you have the whole matter in a nutshell. And it is saying much also for the place where the editor of the paper goes out and sees the beautiful homes, the grassy lawns, the happy and contented people, and the progress being made, and then goes back to his office and cannot put into words what his thoughts are. It is saying much for the reason that editors are always supposed to be ready and capable of describing anything from a dog fight to beautiful, thriving, growing pulsating young city.—Abilene Reporter.

PUSHING LUBBOCK FAIR

The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce offices are about the busiest places in town just at present. In fact, every week day in the year one will find the secretary and his office force is working hard on the job. Just now extra help is on the job, getting up the fair catalogues, distributing advertising literature, answering thousands of questions, and otherwise furthering the interest of the Fair. They tell us there is a great deal of inquiry about the fair this year, and it is expected the attendance will far exceed that of last year, which was a record breaker.—Lubbock Avalanche.

The Lubbock spirit must be commended, for in these times there is in some places an attempt to curtail civic activities. Some cities are reducing chamber of commerce work and abandoning the fair or staging it on a smaller scale. It is a pleasure to see that the Lubbock spirit demands that the fair be staged on a greater scale than ever. Such a spirit will mean that the fair will have a great attendance. The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce is busy doing everything possible to boost the fair. Lubbock has one of the largest fairs in the State, and it is growing in popularity. May the Lubbock spirit continue and keep the fair going.—Amarillo News.

As we have said many times before, and will no doubt say many times more, there should be the very closest co-operation between the merchant and the farmers and the town man and the fellow that lives in the rural districts, and the several organizations of this city are striving to eliminate the differences that have more or less existed in the past, not only in Lubbock, but all over the country, in every state so far as we know. The Rotary Club had what they called Farmer Day last Wednesday, at which time every member of the club had as his guest a farmer, and it was a real pleasure for these Rotarians to have their farmer friends with them, and we believe the feeling was mutual. The Chamber of Commerce is also striving to bring about a more pleasant relation between the farmer and the man of the city, and in fact, all organizations that are for the betterment of the community are in line in this matter. Let the good work go on. The Avalanche has advocated it for years, and has seen the necessity of it for a long time, and we are glad to see the splendid progress that is being made along this line.

Roy McElroy Returns from Wis., Iowa and Illinois

Roy McElroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. McElroy of the Lyric Theatre, returned Saturday at noon from Davenport, Iowa, after an extended visit with relatives in that part of the country.

Roy left Lubbock June 26, with his grandfather, Frank McElroy of Muscatine, Iowa, stopping off there for a two days visit.

From Muscatine he went to Davenport, Iowa, where he visited his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ruymann. Joining them on a motor trip to Devils Lake, Wisconsin, where they spent a month, during which time the young Lubbockite got his fill of fishing, boating and swimming, as he reports taking a dip every day, and some times more than once a day. His first experience with the channel cat that are so numerous in the waters there occasioned a good joke on him, in that he thought the fellows could be lifted from the water without the use of the dip net which all the others were handling quite successful, for when he got a bite, and attempted to throw his catch out of the water, a splash announced his failure, and before long young McElroy had decided to take lessons in handling the nets as well as the reel. He finally landed a good one, and learned that it's easy to drag them out if one knows how.

After a month's stay along the shores of Devils Lake, the party motored back to Davenport. From Davenport, Young McElroy went to Chicago where he spent a week visiting at the home of his uncle, Frank McElroy, Jr., taking advantage of the opportunity to see the city, and the many interesting sights that he relates having enjoyed are indeed wonderful.

While at Chicago he took a boat to Milwaukee, where he spent three days sight-seeing, going from there back to Chicago, from where he returned to Davenport.

While enroute home he again visited his grandfather at Muscatine, returning to Lubbock Saturday morning, where his parents and friends were glad to welcome him.

He reports a wonderful trip, and declares that if ever a summer vacation was enjoyed, that one was, and that he is now ready for school, with renewed determination to make a showing in all his studies.

In speaking of the nice trip his son enjoyed, Mr. McElroy said the trip is a part of the lad's schooling and that he believed such vacations are of great value to anyone.

MRS. WILL BEAN IS PLEASED WITH LUBBOCK

Mrs. Will Bean and little sons, Dennis and Jim, of Wall, Texas, were in Lubbock Friday and Saturday visiting at the homes of her brothers, Jim Douglass of the Panhandle Cigar Company, and Neal Douglass, of the Avalanche.

She made the trip from San Angelo by automobile and reports everything looking very discouraging in parts of the country tarversed, but that as the crops in the San Angelo country were farther advanced than here, and had made better growth through the wet season in the spring, farmers are optimistic as to the yeiled, and it is believed that they will enjoy exceptional harvests.

Mrs. Bean has been geeting the Avalanche for the past several months, and said she had become so interested in this section through keeping up with the deevlopments by reading the paper that the trip was made more interesting, and that she was not at all surprised to find Lubbock the beautiful little city it is.

NEAL A. DOUGLASS, JR. OFF TO CONVENTION

Neal A. Douglass, City Editor on the Avalanche left Sunday for Galveston where he goes as representative of the Lubbock Kiwanis Club at the International Convention which holds session there the 4th and 5th. We can say this much for Neal—he's full o' pep. Things are naturally quiet around the office today. We are sure that the convention will know that Lubbock Kiwanis has a representative on the grounds, and if other clubs are represented by as live wires as he Galveston will know that "somebody's come to town."

W. A. Davis, one of the big farmers of the Acuff community, was here Saturday. Mr. Davis says his crop is mighty good, as though the drouth is bad, his land is sufficiently sandy to hold the moisture mighty good, and the drouth will have failed to make crops there fail completely if rain is received within a reasonable time.

Rev. Geo. Shearer, presiding elder of the Lubbock District returned Monday morning from Tahoka and Slaton where he spent Saturday and Sunday attending to the business of his district. Rev. Shearer reports good progress being made over the district and says a new church building is in prospect in the town of Wilson.

E. Burdett and wife of this place returned Monday from O'Donnell where they went to visit a day or two and transact business. Mr. Burdett is having several wells drilled on his large stock farm in the O'Donnell section.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McCarty and children of Fort Worth have been visiting with Rev. Geo. W. Shearer and wife for the past few days.

Miss Frances Fry of Canadian, formerly of Lubbock has returned to her home after a short visit here with friends.

Tumble N Pool Was Scene of Much Activity Friday; Seniors Kept the Place That Day, Clearing About $25.00

The seniors of the past term had charge of the Tumble N Pool Friday and we learn with pleasure and a great deal of satisfaction that thru the assistance of the management, and by exercising a great deal of business judgment they came out with a neat sum clear. The management very liberally gave the use of the pool free, their only expense being to care for the laundering of the towels used, and such incidental expenses of operating the place.

The seniors had two nice signs painted on long strips of canvas, which were suspended upon frames that were placed across the back of a donkey, which was lead about over town by its small owners, attracting much attention, and no doubt doing a great deal of good advertising for the pool. Circulars were also distributed, and in many ways the seniors announced their operation of the place, nad we are sure there was no one who had the pleasure of patronizing them but who realizes that they received good service and one hundred percent return on the investment.

The seniors are devising every means for raking up a little ready cash, and we understand they will serve luncheon for the next two meetings of the Rotary Club.

The Club was responsible for much good work thruout the past year, and the seniors feel that in the members they have true and tried friends, very few things having been brought to the minds of the Rotarians that in any manner concerned the students but the great force of that organization was put back of the thing and their influence was soon felt.

One of the boys who had taken an active part in all the class work told an Avalanche reporter Friday that "We are going to serve the next two luncheons of the Rotary Club, and are sure glad—those fellows have been so good to us in so many ways, that it does us good to know we have an opportunity to show them that their efforts are appreciated, and say—we will sure give them something to eat on both occasions."

That just about sums up the situation. The Rotarians started something worth while when they started entertaining the thought of sponsoring the various moves of the Senior Class, and the Seniors have kept apace with them so well that all concerned seem glad that they were given the privilege to work together.

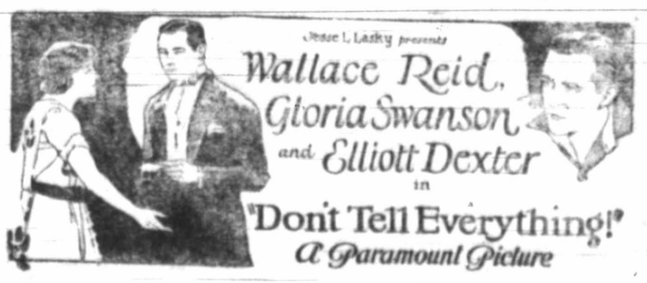

At any rate we know there are some mighty fine folks in both the Rotary Club and the Senior Class, and feel their efforts in helping one another have been relayed to the community welfare of Lubbock.

Let's keep ablaze the fire of friendly, helpful, kindly regard between the school pupil and the business men of Lubbock.

Rots vs. Kiwanis

At this writing it is impossible to give a correct account of the result of the Rotary-Kiwanis base ball game which began promptly at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Kiwanis are now at bat, having made a tremendous amount of scores and only two out. We will be glad to report the result of this game if it has been determined by the time we issue another Leader News.

OYSTER HUNGER

L. E. Hunt, secretary and J. A. Rix, president of the local Rotary Club left last night for Galveston where they will attend the State Convention of Rotarians. Dengue Fever, who has been in attendance at practically all meets in Central and South Texas during the past few weeks may be unable to attend the Convention as a result of approaching cool weather, however his mother, Miss Quito will likely attend.

The Leader wishes these two well known Lubbock business men and civic leaders an enjoyable trip.

BARE FACTS ABOUT DRESS

When Mamma Eve sneaked up behind Pa Adam and pushed the crab apple into his map, she knew she was putting something over, but she started things which she and others at the time reked not and in fact some of them are just now being found out.

Among other things, by her dealing in fresh fruit, Eve created the clothing and haberdashery business but she did not know it. Up to this time the tailors had not received much notice and they had quite a dull time of it, but by eating the persimmon, old Dad Adam acquired information and knowledge which made him at once jump behind a tree, back away and hunt up a tailor, where he ordered a pair of fig leaf breeches. There are no records to show just which side of the street he patronized on this particular shopping expedition but it is enough to know that this order started things going with tailors in that vicinity. Back rents were paid and business established on a paying basis.

Clothes are worn now chiefly from force of habit, but they also keep the wearer from being pinched.

When ushered into this world of woes, the first thing the offspring has experience with is clothes and naturally the child gets the habit which afterwards estab-

Commissioner Hall Makes Encouraging Farewell Address

Austin, Aug. 31.—Ed Hall retired as Commissioner of Insurance and Banking today after having served during eighteen months of what he characterized as the most trying period in the twelve years' history of the State banking system of Texas. He leaves after a strenuous time which has more or less impaired his health, he having devoted himself night and day to the office.

"I am glad to say that the worst is over," commented Mr. Hall today in a farewell talk, "and that I leave the State banking system after it has gone over a trying period and better things are ahead. I am gratified that in leaving I leave the bank guaranty fund intact. It has proved its usefulness and its efficiency, and as I shall continue in the State banking system I will never lost my interest in that all-important phase of our State banking system."

Called on for $7,000,000

Mr. Hall explained that from 1910 to 1920 the guaranty fund met normal conditions and no one felt the pinch, but that since Nov. 1, 1920, it has been called upon for some $7,000,000 to pay unsecured and non-interest-bearing deposits in State banks. Under the law, a bank can not be assessed over 2 per cent of its average deposits in any one year for the bank guaranty fund, and October 31 is the last day of the current banking year, and there remains between $300,000 and $400,000 that the banks could yet be called upon for guaranty purposes. A new year starts on Nov. 1.

"What we have just gone thru," said Mr. Hall, "will not occur for ten or twenty years, or, if ever, as it was an aftermath of the war.

"It is my opinion, the guaranty system is a splendid asset for the State banks. It gives the depositors confidence and they bring their money to the banks, thereby making more business for the banks, instead of hiding it away. It helps the bankers and the public. The State banks did feel the recent drain under the guaranty system, but you spread that over the full term of twelve years the system has been in operation, it has not been abnormally hard.

"That makes me suggest that if the banks during the time of prosperity would set aside say 5 per cent of the earnings for the periods of depression and hard times, they would not feel the stress they have just felt. It is like the man saving part of his earnings for the rainy day, and I strongly advocate that banks pursue the same policy. It is sound business, and I hope to see them do it some day."

Before leaving the office Mr. Hall addressed a letter to the board of directors of every State bank citing them to some of the important provisions of the State banking laws and urging them to follow the law and to act conservatively.

HAYNIE CHILDREN SURPRISE PARENTS WITH VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Haynie, who reside four miles northwest of Lubbock, were made happy a few days ago when their son, Frank and family of Collingsworth county, drove up unexpectedly on them for a few days visit. Next, their daughter, Comelia Sammons and family of Fort Worth, drove in; then another daughter, Tishie Norris and family of Lawn, Texas, and Clora Mitchell and Abbie Blake and their families of Lubbock, gathered in, and such a glorious family reunion as they enjoyed! All the children, sons and daughters, sons-in-law, daughters-in-law, and all the grandchildren with them once more—and it all seemed coincidental as Mr. and Mrs. Haynie knew nothing of the arrangement beforehand.

Welton Winn Says More Wheat Should Be Sown Soon

Now that it is settled beyond a reasonable doubt that as the "Lawyers say" that the county has a short crop, not excepting cotton. Whatever happens from now on the result cannot be materially changed. Now I would suggest that our farmers get ready to sow wheat or rye on their cotton stubble, sow as soon as rain comes, any time from now until Christmas. If these crops do no more, they will abundantly pay for the seed and work in early spring grazing even if the crops are plowed under for other crops in the spring, however, I have found for twenty-five years that these crops, wheat, rye and winter barley and often oats will go thru the winter, when planted early in the fall and make the earliest feed crops possible to meet short feed crops of the previous year.

If rain should come any time next month, sow these crops at once and they will soon afford fine grazing for all classes of stock and reduce the feed bill to the minimum. Our suggestion in the spring that farmers should not make haste to sell their surplus feed at the prevailing prices has proved to be a good guess as the farmers province is to feed and clothe the world. He should use all the experiences of the past and the best thought and findings of the present to enable him to make sure his task. But we believe that by more intelligent marketing the farmers should name the price, at which the world should receive and enjoy these great necessities and luxuries—and not continue to have them appraised and taken at the dictates of the consuming world.

AROUND THE CLOCK

STARLIGHT AND SUNLIGHT LIGHTING LIFE'S PATHWAY

We read something the other day about a doormat saying "Welcome" while a fellow is courting, and about it saying something else after he is married.

There's a lot of things that change after the nuptials. In fact, a woman brings a lot of change in a man's life, and at the same time takes considerable change away from him. One man said to us that the only way his daughter took after her mother was that she took what change his wife left in his trousers.

Before marriage a man's mind is full of one girl, but after the wedding he likes to change his mind. It's like the man who took his wife to the seashore on their vacation, and when she came out in a bathing suit, he told her he wished they had gone to the mountains. He knew the difference between a mountain peak and the things you peek at on the beach.

Marriage may not have anything to do with it, but you seldom see a bald-headed bachelor.

The Seat of Trouble

"Mamma,' complained little Elsie Sunday morning, "I don't feel very well."

"That's too bad, dear," said the mother sympathetically, "where do you feel the worst?"

"In church, mamma."

But he misses one abuse;

With the ice cream turned to juice.

A Matter of Grammar

A negro came running down the lane. "What are you running for?" called the farmer.

"I ain't runnin' fo'," the negro shouted. "I'se runnin' from."

Rattles of a Lizzie

Put the best foot forward—but don't confuse the gas with the brake.

Many autoists run into poles, people and debt.

A cottage for two maye be a great argument—but a runabout for two gets more results.

Times have certainly changed, for you never nowadays see an autoist with a linen duster and goggles.

If automobiles could talk, lots of scandal would be floating around.

Woman's Viewpoint

It doesn't take a woman very long to discover that the man she drew in the matrimonial lottery is a blank, but to her last day she believes that he drew a prize.

Moderate

"Go away from me," ordered the fashionably dressed lady to the street beggar. "I wouldn't have you touch me for ten dollars."

"I was only goin' to touch you for a nickel, lady," was the pleasant response.

Such is Life and the Tariff

He rises in the morning from a mattress taxed 8 per cent.

He steps out of pajamas taxed 5 per cent.

He bathes in taxed water with taxed soap.

He cleans his teeth with a toothbrush taxed 5 per cent.

He puts on shoes taxed 10 per cent and other apparel taxed the same.

He eats a breakfast that taxes his appetite.

He rides down town in a taxi.

he transacts business taxed 8 per cent with a man whose business is taxed 12 per cent.

He refreshes himself with a taxed soft drink.

He spends the evening amusing himself with taxed amusements.

When life is over he will be at rest in a coffin taxed 8 per cent under a tombstone taxed 12 per cent.

Thus proving that at least two of the certainties of life are death and taxes.

Experience Convinces Us

When you stop and think of it, poverty is no disgrace, but that's about all that can be said in its favor.

Natural History

It costs very little to feed a moth.

It eates nothing but holes.

The oyster might be defined as a fish built like a nut.

If you have anything to say to a mule say it to his face.

The rabbit multiplies very rapidly but isn't very good at arithmetic.

In the entire animal kingdom the mosquito makes the nearest approach to man.

This and That

Dentists are not always unhappy, though they keep looking down in the mouth.

One little economy which girls can practice is chewing their gum on both sides.

The deadliest weapon in any home is a bunch of old love letters.

Another fellow you never see nowadays is the one who went to prayer meeting with his girl and got a thrill out of holding the song book with her.

A divorced woman has no more opportunities for a good time than a married woman, but she never lets them slip.

After a couple has been through the separator, you might safely call them the cream of society.

It is also true that a man is known by the company he keeps away from.

GERMANY IS GIVEN AN EXTENSION ON PAYMENTS

Paris, Aug. 31.—The Reparations Commission has relieved Germany of the necessity of making any further cash apyments in reparations for the remainder of 1922 but defer its decision on the question of a moratorium until radical reports in Germany's finances are carried out. These include the balancing of her budget, reduction of Germany's foreign obligations, currency reform and the issue of foreign and international loans. In rendering its decision the reparations commission takes into account the fact that the "German state has lost its credit and the mark has depreciated continuously."

Announcement of the commission's action was made by Sir John Bradbury this evening after a session lasting one hour and twenty minutes. The decision was immediately communicated to the German delegates and the various governments by telephone. It is understood that Premier Lloyd George personally approved the settlement by telephone this afternoon.

SOME TEXAS HISTORY AND PEOPLE WHO MADE IT

The French flag was the first of six to float in the breezes of Texas, and it was the result of a simple mistake in mathematics. Robert, Vavalier de la Salle, a Frenchman, educated for the priesthood, turned adventurer and explorer, went to Canada and engaged in the fur trade. Becoming restless, he attempted to discover a new route to China by sailing down the Ohio river, thinking it emptied into the Pacific ocean. Instead, he sailed down the Mississippi river, arriving at its mouth April 19, 1682, almost a century and a half after De Soto had first seen the mighty river. In the name of Louis 14th, King of France, he took possession of all the vast territory on either side of the river. He took the latitude and in doing so made a miscalculation and placed it too far north. Two years later, returning with three ships and a number of colonists, made up of women, children, priests, soldiers and mechanics, he landed at what he thought was the coast of Florida, but which later proved to be Texas. He sailed from France with four ships, but his supply vessel was captured by the Spaniards, and when he landed at Matagorda Bay in January, 1685, he and his colonists were seriously handicapped. However, he formally took possession of the land by planting the flag of France on the beach and laid the foundation for Fort St. Louis.

It was La Salle's dream to colonize Louisiana. but destiny intervened and made of him the discoverer of Texas. The closing years of his life, filled with suffering and the weight of the hardship and suffering of those under him for whom he felt the responsibility of a father for his children, were rounded out and his romantic, adventurous career closed by the first of many tragedies with which the pages of the early history of Texas is adorned. He was shot through the head by one of his own rebellious men. M. E. M. Davis says of La Salle: "Thus perished, by treacherous hands, the gallant and stout-hearted La Salle—the soldier, explorer and dreamer. He was buried in the lonely spot where he fell. Father Anastase scooped out a shallow grave for his friend and benefactor, and pressed the grassy turf upon his breast. And so, within the borders of Texas—though the exact spot is unknown—repose the mortal remains of its discoverer."

George B. Reeves.

George B. Reeves died September 5, 1882. He was born July 3, 1826, came to Texas in 1845 from Arkansas and settled in Grayson county. He served as sheriff, tax collector and assessor for several years. Was elected to and was serving in the legislature at the beginning of the Civil War. Mr. Reeves immediately organized Company C, Eleventh Texas Calvary, and was elected captain. In 1863 he was promoted to colonel.

In 1873 he was again elected to the legislature and was Speaker of the House at the time of his death. Among other honors bestowed upon him was the naming of Reeves county after him.

Freestone County

This county was created September 6, 1850, and organized July 6, 1851, with Fairfield as the county seat. It was made from Limestone county and the boundary line is supposed to be the line between the freestone and limestone regions.

Henderson Yoakum

Henderson Yoakum was born in Claiborne county, Tennessee, September 6, 1810. Educated in the law and served in the Senate of Tennessee. Came to Texas and settled at Huntsville in October, 1848. He served throughout the campaign of General Taylor in the Mexican war. At its close he returned to Huntsville and resumed his law practice. In 1853 he moved to a country home near Huntsville and devoted his time to the writing of a history of Texas, which is considered the most accurate of any written covering the same period of time. His history is now out of print. In November, 1855, he was invited to Houston to deliver a Masonic address, and on the 30th he died suddenly at the Capitol building.

Constitutional Convention

The last Constitutional Convention convened at Austin, September 6th, 1875.

Potter County

Potter county was organized September 6, 1887, with Amarillo as county seat. It was created out of Bexas county, August 21, 1876, and named in honor of Robert Potter, a signer of the Declaration of Texas Independence.

Battle of Sabine Pass

The most surprising victory of the Civil War was won at Sabine Pass, September 8, 1863. Lieutenant Dick Dowling, with forty-three men, defended the fort against General Franklin, who sailed from New Orleans with a force of five thousand men with plans to land at Sabine Pass, march to Beaumont, thence to Houston. Dowling captured 350 men and two vessels, the Clifton and the gunboat Sachem, without the loss of a single man.

Galveston Storm.

The great storm that devastated Galveston occurred September 8th, 1900. Six thousand lives were lost and property to the value of twenty millions. Out of this calamity came a new and distinct form of municipal government known as the Commission, or "Galveston Plan." A sea wall five and a half miles in extent has since been built to protect the city against the recurrence of such a fearly tragedy.

Dallam County

Dallam county was organized September 8, 1891, with Dalhart as the county seat. It was created August 21, 1876, out of Bexar county.

A. W. Terrell

Alexander W. Terrell died September 9, 1912, while on a visit to Mineral Wells. Born in Patrick county, Virginia, November 3, 1827. He located in Austin in 1852 and five years later was elected District Judge of the Second District. At the expiration of his second term as judge, in 1863, he entered the Confederate Army as Lieutenant-Colonel of Calvary, Thirty-Fourth Texas Regiment. He was soon promoted to the rank of Colonel and participated in the battles of Mansfield and other engagements against Banks in Louisiana. Again he was promoted to Brigadier-General in 1865 and with Magruder and others went to Mexico after the surrender of Lee, but soon returned to Texas and located at Houston. Dissatisfied with the unsettled conditions of the courts, he retired to his plantation on the Brazos in Robertson county and engaged in farming for four years. In 1872 he again went to Austin, forming a law partnership with Judge A. S. Walker. In 1875 he was elected to the State Senate and re-elected in 1879 and 1882. Later he was urged to serve his people again, and was elected to the legislature. Among many salutary laws initiated by General Terrell, the two most conspicuous are the Jury Law and what is known as the Terrell Election Law. He was buried at Austin.

YOUNG MAN CAME 800 MILES TO ATTEND L. H. S.

Eight hundred miles to go to school is some trip, and certainly shows that the school attracting students from that far off must have a great deal of influence.

That is just what the Lubbock High School has done. George Smith of Center, Texas, son of G. R. Smith, who in his early days went to school to our superintendent, M. M. Dupre, arrived in Lubbock last week and started making all preparations to enter the first day.

Young Smith is an energetic, ambitious chap, and we are sure his participation in the Lubbock High School this term will be worth a great deal to him.

His sisters have also attended school under the instructions of Mr. Dupre, and his family thought it best for George to finish high school under him also.

Other youngsters from a good many miles away are to attend Lubbock schools, which is indeed a recommendation for them.

Lubbock leads.

Not only along building lines, but along educational lines as well, a we are sure that with the present reputation of our schools maintained we will soon have grown into prominence as an educational center of rare opportunities.

Attend the opening of school Monday and lend your influence to the advancement of Lubbock's greatest institution.

Election Returns From Terry Co. Second Primary

The citizens that thought there'd be no interest manifested in the 2nd primary, were just guessing, for the total vote lacked only a few of being as much as the first primary, the first totaling 811 votes and this one 801 votes.

Of course the main fight was between Mayfield and Ferguson for the United States Senate. Mr. Ferguson only carried two small boxes in the county, Union and Scudday, where the Farm Labor vote was dominant.

Second in importance to this race was that for County Assessor, which was won by J. C. Green over his opponent, Mrs. Mumford Smith.

The unofficial vote for the several candidates in the total county vote, all but one of the eleven election boxes in the county holding election, Harris, being the exception, and we understand that they voted at Tokio:

For United States Senator, Mayfield 448, Ferguson 278.

For Lieut. Governor, T. W. Davidson, 459, Col. Billie Mayfield, Jr. 219.

For State Treasurer, C. V. Terrell 449; G. G. Garrett 210.

For State Supt. of Public Instruction, Marrs 445, Ed R. Bentley 219.

For County Tax Assessor, Mrs. Mumford Smith 352, J. C. Green 449.

For Commissioner Precinct 2, Jay Barrett 162, J. P. Crowley 145.

GIRL DEFIED SPEED LAWS TO AVERT COURT-MARTIAL

More than one girl has made her lover, an enlisted man, miss his last train and become A. W. O. L. But not every girl has made such noble amends as does Betty Lee, the reckless heroine of "The Speed Girl," in which Bebe Daniels will be seen here next Wednesday, at the R. & R. Lindsey Theatre.

She has made her lover, a naval officer, miss the last train which would get him to port and ship before it sailed. When she learns that he is in danger of court-martial, she drags him to her car and overtakes the train after a thrilling fifty-mile race with the express which had several minutes start of her. The young officer gets his boat, but the daring heroine gets ten days in jail for speeding!

Family Reunion of Prominent Pioneer Family in Dawson

The ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Arnett, of Dawson county, was selected for the get-to-gether meeting of the family of one of our early settlers, I. J. Good, deceased, he having moved here with his family in an early day, and helped organize this county. Tuesday, August 22, was the day set for the reunion, but on Monday afternoon they began to gather and by Tuesday afternoon, all exeept two brothers were assembled to participate in one of the most pleasant occasions it had been their privilege to enjoy. The hours were pleasantly spent in singing, instrumental music and games of different kinds.

The large table underneath trees was laden with many good eats, such as roast beef, "cow man's stew," roasting ears, potatoes, onions, pickles, syrup, fruit, bread, cake, iced tea and coffee. Also quite a number of cantaloupes and watermelons disappeared during the time.

Thursday morning the good byes were said, and all departed for their respective homes. Those present composed the children, grand children and the great grand-children of Mr. Good. All have been reared on the frontier counties of Texas and know the spirit of West Texas.

The following families were present: Lee J. Good and wife, Clyde, Texas; W. A. Good and family, Mrs. Chas. Baker, Bronte, Texas; Mrs. George Arnett and children, Lubbock, Texas; Mrs. M. A. Gideon and children, Ralls, Texas; Lee Elder and family, Seagrves, Texas; M. P. Good and family, Mrs. John Raymer and baby, Brownfield, Texas; Boyd Rhea and family, Lubbock, Texas; J. E. McSpadden and wife, Lamesa, Texas; Will Arnett and family. Besides the above named relatives, Mr. Bell of Bronte, and Bean Hearrell, of Lubbock, were present, making a total of 47. The absent ones were J. A. Good and family, Conlen, Texas, and E. C. Good, of Old Mexico.

The Baptist encampment grounds at Christoval were decided upon for the next meeting.—Contributed.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS,
County of Lubbock.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Lubbock County, Texas:

You are hereby commanded to summon Lem. B. Steiger, by making publication of this citation in some newspaper published in Lubbock County, Texas, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, to be and appear before the Honorable County Court of Lubbock County, Texas, in the town of Lubbock, Texas, on the 18th day of September, A. D. 1922, the same being the 3rd Monday in September, A. D. 1922, then and there to answer plaintiff's cause of action filed in said court on the 22nd day of April, A. D. 1922, wherein George H. Moore and R. G. Moore are plaintiffs, and Lem B. Steiger and the Littlefield State Bank, a corporation, are defendants, No. 876 on the docket of said court, plaintiffs cause of action being for the rescission of the sale of the following described property, to-wit:

Steiger under contract of sale, upon said denfendant's paying a part of the consideration at the time of the sale by check on the said Littlefield State Bank, stating that said check would be paid when presented and upon his further promise to pay the remaining part of said consideration within the next few days, stating that he had sufficient money in said bank to pay the entire purchase price, that all of said representations were false and that said check was dishonored by said Littlefield State Bank when presented, that said defendant knew said representations were false and made the same for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs, that plaintiffs relying upon said representations and believing them to be true parted possession with said personal property to their damage in the sum of $204.55, the reasonable market value of said personal property, and would not have done so but for the said above fradulent representations; and against the said denfendent, The Littlefield State Bank, for the conversion of the said above described property, they having obtained possession of said property from said defendant, Lem B. BROWNFIELD

From The Herald

The West Texas Gin Company's plant ginned the first bale of 1922 cotton, Wednesday afternoon. The cotton was raised by J. M. Horn on one of the Rollow farms north of town. We will report what it brought, together with the premium, etc., next week. This is the earliest ginning on record here, being perhaps fifteen days earlier than the first bale last year.

Bob Gage, concrete man on the A. M. Brownfield building, came near being killed last Thursday when the long concrete lifting crane went over backward. Other workmen began to hallow at him, and he started to run just the way the derrick was falling, but somehow he had presence of mind enough to stop and duck, and the mixing machine caught the derrick. Another man was struck by the windlass the same day, when the concrete box was dropped before he was expecting it. It resulted only in a slight cut about the cheek and a real black eye next day.

Our gins are expecting cotton to begin arriving in the next few days, and the West Texas Gin was fired up Monday to get it limbered up for the season run. This gin under the efficient management of John Gathing, has been given a real overhauling and will be in good shape when the fleecy staple begins to arrive. A seed house and scale sheds are being built at the Reynolds gin, giving them a large capacity storage of cotton seed. They too, are in good shape for the season run.

A light but refreshing shower visited this vicinity Saturday afternoon, and while crops were not greatly benefitted from it, the dust was temporarily laid, and the atmosphere considerably cooled. The immediate portion of the south part of the county received enough rain to help crops some. We are all still hoping.

Man places the heat of three stars at 10,000 degrees. The heat of next winter is unknown.

SEMINOLE

The Sentinel

A message was received here the first of this week from W. A. Cox, who has been at Hico for several weeks, attending the bedside of his mother, to the effect that she passed away Tuesday. Mr. Cox has many friends in this section who deeply sympathize with him in the loss of this aged mother.

B. B. Curry has secured from the U. S. Weather Bureau a complete set of pharphanalia necessary to keep an accurate record of the rainfall and weather conditions in this vicinity. Heretofore no government statistics have been kept.

Mrs. C. M. Armstrong returned Thursday from Colorado, Texas. She was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. Snyder.

J. W. Richards was here this week enroute to Stanton with a bunch of 200 cows. He recently purchased these cows from Pat McHugh, of Yoakum county. They will be pastured near Stanton.

Sheriff Chesney, of Mitchell county, accompanied by two of his East Texas friends, were here looking over this section of the South Plains country Monday and Tuesday.

R. H. Halley of Ireland, Texas was here this week prospecting, and looking for a location to go into the mercantile business.

The election in the Folk School District for the purpose of issuing $3,500 in bonds, carried 8 to 0. A new school house will be erected on the Seminole-Seagraves road opposite the J. W. Williams ranch.

A special 20c School Tax was voted in District No. 2, in the northwest section of the county, the vote being 8 to 0.

J. W. Painter of Lubbock, who owns the J. W. Hood residence near the Presbyterian church, was a business visitor here Wednesday and Thursday.

Government Cotton Report Shows An Estimated Reduction of Nearly a Million Bales Since Report Last Month

Washington, Sept. 1.—A reduction of 874,000 bales in the prospective cotton crop of this year since the forecast of a month ago was shown in the Department of Agriculture's September cotton report issued today forecasting the total crop at 10,575,000 bales. The condition of the crop declined 13.8 points during August as compared with an average decline of 7.7 points in the previous ten years, the condition having been 57.0 per cent of a normal on August 25, compared with 70.8 on July 25.

In a special report, in response to a Senate resolution the department of agriculture announced the acreage of cotton abandoned between June 25 and August 25 amounted to 367,000 acres or 1.7 per cent of the area in cultivation June 25, leaving 34,485,000 acres in cultivation on August 25.

"As the condition figure of the regular September 1, Cotton Report is affected by the acreage abandonment," said the Department's statement, "no additional deduction for the abandonment here shown need to be made from the present forecast of 10,575,000 bales based upon the August 25 condition figure and the acreage in cultivation on June 25.

The condition of the crop on August 25 and the forecast of production by states follow:

Virginia condition 68; forcast 23,000 bales; North Carolina 65 and 750,000; South Carolina 46 and 687,000; Georgia 44 and 968,000; Florida 60 and 24,000; Alabama 60 and 826,000; Mississippi 60 and 1,003,000; Louisiana 60 and 414,000; Texas 59 and 3,644,000; Arkansas 63 and 969,000; Tennessee 65 and 278,000; Missouri 70 and 76,000; Oklahoma 53 and 786,000; California 91 and 130,000; Arizona 87 and 55,000; New Mexico 85 and 21,000.

California forecast includes 79,000 bales from Lower California, which are not included in the United States total.

DOVE SEASON WILL OPEN ON SEPTEMBER FIRST

Doves may be hunted September 1 at the opening of the dove season, says B. D. Garmel, district game commissioner, who has recently returned from an extended inspection of the Panhandle territory, and finds a great flying number of them to hunt. His home is in Panhandle.

Mr. Garmon has issued orders to all wardens throughout this district, to be strict in the enforcement of the game laws during the coming season, since the least tendency to slacken would, in view of the enormous number of hunters, mean extermination of the doves and other game or the decrease to such a point that a permanent closed season would be demanded by loyal conservationists.

Mr. Garmon has information from Commissioner Boyd of Austin that he is daily receiving delegations and letters from different parts of the State demanding that the State be zoned with reference to open and closed season, on various birds.

Texas is too big and its climate too diverse to have one blanket law, and sentiment is becoming strong for its division into zones having different open seasons, depending on dates of nesting and time of migration, said Mr. Garmon.

All hunters hunting in counties other than their resident counties must have a license, which costs $2. Hunters not a resident of Texas must obtain a non-resident license, which costs $15.

It is very important that to get full benefits of these reports that they be studied from time to time, and each one filed away for future reference.

Don't read this part of the paper and expect to remember the August, 1922, weather conditions; file this away and have authentic information that will be of great importance to you in making deliberations concerning your farm work.

MANAGING EDITOR PLAINS JOURNAL HAS NEW CAR

Curtis A. Keen, managing editor of the Plains Agricultural Journal, is a great believer in circulation, and just to be able to get about over his trade territory a little better, purchased an Overland sedan of the Lub-Tex Motor Company last week, which he will use in pushing that live publication.

Keen's energetic methods have won for him the respect of all his acquaintance, and we are sure that with his transportation problem so well solved he will have an opportunity to get about over the trade territory better, and consequently see more people to whom to "sell" the Journal. Keen is so well sold on that publication himself that the atmosphere he creates certainly has something to do with interesting others in its merits.

WORDS OF KIWANIS

When President of the Club, Mullican, hit the table with his gavel-edged fist and announced that J. T. Collie was chairman of the day, and introduced him, things began to hum in that part of town, and for one we are willing to say we were glad to be there, for Collie began to hit the same old nail on the head with hot-spot oratory that's hard to beat, and before we had time to know what was up, the Vaughn Quartette had been put on the job, treating us with some of the most splendid music we have heard in many days.

Lubbock has something to be proud of in the quartette, and when you hear that Vaughn is just as much in the singing world as Sousa is in the band business, don't take it for naught, for that bunch proved that the Vaughn bunch know their business.

Needless to say the Kiwanians were not willing to let those fellows off with one song, but brought them to their feet again with cheer upon cheer that made the building sound like a machine gun crew was therein and of course they delivered the goods in their usual manner, to the delight of all present.

W. O. Stevens, president of the Citizens National Bank, was called on for a lengthy discussion of things as he found them "in little old New York," on his recent visit there, and though the fellows thought they were going to get a lot of comedy from W. O., he was not in that mood, but very ably discussed business and industrial affairs as he had found them, also giving a few figures and facts on the living conditions in parts of the city that made us all mighty glad to be in Lubbock, where the plains atmosphere is cooler, men are better and life is just a little sweeter than elsewhere.

Mr. Stevens said it was his good fortune to have learned while on that trip that businessmen of the city were looking forward to a general revival in business which would have already been felt but for the coal and railroad strikes which have added so much to the burdens of the people of this country.

We appreciated Mr. Stevens' talk very much, and assure him that it will be the desire of the club members to hear him give the report of his next trip to that section of the state.

Bob Hutchinson, dentist, poet, philosopher and ex-preisident of the Club was called upon to explain the formula by which poets thrive so unsually in Colorado, having just returned from that section, but owing to the fact that he had not had time to make a thorough analysis of the situation he declared that he would not make a scientific discussion of the subject, and after assuring his hearers that a vacation spent in the mountain country of that state is certainly worth while, he assured them that should they be interested in other phases of the subject they were at all times welcome to his office where he would give them all desired information.

Some things the girl scouts have accomplished, and what the Kiwanis Club can do for them, was discussed by Mesdames Fred Boerner and Percy Spencer, who made interesting accounts of the scout work, and pleased the Kiwanians with a great deal of interesting information concerning the work in general, which proved the value of this organization beyond any doubt.

Misses Evelyn Wilson and Gladys Dean, two scout sergeants who had distinguished themselves by special attention to duty, and who have passed from the tenderfoot class to A-1 scouts, were present, and told of the value of the work to them, and we are sure that all girls knowing their experiences will become interested in the organization.

Clark Mullican closed the meeting with a long story about how he loved sergeants in the army, and hadn't forgotten how as yet, but possibly because of an abundant accumulation of ivory where gray matter ought to be we were unable to get his story, and took it for granted that it must have been alright, that opinion having been made after a close consideration of the source. Mullican is all right, he just can't get away from that army life far enough to forget it.

Louie Moore, secretary, kinda got hot around the collar about something, as he made his letter about a foot longer than usual, and we are sure that some of those fellows who have not been getting there on time, and some who have not been getting there at all, and some who don't do anything after they get to the meetings, and some of the committeemen who got the program to Louie a little late (?), must have took what he said for a general hint to pep up a bit.

Louie is a good secretary, takes his cussings without kicking, and gives them without expecting to be kicked, which makes him in all around secretary.

Better set up and take notice of what he says next time or we will have to take a week off to read his next letter.

The following guests were present: Mrs. F. W. Boerner, Girl Scout Captain; Mrs. Percy Spencer, asst. Girl Scout Captain; Gladys Dean, (Girl Scout) Sergeant of Girl Scouts and Evelyn Wilson (Girl Scout), Sergeant of Girl Scouts; Mr. Cohen, guest of K. Carter; Mrs. E. C. Simmons, guest of E. C. Simmons; Miss Mayme Klett, guest of E. C. Simmons.

A thought for today—

SAY IT NOW

What silence we keep year after year
With those who are most near to us and dear;
We live beside each other day by day
And speak of myriad things, but seldom say
The full sweet word that lies within our reach
Beneath the common ground of common speech;
Then out of sight and out of reach they go,
These dear familiar friends that loved us so,
And, sitting in the shadows they have left,
Alone with loneliness and sore bereft,
We think with vain regret of some kind word
That once we might have said and they have heard.
—James Russell Lowell, in the War Cry.

Misses Cravens and Maxie Return

Miss Lula Mae Cravens and Miss Maxie have returned after several months of study. Miss Cravens has been attending the College of Dramatic Art, under Doctor Currie. Miss Maxie has been enjoying the benefits of a few months study at Cambridge. Upon their return the other day a delightful six-course turkey dinner was given in their honor by Mrs. Cravens. Those who shared in the joy of homecoming of these two popular young ladies were Miss Mabel Marsh, Home Demonstration agent, Miss Ione Braudt and Miss Ellis. The rooms were fragrant with bowl clusters of nastertiums and asters, adding charm to the prettily appointed dining table. We join in welcoming the girls home.

Miss Clara Marsh spent the week end in the city with her sister, Miss Mabel Marsh. She recently returned to her home in Fort Worth.

Mrs. L. T. Martin returned Saturday evening from Amarillo, where she had been visiting her son, Lawrence.

Sunday School Picnic

Mrs. A. B. Ellis entertained the Senior Girls Class of the Methodist church with a delightful picnic at the Tumble N Pool on Tuesday evening. The fun began with some jolly games and ended with a delicious picnic lunch, in which everyone present played an important part.

B. Ellis, Claude Medlock, Herbert Burgess, Ivan Wilson, Horace Green.

R. & R. Theatre Matinee

Saturday morning, September 9, Mesdames Wagner and Roscoe Wilson will be in charge of the childrens matinee at ten o'clock. The children are promised a real treat and something that will keep them laughing in the wonderful fairy story of "Jack and the Bean Stalk." Every boy and girl should be there to see the queer and funny things that Jack does. Let us see if we can't pack the theatre. An account of the children's picture will be run in each paper in this column, and the mothers are asked to bear the dates in mind and see that the children take this opportunity of seeing the kind of picture they should see.

Douglas Pounds was here Saturday from his home in the Acuff community, and we are glad to know that in spite of the drouth, he still has that characteristic smile, that is almost visible before he is, and though he was rather prone to be quiet on the subject, we are sure he is going to make better than nothing this year, and that even if things are no better than that, Douglas will find a bright angle from which to view the situation.

Girl Scouts Entertained

Twenty-seven girl scouts in company with Mesdames Percy Spencer and Fred Boerner, left Friday afternoon for the George Boles ranch. Each one was in high spirits for this outing as it was to be their last before the opening of school. Upon their arrival at the ranch they soon prepared supper for the Kiwanians who had taken them out. After supper the second class scout test was given to the scouts and three or four passed the majority of the questions, which showed they had worked as well as played, since they had organized. The organization has only been organized since June, but they have done some exceptional work in this short time. After the usual round of story telling, jokes and so forth which is characteristic of such an outing each one settled dowr to sleep with some of the girls on guard. Saturday was spent in various amusements such as hiking, and going thru various of the scout duties. Late Saturday afternoon, after supper the crowd started home, each one declaring they had enjoyed the outing immensely. The scouts are especially grateful to the Kiwanis club for their kindness in taking them out and bringing them back, and also for the delicious watermelons, lemons, apples, and so forth.

Following is a list of the scouts on this outing: Mary Parker Brown, Mae Belle Hutson, Dixie Frost, Doris Baugh, Hazel Martin, Maurine Henderson, Margaret Trigg, Ruth Miller, Mary Lois Thompson, Joe Noey, Gladys Dean, Evelyn Wilson, Maggie Hearrell, Dorothy Posey, Loys Tubbs, Elizabeth Scott, Ruby McBride, Anita Green, Addie Lou Posey, Lois Long Thelma Frost, Buena Frost, Ethel May Whipp, Martha Spencer, visitor; Mary Garrett, visitor; Ethel Sides, Norma Mathis, Georgia Boles, visitor.

Business Women's Luncheon Held at The Cova Friday

The Business Women's Club met in their weekly luncheon at the Cova Hotel Friday evening. A majority of the members and a number of guests were present, and a very pleasing program was rendered. Miss Mattie Randolph was chairman of the evening.

The first number on the program was one-minute talks by each member. Subjects for these talks having been given out by the chairman. Some of them proved to be quite entertaining and each speaker demonstrated her ability as an orator. Subjects such as pocketknives, typewriters, checks, etc., were very ably discussed.

The club was then favored by violin and voice numbers by Miss Beulah Dunn, instructor of music at Clarendon College, accompanied by Miss Mary Dunn, head of the music department of the Lubbock schools.

Miss Evelyn Jennngs, who will leave this week for Arkansas, was then presented with letters from the club, which she read. Each expressed regrets that she was going away but added good wishes for her in her new work.

Guests for the evening were: Misses Mary and Beulah Dunn, guests of Miss Mina Ellis; Mrs. A. W. Jones of Abernathy, guest of Miss Maggie Mallard; Miss Julia Jennings, guest of Miss Evelyn Jennings; Miss Clara Marsh of Fort Worth, guest of Miss Mabel Marsh; Miss Willie May Bratcher, guest of Miss Mattie Randolph.

Methodist Meeting at Carlisle.

The Methodist protracted meeting will begin the third Sunday morning Sept. 17th at the Carlisle School house. Every one is invited to come and co-operate in this meeting and help to make it a success.

Your pastor,
55-4 F. R. Pickens.

Rev. D. C. Ross returned Monday from Post where he went to fill the pulpit of the First Methodist church in that city. Of course Bro. Ross had a fine time while in Post, he always has a fine time any where and most every where he goes.

AT THE CHURCHES

Church of Christ

The Bible Study hour showed much interest in the profitable lesson, with an attendance of 180.

At the morning hour Bro. Smith spoke on "Spiritual Development or Growth in the New Life." The splendid lesson was well received by a full house, but was especially given to the thirty or more new converts. 1 Cor. 2:1-2; Heb. 5:12-13-14, and Peter 2:1-3, were scriptures read and many other passages which attest the necessity of growing in the Christian life.

Just as the doctor cuts off the vicious humans, so Paul, the wise physician, instructs the Christian to cut off all malice, guile, hypocrisy or pretense in religion, and all deceit or counterfeit friendships.

The new born babe desires the sincere milk of the word. The word desire in the various versions is translated, long for, craves, thirst, etc. Thus as the infant demands milk so does the young Christian who would grow spiritual food. The first five New Testament Books should be read first, then the epistles, leaving Romans, Hebrews and Revelations till later.

Exercise is an important item also in the development of the young Christian—as well as proper atmosphere.

At the close of the services one young lady was baptized.

Methodist Church.

The services Sunday in the Methodist church were unusually peppy, and there seemed to be new enthusiasm in the people, and a determination to press forward, and help to bring things to pass for the upbuilding of the church work here. The pastor was back after two weeks' rest, and seemed refreshed and full of energy and delivered one of his soul-stirring sermons that he is capable of producing. Then there were many new people there, that the congregation was glad to welcome. Some of them were visitors while others were new people who have come to Lubbock to make their home, and were attending the Methodist church here for the first time. Then there were those who have been away for the summer and are back again and taking all this into consideration there is no wonder that the services were just a little better than the average. The Sunday School report showed 521 present, with a good offering, and it was agreed that the Sunday school here would enter into a contest with the Methodist Sunday school at Amarillo for sixty days, on a percentage basis, taking three points on which to contest. First, the largest percentage of enrollment present each Sunday. The greatest amount of collection per member and the largest percent of officers and teachers present. It is expected that things will take on great activity in these contesting schools before the time is up.

Baptist Church.

Good services are reported at the Baptist Church Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Bowen preached morning and evening to good congregations and the special music featured in all the services. Four hundred two were present in the Sunday School, and increased interest was manifested in all the services.

Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

An unusually good attendance at Sunday School considering the fact that quite a few of the members were gone to Petersburg to attend the meeting of the Presbytery, which was in session from Thursday night until and including Sunday night. Let every member of the Sunday School be present next Sunday and bring a visitor with you as we will have Sunday School and Church as usual.

First Presbyterian.

Sunday was a busy day at the First Presbyterian Church. Sunday School was well attended, and the morning service filled the church to overflowing to hear the evangelist, Dr. Burwell, of Dallas speak and then the crowning service of the day and in fact the entire series of the revival services was held on the churh lawn at night, when this able minister, spoke ably and earnestly to the largest congregation that has ever met at the church. The meeting was begun with a greatly enjoyed song service which lasted about thirty minutes which was followed by the evangelist's address, which was greatly enjoyed. Dr. Burwell has endeared himself to the people of Lubbock in his able messages during the week, and by his loving and appreciative disposition he has won a place in the hearts of his church people that cannot be filled by others. We hope it will be possible for Dr. Burwell to return to Lubbock at some near future date and if not to hold meetings to mix and mingle with our people, among which he will always find some of his very warmest friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Douglass, of the Panhandle Cigar Company, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Douglass, Sr., at Littlefield.

Methodist Meeting at Shallowater.

The Methodist protracted meeting will begin at Shallowater on Friday night, Sept. 8th. Rev. Davis, father of Mrs. L. E. Baker of Shallowater will conduct this series of sermons. We are praying for a great meeting and invite every one to come and help make it so.

Your Pastor,
55-2 F. R. Pickens.
