The SDN Column

A lot of interesting items are beginning to flow out of Washington and Austin, now that the national and state legislatures are in session.

The Austin crop is beginning to move, and it truly can be said at this stage that the state legislators are becoming involved in topics that are of general interest. For example there is a bill which would make it illegal to give or sell a cigarette to anyone under 18 years old. I have not seen the bill, but published reports about it make no mention of cigars, pipe tobacco, chewing tobacco of snuff.

Most youngsters sample tobacco in one or more of its various forms long before they are 18 and in some cases it may serve a purpose. An early experience may leave an unpleasant memory that endures far beyond the 18th birthday, especially in the case of chewing tobacco and pipe tobacco.

Many of the proposed laws apparently will deal this season with people at the outset of adulthood. This may be the "in" thing this legislative season. There is another bill mentioned at Augsin which would permit a boy of 19 to marry without consent of his parents. However, he could not wed, parential consent or not, before he was 18.

Also, there is a proposal to modify the state divorce law — but there's a catch to it. Anyone granted a divorce could not marry again within six months, unless it was to his, or her, original spouse.

Up in Washington the new administration is learning day by day. It will learn, for example (if it doesn't already know) that Americans present paradoxes in their political beliefs. Nearly everybody is for putting successful businessmen to use in government service, but — the minute they take the oath of office they had better forget business. Nobody is under more suspicion around Washington than a successful businessman on the government payroll.

The highway safety quotes published here a couple of days ago reminded Dillard Pope of a local motorist who got a ticket in a neighboring town for running a stop sign.

"Officer, I almost stopped, but just oozed through when I saw nobody was coming," the driver explained.

"I'm sorry, but S-T-O-P doesn't spell 'ooze,'" the officer replied as he wrote out the ticket. — WACIL McNAIR.

Today In History

Today is Thursday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1969. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1933, Adolf Hitler came into official power as he was named chancellor of Germany.

On this date:

In 1646, King Charles I of England surrendered to Parliament. He was beheaded two years later.

In 1835, the first attempt to assassinate an American president was made. A would-be assassin shot twice at Andrew Jackson at the Capitol Building in Washington, but missed.

In 1840, New Zealand was incorporated as part of the British Empire.

In 1847, the California town of Yerba Buena was renamed San Francisco.

In 1948, the Indian nationalist leader, Mohandas K. Gandhi, was assassinated in New Delhi.

In 1965, Sir Winston Churchill was buried in a village churchyard at Bladon, England.

Ten years ago: The U. N. Security Council met to hear Israel's charges that Syria was carrying out constant border attacks.

Five years ago: The ruling military junta in South Vietnam was toppled in a bloodless coup led by Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

One year ago: U. S. forces crushed a seven-hour Viet Cong suicide attack on the U. S. Embassy in Saigon.

Iraq Reports Attack By Israel

Quick Denial By Tel Aviv

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iraq said seven Israeli jet fighters attacked Iraqi troops in Jordan today but Israel denied it.

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv said: "I completely deny this report. I don't know what gave rise to it. There has been absolutely nothing like this along the cease-fire line."

Newsmen on the Israeli side of the cease-fire line saw no sign of any unusual air activity.

A communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said the planes attacked Iraqi units east of the cease-fire line with Jordan. One Israeli jet was seen to plunge to the ground in flames, the Iraqis said.

The Iraqi communique said: "At 11:30 Baghdad time this morning, seven Israeli planes launched an air raid against our units operating on the eastern front.

"Our antiaircraft guns shot down one attacking plane. It was seen with the naked eye crashing in flames over the occupied Syrian Golan Heights. There were no Iraqi casualties."

At the same time, a Jordanian broadcast said two Israeli fighters had violated Arab air space over the Jordan River but were driven off by antiaircraft fire.

Iraq had charged Wednesday that Israel was preparing an attack in retaliation for the hanging of 14 Irqis, nine of them Jews, convicted of spying in Baghdad and Basra on Monday.

There has been an outcry in Isreal, the United States and several European countries, condemning the executions.

Iraq has an estimated 20,000 troops in Jordan. They had been there since the Arab-Israeli war of June 1967.

Israeli planes strafed and bombed the Iraqi forces Dec. 4, killing six soldiers, according to the Iraqis.

Israel on Wednesday denied charges from Iraq that it was massing troops for an attack on the Iraqi force in Jordan. At the same time, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan cautioned his country they must give the government of Iraq no excuse to do more harm to the estimated 8,000 Iraqi Jews.

Along with the official denial from the Israeli army, foreign newsmen in Israel observed no unusual troop movements. In addition, rain and snow were blanketing Israel and Jordan, imposing quietness on the cease-fire line.

Dayan, one of Israel's leading hawks, also was scornful of President Charles de Gaulle's attempts to promote France as a peacemaker in the Middle East. Referring to De Gaulle's ban on arms and military spare parts to Israel, he asserted:

"All this talk of justice and peaceful aims coming from France is hypocrisy. It is being used to deny arms to a nation under siege, while Iraq continues to receive French arms."

Amid reports that another 35 persons, including 13 Jews, were being tried as spies in Baghdad, the U.S. Department of State disclosed that American oilman Paul Bail of Conneautville, Pa., and his wife are under arrest in Iraq on unspecified charges.

Bail is an engineer for Jersey Standard's Humble Oil Co. and is on loan to the Iraq Petroleum Co., a Western consortium. A member of the Belgian Embassy in Baghdad, which handles U.S. interests in Iraq, reported the couple were well treated and said Mrs. Bail is under "what amounts to a house arrest."

The U.S. government, in its second criticism of the executions in Iraq, said they seem to have been designed "to intensify the very explosive atmosphere of suspicion and hostility in the Middle East."

Computer Is Fine— If It Works Right

DETROIT (AP) — The computer's contribution to reduced manual labor has been widely hailed but the benefits came tumbling like coins from a broken slot machine at Chrysler's Dodge plant in Hamtramck Wednesday.

A computer at the plant has a good deal to say about matching ths colors of auto hoods, fenders and bodies on the dodge assembly line.

When a cable in the computer failed, the selection process became random; red cars with brown fenders, blue hoods.

Officials gave some 2,000 workers a three-hour recess with pay while they fixed the computer.

Bombers Rake Supply Routes

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — From 15 to 30 American B52 bombers have been attacking Communist supply routes through Laos each day, and some of them have been hitting north of the 17th parallel, U.S. military sources said today.

The disclosure came shortly after the U.S. Command denied a charge by North Vietnam's foreign ministry that the huge eight-jet bombers had attacked "heavily populated" areas Sunday in North Vietnam's Quang Binh province, which is just north of the 17th parallel and just east of Laos.

The command said there had been no B52 raids on North Vietnam or the demilitarized zone astride the 17th parallel since last Oct. 28.

Although the U.S. government refuses to admit any military operations in Laos, it is common knowledge that the end of the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1 was followed by a sharp increase in U.S. bombing of North Vietnamese supply traffic down the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos.

Reliable sources said the B52 strikes on eastern Laos have ranged as far as 30 miles north of the 17th parallel in efforts to smash the enemy supply columns as far away as possible. Some of these strikes are near the North Vietnamese border.

Otherwise, only minor action was reported today as South Vietnam marked the first anniversary of the Viet Cong's biggest offensive of the war.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported attacks from inside the demilitarized zone on a group of U.S. Marines and on a small observation plane, a terrorist attack inside Saigon and the usual scattered shelling during the night. Two Marines below the DMZ and two Vietnamese in Saigon were wounded.

Extension Course Set

Persons interested in registering for an extension course from Texas Tech have been invited to meet at 6:30 this evening in the study hall at Snyder High School. Dr. J. H. Millikin, director of extension at Texas Tech, will be here at that time to organize the class here.

Dr. Willingham, course coordinator, also will be here and hold a class meeting immediately after registration. The session tonight will count as one of the required number of meetings in the course.

The course number is Education 5139. "Advanced Education Workshop in Teaching and Administration." The enrollment fee is $45. Enrollment is not limited to school personnel and interested parents are invited to enroll for audit or credit.

Blizzard Lashes Northern States

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow and freezing rain hampered travel in many northern states today and closed schools and curtailed business activities in parts of the west.

Fog and rain produced additional motoring hazards in the Midwest, the lower plains and the South and continued downpours brought flood threats to Indiana.

Hardest hit by heavy snows were the Pacific Northwest, portions of the central Rockies and the northern Plains. Bitter cold weather worsened the hardships in the Northwest and in parts of the plains.

Schools in many areas of western Oregon remained shut down today.

Freezing rain glazed highways in parts of the great lakes region and extended eastward to New York for the second day in a row.

Blizzard conditions lashed the Columbia gorge and sections of Oregon. State police closed an interstate highway for a time because of a 12-car pileup and decreased visibility.

Loggers unable to get into woods because of deep snows left many lumber mills without logs. Other businesses suffered similar problems as customers simply stayed home rather than venture into the snow and cold.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans declared a state of emergency in his state's Mason County, buried under 40 inches of snow in someplaces. National Guardsmen used special snow vehicles to deliver food to isolated farm families in Okanogan County, in north-central Washington, where a similar emergency existed.

Stockmen in west-central Oregon and in Washington expressed concern for cattle and sheep stranded in deep snows which have continued to mount in severe cold which has remained anchored over the Northwest for days.

Death Claims Allen Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allen W. Dulles, former chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, died late Wednesday in Georgetown University Hospital. He was 75.

The former U.S. master spy headed the intelligence agency from 1953 until his retirement in 1961. He first was appointed chief by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and then asked to continue in his $22,000-a-year job by the late President John F. Kennedy.

Dulles was a member of the Warren Commission that investigated Kennedy's assassination.

Conservatives To Head Committees

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Four veteran state representatives, all key figures in the past two legislative sessions, were slated for appointment today as chairmen of top House commitees.

Reps. W. S. Heatly of Paducah and Ben Atwell of Dallas were expected to resume their jobs as Appropriations and Tax Committee chairmen.

Reliable sources said Rep. R. H. Cory of Victoria, who was State Affairs Committee chairman the past two sessions, will move over to the influential Rules chairmanship. The same sources said Rep. Rayford Price of Palestine, last sessions Constitutional Amendments chairman, will become head of the powerful State Affairs Committee.

All four are generally regarded as conservatives—in line with the political views of Speaker Gus Mutscher, who has been at work on the 739 separate assignments to 45 committees since before he was elected Jan. 14.

Some disgruntled representatives called the Appropriations Committee sweeping out a "purge" to strengthen Heatly's control, but Heatly said the committee membership had changed little over the past six years and had become "too crystalized."

Heatly also discounted reports he had recommended the appointments to his committee by Mutscher, with whom he has worked closely over the years.

"The ones he appoints will be entirely his selection, and if there ever was a speaker that knows the Appropriations Committee, Mr. Gus does, because he has served for six years on the conference committee and the legislative budget board and is fully cognizant of its duties and responsibilities and has had more experience on the Appropriations Committee than any member of the house except me," Heatly said Wednesday.

Stubborn Auto Had Plans Of Its Own

MOTTVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Jack Magner's car didn't seem to be in the mood to take him to work Wednesday—in fact it seemed to have plans of its own.

While Magner was getting a shovel to give the iced-in car some encouragement, it moved out driverless.

Magner emerged from his home just in time to see the car roll across the road and sink into the White Pigeon River.

Sweeping Tax Law Review Pledged

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, responding to a mounting clamor for reform, has scheduled a sweeping review of the nation's tax laws.

Hearings expected to last several months are scheduled to start Feb. 18 with the operations of tax-exempt foundations, already under congressional scrutiny, to be examined first. Deductions for charitable gifts will follow.

For later hearings, the committee announced a wide-ranging agenda, embracing such traditionally explosive subjects as the oil depletion allowance, stock options for executives, the use of subsidiaries and trusts to reduce income and estate taxes, part-time farming losses charged off against other income and accelerated real estate depreciation.

The federal tax code has not been thoroughly restudied in 15 years.

Demands for tax reform have taken a bipartisan look. Two days ago the Democratic National Committee announced it is preparing legislation to provide a minimum income tax for all high income persons, even though legal deductions and exclusions would normally eliminate tax liability.

And in prepared remarks today in New York, Rep. John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, top Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, added his support to reform, particularly to making all high-income recipients pay some sort of tax.

Alluding to a Treasury Department report that 155 tax returns showing incomes in excess of $200,000 resulted in no tax payments, Byrnes said:

"No matter by what device, no matter how laudable the nature of the deduction or exclusion that produces this result, the fact remains that there is no justification for these individuals being nontaxpayers."

Ways and Means chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., cautioned newsmen not to expect a radical tax code revision this year.

But he added if the hearings disclose particular areas in need of change, the committee might go ahead with legislation on these without waiting for a full overhaul.

Cold Front Brings Rain To Texas

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Severe thunderstorms dumped more than five inches of rain on some drought-plagued Texas sections today, sending at least one river well out of its banks.

The deluges occurred largely in far East Texas, but some heavy rains fell elsewhere in the eastern half of the state as a cold front easted southward.

Kanawha in Northeast Texas recorded 5.74 inches of rain. The Northeast Texas towns of Avery, Box Elder, Clarksville, Cooper, Negley and Paris all had more than 4 inches.

By early morning the slow-moving cold front lay along a line linking Texarkana, Waco and Del Rio. Temperatures dipped to freezing and below in parts of West Texas while unseasonable heat lingered downstate.

Considerable shower activity and a number of moderate thunderstorms ranged from the east side of the Texas Panhandle across North and Central Texas behind the front during the night and predawn hours.

Light rain or drizzle fell through central sections of the state and toward the southeast as far as the coast. There also was fog before daylight scattered in areas around Sherman, Denison, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Houston, Galveston and Victoria.

Victories Over Cancer Are Cited

"The American Cancer Society is beginning to win . . . the 1,500,000 Americans alive today, who once had cancer and are cured . . . these are the measure of how far we have come in the battle against cancer," Dr. Berry Squyres, told the delegates at the District Crusade meeting Wednesday in Midland. Dr. Squyres is Medical Chairman of the Yoakum County Unit.

Dr. Squyres told the delegates, "The ACS research investment in Texas is over $1,-154,000. This means that the Society is actually spending 13 per cent more money on its programs of research, education and service than we raised in Texas last year."

The extra money spent in Texas is due to the large sums allocated by the ACS National program of research to Texas institutions.

Gayle Dishong, board member, Ector County Unit, presided at the morning session. A copy of the Texas Division Annual Report, distributed during this session, summarized the accomplishments of the Society during its 1968 program year.

. . . . Services provided to 7,546 cancer patients in the form of volunteer transportation, dressings, sick room equipment, and gift items.

. . . . Public education programs reached more than 1,250,-000 people with film showings and physician speakers. Educational exhibits reached an additional 3,970,000. Educational messages and programs carried by the media: 7,319,000 exposures.

. . . . The support of 19 tumor clinics with a total of 94,427 cases reported as of Sept. 1, 1968.

. . . . Clinical fellowships were awarded to 15 physicians and dentists to promote interest and research in the cancer field.

Professional programs reached an audience of 34,124 in the medical and allied health professions.

Several people from Snyder participated in group sessions designed to explain how to reach more people during the Society's annual April educational and fund raising Crusade. Mrs. Roscoe Treadway, Gaines County Crusade Chairman, and Daylon Bruce, Nolan County President, led the session for Crusade and Publicity Chairmen. The house-to-house session was chaired by Mrs. Garland Lang of Midland and Gayle Dishong led the session for special gifts and business workers.

The meeting concluded after a noon luncheon, during which every county in the district pledged a goal for the April Crusade. Mrs. A. D. Dodson, president, pledged a goal of $4,-500 for the Scurry County Unit. This amount has been previously approved by the Unit Board of Directors.

Delegates attending the meeting from Snyder included Mrs. Opal Hess and Mrs. Dodson.

City, C-C Managers Present Program

City Manager George Patterson and Chamber of Commerce Manager Karl Mawhorter presented the program at Wednesday luncheon meeting of the Snyder Kiwanis Club at the Steak House.

They showed color slides and presented a commentary on civic improvements made here during the past two years, using much of the same material that was presented to the All America Cities Jury in New Orleans last Dec. 2.

I. E. Martin, president of the Kiwanis Club, presided at the luncheon and the program was in charge of L. A. McClanahan. A visiting delegation of Kiwanis members from Lamesa attended the meeting, making an inter-club visit.

Plan Angola Spending

LISBON (AP) — The Portuguese government plans to spend $45 million on its military forces in Angola this year, the official bulletin said Wednesday. Portugal has nearly 60,000 troops to fight rebels in the African territory.

TEXAS MEDICAL ASSEMBLY

Doctors Study Burn Cases

By RICHARD BEENE
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An Army burn expert Wednesday showed physicians sights he lives with every day, sights which on first impact must stir shock and fear in the hearts of his patients' loved ones.

Lecturing the physicians on treatment of burn cases, he showed full color slides of young men burned about the face, their lips swollen, their eyes helplessly shut, their necks slit open for tracheotomies.

Still more slides popped on the screen in the darkened assembly room to reveal men with their arms painfully burned, their hands red and stiff from fires that may have started in Vietnam or any other part of the world.

An infant boy, a military dependent, lay facing the camera, his chin, cheeks and neck burned, his chest and stomach ruby red from flames that raced across his body.

A young woman lay on her stomach, the full length of her legs covered with burns.

These are the sights that Lt. Col. Basil A. Pruitt Jr. and his colleagues see every day. Some are even worse than those he displayed at a session of the 33rd International Medical Assembly of Southwest Texas.

And yet a remarkable number of their patients live and return to normal life. "We have had patients with 95 per cent burns that have lived," Pruitt said. At 38, and a member of the Army only eight years, he is the director and commanding officer of the Institute of Surgical Research at Brooke Army Medical Center here.

It is the Armed Forces' only burn treatment and study unit.

The innovations pioneered at the burn unit have resulted in "significant improvement" in patients burned over 70 per cent of their bodies or less, he said.

The innovations, well known in medical circles, are sulfamylon, a white, creamy, chemical dressing that protects burns from bacterial "invasion," and temporary skin grafts.

Sulfamylon came into extensive use here in 1964 and now is employed at civilian burn centers, he said. Spread over the entire area of the burn, it acts as a protective shield against harmful bacteria.

Before sulfamylon came into use, almost 70 per cent of all burn patients who died here met death due to this "invasion" of bacteria into their burns he said. Now the mortality rate due to bacterial infection has dropped dramatically to 10 per cent, he said.

How does a doctor harden himself to the sights he sees in the burn ward? "It's just a matter of constant exposure and association with patients of any kind," he said. "Occasionally there are some doctors or nurses or corpsmen who are depressed by this, and it's largely related to their experience."

Pruitt, who returned from San Diego this week after delivering a lecture on burn patients there, was among the final speakers at the three day medical assembly, which closed Wednesday. A total of 737 physicians registered and daily attendance was estimated at nearly 1,000 persons.

Enterprise Fire Laid To Hot Exhaust

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has tentatively decided the hot exhaust from an aircraft starter cart touched off an explosion that led to fiery disaster aboard the aircraft carrier Enterprise.

It indicated Wednesday that more stringent restrictions have been issued on how close jet starter carts can be placed to ammunition and aircraft.

"Indications are that the exhaust from the cart may have caused the overheating and explosion of a Zuni rocket attached to the wing of an airplane," the Navy said. "The initial explosion apparently caused a fire and subsequent bomb and rocket explosions on airplanes parked nearby."

Explosions and flame swept areas of the giant carrier Jan. 14, killing 27 men and injuring 85 others while it was at sea southwest of Hawaii. The Navy disclosed repairs will cost $6.4 million, but estimated the flattop will return to duty in less tha three months.

The Navy said the Enterprise was capable of "sustained combat capabilities as soon as the fires were out and debris removed. She could have continued flight operations and also launched combat missions if necessary."

Arrest Of Youths Clears Robberies

The burglary of White's Antique Shop and Snyder High School here a week ago Sunday was cleared yesterday with the arrest of three youths by Sheriff Keith Collier of Snyder and Sheriff Buzz Rollins of Fisher County.

The oficers said the three, ages 16, 16 and 19, made statements concerning the burglary at White's, another burglary at Snyder High School and five other offenses committed in Fisher County. Charges were pending against the 19-year-old. The two 16-year-olds were turned over to Juvenile Authorities.

The three are students at Hobbs High School in Fisher County. Two of them were arrested in Hobbs and one was apprehended at Roby.

Property taken in the breakin at White's, including several guns, was recovered, according to the arresting officers, who also stated the three were involved in a breakin at the Union Community Center. However, nothing was taken in that breakin. Several vending machines at the high school here had been broken into.

Breakins at Les Francis Chevrolet and Wilson Motor Company on the same night of the robberies were not attributed to the youths.

Firemen Respond To Two Alarms

City Firemen answered a call to the Steak House Restaurant, 1005 Twenty-fifth Street, at 6:15 a.m. today when some grease on the grill caught fire.

They also answered a call at 3:45 a.m. to the W. O. Mathis residence at Fluvanna. The fire was out on arrival and damage was minor.

Holdup Thwarted By Shotgun Blasts

DALLAS (AP) — Shotgun blasts fired by city patrolman E. D. Sonier, 29, on stakeout duty killed a man and thwarted a food store holdup Wednesday night.

Police identified the dead man as Tommy Ray Jackson, 20, of Dallas.

George Wilhelm Dies In California

Word was received here late Wednesday of the death of George Wilhelm, former Snyder resident, in Rosemead, Calif. Mr. Wilhelm died unexpectedly after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Funeral service is set for 1 p.m. Friday, with arrangements in charge of Wilson Carter Funeral Home in Monterey Park, Calif.

Mr. Wilhelm is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mollie Wilhelm and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Woody, both of the home in Rosemead, and a nephew, Ronnie Wilhelm of Dallas.

Pleas Are Entered In County Court

James West pleaded guilty in county court this morning to a charge of driving while intoxicated. A judgment providing for a 15-day jail term and a $50 fine plus court costs was entered, and he will appear later for sentencing.

West was apprehended Jan. 15 by Sheriff's Authorities.

Yesterday, Harvy R. Mallard pleaded "no contest" to a charge of swindling by worthless check, and received a $25 fine plus court costs. The offense occurred Dec. [illegible]

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, intelligent, affectionate woman of 23. My problem is that I am ready to marry and settle down, but my 26-year-old boy friend, whom I've been seriously dating for a year, is not. His reason: He says that all the males in his family (his father included) take common law wives. They don't marry! No one outside the family knows this, so there is no scandal. He claims that marriage kills "love" — that if two people really love each other, a few words mumbled by a minister won't make the union any more sacred.

I can't see myself going in for this kind of relationship. He claims he loves me and wants to live with me, but it must be on his terms. I don't want to lose him. What should I do?

WANTS MARRIAGE

DEAR WANTS: Tell him that if two people really "love" each other, a few words mumbled by a minister aren't going to make the union any LESS sacred, and if it's all the same to him, that's the only way YOU'LL have it. If he doesn't see it your way, lose him and find a fellow whose father was married.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My son is nearly 12 years old and he doesn't know a thing about the facts of life. I think it is time he learned, but his father says, "Give him time. He will learn."

His father says HE learned late in life and it didn't hurt him any. (That's what he thinks. It didn't help any either.)

What is your opinion?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: What a 12-year-old boy doesn't learn at his mother's knee he is sure to pick up at some other low joint.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 27 years and have had a Chihuahua for eight years.

Three years ago I began having asthma attacks. Six months ago my attacks got worse, so after a series of tests with a specialist, he said I was allergic to dog hair and had to get rid of our dog.

My problem is my husband. He refuses to believe that this allergy is due to the dog because we've had the dog for so long.

My husband has always been a very thoughtful and considerate person, but lately he seems more concerned about the dog than me.

Don't tell me to have the doctor talk to him. He already has. What do I do now?

ALLERGIC

DEAR ALLERGIC: Surely a formerly "thoughtful and considerate" man who suddenly refuses to accept your doctor's diagnosis, can't be considered reasonable! I think your husband needs a few "tests," too, and a good place to start would be his head.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Why should one read Prince Valiant in the comics when real life, as reflected in your column is so much more exciting?

I have read and re-read that letter signed "GOT TO WATCH" (when his wife delivered their child), and the sheer drama of the event sent cold chills up my spine.

I can just picture the scene. The pitiful little woman weakly calling for help, and our stalwart champion engaging in hand to hand combat with THREE people, fighting to get to her side. (They tried to keep him out of the delivery room.)

Wow! Who says that America has turned into a gray flannel world? Not so. There is one hero left. I take my hat off to old "GOT TO WATCH."

Problems Of Today Heard At Delta Kappa Gamma

Zeta Lambda chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society met Monday night at the home of Virginia Grove. Hostesses for the meeting were Bess Johnston, Sally O'Rear and Miss Grove.

The business meeting was conducted by Mary Devenport, president. Agnes Kunkel read the collect.

The program topic was "Are Our Actions So Loud Others Do Not Hear What We Say?" A debate between June McGlaun for the affirmative and Durelle Gorman for the negative brought out some interesting highlights on our tendency to profess one thing and act in the opposite way.

Mrs. McGlaun, in her talk, explained that values are the compass which gives man his direction both as to how he should act — and what his actions are for. She spoke of the contrast between the values that people say they hold - and their actions which would seem to contradict their beliefs. As examples, she cited the censorship of some newspapers in not printing the parts of the human body in a medical column in contrast to the everyday language used by many people. Another example she gave was the parent who says he upholds law and order, as opposed to his reaction (often in front of his children) when he receives a citation for a violation of a traffic law.

She noted that Americans have lived well off their minority neighbors, who have done the menial tasks so necessary to production, but "while we talk of all men being created equal, we exhibit a discriminatory attitude toward them."

She concluded "as educators, we must accept the challenge to make a critical analysis of our values and the values of our times, gather the facts so that we can begin to think, and then take action — and we must believe in what we do."

Miss Virginia Grove, speaking in place of Durelle Gorman, stated that there is no need to change our accepted values. Change, rapid change, is taking place in all aspects of economic, social, scientific, technological and political spheres, and while it cannot be stopped it can be seen in proper prospective, she declared. But, she said that our basic values never change and those who live by these basic values are the majority of the people — the people who have made America the place it is today.

She quoted Abraham Lincoln on the major issues of his time, which are applicable to our own problems, and showed that times have really not changed much since then.

She said that we still have our personal values, and that the majority, not the minority, rule our country. Keyed - up young people, living with the stresses of today are proving they can "take it." The vast majority of youth of today are coping with their problems.

In conclusion she stated that there is no need of a change of our basic accepted values and that the Ten Commandments are still the bases of our value system.

The hostesses served refreshments to Evelyn Boone, Rita Carter, Bobbye Combest, Mary Devenport, Georgene Galloway, Joyce Gorman, Hazel Hanback, Billie Hartsfield, Laura Holladay, Philomen Kelley, Agnes Kunkel, Vestal Maner, June McGlaun, Delia McPherson, Dorothy Miller, Elwanda Nall, Eva Nelson, Pauline Turner and Esther Boren.

Education Topic Of Altrurians

The Altrurian Club met Friday at Martha Ann Woman's Club with Mrs. Alvie Dolen as hostess of the day, also as director of the program.

In the business session the president, Mrs. R. A. Irving, read a news letter from the District President, Mrs. Wheeler, reminding all clubs that reports from the officers and departments are due. Mrs. Wheeler also suggested that all members express opinions on the "Big Thicket" park project in letters to congressmen.

The program was on women involved in "Education." Science education is the prime motive of a study club, this topic was enthusiastically discussed by the members. In the roll call many American women were mentioned who had distinguished themselves in this field. One woman who was given a special salute was a citizen of Yemen who achieved a college degree only six years after women of her country were permitted to attend school.

Mrs. Dolen talked about the specific efforts of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in adult education. She said that in 1928 an honorary educational sorority for club women who desire to continue education through planned reading and study was formed. It is the Epsilon Sigma Omicron Sorority which forms one division of the education department. Any member may apply for membership and receive direction for reading which may or may not lead to college credits. There is a wide selection of subjects offered for reading and study which mothers, grandmothers, school teachers, business and professional women have joined in persuing by the hundreds.

In the social hour the president, Mrs. Irving, who is planning to make her home in another city, was complimented by a shower of appreciation gifts from individual members of the club.

SPACE OFFICIALS AGREE—

NASA Needs More Money

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — At the very height of its success, having sent three men around the moon, the aerospace industry today feels less than triumphant. Walking on air for the moment, perhaps, but concerned about the next step.

The worries arise from some down to earth appraisals of the industry's immediate future, which some aerospace officials feel is dreary, not just from the corporate point of view, but for the men and towns dependent on the program.

The major problem is money, which because of budget cuts and the priority of social ills over space exploration is far less than is believed needed to continue at a moderately strong pace.

As a result, these officials say, today's spectacular space triumphs are really yesterday's accomplishments, for in terms of men, money and activity, this enormous industry reached its apogee two or three years ago.

From a peak employment of more than 400,000 in every state, the industry is now shrinking to one-half that figure. Less than three years ago 200 universities and 20,000 companies were involved. The figure is much lower now.

President Lyndon B. Johnson asked for $3.9 billion in the 1970 fiscal year budget for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, about the same as last year but $2 billion less than a few years ago. Space officials say it isn't enough.

Dr. George Mueller, associate administrator of NASA feels it is the "kind of budget that will take NASA out of manned space flight in three years from now."

Mueller spoke this week to the New York Society of Security Analysts, whose main interest is in learning about investment opportunities. This being so, he centered his remarks on the economic consequences of the space program.

"In terms of domestic impact," he said, "the returns range from national pride to better paints." He went on to detail a remarkable number of fallout benefits from the space program.

Here are some, selected at random:

—Faster and more efficient electronic computers. "The computer complex that handled the Mercury flights performed one million calculations a minute. Today's Apollo system handles 50 times that many—50 million a minute. . ."

—Development of the technology of perfection. There were five million parts in the Apollo-Saturn vehicle that flew to the moon, Mueller said. If 5,000 of them failed the reliability percentage still would have been 99.9. Only 5 parts failed.

—Aid to the balance of payments program by developing products that are sold to foreign companies and governments.

—Upgrading of education and scientific capabilities. A "new mix" of professional and scientific disciplines. "This program has forced cooperation between engineers and medical doctors, chemists and astronomers, oceanographers and geologists. . ."

—New products for industry. Technological innovations. More than 2,500 innovations have been attributed to the program, including new alloys, miniaturized components, medical equipment, inorganic paints, flexible pipes. .

—Environment controls. Weather satellites, for example, and other satellites that can detect forest fires, mineral deposits, crop diseases and so on.

Junior Editors Quiz on PENNSYLVANIA

QUESTION: Why is Pennsylvania called the keystone state?

• • •

ANSWER: William Penn, born in 1644, was an English Quaker who had suffered persecution because of his religion. The English king owed Penn's father a large debt, which young William agreed would be settled if he were given rights to some wilderness land in America. So he acquired Pennsylvania and promoted settlement based on the ideas of justice, brotherly love and religious freedom. Penn's colony flourished and became the cultural center of the American Colonies. It was also the geographical center, lying between New York and New England on one hand, and New Jersey, Delaware and the Southern Colonies on the other. The influence of Pennsylvania tended, in the stormy days of the Revolution, to unite these colonies. When building a stone bridge (upper left), a large specially shaped stone is placed in the center to take the main weight and bind the other stones together. This is called the keystone. Since Pennsylvania acted as a keystone for the young American nation, it became known as THE KEYSTONE STATE.

Remembering Is Good For The Mind

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — About the only exercise some people get is the exercise of their memory.

But it isn't a bad kind of exercise, when it isn't overdone. It may not build bulgy muscles, but it does restore that keystone of health—the mind.

Memory also retores our self-confidence. For it tells us that if we have weathered the ordeals of yesterday, we probably also can survive the turmoils of today and even the terrors of tomorrow.

Feel like a little exercise right now? Well, put on your thinking cap and see if you can remember away back when—

The only way a man could retire fairly early in life was to have 10 strapping sons unafraid of work.

Ladies were supposed to swoon or grow faint when confronted by emergencies, so they carried a small bottle of smelling salts in their purses—just to revive them in case.

During the heyday of the bobbed-haired, short-skirted flapper during the 1920s, girls wore strands of beads long enough to use as a clothesline or to jump rope with.

The postman not only knocked twice, but also delivered the mail to your home twice a day, morning and evenings, and a first-class letter could be mailed for a mere two cents.

When a boy got a job in a drugstore as a soda squirt, one of his big moral problems was the fact that all the other kids promptly expected him to put in a dime's worth of ice cream when they bought a five-cent cone.

If a child dropped to the floor in a screaming tantrum, the father didn't make a hurried call to a psychiatrist for advice. He merely got a pan of water from the kitchen sink, and calmly dashed it into the yowling child's face, and the screams promptly subsided. Maybe that's where the expression "you're all wet" came from.

You could journey about a modern city for weeks on end and never see a picket's sign.

When a man was sick, he said, "I feel poorly." If he remained home merely because he had a bad cold, he could lose his job. Nobody had heard of the "one-day virus," and if you told your boss you had such an ailment he would automatically put you down as liar and a gold-bricker.

Money was so scarce in most communities that if you were seen coming home in a cab, everyone in the block wondered if you had inherited some.

Butchers practically gave liver away as it was thought fit food only for cats, health nuts, and people too desperately poor to afford anything else.

Families with any pride wouldn't dare put an elderly member into an old folks' home for fear of what the neighbors would think.

The key word in the American dream was "opportunity," not "security." The land was full of "go-getters," each of whom honestly felt that if he were given "a fair chance," he could become as rich as Rockefeller.

Those were the days! Remember?

At the beginning of the New Year, front doors in Staffordshire are thrust open. A man strides in carrying a bit of coal or bread as symbols of wealth. The gift-bearer, known as "first-foot," must have dark hair. A light color, especially red, supposedly brings ill luck.

Viet Cong, Hanoi Receive Warning

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnam warned the representatives of Hanoi and the Viet Cong today that if they keep meking propaganda speeches, there will be no progress toward peace at the Paris talks.

Saigon's Ambassador Pham Dang Lam lashed out at the opening of the second session of the four-party talks. In a 5,000-word statement. He told the delegates from North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front they had delivered "negative" statements at the opening of the conference ast Saturday.

"Your statements," Lam said, "contained nothing but empty and unfounded calumnies against the constitutional, legal, authentic government of the Republic of Vietnam. They contained nothing but outdated propaganda.

"I consider it necessary to remind you that we have come here not for disputes or propaganda, but in response to the legitimate aspirations for peace of the South Vietnamese people. If you persist in this negative attitude, no progress can be achieved on the road to peace."

He attacked the other side's claim to represent the Vietnamese of both North and South, charging that "they have placed themselves at the service of and under the domination of international Communism . . . imposed a severe dictatorship of the party . . . and continued to reduce the population to growing poverty."

Lam himself put no new proposals before the conference although he once again supported American proposals made last Saturday.

Henry Cabot Lodge, chief of the U.S. delegation, said he would press again for discussion of the demilitarized zone, mutual troop withdrawals and prisoner exchanges, items in which the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong showed no visible interest at the first session of t enlarged conference last Saturday.

The atmosphere was chilly as the delegates from the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front arrived at the International Conference Center.

Neither side appeared ready yet to depart from set positions or to engage in a genuine dialogue. Conference sources said the two sides were likely to reaffirm the diametrically opposed stands which marked their meeting Jan. 25.

South Vietnamese Ambassador Pham Dang Lam was the first speaker under the agreed rotation system. He was to be followed by Lodge. They were expected to continue plugging for a gradual military de-escalation, beginning with the re-establishment of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Spokesmen for the other side said Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam and Tran Buu Kiem of the NLF would tell the conference why this approach is unacceptable to them.

They demand that the conference work out a political settlement for South Vietnam before discussing any military de-escalation measures. The peace terms they presented at the opening session were in essence, a demand for the total unconditional withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam.

They also demanded the establishment of a "peace cabinet" in Saigon prepared to negotiate with the NLF at the Paris conference.

Confrontation On Czech Border

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

WEIDEN, Germany (AP) — High on a hill on the edge of the black-green Bavarian Forest, an American sergeant and a Czechoslovak military patrol stood staring at each other.

Between them in the snow, ill-defined by concrete posts, lay the boundary between Czechoslovakia and West Germany.

The silent confrontation represented the suspicions aroused by the Soviet Union's occupation of Czechoslovakia last August.

For Sgt. Larry Brouillette, 22, of New Haven, Conn., and a member of A Troop, 1st Squadron, 2nd Armored Cavalry Regiment, U.S. Army, it was not routine.

Since Jan. 20, the Czechs had been coming up daily, to the observation post manned by Brouillette and his three-man crew. Jan. 20 was the day the United States kicked into high gear its airlift of combat troops from America to maneuvers some 20 miles from where Brouillette and the Czechs stood looking at each other.

That also was the day that Czechoslovakia began mourning the death of Jan Palach.

The day a newsman visited his observation post, Brouillette was more concerned with the two Czechs, clad in winter camouflage gear, who had come directly up to the border for a long session of staring at the Americans as well as at their post.

Brouillette put his binoculars on the Czechs and one of them raised equally powerful glasses to look back. Every time the American would take a look so would the Czech.

They were no more than 50 feet apart.

Brouillette said he was looking for rank and unit insignia and that they were trying to spot his arms and equipment.

"They've come so close," he said, "that we had to take down some charts we had hanging inside our observation post for fear they could read them."

Brouillette declared laconically he makes it a point never to let the Czechs get close enough to grab him to pull him over the border. The Americans have orders not to shoot across the border and if the Czechs grab one of them not to give pursuit into Czechoslovakia.

The GIs accept this as in the interest of avoiding a border incident.

The men on the border are aware that if any action involved their unit they could be among the first to be lost while their unit carried out its instructions in the event of an atatck from the east.

Those instructions are to take the enemy under fire, forcing him to deploy and then gradually fall back while the "big stuff," as one officer described U.S. backup power, would be made ready or used.

Trustee For Packard

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Bank of America said Wednesday it has been designated as trustee for the 3,550,150 shares of Hewlett-Packard stock owned by the new deputy secretary of defense, David Packard, and his wife.

Packard's large holdings in the electronics firm, which has many government contracts, was the subject of questions as to possible conflict of interest during Senate hearings on his confirmation.

The bank said the charitable trust, effective immediately, is for the duration of Packard's government service and for a minimum of two years and one month.

Control of the stock and all voting rights has been assured by the bank as trustee.

The announcement, made at Packard's request, said any increase in the capital value will be distributed to charitable and educational institutions and that the annual income of about $700,000 will be distributed to a score of colleges and other institutions.

Policemen In School

Three Snyder City Policemen and one trainee are attending Howard County Junior College and studying for an Associate in Applied Arts degree in Law Enforcement Technology.

Their study at the Big Spring school was made possible by the Omnibus Crime Bill of 1968 under which the Federal government pays the tuition and the cost of books. Only one of the four — Johnny Marsh — is studying full-time. He will not become a police officer on the local staff until after his graduation. The other three — Detective Sergeant Jerry Morris, Patrol Sergeant D'Wayne Jernigan and Patrolman Bob Lieb — are studying part time so that their studies will not conflict with their duties.

Chief of Police Stephen Clark is an instructor in a couple of police science courses offered by HCJC. He will teach in the night school beginning this semester on Jan. 30.

Because Jupiter apparently radiates its own energy, some astronomers believe it may be a small star rather than a very large planet.

OKLAHOMA SHAKEUP

Highway Officials Fired

By JERRY SCARBROUGH

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. Dewey Bartlett fired state Highway Commission Chairman Martin Garber and Vice-Chairman Hubert Gragg Wednesday night for "improper solicitation of campaign funds."

The Republican governor, continuing the shake-up of the Highway Department that started last week when he fired director Bill Dane and two other employes, said the latest firings were "not related to the Dane investigation."

Dane and the two employes fired previously were ousted in connection with highway right-of-way purchases but Bartlett made it clear that Garber and Gragg—both prominent Republicans—were fired for different reasons.

The two men had occupied the two top spots on the commission since shortly after the inauguration of Republican Henry Bellmon as governor in 1963.

Garber and Gragg both declared immediately after the governor's announcement that Bartlett had not objected to them raising funds when he was running for governor.

"I raised campaign funds for the governor," Gragg said, "but he didn't fire me because I raised money for him—he fired me because I raised money for Richard Nixon."

Both men indicated they felt Bartlett was using them as scapegoats in an effort to appease Democratic lawmakers.

Bartlett announced the twin firings in a prepared statement and declined to answer newsmen's questions.

"I fired them because they have violated the ethical standards of my administration by the improper solicitation of campaign funds," he said. "For the past three days, I have conducted an executive investigation into their activities. I have been surprised and disappointed."

The governor said he had met with Democratic legislative leaders and "I have informed them of the results of my investigation." He said he would do everything in his power to assist lawmakers who plan to open a full-scale investigation into the highway department Monday.

Oklahoma's Highway Department has recently been probed by the federal Bureau of Public Roads and the state Crime Bureau over highway right-of-way purchases. That investigation led to the firing of Dane and two other employes and triggered the legislative probe scheduled to begin Monday.

Allotment Signup Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The annual signup for government price support and acreage allotment programs for 1969 crops of wheat, feed grains and cotton will begin Monday, Feb. 2 and will continue through March 21.

Agriculture Department officials previously announced details of the voluntary programs. Only this year's cotton production is aimed at expanison, while wheat and feed grains—corn, sorghum grain and barley—are being pared.

The major change for cotton is that producers will be allowed to plant their entire acreage allotments and will not be required to divert land from production to qualify for price supports and payments.

This year's national wheat allotment is 51.6 million acres, down from 59.3 million in 1968. The cutback was designed to reduce expected production in 1969 to head off rising stockpiles resulting from bumper crops the two previous harvests.

Officials say the wheat program is tailored to an over-all production this year of 1.3 billion bushels, compared with 1.5 billion in 1968.

The 1969 feed grains program is designed to take about 37 million acres of crops from production, for a total production of three million to five million tons less than estimated requirements.

About 32.4 million acres of food grains were diverted from production last year under the program.

Farmers can sign up for the various crop programs at the 3,000 county offices of the agricultural stabilization and conservation service, officials said.

Two Texans On Armed Services Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas gained a second member Wednesday on the House Armed Services Committee with the appointment of Rep. Richard White, El Paso Democrat.

Rep. O. C. Fisher, San Angelo Democrat whose district encompasses parts of San Antonio and its many military installations, is a veteran on the committee.

"The committee has a very important effect on my district," White said, nothing that he has testified before it many times on behalf of West Texas projects.

Short Of Baseballs? —Blame Dock Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is a shortage of baseballs when the cry "play ball" signals the start of the coming season, blame it on the dock strike.

It seems the Tober Baseball Co. in Rockville, Conn., is running out of its stock of baseballs because it is unable to ship the cores and cut leathers to Puerto Rico where they are sewn together.

The plight of the sporting goods manufacturer came to light in a shipper survey of industries affected by the 41-day-old longshoremen's strike.

Dirksen Sees New Invasion

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A statement by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen that he had received "military information" indicating a possible Soviet invasion of Romania has drawn blank looks from Nixon administration officials.

Dirksen, Wednesday revived a four-month-old report that the Soviets might inflict on Romania the same fate that befell Czechoslovakia last summer.

He did so after being host to President Nixon at a Senate leadership luncheon which he earlier had described as an effort to "just steep ourselves in jollification."

Emerging from that session, Dirksen met reporters in the Senate press gallery and said he'd heard the United States had intelligence that the "Russian commander in chief" might soon "put Romania through the disciplinary wringer."

He said this possibility might delay the Nixon administration from seeking quick Senate ratification of the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, held up last fall because of the Czech invasion.

At the White House, press secretary Ronald Ziegler later said, "I am not aware of the basis of concern about Romania."

Sources at the State Department also indicated they did not know what Dirksen was talking about.

Czechoslovakia was invaded Aug. 21 by Soviet and other Warsaw Pact forces to put down a political liberalizing trend by the Prague government.

Romania, too, has instituted some liberal reforms, particularly in making foreign policy decisions independent of the Moscow line.

Dirksen was asked if he had discussed the treaty or the rumors of possible Soviet intervention in Romania with Nixon. He said no.

Asked if he thought Nixon was aware of the situation as he described, he said, "I would think if there's any substance to it he would know about it."

TO ENFORCE INTEGRATION

New Guidelines For HEW

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch says the Nixon administration is against trying to force racial integration in schools by threatening to cut off federal funds.

Instead, Finch said Wednesday, the policy will be to stress negotiations with local school districts, plus "flexibility and fairness."

The head of the Health, Education and Welfare Department laid down these guidelines in announcing that five Southern school districts were being given an additional 60 days to comply with federal school desegregation law.

As a result of action taken by the Johnson administration welfare secretary, Wilbur Cohen, federal funds were withheld Wednesday from the schools in Mississippi and North and South Carolina because they failed to meet a deadline for desegregation plans.

Finch said formulation of his own policy came too late to halt the action but he hopes the funds can be restored.

He said he also dispatching federal teams to help the school districts work out the plans.

He said the withheld funds would be restored if the districts meet the new deadline.

Although against using federal funds as a bludgeon, Finch did not rule out entirely such an action which is permitted under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"When all the alternatives have been exhausted, as they have in these instances, the law in the end must be enforced," Finch said, referring to the five cases in question.

Finch said his enforcement of the law will be "consistent with the interpretation the President repeatedly expressed in the campaign."

Asked what this interpretation was, Finch referred newsmen to a statement the then Republican presidential candidate made at a news conference Sept. 19:

"When the Office of Education goes beyond the mandate of Congress and attempts to use the federal funds not just for the purpose of avoiding segregation but for the purpose of integration in positive ways—busing and the like—with that I disagree. And I do not believe federal funds should be used for that purpose."

A source in HEW's Office of Civil Rights said action to withhold federal funds was filed when "freedom of choice" plans adopted by all five of the Southern school systems failed to integrate separate schools for Negroes and white students.

"They still have all-Negro schools with all Negro teachers," he said, although he added that a token number of Negro students had chosen to attend pre-eminantly white schools.

Loveland Ready To Play Cupid

By LOUDON KELLY
Associated Press Writer

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — With Valentine's Day only about two weeks away, postmaster Fred Brewer is getting ready to play Cupid again.

Each year, an estimated 100,000 valentines are processed by Brewer and his staff for people in all 50 states and many foreign countries who want their messages of love to carry the postmark of this fittingly named town.

Brewer himself hand cancels about 8,000 valentines, including the ones for his wife and five grandchildren.

In addition to the "Loveland" postmark, cards and letters sent to this city of 18,500 for remailing are stamped with a bare-bottomed Cupid in a cowboy hat and a verse. This year's reads, "The heart-L brand reaches far throughout the land."

The mailing campaign for the Feb. 14 hearts and flowers day was first thought of in 1947. Anyone who wants the special postmark simply stamps and addresses his valentine as usual, encloses it in another envelope and mails it to Loveland for redistribution.

Getting into the spirit of things, the Chamber of Commerce has, for the past eight years, chosen as "Miss Loveland Valentine" from among the community's high school seniors.

There are three other Lovelands in the postal guide—in Ohio, Oklahoma and Iowa. None of them, however, gets more than a few cards for remailing.

Other romantics can choose from Loving or Lovelady in Texas; Lovely, Okla.; Lovelock, Nev.; Loves Park, Ill.; or Love Valley, N.C.

Burglary Suspect Must Call Mother

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A young man being held in a jewelry store theft fidgeted in his chair as police questioned him Wednesday.

Finally he blurted:

"I wish you'd hurry up and let me call my mother. I got to be at school at 8 o'clock."

Jr. Tourney At C. City

Four Snyder Junior High basketball teams are entered in a tournament at Colorado City this weekend along with several other area teams.

Travis 8th drew a bye in the first round and will meet the winner of the Lamar-Lamesa game at 10:15 a.m. Saturday. Travis 9th also plays the winner of the Lamar-Lamesa tilt in the 9th grade division at 11 a.m. Saturday. The older Travis boys originally were scheduled to meet Coahoma in the first round Friday, but Coahoma has cancelled its appearance in the tournament.

Both Lamar teams will see action Friday. Lamar 8th and Lamesa tangle at 4 p.m., and Lamar 9th and Lamesa vie at 4:30 p.m.

The 9th grade contests will be held in the Colorado City High School gym with the 8th grade skirmishes to be held in the junior high gym.

Tech Cagers In Trouble?

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)— Texas Tech basketball coach Gene Gibson says rumors that his contract will not be renewed in June are affecting the Raiders' performance.

Gibson met with his players Wednesday to brief them on the rumors, which have been circulating since Tuesday when Gibson met with Tech President Grover E. Murray.

After Tech's 82-64 Southwest Conference loss to Texas Tuesday night, Gibson said "outside interests" contributed to the defeat. He declined to amplify the statement.

At Wednesday's team meeting Gibson said he urged the Raiders to continue their drive for the conference title.

"I just told the kids what I had been told," he said. "I felt the squad should be told everything."

Murray told the Avalanche-Journal that Gibson was informed last spring when his contract was renewed for one year that this season had to be a good one.

"I restated that position today (Tuesday)," Murray said.

Gibson denied that he was given a win-or-else ultimatum last year.

Murray said Wednesday night that he could not elaborate on the meeting with Gibson, other than to say the meeting was requested by Gibson to discuss the basketball program at Tech.

Murray said the entire athletic program is under review. Tech has announced a major construction plan for upgrading athletic facilities at Tech.

Tech's basketball fortunes have generally prospered under Gibson, whose club won a Southwest Conference championship in 1961-62—his first year at the helm here. His over-all record is 96-86 at Tech.

Gibson led the Raiders to an apparent conference title again in 1964-65, but the Raiders were declared ineligible for the crown because a player, Norman Reuther, was ruled scholastically ineligible.

Tech finished with a 13-11 record for 1965-1966 and had two straight 9-15 seasons in 1966-67 and 1967-68. The Raiders currently are 7-7 for the season and 2-2 in the conference.

One of Tech's victories was a 73-70 upset of title-contending Baylor.

Tech's problems this season will become more acute Saturday when sophomore Clay VanLoozen, the team's leading scorer in conference games, becomes scholastically ineligible.

Lamar Tech Ranked 5th

By The Associated Press

Fairmont of West Virginia, which extended its unbeaten streak to 15 last week by defeating Salem and Steubenville, maintained its lead in The Associated Press' small-college basketball poll today.

Fairmont collected five first-place votes and 272 points in the balloting by a national panel of 16 sports writers and broadcasters. Fairmont walloped Salem 104-64 and Steubenville 103-65.

Stephen F. Austin, 16-1, including last week's 103-84 triumph over East Texas, advanced one place to second with 257 points, including 20 for one-first-place vote. Ashland, Ohio, rushed up two notches to third after defeating Wittenberg and Wheeling for a 16-1 mark.

Southwestern, La., held the No. 4 spot followed by Lamar Tech, which climbed one position, and Kentucky Wesleyan, the runnerup a week ago. South Dakota State remained seventh while Long Beach State, Trinity, Tex., and Wittenberg round out the Top Ten in that order.

Long Beach State advanced three places, Trinity one and Wittenberg slipped two notches as a result of its setback by Ashland.

Eastern Michigan and High Point, N.C., gained rankings in the Second Ten. They replaced Illinois State, No. 18 last week, and Cheyney State, No. 20.

The top 20, with first-place votes, records through games of Saturday, Jan. 25, and total points. Points awarded for first 15 choices on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1. Fairmont, W.Va.	(5)	15-0	272
2. Steph. F. Austin	()	16-1	257
3. Ashland, Ohio	(1)	16-1	235
4. SW, La.	(1)	12-4	213
5. Lamar Tech	(3)	13-0	201
6. Ky. Wesleyan	(1)	13-2	197
7. S.D. State		13-2	132

Nat Owner Fires Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert E. Short, who says he's impatient with failure, has moved quickly to bring new leadership to the Washington Senators, a baseball team without a winning season in 17 years.

In his first full work day after officially purchasing the American League team, the Minneapolis millionaire fired General Manager George Selkirk and Field Manager Jim Lemon.

Other personnel changes were also expected, and Short hinted that farm director Hal Keller may be next on the ousted list.

"Quite obviously, we may have to build up the farm system," said Short, who scheduled a meeting with Keller today.

Selkirk and Lemon were offered other jobs in the Senators' organization, and both said they had not decided whether to accept.

Lemon, whose rookie year as manager ended last season with the Senators entrenched in 10th place, said he had "an amicable talk" with Short and was not surprised by his dismissal.

Lemon said he was offered "a job which is a mixture between scouting and hitting instructor."

Neither Selkirk nor Short disclosed what position the former general manager was offered, but Selkirk said he planned "to sleep on it" before deciding whether to stay.

In firing Selkirk, general manager during six losing seasons, Short said he was eliminating the position entirely and added: "I do not operate with a general manager in any of my businessess. "I will draw the table of organization with one chief executive officer."

A club spokesman said some of the duties now handled by Selkirk would probably be assigned to another man under a new title, director of player procurement.

Sources said Short's first choice for Lemon's replacement is Bob Kennedy, fired as manager at Oakland in 1968 after guiding the Athletics from 10th to sixth place.

But a club spokesman said Sam Mele, who managed Minnesota to the American League pennant in 1966; Eddie Stanky, former manager of the Chicago White Sox "and others" were under consideration.

Tigers Host Tors Friday

Lamesa's tall Tornadoes invade Scurry County tomorrow night to begin the second round of play in the South Zone of the District 3-AAA basketball race with Snyder's Tigers providing the opposition. Tipoff is on tap for 8 p.m. in the Coliseum following the junior varsity tilt which begins at 6:15 p.m.

Coach O. W. Follis' charges posted a perfect 5-0 mark in the first round. The record includes a 71-57 verdict over the Bengals. Coach Ned Underwood's Bengals had a hard time finding the range in the Lamesa gym during that first match, hitting 33 per cent in the first period and less than that in the second frame. The Tors had the game sewed up by halftime.

Both teams have several sharpshooters. Despite the "off night" at Lamesa, the Tigers have three lads in the "top 10" in South Zone scoring, and hope to improve on their 3-2, third-place standings in the loop with an outstanding effort Friday. Benny Ward and Jerry January, senior forwards, and Lee McNair, junior guard, are averaging in double figures and the three will be out to even the score against the Tornadoes.

Other probable starters include Jodi Williamson, senior guard, and Jim Patrick, junior center.

The Jenkins brothers — Floyd and Lloyd — pace the Tornado attack. Lloyd is a great outside shooter and both can score well from inside. They are 6-3 juniors. Jerry Jernigan, 6-4 junior postman, and Brent Minnix, 5-10 junior guard, and Cecil Davis, 6-0 sophomore guard, round out the starting alignment for the Tors. Lamesa has more height than the Tigers and was able to claim 91 rebounds in the first meeting between the two teams. Snyder grabbed 50.

If any of the Tornadoes foul out, then Lamesa will be in trouble for the Tigers have more depth. Senior Randy Rushing, junior Wesley Bishop, and sophomore Bruce Almond all have hit in twin figures in earlier tilts and could do it again. Capable help also will be available from juniors Dennis Wolfe and Dennis Carlton. Senior Bill Hood, alternate guard, reinjured an ankle and will be out for a couple of weeks.

The junior varsity Kittens thrashed Lamesa 70-45 in their first meeting and will be favored in the re-match. Coach Jerry McLeod said probable starters are Glenn Rambin, Ronald Ward, Bid Cooper, Jeff Stewart and Tony Breedlove or Danny Farmer. The Kittens also have good depth with Billy Kay, Dennis Breedlove and Ronal Gladson ready for action. They are unbeaten in the district "B" team schedule.

Tickets will be available at the door at the rate of $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Pros Draft 66 From Area Loops

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixty-six Texas and Southwest Conference football players were drafted in the two-day, 17-round pro football draft which ended Wednesday.

Heading the list was North Texas State's All-American defensive tackle Joe Greene, who was the only Texas collegian selected in the first round. Greene, a 6-foot-4 274-pounder, was picked by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Eight athletes from Texas colleges were picked in the second round, including Houston running back Paul Gipson and Southern Methodist's Jerry Levias.

A total of 442 players were selected in the two-day combined draft of the National and the American Football Leagues.

Seven rounds were completed Tuesday and the rest Wednesday.

Here are the Texas and Southwest Conference players taken in Wednesday's draft:

Eighth round: Philadelphia, Bill Hobbs, Texas A&M linebacker; Houston, Glenn Woods, Prairie View defensive end; Chicago, Webb Hubbell, Arkansas guard.

Ninth round: Atlanta, George Wright, Sam Houston defensive tackle; Miami, Jesse Powell, West Texas State linebacker; New York Giants, Ray Hickl, Texas A&I linebacker.

Tenth round: None.

Eleventh round: Philadelphia, Jim Marcum, UT-Arlington defensive back; Green Bay, Leon Harden, UT-El Paso defensive back.

Twelfth round: Philadelphia, Gary Adams, Arkansas defensive back; Atlanta, Denver Samples, UT-El Paso defensive tackle; Green Bay, Tom Buckman, Texas A&M tight end; Houston, George Resley, Texas A&M defensive tackle; Baltimore, Butch Riley, Texas A&I linebacker.

Thirteenth round: Buffalo, Leon Lovelace, tackle, Texas Tech; Philadelphia, Wade Key, tight end, Southwest Texas State; Washington, Michael Shook, defensive back, North Texas State; Minnesota, Jim Moylan, defensive tackle, Texas Tech; San Diego, M. J. Simpson, defensive back, Houston; New York Jets, Steve O'Neal, punter, Texas A&M.

Fourteenth round: Buffalo, Bubba Thornton, flanker, Texas Christian; Philadelphia, James Ross, tackle, Bishop, Tex.; Chicago, Ron Ehrig, defensive back, Texas; San Francisco, Tom Block, flanker, East Texas State; Minnesota, Tom Head, center, Southwest Texas State.

Fifteenth round—San Francisco, Gary Golden, defensive back, Texas Tech.

Sixteenth round—Atlanta, Ed Hughes, running back, Texas Southern; New Orleans, Edd Hargett, quarterback, Texas A&M; Detroit, Ken Spain, defensive end, Houston; Denver, Billy Woods, defensive back, North Texas State; Miami, Lloyd Mumford, defensive back, Texas Southern; New York Giants, Bryan Jones, linebacker, West Texas State.

Dark Is Sunny

CLEVELAND (AP) — Alvin Dark has a contract for $300,000 to manage the Cleveland Indians for the next five years and says "I'm tickled to death."

The contract, at $60,000 a year, was announced Wednesday and Dark said of the five-year pact:

"It's something every manager hopes for, but never really figures to get. I'm grateful to my players, because this couldn't have come about without them. The next thing is to win the pennant as soon as possible."

Niland Nabs Jewel Thief

DALLAS (AP) — For a 245-pounder, pro football star John Niland is a lot faster than you might suspect, and he proved it Wednesday.

He was sauntering along a downtown street and a man dashed by with two jewelry store clerks in hot pursuit.

"Everybody was yelling, 'Stop that man!' but nobody was doing any stopping," Niland recalled later, "so I took off after him."

Niland, a 6-foot-3 guard for the Dallas Cowboys, gave chase for six blocks, across three streets and through a clothing store.

At the end he collared his puffing quarry without a tackle and retrieved $945 worth of diamond rings from a store owned by jeweler Jack Cohen.

"He was standing there in a doorway," said Niland. "He just ran out of gas."

Niland, an off-season television advertising salesman, dismissed the performance as a bit of routine "right out of the playbook."

Cohen disagreed, declaring, "That boy is terrific. He is the sweetest guy I ever met. He didn't want any of us to say anything about it."

Pros Harvest Good QB Crop

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Tapping a quarterback at the pro football draft very often turns out to be like buying an expensive piece of China—you wind up putting it on the shelf.

But the crop tapped this year, including top-rated Greg Cook of Cincinnati and two more Negro candidates, appears to have a far better chance of seeing action than the 1968 group.

Twenty quarterbacks were drafted last year, including highly touted Gary Beban, but just four saw considerable action—Greg Landry at Detroit, Dewey Warren at Cincinnati, Dan Darragh at Buffalo and Marlin Briscoe at Denver.

But Cook and his cohorts drafted over the two days of the selection meeting that ended Wednesday after 21 hours and 15 minutes of drafting, appear to be in better shape to break in than their predecessors.

First, let's take a look at how the Top Ten were picked, with name, college, selecting team, round, and over-all number selected among the 442 players picked:

1. Greg Cook, Cincinnati, by Cincinnati, round 1, 5th player.
2. Marty Domres, Columbia, by San Diego, round 1, 9th player.
3. Terry Hanratty, Notre Dame, by Pittsburgh, round 2, 30th player.
4. Bob Douglass, Kansas, by Chicago, round 2, 41st player.
5. Al Woodall, Dule, by New York Jets, round 2, 52nd player.
6. Onree Jackson, Alabama A&M, by Boston, round 5, 110th player.
7. Jimmy Harris, Grambling, by Buffalo, round 8, 192nd player.
8. Sam Havrilak, Bucknell, by Baltimore, round 8, 207th player.
9. Larry Good, Georgia Tech, by Baltimore, round 9, 232nd player.
10. Sonny Wade, Emory & Henry, by Philadelphia, round 10, 236th player.

Of that group, Cook, Hanratty and the two Negro candidates, Jackson and Harris, seem to have the best opportunity to break through while Domres, Douglass and Woodall stand somewhat as surprising selections.

Cook will be competing for the job with the Bengals against veteran John Stofa and two holdover rookies, Warren and Sam Wyche—none of whom were significantly impressive during Cincinnati's first season in the American Football League.

Hanratty, although he didn't go until the second round, would seem to have a shot at playing at Pittsburgh, where only Dick Siner and Kent Nix block the door. At the same time, the door also appears to be ajar for Jackson and Harris.

Jackson was rated as the second best college quarterback in the country by the Patriots, who last year were disappointed in the efforts of Mike Taliaferro and Tom Sherman. Harris, who has been highly regarded during his Grambling career, will be up against "somewhat stiffer competition in returning Jack Kemp, out last season with injuries; Darragh, and Kay Stephenson.

Briscoe became the first Negro in the history of pro football to play regularly when he took over at Denver last year because of injuries. But it is expected he will be shifted back to a defensive back spot this year since his greatest potential lies there.

There is one other Negro candidate on the scene, Eldridge Dickey of the Oakland Raiders, who was schooled at the position during the entire 1968 season but did not play. He is, however, ready to make his debut.

"Jackson could be the Willie Mays of pro football," said Rommie Loudd, the Patriots' player personnel director. And Harvey Johnson, the Bills' top scout, was just as enthusiastic about Harris, who "has a great arm and can throw long and short."

Domres was a surprise because Ivy Leaguers have been snubbed in recent years. Douglass fit into that category because left-handers are frowned on. And Woodall stepped in to qualify because the Jets do have Joe Namath.

Besides Havrilak, Good and Wade—the other members of the Top Ten—the other quarterbacks selected before the draft wound up were Bob Naponic of Illinois by Houston, Alan Pastrana of Maryland by Denver, Brian Dowling of Yale by Minnesota, Tim Carr of C.W. Post by Los Angeles, Ed Roseborough of Arizona State by St. Louis, Edd Hargett of Texas A&M by New Orleans, and Buster O'Brien of Richmond by Denver.

Skipper Would Steer Clear Of North Korean Waters

By ROBERT M. BURNETT
Associated Press Writer

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The skipper of a sister ship to the USS Pueblo says he still believes in the concept of lightly armed intelligence craft but he wouldn't again want to take one near Red China or North Korea.

Cmdr. Charles R. Clark, who commanded the Banner, outlined to a Navy court of inquiry Wednesday a story that in some ways paralled the experience of Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher and the Pueblo—except the Banner was not seized by North Koreans and its crew held captive for 11 months.

He did not disagree when Bucher's attorney prefaced a question by saying: "You more than any other man can say, 'There but for the grace of God go I' when you look at Pete Bucher."

Clark took the stand in open session—the first in four days—after Rear Adm. Frank. L. Johnson, who supervised the Pueblo, said he had no forces under his direct command to provide emergency help when North Korean gunboats surrounded her a year ago and that planes and ships from other commands were unavailable or too far away. Johnson said the Pueblo's two .50-caliber machine guns "did not appear to me to provide a significant defense capability."

The court goes into closed session today to hear classified information.

Johnson, commander of the U.S. Naval Forces—Japan at the time, said planes could not operate out of Japan because of an agreement with that country forbiding use of Japan-based aircraft in engagements with unfriendly forces.

After Johnson described the forces available to him, Rear Adm. Marshall White of the five-admiral court said: "Then we really had a contingency plan to use forces that didn't exist. There was no help available for her?"

Answer: "No forces were available to me."

Q. "Then there were no forces readily available to come to the assistance of the Pueblo as I understand your on-call arrangement with the 5th Air Force and the 7th Fleet?"

A. "They (the forces) were instructed to go into action any time they received word from any source that assistance was needed. But each command had to go back as far as CINC-PAC (Commander In Chief For the Pacific) to get final authorization to use these forces at the time of an incident. The 5th Air Force was the only military organization which had available within a reasonable distance any aircrft—not from Japn but primarily from Okinawa and possibly from South Korea, although it was somewhat difficult at least at my level to determine what availability there might be in South Korea."

Q. "Okinawa was so far it would not have been too feasible?"

A. "As you are aware, the distance is 500 miles from Okinawa."

Q. Rear Adm. Edward Grimm: "Were there any communications... with CINC-PAC during the incident?"

A. "The telephone was used. I believe the first call was about 2:20 p.m. to CINC-PAC, and I was advised that the 5th Air Force reported delay of possibly about three hours before they could have aircraft in the area."

Johnson said he was not in favor of arming intelligence vessels because "we had successfully carried out 16 missions in unarmed status...and I did consider they (the guns) might well be provocative."

He agreed with Bucher, regarding communications with headquarters, that the Japanese mountains made it hard to link frequencies.

He said he did not consider this critical: "There was no instance that at any time this created a critical problem in operations."

The Banner was the first of its type of intelligence ships; the Pueblo the second.

E. Miles Harvey, civilian attorney for Bucher, asked Clark: "Do you have any recommendations or thoughts or anything else that might bear on this investigation by this board?"

"Armament and weapons and how they are used have possibly been overemphasized," Clark said. "In my personal opinion, these ships should not have been armed.

"When you're going down the street in your home town, what size of a pocket knife should you carry against a robber who has guns?

"I don't think protective forces would do any good. I don't think they could have gotten there in time to be of any appreciable help."

Clark said he felt future intelligence ships should be faster and have compartmented construction so the ship would float in case of a ramming. Clark now is range-safety officer at the Pacific missile range at Point Mugu, Calif.

Clark said he had been harassed by Chinese and Russian vessels.

Q. Adm. White: "Was there ever a possibility your ship would be rammed?"

A: "Quite a few times they aimed directly at me and changed course at the last minute. In one case I had to back down and use full rudder to avoid collision. In another case a large auxiliary ship had been escorting us for about a week. His relief (ship) was coming, so he opened to about 1,000 yards and then he came at us at maximum speed. My officer of the deck said 'Capt. We'd better get under way.' I said I'd watched him for a week and he's a good ship handler, he'll miss us. At the last possible minute he veered at 20 yards. His crew was yelling at us, 'Goodbye' in English. And when he got out a couple thousand yards he collided with his own relief."

Clark said he thought he had an excessive amount of classified material on board and that he did not have adequate means to destroy it while within the 100-fathom line.

He said that explosive devices for the destruction of the material were considered but that he rejected them as being impractical, that it could be destroyed only by throwing it overboard in weighted bags in water more than 100-fathoms deep. Burning was not practical because it would have taken too long, he said.

Clark said that opening sea valves to scuttle the ship would have taken about 20 minutes and that it would have taken "a few hours" for it to sink.

Asked if the question of risk had been discussed with him before he took out the Banner, Clark said:

"The general feeling was that the risk was not very high because everything we were doing was in accordance with international law, was in the open and on the high seas where any ship had the right to be."

Asked by Bucher's attorney if he believed the results of such spy ventures justified the risk, Clark replied:

"Yes, I did. I am not so sure since the Pueblo, but prior to that time..."

More Names Studied For Texas Tech

AUSTIN (AP)—What should Gov. Preston Smith's alma mater be called? Texas Tech University? Texas State University Maybe some name other than those two

The Lubbock area delegation to the Legislature heard from 10 men Wednesday who definitely, emphatically, find "Texas Tech University" distasteful.

They indicated they think "Texas State University" would have a nice dignified ring to it and would better describe the school's scope than "Texas Tech."

"Tech," one of them said, "It is not even a word."

But the trouble is, the school's board of directors likes "Texas Tech University" and wants Legislature to give that name to the school now called Texas Technological College.

Meeting with the group were Sen. N. J. "Doc" Blanchard and Reps. Delwin Jones ,Elmer Tarboc and R. B. McAlister, all of Lubbock; Rep. Bill Clayton, Springlake; Rep. Randy Pendleton, Andrews, and Rep. Malouf Abraham, Canadian.

"The school is not technological in the major areas of instruction...it would put us in a funny light to have a law school in a university whose name has a word (Tech) that doesn't mean anything," said faculty council chairman Paul V. Prior.

A random sampling of faculty, students and alumni showed a majority of all three groups prefer the name, "Texas State University," said Dr. Walter Cartwright, sociology professor.

Tech coed Barbar Specht, national collegiate football queen, was asked by a boy in California. "What is a doll like you doing in a boys' technological school?" Prior said.

Russell Bean, chairman of the joint name change committee, said Oklahoma State University's enrollment and reputation went "whoosh" after its name was changed from Oklahoma A&M.

"We want our school to go whoosh, too," he said.

Liquor Vote To Cover Annexed Area

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin held Wednesday that results of citywide local option liquor elections also govern areas annexed to the city.

"If the voters approve the sale of all intoxicating beverages for off-premises consumption, then the entire city, including the annexed area, is wet," Martin said.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Charles A. Allen requested the attorney general's opinion.

Martin also said that a person could operate a package store in an annexed area if the local option election were held and voters approved.

Texans On Committees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Texans received Democratic appointment to House committees Wednesday and won approval of their appointments.

Richard C. White of El Paso was placed on the key Armed Services Committee, an important for Texas because of the state's many military establishments.

Earle Cabell of Dallas received appointment to the District of Columbia Committee, gaining importance with President Nixon's emphasis on anti-crime measures for the capital.

Bob Eckhardt, representing Houston with its important port, gained a place on the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

More Catholics Taking The Pill

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — More and more women in Roman Catholic Italy are taking birth control pills, but pharmacists say shame, ignorance and obedience to the Church are still deterrents.

Contraceptive pills were first put on sale in Italy in the fall of 1964. After a slow start, sales hit six million pills in 1966 and doubled the next year, according to the health ministry. Estimates for 1968 put the total at 24 million, taken regularly by 100,000 women, a 100 per cent increase for the second year in a row.

The figures indicate that Pope Paul VI's encyclical renewing the Church's ban on mechanical and chemical forms of birth control may be slowing the progress of the pill in Italy but it hasn't stopped it.

Pharmaceutical industries reported a decline in sales in August, the month after the Pope issued his encyclical, but sales surged upward again in September and kept rising in the months after. Pharmacists say most drug sales declined in August.

Legally, Italians must have a doctor's prescription to purchase the pill because the law requires that it be sold only for medical treatment. Some pharmacists ignore the prescription requirement, while others display more zeal in enforcement than the law requires of them.

In Rome, for instance, some pharmacists are not satisfied with a prescritpion and insist on seeing the buyer's identity papers to make sure the name on the papers matches that on the prescription.

The pill is most popular in the industrial North, where wages are higher and people are better educated. Eighteen per cent of the nation's sales are made in the Milan area and another 13 per cent in Venice. The Rome area is third with 12 per cent of sales, and the island of Sardinia trails with only 1.3 per cent.

Those who buy the pill almost always ask a woman pharmacist for it. Those who live in small towns or villages often go to a city for it, "especially those who are unmarried," a doctor in Milan said.

Family planning experts say that because of the law and traditional Catholic attitudes, the vast majority of Italians do not know exactly how the pill is used and blush at the thought of entering a pharmacy to ask for it.

This is especially true because women must show their own prescriptions. Other contraceptive devices are still more popular than the pill in Italy, and men do most of the buying.

But getting a prescription from a family doctor generally is no problem.

"One hundred thousand women prove that the small revolution of the pill also has arrived in Italy," the Turin newspaper La Stampa commented.

The applicant is Harold J. Haley, trading as Polk County Broadcasting Co., Box 111, Livingston. Proposed operation is on 92.1 megacycles.

Tower Would Revise Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., introduced a bill Wednesday under which 19-year-old men would be drafted.

A member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Tower said the most glaring problem with the current draft laws was the fact that young men were in limbo until they are 26 years old.

The new bill would establish a prime selection group in three categories:

—Those between 19 and 20 who are not deferred or exempt.

—Those between 21 and 35 who were once deferred but now are not.

—Those between 20 and 26 at the time of the bill's enactment who are neither deferred nor exempt.

Tower explained it this way: "Since both 19-year-olds and new college graduates would combine to make up the primary selection group in any given year, there would be no danger such as we face this year of having all of the year's demand fall on college graduates, thus stripping the graduate schools of scholars at one fell swoop."

Texas Rates High In Juvenile System

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Youth Council's juvenile correctional system is second only to California and may become the best in the nation, says a report.

The council's juvenile system has been widely publicized recently because of testimony to a House committee that some youths at the State School for Boys at Gatesville were beaten.

But Austin MacCormick, executive director of the Osborne Association of New York, reported to the council Wednesday that despite a 16-year head-start in California the Texas system is rated "just below" the California system, "with a good chance of overtaking it eventually."

MacCormick said his conclusions are based on a report he made last November, which was the fourth in a series of studies of the council's training schools. The reports were requested by the council.

"The progress made by the Youth Council in the area of personnel since 1962, while not as visible to the naked eye as the progress in providing physical facilities, is no less striking and significant than the physical progress," he said.

"In most categories in the institutions the numbers of personnel, the qualifications for appointment and retention and the salaries are reasonably high," he said.

"The need of adequate salaries is particularly evident in the categories of personnel—house parents, activities supervisors, guards, etc.—who work in close relationship with the boys and girls. Their potentiality for good or bad influence on those in their charge is great. Only persons who are intelligent and well balanced, and have good personalities and sound characters should be given such responsibilities. People who meet these qualifications cannot be obtained for low salaries, and are prone to resign when a better job opportunity opens," he said.

The schools at Gatesville and other council - operated institutions "have standard public school curricula, accredited teachers, standard textbooks, standard classrooms and other features of public schools," he said. This is not true "in many states."

One of MacCormick's recommendations was for "space for music classes" nearer the Mountain View school building, for adequate supervision.

Most of the alleged beatings took place in the Mountain View unit.
