Computer Goofs

WASHINGTON (AP)—A misprogrammed Social Security computer sent out erroneous notices to about 30,000 Social Security recipients last month, docking them or assigning them excessive benefits, a government spokesman said today.

The garbled or incorrect notices were among 550,000 sent out in mid-April to people who had previously reported working part time or full time in 1978 while drawing their benefits, said Social Security spokesman Jim Brown.

Air Strike Costly

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Airlines strike is proving costly to the nation's biggest air carrier and inconvenient to thousands of travelers, but it appears to be a bonanza worth as much as $6 million a day to the airline's competitors.

The strike, which began March 31, is the first major shutdown for an airline since an industry mutual aid pact was abandoned last December — a major step toward deregulation of the industry.

Strike news was never a major consideration in estimating industry trends because the losses of struck carriers were partly offset out of the gains made by operating carriers said, one industry analyst.

But now, partly because the pact has been abandoned, competing airlines may be profiting by as much as $5 million to $6 million a day before taxes during the United strike, said Louis A. Marckesano, an airline analyst at Janney, Montgomery, Scott Inc of Philadelphia.

Wayne Out Of Bed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor John Wayne has taken his first steps outside his hospital room since undergoing surgery during which cancerous cells were discovered in his intestines, officials said.

The 71-year-old movie veteran walked in the hall outside his room briefly on Wednesday, said UCLA Medical Center administrator Bernard Strohm.

Carter Asks Support Of Arms Treaty

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter appealed today for public support of the new arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union, arguing that its rejection by the Senate would be "a massive, destructive blow to world peace."

Addressing a White House breakfast for retailers, Carter said that if the Senate does not ratify the pact, "we would be looked upon as the warmonger" and would suffer a serious loss of trust among NATO allies.

The president, asking for individual support by the represenatives of the American Retail Federation, also said a Senate turn-down would undermine his efforts to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Emphasizing the list was incomplete, he cited as potential nuclear powers such nations as Brazil, Argentina, Pakistan, South Korea, India, Taiwan and South Africa.

"If we show now that we reject this mutually advantageous voluntary restraint on our own nuclear weaponry, and initiate the prospect of a massive nuclear arms race, those countries ... would feel that there was no longer any constraint on them," Carter declared.

He asked his audience "to help me sell to the American people and directly to the U.S. Senate the advantages of ratification, and the devastating disadvantages" if the treaty is rejected.

"I think the most important single achievement that could possibly take place during my lifetime for our nation is the ratification of the SALT treaty," said Carter.

"Rejection of this treaty, now that it has been negotiated ... would be a massive, destructive blow to world peace."

Since the dawn of the atomic age, the president said, the United States "has taken the lead to put constraints on the evolution of nuclear weaponry."

All such efforts, starting with those of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, "would be in danger if we now reject this treaty," he continued.

At another point, Carter argued that rejection would cause NATO allies to "be severly shaken in their confidence in us, as a nation determined to have detente with the Soviuet Union and not to initiate a nuclear conflict, whose effects would first fall on Europe....

If There Is Severe Shortage...

House Predicted To Give Carter Rationing Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) Congressional leaders are predicting the House will join the Senate and give President Carter powers to order gasoline rationing if there is a severe energy shortage.

But a tough fight is expected and the White House was waging a heavy lobbying campaign today to pick up wavering votes for final House action.

However, aides to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said a preliminary head count showed victory might be by an extremely slim margin.

House approval would give the president the power to order gasoline rationing although either chamber of Congress could exercise a veto within 15 days of such a presidential decision.

Senators passed the standby proposal only after wringing a variety of last-minute concessions from the president.

Among other promises, the president agreed not to use the powers except in dire emergencies and to make more gasoline available for farmers, taxicab and truck drivers and for certain energy-related industries.

Orighally, Carter had wanted to distribute coupons based solely on the number of registered vehicles in a household.

In an attempt to pick up support from legislators from rural areas with long driving distances, he modified the original approach to make more coupons available in states with a history of heavy gasoline consumption.

That change enabled it to pass the Senate, but could pose problems for the plan in the House, with its heavy concentration of lawmakers from urban areas that generally would have fared better under Carter's original formula.

Under the final revision, 24 states and the District of Columbia would get more coupons per vehicle than they would have under Carter's original plan; five states would get the same number, and 21 would get less.

The average nationwide gasoline ration - assuming a 20 percent loss of oil supplies - would be in the vicinity of 46 gallons a month per automobile, based on a rough calculation.

Children's Play Opens Tomorrow

Greensleeves Magic, a children's theatre production at Western Texas College, will begin six performances in two days, Friday.

Performances are set for 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday. The Friday performances were sold out, it was reported this morning, but tickets are still available for the Saturday shows. Reservations may be made by calling WTC Fine Arts Department at 573-8511, extension 234. Also, those needing tickets were reminded that the WTC switchboard closes at 4 p.m. on Fridays. Tickets are priced at $1 each for children and $2 for adults.

Water Use Here Increases Sharply

A new weather front moving through the Snyder area produced little moisture last night—not enough to curtail increased city water demands.

City Engineer Jim Dower said recent hot days had sent water demands zooming upward and indications were that the trend would continue.

The water treatment plant here has been processing approximately 3.5 million gallons of water per day this week as the temperature soared into the 90s, along with high, hot winds.

Up to the past week, the water demand here had been around two million gallons per day. Dower said that if preseht trends continue, the city will reach its summer-time level of water deliveries earlier than usual this year.

Although the level is low, the Colorado River Municipal Water District expects to supply Snyder's needs from Lake J.B. Thomas through the summer. Hopefully the lake will catch some additional water, which would not only boost the available supply but also would enhance the quality of the water, Dower said.

The temperature here reached 93 degrees Wednesday and the cool front last night produced .05 inch of rainfall, which helped drop the reading to a low of 58 degrees this morning.

The SDN Column

It is not uncommon for a person in today's world to become flustered and do things for which there is no logical explanation. Take the case of the couple who lost their infant on a Houston freeway the other day. They surely must suffer from pangs of guilt, but if you are a human being, you should understand how it could happen.

The report said that the family was loading the car for a trip. The baby was strapped to an infant seat and while the car packing process was underway, it was placed on top of the car. When the car was loaded, two other children and the parents got in and started on their journey. The baby soon toppled from its resting place on the car top.

Then two miracles happened. The first occurred when the child was not seriously injured in the fall from the car top. The second miracle was when the child was noticed by a driver of another vehicle and was rescued before it was hit by another car on the freeway. It confirms that the Lord watches out for little children.

You probably have heard of situations where some member of a family was left behind at a service station following a stop for gasoline and use of restroom facilities late at night.

One of the strangest situations we recall might be labeled the "case of the prompt wife." In this instance, the husband awakened around 3 a.m. feeling a thirst. He got of bed and went to the kitchen for a drink of water. When he returned a few moments later, his wife was gone and the bed was made for the day. She had awakened to discover that he was up, and without looking at her watch, assumed that it was time to get up. So, she bounded out of bed, made the bed and began to get dressed.

We have heard of other strange incidents in which people automatically reacted to certain situations, especially in cases of sleep-walking. But that's another story.

4 Cities Eyed By Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York City invited the Democratic Party today to come back for its 1980 convention, and promised a good time as well as a good convention.

New York, scene of the Democrats' 1976 convention which nominated Jimmy Carter for president, was the first of four cities making their presentation to the party's site selection committee. The other competitors were Philadelphia, Detroit and Dallas.

"We will not only re-elect the president," said New York Mayor Edward Koch. "We will have a good time doing it."

The New York delegation, which handed out big red apples signifying the "Big Apple," offered the 20,000-seat Madison Square Garden and promised 100,000 hotel rooms within easy distance of the convention hall.

The site selection committee already has received written bids from each city and is to select two finalists Friday.

The committee will visit the two final cities before naming the convention site June 28.

The four semifinalists are the survivors from more than a score invited to bid for the meeting, which is considered to be worth millions of dollars in business to the winner.

Detroit already has been selected as the site of the Republicans' next presidential convention, winning a hotly contested fight with Dallas. The GOP meeting is scheduled for July 14, 1980.

The Democrats are tentatively considering starting dates of Aug. 4 or Aug. 11, but executives from all three television networks testified Wednesday that they could not set up for convention coverage before Aug. 11.

The networks said they were willing to go anywhere for the convention, but considerable time and money would be saved if both conventions were held in the same city.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, who also is a co-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been lobbying heavily for his party's convention to match the Republican visit.

Dallas also is considered a strong bidder because of its convention facilities and southern location.

Ask Us

Q Why does the city animal officer only catch dogs and not cats?

A The city has no cat ordinance. However, City Manager George Patterson said the city does have some cat traps which it will lend citizens who are troubled with stray cats in their area. When cats are trapped, the animal officer may be called and arrangements made for disposal of the animals. Cat complaints are rare compared to the number of dog complaints, but they do occur from time to time and so far, the trap service has served its purpose.

Superintendent At Hermleigh Resigns

HERMLEIGH — Ray Simmons, superintendent of Hermleigh Public Schools, has submitted his resignation to the board of trustees.

Asking for release effective July 1, Simmons indicated that he was resigning because of health and personal reasons. However, he agreed to stay on until a successor can be employed.

Simmons has been superintendent of the Hermleigh Schools for the past five years.

Prospective applicants for the position were being advised to contact the board of trustees.

There are plenty of ways to get to six notrump with the North-South cards, but the slambang method used by this pair is about as good any. Of course, they belong in six notrump played by North since a heart lead will defeat South at the slam.

However, West wasn't playing with mirrors and made his normal lead of the jack of spades.

South won in dummy, made the fatuous remark, "Partner, maybe we didn't bid enough," and led a low diamond from dummy.

East showed out and South talked again, "Partner, we did bid enough." Then he proceeded to take the slam and throw it out the window.

Without thinking at all, he played his jack of damonds. West won the trick and eventually the defense collected a heart trick.

South remarked that the odds had to be about 50 to one against the bad breaks he got, but North shut him up quickly by pointing out that bad breaks or no bad breaks, the slam had been a lay down.

At trick two, South should have risen with the ace of diamonds. At trick three, he should have led a low diamond toward dummy. West could not have afforded to take the trick and set up the diamond suit.

So South would have two diamond tricks home. Then he could come to his hand, take and lose the heart finesse and be home with three spades, two hearts, two diamonds and five clubs.

Summer Sun Ages Skin

COLLEGE STATION--Exercise proper skin care during summer months when emphasis on outdoor sports and the beauty appeal of suntans encourages people to spend more time in the sun.

Exposure to the sun can not only produce sunburn, but it also causes skin to age faster and increases the chance of skin cancer, says Beverly Rhoades, a clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Damage caused by sun exposure is irreversible. Results may not occur immediately but will become apparent in later years.

Products are available on the market to screen or block harmful ultraviolet radiation which can cause sunburn.

A sun screen can block 95 percent or more of the ultraviolet rays. A sun block is opaque and totally blocks ultraviolet rays and visible light.

For people who are sensitive to the sun, or who take certain drugs or hormones, or have a history of skin cancer in the family, sun screens and sun blocks are recommended.

Anyone under treatment for acne should be especially cautious with sun exposure, Miss Rhoades cautions.

Recent studies show that a prescription drug called retinoic acid or tretinoin used in the treatment of acne may increase the risk of skin cancer, especially when exposed to the sun.

Beta Sigma Phi Installs Officers

Marie Boone was installed as president of Lambda Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi for the 1979-80 sorority year in a candlelight ceremony recently at 7:30 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Carolyn Limmer, installing officer, conducted the ritual from a table covered with a white lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of three yellow roses, the sorority flower.

Other officers installed included Carolyn Greene, first vice president; Charlotte Seay, second vice president; Kay Hickman, treasurer; Bonnie Hollis, recording secretary; Carol Foust, corresponding secretary; and Susan Chesser, extension officer.

Twenty members were present for the business meeting immediately following installation. Carolyn Greene, social chairman, reminded members of the Mother's Day luncheon to be held at the Woman's Club on Saturday, May 12, at 11:30 a.m. Members are to invite their mothers or other special guests. Mrs. Greene was then commended by the chapter for the Founder's Day Banquet held April 28.

Marilyn Zoda, service chairman, announced that the service committee has decided to donate $25 to the state service project, the Baylor College of Medicine Children's Dialysis Unit. It was announced that the chapter scrapbook will be shipped to Dallas May 15 to be entered in the state competition at the state convention. Fifteen members from Snyder will attend the convention June 8-10.

Carol Foust closed the meeting by reading about standing committees from the Book of Beta Sigma Phi.

The hostesses for the evening were Peggy Wilson and Charlotte Seay. The door prize was won by Brenda Hedges. The next meeting will be the annual revealing party where names of secret sisters will be announced. The party will be held Tuesday, May 22, at 7:30 at the home of Carol Foust.

BRIDE-ELECT FETED-Lisa Voss, bride-elect of Michael Terry Crump, was honored at a bridal tea in the home of Mrs. Chuck Wolf. Other hostesses were Mmes. Electric Rate Bill Diluted By Senate

AUSTIN (AP)—Lobbyists bolted from their balcony chairs Wednesday after the Senate amended a bill that would strip city councils of their power to delay electric rate increases.

The House-passed measure had survived eight attempts to change it, but Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, broke through with proposed amendment No. 9, winning a 16-15 vote.

The amendment would require utility companies to notify ratepayers in writing of their intent to seek a rate increase.

More importantly for Traeger and other opponents of the bill, the amendment sends the bill back to the House for approval, rather than to the governor.

The Senate tentatively approved the bill, 16-14 with a final vote still needed.

"It was a rather pathetic sight to see Sen. Gene Jones filibustering against the amended version of his own bill so that the utility lobbyists would have time to twist arms in the back room and change one vote on the amendment," said Theo Brown of Common Cause.

Brown said the amendment "makes a bad bill a lot more palatable."

House members passed the measure, 74-65, a week ago, and Jones, D-Houston, fought to keep it clear of Senate amendments.

Under the bill, electric companies would take their requests for rate increases directly to the Public Utility Commission, by-passing city councils.

Cities now have the option of waiving jurisdiction in electric rate cases to the PUC. Locally decided cases can be appealed to the utility commission.

The bill would not affect municipally owned electric systems.

Electric utilities have supported the measure. The Texas Municipal League opposes it.

Traeger might have succeeded earlier in amending the bill, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby sustained a point of order by Jones, killing the amendment.

Traeger finally succeeded on his amendment requiring that customers be notified - presumably in a monthly billing - at least 35 days prior to the effective date of any proposed rate increase.

"This would give the individual customer a chance to complain, to object if his rates are going up," Traeger said.

"This amendment is not worth the time of the Senate," said Jones. "It is something Dick Brown (of the municipal league) dreamed up."

A vote to kill the amendment failed, 14-17.

Urged on by Traeger, who shouted, "Vote aye - stick. Don't let them push you off," senators then voted, 16-15, to adopt the amendment.

"Not a bad beginning for a born-again consumer advocate," Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, chided Traeger.

Jones talked over jibes that he was "filibustering" his own bill as lobbyists hurried from the gallery, obviously trying to change a vote.

There was no effort made, however, to reconsider the vote on Traeger's amendment.

"It is a credit to the senators involved that they refused to bow under this type of pressure," said Theo Brown.

In other action Wednesday, the House passed a controversial measure that would let the ceiling on home mortgage interest rates float upward from the present 10 percent to as much as 12 percent.

The measure goes to the Senate, where a filibuster is likely.

It fits Gov. Bill Clements' specifications that the interest ceiling should rise and fall monthly with fluctuations in the average rate on 10-year U.S. Treasury bonds. The ceiling would be two percentage points above the treasury rate.

Another interest-related bill passed the Senate and was returned to the House for consideration of amendments. The measure would soften penalties for illegal interest charges on long-range loans.

LESSON FOR THE PEASANT—You don't address the Grand Duchess as "Ma'am," Fitsneeze (David Galyan) corrects Greensleeves (Rick Mantooth) in this scene from "Greensleeves' Magic," the WTC children's theatre production which opens Friday. The Grand Duchess (Janice Posey) reacts arrogantly as Fitzneeze declares, "My good peasant fellow, one addresses her imperial highness, the Grand Duchess, as her imperial highness." ABC Leader For 17th Week In Row

NEW YORK (AP)—Bolstered by high ratings for shows featuring a rather odd trio of characters, "Mork and Mindy" and "Ike," ABC-TV swept to first place in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings for the 17th week in a row.

An episode of "Mork and Mindy" at 8 p.m. EDT last Thursday grabbed first place in the ratings for the week ending May 6, and "Mork and Mindy" at 8:30 the same night was tied for second with Parts I and III of "Ike," the network's three-part war years biography of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Part II of "Ike" was 15th in the ratings.

Only two programs, the Miss U.S.A. beauty contest and "60 Minutes," both on CBS, stood between ABC and a clean sweep of Nielsen's first 15 places. ABC's heavy representation at the top added up to a rating for the week of 20.5. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.5 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

The week's No. 1 show had a rating of 27.6. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 27.6 percent saw at least part of the program.

All three networks scored with specials in a week sprinkled liberally with reruns. The Country Music Awards show on ABC was No. 16, NBC's "The Best of 'Saturday Night Life' Part II," was No. 27, and "Castaways from Gilligan's Island," also on NBC, was 32nd.

NBC's best regular program was a repeat of "Chips," No. 20.

Each of the networks was represented at the bottom of the ratings: "Mackenzies of Paradise Cove" on ABC was 55th, followed by "Supertrain" on NBC, a "CBS Reports" news special on the Three-Mile Island nuclear accident, "The Osmond Family Show" on ABC and NBC's "Highcliffe Manor."

Here are the week's Top 10 programs:

"Mork and Mindy," 8 p.m., with a rating of 27.6 representing 20.6 million homes, ABC; "Mork and Mindy," 8:30 p.m., "Ike," Part I, and "Ike," Part III, all 27.1 or 20.2 million, all ABC; "Three's Company," 26.5 or 19.7 million, and "Laverne and Shirley," 26.3 or 19.6 million, both ABC; "Miss U.S.A. Beauty Pageant," 25.5 or 19 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 23 or 17.1 million; "Taxi," 22.9 or 17 million, and "Fantasy Island," 22.2 or 16.5 million, all ABC.

The next 10 shows:

"Love Boat," ABC; "60 Minutes," CBS; "Charlie's Angels," Movies; "Beach Patrol" and "Samurai," and "Ike," Part II, all ABC; "Country Music Awards," NBC; "Eight Is Enough," ABC; "Alice" and "Dukes of Hazzard," both CBS, and "CHips," NBC.

In Event Of Rationing...

Farmers, Cops, Busses To Get Necessary Gas

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-If talk of gasoline rationing turns to fact, police, bus systems and farmers will be among the few receiving as much fuel as they need, a federal energy report indicates.

The big gasoline losers, according to Department of Energy figures, will be owners of gas-gulping cars and people who live in rural areas with no public transportation for commuting long distances.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger has called gasoline rationing "a stringent measure intended for use only in the most severe shortage situation" such as another Arab oil embargo.

The Senate voted Wednesday to approve President Carter's request for authority to order rationing and the House was expected to approve the measure by a narrow margin late today.

If rationing ever is implemented, a DOE report entitled "Standby Gasoline Rationing Plan" indicates persons providing essential public services such as national defense, police and fire protection would receive virtually all the gasoline they need to operate.

"Those consumers, such as those in rural areas, who must travel long distance to work and who have no public transportation available as a substitute for driving would be the most adversely affected," the report says.

Alaska, Idaho, Maine, the Dakotas, Vermont and Wyoming are states with big rural populations, the report shows.

It also says farmers and others involved in food production would get as much gasoline as needed to meet production goals set by the president.

Mass public transportation systems could receive even larger allotments than they get now because undoubtedly more people would use them, the report's figures show.

But the same figures show that folks who drive big cars wouldn't get any more gas coupons than those who drive little ones.

"Efficiency will be rewarded," one energy official said.

The report shows that companies using big trucks, the moving firms and short-haul shippers, would receive about 75.5 percent of their gasoline requirements. But companies using small trucks, light vans or automobiles would receive only a little more than half their normal requirements.

Motorcycle drivers would receive smaller allotments than drivers of regular passenger cars.

Congress is still fighting over formulas for deciding how much gas individuals would receive. Under the current plan, families would be issued coupons on a basis of how many cars they owned, limiting the allotments to three registered vehicles per family.

Playday At Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — The Nolan County 4-H Horse Club will sponsor an open playday Saturday at the Nolan County Coliseum. Registration will begin at 8 a.m. with the playday starting at 9 a.m. Entry fee is $2 per event.

The events will include western pleasure, reining, barrels, flags and poles. Age groups will be eight and under, nine through 13, 14 through 17 and 18 and over.

Following the playday, there will be jackpot barrels, poles and flags with entry fee of $5 and $4 in the jackpot.

Snyderite To Receive Degree

HAMMOND, La. — Michael I Lemon of Snyder is a candidate for a degree in spring commencement exercises at Southeastern Louisiana University.

The commencement is set for 10 a.m. Saturday. Lemon is scheduled to receive a bachelors degree in industrial technology.

The great Kelso won five straight renewals of the Jockey's Club Gold cup.

MICROFILM RECEIVED—Scurry County Library has received microfilm of the 1900 Texas Census. Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Sterling are shown using the microfilm which has been helpful to them in compiling their ancestral "work" chart. This and other census material is available to others who are working on genealogy.

2 Mishaps Reported

Police investigated two minor accidents Wednesday. The first was reported at 1:10 p.m. in the 3000 block of 41st Street and involved a 1954 Ford driven by David Loflin and a 1970 Chevrolet driven by Gregg Merritt.

The second mishap of the day occurred at 4:13 p.m. at 6th Street and U.S. Highway 84. A trailer being pulled by Douglas Eugene Klotz of 1900 Coleman was damaged when he failed to successfully negotiate a curve at that location. A wrecker was called for the trailer.

League Baseball Hosts Opening Ceremonies

Opening ceremonies for Little League and Farm League baseball will be held 6 p.m. Friday at the southwest field in Towle Park.

Over 150 players, coaches and managers will be introduced at the ceremonies, followed at 7 o'clock by the season's first games.

The Athletics and Cardinals will file out of the respective dugouts for the campaign opener, while the Cubs and Giants clash in the second tilt at 8:30.

Saturday's action begins at 7 with the Indians and White Sox battling, followed by the Yankees and Braves at 8:30.

Play will continue on Friday and Saturday only until June 4, when the leagues go into a Monday-Tuesday, Thursday-Friday format. An exception is May 31, a Thursday, when the Braves and Indians meet at 7, followed by the Athletics and Yankees at 8:30. No games will be held on the next day, a Friday, though they will resume on Saturday.

Sponsors for the season include the Lions Club (Cubs), the American Legion (Yankees), Snyder National Bank (Giants), West Texas State Bank (Athletics), the Kiwanis Club (Braves), the Rotary Club (Cardinals), Snyder Motor Company (White Sox), and Von Roeder Seed Farms (Indians).

Cats Entertained At Brownfield

BROWNFIELD — Sometimes it's hard to keep your mind on the stew when cherry pie is across the table, but that's the problem facing the Snyder Tigers the rest of the week.

With two games still remaining on the district schedule - including one here at 4:30 today - Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers are all too aware of their bi-district playoff series coming up with Burkburnett.

The Tigers are slated to host the Burk Bulldogs at 4 p.m. Tuesday in a best-of-three series. It will be the third consecutive meeting for the two teams. Snyder won the title in 1977, and the 'Dogs took it back in 1978 with the series going a full three games.

A flip of the coin gave Snyder the opening game Tuesday, but the finale will take place in Burkburnett. The Bulldogs will host the Tigers at 2 p.m. on Friday, in what could be a double-header, depending on the outcome of the first two games.

Back to the stew, however, Snyder will be 8-2 loop-wise, going into today's game here. The Tigers will complete the District 3-AAA schedule by entertaining Lamesa at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Then the pie gets cut.

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— The racehorse San Antonio Spurs have never been confused with barroom brawlers under the basket. But they say they'll continue to physically challenge the heavyweight Washington Bullets - like they did in Wednesday night's 116-114 playoff victory.

Whether they can keep it up remains to be seen, says a doubting Washington Coach Dick Motta.

The bantamweight Spurs, showing uncharacteristically tough inside muscle, neutralized Washington behemoths Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes in grabbing a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven, NBA Eastern Conference championship series.

The massive 6-foot-7, 250-pound Unseld, who had bullied the Spurs for 40 points and 41 rebounds in the first two games of the series, was limited to a paltry six points and 18 rebounds. Worn out by the Spurs elbows and their patented running attack, he sat out much of the fourth quarter in foul trouble.

The 6-9 Hayes, meanwhile, got a mere 15 points, 11 under his playoff average. He hit only seven of 20 shots and one of six free throws.

"Mark (Olberding) and Billy (Paultz) just didn't let Unself get through," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "They beat on him as much as he beat on them. Before it was just him beating on us and his shoving us out of the way. Today it was both ways.

"You can't back away from people all the time. I thought we did a good job being physical," added Moe. "Everybody who took Hayes did a good job."

Moe promised that the 6-9, 230-pound Olberding and the 6-11, 240-pound Paultz would again try to match muscles with the defending NBA champions when the series continues Friday night in San Antonio.

"They will take a lot of cheap shots, but they will not intimidate us," countered Motta. "They threw a lot of elbows I didn't like."

"It'll be okay for one night, but it's not going to be a continuous thing," said Washington forward Bobby Dandridge, who got 28 points Wednesday night.

Carter King Of State Meet?

AUSTIN (AP)—Southern Methodist University track coach Jim Parr says he's not going to make any more predictions about the success of Dallas Thomas Jefferson shot put phenom Michael Carter.

"I don't know where his plateau is, he just keeps improving," Parr said. "Anyone would be foolish to put limits on him. He's the most promising shot putter in the world."

Carter, who will attend SMU on a football scholarship this fall, will be center stage in Memorial Stadium this weekend as the University Interscholastic League presents the state championship track meet in classes B, A, 2A, 3A and 4A.

And Parr will be hanging on Carter's every move.

"Early in the season I said he'd throw the high school shot 77 feet and he's already done that so he may throw 80 feet before he's through," Parr said. "But I'd be afraid to say how far he can go."

The talented Carter bettered the national high school shot record eight times during the 1979 season, topped last week with a 77-foot heave at a qualifiers meet in Abilene.

Carter then picked up the 16-pound shot and tossed it 66-4, an effort that would be good enough to win the Southwest Conference track meet also underway this weekend at Memorial Stadium.

Carter, 6-3, 250, owns the national records in the shot for sophomore, junior and senior grade levels in both the 12 and 16-pound shot put.

The state discus record of 197-3 might also be in danger when Carter begins competition Friday afternoon. He'll compete in the Class 4A shot put Saturday.

"You don't make a great sprinter, they are born," Parr said. "A shot putter is the same way and what makes Carter so great is his form just comes natural.

"About all I'd do with Carter is buy him a pair of shoes and show him the dining hall."

State champions will be named in Classes 2A and 3A Friday night with finals slated in Classes B, A and 4A on Saturday.

Grieving Over Cowens Injury

ARLINGTON (AP)— Texas Ranger pitcher Ed Farmer said he was distressed to hear Kansas City outfielder Al Cowens thought the high inside fastball that shattered his left cheek bone was thrown intentionally at him.

Farmer, who visited the Royals right fielder in his hospital room Wednesday, said he told Cowens that if he threw at a batter, he would not throw at his face. And that if he was guilty of throwing at him, the last place he would want to be is there in his hospital room.

The 6-5 righthander had hit Royals second baseman Frank White on the second pitch of the first inning, breaking his right thumb.

Cowens was decked by a Farmer fastball that hit him in the face during the fifth inning of Tuesday night's game.

"He thinks I'm guilty of throwing at him. I think he's guilty of looking for an outside pitch and not moving," Farmer said.

"I understand his point, with him lying there in a hospital bed with his jaws wired together. I'm sorry it happened. It is unfortunate."

Farmer said Cowens told him that he didn't understand how he could strike him out with three outside pitches early in the game and then come at him with a high inside pitch.

Farmer said he had heard reports that Cowen said "one of these days he (Farmer) is going to get his."

"If they want to take a shot at me fine, but I'm not going to sit there and take it," Farmer told reporters later.

The Ranger pitcher said his phone rang all day Wednesday.

"I've gotten calls from all over the country today and everybody thinks I am a killer. I pitched well five days ago and nobody calls."

Farmer said he told Cowens he was "in my family's prayers as well as in mine. I walked out of his room feeling bad. Of course I didn't feel very good when I walked in."

Tubbs Eyes AAU Title

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)— Amateur heavyweight Tony Tubbs a protege of Muhammad Ali says he's getting sharper and meaner as the AAU national championship tournament rolls on.

Tubbs meets Richard Cade of Salinas, Kans. in a semifinal match of the tournament on Friday night. He won his way into Friday night's round by stopping Alex DeLucia of Portland, Ore.

The late Adolph Rupp called his 1958 Kentucky NCAA basketball championship team the "Fiddlin' Five."

Rookie Saves The Day...For KC

ARLINGTON (AP)-A 23-year-old rookie pitcher, just called up from the minors, flew in on a 3 p.m. plane and Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog didn't even get to visit with him before the Royals' game Wednesday night with the Texas Rangers.

But when the Rangers were threatening in the bottom of the eighth, Herzog didn't hesitate to summon Remie Martin for his major league debut.

"When you bring 'em up, put 'em in the first chance you get. That's the way I like to do it," Herzog grinned.

Martin had a 3-1 record this year with the Royals' farm club at Jacksonville, Fla.

"I didn't even get to see him before the game to say, 'How are you?' or 'Glad to have you' or anything. When he got to the mound, I just told him, 'Get this man out.'"

Martin did. He got Billy Sample on a short fly to left field to end the inning and then put down another Ranger rally in the ninth to preserve a 4-3 victory for Rich Gale, 2-2.

Ferguson Jenkins, who went the distance for Texas, took the loss, his first after four victories. Jenkins struck out five, walked three and gave up seven hits.

But Jenkins suffered from four Texas errors, two of the runs charged to him were unearned.

Gale gave up six hits - three of them to Al Oliver, who had four singles in five at-bats for the evening - and struck out four while walking two. He left in the seventh inning after something popped in his elbow.

Kansas City, with two runs in the first and one in the seventh, led 3-0 at the time, but reliever Al Hrabosky gave up five singles in the inning he worked, including Bump Wills' bases-loaded hit that scored two runs in the eighth and left Jim Sundberg on second and Wills on first.

That's where Martin came on the scene.

Steve Braun homered for the Royals in the ninth to make it 4-2, and then Buddy Bell doubled in the bottom of the ninth and scored on Oliver's single.

But with one out, Richie Zisk grounded to short, and Fred Patek turned a double play that ended the game.

Gale said the team doctor diagnosed his problems as a mild hyper-extension and said he shouldn't miss his regular turn on the mound.

SWC Makes Some Changes At Meeting

THE WOODLANDS (AP)-The Southwest Conference has voted to make it more costly for its members placed on probation by eliminating them from a share of post-season bowl revenues, which last season amounted to about $300,000 per school.

"I believe the feeling was widespread that the current process was an insufficient penalty to institutions which in some cases could profit from wrong doing," SWC President Al Witte of Arkansas said at the conclusion of the three-day meeting Wednesday.

Four SWC schools played in post-season bowl games last year and under conference rules the share from each game is divided among the nine SWC schools.

This rule is patterned after what the Southeastern Conference did a year ago," SWC Commissioner Cliff Speegle said. "I think all the conferences across the country are going to go to a rule like this."

A school placed on probation in one sport still could receive football bowl game revenues, Witte said.

Mutual Radio Network, criticized last year for its handling of SWC broadcasts, met with SWC officials and Witte said Mutual officials agreed the quality of many broadcasts needed to be upgraded.

"We reviewed all aspects of the conference agreement with Mutual," Speegle said. "That included advertising, time outs and you name it, we discussed it. It was the consensus of both Mutual and the conference that the performance for 1979 will be vastly improved."

Complaints against Mutual's SWC football package last season included frequent commercial breaks during playing time and games being broadcast by out-lying stations in metropolitan areas.

Speegle said no action was taken on any pending investigative matters.

SWC officials had said earlier they did not expect to have a report on an alleged bank loan to a Texas A&M defensive tackle Mack Moore. SWC investigators are trying to determine if Moore received a loan under preferential terms after his transfer to A&M.

Manager John McNamara of the Cincinnati Reds never played in the major leagues.

Australia Dumps 'States Net Men

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP)—Australia completed a 3-0 rout of the U.S. men Wednesday by sweeping the decisive third set in doubles at the Nation's Cup Tennis Tournament.

John Alexander and Phil Dent beat Arthur Ashe and Stan Smith 7-6 in the tiebreaker. In other matches, Kim Warwick whipped Eddie Dibbs 6-2, 6-2 and Alexander beat Ashe 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

Italians Adriano Panatta and Paolo Bertolucci teamed up to whip Jose Luis Clerc and Ricardo Cano of Argentina 6-4, 6-7, 6-3 for a 2-1 victory over the Latin Americans in a Group A match.

In other Group A matches, Spain virtually eliminated Britain's chances of a strong finish with a 2-1 win.

Astros Notch Another; Still Clutch West Lead

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston righthander Bo McLaughlin is starting to regain his confidence.

McLaughlin hurled three innings of clutch relief before Bob Watson delivered a two-out run scoring single in the 16th inning to give the Astros a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals early today.

McLaughlin, who had surrendered nine hits and six runs in four previous innings this season, held St. Louis to one hit and struck out four while gathering his first major league win in two years.

McLaughlin's effort capped 10 innings of shutout relief by the Astros bullpen as Houston managed to hold on to its one-half game lead over second place Cincinnati in the National League West.

Pinchhitter Jimmy Sexton opened the inning with a single and was safe at second when pitcher Will McEnaney fielded Terry Pool's attempted sacrifice and threw wide to second, pulling shortstop Garry Templeton off the bag.

The Astros mounted their rally in the 16th against losing pitcher Tom Bruno, 1-2, when Jeff Leonard singled with one out, stole second and moved to third on a fielder's choice before scoring on Watson's hit to shallow center field.

Collegians Sign As Pros

PITTSBURGH (AP)-Dave DiCiccio, a two-year starter at defensive end for Pitt, and Temple running back Anthony Anderson were among eight collegiate free agents signed by the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League.

DiCiccio will be tried at safety by the Steelers.

Also signed Wednesday were wide receiver Larry Douglas of Southern University; wide receiver Jerry Taylor of Tulsa, guard George Small of North Carolina A&T, cornerback Derrick Gljsper of Virginia, linebacker Mark Olivari of Tulane, and defensive end Bernie Winters of Syracuse. Winters played last season with Saskatchewan of the Canadian Football League.

Selmon Wants 24 Feet...

One More Goal In '79

By BILL McCLELLAN

He hasn't been what you'd call a franchise, but he's definitely a team player.

In football, he was yanked up to fill a safety post late in the season. In basketball, Coach Jack Stephenson utilized his quickness when conditions called for it.

And in track, he has performed on the sprint relay team, run the 100-yard dash, high jumped and long jumped. The latter event is one he's excelled in. So well, in fact, that it's earned him a trip to the State Track Meet in Austin this weekend.

The name is Thomas Selmon, or Tommy Lynn as he's usually called. Well-known around the district for his all-around ability, Thomas is rapidly gaining notice state-wide. He's one of less than a dozen or so high school athletes who have long jumped 23 feet this year. With luck, he'll be even better known after Friday.

Thomas' best to date has been a 23-5½ effort. He's won several meets with lesser jumps, but on that particular occasion, he wound up second.

"Boy, that was something," he muses, shaking his head. "To do that and get beat." The victor was Brownfield's Gilbert Franco, whom Thomas defeated later at the District 3-AAA meet.

It's a rivalry that will no doubt continue next year for both juniors, but now it's past, and the Snyder athlete has another debt he'd like to repay.

"I want to beat (Van) Pearcy. He's beaten me twice this year and I really want to beat him bad at state," Thomas explains of the Andrews High School athlete who won the long jump at regionals and will also be running the 440 and 220 at state.

"He makes it look easy, but nobody's really jumped out in front of him yet. He's never been behind and had to out-jump somebody."

Unlike teammates Brad Richardson and Dale Jenkins, who will also represent Snyder at the state meet, Thomas hit his best effort in mid-season, and hasn't beaten it yet. It caused some frustration, but he believes he's uncovered the solution now.

"The hot weather was slowing down the track (runway) and it was causing me all kinds of problems," he relays. "Now I'm going half speed until I get to my mark and then going all out. It helps me get more speed and I'm hitting the board better," he explains.

Though he never jumps all out during workouts ("I hold it in until the weekend."), Thomas says he's jumping better than in recent weeks, and believes his new approach will help him in Austin.

As if being on three district championship teams wasn't enough, Thomas has another goal.

"I'd like to go 23-10," he grins, figuring that distance will win the Class AAA event Friday afternoon. "Now if I could go 24 feet, it would just about top off my year."

Rail Workers Strike Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP)-A threatened strike by the nation's railway dispatchers has been put off until at least July.

President Carter invoked his emergency powers Tuesday to delay the walkout which could have shut down most of the nation's rail lines. The 3,000-member American Train Dispatchers Association had threatened to strike at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

House Tentatively OKs Product Liability Bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Consumers injured by defective products would find lawsuits harder to win and might receive less for their injuries under a bill tentatively approved by the Texas House.

The bill, which addresses the product liability insurance "crisis," advanced, 74-63, Wednesday night. Final passage to the Senate could come today.

Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said he introduced the bill because businessmen "were unable to obtain insurance at a cost enabling them to enter new ventures or introduce new product lines."

He spoke of "misapplication of justice" in cases where manufacturers were held liable for injuries even though they had not been negligent in making a product.

Rep. Ben Z. Grant, D-Marshall, blamed high product liability insurance rates and the difficulty of obtaining adequate coverage on insurance companies, not the legal system.

"The product liability 'crisis' is nothing more than greed. It's another 'crisis' brought to you by the insurance companies," Grant said.

Unable to kill the bill, trial lawyers serving in the House succeeded in weakening it with a series of amendments during the nearly 5½ hours of emotional debate.

The bill would give manufacturers sued for injuries inflicted by defective products a "state of the art" defense.

If a manufacturer proved elimination of a defect was impossible with the knowledge and techniques available when the product was made, the consumer would get nothing.

An injured consumer's money damages would be reduced by the extent that his or her own acts - such as misuse or just plain negligence - caused an accident in which he or she was hurt.

A $1 million judgment, therefore, would be reduced by $600,000 if a jury found a consumer was 60 percent to blame for his or her injuries.

The original bill would have denied any recovery to a consumer who was found to share equally with the manufacturer in the blame for an accident involving a defective product.

That provision was eliminated, 74-67, over McFarland's objection that it would violate an agreement reached by lawyers who negotiated in Speaker Bill Clayton's dining room.

"We are not tied to an outside agreement. We write the laws. We decide what is equitable," replied Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston.

The House also voted 75-67 to make the bill's provisions expire automatically on Sept. 1, 1981, unless the 1981 Legislature extends them.

"If this is going to reduce insurance rates, we'll find out about it before Sept. 1, 1981," said Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas.

House members also voted to require insurance companies to disclose their product liability losses, income and reserves and their profits from investing premiums. The State Insurance Board would have to take investment income directly into account as a factor for reducing rates.

Fred Astaire 80 Today

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— "What's all the fuss about? It's just a round number."

That was Fred Astaire's characteristic response on the occasion of his 80th birthday today.

The ultimate dancer of show business history, Astaire plans to spend his four-score anniversary in his usual modest style - a dinner with daughter Ava, son Fred Jr. and their families, including a half-dozen grandchildren.

About his life today, "I'm doing the things I want to do."

Besides his family, he is interested in racehorses. His greatest success was with Triplicate, who won the Hollywood Gold Cup and earned $244,000 before retirement.

"I have a brood mare and couple of foals that are not ready yet," he reported. "I don't know if they ever will be. But I'm hoping."

What Astaire is not interested in is the profession he pursued from age 5½, when he entered vaudeville with sister Adele.

"I won't dance," he said in a telephone interview Wednesday, echoing one of the famous songs associated with him.

"I danced up to the age of 70, when I did my last television special. That was too damned long," he added. "It was strenuous, but fortunately I suffered no ill effects. I'm just not going to push my luck."

He relented on his vow for no more dancing in 1976, when good friend Gene Kelly persuaded him to join a brief duet for MGM's musical cavalcade "That's Entertainment, Part 2."

The Astaire artistry remains a legend from the Broadway musicals with Adele to 10 films with Ginger Rogers to other glittering musicals with such partners as Joan Crawford, Audrey Hepburn, Leslie Caron and Cyd Charisse.

The choreographer George Balanchine once called him "the greatest dancer in the world," a judgment Astaire termed "undeniably erroneous." He was on best-dressed lists year after year and to many, in his top hat, white tie and tails, he was simply elegance personified.

From "Dancing Lady" in 1933 until the 1976 duet with Gene Kelly, Fred Astaire was the impeccable dancer and complete gentleman to generations of movie-goers.

And now, while he won't dance, he hasn't retired from acting.

His role as a disabled oldster in a television movie, "A Family Upside Down," won him an Emmy last year. His latest role was in a segment of the outer space series "Battlestar Galactica."

Danger Season For Tornadoes Not Over Yet

WASHINGTON (AP) The danger season for tornadoes is not yet over, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration warns.

"Statistics show the greatest number of tornadoes occurs in May, with June having the second highest total," said Dr. Joseph T. Schaefer of NOAA's National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City. "But researchers have found the most violent twisters occur in April, proving that last month's devastating storms in Texas were right on schedule. In addition to the April-June season, Schaefer said, there is a resurgence of twisters in late October or early November."

A CAGE SERVED double duty for 10-year-old Stuart Gan and his beagle, Fleur, at a recent London dog show. Stuart seemed more content on top of the cage than Fleur did inside of it.

House Votes Approval Of Nuclear Waste Bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)--The House has approved a bill authorizing state ownership of low level nuclear waste disposal sites, despite a warning it would invite federal dumps for high energy radioactive material.

House members advanced the bill Wednesday, 82-55, and a final vote could come today. That would return the bill to the Senate for approval or disapproval of changes made by the House.

Rep. Ron Waters, D-Houston, urged defeat of the bill.

"I want a signal to President Carter that we are concerned in this state about sending high-level radioactive materials into this state. His decision on a federally operated disposal site will be political. If the state does nothing to signal that we don't want it in this state, it will come to this state," Waters said.

Texas must pass a law authorizing state acquisition of low-level storage sites by November 1981 or surrender all nuclear regulation to the federal government, said Rep. Tom Martin, D-George West, the sponsor.

The State Health Department has regulated disposal of low-energy wastes, such as those generated by hospitals and oil operations, since 1963.

Martin's district includes uranium mines and mills whose radioactive "tailings" must be disposed of in a way that protects the public from radiation.

His bill authorizes the health department to acquire nuclear waste storage sites and operate them itself or lease them to private firms operating under department supervision.

Businesses and other entities licensed to store nuclear materials would pay fees into a Radiation and Perpetual Care Fund for maintaining the storage sites.

An amendment to the bill prohibits Texas storage sites from accepting radioactive materials from other states.

Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, sought unsuccessfully to table the bill and to restrict nuclear activities by amendments, then urged the House to kill it.

"Do you want them (the health department) to tell you that you are going to have a radioactive dump in your district, near your house, near your schools?" Mrs. Denton said.

A number of representatives laughed and shouted, "No, No."

She said the bill lacked a definition of low level waste, prescribed no environmental limitations on location of disposal sites and offered no chance for the public to participate in site selection.

Martin said there was no way the bill would invite a federal nuclear dump. It does the opposite.

As to health hazards, he said the health department's track record for regulating nuclear materials was better than the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission's.

He blamed the NRC for the use of uranium mill tailings in concrete that went into building foundations in Grand Junction, Colo.

WTC Groups Plan Concert For Sunday

Instrumental and vocal ensembles at Western Texas College will combine their talents for a concert at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

Tickets, priced at $1.50 per person, may be purchased at the door. Reservations are to be made by calling the Fine Arts Division office at 573-8511, extension 234.

Making up the Jazz Ensemble are J.D. Sheffield, soprano sax; Rocky Youngblood, alto sax; Noble Young, tenor sax; David Patterson, trombone; Mark Cozart, keyboards; Neal Goates, drums; and Guy Gamble, bass. Gamble is director for the Jazz Ensemble.

In the vocal ensemble are Lisa Anderson, Teresa Edmiaston, Sheryl Burk, Vickie Greenfield and Carol Taylor, sopranos; Peggy Highfield, Murray Ann Ray, Jan Holley and Lynn Wimmer, altoes; Gary Miller and David Galvan, basses; and Terry Lewis and Allen Young, tenors. Mrs. Jane Womack is the director.

Find Skull Of Alamo Soldier

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)--A skull recently found at the Alamo was apparently that of a young soldier who suffered a sword or knife wound in 1836 Texas Revolution battle, say University of Texas at San Antonio archeologists.

Archaeologists reconstructed the broken portions of the skull and found a cut indicating an injury inflicted by a sword or similar weapon. Anne Fox, historical archaeologist with the UTSA Center for Archaeological Research, said Wednesday.

The wound is believed to have contributed to or was the cause of death.

A small band of about 185 Texans was wiped out March 6, 1836 by more than 1,000 Mexican troops under Santa Anna in a crucial battle of the Texas Revolution. The battle followed a 13-day siege.

Ms. Fox said there is no way to determine if the skull was that of a Texan or a Mexican soldier. After the battle, Santa Anna ordered the bodies of the Texas soldiers burned.

The skull was discovered under some stones along a north wall of the downtown missionfortress where a new fence is being built. After fitting together the broken pieces, the team of archaeologists found it was an almost complete skull from a man about 20 years old.

Because of related artifacts found in the vicinity, they were able to determine that the skull "quite likely" was that of a victim of the battle. Musket balls and a gun lock were among battle artifacts found nearby, she said.

The archaeologists also found evidence of a fortification trench near the north wall. Until this discovery, there was no record that such a trench was built at the Alamo.

"This was a popular form of fortification at that time and it originated in Europe," said Ms. Fox. "The men simply dug a trench near a wall and piled dirt beside it. This enabled them to stand on the mound of dirt to shoot over the wall and also delayed anyone who scaled the wall to enter the fort."

Although the jaw and facial protions of the skull and the other skeletal remains were not found, Ms. Fox believes they are buried somewhere along the trench.

The top of the skull breaks away easily once the body has deteriorated. It could easily have been swept away when the trench was being filled, she said.

Falling Building Kills 14 Year Old

CHICAGO (AP)--Police said high winds may have toppled a frame building undergoing foundation repairs, killing a 14-year-old boy and injuring a 63-year-old man.

The South Side building, which housed apartments and a tavern, collapsed Tuesday and slightly injured 12 bar patrons, who refused hospital treatment.

Lynda Robb Launches Her Duties As Advisor

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-A famous name and credentials as a wife and mother got Lynda Bird Robb the job as chairwoman of the President's Advisory Committee for Women.

The 35-year-old daughter of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson takes over her new duties today, replacing former Rep. Bella Abzug whom President Carter fired in January.

The president announced Mrs. Robb's appointment Wednesday.

Sarah Weddington, the president's adviser on women's issues, quoted Carter as saying one reason he chose Mrs. Robb was because "people would return her calls."

Another reason was because her role as mother of three children and wife of Virginia Lt. Gov. Charles S. Robb would balance other members of the committee who are indentified more for professional achievements.

But as a woman who never quite left the public eye and holds executive positions in several Johnson family businesses, Mrs. Robb is not exactly a typical homemaker.

She said Wednesday night at a reception given by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, she hoped to represent "those women who have not belonged to anything in the women's movement."

"I don't say I am a voice for all the women; I am a channel for the voices of millions of women," said Mrs. Robb, who wore a petite black hat, a marked contrast to the flamboyant floppy hats worn by her predecessor.

Mrs. Robb said that before accepting the post she talked with her mother, Lady Bird Johnson, who "reminded me of the many times my father tried to get women into government."

"Women do have an obligation, when they can, to work for other women," she said.

During their meeting, Carter told the new chairwoman he wanted the group to be independent and he knows "it may be critical of him,"

Mrs. Abzug, a former New York congresswoman, was fired over just such an exercise of independence. The firing occurred after the group criticized Carter in a news release prepared before a scheduled meeting with him.

Mrs. Abzug said Wednesday that Carter had "impaired the independence of this committee, but I know Lynda Robb, respect her and wish her and the members of the committee well."

Arlie Scott, vice president of the National Organization for Women, said Mrs. Robb was "not from the women's movement; it's clearly a political appointment."

A self-described feminist, Mrs. Robb has worked for ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment in Virginia, but is not associated with any particular feminist group.

The group advises the president on various issues relating to women.

CHOICES
Karen Blaker Ph.D.

No simple solution

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — You have written often about alcoholics and their families' difficulties in getting them to accept help.

Why don't they merely take the alcoholic to a medical doctor who, after hearing the story, would advise the person to stop drinking? Aren't you making it more complicated than necessary?

DEAR READER — No. The basis for human behavior is never simple. In this case, there are two major problems.

First of all, people — like horses — can be led to water. But they can't be made to drink or not to drink, as the case may be.

Alcoholics Anonymous often advises the family of an alcoholic to let matters deteriorate, leaving bills unpaid and absences unexplained at work.

Only when the person is forced to face the consequences of his or her actions can things begin to change. It takes more than advice from a medical doctor.

However, doctors could certainly help by recognizing the early signs of alcoholism and confronting the person with the realities of the disease. At least they would not be joining the conspiracy of denial that usually surrounds this problem.

That brings us to the second factor complicating your rather simplistic solution. Many doctors are not all that familiar with alcoholism.

The head of one medical school calls it the "four-two-three syndrome." In their four years of medical school, students get two hours of exposure to the number three killer in the United States.

All in all, there is no simple solution.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — My mother says I am the black sheep of the family. I guess I am.

I just love to read her private mail, which she often leaves open on her desk in the dining room. I learn juicy bits of gossip about relatives and sometimes even about her.

Then I have plenty of ammunition when she tries to prove that I am bad.

Now she says she is going to throw me out of the house unless I stop reading her mail. Don't you think I should obey her and start loving her again? After all, I am only 17 years old.

DEAR READER — Could it really be that simple?

Your mother is making you feel inferior by constantly comparing you negatively to the rest of the family. That makes you feel bad about yourself.

So, you look for the imperfections in others that she fails to see — or at least tell you about. And it makes you feel stronger.

There is a better way.

Begin looking to the outside world for proof that you are OK. Develop close friendships, make good grades or excel in sports.

Do whatever you enjoy, but do it well. You will get lots of attention and gratification.

Then, feeling better about yourself, you will not need to read your mother's mail. You will believe in yourself.

Take aim against shyness with Dr. Blaker's "Shyness" hotline. Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Write to Dr. Blaker at the above address. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

VA Now Permitted To Pay For Grave Marker

The Veterans Administration is now permitted to make a cash reimbursement to persons who purchase grave markers from private sources for the graves of eligible veterans, E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

Public Law 95-476, approved on Oct. 18, 1978, contained a provision for the cash reimbursement. To be eligible for the allowance: burial must have occured on or after Oct. 18, and the deceased must have been released from service under conditions other than dishonorable. Wartime service is not a requirement.

The cash payment cannot be made if the burial takes place in a national cemetery, since all grave makers in such facilities are the same and are furnished and installed by the VA without application by the next of kin.

The claimant must submit a receipted bill showing the name of the veteran for whom the marker was purchased, a description or other statement by the claimant purporting to show payments is not accepted.

The amount of the allowance will be the lesser or the average government cost for the year in which the market or additional engraving was purchased. This amount has been determined to be $50 for the period from Oct. 18, 1978 through Sept. 30, 1979.

More information concerning this benefit and other VA benefits may be obtained by contacting Dever at his office in the Western Texas College Administration Building. The office is open each weekday and Monday through Thursday evenings. Persons wishing to make appointments may call Dever at 573-8511, extension 212.

Highway Work Bids Sought

AUSTIN - Bids will be received until May 17 for the improvement of a section of US Highway 84 in Scurry and Nolan Counties.

The proposed work extends from 1.0 mile north of Roscoe to 1.0 mile south of Hermleigh, a distance of about 18.9 miles.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation proposes to overlay the existing 24-foot wide pavement on the west lane of the divided highway with asphalt stabilized base material and asphaltic concrete pavement and to provide 8-foot-wide shoulders on the outside lane.

Abilene District Engineer Roger Welsch said the work will increase the load carrying capacity of the highway and extend its life.

N.A. Billingsley is the department's engineer in direct charge of the work.

DR. JOHN O'BANION

Dr. O'Banion Delegate To Convention

Dr. John W. O'Banion has returned from the Texas State Medical Association's annual convention in Dallas.

The convention was in session May 3-5. Dr. O'Banion represented the Colorado Basin Medical Society as its delegate to the state convention.

The Colorado Basin Medical Society is composed of Scurry, Mitchell, Nolan and Fisher Counties, and Dr. O'Banion was elected to the House of Delegates by the Colorado Basin Medical Society to fill a position held for many years by Dr. Ben Cown of Colorado City.

The convention, an educational event, was dedicated to problems of delivery of health care to citizens of Texas.

Guest speakers included Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Dr. Nesbit, President of the American Medical Association.

Wood-Burning Furnace Heats Inventor's Home

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — It was in a Siberian prison camp, more than 30 years ago, that Laszlo the tailor started thinking about his aluminum-painted, wood-burning furnace.

Today it stands in the garage of his tailor shop in west St. Paul, a monument to his skill and imagination and a symbol of his past.

"I could have invented something else ... but thank God now that I survived the 19 prison camps they put me in from 1945 to 1948. It was so terribly cold. Fifty-two below, very little heat. We nearly froze or starved. And to stay alive, we had to develop some creative heating systems," he says, patting the 4-foot-high furnace.

Laszlo Tekler is a big, hearty, smiling man who invites visitors to drink wine with him and "chat like we used to in my home town in Hungary." They're likely to see pots of goulash and noodles simmering on the stove, and a newly-sown bed of Hungarian paprika in the window.

Tekler's furnace operates through burning wood that heats water pipes running from a false ceiling into every room of his two-story house and tailor shop in front.

"Now, when the furnace is working, a red light goes on in the kitchen behind the tailor shop on this panel, connected to the gas furnace," Tekler explains.

"So I never have to run out into the garage to see what's happening, unless it is to add a few pieces of wood. Maybe every four or five hours."

City inspectors were amazed by the safety devices the tailor installed.

First, when the water temperature reaches 180 degrees, an automatic thermostat banks the fire. In case that should fail, there is a pressure-release valve. And if that should ever forget to work, Laszlo has another valve that automatically opens and sends steam into the firebox to douse the fire.

"He was working on this for almost all the 11 years since we built this shop and house. He measured everything. He drew every inch of plan. He slept dreaming about it ... and I never thought it would work, frankly," says his wife, Maria.

It worked perfectly from the start, and it has never failed, Tekler says proudly.

It costs him nothing, he adds, because he gets the wood from his lake cottage property near Centuria, Wis. He still uses gas as backup and in cold weather, but says he has already saved $169 a month.

Tekler escaped from his native Hungary in November 1956, when he was 32, frustrated and tired of wars. He had served in armies and the air force and had been taken prisoner by the Russians.

"But, you know, in that last moment, before I crossed the border, I fell on the ground and hugged it - my native land," he recalled.

He came to St. Paul under sponsorship of the St. Paul Cathedral. Maria had arrived earlier, with relatives. When they met, at a German-American gathering, neither knew enough English to find their way on a bus.

What followed was a period of hard work, hundreds of hours a week. Tekler worked at Minneapolis tailor shops, Maria at a candy company. They were married and had two boys.

Today, they own a comfortable house, and a "dream cottage" near Centuria, a house on the lake Tekler built himself.

He still works long hours. But once in a while he takes time off to show a visitor his remarkable stove, and invites him to the kitchen table for a toast to the old times.

In 1955, Minnesota defeated Purdue, 59-56, in a basketball game that had six overtime periods.

Course Planned In Basic Electronics

Basic Electronics (ET 141) will be offered for students in the first six-week session at Western Texas College this summer.

Randy Mosley will be instructor for the course. Classes will meet from 8:30 to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday, with the lab to follow from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

Basic atomic theory, direct current and alternating current circuits and electronic metering instruments are studied through lecture and comprehensive laboratory experiences covering Ohms' Laws, Kirchoff's Laws, power calculations, capacitance, inductance, resonance, and other electronic fundamentals.

Registration for summer school will be held May 30, with classes to begin on May 31.

Persons wishing information about ET 141 may contact Mosley by calling 573-8511, extension 220.

'unthinkable' need

President Carter has said in six different ways that his first priority is controlling inflation. This might be considered half the battle, if it means that redistributing wealth henceforth will have a lower priority in Washington than salvaging the value of the money Americans have saved or expect to earn in the future.

The political significance of such a commitment may not be fully appreciated in official Washington - even in the White House. Having declared war on inflation, Carter cannot afford to be perceived as losing the war, or compromising on his strategy, when the presidential primaries begin a year from now.

So Carter is embarked on a hazardous adventure. He took the first step when he proposed a budget for 1980 carrying a projected deficit of $29 billion - a figure easily large enough to invite snickers when the president described his budget as "lean" enough to be non-inflationary.

Now the Congressional Budget Office is saying his estimate is way off. A deficit of $41 billion is more likely, according to CBO, and neither of those estimates accounts for "off-budget" borrowing by the government, which could add $20 billion or more to the inflationary push from federal deficit spending.

The CBO differs with Carter on the deficit because it does not share his optimism about the performance of the economy in the coming year, which will affect both the amount the government collects in taxes and the amount it will decide to spend. Since no one knows for sure what's going to happen, this only points to the weakness of Carter's anti-inflation program.

With the 1978 inflation rate above 9 percent, it will be all the harder for administration to hold wage increases this year to its 7 percent guidelines. Nor does the inflation outlook make much of a case for Carter's "wage insurance," which would commit the government to make up the difference via a tax rebate, if a worker settles for a 7 percent raise and the inflation rate moves higher than that.

Fully 75 percent of federal spending is now based on legislation passed by earlier Congresses. This includes entitlement programs that automatically provide benefits to one group or another and tie the amount of those benefits to an economic index. As long as these commitments are regarded as uncontrollable, the size of the budget will be determined more by prevailing social and economic conditions than by what is prudent fiscal policy.

Carter barely disturbed the scope of these politically sacrosanct programs in his budget - and even proposed to add a new one. Liberals in Congress are even less inclined to question them. But unless the administration and Congress begin to think the unthinkable, which is to control the "uncontrollables," they are not going to produce a budget that gives priority to overcoming inflation.

that personal energy

The United States weighs in at an excess 2.3 billion pounds.

That's the conclusion of researchers at the University of Illinois, as reported in Omni Magazine, calculating the sum total avoirdupois of an estimated 50 million overweight American men and 60 million women. A mass diet, they figure, would shed 5.676 trillion calories.

That is the energy equivalent of 720 million liters of gasoline, enough to fuel more than a million autos for two months. Maintaining correct weight would mean saving almost as much energy annually, 3.43 trillion calories.

Can it be that we have found our urgently needed dependable energy source, and it is us?

my turn

The insult is an often neglected form of communication. Without it, where would misunderstandings and hard feelings arise? It has its purposes.

Van Meador, the chief courthouse custodian, went to his car one day recently and found there a note. He took it all in good stride and shared it with me. I will share it with you. The note read:

"This is not a ticket, but if it were within my power, you would receive two. Because of your Bull Headed, Inconsiderate, Feeble Attempt at Parking, you have taken enough room for a 20-mule team, two elephants, one goat, and a safari of pygmies from the African interior. The reason for giving you this is so that in the future you may think of someone else, other than yourself. Besides, I don't like domineering, egotistical or simple-minded drivers and you probably fit into one of these categories.

"I sign off wishing you an early transmission failure (on the expressway at about 4:30 p.m.) Also, may the fleas of a thousand camels infest your armpits."

The note Van found on his car was typewritten and obviously prepared. That is the way people with time and resources at their disposal do it. Other people, however, can save time and energy by simply clipping this insult out of the paper and leaving it under one of the windshield wipers of the offending car.

Think of this as being a kind of coupon you can clip and save for a rainy day. You can clip it now and carry it around with you until you find the suitable time and place to use it.

Newspapers should carry something for everyone.

drying times

In the wake of the storm along the Red River in North Dakota, Minnesota, Manitoba, the flood crest has passed now.

Now there is time for tears.

But midst the moldy clothing and the stench of drowned animal carcasses and the muddy everything, the valiant river people have not lost their sense of humor.

Mick Simmons saw a bumper sticker in Grand Forks, N.D., which read: WE FACE SOME DRYING TIMES.

Generations of American boys grew up looking up to the power company or phone company lineman. He was the spaceman of our youth.

Wearing magic boots he scaled the heights--walked upon the sky--while mere mortal men remained inexorably earthbound.

This spring they were our nation's heroes again.

In the 200-mile Red River Valley of the north, during that river's worst rampage of this century, countless selfless and sleepless citizens stacked soggy sandbags, patrolled spongy dikes, cooked or carried food, drove boats or trucks and choppers on missions of supply or mercy or rescue.

Then there were the power people dragging those magic boots through slimy mud and the sludge of regurgitating sewers to turn off the dark.

Here comes a huge metal grain bin--torn loose and floating free and heading for power poles.

If those poles drop those lines there's no light for the sandbaggers, no drying pumps to pull foul water out or fresh water in, no heat for anybody.

There's nothing in union rules or company codes about what to do now.

What you do is make do. You grab an ax, hail a boat, speed through the debris-strewn river, leap from the boat to the grain bin, swing your ax until the tin bin sinks--and hope you can jump back to the bouncing boat in time.

There's no time for requisition formalities when the situation demands a company plane or chopper or truck or forklift.

Hold it! Here comes a chunk of ice as big as a house and headed 40 miles an hour for sagging highlines.

Too Late!

Now we have trouble. The pumps are dead. The lights are out. The heaters grow cold. And dear God--did this line lead to that hospital? It did.

Somebody's got a CB radio on batteries; ask him to get help while you get going.

It's been most of two weeks of mostly 24-hour days--improvising, commandeering. Some hours you're a volunteer Army engineer; next you're up a [illegible] rural electrics, municipal plants, investor owned companies. Who cares? Your transformer works and his doesn't--it's his!

The guy on the pole and the grunt on the ground don't yet know how tired they are.

They will.

They don't yet realize what heroes they are. They never will.

congressional comment

by charles stenholm, mc

WASHINGTON, D.C.—I have introduced a bill (H.R. 3809) in the House of Representatives this past week entitled the Producer Elected Farm Policy Advisory Board Act of 1979. This bill will establish a vehicle whereby the nation's farmers and ranchers can bring direct producer input into the decision making processes of the Department of Agriculture on policies, procedures, programs, and practices. I believe this will help to alleviate a common complaint from farmers and ranchers that the Secretary and the Department are not responsive to the needs of agriculture.

I have provided that the Board will function for a period of five years, after which the Congress may review the Board's record of achieving the objectives set forth in the bill prior to extending the authority of the Board or letting it expire. I feel that this bill will help to reduce the number and improve the credibility of existing appointed advisory groups in the USDA and will allow the Nation's agricultural producers direct input by their elected representatives in the decision making processes of the Nation's agricultural policies.

Several of my colleagues have introduced bills this session to provide for cost of production boards that would formalize the existing practice of apointing those persons. I believe these bills fail to recognize that usually such boards only become the instruments of the current administration in power at the time, and therefore are unable to speak out freely and act accordingly on the issues that are of concern to the farmer. Too, these boards would lack authority to address the full scope of agricultural issues that my bill envisions.

The board I propose will be composed of 30 agricultural producers, three from each of 10 regions across the Nation. These board members will be elected by the ASCS comittee members in each county in the U.S. and will be unpaid for their services, though they will be reimbursed for travel and per diem expenses while actually on board business. The members will serve three year terms with a two term limit. The 10 regions designated in my bill were selected on the basis of total agricultural income and the number of farms, in an effort to achieve a good cross section and fair representation of all farmers and ranchers and agricultural production. The board's clerical and administrative support will come from the Department of Agriculture in an effort to insure that the board will function as an integral part of the department and secretary's office. The board will nominate all commodity task force members, who will be appointed by the secretary. The board and all task force meetings will be open to the public and records of their meetings will be available for public inspection.

10 Companies To Prospect In Sinai

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) Ten multi-national companies are reported to have signed up for prospecting rights in the Sinai oil fields. Egypt will recover from Israel, and Egypt plans to increase the fields' production by 10 percent.

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram did not name the companies but said they had agreed to spend $259 million for prospecting during the next 10 years. It also said the Oil Ministry allocated $29 million to develop the fields and $48 million for offshore exploration.

The fields, which revert to Egypt in October, currently produce 20,000 barrels a day.

Right Job Resume Gets Attention

NEW YORK (AP) A job resume has only one purpose, to get an interview. You sell yourself at that interview, according to the new Sheer Energy Career Guide.

The guide offers this advice:

Begin your rough draft by listing all information relevant to the job, including hobbies and volunteer work.

Try your resume out on a few critical friends.

Avoid cliches such as "Health: Excellent."

Your marital status and age can also be excluded.

Virtually everyone you know is a "contact" when hunting down a job, the guide points out.

Then I asked Jack Nicklaus what's wrong with his game these days. Apparently that same question had come up once too often.

Memorial Service For King Ranch Chairman

KINGSVILLE (AP) - A memorial service will be held at the expansive King Ranch Friday at 2 p.m. for Richard M. Kleberg Jr., the man who directed that family-run agricultural empire for the last 10 years.

Kleberg, who was 62, died Tuesday in a Corpus Christi hospital following a long illness.

Kleberg had chaired the King Ranch corporation, a family conglomerate that spreads through seven countries, since 1968.

The saga of the King and Kleberg families was the inspiration for Edna Ferber's novel, "Giant," and the motion picture.

The 126-year-old ranch that lies across nearly a million acres of South Texas coastal prairie, became famous for its development of the Santa Gertrudis cattle breed.

Kleberg was noted for his willingness to experiment to improve the cattle industry. The Santa Gertrudis, the first officially recognized native breed in the Western Hemisphere, was developed by his father, Richard M. Kleberg, and uncle, R.J. "Bob" Kleberg Jr. The strain is heralded for its size and ability to withstand mosquitoes and poor range conditions.

The ranch also has a long and distinguished record in thoroughbred horse racing, including the 1946 Triple Crown winner Assault, and his half-brother, the 1950 Kentucky Derby winner, Middle Ground.

The ranch was founded in 1853 by Capt. Richard King, who bought a Mexican land grant in sparsely populated region of South Texas. King's heirs also share additional wealth from a lease on the land's vast oil and gas resources.

Kleberg began as assistant manager of the ranch under his uncle, who had expanded the King Ranch holdings into Forida, Mississippi, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Australia, Spain and Morocco.

The Kleberg family has run the ranch since the turn of the century. Kleberg County, which borders much of the vast estate, was named for Robert Justus Kleberg, who married Alice King, daughter of the original owner.

Richard Kleberg Sr. was manager of the Laureles division of the ranch when "Little Dick" was born. The family later moved to Corpus Christi, and Kleberg Sr. was elected to Congress in 1932. He later was first board chairman of the ranch when it incorporated in 1935.

Kleberg Jr. returned to Texas from Washington to attend the University of Texas, and also graduated from the UT Law School.

Like his father, he was interested in wildlife management and conservation and was a trustee of the Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Foundation that has sponsored wildlife programs world wide.

Kleberg is survived by his wife, Mary Lewis Scott Kleberg; three sons, Richard M. Kleberg III of San Antonio, Stephen J. Kleberg and Scott M. Kleberg of Kingsville; one daughter, Sally Espy of San Antonio; two sisters and eight grandchildren.

School Won't Serve Porker

CUMMINGTON, Mass. (AP)—Susie, a 900-pound porker with a penchant for school lunch leftovers, is going to have to get used to ordinary pig food.

Stanley Cowell, Susie's owner, walked to the local grammar school each day and carried home a pail filled with apple cores, half-eaten hamburgers and other delicacies for Susie.

But school officials who learned of Susie's diet had to enforce a long-standing, unwritten rule against giving out garbage.

"Sadly, it's true," the school district business manager Robert Gurek. "This is a rural area. A lot of people have livestock. If you give to one, how do you decide who gets it and who doesn't?

"It's the kind of pressure school committees have to face today," he said.

Garza Recalls His 18 Years As A Federal Judge

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE (AP)— A trail of cigarette smoke twists ceilingward as Reynaldo Garza talks about his 18 years as a federal judge, in a district overrun with drugs and illegal aliens.

It was early in the Kennedy administration that Garza became the first Mexican-American to serve on the federal bench. Now he has been nominated to be the first Hispanic on a federal appeals court.

"I don't think that legally it has helped Mexican-Americans that much. But at least I hope that my participation and my actions on the bench have helped others to be considered for these jobs," the 63-year-old Brownsville native said. "I never have done anything because I was of Mexican descent. I've done what the law requires me to."

Garza, chief judge for the Southern District of Texas, is now awaiting Senate approval of his nomination to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

In nearly two decades on the bench here, Garza has seen changes in his Mexican-American community and changes in the drug and alien traffic from across the border.

"I think that because of having our people educated we have advanced in many ways. We found that the percentage of Mexican-Americans on juries, for instance, was not what the population would require. But that has changed," he said.

Garza added that Mexican-Americans - being the large majority in this area - have not faced the problems faced elsewhere by Hispanics. But a stint on the Good Neighbor Commission helped Garza see the problems elsewhere.

"I knew about the problems in other parts of the state where they had signs, 'No Mexicans Allowed,'" he said.

Garza said the change in the alien traffic apparently has been caused by a change in the labor needs north of the border.

"I have found that the type of alien coming across is very different from the ones that used to come across when I became a judge. Eighteen years ago most of the aliens were coming to participate in stoop labor. But now you're getting the type of people who have an education in Mexico. I don't think the aliens of today are being exploited as much as they were in the old days," he said in his courthouse office.

"You talk to people in the construction business in Houston and they say if it wasn't for the aliens they wouldn't be able to do the job."

Garza bears little animosity toward the illegal alien. In fact, a trace of respect can be detected in his statement on aliens.

But the judge has no use for the professional alien transporter - a new breed of criminal that was virtually unheard of 18 years ago.

No Nuclear Plant Permits For 6 Months

WASHINGTON (AP)- The House Interior Committee approved legislation Wednesday to ban the Nuclear Regulatory Commission from granting construction permits for nuclear power plants in the next six months.

The committee's 23-7 vote, on an amendment by Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., would effectively deny construction permits for six power plants at four construction sites.

Committee Chairman Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said the move was largely "symbolic" and designed to show some 80,000 anti-nuclear protestors who demonstrated at the Capitol last weekend that Congress was trying to assure the safety of nuclear energy.

Markey said his amendment "sends a clear message to the public that we in Congress are serious about increasing nuclear safety."

Affected by the ban, according to Markey, would be the Pilgrim reactor in Markey's Massachusetts district; the Allens Creek reactor in Texas and two reactors each at Pebble Springs, Ore., and Palo Verde, Ariz.

Wayne Waits For Strength

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Actor John Wayne's new cancer treatment will begin as soon as doctors decide he has regained his strength from surgery last week, a UCLA Medical Center spokesman says.

The 71-year-old actor remained in stable condition Tuesday as doctors prepared to start the experimental treatments for cancer found in Wayne's intestine, said spokesman Al Hicks.

Wayne has volunteered to participate in the cancer research project, although doctors have not worked out the final details about the type of treatment he will undergo or when it will begin.

"They're waiting until he gets his strength back," Hicks said. "That could be any day now."

The new cancer was found May 2, during an operation to remove an intestinal blockage. In January, surgeons removed Wayne's cancerous stomach.

Wayne is expected to remain hospitalized for several weeks, officials say.

Quarterback Steve Fuller of Clemson had only one "B" in academic work in his college career, the rest being "A's".

Cabbie Writes Tribute In Honor Of 'The Duke'

MADISON, Wis. (AP)- There is a tiny quiver in his booming basso voice and a hint of moisture in his eyes as "Big Irv" Lampman talks of his hero, the man he considers The Ultimate American.

He is, Lampman believes, the personification of all that is clean and right and tough. The defender of the innocent, of virtue, freedom, and mother country. The Duke John Wayne.

Lampman, a native son who makes his living driving a battered blue Cadillac limousine here, has penned what he believes is the first song in tribute to Wayne, who lies stricken with cancer at UCLA Medical Center in Los Angeles.

"That man has done so much to make you proud to be an American," Lampman said. "His strength is a powerful force in his country. In his time of need, somebody should say, 'Duke, thank you so much.'"

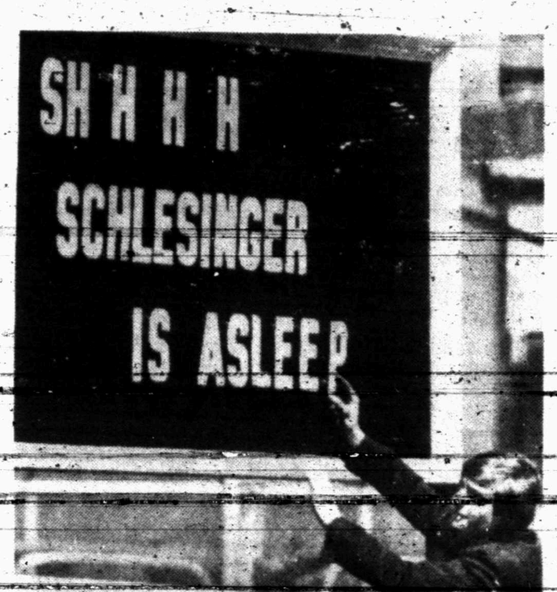
Lampman, 38, and a couple of Nashville producers are putting together "A Tribute to John Wayne" on tape this week. Next, they'll peddle the tape to label companies, hoping for a contract.

"Even if worse comes to worse and it doesn't sell...I don't give a damn," Lampman said. "All I want in this world is for John Wayne to hear it. Win, lose or draw.

"I'm just a lowly cab driver in Madison, Wisconsin, who wants to say 'Thank you.'"

Lampman was stricken with a musical inspiration as he warmed himself from the eternal Wisconsin snows while waiting on a fare at the airport about two months ago.

"It's all up here," he said, tapping his temple under the ever-present blue cap he wears. "And it comes from here," he said, thumping his chest. But Lampman said he finally put the words on paper and copyrighted them.



TO EASE THE PAIN of soaring gas prices, a Chicago service station has turned to humorous signs on themes ranging from weather to politics. Station manager Tom Billingham here arranges a sign ribbing Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

Dear Abby

She's a Stooge For a Scrooge

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a jerk. I've worked alongside him in our own business for 30 years but I've never had a dime I could call my own. If I want to buy something for myself or our children, I have to ask him for the money. Afterward, I have to show him the sales slip and give him back the exact change.

I don't drink or smoke. He does both. I've never been extravagant. If my husband had to pay someone to take my place it would cost him plenty. I do all my own housework, too. Including the laundry. Don't you think I deserve a few dollars to do with as I please?

I am so disgusted I could scream. Print this. The jerk reads your column. Maybe this will wake him up.

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: You not only deserve a few dollars to do with as you please, you're ENTITLED to it. But if you've held still for this kind of treatment for 30 years, I'm wondering who the jerk is.

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband and I and our 14 year old son Brian (an only child) have had Sunday dinner out.

Lately Brian has started something new. He rushes through his meal long before we've finished, and asks his father for the car keys so he can sit in the car and listen to the radio.

His father doesn't like it any more than I do, but he gives him the keys and we finish our meals without him.

Brian has done this when we've had others eating with us. I think it's rude, but my husband says that if he prefers to sit alone in the car and listen to the radio, we shouldn't insist that he stay with us.

I know my husband is hurt, as am I, but we're not sure what to do about it. What do you think?

BRIAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Brian is trying to tell you he is bored. Have you tried drawing him into the conversation — directing questions to him — listening to his responses? Try it next Sunday and I'll bet Brian stays through dessert!

DEAR ABBY: How about starting a campaign to get restaurants to offer children's portions at reduced prices to senior citizens? I'm over 65 and can't eat a regular size meal in a restaurant, but I'm not allowed to order a child's meal.

I just hate to see all that good food go to waste. Abby. Please see what you can do for us older folks.

SMALL EATER IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SMALL EATER: It's a lovely idea, but unless a restaurant shows a profit it can't stay in business. An occasional child's meal at a reduced price won't bankrupt the average eatery, but if it became too popular it might. Better ask for a doggie bag and take home your leftovers.

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a niece who has blond hair and blue eyes and is married to a man who also has blond hair and blue eyes and just gave birth to a baby with brown eyes and coal black hair?

UNCLE EDDIE

DEAR UNCLE: Congratulations.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular, You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Rideouts Ready For Divorce

SALEM, Ore. (AP) John and Greta Rideout have settled their last dispute, paving the way for a decree that made their divorce final.

Rideout withdrew a request that his ex-wife share an $18,000 bill for attorneys' fees he incurred at his trial on a charge of raping her. The dispute was the final obstacle to the divorce decree, which was signed Monday by Marion County Circuit Judge Albin Norblad.

Rideout, 22, was acquitted on the rape charge last December. Mrs. Rideout, 23, received custody of the couple's daughters.

Gallbladder stones

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a gallbladder X ray recently. The doctor said it showed that I had two small stones but he said unless I started having trouble with colic to let it alone as long as I can.

I have a lot of pain under my left shoulder and now I'm frequently sick to my stomach. Will you please send me some information on gallstones and tell me if there's anything I can do to get some relief?

DEAR READER — I will send you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gallstones And Gallbladder Disease, but I think what you'd better do is go back and see your doctor. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Pain under the right shoulder and in the right neck is fairly common secondary to gallbladder disease. Nausea and indigestion can be a problem. Your doctor's intention, I'm certain, was to let matters rest as long as you weren't having symptoms but now you are having symptoms that require an explanation. If they're not associated with the gallbladder stones, you still have a problem that needs resolution.

There are many people who have silent gallbladder stones and don't know they have them until they have an X ray. In other instances, the stones are associated with disease of the gallbladder and you can have severe attacks of pain in the upper right abdomen.

In some ways the attacks resemble appendicitis except the location is higher. The pain can also go through to the back, over the lower right ribs, the gallbladder can become inflamed and it can even rupture. So it's important that you find out what's causing your pain and nausea and if they're related to the gallstones that you know are already there.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I went to see an eye specialist and he said no glasses, no surgery and use a magnifying glass. He said I had old age retinal disease. Is there such a thing and aren't there any drops to help?

DEAR READER — There are a number of different things that can go wrong with the eyes. Not all of them can be solved by wearing glasses. You can have changes in the lens in the eye such as cataracts and these can be removed surgically when need be.

One of the major remaining areas of difficulties are changes that occur in the retina. This is at the back of the eye. If you want to think of it in terms of a movie, it's like the screen that the image is projected upon. It's richly supplied with blood vessels and nerve fibers. You can have changes in the circulation to this area or changes in the nerve fibers which means that the screen itself doesn't work as well as it used to.

When that happens there is not much you can do in terms of operating on the lens of the eye or using glasses. There are some retinal problems that can be corrected or helped by modern techniques but an eye specialist would know about these.

Since you have an eye problem, I'm sure that your doctor has arranged for you to have periodic check ups to see how you're doing and if something develops that he could help you with.

Old Boxing Opponents To Meet

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Boxing greats Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali may never meet in the ring again, but they'll be opponents next month when the boxing teams they coach meet in an exhibition match.

Cub Pack 177 Qualifies As Honor Unit

Cub Scout Pack 1977, sponsored by Stanfield P.T.A., qualified for the 1979 Honor Unit award at their Charter Renewal meeting. The Honor Unit Award is based on 10 tests of successful Scouting. The national award recognizes outstanding packs conducting quality programs for their youth. A unit achieving 70 percent or more of the tests is recognized as an honor unit.

The 10 tests are: 1. Reregistration On Time and Conducting a Roll Call 2. One or More Assistant Cubmasters 3. Trained Cubmaster and Leaders 4. Pack Outdoor Program 5. Cub Scout Advancement 6. Webelos Den Activity 7. "Boys' Life"—100 percent of families receiving 8. Pack Budget Plan 9. Pack Planning Meeting 10. Service Project. Other units recognized are Pack No. 61, Snyder and Pack No. 124, Loraine.

Pack 177 is a participating United Way agency.

Symptoms of sunstroke include headache, unconsciousness, fever and hot, dry skin.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 11, 1979

All partnership arrangements will play a prominent role in your affairs this coming year, but one especially unusual alliance will bring about several wonderful opportunities for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unfortunately, you could be faced with a confrontation today. Use your flashes of inspiration to guide you out of a tricky situation. Discover with whom you best get along romantically by sending for your new Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Put your imagination to work for you today if a problem arises with your work. You possess the necessary ingenuity to solve it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your carefully laid plans may be disrupted by a surprise. It's up to you — you can react by getting upset, or by treating it as an interesting experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be a bit restless today. If you can't get out, use your head to dream up some diversion. There are many things to break up your routine.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you'll be involved with feels just as strongly about his views as you do about yours. Hear him. You may be surprised and end up agreeing with him.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An unusual opportunity to buy something you've been wanting may arise today. However, if you don't have the funds you had better forget about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're quick to retort today and this is good, provided you don't do so in phony indignation. Your words will come back like a boomerang.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Being candid isn't always the best policy. Abide by your inner feelings to keep you from saying something that would result in another's unhappiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you usually choose your company carefully today you may impulsively end up with a group which doesn't appeal to you. Beat a hasty retreat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Goats have a bigger chance of being reached today if you don't lock yourself in a corner or jump into something without proper investigation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Listen to what others have to say today. Even if you don't agree, what they say could lead you to come up with a brainstorm.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Not a good day for rushing to solve your problems, but it might take putting your head together with someone else in order to come up with it.
