'Legger War Brings 20 Arrests

Denver Plans New Line West From Ft. Worth

Burnham Reveals Other Burlington Views at Hearing.

COUNTRY MUST GROW

C. B. & Q. Head Quized at Length by Attorney for Santa Fe.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 21. (AP)—Construction of a straight line railroad running west from Fort Worth to Plainview and Lubbock, opening vast territory, is contemplated for the not distant future by the Burlington system provided the area to be served continued to develop at the present pace, G. C. Burham, executive vice president of the Burlington, testified late today in the interstate commerce commission hearing on west Texas railroad applications.

His testmony came as a surprse following persistent questioning by T. J. Norton, assistant chief counsel for the Santa Fe, as to why the Denver did not enter the South Plains by extending the Stamford Northwestern, a subsidary line, west from Spur, as President Hale Holden of the Burlington has testified, at an Austin hearing two years ago, was the intention of the system.

"We did not only intend to go westward from Spur but to go from Stamford east to Fort Worth," Mr. Burnham said. "We changed our plans when we found that extension from Estelline to Dimmitt and the road from Silverton to Lubbock would just now give us more traffic and could be served advantageously from the main line of the Denver."

Northwest from Spur the proposed line would likely branch to Lubbock. The main line would proceed north and west through Dickens, Floyd, Crosby and Hale counties to Plainview. From Stamford, the terminal point of the Wichita Valley lines, the road would likely run east through Haskell, Throckmorton, Young, Jack, Parker and Tarrant counties to Fort Worth, Mr. Burnham said.

Surveys Made.

The proposed route has been thoroughly surveyed and cost estimates made.

The road would rather closely parallel in some places the proposed Texas, Panhandle and Gulf line from Fort Worth to Tucumcari, N. M.

The Texas rate case wherein Dallas and Fort Worth shippers seek certain rate adjustments was injected by Grady Ross, Santa Fe counsel, despite objection of A. L. Reed, Dallas Chamber of Commerce counsel, supporting the Denver application. Ross asked M. J. Norrell of the Dallas chamber, if such plans wholesale centers as Amarillo and Plainview would not be injured if Dallas and Fort Worth should be granted the rate adjustment. Norrell answered he was "not" qualified to testify on the rate case.

On cross examination, Norrell admitted the Santa Fe had large interests in Dallas and the Denver comparatively small; that Dallas wholesalers do a big volume of business in the plains and that 30,000 Plains merchants were on mailing lists of Dallas merchants.

T. P. and G. Active.

The Texas, Panhandle & Gulf attorneys took an active part in today's proceedings. Ireland Hampton, Fort Worth, representing the road, charged the Denver had never conceived the Estelline to Dimmitt and Silverton to Lubbock lines until the Texas, Panhandle & Gulf proposal had been announced.

The Gulf, Texas & Western took part for the first time when Frank Knox, receiver, asked Mr. Burnham if, in event the Denver were granted the present petition, would the road be opposed to extension of the Gulf, Texas & Western from Seymour to Plainview. Examiner Boles sustained the objection of J. W. Barwise, Jr., general attorney for the Denver, that the question was inadmissible.

Ben F. Cain, general counsel of the Gulf, Texas & Western, said that though his road had a tentative understanding with the Texas, Panhandle & Gulf, the Gulf, Texas & Western had not just yet decided where its best interests lay.

SCOPES GUILTY; NO ARGUMENTS MADE FOR HIM

Jury Returns Agreed Verdict in Ten Minutes.

HE IS FINED $100

Noted Monkey Case Now on Way to Supreme Court.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 21.—(AP) The trial of John Thomas Scopes on a charge of teaching evolution theories in the public schools in violation of the Tennessee law, ended today in a verdict of guilty. The minimum fine of $100 was imposed by the court and bail for an appeal was fixed at $500.

The entire testimony yesterday of William Jennings Bryan was stricken from the record today by Judge John T. Raulston, who held that the cross examination by Clarence Darrow of Mr. Bryan on Bryan's Biblical views had nothing to do with the case.

Jury Returned.

Defense counsel then agreed to have the jury brought back into court and return its verdict.

The scene of the "evolution test" will be shifted from Dayton to Knoxville where, under the regular order, the Tennessee supreme court will hear cases from this circuit the first Monday in September.

After both defense and state counsel had agreed this morning that the defendant should be convicted the jury returned a verdict in less than ten minutes. The defendant made a surety bond for his appearance in Rhea county circuit court the first Monday in December when the supreme court was expected to have passed upon the case. As soon as the verdict was returned the defense moved for a new trial and when this was overruled, Scopes' attorneys made the other customary legal motions to complete the record and send the case on its way to the supreme court.

No Arguments.

The beginning of the end of the case that has covered a wide variety of subjects was noted soon after court convened this morning. Attorneys on the contending sides of the issue announced that they had decided to forego argument and submit the case at once to the jury.

Judge John T. Raulston, however, before retiring to his chamber to prepare his charge, expunged from the record of the case the testimony of William Jennings Bryan, given yesterday afternoon in the absence of the jury.

Woman Describes 5 Who Raided Bank

WACO, July 21.—Texas Ranger Stanley left Waco tonight taking with him a woman who was arrested near Eddy last Friday night and who is said to have given the county attorney's office here a description of five men who held up and robbed the Holland State Bank at Holland last week. She was taken to Dallas, it was understood, in an effort to identify a man held there as a suspect in the bank robbery.

Assistant County Attorney W. J. Holt announced last night that the woman was originally arrested at Eddy last Friday night after she had had an argument with a physician there who refused to give her a "shot" of drugs.

In case the former verdict from which he has taken an appeal, is reversed, the sentence given today will be effective.

SANTA FE CLAIMS DENVER AN USURPER.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 21.—Assertions that the Fort Worth and Denver seeks territory that has been developed by the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe at a great expense and sacrifice and it desires to participate in the harvest of railroad earnings to be reaped from the South Plains, though it had no part in the sowing and cultivating, were made today by T. J. Norton, assistant chief counself of the Santa Fe, today at the interstate commerce commission hearing on applications for new roads in west Texas. Mr. Norton's charges came while he was cross examining G. C. Burham, executive vice president of the Burlington system.

Ruling Says Evolution May Be Taught As Theory.

MORE KICKS MADE

Churches File Complaints on Text Books in Use in Schools.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—Scientists and theologians of California came to grips here today on the question of teaching evolution in public schools of this state.

The clash enlivened today's session of the state board of education. The first gun was fired by Maynard Shipley, president of the Science League of America, who appeared to protest against the action of the board last April, declaring that evolution may be taught in the public schools of California only as a theory and not as a fact.

Writes a Letter.

Shipley supplemented his argument with a written communication denouncing the board's action "as contrary t othe spirit of the constitutions of the United States and state of California" and demanding that the board "definitely and permanently ignore the demands of those uninstructed in science, who desire, in the interest of theological dogma to banish from our public schools text books teaching organic evolution as a process of nature."

Other Protests Made.

The board also received communications from the Rev. Robert Schuler, pastor of the Trinity Methodist church of Los Angeles, who denounced certain illustrated text books on mythology as having a demoralizing influence on boys and girls, and from Glendale, Cal., Presbyterian church and the San Joaquin Valley Baptist association setting forth that "professed scientists" who are attempting to introduce into the public schools matter that confused the teachings of Christ."

They objected to the state board of education permitting books o nevolution in the public schools while barring teaching of the Bible.

WOMEN TAKING LEAD TO SAVE RUSSELL SCOTT

Condemned Man Has Friends Working for His Life.

MUST DIE FRIDAY

Week's Reprieve by Gov. Small Expires at That Time.

CHICAGO, July 21. (AP)—Women today took the leading roles in the fight to save Russell Scott from the galows next Friday.

They included Mrs. Carterine Scott, the condemned man's wife, Dorothy Newburg, who once sued Scott for breach of promise, women friends of the condemned man in Windsor, Ont., his former home; Detroit club women raising money for his defense and two Chicago women whose names have not been revealed but who are said to have witnessed the slaying for which he is to hang.

Give Week's Reprieve.

Scott, who was to have been hanged last Friday for the murder of Joseph Maurer, youthful drug clerk, during a holdup, was given a weeks' reprieve by Governor Small, when the latter received a telegram from Detroit, signed by Robert Scott, Russell's brother, stating that Robert committed the murder and that he expected to surrender. Robert, who was indicted with Russell, but was never apprehended, has failed to put in an appearance.

For a time today it appeared that the whereabouts of Robert Scott Scott might be known. A telegram from Detroit signed James Sweinhart, which had been sent to Governor Small and was relayed to Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney asked for a conference with the governor about the surrender of Robert.

Wanter Reprieve First.

Mr. Crowe, after an investigation found that Sweinhart, said to be an employe of a Detroit newspaper did not know where Robert Scott is, but wanted to arange for a reprieve for Russell Scott, while he looked for him.

Scott's wife and Thomas Scott, his father, kept up the fight to save him from hanging. While Mrs. Scott devoted her time to efforts in Chicago, the father went to Windsor wherein is son was once head of a bridge building project and later to Detroit where he addressed the Detroit club women, who are raising $50,000 to employ the best lawyers obtainable to save the condemned man. Reports that they had retained Clarence Darrow were denied by Mr. Darow, who is in Dayton, Tenn., but he said that he was sending a personal appeal for clemency to Governor Small.

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch, Butter Fingers.

When we played at one old cat,
Or chose up sides, and things like that,
There were days we dropped the ball,
Couldn't make an out at all,
Don't know why, we couldn't tell,
But how all the kids would yell,
"Butter fingers!"

Other days we captured flies,
Tagged out runners twice our size,
Caught the pitcher's outs and drops,
Made those great one-handed stops,
Didn't seem to miss a thing,
Never heard a critic sing,
"Butter fingers!"

But, I might as well confess,
We didn't know and couldn't guess,
Never really understood,
Why our game was bad or good—
Why we played our best today,
Yet tomorrow heard them say,
"Butter fingers!"

That's the reason, in the game
Men call life, I'm slow to blame
Those who fumble this or that,
Be it life or one old cat,
Just remember, when they fall,
Days that you yourself were all
"Butter fingers."

CITY COPS AND CONSTABLE WAR ON BOOZE RING

Four Places Raided, Charges Filed in the Courts.

WILL CONTINUE IT

Hodgins and Bradford Issue Ultimatum to Bootleggers.

Asserting that whiskey and spiked beer are being disposed of too liberally in the city and that its sale is to be stopped at once, Chief of Police George H. Hodgins and Constable C. L. Bradford started Tuesday on a clean-up campaign that resulted in four places being raided and the arrest of 20 persons. Federal and state charges have been filed as a result of the day's work.

The campaign against bootleggers and blind-tigers is a joint affair between the city police department and the constable. Members of the detective department at the city hall joined with Constable Bradford and his deputies in the prosecution of the raids and this will be followed out in the future.

Ketchums' Arrested.

Officers made their first foray in the morning when they entered an establishment at 709 Lamar avenue. They arrested E. A. Ketchum and his wife as operators of the place and later filed federal charges against them. The two were released under bond of $750 each following a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Lantz.

At the shop, the police said, they found a large metal tank concealed behind a false wall, with a valve contrivance permitting drawing out of liquor. They said six gallons of whiskey were confiscated at the place.

A block farther down the same street another raid was made, this time at 807 Lamar where Jodie Reynolds was arrested. They said three pints of liquor were seized on the premises. Reynolds was in the county jail last night.

Jack Hill Taken.

Acting under authority of a search and seizure warrant issued by Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn, the officers next entered a place at 813 Ninth street. No intoxicants were found, but Jack Hill, operator of the soft drink establishment was arrested on a vagrancy charge, as were five men found with him. All were taken before Justice of the Peace Gwinn and furnished bond for a later appearance. The officers said they found a number of broken bottles, but were unable to find anything to serve as evidence.

Vagrancy charges were filed against L. Heineman in justice court early in the afternoon following his arrest at his place of business, 606 Seventh street. Officers invaded his store armed with a search warrant, but could find no whiskey. Several men, alleged to have been "customers" of the place, were taken in custody along with Heineman and vag charges filed against them.

To Continue Work.

"You can make it just as strong as you like and say anything you like," Chief of Police Hodgins declared last night; and a few minutes later these same sentiments were repeated just as emphatically by Constable Bradford.

"We've got a stack of new search warrants; we know where whiskey and near-beer with grain alcohol in the bottom of the glass are being dispensed; and we're going after every one of them. Vagrancy charges are going to be filed against every man found in a place we enter with a search warrant. It's going to cost them a good stiff vag fine, anyhow."

A large number of arrests were made during the day on charges of intoxication and the officers asserted a more careful watch was to be kept for these offenders.

It's cooling off by degrees.

Sunday this city sweltered under a record-breaking temperature of 111; Monday it dropped to 10 and Tuesday was one degree lower—104.

The weather man made good on his prediction for "partly cloudy," the sky, in fact, being flecked with a hazy blanket most of the day. This and the healthy breeze drilling in from the south served to keep the temperature at more reasonable figures.

Hopes that the rain which pelted far northwestern corner of the state might reach here are apparently doomed to disappointment, for the best the weather bureau holds out for Wednesday is a continuation of "partly cloudy."

Wheeler County Wildcat Gets Gas

ANGUS GASSER BLOWS IN FOR 75,000,000 FT.

Rank Wildcat in Wheeler County May Be in a New Pool.

Blowing over seventy-five million gas per day from sand scratched at 2,125 feet on their rank wildcat well located in section 70, block 18, H. & G. N. survey, Wheeler county, about two miles to the northeast of Shamrock the Angus Petroleum corporation have all appearances the makings of a new pool in this newest of Panhandle fields. Although on the same horizon as that of the Whittington-Texhoma wells, which lie to the northwest several miles, the new find in all probabilities opens up an entirely different pool and will accordingly be watched with a great deal of interest.

Teacher Gets Lost Purse Back Again

The clouds that broke and began to scatter late Monday afternoon when word reached here from a north bound Denver passenger that the purse of a young Wichita Falls school teacher had been found under a Pullman seat disappeared entirely Tuesday when the wayward bag and its contents of tickets and cash came back on a south bound train.

Loss of the purse early Monday afternoon spelled disaster with a big D for the teacher, who saw a Colorado vacation fade as her winter savings, represented in the railway tickets and close to $70 in cash, disappear. All the pastebourds and currency were found intact when the bag was delivered to the delighted lady yesterday afternoon.

She is either on her way north now, or will leave today for the belated vacation, she told railway officials.

Wife Has Million But Spouse Lays in Jail

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP).—Henry A. Taylor, a promoter, whose wife is worth a million and refuses to pay $20,000 to have him cleared of claims by another woman, is in Ludlow street jail indefinitely.

Setting forth that he was ill, unable to pay himself and that further confinement might have serious results he sought his release, but Supreme Court Justice Ingraham denied it. New Taylor fears he may be incarcerated for the rest of his life.

He was committed to jail last March because he had not carried out an agreement regarding payments to Genevive Elder, who asserts he was the father of her child buried at Stratford, Conn.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 21.—Sam Godsey, Sequatchie county deputy and wounded feud leader, used Attorney General George W. Chamlee as a shield while under fire of Lawrence Bowman during a gun battle near police headquarters last night in which Godsey and his brother, Benton Godsey, were shot in the leg.

News Of The Fields

Texhoma- Republic-Rowland

Texhoma and Republic have made location and will drill immediately in the southeast corner of their combination lease on the Rowland land in the Chambliss survey, Montague county.

Magnolia-Coffield

The Magnolia Oil corporation are drilling in their No. 5 on the Coffield land in the Richardson survey, abstract 356. Sand was topped at 1,360 feet and to all appearances will make a nice producer.

Texas-Unity, Hausler

Texas Unity are abandoning their No. 5, the furthest east location on their lease on the Hausler lands in the Poitevant survey, abstract 226, and to the north of Humble's production on the Mercer as a dry at 1,120 feet.

Shamrock-Boren

On the Boren land to the south of the Ragle pool in the Newman survey and an offset to Madden's recent extension to that area, the Shamrock Oil corporation have a sand at 1,028 feet which they will set on and test. Madden's No. 3 has a sand at 1,040 feet and is testing.

Texhoma - Jackson-Wheeler County

Located approximately three miles to the east of their No. 1 producer and in section 47 block A-8 H&GN survey, Wheeler county, the Texhoma Oil and Refining company are completing their No. A-1 Jackson as a dry hole a 12,005 feet.

Texhoma-J. Waggoner

Texhoma is abandoning its No. 1 John & Jeff Waggoner, Wichita county, as a dry at 2,000 feet. They are making location for No. 2 to be drilled 450 feet south and east of the northwest corner of block 7, section 11, which test will be put down at once. Their No. 1 had a very favorable show in the 1,800-foot sand but on testing showed salt water.

Holmes-Morse, Gray County

Carrying production south of the north fork of the Red river in Gray county, if productive, Holmes and associates have a nice show of oil from a saturated sandy lime in their No. 1 Morse, located seven miles southeast of Lefors. The well, which is a rank wildcat, is bailing and testing the show was topped at 2,780 feet.

Humble-Kilcrease

The Humble Oil and Refining on their No. 1 Kilcrease in section 1809 TE&L survey and located 300 feet to the east of the Plains company's No. 3, are swabbing at the rate of 300 barrels per day from sand 977 to 997 feet. This well although but an offset location, is the farthest east in the new extension to the Litchifield and proves up a greater or lesser amount of additional territory.

Dr. Wright-Wilson

Dr. Wright and associates have spudded in on their No. 2, a twin well to No. 1 on the Wilson land to the east of Archer City. This well, which is being drilled on the strength of a show drilled into with a large bit at 1,081 feet in the first well and which showed solid sand for 47 feet, will be watched with a great deal of interest by the fraternity. To the south of this Hoosier et al are drilling below 400 feet and will be in the 1,000-foot pay by the end of the week.

Musw et al-Wilson

Cutting off possible production to the south of the new Burns-Maxson and Kentucky pool on the Archer City road, Harry Muse and associates are abandoning their No. 1 Wilson, located in lot 1 block 118 as a dry hole at 1,500 feet. Sand which was drille dinto at 1,409 feet gave every indication of production, but on coring went into shale. To the north of this well, and between it and the Burns-Maxson production, the Gulf are setting casing on sand drilled from 1,402-63 feet and will test today.

RINER BAILEY ARCHER WELL SHOWING GOOD

Texhoma, However, Owns All of Surrounding Leases.

Effecting a nice extension to the east of the Gose pool and located in the southwest corner of lot 35, block 8, Gose sub-division Riner Bailey and the Archer Oil company are completing to all appearances a nice producer estimated at 100 barrels from sand 1,587-88 feet. This well, which is located on the drillers 10-acre block is entirely surrounded by acreage owned by the Texhoma Oil & Refining and accordingly yesterday's find will be of but little immediate interest to the oil fraternity at large.

Believe Two Roads Will Get Permits

Belief that both the Fort Worth and Denver and Santa Fe railroad systems would be given permission for construction of new lines in the lower Panhandle was expressed Tuesday by J. W. Chatham, Wichita Falls man, following his return from the hearing now in progress at Plainview. He stated that predictions, of course, were by no means conclusive, but that he found sentiment in the territory to be affected favorable to the Denver extensions.

Frank Kell, railroad operator of this city, will testify before the interstate commerce commission representative Thursday, Mr. Chatham learned. He will be the only Wichita Falls man to take an active part in the hearing. One representative each will also probably take the stand in behalf of Fort Worth and one for Dallas.

In addition to the price it brought merchants contributed to a premium of $75, bringing the total to the owner of the bale to $250.

What He Got Wasn't As Good but Cheaper

SAN ANTONIO, July 21.—"Nice apartment house; expensive though."

"Yes," replied Motorcycle Officer Moya to the man who reeled about the vestibule of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral on Avenue E.

"If I could see the landlord, I believe I would take an apartment here," he continued.

And the prospective tenant thought for a moment.

"No," he started again, "it may be one of those blooming family affairs with children and dogs."

"I believe I can provide you with a bachelor apartment," the officer interrupted.

"Very good, we shall go immediately."

And he did.

NO SUBPOENA FOR MARY.

Deputy Sheriffs Unable to Serve a Summons for Trial Witness.

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Serving a subpoena on Mary Pickford is almost as difficult as trying to kidnap her, deputy sheriffs decided today after trying in vain since last Friday to catch a glimpse of the motion picture actress off the screen, in person.

They were armed with a summons for her to appear at the trial in a superior court Wednesday of two truck drivers and an automobile salesman accused of plotting to kidnap her and hold her for $200,000 ransom.

NAZIMOVA SORE AT AGENTS.

Customs Officials Dissatisfied Over Her Declarations.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Alla Nazimova, actress, is going to have a conference with customs agents regarding wearnig apparel which was held up when she arrived on the Leviathan yesterday.

Two trunks and a hat box were sent from the boat to appraisers' headquarters for further examination as the examiners were not satisfied with the values declared by the actress. She indignantly averred that the prices she had set were correct.

ARCHER WELL SWABBING 200 BARRELS A DAY

Murchison & Fain-Anderson Well Proves Extension to Norday Pool.

Swabbing over 300 barrels per day from sand drilled 1,425-30 feet, low for the area, Murchison & Fain are completing their number 1 Anderson in block 10 S. A. R. survey Archer county as a nice southward extension to the new Norday pool.

This well offsets that of Weldon and associates to the west and which has been plugged back after drilling into water in an effort to enhance production estimated at 30 barrels of very black, heavy oil is the definite proving up of an area looked on with more or less credulity by operators in the district.

USES CONFISCATED CAR.

Pro Commissioner Takes Advantage of Law.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—(AP)—Prohibition agents who catch fleeting glimpses of well known bootleggers' automobiles may have to be a little careful in the future.

The man who stepped out of it was Prohibition Commissioner Haynes. Inquiry developed that he has taken advantage of court decisions permitting dry officers to use confiscated machines.

HOGG ANOTHER TO GO, BOARD DEFENDS SELF

Efforts to Have Dr. White Kept in Office Fail Again.

AUSTIN, July 21.—Senator J. D. Parnell and Dr. L. Mackecheny, of Wichita Falls, were before members of the state board of control a second time Tuesday to urge that Dr. F. S. White be retained as superintendent of the Wichita Falls Insane hospital. The board declared that its action last week in assigning Dr. C. W. Castner to the Wichita institution cannot be changed.

Contracts will be let Wednesday for erection of a 200 patient building at the Wichita asylum and another building at the Rusk insane hospital and Dr. White is expected here then. R. B. Walthall, member of the board of control expressed the hope Dr. White will accept appointment as superintendent of the Austin Senile insane hospital here which is to run 11 months longer before the additions to older hospitals will make room for all insane.

"We simply have six superintendents and the legislature cut the number of institutions to five" Walthall told Senator Parnell. "It is no reflection of any official not to reappoint him. Jim Hogg went out of office at the end of his term and nobody considered it a reflection on him. This should be looked on in the same way the superintendents are elected for definite terms."

$25,000 SPENT TO FIGHT FINE OF ONLY $100

Court Costs in Monkey Trial Will Amount to About $300.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 21. (AP).—A misdemeanor case, carrying as a penalty to the guilty offender a fine of $100 and costs, cost the defenders of John Thomas Scopes approximately $25,000.

The actual court costs are estimated at well over $300 or more than treble the fine assessed by the court for violation of the statute.

By far the greatest expense of the trial, however, has been the cost of bringing expert witnesses, who were not allowed to testify. Members of the defense counsel today estimated that the cost to approximate between $20,000 and $25,000.

The completion of the record for its presentation in the higher courts will add several other thousands of dollars to the defense expenses, it is estimated.

A SLIGTHLY MODIFIED PROPOSAL.

Colonel William Mitchell, who caused such a dispute when assistant chief of the army air service by his demand for an independent avintion branch of the national defense, has somewhat modified his proposal. In a recent address to the Rotary club of San Antonio, he abandoned his idea of independent branches of the national defense and advocated instead the resolution of separate branches into a single department. Naturally, aviation would take a prominent place in any such sweeping unification. Colonel Mitchell still remains strongly prejudiced in its favor, even if he has altered his opinion as to its right to independence. He would scrap all battelships as obsolete and have airplanes replace them.

Making due allowance for the colonel's evident bias on the subject of aviation, his suggestion for a general co-ordination of forces possesses undoubted merit. The army and navy, with all their auxiliary forces, ought to be brought into alignment to insure the efficient execution of a developed plan of defense. Our history is full of deplorable instances of a want of co-operation between our fighting forces.

SMACKOVER BELOW THE PEAK

A new low record in production of crude oil in the Smackover field since the peak was reached in May was made in the last week of June. Compared with the peak output of 392,000 barrels reported on May 25, there has been a drop of 190,000 barrels or 48 per cent. Of the 408 wells completed to date it was reported that 136 had gone dead ,78 have been placed on the pump, 46 are glowing air and 27 are making more than 75 per cent water.

Of course, peak production may come back, but the veterans of the industry are doubtful Thomasses.

New fields are coming in every day. Central Texas may become the big producing section of Texas in the near future. Remember, the wild catter is ever busy. He is the plunger, the finder, the driller, the gambler and he takes all the risks.

If dusters come to him he grins and pockets his losses. If lucky finds are his reward, he pockets his gains and moves to another prospect. Yes, the wild catter is the gamest individual to be found wherever there are indications of golden sands under the surface of the earth.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

What Is Poverty?

A family of my acquaintance has suffered a terrific loss.

The father failed in business.

Being an expert in a particular line—though he was a bad manager—he went back to work for a salary.

It was not a large salary, according to his standards, and those of his family.

He was obliged to sell his town house and country place and live in a house of ten rooms.

He had to sell all his cars but the flivver, which once was used largely by the help around his place.

He had to get along with a maid of all work, instead of a butler, a footman, a chef, two kitchen girls, and a maid each for his wife and daughter.

It is the honest belief of the members of that family that they are now living in dire poverty.

Yet their standard of living is the sort that hundreds and thousands of men and women would regard as the height of luxury.

A condition of life that will mean unhappiness to the sons and daughters of the family—until they get used to it—would be regarded as complete happiness by any number of people who must struggle for a lifetime for enough money to support them in their old age, if indeed they ever attain such a blessing.

Poverty and wealth are both relative.

I have seen in the same park a child who was crying because its mother would not buy it a pony which was passing, and another child who was raised to the pitch of delight because it had picked up a dirty rag doll that some other child had discarded.

I have known women who were made unhappy because their husbands could not afford them a continental tour every year, and I have known other women who were transported because they could go to a seaside resort for a week in the summer.

Most people could be perfectly happy on what those in the most modest circumstances have, if they would get the right perspective on life and what it means.

Yachts and automobiles, and travel are enjoyable, but a great many millions of people have got along without them, and never knew their loss.

People who learn to want things less because other people have them, and more for what they can auctually get out of them themselves will never be poor until they are ill-clad and hungry.

Hundreds of articles which we look on as necessities of life were wholly unknown long ago.

Louis the magnificent would have considered a Ford car a wonderful acquisition and would probably have allowed none of his subjects to have one.

Today many of the so-called poor outshine the grand monarch in this respect.

We can limit our necessary standards of living so closely that we shall never need to be poor unless we are sick or hungry.

And there are those who have been both sick and hungry, and who have yet got more pleasure out of life than some who have been able to get for themselves every luxury that money could buy.

Our bonded debt—New York owes the most—It is small in Texas — Mulvane of Kansas and Cal's majority—Butler and the new barbarians—When bankers are optimistic, what?

A FEDERAL BULLETIN just issued shows the state governments of the United States have increased their bonded debt nearly fifty per cent in the last three years. The aggregate debt of the states is now $1,558,742,433, which is 13.89 per capita for every man, woman and child in the country. This indebtedness is approximately half a billion dollars greater than the entire federal debt in 1916 and the per capita is $4.07 larger.

New York has the largest bonded debt, or $321,,-000,000; Massachusetts is second with $125,000,000; Illinois is third with $112,000,000; North Carolina is fourth with $106,000,000 and California and Michigan are running for fifth place each with a bonded debt of nearly one hundred million dollars. Kentucky, Nebraska and Wisconsin have no funded debt. As for the Pacific group of states, Washington, Oregon and California, have the highest per capita debt of any section. Its debt per inhabitant it $25.83, nearly twice the average for the United States.

Texas has a very small bonded debt. Texas has a very low tax rate. This for the pessimists and croakers who insist that the Texas taxpayers have a burden too heavy to carry. A grand adventure into the World war cost the American people thirty-three billion dollars, inclusive of the eleven billion loaned to foreign governments.

Secretary Mellon says that if his recommendations are taken the war debt will be liquidated in less than twenty-five years but he admits that it will take twenty-five years for foreign governments to settle in full the claims of the United States or the American people. Of course the government hasn't a dollar that it doesn't take out of the pockets of the American people. And today American taxpayers are putting up $250,000,000 a year interest on Liberty bonds which should be coming out of the pockets of Europeans who borrowed the money while the war was on and never stopped borrowing for several years after the armistice had been signed.

Happily, the United States has a national wealth of 360 billion dollars. It is the richest of all nations, the most productive and the most advanced. War is more than General Sherman said it was. Wars are destroyers of governments and civilizations and the scourge of mankind.

KANSAS is the sunflower state. Kansas gave Coolidge an overwhelming majority . David W. Mulvane is the republican national committeeman for Kansas and for thirty years he has been one of the republican bosses of the western states. Boss Dave, as they call him out in Kansas, is greasing the slides for the renomination of Mr. Coolidge in 1928. Boss Dave has just finished a tour of the western and northwestern states and his verdict is the republican party is fast absorbing the radicals because of Dr. Coolidge's efforts to effect economies and reduce taxes.

Big business is for a third term for Dr. Coolidge. Economists look upon Dr. Coolidge as the apostle of national thrift. For a quiet man, unacquainted with the science of politics, the president says less and gets more in publicity and praise than any man who has occupied the White House for fifty years. Kansas breaks away from the republican party at intervals and the intervals are when the crops are not what they should be and the prices are low. Senator Capper is their leader now. He owns a chain of farm papers. His voice is for the immediate relief of the farmer but his vote is ever for administration measures.

Senator Charles Curtis, the most powerful western senator in getting work done, is as quiet as Capper is loquacious. Senator Curtis is half Indian. His mother was of the Kaw tribe. He believes that silence is golden and that the brain accomplishes more in constructive work than a tongue which wags on forever. Senator Curtis is a conservative, nay a reactionary. And he thanks God for it. He believes that the republican party has God on its side and that republican leaders can do no wrong. This is his American privilege.

He lets Capper do most of the talking while he is doing most of the work for the sunflower state and the people of that state. Kansas farmers are promised bumper crops this year. If the prices are fair to middling a vast majority of the farmers of Kansas will vote the republican ticket next year. When their pockets are pinched they are radicals. When their pockets are fat they are Abraham Lincoln republicans. At least they say they are.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRY BUTLER, President of the Columbia university in his commencement address this year paid his respects to the "new barbarians." Dr. Butler is responsible for the classification. He did not overlook Tennessee. This is what he said:

"The legislature and the governor of Tennessee have with every appearance equanimity just now joined in violently affronting the popular intelligence and have made it impossible for a scholar to be a teacher in that state without becoming at the same time a law breaker."

Dr. Butler is of the opinion that Dr. John T. Scopes is a scholar and a gentleman and not a law breaker. This noted president of Columbia has the courage of conviction, but so has W. J. B.

BANKING failures for the second quarter of 1925 numbered 111 with liabilities of $42,859,470, compared with 144 for the first quarter of this year with liabilities of $43,925,548, and 163 with liabilities of $53,000,000 in the second quarter of 1924. More than forty per cent of all the bank failures occuring in the last three months were in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa and Missouri, while the amount of liabilities of that section is in excess of 35 per cent of the total. All the great financiers of America say that conditions are flattering and the future outlook rosy. When a banker turns optimist the financial skies must be clear.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Cancer.

The planetary aspects of today show a marked improvement over those of yesterday, and, as the day advances, become excellent in every way for almost any line of intelligent endeavor and honest effort. Success can be looked for in any new enterprise or original undertaking for the execution of agreements, or for the tackling of problems that have hitherto presented features of doubt and misgiving. In the evening the vibrations will be found to be very exhilirating, and will prompt you to make or receive advances to or from those you love, and the signs indicate that there will exist a responsiveness that will lead to many a happy engagement.

A child born today will require an unusual amount of care, and, above all, very careful nutrition during the period of infancy, if it is to be given a fair chance to reach physical normalcy. Its disposition in early days will be rather peevish and querulous. As its strength, however, develops, this will give way to reliance and forebearance. It will at all times be unselfish and loyal. These will be its outstanding virtues and of themselves will endear it to all those with whom it is brought in association. It will be studious and painstaking as well as careful and meticulous, and its sense of humor will be a very high one. It will always be resentful of any injustice ad never hesitate to voice its disapprobation in unmistakable language.

If today is your birthday, your versatility is as evident as your resourcefulness. You are apparently able to tackle any job or handle any situation. Your temperament is a very happy one and your cherry ways and vivacious mannerisms often bring sunshine and brightness into places that are clouded and gloomy. Your mind is very keen and your mental vision penetrating. You can size up other people both effectually and effectively. You are very quick to see and appreciate the good in others, and are just and generous in your bearings. You never make snap judgments, but weigh very carefully all the pros and cons before reaching any decision.

You are a good lover, affectionate and demonstrative and none but an emotional mate will satisfy you, or give you that pleasure and happiness that you crave.

BROWNSVILLE SEEKS ROAD.

City Wants Mexico to Give it Road Instead of Laredo.

SAN ANTONIO, July 21.—Brownsville is attempting to induce the Mexican government to build a highway from the City of Mexico to Brownsville instead of Laredo, and has asked the San Antonio chamber of commerce for its support. The plea for support was made by J. M. Stein, publisher of the Brownsville Herald, and Homer Fitsch, who also are seeking to have river guages placed on the Rio Grande as far west as Roma. The aid of J. H. Jarboe, local United States weather bureau man, is sought on the river project.

HOW IT STARTED

The Origin of the "Print."

The collection of prints is becoming one of the most popular of hobbies. Certainly enjoyment of them is no longer limited to the artistically sophisticated, for today, in quite modest homes, we see the product of the etcher, the wood cutter and the engraver. And of all the known arts, none has woven about its history a more unique tale than the origin of making prints, or taking impressions from engraved plates.

For its beginning, we must go back to the workshop of one Tomaso Finiguerra, a goldsmith of Florence, who decorated gold and silver plates by filling their engraved lines with black enamel or "niello." Before treating his wares with this substance, which hardened and became permanent after it was applied, he would try out the effect with a temporarly medium. This was accomplished by rubbing soot and oil into the crevices that were to hold the inlay.

One day accordi,ng to the theory, one of his plates was laid face downward upon a sheet of paper, and when the plate was removed the first crude "print" appeared which is supposed to have furnished the inspiration for the subsequent improved efforts in this direction.

The earliest recorded engravings are a series of copper plate engravings dating back the middle of the fifteenth century, their subject being the "Passion." The latter half of the fifteenth century saw the birth of two of the world's greatest engravers, Durer, being born in 1471 and Michael Angelo in 1474.

IRRIGATION

Lake Kemp Acreage Not Known at Time Contract Was Made.

Yesterday we gave the first part of paragraph one of section two of the contract between the irrigation district board and W. T. Waggoner covering the lands now flooded by Lake Kemp.

The last part of this same paragraph reads in part as follows:

"The exact acreage to be flooded has not been determined, but the intent of this instrument is that the party of the second part (the irrigation district) shall have a right t oconstruct said dams and maintain the same and to store water upon all the lands—which may be covered with water when the said reservoirs are full—and that the rights hereby granted shall continue so long as said land shall be used by the party of the second part—for the purposes which this grant is made.

The rights and privileges in said land hereby granted shall extend only to the maintenance and erection of said dams, or other dams on the same sites, and the storage of water in the said reservoirs created thereby, and such other rights as are necessarily incident to the operation thereof."

You will notice that neither party knew exactly just how much land was being bought or sold. The acreage to be flooded had not been surveyed out and was not for some time after the contract was made.

The last part of the above paragraph is of interest because the same sentiment runs all the way through the contract. It says that the rights and privileges extend only to the construction and maintenance of the dams, the storage of water and such other rights as may be necessarily incident to the operation thereof.

It would require a considerable stretch of the imagination to picture fishing, swimming, hunting or boating as activities necessarily incident to the operation of these lakes .

Letters From The People

NEW SCHOOL PROPOSED

Editor Record News:

I noticed in the paper that Scotland addition is to have a school building and as I am very much interested in the school, would like to offer a few suggestions.

To my mind the proposed location is undesirable for three reasons. It is too low and in winter would be damp or muddy a great deal of the time; second, it is no ways near the center of population, and third, it is not large enough to build the unit system school which, I think, is the finest that could be built.

The unit system covers an entire block —the buildings are one story brick structures, with the exception of the Junior High which can be built when needed.

They should be built a little ways from the walk, to give room for a hedge or shrubbery and should face the center of the block which forms a closed-in playground. Additional buildings can be added when needed without changing the architecture and at small cost.

The portables are one-room wooden buildings that can be moved from one school to another when an extra room is needed. Another use for them is where there are several deficient children in a room who need to be placed under a special teacher in order that they may make their grade.

If you could get the idea from this and have some one write it up, with a good drawing I believe it will be worth while.

LOSES MINNOW SEIN

Editor Record News:

While on Lake Kemp last Sunday week the writer and a man by the name of Bray, met a party from your city. They too were there fishing, we let them have our minnow sein. They went up the river to sein, so when we left out we could not find this party. As we did not hear any of their names, we are at a loss to know just how to find these people or the sein. The man that we talked to, said he worked for some paper in your city, hence we are writing both papers to see if we can get this person located.

He is a man about 40 years old, has dark hair, medium build. If he works for you, will you kindly have him express the sein to the following address.

R. S. Balch, care Burton-Lingo Co., Ranger, Texas.

Assuring you in advance that we appreciate very much the favors shown me in connection with the above, I am,

R. S. BALCH.

Ronald Corley jilts Enid Apstin two days before their wedding and elopes with Coralie Brainerd. Three years later Enid marries Lucian Grant without loving him, because she feels she has a right to be married. Of course, Lucien discovers the truth, and Enid finds the thing more difficult than she had expected. They separate and Enid does not tell Lucien that she is to become a mother. In the meantime Ronald is beginning to find flaws in Coralie and to turn back to his first love.

Coralie told herself that she was making a mountain out of a molehill. Perhaps Ronald had met Enid accidentally and had thought nothing more about it. And yet she somehow could not make herself believe that. He had not been himself in some time, and she could not but believe that something was wrong with him. Was it Enid? Had he discovered that he still loved her? Had his love for her returned now that he knew she was no longer living with her husband?

Through lunch and during the afternoon, Coralie was distrait and thoroughly unlike herself. She answered Alicia's gay prattle in monosyllables, she had a far-off expression in her eyes, and Alicia found it necessary to repeat a remark several times during their talk together. As a matter of fact, Coralie was finding herself growing more and more uneasy as the time passed. Like most simple women, she feared a woman of Enid's type. Competition with a woman like Enid would be an impossibility. Enid was so suave, so well-poised, so mysteriously lovely. She had all the qualities that Coralie lacked and if Ronald had fallen in love with her now, it would only be a question of time before she had him in her toils.

"Better get Ronald to take you off for a holiday. I'm afraid you're letting the children monopolize you, and you need a vacation."

Coralie laughed at the idea.

"I really haven't a thing to do. I'm actually lazy, Alicia. You can see that I'm much too plump."

Alicia's smile faded and her face grew serious. She hesitated a moment, as though undecided about speaking, and then she said impulsively, "Don't make the mistake of letting motherhood absorb you, Coralie. You can't afford to do that, you know."

Coralie flushed scarlet. "I don't understand," she said slowly; "what do you mean by that remark?"

"Just this," Alicia returned bluntly. "Ronald is human, and all men are fools. They don't know what they want. Besides, the world is full of attractive women anxious to be nice to men whose wives don't understand them. Take a tip from me, Coralie, and keep an eye on your husband. Love your children, but love your husband just a little bit more, or make him believe you do. In the long run you'll find that it pays."

With this sage remark she tripped down the flagged path to the waiting taxi, leaving Coralie a prey to conflicting emotions.

She flew upstairs to the nursery, picked Junior up from the floor, and began to take off his clothes. Tonight she would have the children in bed and everything in order before Ronald returned. Not only that, but she would wear a new dress and would take unusual pains with her hair. When Ronald came home she would be waiting for him in the living room. They would have a long evening together and she would ask him what had been troubling him. She hadn't a doubt in the world that he would tell her.

She was just finishing her hair when the telephone rang and, as she took the receiver off the hook, she was amazed to hear Ronald's voice over the wire. She had thought, of course, that he was on his way home. She couldn't remember when he had not been home for dinner.

"Coralie, I am having dinner in town tonight, and I may be late. Sorry that I couldn't let you know before."

"Thats all right, dear. I suppose it was some unexpected business."

Ronald's answer was an abrupt good-by and the click of the disconnected wire. It seemed to Coralie that he had deliberately evaded her question, and the thought gave her a queer feeling of discomfiture.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Long Evening.

Coralie had the whole thing out with herself during that long evening spent in the house alone.

At first she had left her imagination carry her away. She saw Ronald and Enid together in Enid's charming apartment. She saw Enid, perfectly groomed and vividly fascinating, entertaining Ronald, winning him with the lure of her personality, and the thought roused such a fury of jealousy in her that for a time she could not reason.

Afterward, however, she became calmer, and with the clearing of her brains, she began to think more logically.

If it were true that Ronald had fallen in love with Enid, to upbraid him about it, to let him see that she was jealous would do absolutely no good. How much better it would be to go on as though nothing had happened, to behave as though she suspected nothing. It would be difficult, of course, it would be torture to saw no questions and each day to see him slipping away from her. And yet it was the one way in which she could save her pride and perhaps in the end win him back. Somehow she could not beleve that he would abandon her and the children. He would come to his senses before anything like that happened. At least she must make herself believe that.

She had eaten a lonely dinner and afterward she had tried to become interested in a book. Her first impulse had been to wait up for Ronald, but after she had thought the situation over, and faced the thing in her own mind, she decided against that. She must behave as though nothing had happened. She must go to bed as though she hadn't a worry in the world. He must not know that she suspected anything. If he had fallen in love with Enid, he had his own troubles. It wouldn't help matters to burden him with hers.

She went to bed about 10 o'clock and for the first time in her life found it impossible to sleep. Never in her healthy young life had she faced this problem, but now as she tossed restlessly from side to side, she found herself thinking of the trains.

Would Ronald take the 11:35, or would he wait for the later one, which got him home about 2? Until she had heard him come home, she felt that she could not sleep, she had never felt so wide awake. And yet, when at 12:30 he came into the room, Coralie was asleep. The requirements of her perfectly healthy young body had triumphed over tense nerves and unusual mental excitement. She lay like a cherubic child, her cheeks flushed, and her golden hair spreading riotously over the pillow. Peering at her cautiously, Ronald felt a stab of remorse catch at his heart. He felt like a scoundrel, even though he had actually done nothing wrong. To be sure he had had dinner with Enid, but there was nothing terrible about that, there was no reason why he should feel so conscience-stricken. And yet, was'nt he beginning to be possessed by Enid, wasn't the thought of her with him constantly? He was seeing her regularly, he could not seem to get her out of his thoughts. She maddened him by her aloofness, by her tantalizing charm. He had reached a point where he had to see her, and yet he had not analyzed his thoughts, he had not dared to do that.

Coralie stirred, flung a white arm over her head, opened wide, blue eyes. Then she smiled, sleepily adorably, as Junior might have done.

"Darling," she breathed.

Ronald stooped over her.

"Good-night," he said, softly, feeling like a traitor.

She drew his head down, and his mouth touched hers.

"So sleepy," she sighed, and the next minute was asleep. Looking down at her Ronald felt his heart swell with tenderness, and yet even then the thought of Enid was in the back of his mind, and he was wondering when he would see her again.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Flight.

In dwelling upon the subject of her child, Enid could not see that her attitude toward Lucien was a selfish one. A child always belonged to its mother far more than it did its father. Men took children as a necessary evil, women wanted them. Men accepted them, women suffered for them. By every right the child belonged to her.

Perhaps if she had loved Lucien it might have occurred to her that the child belonged to him as much as it did to her. If she had not been so bitter against all men, she would not have taken it for granted that Lucien would not care one way or another about it. At any rate, she wanted no interference from any one where the child was concerned. Life so far had cheated her but the baby would make up to her for everything. It would be the biggest thing in her life, and she would lavish upon it all the love that she might have given to the man of her choice.

And so Enid would dream, not realizing that her planning was not practical, not admitting that to dream dreams is an instinctive thing born in all of us, not taking into consideration the fact that her child would inherit as many of Lucien's traits as it would of hers.

Mrs. Austin would return from a visit with Enid, silent and constrained, having found it impossible to break down the barrier that Enid had set up between them.

Everything happened just as Enid had planned it. The week before she left town she went about as usual, accepting invitations, flitting here and there. One day she saw Ronald for tea, and then before any one knew it, she was gone.

Ronald, calling up the apartment, was told by Norah that Mrs. Grant was not at home. When he said that he would call again later, Norah informed him that Mrs. Grant would be gone for some time, she was out of town.

"But was it sudden?" Ronald persisted. "Mrs. Grant said nothing about it when I saw her last."

"I don't know, sir," Norah said, somewhat stiffly. "I don't know anything excepting that she's gone."

Enid's mother was prostrated at the news.

"To think that she would run away from her own mother at a time like this," she said over and over. She could not seem to realize that Enid had really gone.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Child Is Born.

Two months later Enid's child was born in an exclusive private sanitarium some distance from the city.

Since Enid's arrival she had been the topic of conversation among the nurses in the place. Most of them were fascinated by her, all thought her beautiful, but there was a unanimous feeling among them that she was as cold as ice. No one could imagine loving her, and yet this quality of remoteness in her seemed to add to her fascination. There was no question of her charm.

When Miss Edison, Enid's own nurse, bent over her with a blanket swathed bundle in her arms, Enid opened opaque violet eyes, stared a moment and then said quietly:

"Give me my son."

Miss Edison smiled broadly.

"You have a little daughter, Mrs. Grant, one of the loveliest babies I have ever seen."

For a moment Enid did not answer. Her smooth, white forehead wrinkled in perplexity as if she had not understood what was said, her lids drooped over her violet eyes as though to veil their expression. Then she spoke.

"Did you say it was a girl?"

"Yes, Mrs. Grant. Will you take her now?"

More Truth Than Poetry

NEW MANNERS

There was this to be said for John L.;
He was sometimes a bit of a tank
But he didn't pretend to be swell,
And was never addicted to swank.
To knock his opponents clear over the ropes
Was Sullivan's dominant passion,
And never, we're sure, did he center his hopes
On becoming a leader of fashion.

Fitzsimmons was facially plain,
And wholly regardless of dress,
He looked upon style with disdain—
When he stood at the peak of success.
And though the delectable regions of fame
For a few feeting years he invaded,
He wasn't the least bit affected with shame,
That his cervical tract was abraded.

Kid Broad had a glowering air,
His arms were remarkably long,
If you looked at him now you'd declare
That William J. Bryan was wrong.
The kid was a master of wallops and belts,
And left a live record behind him,
But he never essayed to be anything else—
Than exactly as nature designed him.

But pugilists now assume class;
We learn with no little surprise
That Dempsey wears one single glass
Though he still has two excellent eyes.
We should like to walk up with sinster scoff
And a jeering and scornful expression,
And flip with a fillip that monocle off—
But we won't. We believe in discretion.

How Do You Wear Your Hair?

The old question: "To bob or not to bob," has been fairly well discussed so that almost everybody has come to a decision on it one way or the other.

Practically every girl from 16 to 24 years has tried it at least once and has either adopted it for life or tired of it quickly.

The majority of us have found that short hair is much too comfortable ever to part with and so we continue to have it cut according to the newest fashions in bobs.

And it's about the fashions in coiffures that I want to speak today.

Do you know what sort of bob suits you best—or do you just arrange yours the way most of the girls do their—without bothering to observe whether it suits your type or not.

For instance, in some localities, the only sure sign of a beauty is a curly wave head of hair forming tiny ringa lets boo-about the face, and causing the wearer to look like an exquisite doll—if she happens to have that kind of face.

However girls with big features and rather strong faces, in their attempt to be fashionable, get themselves waved and curled to within an inch of their lives, and look perfectly ridiculous.

Girls with high-bred, rather artistocratic faces, ruin their appearance by wearing their hair long and fluffy so that it detracts from the aristocracy of their faces, and is quite unsuccessful in making them look pretty.

Fluffy, wavy hair, worn rather long, is definitely for the pretty doll type face. Good looking rather boyish girls should of course affect the straight bob and in the same way pretty girls should usually forego it.

Girls with exceptionally good features may try the newer types of bob such as the Eton shingle which displays the entire ear, and cust the hair so short as to be almost mannish.

But a girl who knows she is rather plain, and wants to look at her best should wear her bob straight, and if she has a well shaped head, she may have her hair cut close to the head.

Unless, however, you have a well shaped head, a boyish bob may make you look like almost anything from an eel to a ketchup bottle.

You're generally pretty safe with a straight bob—but you must be more careful about curls.

You may think they suit you admirably, and yet they may be just the thing that prevents you from looking smart.

Of course straight hair, is ever so much smarter right now than all the ringlets and curls in the world, but if you're really the flower-face type that looks bewitching when waved and marcelled, then make the most of your opportunities and be curled by all means.

In the same way if you find that your hair is more attractive when done softly in a knot at the bottom of your neck, don't think of having it bobbed, no matter how many of your friends tease you to.

Study your own type Try everything until you you know just what suits you best and then stick to it. In the matter of hair, it's not always wise to follow the fashion too closely.

"MY WIFE AND I" HERE

Irene Rich Takes Leading Role In Great Comedy-Drama

"All's fair in love and war" slides smoothly on the tongue, but is actually a high-powered dynamite charge when followed to the letter. It is a fallacious argument that makes an effective excuse for loose-moralled, unctuous hypocrites who prate glibly of wrong and right, and frequently cause untold heartache.

Domestic Comedy-Drama

An instance of this is found in the new Warner picture, "My Wife and I," which will be featured at the Olympic theatre beginning Wednesday, when Irene Rich, Huntly Gordon, John Harron, John Roch, Constance Bennett and Tom Ricketts will enact the domestic comedy-drama that pictures the vari-colored incidents that result from the love tangle that enmeshes a lovely gold-digger, a father and his son.

Tom Harron, in the role of the spoiled, wealthy son, goes to untold extremes to buy gifts for his lady love, who values his affection at the price he pays. When his father stops his allowance, aghast at the boy's extravagance, the girl, without a moment's hesitation turns to his father, and finds him highly satisfactory, judging from the beautiful presents he bestows on her.

Youth Is Blinding.

Her fascinating youth completely blinds Borden, Sr., played by Huntly Gordon, and makes him forget his duty to wife and home. He hungers for the light touch of romance to rouse him from the apathy of approaching middle-age, and a deadly rivalry springs up between father and son that sweeps caution descretion and toleration before it like a cyclone.

Irene Rich's demure charm in the part of Mrs. Borden makes her an ideal wife and mother. Later the role calls for great emotional expression, which enables this famous star to give play to the tremendous dramatic talent she posseses.

"My Wife and I" was adapted for the screen by Julien Josephson from the story by Harris Beecher Stowe. The directorial end was handled by Millard Webb, with the assistance of Wm. McGann.

Couchman Allows One Mangy Bingle, So Bears Nip Spuds

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

THE ONLY TROUBLE WITH SPUDDER PITCHING IS IT CAN'T WIN UNLESS RUNS ARE SCORED BEHIND IT.

* * *

RATHER COMPLICATED.

The reason Rip Wheeler got beat yesterday is because Bob Osborn underwent a throat operation Tuesday morning and therefore couldn't take his turn, being also the reason Bob didn't get beat. And the reason Dick Morgan didn't get beat was because he pitched the day before. The one run he held the Bears to would have been sufficient.

* * *

TOUGH

Old Bob Couchman certainly was unfortunate in that he did not hurl a no-hit game. The only safe blow picked from his delivery should have been fielded had there been more hustle in the outer gardens. This hit was poled by Wheeler himself who had already connected for his season's quota two weeks back in a game at Dallas.

* * *

Since Osborn's on the hospital list with a slithered epiglottis, so to speak, and may be out for several days we would suggest Carl Williams for the chunking selection this afternoon. Bears would do well to send Couchman in again, that is, if Coleman retally seeks to win.

* * *

SAD MUSIC.

(Fate smiled dourly on our Spudders yesterday and the person who wagered the writer Bob Couchman couldn't do it).

What are the sad winds saying?
List to their lonesome note,
Mebbe the sad winds are sighing
For he who was made the goat.

* * *

Mr. Dempsey is going to box-fight the negro, Harry Wills, one year from next Labor day which, informs Cowbells, the cub reporter, is about as much as most of our champions labor.

* * *

"Dempsey's Departure for West Annoys Boxing Commish," and yet think how very much more annoyed commish could have been if Dempsey had staid with 'em for a while.

* * *

These champions and boxing solons stir up almost as much a ruckus as the monkey suit and Bill Bryan. And which, if any, is the more important?

* * *

Must be case of mistaken identity

Dempsey plans bout late this summer with Gene Tunney, says AP dispatch. Yet a couple of days ago Jack was quoted as simmering he wants couple of easy fights this year and a tough one next.

* * *

Line in Chicago paper advises to wit, "Slim is going to quit burglaring and become a plumber." On the theory of going from bad to worse you can't beat that.

* * *

"Ill Health Makes Golf Champ," speaking of Keefe Carter, the new Western amateur king. Looks like somebody's trying to show up the physical culture experts and beat the doctors.

* * *

Spudders getting better

We note with much show of pleasure that the great Mr. Jinx Tucker has now decided our noble Spudders instead of being the sixth-place club which Jinx tagged them so long are here and now labeled for fourth position.

* * *

The Spudders have won slightly heavier than Mr. Tucker deduce they should from which we would infer that if they grab two or maybe three more in a row the great sport critic will up and give them the Texas league leadership.

* * *

SUBTLE REVENGE

U. S. officials accused Nurmi of padding expense account. Now Europeans hasten to say same about Murchison and Paddock. Turn about fair play, you know.

* * *

Can't either

Overheard someone utter yesterday that Young will beat White in the fisticuff here Thursday eve. Allow us to differ, please. If White still has both feet and his two arms he'll take our friend Sid to a cuffing. No malice for the likeable Oklahoman, you understand, just a pure matter of opinion—and advise.

CLARK SLAMS HOMER WHICH IS SUFFICIENT

Wheeler Loses Hard Fight 3-0 When Mates Fail.

The veteran Bob Couchman, that old gentleman who many of the "experts" have declared has just about shot his wad, mowed down our haughty Spudders Tuesday at Athletic park with the grace and for all the world similar ease that one of the present day highly evolved mechanical scythes lays low the Johnson grass ranks on any up-to-date farmer's soil. Twenty-nine Spudders faced Couchman. Two of them reached first base. Rip Wheeler popped a fly to left center in the third that landed in safe territory when more alert fielding should have cut away this and the only base blow combed from the Bear hurler's delivery. Then in the ninth, Khadot booted Distel's bounder.

Short Story.

There's your story for you. Rip Wheeler was in great form, form that was shadowed only by the superb mound performance of Couchman. Ripper gave up nine hits and three runs. San Antonio knotted the series at one-all with the 3-0 victory.

The Coleman crew won the game in the first inning. Danny Clark poled a home run over the left field fence. However, they got to Ripper in the fourth for another and then the final tally in the ninth. Clark opened with a double to left. Nason singled to center, sending Danny to third, Rosenthal followed with a bingle to the right for the score. Washburn popped to Turgeon. Then Rosy absconded with second, but Rip turned Meyers and Wirts back via the strikeout route. The ninth inning run came as a result of a single to right by Rosenthal, sacrifice bunt by Washburn, and a double against the right field fence by Wirts.

Fitz Pulled One.

The work of Fitzgerald a-field stood out. This athlete robbed Rosenthal in the sixth, and pulled down another sweet catch. The Bears were thwarted in the seventh although Meyers led off with a double. Wheeler displayed the sterling pitching qualities that have made him quite famous in Texas, and pulled out unscathed.

Helen Wins But May Bundy Loses

MANCHESTER, Mass., July 21.—(AP)—Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, woman tennis champion 21 years ago, was defeated in the second round of the woman's invitation singles at the Essex County Country club today by Mrs. K. J. B. Corbiere of Southboro. The scores were 4-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., national women's champion, advanced through both second and third round matches. She first defeated Miss Margaret Blake of Lenox, 6-3, 6-3 and later beat Mrs. W. H. Trumbull, Jr., Boston, 6-2, 6-0.

The Passing Hour

By William B. Ruggles

NEXT!

(Dempsey will have one "Warm-up" bout before meeting Wills.—News item.)

When a champion feels the need of golden dollars,
He seeks a match with one he does not fear,
And while the ringside fan cuts up and hollers,
He deftly lays that set-up on his ear.

But now and then a cog slips somehow—somewhere—
And, while the crowd is gazing on the scene,
The mob is strangely treated to some fun where
The set-up sets the champion on his bean.

Then "Frame-up!" yaps the crowd that, closely pressing
Upon the ringside got the clearest view;
The honest truth is really more distressing—
That champion was more surprised than you!

FIRST STATE BANK of Shelby, Montana, has again closed its doors. It heard that Jack Dempsey had landed in New York.

SOME towns in the west still use as bugaboos the names of Jesse James and Cole Younger. Shelby sticks to the two Jacks—Dempsey and Kearns.

THE BEST TEN.

THE best 10 sellers—the best 10 cops—the best 10 cooks—human frailty as evidenced by the mental unbalance of the column conductor is sold on nominating a decemvirate of the best in giving line. What would be your nomination for the best 10 ball players in the Texas league this year?

How would this list strike you (it won't, of course, the human argumentative view being what it is!) as the best 10 in order of value for their respective achievements?:

1. Johns, Fort Worth.
2. Pate, Fort Worth.
3. Goodwin, Houston.
4. McCurdy, Houston.
5. Sears, Fort Worth.
6. Gonzales, San Antonio.
7. Cohen, Waco.
8. Pratt, Waco.
9. Konetchy, Fort Worth.
10. Meyers, San Antonio.

HOW THEY GET THAT WAY.

THAT list is considered solely from the value of the player to the club. And looking back over it, one can not conceive how any 10 could get along without the inclusion of Dick Morgan of Wichita Falls.

It does not include at all the best ball player in the loop, Billy Mullen of Fort Worth, for he plays a position that for five years the Cats have proved does not have to be covered.

Gus Johns, almost unbeatable, as ready to finish as to start, a young pitcher at the crest of his stride, stands out like the Mathewson of the Giants of a decade or more ago, as the best pitcher in the circuit today, as the most valuable factor in his club's drive, not even discounting Pate. But the veteran must be rated second. Dismiss Johns and Pate and while the Panthers might not be floundering in the second division, they would hold no advantage.

Marvin Goodwin—not a great manager on paper, but a fine one on the field and a pitcher-manager good enough to win 10 of his last 11 starts, stands out for the same reason. There are better catchers in the league than McCurdy, but name one who is doing as much for his club both on attack and defense, standing the gaff behind the platter day after day and getting practically no help from the second string receiver.

You might question John William Sears' presence. You would. Sure—he is weak on a ground ball—has no great throwing arm. But the fact remains that Ziggy gets into a Fort Worth game about the time it has to be won—he does it with a slashing double, a great ground stop, an accurate throw, a miracle catch—when one of those things has to be done.

Gonzales of San Antonio—Cuban with a love of the game in his heart—has the fighting disposition to win that keeps his club in there hustling so long as he is in the infield. His fiery soul is worth more than Danny Clark's bat or that of Rosenthal.

Cohen's fielding has been the biggest help Waco has had all year—better than Bird's pitching because he turns it on everybody instead of Red's Beaumont specialty. Pratt is a dangerous hitter, a good leveler and helps Waco when he is in. Koney's timely hitting and Mike Meyers' fielding. There's the list.

Now cuss it.

ONE reason Mary Eaton gives for denying that she will wed Georges Carpentier is that the gorgeous one is already married. Another might be cited that he is no longer in the limelight.

ANOTHER SWAT AT GOLDSMITH

When lovely woman stoops to Follies,

TOO STRENUOUS.

COLLEGE football schedules are Always announced as "one of the hardest ever arranged." Here's one that is all of that:

Trinity university of Waxahachie, a member of the TIAA or of the new Texas conference, according to taste, will play 10 games between September 25 and November 26. That is at least one too many. Three of the first four games at week intervals are billed with conference teams, the Aggies, Rice and Baylor. The next six are with teams in Trinity's class from every one of which a battle may be expected—and there are only four days between the Tigers' meeting with Austin college and Howard Payne.

Trinity officials of course, figure that the games with the conference elevens need not be won and that they will offer good training for the Tigers in their own championship division. But you can not get the team to reason the same way. Fired by the enthusiasm of the student body and their own, the Trinity squad will play as hard or harder to win from the conference rivals as from the November opposition. Austin college showed this last year when the Kangaroos bruised their season aspirations on a tough schedule. The Kangaroos were a fine, game football club—but the task was too hard.

So is Trinity's for 1925.

Tilden and Lott Enter 4th Round

CHICAGO, July 21.—(AP)—W. T. Tilden, II, of Philadelphia, national and clay court net champion, and G. M. Lott, Jr., 19-year-old Chicago collegian, made their way to the fourth round of the Illinois state tennis tournament here this afternoon after hard fought matches in which each of the stars dropped a set.

Tilden defeated Ted Mertz, now of Evanston and formerly a member of the Leland Stanford tennis team, in three hard sets, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3. Tilden's sore shoulder bothered him considerably, but Mertz was playing well and frequently slipped over placements on the champion.

Lott ran into trouble in the opening set of his match with A. L. "Sandy" Wiener of Philadelphia, a protege of Tilden. The Chicago lad dropped the opener, 2-6, but came back strong to win the enxt two for the match 6-3, 6-0.

Chicago was unable to hit in the pinches in the initial game while the visitors made their hits count, Faber being driven off the mound in the sixth inning. Zahniser although wild tightened up in the pinches. Ross was driven off the hill in the third inning of the second game by the White Sox. Chief Bender, former star pitcher of the famous Athletics who has been coaching the White Sox pitchers, was placed on the active list of players by the Sox today and worked the final inning of the first game. Ray Schalk, star catcher of the White Sox established a new life time record for all time when he caught both games today, registering his 1,576th game behind the plate. The former record was held by Jim McGuire, who caught 1,574 games in 14 years. Schalk is in his 13th year of baseball.

SCHALK SETS LONG DISTANCE PLAYING MARK

Chicago Star Catcher Plays 1,576 Games in Career.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Ray Schalk, star catcher of the Chicago White Sox, today established a new life time record for catching in the major league when he went to the bat in both games of a doubleheader with Boston and caught his 1,575th and 1,576th games.

A previous record was held by Jim McGuire, who caught 1,574 games during his 14 years in the big leagues. Schalk has been with the White Sox for 15 years.

Bill Tilden Starts Another Dispute

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—Charges published today in two metropolitan newspapers that William T. Tilden violated the spirit if not the letter of the new amateur player-writer rule by giving interviews in connection with his play in the national clay court tournament at St. Louis threaten to precipitate a new storm in tennis circles.

Although officials of the United States lawn tennis association officially declined to either take cognizance of the published stories or to comment upon the situation it was reported on good authority that fresh consideration may be given in the near future to Tilden's amateur status, arising out of the latest developments.

Dempsey in Bad With Commission

NEW YORK, July 21. (AP).—Jack Dempsey cannot do business with the New York state athletic commission by proxy. This was evidenced today when members of the commission informed Tex Rickard, who sought to represent Dempsey at today's meeting that Dempsey or his legitimate manager must appear before the board to conclude arrangements for his proposed match with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight.

While commission members were somewhat perturbed at Dempsey's failure to appear today as he promised, no action was taken, Dempsey's status remaining the same as it was last Friday. Rickard promised the commission that Dempsey would appear as soon as he completes his business on the Pacific coast and the boxing moguls consented to postpone any action for two weeks, providing Dempsey returns and signs articles of agreement with Wills at that time.

Chief Bender May Attempt Comeback

CHICAGO, July 21,—(AP)—Chief Bender, former famous Indian pitcher, for the Philadelphia Athletics of world championship fame, today was placed on the active list by the Chicago White Sox and may again go to the hurling hill. He has been coaching the young pitchers.

Whittington Beats Rich in Wellington

WELLINGTON, July 21.—Fred Whittington, Oklahoma City welterweight, won the referee's decision over Harmon Kid Rich of Wichita Falls here last night in a ten-round bout. Whittington won six rounds, Rich two, and two were draws.

Sid Young Here

Sid Young arrived in town Tuesday and will begin to work out today at 2:30 for his coming bout with Tommie White. These two are billed on the Legion card for Thursday night.

WILL DEFEND HIS TITLE.

Kid Kaplan, Feather Champ, to Meet Herman August 27.

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Conn., world's feather weight champion will defend his title in a 15-round decision match against Babe Herman of California at Waterbury, Conn., August 27. Articles of agreement for the match were signed by the managers of the two principals at the office of the national sports alliance late today.

The agreement stipulates that neither principal can engage in any matches between August 3 and the date of the title match.

GREB AFTER DEMPSEY.

CHICAGO, July 21,—Harry Greb, world's middle weight champion conferred here today with Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons relative to possibility of a bout with champion Jack Dempsey at Michigan City, Ind., next September. Greb is anxious to meet Dempsey and believes he can give the world's champion a good exhibition to interest the fans.

JACK MOST SEE COMMISH.

NEW YORK, July 21,—(AP)—Jack Dempsey must appear personally before the New York state athletic commission to conclude arrangements for his program leading to a title fight with Harry Wills in 1926. This was the decision of the commission today in refusing to accept Tex Rickard as the champion's proxy.

OUTSIDER WINS

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 21.—Tarzan Gratton, an outsider in the betting won the $25,000 American pacing derby at the grand circuit meeting here today.

GIANTS RAINED OUT.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The game scheduled today between the New York and Cincinnati teams has been postponed because of rain and will be played tomorrow, an open date for both clubs.

DENVER

posed Denver competition was fair and necessary because the Santa Fe was not giving adequate service. Norton insisted that the proposed Denver lines would create excessive competition evil at which the federal transportation act is directed and that the Denver had no intention of building the proposed lines until after the record wheat crop of 1924.

The area of the Denver's lines would penetrate what rightfully belongs to the Santa Fe and their construction would leave a large area directly west of Fort Worth without a road, Mr. Norton declared.

Mr. Burnham was also cross-examined by Cecil Smith of Sherman, chief counsel for the Quanah, Acme and Pacific, who said the Denver could have built into the plains more economically by purchasing the Quanah, Acme and Pacific, sale of which was tendered to the Denver. He endeavored to show that the proposed lines would not really give through service to Fort Worth, Dallas and Wichita Falls.

Side-Bar Remarks

While cross-examining Mr. Burnham, Mr. Norton took occasion to reply to Mr. Burnham's statement earlier in the day that the Santa Fe should look into the territory southwest of Plainview to develop lines.

"I want to thank you, Mr. Burnham, for the kind permission you gave the Santa Fe, this morning to develop the country to the southwest," he said.

"If you don't, we will," Mr. Burnham answered.

Denying that the Denver was delayed in making active preparations to get into the plains in the desire to allow the Santa Fe to first build up the country, Mr. Burnham said that the Denver had been delayed by the attempt of the Santa Fe "to grab the Colorado and Southern from us under tentative recommendation of the consolidation report of the interstate commerce commission."

"But we are willing to take a chance in discussing competition," he added.

"Would you call it far competition if the Santa Fe should parallel the Denver into Fort Worth?" Norton asked.

"I'd call fair any competition between the Burlington and Santa Fe," Burnhm replied.

The Santa Fe has spent $27,000,000 on plains railroads while the Burlington system has been content to earn $12,000,000 on an investment of $9,000,000 in the Fort Worth and Denver without pioneering, Norton said. Burnham answered that the Denver had been a very profitable road, earning 18 per cent in 1924.

NEW LINE TO COST OVER $6,000,000.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 21. —(AP)—The proposed Denver lines from Estelline to Dimmitt and Silverton to Lubbock would involve building of 202 miles at a cost of $6,661,000 and the road is ready to build them without issuing securities, C. G. Burnham, executive vice-president of the Burlington system testified today at the interstate commerce commission hearing here on proposed extensions in West Texas.

The Colorado and Southern will provide all funds in exchange for securities of the Denver and South Plains roads and these new lines would be leased to the Fort Worth and Denver, Mr. Burnham said. The South Plains country is solidly behind the Denver project and rival roads are only protestants, he said.

No Other Could Serve.

Proposed extensions of no other road but the Denver will serve adequately the South Plains, Mr. Burnham testified. He declared the Santa Fe sought a monopoly and proposed its extensions from Lider to Silverton and Plainview to Dimmitt in the hope of defeating the Denver project. The opinion that the Texas Panhandle and Gulf could not possibly make its proposed Fort Worth to Tucumacri, N. M., line pay and that the same territory would be served better by the Denver and that the success of the Quanah, Acme and Pacific extensions from McBain to Floydada, would depend on co-operation of the Denver at Quanah, was expressed by Mr. Burnham.

Valley Would Extend.

As early as 1890, the Wichita Valley road, now a subsidiary of the Burlington had announced in its charter intention to build into the Plains and that in 1908 the Stamford and Northwestern, also a subsidiary, had announced the intention to build 155 miles of line from Stamford to Plainview.

"The Santa Fe," he said, "has no vested right in this territory. Without competitive railroads the Plains will never develop as it should. Our proposed lines do not parallel the Santa Fe lines. The Santa Fe should look to the Southwest of Plainview for developing lines. If the Denver feels it can make a new line pay, the Santa Fe should be able to make an old one pay."

WEST TEXAS WANTS MORE RAIL LINES.

PLAINVIEW, Texas, July 21.—West Texas counties are awaiting better railroad facilities to develop their agricultural resources, witnesses testified today at the hearing before C. E. Boles, examiner for the interstate commerce commission relative to proposed extension of railroads and objections by other roads.

High truckage charges makes it almost prohibitive for Briscoe county farmers to market wheat, maize and kaffir, John Burson, banker of Silverton, testified. When farmers must pay 1 cents a bushel to haul wheat 31 miles to Tulia and then sell the grain for 75 cents to $1 a bushel, they cannot make a profit. Many do not attempt to market their kaffir corn, Mr. Burson declared.

Using Santa Fe

Merchants in Briscoe buy from Kansas City and St. Louis firms, having their goods shipped in on the Santa Fe lines, he continued.

Under cross-examination, he declined to say that Dallas was the natural market for his section of the state. He also declined to say in answer to questions by E. J. Noonan, chief engineer of the Texas, Panhandle and Gulf that the people of his county preferred that time to any other.

"We want anything we can get," he declared, causing laughter.

Castro county is underlaid with water near the surface and building of additional railroad facilities would make the county a great irrigation district, L. P. White, president of the Dimmitt chamber of commerce, testified.

Refer to Irrigation.

Reference to irrigation possibilities brought close questioning by Examiner Boles and Clarence Gilmore, chairman of the Texas railroad commission. Mr. White said the soil was as fertile in Castro county as in any of the plains section. He also told of coal having to be hauled from Colorado mines to Tulia and then to the consumer.

Counsel for the Texas, Panhandle and Gulf brought out that there are lignite fields north of Tucumcari, N. M., which could be used to supply fuel for Castro county if permission is given his road to build its proposed extensions.

Even should the Fort Worth and Denver build its proposed extension from Carey to Silverton, Briscoe county cattlemen would continue to use the Santa Fe to ship their stock to Kansas City and Missouri markets, John Burson of Silverton testified.

He said that it would be done because the Fort Worth market was filled easily and cattlemen in his section had a fear of tick infection.

STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 21.—(AP)—Scattered selling and short taking coupled with stiffened money rates added to stock trading today, but the market continued to maintain a firm undertone. Bullish activities were confined principally to the high priced industrial specialties in which gains of one to six points were registered, while alternate rallied and declines marked dealings in the more representative issues.

Attempts of professional operators to start a reaction made little progress. A jump in the call money rate to 4½ per cent was used as a pretext for rather general selling in the afternoon but support was forthcoming for most issues emphasized the market's strong absorptive power.

Although its behavior was at times erratic, General Electric held the leadership of the high priced stocks, for which demand was most urgent. After establishing a new high on the current move at 294¾, the stock settled back at the close to 293¾, a net gain of almost six points for the day. Mack Truck attained a new peak at 196, but closed only fractionally higher at 193½.

One of the features of the day's trading was the demand for the agricultural implements shares based on an expansion of business from the farming districts. International harvester was lifted to a new high price for the year and Advance Rumeley issues scored moderate gains.

Reports of better retail trade throughout the west also contributed to the strength of the mail order and chain store stocks. Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Woolworth eclipsed their previous high records, while S. S. Kresge at 480, sold more than thirty points above its previous sale on a small turnovtr.

Calling of loans by out-of-town banks reduced the supply of call money at this center, bringing about an advance in the rate from 3½ to 4½ per cent. The money rates, however, were unchanged.

Buying of Danish kroner, following announcement that a new loan for Denmark would be floated here monopolized interest in foreign exchange. The currency today sold at the highest price in several years around 21¾ cents. Other European exchanges were firm, with demand sterling holding in the neighborhood of 4.85¾.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, July 21.—The cotton market today was an extremely dull affair, pre-bureau influences exerted trading almost entirely with the result that business was restricted to liquidation and evening up commitments in advance of the government report on Thursday. As a result fluctuations were narrow and long intervals elapsed during the middle of the day between trades. An early decline of nine points was followed by a moderate rally, but about the middle of the morning, owing to the forecast of unsettled weather prices made new lows, 15 to 16 points under the early highs. Around mid-session the market rallied 15 to 16 points to about a level with yesterday's close, but eased off again during the afternoon alomts to the day lows. The close showed net losses for the day of 12 to 14 points. At the start prices opened 2 t o7 points down owing to lower cables than due following the early narrow fluctuations the market finally dropped to 23.19 for October and 23.33 for December or 15 to 16 points below the previous close. These were the low points of the day. The market rallied after mid-session making new highs at 23.35 for October and 23.48 for December, or about on a parity with the previous close.

The market eased off again during the afternoon mainly on a renewal of long liquidation due to the large receipts of new cotton, 1,000 bales at Galveston and to a report that the best bale of new crop Georgia cotton had been sold at Moultrie, Ga., at 43 cents a pound. The close was near the lows.

Exports today 8,185 bales.

SEWAGE PLANT SITE OFFERED BY ENGINEER

No Added Costs Probable, Believes Expert After Visit in City.

Expressing himself as well pleased with what he had found here and stating that his investigations had revealed nothing which would tend to add to the cost of the project, John H. Gregory of Baltimore, Md., left Wichita Falls Tuesday after a busy two days spent in connection with plans for a proposed new sewage disposal plant. Mr. Gregory, who is one of the most noted sanitary engineers of the East and who is head of the civil engineering department of Johns Hopkins university, is associated with the local engineering firm of Montgomery & Ward in the planning and construction of the new plant.

Mr. Gregory called on Mayor Shepherd Tuesday just before his departure and submitted a short, oral report on his findings. He offered considerable encouragement, the mayor said, asserting that the tentative site picked for the plant, the arrangement of existing sewer lines and other factors that must be considered all would be readily adaptible to the new plant.

The eastern man will return to Wichita Falls some time this fall, after the bond issue that must be floated for the project, is consumated and other details have been worked out. Julian Montgomery and Joe Ward are both devoting considerable time to perfection of the plans.

WARSAW, July 21. (AP).—The Polish torpedo boat Kaszub blew up and sank in the harbor of Danzig yesterday. The entire crew was lost. The Kazub had just arrived in the harbor for repairs and was proceeding under its own steam when the explosion took place. No explanation is available as yet as to the cause.

Diet Adopts Measure Permitting Sales.

WARSAWW, July 21. (AP).—Large estates in Poland are to be subdivided and sold to the people under a measure adopted by the diet yesterday after many months of preparation and debate. Five hundred thousand acres are to be taken yearly for ten years, the government paying the appraised value partly in cash and partly in 5 per cent bonds redeemable in 20 years.

MANN OFFERS TO GIVE TAX CONTRACT UP

Former City Attorney Says He Will Make No Objections.

E. M. Mann, former city attorney and for the past three years a special attorney retained for the collecting of delinquent city taxes, will offer no objection to cancellation of his contract with the municipality, he informed Mayor Shepherd and Finance Commissioner Jones yesterday. The contract was ordered cancelled by the city council Monday night on recommendation of Commissioner Jones and an opinion from City Attorney W. E. George that it was not a valid one.

Mr. Mann's position all along has been that he would release the city from its agreement if it should so desire. He took the stand, however, that inasmuch as collection of the delinquent taxes was at a difficult stage now, he felt it incumbent on him to remain and carry through to completion the work he had undertaken. For that reason he did not seek a release from the contract, but had told various city officials several times that he would be glad to give up the work if they so wished.

Under the terms of the contract Mr. Mann was paid 10 per cent of all taxes, interest and penalties collected and which were due prior to 1922. His agreement with the city was made in June, 1922.

TEXAS TOWNS PLANNING NEW 1925 SCHOOLS

Austin Officers Get 9 Reports of Plans For Fall

AUSTIN, Texas, July 21.—Nine Texas towns and one state institution have started building operations or plans for new school buildings to be completed during the coming fall and winter at a total cost of approximately $1,213,000, it was learned from architects of Austin. Plans for the extensive statewide building program have been drawn in Austin and building in many instances has started.

Temple leads the list at Austin offices with a school building program providing for remodeling four school buildings, three grade and one high school, at a cost of $250,000. Construction on the high school and two grade schools already has started. This is the first building activity on Temple school buildings in 10 years.

Residents of Bell county south of Temple will join the city program by erecting a $40,000 consolidated grade and high school to be known as New academy. Bids are to be opened soon.

A brick fireproof high school has been started at Kingsville, at an estimated cost of $80,000; Edinburgh will add a new $45,000 ward school to its system; and a combination high school and ward school will replace the old school building at Marfa at a cost of $65,000.

Plans providing for a combined auditorium and gymnasium seating 600 persons have been drawn for a new high school building which will be erected in Port Neches at a cost of $133,000. During class theatrical performances the gymnasium floor will be used as a stage, with special drop curtains and wings. When a basketball game is to be played the curtains will be lifted and the court opened to view of spectators in every part of the building.

A new high school building at Granger will be completed within one month, the architects said. The cost will be close t o$125,000.

Plans for the new $150,000 building for the Southwestern State Teachers college have just been started by the architects. Construction work is expected to start in the fall.

Jacksonville citizens are adding a $125,000 high school building to the city system.

Other building operations planned by Austin architects include a three-story brick, a fireproof hospital building for the state insane asylum at Rusk, and construction of a new city hall at Texarkana which will cost $200,000.

Through a Woman's Eyes

Harmful Mother Love.

That the love of a mother should ever be harmful in any way seems impossible. Yet some times it is true.

Johnny's mother is extremely devoted to her son. She loves him so much she thinks he is the most wonderful boy on earth, so wonderful that he must make the world ring with his benefactors to humanity. The best way to do this is to be a doctor, to cure the sick, to perform miracles on the world's unfortunates.

So she insists that Johnny become a doctor. And if she gets her way she will do irreparable harm. For Johnny would make a very poor and unsuccessful doctor. The fact is that Johnny can work better with his hands than with his head and though he wouud make a poor doctor, he would make a good mechanic, which he wants to be.

When the love of a mother for her child becomes an obsession that deprives an otherwise intelligent woman of the power to form a true judgment of that child, then it is another one of those good things that become harmful through being overdone.

To help her children to make the most of their talents a..l other assets a mother must consider their liabilities. She must take stock with her eyes wide open and look the facts squarely in the face.

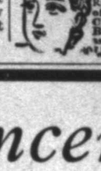

We have all known the mother who tried to turn an ugly duckling into a swan by persuading herself that she had a swan. You have seen the lanky, large-boned girl, uncomfortable and ridiculous in a fluffy pink rosebud frock that would have suited a blond, blue-eyed baby doll. And the girl might have been made to look attractive.

If her mother had recognized her limitations and bent her energy on bringing out her good points, if she had dressed her in simple long lines, with her hair wound round her head, she might have turned out a most attractive, honest-to-goodness Greek type instead of an absured would-be baby doll.

A famous alienist made the statement that it was such inability of many mothers to see any defect in their children that was responsible for an enormous amount of feeblemindedness. It is their refusal, he says, to admit such a thing even to themselves that prevents the cure which early recognition and treatment would effect.

Many a failure has to thank for it nothing but his mother's inflated inventory of the equipment with which her darling boy was going forth to amaze the world. I know a very poor lawyer who was cheated out of being a successful farmer because of his mother's insistence upon the extraordinary quality of his oratory. And we all know of other examples of the same thing.

Mother love is the greatest force for good that we have on earth. But—turned into an obsession to find in one's children qualities that we would like them to have even at the price of the grossest self-deception—it is like a dagger sheathed in a rose.
