Thresher's Last Sound Like 'Ship Breaking Up'

By JAMES CALOGERO
PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP)—The last sound to come from the lost submarine Thresher was like "the sound of a ship breaking up—like a compartment collapsing," an officer of the sub's surface escort vessel testified Saturday.

At 11 g. James D. Watson gave his dramatic testimony to a naval court of inquiry which is investigating the loss of the nuclear submarine Thresher, which went down with all hands a crew of 112 and 17 civilian workmen—last Wednesday in 8,400 feet of water 220 miles off the Massachusetts coast.

Watson, navigator of USS Skylark, a submarine rescue vessel which stood by on the surface during Thresher's tests, testified the breaking-up sounds were heard at 9:14 a.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Five minutes earlier, he testified, the final exchange of messages between Thresher and Skylark began with a message from the submarine.

There was no reply, Watson testified. He said the commanding officer of Skylark then took over the microphone of the underwater telephone at least four times.

Mrs. Roe named George Killam, county attorney, to serve as Americans Abroad Chairman for the local AFS chapter.

Lillard's car was knocked 300 feet down the tracks and demolished. His body was thrown out just before the car came to rest on its side.

Pipe Convoy Travels

TO RELIEVE A THIRST—Shipments of cast iron pipe are leaving the East Texas mill of Lone Star Steel Company on an "around the clock" basis to relieve the thirst of the West Texas town of Rotan. The pipe, more than 31 miles of it, will connect Rotan with water supplied by the Colorado-River Municipal Water District at Snyder. The new line will carry more than a million gallons of the precious liquid per day.

The first convoy of cast iron pipe destined to relieve the water shortage of a West Texas town has departed from the mill at Snyder, which is completed in the next 100 days.

A total of 77,260 linear feet of 12-inch, cast iron pipe is being laid by McHone Construction Co. of Fredricksburg.

Lone Star Steel Company, which manufactures both steel and cast iron pipe deep in East Texas, and the thirsty West Texas town of Rotan have become "partners in progress" in a plan designed to quench a thirst.

Hymns, Bells Ring Out In Jerusalem

BY DAVID LANSCHER
JERUSALEM (AP)—Jordanian troops through increased air of the church of the Holy Sepulcher, Saturday and great bells pealed the Easter message in warm sunbathing.

Eastern Christians staged this Holy Sepulcher Saturday in the memory of the "over death day" of Jesus Christ.

While Westerners kept prayerful vigil for Sunday's sunrise, about 15,000 Greek Orthodox, Armenian, Coptic and Syrian worshippers, rejoiced feverishly at the miracle of the holy fire.

Burning torches were thrust through the wall opening of the sanctuary, regarded by Christians as the tomb of Jesus Christ, to light lamps and candles of Eastern pilgrims from far and near. His beatitude, Benedictus, Greek Orthodox patriarch of Jerusalem, conducted the service.

Say Prestige Up In Latin America

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House group reported Saturday U. S. standing in Latin America is high or better than in many years but urged hemisphere governments to act more vigorously to protect themselves from communism.

Overall, a four-man bipartisan study mission found the United States now enjoys "a more favorable position in Latin America than it has for many years."

It concluded from its free nation inspection tour late last year that the appeal of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuban revolution is a major problem.

Clearly the American republic must take steps to defend themselves against the immediate dangers of Communist subversion.

The group said that "unless Latin American governments can capture the allegiance of their people by being responsive to their needs, they will remain vulnerable to Communist subversion and receptive to Communist promises."

Latin Americans appreciate the fact that their country's "highly developed" economic growth is the highest in the world.

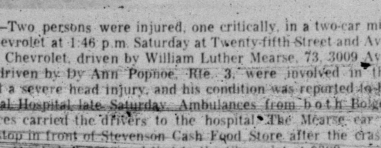

Clearly the American republic must take steps to defend themselves against the immediate dangers of Communist subversion.

TWO HURT IN MISHAP—Two persons were injured, one critically, in a two-car mishap involving this 1948 Chevrolet at 1:46 p.m. Saturday at Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue K. City Police said the Chevrolet, driven by William Luther Mearse, 73, 3009 Avenue C, and a 1957 Buick driven by Ann Poppo, 312, were involved in the crash. Mr. Mearse suffered a severe head injury, and his condition was reported to be critical at Conwell Memorial Hospital late Saturday. Ambulances from both Bolger and Bell Ambulance Services carried the drivers to the hospital. The Mearse car is shown where it came to a stop in front of Stevenson Cash Food Store after the crash. Damage to the Buick was estimated at $900 and that to the Chevrolet at $300.

Georgia Youth, 17, Held In Stabbing Of Pair On Boat

By CHRIS MACGILL
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Roger Foster, 17, son of a Griffin, Ga., physician, told officers Saturday he stabbed the captain and mate of the charter boat Dream Girl to death with a cut-throat razor. He chartered the boat with the intention of killing himself after he got to sea, he added, but after the bloody slayings of Capt. Douglas Trevor, 47, and his son, Edward, 22, the razor he found himself unable to take his own life.

The blue and white charter boat, splashed by the blood of the crewmen, was towed to Key West Saturday and Foster was hustled off to a jail cell. Newsmen were not permitted to talk to him.

When the youth was taken by Coast Guardsmen who found the Dream Girl after an extensive search, Foster had said, "I murdered them and these three overboard."

Sheriff Henry Haskins told newsmen Foster related this story of the killings under questioning by county officers and FBI agents.

He chartered the boat with suicide as his only intention.

Twenty miles west of Key West and 4 miles south of the Marquesas Keys, he knapped up on Trevor at the wheel of the boat and struck him with a flashlight. Then he began stabbing him with the bait knife he had found on the boat.

Trevor shouted to his son, who was up on the flying bridge. "Look out, he has a knife!"

Edward clambered down from the bridge, took the knife from Foster and tossed it to the back of the boat. Then, while his father, who had held the youth by the hands, Edward went to the cabin to radio the Coast Guard for help.

Foster broke away from the cabin, retrieved the knife and stabbed the mate at the radio controls.

Then Foster intended to kill himself, but the captain and mate were dead, he threw one over the port side, and the other over the starboard side, into the sea, estimated to be about 25 feet deep.

The sheriff said Foster had refused to see his father, Dr. H.A. Foster, and wants no visitors at all. Haskins said the youth will be charged with first-degree murder and will be prosecuted by the county since the killings took place within three miles of a U.S. owned island.

Dr. Foster flew here to meet the boat but later could not be located by newsmen.

"Relating the events up to the time of the killings," FBI agent Ralph Jensen said, "Foster was able to give a straightforward story. When he got to the killing of the two men, it had a visible emotional effect on him."

The killings took place between 8 and 9 p.m. Thursday.

BLACK AND GOLD

By Janis Atwood
Haskins said Foster mentioned that he had had trouble with a girl friend about a month ago, but no other clue was given as to his motive for suicide.

He made a statement about his reasons for killing the two men, but Haskins said he was not yet ready to release that.

Edward Trevor's wife, Sandra, was hospitalized for treatment of shock. The couple has two children. Capt. Trevor and his wife had two other sons besides Edward and 8 p.m. Thursday.

Foster appeared dazed when he was led ashore from a Coast Guard cutter that "loved the Dream Girl into a pool, with an FBI agent and a county officer gripping him firmly by the arms. His T-shirt and pants were stained with blood.

The deck and sides of the trim sports fishing boat were grimy and smeared around the steering position and on the flying bridge had dripped over the side.

River Project Leader Dies

BORGER (AP)—A A Meredith died Sunday in a Borger hospital after a long illness.

Meredith underwent surgery in Dallas about three weeks ago. He was secretary of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, formed to build a reservoir and connecting pipelines for 11 Panhandle and South Plains cities.

The project dam, now a federal endeavor, is named for Meredith, a native of Louisiana who moved to Texas in 1960.

Meredith came to Amarillo in 1951 as director of the Potter County relief program. In 1953, he became Works Progress Administration director for the district.

In 1941, he moved to Borger, as city manager and held that position until 1949 when he resigned.

"I was managing the Canadian River Water Users Association, foreman of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority," Federal arrangements were pending late Saturday.

Rockefeller, Goldwater Reach Truce

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ind., have reached a tacit truce to abandon attacks on each other while they strive for Republican unity.

At the moment, the New York governor and the senator seem to be the two men most likely to collide next year in the contest for the GOP presidential nomination. Rockefeller, who ditches all labels, has been tabbed generally as a liberal. Goldwater wears his conservative badge with pride.

Neither admits publicly that he is seeking the nomination. Rockefeller just brushes aside inquiries as to why he is acting like a candidate if he isn't one.

Goldwater goes further to say that he doesn't want the nomination of the job as president. But he has not laid a restraining hand on sponsors of the latest movement to draft him.

In this situation, the governor and the senator have found it expedient to quit taking cracks at each other. Goldwater, who was sharper in that department than Rockefeller, now is saying that the governor is a good Republican and just about as conservative as he himself is.

Rockefeller has repaid this compliment by describing Goldwater as "a great Republican and a sincere and dedicated American."

The two men have been having occasional meetings at which they talk informally about methods of healing the liberal-conservative rift which could spell trouble for any GOP nominee running year.

Goldwater has gone out of his way to see to it that Rockefeller gets a respectful hearing when the governor invades conservative territory for party rallies at which he is obviously trying to sell himself as a candidate.

When Rockefeller went into Wisconsin some time ago, conservatives there threatened to boycott the dinner at which he was to speak. Goldwater got on the phone to urge these party members to give the governor a hearing.

Rockefeller repaid these efforts by attending a May 9 dinner honoring Goldwater at which the publicist Senatorial Campaign Committee expects to raise around $300,000 for its campaign chest.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Everybody complains about smokers, but nothing is ever done about them. I've had more meals spoiled and more pleasant hours of socializing ruined by people who foul the air with cigarette and cigar smoke. Do they think they own the world? I wish someone would invent a "pipe" to be used in self-defense by non-smokers who wish to retaliate. It should be an instrument capable of producing great clouds of offensive smoke that would out-smell any cigarette or cigar on the market. I don't sound so good, but the user could send out this smoke without getting any of it in his own mouth. Also, tiny fans to direct the smoke away from the user and toward others. If should have an attachment that would blow ashes into fowl of smokers and burn neat little holes in the furniture.

If the above-described "retaliator" is ever invented, I promise to buy the first one produced, regardless of price.

DOUG
DEAR DOUG: If such an item is ever produced, you may buy the second. I want to get the first.

DEAR ABBY: A dog worshipper has been leading his dog, routinely, to my front yard. I decided if he had that much nerve, I would get up the nerve to do something about it. So when I saw him approaching with his dog, I stood on my porch and just stared a long, hard stare at him. He smiled and tipped his hat.

"Must I come right up and say, 'Why don't you use YOUR front lawn?'"

LIVE AND LET LIVE
DEAR LIVE: Tell the man please to let his pooch see more of the world than your front lawn. And if he doesn't catch on, tell him to keep Fido off your grass or you'll call the law.

Philharmonic Hall Weak On Bass Notes

By JOHN T. CLARY
NEW YORK (AP)—The spanking new Philharmonic Hall in Lincoln Center is going to get a flogging because the bass notes do not sound bass enough.

There also will be some changes costing more than $300,000 in the interior design of the $15.5-million hall because of its tonal deficiencies.

The showplace music center opened Sept. 23, amidst the glitz and splash of celebrities and dignitaries, including the President's wife, Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Now, some of the bugs that were anticipated, have to be ironed out. Max Abramovitz, the hall's architect, said Saturday.

The work, according to William Schuman, Center President, a composer whose works have been played in the blue and gold decorated auditorium, will be completed in time for the opening of the second season in the fall.

Abramovitz said there was not a hall of this type in existence that did not have some acoustical difficulties at first, and that these are expected on all such projects.

But it will take an expertly trained ear and an eye that has spent long hours gazing at the fine points of the hall's design to notice the changes when all are completed.

The work mainly will be one of reshaping—making the interior more shell-like so that those touchy bass notes will gently on the surfaces instead of bouncing.

NATO Due Bigger Voice In Strategy

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Formation of an inter-Allied nuclear force was advocated by the United States Organization of Nations—a much bigger voice in selecting the weapons targets being the Iron Curtain, U.S. officials said Saturday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned last week from consultations in Paris since an extended plan for the inter-Allied nuclear force was developed. It now appears to have gained considerable support.

One obvious purpose of the plan is to forge some kind of link—if possible—between future French nuclear forces and those being developed in NATO with the United States as primary supplier of the nuclear bombs and hardware.

Rusk returned to Washington convinced that when France has its own independent nuclear force, her strategic nuclear planning and weapons testing will be coordinated with NATO. This will be a major step toward the formation of a strategic nuclear force.

In reporting this approach, officials made clear that in the meantime Rusk and other Allied leaders have been trying to find some way to construct transitional links within NATO.

Says 10 Per Cent Of Solons 'Bad Boys'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., said Saturday that 10 per cent of congressmen are bad boys.

So he said, for the good of the nation the 90 per cent of good ones in Congress must share the discipline necessary to make the congressional deliberations behave. He said proposed legislation to keep them all in line with a threat of a $10,000 fine.

He suggested that Congress pass a bill binding its members by sworn statements on income, gifts, payrolls and tightening up on official travel practices. Violators of the proposed code of honorable congressional living would face a $10,000 fine.

Firm Buys Crude Lines

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Rock Island Oil and Refining Co. said Saturday it has arranged to buy 365 miles of crude oil gathering lines from the Texas Pipe Line Co. of Houston.

The price was not disclosed. Industry sources said it could run into several hundred thousand dollars.

The 2 to 4 inch lines are to be leased in Calahan, Shackelford, Stevens and Young counties of North Central Texas. The system is connected to 450 wells with daily runs of 5,000 barrels.

Rock Island said the transaction likely will be completed in May.

The transmission facilities will be used to deliver crude oil to common carrier lines which serve refineries throughout the Mid-Continent and Great Lake areas.

Rock Island is a diversified company which buys and sells crude oil.

Cites Needs Of Colleges

HOUSTON (AP)—The director of higher education programs branch of the office of Education says Texas will have to spend between $1.1 and $1.6 billion for physical facilities needed to meet the demands of higher education for the 15-year period from 1961 to 1975.

Dr. Harold A. Haswell told the Houston Chronicle this means an annual expenditure at the rate of between $75 million and $110 million if the demands are met.

Dr. Haswell made his estimates on the assumption that Texas will continue to enroll approximately 5 per cent of the nation's college students over that period. Although he said it is more likely that the Texas proportion would increase.

Rotary rig activity picked up slightly last week, in Permian Basin 60 fields. Reed-Roller Bit Company's weekly survey showed 248 rigs running, compared to 205 the week before. However the 205 total was 41 less than the 249 rigs counted in the area the same week last year.

Scurry and Borden Counties had no change, with 2 rigs each, while Mitchell County had 2 compared to 1 the week before, and Fisher County had none compared to 2 the week before.

Lea County, New Mexico, had 45 active rigs to pace the Basin. Ector County had 22 and Andrews 17.

Kansas City To Launch Master Plan

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An organization covering 104 cities is ready to start Monday on a drive to sell 25,000 season tickets, the requirement for moving the Dallas Texans, American Football League champions, to Kansas City.

The City Council has approved a seven-year lease for Hunt, with the first two years at $1 a year. It also voted $400,000 in bond funds already approved by the voters to enlarge the stadium and construct an office building and practice field for the club.

Andrews — Five meet records fell to the wayside in the senior division of competition of the Mustang Relays here Friday, as Periman won out in that upper division with 72 total points.

GAIL READ Extends String to 18.8

Wherein lies the secret to the abrupt stop — face? In team hitting, primarily. That's been the big factor in the welcome change — of pace.

Another factor on the plus side of the ledger, however, lies in the area of the long ball. A near absence of such was evident over the frustrating non-league trial, when only one Tiger home run was recorded.

Something will have to give here at Tropic Park Tuesday, though, and local hopes are that it will be the Lomessa Tornados who will go home snarling from their first loop game.

Cows Now Scarce At Cow Colleges

By G. K. HODENFIELD

AP Education Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—It's getting harder and harder to find the cows at a cow college. Junior colleges have become increasingly important and respectable, and some have graduated to four-year institutions.

State teachers colleges are expanding into state universities. So great have been the changes in higher education in recent years that the old stereotypes no longer apply. The time-worn images are out of focus.

By the accepted definition, for instance, the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas—Texas A.M.—is a cow college. Perhaps there is something wrong with the definition.

A cow college, with a program in the exciting and comparatively new field of activation analysis which is generally recognized as the world's best.

Prude Ranch Film To Be Shown Here

John Robert Prude, owner and operator of Prude Ranch at Fort Davis, will be in Snyder Tuesday when he will show a film of the ranch beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Epworth Hall of First Methodist Church.

Prude Ranch was established as a cattle ranch in 1888 but due to the drought began taking guests in 1922. Since that time it has been a haven for families with children. The freedom of the wide open spaces, the beauty of the surrounding mountains, the purity of the atmosphere and the pleasant temperatures day and night make it a place that young cowboys and cowgirls love.

Louisiana's Oil Reserves Show Gains

By MAX B. SKELTON
HOUSTON (AP)—Louisiana claims an increasing share of the nation's oil and gas reserves.

Louisiana's inland and offshore discoveries have led other areas in whittling away at the dominant positions held by Texas for both oil and gas.

In the past decade Louisiana has boosted its share of domestic crude reserves from 9.1 to 16.7 per cent. Its share of gas reserves rose from 15.7 to 26.2 per cent.

Texas' share of proven crude reserves dropped from 53.7 to 46.6 per cent. Its share of gas reserves declined from 52.9 to 43.6 per cent.

Louisiana added 155 million barrels to its crude reserves and 3 trillion cubic feet to its gas reserves last year. Texas crude reserves declined 201 million and its gas reserves declined 335 billion cubic feet.

Total domestic crude reserves declined 369 million barrels last year while gas reserves increased 6 trillion cubic feet.

American Petroleum Institute estimates at the end of 1962 indicate gas reserves were 37 per cent above 1962 despite a 59 per cent boom in annual production.

The 1962 rankings of Texas, Louisiana, California, Oklahoma, Wyoming, New Mexico, Kansas, Illinois, North Dakota, Mississippi, Gas, Texas, Louisiana, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, California, Wyoming, Mississippi, Colorado, West Virginia.

WASHINGTON (AP)—How Texas as congressmen voted of recent roll calls:

On passage of bill to establish a national wilderness preservation system. For—Yarborough, Against—Tower.

On Prouty, R-Vt., motion, rejected 29-38, to send administration's youth employment bill to Interior Committee for further study. For—Tower, Against—Yarborough.

On passage, 50-34, of youth employment bill. For—Yarborough, Against—Tower.

and on for several years—a stint which counters the common opinion in the spring.

"It's going to be an all-out experiment in boldness, and will be touch-and-go all the way," he says. There isn't going to be a chorus line, but Donahue is keeping many about other intended innovations.

The project is loosely based on the youthful, melodramatic years of that star of an earlier year, Laurette Taylor. By coincidence the director recalls, Miss Martin once tried to take lessons from Miss Taylor.

"She was turned down," he reports. Laurette told her, "You'll have to get it the way I did—from the heart."

Rehearsals for "Jennie" start in June, and once the long months of burlesque are completed, Donahue gets going on another production in the past.

"The Habitation of Dr. Faustus" is the next production. It is the most marvelous thing I have ever seen," Donahue says. "The director of such who keeps seeking new challenges by the name of 'Lard' Donahue, the current 'Lard' Donahue, who's a play has a lot been involved with the venture off to see."

THE NEW SLATE—The Travis Junior High student body recently elected new student council officers for the coming year. Linda Schattel was named secretary, and standing behind her are vice-president Thomas Strayhorn and president David Cadena.

TRAVIS JUNIOR HIGH students and instructors from the "shops" will present an Industrial Arts Fair for the PTA program Tuesday night. Instructor Frank Miller, right, helps Paul Rollins with a cedar chest he will exhibit.

GIRLS TOO will be exhibiting at the Travis Industrial Fair. Shown putting finishing touches on their ceramic projects are seventh grade students Patsy Hodge, Patsy Alexander and Sharon Leison. Bob Bowden is the arts and crafts instructor.

Show 'Biz' Perked Up By Spring

NEW YORK (AP)—There's no business like show business, especially in the spring.

While everyone else's fancy lightly turns to vacation, show school to thoughts of vacation, the operatives at an entertainment are deep in sedulous labor.

ANOTHER OF THE YOUTH GROUPS which will be helping in the Cancer Crusade Tuesday are SHS Vocational Agriculture students. Receiving materials from Mrs. Steve Girardot which they will hand out during the drive are Jimmy Laster, Robert Stipe, Larry Lee, Carroll Stone, Bill Sneed and John Zalman.

Pamela Goes To School

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Like many another housewife, newlywed movie actress Pamela Tiffin, 20, has gone back to college.
I did it to keep up with my husband. He has a very wide knowledge, particularly as far as art is concerned," she says. A 19-or-20-year-old housewife is studying art history, European history and philosophy, and hopes to get a degree.
Pamela is married to Clay Felker, journalist and writer, whom she met two years ago at the Museum of Modern Art when they were introduced by mutual friends. Furnishing their home in New York has become a real adventure as Pamela has learned a lot about antiques since she has known Clay.
"We both have a fondness for the Tudor period or anything medieval," Pamela explains. "I bought a 15th-century tester bed in London when I was there making 'Come Fly with Me,' in the fall. It was very expensive but I just couldn't resist it," she says.
No Fur Coats
Pamela knew her husband was too long for it, unless he sleeps diagonally, she says laughing, but she had to have it, so the bed is in the guest room.
"It cost a lot but I've never had a fur coat or a car. A coat goes out of fashion anyway, and a car wears out, but the bed will be a legacy," she says philosophically.
She has also become interested in antique silver, and sometimes wishes she had never been to London to see the beautiful things there. Her big ambition is to own a William and Mary tankard, "but they cost $3,000, so that's why I don't have one," she says. She did get a beautiful tea caddy with a unicorn crest.
Models Yet
Pamela was born in Oklahoma City, attended primary and secondary schools in Oak Lawn, Ill., then moved to New York with her family where she attended Hunter College at night and modeled in the day time. She still models between pictures and on off-school days. She is a beautiful brunette, 5 feet 7 inches tall.
Her movie contract came as a result of a visit to California with friends, who took her on a studio lot to have lunch.
"It's so much more fun to hear the kids at school talk about aerodynamics or something than their next party or their new cars as movie people do," she says.
She loved working abroad in

A Walk On The Dreary Side

BOYS AND GIRLS TOGETHER
By William Saroyan
One of the literary themes much in vogue these days is the idea that many individuals live messy lives not so much in quiet desperation as in grumbling self-pity. And when an author skillfully depicts such a situation he is said to be writing comedy—the nastily bitter comedy of human fate.
Call it comedy or not, Saroyan's book is about some utterly messy lives.
The hero and heroine are a writer named Dick and his wife, Daisy, who live in San Francisco. Dick's writing talent has gone sour for several years; he is in debt, and he is a compulsive gambler. Daisy is a restless, shallow, money-hungry creature who keeps demanding that they move somewhere else.
After six years of marriage and two children, Dick and Daisy are at the nagging and fighting stage, their marriage held-together only by sex and their regard for the children. And when the book stops there is little hope that its characters will find any way out of their self-indulgent patterns.
The possibility that the author has drawn on some of his own experiences in certain passages of this novel cannot be overlooked. Saroyan has had trouble with gambling and knows what it is like to owe back income taxes. When his here expatriates on the

The map indicates the best time to give your lawn a treatment for crabgrass controls where you live. There are a number of good crabgrass-killing chemicals at your garden supply store.
Crabgrass thrives in hot weather. If your good lawn grasses are thick and full in the cool spring, fertilized adequately and mowed high, crabgrass will have a struggle to come through.
If your philodendron leaves do not split as they should, "your plant may not be getting sufficient light. One answer is artificial lighting, which might not be worthwhile for one or two plants. A remedy would be to wait until frost is no longer a threat, then to set the plant outside in a partially shaded flower bed.

WEDDING DATE SET—Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Brown, 201 Hickory, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Carolyn to Travis Withers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Q. W. Withers of Hermleigh. Vows will be exchanged at Greenhill Baptist Church on June 29. (Photo by Craft Studio)

Privately Owned Americana Shown

NEW YORK (AP)—Collectors of early Americana will enjoy a visit to the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art between now and April 23, for a special show of high quality.

Called "American Art From American Collectors," it presents more than 250 items of furniture, silver, glass, porcelain, prints, and paintings borrowed from 63 private collections throughout the country.

Sponsoring this event is an organization formed from more than two years ago. "The Friends of the American Wing," a group of antiquarians, students and collectors.

The show is the first major loan exhibition of American decorative arts to be held at the Metropolitan in two decades, and fills six galleries of the Wing.

It covers about 100 years from the 18th Century into the early 19th, serving to underline the fact that although many of the choicest examples of early Americana have been gathered into museums, a great treasure of fine works still may be found in private collections.

Collectors visiting this show will find its quality comparable with that of some foremost public collections — such as the American Wing itself, and at Boston, Philadelphia, Winterthur and Williamsburg.

James Biddle, associate curator in charge of the American Wing, points out that this show makes no attempt to be a definitive study of the fields that are represented.

"The objects have been selected with an eye to their quality, beauty, rarity and charm," he says in an introduction to the well-illustrated catalog of the exhibit. "We have tried to avoid showing items that simply duplicate what can be seen here in the American Wing 365 days a year."

There are 94 items of furniture, with a strong representation from New England, especially of Federal and "other" Rhode Island makers, New York and Philadelphia.

One of the most interesting pieces is a mahogany card table in the Chippendale style of the mid-18th Century, a Philadelphia piece lent by Capt. John Cadwalader and Mr. and Mrs. John H. W. Ingersoll.

Hanging above it is a portrait painted in 1775 by Charles Willson Peale, showing the table's original owner, Gen. John Cadwalader, and his family. A portion of the table may be seen in the picture.

There are 38 items of silver, mostly from New York and Boston makers, the latter including Jacob Hurd and Paul Revere.

The glass display consists of 34 items from the American section, one of the major private collections of the entire glass field.

It includes the "only known example of a pitcher patterned in a three - mold design definitely ascribed to the glass works at Mantua, Ohio — a design in which only a few other pieces have been found.

Another extremely rare glass item — perhaps unique — is a pitcher of almost clear glass, with a moonstone tint, which was patterned in a 10-diamond mold associated strongly with Zanesville, Ohio. A few other pitchers patterned in this mold are known, all in blue - green.

The show includes a small group of animals in Chinese export porcelain, lent by Mr. and Mrs. Lamont du Pont Copeland.

There also are 13 prints and water colors in the category "Views of New York," mostly from the collection of Robert G. Goelet, and 26 items classified as "Historical Scenes and Personages," many of them from the collection of William Middendorf II, plus a dozen miniature paintings, several from Middendorf's collection.

The show also includes a line copy and a set of portraits by Thomas Sully, of Nicholas Biddle and his wife.

FLOWER SHOW—The Twilight Garden Club has announced that they will hold their annual Flower Show on Saturday, April 27, at the Snyder Country Club. Admission will be 50 cents and it will be open to the public from 3:30 to 8 p.m. Above Mollie Pinkerton and Nellie Smith are pictured with two arrangements made at the show workshop Thursday evening.

ENGAGEMENT — Mrs. Helen Robertson of Lamesa announces the approaching marriage of her daughter, Linda, to Donald Joe May of Hermleigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond May. Linda is a graduate of Lamesa High School and is a freshman at Texas Tech. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Hermleigh High School and Texas Tech. At present he is a graduate student at Tech. The wedding is scheduled for June 8 in the First Baptist Chapel of Lamesa.

The Saluki, swiftest and perhaps the oldest of purebred dogs, is unexcelled as a hunter on desert sand and rocky waste. To Moslem nomads, who consider other dogs unclean, the Saluki is not a dog at all but a gift from Allah.

Novel Has Scope

THE GLASS - BLOWERS. By Daphne du Maurier. "There have been many novels about the French Revolution, and many about the fortunes and fate of a specific family. This one combines the two themes.

The family is that of Mathurin Bussan, a prosperous master of glass furnaces in the years before the Revolution.

The tale is narrated by Sophie, the elder of two daughters, and the only one of the five children who leads a life somewhere near normal. First she gives us memorable pictures of her father and her indomitable mother.

Then the story gets into its real theme — the tremendous changes wrought in the family by the turmoil which beset France from the early days of the Revolution to the Napoleonic era. These are ironical changes indeed.

Perre, who was the carefree, dreamy member of the family, ends up as a self-sacrificing shepherd of orphans and defectives.

Michel, the young stammerer who believed his father did not love him, becomes for a while a terrorist who takes part in a civil war, and then a forgotten, faded patriot with nowhere to go.

Edme, the younger daughter, proves to have the intellectual grasp of a man, and is lost finally in a maze of political ideas too advanced for her own time.

But it is Robert, the eldest child, who is the most dramatic figure in the family's story. It is Robert's misfortune, or weakness, that his ideas are too big for his capabilities. He is the charming flourisher who puts up a big front and then runs out on his debts. He leaves a son in France and becomes a hated emigre in London, deserts his new family there, and returns to France for oblivion.

In the matter of current labels and categories, this is an historical novel of the old school, filled with the realism of a period piece. It has scope and depth, characterization, narrative skill and emotional integrity — qualities which seem to have gone out of fashion, unfortunately.

Refresher Course: All-About Rice

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A reader writes that she is in the department of utter confusion about the varieties of white rice now on the market. What to use in recipes?

Nowadays when recipes for American dishes specify rice (raw or cooked) it is safe to use the long-grain variety of white rice. If the recipe does not give specific directions for cooking, cook the rice by one of the simple methods listed on the package. Long-grain rice is the type that "cooks dry" and should result in tender but not mushy grains.

Regular white rice also includes the short- and medium-grain varieties that tend to stick. Some cooks are able to manage this rice so that the grains are tender, but separate, but this seems to be a great feat to some. Medium-grain rice, these short- and medium-grain varieties, just because they are inclined to be sticky, are often fine to use in pancakes, fritters, hot breads, and stuffings for meat, poultry, fish and vegetables.

About a dozen years ago rice processed a new way came on the market. This type is sometimes referred to as converted rice, and sometimes as parboiled. The latter nomenclature gives a clue to the way the rice is processed: It's parboiled before it is milled. This processing helps to keep the grains firm and separate during cooking; it also helps them to retain their vitamins and minerals. This rice, when package directions are followed, is probably the easiest of all varieties to cook successfully.

Then there's pre-cooked rice. It's completely cooked and needs only boiling water treatment (according to package directions) in the home kitchen. Although in our opinion pre-cooked rice can not compare with the long grain or parboiled varieties, it is convenient to have on hand when quick meal preparation is necessary, or to use in certain dishes.

Nowadays cooks are likely to know the virtue of enlivening plain cooked rice to accompany meat, poultry, fish or eggs. Is the rice for meat, poultry, fish or eggs? If so, you may wish to use some of the following suggestions:

For pork chops: Then you'll find dark or white raisins or currants rinsed in hot water and drained, pine nuts or silvered almonds, or curry powder all excellent additions; you can add one or two of these or all three.

Cooked green peas mixed with rice is a fine combination with roast meat or poultry, baked or broiled fish, or creamed eggs. Miced parsley or chives mixed with rice make another good flavor team. Butter-cooked mushrooms (fresh or canned) that have been chopped or sliced and crisply cooked bacon are always popular with rice. It goes without saying that before these additions are made, the cooked rice usually benefits from the savory contribution of butter.

Can She Bake Raisin Topknots?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

COOKS KEEP right on being interested in learning to make the best dishes of other countries. Latest evidence: two universities in New York with colleges offering home economics classes are instituting courses in foreign cuisine.

If you've had some experience in yeast baking, you can use the following recipe and turn out a batch of Raisin Topknots made from brioche dough. Brioche is the cake-like bun that turns up for breakfast in France with cafe au lait. Serve these Topknots with sweet butter if you want to follow the French all the way.

If you have never baked with yeast, find a neighbor or friend whose culinary repertoire includes this art. Invite her (or him) to a kitchen party. Have all the ingredients needed for this brioche dough on hand, and go to work.

Watch how the skilled baker makes sure he has the water the right temperature for dissolving the yeast. Note that when milk is scalded, it loses some of its edge and a film shows up across the top. It's a good idea to scald the small amount of milk called for in this recipe on low heat—we use a measuring cup with a long handle.)

Note, too, that all the beating for this dough is done with a spoon—and we hope you have the wooden variety. Learn how to knead and shape the dough from your experienced baker.

Although these Raisin Topknots are not the richest brioche we have ever tasted, they do have characteristic brioche flavor. If you take the Topknots some hours ahead of serving, you can reheat or serve them cold. They're great for Saturday or Sunday brunch with good old American ham and eggs.

COMPANY BRUNCH.—Serve Raisin Topknots made from the French cuisine's brioche dough. They're mighty good eating.

RAISIN TOPKNOTS
1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
1/2 cup milk (scalded and cooled)
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 1/4 cups sifted flour
1 whole egg
2 egg yolks
1-3 cup butter or margarine (soft)
2-3 cup seedless raisins (halved)
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Egg wash

Sprinkle the yeast over the warm water in a warm bowl; stir to dissolve; stir in the scalded and cooled milk, sugar and salt. Add 1 cup of the flour and with a spoon beat until smooth; beat in the whole egg, egg yolks and butter. Add remaining flour, mixing to a moderately stiff dough. Knead on a lightly floured board or prepared pastry cloth until satin-smooth. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in size about 1 1/2 hours. Pat out dough to about 1/2-inch thickness; sprinkle with raisins and lemon rind. Cut into 24 equal-size pieces; shape 18 of the pieces into balls; place in greased individual fluted brioche or muffin pans (with wells about 2 1/2 inches across top and 1 inch deep). Make a deep indentation in the center of each ball. Cut each of the remaining 6 pieces of dough into three parts; form into balls and place in indentations, pressing well into dough. Cover and let rise until double in size, about 30 to 40 minutes. Brush tops with egg wash (1 egg yolk beaten with 1 teaspoon cream). Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven until a deep golden brown—12 to 15 minutes. Makes 1 1/2 dozen. Serve hot.

Clothes Drying

Over 200 cubic feet of gently-heated clean air passes through clothes every minute when they are dried in a clothes dryer. Clothes are never exposed to soot, fly ash or birds as they are when they're hung on a wash-line. They are not twisted and pulled by the wind. There is no over-exposure to strong sunlight. Every fiber is safely and uniformly fluffed. If removed from the dryer the minute the tumbling stops, clothes will emerge practically wrinkle-free.

NEEDS A FEW REPAIRS, NOT A NEW HOUSE

Churchill, Once A Has-Been, Rose To Give History Style

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

Sir Winston Churchill gave a style to history as it happened. The organ tone of his speeches turned the war with fascism into the story of mankind's endless struggle to build a dike against the dark and undouraged tide of evil.

The supreme tribute paid him by Congress—making him an honorary citizen of the United States—the first in history—has come late. He is 88.

Honor came late in his own country, too, almost too late.

He was a political has-been until the war, a man without a following, disliked and distrusted even within his own Conservative party. He was a brilliant man with an erratic record.

For six years before the war he had warned of Adolf Hitler. But few listened. He was too discredited to be persuasive while Britain and France threw Hitler's Germany sobquets of appeasement.

Churchill summed up what he thought of nations which tried it: "Each feels that if he feeds the crocodile enough, the crocodile will eat him last."

The crocodile snapped in May 1940, when Der Fuehrer struck the West. Prime Minister Chamberlain, who had just said "Hitler missed the bus," was banished. In Parliament, while the House cheered, Leopold Antony got up and hit Chamberlain with Oliver Cromwell's words to the Long Parliament: "In the name of God, go."

On May 10 Britain, dismally armed but forced to fight, turned to Churchill who almost alone for years had urged resistance. It was a dreadful moment for Britain. But for Churchill it was the finest hour. Finally at 65 he was the prime minister and as he went to bed that night he had these thoughts:

"I was conscious of a profound sense of relief. At last I had the authority to give directions over the whole scene. I felt as if I were walking with destiny, and that all my life had been but a preparation for this hour and this trial."

"Although impatient for the morning, I had no need for cheering dreams."

It was an amazing statement. His more than 37 books never gave a deeper insight in what made him tick, expectation, preparation, conflict, impatience, hunger for power.

In the five years which followed from the time he was 65 until he was 70, he became one of the greatest and most beloved figures

He didn't just come to Churchill as a political leader when he became prime minister. He had always had a mystical, or egotistical, belief he was intended for a great assignment.

He always wanted to be in charge "with authority to give directions over the whole scene." This explains why from youth he was the constant critic of the army, Britain's foreign policy, the government, and his colleagues in Parliament, both in his own party and the opposition.

"Giving directions meant he could put into practice the ideas which bubbled out of him. Some were dreadful, some were disastrous," Roosevelt said. "Winston has a hundred ideas a day, and about four are good."

Nor was it an accident when he said he spent his whole life preparing to be prime minister just as it was not quite a joke when Birkenhead said Churchill "spent the best years of his life preparing his impromptu speeches."

He worked at the speeches, which were his paving stones on the road to recognition. At first he couldn't think on his feet, could hardly think of more than one sentence as an answer in the House of Commons.

He had to memorize his speeches. He spent days trying them out on the walls of his room, in a friend's house or his own. Then he learned to talk with notes, then without notes.

In the end he mastered himself and the language so well he could even dictate his books instead of writing them. Then he revised them.

On the important speeches, particularly those in wartime, he endlessly rummaged around in his mind for a phrase, even as late as the morning he delivered it.

The British critic, Ivor Brown, pointed out Churchill sometimes reached far back into his life to borrow a phrase from himself if it fitted his need.

He did that in his most famous wartime phrase: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat." He packed it out of his history of World War I, written in the 1920s, where he said: "Their sweat, their tears, their blood be- forgotten the endless plain."

On Aug. 20, 1940, he paid his unforgettable tribute to Britain's air force: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

That phrase came to him the night before on his way home from an air raid. He tried it out on his military aide, Maj. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, and liked it so much he kept it.

It was Churchill's incredible energy, from youth to old age, which was the fountain of his ideas and efforts.

One biographer, Robert Lewis Taylor, said almost mournfully that trying to keep up with Churchill for a week would hospitalize the average man.

Churchill laid down his rule for getting ahead in the only novel he every wrote, "Savrola." "Would you rise in the world? You must work, while others amuse themselves."

He had two basic systems for getting the most work done:

1. During the war he stayed in bed in the morning as long as he could and worked there, reading or dictating. After lunch he ducked into bed for a two-hour nap. Then he could work till three in the morning.

2. He believed in spreading the work. "I never do any brain work," he said, "that anyone else can do for me."

When he wrote his books—particularly his histories of the two world wars—he hired a staff of scholars, military experts, and researchers. He put together what they came up with, along with his own contributions. The final version was his, although they did the digging.

He never smoked or drank, could be satisfied with a vegetable pie and distilled water. Churchill, has loved wine, whisky, brandy, champagne, cigars which he ordered by the thousand at a time, cold partridge, painting, bricklaying, farming, flying, polo, cats, butters, files, swans, goldfish, horses, gambling, a good cook, money, and in his old age, music.

His longtime friend, Lord Rix, said he briefly "Winston's tastes are very simple. All he wants is the best."

But he cannot stand whistling pins or paper clips and he wasn't always the dignified English gentleman his pictures show. His Scotland Yard bodyguard, Inspector Walter H. Thompson, had a close-up look.

He said that although Churchill "isn't different to a noble—wishes nothing to do to be a kicker of wastepaper baskets, with an unbelievably un-governed bundle of bad temper."

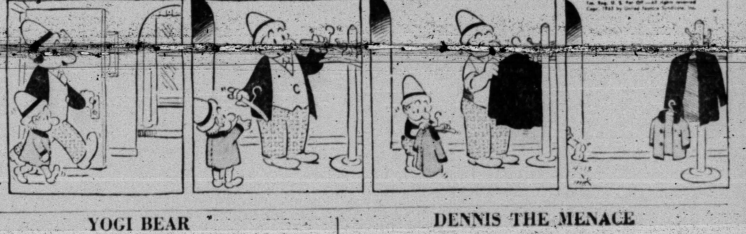

His doctors have called him the world's worst patient.

The profound differences between Churchill and Hitler reveal as well as anything how the world was divided in the war.

Hitler said: "I have not come into this world to make men better but to make use of their weaknesses."

Churchill laid down his outlook when he was 34: "What is the use of living, if it be not to strive for noble causes and to make this world a better place for those who will live in it after we are gone?"

Junior Editors Quiz on FIGUREHEAD

Question: Why were figureheads once used on ships?

Answer: Sailors love their ships and from the earliest times have had the feeling that they were something more than just wood, rope and canvas—that they were somehow alive. A sailor will say "she's a fine vessel," the word "she" meaning that he thinks of a ship as something beautiful and romantic, like a woman. Pictures of ships with distinct figureheads had been found on stone age rock carvings, so it must have been a very long time ago that this practice began. It is thought that the figurehead was supposed by the ancients to help the ship find her way through fog and dangerous waters. Certain ships in the Mediterranean Sea had eyes painted on their bows for the same reason, and the custom has persisted on certain fishing boats to this day. Viking ships, as well as Roman and Greek vessels usually carried figureheads and the custom became so general that an old-time seaman thought it unlucky to sail on a ship which didn't have one. But many quaint old customs passed out when steam took the place of sail. Now the only figureheads to be seen are in nautical museums.

For You To Do: In your library, look through some books on old ships and see if you can find pictures of figureheads. Many were made with full-length female figures; some were of famous Indian warriors or they might be portrait busts of the owners of the vessel.

Musical Coterie Presents 'Crusade For Strings'

The Snyder Musical Coterie presented "The Fiddlers," a string ensemble group from Odessa to their members and guests Tuesday evening at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Dorothy Croft, conductor and accomplished violinist, explained to the audience the dire shortage of string players for our great symphonies and orchestras in the country. The National Federation of Music Clubs has as one of its many projects the promotion of the study of strings, known as "The Crusade For Strings."

She explained many of the origins of the various songs and their meaning for the younger folk of the audience, so that they would understand the tempo and meanings.

For the first number the group presented, "Concerto for 12, Mass—Trio—Adagio and Allegro—This lovely repertoire was probably the first time it has been presented in this manner. Other numbers included, "Song of Spring" by Schumann, "Balletique, Opus 9" by Hermani, "Romance and Fantasia" by Wever, "From 18th century" by Grieg, "Serenade" by Bellini, "Serenade" by Strauss, "A Mass" by Cesar Franck, including Allegretto, Adagio, Allegro, Recitative and Allegretto poco mosso.

Mr. Ronald Bennett received his musical training and degree from the Cincinnati School of Music. He is a private teacher of piano and voice and is also a choral director.

At the intermission, Mrs. Souter

LINCOLN WAS RIGHT. And rural electrification is a living example of his wisdom. When rural people could get electricity no other way, Congress created the Rural Electrification Administration to help them finance their own non-profit power systems. Today this combination of local ownership and REA financing brings electric power to 20 million rural people.

Following Lincoln's concept of helping people to help themselves, the rural electrification program is strengthening the nation's economy and fostering democracy in rural America. Based on the finest principles of the American private enterprise system, rural electric cooperatives are owned, operated, and controlled by the local people they serve. Although they serve the sparsely-settled, country areas, rural electric manage carefully to make ends meet. Already they've repaid more than $1 1/2 billion in principal and interest on their REA loans.

Few programs in our nation's history have accomplished so much for so many Americans. Rural electrification does, indeed, prove the truth of Lincoln's idea.

Sybil's Grateful For A Red Flannel Petticoat

BY CAROL KENNEDY

DUBLIN — "It all started with a red flannel petticoat." The words sound out of place in the elegant Georgian drawing room overlooking Merriam Square where Sybil Connolly, Ireland's best-known designer abroad, is looking at a new collection of clothes.

In nine years the names of Connolly, Irene Gilbert and Kay Peterson's new Ann's L.A. Boutique have put Irish fashion firmly on the international map. No longer are the words "hand-woven-faces" synonymous with any peasant crafts—the hallmark of all three major designers is an original and highly sophisticated use of exquisite handmade native materials.

In North America, particularly the Dublin couturiers are regarded as "exclusively different" from those of Paris or London. Each of the "Big Three" has her own specialty among the local fabrics: Sybil Connolly's is gossamer-thin Irish linen, hand-pleated and stitched to form a light, uncrushable, hard-wearing material with a richly textured feel.

Red Was A Hit — She makes it up into cocktail and evening gowns, dyed in brilliant pinks, bronze-gold and state-blue. Unbleached, it furnishes the wall covering of her Dublin salon, setting off the gilt empire furniture and moss-green carpets. Yet it all started with that red flannel petticoat worn by a peasant woman in a cottage doorway in Connemara. In the spring of 1953, Sybil Connolly was brooding over her first collection on a motor tour of Western Ireland. "I stopped the car and thought I must have that in my collection."

She bought yards of the traditional red flannel quilted it and made it into a long evening skirt. Teamed with a white crochet blouse it bowled over the American buyers at the show. It still is the top seller in the Connolly boutique.

Buy's Old Gowns — Miss Gilbert's hallmark is Carriemacraes lace, hand-sewn in gowns and collars to age-old designs, mounted on fine net and made up into filmy cocktail frocks and blouses for movie stars and members of the Irish county nobility.

Besides commissioning work, Miss Gilbert buys up lace wedding gowns and christening veils from the treasure chests of old ladies. She remodels the leg-of-mutton sleeves and tight bodices into a top as modern as the waist—a delicate job because of the risk of cutting the edges of the lace patterns.

Coconut Crisps

1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups (about) flaked coconut
1/2 to 2 cups lightly crushed corn flakes

Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream butter until soft. Gradually add sugar, creaming until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Add flour mixture. Stir in coconut and 1/2 cup corn flakes. Drop by teaspoonfuls into remaining corn flakes, and roll to coat with the cereal. Bake on ungreased cookie sheets in moderate (375 degrees) oven about 12 minutes. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Space-Maker

The new furnaces are so compact that they make it simple to convert cluttered basements into pleasant recreation centers. New-model furnaces occupy only about two square feet of floor space, and the ductwork also is streamlined, as compared with the old-fashioned malleable pipes. Smooth floor, attractive lighting, bright paint and special fabrics, combine with neatly designed heating equipment to make a basement room pleasant, comfortable and indestructible.

Your family's silent partner

Living there on the doorstep, it can't speak. Or Move. Or Hear. But open it in your hands and it becomes a living, powerful partner in daily living. In the decisions you make, the opinions you form.

It takes you to the highest chambers of government. It takes you to the bloodiest streets of warring countries. It takes you to the heart of history in the making. In short, it tells you what in the world is happening and why.

But people depend on it for needs beyond the need to know. It's where families turn when something is to be bought or sold. It's where hints on health, cooking, religion, amusements, dressmaking, etiquette, marriage are found.

It's where charities first turn for help, and a place where a letter to the editor is published. It's where campaigns are fought and lost dogs are found. It's where criminals are exposed and newly-weds applauded. Where birth and death meet on the same page.
