Longhorns Ready For Opener

Hart Longhorns have a new coach this season and along with this new coach comes a new spirit of determination and pride.

New head coach Lonnie Phillips, who coached the past five years at Sanford Fritch, comes onto the field with a herd of 16 returning lettermen and eight new recruits who like to play the game of football.

Back this year from a 3-6-1 record of a year ago, is second team All Stater Stan Dyer, Dyer, ranked as one of the top five linebackers in the state will head up the Longhorns defensive as well as add strength to the backfield as starting fullback.

Other outstanding players back to help out the Longhorns are halfback Jimmy Brown, flanker Erasmo Castillo, tackle Wayne Ethridge, quarterback Dirk Rambo and defensive monster-man David Barham.

Brown, who won second in the 100 yard dash this past year at the State meet in Austin with a time of 9.7, adds speed and quickness to the Longhorn offensive.

Castillo, who won honors last year as an all-district end, has moved to halfback-flanker to add depth and strength to the backfield.

Wayne Ethridge, a 196 lb., 6'2" tackle and defensive end is rated as a good college prospect and adds the toughness and size it takes to the Longhorn line to make the big plays.

Other players for the Longhorns this year include; backs-John Robinson, James McLain, Juan Valdez, and Kenneth Davis.

Ends - Mike Booe, Danny Carson, Barry George and Dennis Hill. Linemen - Harley Malone, Duane Clevenger, Mario Martinez, Dan Sharp, Bill Clifford, Sonny Mancias, Kent Irons, Guillermo Carrasco and Cecil Jackson.

The Horns will have a balanced attack this year as they will be throwing the ball as well as running it. The attitude of the players is excellent and the coaches are pleased with the team thus far.

The Longhorns seem to have the material to be champs this season, although District 3-A is ranked as one of the closest districts in the state. They have size, speed, experience and an attitude of determination which can make any team a competitor.

The coaching staff encourages every one to attend the games this year and support the Longhorns in their quest of the District 3-A Championship.

The Longhorns traveled to Sundown Friday for a scrimmage with the Sundown Roughnecks. With the defense being led by Stanley Dyer, Wayne Ethridge and John Henry Robinson, the Horns made a good showing. The offense had good performances by Erasmo Castillo and Stanley Dyer.

Boosters Plan Projects, Elect Hawkins President

Band Boosters planned fund raising projects to benefit the uniform fund at a special meeting last Tuesday evening.

Members voted to sell pecans and fruitcakes prior to the fall holidays and to sponsor a concession stand at the junior high home football games.

Other business included the election of Robert Lewis Hawkins as president and Wamon Foster as vice president.

Tuesday, Sept. 12 at 8 p. m. is the next regularly scheduled meeting. Held in the band hall, all members are urged to attend.

Motorists

STOP

Or Be Fined

Superintendent Ted Averitt has issued a reminder to the public to obey the state law requiring motorists to stop behind a school bus which is stopped beside the road to load or unload passengers.

The law states that motorists must remain stopped back of the bus until the bus resumes travel or the driver signals permission to proceed.

Persons violating the law will be reported to the highway patrol or sheriff's department.

Enrollment

Totals Are Up

Enrollment figures inched upwards as the third week of school began for Hart students. Total enrollment, as of Friday, was 690 students, an increase of 45 over opening day.

Current enrollment shows 391 students in elementary grades with 299 enrolled in grades seven through 12.

Annual Field Day Tours To Be Conducted Thursday

Latest innovations in farm machinery and agricultural equipment will be on display during the 16th annual Field Day and Open House, Sept. 14, at High Plains Research Foundation near Halfway.

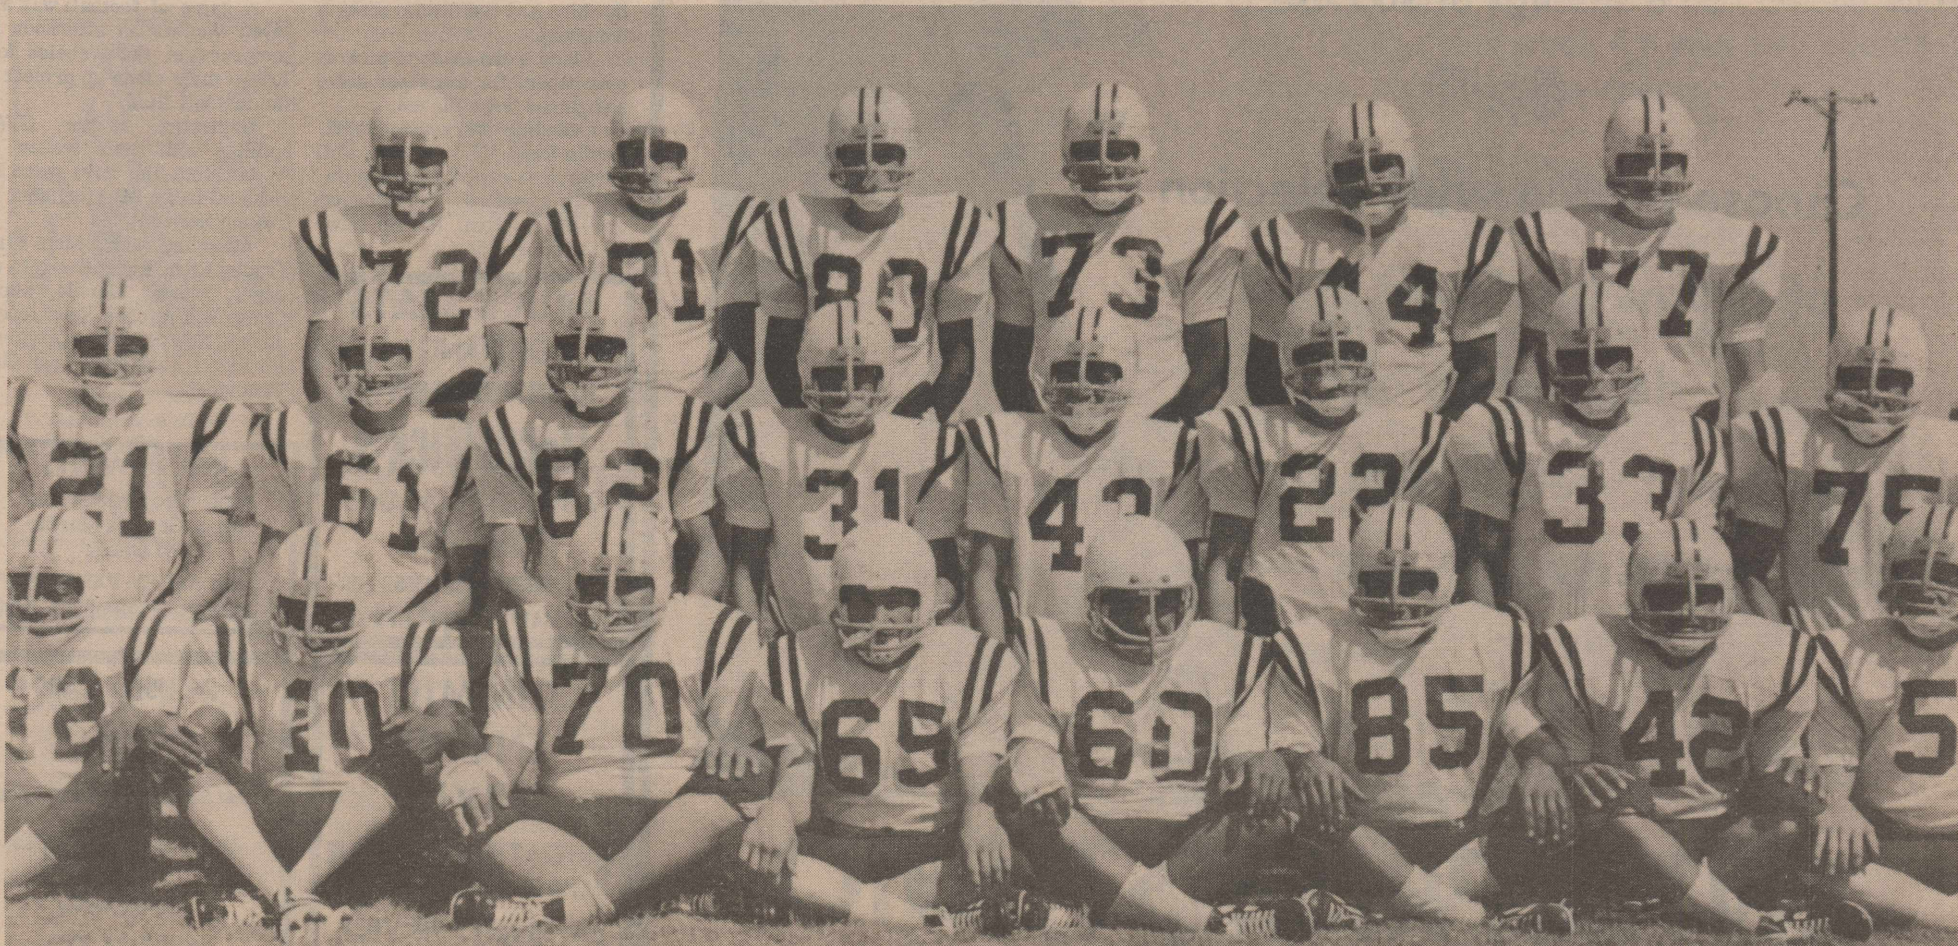

According to Dr. Tom Longnecker, Foundation director, equipment exhibitors and representatives of seed and agricultural chemical companies have reserved display areas in the exhibit area located west of the Killgore Building.

Dr. Longnecker said the number of exhibitors will not be known until Field Day but he indicated that numbers should be similar to last year's.

In a departure from past Field Day activities, the regular evening program with a special guest speaker will not be observed. Also door prizes and drawings for other prizes given away during afternoon activities will be open to all who attend the activities. Three $25 savings bonds will be awarded after each field tour and a color television will be awarded following the last field tour about 4:30 p. m.

Featured during activities which begin at 1:30 p. m. will be the tours of field research plots with two discussion stops scheduled for each tour. At

The best description of RUMOR I have ever read is from the fourth book of Virgil's AENEID.

RUMOR GOES FLYING

At once, through all the Libyan cities, Rumor
Than whom no other evil was ever swifter.
She thrives on motion and her own momentum;
Tiny at first in fear, she swells, colossal
In no time, walks on earth, but her head is hidden
Among the clouds. Her mother, Earth, was angry,
Once, at the gods, and out of spite produced her,
The Titans' youngest sister, swift of foot,
Deadly of wing, a huge and terrible monster,
With an eye below each feather in her body,
A tongue, a mouth, for every eye, and ears
Double that number; in the night she flies
Above the earth, below the sky, in shadow
Noisy and shrill; her eyes are never closed
In slumber; and by day she perches, watching
From tower or battlement, frightening great cities.
She heralds truth, and clings to lies and falsehood,
It is all the same to her.

NOISE CONTROL

The increasing desire to communities to control the noise levels encountered on city streets is encouraging, but more action is needed according to officials of the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation. They point out that in some urban areas the sound level is increasing as much as a decibel per year.

'As We Go Into This World'

By Penny Guzman

The "adult world" we are planning to enter doesn't "play the game"---if you like me, or if you don't.

We aren't always asked for our decisions---is it necessary?

From the time we were born until now, we have always had someone to repair our wounds and to soothe our feelings.

But things are going to be different for us now. We are soon going to walk away from our protective parents and we're going to start a "whole new adventure." We thought it was a great adventure when we first started school; but then, like I said before, we had someone to help us. Now we are going to be on our own, and in order to live in "our new world" we are going to need love, courage and most of all, faith.

During our school years, we probably all had enemies, but we learned that for each one of these enemies we had a friend. We also learned that all men are not true or just. And, hopefully, we learned that it is more honorable, by far, to fail than it is to cheat.

We have read, and we have acquired much knowledge through the books we read. By reading, we learned that there is much evil in the world but, fortunately, we learned that there is more good. As we go out into this world, we want to keep the good much higher than the evil---so much higher that maybe we can dissolve it or at least limit it.

As we go out into the world, we are going to find many people that are going to make fun of us. These people will constantly tell us to follow them because we are wrong and they are right. While these people are trying to confuse us, we are not going to have anyone there to tell us what to do. We do not want to say, "Is it necessary?", but what is the most fruitful answer?

We are going to learn that these people who make fun of us, are probably the easiest people to "lick." We must listen to all men, but we must learn not to take everything we hear as the truth.

We must shut out our ears to the "howling mob", and we must stand up to what we think is right. Even though everyone tells us that our ideas are wrong and theirs are right; we have to have faith in our OWN ideas.

We can sell our brains to the men who bid the highest, but we should never sell our hearts or our souls.

This is a big world and sometimes we are going to feel alone. We may dream of the past, but we do not really want the past again because "only

Castro Countians Attend Cancer Meet In Austin

Delegates to the 27th Texas Division annual meeting of the American Cancer Society heard Tom Landry, coach for the Dallas Cowboys team, accept the 1972-73 Crusade Chairmanship of the state of Texas, with these words: "I don't know a lot about cancer, but I do know how to set goals and I know how to make them, so we should have a good year for a great team of volunteers." With this pledge the Crusade goal was set at $4,000,000.

Attending this meeting from Castro county were Mrs. Harry Kleman, Nazareth; Mrs. W. A. Epperson, Easter; Mrs. Claude Forson, Dimmitt, and Mrs. L. C. McLain.

Delegates also heard Dr. R. B. Caraway of Wharton, immediate past president of the Texas Division say, "The battle against cancer is not being lost in the major cancer centers, but in our home towns, and it is our individual responsibility to find, influence, and make accessible to doctors, the potential cancer patients who live therein."

How to better influence people to ask for annual physical examinations and how to assist the medical profession in providing these exams was discussed from every aspect during the 38 different committee, membership, district, board and special sessions held.

Mrs. McLain helped conduct the Public Education group session, appearing on a panel with Dr. Paige Carruth, dean of men, West Texas University; Dr. Chas. Wilson, Wichita Falls; Dr. Grover Bynum, Austin; Mr. Stanley Cole, San Antonio; Mrs. Delia Allen; Col. Carl Norton, Waco and Dr. Crighton Edwards, Dallas.

One of the outstanding sessions of the entire meeting was a preview of the "Reach to Recovery" program which is being developed to aid mastectomy patients. This session was conducted by women, ages 20 to 65, who had undergone radical mastectomies, and were dedicated to helping others overcome the physical and emotional problems peculiar to these surgical patients.

Division officers and directors were elected at the meeting. Dr. Gerald Woolam of Lubbock was elected medical director-at-large. There were approximately 20 delegates attending from District Three.

Moments Of Meditation

In many respects, the larger responsibility for the ongoing life and work of the church falls upon the individual parish minister. His calling as a disciple of Jesus Christ is to a variety of ministries, even though he may work only in a specific place and with a limited number of people.

He is called to be a servant of God; yet as the Indian poet Tagore said, "God loves to see in me not His servant, but Himself, who serves all". God's servant should not become a slave to the idea of servitude; he should endeavor simply to do the will of Jesus.

When Jesus sent out His disciples, He instructed them in clear terms as to where they should go, what they should take, and the manner of their work. The type of ministry which the twelve engaged in seems quite remote from the needs of contemporary man. How can we translate such a ministry into the demands made upon a clergyman today?

One way would be to restate the commands of Jesus in contemporary language. We know that "healing the sick" requires a physician of the spirit as well as of the body. "Raising the dead" may be understood in relation to the rebirth of the soul. "Lepers" may stand for all society's outcasts who need a ministry of cleansing and redemption. And casting out the "demons" that can still be devil individuals and communities remains a part of the task of every spiritual leader.

The ministry of preaching continues to be a vital part of our work as servants of God. God's Word is effectively communicated largely through our words.

The tax boost is seen 'as a means of financing the spending on big new programs, such as day care and health insurance, that the public seems to be demanding.' I don't know about the day care program, but the main ones who seem to be DEMANDING federally financed health insurance are a few of the vote-hungry politicians, who probably are not nearly as interested in the health of their constituents as they are their votes."

the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

The "flu" may be of little concern to most people, but there are those with one or more chronic ailments which make it a mighty important part of their health planning, reports the Texas State Department of Health.

The end of a long, hot summer signals the approach of fall and winter and their threats to the health of the individual. Influenza is a distinct possibility during the cold, blustery, wet months.

What to do about it?

If you fall into one of the special high risk categories, the State Health Department recommends an annual vaccination against influenza.

You are in the high risk group if you have one of these chronic debilitating conditions:

1. Congenital and rheumatic heart disease, especially with the narrowing of a heart valve, and the hardening and thickening of arteries;

2. Chronic bronchopulmonary diseases such as asthma, chronic bronchitis, cystic fibrosis, bronchiectasis, emphysema and advanced tuberculosis; and

3. Diabetes mellitus and other chronic metabolic disorders.

Although the value of routinely immunizing all older age persons is less clear, the State Health Department says patients with incipient or potentially chronic disease should also be considered for annual immunization. Of particular consideration should be those with diseases affecting cardiovascular and bronchopulmonary systems.

Persons who provide essential community services may also be considered for immunizations if local priorities justify.

Influenza occurs in the United States every year, but the incidence and geographic extent vary widely. Periodically, it appears in epidemic form, such as the onslaughts, in the past few years of the A-2 Hong Kong variety.

The U. S. Public Health Service says the effectiveness of inactivated influenza vaccines has been variable, and protection has been relatively brief. Partly for this reason, vaccines are recommended only for selective use in persons at high risk.

Primary series of vaccine consists of two doses preferably six to eight weeks apart--with completion around mid-November.

Because of the time lapse between the first and second shots for those getting shots the first time, persons falling into the recommended categories may want to contact their private physicians now about getting vaccinations.

Persons who have had one or more doses of vaccine containing the Hong Kong strain antigen (all influenza vaccines since 1968-69) need only a single booster dose of bivalent vaccine. All others should receive the full primary series, according to the Public Health Service recommendations.

Persons who are hypersensitive to egg protein, ingested or injected, should not be vaccinated. Influenza vaccine is prepared from viruses grown in embryonated eggs and ordinarily should not be administered to those who have an egg allergy.

Research is going on constantly toward developing other types of vaccine, but it must be tested and approved before release for general use. The influenza injection-type vaccine is the only one in use at present.

The State Health Department doesn't recommend flu shots for everyone. However, those with chronic problems are more apt to suffer from the serious effects of flu and take longer to recuperate.

Destroying Cotton Stalks Vital To Weevil Control

Even though the cotton crop may be harvested in some areas of the state, the 1972 season is by no means over! There's still a big job ahead if farmers want to grow cotton again next year. And that job is destroying cotton stalks to reduce the food supply of overwintering boll weevils.

"Boll weevils are numerous in many areas of Texas this year," points out Dr. Raymond Frisbie, entomologist in pest management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Therefore, it's critical that producers shred and destroy cotton stalks as soon as possible after harvesting so that fewer weevils will be able to feed and build up a fat supply necessary to successful overwintering (or diapause)."

The Texas A&M University specialist explains the diapause condition that boll weevils enter as a sort of "hibernation" state in which they spend the winter.

"Successful diapause control programs should reduce the need for early to mid-season insect control next year," says the entomologist. "Such in-season insecticide applications often trigger bollworm and budworm outbreaks by destroying beneficial insects."

Frisbie encourages producers who are still awaiting harvest to include an insecticide in their defoliant or desiccant to reduce the number of weevils entering diapause. "Needless to say, harvesting as soon as possible is another way to gain a step on these pests," he adds.

Once stalks are shredded, the debris should be plowed under to a depth of at least six inches.

"Destroying cotton stalks and plowing them under is a key means of cotton pest management," contends Frisbie. "As alternatives to insecticidal control become more prominent, various cultural practices such as this become more critical in reducing damaging insect populations."

The entomologist emphasizes that "a good way to set your sights on a prosperous cotton crop in 1973 is to take the necessary steps now to reduce boll weevil numbers.

The heavens declare

People are so busy here and there that they often fail to perceive the beauty and grandeur of Creation. A storm at sea, a beautiful sunrise or a full moon riding in a clear sky are but commonplace aspects of the weather. Towering mountains, a great waterfall or a far-spread fertile valley are but features of the landscape.

Blessed is the man gifted with the vision and understanding to see the deeper meaning of Nature's matchless wonders.

For behind all the wonderful phenomena of earth and sea and sky is the pattern of a sublime plan which stirs the awe and challenges the imagination of man. There can be but one answer to the marvels and wonders of the universe—God! The Church brings man into spiritual relationship with his Creator.
