THREE COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICTS RETURN BUSES TO INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER CO. FOR INDEBTEDNESS

Repossessed Vehicles Re-Purchased By Lelia Lake And Charlie Risley; Students Have Opportunity To Attend School, Supt. Kavanaugh Says

Three Donley County school buses were repossessed last week by the International Harvester Company, but students in the communities may attend school by other means, county superintendent George W. Kavanaugh said yesterday.

Buses returned to the company were Windy Valley, Goldston and Chamberlain.

The Lelia Lake school district purchased the Windy Valley bus and operation will be continued in the Windy Valley community.

Charlie Risley bought the Goldston bus and plans to run it as formerly.

Hudgins district will operate through Chamberlain and will transport students from that community.

The International Harvester Company re-purchased the buses at indebted prices, Kavanaugh said giving the figures as Windy Valley, $1,186 and interest and Goldston, $1,324 plus interest.

The figure named by the superintendent for Lelia Lake's payment on the Windy Valley conveyance was $800.

In explanation of the repossession, Kavanaugh said:

"Since the buses were purchased, the State agreed to pay 1-5 of the purchase price each year until they were paid, however, such agreement was cancelled out and the State failed to make any payment on the buses.

In the last session of the legislature the appropriations previously paid was cut so as to allow approximately twenty five cents each for children who will ride the bus next year. The expenditures on operation alone average approximately $85.00 a month which must be paid from the local taxes of each district under the present set-up.

Since the taxes of the various districts are not sufficient to make the payments the company did not care to allow the buses to be operated throughout the year. The trustees of the various districts decided it would be impossible to operate the buses and make payments as demanded from the local taxes; therefore, the repossessions were allowed in order to save the schools in the various districts.

Cat Rides The Rods

Determined to start the life of a "Jungle Stiff" while quite young, a small kitten came to Clarendon on the trucks of a box car yesterday and continued his journey, in the same fashion, when the train pulled out.

He was only here while the engine received a supply of water but he was not particularly eager to make friends.

His destination was unknown but he would have to change cars in Memphis for points south as his would be dropped there, the brakeman announced.

Both the brakeman and station agent, D. F. Wadsworth, unsuccessfully tried to discourage the cat in his trip, but were unsuccessful.

Clarendon delegates yesterday attended a meeting in Amarillo called to honor Congressman Marvin Jones and his Southwestern colleagues for making possible a co-ordinated state, local and governmental program of water and soil conservation.

Representatives from Donley County were J. H. Hermesmeier, Will Chamberlain, G. G. Reeves, Claude Nash, commissioners; S. W. Lowe, County Judge; R. W. Moore, Homer Mulkey, Sam Braswell, W. T. Link, J. R. Porter, Elba Ballew, J. R. Gillham and Heckle Stark.

1,000 Representatives

Almost 1,000 representatives of five states gathered to hear congressman and other leaders pledge anew their co-operation in water conservation to "turn the dust bowl into a paradise."

Launched last December as the Panhandle Water Conservation Association, a regional meeting was held in Amarillo in May which resulted in the approval by congress of pledging $40,000 in WPA money for building lakes and dams in the dust bowl and another $10,000,000 in farm tenancy funds for purchase of sub-marginal lands to utilize in the work for lake sites, recreational facilities and other uses.

Governmental agency executives met in Amarillo Tuesday to form a co-ordinate committee to aid the intensive program in getting under way with the least delay. J. C. Foster of the Farm Security Administration was named chairman of the group and stressed early submission of county projects.

Commissioners Endorse Dam

Donley County commissioners recently endorsed a dam on the J. R. Porter farm north of Clarendon as the logical project for this county. A previously surveyed dam site on the location called for a cash outlay of approximately $150,000.

Assessment of each of the 32 counties, originating the association, to form a fund to have representation in Washington, has not been met by Donley County according to informed circles although minutes of the last meeting of the commissioners court Monday had not been entered last night. The amount was placed at slightly over $150.

WPA Labor To Be Used

Under the present set-up, it is understood WPA labor would be used solely upon projects with the sponsors (the counties) paying approximately 33 1-3 per cent of the total cost. However Marvin Jones told the assembly yesterday he was of the opinion any available labor could be used.

The commissioners Monday discussed available labor in Donley County. All local WPA employees are now at work on the highway 88 project near the river which G. G. Reeves, precinct 2, asserted would keep them occupied until next spring.

City Minus Projects

The city commission told the court they would not have a WPA project up for consideration which leaves the labor for the choice of the PWCA project or the present river hill work, Judge S. W. Lowe said.

Commissioner Reeves said in a statement yesterday if WPA labor was to be used on the conservation work, only Potter and Gray counties would have enough men on the rolls to endeavor a large project.

Yesterday's Program

A brief summary of yesterday's program in Amarillo is as follows: The meeting was opened by

"THE REST OF THE RECORD"

BY JAMES V. ALLRED
Governor of Texas

Quite a few of the newspapers have carried statements lately to the effect that we didn't need any new taxes. It's hard for me to understand this contention. When the Legislature met in regular session this year I told them that the general fund deficit would be approximately fifteen million dollars on August 31st. It has turned out to be just about that.

The trouble is, as I pointed out in my message to the regular session of the Legislature, that expenditure at that time (last January) exceeded income about two and a half million dollars per year. I specifically stated that I could not recommend increases in appropriations other than a little over a million dollars for the insane asylums and other eleemosynary institutions. In the face of these recommendations the Legislature increased appropriations approximately four million dollars per year and not a single penny of addition revenue was finally provided to take care of either the deficit or the increased appropriations.

In addition to the money necessary to wipe out the deficit and to take care of these increases in appropriations, I recommended that additional moneys be raised for old age assistance. This, too, was not done. I still think we need more money in the old age assistance fund to take care of many worthy cases. In my opinion, the trouble isn't so much with the law. We just need more money in the fund.

Besides we owe $1,627,000.00 on old age assistance warrants issued before the tax laws went into effect. Claude Teer, Chairman of the Commission, says we need more money for old age assistance. Unless new money is raised before the first of January, we are going to get into a tight and more people will have to be cut off.

Besides all this, the people recently adopted several constitutional amendments. I am sorry they didn't adopt the amendment to authorize the Legislature to pay public officers out of fees or salaries. This would have saved at least half a million dollars a year, but the people have spoken and I'm always willing to abide by the will of the majority.

Two amendments adopted authorized the State to completely cooperate with the Federal Government in its social security program. One authorized aid to the needy blind, and the other to dependent, neglected children. As yet I have no exact figures on how much aid to needy blind will cost, but aid to needy children is limited to one and a half million dollars a year for the State's part. In addition to this the people adopted the teachers' retirement amendment last year, and this is estimated to cost over two million dollars a year for the State's part.

Now all this adds up into millions. I'm the last person in the world to want to tax somebody, but when the people speak I think it's the duty of the Legislature and the Governor to carry out their wishes. The only way to raise this money is by taxation. It is painful, but necessary.

The argument is being made that improving business conditions will eliminate the necessity for new taxes. I hope business will continue to improve. Of course, Roger Babson is predicting another depression, but, in any event, business will not improve to such an extent that present taxes will take care of an existing deficit of fifteen million dollars, increased appropriations of four or five million dollars per year, over one and a half million dollars which the old age assistance fund owes on outstanding warrants, at least two million dollars new money to go in the old age assistance fund, one and a half million dollars for aid to dependent children, and several millions for aid to the blind and the teachers retirement fund.

The Legislature meets on September 27th, at which time I will make my recommendations as to how this money should be raised, and it will be in their hands. I am going to work on this job as hard as I did for repeal of the race track law, and hope you will help me with your moral support.

In view of the fact that all the big interests have unquestionably unloosed most of the recent propaganda against new taxes, and are having messages to that effect sent to members of the Legislature, I think the people had better get busy and let the senators and representatives know their views.

I don't want to call the Legislature in special session and accomplish nothing. I delayed the call until the people could vote on these amendments. Now it would be a great help to the cause of the people as a whole if you would see, or write, your representatives and senators and give them your views on the necessity of providing this revenue.

The money can be raised without substantial injury to anyone.

Texas is in a fortunate position as compared with most of the other states. Due to the wisdom of our forefathers in writing certain provisions of the Constitution, we have no great outstanding bonded indebtedness. We do not have an income tax. We do not have a sales tax, a transactions tax, or anything of the sort so common in every state around us. I hope we never have to have these burdensome, or nuisance taxes, but the fact remains that we owe it to ourselves to balance the budget, to adequately provide for old age assistance and to raise money for placing the other constitutional amendments into effect at an early date. Do you agree with me?

NOBODY KNOWS BUT MOTHER

They talk of a mother's toil and care,
Of the tasks that her hands must do,
Of the furrows that creep o'er the brow once fair,
Of the burdens and heartaches too,
But they know not the joy stitched in each little dress,
The pattering footsteps that brighten and bless,
The thrill of a baby's loving caress
Ah, nobody knows but Mother.
They talk of her narrow and humble place,
The monotonous life she leads,
While others are learning and growing apace,
And doing such wonderful deeds,
But they know not the mystery deep that lies,
Hidden away in a baby's eyes,
And every day brings a fresh surprise,
That nobody sees but Mother.
There was never a task by the Father given,
That brought not its blessing too,
And the life that liest the nearest heaven,
Was given, oh, Mother, to you.
The task is great, but the joy is sweet,
The hours of prayer bring a faith complete,
And the highest wisdom our life can meet,
Lies hid in the heart of a Mother.

THE OLD-TIME PICNIC

If you were born about the turn of the century or earlier, you will certainly enjoy this description of an old-time picnic by Alice Moyer-Wing in The Progressive Farmer: "You remember the old-time picnic don't you? the red letter day to which the family looked forward from one year to another. Remember how our best clothes were 'done up' with a little extra starch and hung away for the occasion? And no matter what happened, nothing could induce us to wear these best clothes until picnic day.

"Then Pa would harness the work team. We had just one team, but picnic day came after the crops, mostly, were 'laid by' and the horses were rested. At last we reached the picnic ground with its lemonade stands, its swing, and the candy 'draws,' where we bought a ten-cent box of candy and won a prize in rare, strange jewelry which we wore throughout the day.

"If you were a girl you didn't regret the spending of your picnic dime, for you were 'turned' 15 and some 'feller' had his eye on you. By and by he found the courage to treat you to lemonade. You knew he had saved up for just this occasion and that he hoed the weeds from a neighbor's corn for the money he had handed out now with the air of a Rockefeller. We were all millionaires on picnic day! "After the lemonade, there was the swing. Oh, that swing! Mule-drawn. Nobody cared whether the mule traveled or stood stockstill. You made up the feminine half of another couple or sit in one of the swing's half-back seats. You hadn't seen him for a month, maybe. He'd been busy in the fields.

"When it came time to pay or get out, he paid and stayed in—paid grandly. And he had some oranges in his pockets and some 'candy hearts' that he divided with you. They had 'readin on 'em.' One of them, you know, said, 'May I see you home tonight?' And you remember how you blushing handed back a reply, 'I don't care if you do.' And one which he boldly slipped into your hand asked the momentous question, 'Do you love me?'"

"And after a long, long silence, while you felt perfectly sure that every man, woman and child could hear that beating of your heart, you handed back a heart with just one little word in red letters: 'Yes.' "When you drove home that night, the idle, unnecessary sphere called earth was still so far away that you could scarcely hear the voices of your small brothers and sisters.

"But of course you remember."

TEMPLE OF TRUTH

By the Apostle

This week is being spent down in north central Texas. Leaving Clarendon Thursday, GW and I spent the first night with our son Homer and his wife at Vernon. The next night brought on the agony of ancestors when we began to get into territory inhabited by GW's ancestors at Wichita Falls.

When we lit at the home of her brother, Rue Hodges, word went out that the "chuck line riders" had arrived. Almost instantly, the families of Roy Hodges, Earl Hodges, Allen Blackman and daughter, and his overgrown mother-in-law, Mrs. Chas. Joplin and an endless bunch of children began arriving until near midnight. What we did not see of GW's brothers, nephews and nieces that night after the police dispersed the crowd for obstructing traffic, we rounded up next day. It was not only a great day, but a greater night.

The stop Saturday night was at the stock farm of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hurn six miles north of Henrietta where we met our son Phifer and Rosemary. Mrs. Hurn has a large home, plenty of conveniences and the best beds I ever slept upon. She's a fine cook and with our seining the lakes on the ranch, we had plenty of fish. It was the only time that GW ever modestly pushed back her plate and quit with a stack of fried fish still on the platter. According

IT'S TRUE! By Wiley Padan

New York, N. Y. "IT'S TRUE! that Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, three times defeated for a seat in England's House of Commons was visiting the 'Parnell' sets in Hollywood", says Wiley Padan. "He was impressed by M-G-M's minutely accurate reproduction of the House of Commons and was permitted to play an extra role. 'At last, a Member of Parliament!' he exclaimed.

"Another interesting fact is that one of the world's most famous theaters, Covent Garden, was recreated for the first time on a studio sound stage for scenes in John M. Stahl's 'Parnell.' Not merely an ordinary theater, but endowed with a royal charter from Queen Victoria, Covent Garden has the most interesting history of any theater in Europe. It was first built two hundred and four years ago, in 1732, twice destroyed by fire, but the present theater, built in 1858, occupies the same site."

to estimate, she ate 27 pounds of cat, buffalo and perch without batting an eye.

Just like being in West Texas. (Good old West Texas.) Frank Hurn, whom I have known 53 years, is a brother of our fellow-townsmen, Joe H. Hurn, only a lot younger. He can ride more and faster, and yell louder when driving steers than any man in Texas. He is that dead earnest about all that he does. He has bulls of Hereford type equal to anything on the Coon & Culbertson ranch near Dalhart, which tells the story at one whack. His herd of high grade herefords is said to easily beat anything in the county. Mr. and Mrs. Hurn wrangle a herd of milk cows, have a large bunch of hogs, chickens and guineas, and a large flock of turkeys. In fact it is a factory farm. They make more and consume most of it right at home.

The large feed grinder converts the crops from a slow market to four legs. It then goes to town in the form of fat cattle and hogs. Of the large domain included in the farming operations, most of it is grass land. No cotton is grown. Barley, wheat, corn and feed stuff makes up the field crops of a few hundred acres, quite a bit of which is bottom land along Long creek. We enjoyed every minute of the stay of two days with the Hurns, than whom there is no finer people in the world. The next stop is at Bellevue where GW's brother, Homer Hodges, resides. He is in the gin business and he and his farmer friends are distressed over the price of cotton. The crop is above the average. Plenty of feed stuff is being put up and it looks like if the prices go to pot, the folks can consume it at home. Cattle prices are high, and hogs higher.

Several days will be spent in Clay and Jack county. Some trips into Montague and Wise will be to see more of the hundreds of GW's relatives, and a few of mine. Jack county is the only place we expect to find ham and growny gravy. They always have it.

This is being written in the office of the Bellevue News. Editor Cox is most courteous, as were the newspaper boys at Henrietta. There is a kindred sympathy among the newspaper fraternity we all like.

WPA To Reorganize In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 8.—Administrative reorganization of the Works Progress Administration in Texas, with resultant monthly saving of $48,200 in administrative expense and a net reduction of 315 employees, has been announced by State Administrator H. P. Drought.

Worked out by members of the State WPA staff in conjunction with district officials, the new plan of organization concentrates routine work in the state headquarters office at San Antonio. Approximately 120 administrative employees will be shifted from field positions into the state office by the change in procedure, Drought estimated.

SOMEBODY POISONED MY DOG

Somebody poisoned my dog today, Though he never did anyone ill, And so he is through with his canine play. And his waggly tail is still. No more will I walk the field with him, Along at my side to jog, And—I don't care if my eyes are dim— Somebody poisoned my dog.

He was homely, I know, as a dog can be, And only a mongrel, too; But I loved the old fellow, and he loved me, As people and dogs may do. Nothing on earth could disturb his trust, Or his love and faith befog, And now he lies here at my feet in the dust— Somebody poisoned my dog.

He crawled to my side and licked my hand, And with a gasp he died; And—though some people can't understand—I patted his head and cried. For it isn't funny to lose a friend, From off this earthly cog, For he was loyal unto the end— Somebody poisoned my dog.

I wonder how anyone could have done This poor little fellow harm; But here he lies—his race is run— Though his body's still soft and warm. My life is lived on a peaceful plan, My pace is a quiet jog; But—I wish I could find the snake of a man— The fellow who poisoned my dog.

MISS ROSALYN BASS WEDS WILLIAM R. SASSER AT LUBBOCK

Miss Rosalyn Bass became the bride of William R. Sasser, at 12 o'clock (noon) Saturday, September 4, in the chapel of the First Methodist Church of Lubbock.

Rev. R. C. Tension, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Idalou, Texas, and cousin of the bride read the ring ceremony at the altar with ferns and palms fanning the background.

Miss Mary Peek of Lubbock sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. Van Kennedy at the piano. "Idilio," by Theodore Lack was played as the wedding party entered. "Meditation" by Morrison was played softly during the ceremony. Four flower girls, Nell Anthony, Ruth Anthony, Sue Lynn Guthrie and Dorothy Ann Kennedy, all cousins of the bride were dressed two in orchid crepe, and two in yellow crepe, each carrying a bouquet of white dahlias.

The bride wore her mother's wedding dress of sheer white crepe trimmed in wide, white silk lace, and carried a large bouquet of white carnations.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Anthony. A buffet dinner was served after which the bride cut the three tier wedding cake. Mrs. Pascal Peek presided over the bride's book.

After the reception the young couple left on a honeymoon trip to Ruidoso and the Carlsbad caverns. The bride's going away dress was of dark green crepe with brown accessories.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bass of Lubbock, and formerly of Clarendon. She attended all the local schools and was a student at Lubbock Tech last year. She will continue her studies there this term.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Sasser of Bonham, Texas. He received his degree in engineering from Lubbock Tech last June, and is now employed by the Southwestern Telephone Co. at Lubbock. They will make their home in Lubbock.

Out-of-town guests for this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Sasser, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Wise, Mrs. M. E. Sasser, grandmother of the groom; and Lola and Wallace Sasser, all of Bonham; W. P. PIGSKINS PARAGRAPHS

By DICK COOKE

Coach Chesty Walker sang a sad tale of woe this week and gloomily predicted a rough season for his Clarendon High School footballers as they went through their paces prepping for their opening game with the Claude Mustangs Friday, September 17.

Walker's woe was mainly caused by the absence of new material with the opening of school Monday. Said he, "You won't find many districts as tough as this one and what am I going to do for replacements. They need lots of experience."

The clouds lifted slightly with the return of Boyce Pierce, J. H. Green, Johnnie Grady, Bob Taylor and others, but most of the recruits should be playing on junior high clubs. However, there were 24 boys in uniform; the first time over 20 has reported.

Another blow Walker had to shake from his shoulders was the casualty of Jimmie Watters who for the first time in uniform, this year, popped a knee. Watters was on the field not more than thirty minutes when the old injury bobbed up and sent him to the showers, perhaps for the season.

Although Dempsey Robinson and Collie Huffman bring the line average bouncing up, Walker will probably have to rely on fast clicking plays that are hard to click fast, or otherwise, with new recruits. Remember there are only two letter men on the squad.

The starting line-up berths will probably be divided between wily Johnnie Grady, Billie Cooke, Brusing Boyd Allison and Jellie McGowan behind the line and Green, Palmer, Warren and Wilson ends; Robinson and Huffman, tackles; Pierce and Mears, guards and Lane center.

Late commoraters, however, have a good chance to chisel under someone.

There's no pre-game dope on the Broncho-Mustang fracas but the western city kids will be gunning for bear when they meet the locals.

Stinging under a defeat they had chalked up as won last year, Claude will be hard to stop.

District Health Units to Be Opened in Texas

AUSTIN, Sept. 8.—The first of September was a red letter day for Texans who value their health, that day marked the opening of the six district health units appropriated for by the Forty-fifth Legislature.

The area of Texas made imperative the adoption of this plan dividing the state into six miniature health departments. Districting of the state, modeled on that already effected by the Highway Department and the State Department of Education, will result in better sanitary conditions in the schools, dairies, recreation centers, swimming pools, tourist inns, and the homes of Texas; better supervision and enforcement of state health laws; adequate teaching of health in the public schools; development of local health services; facilities to meet emergencies and epidemics; development of a well balanced program on maternal and child health, with every child immunized against all diseases for which an artificial immunity has been provided.

District headquarters are located at Floydada, Mineral Wells, Kaufman, Bryan, Kingsville and San Angelo.

Each district headquarters office has a personnel of medical director, two nurses, sanitary engineer, two sanitarians, food inspec-

"Parnell," Spell-binding Romance, with Gable and Loy at Top of Their Careers

Story Suggested by Career Of Noted Irish Patriot Has Tremendous Power

STARS SUPPORTED BY DISTINGUISHED CAST

Painstaking Direction And Artistry of John Stahl Merits Applause

"PARNELL," which will open Tuesday night at the Pastime Theatre, is, of course, a story of the Irish people primarily, but actually it is a narration of great love and sacrifice that transcends all racial boundaries.

It takes the man, Charles Stewart Parnell, as a symbol of all the courageous, reckless men of history, to whom love was a greater thing than fortune or fame or power. It endows him with many of the human weaknesses and some of the human virtues that endear a man to his fellowmen.

The role of Parnell is played by Clark Gable. In the opinion of this reviewer, it provides Hollywood's leading male star with a part unlike any he has had before and one in which he proves his real artistry. Parnell, the Irishman, speaks with a decidedly American accent, but it must be remembered that he lived in this country and learned not only the language, but the customs and mannerisms; moreover his mother was American.

Myrna Loy portrays the glamorous Katie O'Shea, the woman Parnell loves to the exclusion of all else. It is a difficult role and she plays it with a remarkable depth of understanding. The sup-

Edna May Oliver is the testy, but beloved Aunt Ben; Billie Burke, the giddy Clara, and Alan Marshall the ambitious Willie O'Shea, the husband of Katie. Others in the company are Edmund Gwenn, Donald Crisp, Bertie Churchill, Donald Meek, Neil Fitzgerald, Halliwell Hobbes, J. Farrell MacDonald and Montagu Love, all of whom are excellent. In addition there is a spectacular group of native Irish men and women for atmosphere.

John Stahl, the distinguished director, dreamed of making a fictional drama based on the life of Parnell, "The Uncrowned King of Ireland," for a quarter of a century. His ambition is beautifully realized in this impressive film.

NO MAN EVER PAID A HIGHER PRICE FOR LOVE THAN PARNELL, UNCROWNED KING

An artist's conception of Myrna Loy and Clark Gable as they appear in "Parnell," the tumultuous fictional romance of the fiery Irish patriot who lost a nation's respect when he found a woman he loved. Edna May Oliver, Billie Burke and Alan Marshall are prominent in the supporting cast of the picture, which will open Tuesday at the Pastime Theatre. (Adv.)

Looney Favors Tax Change To Incomes

ABILENE, September 5.—The abolition of the state property tax is the greatest tax reform need in Texas today, Everett Looney of Austin, former assistant attorney general, told the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association convention here last week.

"You all know of the many demands for aid that are made on your county courts today. To meet these demands—to take care of the needs of your citizens—you must have additional revenue.
There is but one logical, sensible way to get this revenue—that is for the state to abolish the ad valorem tax, and leave property taxes entirely for local purposes," Looney told the officials.

"We can confidently expect two great results from the abolition of the state property tax—
1. Local governments—counties and cities—can adequately take care of the needs of their communities, and
2. The property-owners—the homeowner, the farmer, the ranchman, the storekeeper—will be given a long-needed tax reduction," Looney declared.
Looney suggested that the loss in state revenues due to the abo-

SHOWING ACTORS HOW TO ACT

THIS IS THE WAY IT'S DONE. This shot taken on the Goldwyn lot in Hollywood, shows how the great lovers of Hollywood get that way. Director Archie Mayo is showing Gary Cooper and Sigrid Gurie, how a love scene in "The Adventures of Marco Polo" should be done. Mayo claims that Cooper's love-making is too modern and at the same time, too occidental. As an authority on matters amatory, the director demonstrates the Oriental way of making love.

lition of the property tax should be replaced with a reasonable net income tax.
Such a tax, Looney said, should
1. exempt the little man—the man who makes only a small income,
2. should be based on a man's net and not his gross income, and 3.
should be graduated so that the man who makes an enormous profit it would pay more proportionately than the man who makes just a small profit.

"There are thousands of people in Texas today with large incomes who pay no taxes except perhaps those on cigarettes and gasoline because they own no property. In other words, we who happen to own a little property are overburdened so that these folks can go tax-free," he asserted.
"Moreover, there are thousands of people living in other states who get dividends and profits from the exploitation of Texas resources, who, because they own no property in Texas, do not pay even cigarette and gasoline taxes," Looney pointed out.
"There is only one way to make these tax-dodgers pay their fair share of taxes. That is by the levy of a net income tax.
"Let's give the property owner
—the farmer, the rancher, the storekeeper—some tax relief, and at the same time make everyone do his part to support the government of Texas," Looney urged.

Farm Products Are Saved With Canning

Methods First Used When Depression Was At Its Worst Taught Valuable
Lesson to Housewives

DALLAS, Sept. 6.—Not a cure-all, but one of the soundest possible steps toward stabilizing Texas farm incomes on a self-help basis is seen in the continued growth of commercial fruit and vegetable packing in the state and its encouragement of diversified crops for quicker turnover, says a report of the All-South Development Council.

Citing the benefits to industry and agriculture which have accompanied the extraordinary growth and progress of a Dallas canning plant (Thrifty Packing Co.), which is the largest and only year-round independent canning plant in the South, the Council's report says that similar enterprise, with its assurance to farmers of profitable disposition of "between-cotton-season" crops, would markedly level out the peaks and valleys of the farm income graph.

Not only would consistent marketing of food crops for canning, such as black-eyed peas, English peas, corn, beans and spinach mean—as it has in North Texas—a bolstering of the farmer's pocketbook against the expense of harvesting his main crop, cotton, but the rotating of these crops on cotton land would be of great help in reviving and re-nitrogenizing the cotton-growing soil—and Texas' alarming decline in cotton per-acre yield indicates this is an extremely important consideration.

Between 1933 and 1935 Texas
fruit and vegetable canning virtually doubled in all phases, the number of plants increasing from 32 to 55, value of manufactured product zooming from $2,654,000 to $5,311,000, salaries and wages from $299,000 to $568,000. Indications are that the 1937 figures, due to greatly increase citrus canning activity in the Valley and the rise in pea canning, will show at least another 33 to 40 per cent rise.

Perfection of a commercial canning method for fresh black-eyed peas—traditional backbone of the Texas dinner table in farm and city—has been the out-standing factor in boosting Texas vegetable canning to the threshold of a major enterprise, says the Council's report.

Last year 3,000,000 pounds were contracted for by the Dallas plant alone, which does a little more than 50 per cent of all this type canning in the state, and this year it has contracted for 4,000,000 pounds, representing, at $30 per ton, cash payments aggregating $60,000 to North Texas farmers.
This for a crop which, until last year, was mostly allowed to dry on the vine and was harvested, in only about one-fourth the quantity, only in the form of dried peas.

An illustration of how quick cash from pea crops sold for canning can solve the cotton-harvesting money problem was furnished last year by an Athens, Tex., bank which was about to borrow $25,000 to help farmers finance their cotton operations when word of the brisk market for fresh black-eyed peas in Dallas came along. The farmers trucked their peas to market, got their cash, and relieved the bank of its chore.

The new canning process for black-eyes has turned the market for this dishvirtually upside-down, besides promising to expand it many fold and far beyond the original southern-states market.

The vine-dried variety never had virtues of palatability sufficient to sell it outside the South, but grocery men generally believe the canned fresh ones can win favor on dinner tables in the most effete and remote sections of the land.
Pulling the peas green instead of waiting for them to dry on the vine more than quadruples the yield. At present the Dallas plant is running 180,000 cans of peas per day, and nearly that amount of corn.

Significance of Texas canning enterprise to major industry is reflected in expenditure of more than $2,500,000 in plants at Houston within the last year by the country's two dominant can manufacturing companies. While the growing use of cans in the oil industry was largely responsible for this movement, officials of the companies say the great expansion of canning of citrus fruits and juices in the Valley region and the growth of canning-consciousness throughout the state bulwarked their faith in Texas as the outstanding can "prospect" section of the country.

today.

The Canadian ost will furnish meat, buns and ice water, lemon ade and coffee, but Legionnaires and their families must bring

Swimming will also be included

Wheat Loans to Farmers With Average Moisture Of 24 Inches

AMARILLO, Sept. 8.—General recognition of the soundness of the Resettlement Administration's recently announced policy on fall wheat loans in some areas of the five-state region, is reported by Fred M. Betz, state director for the rural rehabilitation program in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado.

This federal agency's new policy included instructions to the rural rehabilitation supervisors that loans for wheat will not be made this year to applicants having less than 24 inches of moisture penetration in the soil which they propose to seed, and that loans will not be made for wheat planting unless the borrower follows the various improved farming practices approved for the wind erosion area.

It was explained that in those areas where wheat loans cannot be made, the farmers will be assisted in setting up farm plans to conserve their soil and moisture preparatory to growing row crops next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morris, Slats Parker,
Marshall Morris, returned Thursday from a fishing trip at Lake Kemp. Plenty of fish caught.

ANCIENT INDIAN RUINS TO BE BURIED BY ARTIFICIAL COLORADO RIVER LAKE

AUSTIN, Sept. 8.—The camp debris of Indians who lived hundreds of years ago at the mouth of Falls Creek, some twenty miles above Buchanan Dam on the Colorado River, is being excavated today by Works Progress Administration laborers, under the supervision of J. E. Pearce, professor of anthropology at The University of Texas, and director of a research project sponsored by the University and the WPA.

Last January, Professor Pearce began a project of exploration of all Indian campsites located above Austin in the lake beds. A survey of the territory by A. T. Jackson, University field foreman in archaeology, located fifty important sites on the west side of the Colorado above Buchanan Dam. Of these, a five-acre tract at the mouth of Falls Creek was selected for excavation first, and is still being worked. Other sites will be excavated as rapidly as possible in order that as many specimens as possible can be secured before the inundation of the lake beds upon completion of dams on the Colorado.

The camp debris of the Indians is being uncovered in order to reconstruct the Indian life of Central Texas. Labor for the excavation of campsites is provided through a $9,000 WPA grant and must be from the relief rolls. Professor Pearce has made use of Mexicans and works the men in relays. Since only half-time work is allowed, two squads of fifteen men each work alternate periods of two weeks. A. M. Woolsey is project supervisor.

When the material collected has been cleaned and catalogued, Professor Pearce will write a report on his findings to be published by The University of Texas. The specimens will be the property of the University, but many of them will be used for exchange with anthropological societies throughout the world. The Australian Anthropological Association has already requested an exchange of specimens.

Mrs. C. W. Galloway of Hot Springs, N. M., visited here today. She will also visit relatives in Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Faye Scoggins returned home Sunday from Mineral Wells and will leave Friday for Poyote, Texas where she has a teaching position for the next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lewis and Mrs. Margaret Goodner were Amarillo visitors Thursday evening.
