Estes Is Warned To Stay In US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department disclosed Saturday that indicted Texas magistrate Billie Sol Estes has been served with a "departure control order" that warns him not to leave the United States.

This was announced as Sen. John L. McClellan's Senate investigations subcommittee made tentative plans to open its inquiry Monday into the politically explosive Estes case.

A spokesman said the Immigration Service gave Estes the control order at his home in Pecos, Tex. The order notified Estes, who has been indicted for alleged fraud, that any plans he may have to leave "were not in the best interests" of the United States.

Under this order, the spokesman said, all international traffic carriers and immigration officers would be alerted to the ban against Estes' foreign travel.

McClellan called a meeting of his subcommittee for Monday afternoon to start taking closed-door testimony. His group will make the main congressional probe into the wide-ranging financial operations of the 37-year-old Texan.

The Arkansas Democrat said he and subcommittee aides have scheduled interviews in connection with the Estes case for Monday morning. He said he is pretty sure he can begin taking testimony at the afternoon session.

The subcommittee last Thursday approved a full investigation of Estes' cotton acreage allocation and grain storage operations.

Realtor Week Scheduled To Start Today

Pampa realtors will join with some 70,000 other realtors throughout the United States in the observance of National Realtor Week which runs through next Saturday.

Mayor E. C. Sidwell Saturday issued a proclamation declaring May 20-26 as Realtor Week in Pampa and urged citizens to join with the Pampa Real Estate Board in marking the week.

Bill Duncan, president of the Pampa Real Estate Board, announced that the week will be actively instituted in Pampa when the local board holds its regular semi-monthly luncheon tomorrow in Coronado Inn, Lindy Houck, program chairman, will present a program in conjunction with Realtor Week.

Under the motto "Homestead and Home — Foundation of the Nation," the realtors are seeking to emphasize their services and to make clearer the distinction between a realtor and others in the real estate business, Duncan stated.

"A realtor," Duncan said, "subscribes to a well-established code of professional ethics enforced through the local board. It obligates us to keep the interests of both buyer and seller uppermost in mind during a real estate transaction."

Duncan said the Pampa Real Estate Board is made up of 18 brokers, 21 salesmen and six affiliated businesses.

Man Is Run Over In Freak Mishap In Parking Lot

James Monroe Short, 36, no address, was reported in good condition Saturday at Highland Hospital where he is confined with injuries suffered in an unusual accident on the Santa Fe parking lot shortly after 5 p.m. Friday.

Martin H. Hasten, 1144 Varnon Dr., reported to police that when he started to back his car out of the parking lot he felt a bump. Upon investigation he found he had run over a man.

Police said it was Short, who apparently had fallen asleep. He suffered a broken leg. He was taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

In doing so it specifically authorized closed-door hearings in preparations for public sessions later. The public hearings are expected to begin next month.

The extent of the administration's interest in the subcommittee's investigation was underlined by Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., top-ranking subcommittee Republican. He said Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman visited him Friday to pledge that "the department he heads personally" would give full cooperation.

Mundt said in a statement that he called Freeman's attention to what he termed "vast discrepancies" between data on Estes' grain storage payments as supplied to the subcommittee and as given by the President at his Thursday news conference.

At issue is whether Estes did more business with the Agriculture Department under Kennedy or under the Republican Eisenhower administration.

Severe Earthquake Damages Mexico For The Second Time In Eight Days

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A severe earthquake—the second in eight days—jolted this city and most of southern Mexico Saturday, cracking walls and sidewalks, breaking windows and sending thousands of panic-stricken persons fleeing from swaying buildings and homes.

Three persons were reported dead in Mexico City. At least 15 persons were injured here and 10 in outlying areas.

A railroad train was pulling into the railway station here when the quake hit, causing passengers to panic. Women at the railway station dropped to their knees praying with arms outstretched.

Persons in other areas also began praying in public when the violent earth shocks drove them into the streets.

Seven states, besides the Mexico City Federal District, reported feeling the sharp quake, which struck here about 9 a.m. cst (11 a.m. edt).

The seismographic station at the national university here said its instruments recorded shocks for a minute and 20 seconds with varying intensity but ranging up to six on the mercalli scale of 12.

The fact the new quake came only eight days after the one in which four persons were killed and widespread damage caused over the same general area heightened alarm.

A milder quake was felt last Saturday around the Pacific resort area of Acapulco. It was again affected by Saturday's shocks and nine persons were reported slightly injured there.

Guests from downtown luxury hotels dashed wildly down the stairs Saturday when elevators stopped running after power was disrupted.

Among a crowd massed outside one hotel, the Continental Hilton, were six men clad only in towels. They had come running from a Turkish bath steamroom when the quake hit.

Gray County campaign headquarters for Sen. Smith will make an announcement of additional plans for his visit in the next few days, representatives said.

General Tells Pampans US Is On Alert Against Commies' Tactics

Presence of U.S. troops in Southeast Asia is another assurance that the United States is on the alert against communism's challenge to freedom.

This was the message of Gen. Everett S. Simpson, commanding officer of the Texas National Guard, as he spoke to an audience of civic and military personnel at an Armed Forces Day breakfast Saturday in Coronado Inn.

"The aim of Russia and China," General Simpson said, "is to weaken us and our allies and prove to the world that we are a declining power."

"Should we lose South Vietnam and Thailand; it would be a terrible blow and mean the loss of Southeast Asia."

General Simpson explained the new concept of security which calls for preparedness for massive retaliation in event of attack. He told of new weapons and new methods being used by the armed services to reach this goal.

He cited America's preparedness program which is aimed to meet all levels of communist attack, from propaganda to physical warfare.

We Say Awesome Power Is Available

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

Communist China warned the United States Saturday of a "worse defeat than Korea" if the American buildup in Southeast Asia continued. The United States warned it would use "awesome combat power" in Southeast Asia if necessary.

In Thailand, 500 more U.S. Army and Marine combat troops landed after a flight from Hawaii. Another 500 were reported en route soon to push U.S. combat strength toward the 5,000 mark along a broad arc facing the Communist-threatened border of Laos.

Gen. Paul D. Harkins, the top U.S. commander in Asia, toured the Marine encampment near the Laotian border Saturday and planned to visit the U.S. Army encampment Sunday before flying back to Saigon to take up the struggle against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas in South Vietnam.

The Chinese Communist warning was broadcast both by Peiping radio and by the New China news agency. It said Red China absolutely "cannot tolerate" any new American bridgeheads bordering the China mainland.

Earlier in the week Peiping said "the Chinese people cannot remain indifferent" to American military moves in Southeast Asia. The broadcasts were strangely similar to those of Sept. 30, 1950, preceding Chinese intervention in Korea—that Red China "will not stand idly by."

Marines unloaded supplies and ammunition throughout the day from U.S. 7th Fleet vessels and loaded them onto Thai army trucks headed for the Laotian border. Observers said so many supplies were coming ashore it appeared the Marines were dug in for a long stay.

The American statement of "awesome combat power" came from Gen. George H. Decker, U.S. Army chief of staff, at an Armed Forces Day ceremony in West Berlin. But he said he did not believe American troops in Thailand would enter Laos.

Decker said it was not clear whether the Communists in Laos had started a limited offensive or planned to take over the whole country. But he said it would be a great danger if they occupied all of Laos.

Referring to the recent Berlin crisis, he said that the "awesome power" would be used in Europe as well as Southeast Asia if necessary.

No new fighting was reported from Laos where government troops have been reported sending patrols north toward captured Nam Tha in the northwestern sector near the borders of Red China, Thailand and Burma.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, leader of the neutralist faction in Laos, left London Saturday by plane for his headquarters on the Plain of Jars and possible meetings with the right-wing and left-wing rival princes on formation of a coalition government.

Souvanna conferred with British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and a spokesman said afterward that "Lord Home fully endorsed Souvanna Phouma's efforts to work for a coalition government in a unified, independent and neutral Laos."

Carr's firm faces Court Appearance About 'Contempt'

PECOS, Tex. (UPI) — Two of attorney general candidate Waggoner Carr's law partners, including his brother Warlick Carr, will appear before the Reeves County District Court Monday morning to show reason why they should not be held in contempt of court.

Waggoner Carr said in McAllen he expected "nothing will come out of the contempt action so far as our firm is concerned" in the hearing.

Carr said his firm was "in no way connected with the acts which are charged as contempt." Marion T. Key, senior partner in the firm, and Warlick Carr face possible imprisonment for allegedly breaking a court temporary restraining order issued April 12.

The restraining order prohibited the Walter E. Heller Co., a Chicago finance firm represented by Key and Warlick Carr, from taking any action on promissory notes against four Midland farmers who had signed the notes.

The Heller Company allegedly filed suit and secured judgment on the notes in Chicago in spite of the restraining order.

The Midland farmers had originally filed suit April 2 against Billie Sol Estes and Heller company, alleging a conspiracy between Estes and the loan companies to defraud the farmers signing the notes.

A Fatal Error In Laos:
Trusting The Commies

By LEON DENNEN

Newspaper Enterprise Analyst
NEW YORK (NEA) — There is an old lesson to be learned from the post mortem on the new crisis in Laos. The crucial fact is, of course, that the Communists never intended to honor the East-West agreements reached in Geneva in 1961.

The United States had compelling logistic reasons for seeking to terminate hostilities in the little Southeast Asian kingdom with a coalition government of the three fighting princes — Communist, neutralist and anti-Communist. As President Kennedy made it clear, "it was difficult to continue to hold lines" in an area which was "in some cases exposed" and subject to constant pressure.

The President thus chose the lesser evil by accepting Russia's coalition formula for a neutral Laos at the Geneva 14-nation conference.

To be sure, it was a dubious formula since it implied trust in Nikita Khrushchev's word. It ignored the Soviet Premier's firm and oft-repeated policy calling for "wars of national liberation."

"But even had Moscow—for once—decided to uphold an agreement with the West, this could not guarantee its observance by Red China and its satellites in Communist North Viet Nam and Pathet Lao."

There was never doubt among specialists on communism that the Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces, trained and supplied by Mao Tse-tung's agents, used the endless Geneva negotiations and the cease-fire agreements to enhance their positions in Laos. Mao Tse-tung used this tactic against Chiang Kai-shek as he seized power in China.

HARRIMAN — That nagging piece of real estate.

As long ago as last July, Prince Boun Oum, the anti-Communist Premier of Laos, warned that the Reds were abusing the cease-fire to conquer more territory.

The Premier is now derided by some of President Kennedy's advisers on Southeast Asia as inept, stubborn, and an incorrigible "rightist." Nevertheless, for all his glaring faults, Boun Oum saw the nature of Red aggression more clearly than the State Department.

Averell Harriman, Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, was clearly in error when he suggested that there were many places in the world where anti-Communists triumphed over Communists after joining them in coalition governments. Until the very debacle, Harriman told the President that "That may well be the case in Laos."

It is one thing to assess a perilous strategic situation as soberly as President Kennedy did. It is quite another matter to delude oneself and others by tailoring hard facts to fit the situation.

Harriman would be hard-pressed to name one nation where in the past 45 years—anti-Communists who formed coalitions with the Reds were not doomed to death, exile or imprisonment. This was the fate of Chiang Kai-shek in China and of the democratic leaders in East Europe now under Soviet domination. It was certainly true in Poland and Romania after the 1945 Yalta agreement.

Harriman himself — then acting as President Roosevelt's emissary — helped engineer some of the coalition regimes that paved the way for the Red takeover.

Exiled East European democratic leaders now in the United States see a close parallel between Ambassador Harriman's role in their countries in 1945 and 1946 and his current diplomacy in Laos. The old Yalta cast seems to be repeating history in the new Southeast Asian setting.

The Laos crisis represents for the free world much more than the loss of — what Harriman so undiplomatically described — a "not very attractive piece of real estate with about 2 million people." (Couldn't the same thing be said one day of Soviet-encircled West Berlin which also has about 2 million inhabitants?) For in opening Pandora's box of Red aggression by relying on the weak reed of "coalition governments" the entire perimeter of the West's defense in the Pacific is threatened.

Parker said the award was won through the efforts of his personnel. The award was presented Parker at a banquet held in Amarillo. (Daily News Photo)

Horse Feeding Rule

A general rule in feeding a horse is 1 1/4 pounds of hay and 1/4 to 3/4 pounds of grain for every hundred pounds of the horse's weight. By this standard a 1,200-pound horse would be fed 16 pounds of hay and 9 pounds of grain every day.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst
The little village of Shataukok lies in an area called the "new territories" on the border dividing Red China and the British crown colony of Hong Kong.

A high wire fence runs all along the border, except at Shataukok where there is a break of about four miles. It is a favorite crossing point for illegal border crossers seeking to escape the hardships of Red China.

One of these last week was a man of about 40 clad in a ragged blue denim uniform of the Chinese Communist People's Liberation Army.

Border police seized him and sent him back. But as he turned back for whatever fate now awaits him, he told the police: "I'll come back again."

The story of the Chinese border crossers has not been so well publicized nor is it as dramatic as the story of divided Berlin and the stream of refugees from Communism who for years poured through it by the thousands until erection of the East Berlin wall last Aug. 13.

Like their German counterparts, the Chinese refugees leave all their possessions behind them. But their story is even more tragic.

For every East German escaping to the West, at least four jobs await him. Efficiently operating refugee organizations take care of him and see that he is re-located in an area best suited to his skills.

For the refugee from Red China, the future is almost as bleak as the past he was trying to escape.

If he is caught, British authorities will turn him back because Hong Kong already is bursting at the seams with other refugees. A government official in Hong Kong estimates that 8,000 to 9,000 refugees pour into Hong Kong each month.

"When conditions are poor in China, he said, 'we get refugees. And conditions have never been so poor there before.'"

The Human Rights Council of Hong Kong has called on Free World nations to help them solve the problem.

They have asked the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa to receive and resettle 100 thousand refugee immigrants during 1962-63.

It also has proposed that countries with vast open spaces, such as Canada and Australia, accept their immigration laws and absorb at least a few thousand each year.

It is estimated that since the Reds took over the mainland in 1949, at least 800 thousand refugees have arrived in Hong Kong.

Troubles Started
Multiplying When
Solons Cut Hair

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone who is at all susceptible to nostalgia couldn't help but feel a twinge of sadness upon seeing Rep. L. Mendel Rivers with his new haircut.

It is true that some of his colleagues have derived a certain amount of merriment from Rivers' tonsorial trim. But I regarded it as more of a cause for melancholy than for mirth.

I'm old-fashioned enough to believe that members of Congress ought to look like congressmen. Very few of them do any more, and that may be what is wrong with the country today.

The record, I think, will bear me out that our troubles began multiplying about the time that senators and representatives ceased wearing ice cream suits and started trimming their flowing manes.

Until about a week ago, Rivers was a vestige of the old school. The gentleman from Charleston wore his hair in the tradition of John C. Calhoun, another distinguished South Carolinian who wore his hair in the tradition of Macedonian sheep dog.

It was a comforting sight to us addition lovers and sort of proved us with a link with the old.

Why, then, did Rivers suddenly decide to have his locks shorn, particularly when it revealed a bald spot long hidden in the back of his cascading tresses? This question has been the subject of much speculation in the past few days and even figured in discussion on the floor of the House.

Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., compelled to inform the other members that the apparent strangeness in their midst was "not a hair passing through the Capitol."

Further, he said, it was "L. Mendel Rivers with a haircut, the first in 22 years."

It has been rumored that he may be something of a Mason and Delilah situation. Sikes added:

"I doubt there is any truth to rumor. Nor, I suspect, was he being entirely candid when he dismissed his switch to a modern haircut as merely a seasonal measure to improve cranial circulation."

New Outbreak Of Rocket Troubles
Hits Orbit Effort

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A fresh outbreak of rocket troubles Saturday forced the United States to postpone the triple-orbit space flight of astronaut M. Scott Carpenter until next Thursday — the fourth delay in less than two weeks.

Federal Space Agency scientists said they found "irregularities" in the flight control system of Carpenter's giant Atlas booster rocket, and that the new two-day postponement, was necessary to make the needed repairs.

The new difficulties cropped up even as technicians worked overtime on an around-the-clock schedule to make the parachute landing system of Carpenter's "Aurora-7" space capsule more safe.

Carpenter, who had been scheduled to run through a "simulated mission" test Sunday, greeted the new delay with official calm.

The launching of Carpenter's flight, in many respects a duplicate of the three-orbit voyage of astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. has been plagued by a series of problems which have forced three two-day delays and one three-day postponement during the past two weeks.

The Thursday date itself appeared tentative. The rocket, capsule and safety mechanism must again clear a tough series of electronic test hurdles, and the weather must be near perfect over a goodly portion of the middle Atlantic ocean before scientists will permit Carpenter to blaze into the sky.

Book Writer
Got Lucky

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A friend and colleague of mine in the newspaper trade has written a book which I predict will bring him great riches.

The official publication date is still two weeks away, and already the book has been denounced. A denouncement of a book has long been recognized as a sure-fire sales stimulant, but few authors are fortunate enough to have their works castigated even before they are formally published.

I therefore offer congratulations to A. Robert Smith, correspondent for several Oregon newspapers, who has put together a biography of Sen. Wayne Morse titled "The Tiger in the Senate."

Smith's book was pounced on by no less than the Tiger himself, who rose on the floor of the Senate this week to complain that it contained untruths, half-truths and out-of-context distortions.

I don't suppose that Smith, who values his reputation as a reporter, particularly relished that sort of comment.

In reply to the Morse blast, he said the book, while "not without criticism," was non-partisan and gave the senator "far more credit for valuable public service than any of his political enemies will ever grant him."

Battery Acid
Squirter Gets
Six Months

HOUSTON (UPI)—A man who claimed squirting battery acid on women's legs was his hobby has been given six months in jail for his strange pastime.

Simon Davidson, 25, a service station operator, pleaded guilty before Judge George E. Miller Friday to five charges of aggravated assault on different women. He was caught when he was recognized by a woman whose legs he had sprayed with the acid. Her husband held Davidson until the police came.

Davidson admitted he had been pursuing his hobby at different Houston shopping centers. He said he got the idea when he saw a woman accidentally spill battery acid on her hose and it dissolved. The women were stung by the acid but not burned. Their hose was ruined.

Oldest Grain?

Some investigators believe that barley is the most ancient of cultivated grains. It is thought to be as ancient as the earliest traces of agriculture itself, extending back to 3000 B.C. in Egypt, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

'Mr. K' Cites
'Challenge' By US President

By FRANZ CYRUS

SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI)—Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev said Saturday it sometimes seems as if President Kennedy were challenging him in a competition of who will be the first to "push the button" of a nuclear war.

Khrushchev said in a broadcast speech at a giant Communist Party rally, "we are against such competition."

The Soviet Premier, winding up a five-day official visit to Bulgaria with a lengthy address said Kennedy once declared that the forces of East and West were equal.

Khrushchev said the American President later was quoted as saying that under certain circumstances the United States would start a nuclear war with the Soviet Union.

To follow such a course, Khrushchev said, is "unwise and inhuman."

Khrushchev said anyone who pressed the button to start a nuclear conflict with the Soviet Union "would commit suicide."

"We must keep our weapons ready because we know the aggressive character of capitalism," he said. "The one who will start a military conflict will receive a counter-strike with all the means of contemporary war. The Soviet Union has such means in the necessary quantity."

"It is time to be aware of the fact that the unity of all the peoples will decide the problem of peace all over the world."

Khrushchev scored those he said had used the atom to create a bomb and drop it on Japan. He said what the capitalist world had done with the atom was a grim verdict of guilt.

Khrushchev spoke to a crowd estimated at 100,000 persons from a balcony of the memorial to Georgi Dimitrov, the late Bulgarian veteran Communist leader and a intimate of Josef Stalin.

Khrushchev said the task of the Communist nations was "not destruction but creation."

Saturday's speech was the second attack in two days on Kennedy's policies. Friday Khrushchev criticized the American troop movement to Thailand.

Col. Tom Braly introduced the speaker and acted as master of ceremonies at the breakfast. Also introduced were ranking officers of the armed services reserve units represented. They included Capt. William Cooper of the Army, Cmdr. H. L. Gunter of the Navy, Col. Travis Lively of the Air Force, Capt. Pernal Scoggin of the Marines and Lt. Lilburn L. Howell of the National Guard.

Sgt. Maj. M. K. Brown, Gray County pioneer, was presented with a special award by Lt. Howell. It was a framed certificate of appreciation of demonstrated friendship and support by Mr. Brown of the armed forces of the U.S. and especially of the 1st Battle Group, 142nd Infantry of the 36th Infantry Division.

Invocation was given by Jack Parker, minister of education of the First Baptist Church. The pledge of allegiance was led by Joe Plunkett, commander of the Pampa American Legion post, and vocal entertainment was presented by Joe Whitten, minister of music of the First Baptist Church.

Program coordinator of the Armed Forces breakfast program was Sgt. Wesley Langham of the Pampa National Guard unit.

President Ready To Commit US Troops In Laos If Commies Push

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy is ready to send U.S. troops into southern Laos if the Communists continue to press their offensive in that small Southeast Asian Kingdom.

The President plans to commit U.S. ground and air forces now in Thailand to the defense of Vientiane, the southern capital of Laos, if such military action should become necessary.

Also, he is considering a Joint Chiefs of Staff recommendation that U.S. and South Vietnam air units bomb Chepone, the big Communist Air and Supply base in southern Laos.

These military moves, which are awaiting the outcome of backstage diplomatic negotiations with Russia, were fully outlined by the President during his White House briefing of congressional leaders.

After reporting plans to send U.S. troops to Thailand, the President told the bipartisan group of legislative leaders:

"Additional military moves will be taken if the (pro-Communist) Pathet Lao forces renew their offensive. Troops being sent to Thailand will be used to keep Vientiane, the administrative capital of Laos, from falling to the Communists should that become necessary."

The President said he still has hope that the Soviet will put pressure on Pathet Lao forces to restore the cease-fire in Laos.

"While we are preparing for all eventualities," reported the President, "the establishment of a neutral government in Laos is still our principal objective. We believe that a coalition government can be arranged if the Communists agree to a new cease-fire."

In discussing the South Vietnam situation, the President reported that he is considering the commitment of U.S. air power (in addition to U.S. helicopters) in the battle against the pro-Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

"We are studying recommendations for the employment of U.S. air power against the Viet Cong main supply base in Laos," said the President. "This airfield and storage area is at Chepone, only 20 miles from the South Vietnamese border in southern Laos."

The President pointed out that the airfield at Chepone was handling 14 Soviet planes a day. Also, that the Communists were building a road to the base from North Vietnam. It is guarded by radar-controlled anti-aircraft guns.

Another disturbing fact reported by the President was the arrival of light amphibious tanks of Russian manufacture in Laos. He said his military advisers had warned him that these tanks could be used to ferry Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese troops across the Mekong River into Thailand.

Walter Rogers Reports

On The Sugar Act

EMERGENCY?

This letter is about the Sugar Act. I have written several in the past. There will probably be others before we are able to obtain the fair treatment to which the American farmer is entitled. But, in any event, the fight will continue until justice is done.

I headed the newsletter with the word "Emergency?" because this subterfuge has been used time and again to gain extensions of an unfair Sugar Act. It is another case of crying "wolf" when there is no wolf. The time could well come when there will be a wolf, and the American people will have been so drugged by false emergency cries that they may be hurt by the real emergency.

We have heard a lot about an expanded Reciprocal Trade Program. I think it would be well for the Congress to study the Sugar Act and the activities that have occurred thereunder before formulating any new policy. Much can be learned. Proper corrections could be made that would mutually benefit the economy of this country and especially the American farmer. Much land that is now being used to grow surplus crops could be diverted to sugar beets and the entire economy would profit.

For a number of years this country has imported 45 per cent of its sugar requirements. It could produce domestically within the continental United States all of the sugar it needs and have some for export. It is not proposed that this latter be done, but it is proposed that a more realistic ratio as between imports and domestic production be effected. The Administration was supposed to have treated this problem and to have presented to the Congress a new sugar legislation in the early days of this session. That proposal has not yet come to the Congress.

The present Sugar Act expires on June 30th of this year. Last year, an attempt was made by the "sugar trust" to extend the act for three years, but those of us who realize what is going on were able to block this and limit the extension to June 30th of this year. We had hoped that this would force new sugar legislation that would be fair to the American farmer.

However, nothing has been done to date indicating that such action will be had. The situation is exactly as it has been in former years. The termination date of the Sugar Act is fast approaching. The "sugar trust" will be crying "emergency."

They will demand an extension for at least another year of the present act and will attempt to force that extension through the Congress. Their argument will be that unless the act is extended there will be a sugar shortage, because the sugar importers will not be able to contract far enough in advance for deliveries to reach our shores in time. This is utter nonsense. Foreign countries are clamoring to sell sugar, and this is one of their great markets. If such an extension is gained without amendment to the present law, it will simply mean that a group of international bankers will again reap a rich harvest at the expense of the American farmer and the American taxpayer.

In anticipation of this move being made by the "sugar trust," I have proposed an amendment to the present act that should be adopted if the act is extended. This proposed amendment would make it possible for the President of the United States to allocate to continental domestic beet growers 750,000 tons of sugar and to continental domestic cane growers 250,000 tons of sugar, in addition to that now being produced. These sugar allocations would come out of the sugar allocations formerly held by our Communist neighbor to the south, Cuba.

You will recall that Cuba was selling to this country three million tons of sugar a year. The Congress brought about the cancellation of these imports as well as other imports from Cuba. However, the "sugar trust" was not asleep, and when they realized that we were going to cancel the Cuban allocations, they were able to have inserted in the Sugar Act a proviso that the three million tons of sugar formerly purchased from Cuba must be purchased from OTHER FOREIGN COUNTRIES. This meant that American farmers were absolutely and positively denied the right to produce one pound of sugar that we had formerly purchased from Cuba.

It has been suspected that although Cuba cannot sell sugar to this country direct, it is entirely possible that the American people may be eating some Cuban sugar. We must not underestimate the power, the influence, and the trickery of the "sugar trust." If they could make more money by trans-shipment Cuban sugar so that it would finally end up in this country, please do not doubt that they would do it. And, I would point out in this regard that the "sugar trust" is not made up solely of Americans.

It is made up of a great number of foreigners who owe no allegiance to this country whatever. Please understand that I am not saying that this group is importing Cuban sugar, but I am saying that the possibility exists.

I am further saying that by proper action with regard to the Sugar Act, discrimination against the American farmer could be stopped. We would then know that whatever additional amount of sugar was being produced by American farmers certainly was not coming from Communist Cuba.

This has been a long, hard fight, and it may continue for some time, but I have faith that in the final analysis we are going to win, whether it takes ten days or ten years.

The Lighter Side

His Crabgrass Neurosis

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to my analyst I should talk about this as much as possible for only in that way can I rid myself of the fears and anxieties that have been troubling me this spring.

I understand now what was causing my neurosis and I am able to face up to it and discuss it without shame. The turning point came during either my third or fourth session on the couch.

That was when my analyst discovered that I was in the advanced stages of "digitaria sanguinalisphobia," which is another way of saying "fear of crabgrass."

He explained that my change from a wholesome, clean-living suburbanite to a pitiful, quivering mound of inhibitions and repressions came about from reading garden supply advertisements.

It began creeping up on me early last March while there was still frost on the ground. I picked up a newspaper and there on one of the inside pages was an advertisement for "Crab-Out."

"Don't let crabgrass ruin your lawn this summer," it admonished. "End all of your crabgrass worries with just one application of Crab-Out."

Soon "Crab-Out" was joined by ads for "Krab-Klout," "Krab-Kill," "Krab-Quik," "Krab-Down," "Krab-End," "Krab-Kleen," and assorted other chemical preparations.

All bespoke the hideous consequences that would ensue if I didn't get out there and spread some of the stuff on my lawn before the crabgrass got big enough to strangle and choke the "desirable" grass.

Some two nights after the first ad appeared, I woke up in the middle of the night in a cold sweat. There in the dark stillness I could hear, plain as plain, crabgrass growing in the lawn outside.

It made a kind of crunching noise and it was terrifying.

A few nights later I was awakened again. This time I could hear muffled cries of "help" from the desirable grass.

But here's the worst of it: Even in the broad daylight I didn't have the courage to venture onto the lawn and render assistance.

I was seized by a suspicion that it was just a trap and that the real aim of the crabgrass was to strangle me.

I told my wife about the plot the first time she suggested that the grass needed cutting. If I put even one foot off the sidewalk, I said, it would get me.

Since then, she has been doing the grass cutting and I've been visiting the analyst. And, like I said, I'm a lot better now.

By next spring, I may have nerve enough to run the mower again myself.

Phil Silvers Starting 2nd Movie Career

Hollywood

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Phil Silvers is starting a second movie career, the first having been marked by his talent as a professional "best friend" of romantic heroes who always won the girl.

It was in the 1940s that Silvers came to Hollywood from Broadway and established himself as a movie nice guy.

Phil was to modern dress movies what Gabby Hayes was to Hopalong Cassidy horse operas. He was always around helping the hero out of a tough spot.

Now Phil is back in Hollywood for two pictures, "40 Pounds of Trouble" and "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World." He brought his wife and four children along from their New York home and plans to reside here permanently.

Silvers admitted his early attempts to crash Hollywood were "frustrating years."

"I made about 25 pictures and they were off the mold," said Phil. "The comic was never discussed, it was the leading lady's hairdo that they talked about."

"I was always Blinky, the star's best friend. I followed John Payne around in pictures saying, 'I've got it in the car.' You know, I never knew what it was I was supposed to have in that car."

A longtime resident of New York, Phil quit Hollywood and returned to the Broadway stage where he had success.

"I didn't wind up being burned here," he said. "I left because I figured a minimum of my talent was being used. Do you know how many of these guys would like to do a hit Broadway show?"

Silvers co-stars with Tony Curtis in "40 Pounds of Trouble," and from there goes into "Mad World," one of Hollywood's most ambitious comedies.

In "Mad World" Phil matches wits with other great comedians, Milton Berle, Sid Caesar, Jimmy Durante, Mickey Rooney, Buddy Hackett, Ben Blue and Jim Backus. Even Spencer Tracy takes a crack at laugh-getting in the film.

The success which Phil feels eluded him in movies was his for the asking in television. The talented Silvers won six Emmy Awards, television's Oscar.

NEW YORK (UPI) — L. O. Hooper "guesses" that the Dow Jones industrial average will go back to the 683-700 range, even if the recent intra-day low of 662 is violated.

The W. E. Hutton Co. analyst says his thought is, at this point, that we are entitled to a good intermediate technical recovery regardless of the longer pull trend, but that we can't expect that recovery to be as fast as it has been early this week.

Analyst Jerome Peck says he still feels that the economy is fundamentally sound, although it should be recognized that the recovery of the last 15 months is showing signs of tapering off.

The Shields Survey says utility, oil and natural gas stocks are generally recognized as offering good investment opportunity over the long pull.

Thomas McKinnon says the steels are back in favor on two counts. The first is the favorable trend of industrial production and rising personal income. The other, Washington's intention to withdraw or pigeon-hole most of its punitive anti-trust actions against the industry.

Soil Stewardship Week Is To Be Observed Locally May 26-June 3

Soil Stewardship Week will be observed locally from May 26 - June 3, according to Curtis Schaffer, chairman, Gray County Soil Conservation District.

Sponsored nation-wide by America's 2,900 Soil Conservation Districts and various national church organizations, the observance proposes to urge rural and urban people alike, to recognize the source and richness of the God-given soil, water and related natural resources and as good stewards to dedicate themselves to the conservation and wise use of these priceless resources. This year's theme is - The Stream, of Life.

The Gray County Soil Conservation District will distribute especially-prepared church programs, bulletin inserts, and booklets to churches of all faiths who request them. These materials are prepared each year by the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts in cooperation with an advisory committee of church leaders presently consisting of: Dr. E. W. Mueller, National Lutheran Council; Dr. Lewis Newman, Southern Baptist Convention; the Rev. J. G. Weber, National Catholic Rural Life Conference; Dr. Henry McCanna, Department of Town and Country, National Council of the Churches of Christ; and the Rev. William Davidson, The National Council, Protestant Episcopal Church.

The booklets and leaflets suggest that Americans consider the importance of water:

"It is the universal liquid of life and part of our very being. It is everywhere around us, in the air and earth. Without it we could not survive, nor could any plant, animal, or other living thing.

"It is a final necessity, for which man has devised no substitute.

"Water can be so abundant as to invite waste and neglect. It can be so scarce as to set man in earnest contest for its vital uses.

"It demands understanding and respect. It has the power under direction to turn the mighty turbines of Grand Coulee. Unmanned, it can strike in the angry form and force of floods.

"It can produce crops, trees, and grass—or the ugliness of raw gullies cut into an unprotected countryside.

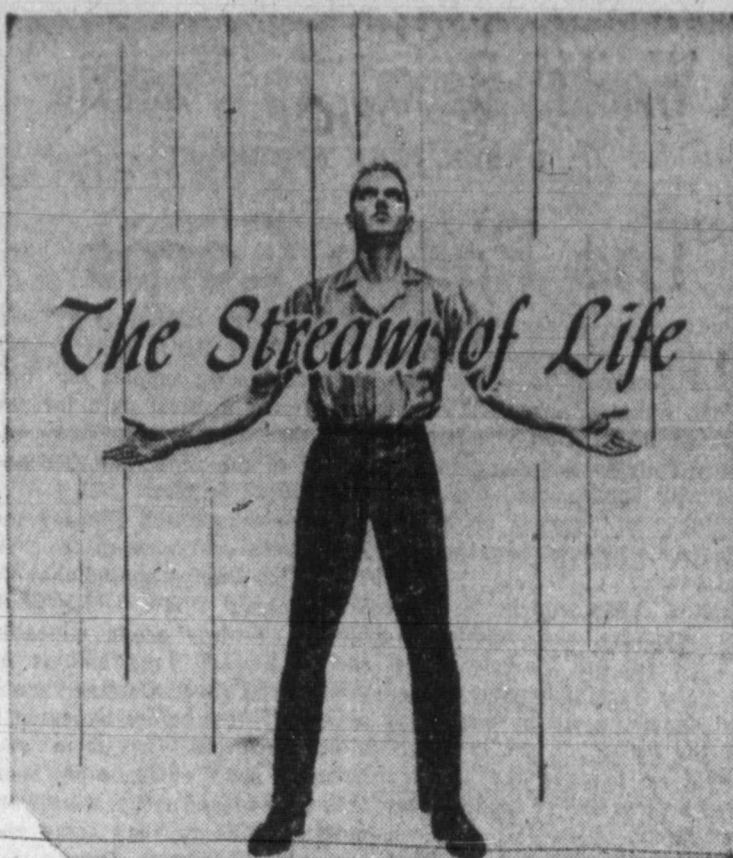

"Water provides the drama of Old Faithful, the majesty of the Mississippi, and the grandeur of Niagara Falls. In its infinite variety it is a thirst-quenching drink for the children of Atlanta, a cooling accessory for the steel mills of Ohio, and vital irrigation for the sunward fields of Arizona.

"It appears as soaking rain on Olympus's forests, the fleecy hush of a Vermont snowfall, and the quick excitement of a Kentucky thunderstorm.

"It is a miraculous gift of God, given to us for our refreshment and endless uses. But our neglect can waste it; our misuse can turn it into offensive sewers of pollution.

"Water tests our sense of responsibility to God and man. It will be returned again and again for us to use according to our maturity, either with wisdom or with shameful neglect. "Consider our water. Consider it well."

Emigration Of Doctors Is Hampering Socialized Medicine Plan In Britain

BRITONS wait for treatment as out patients in hospital.

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
LONDON (NEA)—There's trouble in this island paradise of socialized medicine. Britain's National Health Service shows signs of coming apart at the seams.

Main cause is an acute shortage of doctors. Apparently disgusted with the health service, doctors are leaving Britain to take up better paying jobs overseas.

Statistics show that one-third of the British doctors qualifying today are emigrating overseas. This is five times the prewar rate of emigration.

If the present exodus continues, the health service may grind to a standstill by 1970, it is freely predicted here.

As it is, all that keeps some British hospitals open are the foreign doctors—Indians, Pakistanis, Egyptians, Israelis, Africans, Maltese and Turks—who come here for training and experience.

(Of course, this problem is not peculiar to Britain. Many U.S. hospitals are able to provide service only because of the presence of thousands of internes and residents from abroad.)

Current estimates show that over 40 per cent of the junior hospital staffs in Britain are from abroad. Many of these foreigners speak little or no English, and at CHART shows estimated emigration of doctors from British Isles to the United States.

How You Can Tighten Your Waistline Up to 2½ Inches In Just 2½ Weeks!

If you've been dreading the approach of summer while you still have a winter midsection, just get in front of a mirror and pull your tummy in... tight! Unfortunately, no pill you can take will make them stay that way. But soft and supple muscles respond quickly with the use of a new device designed to tighten nature's own girdle. It's called the PICAS 3-Minute Gym!

This remarkable set of steel poles provides the real exercise you need without all the boring and time-consuming repetitions you normally think of. You simply "lean" into various positions that allow your own weight to flex most of your muscles simultaneously. That's why it is so fast. With real exercise, even those who are overweight can have a trimmer figure without losing a pound.

Women can apply this same theory to muscles which support the bustline... the creptiness in the back of arms and thighs... the secretarial spread. Under every curve, there's a muscle. No muscle, pretty soon no curve!

Results and time spent will vary with the individual, but the majority of Picas users find a 3 to 5 minute session daily is adequate to maintain the trim appearance and youthful vitality that only regular exercise can provide.

The PICAS home unit, including complete instructions is available as low as $9.95. In your city, just phone or visit the agents listed below.

with the National Health Service and its "conveyor belt" methods. They protest that they are not allowed to practice medicine at the high standards they have been taught.

Because of the doctor shortage, they are encouraged to carry caseloads of up to 3,500 patients. During the winter months they may see as many as 80 patients a day. The average time given to an examination is five minutes instead of 15.

The temptation is to pass the buck: to make out prescriptions just to get rid of the patient, or to pass him on for an examination to an already over-taxed hospital.

"Medicine in Britain is a mess," warns the British Medical Journal. Dr. Donald Johnson, a member of the House of Commons, calls it a "Frankenstein monster," speaks of its grotesque and ramshackle administrative structure.

Lack of educational and training facilities is partly responsible for the present doctor shortage. Britain has built no new medical schools in the past 60 years, and there are long waiting lists for openings in the existing schools.

This year only 1,691 doctors will qualify, the lowest number since the war.

One indication that socialized medicine is breaking down here is the rush of people to take out private health insurance. These include a quarter of the doctors, who have insured themselves and their families for private hospital treatment.

Among the Cabinet ministers who have taken out private health insurance is Enoch Powell, the Minister of Health.

Weekly Report To Texans

By SEN. JOHN TOWER

The Peace Corps

Senator John Tower (R-Texas) said today he has asked Attorney General Kennedy to determine whether Sargent Shriver, Peace Corps Director, is in violation of Federal statutes pertaining to lobbying with appropriated funds in soliciting the Congress on behalf of Peace Corps funds for the 1963 fiscal year.

Senator Tower said he is vigorously opposing the Administration's literacy test for voting, now before the Senate. Senator Tower voted against a closer motion to limit the debate on the measure. He said he opposed the literacy test as an invasion of fundamental states rights.

In further reference to what Senator Tower has termed a pattern for Administration agencies in using taxpayer funds to further its legislative objectives, Tower said a White House staff is presently promoting support for the President's medical care for the aged measure.

Text of the report to Texas constituents follows:

In the Senate the literacy test bill debate continues to go on. There has been proposed that the Senate enact a law which would have a sixth-grade education satisfy literacy requirements for voting, and several states require a literacy test before a person is allowed to vote. That is to say, he must show evidence of being able to read and write, usually he must be able to read some section of the State's Constitution, and be able to tell what it means.

I believe it is the function of the states, and certainly it is the function of the states to determine qualifications for voting, but now we propose to pass a law here in the Senate that would invade on the rights and responsibilities of the states in this matter, and say, "You must accept a sixth-grade education as evidence of literacy."

In the first place, the administration of this would be very difficult, even if it were enacted, and the administration of this would be open to abuse just like other laws and requirements for voting are abused, and so we have been conducting what's ordinarily called a "filibuster" against the enactment of this measure, and I expect the debate to continue on into next week. Of course, I am supporting the Constitutional side, I oppose the enactment of this bill because I believe it would be plainly unconstitutional. I have joined with many of my Southern colleagues, such as Senator Russell of Georgia, Senator Stennis of Mississippi, and others, in vigorously opposing this measure.

In the meantime, I have asked the Attorney General to determine whether or not the solicitation of the Congress on behalf of the 1963 fiscal year Peace Corps appropriations was in violation of the United States Code, pertaining to lobbying with appropriated funds. I have asked the Department of Justice to give me an opinion on whether or not Mr. Shriver, who is the head of the Peace Corps, was violating the law in using his office and using Federal funds to propagandize in behalf of Peace Corps appropriations. I don't think it's right for any Governmental agency to spend taxpayer's money to propagandize a particular point of view on any measure.

Actually, it's clearly against the law. These people are not supposed to spend Federal funds for lobbying purposes. Something else has been brought to my attention, too. In the White House, there is currently a task force working on trying to sell the idea of medical care through Social Security all over the country. They are working through established pressure groups. There is a staff of three or four people, currently working in the White House. They are paid with taxpayer's money, and yet they are trying to sell a point of view on medical care for the aged. It is my understanding that the Administration is bringing great pressure to bear in behalf of this measure, and this in my estimation is another example of the unwarranted use, and indeed illegal use of public funds.

The law states that Governmental agencies, or anyone for that matter, cannot use taxpayer's money, cannot use public funds to try to gain acceptance of a point of view by Members of Congress and indirectly this would apply to the general public, since the public is expected to bring pressure to bear on Congress. We have mentioned other instances before, the use of taxpayer's money to try to sell the Administration's program. The Administration has been getting very favorable press, and of course, there is always a great spotlight on the President of the United States. He is able to argue for his program through the press, but it is not right that public money should be spent to advocate New Frontier programs, either like the Peace Corps, or in the area of medical care for the aged, or in the area of agriculture, as we have noted before. As a matter of fact, we spent two of our programs talking about the use of Federal funds to propagandize the Administration agriculture program, and I am opposed to all of this, and will continue to fight it.

Frankie Laine In Mood To Slow His 'Mule Train'

HOLLYWOOD
By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frankie Laine wants to slow down his "Mule Train," both of them having been on the road for years. Frankie first sang his "Mule Train" hit in 1949, and the two of them have been inseparable since. "The longest time I have been home was ten weeks and that was last summer," he said. "This summer it'll be seven weeks."

Laine would like to slow down, letting the mules and his voice rest. But he can't. "People say 'why don't you quit working'," he said. "What do you do, get up in the morning and not think I can't do that. I'm thinking of songs all the time. Even when I hear background music in a restaurant, I think about whether it might be a good song for me to sing."

He admits that singing his way around the country has its financial rewards. Frank made enough money off records and nightclub appearances to purchase a large apartment house. "You reach a point where it's like too much strawberry shortcake," he said. "You can have too much of anything, even money."

Frankie would like to spend more time in Hollywood, making records and appearing in television shows. However, most of his work is on the road.

"I work hard, even harder than I used to," he said. "The songs I sing today are much tougher, vocally, than those I used to do. Whereas I would do one tough song like 'Lucky Old Sun' now I sing eight or nine in the 15 tunes I do for a show, things like 'Jezebel,' 'Granada,' and 'Shine.' They're all tough."

Laine, whose vocal chords aren't getting any younger, said his voice is stronger now than when he started belting songs for a living. "As long as you keep working, your voice gets stronger," he said. "There's nothing to prevent me from vocalizing every day, even when I'm fishing. My new album makes everything I've ever done sound like a 15-year-old kid."

Derivation
Bandana is a word derived from Hindustani. The word "bandhna" was applied to a method of dyeing in which parts of a cloth were bunched together in order not to receive the dye, producing a calico effect, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

A diet is that period of starvation that precedes a gain of five pounds.

Disney's reluctance for seven years to approve any movie filming at Disneyland is understandable. He has a $40 million dollar image to protect. Half a dozen producers, including Alfred Hitchcock, were eager to use the giant play pen as background for murder.

We didn't show Disney the script until it was a completed. We sent it to him, asking for permission to use the park for a 20-minute sequence."

A NOD FROM DISNEY—The new film, "40 Pounds of Trouble," will have Disneyland as the locale for one of its scenes, the first time Walt Disney has opened his park to moviemakers. The tale costars Tony Curtis and Suzanne Pleshette. It's also the film debut of a newcomer, Claire Wilcox, a 6-year-old, around whom the plot revolves.

seven years of saying "No," Walt Disney finally flashed the green light on Disneyland as background for a movie sequence. He was like Old Dad laying down the laws for Junior's first date in the family car.

He read every word in the script, changed a couple of things, added a gag of his own, grinning. "I was once a gag man, you know," and censored one scene. The script had a pretty girl complaining to a policeman that a man in a crowd had given her an affectionate pinch.

"Not in Disneyland," Uncle Walt's notation read on the blue-penciled scene. "Besides, we don't have policemen — just security officers."

The film is Tony Curtis' "40 Pounds of Trouble," a comedy in which he becomes custodian of a six-year-old girl (film newcomer Claire Wilcox). Her fondest dream is to visit Disneyland and Tony finally takes her there for an afternoon of fun.

Liberace Is Polishing Up Candelabra

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Liberace is a busy man these days polishing-up his candelabra for a television comeback.

There was a time years ago when Lib was the biggest name in video, spending more time on a piano stool than John Wayne did on a horse.

"I had 117 shows in two years on television and they were rerun for five more," said Liberace over his liver lunch. "Sometimes they ran them twice a day. That's a good way to kill a series."

The smiling piano player, known as Lee to friends, finally got control of his shows and took them off the American market.

"I don't want them to compete with anything new that I do," he said, adding that he was too restrained on the show.

"Funny," said the moviemakers, who filmed it that way. Smart fellow, Disney. Let 'em have fun at Disneyland. Hold off man-gets-caught until one step OUTSIDE.

Liberace Is Polishing Up Candelabra

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Liberace is a busy man these days polishing-up his candelabra for a television comeback.

There was a time years ago when Lib was the biggest name in video, spending more time on a piano stool than John Wayne did on a horse.

"I had 117 shows in two years on television and they were rerun for five more," said Liberace over his liver lunch. "Sometimes they ran them twice a day. That's a good way to kill a series."

The smiling piano player, known as Lee to friends, finally got control of his shows and took them off the American market.

"I don't want them to compete with anything new that I do," he said, adding that he was too restrained on the show.

"Funny," said the moviemakers, who filmed it that way. Smart fellow, Disney. Let 'em have fun at Disneyland. Hold off man-gets-caught until one step OUTSIDE.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Compared with ABC-TV's "Ozzie and Harriet," Mickey Mouse is a method actor.

It is a fair comparison. Both are comic strips. It is as if a cartoonist sketched the same, single expression on Ozzie, Harriet, Ricky and David Nelson years ago and ran out.

Every Thursday night there is the same monotone dialogue, about the most absurd trivialities — and, worst of all, prepared with a total lack of imagination. Thursday night, Ozzie and Harriet decided to fix up an apartment for David and his new bride. Then they decided it might offend them. It didn't. It was the greatest crisis I've ever seen on the series.

There is a world outside, and a few things are happening. But you would never know it from "Ozzie and Harriet." The perimeter of their world seems to be Beverly Hills or thereabouts, and nothing penetrates it.

I like Harriet. She has the basic instinct of a Mary Livingston, if not a Gracie Allen. But she is stifled in the bland, turgid atmosphere of a super-suburbia.

The boys used to be funny when they were squeaky-voiced children. In fact, they carried the show. Those days are gone forever. The fact is, the program should have been off long ago, except for the following of old fans who prefer habit to talent.

The most useful thing about "Ozzie and Harriet" is that it occupies some of Ricky's time so he cannot cut even more records. It is a little sad to remember what cut-ups Ricky and David were as boys and now to watch them act like "Mr. Clean" versions of Elvis Presley.

In short, "Ozzie and Harriet" is old and tired. Its characters vegetate rather than live. Ozzie comes across like a middle-aged Boy Scout. And the dialogue is equally stimulating. Takes this exchange Thursday night, for example:

Ricky: "What's new?"
David: "What'dya mean, what's new?"
Ricky: "You know. What's new?"

At another point, Ricky drew a roar of laughter (canned of course) when he told Ozzie: "I rescued all your ties. If you want them, they're on my tie rack."

There was more similarly pulsating humor. It was enough to make you want to hear a monologue by David Susskind.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It is not a mere figure of speech to say that Alfred Hitchcock gets away with murder each week on his NBC-TV show.

It is exactly what he does. As in Tuesday night's episode, murder, mayhem and other related niceties are the very backbone of his series. Yet, so far as I know, the anti-violence vigilantes have avoided setting their sights on the rotund suspense master, who is nearly as vast as the wasteland.

There are many reasons for this privileged position. One is that he might well be more than have.

a match for them. But perhaps the main reason is summed up in Sir James Barrie's comment on charm: "If you have it, you don't need to have anything else; and if you don't have it, it doesn't much matter what else you have."

Or, as a popular song put it some years ago, "It ain't what you do, it's the way that you do it."

Hitchcock does it so well that he is not only returning next season on another network, CBS, but is having his air time extended from a half hour to an hour.

Tuesday night's show, in which a newlywed couple is given a wedding present of carving knives by the rejected suitor — with fairly predictable results — is a good example of exactly what Hitchcock does.

By himself, with his comic comments, he establishes an attitude, which is invariably more effective than a gimmick or twist of plot.

Like a good comedian, he has his audience so pre-conditioned that it is titillated even before he says a word, or the show begins.

Tuesday night, after reading an inspirational poem about each cloud having a silver lining — which had nothing to do with the story — he stopped and said: "I find it difficult to go on."

One pair of house mice has about as young a year.

THE BIG DAY — Miss Martha Jane (Marty) Marsh of Pampa receives her silver wings from American Airlines Stewardess College Director Millie Alford after completing her course in the airline's school. Miss Marsh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. (Bill) Marsh, 1304 Duncan

Pampan Is Awarded Stewardess Wings

FORT WORTH — Only a few short weeks ago pretty Martha Jane Marsh of Pampa made her first commercial flight — a short hop from Amarillo to Fort Worth.

Today she may be flying to New York, or, perhaps, to San Francisco.

Marty, as Miss Marsh prefers to be called, is one of American Airlines' brand new Jet Age stewardesses.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. (Bill) Marsh, 1304 Duncan, Pampa, earned her silver wings as a graduate of American's Stewardess College, the only one of its kind in the world.

Marty's first flight brought her to the college, where she spent six and a-half weeks of resident training, mastering the 100 different courses necessary to become an accomplished stewardess.

With her classmates from throughout the United States, Marty spent an average of seven hours a day in class, learning such subjects as Federal Aviation regulations, theory of flight, in-flight service, and proper make-up, hair-styling, and grooming.

She flew two observation flights, one to Oklahoma City and one to Chicago.

After class and on week ends, the girls were free to visit nearby Dallas and Fort Worth, or to enjoy swimming, tennis, picnicking or relaxing to hi-fi at the college.

The Stewardess College itself is a beautiful two-story stone and glass structure, built at a cost of more than a million dollars on a 20-acre wooded section of Fort Worth's Amon Carter International Airport.

Marty, who is a native of Pampa, is 5' 4", with brown hair and hazel eyes. A graduate of Pampa High, she attended Eastern New Mexico University and majored in drama. She is a member of Alpha Psi Omega sorority and was voted the best supporting actress at ENMU for 1960-61.

Upon graduation, Marty chose Charles Crabtree, 853 E. Kingsmill, Pontiac.

Mickey Rooney Is Writing A Book About Hollywood Life

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mickey Rooney is writing a book about his life in Hollywood, a story he says will "rap everybody and everything, myself included."

Mickey always has something to say about his long filmland career which included many honors and rough spots. Rooney writes about them in the book he's turning out with another author.

During a lunch break from rehearsal for Red Skelton's CBS-TV show, Rooney relaxed in a dressing room, talking about his biography.

"It's about 39 years of my life and it's a book that's being done a little differently," said Mickey, sitting on a chair, his feet resting on a couch.

"The book starts from the present time and goes in all directions," he explained. "I talk about my own temperament, why my career fell apart and how I went back to God."

Rooney's career is now on the upswing. He's an Emmy nominee for his appearance on Dick Powell's television show and has a role in the movie "Requiem For A Heavyweight."

"This is a book about an angry man," he continued. "Basically for the past 15 years I've been angry. By finding out some things about myself, I found out why I was mad."

"I expected too much of my fellow man when I should have realized he was human and had frailties like myself. The book was a great tonic for me. It's violent, venomous and vitriolic in places."

When asked if the book might make him some filmland enemies Mickey answered: "No more than they've always been sore at me."

Rooney is working alone on another book, one he describes as being "way out, metaphysical."

Slowing down his rapid fire speech for a moment, Mickey thought, then recited an excerpt from his second book, "Trial of a Soul."

"My cheeks have wandered out too far into emotion's pool and drown in tears," he said, following that with an explanation about the book's subject matter.

"It's the trial of a person and his mind is the courtroom," said a serious Mickey. "His follies are the prosecution and he's his own defense. He's on trial for loving, for caring."

Answer — Because they're planted in the spring!

Giants Massacre Houston, 10-2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Southpaw Mike McCormick returned to winning form and Willie Mays snapped out of a batting slump with four hits Saturday to help the San Francisco Giants bomb the Houston Colts 10-2.

McCormick, relegated to the brief relief appearance since losing his only 1962 start April 17, got his first win although retiring for a pinchhitter after hurling eight innings. He walked only two batters and fanned five while scattering nine hits.

Don Larson finished up for him. McCormick's task was made easier by three tremendous home runs that produced five tallies in the seventh inning to put the game out of sight. Mays and Orlando Cepeda each hit his eleventh homer of the season and catcher Ed Bailey blasted his eighth as the Giants carved out a nine to nothing lead.

The Colts picked up their runs in the eighth inning on a single by Jim Pendleton, a triple by Bob Aspromonte and a pinchhit single by Jim Busby.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Art Mahaffey, mired in a five-game losing streak, hit his first major league homer with one on Saturday and it provided the margin of victory as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Chicago Cubs, 7-5.

Mahaffey, working in 95-degree heat, the hottest May 19 in Philadelphia history, went the distance for the third time this season, but he had to get Ernie Banks on a fly ball with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth to win.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Kansas City's Norm Bass came out of the bullpen Saturday to pitch one-run ball for 6 1/3 innings and beat the Washington Senators, 8-4.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Don Mossi and Jim Bunning teamed up Saturday to pitch the Detroit Tigers to a 9-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Mossi gave up seven hits and struck out seven as he gained his third victory against four defeats. However, he needed relief from Bunning in the eighth after Chuck Essegien and Gene Green hit successive home runs to cut Detroit's lead to 4-3.

Bunning struck out John Romano and Woody Held to retire the side and then set the Indians down in order in the ninth. Bunning also hit a home run in the top of the ninth as the Tigers scored five insurance runs. The runs, charged to Bob Allen, resulted from two hits, two walks, a sacrifice fly and three errors by the Indians.

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles exploded for five runs on seventh inning homers by Charley Lau and rookie Boog Powell Saturday to beat the Chicago White Sox, 11-6.

Powell drove a pitch by loser Russ Kemmerer beyond the 415-foot mark over the center field bullpen scoring Brooks Robinson and Jim Gentile ahead of him.

The blow put the Orioles ahead for the first time since the first inning, and Lau hit a two-run homer off reliever Turk Lown to push the edge to 10-4.

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Frank Thomas, former Braves outfielder, slammed out three hits, including a home run and a triple, to lead the New York Mets to a 6-5 victory Saturday over Milwaukee.

Thomas' triple touched off a four-run rally in the eighth which wiped out a 3-2 deficit. He also homered in the second.

BOSTON (UPI)—A walk, sacrifice and Bob Rodgers' clutch single in the 10th inning Saturday gave the Los Angeles Angels a 6-5 home run duel victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Rodgers' single in the first extra inning gave reliever Dean Chance his second victory for a three-inning tour as the fourth Los Angeles pitcher in the game. The loss was the first decision of the season for Boston's third pitcher, Chet Nichols.

Jackie Brandt drove in Whitey Herzog with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning.

Greek Money Wins Preakness Classic

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Greek Money survived a head-and-head stretch battle with Ridan and a claim of foul at Pimlico Saturday to score an upset victory in the 86th running of the $185,000 Preakness Stakes.

With jockey Johnny Rotz up, Greek Money cut the corner sharply entering the stretch and front-running Ridan all the way through the stretch to win by a nose in a dramatic finish.

The two horses battled all alone, for there was a big gap of five and one-half lengths back to Roman Line, who finished third in the field of 11.

Decidedly, record-breaking winner of the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago, started a big move from far back in the field on the final bend but he had no punch in the stretch and trailed home a poor eighth.

Jaipur, who wound up a co-favorite with Ridan, also ran out of gas in the home lane and finished even farther back in 10th place.

Manny Ycaza rode Ridan and claimed a foul against Greek Money for interference in the stretch but the stewards, after viewing films of the race, disallowed it.

This was the third win in four races this year for Greek Money, who carried the blue and gold silks of Donald P. Ross' Brandywine Stable. But in his previous races this year, Greek Money had not run against standout horses.

He remained in the East while Decidedly lowered Whitlaw's Kentucky Derby record by a full second, but he was ready for the touring triple crown hopefuls Saturday at Old Pimlico.

Nagle, the former British and Swiss Open champion, whose second place finishes at the Colonial in 1960 and 1961 are his best so far in this country, had a 70. So did Buster Cupit, of Ft. Smith, Ark., as they moved up from a second-place tie.

Collins, who has not won since and eighth holes going out and the 10th and 17th coming back. He had birds on the sixth, ninth, 11th, 15th, and 18th to scramble for his par.

TOP ATHLETE—DALLAS (UPI)—Bill Kemp, Baylor's sprinter whose 15 points made him high-point man in the recent Southwest Conference track and field meet, was named SWC athlete of the month Saturday by the Dallas chapter of the SWC Lettermen's Association.

Kemp, from Fort Worth, won the 100- and 220-yard dashes and was a member of Baylor's winning 440-yard and mile relay teams. He led Baylor to the SWC track title.

Kemp will receive a plaque at a luncheon meeting of the Dallas Lettermen's group Wednesday.

Cowboys Lose Training Site—DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys said Saturday there are looking for a new training site because they cannot return to St. Olaf College at Northfield, Minn., due to a Midwest Conference ruling.

St. Olaf is a member of the Midwest Conference, which has ruled that members schools may not make facilities available to professional athletic teams.

Cowboys' general manager Tex E. Schramm and head coach Tom Landry announced they will visit Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Monday to inspect facilities there. The Cowboys plan to open camp on July 15.

Schramm said the Cowboys felt "very sorry" that the team could not return to St. Olaf.

Hot Springs Open In Four-Way Tie

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (UPI)—Former champion, Bill Collins and three pros who have never won a PGA tournament tied for the lead after three rounds in the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Saturday with 11-under-par 205.

Australian Kei Nagle, Arkansas Buster Cupit and young Al Berger rolled into a tie with Collins, 1960 champion and leader the first two rounds this year.

Art Wall Jr. of Pocono Manor, Pa., and Bobby Nichols of Midland, Tex., were one stroke back at 206 with two-under-par 70s Saturday.

Collins, 33, of Miami, was even-par 72 as he sprayed his tee shots, was inaccurate with his irons and putted in streaks. He was surprised after the round that he was still tied for the lead.

Geberger, 24, of Carlton Oaks, Calif., whose best finish was second in the 1961 Orange County (Calif.) Open, fired a five-under-par 67 to move from a tie for eighth to a share of the lead.

Nagle, the former British and Swiss Open champion, whose second place finishes at the Colonial in 1960 and 1961 are his best so far in this country, had a 70. So did Buster Cupit, of Ft. Smith, Ark., as they moved up from a second-place tie.

Stewart's 3 TDs Rout Regulars' Lead At Half

By DICK RABE
Daily News Sports Editor

Mike Stewart roared past the Futures for three touchdowns Saturday night to lead the Exes past next year's Harvesters 20-14 in a wind-blown grid contest at the Harvester stadium.

Stewart, playing his final 48 minutes for the graduating seniors, scored on runs of 1, 7 and 10 yards to overcome the Futures' lead and send the charges of Coach Otis Holladay down to defeat.

Stewart racked up the first score of the game; a one-yard plunge in the first quarter to put the Exes out in front 6-0. The Exes recovered a fumble by the Futures on the 10-yard line to set up the score.

Stewart then picked up six to put the ball on the four. Bobby Robinson picked up three more to the 1 and then Mike banged over for the initial touchdown of the game.

At the end of the first quarter the Exes held a 6-0 lead.

The Futures came right back with a touchdown and two points after to take the lead. Quarterback Kenny Hebert flipped a 19-yard pass to end Mike Bridges to tie it up at 6-6.

and Hebert then ran the two points after to give the Futures an 8-6 lead at the half.

In the third quarter, with the wind howling through the sparsely-filled stadium, the Futures struck for paydirt once more. From the 15, Glover gained three down to the 12. A few plays later the Futures had the ball on the Exes five-yard line. Hebert then skirted left end for the touchdown to pad the Futures lead to 14-6.

The point after attempt was no good.

At the end of the third quarter, the Futures still lead 14-6.

In the fourth quarter the Exes started their march to victory. Crossland and Mike Stewart alternated the ball-lugging chores to put the ball down on the Futures seven-yard line. Stewart then went over from the seven for his second touchdown of the night and put the Exes behind by two points, 14-12.

The point after attempt was no good.

On the ensuing kickoff, Donnie Ayers was jarred loose of the ball and the Exes took over on the Futures' 25-yard line.

Crossland picked up 16 yards to move the ball down to the nine. Stewart gained a yard to move the ball to the eight. Riley Walters was stopped for no gain.

Mike Stewart picked up seven yards to the one-yard line and set up a first down situation.

Stewart galloped the remaining yard for the fullback's third tally of the night and provided the margin of victory for the Exes.

Crossland flipped a two-pointer to Corky Godfrey to wind up the scoring for the night and give the Exes a 20-14 lead.

The wind hampered passing attacks for both teams, but their ground games took up the slack. Both teams fumbled throughout the contest and penalties were numerous on both sides.

The Futures missed a golden opportunity to score in the second quarter when Hebert found Bridges all alone on the Exes 45-yard line. Bridges dropped the ball. Otherwise the outcome of the game might well have been a different story.

The Futures looked good at times and then had their moments of despair. Hebert looked real good handling the quarterback chores with Ayers spelling him in the fourth quarter. Jerry Glover, Ralph Palmer and Ayers all shone on offense for the Futures with some brilliant running which kept the Exes fighting all the way for the narrow victory.

Crossland guided the fortunes of the Exes at the man under spot with Stewart and Robinson turning in some fancy ball-handling for the winners.

A sparse crowd vacated their seats and sought shelter in the press-box during the second half when powerful wind gusts out of the West made playing conditions rough out on the field.

The game marked the debut of coach Holladay as head mentor of the Futures. Holladay sprinkled his lineup all during the game with substitutes in an effort to size up his material for the coming year.

Yanks Down Twins, 2-1

NEW YORK (UPI)—Despite Mickey Mantle's absence, the New York Yankees snapped the Minnesota Twins' five-game winning streak, 2-1, Saturday on the steady three-hit pitching of right-hander Ralph Terry.

The victory moved the Yankees back into a tie for first place in the American League with the Cleveland Indians, who lost to the Detroit Tigers.

Rookie Joe Pepitone played center field, in place of the hospitalized Mantle and went hitless in four trips.

Terry, now 3-4, struck out seven, did not walk a batter and drove in the Yankees' first run. Harmon Killebrew accounted for the Twins only run with his seventh homer of the season in the fourth inning.

Cowboys Lose Training Site

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Cowboys said Saturday there are looking for a new training site because they cannot return to St. Olaf College at Northfield, Minn., due to a Midwest Conference ruling.

Cowboys' general manager Tex E. Schramm and head coach Tom Landry announced they will visit Central Michigan University at Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Monday to inspect facilities there. The Cowboys plan to open camp on July 15.

Palmer Out To Break Money Making Mark

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer is generating a lot of excitement in golf today on a par-busting parlay of victories and money.

Having won the Masters, he's after a big slam of the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA all in one year. And he's also shooting to break his own record of $75,262 in one-year winnings.

Which is where Upper Montclair Country Club and its $100,000 Thunderbird Tournament June 7-10 come into the picture.

Because Upper Montclair is a "Palmer course" — long, tough and rugged. And because the first prize in this one will be a very tantalizing $25,000.

Anybody who has ever tried to hole a long putt on the final hole to win a 10-buck Nassau has to figure that nobody can withstand the kind of pressure that is riding Palmer this year. But, according to Craig Wood, they're overlooking two factors.

"He'll be able to handle it," said Wood. "He has the confidence and he has the physical strength."

Wood knows how important the latter can be. When he won the U.S. Open in 1941 he played with his back in a harness. He thus had to pull it off with 75 per cent determination and 25 per cent of his natural ability.

"Palmer isn't the type to come apart at the seams either because of the pressure or because of the physical strain," Wood asserted. "He has that extreme cold determination and has the strength of a blacksmith."

But in winning it he could carry his current red hot streak of six tournament triumphs this year right on into the U.S. Open at Oakmont the following week.

But that new money winning mark, as well as the big slam, is exceptionally attractive to Palmer as he attempts to become pro golf's first $100,000-a-year winner. He even has extended his planned tournament schedule in an attempt to boost the grand total.

Which is why the Thunderbird looms so large in the picture with its $25,000 first prize. Plus the fact that, as club president Jess White put it, "This is a Palmer type course."

It is that. Remodeled by Robert Trent Jones, which means a lot of sand for those who spray the ball, it first of all requires the blacksmith muscles which are Palmer's trademark. The course measures 7,055 yards and has the type of par fives which are the long-hitting Palmer's special dish.

They measure, respectively, 525 yards, 555 yards, 530 yards and 600 yards. Which means that Palmer is one of the few—along with such cannonaders as Sam Snead, Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Pott—who can reach home with two blows. The first and the third of those four are the kind which will make your shorter hitters play short—and safe—because they are fronted by water.

The par three will may decide the issue, too. There are two of 210 yards, one of 190 and a fourth of 230 yards. And all are trapped so heavily they resemble the waterfront at Atlantic City.

It's a power-hitter's course and, as such, and because of the loot being laid on the line, will be much in the news. Should Palmer grab the top bundle in the Thunderbird he'll be tougher than ever in the Open the following week. He'll have one record already in the bag.

Mantle May Be Out For Month

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mickey Mantle joked from his hospital bed Saturday about playing in Sunday's doubleheader, but the far more solemn New York Yankees appeared resigned to his loss for anywhere from a month to six weeks.

Mantle, who suffered a "reasonably severe" muscular tear in his upper right groin area during Friday night's game against the Minnesota Twins, spent the night at Lenox Hill Hospital and will remain there for another two or three days.

The star 30-year-old centerfielder revealed that it was impossible for him to put any weight on the right leg which suddenly buckled under him as he was running out a grounder in the ninth inning last night.

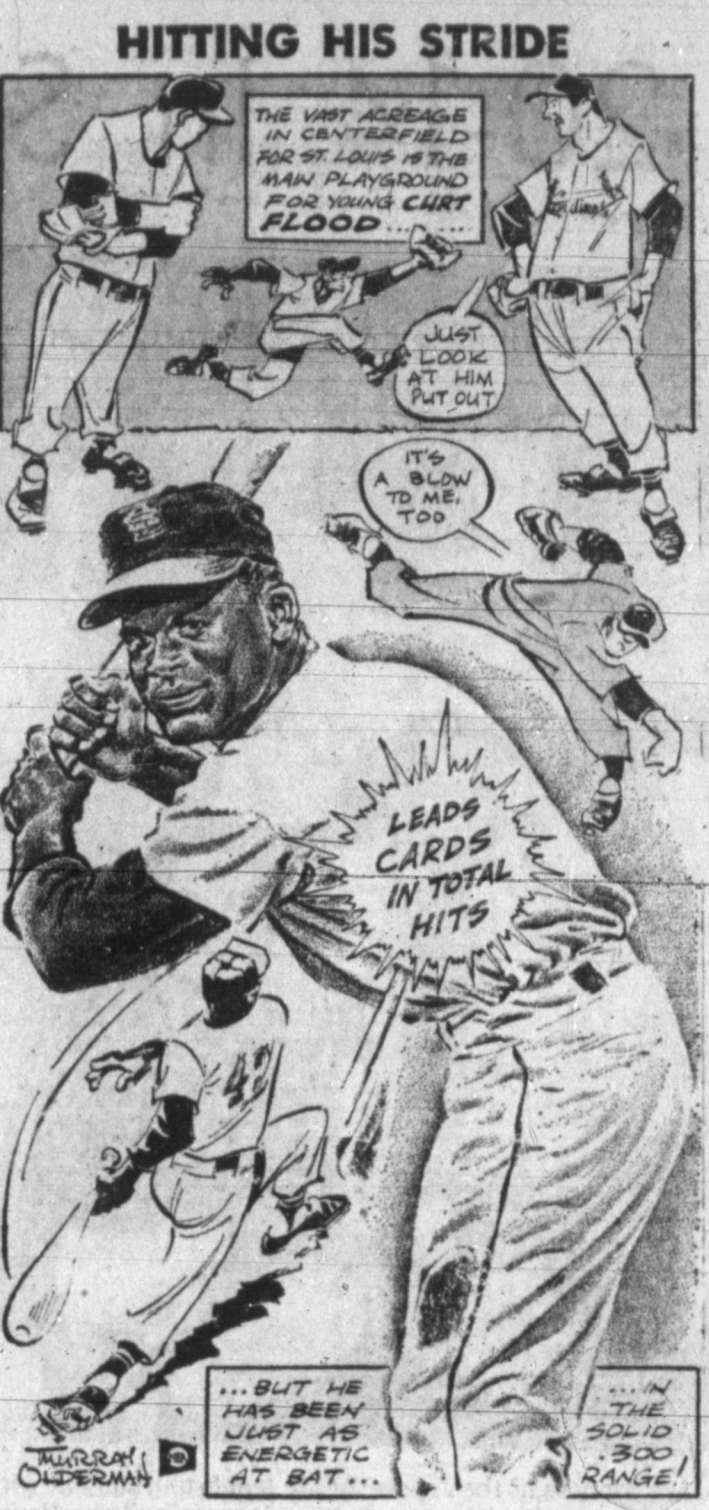

Mantle, trying to "give it a little bit extra," ripped the adductor muscle leading from his upper right thigh to the groin area. He tumbled over on his left knee, which was sore Saturday but not swollen.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, the Yankees' team physician, reported "no further complications" but said there still was no real way of knowing how long Mantle will be incapacitated.

Yankee manager Ralph Houk inserted rookie Joe Pepitone in Mantle's centerfield spot for Saturday's game. Roger Maris, who had been out with a muscle injury of his own, was back in right field and Yogi Berra in left.

Mantle came to grief Friday night on the final play of the game, which the Twins won, 4-3. The Yankees had the tying run on second base with two out when Mickey lashed a wicked one-bouncer to shortstop Zoilo Versalles.

Streking down the line, Mantle tried to summon an extra burst of speed and suddenly keeled over 15 feet from the bag. The entire Yankee team rushed out of the dugout to his aid.

Workouts began last Monday and the boys have been urged to be at all practice sessions.

Mohawk, Ruff, Duncan In Little League Victories

Mohawk pounded out 10 hits Thursday night and went on to post a crushing 16-8 victory over One Bull in Western little league play at the Optimist park.

Leslie Morgan carded the win while Charley Price was the losing pitcher.

Weilding the biggest timber for the winners were Mike Fortin with three for three and David Schaub and Wayne Williams, each with two for three. Fortin had two singles and a double, Schaub had a single and double and Williams had a double and triple.

For One Bull, Hal Keyser had a home run and triple in three trips to the plate and David Snapp had a single and double in four trips to the plate.

Fortin also turned in some fine fielding gems, including two fine steals of line drives.

Mohawk wracked up seven runs in the first, one in the third and four more in the second and fourth innings to wind up their big night of scoring.

One Bull had three in the third and sixth innings and two more in the fourth to account for their scoring spree.

Ruff Furniture, behind the four-hit pitching of Larry Turcotte, shutout C & M Television, 3-0 in a rain-abbreviated game in Northern league play.

Turcotte struckout five while Mike Pursley, the losing pitcher fanned seven. Pursley allowed but six hits.

Dan Craig, Tommy Rose, Phil Young and Randy and Johnny Marsh lead the winners with the timber. Daniels, with a triple, Carmichael with two singles and Howell lead the losers at the plate.

Ruff won the contest in the first inning when Craig singled and scored on a double by Young. Ruff added another insurance run before the inning was over.

Ruff tallied their final run in the fifth frame.

Rose and Epperson shone on defense for Ruff while Johnson and Combs turned in some sparkling fielding gems for C & M.

In Eastern little league play, Duncan Insurance took the measure of Dixie Parts, 9-4. Darrell Smith was the winning pitcher.

In another game played, Lions club slugged out a 14-2 victory over Pampa Hardware in Pony league play.

Eugene McCampbell was the winning pitcher for the Lions.

Also, Malcolm-Hinkle smothered IGA, 16-6 Thursday night in a Pampa Little League Farm league contest.

White carded the win for Malcolm-Hinkle.

Archers Want Game Season

By United Press International

When Texas archers gather in San Marcos in two weeks for the state tournament, much of the shop talk will be about a legislative drive to give archers a statewide season before the gun hunters take to the field.

The archers point to Colorado as their ideal for the moment — a state with a statewide bow and arrow season late in August and early in September. In Texas, only a few counties have archery seasons, on a county-by-county basis, generally running through October.

The president of the Austin Archery Club, taxidermist W. D. Paschall, says, "it seems to me we could get the state to open some sort of season similar to the Colorado one. If a rancher did not approve of archers, he would have the final say anyway."

Paschall says archers are pushing a campaign to sell the idea in communities throughout the state, so that when the legislature convenes next year a mail campaign will flood the legislature with requests for a season.

"Deer and turkey are the main archery targets in the state," Paschall says, "but in South Texas bow- and arrow hunters try for predators such as bobcats, coyotes and javelinas."

Paschall and his son plan to hunt in the Laredo area this year, recalling a successful hunt for some imported wild sheep on a ranch near Austin recently.

Martinez Is Texas Loop Bat Leader

By United Press International

Albuquerque shortstop Hector Martinez continued to dominate the Texas League batting this week with an exceptional .407 average, the league said Saturday.

But Martinez may be in for trouble from teammate Jim Small, who hit better than .500 last week to bring his season mark up to .395.

Martinez, a 22-year-old Cuban, slipped eight percentage points but maintained his lead in hits with 50, one ahead of El Paso outfielder Felix Maldonado, who was third in batting at .371.

First-place Tulsa's Jeffery Long hit six home runs during the seven games covered by latest statistics, raising his season total to 16 in 29 games. He has scored the most runs, 34, and parlayed 40 hits to 94 total bases, plus 35 runs batted in, another first.

Another Tulsa player, southpaw pitcher Bill McNamee, took over the pitching efficiency lead with a 2.70 earned run average. Jack Aker, Albuquerque right-hander, was second with a 2.78 ERA.

The biggest winner, with a 5-0 record, is Austin lefthander Les Bass. He has a 3.18 ERA.

There were no changes in team statistical leadership during the week as Albuquerque remained first in hitting .316 and fielding, with a .968 mark.

Marion Toole, inland fisheries coordinator for the Texas Game and Fish Commission, says there is considerable irony about fisheries problems around the country. Toole attended the recent fisheries conference in Atlanta, Ga. A representative of Santee Cooper reservoir was telling of the problem of getting rough fish as food for the game fish, since the reservoir had run out of shad.

In Texas, shad control is a big problem, Toole points out. The commission tried to introduce striped bass in diversion lake near Wichita Falls, but subsequent checks have found little survival. Toole considers successful establishment of stripers a key to some rough fish control problems as well as a new species for Texas fishermen.

Cardinals

ANOTHER STOP—For a first class pitcher, Bobby Shantz has been traded more than somewhat. Here is the little southpaw in his newest uniform, that of the Cardinals.

Minoso Puts Heart In Major League Playing

NEW YORK (UPI) — A serious crack-up was inevitable for Minnie Minoso, aged 39 going on 45. Baseball is his life and he plays it as if his life depended on it as it frequently does.

Baseballs are made to hit, so Minnie crowds the plate in the way he hits 'em best and therefore has been batted more often than any player in history.

And baseballs are made to catch, so, while playing the outfield for the St. Louis Cardinals, he crashed into a wall chasing a fly ball the other night and raked himself up but good.

Among other things, he fractured his skull for the second time.

It might have been for the umpteenth time if batting helmets weren't compulsory in the majors. Minnie has been "plunked" by pitchers close to 200 times.

Minoso has led his league in being hit in 10 of his 11 major league seasons and the one year he didn't lead (1955) he wasn't in action enough because Bob Grim, then with the Yankees, fractured his skull with a pitch.

Minnie blithely passes off the beatings and the plunkings and holds no malice. Once he said: "I crowd the plate to hit. If I no hit, I no eat. Pitchers don't try to drive me away, I hit. Pitchers keep on getting hit by Minnie, they don't eat."

Known as the Cuban Comet in his decade in the American League with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, Minoso compiled a .304 lifetime batting average and continually hustled like a rookie though his age has been estimated like Jack Benny's 39 for quite a spell.

The Cardinals picked him off in a trade for Joe Cunningham during the off-season and he reported this spring with his usual enthusiasm to his new team in a strange league: "I rookie over here and have to prove again I can do."

He tried too hard chasing that ball struck by Duke Snider of the Dodgers and the wall intervened. But that's the only way he knows how to play the game — and he must play.

Once Minnie was fined $200 by American League President Joe Cronin for some now forgotten incident. Minnie said he'd refuse to pay. But when the fine came due, he paid.

"It could have been $1,000 and I'd have paid. I got to play."

The fiercely competitive Cuban is a life-of-the-party guy off the field, well-liked by his teammates. He is a free spender, extremely generous and, in his early days in the majors, careless with his money.

Frank Lane, called by Minnie my "No. 2 papa," one spring saw Minoso haul a fat wallet out of his hip pocket and toss it on the bench before he went up to hit in an exhibition game. Lane's curiosity got the better of him. He counted the money in the wallet. It came to $3,200.

When Lane cided "The Comet" about his carelessness, Minnie replied: "Money in wallet. Until two days ago I carry him loose in my pocket, slide into bases, maybe lose $1,500 making turn at first. Now he safe."

But Minnie, himself, will never be safe as long as he can play.

TIMBER-R-R!

Dalrymple Shining As Topflight Catcher

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — It wasn't easy for Clay Dalrymple to lift himself to a point where you have to take a second look to find a better catcher in the National League.

Overlooked in the minors as a light hitter, in the dumps at spring training with a lame arm after the Philadelphia Phillies drafted him from Sacramento, and barely held on because Gene Mauch had to see the squad after Eddie Dwyer quit, it's now genuinely safe to say Dalrymple has arrived.

The balding-at 25-one time heavyweight boxing champ at Chico State College in California, says happily, "I was pretty lucky."

A hot bat—it started to smoke after the second All Star game last year—has him hitting over the .300 mark. The arm with which he couldn't control a return to the pitcher in the spring of 1960 now cuts down base runners or picks them off base with pinpoint accuracy.

He tops it off with a sureness of movement, a growing confidence and a seriousness of expression when he admits freely that he's learning something every game.

"It was rough in spring training when my arm went bad," Dalrymple said. "It got so that I couldn't throw the ball back to the pitcher. I was embarrassed."

"That bad arm really had me down," Clay recalls. "I wanted to crawl in a hole. Things became so bad that I was afraid to throw at all."

For a while, his entire game was affected until he learned that he had nothing to fear but fear. He pulled himself together in time to hang on.

The renaissance began after the second All Star game last year. He was a .272 hitter in 82 games for the Phils in 1960 but fell off woefully in the first half of 1961. Then he began to hit, better than .300 after the break. Still that was only enough to bring his average to .220 in 128 games.

"Experience has helped me an awful, awful lot, yet there's always the fear of pulling one. I've done that a couple of times this year and it taught me one thing—don't make the same mistake a second time," Dalrymple said.

"There was the time when all I could think of was hoping I could call a game. Now I call it, and I know better how to place the other players."

"Hitting? I just stand a little closer. I tried standing back and almost became an automatic second-to-first putout. I moved up, and I feel better."

Teenage Loop Is Slated To Start

LEFORS (Spl) — A diamond league for teen-agers has been formed with McLean, Samnorwood, Shamrock, Wheeler, Moebette and Lefors. All boys who attended high school last year are eligible to join this league.

All games in the towns mentioned will be played Sunday afternoons between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. since the parks are not lit up with lights.

The hour on Sunday is so scheduled so as not to interfere with the boys and coaches going to church.

Cleanup Drive Is In Ward Two For Pickup Of Trash

Pampa's city-wide cleanup drive tomorrow goes into its second day in Ward 2.

The cleanup crew spent their first day there Friday after finishing in Ward 1 last Thursday.

R. B. Cooke, public works director, said nearly 120 loads of trash and rubbish were hauled away in the four-day cleanup in Ward 1.

"We're getting greater response this year than ever before," Cooke said. "We are looking forward to the same splendid cooperation in the other three wards that we got in Ward 1."

The cleanup campaign is being sponsored by the Fire Prevention Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the pickups are being made with city trucks and city employees.

Residents are being asked to place the trash in alleys for the cleanup crews. Only one trip will be made through each alley.

National Guard Officer Speaks At Club Meeting

Pampa High School coach Roy Kieval and the student winners of the recent Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored junior tennis tournament were special guests at the club's weekly meeting held in the First Methodist Church.

Speaker for the luncheon meeting was Lt. Leon Howell, commanding officer of the local National Guard unit, who spoke to the group on the importance of Armed Forces Day.

Other guests of the club were Herb Trimble, Wes Langham, Tom Lockhart, all of Pampa, and Wayne Sooter, Amarillo.

GIVES THEM IDEAS

MANCHESTER, England (UPI) — The National Union of Small Shopkeepers will be asked to adopt a resolution condemning programs depicting shoplifting on television.

Not only do the programs give youngsters the idea of stealing from shops, union branch president Norman Robinson said on Thursday, but "thieves may be shown some new methods."

Steward Named Representative For U. S. Steel

DALLAS — Appointment of W. B. Steward as U. S. Steel Oil Well Supply Division field representative at Pampa was announced today by R. E. Dickson, Central Midwest Area manager of the division.

Steward was employed by "Oilwell" in July, 1955, at Sweetwater. He was transferred to Gainesville in July, 1960, and was located here prior to the present appointment.

Steward graduated from North Texas State College in 1955, receiving a B.B.A. degree. He served in the United States Army from January 1956 until December 1957.

NIXES LIE TESTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner has ruled that an employer cannot use a lie detector test to ask his workers about union activities.

Examiner Arthur Leff ruled in a case involving 7-11 Food Stores in the Washington, D.C., area and Local 400 of the Retail Clerks International Association.

Services For Ex-Pampan Set Monday

Funeral services and burial will be held tomorrow in Lake City, Fla., for Lewis T. Walker, 57, former Pampan, who died Friday of a heart attack at his home in Bay City, Texas.

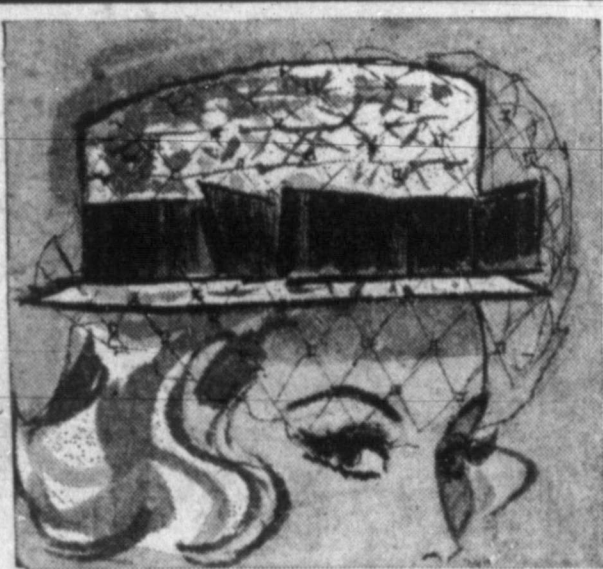

Mr. Walker was employed here by Pan-American Oil Co. until 1959 when the family moved to Levelland and later to Bay City. He is survived by his wife, Mary; a daughter, Mrs. Bobbie Stewart, and two grandsons, all of Bay City.

Two Thefts Are Reported Here

W. L. Noblitt, 420 Lowry, told police Saturday that while he and his wife were in the front yard of their home shortly before 8:30 p.m. Friday someone entered an unlocked back door and stole $11 in change from a bedroom dresser.

Thieves siphoned a full tank of gasoline from an auto parked at the home of Floyd Huddleston, 415 N. Christy.

Huddleston told police the thief also stole a flashlight, carton of cigarettes, box of cigars and a lighter from the car.

WIND BONNETS were all the fashion this week as "Panh-handle Puffs" tugged at the roots of our treeees and played havoc with our dignity the day we wore a full skirt... we even saw a toothpick blown out of the mouth of a young man as he stepped from the Coney Island Cafe... that's how ferocious the wind has been... between now and the time this column is in print, we might have had a gully-washer of a rain... but in the event the clouds disappoint us again... let us remark here for weather historians that we felt a raindrop on the tip of our nose at 10:45 a.m. on Wednesday, May 16.

SINCE OUR item last Sunday... we have heard that Warren Hasse had ABSOLUTELY NOTHING to do with the "golfing theme," which his wife, Peg, used for the Twentieth Century Culture Club installation ceremony held in the Cibola Room of the Coronado Inn... sports-minded and hep, though he is, all of those golfing terms and technicalities came from Peg's own pretty reddish-blond head... and we're glad to clear that up... for feminine credit should be given where feminine credit is due... don't you think?

WONDER IF any mothers in town had to cook dinner on Their Day last Sunday??... to us dining out is one of the most luxurious events... mothers attending the Coronado Inn Buffet last Sunday really received the Royal Treatment... Jim O'Conner brought out his prettiest tablecloth, a floor-length pink satin one, and in the center of it, he placed a Gothic arrangement of varying shades of pink and white carnations in a silver bowl... and on each white-clothed dining table there was a pink or white long-stemmed carnation in a tall crystal vase... then Jimmy Kay Mack serenaded the mothers with pretty and appropriate selections on the Hammond organ... and we must confess, the food was better than this mother could have prepared at home... and there were no pots or pans or dishes to wash afterwards... saw Bill and Greta Arrington with their two adorable children... the Kermit Lawsons with Jimmy and Kay Schuneman, who were visiting from Kansas City... the H. Creel Grady with their children... Julia McKernan, wearing a chic, tall-crowned black chignon hat, and Nell Kelley, who stopped to chat with friends before joining the Buffet line... while we were waiting for the Buffet Hour, we strolled around the lobby... viewing the lovely paintings done by local artists... and our eyes caught an innovation just outside the Terrace Room Windows... remember Gertrude, the Big Fish, which a local fisherman tossed in the pond to consort with the Gold Fish?... her former watery home has now been filled with dirt and there's a pretty rose garden instead of a fish pond just outside the Terrace windows... like it much better.

THERE WAS AN entertaining movie in town last week, "The George Raft Story"... which held a lot of nostalgia for the "oldtime" movie-goers, who frequented theaters back in the 30's... those were the days, our mother tells us, when gangsters were as much a trend as cowboy pictures are today... movie critics all over the country probably caught one faux pas in the picture... the scene where George Raft buys a package of Lucky Strike cigarettes in the modern white pack with the red circle... back in those days, my mother also tells us, Lucky Strike packages were green... that was before the slogan "Lucky Strike Green Goes To War"... remember?... nevertheless, it was an entertaining movie... while we are on the subject of movies... we hope the black cat, which opened the movie, "Walk On the Wild Side" gets an Academy Award next March... it's litesome movements in the opening screen credits were beautiful to watch!

SAW JEANNE WILLINGHAM this week carrying a large stack of pictures... imagine they were publicity pictures of her dance students... we were reminded of grandmothers, who carry a whole raft of pictures of their grandchildren... which they will show at the drop of a hint... though Jeanne is definitely not in that age category... her pride in her students is like that of a mother or grandmother... we heard that one of her students, Sandra Molesworth of Waka... who commutes over 70 miles every week for lessons... has won a ballet scholarship to study this summer at the Midwestern Music and Art Camp at the University of Kansas... Jeanne's annual dance recital is coming up on May 29... and again, as they have done in past years, Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority members are sponsoring it and working like mad on props and stage settings... heard that Cleo Worley has made some particularly attractive maps of foreign countries, which will be used in the "Cruise" sequence of the revue... Aubrey Robison is ESA general chairman this year and probably her last year for working on the revue... for she and her family are moving to Enid, Okla. this summer... heard that they had already bought a two-story, brick home on the corner of 18th and Main there... her daughter, Judy has been studying with Jeanne for 10 years and this year will be her final recital performance... but no sooner will the curtain come down on the recital than will Judy and Frances Holt leave for a Military Ball at the Culver Military Academy in Indiana... they've been invited to the Spring Formal there by George Cree III and a friend of his... and George's mother, Frances, will accompany them... sounds like a Dream Time!

SMILEY AND BETTY Henderson, Betty and Myron Marx spent last weekend in Lubbock visiting with former Pampans, the Frank Fatas, and brought them up-to-date on hometown happenings... just ask Martha Holt or Margie Moore about the successful "Dry Run" relating to Civil Defense, which their Senior Troop Five staged last Saturday at Camp Mel Davis... and they will reply, "Oh Boy!"... just imagine 300 Girl Scouts and their leaders participating in a simulated "disaster" emergency... think Martha and Margie's remark is rather mild... saw Fern Dawson one day last week leaving her Girl Scout offices in the City Hall to go home and have lunch with her "boy-friend," Roy... no longer will it be necessary to use a slipper heel to bring Pampa Garden Club meetings to order next fall... for Faye Palmer gave Nita Hanks, the incoming president, a pretty and petite gavel inscribed with her name at the luncheon held Tuesday in the banquet room of the Block Gold Restaurant... We notice that new plants are being put out around City Hall... and we didn't see one clump of Pampas Grass... and it's supposed to be the City Flower... how about that?... those downtown city gardens would be an ideal spot for our proud flower... we've gotten into and reported all the mischief we can for this week... but just wait until next week! Love, Peg.

Joyce Snow, J. J. Jones Pledge Vows In Rites

Miss Joyce Christine Snow and James Joseph Jones pledged wedding vows in the First Christian Church on May 12 at 7:30 p.m. with Dr. W. W. Jones, father of the bridegroom, performing the double-ring service.

Miss Snow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Snow, 1028 Love, Mr. Jones' parents, a Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Jones of San Antonio.

The background, for the nuptial setting, was formed with Emerald Palms and seven-branched candelabra. Baskets of white gladioli flanked the white satin prie diu. The altar held a sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and white pompon chrysanthemums. Tapers lighted the bridal path.

Complement Make-Up To Floral Ensemble

By ALICIA HART
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Your clothes should show YOU off to perfection and not steal the show for themselves. Unless you use great care in choosing make-up shades to wear with spring's colorful costume prints, your features will be lost in the design and color of your costume. Use foundation and powder that exactly match your skin tone. The match or harmonize your lipstick to the predominating shade in the print.

If there are warm colors in the pattern, such as true red, rose, pink, orange or coral, a sun-pastel shade of lipstick with a matte finish will match these tones.

Should the outstanding color in your ensemble be one of the blues or greens, select a harmonizing shade of lipstick. To these shades you can match your eye shadow. The new powder eye shadow will pick them up beautifully.

Play up your best features when you wear a bold print or your costume will be noticed and YOU won't.

Are you hoping you'll be besieged by partners from the stag line at the next school dance? Well, here are a few pointers right from the boys themselves on what not to wear if you wish to be queen of the evening.

Big noisy bracelets piled on one arm make men nervous. Spindly heels frighten them, for they fear the "needle points" will cause an accident.

Knee-length skirts on less than perfect legs only draw attention to the imperfection. Huge hairdos on small girls look silly, not attractive.

So think over the opinions of your prospective dancing partners, girls, before you dress for the big evening.

For the past few seasons a girl who prefers a simple, manageable hair style has been made to feel that she is out-of-date. Yet, according to hair stylist Victor Vito, she is right to stick to her becoming, easy-to-handle hairdo. It is the others who are wrong.

The bouffant hair styles of her friends are inappropriate for everyday wear and should be reserved for formal occasions. A simple coiffure, Vito claims, is always in good taste with any outfit or in any circumstances. An elaborate hair style is out of place nine times out of ten.

PTA Procedure Course Defines Officers' Duty

A Parent-Teacher Procedure Course was held Tuesday in the Travis School, sponsored by the Pampa City Council PTA. The instructors for the course were introduced by the president, Mrs. Brantly Hudson, Jr. as Mrs. James Lewis, Texas state PTA Civil Defense chairman, who instructed parliamentary procedure and duties of the officers and Mrs. Carlton Nance, past City Council PTA president, who instructed the objects and policies and organization of PTA.

Mrs. Nance explained how to use the key to the PTA Manual, General Information booklet and the Robert's Rules of Order Revised. She read the objects and policies of the PTA and explained that it is a non-commercial and non-sectarian organization. "It works closely with school administrators for the welfare of all children and youth," she stated.

Mrs. Nance explained that "the first Parent-Teacher Association was organized in Washington, D. C. on Feb. 17, 1897 by Mrs. Alice McLellan Berney and Mrs. B. B. Hearst. It was organized in Texas on October 19, 1909 by Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter. The present president of the Texas PTA is Mrs. T. W. Whaley of Kossie. The state is divided into 22 geological districts and councils. Texas has over seven hundred thousand members."

It was suggested by Mrs. Nance that all important printed PTA be kept on file at the school. "Each officer and chairman should pass their material on to their successor," she said.

The coffee break was served by the City Council hospitality chairman, Mrs. Parks Brumley and Mrs. John Gentry.

In explaining the parliamentary procedure of the PTA, Mrs. James Lewis said that "the secretary of each unit should keep on hand a copy of Robert's Rules of Order Revised and a copy of the unit's by-laws. The by-laws of a unit will supercede all other rules. The minutes should never be erased, but corrected in red ink in the margin. The books of the treasurer should be audited annually for protection." She said that the committee reports should be written briefly and in the third person. "Whenever the by-laws of a unit are amended the historian is to include these in the history of the unit."

Mrs. Lewis explained the president's packet that is sent to each PTA president by the state PTA office. "It includes material to help each officer and chairman in his duties. This material is paid for out of the twenty-cents from the dues of each member. The district and council officers are willing to help any unit when asked upon."

Forty-two persons were registered by Mrs. Leon Holmes. Each was given a name tag with a blue foam rubber tulip on it. PTA units represented were: Austin, Baker, Houston, Lamar, Travis, Mann and Wilson Elementary schools, and Lee Jr. High.

The Mature Parent Don't Be Insincere With Children's Worries

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Our older girl gets so touchy before school examinations that she upsets the whole family. Because she has always gotten good marks, how do you explain this? We know she needs more confidence in herself and have tried to give it to her by expressing our belief that she will pass an examination she is worried about. But nothing we say seems to help her. Every time examinations come up, we are all worn out with her worry before they are over.

ANSWER: Your daughter knows that she may fail some of these exams she is afraid of.

That is a possibility, isn't it? And she is trying, I think to take it into account. You may be making this unnecessarily hard for her to do by telling her "We are confident that you will pass this test." Indeed, such prophecies of success can make her feel lonely as well as irritable, for they are uttered by a person who is not being exposed to test and can take no real responsibility in meeting it.

In the ears of the child who is taking the responsibility, such encouragement can sound empty and meaningless. To a daughter who is trying to face the always existing possibility of failing, without words as well as with them, could be extremely annoying.

Whenever a child takes a school examination, he risks failure as well as success. It's a testing thing, an experience whose results we can't be certain about. So the encouragement he needs is not the promise of success but our untrodden sharing of his uncertainty. He needs the people who love him to say, "Whatever happens is O.K. with us." He needs people around him who can convey their acceptance of him, successful or failing without words as well as with them.

Then, with his own sensible uncertainty openly supported and shared, it can stop troubling him. He is able to do the best he can with his exam, freed from distracting anxiety over his success or his failure. He can give his WHOLE attention to what he is doing with his teacher's questions instead of giving them an attention that is mutilated by worry over the results of what he is doing.

Though some parents think so, we do not encourage a child who is risking himself in a new experience by telling him, "Oh, you can do this" or "I know you'll come through with flying colors." Nobody can so grandly order the consequences of another person's efforts.

In such false encouragement, a child senses our claim to control the results of his efforts and as the person who has to deliver the effort, not unnaturally resents our pep-talking nonsense. In our premature "Hurrahs" he recognizes the grandstander who wants a

Dear Abby....

If At First You

Don't Succeed, etc. . . .

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a fool. I have been to see an attorney, and he in turn sent me to a priest. So far I have been to four priests with no solution in sight. Isn't there someone else besides a priest who could give me counsel?

NOLY MESS

DEAR MESS: If you really wanted "counsel," a combination of four priests could certainly provide it. Maybe you're not listening. Try a marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: Can you offer any suggestions on how a respectable young woman can become acquainted with a gentleman who has lived on her street for many years but whom she has never met? I live at home with my family and he lives nearby. He lives alone and I don't think he is interested in anyone else because he is home almost every evening and on week-ends. (I see his light burning.) He is very conservative and on the shy side and so am I.

SHY AND LONELY
DEAR SHY: Unless you want to be forever "lonely," you had better use a little ingenuity. Put the "good neighbor policy" into action. Ask a good neighbor to arrange a small neighborhood get-together, and be sure to include your shy friend. Perhaps he is not for you at all. But at least you'll know.

DEAR ABBY: Will you tell me if it is proper to bring an "escort" to a wedding? I am being married soon, and many of my friends have told me that if they can't bring their own "escorts" they are not coming. I have invited about 16 of my girl friends to my wedding and reception and I cannot afford to let them each bring an escort. What should I do?

UPSET BRIDE-TO-BE
DEAR UPSET: An engaged guest may request permission to bring her "intended" to a wedding. But not any old "escort."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WILLING TO WAIT": Don't be a fool. His wife has the respectability of being his "Mrs." She also has all the legal protection, plus the "children whom he adores." All YOU have is his "word," which you surely know is not worth very much. Surrender, dear.

How's the world treating you?

There Are Dress Tricks
For Those Dieting Teens

By ALICIA HART

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Few people are unhappier than the teen-ager who is overweight. At a time in her life when she sees her slimmer friends glide across the dance floor or caper on the beach, she feels bulky and awkward, even if her companions never give her weight a thought.

For the young girl who is dieting to lose weight, here are a few tips that will make her look slimmer while the struggle goes on:

For swimming, choose a one-piece suit in a dark shade, preferably one with a built-in foundation. Don't select a two-piece suit just because the other girls have them. Chances are they, too, will look heavier in that type suit.

For dances, avoid skirts that are too billowy. Choose a dress that has a gored skirt or one with straight hanging pleats. It will swirl when you dance but you'll look much slimmer in it. Watch fabrics, too. The shims ones will make you appear heavier. Soft material such as chiffon is best. Avoid big prints. These hints will build your morale as you diet, and you'll hardly notice the time pass while you whittle down.

When summer comes, there are crisp, pretty fashions for all to choose from. Yet so many women use summer, not as a time to dress in dainty, feminine clothes, but as an excuse to adopt only casual apparel. Even this wouldn't be so bad if they didn't believe that casual dress meant anything short of a bathing suit in the supermarket.

Shorts, slacks, halters and other play togs were made for resort wear, patio wear and a day at the beach. They're most unattractive to behold behind a shopping basket or on mothers pushing baby carriages along city streets.

Unfortunately, too, it seems that the women who have developed a fondness for very short shorts and very tight pants are those who shouldn't wear them at all - anywhere. They are women who bulge in all the wrong places. They wouldn't dare wear these things if they owned a full-length mirror.

It's a wonderful feeling to see your reflection, fresh and pert in a pretty, cotton dress. You'll be just as comfortable and cool as

Junior High Readiness Program For Lee PTA

A program designed for the benefit and assistance of seventh grade parents was presented by Jack Nichols, school principal, at the Robert E. Lee Junior High PTA meeting on Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium.

Following an introduction by Mrs. Essie Mae Walters, school counselor, Mr. Nichols extended a welcome and directed his informative remarks to parents of next year's seventh grade students.

He outlined the classroom procedure and described junior high school as "simply a transition from elementary to high school. There is a homeroom and homeroom advisor similar to the set-up in the grade schools."

He stated that genuine interest in a child's work, in his school life and enthusiasm for the school program will contribute most to the student's success in junior high school.

Mr. Nichols listed five pointers, which parents can help students establish good study habits:

1) try to provide them with a comfortable, well-lighted, quiet study area; 2) establish new "ground" rules and controls relating to telephone calls, radio and television viewing during study time; 3) occasionally they need to be given a "pat on the back" and credit when credit is due; 4) during study periods, let them take "breaks" but see that they get back to work; 5) teach them to be well-disciplined in their homework that it is done on time.

"I hope you will remember that we are very glad to have you and that you are welcome to visit any class or any teacher at any time; we want you to. We want to help your child develop to the greatest potential during the time he is in junior high school."

In installing PTA officers for next year, Mrs. J. T. Cornutt, current president, posed the question "What are you gaining by serving as a PTA officer next year?" and to the members, she asked "What are you getting by attending PTA? We are trying to get back to the fundamentals of PTA and to bring into closer relationship the home and the school so that parents and teachers may Thought for the Day was given by Doc Cornutt, seventh grade student.

In the business meeting, reports were given by Mrs. William T. Fain, Secretary, Mrs. Jeff Bearden, treasurer, Mrs. Ray E. Wilson, project chairman reported that the Student Council had purchased a tape recorder for the school and planned to continue with the landscaping of the school grounds. The Lee unit approved the nomination of Wendell Alt-miller, principal of William B. Travis School, as committee chairman for the School Education Committee on the state level.

A social hour was held preceding the meeting in the lobby of the auditorium with Mmes. Jeff Bearden, Don Cain, Homer Johnson, Ben Faulkner and Ray Brady as hostesses.

Remove Vegetables From 'Tired' Glass

Vegetables deserve to be more than just an everyday part of the menu. Here we've featured cabbage in a quick, but really delicious preparation. The unusual flavor comes from the addition of Sauterne, a light, white dinner wine from California. Creamy Cabbage is a vegetable you'll want to serve often.

CREAMY CABBAGE

(Serves 6)

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 quarts thinly sliced cabbage
¼ cup California Sauterne or other white dinner wine
1 teaspoon instant minced onion or, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion
½ teaspoon caraway seeds
1 teaspoon salt
½ pint commercial sour cream

Melt butter in a large skillet. Add cabbage and cook over high heat, turning cabbage constantly with a spatula, for about 2 minutes or until cabbage is reduced to about ½ original bulk. Do not brown. Add all remaining ingredients except sour cream; cover, turn heat low, and steam 2 minutes. Remove from heat, add ¼ cup sour cream, and mix lightly. Turn into serving dish and top with remaining ¼ cup sour cream.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

My brother's wedding to a girl he has been engaged to for three years is set for June. He has practically told my husband and me that he doesn't want to go through with it. Then he starts talking about how much he likes the girl, how faithful she has been, how she counts on him and how he couldn't hurt her by telling her how he feels. We like the girl but can't understand why she doesn't see how upset he is. He looks actually sick when she gets to talking about the wedding plans.

ANSWER: You certainly can't tell him whether he wants to marry or not. Let him go on talking to you. If he feels free to keep on expressing his opposing wishes, he may himself recognize which is really his.

As you listen, you might consider the idea that all this over-anxious concern for his fiancée includes much concern for himself.

We human beings are very fond of telling ourselves that we are afraid of hurting the other fellow when we are really afraid of hurting his fine opinions of us. Your brother's insistence on this girl's dependence on him may be actually his dependence on her—on her flattering view of him as a wonderful, loyal decisive young man who is never confused about anything and always knows exactly what he wants. His recoil from the idea of discussing his problem with her may be recoil, not so much from hurting her, as recoil from revealing himself to her as a disappointing person.

Is he a young man who makes a god of Loyalty?

Loyalty, you know is not always a virtue. As we grow, our loyalties should change with us. As we learn more about the people and ideas which have commanded our loyalty, truth with ourselves may require us to withdraw it from them. If the American colonists had stayed loyal to King George III we would have no United States. If everyone had remained faithful to the idea that vaccination was sinful, smallpox would still plague us. Loyalty that refuses us to honor the growth that is made in us by new experience can be a shackling and destructive thing, forcing us to pretend to be a person that we have ceased to be.

If what I have said seems true to you, you might ask your brother, "What about loyalty to your-

GA Auxiliary Travels 'Around The World'

In observance of GA Focus Week, the Girls' Auxiliary of Central Baptist Church entertained with a Progressive Dinner on Monday from five until eight o'clock.

Following a theme of "Around The World With GA's," each course of the meal represented a different country.

The group met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Turner, 2226 Duncan. Following reading of the prayer calendar, Mrs. John Adams, GA director, led in prayer. The first course, representing Mexico, consisted of tomato juice and sunflower seeds; each girl was presented with a straw hat.

The second course was served in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ratliff, 1915 Evergreen; where iced tea, punch and Fortune Cookies were served signifying China. Paper Oriental fans were given each girl.

Third course was served in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Prock, 2319 Mary Ellen and represented the country of Hawaii. Fruit salad was served, while a background of Hawaiian music was played. Each GA was given a Hawaiian Lei.

The group then "traveled" to France, where two "famous French chefs," John Adams and Bill Ellis prepared hamburgers for the GA girls. The mementoes given here were small packets of perfume.

The fifth and last course, from the United States, was Strawberry Shortcake served in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The hall was decorated with red, white and blue to carry out the patriotic motif of the United States. Miniature figurines, representing people of all countries, were worked in with the centerpiece. At the head table, a huge globe of the world stood in the center of the table with streamers leading from it.

Following dessert, a short period was spent in singing with Miss Jeanie Prock assisting at the piano.

Mrs. Bob Gallahan presented a devotion "Is Your Life Like A Mirror?"

Signing the "travel log" were Misses Jeanne Turner, Kay Upshaw, Linda Adams, Marsha Ellis, Melissa Ainsworth, Donna LaMar, Lodema Cole, Kathy Boyd, Sherry Cobb, Jeri Vaughn, Linda Bevel, Kay Ray, Linda

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guidelines expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to do the same. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities in harmony with the above moral principles.

Boaters Protesting Bill

President Kennedy's proposed outdoor recreation program, apparently lacks the blessing of Pampa area boaters, who with all other boat owners would be hit with a "user tax" to help pay the federal tab.

A friend and boat enthusiast says local boaters are understandably perturbed about the proposal which might force them to pay for purchase of land for "public recreation." They seem to figure that any tax money they are forced to pay for boating should be used to improve waterways or other boating facilities.

According to Motor Boating magazine, these proposals which would cost boat owners are not yet widely known even in Congress because they are buried in a 5,000 - word Kennedy message called "Message on Conservation" but "dealing chiefly with recreation."

If the boat-tax bill should pass, boat owners would pay a $5 levy for boats 14 to 16 feet long and $2 more for each foot or part of a foot over that. For instance, the owner of a 25-foot craft would pay $23; owner of a 60 - footer would pay $93. With the thousands of boaters chipping into the federal kitty, the government would have a tidy sum to spoon out to its favorite recipients. And local boaters fear they might not be among the favorites.

Since the government has taken over park and lake areas, the sportsman has been taxed at every turn, allegedly for "conservation." He has to buy a government fishing license to catch fish placed in government - controlled waters by government conservation "experts." His government hunting license must be shown upon request to the government game warden. And so on down the sporting line.

The boating magazine urged its readers to write to their congressmen, protesting the bill for its discriminatory position (why not a tax on golf balls? cue sticks? Scramble sets?) and its ambiguity as to money use.

We suggest that they protest the tax simply because no one has a right to take without their permission any of their property.

Homebodies

Americans are always being hailed for their mobility. A favorite statistic: One in every five people move every year. So how about a small word for the millions of immobile Americans?

Travel surveys by American Airlines suggest we may have been underestimating immobility in this country. These studies show that half the population, more than 90 millions, never take a trip of more than 200 miles. Traffic commissioners probably would argue there is plenty of churning around within that 200-mile radius, and who will contest them?

The surveys did not discuss what keeps the 90 million anchored to a 200-mile zone. The bank account might do for a starting guess.

Do We Wish To Be Enslaved For A Medical 'Benefit'?

There is a curious contradiction in human behavior.

Today in America, for example, there are millions of Americans protesting their adherence to the idea of freedom, independence and self-reliance.

Yet many of these same Americans are working to promote the idea of federal medicare for the elderly. They seem to believe that it is possible for people to be helped financially by the government and at the same time retain their self-reliance and independence.

This is not the first time this sort of contradiction has appeared on the American scene. Indeed, our history is replete with instances of this sort. We want the best education in the world for our children so they can be strong and self-reliant and free. In the same breath millions expound the utterly inconsistent premise that the best way for us to be free and independent is to let the government provide the education.

We suppose that what is really wrong is that Americans really don't understand politics and the working of government. They seem to be innocent of the realization that it is government and NOTHING ELSE that enslaves human beings. They seem to be trapped in the fallacy of supposing that slaves were a market place development arising because of the greed of enterprisers in the market.

This simply is not true. The practice of slavery began in very ancient times as a matter of conquest. It was the vanquished who were enslaved and the business of making slaves has always been the business of government.

And even in our own tragic experience in slave trade, the entire business rested upon the failure of our founders to insist that ALL men are by nature free and independent human beings. And additionally, it rested on the fact that slaves were CAPTURED and forced into slavery by other men who acted as governments. The principal agents in the slave trade were the tribal chiefs in Africa who sold their own or their neighboring tribesmen into servitude.

Getting back to federal medicare, it is interesting to note that in point of fact, this program, sponsored by the Kennedy administration, fulfills in every particular the concept that men shall be enslaved to their government. If the government becomes our keeper, either with wages, with jobs, or with benefits, including hospitalization, then those who are so kept become in fact the serfs of the state. They are state property, to be tended and cared for by the impersonal monster, an overriding central authority.

The supporters of medicare constantly claim that without federal intervention in the field of medicine, there would be many persons unable to pay for the kind of medical attention they really require. The facts are that without federal assistance this nation has the highest medical participation of any nation on earth, with the highest health standards in existence.

This degree of excellence was not inspired or paid for by government but by private persons in and out of the medical profession and all the kindred branches in the health field.

Britain adopted socialized medicine (federal medicare) in 1948 and now, after many years of participation in this effort, it is a notorious failure. Hospitals in Britain are now run down. Doctors are overworked and cannot take the time to give thorough treatment to their patients.

According to reliable information, each doctor in England, under the British program of medicare receives a total of $2.73 yearly for each patient. This means that for a doctor to earn a living he must see 100 patients a day on an average, spending no more than three minutes on each person. This assumes that he sees each patient once a week and that he has no more than 700 patients in his year.

It's Up To You

by HOWARD KERSHNER
L. H. D.

The President and many lesser figures are properly concerned with the problem of unemployment. They are mistaken, however, in thinking that automation is the principal cause of our difficulty.

The truth is that automation brings a double blessing. It lifts the burden of grinding toil from the backs of men and it makes it possible for all of us to have more goods and services of all kinds than would be possible without it. The whole industrial revolution was automation but it enables four times as many people to live more than four times better than before it came.

To be sure, automation causes temporary dislocation but if the free market be maintained, new jobs will quickly absorb the slack. In a free market, automation lowers costs and therefore prices and consequently greatly expands the market so that more persons are eventually employed to produce the goods and services that the people are ready, able and willing to purchase. On the other hand, if government intervention interferes with the free flow of demand and supply by interposing regulations and controls by unwelcome legislation, by quotas or price fixing as it now does and has done for years in agriculture, in transportation, in baking and in many of the economic activities of the people, the result is that prices are not lowered in proportion to the amount of automation involved and demand does not increase as rapidly as it otherwise would, so that the employment of more workers is retarded.

In like manner, when organized labor is strong enough to sip off for itself, in higher wages, most of the advantages resulting from automation, prices to consumers are therefore not lowered as much as otherwise would be the case, consumption is retarded and, hence, employment fails to expand as it otherwise would.

The fact is that automation results in unemployment, to a marked degree, only because of the blockage of adjustments in the market place that would be almost automatic in a free market. The wants of the people are unlimited. As ways can be found to supply them with less work, more and more people are released to provide new goods and services that are desired. If fewer workers are needed in farming, steel, railroading, mining and other long-established activities and these goods are supplied to the people at less expense because the cost of labor is less, the people have more money to spend for other things that likewise create employment. If food, clothing, housing and transportation could be supplied to all of us at half the present cost, we would use the remaining half of our money, not needed for these things, to purchase a great variety of other goods and services which would furnish just as much employment or more than had theretofore been supplied by the basic industries. For instance, we could all use more and better education. We could study music, read more books, attend more concerts, employ more private tutors, visit the hairdresser more often, have a summer home, a winter home, a yacht or an endless number of desirable things calling for more and more workers. All this is held in check because of government rigidity imposed upon industry in the form of controls that prevent adjustments necessary to release human energy, finance and raw materials into supplying these new desires. If labor would not demand all the saving resulting from automation but allow the consumer to profit by it in the form of lower prices, the money remaining in his possession would be spent for these newer wants and needs and the slack of unemployment would quickly be absorbed.

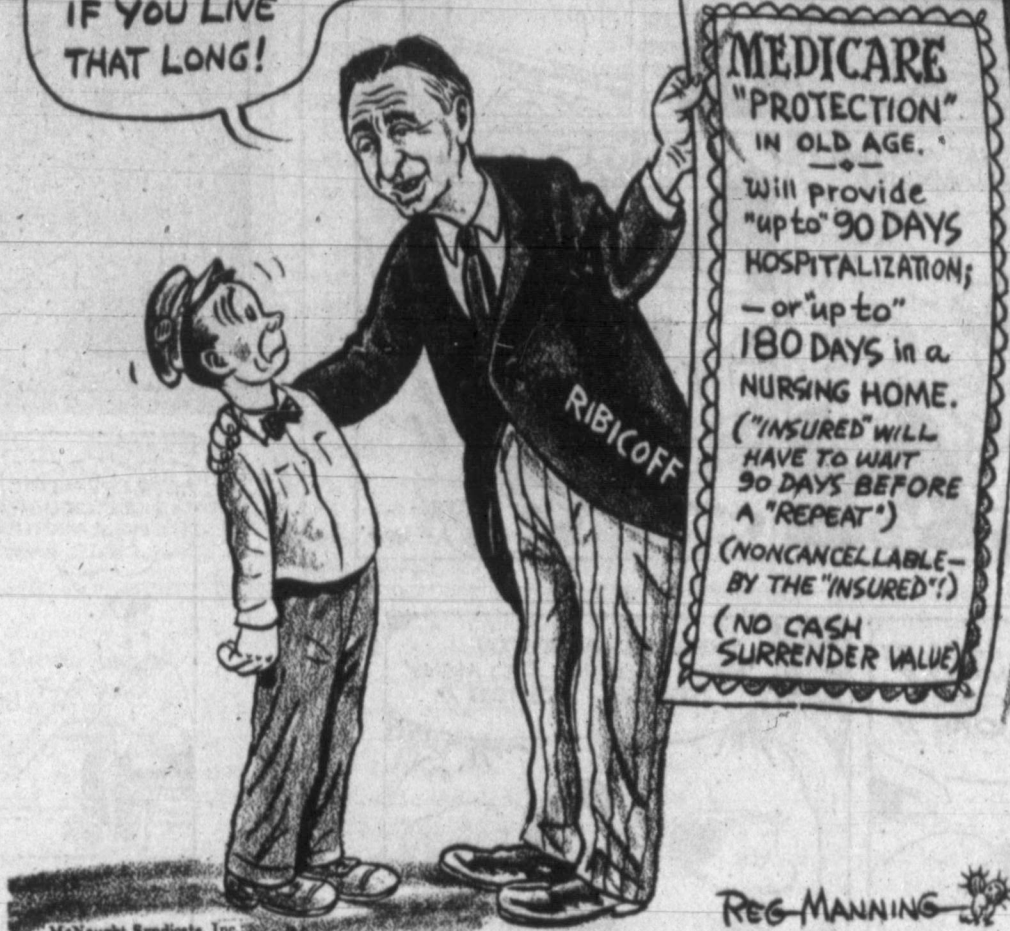

report in 1960 reported "... the present inadequate provision for diagnosis, treatment and aftercare of tuberculosis is a national scandal. ... Waiting periods ... are often two years for an operation, and three months for a bed."

About one out of every three medical graduates in Britain is migrating out of the country so that he can manage somehow to practice private medicine in order to maintain ethical and moral standards as well as the standards of sound medical treatment. Yet, we Americans continue to imagine that we can be free and at the same time become dependents on the state.

Labor's Goal - Turn Out Vote And The Opposition

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The biennial drive to get more voters registered for the November election has been kicked off this year by AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education — COPE — under the direction of Roy Reuther, Walter's brother. This year 35 governors and 36 senators are to be chosen, in addition to all the congressmen.

Registration and the numbers of voters in mid-term elections always fall off by 25 to 30 per cent from the totals in years when a president is elected, which are low in themselves. There was only a 65 per cent turnout in 1960, in comparison to the 75 to 90 per cent votes in Japan, Germany and other European democracies.

Over 88 million Americans went to the polls two years ago, but another 37 million, nearly 1 out of 3 potential voters, stayed away from the polls.

So the total vote this year may not be much over 50 million unless there is a lot of hustling by the two major party organizations, chambers of commerce, labor unions or other patriotic and public service groups.

AFL-CIO international unions have pledged three cents a member for their national registration drive. With 15 million members, that would be $450,000.

On top of this, 21 state and 33 big-city labor organizations whose leaders have just ended a two-day organization meeting in Washington, have pledged $250,000 for local drives. It sounds like a lot of money till you start dividing it up among 50 states. The average is $14,000.

That means most of the work has to be done by volunteers who will wear out shoe leather on house-to-house canvassing. Most of the money goes for printing and mailing.

One of the big jobs is getting more women to register. That takes women volunteers. In all but a few states, registration must be done by the citizen himself or herself going, or being taken to the city hall, court house or other designated place and signing the rolls.

Deadlines against which the registration drives must work vary from state to state. Only in Alaska can voters register at the time of voting. Last primary deadline is Colorado's Aug. 27. Last registration deadline for the November general election is Oct. 27 in Iowa and North Carolina. In the five poll tax states, registration lists are already closed, Virginia being the last on May 5.

Redistricting under the 1960 census will necessitate some re-registration. And the estimated 20 million Americans who have moved to different voting districts since last election will have to check their registration.

The COPE registration drive, says Roy Reuther, will naturally be concentrated where organized labor has its greatest strength. But the drive is being conducted as a nonpartisan affair. Both Republicans and Democrats will be aided. The big idea is just to get out the vote. The bigger the vote, the better labor considers its interests will be served. There's a big apathy to overcome.

In the coming congressional elections, labor leaders figure it will take an overturn of 15 to 20 seats now held by conservative representatives to get a more liberal majority.

But to do this there will have to be a reversal of the usual pattern in which the party in control of the White House has always

The Doctor Says:

By Dr. HAROLD T. HYMAN
Old Sol Is Perpetrator
Of Drying Skin Areas

Sun baddies hate to face the fact that their skin ages prematurely as the result of exposure, and overexposure, to the ultraviolet rays of Old Sol. Compare the color and texture of your protected skin areas how ever small in extent, with the dried, coarse, leathery, lax, wrinkled or dark - spotted appearance of light - exposed regions. If this proof on your own body is not sufficient, compare the relatively youthful appearance of a city dweller's face with the weather - beaten features of a farmer or sailor of the same age who has necessarily had to expose himself to the elements.

What of other unpleasant features of the aging skin, such as creases, wrinkles, bags under the eyes, crow's feet, sagging facial contours, double chin, rooster's neck, "dowager's hump," "liver spots," skin transparency, dryness of skin, itching skin, chin bristles and a mustache for the ladies, a receding forehead if not total baldness for the men?

Well, other than avoidance of excessive exposure to sunlight, agencies such as the American Medical Assn. and Food and Drug Administration have nothing to suggest with respect to the prevention of these changes. Nor do they have any high regard for cosmetic applications that purport to delay or reverse the aging process.

Indeed, the Food and Drug Administration has just seized, on charges of false and misleading label claims, some 200 "beauty power" devices. Makers claimed the devices would revitalize and restore resiliency to facial muscles, firm sagging muscles, stimulate facial circulation, remove creases of skin and the "dowager's hump" and generally improve skin texture.

These products did nothing more than impart to the skin a tingling sensation by means of wet pads connected to a small power transformer.

Nor did the skin specialists that attended the symposium of the Medical Assn. provide more comfort for the cosmeticians. "Cosmetic applications might lubricate the dry, senile skin, but, regardless of content, they have little, if any, effect on wrinkling," states the Journal of the American Medical Assn. in an editorial.

However, the editorial concludes with some encouragement for those whose vanity or professional careers demands positive action. For, in expert hands, surgical abrasive techniques, plastic surgery and the application of chemicals may prove successful for varying periods of time.

With these exceptions, however, the rest of us will have to wear our wrinkles as "service stripes." And wear them, I hope and trust, with a certain pride.

Symington Slashes U.S. Economic Aid to India - Claims It Helps Nehru Increase Military Strength

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — A virtually unknown massive military buildup by India is the inside reason the Senate Foreign Relations Committee unexpectedly slashed more than $200 million from foreign aid funds earmarked for that neotrust country.

While the U.S. has been pouring hundreds of millions in loans, credits, surplus foods and other aid into India to build up its industries, agriculture and standard of living, it has been spending immense sums to develop one of the largest military forces in the world.

In size, quality and modern equipment, India's army, navy and air force are equal, if not superior, to those of Red China.

Approximately 20 per cent of India's budget is for military expenditures.

In 1957, they were $530 million. This year they have soared to $800 million out of a total budget of $4.7 billion.

During this five - year period, the U.S. has extended upwards of $2.5 billion in grants, credits and other aid to India. In the Administration's foreign aid bill now pending in Congress, $727 million is allocated for India. This is approximately one - seventh of the $4.9 billion proposed by President Kennedy.

It is also the figure unexpectedly axed by the Foreign Relations Committee on the motion of Senator Stuart Symington, D. Mo., vigorously supported by Senator Homer Capehart, Ind., a ranking Republican member.

The two veteran lawmakers caustically noted that despite Premier Nehru's constantly avowed pacifism and neutralism, India today has an —

Army of more than 600,000, excellently trained and equipped troops.

Airforce of more than 1,000 planes, a large proportion of them jets. Early this month it became known India is buying a considerable number of Russian MIG-21s, fighters comparable to this country's "century series" interceptors.

Navy of more than 100 warships, including a number of submarines.

TELLING OFF RUSK — While the Senate Committee's 8 to 7 vote cutting Indian aid funds by 25 per cent broke as a public surprise, it shouldn't have been to Secretary Dean Rusk.

At a previous closed - door meeting with this influential committee, the State Department chief got a blunt foreboding preview of what was in the wind. Senators Symington and Capehart minced no words in condemning more large - scale aid to India.

Both made it plain they distrust Nehru's pious professions of peace, and fear he will attack Pakistan as he did the Portuguese colony of Goa.

Throughout this extraordinary backstage grilling, Rusk, obviously on the defensive, carefully avoided clashing with Symington and Capehart, Rusk acknowledged their contentions, but argued it is necessary to "help build India's economy."

"No one has testified yet," asserted Symington, "why we but once — lost congressional strength. This is the big test for this year's labor registration drive.

should spend additional hundreds of millions of dollars in India. Why should we increase our aid to $615 million this year — which is the real figure when you get down to it. That is just about the same amount Nehru is going to spend on his military forces."

"We are furnishing only economic aid to India," replied Rusk placatingly.

"Yes," retorted Symington, "but isn't it true our economic aid enables Nehru to spend these gigantic amounts on his military forces?"

"We cannot suppose he will substantially reduce his military establishment if we reduced our economic aid," argued Rusk.

"The fact remains," pointed out Symington, "that every time we increase economic aid to India, Nehru increases his military spending. Just look at the figures. In 1957, we gave him $330 million in economic aid, and that is the exact amount he spent on his military. Now we are planning to give him $615 million in economic aid, and he has increased his military budget to around $800 million."

"Our intent is to help build India's economy," said Rusk.

"That may be our intent," snapped Symington, "but the fact still remains that our economic aid is making it possible for Nehru to build up a military position far greater than most of our people have any idea. Very few Americans have the remotest concept of how large a military establishment India now has."

"His defense program is sizable," admitted Rusk.

"Actually it is an 'offensive program' and not defense," said Symington. "Nehru has successfully exploited himself as a man of peace. But he is probably one of the most aggressive persons in the world. Take his recent aggression in Goa, his threats to seize Kashmir, his belligerence to Pakistan and Kashmir."

"We protested India's action in Goa," contended Rusk.

"A lot of good that did," retorted Symington. "India has an army of 600,000, and an airforce of more than 1,000 planes, three times larger than any other airforce in that vital part of the world. Also the Indian navy has more than 1,000 warships."

"I believe those figures are correct," admitted Rusk.

"I am stressing them," declared Symington soberly, "because India is threatening Pakistan, and may soon attack that country. Pakistan is our ally and friend. I don't believe that can be said of India; certainly it is not our ally."

"We have made repeated efforts to try to solve the differences between India and Pakistan," said Rusk. "And we are still trying to bring that about."

"Nothing that has been said here convinces me it is in the best interests of the U.S. to give more large - scale economic aid to a country as aggressive as India," declared Senator Capehart. "Nehru has refused to sit down and talk over differences with Pakistan. He is refusing to negotiate, and despite all his talk about being a man of peace, he used his military might to grab Goa."

"In light of this aggressive policy on the part of Nehru and Krishna Menon," asserted Symington, "it is beyond me how and why we should increase our aid to India. No one, including you, Mr. Secretary, has given us a single good reason why this should be done. Have we urged Nehru to cut back his military spending?"

"Shaking his head, Rusk replied, 'No.'"

"Then I believe the only way to bring that about is to reduce India's economic aid," asserted Symington. "And the place to start is right here in this Committee. The time is long overdue to stop helping those who either are not on our side, or are using us for their own aggressive ends."

To this thrust, Rusk made no reply. Several days later, the Committee followed Symington's lead and drastically slashed aid to India.

FOREIGN FLASHES — Iran is getting "more than 20" F - 104 jet fighters, President Kennedy agreed to extend this military aid to Iran during the Shah's recent visit to Washington. Morocco's King Hassan has accepted an invitation to visit President Kennedy. No date has yet been set for the trip. President Nasser and Japan have agreed to establish air service between the two countries. This new route will connect Tokyo and Cairo beginning in the fall.

'Perfect Doodlebug' Is Goal Of Researcher

PONCA CITY, Okla. (UPI) — The dream of a doodlebug may never be realized but oil researchers will continue to work on it anyway.

That's the opinion of Bill Doty, head of exploration research for Continental Oil Co., and a man who spends his days looking for better ways to find oil.

A doodlebug is a non-existent instrument that shows the presence of oil underground. No one has ever invented one, but lots of people have tried, and many have claimed success without proving it.

While Doty admits that the search for the perfect oil finder will, and should, continue, he believes that real progress in exploration research will come from developing and refining more precise instruments and systems.

For years, seismic instruments have given oil hunters a good idea of the size and shape of underground formations, but no assurance of whether oil is present.

Future oil hunters probably will not have a surefire oil indicator either, says Doty, but they will have instruments that can give additional information about the nature of underground formations.

He sees a shift from the study of formations as such to what he calls "stratigraphic conditions" — namely, the rocks themselves, their permeability and content.

Up to now, most oil is found under certain geological conditions that can be determined by regular seismic instruments and surface geology. This includes salt domes, faults, old sea coasts and other potential oil-bearing formations.

Oil of the future will be found in formations that won't be obvious from the surface. Oil might be trapped in a certain permeable sand that suddenly turns into a hard sand that would stop the oil, Doty explained.

A Senatorial Coincidence

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If we have in the audience any disciples of witchcraft, astrology, metaphysics, dentistry or other mystic arts, let them please come forward.

I would like to know what significance they attach to Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating. The two New York senators are figures in a series of coincidences which seem to transcend politics and border on the occult.

The explanation must lie in a rare conjunction of the stars, or some other such fateful occurrence.

To begin with, both are Republicans. A glance at the present party lineup in the Senate will show you that this is no small coincidence itself.

Now note that both have repeating initials — J. J. and K. K.

— and that these letters rub elbows in the alphabet. Also note that "J" comes first and that Javits outranks Keating in Senate seniority.

And if that isn't eerie enough for you, observe that both have the same birthday and recently jointly celebrated their natal anniversary.

I asked a young woman who works for Keating to send me some information relating to the birthday celebration. Their ages (Keating is 62, Javits 58) and so forth.

She did so, and referred to the event in hyphen form as the "Javits-Keating birthday." Only she wrote it "Javits-Kennedy," which is a Freudian slip if I ever saw one.

The material included the transcript of a television program which the two senators have filmed for showing over a group of stations here and in New York this weekend.

It was there that I discovered a new coincidence, which I regard as the most uncanny of all. Each was asked "what has been the greatest influence in your life?" You might find this hard to believe, but they gave the same reply.

Both said "Mother."

To have two senators of the same party from the same state with the same birthdays seems stranger than fiction. But to find that they agree on the virtues of motherhood carries the coincidence almost beyond credibility.

ENTERS HOSPITAL

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Entertainer Danny Kaye, who had complained of "feeling bad" for several days, was ordered hospitalized Thursday night by his physician.

Dr. Clifton Wright of Lake Tahoe ordered Kaye to St. Mary's Hospital in Reno. There was no immediate explanation for the action.
