

DISAPPEARING ACT — The planet Venus (arrow) disappears behind the moon, then pops back into view from behind the dark rim of the moon an hour later, giving a rare spectacular sky show over Chicago early Tuesday. The moon moved in front of the planet, called an occultation, for viewers with clear skies in most of eastern United States and Canada.

Iranian protestors, troops clash

Disturbances worse

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Police and troops clashed with anti-shah demonstrators throughout Tehran today in what authorities said were the worst disturbances here in three months. Protesters issued death threats to Americans, set fire to at least two dozen vehicles and paralyzed the downtown business district.

At least one person was reported killed. Clashes occurred in more than 20 locations in the capital city, and the state radio said rioting also erupted near the central Iranian city of Isfahan.

The disorders broke out as Iran's oil supplies headed toward critically low levels and after informed sources reported that Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi had agreed in principle to trim his power but not meet opposition demands he step down. Some of the Tehran protesters roamed through an area between the headquarters of the National Iranian Oil Co. and the American Embassy, setting fires that sent clouds billowing over the city and plastering store windows with signs in English reading, "Yankees Go Home by February or Be Killed."

Protesters threatened foreigners on the streets, and even tried to force an Iranian colonel from his car, but the officer routed them by firing his revolver in the air.

The authorities said troops fired into the air and lobbed tear gas to break up the crowds. Reporters said one instance of heavy shooting lasted at least 20 minutes and that troops were out in force.

Hospital officials said a 27-year-old engineering professor at Tehran Polytechnic Institute, Kamran

Najatolahi, died of a gunshot wound. Opposition spokesmen said he had been taking part in a sit-in at the Science and Culture Ministry and was shot as he gave a speech from an upper balcony. The sit-in protesters are demanding the reopening of universities.

Martial-law officials said they had no reports of casualties today.

Authorities said groups of demonstrators reached 1,000 people in some areas. Office workers gathered at windows to shower leaflets into the streets supporting Ayatollah Khomeini, the shah's leading religious opponent, and some of them pelted soldiers below with rocks.

At least 300 troops sealed off Amir Abad Hospital, where spokesmen for the opposition National Front had planned to hold a rally. The troops pushed away people who came to attend the rally as police helicopters hovered overhead.

A series of anti-shah strikes by oil workers has cut petroleum production drastically. Some Tehran gas stations ran out of fuel today and government sources said almost no gasoline may be available within 24 hours if oil production continues declining. They said supplies of kerosene for public sale also were short, as well as fuel oil for public utilities.

The sources said Iranian oil production was down to a daily rate of 900,000 barrels, compared to 1.7 million barrels Monday. Normal daily production in Iran is 6 million barrels, with 5.4 million usually exported. Some 20 percent of Iran's oil exports goes to Western Europe and 15 to 18 percent to the United States.

Available oil in the country is being directed almost entirely into domestic needs, the sources said. They said internal consumption was rising because of temperatures that have dropped to 23 degrees in the country's northwestern Azerbaijan province and 32 degrees in Tehran.

Informed sources said under the new political plan, former Interior Minister Gholan-Hossein Sadiqi would replace Chief of Staff Gen. Gholam-Reza Azhari as prime minister.

They said the shah would remain commander-in-chief of the army but would not be able to initiate the appointments of government officials.

He also would retain the right to rule by decree but probably would not exercise that power, preferring to stay out of the limelight and let Parliament and the Cabinet run the show.

However, the sources said Sadiqi's efforts to form a new government were going slowly because of a shortage of politicians untarnished by association with previous regimes.

"If he cannot find the right people, he will give up and there will be no new government at all," said an aide to Sadiqi, a professor who was interior minister from 1950-53.

Khomeini and other Shiite Moslem leaders want to end the shah's 37-year rule because they believe his Westernizing reforms are eroding traditional Islamic values in Iran.

Political activists have joined the Moslems in the fight to topple the shah, and are demanding greater freedom and the dismantling of the monarch's dreaded secret police, SAVAK.

An estimated 1,400 persons have been killed in political violence since the latest movement to overthrow the shah erupted in January, and thousands of foreigners have fled the country.

Indira Gandhi released

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi emerged from a week's stay in prison today, looking jaunty and well-rested and disclaiming any responsibility for a week of violent demonstrations and a jetliner hijacking staged in her name.

"I don't think our people indulged in violence, certainly not our people, only agents provocateurs, certainly not our people," she told reporters shortly after walking out of the Tihar jail here.

Almost 2,000 exultant supporters cheered and tossed bouquets of flowers at her as she appeared at the jail gate.

The 61-year-old opposition leader dismissed as "purely politically motivated" Parliament's vote last Tuesday to expel and jail her for interfering with a 1975 legislative probe of her son Sanjay's automobile business.

Bodies of five near identification

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — Police investigators resumed digging and river dragging operations today in a search that had unearthed five skeletons last week at the home of a convicted sex offender.

The Cook County medical examiner, Dr. Robert Stein, was "nearing identification" of some of the five bodies already found in the home of twice-divorced John Gacy, Stein's office said today.

After a two-day holiday break, investigators from the sheriff's office entered Gacy's house this morning and began digging for 26 bodies that Gacy reportedly has said are buried inside the brick ranch home just northwest of Chicago.

Investigators were searching rivers in Cook and Will counties, southwest of Chicago. Gacy allegedly admitted dumping five bodies into the Kankakee River, which flows into the Illinois River.

Police also were sifting through documents found in Gacy's home as a means of gathering evidence to prove Gacy's sanity.

Gacy, 36, is being held without bond on a charge of murder in the death of a teen-age boy. The remains of five bodies were found at his home Friday and Saturday. The bodies have not been identified.

Papers seized from the home include records of Gacy's contracting business, pornographic material and Democratic campaign literature, investigators for State's Attorney Bernard Carey said.

The investigators said business cards indicated Gacy may have been a Democratic precinct captain. A spokesman for the Cook County state's attorney's office said prosecutors will cite the Democratic campaign work in trying to show Gacy's rationality. The spokesman said Gacy's attorneys are likely to enter a defense of insanity.

"We will determine for certain whether Gacy was a precinct captain, and if he was, we will use that fact as part of a long chain of evidence showing that Gacy is a rational human being," the spokesman said.

Twice divorced, Gacy had lived in the house for six years, the last two years alone. He served a prison term in Iowa for sodomy and was paroled in 1971.

He is charged with killing Robert J. Piest, 15, of Des Plaines. The youth was reported missing Dec. 11. Investigators said Gacy told them he threw Piest's body and the bodies of four other youths into the Des Plaines River. No bodies have been found in the river.

Economic impact questioned

CETA squandering millions

The federal job and training system known as CETA, which has spent $37 billion since 1973 to help the nation's unemployed, is squandering hundreds of millions of dollars annually through slipshod management and fraud.

CETA's economic impact is unquestionable: in the recent period of high jobless rates, CETA jobs reduced U.S. unemployment — currently 5.8 percent — by about 1 percent, according to administration estimates. It has trained or put to work more than 10 million people in the past five years.

But a two-month study by The Associated Press reveals a system so riddled with abuse that even Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who runs the program, has no idea of the total stolen or wasted.

"I do have a very strong sense that fraud and abuse in the program has not been as pervasive as publicity has indicated. But I don't know that. It's very important for us to find that out," he said in a recent interview.

The abuse runs a remarkable gamut. Thousands of CETA workers don't qualify for the program, but they get money anyway. Millions of CETA dollars go down the drain because of thievery or mismanagement. Nepotism has cropped up in dozens of cities, including Pontiac, Mich., Springfield, Mass., and Great Falls, Mont. Political patronage has marred CETA systems in Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago, among many.

Fraud and abuse have undercut CETA's impact, and deep budget cuts are threatened in 1979. Marshall must grapple with budget officials who want to cut in half CETA's public service program of 660,000 job slots. He says he has assurances from President Carter that "the main contours of the system will essentially be the same."

To improve CETA's position, the Department of Labor has launched a well-publicized campaign to root out abuse.

A Labor Department audit, obtained by The AP through the Freedom of Information Act, estimates that more than 11 percent of CETA's public service jobholders were "either ineligible or there was insufficient information available to allow determination of their eligibility."

The audit estimates that between $389 million and $842 million is being wasted on ineligible CETA jobholders. Millions more are being misspent because local governments — New York City, Boston and Minneapolis, for example — use federal jobs money to pay regular city employee salaries rather than to create jobs for the hard-core unemployed. Studies estimate that this drains between 16 percent to 35 percent of all CETA hirings.

To combat the problem, Labor has a staff of 250 auditors and investigators — a tiny force by Washington standards.

Hardly a week goes by without new revelations somewhere among the nation's 475 locally administered CETA programs.

Early this month, the District of Columbia was told to reimburse the federal government for 34 CETA salaries illegally paid to city council employees, which reportedly may cost the city $250,000. In November, a CETA supervisor in Fargo, N.D., was indicted for doctoring payrolls and receiving kickbacks from CETA employees. A CETA subcontractor in Seattle was charged with writing "ghost checks" to nonexistent people and double billing of charges to several agencies.

The acting inspector general of the Labor Department, Rocco DeMarco, said in a recent interview that his Office of Special Investigations has resulted in 25 persons indicted for CETA fraud in Atlanta, Miami, Harlingen, Texas, Indianapolis, Oklahoma and Ohio; 14 have been convicted. A total of 150 investigations are underway nationwide.

Scores of audits and program assessments obtained by the AP show that CETA fraud gets a big assist from inept or nonexistent bookkeeping and sloppy management among many of the cities, counties, states — the so-called prime sponsors — that administer the federally funded program, and from the approximately 25,000 subcontractors who also run local CETA programs.

The Labor Department's 1978 evaluation of the 475 prime sponsors shows that 51 have "serious problems" managing and accounting for funds and meeting CETA's goals and 224 with "problems identified." Only 200 — mostly smaller programs — got good reports.

The best big-city programs, like one in Milwaukee, prove the CETA system can achieve its goals — relatively free of abuse.

But, most CETA administrators agree the 1977 doubling of the public service jobs program is partly to blame for mismanagement. The program was increased from 300,000 jobs to 725,000 jobs by the Carter administration to help stimulate the economy and controls.

Some CETA administrations are simply inept.

According to Labor Department evaluations, Bridgeport, Conn., "lacked any basis for internal management." Springfield, Mass., exhibited "repeated violations of CETA regulations," including nepotism and fraud. Nassau County, N.Y.'s management was judged "extremely poor."

Labor officials admit that Washington hasn't done enough to address mismanagement.

"Our role in Washington under CETA was to be benevolent deliverers of technical service to prime sponsors. But we don't have any experts in this. We've never done it before," says Bob Jones who heads the Labor Department's community employment programs.

Despite the degree of local abuse, Labor time and time again has failed to penalize prime sponsors who mishandle CETA funds. Labor's ultimate weapon is to take control of CETA away from a local sponsor. Marshall insisted in the interview that he wouldn't hesitate to use the weapon, but local administrators view it as an empty threat. East St. Louis, Ill., with corruption too pervasive to ignore, is the only prime sponsor ever to lose its CETA charter.

Martin assault case investigated

A Midland girl, 15, reportedly was sexually assaulted early Monday about four miles east of Stanton.

The incident was reported by the girl's parents to Midland County Sheriff's Department of Monday afternoon, which who then contacted the Martin County Sheriff's office.

Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders is conducting an investigation into the alleged incident. He indicated charges would likely be filed.

"The girl is 15, but looks about 12 or 13," Saunders said. "She was at a nightclub with her parents in Midland when a 21-year-old man asked if he could take her home."

"Instead of taking her home, he allegedly took her out on a road four miles east of Stanton where he raped her."

Saunders said that the girl claims to have then walked six hours back to her home in Midland where she reported the incident to her parents upon their return home around 1 p.m. Monday.

Saunders said that the distance from the reported site of the attack to her home would have taken about six hours to travel by foot.

57 perish in traffic accidents

Texas highways deadly over holiday

The deadliest Christmas weekend in Texas traffic history came to an end at midnight Monday, with the grim count standing at 57.

Not since 1969, when 54 were killed on Texas roads and highways, have there been more than 50 traffic fatalities over Christmas, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Jim Robinson.

The highway patrol had predicted 44 persons would lose their lives on Texas roads and highways during the 78-hour holiday death count.

The DPS predicted 35 more will die in Texas traffic accidents next weekend.

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, DPS director, said it appears certain "we will end 1978 with the all-time record death toll for Texas. It will be at or over 4,000 for the first time in Texas history."

"The Christmas deaths are following the trend established July 4 and Labor Day when they ran 40 to 45 percent higher than the same holidays in 1977," said DPS Director Wilson E. Speir.

"Our final death count for Christmas 1977 was 34. Based on a preliminary count we are 68 percent higher than the total for Christmas 1977."

Six persons perished, including three children, in the holiday's worst accident late Monday afternoon about 15 miles east of Waco when a car left the road and plunged into a stock tank.

Two of the bodies could not be recovered until early today.

The driver, 24-year-old Yarnell Kirven of Dallas, was in stable condition at a Waco hospital after escaping from the submerged vehicle, Robinson said. A 2-year-old girl was in fair condition after mouth-to-mouth resuscitation was reportedly administered by a DPS trooper.

Robinson said the dead were Carolyn Ferrell, 21, of Dallas; Tysher Ferrell, 3, of Dallas; Thomas Jefferson Jr., 3, of Waco; Pearl Adkison, 20, of Midland; Lillie Jefferson, 21, of Waco; and Anthony Adkison, 4, of Midland.

"One other wreck during the holiday weekend claimed four lives, a two-car collision Saturday near Brenham.

Not all holiday-related deaths came on the highways.

A married couple and their two children died when fire, believed to have started at the Christmas tree in the living room, swept through the family's home. Dead were Charles Chambers, 37; Sherry Lee Chambers, 26; Bryan Sanders, 10; and David Wayne Chambers, 1.

"I see a lot of fires and it takes a lot to get to me, but this one just sent me to the bottom," said medical investigator Mike Darst. "Seeing a whole family wiped out like that at Christmas, that really got me."

One Texan died while at work and five others were injured Sunday night when the "crow's nest" of an oil-field drilling rig collapsed near Bay City. The victim was identified as Bobby Lee Reed, 19, of Blessing.

Action/reaction: Taxes, holidays

Q. Last year the school tax office closed for a week during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Are they going to do that again this year? If so, how can people pay their taxes if that is the only time they can pay them?

A. School Tax Officer Supervisor Corene Schaffner said the school tax office was not closed last year between Christmas and New Year's Day. The only days the school tax office will be closed are Christmas Day the day after and New Year's Day.

Tops on TV: Buzzing bees

The networks are trying to get us buzzing about killer bees again. This time it's "Terror Out Of The Sky," airing at 8 p.m. on CBS. WHERE STOLEN REMBRANDT WAS — Three holiday visitors to the M.H. deYoung Memorial Museum in San Francisco look at the spot where thieves stole Rembrandt's "Portrait of the Rabbi" Monday. Museum officials said the painting is worth about $1 million. Painting on the right, Rembrandt's "Joris De. Caullery," had been taken from the wall but left behind by the thieves.

Option to advertise should be up to doctor

The fact that a Federal Trade Commission law judge recently ordered the American Medical Association (AMA) to lift its ban on advertising by doctors didn't rate a great deal of attention in the nation's press but it's another indication that ceaseless change is going on in this country.

Prior to the ruling, nearly every major professional organization had permitted members to try and sell their services through advertising. Doctors insisted on continuing the ban, throwing the word "ethics" around in defending their stance.

IT'S TRUE patients aren't bound to a particular doctor. They can, if they choose, ask about office call rates or about fees for specific services. The hard fact is, however, that few people do shop for doctors. Most consider themselves lucky when they manage to get an appointment.

Most people can see nothing wrong with posting charges in a tasteful advertisement. The FTC took the stance that by banning advertising those participating composed part of the conspiracy to exact higher prices while providing poorer services.

That may be going too far. Medical fees are steep but other factors should be considered. The physician's training must be thorough and is understandably long. No one just goes out and picks up a medical degree in four years. It's getting more expensive every year to pay for the training they need. Let it be said, too, that medical doctors are subject to calls 24 hours a day — he can't stray far from a phone even if he is off duty.

There are good doctors and there are better doctors but there are few incompetent doctors because examining boards must be convinced they can qualify before they're ever licensed.

People are sometimes confused by advertising. Some are prone to picture a gaudy unprofessional display like "Skin growths removed — a special if combined with major surgery."

ADS OFFERED BY lawyers and opticians invariably are well done. They serve a rather obvious purpose in that they tell a potential client just what the charges will be. The facts are posted, with the result that the customer feels his interests have been served.

Some doctors offended by the FTC ruling insist their ethics would be compromised and they intend to appeal the ruling.

They act as though someone has a gun at their heads, ordering them to advertise. Let it be said that decision is a matter of personal choice.

If the AMA feels concern about the unscrupulous doctor who authors misleading ads, the association is in a position to take sanctions against that type of individual.

This is a nation which prides itself on the freedoms it fought for and maintains. Doctors should have the option of advertising, if they so choose.

Special thanks

Although this column is the day after Christmas, there are some very special people that I would like to extend especially warm wishes to for Christmas.

Since moving here in May, these people have taken me in, so to speak, and made me feel a part of the city and a part of their families. They have been the main reasons that I have enjoyed living here.

THE FIRST ON my "special" list, are Caria Walker, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Walker, her brother and his family, Ryan, Pam and Becky, and her grandmother, Mrs. Gen Schafer. They have come to my aid when I have needed them and have become like a second family to me. Every Wednesday I especially feel a part of their family by being included in their family gathering with Mrs. Schafer for lunch. I look forward to those visits, the big kiss and hug from Becky and Mrs. Schafer's good food and great cobbler. It is one of the highlights of my busy week.

The next on my list, but of no less importance, is Cathy Mays and her parents, "Doc" and Mrs. Mays. Cathy, you might say, is a fellow comrade. Although she is just as avid an Aggie as I am. And her dad is too. The last two games that the Aggies engaged in, we sat glued to the television set cheering them on. And cheer we did. It was like we were in the stadium with the rest of the fans. Cathy is always ready to party, go out to eat even though she's on a diet, and always there when I need a friend. The Mayses, too, are like a second family to me.

AND, ONE OF the most important reasons that I have not regretted moving here is that I love my job. And, the reason that I love my job is that I have the best editor I could ever have hoped for. In college my professors filled me with tales about editors and their unpredictable tempers and their "cold" natures. This is not true of Tommy Hart. Only once have I seen him show any outward signs of anger in the seven months that I have been here. And, to further disprove the editor stereotype, he worked in my place this past weekend so that I could be home with my family for Christmas. Never once has he yelled at me for a mistake that I have made. He always approaches me about it calmly — like when I misspell a word he comes up to me and asks me how to spell it. I may not know how it is spelled but I do know that I didn't spell it right the first time.

To each of you, I wish a very merry Christmas season and may God grant you all a full and rewarding New Year.

Oil today

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Everyone is mad at the OPEC nations for raising the price of oil by 14 1/2 percent. They also seem to be madder at the Arab countries than the other members of OPEC. My theory on this is that every time the photographers take photos of the oil ministers, the Arab ones stand out because they are dressed in their burnouses, while the other OPEC representatives fade into the background in their English-tailored suits.

I, FOR ONE, think the OPEC people made a serious mistake in raising the price of their oil. The reason they gave was that the dollar had been so weakened by inflation that they were losing money. What they didn't say was one of the major reasons for the dollar sagging was the price they put on their oil in the first place.

Since the OPEC nations have accumulated most of the dollars in the world, it would have been in their interests to CUT the price of oil by 14 1/2 percent rather than raise it. This would have sent the value of the dollar to new heights, and wrecked the Japanese yen, the German mark, and the Sri Lankan rupee.

The new price raise just cooked up in Abu Dhabi will not solve the dollar problem, but exacerbate it, and in a year the OPEC countries will be complaining again how their dollars are being blown away by the winds of inflation.

I wish I could only blame OPEC and the Arabs in OPEC for all our problems. But I just talked to an economist who said the cost of fuel, while it starts with the OPEC countries, goes through many stages.

"WHEN THE COST of crude oil is raised," he told me, "everyone gets in the act. Let's say that the OPEC chaps add three cents to the price of a gallon in Abu Dhabi.

"The 'seven sister' oil companies at the Petroleum Club in Houston say to each other, 'Hey, since the OPEC ministers have raised the price three cents, this is a good chance for us to raise it two cents more. The consumer will blame the Arabs and we'll be left off scot-free.'

"So now we have five cents added to the gallon. But the people who transport oil in tankers, railroad cars and trucks accidentally run into each other in a diner outside of Chicago and say, 'Did you see what they did in Abu Dhabi? Upped the price of fuel three cents.' And someone else says, 'And the folks in Houston met their three cents and raised them two. I say we should add another cent on for transportation. If we don't do it now we may never get a chance until the next OPEC meeting.'

"So now we're talking about a six-cent raise," my economist friend continued. "The refiners add another cent for unleaded, and the oil company sales departments add a cent for good luck."

"The advertising departments tell management they're going to need another two cents a gallon to sponsor more good shows on public television, so the people who have to pay an additional 10 cents a gallon will think nice things about oil companies."

"Then what you're saying is, the only thing we can hope to get out of the OPEC meeting in Abu Dhabi is another TV series like 'Upstairs, Downstairs'?"

"You got it."

"Is there any hope that the price of oil will ever go down?"

"Only if they discover a lot of it off the coast of New Jersey."

"That would be awful."

"Why do you say that?"

"Well, it's one thing to kiss the hem of Arab's burnouse in Saudi Arabia — but it's another to kiss one worn by a person who comes from New Jersey."

Diabetes progress short of cure

By Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Doctor: What progress is being made to find a cure for sugar diabetes? Is a cure around the corner? I am not a diabetic, yet I would like to know if there is any preventive medicine one can apply to lessen the chances of getting it. — D.D.

There are between 2 1/2 and 3 million diabetics in the U.S. alone. Any disease of such widespread proportions is bound to attract much attention of medical research — and diabetes has. Over the years much progress has been made. Of course, the development of insulin therapy was a landmark accomplishment. Later, oral medicines came along for control in some people. More recently, research has zeroed in on artificial controls. For example, experimental work is being done in the field of surgery — the implanting of devices to measure out insulin required to take over from the defective pancreas, which in diabetes cannot provide enough of it to utilize blood sugar.

But a cure — no. It is an inherited disorder, and to date researchers have been unable to change the course of such things. But they are trying. Preventive medicine — certainly. Probably the most effective step a person with a family history of diabetes can take is to keep his or her weight down. There is a definite link between obesity and the onset and severity of diabetes. Also, it is much easier to control, when and if it appears, if a patient is of normal weight for height.

Dear Doctor: I have a sort of rattling sound in my left ear. It is not a ringing. It sounds like a small bead rattling in a plastic container. It lasts a minute or two, then stops. Recently my ears have felt as though they had wax and I used a cotton-tip and there was wax in each ear. A glob about the size of a pea came out of my left ear. There seemed to be some dried blood on it. My ears felt good after that, but the last few days the left ear started again. You did not mention this sound in your recent column on ear noises. Can you tell me what this might be? — Mrs. K.W.

Rattles, bells, boiler factories — my compendium of ear sounds from readers' reports is enormous. The fact is, however, that experienced ear doctors can often pinpoint causes (nerve disorder vs. earwax, for example) by such reports.

In your case, I suspect the answer is as simple as the build-up of wax pressing against your ear drum. Wax can expand and contract with temperature. That might explain why your noises come and go.

I don't like the use of any object to remove the wax. You are playing dangerously close to very delicate structures that bleed easily, witness the bits of blood on the end of the cotton. Often all one accomplishes is pushing of the wax in closer to the drum. It is not unusual for a person, especially an elderly one, to have an occasional build-up of wax. It is really worth the cost of having it removed by a physician rather than risking the do-it-yourself method. He has special instruments and solutions for the purpose. There is a discussion of this in the booklet, "Ear Noises, Their Causes and Cures," which you can order by mailing 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Mailbag

Dear Editor:

On Sunday morning, Dec. 17, while returning from Dallas after a heart-breaking football loss to Plano, and with "Mojo" written all over our car, my husband decided to take a coffee break in your city. Taking the business route "80" West off of IS 20, we began to look for a Restaurant which we had seen advertised on a billboard earlier. Realizing that the Restaurant was on the east portion of Highway 80 and not wanting to turn around, we decided to return to the Interstate and look for a restaurant there. The section of the city we were in was unfamiliar as we usually travel on the loop portion around the outer edge of Big Spring, stopping at a cafeteria. Since the time was 10:00 a.m. and knowing that the cafeteria would not yet be open, we turned right off of Highway 80 and on to Owens overpass.

As we topped the overpass, we noticed a police car pulling in to our right at the bottom of the overpass and commented that he was parking to check on speeding violations. We passed the police car and shortly thereafter he pulled in behind us, stopping us to issue a traffic ticket. An officer issued a ticket for doing 53 miles in a 30 mile zone. My husband and I both feel that it is quite possible we were doing 35 miles per hour, but that it is impossible that we were driving 53 miles. We had just pulled off of US 80 and at the time we drove on to the overpass and over same, we were driving slow enough to look for directions and exit signs back to the Interstate. We just feel that some judgment should be used in the issuance of traffic citations. To enter a plea of not guilty, one must take time off from work and return to your city, and then it is only your word against radar, which is not always absolutely correct.

We have lived in Odessa for 30 years and have traveled through Big Spring many, many times, always stopping for food or gas and often for items left behind in the act of packing. However, the $46 we are paying on this traffic citation will surely be the last dollar we will spend in Big Spring. We guarantee.

Mrs. M.R. (Billy M.) Dillon

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think we should pray for our country? Or have things gone too far for it to be brought to God? — L.C.

DEAR L. C.: Yes, we should definitely pray for our country. Sometimes it seems as if our nation has become secular but, if anything, that should only increase our prayers.

I am convinced one of the reasons our world is in its present difficulty is that God's people do not pray enough. What should we pray for? We should pray for the leaders of our nation and our world that they would be directed by God. They may not all be believers, but God is still able to work in ways we may not completely understand to accomplish His purposes. I was impressed several months ago when I heard a church leader in another part of the world say he prayed for our President every day.

We should pray for revival in our land. Our nation was founded on Christian principles. Such ideas as the importance of every person and the unchanging character of right and wrong come from the Bible. Now we seem to be drifting morally, and what was once seen as evil is now called good. What is the answer? The only final answer is for us to turn to God in repentance and faith. There have been many times in the past when things were difficult, and yet God poured out revival and changed the whole situation.

Slim vote crop

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Georgia's dirt farmers, angry at their neighbor in the White House, were in the vanguard of last year's farm strike. They have now been placated, at least temporarily, by slightly higher crop prices and a massive infusion of federal loans.

President Carter's home county, Sumter, was loaned a whopping $20.4 million from the U.S. Treasury. The money was distributed to 289 farmers — an average loan of $70,500 apiece. Overall, Georgia Farmers got $385.5 million, almost 8 percent of the nationwide total.

THE PRESIDENT'S neighbors got some of the biggest payments in the nation, but they were also among the hardest hit. The root cause of their discontent remains, nevertheless, as does the bitterness they feel toward their fellow Georgian in the Oval Office.

Faced with skyrocketing costs of equipment, fuel and fertilizer and with crop prices controlled by others, the beleaguered farmers simply can't make ends meet.

Their frustration isn't helped any by the realization that everyone else in the food processing chain — suppliers, brokers, food processors, supermarkets — are making money from their labors.

If the bail-out money from Washington did not placate the farmers, neither will it please the consumers. For it's costing them tax dollars at a time when the president is calling upon them to tighten their belts.

Last winter, the farmers' frustration boiled over into a national farm strike. One of the spawning grounds of that movement was Bacon County, Ga.

In October 1977, tractors rumbled along the country's once quiet roads in one of the first spontaneous protest demonstrations of what eventually became the American Agricultural Movement. Before they were through, angry Bacon County farmers, armed with tanks of anhydrous ammonia, squared off against Georgia state troopers, armed with guns and tear gas.

We sent our reporter Hal Bernton to Bacon County at harvest time to see how things were one year after the Lexington-Concord of the American farm revolution. He found the county peaceful, at least on the surface. The local newspaper headlines, for example, revealed nothing more exciting than the doings of the high school homecoming queen.

A year ago, the militant farmers had issued a call to arms — let each farmer keep half of his land out of production, to force crop prices up. This tactic never materialized. When it came time to plant last spring, Bacon County farmers were convinced that many of their counterparts across the country were not going to join them, so they went ahead and plowed their fields from fence row to fence row.

The result of their labors was as discouraging as ever. Farmers with half a million dollars invested in land and equipment slaved all summer in their fields, only to find at harvest time that they hadn't made enough to pay off their suppliers and the bankers.

ONLY LAST-MINUTE loans from the federal government — over $10 million to Bacon County farmers alone — prevented a wave of bankruptcies. To make ends meet, most of the farmers have taken second jobs, at the sawmill or at retail stores in town. One local farmer literally went to pot. He was caught growing marijuana between his rows of corn in hopes of a profitable cash crop.

One thing is clear in Bacon County's time of troubles: Despite the infusion of federal money, Jimmy Carter has become a villain. They initially had high hopes that their Georgia neighbor and one-time peanut farmer would lead, or at least support, their fight for higher farm prices. He had, after all, urged that "100 percent parity" be included in the Democratic platform.

Yet when he made it to the Oval Office, Jimmy Carter lobbied hard to defeat a Republican bill that called for parity pricing.

"I can assure you," said farm movement leader Tommy Carter (no relation to the president), "that when you look at the final vote tally of Bacon County in 1980, it will not have gone to the Democrats."

EVIL GENIUSES: Drug smugglers are some of the most imaginative people around, and customs agents have to hone their normally suspicious natures to razor's-edge sharpness to keep abreast.

Recent intelligence reports have revealed some of the more inspired hiding places cooked up by dope traffickers. In Southern California, for example, smugglers are using surfboards to conceal dope. After the narcotics are stashed, the surfboards are waxed and used a few times to give them an innocent, weatherbeaten appearance.

In Pakistan, two Americans were caught recently using artists' paint sets to smuggle harshish oil. The dope was secreted in compartments in the paint-set cases.

An increasingly popular receptacle for illicit drugs is the so-called "stash can." Smugglers take canned goods, fit them with screw-off lids and fill them with dope. The cans are then weighed and liquid is added to give the proper sloshing effect.

Among the more popular canned goods that have been used are various brands of motor oil and such beverages as Coca-Cola, Pepsi, Seven-Up and Budweiser beer.

DALY CITY, Calif. (AP) — Duane Rogowski is the swiftest guy in Daly City, and the record will go down in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Rogowski, who is 17, stayed on a swing in his parents' garage for 124 hours, breaking the previous record of 122 hours, 30 minutes.

The Westmoor High School senior started swinging at 2 p.m. Monday and finished at 6 p.m. Saturday. During the marathon, he was allowed only one five-minute break each hour.

Rogowski, who lost three pounds during the marathon, said the toughest part was staying awake.

He drank coffee and cola and his friends kept cheering him on.

"I'm not going to sleep. I'm going to celebrate," Rogowski said after the marathon, adding that he would do it again next Christmas.

PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Filmmaker Louis C. deRocheumont, a two-time Academy Award winner who co-founded the "March of Time" documentary series, died Saturday. He was 79.

Columnist dies

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Dick Mackey, sports columnist for The Kansas City Times, died Sunday morning. He was 49.

He may have two unexpected and unlikely aces in the state appropriations game this time around: Bill Clements and the threat of federal purchase of the ranch.

Armstrong talked with Gov.-elect Clements about the ranch recently and found him in Armstrong's words "open and interested."

That interest may wane as other appropriation needs and tax-cutting demands grab the spotlight in next year's legislative session. But it's more encouraging than Gov. Dolph Briscoe's total opposition.

The ranch, on the Rio Grande northwest of the Big Bend National Park, is ruggedly beautiful and has some unique geological formations.

The present owner wants to sell, and Armstrong is worried that some developer will grab the land for a recreational subdivision.

The land commissioner says his office could manage the large ranch until the legislature appropriated money to make it a state park. Critics say Armstrong, an avid outdoors type, just wants his own natural plaything at state expense.

Strongest opposition to state purchase has come from landowners near by ranch and the Marfa Independent School District. Opponents say governmental ownership would mean a tax loss that would have to be made up by other taxpayers.

Armstrong says that opposition is not as strong as two years ago because the federal government is interested in buying the ranch. The local people say they would rather have the state than the federal government for a neighbor.

One big plus for state ownership from their viewpoint is that the state has a mechanism for making payments in lieu of taxes to the school district.

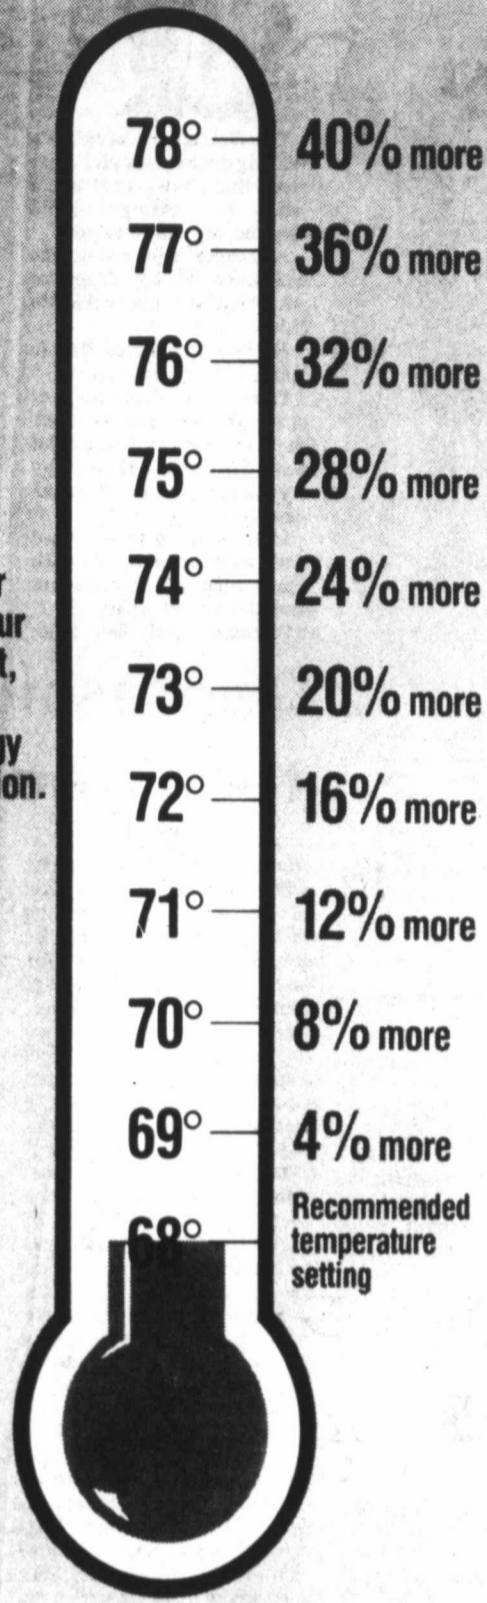

Several legislators have volunteered to carry a bill for the purchase next year, but none is the type needed for success: A powerful "team" member from West Texas.

Success or failure may be determined by Rep. Richard Slack, D-Pecos, Dean of the House and vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. He probably could get the proposal passed if he supports it. He certainly could kill it.

The ranch's price tag two years ago was $8 million. Armstrong says it's probably higher now, but he's not sure how much.

Some Democratic legislators who have met with Bill Clements say they've had communications problems with the governor-elect. One

The higher you set your thermostat, the higher your energy consumption.

"Try lowering the temperature in your home to 68° this winter. You'll save on your heating bill!"

"A setting of 68° during the winter is the one Texas Electric recommends for both comfort and energy efficiency.

For each degree above 68° the energy used for heating your house is increased by approximately 4% per degree.

As shown by the chart the difference between the recommended thermostat setting and 74° is 24%.

At 78° the increase in energy usage is 40% or more.

Clearly, the lower you set your thermostat the lower your heating bill is going to be. And after last winter, one of the coldest on record, we think a lot of people are going to be trying their best to use less energy.

Remember to change the filter in your heating system regularly, too. A dirty filter causes your heating system to work longer and that costs you more. Check the filter at least once each month.

All forms of energy are costing more these days. If you're serious about saving energy and money, request a copy of our energy efficiency tips booklet on the comment portion of your electric service bill."

POISED PAIR — This adorable female basset hound, and this cute black, full-blooded cocker spaniel are both being held at the Big Spring Animal Shelter, 911 E. 2nd. The basset hound, around eight months old, is being held for its owner until Friday. The cocker spaniel, complete with tags, is around 2 years old. She is up for immediate adoption. Both animals will be destroyed Friday if a new home is not found for them. Both are highly sought-after dogs, with the cocker spaniel being the most popular of purebred dogs. Any interested parties should make a special effort to drop by the animal shelter sometime this week and take home one of these, if not both, darling little dogs.

Clubhouse

Dr. Cox gives presentation

The Big Spring-Howard County Retired Teachers Association met at the Cactus Room, Howard College, Dec. 19 with Dan Conley presiding.

Presenting a program of Christmas music was the Runnels Junior High choir, directed by Joyce Hull. The devotional and invocation was given by Martin W. Landers.

Slater H. Johnson introduced his sister, Dr. Tezzie Johnson Cox, as guest speaker.

Mrs. Cox spoke on her experiences as an educator. She talked of the problems of students who went to school away from their families, stating that home life and security were of great importance.

In concluding her speech, Mrs. Cox stated that she was a sentimentalist and closed with a poem published forty years ago titled "Texas Outlook."

State hospital thanks Optimists

The Morning Optimists met recently with John Gee voicing the invocation and Bobby Grant leading the Pledge of Allegiance.

A letter was read by Bruce Griffith, president, from the Big Spring State Hospital thanking the club for the Christmas party given for residents at the Halfway House. In charge of the program was Eddie Eastman who introduced the guest speaker, Sandra Killough, Texas Electric public relations representative. She presented some ideas concerning government over-regulation and what should be done about it.

It was reported by James Gregg, co-chairman of the Christmas tree project, that there were only a few trees remaining from the sale.

The meeting was ended by David Draper who led in the club creed.

Hyperion club holds meeting

The December meeting of the 1948 Hyperion Club took place Thursday at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Ken Perry, No. 2 Highland Cove, with Mrs. Anabelle King and Mrs. Kathryn Archer serving as hostesses.

Guest speaker of the day was Mrs. Clyde Angel whose knowledge of the scripture captivated the listeners as she brought word portraits of "Women of the Bible."

The sinful women cast a dark reflection. The good and virtuous women were pictures of light.

After a brief business session, 20 members enjoyed a social hour around a draped table topped with appointments and refreshments.

Cagle presides over meeting

The Kentwood Older Adult Center was the site of the Dec. 21 meeting of the NARVRE. The Christmas dinner, held at 6:30 p.m. was followed by a business meeting at 7:30 p.m. R.W. Cagle, president, presided. Guests included Mrs. Marshall Brown and Mrs. Della Noble.

Mrs. Ed Appleton, Mrs. J.E. Weidel and Mrs. J.J. Richardson served as hostesses for the evening.

The next meeting will be a pot luck supper at 6:30, followed by the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 18.

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Where there is a dollar to be made, you'll find as many phonies as legitimate operators, and hypnosis is no exception.

Hypnosis has been effectively used instead of drugs to eliminate pain in childbirth, surgery and dental work. Under hypnosis people have overcome phobias and bad habits such as nail-biting, smoking and compulsive overeating. However, I must state here that not everyone is an ideal subject for hypnosis.

For information on qualified hypnotists in any area, write to the Association to Advance Ethical Hypnosis, 60 Vose Ave., South Orange, N.J. 07079. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a brief statement of the problem for which you seek hypnotic help.

DEAR ABBY: LIVING SISTER wrote complaining that her family charged the flowers for her mother's funeral to the mother's estate. She said it was disgraceful!

You agreed, and called it cheap and chintzy. Abby, your typewriter was in gear, but your brain was idling.

The Federal Estate Tax form allows ALL legitimate funeral expenses to be deducted. This includes not only flowers, but also long-distance telephone calls, motel and hotel costs, mileage and, of course, the undertaker's bill.

So, buy the flowers and pay the undertaker out of your own pocket and lose the deduction if it makes you feel better. But it's dumb.

SENIOR CITIZEN: BELLEVILLE, MICH.

DEAR SENIOR: You win. (P.S. There seems to be no end to what I learn from my readers!)

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Drug warning from prison

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I have been reading your column for quite some time, however it was a letter by "Straight" that sparked my letter to you.

"Straight" was a boy who had been selling drugs at school but who had decided to quit.

I'd like to address this to him and to every teen.

I have spent about 16 years of my life in prison. As I look back, I can see that much of it was brought about by my inability to say no at the right time.

I went along with the crowd and was impressed with "easy money." My present sentence is five years.

"Straight" said he made

$50 a week selling drugs at school. I would give a lot more than that to be with my wife and young daughter right now.

Because I didn't seek sound advice from responsible peers or concerned adults, I spent four and a half years in San Quentin Prison.

Seeking sound advice does not show weakness; it shows strength.

The tough guys are not in here with me — just the losers. Don't be intimidated by your friends if you don't "go along."

I could give you the names of thousands of men in here who would agree with me totally.

Teens, you've got a lot of people pulling for you. Seek them out!

And finally, get an education. It's good for a lifetime.

"Straight," please accept my personal congratulations on your courageous decision to stop selling drugs and to go straight.

Hang in there, friend; it's worth it. Believe me, I know, I've been there. — A Friend, Vacaville, Calif., State Prison

Friend: I thank you for "Straight" and for all teens who read your letter. You made my day, week, year. God bless.

Send questions to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 AND 20, in care of this newspaper.

Depression hits teen years hard

NEW YORK, N.Y. — According to psychologists who specialize in teen problems — and a sampling of teen-age girls around the country — just about anything can set off a bout of depression in a teenager. And because the high moods are so high, the lows feel especially low, writes Constance Rosenblum in the December issue of Seventeen Magazine.

Depression strikes particularly hard during the teens because this time of transition — from childhood to adulthood — brings special problems. Conflicts between teens and their parents are upsetting, as are problems with both boy and girl friends.

"Every time you're rejected, you wonder who you really are — and who you should be," says Muriel Goldfarb, a psychotherapist who helps run counseling groups for teen-age girls in New York. "Moreover, you don't know if things will ever be any different."

Michael Daniel Williams, 22-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Williams, 3722 Hatch, will appear on the cover of "Hollywood Spotlight," a monthly magazine featuring human interest stories. He will appear sometime in 1979.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams have two other children, Guy, 12, and Melecia, 10. All three are the grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Ryan, 1212 E. 18th.

Didn't expect attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Students had threatened Clare Klinger before, but when the attack came, she did not expect it: A magazine rolled around some heavy object and secured with a rubber band slammed full force into her neck.

It knocked her down, but the middle-aged remedial reading teacher got up and taught her two remaining classes that day in February 1977. Then she went home. She never returned again to her Brooklyn vocational high school classroom.

She says she hasn't gone back because of her neck injury — the eternal headaches, the dizziness. But also, she says, she's afraid.

"I am petrified when I see more than two youngsters together. If I want to go out in the evening, I have to gird my loins all day."

Ms. Klinger, a 10-year teaching veteran who needs only to complete her dissertation to earn a doctoral degree, slides slowly, involuntarily into tears as she describes her injuries and her feelings about the assault.

"I know I'm not handling this very well — I cry easily when I'm reminded about this. It's been two years and I'm getting worse. I'm really very bitter."

Ms. Klinger's experience is echoed through the nation's schools: More than 60,900 teachers were attacked by students last year according to the National Education Association. Since 1972 classroom murders have increased 18 percent, rapes have increased 40 percent and assaults are up 77 percent.

She is not much surprised, nor much comforted, that Dr. Alfred Bloch would find her reaction to the classroom assault fairly common. Bloch is a psychoanalyst who recently concluded a five-year study of battered teachers.

What Bloch found was that battered teachers react the same way as soldiers who've fought too long on the front lines — with combat fatigue. They come down with ailments like migraine headaches, ulcers and hypertension; they are depressed and unable to sleep.

THE BATTERED TEACHER
Clare Klinger, one of 60,900

Further, Bloch found that even teachers who weren't actually attacked suffer physical or emotional breakdowns. That's the price they pay for working in constant terror — or under threat — of being beaten, raped or murdered.

Bloch, a University of California psychiatrist, was interviewed during a meeting here of the American Psychoanalytic Association. His study was published in October by the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Generally, he says, "when teachers run into violence, they break down. They often suffer tremendous feelings of failure because they feel they should be able to cope, to prevent the violence."

Their problems are especially knotty, according to Bloch, because the sort of people who choose to teach are ill-equipped to cope with violence: They are often passive, idealistic people who want students to view them as loving, parental figures. Teachers who grew up in volatile city neighborhoods deal more easily with a combat zone atmosphere in schools because they've been exposed to more violent behavior, Bloch found.

Yet often the physical and emotional toll paid — even by teachers who are never attacked — can be even more crippling than actually being stabbed by a student, Bloch says.

"When the teacher in classroom A is raped or assaulted, think what it does to the teacher in classroom B or C or D," Bloch says. "She is living in constant anxiety, always wondering, 'When is it going to be my turn?'"

He reported that 72 percent of the 253 teachers he studied had not been physically attacked. These men and women sought help, he said, for breakdowns caused by living, always, in fear.

Bloch believes teachers should be trained to defuse explosive confrontations and to deal with violent outbursts. He thinks it would help if they shared their fears with each other in discussion groups.

Bloch and other experts believe school administrators should also undergo special training because too often they react as if the attack were the teacher's fault and too often the attacker is not disciplined.

Edward Muir of New York's United Federation of Teachers puts it this way:

"We need to give the principal the idea that his first concern should be giving emotional support to the victim rather than with the paper work the incident generates."

Ms. Klinger says she was told by other teachers that the student who injured her bragged about it, reportedly saying, "I hit and I hit her hard and when she comes back, my mother and I are going to put her in a wheelchair."

She never learned what provoked the attack. The youth was never disciplined, Ms. Klinger says. She doesn't know why, but she has a theory: The disciplinary dean coached the school's basketball team.

"Maybe," Ms. Klinger says, "the boy played basketball."

Younger Foyt trains horses

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A.J. Foyt III spins his dreams at tracks, but there end similarities with his famous father. The younger Foyt has his heart set on winning a classic race, but his hopes involve four swift feet rather than autos.

The younger Foyt, called "Tony," works at the New Orleans Fair Grounds as a horse trainer.

"I never was interested in auto racing at all," said Tony Foyt, 22. "He never wanted me to be a driver, never encouraged me at all. And I was never interested." Tony said his millionaire father, 43, loves the horses and goes straight to the track "whenever he can get away."

Tony says his goal is a victory at the Kentucky Derby, and hopes an as-yet unnamed yearling colt sired by the great Damascus will be the ticket. His dad paid $80,000 for the colt at the Keeneland Sales.

But even a Derby victory by that colt would leave him a long way short of his dad's record of four victories in the Indianapolis 500.

"I think he'd be real happy if we just won it once," Tony said.

Turk woes mounting Two delay leaving party; are saved

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Religious and political fighting forced Premier Bulent Ecevit's left-leaning government today to clamp martial law on Ankara and 12 other cities, including the "devastated battlefield" of Maras.

Three days of fighting have left at least 93 dead, more than 1,000 wounded and still more bodies buried in the rubble of Maras, known historically as Kahramanmaras.

The semi-official Anatolia news agency said Gen. Necdet Urug immediately took up his post as martial law commander in Istanbul. It said he reported to the Selimiye barracks, which houses Turkey's 1st Army assigned to defend the Thracian peninsula and look after the strategic Bosphorus Straits.

The decree will be submitted to Turkey's National Assembly later today, where it is certain to be ratified by pro-government and right-wing opposition legislators, sources predicted. The government needs assembly approval every two months to maintain martial law.

The designated towns are all in Turkey's impoverished eastern region, except Ankara, the capital, and Istanbul, Turkey's largest city with over 4 million inhabitants.

An estimated 1,000 Turks have died this year in terror attacks and fighting between rival Moslem sects — the dominant rightist Sunnis and minority leftist Alevis.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sylvia Soto and her 18-year-old daughter Patricia stopped to put on their boots and hats before following the other six family members and friends out the door into a wind-whipped downpour.

The delay in leaving the Christmas Eve party may have saved their lives. The other six — huddled under a couple of umbrellas to escape the driving rain — were crossing the street when a rusty tan station wagon emerged and bowled them over like tenpins.

"My baby! My baby! Take it from the car," screamed Mrs. Soto when she saw the lifeless body of her 3-year-old daughter, not far from the bodies of her husband of 18 years, her son and three of the family's friends.

The bodies were strewn about on two blocks of Brooklyn's New Utrecht Avenue. Police estimated the car had been going "at least 60 mph" when it hit the group.

Police arrested a 24-year-old auto mechanic and charged him with drunken driving and criminally negligent homicide in connection with the hit-and-run. Mrs. Soto sat numb and trembling in a police car after the accident.

"When I came in the street, I saw my daughter lying there and I started screaming," she said. "Then I looked for my son, and I saw everyone was dead."

SPACE SHUTTLE FLIGHT ASTRONAUTS TO WEAR ALL-COTTON UNIFORMS—American astronauts flying in NASA's space shuttle flight will wear an all-cotton, flame resistant uniform fabric developed through the efforts of Cotton Incorporated, the fiber company of American cotton producers. The astronauts are now wearing all-cotton training uniforms similar to the one shown on Cotton Incorporated employee Jane Thompson. The space shuttle orbiter Enterprise is shown here separating from its carrier aircraft for a recent practice glide landing. NASA is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Modest rise is noted

In cost of ag manuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department put its annual book of statistics on sale today for $6, a price well within President Carter's wage and price formula.

Last year's version of "Agricultural Statistics" cost $5.75 for the paperback volume. The price for the 1978 edition is up about 4.3 percent.

But over the longer haul, the price of the 605-page volume has risen almost as dramatically as many other items on the market. The 1972 edition, for example, cost $3.25, meaning that the book's price has risen about 85 percent in the last six years. Published annually since 1936, the book includes "up-to-date information on agricultural production, prices, supplies, consumption, costs and income," the department said in announcing its latest publication.

The usual production figures for crops, from apples to wheat, are included. Some of the more off-beat bits of information, in case you are pressed for New Year's conversation topics, include:

—A crate of asparagus weighs approximately 30 pounds.

—It takes about 21.1 pounds of milk to make one pound of butter.

—Albania produced 17,000 metric tons of oats in 1977. A metric ton is 2,204.6 pounds.

—Sugar output in Mauritius dropped to 715,000 metric tons in 1977 from 731,000 in 1976.

—The average number of colonies of honey bees in the United States in 1977 was 4,318,000. No information was provided on how many bees lived in the colonies.

—About 12,447,000 cases of sauerkraut were produced in the United States in 1977.

—The price of milk sold by dairy farmers in the Black Hills of South Dakota averaged $9.58 per 100 pounds in 1977.

—Oregon produced 11,400 tons of filberts in 1977, a cracking good crop compared to 1976, when only 6,950 tons were produced.

Those who want to order the new statistical yearbook can send $6 to: Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The department advises to please include your zip code with your address and money.

Corn borer quarantine due to be enforced

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) will begin enforcing a quarantine of 15 Panhandle counties infested by the European corn borer Jan. 3. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said shippers will be required to screen or fumigate grain before it leaves the quarantined area. A corn borer-free certificate supplied by TDA must accompany shipments of grain from infested to free areas.

"Our role is to make an inspection of grain shipments coming from the quarantined area to make sure they comply with regulation," said Brown. "Grain that does not comply may be returned to the shipper or treated at the shipper's expense."

The European corn borer is a pest that infests corn and grain sorghum. It was found this summer in Texas for the first time since the mid-1960's in Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Hutchinson, Roberts, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Deaf Smith, Randall and Moore counties. The pest is in 39 states to the north and east of Texas, which are also under quarantine.

Final notice of the quarantine appeared in the Dec. 22 issue of the Texas Register.

For more information or a copy of the quarantine, persons may write Commissioner Reagan V. Brown, Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12847, Austin, Tx. 78711, or contact their nearest TDA district office.

Union seeking early response

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Farmers Union says a new reporting system being put together by the Agriculture Department requiring that foreigners disclose U.S. land holdings should be open to the public immediately.

The law requires USDA to issue the land-reporting regulations by Jan. 12 and that the first reports of new acquisitions by foreigners "presumably will be received by April 12 with public inspection permitted beginning April 22," the NFU says in its current newsletter.

"There must not be any delay, any screening, any editing, or any cover-up," the NFU said. "The law intends that the people and the appropriate state agencies see these disclosure reports in their original form."

Damage worse than expected

MALLEN, Texas (AP) — The Rio Grande Valley harvest of citrus fruit for juice is proceeding at an accelerated pace because of an early December cold snap, a report states.

Officials at Texas Citrus Mutual said the Dec. 9 and 10 freeze did more damage than first estimates indicated, and fruit on some orange and grapefruit trees is already dropping from branches.

Leaf damage on mature trees was up to 30 percent, their report said.

TCM also reports that the full extent of the leaf and fruit damage cannot be accurately evaluated for several weeks.

Estimate is due on blueberries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will publish an estimate of U.S. blueberry production for the first time next month.

The report will be issued Jan. 15 and will include 1978 output in Maine, Michigan, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon and Washington, which account for about 95 percent of the U.S. commercial blueberry crop.

Boozer has own diary

Cheer today, groan tomorrow.

If the approach of New Year's Eve brings thoughts of mingled merriment and morning-after misery and you may want to pause to ponder a few timely tips.

"The Boozer's Diary," a tongue-in-cheek calendar distributed at holiday time to customers in some British pubs, lists 101 ways to describe the state of intoxication.

Among them: banjaxed, besotted, bibulous, blotto and brained. Canned, caroused, corked, crashed and creased. Drenched and drunk. Electrocuted, elephants and elevated. Foxed, flushed and fuddled. Gassed and glass-eyed. Half-seas over and hit-and-missed. Incapable and in your cups. Jugged and juiced. Legless and lit-up. Maudlin, merry, mesmerized and miffy. Newted, obfuscated and one-over-the-eight. Pickled, pie-eyed and primed.

The diary mixes some sober facts with its humor. Drinking on an empty stomach leads to rapid intoxication. "Tuck in a good meal first to give a comfortable lining to your stomach," the authors advise. "Remember, warm drinks take effect more quickly than cold ones and drinks with soda or tonic hit you faster because of the carbon dioxide gas content. Drinks containing up to 20 percent alcohol, like wines and strong beers, are absorbed and take effect more rapidly than those of higher alcohol content which cause stomach irritation and delay absorption."

Amid warnings on the dangers of driving after you have been drinking, the diary suggests testing your sobriety. "The balancing trick. With your hands by your sides, stand on one foot by raising your knee to high level. Thirty seconds? Not bad. Now do it again with your eyes closed. Three seconds? Call a cab."

Hangovers, according to the diary, are caused not by the alcohol itself but by non-alcoholic ingredients called congeners which provide the distinctive flavor and aroma of different drinks.

Bruins rally to tie Razorbacks

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — In his efforts to be benevolent, Santa Claus can sometimes outdo himself. Just ask the University of Arkansas.

Santa should know that it's a no-no to hand out like gifts to opposing football teams.

Leading underdog UCLA 10-0 at halftime in Fiesta Bowl VIII on Christmas Day, the eighth-ranked Razorbacks had to settle at game's end for a 10-10 deadlock with the 15th-ranked Bruins.

"We were ready and played hard," said Holtz. "UCLA played very well. It's a shame there was no winner."

Both Holtz and Terry Donahue, the Bruins coach, expressed wishes for a sudden death playoff in bowl games.

The Bruins were able to gain a tie when backup quarterback Steve Bukich, a surprise starter, scampered for a 15-yard touchdown with 8:32 left in the game. UCLA's Pete Boormeester booted the extra point that knotted the game.

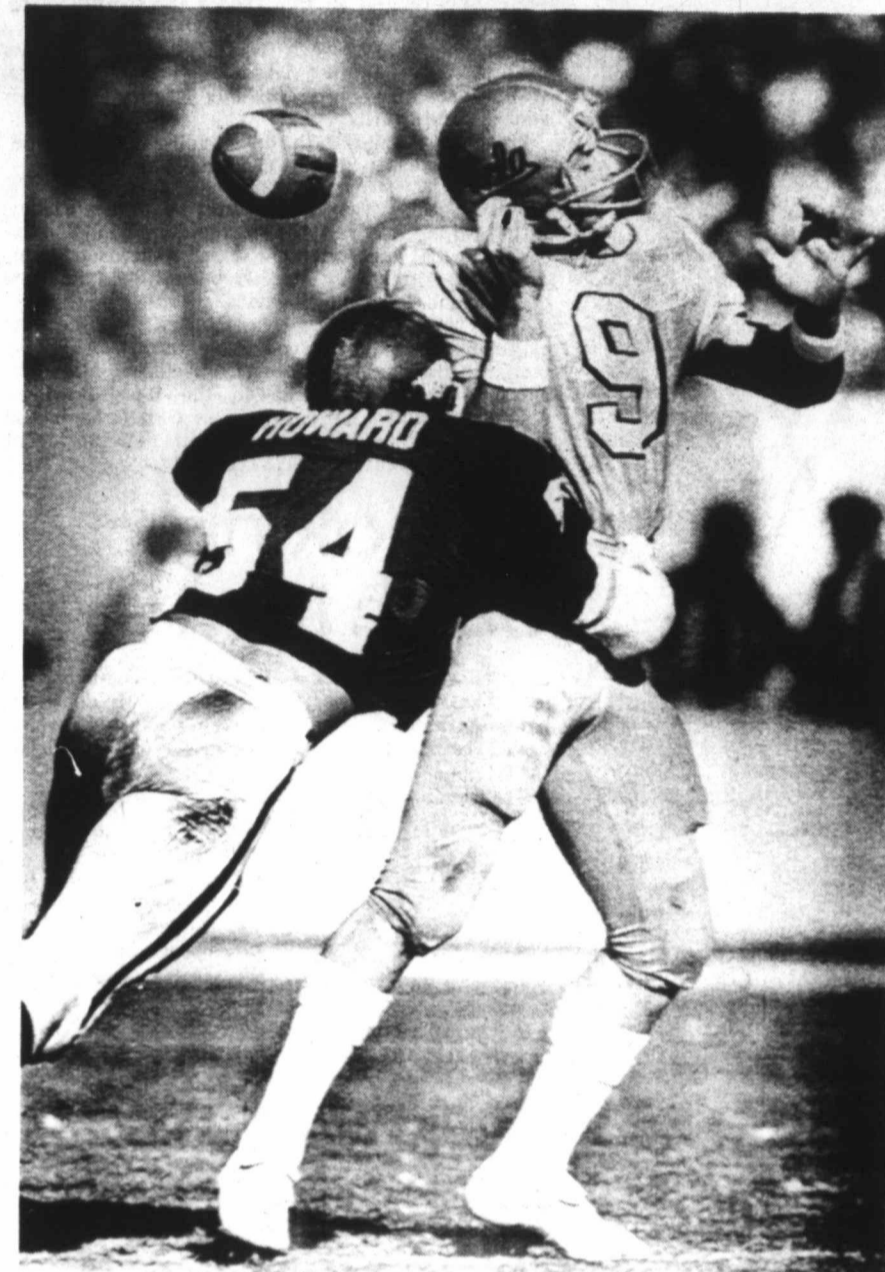

Asked why he didn't attempt a two-point conversion, Donahue explained that he thought there was still adequate time to score again.

"I felt we would get the ball three more times, and kick a game-winning field goal," said Donahue. "The percentages of getting two points are bad."

The Bruins did get the ball exactly three more times, but were unable to get on the scoreboard again.

Meanwhile, Holtz felt if he would have had "five more seconds in the game, we would have won."

With 10 seconds left on the clock, UCLA punted.

CHOP SOOEY — Jim Howard (54) of the Arkansas Razorbacks hits UCLA quarterback Steve Bukich (9) from his blind side, causing him to fumble in the first quarter of the Fiesta Bowl Monday in Tempe, Arkansas and UCLA battled in the first quarter of the Fiesta Bowl Monday in Tempe. Arkansas and UCLA battled to a 10-10 tie in the eighth Fiesta Bowl.

had to make a split decision on whether to get out of bounds or try to return it and I made the decision to go out of bounds. Since the clock ran out, it didn't work."

The nationally televised game, played before a crowd of 55,227 at Sun Devil Stadium, was the first meeting ever between the Pacific-10 Bruins and the Southwest Conference Razorbacks. Arkansas, which accumulated 278 yards total offense, ended the season with a 9-2-1 record while UCLA, which gained 316 yards total offense, finished up at 8-3-1.

After a scoreless opening quarter, Arkansas running back Roland Sales took a pitch out around right end and ran 4 yards for a touchdown with 11:28 remaining in the second quarter. A 37-yard field goal by Ismael Ordonez with 2:22 left before halftime completed the Razorbacks scoring.

UCLA came back with a 41-yard field goal with 7:19 left in the third quarter by Boormeester, who had missed on a 25-yard attempt late in the first quarter.

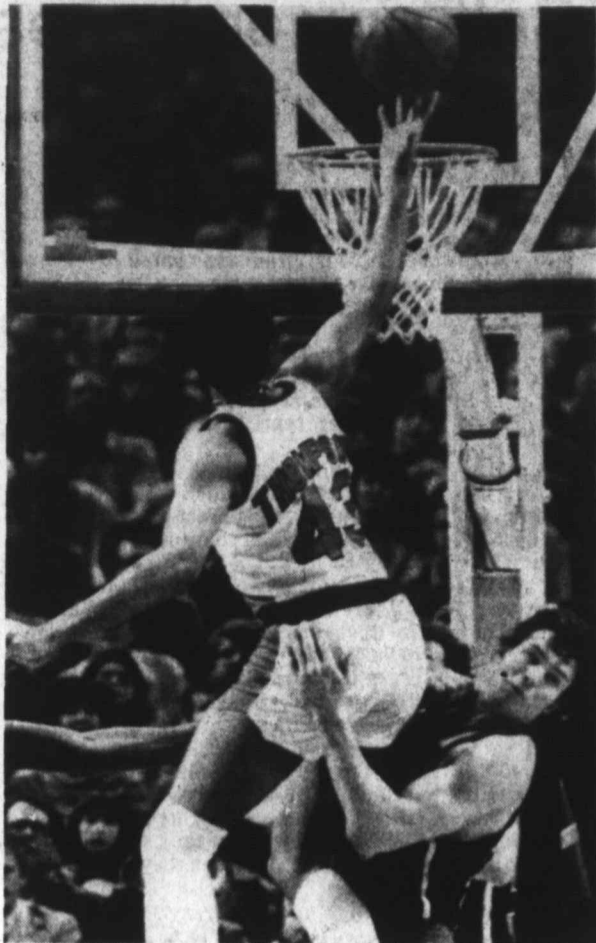

Bukich, who had completed only one of three regular-season passes for minus 2 yards, set up the TD he scored with a 36-yard pass to Severn Reece. The senior went all way at quarterback while junior Rick Bashore, a two-year starter, watched from the sidelines.

Asked why he started Bukich, Donahue replied only that he made the decision a week ago.

NBA Roundup

Bobby Jones has added another dimension to the Philadelphia 76ers, a team that always had the offensive firepower but occasionally approached defense as an afterthought.

"We've got some defensiveminded people now," says guard Doug Collins of the 76ers. "We're playing both ends of the court. It makes a difference."

Jones, who came to Philadelphia in the big off-season trade that sent George McGinnis to Denver, harassed New York's Bob McAdoo into 5-for-14 shooting as the 76ers trounced the New York Knicks 109-94 Monday before a capacity crowd of 19,571 at Madison Square Garden and a national television audience.

Jones' aggressive defense has rubbed off on his new teammates. The swarming Sixers limited New York to 30 percent shooting in the first half on 13-for-43 as they established a 45-32 lead and New York never recovered. Philadelphia led by as many as 23 points in the third period and the Knicks came no closer than 10 after that.

"We know we can win," said forward Julius Erving, Philadelphia's offensive leader with 22 points including dazzling dunks to open each half. "Our defense is much more effective. Last year we were more explosive offensively, but this year we are more solid all-around."

And the reason is Jones, a member of the NBA's all-defensive team who also excels at passing and moving without the ball. While McGinnis is averaging 22.2 points and 11 rebounds for Denver, Jones' contributions have been vital to Philadelphia's success.

"It's a trade that has worked well for both teams," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "Denver seems pleased with George, and we're certainly happy to have Bobby. He's fit in beautifully. We're a whole new club this season."

Clippers 123, SuperSonics 118
San Diego's Randy Smith scored 12 of his game-high 29 points in the fourth quarter as the Clippers sent injury-riddled Seattle to its sixth straight loss, trimming Seattle's Pacific Division lead to just seven percentage points over Los Angeles and Phoenix.

Blazers 115, Warriors 102
Portland won its fifth in a row, tying its longest winning streak of the season, as rookie guard Ron Brewer scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half. Lionel Hollins led Portland with 27 points while Golden State guard Phil Smith took game honors with 28.

UH Cougars defeat Alaska-Anchorage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Victor Ewing scored 27 points and Kenneth Williams added 21 to lead Houston past Alaska-Anchorage 94-81 in the second game in three days between the two college basketball teams.

Houston won the first game last Saturday 100-85 when Ewing hit 24 points. Houston Coach Gary Bliss was ejected from Monday's contest after picking up three technical fouls with 2:51 remaining in the game. His ejection came following a debate with referees over a foul call.

Alaska-Anchorage led by up to 10 points in the first period but trailed 42-35 at the half. For the game, Houston was 26 of 32 from the free throw line, while Alaska-Anchorage sank only 3 of 12.

The Oilers had won their first playoff game since 1961 with a 17-9 triumph over the Miami Dolphins Sunday night to send them to the American Football Conference semifinal playoffs against New England next Sunday.

The Miami Dolphins, meanwhile, were out of the Super Bowl picture again.

Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini picked apart the Dolphin defense for 20 completions in 29 attempts and 306 yards.

"Maybe we worried too much about (Earl) Campbell and not enough about stopping the pass," said Miami linebacker Kim Bokamper.

Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher, ran the ball only 16 yards in the first half. He ended up with 84 yards and the game-winning touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

Pastorini — suffering from cracked ribs, sore elbow and bruised knee — wore a flak jacket that he said is a Houston resident named "Byron" demonstrated to him in the hospital last week.

"There was never any doubt in my mind that I'd play," said Pastorini. The flak jacket, similar to a bullet-proof vest, was the idea of a friend, who demonstrated its effectiveness by putting it on and then absorbing several body blows with a baseball bat.

NFL playoffs create rematches

Rematches form the centerpiece of the conference semifinal stage.

On Saturday, Pittsburgh hosts Denver in an American Conference game exactly two weeks after stopping the Broncos at the 1-yard line on the final play of the game for a 21-17 victory. On Sunday, Houston's wild-card Oilers travel to New England to take on the Patriots. Earlier this season, Houston topped the Patriots 26-23.

In the National Conference, the wild-card Atlanta Falcons play the defending champion Dallas Cowboys on Saturday while Minnesota is at Los Angeles on Sunday. The Falcons have not played Dallas this season but Minnesota dropped a 34-17 decision to the Rams.

The LA-Minnesota pairing marks the fifth time these two teams have collided in the playoffs. The Vikings have won the first four contests, the most recent one 14-7 a year ago in a California rainstorm.

The NFL playoffs began on Saturday when Houston and Atlanta advanced in wild-card games. The Oilers stung Miami 17-9 while the Falcons rallied for two touchdowns in the final five minutes to defeat Philadelphia 14-13.

Oilers quarterback Dan Pastorini, wearing a flak jacket to protect sore ribs and a brace on his knee, completed 20 of 29 passes for 306 yards in Houston's victory over Miami. Running backs Tim Wilson and Earl Campbell, both also nursing banged-up ribs, combined for 160 yards and scored one touchdown each. Toni Fritsch kicked a 35-yard field goal that snapped a 7-7 tie in the fourth quarter.

The Eagles led Atlanta 13-0 with five minutes to play when Steve Bartkowski manufactured another hairbreadth finish for the Falcons.

ICING ON THE CAKE — Houston Oiler running back Earl Campbell dives across the goal line with 1:56 remaining in the Houston-Miami game to give the Oilers an insurance touchdown in their 17-9 victory in the wild card playoff.

Purdue explodes by Georgia Tech

By the Associated Press

Perennial Big Ten Conference powerhouses like Ohio State and Michigan may have to move over and make some room for Purdue next year.

The Boilermakers gave notice to the rest of the conference Monday, romping to a 41-21 Peach Bowl victory over Georgia Tech at Atlanta with sophomore Mark Herrmann throwing two touchdown passes and scoring a third TD himself.

In Monday's other game, UCLA played a 10-10 tie against Arkansas in the Fiesta Bowl at Tempe, Ariz.

In Saturday's games, Texas mauled Maryland 42-0 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas; Missouri downed Louisiana State 20-15 in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, and North Carolina State defeated Pittsburgh 30-17 at the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla.

"I can't wait to get started on next year," said Herrmann. "We've got a lot of young guys coming back. Purdue is going to be a national power."

Herrmann hit Raymond Smith for a 10-yard TD, found Bart Burrell for a 12-yarder and scored on a 2-yard run himself for the first TD of his career as Purdue wore down Tech, which played without its leading rusher, injured Eddie Lee Ivery. Freshman Wally Jones also scored a pair of TDs for Purdue on runs of 3 and 8 yards.

The Boilermakers, 17th ranked going into the game, finished the season at 9-2-1. Tech ended at 7-5.

The two Christmas Day games set the stage for a busy college bowl week. The action continues Friday with the Blue-Gray game at Montgomery, Ala., and the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., with Clemson facing Ohio State. On Sunday, the Bluebonnet Bowl matches Stanford and Georgia at Houston.

Then, next Monday, on New Year's Day, the four glamour bowls will be played. Penn State and Alabama tangle in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans; Michigan plays Southern California in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.; Nebraska faces Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl at Miami, and Notre Dame meets Houston in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

BOILING OVER—Purdue Boilermaker's Wally Jones turns backwards over the goal line for a touchdown over the shoulder of Georgia Tech's Henry Johnson in the Peach Bowl played Monday in Atlanta. Purdue defeated Tech, 42-21.

Celt owner hopes for resurgence

By the Associated Press

Six months ago, John Y. Brown was lugging a briefcase around Coronado, Calif., site of last summer's National Basketball Association Board of Governors meeting. The briefcase contained folders bearing names like Minneapolis, Dallas, Miami, Louisville, Birmingham and assorted other dots on the map.

Brown was looking for a place to relocate his Buffalo Braves. He had purchased the NBA club a year earlier, but had little interest in keeping it by the shores of Lake Erie. Each folder represented a possible new home for the Braves.

But Brown wasn't really happy with any of them. Now he's co-owner and chairman of the board of the Boston Celtics, perhaps the most prestigious franchise in the NBA, even if the team has come upon hard times lately.

"Anyone would have to be happy to own a franchise like the Celtics," Brown said in an interview at the club's offices in Boston Garden. "They're the New York Yankees of basketball."

Brown, who previously owned the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association, then took the Yankees analogy a step further.

"I've got a certain amount of responsibility to uphold," he said. "It's a piece of Americana that you want to try to rebuild, just like George Steinbrenner when he took Over the Yankees. It's the same kind of challenge here. I like the idea that they were down. I would hate to have come in here when they were riding high."

Lake Spence report

Blustery weather cut down on fishing, but those venturing out at Lake E.V. Spence had good luck with striped bass. The largest catch of the week was a 12 1/2-pounder.

Some of the reports included: Hillside Grocery — Lois and Bill Schwager, six striped bass to 4 lbs., six white bass and a 2-lb. black bass; Y.J. Sherrell and Lt. Col. Mike Sherrell, Robert Lee, three strippers to 9 1/2 lbs.

Paint Creek Marina — Bill Flippin and Everett Hodge, Denver City, three strippers to 5 lbs.; Margaret O'Rand, Odessa, 8-lb. striper; Roy Rowe and Party, Lubbock, 10 strippers to 12 1/2 lbs.; Ed Henry and Family, Hamlin, 12 strippers to 7 1/4 lbs.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 23 — DRIVE FOR THE GOAL — Houston Stratford running back Craig James (32) drives through the line for a touchdown in the first quarter of the state Class AAAA state championship game versus Plano Saturday. James, the leading single season rusher in the history of Texas high school football, led Stratford to a 29-13 win.

UT looking tough for 1979

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Texas Longhorns warmed up for their 1979 season a year early, romping to a 42-0 Sun Bowl victory over Maryland.

Next fall, 19 of the 22 players who started for Texas in Saturday's rout will be wearing Longhorn colors again.

"I don't know how good we'll be next year, but if people want to talk about how good we'll be, that's fine," said Coach Fred Akers. "I had just as soon listen a while and enjoy it."

Steers visit Ector

ODESSA — The Big Spring Steers travel to Odessa tonight to battle the Ector Eagles in the final non-district game of the year for the Bovines. Big Spring will begin District 5-AAAA action Friday night when they host the Abilene Eagles.

Big Spring and Ector have met once before this year, with the Steers escaping with a 51-47 victory. The Steers sport a record of 5-10.

Steer Coach Tommy Collins will start a lineup consisting of guards Ysa Rubio and James Magers, forwards Wilbert Grant and Cesar Espinoza, and center Mark Poss.

Cunningham to be honored by Madison Square Garden

By the Associated Press

He came out of the plains of Kansas, a most unlikely candidate for track and field fame after his legs were burned so badly in a childhood accident that doctors considered amputation.

But Glenn Cunningham never thought for a moment that his scarred legs were a handicap and he proved it, becoming the most dominant middle distance runner of his era. And now, as if to certify that fact officially, Cunningham has been named the outstanding track performer in the 100-year history of Madison Square Garden.

"It's fantastic," said Cunningham, who now operates a home for troubled youngsters on his ranch in Conway, Ark. "It makes you feel humble."

Cunningham will return to the Garden Jan. 20 to be honored at the U.S. Olympic Invitational, opening meet of the indoor track season in New York. The competition, sponsored by Vitalis, will be televised by NBC and will mark Cunningham's first appearance in many years at the arena where he once dominated.

During the Depression years, from 1933-1940, Cunningham raced over the Garden track 31 times and finished first 21 times. Why was he so good? Ask him to explain his success and a smile creases his leathery face.

Of course he couldn't do it. Any doctor who examined his legs following the schoolhouse fire that took the life of his brother, could have said that. There was no chance that young Glenn Cunningham ever would walk again much less run, they said. "When they told me that, I said 'I will so walk. I know I'll walk and I'll run, too.'"

Of all the races he ran in the Garden, the one Cunningham remembers best was the "Typographical Error Mile," in the 1936 Knights of Columbus Games. It got that name because those who read the time thought it was a misprint.

Frank Brennan, the meet director, had set it up as a three-man match race among Cunningham and two of his top rivals, Joe Mangan and Gene Venzke.

The race was promoted as a speed duel with a world record likely. But Cunningham was favoring a bad ankle and preferred a slower pace. So he used a little psychological warfare.

"I drew the outside lane and I deliberately jumped the starter's gun," he said. "I wanted Mangan and Venzke to think I was anxious and that I would be running hard from the start."

On the second start, the other runners jumped off fast. Cunningham was content to stay behind, from where Mangan usually launched his drive. "Mangan motioned to me to come up with him, but I didn't," said Cunningham. "Venzke didn't want the lead either."

So the three reluctant runners jogged their way around the track and Cunningham came on in the final two laps to win in 4:46.8.

"The crowd went crazy," he said with a laugh. "Everyone thought there would be a world record and they got it — for the slowest mile, not the fastest."

Live mike backfires at Fiesta Bowl

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The innovative broadcasting technique of placing a microphone at the sidelines during a football game backfired at the Fiesta Bowl game between UCLA and Arkansas Monday.

Broadcaster Mike Hafner was on the UCLA sideline and approached Coach Terry Donahue immediately after an apparent interception by the Bruins. Hafner first set the stage, saying he would try to listen in as the Bruins' coach, who was talking with a player, sent in a play.

As Hafner pointed his microphone toward Donahue, the officials nullified the interception because of a UCLA penalty. At that moment with Hafner's microphone pointed at him, Donahue uttered a two-word expletive. Hafner quickly withdrew his microphone and NBC's coverage returned to the game action.

Donahue and Hafner were roommates at UCLA. Ex-pro star John Brodie, who was part of NBC's broadcast booth crew, then said, "That first play sounds like a lulu."

APPRECIATIVE FANS — Atlanta Falcon fans surround Falcon quarterback Steve Bartkowski with congratulations on Sunday during the NFC Wildcard Playoff game. Falcon fans stormed the field after the Philadelphia Eagles place kicker Mike Michel missed a field goal with 17 seconds remaining. Play resumed after the field was cleared. The Falcons won 14-13.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, DEC. 27, 1978

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You get new ideas that can be helpful to you so forget the past and get busy working on them. Put away drab tasks and concentrate on the new, progressive.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are able to use more modern methods in your work so that you can advance more quickly. Put aside expensive pleasure that is not even worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find new partners with whom you can relate well in the days ahead. Make your new projects more constructive. Avoid an old partner who is difficult to handle.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you open your mind to current ideas, you can become more enthusiastic about your work, advance quickly. Forget old systems that are slow and nonproductive.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can enjoy pleasures you like provided you think along more modern lines. Forget that tiresome old activity and replace it with something new, revitalizing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Find a better way of pleasing those who dwell with you and be more aware of their wishes. Get rid of whatever is outdated at home and replace with the new.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get the added data you need so that your life runs more smoothly. Be willing to replace the obsolete with something far better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Improve your budget so that you can live with less worry and cut down on expenses. Find better ways of adding to your income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Elevate your consciousness to the highest you can envision and make your life far better in the future. Don't hang on to personal relationships that have become jaded.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study your existence from every angle and know how to improve your lot in life. Being more affectionate with loved one brings good results. Control your temper and avoid trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You like group affairs and now you can add to your roster of friends by attending them. First make sure business affairs are in order.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into community work that can bring you greater benefits in the near future. Find a more up-to-date way of handling career affairs.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have much ability at working with modern inventions, current trends and improving on them. Make sure the diet is good and sports are entered into that will build up the body. A naturally religious person in this chart, one who appreciates the artistic and the beautiful.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

In Oregon courtroom

Old notion challenged

SALEM, Ore. (AP) - A notion as old as the Bible is being challenged in an Oregon courtroom where a husband is on trial charged with raping his wife.
For generations marriage has been viewed as consent to sex between the spouses and marital privilege was a defense against rape.
In 1977 Oregon legislators passed a law removing marriage or voluntary cohabitation as a defense against rape. Supporters of the bill called it "simple justice."
"We were saying the marriage contract does not demand you to submit just because you are married," says state Sen. Edward Fadelley of Eugene. "The guarantee of sexual access in both directions - to men and women - is written in the Old Testament. And this law does indeed change that."
It is unlikely that when Oregon lawmakers deleted the phrase "not married to" from the state rape statutes they anticipated the national attention generated by the trial of John Rideout.
Rideout, 21, went on trial in Marion County Circuit Court last Tuesday on a felony charge of raping his wife, Greta, 23. She claims he beat her and forced her to have sex last Oct. 10 while they were living together in a Salem apartment.
The trial, which resumes today, is believed to be the first criminal prosecution of a husband charged with raping his wife while they lived together.
Delaware and Iowa allow prosecution of husband-wife rape cases and a spousal rape law takes effect Jan. 1 in New Jersey, but it is not believed any cases have been tried under those laws.
Rideout's attorneys have maintained that marital privilege is a defense against rape under common law despite the 1977 legislation and they have challenged the constitutionality of the law.
They filed a pretrial objection, overruled by the judge, claiming that Oregon's rape law is unconstitutional because it violates a married couple's right to privacy. In addition, the defense says the law violates equal protection because it applies only to one sex.
Before the Oregon law took effect on Oct. 4, 1977, a man couldn't be prosecuted in the state for raping a woman to whom he was married unless they were legally separated. A man also couldn't be prosecuted for rape if the couple was unmarried and living together.
"It's almost just a simple justice type thing," says state Rep. Gretchen Kafoury of Portland, co-sponsor of the law. "I think the bill passed as easily as it did because legislators knew a married woman didn't have as much recourse to physical assault by her husband as a woman assaulted on the street."
She said a 1975 attempt to get the law on marital rape changed fizzled before the bill even got to the floor. She said women's rights groups decided to approach the 1977 Legislature more cautiously by introducing a bill to allow rape prosecutions when married couples were living apart or unmarried couples were living together.
However, the Senate Judiciary Committee decided to go a step further by amending the bill to allow rape prosecutions regardless of marital status.
"it seems to me that if it is wrong to rape your spouse, a spouse you are living separate from, it is equally wrong to rape a spouse you are living with," state Sen. Stephen Kafoury - ex-husband of Rep. Kafoury - said during hearings on the bill.
Several of the bill's original sponsors voted against it because of the change.
"When they did that, it allowed a husband to be charged with raping his wife while they lived together and I opposed the bill," says Sen. Vern Cook of Gresham, a sponsor who changed his stance.
"We don't need another law to make assault and battery a crime. They're confusing assault and battery with rape," says Cook.
The new law was part of a women's rights package that included a program for victims of wife-beating. The rape bill passed the state Senate 24-4 and the House, 40-16.
Cook, a legislator for 20 years, says, "I believe there is a U.S. Supreme Court case, involving sodomy, where what one does in one's bedroom is privileged."
Fadelley says, "Marriage is something the government has always been involved in. My concern is that it will be used as a blackmail tool in a situation where a husband and wife were fighting with each other."
Testimony presented during the Legislature's consideration of the rape bill claimed that battered women rarely file or pursue criminal charges against their husbands. The Women's Rights Coalition argued that the same would probably be true in rape cases.
"Because a few vindictive women may file false charges is not an adequate reason for denying other women their right," the women's group testified.
Rep. Kafoury says district attorneys had warned the lawmakers that it would be difficult to prosecute a husband-wife rape case and she personally was surprised by the Rideout trial.
"I thought it would be a long time before people would be willing to do it," she says. "I thought someone might consult an attorney, but would decide it's not worth the trauma and risk."

Derailment wreckage bad

BENTON, Ark. (AP) - It will take a repair crew two to three days to clear 51 derailed freight cars from the approach to a bridge over the Saline River near here, J.C. McCormack, a supervisor for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., said Monday.
Residents of an area within a one-mile radius of the derailment were evacuated when fire broke out after the cars piled up Monday afternoon, trooper Richard Loyd of the Arkansas State Police said.
No injuries were reported.
The residents were allowed to return to their homes about two hours later when the fire was brought under control, Loyd said.
About half of the 132 cars in the train were carrying freight, he said, and one car was carrying a highly flammable liquid.
The tanker was carrying crotonaldehyde, Claudia McKim, a communications operator for the state Office of Emergency Services, said. The chemical could irritate the skin or contaminate water, she said.
Four of the derailed cars fell into the river while others piled up on the bank around the elevated bridge approach.
The tanker containing crotonaldehyde "burned up," McCormack said, and was the only car carrying a hazardous chemical.
An investigative team probed the wreckage near late Monday in an effort to determine the cause of the derailment, he said.
The bridge is on the railroad's main line between Little Rock and Texarkana. MoPac planned to use alternate routes until the damage to the bridge approach was repaired, McCormack said.
About 30 homes in the area were involved in the evacuation, authorities said.

Death took no Yule holiday

By the Associated Press
Concerned Texas law enforcement officials braced for more fatalities during the upcoming New Year's weekend after the Christmas weekend death toll by far surpassed projections.
The Department of Public Safety reported the holiday traffic death toll had risen to 54 by Monday evening.
Spokesman Jim Robinson said several more deaths would probably be reported before the 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday holiday weekend ended.
The pre-holiday prediction for traffic deaths had been 44.
The DPS estimated 35 more will die on Texas highways next weekend.
"The Christmas deaths are following the trend established July 4 and Labor Day when they ran 40 to 45 percent higher than the same holidays in 1977," said DPS Director Wilson E. Speir.
"Our final death count for Christmas 1977 was 34. We're already 44 percent over last year," he said when the 1978 count was still at 49.
The worst accident during the holiday period was among the last, a crash late Monday afternoon about 15 miles east of Waco that killed at least three youngsters and one adult.
Two others in the car remained unaccounted for after the plunge off U.S. Highway 84 into a stock tank.
Robinson said workers at dawn would begin dragging the 12-to-18 feet deep waters of the tank in search of the

Trains collide, toll hits 100

TOKYO (AP) - Two trains collided in Communist China, killing about 100 passengers and injuring 200 others, Japan's Kyodo news service reported from Peking today.
Kyodo quoted informed sources as saying the accident occurred Monday in Chengchow, about 400 miles southwest of Peking, and that one of the engineers was asleep at the switch.
Kyodo said it asked the Chinese Foreign Ministry about the accident, but the ministry did not confirm it.
No other details were immediately available.

Airline must continue to serve three cities

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) - Carlsbad Mayor Walter Gerrells praised a ruling by the Civil Aeronautics Board that Texas International Airlines has to continue to serve southern three New Mexico cities until a replacement is found.
The CAB ruled last week TIA could discontinue service to Carlsbad, Clovis and Hobbs Feb. 1 with the stipulation an adequate replacement must be found.
The airline requested it be allowed to halt the service.
Gerrells called the CAB decision "good news."
The decision by the board means TIA "must upgrade its service or allow a replacement to furnish minimum flights," the mayor said.
Gerrells said Carlsbad officials back the application of Air Midwest to be certified as the carrier for the three cities.
"it appears to me that the CAB, which heavily subsidizes TIA's flights to these three cities, are will to agree to let Air Midwest come here without subsidy."

Hustle 3 Editorial license

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

Let me take editorial license with some seasonal and traditional phrases, titles and quotes.

"Tis the Season" — Yes it is the time of the year to express a humble gratefulness for the material blessings that we enjoy and which we take for granted every day. It is also the season to "Put on a Happy Face" — ever notice that when we smile at someone, we generally get that person to put aside the mask they usually wear and smile back and we both feel better because of the exchange.

That Happy Face can become a way of life if we let it. A smile, coming from the heart can actually change the way we look at things and certainly will change the way we appear to others. "Put on a Happy Face".

"Seasons Greetings" — I guess this is just a summation of Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, Holiday Happiness, Peace and Joy, Best Wishes for the Holidays and whatever else we can read into it. But, there is a special warmth and feeling that goes with these traditional expressions of love and home and mutual concern for another. The spirit of the holiday season should spill over into January and carry on into February and continue through all the days of each month, until we come around again to the "Season" that we are now observing. I'm sure that was intended of the original event we celebrate at this time of year. I know I am going to try harder to keep that spirit stronger and longer. Let's all try!

SHOP THE BIG SPRING AREA FIRST
This Big Spring Area can really be proud of the Holiday look that is so evident in shops and stores, on streets and residential areas — of course, I am speaking of the beautiful Christmas lights that are displayed all over the area. I do hope you and your visitors will get out to see them. I wouldn't try to pinpoint any particular area, but you'll want to be sure to make the effort to see the lights. Congratulations to all of you who have helped to decorate our Big Spring Area.

SHOP THE BIG SPRING AREA FIRST
And now, just a personal note from all of us here at the Chamber office — We have worked for you this past year and we are proud and happy to see all the good things that have happened in our Community. Thank you for your support and for your participation.

Merry Christmas and Best Wishes as we all continue to HUSTLE!!! HUSTLE!!! HUSTLE!!!

Tiger shot after break

MINOT, N.D. (AP) — A female Bengal tiger, pursued three blocks by its owner after it escaped from its cage, was shot and killed by police when it fled to an area where children were ice skating.

Police closed in and were awaiting a tranquilizer gun when they became fearful and killed the animal with two 12-gauge shotguns and a .30-caliber rifle, said Minot Park superintendent Mike Nilson.

"They (police) used them all (the weapons)," said Nilson. "I think they may have got a little excited."

Nilson praised the tiger's keeper, Dan White, who pursued the 4-to 5-year-old female for three blocks alone.

"If he (White) hadn't made an attempt to stay right with it, there may have been an accident with one of the kids," said Nilson.

Nilson said the tiger was killed about 20 minutes after it escaped during feeding and cage cleaning Monday afternoon. He said White had let the tiger into an adjoining pen which had an open door.

Instincts kept family safe

LITTLE COMPTON, R.I. (AP) — Joseph Bouchard never touched the brown bottle labeled "glycerine" that sat on a cellar shelf from the time he and his wife moved into the house 16 years ago.

And that was good. Bouchard, a volunteer fireman, recently mentioned the bottle to friends at the firehouse and one asked if he ever thought it might be nitroglycerine.

He hadn't thought of it, he said, but it was worth considering.

The advice from the state fire marshal's office was, "Don't touch it."

Last Monday, two deputies from the fire marshal's bomb squad carried the dusty bottle to a field near Bouchard's house. Deputy Marshal William McVey attached a blasting cap to the bottle and reeled off 180 feet of wire. When he pushed the detonator's plunger there was a deafening boom and a huge crater appeared where the bottle had been.

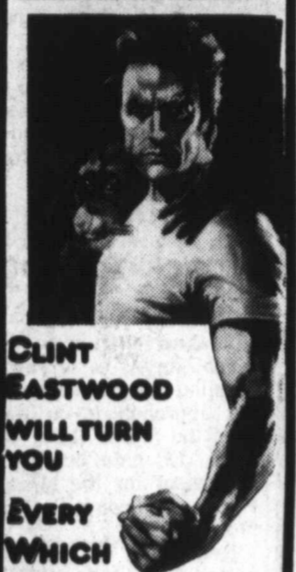

McVey said the 20 ounces of nitroglycerine was enough to blow the Bouchards' house off its foundation.
