

Ministers Plan Saturday Open Air Preaching

The Ministerial alliance of Floydada, composed of several of the pastors of the community, will conduct religious services each Saturday afternoon for the general public on the court house lawn, it was announced this week.

A co-operative undertaking, with the backing of all the pastors in the alliance, the Saturday afternoon services will be held beginning at 3 o'clock.

Decision to hold the Saturday service down-town was reached at the regular meeting of the Ministerial alliance Thursday night of last week. Rev. Eugene Wood, pastor of the Nazarene church, said Tuesday. "The pastors have felt the need for such a service for a long time and think that now is the time to begin," he said.

The sponsors aim to make group singing a special feature of the service each Saturday afternoon and they urge that everybody take part in the singing. Song sheets are being struck for the purpose. There is nothing that builds morale and brightens hope like singing together.

Preaching for the special Saturday service will be done by pastors in the alliance or by their invited guests, it was announced.

Saving waste fats and greases is more important than ever these days. Strained to remove solids, they are made into ammunition for America's soldiers. It's another way the 1943 Victory Home is waging its "win at home" campaign. Ask your Defense Council about a V-Home pledge and display its emblem proudly.

County's June Bond Quota Is $29,600

Floyd county's June War Bond quota is $29,600. It has been announced by Glad Snodgrass, county War Bond sales chairman, who urges that citizens permit no let-up in the purchase of government securities to support the men on the battlefronts.

"From all evidence the boys on the other side need it and it is our patriotic duty to loan this amount to our government this month," said the chairman. The amount this county is assigned is upward of $1,000 for each business day of the month. Banks and post offices maintain special clerical help assigned to handling war bond purchases to make subscriptions as easy as possible for the public.

Storage Situation Better But Cars For Grain May Be Short

As small grains rapidly ripen and producers and handlers make feverish preparation to harvest and market the crop, it appears probable the storage situation in terminal elevators may be better than at the opening of last year's harvest, but that the railroad car situation may not be so good.

This is the news elevator men are getting by grapevine and otherwise from down the line. Not as many cars suitable for hauling wheat are in the southwest now as last year and a higher per centage of them are in bad order. Cars are scattered in bad order. However, this does not mean the cars cannot be assembled and it is possible the situation may be relieved by the time the wheat actually starts moving in volume.

Cut Some Barley First

Local elevator men yesterday indicated belief that grain from some barley fields would move ahead of wheat. In fact when the ground is dry enough—today, tomorrow or Saturday—combines will move into a few barley fields. But no wheat cutting is in sight until next week. Many combines will be turned loose the week beginning June 21. Apparently the first wheat of any volume to note will come from the southeast part of the county. However, no particular portion of the county has a crop far advanced ahead of any other. Fair to excellent crops are noted in all areas, but no record breaking yields are foreseen. Raisers are finding some three-grain meshes.

The government's loan value on stored wheat, either at terminals or on the farm, had not been announced as late as yesterday afternoon. It is anticipated that most of the wheat will go into the loan, but until such time as the loan value on the crop is named this cannot be said definitely.

Cox Will Check City Light And Water Systems

As a precaution against the possibility of undetermined faults in the production and distribution systems of the municipal light and power plant and the water and sewer system, the city council Tuesday night in their regular session contracted for the engineering services of Carl C. Cox, of Amarillo, to check these utility adjuncts of the city and oversee any needed corrections.

Cox, who was the engineer of the light and distribution system construction here in 1939-1940, will be in the employ of the city for six months. Mayor W. U. White said, making periodical checks.

New Method To Speed Up Mail Delivery In Cities Announced

A new method for speeding up mail deliveries, especially in large cities, is being put into operation rapidly, according to information from the Post Office department. The statement reports that in many cities it has been received enthusiastically by postmasters, business concerns, press and the public.

The new plan is the addition of a number to each postal unit in cities. The number to be added to the address. While not in operation in Floydada, it will directly concern each citizen who will need to know the postal unit number of correspondents in order to address letters to cities properly.

Residents of small cities, towns

Floyd county farmers were given encouragement to plan for maximum production during 1943 when the $15 per acre penalty for failure to meet 90 percent of their war-crop goals was lifted this week. The removal of the penalty will enable farmers who have been hard hit with abnormal weather condition to revise their plans.

The change was brought about by the War Food Administration. The local AAA committee is well pleased with the announcement as the committee had worked on removal of penalties. Early in the year the committee made recommendations to the department that the penalty be removed, stating that if the Department would furnish labor and equipment that war production goals would be met in this county.

"Farmers will now be able to meet changing conditions and plant needed crops," stated Ray S. McEntire, Administrative Officer of Floyd County A.C.A. He further said, "The removal of the penalty of $15 per acre for failure to plant 90 percent of the war-crop goal will enable farmers, who have planted two and three times and yet have not obtained a crop, to summer-till the land in anticipation of an increased wheat acreage for 1944."

Barber Makes Feed Study At A. & M.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, June 7 (A&M)—H. G. Barber of Floydada is in A. & M. college this week making a special study of livestock feeding problems. Emphasis is being placed on problems arising out of the shortage of cottonseed meal. Methods of feeding peanut meal and soybean meal are receiving a great deal of attention since these feeds are possible substitutes for proteins formerly used by local farmers and ranchers.

The likely influences of high price feed on livestock production will also be considered. All types of feed including beef, hog, dairy and poultry are being studied.

Red Cross Work At Standstill This Week

Red Cross work was slowed down this mid-week when supplies that were shipped fifteen days ago, failed to arrive. Workers in charge are expecting the shipment daily. Mrs. S. W. Ross said yesterday and volunteers will be urgently needed to be in readiness to try and make up the time lost.

"A larger quota than the county has ever before been called on for, was given this time, with a deadline in August, and we'll need all the help possible to meet the required number," Mrs. Ross said. She urges volunteers to keep in touch with their instructors to know when to go back to work.

LOCAL GUNNERY GRADUATE RECEIVES SILVER WINGS

HARLINGEN ARMY AIR FIELD, Texas, June 3.—More qualified aerial gunners were graduated this week from the Harlingen Army Air Field, and in the large class was Jimmy W. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Green of Floydada.

He is one of the men who will handle the deadly machine guns aboard the Army's big bombers—a key job as the Air Forces continue to blast the enemy around the clock all over the world. For it's the aerial gunner—at his post in the tail or turret—who provides most of the protection while the rest of the crew performs its destructive duty.

At brief exercises here he received a diploma and silver gunner's wings. Completion of the course and another technical course, such as radio operation, automatically entitles him to sergeant's chevrons. Unless retained as an instructor then, he will be sent immediately to a combat team.

While at Harlingen he fired every type weapon from B-B guns to aerial machine guns. He was instructed in the remedying of malfunction of guns, aircraft identification and the trick of "leading targets." He climbed his course by firing on towed targets from Texon training planes and medium bombers.

RALPH GORDON MOVING

Rain, Hail, Wind Add Damage To Early Crops

Quite considerable re-planting is being or is to be done in Floyd county again this week, as the area from one end to the other suffered along with neighboring counties from rain, hail and wind storm damage Friday and Sunday afternoons of last week. So heavy was the rainfall in some sections that the ground will not be dry enough to work before the week-end. Apparently heaviest fall Friday was through the county east to west from a point north of South Plains to a point some four miles north of Floydada. South Floyd county had little moisture on that date, 15-hundredths of an inch reported at Floydada.

Sunday afternoon the downpour was not so heavy in north, east and northwest Floyd county but really gave the works to some portions of south county communities, notably Plows and planters were in the fields yesterday in an area extending northeastward from the neighborhood of Center through a portion of Fairview and Cedar. Plowing and planting also was reported underway on a few farms in the southwest portion of Allmon.

Starkey, Sand Hill, Blanco, Harmony and Allmon. At Starkey the estimate is probably three inches on soil already amply wet. Immediately west of Floydada a few miles torrents fell that added to the aggravation of already over-full lakes. At Floydada the fall was 1.4 inches Sunday.

Rains not nearly so heavy fell in Briscoe county to the north, but serious damage was done in the extreme east portion of the East Plains of Crosby county, also south and west of Ralls. Motley county for the most part had a deluge. Roaring Springs crops were whipped about and covered up to a considerable extent.

Cotton Acreage Lost

Discouraged with their efforts to get a stand of cotton and faced with chancy late plantings, reports this week point to the probability that considerable cotton acreage is to be planted in forage feeds.

Forecast of continued pretty weather for at least another 24 hours is the week's bright spot as to weather. Normal temperatures and sunshine have been the rule since Sunday.

Some Damage By Wind

There was some damage by wind in the Sunday afternoon storm. In two widely separated areas, small ones—southwest of McCoy in the southwest part of the county, and near Hillcrest in the east part of the county—damage to crops and improvements is noted. Outhouses, sheds, windmills were slithered round near the county line on four or five farms of the McCoy area and the wind-whipped rain damaged cotton and small feed already growing. Most material damage at Hillcrest was a 50-foot cowshed on the Ray Cook farm which was demolished. Slight damage was done to the barn to which the shed was attached.

Rain of torrential proportions with some hail in it did some damage in the area immediately west of Aiken toward Plainview and the same kind of a rain whipped across from Come to Ralls in Crosby county Sunday afternoon.

In some spots over the county (See RAIN, HAIL, back page)

A school of instruction was the highlight of the convention, Mrs. Smith said. Many necessary changes are being made to speed up deliveries to take care of the rapidly increasing volume of mail.

Federal Judge Atwell was one of the prominent speakers at a banquet that was held during the convention.

Five sisters and two brothers also surviving include Joe Cox of Lockney, Wes Cox of New Mexico, two sisters at Plainview, two in Oklahoma and one at El Paso.

EDITORIALS

From the length and breadth of the east wheat fields, no one portion appearing to have any more good ones than another and indicating that the crop this year will turn out more evenly than in many years. A few hail storms that streak across in jagged pattern keep the grower awake somewhat at night, and wipe out an occasional field. But all in all the prospect is good to excellent. Question mark in barley growers' minds is whether the thin stand in west weather will be taken by the weeds before a combine can get into the fields. Some barley fields have good stands, standing the severe cold of late February and early March as well as wheat. But for the most part the barley is thin and the otherwise record breaking yield will be cut down according to the amount of winter kill.

If you are bothered with weeds or tree sprouts that come up from the roots and have had no success exterminating them, the old "remedy" is to catch them in a dark moon in August and give them the works. One man we know had better than ever before success this way with a blue weed patch and another who tried it out on black locust sprouts says he got the job done completely and has not been bothered any more. Since August is often a month of the least exacting demand on the farm it won't hurt to try it out, even if you've been to college and found out all about these superstitions any myths that have come down to us and "don't mean nothing."

Speaking of obnoxious growths such as blue weeds and black locust sprouts reminds us that a few farm owners are not taking wild morning glories, tie vines, possession vines, or whatever you want to call them—not taking them seriously enough. You see them in occasional fields, in bar ditches and fence rows. Whatever it takes to dispossess them the man who owns the land better take the trouble to do. They do take possession and we don't mean maybe.

One of the least of the worries on an irrigated farm is the blue weed and the rag weed. There is something about turning them upside down with a moleboard and then watering the land that smother blue weeds down in not over two seasons. Perhaps the exposed or damaged tubers underneath the ground mold and die out with the added water. Whatever it is the irrigation farmer has the axe on the blue weed.

One of the pet peeves of the corporals and sergeants who carry on the school work in the army at camps scattered over the southwest, is the job they have of making young officer material and making soldiers out of them double quick and passing them on as ready for commissions; then taking on a new class and doing the same with them, over and over. One noncom who will be un-named so far as we are concerned, said he couldn't imagine where Uncle Sam would stack all the second lieutenants that are being turned out.

All hands must take the OPA regulations with as good grace as can and you'll find it a remarkable fact that if you take the apparently foolish orders the same way you take too much rain or too much dry or shortage of money, you will not be bothered nearly so much. One thing we hate to see is all the good soup bones go to waste. The regulations make it foolish for a meat man to save them. Instead he picks the very last piece of flesh from the long, good looking shank and throws the latter into the waste. Believe it or not he has already taken some loss and sees no way out but to take some more. Picking the bones is one of the ways he salvages as much as he can.

Remember back in 1934 when no one could foresee when jobs would be plentiful again, or when a man's produce would again be worth in dollars and cents what it cost to produce. Houses and lots and land and cattle and wheat went begging for buyers. In less than 10 years we see all of these at a premium. Who knows when the pendulum will swing again or how it will come about? Or who can guess which way the wind will blow and whether the clouds will pour out their blessings of rain for a scorched earth? All that has to happen right today in Floyd county to tough off hardtimes is for the farmers to have to go to buying feed instead of raising it. We insist this is not pessimism to talk this way, but realism instead.

SOMEWHERE A BOY HAS A RENDEZ-VOUS WITH DEATH

Somewhere a Canadian boy has a rendezvous with death tonight. Whether on a carrier's deck in the Pacific, amid the burning sands of North Africa, or in the tropical forests of New Guinea—whether swift and perilous, or terrible and slow his going—he is giving to his fellow men the greatest gift a man can give. The years un-lived—the warmth and the laughter and the tears, and—most precious gift of all—his sons that might have been. All these he is giving.

No effort of ours, now, can stay the speeding bullet that has his number on it. What to him, now, are the bonds we buy, or the guns we build? With nothing that is bought or sold, with nothing that is made of human hands, can we share his sacrifice.

What gift can we give to match his—what sacrifice can we make? The answer will come from that still small voice within our own hearts. For no one can tell us how many bonds to buy, how hard to work on the guns and planes and tanks we build, to keep his gallant effort from having been in vain. Yes, we must each decide the measure of our own obligation—the gasoline we do not use, the pints of blood we donate, the food we do without, and all the other appeals we answer—to make the precious gift he made worthwhile.

Not for the boy who is dying tonight, but because he is dying, we can make our sacrifices to the cause of freedom. — Reprinted from General Electric Monogram, internal company publication.

As A Farm Woman Thinks

By Nellie Wm Spikes

We did not milk last night (Sunday evening). Now that happens about as often as the wind does not blow in March. The cows stood wet and shivering in the pasture not even trying to come and we did not try any harder to get them in. Well, my story I will tell about the why not is forthcoming and like the Ancient Mariner I will hold you with my "glittering eye" while I tell it.

Coming in from a cut-short visit with the Walter Gillions, we outran a cloud that followed, blotting out the houses behind us and we watched with growing apprehension a cloud approaching from the northwest.

Just as we breathlessly ran into the house, the first cloud from the southwest reached with some hail and a few minutes later the one coming thundering and blowing from the direction of the Rockies met the one already here, and did it play havoc?

A small tornado struck just west of us, too very close for comfort and the wind took hold of the trees, and even the tough ash that withstood all the weight of ice last winter, twisted and writhed as wild waters in a river gone mad. Limbs twisted off, a big limb crashed from the apricot, sheets of water, blinding, fell to the earth.

We watched a sheet of water blow from the comb of the barn some ten feet slanting into the angry sky. We tried to catch a glimpse of the homes nearby. Were they blowing away? Just what was happening in the worst storm that has ever struck us? And what a wind, blowing for what seemed hours without ceasing, hurling the top off the hog feeder, tossing it a hundred feet away, broken.

The whole outside was a lake of water, even a lake of water in the air as it were. Lightning crashed and thunder shook the earth, peal after peal, the hot flame almost scorching as it passed. The house trembled but stood firm. Water poured in the cracks on the north side of the house and streamed down inside, hail added its pounding and beating, crushing the tender garden as one crushes a handful of leaves.

As the storm stopped a little, Mr.

Spikes and I were out hunting up chickens, some to revive in the warm room and others to throw away. Deep in the grapevines, they were, close by the rock fence, under bushes, and just as we would stretch out our hands skinning them as they ran through rough limbs, the wet chicken would move just out of our reach. Our wet clothes flapped round cold knees wading and bogging but here and there we went I stepped on a piece of tin, down I went in the water cold as ice tea.

This morning the sun shines, the blue of the sky is dotted with peaceful white clouds. Nature seems satisfied after her tantrum of yesterday. But the garden lies crushed and useless, dirt fills the planted furrows, the sun shines on the ground where only yesterday cool green limbs shaded it from the noonday heat, the water in the almost dry lake laps the green grass that slopes gently from the highway on the west and reaches down a low hill from the corner of our place where Crawfish draw, helps feed the mighty Brazos.

When I get too irritated with some of the current popular songs over the radio, I think of the tunes when I was young, for instance, "God-God Eyes," and the "Four Baileys." It was a mark of ignorance not to know the four songs about "Why don't you come home, Billy Bailey" and the other three equally as snappy.

We were so happy to be together at our Crosby county reunion in Ralls last week, calling each other by given names, too little heard as we grow older. The tears that smarted our eyes might have been caused by the smoke of the campfires lit again in memory by all present and the smiles on our faces were put there again by the old jokes we all knew but like to hear over and over again.

The pain in our hearts, made by the war, was soothed by the love and comfort old friends can give. Talk about the Fountain of Youth, it has nothing compared to the getting together of folks who have known each other in the west since the wind started blowing. I noticed that rheumatic knees straightened up, wrinkles went out of faces, and weak arms gripped round necks strong as of days of old. Eating and talking together, remembering with pleasure instead of pain the trying days of the new west, recalling the happy times with shouts of laughter, too soon we separated, each to go back to the present duties of the times, but with thankfulness in each heart for the blessed day.

Below is a fine poem to keep. It is by B. Y. Williams:

Spring Song—1943

Sebastian plows by the old stone wall
And Philip plows by the hedges—
Oh, many the acres that must be turned

If we keep our country's pledges,
New furrows will follow the margin
of spring
Northbound with green banners flying Grave miles will plod on the coastal plain
Where the red sand loam is lying
Great tractors will ribbon the Texas soil.

And the wind's unhindering blowing
Will carry to Kansas and Iowa
The word that the seed is growing;
Kentucky will harrow her sunny
hills;
Ohio is making ready
Her rolling fields for the yield of corn

That must be full and steady;
Onward and northward the sweep
of spring
To the Plains of Minnesota,
Where acres of wheatland spill across
To the valleys of North Dakota,
Antonio plows by a lone pine tree,
And John by a far white steeple—
Oh, many the furrows that must be run

If we feed earth's hungry people,
Do your "Gums"
Spoil Your Looks?

Do your gums itch, burn or cause you discomfort, druggists will return your money if the first bottle of "LETO'S" fails to satisfy.

Athlete's Foot Common Summer Skin Disorder

AUSTIN, Texas, June 7. — The common disease, popularly known as athlete's foot, is said to be the third most common disease seen by skin specialists during the summer, the fifth most common disorder in winter. It is due to a little mold like growth or fungus which thrives best where there is moisture and warmth. Therefore the feet make an ideal place for the growth of this germ.

To have athlete's foot, the infection must be gotten either directly or indirectly from someone else," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State health officer. "The most common places to contract the infection are around shower rooms, baths or bath houses, locker rooms and other public places where persons go barefooted. And it is probable that at least one-half of all adults suffer from the infection at some time."

Dr. Cox suggested the following as some effective measures for preventing and avoiding recurrent attacks of athlete's foot:

1. Dry carefully and thoroughly the spaces between the toes.
2. Use a mild alcoholic solution in these areas after drying.
3. Liberally apply a plain, unperfumed talcum to those areas and sprinkle it freely in socks, stockings and shoes.
4. Wear socks that are absorbent but not too coarse. Shoes should be well fitting but not too tight; sufficiently roomy but not large enough to chafe and rub.

Billie Crabtree Now Studying At Maxwell Field

(Editor's note: The following letter dated May 16 from Army Air corps, Maxwell field, Alabama, was written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Crabtree from their son, Billy, who has been in service since November 12, 1941. He trained as a cadet in Puerto Rico and returned to the states in September and since that time has been located at Montgomery, Alabama.)

Well another week has passed. I really passed in a hurry for me too. We hardly have time to look up. I am really getting in good physical condition. Friday we ran 4 1/2 miles and only rested 3 minutes on the entire course, and then we were walking. It doesn't bother me much any more though. Has it been hot there? It is getting pretty hot here. I got two letters from you Wednesday. Sure glad to get mail started coming in again. You asked if I get the Hesperian. No I haven't gotten it for some time, but I don't have time to read it now any more. I get the daily Montgomery paper. I only have time to glance through it a few minutes at night. I can't get time to study much, but I am getting by pretty good so far. In about 10 days we will be upper more time then.

I have been recommended for Cadet Squadron commander which will go into effect when I become upper classmen if I am appointed. It doesn't make so much difference to me whether I get it or not. It is a high honor but it will also add to my work and responsibility. It will only last until I finish pre-flight.

All Go To Church

I went to church this morning. All lower classmen are required to attend church services. I think it is a good idea. Everything we do must be done in a manner becoming a gentleman. Anyone who is caught dishonest is dismissed from cadets at once, and must leave the post at midnight or under cover of darkness never again to be mentioned by a cadet.

We study code, mathematics, maps and charts, physics and other short courses here. Any man who fails a test in any subject is restricted to his barracks during all his free time until the test grade has been made up.

We are addressed as "mister" and must address all upper classmen as "sir." We must sit at attention when eating, and must have perfect table manners. Twice last week we were on parade. At parades we wear spotless white gloves. No matter what we have been doing, our shoes must be highly shined and our brass highly polished at all times.

Don't misunderstand me now. I'm not complaining. I was just telling you a little about our complex training. Once you get started it isn't so bad.

Our food is very good and we have very nice barracks with a bath for each room.

Tribute To Departed Eugene Price Brownlow

Not gone, not dead, not even sleeping; Though we have laid him in the grave with weeping.

No sharp despair our chastened hearts can feel For he is with us—still.

Still with us in a thousand tender fancies, In memories dear of old time words and glances,

These have the power yet our hearts to fill For he is with us—still.

Still with us in the land where we shall rest, When we, a little farther on have pressed.

There just as sweet and as kind as ever, He will abide with us—forever.

Predicts Growth Electrification In Rural Areas

Rapid strides made in the electrification of America's farms were recounted by G. Edward Pendray, assistant to the president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and a recent western visitor. Mr. Pendray predicts that after the war, electricity will play a major part in easing the tasks of the farmer and making his work more profitable.

"From this world conflict will come new knowledge that will provide a tremendous impetus to rural electrification," Mr. Pendray said. "This war is an electrical war—no plane could fly, no tank could roll and no big gun could fire without electricity. Many of our farm boys now in the armed forces are getting a fine working knowledge of electricity and the vital job it is doing. When the war is over these boys will carry that knowledge back to the farms, where there undoubtedly will be a broader and more profitable use of electricity."

"In 1922, only 175,000 of the nation's farms were served by electricity," he continued. "By 1935 this number had grown to 800,000 and at the end of 1942 mounted to 2,240,000 or 38 per cent of all the farms in the United States. Just before Pearl Harbor farms were being electrified at the rate of 200,000 a year."

An important influence in rural electrification, the visitor believes, is the work of the 4-H clubs, organizations of rural youth sponsored by the state agricultural colleges in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Through a nation-wide contest sponsored by Westinghouse, these youngsters get well acquainted with electricity. They make some electrical apparatus and demonstrate it themselves before club and community audience. Winners of local contests get gold medals; state winners get a free trip to Chicago for the national contest. Six national contest winners get college scholarships supplied by Westinghouse. In 1936 there were 2,200 contestants from 37 states. In 1942 there were more than 10,000 contestants from 43 states.

Texas Farmers Pay Debts

HOUSTON, Texas, June 7.—Texas farmers and ranchmen have made remarkable progress during the past two years in reducing debts and getting their operations on a sounder footing for war production and for later peacetime readjustments, reports General Agent Jack Shelton of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston.

Credit facilities that were not available in World War I are now well developed and playing a major role on the farm front in this war, he said. "The Land Bank system started 26 years ago during the war has set a pattern for low interest rates and long terms and has helped thousands to pay out of debt. The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank established in 1923, grew out of the need demonstrated by the war for an institution that understands and is able to take care of agricultural credit as a bank of discount. "This year is the 10th anniversary of the Farm Credit Administration which brought together the various permanent credit agencies and established also the Production Credit system and the Houston Bank for cooperatives in Texas. They are experiencing their heaviest year in credit extension, mostly in financing war production, and they are also having their largest repayments."

FIND ATTIC STORAGE IS TOO HOT FOR TEXTILES

An attic is traditionally a storage place, but textile scientists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture find it is not likely to be good storage for most attics get very hot in summer. Heat, they find is bad for stored fabrics. It is safer to store idle linens, blankets and clothing elsewhere, and at room temperature or lower. Because it would be cooler, a large storage closet on a lower floor would cause less damage to stored fabrics.

Woolens of course, should also be protected from moths.

In a 4-year test, the textile scientists found that both new and de-sized cotton sheets and degraded woolen samples deteriorated more when stored at 102 degrees F. (about equal to attic heat) than at room temperature. Fabrics became weak and tender and cottons and linens yellowed. The damage to linen because of hot-storage was not quite so marked as for the other fabrics, but there was some damage. The changes in these fabrics after storage for four years were not great enough to make the materials unserviceable.

Storage where light reaches the fabrics causes more chemical deterioration than storage in the dark. Light damaged linen even more than the higher temperatures did. The investigators recommend storing any fabric articles in a relatively cool, dark place.

Canada's Guns are Heard 'Round the World

THE roar of Canada's guns is being heard today all around the world, on land, on sea and in the air. Foreign to Canadian industry before the war, gun manufacture is now being carried out in scores of plants from coast to coast.

Heaviest land gun built in the Dominion is the mighty 3.7 inch ack-ack gun. Many of these are defending England's coasts and cities from Axis air attacks.

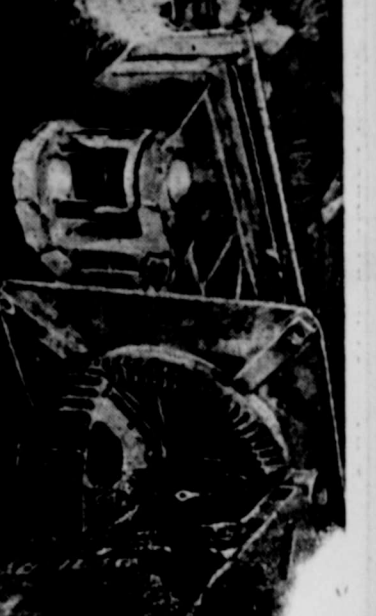

Canada is now manufacturing more than 1,000,000 shells every month, together with great quantities of aerial bombs, trench mortar bombs, and anti-tank mines. Production of shells comprises 28 types of 15 different calibres. A great variety and quantity of shell components are also made. In production are 500-lb. aerial bombs, practice bombs, depth charges, anti-tank mines, grenades, pyrotechnics, etc. Canadian factories turned out their 2,000,000,000th round of small arms ammunition during February.

Small arms ammunition now produced is of 22 types of nine calibres. This ammunition is made for every type of small arms being produced in the Dominion. Both go to more than 50 different destinations in every part of the world for the many battlefields of this global war.

The energy and productive facilities engaged in the production of small arms ammunition may be gauged from the fact that one of these calibre alone—the 303—takes more than 54 separate operations to complete.

Before the war 500 persons were employed making small arms ammunition in one plant. There are now 30,000 workers in two government arsenals and plants being operated for the government by private industry.

New Double Star Hundred Times Bigger Than Sun

AUSTIN, Texas, June.—Discovery of a new double star, weighing possibly one hundred times as much as the sun has been announced by Dr. Daniel M. Popper, instructor in astronomy at the University of Chicago and a member of the staff of the University of Texas' McDonald Observatory.

If the star, designated as RY in the Constellation Scutum, has a mass 100 times that of the sun, it is of the order of some 200 billion billion tons.

Dr. Popper's photographic observations indicate that it is composed of two stars which are actually in contact and revolve around each other in a period of eleven days.

The discovery was reported on the basis of 25 photographs of the faint star, made with the 82-inch reflecting telescope of the McDonald Observatory, Mt. Locke, Texas. The observatory is owned by the university, jointly operated by Texas and Chicago.

BETTER BARLEY'S COMING

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has a collection of seeds for more than 4000 varieties of barley, according to G. A. Wiebe, a barley breeder. The only collection larger is one in Russia. These barleys have been collected from many parts of the world, and the supply of seed is maintained by small plantings made often enough to insure living seed. The plants vary widely in their characteristics and qualities and in resistance to diseases.

The small staff of plant scientists working with barley have not yet been able to test fully the possibilities of many of these varieties, many of them poorly adapted to the principal barley growing regions. But they have gone far enough to have discovered that some unpromising barleys have valuable qualities. One for example, is actually resistant to damage by aphids, a pest that caused serious losses to Texas barley last year. By crossing this aphid-resistant barley with a standard Texas variety it should be possible to breed aphid resistance into the Texas barley. Ordinarily, says Wiebe, it takes about 15 years to breed, test, and multiply the seed stock of such a new variety of grain.

To Buy ELECTRIC POWER

THAT'S TRUE, even though the electric light and power industry in America was called on to produce, in 1942, the greatest amount of electric power in history—189 billion kilowatt-hours!

And at the same time the average cost per kilowatt-hour to the consumer was lower than ever before!

Not only were all the demands of war plants, military camps, naval stations, and arsenals met—but there remained 27 billion kilowatt-hours of electrical energy to take care of the needs of shops and stores, 30 billion for homes, 13 billion for public transportation, street lighting, and other uses.

These are some of the accomplishments of the electric light and power industry and of the electrical manufacturers who build the equipment used to generate, distribute, and utilize electricity—working together with the teamwork so typically American.

How We Helped

POWER GENERATION. More than one half of all the electric power generated by electric light and power companies in the U. S. is produced by generators manufactured by General Electric.

And such has been the improvement in the efficiencies of turbine-driven generators that if the electric power used in 1942 had been produced with the machines of 1924, it would have required more than a million extra cars of coal and one hundred and forty thousand men just to mine and haul this extra coal.

POWER DISTRIBUTION. To have ample power available wherever new war plants have sprung up requires large and highly efficient transforming and switching equipment and the solution of highly intricate engineering problems. General Electric has had a hand, and a head, in the development and manufacture of much of this equipment.

POWER UTILIZATION. Building machines, lamps, and appliances that put electricity to work more efficiently in factories and homes is one of our most important jobs. The United States has more of these electrical helpers than any other nation. In 1942, the average home used twice as much electricity as in 1930, and in those 12 years the average price per kilowatt-hour decreased 40%.

This is only a small part of the story of America's electrical industry. When the full story becomes history with the passing of the years, it will reveal a group of men who, with a determination which now seems providential, kept on co-operatively developing new and better equipment, increasing generating capacity, lowering costs, expanding service, planning always to be ready for the demands of the future. It will be a story of remarkable vision and courage—for it all had to be planned, and the work started, years ahead of the need.

The next time you meet a man from your electric service company, be he the local manager, or meter reader, or spured lineman carrying out his assignment in rain, sleet, or heavy winds, give him a word of encouragement—for he is the man who is making it unnecessary for you to stand in line for electric power. Texas Undergoes Social Upheaval Almanac Reveals

Great economic and social changes are revealed in data presented by the 1943-1944 edition of the Texas Almanac, which has just been published by The Dallas Morning News. Approximately 400,000 rural Texans have shifted to urban residence and vocation since the census of 1940. For the first time in the history of the state, the majority of population is now urban, according to information in the new volume. More remarkable, relatively, has been the industrial expansion due to the founding of munitions, rubber, ship-building, aviation and other war industries. Texas' manufacturing output has expanded as much during the last three years as in all preceding history.

Mineral production has also been greatly stimulated. Last official figure on value of all minerals produced was $954,211,150 in 1941, placing Texas far ahead of any other state. On basis of partial reports, the Texas Almanac estimates total value of minerals produced in 1942 was more than one billion dollars. While petroleum, natural gas and natural gasoline counted for most of the production, Texas would rank high among the states without the oil group. During the last two years, there has been rapid increase in the number of minerals produced in Texas, and in 1942 there was commercial output of more than sixty different kinds.

Next to the greatly increased

CHICAGO, ILL.—Employment of a number of deaf mutes by a radio corporation here also brought romance to Helen Maczys, 19, and Sigmund Rosinski, 23, two of the handicapped workers who are assembling radios for use by the armed forces. They have set July 31 as their wedding date.

While the chapters on military activities and industrial expansion are the principal items of current interest, the new Texas Almanac is essentially the all-around reference book that it has been, ranging through the whole field of Texas' historical, civic and economic data. The date of the battle of the Alamo, the cotton production of Jones County, the name of the State Comptroller, the number of deer killed in Texas in 1942 and thousands of other classes of information can be found on its pages.

The Texas Almanac is a biennial publication, and the new volume is for the two years, 1943 and 1944. It is bound in paper at 60c on newsstands, 75c by mail; also in cloth at $1 on newsstands and $1.15 by mail.

Attention poultrymen. Professor D. H. Reid, head of the Poultry Department of Texas A. and M. College says, "Move your outside feed hoppers every few days."

"This is like your wife putting on a clean tablecloth on the dining room table. Chicks spend a good deal of their time near the feed hoppers so please keep the chick's table clean. It will help keep them healthy and help you make money. Our country needs all of the chickens we can raise. Let's keep them well fed, clean and healthy. Then we will be doing our part towards victory."

Those who know Dr. Reid personally realize he is an outstanding authority in poultry husbandry. To follow his timely recommendations results in extra money to the poultryman.

You realize a lot of spoiled feed has accumulated around the feed hoppers—that if chickens and turkeys continue to eat this spoiled feed troubles are sure to start.

The trouble is we don't have time. The result is a big loss in dollars and cents to the poultryman, and food loss to Uncle Sam.

N. G. Jackson of Floydada community has received one-half pound of an edible variety of soybeans which he expects to plant this year.

The national thinking seems to point to the fact that a few roasted soybeans will furnish more calories than a thick beef steak, but Mr. Jackson says, "As long as I have a few Jersey cows around, I will continue to eat Jersey beef and not soybeans."

The feed situation has caused the brakes to be placed on an increase in livestock and poultry production. Feed shortage will not be the determining factor in livestock production if feed prices continue upward. Livestock men are cutting production because there no longer exists an operating margin.

L. L. Jones of Floydada seeded a small acreage of Red Chief, a beardless variety of wheat. These were registered seed which he purchased from a breeder in Kansas.

Mr. Jones has been planting the "smooth head" varieties for some time and has received outstanding production. He reports an increase in yield of two to three bushels per acre over standard varieties in his test demonstrations.

Farmers in the county are reporting seed damage due to Wire worm and Colorado Corn Root worm.

Crop rotation seems to be the best method of control because each insect attacks corn and the grain sorghum. These insects destroy the kernel and therefore destroy the seed.

Seed may be given the following treatment: For Wire Worm use light treatment of kerosene or turpentine. Sprinkle a small amount of either material so that it is easily recognized by you. Be sure you do not saturate the rag as too much kerosene will kill the seed germ. Work the rag through the seed about four or five times after they are placed in the planter boxes. Make your hand movements fast and just hope you have enough material on the seed for control.

For Colorado Corn Root Worm, (a small brown beetle), moisten don't soak the seed before planting in a mixture of four ounces of oil of tansy and one gallon of wood alcohol.

Methodists Plan Singing, Dinner On Ground Sun.

Quarterly conference will be held at Dougherty at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon. Rev. C. A. Hartley will preach in the morning and dinner on the ground will be served at noon. A singing has been planned for the afternoon from 1 p. m. until the conference starts at 3:30.

Dr. L. N. Lipscomb, D. D., superintendent of the district, will be present and in charge of the third quarterly conference meeting.

The public is cordially invited to be present, is the invitation from the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reeves had as their guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Smith and family of Petersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reeves and family of Baker, Mrs. Dela M. Weldon of Odessa, Mrs. Lena McDermott and Mrs. W. V. Smith and son of Floydada. Mrs. Smith is the mother of Mrs. Reeves.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jackson and Myrna Gayle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jackson and son Billy Bob went to Stratford Sunday where they had a family reunion in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Jackson. Joy and Floy Jackson returned home with them for a visit with their grandparents.

Miss Vera Nell Marshall of the William Buchanan Blood Plasma and Serum Center of Baylor University hospital, Dallas, is visiting this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Marshall. She plans to return to her home Saturday.

Dr. I. J. Marshall and son, Jon Mills of Roswell, New Mexico visited last week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Marshall. Jon Mills remained to spend the summer with his grandparents.

Mrs. Geo. Smith and her mother, Mrs. E. C. Henry visited Tuesday in Plainview with Mrs. Smith's daughter, Mrs. Guy Ginn and family. Vaughn Ginn, who has been visiting in the home of his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Smith, returned home.

If you have a small space for a Victory garden try to utilize all this space. After the potatoes are dug you can plant some warm weather vegetables such as blackeyed peas or cream peas. When the early radishes have been used follow with leaf lettuce. Okra and Swiss chard may be planted in spaces where other vegetables have been harvested.

Some 4-H club girls are too small to be given full responsibility of canning a number of containers but there are many jobs which these girls can do and will do. They can sort out the jars on hand, set aside jar tops and get containers clean and ready for canning. Some of the girls will probably be found cleaning out cellars, pantries, labeling of canned foods and placing it so it can be used first.

Another job they can do is to paint the shelves and organize the pantries for more efficient use.

If you have noticed pale yellow or reddish brown spots on leaves in your flower garden it may be caused by red spiders. This is a very tiny reddish insect, often hardly noticeable, usually on underleaf surface, leaving a slight webby appearance. When the red spiders are first noticed, dust plants with finely ground dusting sulphur. Usually two dustings at intervals of about seven days will be sufficient.

Alaska Highway! for Your After-War Trip?

U. S. Army Engineers couldn't be told that it couldn't be done. Like Superman, they cut and smoothed the wilds to Alaska. The Al-Can highway leads nearer to Victory Day, when you can hope to head your car north... or to the Rio Grande—or where you choose—leaving war worries in your wake. But will you have a car?

Not a new one; not soon after Peace, experts agree. Your best bet is to preserve your present car for the future. At the same time you'll preserve it for your essential driving today, by recognizing its ruthless enemy—engine acid!

Mere normal combustion has always left acid in any engine after it has stopped. But in running often, driving long, and heating the engine well, you mostly dispersed this acid. Then along came rationing and limited driving. Plenty of time now for acid to gnaw and corrode inner parts that you cannot easily replace. But what familiar thing bars corrosion? Good metal plating!

And your engine's insides can have anti-corrosive OIL-PLATING—attached as closely as any fine plating, by Conoco Nth motor oil. It's patented. It includes the modern synthetic that behaves almost "magnet-like" to maintain OIL-PLATING—even for days—where acid could otherwise freely attack. Block it! OIL-PLATE today. Your Conoco Mileage Merchant knows your right grade of Conoco Nth oil. Continental Oil Company

Rain And Hail—

water is deeper or ran higher under houses than it did even in the big rains of 1941 and again in 1942. One such place is at the Lyndale Farm, where Geo. B. McAllister said heavy fall to the northwest sent torrents of water down his way that broke over bar ditches and cut across fields. Incidentally, McAllister is one of the losers of cut hay. He had several tons on the ground when the big water hit. Lyndale is two miles

Conservation District News

"Before adopting practices recommended by the Floyd County Soil Conservation district I had short crops and lost lots of soil from washing. Since following its suggestions I have stopped the washing and my crops have been better by half as much again. My terraces held the recent rains without a break. I really appreciate the detailed map showing the acreages in the different terrace intervals. This will be a big help to me."—W. M. Jeter, Floydada, Texas.

"The Floyd county district technicians have enabled me to irrigate my land to a point whereby it makes it much easier and I do the irrigating mostly by myself. They have run contour lines so that when it rains I get the benefit of that also."—M. R. Moran, Lockney, Texas.

"Before terracing in 1940 I did not make sufficient feed to run me. Today my feed lot has several stacks carried over after feeding about twenty head of cattle and from twenty to one hundred hogs. I am thoroughly sold on terraces and am sure when the normal or dry years come they will bring even greater returns."—Olin S. Miller, Floydada, Texas.

MEMBER ENTERPRISE CREW IS NEPHEW OF MESDAMES POOLE AND CAFFEE

The aircraft carrier Enterprise which recently was awarded a presidential citation by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz for working more havoc on the Japanese navy and air force than any other American ship has in its complement a Burleson boy who has participated in every engagement the ship has had. He is Billie Fielder Davis, son of Mrs. Mattie Davis of Burleson and nephew of Mrs. C. A. Caffee and Mrs. W. S. Poole of Dougherty.

In the recent citation the U. S. S. Enterprise, affectionately known as the "Big E" was credited with destroying nineteen war ships alone and assisting in sinking ten others and destroying between 150 and 200 planes.

Young Davis enlisted in the navy early in the year 1941, several months before the Japs struck at Pearl Harbor, and according to his mother was able to get "the hang" of things before the war began.

In a battle with the Japs in the fall, he received a head injury but not of such a serious nature to be released of his post of duty. The youth is a first class fireman control man.
