Three Prisoners Attack Jailer To Escape From Wichita County Jail

Four in a Million—

Wichitans should be thankful for small favors. According to Dr. A. H. Douglass, superintendent of the water department, the recent rains have reduced the hardness of city water four parts per million. Now you have to use only nine cakes of soap and two water softeners to do the family wash or get a comfortable bath. Previously it was 9½ cakes.

Dr. A. H. Douglass ranks high among water works executives of the state. He has demonstrated many times his ability to get the best and the most water possible out of the equipment available. But he can't make an inadequate filteration plant produce double its capacity, nor can he soften water without proper equipment. He must work with the tools at hand. Provision of better equipment, so that Wichita Falls may have a reasonably good and fairly economical water supply, is the job of the people.

A reader telephones in to ask if it is "safe to drink" city water since water department employes have started work removing moss and fish from the open ditch which brings the water to the filteration plant. Moss and fish in the water or out of it do not increase the hazard of drinking city water. Neither do bathing beauties, fishing expeditions or dead animals or fowls that may accidentally come into the ditch. Most of the water is usually purified in the filteration plant, and when it isn't, it is heavily charged with chemicals. It's safe to drink it if you don't care what happens to your digestive system.

Two city prisoners push a hole in the "plastic" wall of the city jail, and walk forth to freedom and perhaps further defiance of the law. But according to the enterprising reporter who described the walls as "plastic," many prisoners refused to use their avenue to freedom and remained patiently in the calaboose. Police officers must ever be men of ingenuity and resource. If your jail isn't strong enough to hold your prisoners, make life so attractive for them that they will not leave the hospitable confines of the bastile.

A "feminine reader" writes in to say that while she doesn't want the women to run the city, she is glad this columnist remarked, anent the city council's apparent lack of interest in auditorium affairs, that "may be the city would be run better if the women did run it." Then the feminine reader writes the following:

"There was an old lady who lived on my sister's ranch who was very bitter in her resentment that most men thought themselves the lords of creation, and women the dust of their nostrils. And sometimes I almost say 'amen' to her program. Here's what she said:

"'There ought to be some way to find out if a boy baby is goin' to grow up knowin' the difference between a female and the woman God made equal with man. If he is one of the sort not to know the difference, he ought to be put in a barrel and fed through a bung hole until he's seven years old and then the bung hole ought'er be closed up.'"

That's a pretty strong paragraph written by the feminine reader. Perhaps she is a member of the Woman's Forum and wonders why the council had such little desire to know about the auditorium business, or what disposition will be made by the manager, the mayor or the council of the forum's petition, or what disposition has been made of the semi-official show business. But the writer believes the lady goes a little too far in her prescription. This writer would not want the gentlemen of the city council shut up in barrels and fed through bung holes, much less to have the bung holes closed up.

WHITT, MOORE STAGE SECOND JAIL DELIVERY

Two Leaders in Previous Escape Lead Daring Daylight Break

HAWKINS INJURED

Jailer Is Slugged And Locked in Cell By Prisoners

After overpowering Jailer George Hawkins, slugging him over the head with the officers gun and leaving him insensible in a cell on the second floor of the county jail, J. D. "Tangle Eye" Whitt, Henry "Pistol Pete" Shumake and Robert Moore let themselves out of the county jail with the jailer's keys at 6:00 o'clock Sunday morning.

No trace of the three men had been obtained since the delivery, although the break was discovered by the negro cook for the county as he was enroute to the jail to feed the prisoners. Seeing the three men fleeing the negro notified Sheriff W. G. Bralley, who hastened to the jail, only to find the door locked.

Jailer Frees Self

After he had secured his keys and opened the door, Sheriff Bralley found Mr. Hawkins had released himself from the cell and was coming down the stairway. The jailer was rushed to the Hargrave-Walker hospital, were three stitches were taken in the wound in his head. His injures are not serious.

This is the second break in which Whitt and Moore have participated. They, with six other men, made their getaway from the county jail on the night of March 28, and were recaptured, several weeks later, in Magnolia, Ark., and returned to Wichita Falls.

Under Indictment

Moore and Whitt were underr indictment for an attack on C. L. Bradford, former county jailer, as the result of their first break from the jail. Moore had been in jail on charges of theft of more than $50. These charges have been dismissed since complainants refuse to press them.

Whitt was lodged in jail on a theft of under $50.

Shumate, oil field worker, was brought to the county jail last Friday morning in connection with a hold-up of a hotel clerk and robbery of a news stand in Electra. Charges of robbery with firearms were filed against him Saturday.

Escape In Daylight.

Mr. Hawkins had just come on duty at the jail and was carrying ice water up for the prisoners when the three men sprang upon him, slipped his gun from the holster and slugged him over the head. Pushing him into a cell and closing the door after they had taken his keys, the three men slipped down the stairway and out the jail door, escaping into broad daylight.

Robert Moore, according to Sheriff Bralley, had his two center upper teeth chipped. Shumate was pockmarked and bore the scars of many fights and escapades.

When Shumate was arrested at daybreak Friday in Electra, he attempted to overpower the arresting officers, but was captured after a battle.

Heflin Includes Gotham Mayor in His Tirade

KENILWORTH, N. J., June 24. (US)—United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama carried his attack on Al Smith right into the Smith stronghold in New Jersey today and made Mayor Walker an added target when he addressed a crowd of 7000 at an outdoor meeting of the Ku Klux Klan on the grounds of old Upsala college at Kenilworth.

Heir to $1,000,000 Drowns in Hudson

NEW YORK, June 24. (US)—Newbold Bishop, 40, of Peekskill, heir to $1,000,000, teacher in a Detroit, Mich., school, was drowned in the Hudson river near Peekskill this afternoon when a boat in which he, his sister and another young woman were rowing capsized.

READY FOR WORK

Moody and Johnson In Thick of Convention "Dry" Fight

HOUSTON, Texas, June 24. (AP) Governor Dan Moody, arriving here Sunday to head the Texas delegation to the Democratic convention, plunged immediately into his primary mission—the preparation of a strictly "dry" plank, to represent Texas and several southern states.

The governor and his state highway commissioner, Cone Johnson of Tyler, who came into the harmony Democrats fold at the Beaumont state convention, are to prepare a draft of what Texas will demand in prohibition enforcement.

NOBILE SAVED BY AVIATORS

Polar Expedition Leader Carried to Safety

ROME, June 24. (AP)—General Umberto Nobile, leader of the ill-fated exploration party on the dirigible Italia, has been rescued from the ice after being marooned for a month. The other members of his party were left stranded when the rescue plane overturned on its second attempt to land.

Official word of the rescue came from the Citta Di Milano base ship of Nibile's expedition. It showed that the rescue had been accomplished by Captain Tornberg, pilot of the Swedish plane "Upland" but that he escaped injury when he crashed on his second attempt.

The full message from the base steamer read:

"During Saturday night the Swedish plane, equipped with runners, landed boldly near the Nobile group and departed with General Nobile. It transported him to Hinlopen Strait whence another Swedish plane took him to Virgo Bay. There he was placed aboard the Citta di Milano.

"The first plane near the stranded men again today in an attempt to continue its rescue work but overturned in making the difficult landing. Fortunately the Valorous pilot was not injured."

SOS BELIEVED FROM AMUNDSEN

LONDON, June 25. (Monday) (US)—Another SOS call came out of the Arctic today as plans were rushed to go to the aid of Roald Amundsen and his five companions lost since last Monday when they flew from Tromsoe, Norway in a French plane to search for missing members of the crew of the dirigible Italia.

The Norwegian steamer Arrita, arriving today at Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, from Tromsoe, Norway, reported that it had picked up a weak SOS call and believed the distress signals were from the Amundsen plane.

Six Killed In Crossing Crash

TOPEKA, June 24. (AP)—Six persons were killed, five of them instantly when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Union Pacific passenger train, number 137, about four miles west of Topeka this morning. The sixth victim died before she could be taken to a hospital.

The dead, all of Topeka: W. D. Frye, Mrs. W. D. Frye, Otton Dunlop, 22, son of Mrs. Frye, by a former marriage, Mrs. Gertrude Harriett, Mrs. W. A. Thornburg, Thelma Louise Brandshaw, 4, granddaughter of Mrs. Thornburgh.

The car was demolished and the wreckage and bodies strewn along the track for a distance of 100 feet. The party was returning to Topeka after attending an Odd Fellows meeting at Manhattan.

Lack of Fuel Forces Landing at Tampico

MEXICO CITY, June 24. (AP)—Joaquin Pacheco and Fritz Bieler, who took off from Windsor, Ontario, Saturday morning, landed here at 2:28 p. m. today. They had projected a non-stop flight but were forced down at Tampico by lack of fuel.

Daughter of Champ Clark Still Just Genevieve to Politicians

By CORINNE RICH

HOUSTON, June 24.—Buzzing about the Reed headquarters here is one of the Missouri senator's staunchest feminine supporters, lending color to the scene.

They used to call her Genevieve Clark and long before she could toddle she was the "official daughter" of the house of representatives, just as tiny Paulina Longworth now is. That was because every congressman on the hill loved Champ Clark's young daughter.

Now as Mrs. James Thompson of New Orleans, wife of a well known newspaper man, she is as much at home in the councils of the Democratic party as she is within her own four walls, having been brought up on politics of the Democrat persuasion.

Everybody knows her and calls her Genevieve. Every politician here, hard-boiled or otherwise, exchanges cheery words with her—words that usually concern something of importance to the party, because Mrs. Thomson is national committeewoman from her state and a person of considerable political influence.

THRIFT WOMAN FATALLY HURT IN COLLISION

Mrs. Earl Abraham Dies In Hour After Road Accident

FOUR ARE INJURED

Mrs. Frank Sopher And Children Hurt As Cars Smash

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, June 24.—Mrs. Earl Abraham, 39, of Thrift, was fatally injured and four other persons were hurt in an automobile collision which occurred about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon four and one-half miles northwest of Burkburnett on the Burkburnett-Clara highway.

Mrs. Abraham died in the office of a Burkburnett physician about an hour after the accident without having regained consciousness. Her jugular vein had been severed in the wreck.

Mrs. Frank Sopher of Burkburnett, driving the Studebaker in which Mrs. Abraham was riding, her two children, a boy, 5, and a girl, 8, and Dr. W. D. Adams of Wichita Falls, driving the Lincoln automobile which was in the collision, were the injured.

Brought to Hospital

Mrs. Sopher and her son were rushed to the Wichita General hospital at Wichita Falls in an Owens and Brumley Undertaking company ambulance, where it was reported their injuries were not serious. It was at first thought that the little girl had been critically injured. Dr. Adams was not badly hurt.

The collision occurred at an intersection on the dirt highway out of Burkburnett about a mile from the pavement. The car which Mrs. Sopher was driving was going toward Burkburnett and that driven by Dr. Adams was going east.

Mrs. Sopher had attempted to pass a Ford automobile immediately before the collision, according to witnesses. Dr. Adams said her automobile was cut off from his vision by a high embankment.

Mrs. Abraham and the two children were thrown clear of the wreckage when the two automobiles collided. Mrs. Sopher and Dr. Adams were pinned beneath their cars. The Studebaker overturned into a ditch at the side of the road. Witnesses believed the ditch saved the Wichita physician's life. Both automobiles were completely wrecked.

Mrs. Abraham lost a son and her husband lost a brother in an accident within the city limits of Burkburnett about a year ago when three men were killed.

Adams Is Pinned

Mrs. Sopher was sufficiently conscious immediately following the accident to give her name. She was severely bruised and her daughter suffered an injured back. The boy was bruised about the head.

Dr. Adams, who lives at 2506 Ninth street, and is a member of the Northwest Texas clinic, had just made a professional call five miles northwest of Burkburnett when the accident occurred, he said.

He was pinned beneath his car for about five minutes before a passer-by and men working in a nearby field lifted the wreckage and permitted him to free himself, the physician said.

Injuries Not Serious

Attendants at the Wichita General hospital, where Mrs. Sopher and her son were taken, reported that Mrs. Sopher and her son were examined there, and not being seriously injured were allowed to go home. The daughter, attendants said, was not brought to the General hospital.

Broker, Bootlegger And Architect are Named

NEW YORK, June 24. (US)—The names of several men, among them an architect, a stock broker and a bootlegger, have been listed by Joseph Marcus, New York broker, as reasons why he believes his former wife, Florence, is unfit to retain custody of their children, Hermine, 10, and Jane, 6.

Testimony will be taken in Chicago tomorrow on Marcus' application for an injunction to restrain his former wife, now Mrs. Ralph Gutlohn of that city, from taking the girls out of Illinois. Marcus claims she contemplates going to Europe.

Labor Federation Head Arrives at Houston

HOUSTON, June 24. (US)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and a group of his aides arrived today to plead with the Democratic national convention to write an anti-injunction plank into its platform.

The labor leaders sought such a plank from the Republican party but their request was complied with only in part.

W. T. LEAGUE CLEARS TANGLE

Stevenson's Office Vacant By League Vote

ABILENE, Texas, June 24. (AP)—West Texas league directors here today practically smoothed out the tangle in which the league has been involved for the past week, capping their action by declaring vacant the office of president, heretofore held by J. McCallister Stevenson of Abilene, and electing as his successor E. E. Lowrie of San Angelo.

Prior to completion of the ouster movement, Stevenson had declared that he would rescind all action which had precipitated the controversy, namely the disfranchisement of Abilene and San Angelo, suspension of their managers, Les Tulloe and Earl E. Snapp, suspension of the entire Abilene team, and assessment of a $100 fine against Army Mangess, Hamlin manager, and each of the Hamlin and Abilene players participating in a series at Wichita Falls which began Friday.

Stevenson denied the jurisdiction of the directors to remove him except in case he be found "criminal of financial misconduct." Until this is proved, he avers, he will consider himself president of the league.

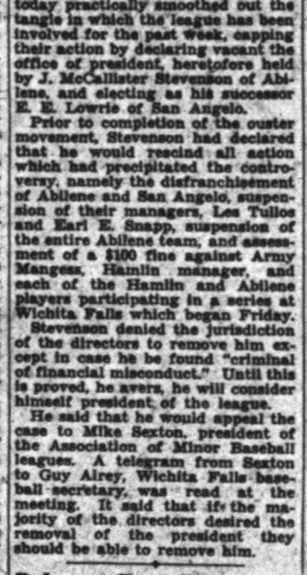

He said that he would appeal the case to Mike Sexton, president of the Association of Minor Baseball leagues. A telegram from Sexton to Guy Airey, Wichita Falls baseball secretary, was read at the meeting. It said that if the majority of the directors desired the removal of the president they should be able to remove him.

Delegates From West Reach Convention City

HOUSTON, Texas, June 24. (US) The men who won the west for Al Smith came to town tonight. The delegation of 114 men and women from the west was headed by Fred W. Johnson, Rock Springs attorney and chairman of the western states Smith for president committee. Johnson is given credit by the Smith managers for organizing the western states for the New York governor.

The new arrivals included delegates from California, Nevada, Washington, Idaho, Utah, Colorado and Wyoming.

FIERY JIM REED ARRIVES AT HOUSTON

Here are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Reed as they arrived at Houston. The fiery Missouri senator is the main hope of the anti-Smith forces.

Will Rogers Would Like to See Both Nominees "Wet" to Settle Issue

By WILL ROGERS

HOUSTON, June 24.—Everything is as quiet, restful and beautiful, you wouldn't think there was a Democrat in a thousand miles. Been here three days, haven't heard a cheer, a band, an argument, or even an echo. I wouldn't stay for the thing, but I know that a Democrat is just like a baby. If its hollering and making a lot of noise, there is nothing serious the matter with it. But if it is quiet and still and don't pay much attention to anything, why that's when it's really dangerous.

The Kansas City convention took the life out of this one in more ways than one. You know you wouldn't feel so good either, if someone had just announced to you ten days ago, that it was Tunney and Dempsey that you were to meet in the finals. But there is bound to be some comedy coming and here is the reason. Since prohibition was unearthed nine years ago, there has only been one argument invented that a politician when he is cornered can duck behind, and that is the old applesauce one, "I am for law enforcement." It dont mean anything, never meant anything, and never will mean anything. It would take practically a lunatic to announce, "I am against law enforcement."

Republicans First

Now the Republicans hold their convention first, and naturally they grabbed this lone tree to hide behind.

Now that leaves the Democrats out in the open, if they say anything about prohibition, they either got to say, "it ought to be modified," or "it shouldn't be modified." They can't duck behind the old "alibi" tree, "I am for law enforcement." For there is only room for one back there and a Republican is already hiding there.

If I had been the Democrats I

REED FAVORS ENFORCEMENT

Missouri Senator States Prohibition Stand

HOUSTON, Texas, June 24. (US)—Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, today pledged himself unequivocally to a full and vigorous enforcement of the 18th amendment and the Volstead law in the event he is elected to the presidency.

In a long statement outlining his position on the major issues of the campaign, Reed said he is convinced that the overshadowing issue is the extermination of "corruption," and the restoration of popular government in national life.

Refers to Statement.

The senator added, however, that he was impelled to re-state his position on prohibition because of the enforcement plank adopted by the Republican party and the statement recently issued by a delegate to the Democratic convention.

Reed evidently referred to Norman E. Mack, New York national committeeman, who asserted that Governor Smith favored a modification of the Volstead law. "The

SMITH NEARS CINCH

New York Governor Has 700 Votes Ready For Balloting

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

HOUSTON, Texas, June 24.—Governor Alfred E. Smith tonight had about 700 delegates signed, seated and ready to be delivered, under the best estimates that could be obtained from all the rival camps.

He is apparently within 50 votes of the 733½ necessary for the nomination.

Like Hoover, at Kansas City, he dominates this Texas scene of the national Democratic convention.

And like the Hoover forces, his strategists here are bending every effort to force the nomination on an early ballot and thus avoid the wrangling bickerings and bitterness which result from protracted fights.

Has Only Machine

And further like Hoover, he has the only well organized effective machine while his futile opponents, like at Kansas City, are without a Fuch to marshal their forces.

It's Kansas City all over again. The same show with a new set of characters.

The above estimate of Smith's strength does not include Ohio, which has a favorite son in Governor Vic Donahey, but upon which Smith can safely depend for at least 30 votes. It does not include Indiana, where the Taggart-Woollen machine, will doubtless throw its support to Smith upon the assumption that Evans Woollen, the Indianapolis banker and progressive politician, will receive the vice presidential nomination.

Nor does it include West Virginia, where Smith seems to have about 11 of the 16 delegates; Oklahoma, where the majority is disputed between Smith and Senator Reed; Kansas, from which Smith will rreceive many votes when Representative Ayres retires as a presidential candidate, nor Kansas.

All for Harmony

It is said that Arkansas will cast 14 of its 18 votes for the New York governor. That information comes from a delegate who described himself as "a chicken fighting Methodist," but who announced that he and 13 of his colleagues would accept Smith, Tammany, wet and all, "Party harmony," to save disruption of the party in the northeast, was described as Arkansas' reason for moving into the Smith column.

Shrewd political observers will note in that connection that Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas had been given the permanent chairmanship of a Smith-dominated convention and that Robinson is a close associate of Bernard M. Baruch, who, since Wilson's time, has been a power of strength within the party, and who has been devoting himself to the Smith campaign. Baruch, Frank C. Polk, who was assistant secretary of state and Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was assistant secretary of the navy, established the entente cordiale between Smith and the Woodrow Wilson zealots, so it may be assumed that some favorable mention of the Wilsonian league and world court will find its way into the national platform here.

Prohibition Is Issue

With Smith assured of the nomination, the real battle in prospect is over the dry plank. Smith's wettest supporters ask for a plank which will declare for law enforcement, but which will also contain a declaration in favor of the right of each state to establish the alcoholic content of its own brew.

Against such a proposal, the drys will make their demonstration. They want the prohibition amendment to be commended and congratulated and coupled with that a specific promise of aggressive enforcement of the 18th amendment by name.

"Drys" Want Fuss

As a matter of fact, the professional drys of the Anti-Saloon league class do not care what happens here. They expect Smith will be nominated, have consequently committed themselves in spirit to the Borah-drawn dry plank of Kansas City and here principally for the purpose of stirring up a formal fuss that will attract the country's attention to what they regard as a hopeless and unsatisfactory convention. If the Southern drys who are actual delegates in the convention will raise a fuss over the prohibition plank it will be water on the wheel of the professionals. They would look upon a donnybrook convention here with great satisfaction.

INDIAN CLAY GIVEN SOCIETY

Plains History Body Gets Additional Relics

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, June 24.—Valuable collections in the form of ancient Indian pottery have recently been deposited by Mrs. W. G. Baxter with the Panhandle Plains Historical society. There are 12 well preserved pieces of pottery and many fragments.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter made valuable additions to their already priceless collection of more than 800 pieces a short time ago when they deposited various Indian relics with the society. The pottery was obtained by Mrs. Baxter from the Rio region of New Mexico. The archeological interests of the society have doubled in value due to the work of the Baxters in this line.

Metals Given

Other relics which were recently given were: A fine specimen of large metate which was used by the Indians to grind their corn; three awls; two flint drills, two beads, one trinket, a peculiarly interesting Indian skull, one grinder, and a $50 bill of Texas Republic money.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter are now on a tour of the Rocky mountain states and will visit the Yellowstone park. Mr. Baxter is a lover of hunting and sports of all kind, while Mrs. Baxter's chief interest is the collection of pottery. A large amount of the material in the way of Indian relics from the New Mexico region that is in the possession of the society has been deposited by Mr. and Mrs. Baxter.

Goose Mounted

Edwin Ramey, a cowboy, on the JR ranch, made some interesting and valuable deposits recently. A large Canadian ring neck goose, which was used in crossing with tame geese for a number of years on his ranch near Dimmitt, has been mounted and was chief among Mr. Ramey's deposits. An old-time froe, which was used by his father in building his first home in central Texas in 1872, is of much historical value. A froe is a small instrument used to split logs. A JR branding iron that has been in use on Mr. Ramey's ranch for 30 years was included in the collection.

Otto Studer, who is a member of the historical society, recently made a deposit of a gun made in 1837 and of a unique pair of deer horns that are at least 25 years old. The horns are from an unusual type of deer for this country and it is supposed that this was a cross between a white tail and a black tail deer. Mr. Studer was a student of the West Texas State Teachers college in 1921. His home is now at Pampa. He comes of a pioneer Panhandle family and is actively interested in the worthwhile things the historical society is accomplishing by way of preserving the history of the Panhandle.

Add Instrument

Jim P. Wilson, an old-time cowboy on the JA ranch, made a deposit of a number of relics of particular interest and value to this section of the country. Among these was an instrument for measuring wagon tires that was formerly used when shrinking loose tires. This instrument is hand-made and is at least 30 years old, having been used for some time on the JA ranch and is the only one of its kind in the possession of the society.

Anna I. Hibbets of the department of education at the Teachers college made a donation of 12 pictures which were taken in the canyons of the Panhandle years ago.

Old Bills Given

Louise Davis, an ex-student of the college, who is now living in Amarillo, recently sent a number of Spanish ten-cent pieces to the society.

Gene Whitman, employe of the college, was among the group who have recently given some ancient money to the society. His donation was a $5 bill of old southern money issued by the Farmers' and Merchants' bank at Memphis, Tenn. Maudie Marie Holt, a student in the college, deposited a $20 bill of Confederate money. Russell Bishop, of the training school, gave 17 old coins to the society.

Facilities for Display Needed

A short time ago a room in the college was designated by President J. A. Hill, in which the historical society might place on display a portion of the relics of the organization. This has made it possible for visitors to get some idea of the society's museum but more space is needed. At the annual banquet of the society the past year there was discussion of erecting a building for a museum, near the college.

The society is continually receiving praise for its work and more members are constantly being added to the already large group. Citizens of this region are urged to help the society in any way they can by depositing old money, newspaper clippings, or material of any nature that might be of assistance in preserving the history of a region which is fast going from the hands of the ranch owners and cattlemen to the merchants and farmers of small areas; a land that is now torn up by the tractor's plough and dotted with towns, but a few years ago was the haunt of the buffalo, antelope, and the longhorn.

constitution," said Reed in his statement, "and the statues must stand and be obeyed unless they are changed or repealed in the manner and form laid down by the constitution. There should be no evasion. There should be no attempts to accomplish their destruction by indirection.

Plays Republicans

"In my opinion, the 18th amendment will stand until and unless the moral forces of the nation become convinced that there is some better way to deal with the liquor problem."

In stressing the "corruption" issue once again, Reed flayed the Republican party for the dishonesty and scandals which have taken place in the management of the fereral government during the last eight years.

New Hobbs, N. M., Takes Form Of Town After Oil Strike Is Made

LAMESA, June 24.—The new town of Hobbs, N. M., is now a reality. This week the auction sale of lots for the new town took place and lots sold for $25 to $250 each. The new Hobbs is some two miles from the old Hobbs and is located directly west of here 70 miles and some 30 miles west of Seminole.

The occasion for the New Hobbs came about by the opening up of a new oil field in this area. Last Sunday the Hobbs well No. 1 came in with a steady flow of good grade oil and townsite men and capitalists became interested at once. It is said that this is to become one of the greatest oil field in this country owing to certain geological structures located here. Several new business houses have been erected at new Hobbs with more anticipated.

The lack of rail facilities as well as hotel accommodations make Lamesa the gateway to this new oil field. Lamesa business men are working to place the new road that is known as the Dal Paso Cavern highway which passes by the well in the best of condition to carry the heavy traffic that is already traveling over this road to the well. Business conditions have already been felt toward the increase here as result of the opening of this field. The field, according to geologists, will be developed east of the New Hobbs well, which will extend it east into Texas and Gaines county.

Leasing and royalty exchanges are active at this time in the new area. Attention of railways has been called to the lack of rail facilities in this section by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce in an effort to stimulate as soon as possible the building of a rail line into this new field.

Skinless Hot Dogs Latest Invention To Delight Frankfurter Fanatics

By W. F. SULLIVAN

CHICAGO, June 24. (UP)—Hot dog! Now we have the skinless frankfurter, stripped to scientific perfection.

In these warm days when everyone is eager to discard superfluous garb, chemical scientists in Chicago stepped forward sympathetically today to announce that the trick covering of the "dog" is unnecessary—it may be removed without injury to the sausage within.

The announcement was opportune but geographically misplaced. It might have afforded more comfort to the perspiring delegates arriving at Houston for the Democratic convention, where the hot dog venders are tossing the steaming links from the skillets in appealing manner.

Cellulose has solved the situation, according to the institute of chemistry of the American Chemical society, which will demonstrate its triumph at its 1928 meeting at Northwestern university, July 23 to August 18.

"The most important single step in the recent progress made in developing cellulose sausage casing is the discovery that the casing can be removed from the frankfurters," W. F. Henderson, industrialist, reports.

Women Remain Enigmas to Experts As They Hurl Threats of Bolting

By EMILY NEWELL BLAIR
Vice-Chairman of the Democratic National Committee

HOUSTON, Texas, June 24. (US)—In Houston, so far, it is the women outside the convention who have had all the innings. Only half of the national committee women have arrived, and almost none of the women delegates. What part they may play is yet to be seen.

In the meantime, the National Democratic Women's Law Enforcement league has arrived in force with Mrs. Jessie W. Nicholson, president, and Miss Belle Kearney, orator, and Mrs. Ada Orms Dupuy, publicity chairman, to satisfy the demand for news about women at the convention, a demand never more insistent nor less supplied than at present.

These women hoped when they came to make the 18th amendment the paramount question in connection with the nomination of Governor Smith, a desire that has been satisfied beyond their wildest dreams. But they did not fire the first gun. That honor fell to Norman Mack, veteran national committeeman from New York and campaign manager for William Jennings Bryan in the campaign of 1896, when he declared in favor of the repeal of the 18th amendment. It did, however, give them their golden opportunity. They countered with a threat the 300,000 women they represent would bolt the ticket.

Smith's Answer Taken Up

The answer of Governor Smith to the query as to where he stood on the 18th amendment offered occasion for further statement by them as to the attitude of women, an occasion their brilliant publicity director did not ignore. So emphatically were they heard that the rumor was abroad that the managers of Senator Reed considered approaching them to gain their acquiescence to his candidacy.

It is the pre-suffrage method of publicity, instead of votes and threats instead of candidates that this self-appointed group employs. Whether it will be more effective than the more difficult and slower method of entering primaries, electing delegates and voting on platform and nominee, employed to such effect by certain Republican women in their convention, remains to be seen.

Pro Camp Divided

Let no one think, however, that they do not represent a very earnest and large body of opinion on the prohibition question. Opinion on this prohibition question as expressed here may be divided, like all gaul, into three parts. These women belong to that part which comprises the people who really believe with all the strength of their natures that the 18th amendment is a solution of a social evil, which has not had a fair trial and so fight any suggestion of repeal or modification. To them this question is far more important than the election of a Democratic president.

The second part comprises those who feel that the 18th amendment is a mistake and wish the Democratic party to be made the vehicle for a propaganda compaign looking to its repeal. These people either do not realize the strength of the prohibition sentiment in this country or do not care for the success of the Democratic party in the coming election so long as they may have a discussion of repeal.

Want Economics Fight

The third part contains both "drys" and "wets" who, knowing there is no possibility of repeal of the 18th amendment during the next four, if not eight years, do not want to side track every other difference between the nominees by paramounting this question and so sacrifice the party to an 18th amendment debate.

Those who hold this opinion believe that there should go in the platform no matter who the nominee, a plank of law enforcement that will indicate that the Democratic party is as committed to law enforcement as the Republican party thus elimininting a contest on this one point, and leaving the nominees to wage battle on the economic issues.

Their argument is that there can be no debate as to the enforcement of the law as it now stands and no nominee of any party would declare for non-enforcement. Neither the Republican party nor the Republican nominee, has stated its position on repeal. Whether this argument will avail with the group represented by the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement league remains to be seen.

CHINA FORCES TO COME HOME

Admiral Bristol Favors Withdrawal

TOKYO, June 24. (UP)—The American military forces in China, consisting of five or six thousand marines and soldiers on duty in Tientsin and Shanghai, may soon be withdrawn, according to reliable American sources in Japan.

These sources say Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, commander in chief of the American Asiatic fleet, now on service in Chinese waters, believes the American forces should be withdrawn as soon as possible and that the United States should keep entirely clear of the Chinese situation.

Bristol, it is said, is opposed to the present program of protecting American interests with troops and if events in North China are reasonably satisfactory during the next few weeks he will recommend the naval forces ashore be withdrawn.

The contingent of American infantry which has been stationed in Tientsin for many years is not under Admiral Bristol's jurisdiction, but it is believed that if the Washington government should decide to withdraw its marines the infantry also would be returned to the United States.

It is known that Admiral Bristol, during his recent visit in Peking, discussed the matter thoroughly with the American minister, J. Van A. MacMurray. The minister is understood to favor the presence of the American forces here.

In support of the contention that the American forces should be taken out of China as soon as possible it is argued:

First, that America now has the good-will and friendship of the majority of the Chinese people and that the presence of the troops on Chinese soil endangers this friendship. It is argued that it would be better to evacuate American nationals than to risk becoming deeply involved in China.

Second, that the expense of maintaining the American units is far greater than any conceivable benefit which would accrue to American interests from their presence here.

Pastor, 65, Accused of Necking Fair Church Member Quits Pulpit

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 24. (UP)—The Rev. J. S. Cummins, pastor of the First Methodist church of Belleville, Ill., has resigned in the face of charges that he hugged a woman member of his church.

The 65-year-old pastor in a statement tonight declared: "I am somewhat unorthodox in my relations with members of my church and perhaps have been a little unguarded in my ministerial conduct. However, I absolutely deny the charges against me and attribute the situation to idle gossip which some people seem only too willing to believe."

Cummins said he was naturally of unsuspecting and honest nature and that he imputed integrity to other people. "If I see a man walking along the street with another man's wife I do not necessarily impute wrong motive," he declared.

The Rev. Cummins is married and the father of four sons and one daughter. He has been pastor of the Belleville church for two years. His resignation, he said, was agreed upon in a conference with the Rev. W. H. Whitlock of East St. Louis, the district superintendent, who felt Cummins' elimination from the picture would quiet the situation.

CANYON LODGE OPENS HOME

Public Inspects $14,000 I. O. O. F. Edifice

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, June 24.—The new $14,000 building of the I. O. O. F. lodge on Fourth avenue, was opened yesterday to the public for inspection. The reception started at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The public was cordially invited to visit the lodge room, and to inspect the building as a whole.

There was a program from 8:00 to 9:00 o'clock, followed by a dance.

Members of the Rebeccah lodge served refreshments to all visitors at 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Delegates from a large number of I. O. O. F. and Rebeccah lodges in the Panhandle attended the opening of the lodge, and brought greetings from the neighboring towns.

The new building is 36x80 feet, two stories, constructed of brick and concrete. The first story is devoted to two business rooms which are occupied by the Tanner Plumbing company and a new cafe to be opened by M. A. Henson. The new building is a result of a fire last year which destroyed a lodge building and furniture which was located on Fifth avenue. The new lodge room is large, commodious, and will be furnished the very best for the use and benefit of the members of the two lodges which will hold their weekly meetings in the building.

Rogers Wants Issue Settled

would have held my convention first so I could have grabbed that "alibi" first, if I had had to hold it three years ago.

Now naturally the logical thing to do if it was a "legitimate" business would be to nominate with Smith another wet as vice-president, and also put into the platform a plank on modification, and have the whole prohibition thing out, on a straight out issue, and let the voters settle it once and for all.

But politics is not a "legitimate" business, and they wont do it that way.

Just Don't Know

Why, because they don't know if there is more wet votes, or dry votes. So they are afraid to take a chance.

So they will try to "straddle" the the same way the Republicans did but as there has only been one "straddle" invented in nine years, (and the Republicans appropriated that) why it's going to be pretty hard for these boys to think up a substitute in just this one week.

So anything that is done will have an awful good chance of having some comedy attached.

For there is only three other things to do, and here they are:

Nominate with Smith, a dry vice president. Well there is sure fire lough. For you then have an animal with a wet head and a dry tail.

Now you may salve the dry vice president, but up to now no one have ever paid enough attention to one to know if he is pickled or petrified.

The next thing they can do is nominate for vice president a man that no one knows whether he is wet or dry. In other words, a man that has remained of so little interest to the country that no one has ever taken the trouble to find out. The third plan is to nominate anybody, either wet or dry as vice president, and then put in the platform a strictly dry plank.

More Laughs

That brings more laughs. Smith sunning on a dry plaform. That's like turning a whale loose in death valley.

So all the boys are up against here is just these few simple problems, "We want Smith, for he is the only man we got a chance with." "We wish he was dry instead of wet, but as he is not we got to make the most of it.

"We got to dress him up so he will look wet in the cities and dry in the country."

"We got to hold our wets, but for Gods sake dont turn loose of the drys." Its like I remember Coolidge said one time, "I am for labor but not against capital."

They got to promise the women something pretty dry or 'they will go to Hoover.

So, boy, these babies are studying.

Tammany hall and the cities are their meal ticket, but the women and the W. T. C. U. are their clothing and lodging.

So if these boys are not shouting and singing down here, its because they not only have a convention on their hands, but a problem.

So there is bound to be some laughs, and they will be serious and unintentional, which are the best laughs in the world.

Californian Plans Outline For Development of Wichita Valley

Agricultural Committee to Hear Views of Colonization Expert on Intensive Farming

An important step in the development of the Wichita irrigated valley is seen by chamber of commerce officials in the coming of Charles Weeks, colonization expert of California. He will arrive at noon to inspect the project. Mr. Weeks was invited here by the chamber of commerce and J. A. Kemp as the result of the observation of Mr. Weeks' colonization work in California by Mr. Kemp and a party of friends who were touring California.

Mr. Weeks will be the guest of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce at the Wichita club at noon Monday and after lunch will make a thorough inspection of the valley and lakes. He will address a group of business men and land owners Tuesday at noon at the Kemp hotel under the auspices of the real estate board and the chamber of commerce. J. M. Baber, president of the real estate board, said Sunday night that a special invitation is extended to all business men, realtors and land owners to hear Mr. Weeks' talk Tuesday.

New Selling Link Needed

"All of us who have studied the valley development problem realize that we need another link in our system here for selling these lands on a big scale" said a prominent realtor Sunday.

"We have the water and we have the lands but we do not have a systematic colonization scheme. This is a job for a colonization man who is equipped to do it. The chamber of commerce has done and is doing fine work in general advertising but the sale of land is a private enterprise and we need a man or a company to represent the owners who will go to the buyers throughout a large area. The local realtor will get his benefit like every other man in business here, from the general development of bringing new settlers here."

Mr. Kemp was in conference with Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce and J. W. Chatham, industrial commissioner, Saturday, about Mr. Weeks' plan. J. T. Harrell, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce and Mr. Baber, as well as all who have studied Mr. Weeks' methods are said to be enthusiastic about getting him interested in the local colonization work.

Five Acre Units Seen

Mr. Weeks has one colony in California where 600 families are living prosperously on 600 acres, one acre to a family. He is a great believer in the possibilities of poultry and dairy cows on small tracts. If a deal is consummated with Mr. Weeks here, his unit for settlement will be larger than in California. The local committee believes that five and 10 acre units will be developed in the Wichita valley.

Members of the committee who will have lunch with Mr. Weeks Monday include J. T. Harrell, J. A. Kemp, J. M. Baber, G. D. Anderson, Orville Bullington, George D. Keith Sr., M. Johnson, J. S. Bridwell, Hubert M. Harrison, J. W. Chatham, O. K. Barnes and G. C. McGowan.

FINE CATTLE AIM OF PLAN

First Bull Circle Formed In Hale County

Special to The Record News.

PLAINVIEW, June 24.—A bull circle has been formed in Floyd county composed of animals bred in Hale and Swisher counties. The animals come from the herds of Joe Vaughn of Tulia, and W. S. Noel of Plainview and go to Herman Huffman, Scodt Brothers, Olen Fry and Lockview farm, who are members of the circle in Floyd county.

In furnishing these animals from this section one of the dreams of those connected with the development of breeding superior dairy animals in the Panhandle-Plains section come true. The bull circle plan was originated in Swisher county about five years ago by P. C. Bennett who at that time was county agent, and who is now county and agricultural agent for the Amarillo board of city development.

The bulls furnished by Vaughn and Noel are products of Hale and Swisher county bull circles and were sired by animals imported into this section during the past few years, and their dams were registered Jerseys on test. Two of the animals were six months old and the other a year. They are grandsons of Masterman of Oakland and one is a double grandson that of that renowned animal. The dams of the bulls are all good producers with average butter fat a month for the past five months. The price of the bulls was $212.50 each.

PANHANDLE GAS IN NEW OUTLET

Line to Enid, Okla., Plan Of Consolidated

TULSA, Okla., June 24.—Still another outlet is looming for the great natural gas supply of the Panhandle field of northwestern Texas.

The Consolidated Gas Utilities corporation, the new name for a number of smaller gas firms merged, is to construct a 16-inch gas line from the Shamrock pool of Wheeler county, to Enid. It is reported that construction is to begin about July 1.

H. H. Vaughan of Shamrock, has sold to the Consolidated company, gas leases in Wheeler county, totalling 8,800 acres.

Storage Tanks Idle

Unless considerable new drilling occurs, it is possible that much of the idle storage room in the Panhandle field of northwestern Texas may not be filled for some time to come.

A week ago there was 17,652,826 barrels of oil in Panhandle tanks, leaving room for 6,793,174 barrels, for a total tankage of 24,446,000 barrels.

The storage tankage is in Hutchinson, Carson, Gray and Wheeler counties, with pipeline storage in Potter, Donley and Moore counties.

One of the first gusher wells in the McIlroy pool of southeastern Hutchinson county, of the Panhandle field of northwestern Texas, was the Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Cockerell, in section 3, block B3, of survey. It came in a year ago and kept increasing until it was doing close to 10,000 barrels a day and until June 1 had produced a total of 603,627 barrels of pipeline oil.

It is now making 30 per cent water, and producing 1,200 barrels a day of oil.

Brewster-Pecos Block

The National Refining company of Cleveland, Ohio, which has been engaged in a drilling campaign in Kansas and Oklahoma, has taken 48,000 acres of leases in Brewster and Pecos counties of West Texas. Just what its plans are for the future is not known.

Because of the congestion on the Texas & Pacific railway from the Winkler field of West Texas, the Santa Fe railway is starting to lay heavier rails on its line from Pecos, Texas, to Clovis, N. M., so heavier locomotives may run over it. Much oil is now being moved west to Pecos and thence back to the east via the Santa Fe.

The government's second helium gas plan is now being constructed six miles west of Amarillo, in Potter county, the Panhandle area of northwestern Texas. F. A. Vestal, superintendent of the Fort Worth plant is in charge. The new plant will cost $1,500,000 completed.

Parents Commit Most of Blunders In Rearing Children, Says Miss Dix

If Parents Could Only Check Their Vanity Enough To Be Companions to Their Children Instead of Impeccable Tin Gods, to See Their Offsprings as They Are and to Let Them Decide Their Own Fates.

I often think that the chief thing that is the matter with parents is trayed by their self-conceit into their vanity, and that they are becommitting most of the blunders they make in rearing their children.

Heaven knows it would seem that if anything on earth could make a man and woman walk humbly it is the awful responsibility that they take upon themselves when they bring a human being into the world, and that when they gaze upon their helpless little babe in its cradle and realize how much sickness and suffering and sorrow and disappointment and struggle and anxiety and work and worry it is doomed to endure that they would feel like offering it their abject apologies and that their ego would shrink to the vanishing point.

Instead of which they puff out their chests with pride and complacently receive the congratulations of their friends. No other face ever wears such an expression of perfect self satisfaction as that of the young father. Perhaps the most curious exhibition of parental vanity is shown in the desire that fathers and mothers have for their children to be their replicas and to "take after" their families. This is rendered the more inexplicable by the fact that few of us consider ourselves living pictures nor are we obsessed with admiration of our tribal traits.

Nevertheless, the first thing the fond parents do after a baby is born is to search its vacuous countenance for resemblances. Mother gloats over its having a pug nose like hers and father is tickled pink if it is a chinless wonder such as he is. If it squalls its head off about nothing mother complacently declares that it has the Thompson temper, and if it turns night into day father chuckles that it is going to be a gay rounder like all of the Joneses. No matter how homely as to face, how ill-formed as to figure, how heavy-witted people are, they want their children to be just like them, and the choicest bit of flattery that you can offer them is to remark on the resemblance of the baby to them.

This is, however, a harmless vanity. More dangerous is the vanity that makes parents see their ugly ducklings as swans and that so blinds them to their children's shortcoming and faults that they are never able to correct them or help them.

Father's and mother's vanity will not let them admit that Johnny is mentally deficient until it is too late for science to do anything to save him from idiocy. Father's and mother's vanity will not let them see that Tommy is ill-mannered and Bob is lazy and Sally is shrewish, and so they make no effort to control them and they grow up into the hoodlum youngsters who are a curse to themselves and the world.

And parental vanity does the children another great injustice in making them laughing stocks by their overtouting of charms and virtues that exist only in father's and mother's fond imaginations.

For a ribald world cannot resist emitting a hoot of derision when mother orates about how beautiful Mary is when Mary is as homely as a mud fence or when she expatiates on how many millionaires Betty has refused and we all know Betty has never a date to bless herself with, or when father backs us into a corner and spends hours explaining in detail what a genius Sam is.

Parents are always complaining that their children do not confide in them. The reason for this may also be found in parental vanity. Fathers and mothers are so anxious for their children to admire them and look up to them that they build up in the child's mind a picture of themselves as little tin gods without any human attributes whatever.

According to their own account, they were always impeccable models of virtue. They loved to go to school and improved each shining hour. They were always obedient and respected their elders. They were always industrious and were never tempted to do anything foolish and flighty. And the children naturally feel that they have nothing in common with these superior creatures. The wouldn't understand how anybody could hate to go to school and love to play hookey and loathe doing chores.

How can a young girl tell mother about petting and kissing parties when mother represents herself as having been as icily cold as a refrigerator and as having always sat across the parlor and conversed on instructive topics with the young men who called upon her? How can Bob tell his father about the scrape he has got into and the foolish things he has done if father pictures himself as a second Solomon who never even made a mistake or blundered off the strait and narrow way?

If parents would climb down off their pedestals and drop their pose of superhuman perfection and just admit to their children that they are poor, ignorant creatures, stumbling in the dark, just as they are they could talk things out together and fathers and mothers would have no need to complain that their children didn't confide in them.

And what is it but vanity that makes parents feel that they have a right arbitrarily to decide their children's fates for them?

John must be a doctor because there has always been a doctor in the family. Bill must go in the grocery trade because father has built up a good business along that line. Father overrules John's protest that he is not a student and is a born trader and calls Bill a young fool because he wants to write or study law instead of selling canned goods.

And mother moves heaven and earth to keep Jenny from marrying a poor young man she loves because she can't bear for Jenny to have to cook and sew, although Jenny prefers the kitchen to the drawing room and is a better performer on the sewing machine than she is on the piano.

The world is full of unsuccessful men and unhappily married women who are victims to their parents' vanity and who were pushed into the wrong occupations and kept from marrying the ones they wanted to because their fathers and mothers thought they knew better than their children did about what was good for them.

"Vanity of vanities," said the preacher, "all is vanity." And there is no more pernicious form of it than parental vanity.

Ascot Fashion Parade Leads In Busy London Week

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES

LONDON, June 24. (US)—This week has certainly been the most crowded and most brilliant of any in a London season since the war. The Ascot world fashion parade was attended by every member of the royal family and the toilettes on view have been as striking as ever. Beautiful women from the United States or of American origin seen in the royal enclosure included Lady Ravensdale, in a dress of black and pink printed chiffon and huge shoulder boquets of orchids; Miss Elizabeth Houghton in white crepe de chine with mauve panniers; Mrs. H. A. Orme, in black and white, and a velvet picture hat.

Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Myron Taylor of New York; Bradley Campbell, son of Lady Huntley; Martin Vogel of New York; Miss Eleanor Sears, of Boston; and Commander and Mrs. Browne, were others I noticed in the enclosure.

Owing to Queen Mary's dislike of cosmetics there was little rouge or lipstick seen in the royal enclosure. The queen expressed her appreciation of this fact to several friends whom she received in a flower filled boudoir of the royal stand.

New Fashion Note

The Prince of Wales, as usual, struck a new fashion note for men at Ascot. For the first day's racing he appeared with two carnations in his buttonhole, instead of one, and on the following days many other men copied the idea. The prince also wore a novel vest. It was double breasted and of a bright saxe blue, and was spotted and striped to such an extent as to outdo the feminine frocks in gaiety.

London is full of wealthy visitors. At the Savoy alone there are men and women of more than 30 nationalities. On Wednesday Lady Lavery, wife of the famous artist, and who was formerly Hazel Martyn, of Chicago, gave one of the most successful dances of the season. Owing to the fact that there were eight other big functions the same evening the dance did not begin until midnight.

Lady Levery recently adopted the novel plan of wearing dresses copied from some of her husband's most famous pictures. For the dance she wore an 18th century gown of figured brocade and a tira of diamonds and sapphires.

Art Treasures Shown

Lady Ribblesdale, well known as the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, gave a tea party at her new home in Regeants park Thursday to enable her friends to view some of the art treasures amassed by the late Lord Ribblesdale. Among her guests was Lady Nicolson, formerly who was Dorothy Cubbold, of New York, who was presented at court following her marriage to Sir Arthur Nicholson in New York in April of last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond and daughters are here from Madrid. They are being much entertained. A big dinner party was given for them at Claridges Friday.

CHIC CHERIE

LATEST FASHIONS

Cherie is having the loveliest kind of day dreams. Luckily the sea is calm and there's practically nothing to divert her attention to the ocean or the ship. A practical aid to contemplation is offered by her felt hat—a brim wide enough to shade her eyes, as you see, and a truly clever arrangement of a quarter of a yard of grosgrain ribbon.

The subjects of Cherie's day dreams are the frocks she bought in Paris—a simple green jersey sports frock banded with dark green crepe appears to the left. The placing of the skirt pleats is interesting. That same one-sided effect appears in the evening gown of satin whose enormous puff of fabric trails down nearly to the floor.

We forgot to mention that Redfern design the evening gown in the second picture. The dress to the left in this sketch created by Worth—it's grey and white trimmed with white and grey ribbons and is appropriately called "Discrete." The silk afternoon dress to the right was designed by Bechoff and is notably for the draping of the collar.

Best of all, perhaps Cherie likes this evening gown of dotted net—all black, with a cascade of drapes down each side and cut to the fitted bodice lines that are being used even with sheer fabrics. Or perhaps, since we're not accountable for her daydreams, she is thinking of the effect it will have on the only man she ever loved (this year)!

Storm District Replanting Over

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., June 24.—So much aid was rendered by residents in districts adjoining that which was affected by the tornado in the north part of the county, in the form of implements, work stock and helpers, that at a meeting held at Pleasant Valley school house Thursday night it was decided there would be no need of mules being brought from Fort Sill. That afternoon Colonel G. P. Tyner, temporarily in charge of Fort Sill, after making a survey of the region, had agreed to send 200 mules.

Farmers around Mountain Park supplied 28 planters and Tillman county supplied the remainder which were needed to put in the cotton. Planting of cotton had the right of way last week and nearly all of the big task was completed by Saturday night. With favorable weather these plants will be up this week. Last year one field of cotton was planted near Davidson on July 5, according to Grover Hope, local cotton dealer, and made three-quarters of a bale an acre.

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

JUST as women are getting back to placidly into long hair, here comes Amelia Earhart with a really windblown windblown. And what will be the outcome? Will women decide that the idea of long hair is all wrong and that a really truly wind tossed bob is the really smart thing? I don't know but the next few days should determine.

◆ ◆ ◆

SPEAKING of Earhart brings a train of thought. Now that the subject of the first woman to fly the Atlantic has been determined, and Amundsen has been heard from faintly, Nobile is practically located, and Oklahoma's storm wave has subsided and we have had our minds set at ease concerning this matter of sheiks, what will we have left to be up in the air about? It does seem that nearly all of the elements have been tried and man has come out as well as might be expected in the competition.

GUESS the neighboring state just mentioned will have to come forth with a few more bank robberies—there was only one Oklahoma bank robbery mentioned in Sunday's paper and that is a poor showing. Surely we can tell that the summer slack period is on.

And the first thing Amelia Earhart does is to purchase herself a few necessities in the line of clothes—a mere $1000 worth, all bought in London, and she is planning on more shopping after the utterly necessary things have been bought. That proves that a woman may pull a thoroughly masculine stunt, and remain feminish, doesn't it? But what is the feminine title for colonel?

◆ ◆ ◆

AND here is another idea on masculinity and feminity. Mary Pickford who has just cut off her long golden curls and now wears 'em pinned on when the occasion demands it, says that she is tired of playing girls' roles, and cut her hair so that she could go after the boys. Can you figure that out? I can't. But Mary is far too attractive to have be logical, so she may do as she likes about the question of long curls or a fairly short bob, and she can say what she likes about the slum girl roles, and we'd not believe anything anyway. Who does nowadays?

AND women are going to get men told when they get their hands squarely on the political reins. Miss Elizabeth Marbuty of New York, national committeewoman, in an interview at Galveston, said, "Whenever anybody wants prohibition—when we have an army big enough to guard our two coasts, then I'll be in favor of it. It's like trying to shoot at a target when there is no target. I have been looking for honest-to-goodness drys ever since 1920. I have not found them."

Whatever she means by that is somewhat vague to one who is as blind as this corner concerning politics, but I am sure that she is outspoken, at any rate.

Azure Blue Dominating Color Among Dancers at Grand Prix Ball

By HAROLD J. T. HOBAN

PARIS, June 24. (US)—Azure blue is the dominant color theme to which thousands of Americans and Parisians danced into the morning hours at this season's memorable grand Prix ball. One of the most successful weeks Parisian society has ever known is now but a memory.

Every night this week balls, dinners and dances succeeded each other. The climax of Grand Prix week was celebrated in the magnificent gold, marble and onyx setting of the Paris opera. The "Golden Horseshoe" glittered with the brilliancy and eclat of prewar days. The world's most famous names crowded the boxes and loges overlooking the vast ampitheater of the opera which was converted into a dance floor for the special occasion.

Two Americans gave the biggest box parties of the evening. They were Elsa Maxwell and Madame Ganna Walska McCormick. It was estimated that there were worn by the guests in Ganna's party more than $10,000,000 worth of precious stones. The beautiful Polish-American Diva was hostess to the Maharajah of Patiala, the most fabulously rich of all the Indian potentates. The Maharajah came in his ceremonial robes of state with a turban of twisted silk studded with diamonds and rubies.

In honor of the occasion, however, most of his jewels were sapphires, which harmonized with the midnight blue costumes and the lights. In addition he wroe also eleven strings of pearls and three ropes of emeralds which challenged comparison with Ganna's famous "Rothchild" emeralds given her by Harold McCormick.

Ganna herself was magnificent in a gown of hyacinth blue georgette with the points of the skirt draped back in a striking adaptation of the "peacock" gown.

Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, wife of a New York attorney, gave a box party which included the Duchess De Deauville Birsaacia, Cosmo Hamilton, the Hon. Mrs. Moccata, Mrs. Harriet Neal and Prince Viggiano.

Joseph Widener, General and Mrs. Charles H. Sherrill, Charles Kurzmann with Mr. and Mrs Mayer, Lord and Lady Castlerosse were amnog other box holders. Mrs. Milton Holden, the former Fifi Widener, wore an exquisite chiffon frock in apricot of three shades over deep amber velvet, and a cape trimmed with golden fox.

Princess Ilyinsky, the former Audrey Emery, was lovely in white chiffon printed with field flowers. She wore a magnificent diamond and sapphire necklace. Mrs. Maureen Agar was in striking contrast to the evening color scheme when she appeared in a chenquits black tulle gown flecked with golden dots and a golden skull cap to match.

Mortimer Schiff, Felix Warburg and Conde Nast wore evening clothes of deep, dark blue, harmonizing with the dominant color.

THOMAS TAGGART

Col. Tom Taggart of Indiana will not attend the Houston convention. His physician has ordered him to remain at his home. His health is broken and excitement of a poltical convention might hasten his end. This is the news that comes from Indiana, from Indianapolis, where Colonel Taggart began his political career many years ago. It was fitting that he should begin his career in a most humble capacity, that of waiter behind the counter of a lunch room. He had a business brain and he was the proprietor of a big hotel before he was 30 and the creator and builder of the famous French Lick Springs before he was 40. In his early youth he became a Democrat and followed the fortunes of Thomas A. Hendricks, elected on the same ticket with Grover Cleveland as vice president of the United States. Long before he reached manhood's prime, he was branded as a political boss by the Republican leaders in the Hoosier state. First he became boss of Indianapolis, then the spokesman of the state organization, next a national committeeman and finally one of the great triumvirate—Charles F. Murphy of New York; Roger Sullivan of Illinois, and Thomas Taggart of Indiana.

RITCHIE FOR SMITH

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie is out of the race for the presidential nomination. He has requested the Maryland delegates to vote for Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York on the first ballot. His viewpoint is "Gov. Smith is in every way fitted by experience, character and ability to assume the leadership and has the best chance to win." Thus the 16 votes of Maryland will be cast for the New York governor on the opening ballot at the Houston convention. Gov. Ritchie is the third term governor of Maryland. He is the only Democrat or Republican for that matter, ever elected three times governor of his native state. Ritchie served a term and was drafted for a second term. He served the second term and was drafted for a third term and given the largest majority running for a third term ever rolled up for a candidate for governor in the history of Maryland elections. He will not accept second place on the ticket. He is for the New York governor, he says, heart and soul, and his advice to Democrats of all factions, everywhere is to place the standard of leadership in the hands of the New Yorker.

CLOUDS

There never was a stormy cloud,
No, not a single one,
Than went on through the mill of time
To cover up the sun.

For though it be of blackest hue,
Arousing fear and doubt,
In time, the cloud will drift away,
And let the sun come out.

And Fate does cast some awful clouds
That rain down grief and pain,
But winds of time will drift them on:
The sun will shine again.

One-Minute Sermon

Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

The fear of a king is as the roaring of a lion: whose provoketh him to anger sinneth against his own soul.

It is an honour for a man to cease from strife: but every fool will be meddling.—Proverbs, xx, 1-3.

One Slant on Hoover

AT THE close of the Republican convention a political observer remarked that one of the chief reasons for Herbert Hoover's nomination was the fact that the general public knew that Wall street and the political bigwigs did not want him.

The public, according to this man, went on the assumption that any man who aroused the enmity of Wall street and the party bosses must be a pretty good man; and the public's demand for Hoover helped bring his nomination.

It's the old, old story again. We often remain unimpressed by a man's friends; but we can judge him by his enemies. Often it isn't nearly so important who's for you as who's against you.

The Humane Course

THE United States Radium corporation, according to dispatches, has settled, for $50,000 apiece, the suits brought against it by the five young women who were poisoned by radium while in its employ.

One is glad to read of the settlement. It was, obviously, the only fair, just thing that could have been done.

For a time it looked as if the company's attorneys would take advantage of every legal technicality to fight to the last ditch against paying the sufferers anything. That would have been unspeakable. It is comforting to read that the company has followed a humaner course.

A Little Forethought

IF THE CITY plans to raise the dam and spillway at Lake Wichita, as doubtless it will in time, it would be folly for the county not to take this contingency into consideration in building a bridge across the spillway, and City Manager Fairtrace's action in calling this to the attention of the county commissioners is timely.

Too often we see public improvements made without taking the future into consideration. We often see examples of this when gas and water lines are laid after streets have been paved.

A little forethought will often save lots of expense later. Too often there has been little forethought.

Tourists to Canada

A DISPATCH from Montreal indicates that half a million automobiles from the United States, bearing some 1,500,000 tourists, will enter Montreal during the coming tourist season.

This, no doubt, will give rise to many a merry and ancient jest from those who believe that no one goes to Montreal except for the purpose of getting something to drink. That joke is pretty old, however, and we might as well forget it. The North American continent holds few more attractive cities, from the tourist's standpoint, than Montreal. The roads leading to and from the city wind through exquisite scenery. The province of Quebec is well worth a visit from anybody.

The 1,500,000 tourists will put money in Montreal's pocket, of course. But they will get their money's worth. They are going to a charming region.

An Immigrant Case

IT DOES seem as if there ought to be enough common sense and kindness in our national government to enable our immigration authorities to administer the immigration restrictions a little less brutally.

Two little children, a seven-year-old girl and her six-year-old brother, landed at New York from Trinidad the other day, en route to visit their parents, who came here in 1923. They were detained at Ellis island and will be deported; immigration authorities say they have no assurance that the parents will not keep the children here permanently. The parents are not yet citizens.

Probably the officials are obeying the letter of the law. But it hardly seems that the country would fall if those two youngsters did stay longer than their allotted six months. Government by red tape causes many heart aches; America ought to be big enough to let children visit their parents.

Nicholson's New Job

MEREDITH NICHOLSON, famous Indian author, has become an Indianapolis city councilman, and thereby has drawn the attention of interviewers and feature writers from all over.

The astonishing thing about it is not that Nicholoson, well to do, talented and famous, should take a job in the city council, but that the fact of his taking it should arouse so much attention. It is a striking commentary on our political economy.

Nicholson protests that he is only doing a citizen's duty, and insists, "in politics, no job is unimportant." Yet, for all that, the city councilmen in this country who have any claims to fame or fortune aside from their political endeavors are few and far between.

The government of a large city is a highly important concern to every citizen. The welfare of everyone depends on it; one would think that the more prominent and wealthy a citizen was, the more interest he would take in seeing to it that his city was well governed. But it does not work out that way. The task of running the city—of providing for the protection of life and property, of furnishing health insurance, of providing recreation facilities, of keeping taxes down—is left to the back room politicians. This is so accepted a part of American life that when a prominent man like Meredith Nicholson becomes a city councilman everybody is surprised.

It is an unhealthy condition. Governing a city calls for just as much patriotism, just as much vision, just as much business ability, as any job in the professional or industrial world. A city should, as a matter of course, call on its ablest, and most distinguished citizen to be its mayor, and fill its council with men who have made their mark on the city's life.

Mr. Nicholson has done all of us a service by entering Indianapolis' city government. He may not be able to accomplish much in that job, to be sure; yet by calling our attention to a city's need for first-class men in its political offices he is doing a good work.

"In politics, no job is unimportant," says Mr. Nicholson. He is right. May his example inspire other men to give their best efforts to the task of city government.

It's an odd thing, but those backing Hoover believe Coolidge can keep cool without being taken in a draft.

We haven't heard much yet, but are expecting to hear from the forces backing Al Smith, something about dry rot.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 24. — The idea that rich men's sons and their money are soon parted is shown to be as incorrect as a movie autobiography. The proverb "Shirt-sleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations" isn't affirmed by a survey made of the present status of great early American fortunes.

The $2,000,000 J. J. Astor left in 1848 is now over $150,000,000. Vincent Astor alone is rated at a hundred millions. Meyer Guggenheim's fortune increased from 50 millions to half a billion between his death, in 1905, and 1928. The 50 millions of Stephen Harkness, and the 10 millions of Charles Pratt, both early Standard Oil partners, have grown to about 400 millions and 300 millions, respectively. A. I. Du Pont left $30,000,000 accumulated in his family's 100 years of power making. The Du Pont fortunes is now estimated at half a billion. The $100,000,000 estate of old Cornelius Vanderbilt has grown so that one member of the family alone, Frederick, has that much.

The only conspicuous American fortune that has decreased is that of the Gould family. It was $85,000,000 when Jay Gould died in 1892. Legal battles of Gouds of four generations have caused it to shrink two-thirds.

Mabel Boll's efforts to veil some details of her life and weave a romantic fiction about others, were successful until the so-called "Queen of Diamonds" and aspiring aviatrix got into the biggest headlines and picture pages. Then home folks recognized her. They didn't think she had any reason to be ashamed of having been Mibsey Bach, former clothing model in Rochester, N. Y., and they told on her.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce never made any secret of the fact that her father, who died not long ago, was a barber in a small Virginia town.

The interest that some wealthy New Yorkers used to devote to acquiring rare vintages they now apply to collecting strange varieties or blends of tobacco. One shop, owned by a woman, specializes in manufacturing special and exclusive blends for rich customers. Some of thios shop's cigarettes sell for as high as $16 a hundred, and it has cigars priced at $80 a hundred. The cigarettes are monogrammed in gold, with silk tips, and are scented with rare perfumes.

Elaborate boxes containing an infinite variety of smoking tobaccos, all carefully labeled as to suitability for the smoker, are put up for persons who prefer pipes.

Incidentally, since cigarette smoking became so effeminate, many women have taken to pipess.

Local ice companies, to meet the competition of electric refrigerators, are introducing all sorts of innovations. Colored cubes in boxes may be had delivered or at stores. One company has opened "cash and carry" stations, with the price cut in half because of the elimination of retail distribution costs.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, Usw York, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Hale County Club Agent Resigns Post

PLAINVIEW, June 24.—Miss Opal Wood for the past two years home demonstration agent of Hale county, has resigned effective July 1, and will take a leave of absence from extension service work for 60 or 90 days.

Since Miss Wodd has been agent in Hale county she has practically doubled the scope of home demonstration work in this territory through the organization of additional clubs all of which adopted a five year program of work and have been following the program closely.

TEXAS' COTTON ACREAGE UP

Crop Conditions Good In Most Sections

AUSTIN, Texas, June 24. (AP)—Texas has increased its cotton acreage 6 per cent, or about 1,000,000 acres, and the crop, two weeks late, is "fairly good," George B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture, said in his first general acreage and condition report for this year.

Crops generally, with the exception of the condition of wheat and oats, and lateness of cotton and corn, compare favorably with any average year, Mr. Terrell said. Wheat and oats are in low condition because of dry weather in April and May.

Livestock Conditions Good

"The general condition of livestock is good," the commissioner's report related. "Rains in the grazing sections have made the grass good. The goat, sheep and cattle industry is now in the best condition it has been in for several years. Rains have been general, some sections of the state reporting too much rain, some too little.

"Boll weevils are now showing up in several parts of the state with slight damage so far. Some cotton fleas are reported but are doing no damage. Recent rains have retarded the cultivation of cotton in some sections and some crops are becoming grassy but this is not general.

Acreage Increased

"Texas has increased her cotton acreage about 1,000,000 acres and Oklahoma has increased her acreage slightly, but most of the principal cotton states have not increased acreage, although they have increased the amount of fertilizer used on cotton. Georgia, Alabama and Arkansas report a heavy damage from excessive rains and floods and it now seems that a large cotton crop cannot be made. With a crop less than 15,000,000 bales, the price of cotton should remain around 20 cents or higher.

"Wheat acreage is practically the same as last year, but acreage in oats was reduced. Much of the wheat and oat crop was ruined before the rains came the latter part of May and early in June. The wheat crop probably will make 20,000,000 bushels—little more than last year, while the oat crop likely will be less than last year.

Corn Crop Good

"Corn and grain sorghum acreage is nearly the same as last year and the condition is fairly good. Some corn is already made and with one more rain during this month to finish the crop in central, north and east Texas a reasonably good crop will be made. Some of the corn is two weeks late. Prospects are good for a large crop of grain sorghums, with late rains.

"The sweet potatoe crop is just about normal and with late rains, a good crop will be made. The peanut crop is about average and is doing well. Tomatoes and watermelon acreage has been increased but prices are not satisfactory and it remains to be seen whether these crops will prove profitable."

Following is Mr. Terrell's acreage and condition summary in percentage:

Crop—	Acreage	Cond.
Cotton	106	79
Corn	100	87
Oats	88	65
Wheat	98	62
Grain sorghum	100	90
Sweet potato	93	86
Peanuts	95	88
Tomatoes	105	82
Watermelons	112	86

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Chiri appeared, took the receiver off the hook and greeted the caller with a lazy "hello."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL DANN, struggling artist, gives a party at his studio in honor of his fiancee, VIRGINIA, beautiful daughter of RICHARD BREWSTER, Wall Street financier.

NIEL'S model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries a wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art.

VIRGINIA'S father dies suddenly of heart failure and she is prostrated with grief. The doctor advises that death was caused by worry and shock, and it is later revealed that BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation. NIEL urges an immediate marriage but his pleading is interrupted by FREDERICK DEAN, an old family friend, who persuades VIRGINIA to come and live with him and his daughter CLARISSA, who is a girlhood chum of hers. He wins her over by saying that to marry NIEL now that she is poor, would wreck his career and be disgraceful to her father's memory. NIEL is furious when she tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN'S motives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Virginia continued to stare at Nathaniel as though he had suddenly changed to an entirely different person right before her sight. Jealousy was blazing in his eyes and turning his lips to stone. It frightened Virginia to see him so aroused.

"Mr. Dean only said what I already knew was right," she faltered.

"Then you are going to live with him," Nathaniel asked grimly.

"Don't be so hard, Niel."

"Hard! If I dared be as hard as I feel I'd find Dean and wring his confounded neck. What right has he to interfere between us?"

"He's my oldest friend and he promised father . . ." Virginia's words broke off in a tear-wet handkerchief.

Nathaniel was instantly ashamed of having hurt her.

"Forgive me," he begged; "I'm sorry I lost my temper, but you don't know how much I hate to think of you living in that man's home, seeing him every day, being where he can see you, even touch you."

"Niel, you're not jealous, are you?" The idea seemed to Virginia so unlikely that she smiled over it. "Surely that can't be what you were so wild about just now?"

"Call it jealousy if you like," Nathaniel said a trifle sulkily; "but I don't trust him, and when he gets near you I begin to creep all over."

"I can't think of anything more absurd than for you to be jealous of Uncle Frederick," Virginia replied; then more seriously, "but of course, you aren't. I think you're blaming him for influencing me more than he did, Niel. That isn't fair. It's very kind of him and Clarissa to want me with them at this time."

"I might think so if I didn't believe that it will make Uncle Frederick happier than it will you."

"I am not expecting to be happy, Niel," she reminded him quietly, and Nathaniel did not have the heart to offer further objections to the plan.

"When are you going there?" he asked dejectedly.

"I'd like to go at once. There are too many memories in these rooms, Niel."

"Not today?"

"No, tomorrow, perhaps."

"Then would you mind if I stay and have dinner with you? If you aren't too tired."

It was in Nathaniel's mind that they would have little time alone together once she had entered the Dean menage.

"I'd like you to, Niel dear, but you've been so devoted all through everything—you must be dreadfully weary. Are you sure you wouldn't rather go home?"

Nathaniel was sure.

They were not to have an uninterrupted evening, however. All day Virginia had been turning away condoling friends, but before the dinner hour Clarissa arrived and insisted upon staying.

"Dad tells me you've promised to berth at our place until the clouds blow over," she chirped to Virginia, palpably seeking to create an air of cheerfulness, however false. Grief was not sacred to Clarissa.

Nathaniel frowned as he saw Virginia wince.

"Are you sure you won't mind?" she returned doubtfully.

"I? Why should I?" Clarissa's tone indicated as plain as day that no other person's troubles could interfere with her life.

Nathaniel thought she might at least have made some effort to assure Virginia of a welcome.

"Of course you will have to put up with a lot of noise," Clarissa went on unfeelingly; "Russell and I are about to shout our love from the housetops."

Virginia looked at her inquiringly. Nathaniel continued to scowl.

"I wanted to drop down to the courthouse and get it over with quickly, but Russell, you know, is a Waingould through and through. Wants the whole thing, engagement and wedding, done up with candle and bell and handed to the reading public with all the thrills that are printable."

"Good for him," Nathaniel contributed with feeling.

Clarissa surveyed him coolly. "I understood you were an artist—or something," she said insolently. "Surprised to hear anyone of that sort admitting a taste for conventionality."

"I admire his sticking to his guns." Nathaniel retorted.

Clarissa looked from him to Virginia and smiled knowingly. But she said nothing. She had been exposed to politeness during her bringing up, and there were times when the contact bore fruit.

"Oh, naturally you would agree with him, being a male yourself," she laughed, and began to talk of something else.

Nathaniel was utterly weary of her before the evening was over but she ignored his several hints that he would like to be alone with Virginia. To pay him off for taking sides with her fiance, he decided. A petty spirit. It troubled him to think of Virginia at the mercy of her shallowness and his walk home was filled with plans for getting Virginia into a home that he would make for her.

When he opened the door of his studio he saw that his reading light was turned on. A cup and saucer stood beside a smoky coffee pot on the teakwood table.

He looked around and saw no one. It occurred to him that one of his friends who knew where he kept his door key had been in, entertained himself with coffee and gone out, leaving the light burning.

Nathaniel had eaten practically nothing at dinner, unable to enjoy food, while Virginia left her's untouched. The sight of the coffee pot stirred an appetite for a cup of the stimulating beverage. He carried the pot to the cubby-hole that the real estate agent called a kitchen, put fresh water to boil and went into his bedroom for his lounging robe.

He snapped on the light, dug his robe from the closet and turned around to remove his coat. Then, for the first time, he saw that his visitor had not departed.

"I might have known it was you," he scolded, shaking the sleeping girl by the shoulder. She put up a feeble hand, brushed futilely at his fingers, turned her head on the pillow and relaxed into slumber.

Nathaniel noticed that the bed was made, the extra blanket folded neatly at the foot. He glanced back at Chiri. There was a smudge on her unrouged cheek—now and then she eschewed makeup completely just to show her friends that she was human, she said—and on the arm that she had thrown up over her dark, bit and miss bob.

Nathaniel felt a moment of softness for her. "Poor little donkey," he murmured. He stood and looked at her sleeping for a while, then turned, reached for the blanket and threw it over her feet. The studio was a bit chilly as the weather had turned unexpectedly cold for late spring.

A little later, over his coffee, he mused on the ways of women, particularly women of Chiri's sort. An inspection of the place had acquainted him with the reason for her deep sleep. Apparently she was dead tired. The studio had been scrubbed from end to end, but in a way that would not disturb his work. Only the dust that gathers so quickly in the village had been removed. Scattered papers were still scattered.

He felt warmly grateful and more than a little annoyed. Surely Chiri must know that she could gain nothing by slaving for him. Yet, on the other hand, he appreciated what she had done. Hired cleaning women made so much bother. Still he could not let her spend the night there simply because he was grateful to her. But she had looked so darned tired. It wouldn't be necessary to turn her out until he was ready to retire.

There was a pile of new novels on the table. Nathaniel turned his attention to them. He came to one that promised to absorb his interest and began to read. He read only occasionally, but when he did he liked to finish whatever it happened to be—novel or article.

He read on and on, forgetting both Chiri and time. But he did not reach the end before his lids had drooped many times, finally to settle down firmly in overpowering sleep. The book slid unnoticed to the floor.

He was awakened by the ringing of his telephone. He was half aware that it had been ringing for some time. The instrument was on a small stand near his bedroom door and before he could stir himself to answer it Chiri appeared, took the receiver off the hook and greeted the caller with a lazy "hello."

At first Nathaniel did not grasp the significance of what she was doing. Those who live in the Village are not given toward consideration of appearance. But his first thought naturally was of Virginia and then he realized in a flash that she would scarcely understand being answered by a feminine voice when she was calling him in the middle of the night.

He sprang up hastily. "Who is it?" he called.

"I think it is Miss Brewster," Chiri told him.

SWELL PARTY

The best description of a children's party that has come to our official notice in many moons is that given by the 4-year-old son of a neighbor.

"Did you have a good time at the party?" asked the fond mother when the young man returned flushed with excitement from a birthday gathering across the street.

"Oh, yes, Mother, we had a perfectly lovely time."

"But what did you do to have such a lovely time?"

"Oh, we just screamed and screamed."

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By WILLIAM HODGE

WILLIAM HODGE

William Hodge, internationally famous actor-playwright, was born in Albion, N. Y. This means that he is not a New Englander, as most playgoers assume from the characters he portrays.

Born and bred in a family of ministers, young Hodge ran away from home when he was 17, joined a theatrical repertoire company, entered musical comedy and graduated about twenty-seven years ago as a Broadway star. He has since written and played the stellar roles in eight dramatic productions.

"My favorite or most up-to-date joke, or whatever you wish to call it," Hodge told me, "happened in Boston a few days ago.

"I was out walking with Rack, the dog we use in my current play, when a stout old lady stopped me by standing directly in front of me and fairly shouting:

"'Oh, Mr. Hodge, I never would have recognized you if it hadn't been for the dog. He looks just the same off the stage as he does on.'

"'Perhaps,' I suggested, 'that is because I use make-up while on the stage. The dog does not.'

"'Well, anyhow,' the woman went on, 'I knew you as soon as I saw you with the dog, because you two just seem to be related to each other.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

FOOD MINERALS (Part 1)

Mineral elements have been neglected by the older school of dietitians, but recent investigations have proven that though only used in small quantities, mineral elements are essential to life itself. Thinking that it might be interesting to my readers, I have decided to give a list of these elements and their uses, together with the foods which contain the largest amounts of each.

Some of these minerals, as they are found in the chemical shop, are exceedingly poisonous, but after they have been absorbed and made use of by plants, some changes take place in their structure and they become useful elements. While every natural, unrefined food contains all of these elements in some proportion, it is convenient for dietetic purposes to group those together which are richest in special elements. It would be well to clip out this and the following article for reference.

Phosphorus is a stimulator of growth and activity. This tendency must be curbed by the presence of sulphur and alkaline elements or there will be a tendency to tumors, irritability, and bony exudates. Some phosphorus is essential to the thinking processes. This does not mean that you can eat phosphorus and develop an enormous brain any more than eating meat will develop enormous muscles. Only the actual work of thinking can make the brain use phosphorus. The foods which are richest in phosphorus are kale, bran, liver, truffles, radishes, pumpkin, pike, cucumbers, cheese, swiss chard, lettuce and egg yolk.

Sulphur is an intestinal antiseptic, and it gives the skin and hair a luxuriant pliability. It acts as a brake or damper to the oxidation of phosphorus in the body and in this way preserves the nervous vitality. The absence of sulphur leads to irritability, nervousness, insanity, tumors, and some skin disorders. The foods which are richest in sulphur are watercress, kale, Brussel's sprouts, horse-radish, spinach, raspberries, string beans, cabbage and turnips.

Silicon is used in the formation of the muscles, blood, nerves, skin, hair and nails. It forms a sort of tissue framework, and a lack of it causes falling hair, brittle nails, softened teeth, and possibly diabetes. Since silicon is found mostly in the skins of fruits and the bran of cereals, one may deprive one's self of this valuable element by discarding these parts. Silicon is found in asparagus, cucumbers, lettuce, bran, dandelion, parsnips, fruit skins, strawberries and beets.

Chlorine increases the body's resistance to tissue parasites and is necessary for the digestion and assimilation of protein. A lack of it may result in uremic poisoning and indigestion. It is found in quantities in oysters, cheese, lettuce, egg whites, spinach, celery, parsnips, cabbage, radishes and whey.

Iodine is used by the thyroid gland to form thyroxin which regulates body metabolism. The medicated iodine treatment is based upon the fact that crude iodine is a gland atrophier. The danger of its administration is that an atrophy of other body glands may result. Many cases of sterility can be traced to this. By taking iodine as it is found in food, this danger is averted. The foods richest in iodine are grey shrimp, crab, lobster, herring, oysters, carrots, green limas, pineapple, mushrooms and kelp.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mrs. P. writes: "Please advise me what to do to help my mother who is 72 years old. The doctors say it is just old age, but she is failing so fast. I feel something could be done to give her back her strength, at least so she could walk around the house unsupported. She has no fever, but very little appetite, and oftentimes would not eat anything unless almost forced to do so."

Answer: Let your mother have her way about not eating much. Just prepare the proper kinds of food for her and she will eat enough if she is really hungry. If she follows your urging to eat when she is not hungry, you will only be forcing her to do something which will shorten her life.

Question: E. S. J. asks: "What kind of vegetables, meats, fruits and pastries can one eat who has ulcer of the stomach and intestinal gas? Will the same diet correct constipation?"

Answer: If you really have an ulcer of the stomach, milk is the only food you should be using until all signs of the ulcer disappear. Then your diet should consist of well balanced combinations such as I recommend in my weekly health menus. The same kind of foods properly used will correct constipation.

Question: Earnest asks: "Will you tell me the cause of a cracking when I move my head and neck, and how to cure it?"

Answer: The cracking noise is caused by ligaments slipping back into their proper places. This is because the ligaments are either too short or too long. They become short because of the contraction of muscles, and too long because of straining, such as holding the head in a faulty position. Persistent exercise of the neck muscles will correct the trouble.

Crowds Disappointed By Lakes Recession

Crowds, which last week were going to Lake Wichita to see if the water was running over the spillway, were out again in force Sunday. The waters have sought a lower level, however, and those who expected to see the water flow over the spillway were disappointed.

The cement crossway on the Archer City road at the lower end of the lake and just a few feet away from the spillway was partially filled with water, but it was not running and did not represent the level of the lake, which, according to Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the water department, is now gradually going down.

Concrete Pouring In Tipton Starts Soon

Special to The Record News

TIPTON, Okla., June 24.—Charles Wick, of the Frederick Construction company, and construction superintendent of the Tipton paving job, announced that the work of pouring concrete in District No. 1 is to start Saturday. Paving in this district is to be completed by July 15, according to the contract. The district includes the six blocks from the center of the intersection of Sixth street, east to the east line of Main. The work has been delayed for some time while new machinery was awaited.

Garment Plant Roof Construction Started

Work on the roof of the Tuf Nut Garment Manufacturing company building has been started, and the completion of other steel and brick work of the building is being rushed.

P. E. McLain, local manager for Tuf Nut said that he was well pleased with the progress, and that August first probably will see the building completed, the machinery installed, and the plant in operation.

FARRELL DEFEATS JONES BY 1 STROKE FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE

JOHNNY VICTOR ON LAST HOLE

Pro Sinks 15-Foot Putt To Win, 143 to 144

By WARREN BROWN

CHICAGO, June 24. (US)—Mr. Universe himself, in the person of Johnny Farrell of Mamoroneck, N. Y., acclaimed the best dressed golfer in America a few days ago, today became the best playing golfer, in the same sweep of territory. The process consisted of playing two rounds of the No. 4 course at Olympia fields, in one stroke less than did Bobby Jones, the Atlanta amateur.

A card of 70-73—143, representing the effort of Mr. Universe, otherwise Johnny Farrell, doesn't look a great deal better than the card of 73-71—144, which was the best, and in fact all that Jones had. But when you come to consider that Farrell, a professional, is now the United States open golf champion, as well as the best dressed one, you'd be surprised just what a great big difference that single stroke made.

This playoff today the third in which Jones has found himself in his gay young career, was nothing more nor less than a battle, all the way. Even at the last green, when Bobby chipped up within a foot of the pin, for an almost certain birdie 4, and Farrell was 15 feet away for the same sort of an under par scoring, Johnny not only had to fight, but did fight—and how.

Johnny lined that putt up, and paused, while one of the badge wearers of the U. S. G. A. spoke in severe tones to a flock of camera men in the neighboring trees. He lined it up again and he rammed the 15-footer straight for the cup, and into it.

No Argument About Dress

Jones, a rather tired looking figure, in white, sweaterless, and sans necktie, arose from a crouch, and extended his hand to the new champion, Mr. Universe himself.

There wasn't any argument about the matter of dress, between Mr. Universe, and Bobby, especially during the afternoon round, when the amateur, three strokes to the bad after a blistering finish of four birdies by Farrell, started out to regain the title, which he hadn't held for a year.

Bobby was out to play golf, and nothing else. He did outplay Johnny in the afternoon's stroking, as the respective cards of 36-35—71 and 37-36—73 would indicate. But when in dire straits, Johnny called on his irons, or his putter, and struggle though he might, the best that Bobby ever got, was to be all even on five occasions, and one stroke in the lead at the twelfth, of the afternoon.

That advantage was of short duration, for Farrell evened it up again at the next hole, kept it that way until the sixteenth, all but scored an ace there, to take the lead, and the title never again changed hands.

Jones Gaines

Starting off his chase after Farrell in the afternoon, Bobby required no more than two holes to even it up. He gained back two strokes at the first, when Farrell was wild to the green, and took three putts on it. He picked up the odd stroke at the second, when Johnny took another cluster of three putts, and some of the wisecrackers in the gallery announced that someone had committed a grave error at noontime, in telling Johnny that it was Jones he was playing, that fellow Jones.

This was wise to all who didn't know Mr. Universe.

At the third hole, where Bobby had trouble in the morning, he had as much in the afternoon, taking three putts, after missing the green with his approach, and landing on the slope, leading up to it.

Mr. Universe played the hole as the book says it should be played and was two strokes to the good when he registered his par 4.

Bobby hauled back one of those strokes at the fifth, with a one-putt green, and grabbed off the other one at the seventh, with par 4 figures. Farrell being decidedly weak with his second shot, towards the green.

Bobby bogged down considerably at the ninth, right in front of the lazy members of the gallery, who preferred to sit there and make the play come to them, rather than go out on the course, and duck rain drops and flying feet of gallerites and the marshals who were enjoying for the first, and possibly the only time, whatever authority and distinction there is in wearing badges.

Farrell Leads 2 Strokes

Bobby put his tee shot down the middle of the fairway, and some one said that it was the first time in the round he had been that straight. But he stuck the next one in a trap at the right, and got out with about as much grace as Dempsey got back in the ring that time the wild bull of the Pampas punched him out of it. Three putts, each one slightly better than its predecessor, gave Bobby a 6 for the hole, and Mr. Universe started on the final nine, two strokes to the good.

It was reported, reliably enough, that Mr. Universe spoke, for the first time in the match.

"That's just the break I need," he said. "He'll never catch me now."

Funny remark to make. Mr. Universe ought to know that fellow Jones better than that.

Just two holes later, the match was all even again, two par fours being better than Farrell's pair of fives, one caused by a slice into the rough, the other by a soak into a trap, and a few other odds and ends of golfing misfortune.

This strict observance of par by Jones continued through the next, which was the 12th, Farrell overshooting the green, and rolling down the bank, near a water pipe, and some casual water. Here Johnny called on the U. S. G. A. for help, and the U. S. G. A. heard his plea, permitting him to drop out without penalty. It was the second time in the round that he had received a U. S. G. A. huddle and each time, his request was granted.

At the second in the morning round, he put the ball a foot away from a tree that had recently been planted in the rough. The soil was very soft, and Johnny wanted to know what would happen if there had been a wire about the tree, as there was about another sapling, not far away.

U. S. G. A. Rules Again

There wasn't any wire about the the original tree, but the U. S. G. A. visualized some, and permitted Johnny to lift out of that trouble, too.

Returning to that twelfth in the afternoon, and forgetting, if one can, the U. S. G. A.'s first aid didn't keep Jones from another par, or Farrell from another five, and Atlanta rejoiced for the first time, in a day that was beginning to get very-very long.

It was something of a novelty to find Jones in the lead, and novelties are never lasting. So all Mr. Universe did was stick a tee shot at the thirteenth, less than a foot from the pin, and get himself a deuce, which is slightly better, in a 130-yard drag, than the Jones' par three.

There, you see, the blame thing was squared again, and there it remained, until the next hole, which happened to be the sixteenth, came along to prove the ruination of that fellow Jones. His smack off the tee overran the green, and lit in the rough, behind it. His recovery was weak, and two putts were carded to score five. Farrell, well on from the tee, got his regulation three, and though both putted miraculously to get birdie threes at the next hole, that one stroke advantage remained, as they turned for the home green, and the end of as perfect a golfing day as any of these numerous playoffs have ever disclosed. Sheldon's 77 Tops All-City Golf; Norton and Davis Score Second 78

Record Entry of 110 Comprises Five Flights; Match Play Starts Tomorrow; Dinner Scheduled Tonight

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Shooting a consistent and at times a spectacular game, I. R. Sheldon yesterday turned in medal score in qualifying play in the all-city golf tournament over the Country club course. Sheldon seldom was in difficulty; he was accurate with all clubs and most of his drives were all that was to be desired, to score a low 77.

Morris Norton and Roscoe Davis tied for runnerup with 78. L. R. Smith and J. E. Gill were next with 80 each.

A record entry of 110 qualified for five flights. The course was in superb condition and scores were correspondingly good. The highest qualifying score for the championship flight of 38 was an 85.

Dinner Tonight

Participants in the tournament and all golfers of the city are invited to attend the dinner tonight at the Golf and Country club, at 8 o'clock. Those attending the dinner are urged to make reservation as early as possible today at the Country club. Plates will be $1.

Match play will be started tomorrow, with one round to be played this week and two rounds each following week until the completion of the tourney. All matches will be for 18 holes except the finals of the titular flight, which will be 36.

Parelli Battles Hallas Tuesday

Grapplers Renew Warfare In Ball Park Match

Down in El Paso they're still talking about the "wrasslin' match" between Billy Hallas and Joe Parelli last year. It was a rough and tough affair and both of the boys left the ring convinced of the fact that they had earned their wages for the evening.

Billy and Joe hook up Tuesday night on the card that will be staged by Alec Ross in Spudder park.

Three glove pushin' contests have also been carded by Ross for Tuesday evening for the edification of the customers.

The feature mitt "revue" will be between K. O. Shorty and Tommy Barwise, both featherweights. The bout will go for six stanzas. Shorty a short time ago put up an excellent battle at the Spanish-American War Vetrans show, which was staged by Ross.

Johnny Owens and Alvie Anderson, Wichita Falls welterweights, will do their stuff for six rounds.

A four-round mitt argument between Tommy Allen and Kenneth Adams, lightweights, has also been carded.

Beaumont Cops First, 19-4; Holzhauser Bests Payne

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 24.—Beaumont defeated Wichita Falls in a double header today. The Exporters had a track meet in the opener, winning 19 to 4. Holzhauser bested Payne in the final, 3 to 2.

The Exporters hammered Milt Steengrafe and Tom Estell for 20 hits in the opener and the Spudders contributed four errors to help the scoring of the home nine. Hubbell won as he pleased, through the Spudders touched him for nine hits but after the second inning when his mates tallied five runs for a 6-0 lead the star southpaw never was in danger.

Hanson's home run was the margin by which Beaumont won the nightcap. Holzhauser held the Spudders to five hits while the Exporters made eights blows off Payne.

Both teams scored in the third and the Spudders tallied in the fifth to take the lead. The Exporters scored twice in the seventh and final, to win.

PETTY BLANKS GIANTS, 2 TO 0

Brilliant Fielding Helps Jess' 2-0 Shutout

BROOKLYN, June 24. (AP)—Jess Petty's superb pitching and a flawless infield defense sparkled here today as the Robins defeated the Giants 2 to 0.

Petty held the Giants to six scattered hits and the fast and effective fielding of Dave Bancroft and Harvey Hendrick took care of the rest. Although the field at the start of the game was a morass due to early rains, the only error for either team was Faulkner's wild throw. Score:

30 Tests Spudded In Little River

TULSA, Okla., June 24.—Thirty of the 92 locations in the Little River pool have spudded in, a field check today revealed, and some more wells will spud early next week. These wells should all be completed prior to August 15, when they may be opened up for 1,600 barrels per 40 acre lease under the Seminole field restriction plans. Seminole field after declining to 247,177 barrels a day, registered a 1,146 barrel gain Saturday.

Champagnolle Oil Pool Development Gives Reminders of Smackover Boom

TULSA, June 24.—Reminders of the Smackover boom are found at every hand in El Dorado, oil capital of Arkansas, as a result of the new Champagnolle pool of Union county developing into a major area.

The quest for acreage continues, although the supply of cheap tracts has long been exhausted. Tracts of 2½, 5, 7½, 10, 15, 30, 40 and other sizes are eagerly gobbled up and various sorts of drilling deals are made. Some fancy prices have been paid and it is reported that higher prices may yet be paid for choice parcels.

As the third and deep sand there, locally termed the Gregory, is the main horizon, and is penetrated by rotary, failures in one or two directions do not mean as much as it would be in a standard tool country. Therefore the operators are centering their search to the south and southwest, although wildcatting is on in several other directions.

It is too early to state how large or small Champagnolle may be, but at this time its promoters figure its potentialities indicate its output can reach 100,000 barrels a day, possibly more, when the 76 tests now drilling are in, after which a second tier of tests will start.

FARRELL DEFEATS JONES BY 1 STROKE FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE

JOHNNY VICTOR ON LAST HOLE

Pro Sinks 15-Foot Putt To Win, 143 to 144

By WARREN BROWN

CHICAGO, June 24. (US)—Mr. Universe himself, in the person of Johnny Farrell of Mamoroneck, N. Y., acclaimed the best dressed golfer in America a few days ago, today became the best playing golfer, in the same sweep of territory. The process consisted of playing two rounds of the No. 4 course at Olympia fields, in one stroke less than did Bobby Jones, the Atlanta amateur.

A card of 70-73—143, representing the effort of Mr. Universe, otherwise Johnny Farrell, doesn't look a great deal better than the card of 73-71—144, which was the best, and in fact all that Jones had. But when you come to consider that Farrell, a professional, is now the United States open golf champion, as well as the best dressed one, you'd be surprised just what a great big difference that single stroke made.

This playoff today, the third in which Jones has found himself in his gay young career, was nothing more nor less than a battle, all the way. Even at the last green, when Bobby chipped up within a foot of the pin, for an almost certain birdie 4, and Farrell was 15 feet away for the same sort of an under par scoring, Johnny not only had to fight, but did fight—and how.

Johnny lined that putt up, and paused, while one of the badge wearers of the U. S. G. A. spoke in severe tones to a flock of camera men in the neighboring trees. He lined it up again and he rammed the 15-footer straight for the cup, and into it.

No Argument About Dress

Jones, a rather tired looking figure, in white, sweaterless, and sans necktie, arose from a crouch, and extended his hand to the new champion, Mr. Universe himself.

There wasn't any argument about the matter of dress, between Mr. Universe, and Bobby, especially during the afternoon round, when the amateur, three strokes to the bad after a blistering finish of four birdies by Farrell, started out to regain the title, which he hadn't held for a year.

Bobby was out to play golf, and nothing else. He did outplay Johnny in the afternoon's stroking, as the respective cards of 36-35—71 and 37-36—73 would indicate. But when in dire straits, Johnny called on his irons, or his putter, and struggle though he might, the best that Bobby ever got, was to be all even on five occasions, and one stroke in the lead at the twelfth, of the afternoon.

That advantage was of short duration, for Farrell evened it up again at the next hole, kept it that way until the sixteenth, all but scored an ace there, to take the lead, and the title never again changed hands.

Jones Gaines

Starting off his chase after Farrell in the afternoon, Bobby required no more than two holes to even it up. He gained back two strokes at the first, when Farrell was wild to the green, and took three putts on it. He picked up the odd stroke at the second, when Johnny took another cluster of three putts, and some of the wisecrackers in the gallery announced that someone had committed a grave error at noontime, in telling Johnny that it was Jones he was playing, that fellow Jones.

This was wise to all who didn't know Mr. Universe.

At the third hole, where Bobby had trouble in the morning, he had as much in the afternoon, taking three putts, after missing the green with his approach, and landing on the slope, leading up to it.

Mr. Universe played the hole as the book says it should be played and was two strokes to the good when he registered his par 4.

Bobby hauled back one of those strokes at the fifth, with a one-putt green, and grabbed off the other one at the seventh, with par 4 figures, Farrell being decidedly weak with his second shot, towards the green.

Bobby bogged down considerably at the ninth, right in front of the lazy members of the gallery, who preferred to sit there and make the play come to them, rather than go out on the course, and duck rain drops and flying feet of gallerites and the marshals who were enjoying for the first, and possibly the only time, whatever authority and distinction there is in wearing badges.

Farrell Leads 2 Strokes

Bobby put his tee shot down the middle of the fairway, and some one said that it was the first time in the round he had been that straight. But he stuck the next one in a trap at the right, and got out with about as much grace as Dempsey got back in the ring that time the wild bull of the Pampas punched him out of it. Three putts, each one slightly better than its predecessor, gave Bobby a 6 for the hole, and Mr. Universe started on the final nine, two strokes to the good.

It was reported, reliably enough, that Mr. Universe spoke, for the first time in the match.

"That's just the break I need," he said. "He'll never catch me now."

Funny remark to make. Mr. Universe ought to know that fellow Jones better than that.

Just two holes later, the match was all even again, two par fours being better than Farrell's pair of fives, one caused by a slice into the rough, the other by a soak into a trap, and a few other odds and ends of golfing misfortune.

This strict observance of par by Jones continued through the next, which was the 12th, Farrell overshooting the green, and rolling down the bank, near a water pipe, and some casual water. Here Johnny called on the U. S. G. A. for help, and the U. S. G. A. heard his plea, permitting him to drop out without penalty. It was the second time in the round that he had received a U. S. G. A. huddle and each time, his request was granted.

At the second in the morning round, he put the ball a foot away from a tree that had recently been planted in the rough. The soil was very soft, and Johnny wanted to know what would happen if there had been a wire about the tree, as there was about another sapling, not far away.

U. S. G. A. Rules Again

There wasn't any wire about the the original tree, but the U. S. G. A. visualized some, and permitted Johnny to lift out of that trouble, too.

Returning to that twelfth in the afternoon, and forgetting, if one can, the U. S. G. A.'s first aid didn't keep Jones from another par, or Farrell from another five, and Atlanta rejoiced for the first time, in a day that was beginning to get very-very long.

It was something of a novelty to find Jones in the lead, and novelties are never lasting. So all Mr. Universe did was stick a tee shot at the thirteenth, less than a foot from the pin, and get himself a deuce, which is slightly better, in a 130-yard drag, than the Jones' par three.

There, you see, the blame thing was squared again, and there it remained, until the next hole, which happened to be the sixteenth, came along to prove the ruination of that fellow Jones. His smack off the tee overran the green, and lit in the rough, behind it. His recovery was weak, and two putts were carded to score five. Farrell, well on from the tee, got his regulation three, and though both putted miraculously to get birdie threes at the next hole, that one stroke advantage remained, as they turned for the home green, and the end of as perfect a golfing day as any of these numerous playoffs have ever disclosed. WACO, Texas, June 24. (AP)—In two stormy ball games featured by the hitting of Ziggy Sears of Shreveport the Cubs and Sports split a double bill today, the Sports taking the first 8 to 5 in the tenth, the Cubs winning the second 6 to 5. Sears hit safely the first seven times at bat, his five hits in the first game winning that contest. Barnabee saved the second game for the Cubs. Score:

Record Entry of 110 Comprises Five Flights; Match Play Starts Tomorrow; Dinner Scheduled Tonight

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Shooting a consistent and at times a spectacular game, I. R. Sheldon yesterday turned in medal score in qualifying play in the all-city golf tournament over the Country club course. Sheldon seldom was in difficulty; he was accurate with all clubs and most of his drives were all that was to be desired, to score a low 77.

Morris Norton and Roscoe Davis tied for runnerup with 78. L. R. Smith and J. E. Gill were next with 80 each.

A record entry of 110 qualified for five flights. The course was in superb condition and scores were correspondingly good. The highest qualifying score for the championship flight of 38 was an 85.

Dinner Tonight

Participants in the tournament and all golfers of the city are invited to attend the dinner tonight at the Golf and Country club, at 8 o'clock. Those attending the dinner are urged to make reservation as early as possible today at the Country club. Plates will be $1.

Match play will be started tomorrow, with one round to be played this week and two rounds each following week until the completion of the tourney. All matches will be for 18 holes except the finals of the titular flight, which will be 36.

Parelli Battles Hallas Tuesday

Grapplers Renew Warfare In Ball Park Match

Down in El Paso they're still talking about the "wrasslin' match" between Billy Hallas and Joe Parelli last year. It was a rough and tough affair and both of the boys left the ring convinced of the fact that they had earned their wages for the evening.

Billy and Joe hook up Tuesday night on the card that will be staged by Alec Ross in Spudder park.

Three glove pushin' contests have also been carded by Ross for Tuesday evening for the edification of the customers.

The feature mitt "revue" will be between K. O. Shorty and Tommy Barwise, both featherweights. The bout will go for six stanzas. Shorty a short time ago put up an excellent battle at the Spanish-American War Vetrans show, which was staged by Ross.

Johnny Owens and Alvie Anderson, Wichita Falls welterweights, will do their stuff for six rounds.

A four-round mitt argument between Tommy Allen and Kenneth Adams, lightweights, has also been carded.

EXPORTERS WIN 2 FROM SPUDS

Beaumont Cops First, 19-4; Holzhauser Bests Payne

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 24.—Beaumont defeated Wichita Falls in a double header today. The Exporters had a track meet in the opener, winning 19 to 4. Holzhauser bested Payne in the final, 3 to 2.

The Exporters hammered Milt Steengrafe and Tom Estell for 20 hits in the opener and the Spudders contributed four errors to help the scoring of the home nine. Hubbell won as he pleased, through the Spudders touched him for nine hits but after the second inning when his mates tallied five runs for a 6-0 lead the star southpaw never was in danger.

Hanson's home run was the margin by which Beaumont won the nightcap. Holzhauser held the Spudders to five hits while the Exporters made eights blows off Payne.

Both teams scored in the third and the Spudders tallied in the fifth to take the lead. The Exporters scored twice in the seventh and final, to win.

PETTY BLANKS GIANTS, 2 TO 0

Brilliant Fielding Helps Jess' 2-0 Shutout

BROOKLYN, June 24. (AP)—Jess Petty's superb pitching and a flawless infield defense sparkled here today as the Robins defeated the Giants 2 to 0.

Petty held the Giants to six scattered hits and the fast and effective fielding of Dave Bancroft and Harvey Hendrick took care of the rest. Although the field at the start of the game was a morass due to early rains, the only error for either team was Faulkner's wild throw. Score:

30 Tests Spudded In Little River

TULSA, Okla., June 24.—Thirty of the 92 locations in the Little River pool have spudded in, a field check today revealed, and some more wells will spud early next week. These wells should all be completed prior to August 15, when they may be opened up for 1,600 barrels per 40 acre lease under the Seminole field restriction plans. Seminole field after declining to 247,177 barrels a day, registered a 1,146 barrel gain Saturday.

Champagnolle Oil Pool Development Gives Reminders of Smackover Boom

TULSA, June 24.—Reminders of the Smackover boom are found at every hand in El Dorado, oil capital of Arkansas, as a result of the new Champagnolle pool of Union county developing into a major area.

The quest for acreage continues, although the supply of cheap tracts has long been exhausted. Tracts of 2½, 5, 7½, 10, 15, 30, 40 and other sizes are eagerly gobbled up and various sorts of drilling deals are made. Some fancy prices have been paid and it is reported that higher prices may yet be paid for choice parcels.

As the third and deep sand there, locally termed the Gregory, is the main horizon, and is penetrated by rotary, failures in one or two directions do not mean as much as it would be in a standard tool country. Therefore the operators are centering their search to the south and southwest, although wildcatting is on in several other directions.

It is too early to state how large or small Champagnolle may be, but at this time its promoters figure its potentialities indicate its output can reach 100,000 barrels a day, possibly more, when the 76 tests now drilling are in, after which a second tier of tests will start.

AUTOMATIC SAND TESTER

MR. OIL OPERATOR:
Have you used the PARKER AUTOMATIC SAND TESTER? Can convince you what your sand will make before casing. Satisfactory test positively guaranteed—will work where others fail. Have made many successful tests for others, why not for you?
Tester may be seen at 417 Staley building. Call me on your next well.

WOMAN ONLY FISH DOCTOR

Dr. Ida Mellen Ferrets Fish Ailments

By CLARK KINNAIRD
Staff Writer for Central Press and Record News

NEW YORK, June 24.—Only one woman in the world practices the profession of physician and surgeon to fishes, and her original researches in ichthyology (the branch of zoology that treats of fishes) are clearing up some ancient mysteries.

"Doctor" Ida Mellen of the New York aqarium, the largest in America, has a national practice, for she receives requests for treatment of ailing fish from all over the country. Long distance calls from Pennsylvania, or Connecticut, or Rhode Island, from the anxious owner of a turtle or goldfish are no novelty to Miss Mellen.

Concerning Fish Ills

She has found that fish are heir to much the same ills as are humans. They suffer from tuberculosis, cancer, cold (from getting wet, mayhap), dropsy, eye troubles, indigestion, skin troubles that yeast would relieve, wounds, and a number of bacterial ailments. And they have nervous prostration, too.

One of Miss Mellen's most interesting patients was a rare barbel, brought in by its puzzled owner. He chased madly around the tank, as if being pursued. It developed that the barbel had been kept in a tank with other fish, and that he had given signs of being displeased with his neighbors. Plainly he had worked himself up into a fret; there were no symptons of organic troubles. Miss Mellen prescribed rest and quiet. The barbel was kept in seclusion, and in two days was normal. Separated permanently from objectionable company, he thrived.

Even Fish Have Operations

Miss Mellen is particularly proud of having saved the life of a specimen, a lung-breathing fish, which had been transported in health across the Atlantic twice—from Brazil to London, and thence to New York—only to catch bronchitis in Battery park.

She frequently has to operate on a patient to remove a tumor or relieve an obstruction. For colds in the head and nose, bronchitis and such, she gives castor oil. She puts the oil in a small tank and forces them to bathe in it. They hate it like children. For indigestion she administers epsom salts. Tumors that do not require an operation, she treats with hot water and iodine. Thirty-eight distinct diseases of fish have been discovered, and 35 efficacious treatments found. Miss Mellen is the compiler of the first published contribution to zoopathologica on treatment of fish diseases.

One other woman does some work along the lines of Miss Mellon's. This is Dr. Emmaline Moore, investigator in fish culture, New York state conservation department.

Construction Plans Necessitate Removals

Following the purchase he sold the east lot to G. W. Metcalf, and Mr. Metcalf will move his restaurant building, and the building occupied by the Harry Carter barber shop to this lot, making room for the building which will be erected by Mr. Smith.

Mr. Smith plans to erect a brick building 25x65 feet, and work on it will start at once.

Pecos Forgets False Boom of Past As Oil Assures Worthwhile Growth

PECOS, June 24.—The discovery of oil in Southwest Texas has created a marked change in every town in that section of the state, but Pecos is unquestionably one of the outstanding examples of what oil as an elixir can do for a city.

Just eight years ago this city passed through one of the most hectic periods in her history. Thousands of people crowded into the city and caused an inflation so great that it took years to recover from the false boom it proved to be. To give greater poignancy to the financial situation the cattlemen experienced the worst depression in the history of that industry and Pecos, the banking center of a large area, carried a load that at times almost crushed her.

Old Fight Forgotten

It took years to beat back but the achievements of one shore year in a large measure erases from the minds of the citizens of Pecos the battle they fought against almost insuperable odds.

Discovery of the Westbook well in 1926, in Winkler county, 27 miles airline from Pecos, marked the turn of the tide in her fortunes, and dating from that epochal event the former capital of three counties started to move forward with strides that will take her a long ways before another year rolls by.

As a birthright Pecos had a great farming belt through irrigation obtained from the Pecos river and many springs that flow in that area. Its potentiality in that respect is vast and growing rapidly every succeeding year. The return of the cattleman to the range is also a factor in the present growth of the city, but it took oil to start the fastest growth ever experienced since the incorporation of the town.

For a time increase in population far outstripped accommodations, but as soon as the citizens realized that this was a boom of a more healthy complexion, and not a "duster," such as the 1920 affair, they put their shoulders behind a building movement and today the recently adopted slogan of the chamber of commerce is "The home town of West Texas."

A recent survey of the city show the following achievements:

Postal receipts in the past 18 months have doubled. Express receipts have trebled, as have bank receipts.

$150,000 Hotel

Six brick business buildings are under construction, which include a hotel to cost $150,000, two garages costing $25,000 each, and office building estimated at $60,000 and a 16-apartment house.

Oil scouts and field men of the large companies found Pecos the largest town and with the best accommodations at the time of the discovery of the Winkler pool. It was natural for them to select a place where they could move their families and where they could live in comparative comfort and place their children in good graded schools. This movemegt has been continued to the present time and as a result over 100 homes have been built in the past ten months.

As the city found itself civic pride entered into the scheme of things and as a result of this awakening a bond issue was passed and a paving contract let that will pave 16 city blocks at a cost of $115,000. In addition to this another bond issue was voted and passed last May to build another school building to cost $60,000. This will give ample school room for the new population, for the time at least.

Plans are under way for piping soft water into Pecos from a supply said to be sufficient for a city of 150,000 persons.

A good, strong anchor looking toward continuance of the present prosperity is the fact that Pecos will have a large payroll in the near future. One refinery, the Burford Oil company, is now breaking ground for a refinery to cost $750,000. The Skelley Oil company has just completed a 33-mile pipe line from the Winkler field and will build loading racks near the city limits. Dependent on production in certain areas Lockhart and company will erect a second refinery.

Not to be outdone by any of the leading southwest towns Pecos has constructed a landing field for aeroplanes and will be a control stop in the transcontinental air races next September.

Four railroads strike out on the four points of the compass from this city, two of them being transcontinental lines. Daily bus service has been inaugurated from Pecos to Carlsbad cavern, due to the heavy traffic from here to that new wonder of the world.

Realizing the potentiality of southeastern New Mexico as an oil field Pecos has spent several thousand dollars on a road leading to Jal. As conditions warrant more money will be available for that route and will be subscribed wholly or in part by Pecos business men. Pecos is the largest town of any consequence nearest to Jal, and is just 20 miles from the Lovington field.

Oil once an execrated word in Pecos is now the magic word on all tongues and has staged a comeback that will not be denied.

It was Mrs. Coolidge's first appearance at church. She seemed to be completely recovered from the illness that for a time looked serious, and she gave the hundred-odd people crowded into the church a most gracious greeting. She wore a tailored suit, faun hat and a bright-colored scarf.

Chaney Scores In Majestic Picture

By The Record News Critic

Holding the interest of the audience from the start to the finish, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," which opened Sunday at the Majestic theater, is one of the best motion pictures ever presented with Lon Chaney in the leading role.

Pathos and humor serve to bring out the dramatic ability of Chaney to the best advantage.

The plot of the play is based on circus life. It is the story of a clown who falls in love with a tight rope walker, many years his junior.

The ending of the picture is unusual and holds the viewers breathless as the scene is enacted.

Chaney is supported by an excellent cast which to a great extent is responsible for the successful presentation of the drama, which was a hit on the speaking stage before it was filmed.

Houston Ready For Democrat Hordes

HOUSTON, June 24. (US)—A gala city in jubilee clothes today extended its hearty handclasp to the fast arriving hordes of democracy.

Practically all the big state delegations either have reached the convention city, or will arrive in the early hours of the morning.

Committees met the incoming delegates, bands blared forth greetings to the "leaders" and Houston did her stuff in exhibiting just what they mean out here by southwestern hospitality.

The city is gaily decorated, its buildings and streets debecked with flags and bunting.

All is in readiness for the big show which is to open Tuesday.

Mrs. Nat Grafton's Sister Dies Sunday

Funeral services will be held at the Waxahachie Central Presbyterian church at 4 o'clock, Monday afternoon.

Thieves Get Little In Series of Raids

Burglars and thieves were active in Wichita Falls Saturday and Sunday nights, according to reports received by police. Their hauls were limited, however.

H. V. Fitzgerald, 1634 Huff, reported loss of $10 in nickels and quarters from the Huff Street Grocery store Sunday night. The burglars entered the store through a window.

Leo Voss, 709 Walker, reported theft of a motorcycle Saturday night.

The C. H. Parker store at 606 Jefferson was entered sometime Saturday night and about 10 cartons of cigarets and a cash box containing a deed and insurance policies were taken from the safe, which had not been locked. The cash register was abandoned by the burglars at the rear of the store after they had unsuccessfully tried to pry it open.

MONEY EXPERT CAUSES TALK

Question Arises On Actual Benefits to U. S.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 24. (US)—America's new preeminence as a creditor nation raises the question whether a leading nation heigthens the welfare of its own people by exporting capital.

Recently labor leaders, with their eye on domestic unemployment, have expressed the belief that surplus funds ought to be invested at home to broaden opportunities for employment.

New Financial Career

Irrespective of academic answers to this question, America has embarked on a new career of financial imperialism, and is playing a key role in the post war economic reconstruction of former belligerents and in the modernization of more backward non-European countries. Apart from the $10,000,000,000 advanced during the war and immediately after the armistice by the United States treasury to the war associates, the loans have been made through private investment channels, with very informal government supervision. The state department has asked bankers to submit proposed foreign loans so that the government might have an opportunity to express objection to projects that came into conflict with the major diplomatic objectives of Washington.

As a foreign lender, America is a newcomer. Great Britain, which before the war held unquestioned primacy as world banker, is steeped in decades of tradition, and yet even on the other side a lively debate is going on concerning the benefits which the lending nation gets. Liberal leaders are inclining toward the viewpoint that unrestricted export of capital may be undesirable.

Three Views

Theodor E. Gregory, professor of economics at the University of London, indulging in a foreign exchange of ideas, at the University of Chicago, last week, pointed out: "Three different schools of thought exist on foreign investments. The first is the traditional and orthodox view that foreign investments are bound up with the whole structure of English economics, and that capital export is necessary for the support of British industries, such as steel.

The second school is the 'Imperialistic-protectionist' group which contends that capital exports should be made to stimulate export of British goods as a matter of deliberate policy. Sanction was given to this view in the trades facilities acts, of 1924 to 1927, which were based on the policy of stimulating export of goods through exports of capital, the British government giving guarantees to pay the principal and interest on loans raised for equipment purchases. This group also contends that capital exports to the rest of the empire particularly should be encouraged.

"Newest of the views to come prominently to the fore has been the 'economic-nationalist' opinion, allied with the traditional party of free trade, the liberals. It can be proved that to leave the direction of investment to private individuals does not always bring the best results; that Great Britain is undersupplied with capital, while the Dominion and the rest of the world are oversupplied at the expense of the United Kingdom."

America's Need

As far as America is concerned, there is need of broader banking statesmanship. Thus far, there has been too much disposition to regard international finance as a mere scramble for commissions on individual underwritings. Foreign observers comment on the zeal of agents of American lenders for the favor of borrowers.

Capital exports should be limited to demonstrable surpluses. Foreign investing, wisely coordinated, helps to bring stability and normal economic growth to the whole world. It can promote trade relationship, and international good feeling. Good will, however, results only from handling of fiancing arrangements; exploitation of the lender with unduly high interest charges breeds resentment.

The American need is to formulate a more general foreign investment policy and philosophy, in place of the present piecemeal system.

For the individual investor, the main problem is the security of a particular issue which he is considering.

If drama consists of a conflict of human wills, apparently a dramatic clash is under way in high British banking quarters. Reginal McKenna, chairman of the Midland bank, imported $30,000,000 in gold from New York evidently for the purpose of easing the British money market, but the Bank of England, not wishing inflation, offset this operation by selling government securities. In this country, no major banking group seems disposed to oppose the federal reserve campaign to discourage stock speculation by making credit dearer.

The government printing office, by far the largest book and job printing plant in the world, is a larger establishment than six of the ten executive departments in the number of employes in Washington and has the largest battery of typesetting machines in the world.

Screen love and lovers will be stronger and of a more viril type if "Screenland," a motion picture journal, is to be believed.

◆ ◆ ◆

"Women are demanding a stronger vintage of conqueror, a more matured masculinity," the book says. "It is all very well for people to talk about government censorship of films, the Brookhart bill, and such, but you girls of America are the real censors. And what you want you get. And it seems just now that you are demanding screen lovers of strong calibre. Women are weary of the raw wine of collegiate youth—the sort who quote the same line of poetry to every complexion of girl."

◆ ◆ ◆

It has been only a few weeks since a demand was made to the Wichita Falls city council for a more stringent censorship on films. The effect of the present day films was condemned, and a board of censors demanded. Since the night the demand was made, nothing more has been heard of it.

Demands of this kind are generally quite useless and are repeated from time to time. The public gets what it wants at the shows, and won't go to the shows it doesn't happen to like. It indicates by attendance what kind of shows it likes, and little remains but for the producers to present the kinds of shows demanded.

◆ ◆ ◆

All dressed up in their "Sunday best," the folks went to the Majestic theater to see Lon Chaney in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." It is impossible to tell what everyone thought of it. To begin with we don't like this name. Lon Chaney is a heck of a name for a poor man to have to carry around; don't you think it is? In the second place his work in this picture is marvelous. He can't help either of these things unless he changes his name and starts to do intentionally bad acting. Chaney's character portrayel is always good whether you like it or not. The show itself is not as good as the actor, and it bears merely a resemblance to "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." David Belasco's famed play of the legitimate stage, from which it was taken. Whether the director, whose name is listed as Tom Brenon, or the girl tried to rewrite it for the screen, Elizabeth Meehan, is to blame is immaterial. It is a queer thing that some people will insist on changing something that is already good, when they take an awful chance of ruining it. However, the basic idea of the play is so gripping, and the work of Chaney so excellent that this may well be overlooked. "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" is truly an unusual play.

◆ ◆ ◆

The paragraph preceeding this one starts out in a peculiar manner, but in reading it one must remember that "Slightly Used" is the name of the film.

◆ ◆ ◆

Monday is the last day of "Wyoming," starring Tim McCoy at the Olympic.

◆ ◆ ◆

A real show is coming to the Olympic Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. It is George K. Arthur and Lois Wilson in "The Gingham Girl." This is the film version of the great little "bluebird" musical comedy that swept the country a short time ago.

FIRST HOLLIS WHEAT SOLD

Rufe Graves Brings In Initial Load

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., June 24.—To Rufe Graves goes the credit for marketing the first wheat at Hollis for the year of 1928. Mr. Graves lives on one of Dr. Hopkins farms, northwest of Hollis, and the wheat was brought in Monday. It was cut and threshed by the Jimmy Ware combine. There was small acreage, and the yield was very light, about five bushels to the acre. The test was 56, which makes the wheat grade No. 3. It brought $1.20 per bushel.

The Kite combine is working on the Charley Jones farm, southwest of Hollis, and some of that wheat has been marketed. It is considerably better than the Graves wheat, and it estimated to make ten bushels to the acre. It has been sold to the Hendricks and Scruggs elevator for $1.25. It tests 59. Mr. Jones has 90 acres of wheat. The wheat in Harmon county is being cut for $2.50 an acre and threshed for 10 cents per bushel.

Tractor Victor Over Old School Walls

The old Wichita Falls high school which dynamite failed to budge two weeks ago, has fallen a victim of a little Ford tractor.

Hitched to a tree in the Austin school ground, this little iron horse tugged at long cables which were looped around first one section of the wall and then another.

The walls are all down to the foundations, and the workmen are busy clearing the lower foundations and also salvaging the good bricks. Several large stacks of bricks already have been piled.

Foundation stones of the old building, the historic old bell which in days gone by called many of today's leading citizens to school, and other portions of the old building will be used in a monument which will mark the spot of Wichita Falls first brick school.

FINAL TOUCHES ON BIG HANGAR

Municipal Port Building Nearly Finished

The big hangar of the Wichita Falls municipal airport at Kell field is practically completed, and the final touches will be put on either Monday or Tuesday, according to airport officials.

This hangar is made entirely of steel and is 110 feet by 83 feet. It has an inside clearance to accomodate an airplane 18 feet high.

The steel trusses support a steel roof, and the end trusses carry sliding doors. The hangar will care for the largest planes in use in America today, and is one of the few in the country that will admit such planes as the Royal Air truck and the Texas company ship, both of which visited Wichita Falls recently.

Plans for the formal opening of the airport July 4, are being rushed, according to C. W. Cahoon, Jr., president of the airport.

"The chamber of commerce has invited planes here to represent a number of cities in this part of the country," Mr. Cahoon said. "We have assurances that a national guard air unit will be here for the celebration.

"The field itself is being put in shape, and is rapidly nearing the point where it will be a perfect place for taking off and landing of ships of all kinds. We are pointing to the opening, and in advance wish to invite all of Wichita Falls to prepare for the celebration and to spend at least a part of the Fourth of July at Kell field."
