The Fourth War Loan Drive is now in its final stage, and there is just one more day remaining before the drive ends. A check of the bond sales made up to early this morning (Monday) shows that Dawson County citizens have bought approximately $587,879.00 worth of bonds. But we still lack $204,121.00 meeting out $792,000 quota.

Have you bought enough War Bonds?

There is no such thing as enough for a soldier at the fighting front.

SPARENBERG BOND FIGURES CORRECTED

A survey made today (Monday) by A. G. Barkowsky, chairman of Sparenberg's Fourth War Loan Drive, shows that Sparenberg Community has sold $40,495.50 War Bonds thus far. This community has almost reached the $49,900.00 quota assessed them for the Fourth War Loan.

He must never stop. In the midst of a furious battle, a soldier can not lay down his arms and decide he has done enough.

He must and does go on—and so must we on the home front. We must continue to buy bonds. Many of us must purchase another bond even if we imagine we have purchased all we can afford. What are you giving when you loan your money in comparison to what they are giving?

The Fourth War Loan quota has been geared to meet the cost of the rising tempo of war—a tempo which will increase as invasion spreads over our far-flung battle fronts, demanding more planes, tanks, guns, ships, food, and equipment for our fighting men. Between 5 and 12 tons of equipment must accompany every American soldier overseas. In addition, approximately one and one-half tons of food, clothing and other supplies must be transported monthly to maintain one man in the combat zone. You have an urgent task to keep these supplies moving by buying more War Bonds.

Buy another War Bond today, and help Dawson County meet its Fourth War Loan Quota. The county is nearing its quota but there is still some intensive buying that must be done, to put us "over the top." The government is asking us to buy at least one extra $100 war bond, in order to hasten the end of the war and to bring the boys home again.

Increased Profits By Marketing Practices Shown

Technique in marketing farm products often has much bearing on profits as technique in producing the saleable item.

Baker Duke, an FFA student at Mesquite, Dallas County, learned this recently when he began to sell dressed pork on the Dallas County Homemakers' Market.

The Duke family had been offered $45 for a hog which had belonged to Baker's older brother who now is somewhere in the Pacific battle zone. But Baker asked his father if he could have the animal dressed out to sell at the Homemakers' Market. His father agreed, provided Baker would pay $50 to his brother for the hog.

On his first market day, Baker sold $97.41 worth of fresh pork plus lard which brought $6.44. Outside the market Baker sold another $5 worth of pork, and next market day, he brought sausage which sold for $9.70. That made his income from the hog $118.55.

Baker's expenses totaled $63.42, including $50 for the hog, $4.40 for the butchering, and $9.02 paid to the market.

So Baker made $55.13 more than if he had sold the hog to the packers, and his brother received an extra $5 as a result of this marketing enterprise.

First Aid For Trees and Shrubs

First aid for thousands of trees and shrubs damaged by recent ice storms over the state is necessary if these plantings are to regain their natural shape and beauty.

Broken branches, split branches, bent branches, and wounds all require different treatment, according to the horticulturist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, where the weight of ice and snow causes branches to break several feet from the body, a form of pruning will help. The hanging limb should be removed at the point of the break. Then select a side branch between the break and the body of the tree and cut the stub off to this point.

Authorities say usually split branches will not "grow back" even though they are tied in place. These should be removed at the body of the tree, and no stubs should be left. All splintered and rough edges should be smoothed off before wound paint is applied.

White or orange shellac makes good wound paint. Or a mixture made by heating together eight to obtain enough products to sell regularly on Saturday as a result of Baker's work, Orene McClellan, Dallas County home demonstration agent, has reported to the home industries specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

Vegetable Seeds To Be Available For Garden Use

Civilian gardeners in the United States, who plant farm and back lot plots, will have for their selection 70.3 per cent of the supply of vegetable seeds allocated for all needs through June 30, 1944. In bulk, this is equivalent to 275,252,000 pounds.

According to information to the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service from the War Food Administration which administers the allocations, an estimated 391,000,000 pounds of seeds are available this year. Of the quantity remaining after providing for civilian needs, 23.5 per cent, or about 99,000,000 pounds have been placed in a contingency reserve to meet emergencies. What is left goes to allies and liberated areas, U. S. Territories, Red Cross, friendly nations, and U. S. Military and war services.

Although certain accustomed varieties may be missing at planting time, WFA officials believe that no domestic gardener will need to be without enough seed.

It is explained that while they are not necessarily the most important, the large or heavy seeds like peas, beans and sweet corn account for more than 263,000,000 pounds of the total allocated to civilian needs. The contingent reserve will take about 92,000,000 pounds of this type, largely seed peas.

Of the small or light seeds, such as beet, cabbage, carrot, lettuce and onion, civilians will receive more than 11,500,000 pounds of the total supply of approximately 25,000,000. Seven million pounds of the remainder have been placed in the reserve.

Indicating the garden seed resources of the nation, WFA explains that in 1943, U. S. seed growers produced the largest crop of vegetable seeds in the history of the country. Comparably it exceeds the average three year (1939-41) pre-Pearl Harbor harvest by 91 per cent. Estimated increases for 1943 as against that base include: carrot 273 per cent; onions 189 per cent; garden beets 53 per cent; spinach 328 per cent and cucumber 135 per cent.

Feed Dairy Cows Well In Dry Period

To be in good condition at freshening a dairy cow should get all of the roughage she will eat during the dry period.

Dairy husbandmen of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service say that a cow which has been well fed during lactation will require little concentrated feed while dry. If she hasn't been well fed and is thin upon going dry, usually two to five pounds daily of the grain ration being fed the milking herd along with the roughage, and pasture, if available, will put her in flesh at freshening.

To prepare for the approaching drain upon her body minerals, a dry cow should be provided, free choice, with plenty of lime and phosphorus, the two minerals required in largest quantity for building the calf's body and in milk. The minerals may be supplied by mixing three parts by weight of steamed meal and one part salt. The mineral box should be protected from the weather, and parts (by weight) of resin and three parts of boiled linseed oil may be used. The paint should be applied to the bark ring and hardwood area.

Less serious damage may include bent branches which do not return to their original position. These may be pulled back into place and held by wire to other branches. Or, horticulturists say, a portion may be pruned.

Shrubs such as arbovitae which have been disfigured by the weight of ice may be sheared. That is, two to six inches of outside growth may be removed from the entire surface. This usually is a February operation, but can be done now without further injury to the plant.

if the cow does not lick the mixture when first offered, sprinkle a little cottonseed meal on it.

At least ten days before freshening, the grain mixture should be changed to equal parts of wheat bran and ground oats, and fed three or four days after calving. If ground oats are not available wheat bran alone may be fed.

The specialists recommend supplying dry cows with feeds containing plenty of Vitamin A. A deficiency of this vitamin can cause them to lose their calves, and calves born with a deficiency of Vitamin A will be susceptible to calf diseases, especially scours. Cows getting green pasture, hay with green color, or silage made from crops having green leaves will have their Vitamin A needs taken care of. Five pounds daily per cow of pea green leafy alfalfa hay, or five pounds daily of a yellow variety of sweet potatoes will furnish the needed supply of Vitamin A during the dry period.

A wartime economy drier furnace for drying cotton by direct heat from oil or gas has been developed by engineers of the Department of Agriculture.

SCHIZOPHRENIA

There is an ailment of the mind that makes people go for what scares them. Some shoot themselves rather than go to war, some jump from tall buildings because they're afraid they will fall. It is an unusual disease but I met a case of it recently by picking up a hitch-hiker. Sharing transportation has become patriotic duty. My passenger was talkative and led the conversation straight to political economy. It seemed to be his favorite topic.

Within five miles we had reached a disagreement. "You are a capitalist," he said, "Are you rich?" I admitted being in the low income brackets, paid less for my work than the average railroad brakeman. "Then you are a sucker," he said in a tone that indicated sympathy rather than contempt. "You have everything to lose and nothing to gain from capitalism."

A FAST TALKER

The young man grew eloquent as he warmed up. His clear word-picture revived impressions that have been made popular by repetition of office seekers on occasions for generations. Plainly I recalled cartoons of personified Mr. Capital, a fat figure sitting on a big pile of money. I remembered also the oratorical bombardments of Wall Street from the brush arbor at rustic barbecue attractions.

My passenger's reasoning was a bit wobbly, but I learned something from him just the same. He convinced me that capitalism is not at all popular. In using the word he seemed to wave it about like a red flag in the hand of a torador. He made it mean arrogance, extortion and oppression. By implication he made capitalism appear as a

4-H Boys Step Up Production

Beef calves, sheep and hogs which went to market from Texas 4-H Club boys' pastures and feeding lots in 1943 were sufficient to provide 14,167 fighting men with meat for one year.

Sales from these demonstrations last year put $1,678,925 into the pockets of 40,606 boys enrolled in 4-H work in the state, according to reports compiled by the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. This home front campaign was carried on by the members of 4,162 clubs under the supervision of their county agricultural agents, and with the assistance of 3,726 adult local leaders. But it was completed under most difficult conditions. On account of the labor shortage, boys took a larger share of the routine farm work on their shoulders than ever before, but the demonstration work went on notwithstanding. When they were finished, however, the boys put on the market 6,022 beef calves, 4,284 sheep and goats, and 26,269 hogs. In addition there was field crops and poultry demonstrations, along with livestock and poultry products—wool, mohair, and eggs.

The year's production wasn't all hard work. The boys held a total of 162 club shows in different parts of the state. They exhibited 8,988 head of livestock and divided thousands of dollars in prize money and received hundreds of blue, red and white ribbons representing the classes in which their calves, hogs, sheep and goats placed.

The slogan of the 1943 Texas 4-H Club boys was "feed a fighter." Some had goals to produce the equivalent of the food budgets of world order dominated by a few soulless corporations.

SEEMED SINCERE

He and I agreed on only one point: A few wealthy people are not the source from whom all blessings flow. He's right; they are not. America has a prosperity of a most unusual sort and wealth is only a factor in it. As for rich people, some of them are useful and some are merely hangers-on. Same as farmers and school teachers, some help and some don't.

Our unique prosperity depends on production. Our commercial progress depends on increasing production. "Capitalism," says Eric Johnston, "is the greatest force ever known for increasing production." That's what America must have to keep its leadership among nations, and production requires concentration of capital as well as concentration of workers.

The man who rode with me desires financial improvement and has a right to it, but he is fooling himself and perhaps a lot of other people. He has a notion that there is just so much wealth in the world and that people who own more than other people have robbed somebody. It is not a new doctrine but it is completely wrong.

HERE'S CAPITALISM

If two thrifty workers save some money, form a partnership and start a fly-swatter factory, they become capitalists immediately. If their business grows and they give employment to a third man, capitalism has borne fruit and benefited society. The employee's family (if any), his grocer and his clothier share in the benefits. Compared as to usefulness with a locomotive works, the difference is in size. The principle is the same.

My hitch-hiker wanted to destroy capitalism because of its tendency toward monopoly, a tendency that can be controlled. He had an idea that sovereign government should own everything and all citizens be fellow-workers. That would have no tendency toward monopoly; that would be monopoly—monopoly that never could be controlled. My summary is that the fellow had schizophrenia. He was running toward what he feared.

GRANDMOTHERS SKILLFUL WORKERS

LONDON (AP) — A large British war factory has a new unit for measuring production — the "gran-hour."

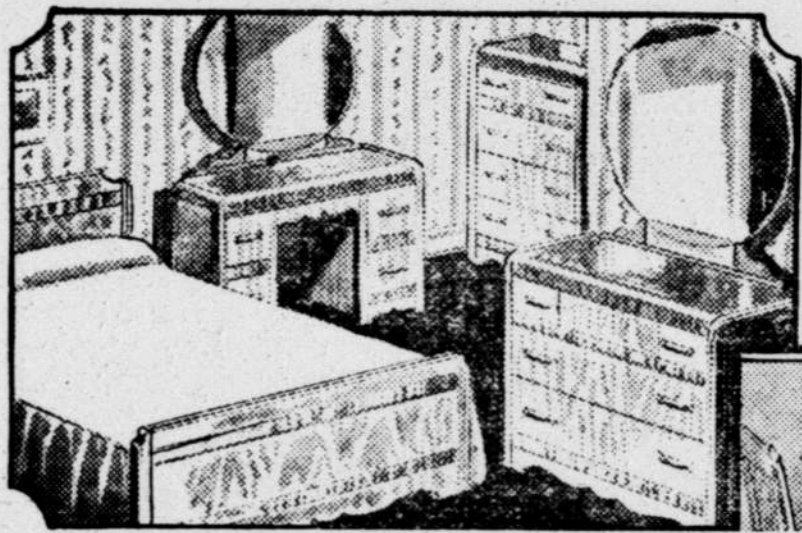

This is the term used, and very respectfully, by factory management for the 350 hours of work contributed voluntarily by 52 energetic grandmothers and one great-grandmother.

The grey-haired women, most of whom worked in war factories during the last war, do vital jobs soldering, paint-spraying, drilling and assembling. The plant-manager, said that they are among his most efficient and dependable workers.

Kicking The News Around

By ED ERARD

The Jackson Day dinner now-a-days is just a get-to-gether for the discordant elements of what is jokingly called the Democratic Party. It used to be the main source of revenue for the party campaign fund. But that was before the country got its political propaganda floating in alphabetical soup brewed over a fire of quick-burning tax money. In the old days, real Democrats got together and tried to eat the party out of debt at $100 a plate.

This time FDR tuned in from the Palace and let Hair-brain Henry do the broadcasting and Eleanor furnished the Roosevelt charm. Henry passed up the new FDR slogan, "Win the War," like a pay car passing a hobo. He said if the new deal was dead, so's the Democratic party.

The dinner looked like a contest for the vice-presidential nomination, with Sam Rayburn outpointing Wallace in every round, including the round of applause. The new deal party is determined to take the South out of the shaky column and put it in the solid column, even if it has to use the old Democratic alias, and trade off a communist for a second John Garner.

Borrowers Here Repay More Than Loaned by F S A

"Nearly fifty per cent more money was repaid to the Farm Security Administration in this region during the last fiscal year than was loaned by the agency," Orville W. Richardson, FSA Supervisor in Dawson County, said today. "FSA loaned $3,517,422 in the region and the borrowers repaid $5,049,339."

These figures are part of the complete report being given FSA district supervisors by Regional Director, Ray E. Davis, at a supervisors' meeting being held in Amarillo Tuesday through Friday of this week. Dawson County and thirty-six surrounding counties, comprising District IV are being represented at this meeting by Marvin C. Wilson, district supervisor and Miss Roberta E. Martin, associate district supervisor.

Region 12 comprises New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle, and the western portion of Texas.

"We believe these repayment figures afford ample proof of what financial assistance plus supervision will do for small farmers," Mr. Richardson said. "Such a repayment record means that the contribution of these people to the nation's food production effort was enormous."

The farm ownership division of FSA, which makes loans to help former tenants become land owners, also will show a remarkable repayment record, according to Mr. Davis' report. The regional director declared that most of these borrowers were on the variable payment plan, which enables them to make larger payments in good years and smaller payments in bad years. As a result, many are as much as fifteen years ahead of schedule on repayments. Six borrowers paid off their FSA loans in full this year entirely from farm earnings.

Mr. Davis will review for benefit of district supervisors and associate district supervisors events of a recent meeting in Cincinnati, where regional directors met for the first time with the new FSA national administrator, Frank C. Hancock, former North Carolina Congressman.

"Mr. Hancock means for FSA to be run on a business like basis, for the protection of the government's money and improvement of the lot of the low-income farm families it is charged with serving," Mr. Davis declared. He said the new administrator had won new support for FSA inside and outside Congress by his attitude demanding efficiency of administration and strict adherence to Congressional decrees.

Squirrels Go On Tour

BARBER, Okla. (AP)—Hundreds of gray squirrels, on a migratory journey, recently moved through Cherokee county. Scientists and sportsmen have puzzled over the motive that causes the shy rodents to gather in bands and travel across country apparently oblivious to man's presence.

For a limited time only a 2 year subscription will be offered for $5.00, or you can save one dollar by taking a two year subscription.
