Battering Gales Sweep Coast Of North Atlantic

MANY DEATHS ARE CHARGED TO STORM; TOWNS FLOODED AND ISOLATED; ESTIMATES UPON DAMAGE NOT MADE; MERCURY SLIDES LOW

(By The Associated Press)

A million-dollar gale roared northeastward today after battering the Atlantic coast from North Carolina to Maine.

New Jersey and the southern shore of Long Island suffered most as waves and flood tides described as the worst in 30 years hammered the coast both south and east of New York yesterday.

Two 3,000-ton freighters—the Florida and Hartwelson—were crippled and sent calls for aid; numerous smaller craft were cast aground while one tug and its tow were unreported; pleasure boats were wrecked by the hundred. The Florida later reached safe anchorage in Hampton Roads.

A seaman was swept to his death from a freighter and at least eight highway fatalities were charged against slippery roads, and windshields covered by snow or pelting rain. Two Massachusetts duck hunters were missing.

Entire towns were flooded or were isolated on the barren beaches which form much of New Jersey's and Long Island's coastlines. Various communities reported buildings toppled, highways undermined and boardwalks cut.

Official estimates of the damage were impossible before a check on whatever havoc was wrought by another high tide during the night. Newspaper estimates, however, ranged from $1,000,000 to $15,000,000. North Jersey shore officials appealed to the federal government for repair funds.

The northeast wind swung to the northwest today, beating back the fury of the sea. But as a reminder the gale left the North Atlantic states their first real taste of

Christmas Cheer To Be Provided For Destitute By Goodfellows Of City

OFFICERS WILL BE CHOSEN BY COMMITTEE OF FIVE; UNIFIED CHARITY PLAN IS OUTLINED

Organization of a Goodfellows club to provide Christmas cheer for indigent families was made Sunday afternoon at a meeting of representatives from churches and from various clubs in Lubbock.

The approximately 25 who attended voted to enter into the united move to supply Christmas charities and called upon all organizations in the City to choose a representative to an executive committee which will work out plans for the Goodfellows work during the coming Christmas season.

Officers who will guide the organization are pending selection by a committee of five, named Sunday afternoon: W. H. (Bill) Evans, W. H. Wright, J. A. Raley, Jack M. Randal and Mrs. Tom J. Foster. Preference that identity of the Goodfellows president remain anonymous was expressed at a meeting of the selection committee which followed the session in American Legion hall.

To Unify Charities

Object of the organization is to unify Christmas charities to avoid duplications and to see that every destitute family is remembered at Christmas.

The meeting Sunday was the second called for a discussion on the organization of the club, which will carry on its work only during the Christmas seasons. The idea had taken root at an American Legion breakfast Friday morning following earlier suggestions by Mr. Wright, post adjutant, and by The Plainsman, Evening Journal columnist, who had suggested that some clearing organization be formed to direct a community Christmas program.

A meeting of the executive committee to complete plans will be called as soon as representatives have been selected by the organizations participating, probably by the end of the week, said Mr. Raley.

Attending the meeting Sunday were representatives of the American Legion, First Presbyterian and First Methodist churches, Salvation Army, Church of Foursquare Gospel, Garden club, Lions club, American Business club, Rotary, Veterans of Foreign wars, the chamber of commerce, and others. Capt. John G. Churchill was selected temporary presiding chairman.

The Goodfellows club, it was said, is not sponsored to overshadow individual club and church Christmas charity, but to see that every indigent family in Lubbock is remembered Christmas Day.

Lynching Blame Is Put On Legislature

CRIMINAL LAWS ARE BRISKLY ATTACKED BY C. OF C.

(By The Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Texas, Nov. 18—Directors of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, in a scathing denunciation of certain Texas criminal laws, today laid the blame for the mob lynchings of two negroes here last week, squarely upon the Texas legislature.

A statement signed by Herman Braden, president, and H. L. B. Skinner, secretary, said responsibility for the lynching of the negro youths, who had confessed to officers they criminally attacked and drowned Miss Geraldine Kollmann, Columbus High school honor graduate, "lies primarily with the thirty-fifth legislature of the state of Texas, which enacted the juvenile law of the state in its present form."

Others Are Blamed

The statement also blamed "all subsequent legislatures who have failed to recognize and remedy the most serious defects of the law."

"It is unquestionably the consensus of informed public opinion in this state that the juvenile age limit of 17 years should have no application to serious and brutal

PRO LAW TRIALS ARE NOT CALLED

No prohibition cases were called for trial when Judge Homer L. Pharr opened a week of criminal court this morning.

Six such cases were on a list prepared Nov. 5 by District Attorney Daniel A. Blair and posted in the district clerk's office.

Judge Pharr called for trial six cases, in which A. S. Everest is charged with violation of the motor fuel tax law, and cases in which Bert Smith is charged with burglary, Henry Mosely with burglary, and Harve Richards with theft over $50.

The burglary cases were to be called for trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, Judge Pharr said.

Lockhart & Brown will file a motion for continuance of the Everest cases. They said Everest was ill in Roswell, N. M. Richards did not appear for trial. A reward of $100 has been offered, over the signature of Sheriff Jess Lambert of Sweetwater, for Richards' arrest.

The district attorney's list of cases had included those of W. L. Jackson, J. C. Sanders, Mrs. Loverna Jones, J. L. Dyess and Clarence Jackson, Tom Case and Y. Onstott, and F. V. Williams, all charged with violation of the Dean act.

No copies of the liquor control act, signed by Governor James V. Allred last week, were believed to be in Lubbock.

Murder Mysteries Crop Up In Texas

SKELETON OF MAN SLAIN FIVE YEARS AGO IS DUG UP; ANOTHER ALSO TO BE UNEARTHED

(By The Associated Press)

NEWTON, Texas, Nov. 18—Sheriff T. S. Hughes, who last week dug up the skeleton of a man alleged to have been slain five years ago, said today he planned to dig up another as soon as he had time, and that he had "received information on several other mysteries."

Today Sheriff Hughes and District Attorney Hollis Kinard of Orange were called to Houston for the trial of the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, former Orange pastor, on a charge of slaying an Orange police chief.

Become Graveyard

"From all accounts," the sheriff said, "it appears the woods around scrappin valley have become a graveyard for men killed by whisky makers. I have received information on several other mysteries."

Hughes said Vernon Wells, 28, a Port Arthur refinery worker, made a written statement naming his father, the late Pete Wells, as the slayer of Richard Ridgeway, 40, the man whose skeleton Hughes dug up last Thursday. Wells was charged with murder, as was his brother-in-law, Albert (Pete) Williams, a farmer. A third man was sought.

Working At Still

Ridgeway, a former foreman of a sawmill, the sheriff said, was working at a whisky still for Pete Wells and threatened to tell officers about it because he had not been paid for two months. The sheriff quoted Vernon Wells as saying he saw his father shoot Ridgeway with a blast from a shotgun. The blast did not kill him, and Vernon said the man was buried alive.

Ridgeway's disappearance was not reported, Sheriff Hughes declared, and he did not learn of it until a year ago. He was questioning Pete Wells about the matter a short time ago when Wells climbed a wall of the jail here, where he was held in connection with the theft of some cattle, and fell on his head. He died of his injuries two weeks ago.

"Tip" Is Received

About a week ago Sheriff Hughes received a mysterious "tip," he explained, that he would find Ridgeway's grave at a certain spot. He dug there, and exhumed the skeleton. A brother, W. A. Ridgeway, identified it, through x-ray plates of a broken arm.

Sheriff Hughes said he had located the spot where the body of another man, killed eight years ago, was buried, and planned to exhume the skeleton as soon as he returned from Houston.

The sheriff refused to show newspapermen Vernon Wells' statement, saying it contained some facts he wanted kept secret for the present, but he permitted newspapermen to interview Wells, who admitted all the sheriff quoted him as saying in the statement.

"Dad said I would go just like Ridgeway did," Wells explained, when asked why he had not told about the killing previously.

LIQUOR CHIEF IS SELECTED

CHARLES R. MILLER IS ADMINISTRATOR FOR BOARD IN TEXAS

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Nov. 18—The Texas liquor control board today appointed Charles R. Miller, 50, formerly of Electra and Taylor, as its administrator.

Miller and the board immediately started conferences to set up an organization and begin operation of the package sale by licensed private dealers liquor law.

To Issue Licenses

He said the first licenses probably would be issued later today. Meanwhile, no sales of liquor were legal until dealers were granted permits.

Miller has been second secretary on the governor's staff. Governor Allred said George Clarke of Austin, also on the staff, would be promoted to Miller's former position.

The administrator entered public life in 1931 as chief of law enforcement in the attorney general's department under Allred. He former-

GABLE DENIES BEING "GREAT LOVER" AND TAKES BLAME FOR ESTRANGEMENT

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 18—Clark Gable, broad-shouldered film hero, was willing today to let his second wife decide whether their estrangement would be solved by a reconciliation or a divorce.

"There has been no discussion of a divorce or reconciliation as far as I know," said the screen star on his return to the film colony from a South American trip. "Whatever Mrs. Gable says, goes."

Chuckling, the actor touched upon the subject of his "temperament" — given by Mrs. Rita Gable as the cause of their separation.

"Sometimes, I wonder how I even stand myself," he confessed.

"During the last year I've worked very hard. And by the time my last picture was ready to be filmed I was irritable — snapping at everyone."

"The fault was entirely mine," Gable explained, "and I don't blame Mrs. Gable for anything."

"I'm no 'great lover' either,"

LEAGUE PLANS ARE INVOKED BY NATIONS

STRICT BOYCOTT GOES INTO EFFECT TODAY AGAINST ITALY

BY G. H. ANDERSON
Associated Press Foreign Staff

LONDON, Nov. 18.—League of Nations economic sanctions, approved by 51 nations, took effect against Italy today in an unprecedented effort to force a halt to war.

These nations virtually severed financial and trading relations with the invaders of Ethiopia, pledging themselves to exclude Italian goods from their markets and to cease supplying Italy with a selected list of raw materials.

Some Delays Noted

Theoretically, the economic blockade was imposed at one minute after midnight, but practically, it developed that legal aspects delayed slightly some nations like Spain, where decrees forbidding Italian imports and some exports were still to be published.

Portugal took the lead, closing its frontiers to Italian goods and halting export of raw materials which might be used for warfare as early as Saturday.

France, like Spain, forced a possible delay in enforcement of economic sanctions, but this apparently was reduced, if not eliminated, by publication yesterday of boycott decrees.

Imports Are Forbidden

These decrees, set forth in the official journal, forbade importation of all Italian goods except money, gold, silver, books, newspapers, maps and music into France and its territories.

Exportation of raw materials such as iron, tin, nickel, manganese, rubber and aluminum likewise were prohibited, with a check on trade to be maintained by licensing of importers and exporters.

The French frontier theoretically was closed to Italian goods at midnight, but just when the sanctions could be enforced practically remained in doubt. The law is applied in each department only when a copy of the official journal, publishing the decree, reaches the pre-

Eight Lubbock High school students, members of the DeKeX club, were suspended temporarily today by Principal R. W. Matthews for organization of a club in violation of school rules.

The school bars secret organizations. It was this rule, among others, which the principal said the DeKeX organization was violating. The membership originally included about 15 students. Seven resigned.

Mr. Matthews cited eight rules, governing organization of school clubs. He said the rules were submitted by the Mothers club, adopted by the student council, and approved by school officials.

The rules, in effect, are as follows:

TRADE TREATY IS REVEALED

PROVISIONS OF PACT BETWEEN COUNTRIES ARE ANNOUNCED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—After making public a reciprocal trade treaty described officially "a revolution" in commercial relations between Canada and the United States, the New Deal watched close-ly today for the reaction of the country.

First comments showed conflict-ing views. President Roosevelt, ex-plaining the pact to a large gath-ering of newspapermen in the oval room of the White House yesterday, said it would double the trade be-tween the neighboring nations in a year or two.

Is Cold Comfort

On the other hand Fred Brenck-man, Washington representative of the National Grange, said at Sac-ramento that the treaty was "cold comfort to the American farmer," while Representative Brewster (R-Me) said a reduction of duty on Canadian seed potatoes, as pro-vided in the pact, would be a flat contradiction of a presidential promise made to the Maine con-gressional delegation.

Legislators eagerly delved into the treaty to see how it affected their areas. Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), one of the first to com-ment, expressed the belief it would benefit especially the Rocky moun-tain area.

Trade Will Broaden

James D. Mooney, president of the American Manufacturers Export association, said at New York there was "not the slightest doubt" that trade would broaden and that "even the people who think they will be hurt will benefit."

The treaty, signed last Friday by Secretary of State Hull and Prem-ier W. L. Mackenzie King of Cana-da, is an almost complete revamp-ing of the tariff structure between the two nations. In all, more than 800 commodities are affected by the concessions.

The United States granted cuts on 79 major articles, including re-ductions of tariffs on cattle, calves, dairy cows and cream, subject to quotas described as narrow; on four-year-old aged-in-the-wood whisky, certain kinds of lumber, some fish, some minerals and vege-tables.

Given Lowest Rates

Canada granted the United State-s duty reductions on 180 articles, made other concessions and agreed to give American products the low-est rates accorded to any non-Brit-ish nation. The Canadian leader also promised to move for liberali-zation of methods of valuing im-ports which American officials con-sidered arbitrary and unreasonable.

Under most-favored-nation treat-ies which the United States has with other countries, all concessions granted Canada will be given to every other country except Ger-many, which has denounced her trade treaty with Washington.

However, Secretary Hull said countries other than Canada "will obtain relatively little benefit" be-cause Canada supplies most of the American imports of the commodi-ties covered in the new pact.

Adverse Reaction Seen

Government officials, foreseeing adverse reaction in some quarters because of some of the sliced Amer-ican duties, sought to show the pact would lead to greatly increased trade and employment which would benefit the country. The state de-partment also said:

"While our agriculture and our industry will benefit largely from the expansion of their Canadian sales, the agreement leaves for both agriculture and industry adequate protection in the domestic market, even though it opens to Canadian producers a larger share in that market.

"To consumers, moreover, the re-ductions in our duties will be of much benefit, by checking unrea-sonable increases in prices of the consumers' commodities concerned."

Political Spooks Haunt Party Chiefs As 1936 Election Creeps On Steadily

GHOSTLY DAYS ARE AHEAD

MANY A STALWART IS BEING ASSAILED BY CREEPS, JITTERS

BY BYRON PRICE
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington, D. C.)

The children and grown-ups who thought they saw strange and terrible things by the light of the Hallowe'en moon need make no apologies. Many of the politically great and powerful are having the same experience.

The general election still is a year away, but the dark forebodings which always accompany its approach already are evident among the politicians of both parties.

Nothing is more deceptive than the smiling urbanity customarily exhibited to the public view by men in public office and men who aspire to public office. Underneath, a very large percentage of them really are pessimists, not optimists.

Political hobgoblins are no respecters of persons. They put many a party chief into a midnight sweat, and assail many a stalwart with creeps and jitters.

Without any references whatever to the present occupant of the White House, it is of record that not even chief executives as a class are immune.

Skeletons Are Rattling

As to 1936, both Democrats and Republicans are able to visualize things calculated to make the teeth chatter.

Every member of the house of representatives is up for reelection. Included are scores of Democrats who know their districts are normally Republican, and a considerable number of Republicans who wish they knew how far they dared go in condemning the administration.

Only a third of the senators are up, but most of them find their sleep disturbed by the prospect of strong opposition, either from within their own party or by a militant and hungry group of "outs," or both.

So far as the presidential situation itself is concerned, plenty of skeletons are rattling in the closet.

Chief Demo Spook

The chief Democratic spook just now is the possibility that the supreme court may overthrow the whole Roosevelt program. That would mean that a new program would have to be devised right in the midst of a campaign year, or else it would raise a constitutional issue which many Democratic leaders wish to avoid.

There are others. The budget tangle, the deficits, and the urgent necessity of deciding what relief funds to ask for next year—this all is part of a nightmare of dancing figures and gaping discrepancies. And the Republicans are seeing to it that the specter of the Democratic promises of 1932 is not forgotten.

'Political Blue'

Among the Republicans walk the ghosts of past rivalries and the insinuating certainty of new ones.

Vague and mournful questionings shape themselves in the murk: Can a party split possibly be avoided if Mr. Hoover or Mr. Borah, or both, decide to runs? How can four billion dollars be beaten? Has the campaign started too soon, and is the tide turning back to Roosevelt? Suppose a war scare lifts up a "stand-by-the-President" issue?

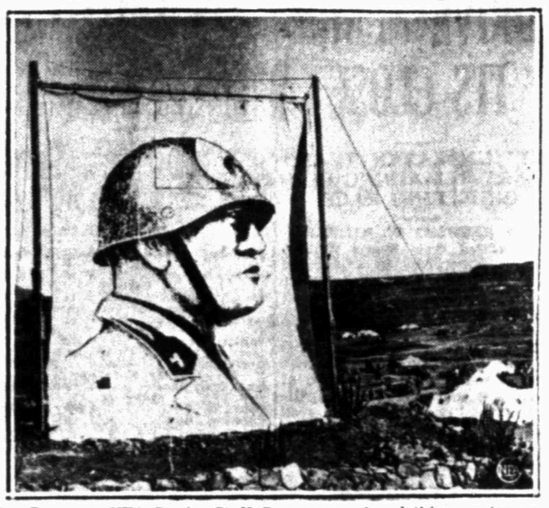

Perhaps the most realistic of the Republican banshees is the AAA. The problem of what to do about the farm situation gives many a Republican leader an ugly turn every time he goes out in the dark.

On top of it all, both parties are badly in need of campaign funds, yet in these days of popular suspicion and scandal-searching they are inclined to look over their shoulders whenever anyone offers them a dollar.

So most of the smiles should not be taken seriously. In fact, if some clever composer could catch the full sweep of present-day political downheartedness in a "Political Blues," the song undoubtedly would be the bluest blues of them all.

"INNOCENTS ABROAD" ASSUMES FULL SIGNIFICANCE WHEN ONE FINDS HIMSELF AMONG STRANGE PEOPLES IN A LAND FAR AWAY; TWO PLAINS RESIDENTS RELATE EXPERIENCES

"Innocents Abroad" assumes full significance only when one finds himself among strange peoples far from his native land, believes Morris Scrogin, "first trick" operator of the Santa Fe railroad here.

Mr. Scrogin and V. P. Williams, Slaton engineer, recently returned from Europe and a tour through Britain and Scotland and several nations on the continent.

As cases in point, Mr. Scrogin cites one to his visit to a display in Vienna of Dresden china.

Buys The Stock

"I was admiring the delicate hues of the wares," he said. "I don't believe I touched anything. The display shelf collapsed. I had to buy all the stock that was smashed. About $5 worth, reckoned in American currency.

"Was I duped? Was it a trap for the innocent? I still wonder.

"Mr. Williams said that whether the canniness of the shopkeeper or my own clumsiness was to blame for the quick sale the transaction would go down as one of "the bull in the china shop" classification."

Problem Of Eating

Then there was the problem of eating despite the evident courtesy of the foreign restauranteurs and the wad of paper notes the Americans carried.

"We couldn't read the menus and sometimes, when we could find no one who spoke English, had to be satisfied with pointing at some entree we thought we'd chance ordering," said Mr. Scrogin.

"The first time we resorted to that very elemental manner of selection we were surprised to find a vegetable dinner placed before us—enough for twice our number—but no bread, butter or water. We waited until the food was almost cold, but no bread and butter came. An overstuffed German waiter came puffing over under an enormous tray and apparently was asking if something was wrong. We eventually saw someone across the restaurant who looked English and we asked him to explain.

They Come Extra

"'But bread and butter come extra,' he said, smiling. 'You have to order them here just as you would select a pastry. And no one drinks water. You may have it, however, if you like.'

"We looked about and, sure enough, no one drank water. As a matter of fact, during our travels in Austria and in Germany, I don't recall seeing anyone drink water with meals. It was beer or wine."

The German requirement that strict accounting of how much money is spent within the boundaries of the nazi country almost delayed departure of Mr. Scrogin from Hamburg.

"Upon entering Germany the tourist is required to change his money into reichsmarks, corresponding to travelers checks in this country, and into marks and pfennigs," he said. "When he leaves he is required to show what corresponds to a receipt book which lists how much he has spent and how much he has remaining. I got this lost in the bottom of a traveling bag. When it was demanded I couldn't find it. Looked like detention for several hours. There's a difference in being allowed to visit a foreign country and in being confronted with having to remain there. Officials relented, though, and I found the troublesome piece of paper later, in mid-Atlantic.

"One could go on indefinitely. On a train running through scenic Austria a conductor was about to take too much of my ticket. I didn't know the difference. He evidently thought he was handling the matter regularly. Again an English-speaking person solved the difficulty. He went to the conductor and explained. The conductor came back to us and bowed in apology. He was careful after that to see we were well provided for."

Should a man carry an umbrella in this country officials who prepare lunacy petitions might elevate eyebrows. In London, however, if one does not carry them in the thick fog he is noticeable, said Mr. Scrogin. After keeping up with his for several hours he finally lost it in a subway train between Paddington and Victoria stations.

Study Many Customs

Itinerary of the West Texans afforded them a chance to study many strange customs. They left Lubbock Sept. 21 and sailed aboard the USS Washington Sept. 25. Touching at Cobh, (formerly Queenstown), Irish Free State, the ship docked Oct. 1 at Plymouth. They returned Oct. 23 aboard a sister ship of the Washington, the USS Manhattan, touching at Le Havre, Southampton, and Cobh, disembarking at New York. Jimmy Walker and his actress wife, Betty Compton, were aboard, and the Texans saw the reception given in the harbor and on the pier. They docked Oct. 31 after a passage that was rough the first three days and that gave them their first sight of whales.

In Europe, the South Plainsmen went to London, Edinburg, Dover and across to Calais, Paris, and through Belgium into the German city of Cologne, Frankfurt, across the border to Vienna, Leipzig, Berlin and to Hamburg.

Little Reference To War

"Only occasional reference to the World war is heard in any European nation," said Mr. Scrogin. "One hears of the Italo-Ethiopian war only in England, unless he brings up the subject himself. The English dismiss a war with Italy with few remarks. They say they are ready if Italy forces the issue, quite pointedly say they would win. The whole country reads press accounts of parliament's defense program jockeying and, apparently, gives over to little yelling about increased taxes. We saw no gatherings at Trafalgar square, focal point of seditionist gatherings.

"Teutonic people seem to bear the United States no ill regard for plunging into the World war with the allied forces.

"Of all nations visited, Germany seems to be most courteous, and Berlin comes nearest to being like an American city. Its beautiful strasses and clean sections incite wonderment."

Many Spots Visited

Mr. Scrogin, who plays the violin and who said his publishers soon are to release a popular song he has written, found noted buildings and scenic spots uniformly interesting, but pointed out especially the change of guards at Buckingham palace, Vienna's Schoenbrunn castle, Sans Souci and the palace of Kaiser "Bill" at Pottsdam, Cologne cathedral, St. Paul's, Westminster abbey, London tower, and St. Stephen's cathedral.

Travel in Germany, especially is cheap, he said, state controlled railways allowing a 60 per cent reduction to those who remain in that country seven days. English rates are approximately the same as in this country.

"Gasoline in foreign countries costs several times as much as here, and a maze of small cars is found. Even the most inexpensive American cars are built on foreign lines —no running boards, low to the ground, and shorter wheelbase.

"Speaking of cars, the most interesting we saw was that in which the late archduke of Austria and his wife were riding when they were assassinated at Bosnia. It was about this car, a Graf & Stift, license A-111-118, that the elements which soon were to plunge the world into war hovered."

Sweden built up its great safety match industry on imported products. The wood for the match body and the potassium chlorate for the tip were brought in from other countries.

VESPER SERVICE WILL BE STAGED

An all-college twilight organ vesper service will be conducted Sunday evening, 6:45 to 7:15 o'clock, in the First Methodist church under auspices of the Texas Technological college Young Women's and Young Men's Christian associations.

Young people's groups in Lubbock churches have been asked to forego programs so their members may attend the vesper service.

The service will be the first of a series and the initial step in the student "support your church" campaign sponsored by the college Christian organizations.

Mrs. Mamie I. Neal will be the organist and Paton Price the narrator.

The organizations will sponsor a "mixer" for freshmen students Friday evening, 8-10 o'clock, in the lounge of the women's dormitory. Miss Cora Fox Yonge is in charge of program arrangements.

A machine gun capable of firing 1500 shots a minute and operated by electricity is said to have been invented by a British soldier.

"Sufferers should realize how fortunate they are in being able to get a medicine like this new Gly-Cas," said Mrs. O. A. Both my legs were swollen, could not walk without dragging my left limb and it was so affected I could not bend it at all. The pain was terrific at times and of course in this miserable condition a good nights sleep or rest was impossible. I tried many different kinds of medicines without results and I was so discouraged over my outlook until I was persuaded to give this new Gly-Cas a trial—it is the one REAL medicine of them all.

"I had practically given up hope of being well when I began Gly-Cas and today I am feeling like an entirely different person," continued Mrs. Strange. "Gly-Cas relieved me of that awful suffering, the pain and swelling has practically left me. My limbs are not crippled like they were and I can walk many blocks at a time. I always get a 'lift' with a Camel. I have preferred Camels for years because of their good taste and mildness. They never irritate my throat. THE COACH'S HOBBY

Two Texas Elevens Leading In Nation

CHRISTIANS AND SMU LIKELY TO BATTLE IN TITLE GAME

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southwest football fans, already jittery from watching the Southern Methodist Mustangs and Texas Christian's Frogs go through nine games with a clear record, prepared for another strenuous week-end as the two Texas teams glowed in the national spotlight.

Today the Methodists and Christians ranked at the head of seven undefeated and untied major teams in the United States. Both rank as leading Rose Bowl contenders.

Rice Invades Fort Worth

Saturday football highways will lead to Fort Worth where the invading Rice Owls, steam-rolling with power and determination, will bang into Texas Christian in what should develop into the country's greatest week-end game. The game is expected to attract 30,000 persons.

Texas Christian turned loose Saturday and smothered the University of Texas, 28 to 0, with an assortment of baffling plunges and aerials for its ninth victory. Rice walloped Texas A and M, 17-10.

Rice's consistent stars, John McCauley, the conference's best all-round backfield performer, All-American Bill Wallace, John Sylvester, field goal kicker and smashing wing, will be primed for this game.

Two All-Americans

The combat will bring together two 1934 All-Americans in Wallace and Captain Darrell Lester, Texas Christian's giant center.

Southern Methodist appears to have too much touchdown power for Baylor, but there is one thing about this game that places it in the doubtful column. It is conference history that Baylor has a "jinx" on Southern Methodist. Last year it was a powerful Southern Methodist team that jumped on a weak Baylor team, but it was the Baylor team that won, 13-6.

Southern Methodist, paced by Robert Wilson, All-America halfback candidate, proved its strength last week by beating U. C. L. A. 21-0, and five days later beat the University of Arkansas 17-6.

It was a crippled Mustang team that went to Fayetteville and whipped the Razorbacks on their homecoming. Wetsel, guard, and Sprague, blocking back, who have been crippled, are expected to be ready to rejoin the Mustangs against Baylor.

If Texas Christian and Southern Methodist win Saturday, they will meet on Saturday, Nov. 30 with untied and undefeated records and with the 1935 Southwest conference championship in the balance.

He'll Lick Yours!

CHEERING IN ORDER

OUT OF ITS CLASS

ABOUT ROSE BOWL

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Some cheering is in order in this corner . . . You have to give Wallace Wade credit for one of the nicest bits of coaching of the season . . . Never was a team better prepared for a certain game than Duke was for North Carolina . . . They told us down there Wade actually got out and played in the line with the boys in practice during the last two weeks . . . Anyway, it was a perfect job and the result was the biggest upset the south has known since Mississippi State topped Alabama.

North Carolina has a real team, all right . . . But it just wasn't in Duke's class Saturday . . . Next week or the week after it might be a different story . . . Only thing is, the payoff was last week . . . No flies on Duke, either . . . It's smart and big and fast . . . We'd like to see it against Princeton . . . The Tigers might win, but our notion is it would be mainly because they've got more reserves.

* * *

Well, what about the Rose Bowl? . . . Looks like they may have to ask a team from west of the Mississippi if they insist on an unbeaten outfit . . . It might be a good idea for Southern Methodist and Texas Christian to start their press agents west at once . . . North Carolina, Marquette and Syracuse are out . . . Dartmouth will have earned a bid if it beats Princeton, but that's something else entirely . . . If California is the western team it may go right ahead and invite Notre Dame despite that defeat and tie . . . After all, Notre Dame is the team that makes those turnstiles click.

Welker Cochran Is Looking To Title

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—Welker Cochran, smiling young San Francisco cueist, reigning 18.2 balk line billiard champion, today had the world's three cushion championship within his grasp.

Winner of seven straight games, Cochran plays Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago tonight, and, if victorious, meets Willie Hoppe, master of the 18.2 game, for the champion tomorrow.

Hoppe firmly entrenched himself in second place last night, with seven victories and one defeat. He outplayed Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., defending champion, 50 to 41 in 50 innings.

The U. S. birthrate has been declining for more than a century, but the actual number of births started to decline in 1921. There were 2,300,000 births in 1934 as compared with 3,000,000 in 1921.

SATURDAY STARS OF GRIDIRON

(By The Associated Press)

Monk Meyer, Army—Starred in Army's 6-6 tie with Notre Dame. Threw pass that resulted in his team's score.

John Schmidt, Navy—Scored three times against Columbia, twice after runs of 25 and 90 yards.

Parker and Alexander, Duke—Played brilliantly in Duke's startling 25-0 upset of North Carolina.

Andy Uram, Minnesota—Ran 59 and 72 yards for touchdowns as his team routed Michigan 40-0.

McGannon, Purdue — Intercepted Oze Simmon's pass and ran 63 yards for touchdown to give Purdue upset victory over Iowa, 12-6.

Bill Tipton, Southern Methodist—Scored twice after catching passes to give S. M. U. 17-6 victory over the University of Arkansas.

Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian—Seven of his 15 passes were good and three ended in touchdowns as Texas Christian beat the University of Texas 28-0.

ARMY WEARS SNEAKERS

NANKING (AP) —Canvas-topped, rubber-soled shoes are regulation for most units of China's army. Straw sandals and cloth-bottomed slippers are not uncommon in the interior, but only a few crack units boast leather boots.

The famous Welcome Nugget, found in the Bakery Hill mine at Ballarat, Victoria, in 1858, weighed 182.9 pounds and is reputed to be the world's largest gold nugget. The second largest was the Blanche Barkley nugget, found in South Australia. It weighed 149 pounds.

Bears' Bumper Cotton Crop

The U. S. government may advocate reduction of cotton acreage again, but the University of California hopes federal pressure isn't brought to bear to force the school to reduce the yardage of its Cottons. They are Ken Cotton, left, quarterback, and Chuck, halfback, brother ball-toters who are among the best on the west coast.

Picking up the loose ends:

THE TEXAS A. & I. football team is nobody's pushover . . . ask any Texas, Lone Star or almost any Southwest conference team . . . That St. Mary's university's Rattlers, coached by Frank Bridges, was able to beat the Javelinas, 19 to 6, Saturday night indicates Texas Tech's Red Raiders face quite a task this Saturday . . . on their own field at San Antonio, trying to make good before the home folks, the Rattlers will be tough . . .

Weldon Chapman, one of the first to suggest that Pampa, with its college-weight ball club, should go places in the 1935 schoolboy grid race, also was one of the first to suggest that Pampa has one of the most over-rated teams in the state . . . Lubbock's victory, it develops, was no startling upset after all . . . An unknown team from Fort Collins, Colo., invaded Harvester Field Saturday for a 25 to 0 victory . . . Somebody else who belongs in the over-rated class is Southern Methodist university's great Bobby Wilson . . . he can thank one Harry Shuford for most of his headlines.

The department's pre-season wager on T. C. U. still goes, double if you say so . . . If Mr. Shuford isn't in there, do not be shocked if the Mustangs bow to Baylor Saturday . . . and do not take any SMU money to Fort Worth on Nov. 30 . . . you will surely leave it there . . . Has Jack Chevigny reached South Bend yet? . . . he should be almost there by this time . . .

Settle down, friends, on this "petition" business . . . they chased the wolves out of Lubbock when the buffalo made his last stand . . . We would hesitate long and think soberly before snapping at the hand that's helping feed you . . . tarry a while yet . . .

NO ANSWER at all is better than a weak answer, and a weak answer is all we could offer a certain element at Slaton . . . because it's the only answer such a weak element could understand . . . when one can't stand prosperity, one can't stand much of anything . . .

The Ralls letter, from Alfred Petty, got results three hours after it appeared in Sunday's column . . . Ernest Dowell would like to meet all ex-Westerners or any of the boys in town who'd like to play some football, at Fair Park Tuesday afternoon . . . an Independent team at Ralls wishes to meet other independent teams, the Ralls purpose being to add enough to the high school coffers to provide sweaters for the 1935 Jackrabbits . . . gate receipts will be divided 50-50 . . . If any other teams are interested, write Petty, box 323, at Ralls.

Gwynn "Mule" Dowell, ex-Tech grid star now with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Pro league, writes Pete Cawthon that he has been shifted back to the backfield . . . he played end for a while but the Cards, after dropping to Detroit, needed more backfield power . . . Dowell says he's playing the "up-back" position and calling signals, as well as playing some at fullback . . . a Chicago paper devotes a double-column story to Dowell, stating he's one of the best pro prospects that ever hit the town . . . Chicago goes for pro football . . . not so hot for the college brand . . .

We read: The Tulsa university freshmen played the Capitol Hill Junior college last week and won the game, 33 to 0 . . . the play-by-play account of the game read like a biography of Morris White, the boy with the loose hips who last year cavorted for Lubbock High . . . after reading about White's exploits, Howard Lynch, Amarillo line coach, said, "I still think that boy is the best one-man football team I ever saw" . . . Tulsa papers called White's ball carrying the most spectacular ever seen on Skelly Field.

SAM WEST has been out of town, so hasn't denied it . . . the current edition of The Sporting News, baseball's principal organ, recites, in one place: "In some quarters, it is believed the Browns already have made a deal with the Chicago White Sox involving Sammy West, one of the classiest center fielders in the business, and that this transaction will be announced at the minor league meeting in Dayton, O., beginning Nov. 20 . . ." And in another place in the same paper, under a Chicago dateline:

"The White Sox officials apparently have something up their sleeve and the big grin they're carrying indicates that it not only is good, but it will be put over. They keep talking about landing a good center fielder, an item badly needed . . . the latest candidate for the trade which the Sox officials threaten to consummate is Sam West, more or less of a veteran with the Browns . . . West is no spring chicken, being in the 31-year-old class, but he still can go and get 'em in the outfield, hits well and has speed on the bases . . . Whether Rogers Hornsby would look with favor on such a move is another matter, but it is whispered that the boss man of the Browns is inclined to look with sympathy on West's plea that he is entitled to a change."

Sportsmen of the country lost a fine adviser, a credit to sport, when J. N. "Ding" Darling left his job as chief of the bureau of biological survey, with this parting shot: "Until some unified mass strength is brought to bear on congress and the administration, you may expect that commercialization of natural resources is going to win out against conservation." . . . When Cornell scored that touchdown against Columbia, Gil Doby was so surprised he fell off the bench . . . The coach of the Cincinnati Tigers, semi-pro football outfit, has to be careful about telling the boys to go out and fight . . . every man on the team is a professional boxer . . .

MAD FOOTBALL DRIVE NEARS ITS CLOSE

FEW UNBEATEN TEAMS ARE REMAINING IN GRUELLING RACE

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — The mad football campaign draws rapidly to a close with only a "baker's half dozen" teams still unbeaten and untied.

The crushing defeats suffered last week by North Carolina, Marquette and Syracuse reduced the field of front-rank contenders for the mythical national championship to seven —Princeton, Dartmouth and New York university in the east; Minnesota in the middle west; Southern Methodist and Texas Christian in the southwest, and California in the far west.

Minnesota Is Certain

Of these, only Minnesota, aiming at its third successive undefeated campaign, appears certain of winding up with a perfect record. The Gophers close out ther season against Wisconsin's Badgers at Minneapolis Saturday. All the others have major hurdles yet to clear.

By sections, the championship situation seems to line up about as follows:

East

Princeton and Dartmouth, battling in Princeton Saturday, probably will decide the eastern championship. Dartmouth snowed under Cornell, 41-6, last week, while Princeton's substitutes were whipping Lehigh, 27-0. N. Y. U., third of the section's undefeated and untied elevens, swamped Rutgers 48-0, and now will rest until its objective game with Fordham Thanksgiving day.

From the standpoint of tradition, nothing this week will compare with the clash of Harvard and Yale at Cambridge. Army, tied 6-6 by Notre Dame Saturday, will tune up for the Navy game at Philadelphia Nov. 30, in a "breather" Saturday against Vermont. Navy, victor over Columbia, 28-7, will be idle. Temple's Owls, who stopped Marquette's winning streak, 26-6, will face Villanova, while Colgate hitting its stride with a 27-0 route of Syracuse's previously undefeated eleven, takes on Rutgers.

Columbia and Brown, Lehigh and LaFayette, and Bucknell and Penn State are the other leading eastern pairings.

Middle West

BIG TEN: The conference campaign will close for the year with a five game schedule that almost certainly will find Minnesota and Ohio State winding up in a tie for the title. Minnesota, victor in 16 successive games and undefeated in 23, will be heavily favored over Wisconsin, and Ohio State should be able to handle Michigan, beaten last week by Minnesota, 40-0. Northwestern's flashy Wildcats, who trounced Wisconsin, 32-13, will meet Iowa, surprisingly upset by Purdue, 12-6. Purdue will play Indiana's Hoosiers who shellacked Chicago 24-0. Illinois, nosed out by Ohio State, 6-0, meets Chicago.

BIG SIX: Nebraska already has clinched the crown and plays only one more game—with Oregon State on Nov. 26. Kansas has a chance to clinch at least a tie for second place by beating Iowa State this week. Kansas State, beaten by Oklahoma, 3-0, plays Missouri in the only other conference game.

South

Southeastern conference: Louisiana State's 13-0 conquest of Georgia, virtually clinched the championship for the Tigers. They ease up against Southwestern of Louisiana this week before closing out against Tulane on Nov. 30. Should Tulane, 20-13 victor over Kentucky, do the unexpected and halt L. S. U., Vanderbilt, Alabama or Mississippi would have a chance to share in the crown. Alabama crushed Georgia Tech 38-7 last week and will face Vanderbilt, 13-7 winner over Tennessee, on Thanksgiving day.

Southern conference: Duke's smashing triumph over North Carolina 27-0, previously undefeated and untied, put the Blue Devils in an excellent spot to regain the conference championship. They wind up against North Carolina State this week and a Duke victory automatically will give the Durham outfit the title.

Southwest

Texas Christian and Southern Methodist maintained their unbeaten status as the Horned Frogs crushed Texas 28-0 and Southern Methodist first turned back U. C. L. A. 21-0 on Monday and Arkansas 17-6 on Saturday. If Christian defeats Rice and Southern Methodist wins from Baylor this week, the title will hinge upon the battle of the two main rivals at Fort Worth on Nov. 30. A Friday clash between Texas and Arkansas completes this week's program.

Far West

Pacific Coast conference: California's Golden Bears, unbeaten and untied, play Stanford's Cardinals, 1934 champions, in the crucial engagement of the week. If the Bears win they will capture the title outright and with it the right to represent the far west in the Rose Bowl New Year's day. If Stanford wins, the race probably will end a triple tie among California, Stanford and U. C. L. A.

Rocky Mountain conference: The leader, Colorado university, after dropping a 12-6 decision to Kansas in an intersectional duel last week, resumes conference warfare this week against Wyoming and then meets Denver on Thanksgiving day in the game that should settle the championship. Colorado is the only unbeaten team within the conference, but Denver, Utah State and Utah each has been tripped up only once and therefore must be counted in the running.

WHY NOT CALL OUT THE FLEET?

ROME, Nov. 18 (AP)—Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador, golfing today, drove deep into the rough.

He flailed away at the ball, all but losing his characteristic calm.

His Italian caddie watched silently for a few minutes, then inquired: "Why don't you get the home fleet to help you?"

FORMER STARS ARE WANTED

EX-WESTERNERS PLAN FOR TRAINING AND POSSIBLE GAMES

Former Lubbock High school football players now residing here, or other youths of the city who would like to join the ex-Westerners for two weeks or more of training and one game or more of football with another independent team, are invited to report at the Fair Park practice field Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

A movement is under way to reorganize the resident ex-Westerners and play a game with a Ralls team two or three weeks hence. The Ralls team, which has played but one game this season, has challenged all comers, and any other such teams over the section wishing a game of this kind are invited to communicate with Alfred Petty, Box 323, Ralls.

Ernest Dowell, spokesman for the local group, issued the invitation yesterday. He said Lubbock High would agree to furnishing workout suits and game equipment.

BOXING FANS OF SOUTH PLAINS FACE TREAT TONIGHT WITH RALLS SCHEDULE

RALLS, Nov. 18 (Special)—Boxing fans of the South Plains face a potential treat here tonight when Odie Ludlow of Jal, N. M., meets Marlin Owens of Wichita Falls in a scheduled ten-round bout to feature the Ralls Athletic club's semi-monthly card at the City Auditorium.

Ludlow, who coached at Crosbyton High school for a year after serving as boxing coach at Oklahoma A. & M., now coaches at Jal, N. M. He was unbeatable for more than a year in this district, then along came Owens, the latest sensation in the section, to batter the Oklahoman up rather badly. Odie asked for a return engagement, and got it.

Monday night's card promises to be one of the most interesting ever promoted here. Ludlow, a fine boxer, will be out to recover his prestige. Floyd Parker, promoter for the athletic club and for the Ralls fire department, which sponsors the events, anticipates the largest crowd of the season.

Nick Santos, a Latin scrapper from Fort Worth who has appeared in rings here and at Lubbock, will engage Kid Smyers of Lorenzo in the semi-final, a scheduled eight-rounder. They are lightweights.

John Buck of Crosbyton will oppose Bob Owens of Fort Worth in the four-round preliminary.

Tickets are on sale at Spencer's drug store and Young's confectionery, at Ralls and Crosbyton respectively. Ringside tickets are 75 cents, general admission, 50 cents, children, 25 cents.

Science Visions Cities Built Underground

Backed by recent discoveries in the fields of air conditioning, synthetic sunlight and sanitation control, man may yet build homes, theaters and business blocks a mile below the ground.

By Ansel E. Talbert

WILL mankind of the future build its cities downward instead of upward? Are we about to take to the caves again, like our ancient Stone Age ancestors?

The notion may not be as fantastic as it sounds at first. Modern military dangers to cities of the present type may make this radical change in our way of living necessary, and at the same time new engineering techniques may make it possible.

Cities of the present are almost utterly lacking in defensibility against airplane bombing attacks. It is the opinion of many military experts that the most powerful force working for peace in Europe today is mutual fear of the devastation an enemy air fleet could wreak.

Statesmen, military experts, and civilians shudder alike to think that the lives of several million noncombatants in densely populated cities like Paris, London, Berlin, or Leningrad might be snuffed out in a night with bombs and gas.

Drills for the civilian populations of these cities against air attacks are being held more and more often, although military men and chemists point to their inadequacy and brand them breeders of false security in the minds of uninformed persons.

BESIDES the military aspect, less important in America than Europe, there are many other things to be said against the piling up of a nation's population in skyscraper cities.

If today's cities had been systematically planned to begin with, things might not be so bad. As it is, some of them have been growing without planning for centuries, with little thought of proper health facilities, playgrounds, or architectural conveniences.

Slum sections have become cesspools of disease, poverty and crime, in spite of the valiant efforts of social workers. Inflated real estate prices in business sections have prevented the building of municipal airports and other necessary developments. The same inflated land prices tempt owners to pile up skyscrapers higher and higher, to offset the ground rents with equivalent floor space revenue. But that raises the price of the ground again—and so the vicious spiral rises endlessly.

The more rapid development of aviation has been prevented by these conditions. It seems almost incredible that a city like New York, with more than six million inhabitants, should be without even one convenient commercial landing field, but such is the case. If a New Yorker wishes to pay a visit by plane to another American city for business or pleasure, he must cross the Hudson river to New Jersey to the nearest flying field in Newark, some 15 miles away. Other cities are not much better off.

If aviation is to become the principal method of transportation in America for the future, something must be done to provide flying fields and plenty of them within reasonable distance by taxi of every inhabitant of our greatest cities.

One solution might be to tear down a dozen or so blocks of buildings in the hearts of our cities, and build flying fields there. In the face of fabulous real estate prices, this would mean a terrible taxation burden on the residents of these cities, and a probable mortgage for now unborn generations to pay off.

Housing is a puzzling problem to sociologists. Instead of houses becoming cheaper and better built during the last 25 years, they have become relatively more and more expensive, and less well built. Scientists have been attempting of late to develop some sort of low-priced, pre-fabricated home to house the less well-to-do section of the population, so far without marked success.

IN all our over-populated cities, the question of more room for expansion has always been settled by expansion upward and outward. Why not try a new tack and expand downward into the earth?

Many early types of man lived in caves, which provided shelter, warmth, and protection from enemies. Some western Indian tribes half-buried their dwellings, and prairie pioneers adopted their architecture in their "dugouts" and "sod houses."

When being a Christian meant persecution, torture, death, if captured, early Christian worshipers took to the catacombs, a labyrinthine system of underearth tunnels lined with burial crypts. To escape death they lived among the dead.

With less piety, but with the same instinct of self-preservation, Parisian pickpockets, murderers and other criminals for many years turned to the sewers of Paris when hunted by the law, and sometimes concealed themselves for weeks. In Victor Hugo's tragic tale of the relentlessness of the law, "Les Miserables," Jean Valjean manages to evade capture for a time by turning to the Paris sewers.

Even now, a surprising proportion of our population does all or part of its daily work underground: miners, "sandhogs" in caissons sinking deep foundations, subway employes, bargain basement clerks, heating plant firemen, and other servants of great hotels and office buildings. Many of us never stop to realize that the burrowing sub-basements of our skyscrapers may sink half a dozen stories into the earth, and that men labor there, day and night.

Besides these thousands of human moles, millions of their fellow workers daily dive into subways and long traffic tunnels, and take it as a normal part of their lives.

UNTIL recently, however, there has been no technique of underground construction suitable for hollowing out subterranean dwellings spacious and livable enough to house any large part of the population.

The development of a machine making possible the accurate measurement of just how much an underground structure can stand has now changed all this, and may open the way to huge underground construction projects. It is the invention of Prof. Philip B. Bucky of Columbia University, and is an adaptation of that many-purposed mechanism, the centrifuge.

Professor Bucky says that he first became interested in the subject of subterranean buildings during a conversation with former Dean George B. Pegram of the Columbia University School of Mines, who expressed dissatisfaction at the lack of experimental research in connection with mine structures.

Mining, one of the most ancient arts of man, has remained in an almost primitive state, lagging far behind other fields of activity developed through the results of scientific research. Disasters due to cave-ins and slides in mine tunnels are still not infrequent occurrences.

The scarcity of data on the strength of subterranean construction has compelled mine owners to keep mine passageways small, in the interest of safety. Consequently it has been impossible in many cases to work valuable ore deposits to their limit.

Since experimentation with actual mine structures would be dangerous as well as costly, Professor Bucky's machine tests models built of the same material as the real structure.

"The secret of the whole thing is that a small scale model built of the same material as its prototype will behave similarly, if its effective weight is increased in the same proportion as its linear scale is decreased," says Professor Bucky. "The method of increasing the effective weight of a model is to substitute a centrifugal field of force for the gravitational field."

GRAVITY thrusts downward; it is responsible for the tremendous pressures at underground depths that crumple the thick pillars supporting the roofs of mines. It is a stable force, however, and cannot be changed.

Because of this, Professor Bucky invokes centrifugal force in testing the structural strength of models. This is the force that is generated when a small boy swings a weight tied to a piece of string around his head, or when a discus thrower circles about in his tracks several times before letting go of the heavy discus.

The faster a weight is whirled, the more force is generated. The heart of Professor Bucky's centrifuge consists of a rectangular steel box, two feet high and five inches thick. This is whirled around a heavy steel post by a 100-horsepower electric motor at from 2000 to 2500 revolutions a minute.

At every turn of the box, an attached camera takes a picture of what is happening to the model as the pressure generated by the centrifugal force increases.

Suppose a section of a mine is being tested, with small-scale reproductions of the pillars and roof. Professor Bucky throws the switch that starts the machine.

The model is being subjected to terrific stress. Suddenly some weak point proves insufficient. Two pillars holding up the tiny roof collapse and down comes the miniature roof with a crash.

All this has been accurately photographed by the camera, so that it can later be run off in slow motion before mine engineers. Instruments have recorded at exactly how many revolutions a minute the pillars first showed signs of collapsing, and consequently what the force was at the breaking point.

BY simple mathematical calculation of the pressure at the depth beneath the surface where the tested mine section is to be constructed, Professor Bucky can tell whether it would be able to withstand the pressure with safety to workmen. The latest centrifuge constructed by Professor Bucky will be able to test forces equivalent to underground pressures at a depth of 6000 feet—well over a mile deep.

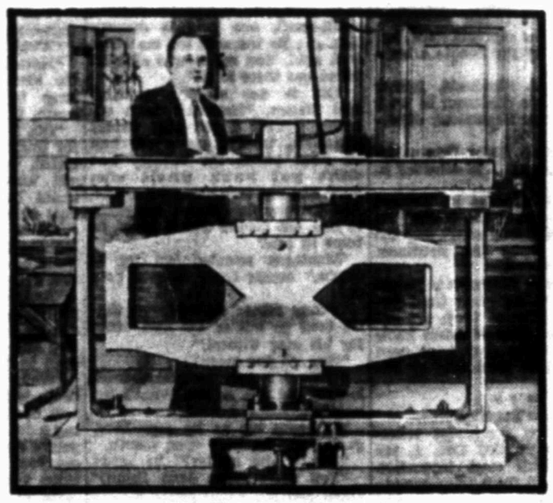

The technique offers new possibilities to engineers and architects. Now it is possible to design a cathedral, a theater, an armory, an auditorium to be built a mile below the surface of the earth. A model can be quickly made and tested in the centrifuge to see whether the construction called for in the blueprints is able to withstand the pressure at that depth.

When construction is started on the actual subterranean building, both the builder and the workmen can feel a sense of security.

Imagine homes, business blocks, theaters, even football fields, built a mile below the surface! With recent discoveries in the fields of air conditioning, synthetic sunlight, and sanitation control, conditions would be about as healthy as those above ground, with several important advantages on the side of the new cave dwellers.

There would be no sudden changes in temperature or moisture content of the air. Air conditioning would keep temperature and humidity at the most healthful level agreed upon by leading medical authorities. There would be no problem of excessive heat in the summer, and few coal bills in the winter.

Military dangers and overcrowding may dictate a radical change in our way of living, so don't be too surprised to learn some day that "skyscrapers" of the future will go down instead of up

Prof. Philip B. Bucky of Columbia University with his machine to measure the stresses which a subterranean structure will have to resist.

In underground dwellings our ancestors sought shelter and safety—although they did not always find the safety.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

DALLAS, Nov. 18.—Fooled you this time! The Plainsman is not starting off today with that bundle of pulchritude, The Girl on Broadway, because he and the Little Woman are down here in Big D for the annual conference of Texas Associated Press editors and staff men.

Every year the editors of Texas papers belonging to Associated Press gather somewhere to go over past weaknesses and future plans of Associated Press news and picture coverage. It's kinda like framing up on the white folks who read their papers, because at these conferences are decided many questions which effect the amount of news and the kind of news which will go to their readers for the following year.

Only convention The Plainsman has ever attended where anything is accomplished, the A. P. conference is really a working affair.

And is it hectic!

With all the state's top papers and practically all its publications of any territorial importance represented, every editor comes to the conference with a chip on his shoulder.

It's "just one, big, happy family", as it were, with everybody fussing with everybody else.

A Galveston editor will be very much put out because Amarillo didn't file a story on John Whoozis' automobile wreck last February 9th, because John Whoozis has a second cousin in Galveston who got mad because the paper there didn't have the article.

Same way the skipper at Texarkana hops on El Paso because the wire didn't get anything about the daughter of a prominent Texarkana man, a co-ed at New Mexico State Teachers college, being appointed the duchess of Las Cruces at a rodeo held in Oro Grande and didn't the El Paso editor know that would be of interest in Texarkana?

Boys and girls, it's a great life but it does bring about improvements in this state where the Associated Press has more members and more correspondents than any other state in the Union.

SO THAT'S what The Plainsman is doing down here and the Little Woman came along for the ride and to renew old friendships with Allabelle Record, Mary Cottingham, Dimple Bentley, and Sadie Ragsdale, whose respective husbands skipper the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram, the Houston Chronicle, the Abilene Reporter-News and the Galveston News-Tribune — and the other "newspaper widows" present.

Speaking about these newspaper wives, it's gotten to where in the last dozen years there are almost as many of them present as there are editors.

And you'd be surprised at the way they talk shop!

Conversation about "day side" and "night side" "tricks", "bulldog editions", "extras", the West and East Texas "loops", "top banners" and "dingbat heads", roll off their tongues like they were discussing recipes.

Funny thing is, they seem to get a kick out of it.

But anyhow, that's what's going on down here and we'll be back Wednesday after sticking around long enough to see the bangtails run again at Arlington Downs after the conference is over.

The Plainsman hopes and believes the conference will make for a better Avalanche and Journal next year, which ought to be appreciated by His Royal Highness, The Subscriber, who, after all, makes the presses run.

* * *

JUST because The Plainsman is out of town is no reason for this column to overlook its regular Monday feature, "flowers to the living" and today he submits the name of one of the grandest, most courageous, successful mothers and Christian women who ever lived, here or elsewhere:

MRS. MARY LOU DUNN

Mrs. Dunn, who is now 75 and lies ill at her home, 1811 9th street, is offered today's "flowers" because:

As a native of Parker county, a daughter of a member of the first company of Texas rangers, she went through three early Comanche Indian raids;

Because nearly 52 years ago, the bride of Rev. R. F. Dunn who was the first Methodist pastor in all the western country, she moved to Sweetwater simultaneously with the T & P railroad and took up bare living quarters over a saloon, aiding her husband to fashion their furniture out of packing cases;

Because she stood side by side with her husband during 47 years of his ministry, during which his salary averaged $900 per year, yet was able to 'tithe' to her church;

Because she mothered 10 children, only one of whom is not living, yet was able to do all her own work and save enough money to keep a Bible worker in foreign mission fields throughout every year of more than a half century;

Because her home management enabled her and her husband to help eight of the nine children to college educations and would have helped the ninth had not his illness interfered;

Because she has been an active leader in church and missionary circles throughout her life, helped her husband lead campaigns to build the first Methodist churches in Snyder, Colorado, Sweetwater and Big Spring;

Because during her residence in a score or more of towns, including Matador, Tahoka, Abernathy, Lorenzo and Crosbyton in this particular area, she has become known, respected and revered for her Spartan courage and indefatiguable energy;

And because throughout a long and useful life she has never compromised with forces which she believed to be wrong, unwaveringly fighting for what she believed to be right, this column today gives you this pioneer wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Lou Dunn.

Stars Of Broadway And Burlesque Offset Lowly Seekers Of Roles In Films; Many Strange Contrasts Are Located

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18.—Behind the screen: On a drawing-room set for Columbia's "No More Yesterdays" Ruth Chatterton is a brown-and-orange vision challenging belief that her stage career began more than 25 years ago. She hasn't played Broadway in a decade, but now and then reads and rejects a play script sent by some hopeful producer.

You immediately recognize a stage-trained actress as she effortlessly goes through long speeches in this flicker sequence. She knows her entire role. Other performers sometimes falter in their lines because they try to learn them only a few moments before rehearsal.

Marion Gering is a painstaking director, who demands many rehearsals; won't shoot until he's confident of a perfect first take. Saves miles of celluloid.

Free for a moment's rest, Miss Chatterton invites me to watch Marian Marsh, one of Hollywood's skyrocketing ingenues.

"Notice all her different expressions," whispers the elder actress. "And when she smiles she looks like Marlene Dietrich."

No Detail Overlooked

Here's a night club that will be part of "Panic on the Air." Ann Sothern and Lloyd Nolan have just finished a scene which required many takes and the smoking of as many cigarets. But that was business smoking, puffed under tension, and now they're borrowing cigarets to smoke for relaxation.

Among the properties for this picture is a little stack of stationery, which illustrates how meticulous is the preparation incident to picture making. Nowhere in the script is its appearance called for. But the property man figured that the director might make a change requiring a close-up writing shot in the office of a broadcasting company.

So, just on the chance, he devised a trademark for the company, thought up some names for its executives, and had envelopes, letterheads, and inter-office memo banks printed.

In the corridor I bump (literally) into another example of modern movie thoroughness. This is Herbert Biberman, the director, recently of Manhattan's Theater Guild. He knew precisely nothing of pictures when he was brought here, so his employers told him to observe and study, take his time, and let them know when he was ready to work.

They didn't hear from him for seven months, but their confidence was well-founded. Biberman has just finished "One-Way Ticket," which is drawing huzzas from the preview critics.

American-Chinese

Lunching on the lot of 20th Century-Fox, I meet another Chinese actor—Keye Luke, native of Canton, graduate of an American university, and a motion picture press agent before he got this chance to go straight. Doesn't know a word of Chinese.

He was brought to this country at the age of 2, and the first words he learned were "Beat it!" Later he picked up an Oxford accent because it helped him sell objects of art in his father's shop.

In "King of Burlesque," Luke speaks something that sounds like Chinese, but isn't. Pure gibberish.

There's Dixie Dunbar, the delectable (if I may say so) dancer from Broadway. Both she and Alice Faye are in this burlesque picture, and I'm afraid they're going to create an erroneously complimentary impression of the kind of scenery and talent the real strip-and-grind showshops have to offer.

Real Life To Reels

No matter what film subject Hollywood attempts, among the jobseekers always are a lot of people who have some real-life connection with the story. Start casting a chain-gang story and droves of unshackled convicts will show up at the gates.

Do a gangster movie and you'll be surprised at how many extras are willing to claim to be reformed racketeers. Even so remote a subject as the crusades found scores of descendants of crusaders besieging the cinema city.

War aces, deep-sea divers, mountain climbers, Russian dukes, and people who have shaken hands with Abraham Lincoln all are waiting to get into pictures dealing with their experiences and backgrounds. "Professional Soldier," now shooting, has brought out an army of soldiers of fortune.

Out Of Burlesque

Hollywood is overrun with former queens and comedy kings of burlesque. Among 50 extras hired one day was Lillian Drew. She's 66 now, and you may not recall that in the days of wellfilled tights she introduced the song, "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland."

Then there were the Steele Sisters, Agnes and Minnie, who are as much to blame as anybody for the beginning of the sister-act cycle.

The name of Frankie Bailey is on the Central Casting Bureau's roster of extras. Marlene Dietrich's legs are not as famous as were Miss Bailey's—but that was before Marlene was born.

In those times, of course, burlesque was the equivalent of stock company musical comedy, and was a good deal more respectable. There's a long list of current stars who got their starts in burly houses—George White, Jack Pearl, Jimmy Savo, W. C. Fields, James Barton, Ted Healy, Lester Allen, Bert Lahr, J-j-j-joe F-f-frisco, Fanny Brice, Polly Moran, Clark and McCullough, Weber and Fields — those are only a few of them.

TODAY'S JOURNAL EDITORIAL

BUY THAT NEW CAR NOW

The automobile industry in Detroit and other factory sites, and the far-flung sales agencies in Lubbock and everywhere else over the nation, are doing their best to induce people to purchase cars in late fall and early winter. The chief reason is that the industry desires a greater spread of employment over the year—an aim approved by the government as an important factor in the recovery program. Hitherto the end of the year has been a slack season in motors. The annual shows were held in January, but the buying flood usually held back until spring. Now the big shows have been moved forward to November.

It is not easy to change the public's buying habits, but the motor industry has some telling arguments in favor of fall buying.

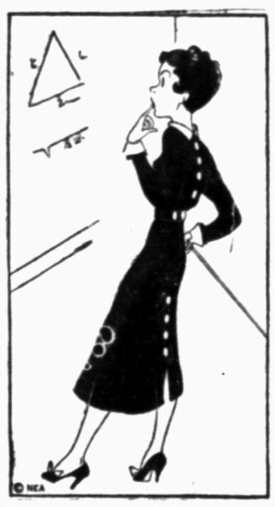

One is the depreciation factor; a car is judged by its annual date, and January adds another year to its age, thus reducing its trade-in value. Therefore it is profitable to make a deal in November or December.

Another is the fact that winter is harder on an old car than a new, entailing either considerable expense in advance of freezing weather to prepare it for the greater strains, or an even larger outlay as they materialize during the season.

On the point of economy, the testimony of truck-owners is eloquent. They claim they save money by buying in the fall because the new unit uses far less gas and oil during the season of hardest use. These are the men who keep the closest tab on performance, and therefore know what they are talking about.

The modern motor car is built for all weathers; there is no month in the year in which it is not a good buy, especially since the price can be spread over 12 months.

Dutchers' News And Views OF WASHINGTON

Dutcher
(Copyright, 1935, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—It may be worth remembering that the government won the Schechter NRA test case—in its first tryout before a federal district court in New York. The decision, as you recall, didn't stick.

You can take Federal District Judge William C. Coleman's decision in Baltimore against the holding company act as seriously as the public utility corporations would like you to take it. Or you may, as attorneys for the government privately would suggest, merely yawn.

But in any event, the more you looked into the inside workings of the so-called legal or judicial process, the more disillusioned you'd get.

You might guess why New Dealers say they can nearly always guess how any district judge will decide a case and why they, as well as corporation lawyers seeking to prove laws unconstitutional, try to bring their test cases before certain judges.

Federal judges are usually expoliticians picked by politicians for political reasons. The district bench now happens to be loaded with Republicans because so many jobs became vacant during Republican administrations.

But you needn't think Roosevelt has done any better by the judiciary. His district judge selections almost invariably have been made on recommendation of senior senators from the states involved, with approval of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who gets much advice from that prince of lobbyists and good fellows, ex-National Committeeman J. Bruce Kremer.

Both Guessed Right

It's no reflection on Judge Coleman to point out that he was an unsuccessful Republican office-seeker and had come to be known as anti-New Deal. Or to point out that the "power-trust" and its lawyer, John W. Davis, were confident of victory in Judge Coleman's court while government lawyers were confident of defeat.

Both sides were right. The "power trust" was able to pick the "battleground." Government lawyers probably would have brought the test—if they could have—in New York, where there are some Democratic district judges.

What the holding companies most wanted was an adverse decision which would give them psychological aid in refusing to register with the SEC on Dec. 1, when the law goes into effect. Their next test will be before District Judge Nields at Wilmington, former G. O. P. officeholder who ruled against the government in the Weirton case.

Utilities, testing the TVA, carefully chose to file suit in Birmingham before the late Justice Grubb, a Republican appointee. They won. But when the case came before the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, which happens to be made up preponderantly of Democrats, TVA won a reversal.

Court Is All-Republican

Just for fun, take a look at the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, at Richmond, to which Judge Coleman's decision will be appealed. Its three members are:

Judge John J. Parker, former Republican nominee for governor of North Carolina, former Republican national committeeman nominated by Hoover to the supreme court, but turned down by the Senate after a famous fight.

Judge Elliott Northcott, former Republican state chairman in West Virginia, former Republican officeholder.

Judge Morris A. Soper, former Republican assistant U. S. attorney in Baltimore.

Doubtless it denotes an irreverent attitude toward the courts, but government officials aren't any too comfortable about the Baltimore case in that court.

Circuit court of appeals judges are rated as higher grade than district judges. Most of them are ex-district judges. Few outsiders know it, but frequently they have been recommended to presidents by supreme court justices.

Decision Before Summer

When holding companies refuse to register with SEC Dec. 1, the government will start injunction suits to restrain them from operating in violation of the law, and holding companies presumably will sue to enjoin the SEC from enforcing the law.

Each side will dash to its favorite district judges. And nothing will count as to the act's constitutionality until the supreme court finally rules. (Its decision is hard to guess.) Which probably will be before summer—very likely on the Baltimore case.

The GOLDEN FEATHER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer, delays her answer when BOBBY WALLACE, young automobile salesman, asks Jean to marry him.

At The Golden Feather night club Jean meets SANDY HARKINS, whose business connection is vague. Sandy introduces Bobby and Jean to MR. and MRS. LEWIS and Bobby arranges to sell some bonds for Lewis. He sells them to Jean's employer.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, long a friend of Jean's parents, is trying to locate WINGY LEWIS, bank robber.

Sandy asks Jean to marry him and she promises to give him an answer after she returns from a vacation in her home town.

Larry locates some stolen bonds and questions SONNY BOYD, gambler, about them. Boyd confesses he bought them from Donald Montague.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

The door closed behind the skinny, perspiring figure of Sonny Boyd, and Hagan and Larry Glenn looked at one another. There was a pregnant silence, broken at last by Hagan's devout, "Well, I'll be damned!"

Larry grinned. "Exactly," he said. "The upright and respected Mr. Donald Montague, leader of the bar and admired by one and all, has been passing hot bonds."

Mike Hagan shook his head.

"Can you begin to see, now, why it's tough for guys like me?" he asked. "Here's Montague, a big shot politician, shoving those bonds off on a louse like Sonny Boyd . . . and then they wonder why coppers like me can't run the racketeers out of town."

Larry nodded sympathetically.

"I know. The cards are stacked against you. But before I get through here—" He paused, then went on: "Mike, I'm beginning to get on the trail of something here. At least a part of that Red Jackson gang is floating around Dover. And part of the loot they got in that Neola robbery turns up here. It passes through the hands of Don Montague, who is one of Dover's most respected citizens. Before we get through I'm going to have the whole picture. And when I do—things are going to be different."

Hagan looked at him earnestly.

"Larry, I hope to God you do it," he said. "I'm just a cop—but by damn I'm a good one, and I'm tired of being held in check by a bunch of crooked politicians and racketeers working hand in glove. Root this thing out, and cops like me may begin to have some chance around here. And if we do, then and alibied for this lad Harkins? She'd been with him, canoeing, all afternoon?"

"That's it."

"Lord!" said Larry fervently. "Is Montague making that kid perjure herself to keep his clients—"

He got up and strode around the office, swearing softly under his breath.

"I don't think she was lying," said Hagan calmly. "I think she was telling the truth. An' that's what makes it puzzling. Because I can't help thinking that Harkins was the bird who pulled that robbery, too."

"That doesn't make sense, then," said Larry, stopping his mad pacing. "If she was with him that afternoon he couldn't have done it."

"I know," said Hagan glumly. "You could see the kid was on the level. And yet—"

• • •

Jean Dunn drew her legs up under her, as she sat in the corner of the davenport, and beamed across the room at Larry Glenn, who sat at his ease in the easy chair under the bridge lamp.

"You can't say it isn't pretty flattering," she said.

"What is?"

"Having you for a caller. Humble stenographer entertaining the busy business man—what is it again, that you're doing, Larry?"

"Oh, I do odds and ends of jobs for Uncle Sam," said Larry. He hesitated, on the verge of asking the girl whether she knew anything about her employer's surreptitious deal in stolen bonds. Then he decided against it. He would go to Montague himself, in the morning. Time enough, after that, to question Jean if need be.

"Besides," he added, "I promised your father and mother I'd keep an eye on you, didn't I? And so far I've only seen you once since I've been in Dover."

"Well," said Jean, "that's not my fault, is it?"

"I don't know," said Larry, adopting a light, bantering tone. "I hear you're so popular that nobody can see you unless they make a date three weeks in advance."

"Silly! Where'd you hear that?"

"Oh, it's all over town. I hear you even went down to police headquarters with a young man the other day."

"Oh, that! I was doing my good deed that day—you know, Girl

"B. C. Relieves Periodical Pains In Three Minutes"

Now it is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. LEAGUE PLANS ARE INVOKED

Premier Pierre Laval, foreseeing counter-measures by Italy, waited to estimate the effect of loss of Italy's trade on French commerce.

Great Britain, whose Geneva delegate, Anthony Eden, led the campaign for sanctions, strengthened its customs organization in a special watch, maintained over all ports, for Italian consignment.

Emergency circulars gave authorities detailed instructions as to how the boycott should be made effective.

Austria, Hungary and Albania all held firmly to their determination not to apply economic pressure, although Austria emphasized that it was conciliatory toward the great powers opposing Italy's Ethiopian campaign.

Blockade On Food

Germany did not participate officially in the economic blockade, having left the League but it had placed an embargo on export of foodstuffs and raw materials against all nations on grounds of home necessity.

The economic blockade was the major part of the general sanctions program applied by the League of Nations under the covenant, Italy having been found aggressor in the East African hostilities.

Fifty-two nations had already applied financial sanctions, beginning Oct. 31, cutting off their channels of credit to Italy.

A like number had placed an arms embargo on Italy and lifted it from Ethiopia.

Forty-seven nations had accepted the mutual aid project, equalizing the burdens of League states under the measures.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—The stock market started with a rush today, but put on the brakes before any real runaway could develop.

The new Canadian trade treaty apparently brought buying in selected groups while inducing profit taking in others, especially the alcohols. The ticker tape failed to keep step with floor dealings shortly after the opening when blocks of several thousand shares were transferred at gains ranging from fractions to a point or so. Many highs for the past four years were registered. The trading volume dwindled when realizing appeared.

Grains and cotton were inclined to dip, although they were not especially weak. Bonds were steady, with scattered rail liens in demand. Foreign exchanges did little either way.

Rail equipment shares pushed forward, along with a number of the utilities and merchandising stocks. American Woolen preferred got up 3 points and Baldwin preferred was 2 firmer. Other gainers of fractions to a point or more included American Locomotive, Westinghouse Air Brake, Pullman, Inland Steel, Oliver Farm, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, American Radiator, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Western Union, American Telephone, American Water Works, U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco and Kennecott. Among those off as much were Schenley, National Distillers, American Commercial Alcohol, Commercial Solvents, Chrysler, Case, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and American Rolling Mill.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Nov. 18 (AP)—With nothing apparent in the Canada-United States tariff pact that would cause the domestic grain trade much concern, wheat developed relative firmness late today.

A decrease of 988,000 bushels in domestic stocks of wheat at principal terminals was a late strengthening influence. Earlier fluctuations were narrow, an dseemed minus any unusual significance.

Wheat closed uneven, 1-4 lower to 3-4 higher, compared with Saturday's finish, Dec. 86 7-8 to 97, corn unchanged to 1-4 higher, Dec. 60 to 08 1-8; oats 1-8 to 1-4 off, and provisions 10 to 35 cents down.

ATTORNEY DIES

SELMA, Ala., Nov. 18 (AP)—Judge Samuel B. Dabney, 76, a prominent Houston, Texas, attorney died in a hospital here last night from a heart attack.

During the World War, soldiers would shovel the gas out of the trenches after a heavier-than-air gas attack. An ordinary shovel, with canvas flaps on three sides, was used.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 6 to 9 points decline in response to lower foreign cables and under liquidation and hedge selling. Dec. 11.83; Jan. 11.68; March 11.63; May 11.57; July 11.46; Oct. 11.27.

Trading was moderately active with considerable scattering liquidation and southern selling. This was taken within a comparatively narrow range by trade and commission house buying.

After showing net losses of 8 to 11 points prices were holding fairly steady at the end of the first hour.

Liverpool cables attributed the relatively easy ruling of that market to selling promoted by the reactionary showing of Egypt and India and moderate hedging.

The market was less active later with fluctuations rather nervous and irregular. Reactionary sentiment was considerably in evidence and there was more or less realizing or liquidation. At mid-day Dec. was selling around 11.76 and May 11.53 with active months showing net losses of 7 to 13 points.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18. (AP)—Cotton futures lost from 2 to 8 points on the market here today as light selling cropped out in all positions.

Poor cables and a week-end accumulation of selling orders depressed prices at the first call and an easier tone developed.

The Dec. position made the best showing, losing but 2 points to sell at 11.84, but opening prices of 11.67 for Jan. 11.60 for Mch. 11.56 for May and 11.23 for Oct. averaged 25 cents a bale lower.

Prices held around their early low levels during the morning, and while there was no attempt to extend the decline, there was little buying to support the market.

Dec. dipped to 11.74 during the morning and then recovered to 11.78 while just before noon March sold at 11.59, May at 11.54, July at 11.44 and Oct. at 11.17.

NEW NATION

munity like Manchoukuo's 32,000,000 inhabitants, it will mean that Japan has been instrumental in wresting from Chinese sovereignty an aggregation of humanity approximately equal to the population of the United States.

The Japanese dispatches said the new state would be called Huapeh Liensheng Tzuchih Chenghcuan, which can be translated as "the North China united provinces autonomous regime."

The leaders of the regime, it was said, will be Gen. Sung Chueh-Yuan, commander of the Peiping-Tientsin garrison, and Governor Han Fu-Chu of Shantung province. Their chief associates are expected to be Gen. Shang Chen, governor of Hopeh province, Hsiao Cheng-Ying, governor of Chahar, Gen. Hsu Yung-Chang, Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, head of the Suiyuang provincial government, and the mayors of Peiping and Tientsin.

Declare Four Principles

The Japanese communications, with a unanimity of detail indicating a common and well informed source, recount the alleged iniquities of the Nanking government and the Kuomintang—the Chinese nationalist party — then assert that the declaration of independence will declare four principles:

1. The complete autonomy of North China;

2. The severance of all financial and economic ties with the Nanking government;

3. The cooperation of the Japanese army in the prevention of the spread of communism;

4. The promotion of cordial relations among North China, Japan, and Manchoukuo.

PASTOR'S TRIAL

they already had formed opinions in the widely-discussed case or had scruples against the death penalty.

No Concern Shown

Notwithstanding that the state has said that it will ask the death penalty, Eskridge evinces no concern over the outcome of the trial.

"J. J. Collins is a fine lawyer—one of the best," he said, "my case is in his hands and I'm not worrying. I'm a pretty fair country lawyer but I'm not going to make any suggestions to him. Did you see the way Collins handled those witnesses in the change of venue hearing?"

Since being transferred to the county jail here, Eskridge has spent much of his time playing poker with his "tank mates."

Takes Care Of Himself

Asked if any of the fellow-prisoners had endeavored to mistreat him, the preacher replied with a grin that "I can take care of myself."

He stands more than six feet tall, looks like a former football tackle, and is proud of his physical prowess.

Eskridge scoffs at the idea that he is insane.

"I guess lots of witnesses will say I'm crazy," he said. "Well, whatever they swear is their business."

"It is too much to expect of the sober elements in any Texas community to always succeed in preventing the administration of adequate punishment for such crimes without the sanction of law, and we here now call upon the governor and legislature of Texas for the correction of the laws of the state so that such adequate punishment may be administered by due course of law."

"If the opportunity to earn a living is not given back to our people soon, the morals of our nation will be broken down," Mrs. Marrs said. "Pensions are necessary, I suppose. But I am most concerned for the young people."

It's A Camera—Not A Cannon

This giant 16-foot camera with a focal length of 137 inches will be used to take pictures of the National Geographic-U. S. Army stratosphere flight at Rapid City, S. D.—if the flight is made. The camera was brought to the stratosphere camp by Capt. George V. Holloman (left) and George A. Magness (right). They intend to follow the stratosphere balloon in a plane and land from time to time to take pictures of it, using telescopic sights to bring the big bag into the camera's range. Scout and all. I was keeping a nice young man from being bothered by the police."

"Were you, indeed? Tell uncle all about it."

"Well, you see," she said, "I'd been out with him this one afternoon a week or two ago—"

"Bobby, you mean? Don't tell me he's getting in trouble with the police."

"No, not Bobby. This—this was Sandy Harkins," she said, feeling somewhat self-conscious.

"Who's he?"

"Oh, he's just—just a friend of mine." She felt more self-conscious than ever; so much so that she failed to notice that Larry's jaw muscles were tightening at this bit of evidence that she was on friendly terms with Harkins. "Anyway, he and I'd been out canoeing this afternoon, and next week it developed that he happened to look like a man the police were looking for about a robbery, and it just happened that the robbery had happened the very afternoon that we were out canoeing, so Mr. Montague took us down to police headquarters and I told them about it . . . and that's all there was to it."

"Oh." Larry looked at her speculatively. "Mr. Montague took you, did he?"

"Why, yes. . . . It's funny, your mentioning Bobby. Because if it hadn't been for Bobby I might not have been canoeing with Sandy at all that day. Anyway, Bobby came in to see Mr. Montague that afternoon—"

"Bobby did?"

"Sure." Something about the surprise in Larry's tone made her open her eyes wider. "He had something he wanted to sell Mr. Montague—"

"Sell him?"

"Yes. What's the matter tonight, Larry?"

He blinked, and then grinned at her.

"Don't mind me. I'm getting flighty in my old age. Go on with your story."

"Oh. Anyhow, Bobby came in and went into Mr. Montague's office and then Mr. Montague came out and said I might as well take the rest of the day off, as I did, and I bumped into Sandy downstairs and we went canoeing. That's all."

"Mmmm. Know this—what do you call him, Sandy?—very well, Jean?"

Her cheeks grew redder by just the faintest shade, and she looked at the floor for a moment. Larry missed none of it. Then she said, "Why—yes, pretty well."

He looked at her fondly. Then, to her surprise, he got up and came over and rested one hand on her shoulder.

"Jean," he said, "I'm getting jealous of all these young blades. I want to see more of you myself. I'm not going to neglect you the way I have been. You'll save some time for the old uncle, won't you?"

She looked up in surprise, and saw that underneath his joking tone he was serious.

"Why, of course, Larry," she said. "The more I see of you the happier I'll be. You know that."

"When you need a father confessor—" he began. Then he rumpled her hair and grinned down at her. "All right, Princess Charming, when may I see you again?"

"Any time you—oh, Larry, I almost forgot! I'm going on my vacation next week. I'm going down home. Will you come and see me before I go?"

"See you? I'll take you out to dinner. How about Friday night?"

"Larry, will you? I'll be tickled to death!"

After he had gone Jean lay back on the couch and mused: Dear old Larry! So reliable and dependable—and not, like some other old friends, always trying to bring up the subject of love and marriage! . . . But why had he acted so strangely when she was telling him about going down to the police station with Sandy? And what queer, unwanted thought was floating around in her subconscious mind, making her feel uncomfortable whenever she herself thought about it? Something was wrong, somewhere; what was it?

THERE ARE A DOZEN MEN ON THIS POLE!

How the Headquarters staff of the Bell System aids the lineman at his job of giving you good telephone service.

When you're clinging to the top side of a telephone pole in a stiff gale, there's small time left for experiments in saving time and saving money.

A good lineman has his hands full with the work he's got to do.

But experiments are important if telephone service is to be improved, and its cost held low. So the Bell System employs men whose job it is to make them.

Some of them work on the headquarters staff of American Telephone & Telegraph Company, parent company of the System. Some are research scientists at Bell Laboratories, the "invention factory" of the System. In the factories and purchasing offices of Western Electric, Bell System supply unit, others tranform the ideas of the research workers and engineers into the actual equipment needed to do the job.

While it may seem that the lineman works alone, his invisible companions on this pole are the men who have worked out his problems for him in advance . . . men of the laboratory, staff engineers, skillful fashioners of equipment.

The constant stream of new inventions, ideas and methods which these men produce for us*, as one of the 24 operating companies of the Bell System, has helped us do two things: It has helped us give you better telephone service. And it has made it possible for us to provide that improved service without increased cost to you.

*Engineers and executives of the Southwestern Company adapt these developments for actual, day-to-day use in the work of handling your telephone calls.

Out Of The West

NEW YORK—Mrs. Herbert Hoover has proved herself a westerner.

Visiting headquarters of the Girl Scouts—she is national president—she made a purchase at a cookie sale and tendered a silver dollar in payment.

The girls stared. The cartwheels, they were told, are more common in the west than in the east.

Q. E. D.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Things that may nonplus James A. Farley, Democratic state and national chairman, are no enigma to Homer W. Storey, clerk of the assembly and Monroe county Democratic campaign manager for the last election.

When Philip Dailey, executive secretary for the Monroe Democrats announced Farley had requested reasons for the Democratic defeat in the county a week ago, Storey observed: "I can tell him . . . Too many persons voted the Republican ticket.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Hard to Smile on Milk Diet—Salesman Happy Able to Eat Food Again

"A salesman can't smile on a milk diet, and no smile, no sale!" said C. J. Sutherland, 2410 W. 27th St., North Fort Worth. "For 3 years I had been on a diet of milk and liquids. Indigestion, pain in stomach, heartburn, bloating, made my days miserable and my nights sleepless. My druggist recommended Gordon's Compound. In just two days it gave the first relief in three years. I'm smiling again, for I eat anything I want now, and not a sign of distress. Have gained 10 pounds."
