Clapper Finds:

Major Drive Against Japs Not Far Off

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE In AUSTRALIA, Jan. 10 (By Wireless) — Our Navy freight plane came down in Australia at twilight after covering 9500 miles in three days and three nights of flying from Washington.

Short stopovers have given me a general view of our biggest war theater, where the fighting will be the hardest and the longest. I will work my way back more slowly, in order to get a closer look at the Pacific war.

CLAPPER

I have been flying with the Navy. Some of the crews were straight Navy, others were from Pan-American Airways, flying under contract. There are several planes daily each way, plus several for the Army, which means hundreds of officers and tons of mail and special high-priority cargo moving across the Pacific by air.

The Navy's Air Transport has not lost a single plane in this operation, and only one has been forced down. This is the backbone of our communications system for the war in the Pacific, giving speed and flexibility where they are needed while a vast number of ships carry the volume.

I have already visited some of the bases and seen acres of supplies. Even the first quick glance shows that preparations for the Pacific war are far more advanced than I had realized. Certainly our forces in the Pacific are not being starved. On the contrary, there has been a long period of building up.

Manila Pilot's Goal

Our transport lines are far beyond the Japs' present striking range, and some of the air transport crews complain that they have a dull life. They would like to be closer to it. Yet many of these fliers have had their moments.

For instance, one Pan-American pilot, F. S. Ralph, of Berkeley, Cal., who was captain of our ship for part of the way, was flying that clipper that was caught in the water at Hong Kong on Dec. 8, 1941. The plane was riddled. Ralph came back via Chungking and around the world. He has been on the Pacific run now for 18 months. When I asked what he wanted to do, he said:

"I want to fly the first plane into Manila."

WE HAVE been using a big four-engined Consolidated PB2Y3 Coronado, a type which is used also as a Navy bomber. There has been scarcely a bump in the whole journey. These planes are doing for the Navy the job that the old truck-horse Douglas C-53 has been doing for the Army in the Mediterranean campaign.

One of the crew said it was our ship that was forced down with

Allies Roam Big Area To Batter Jap Bases

MARSHALL ISLANDS "SOFTENED"—Probably marked "soon" on the list of forthcoming Allied invasions of Jap-held Pacific areas are the Marshall Islands, under almost daily pounding by Allied planes in a "softening up" bombardment. In Allied hands, they would flank Truk on the east, provide springboard for long-range bomber raids on that great Jap sea and air base.

Heavy Blow Dealt Japs In Marshalls

By WILLIAM HIPPLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 10. — Navy Liberator planes, swooping low over Wotje atoll in the Marshall islands the night of Jan. 9, sank a Japanese auxiliary oiler and another small vessel, wrecked two enemy airplanes on the ground and damaged shore installations.

This was the heaviest of four new air attacks on the Marshalls, announced today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz. The assaults were made by Army or Navy planes on Jan. 8 and 9. Wotje was hit twice and Jaluit and Kwajalein once each.

All the attacks were carried out without loss of an American plane. One medium bomber of the Seventh Army Air force was damaged by anti-aircraft fire in the sweep over Jaluit the morning of Jan. 8. One crew member was wounded by shrapnel. It was the 17th raid since mid-November on Jaluit and the fifth of 1944.

Big Bombers Hit First

Heavy bombers of the Seventh AAF were the first to strike at Wotje Sunday. They swept over in the evening, the announcement said, but there were no details. The attack by Navy Liberators came that night and brought the number of raids there to 10 since the central Pacific offensive opened in November. It was the first time that Japanese shipping had been reported sunk or damaged in the Wotje lagoon.

Navy search Liberators of Fleet Wing Two attacked Kwajalein atoll Sunday. It was the first attack on Kwajalein since last Dec. 30. There was no interception and no damage from anti-aircraft fire.

All of the atolls mentioned in the new raids have air bases.

Russia Suggests Polish Boundary

Return Of Land By Germans Proposed

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 11. (AP) — The Moscow radio, indicating Russia's intention to retain the bulk of the territory she obtained in the 1939 partition of Poland, declared early today that the approaching restoration of Poland must be accomplished by return of land taken by the Germans and not by Polish "seizing" of Ukraine or White Russian areas.

This was the first official Soviet statement on the Polish-Russian border dispute, which has grown urgent since the Red Army advance across the old Polish frontier last week.

So-Called Curson Line

"The Soviet-Polish border could pass approximately along the so-called Curzon line, which was accepted in 1919 by the supreme council of the Allied powers and which provided for inclusion of the western Ukraine and western Byelo-Russia (White Russia) in the structure of the Soviet Union," it said.

The Curzon line, named for the late British foreign secretary, roughly followed the Bug river and a line between Grodno and Brest-Litovsk as Poland's eastern boundary. It was not accepted by the Poles, who then were at war

Many Nip Troops Lost When Barges Sunk Off Guinea

(By The Associated Press)

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Tuesday, Jan. 11 — Allied air squadrons roamed the skies from the Dutch Celebes far north of Australia to the Solomons to deliver heavy bomb loads on Japanese bases and barge supply routes, the high command announced today.

Biggest smash was made in the Madang supply and airbase area on the northeast coast of New Guinea, where a total of 168 tons of explosives were laid on Madang itself, the protecting airdrome at Alexishafen and Bogadjim, Madang's main southern defense outpost. These blows should materially aid in the American Army invasion force at Saidor, 55 miles southeast of Madang.

Six Japs Are Downed

American Liberator heavy bombers soared 750 miles north of Darwin, Australia, to drop 25 tons on the important enemy base at Kendari, on the east coast of Celebes island. The unescorted bombers met heavy antiaircraft fire and downed six and probably four more of 13 intercepting Zeros which waged a 35-minute running battle with the raiders. One American bomber was lost.

The Kendari airfield, completed by the Dutch just before start of the war, now is the Japanese air force home base on Celebes island.

There was little change in the ground situation at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, where American Marine patrols were operating extensively south of the airdrome which was cleared of the enemy 10 days ago.

Others Resume Advance

Other Marine units resumed their advance south of Silimati point, near the Borgen Bay area of the Cape Gloucester invasion holding, and met resistance Sunday morning, a headquarters spokesman said. Hard fighting previously had been reported here.

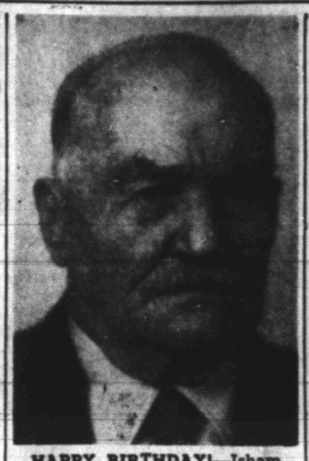

American casualties including wounded since the Cape Gloucester landing Dec. 26 are less than 15 per cent of 2,000 counted Japanese dead, the spokesman said. This meant that the Leathernecks had paid with less than 300 men for their successes, which included the winning of the important airfield against bitter opposition.

United States naval units spread destruction among Japanese barges caught off the New Guinea coast, sinking or destroying 11 of the craft, seven of which were loaded with troops and supplies, in a night action off Gali point seven miles below Saidor.

Three Other Barges Sunk

Medium bombers operated against barges and installations in the Ulican harbor area north of Madang, hitting supply dumps and

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!—Isham Tubbs, above, pioneer Lubbock county citizen, is to be honored today in an open house at his home in the Carlisle community on his 92nd birthday. Mr. Tubbs was born in Cherokee county, Texas, Jan. 11, 1852 and moved to Lubbock from Kaufman in Aug., 1890. He put in the first farm in Lubbock and helped move the first house to the present site of Lubbock county from North Lubbock in 1891. He is the father of the first child born in Lubbock county and is the only surviving charter member of the First Methodist church here. Henry Tubbs, his oldest son, was the first child born in the county. Other members of the family are: two daughters, Mrs. Lucy Revier and Mrs. Olive Fluke, both of Lubbock; five other sons, R. I., Frank and Travis of Lubbock and O. W. of Dallas and Lee of Arkansas. Mrs. Tubbs died in 1931.

Ruling Given On Service Ballot

All But Regulars Are Held Eligible

AUSTIN, Jan. 10 (AP)— Texans serving in the armed forces of the nation, except those in the permanent Army and Navy, are entitled to vote in party primaries subject to payment of poll tax and the absentee voting law, Attorney General Grover Sellers said in an opinion today.

The opinion was sought by Governor Coke R. Stevenson as a guide to the need for legislation which might facilitate handling of soldier ballots for primary elections.

The governor withheld a decision on possible legislative action for an overnight study of Sellers' opinion.

Here Are His Findings

The attorney general, surveying constitutional and statutory provisions on voting qualifications and absentee balloting, declared: A constitutional prohibition against soldier voting applies only to those members of the permanent armed forces and clearly exempts reserve forces and persons inducted into the land and naval forces under the provisions of the selective service act.

Members of the armed forces can vote absentee just as any other qualified voter by paying the poll tax and by making mail application for a ballot at least three days prior to an election. The poll tax requirement cannot be released, Sellers said.

Ruling Summarized

Summarizing the 13-page opinion, Sellers wrote:

"All members of the armed forces in the services of the United States government, except members of the regular Army and the regular Navy, are entitled to vote in the coming primary elections of this state, provided that they are otherwise qualified to vote in such elections.

"Such voters may vote absentee in exactly the same manner as provided for absentee voting by other voters. That is, they may:

(a) Vote absentee, in person, at the office of the county clerk of the county of their residence at any time not more than 20 days

Sweden And Germany Sign Trade Treaty

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 10 (AP) — Sweden and Germany signed a trade treaty today providing for reduced exchanges of goods in 1944 and the Nazis agreed to lift their blockade on Swedish shipping to North and South America next Saturday.

(In Washington, the Swedish legation said Germany had backed down completely from her three-month-old suspension of safe conduct travel for Swedish vessels.

(A spokesman said restoration of safe conduct was one of the main conditions of the new agreement, which also further pares exports of iron ore to Germany.)

Sweden agreed to ship 7,000,000 tons of iron ore to the Nazis in 1944, almost 3,000,000 tons less than in 1943. Coal and coke imports from Germany will be cut correspondingly.

SINATRA PAPA AGAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—It's a boy this time for Frankie Sinatra, crooning idol, and he'll probably be named Frank, Jr. The eight-pound, 13-ounce baby was born this afternoon at Margaret Hague hospital in Jersey City, George Evans, Sinatra's publicity representative announced.

Reds Closing In For Great Nazi Slaughter

16,000 Reported Slain During Day In Partial Trap

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 11 — The Red Army smashed to within 21 miles of the Warsaw-Odessa railway yesterday, slashed two lines feeding into that main German escape channel, and killed 16,000 more enemy troops, Moscow announced early today.

Berlin reports via neutral Stockholm said the Germans had evacuated Sarny, rail junction 35 miles inside old Poland, in the path of the Soviet steamroller. Rovno, another junction almost 50 miles to the southwest, was endangered by rapid Russian strides, said the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter.

Reach Bug River

Other dispatches said the Russians had reached the Bug river, last natural German defense line in the Ukraine. Only a few miles beyond the Bug lies the Warsaw-Odessa railway, which the Russians hope to seize in an effort to doom upwards of 500,000 Germans in southern Russia.

Guerrilla "ghost armies" springing out of the snowy forests of old Poland joined Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's First Ukraine Army regulars attacking westward on a 40-mile front in old Poland. Imperilled Sarny appeared about to fall as the Russians captured two more localities below it.

The guerrillas also were declared by Moscow to be wrecking German rail facilities near Odessa on the Black Sea and along the pre-war Rumanian frontier toward which part of General Vatutin's forces were plunging.

Amphibious Landing

Berlin also reported that Russian amphibious forces had tried to land on the Black Sea coast at Ochakov, midway between Odessa and the Dnieper river mouth.

General Vatutin's men killed more than 4,000 Germans during the day, Moscow announced.

But the biggest day's slaughter of German troops occurred when Gen. Ivan S. Konev's troops caught the remnants of an original enemy force of 50,000 or more men in a trap west and northwest of Kirovograd in the Dnieper bend, said the broadcast-communique.

Upon refusing to surrender, the enemy troops were wiped out al-

Cost In U-Boat Warfare Lower

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP) — U-boat warfare cost the United Nations only 40 per cent as much cargo tonnage in 1943 as in 1942, a joint Anglo-American statement reported tonight, while the tonnage of new merchant vessels constructed was more than twice as great.

The tonnage of cargo ship losses to submarines in the Atlantic in December "was again low, despite an extension of (U-boat) operating areas," said the monthly communique issued by the Office of War Information under authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Routes Well Secured

"Fewer U-boats were destroyed during the month by our air and sea forces owing to several factors ,including increased caution by the enemy," the report stated. "Our supply routes were, however, well secured against U-boat attack."

The communique did not total the number of U-boat kills chalked up by Allied forces during 1943, nor the cargo tonnage lost. It did reveal marked improvement in the last half of the year.

Nearly half the merchant ship tonnage sunk was lost in the first three months of 1943, 27 per cent in the second quarter, and only 26 per cent in the third and fourth quarters combined.

Previously it had been announced that 150 U-boats were destroyed in the second and third quarters of 1943, a total greater than the number of Allied ships lost by submarine action.

Ciano Is Given Death Sentence

Others Also Found Guilty Of Treason

LONDON, Jan. 10 (AP)— Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's playboy son-in-law and former Italian foreign minister, has been sentenced to death for "treason" to Italy and its deposed dictator, the Berlin radio announced tonight.

Ciano and 17 other members of the Grand Fascist council were condemned in a two-day trial by an extraordinary tribunal of Mussolini's revamped Republican Fascist government for voting to oust Mussolini, the broadcast said, quoting a DNB dispatch from northern Italy.

Five Are In Custody

Only five of those sentenced to death are in Fascist hands, among them 76-year-old Marshal Emilio de Bono, who commanded the expedition to Ethiopia. The others are Ciano, Carlo Pareschi, former minister of agriculture; Giovanni Marinelli, former head of the Fascist militia, and a man named Gotthardi.

Tullio Cianetti, former minister of corporations, was a 19th defendant, and was sentenced to 30 years at forced labor, DNB added.

There was no indication either that Mussolini's daughter, Edda, tried to save her husband, or that Mussolini appeared as a witness against Ciano.

The 13 grand council members sentenced in absentia included

Air-Borne Medicine Dropped To Rancher

CARLSBAD, N. M., Jan. 10 (AP) Using bombing technique with good results, two Carlsbad Army Air field flyers dropped life-saving sulfathiazole from the air to a rancher stricken with pneumonia and snowbound at the X-Bar ranch deep in the Guadalupe mountains, the air field public relations office reported today.

The medicine was dropped Sunday, and the victim, Plez Julian, foreman at the ranch, tonight was reported to be definitely improved.

Mrs. Julian had telephoned the Army for help after a heavy snowstorm had isolated her ranch home, 50 miles west of here.

The medicine struck in the snow three feet from where Mrs. Julian was standing.

Sofia Battered, Fifth Drives On

Big Bombers Using New Italian Bases

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 10.—American Flying Fortresses, operating from great new bases in southern Italy, struck a paralyzing blow at Nazi communications in the Bulgarian capital at Sofia today while the Allied Fifth Army, its offensive supplemented by tanks, pushed toward the outskirts of Cassino, 70 miles from Rome, threatening that key German defense bastion.

A one-sentence communique announced the Sofia raid, saying only: "A heavy force of Flying Fortresses of the Fifteenth Air force bombed Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, about noon today." But headquarters also announced, for the first time, that the big American bombers have moved up to Italy, to positions vastly more favorable for attacking the Balkans and central and southern Europe than the former bases in Africa, 500 or more miles farther from German targets.

Operating For Weeks

Dispatches from Lynn Heinzerling, Associated Press correspondent with the Fifteenth Air force, then were released, disclosing that the Fortresses and Liberators have been operating from Italy for weeks and that on Sunday Fortresses, with Lightning cover, set off huge fires and explosions in Pola, Italian port at the tip of the Istrain peninsula.

(Location of the new bases in Italy was not disclosed, but after capture of the Foggia airfield area in southern Italy last Sept. 27 President Roosevelt described it as one of the most important Allied successes, bringing the air forces nearer Germany and permitting air cover for operations in northern Italy and the Adriatic.)

Yanks Throw In Tanks

No further details were available on the air attacks but on the ground the Fifth Army, which burst through the German defenses to a depth of two more miles, threw tanks into action on the plain before Cassino as freezing weather heardened the ground.

The extent to which British and American armor could participate in the final assault on Cassino depended on how strongly German artillery was emplaced on heights on both sides of the Rome road, which runs along the Cas-

Bulgaria Hints Attack On Turks

LONDON, Jan. 10 (AP)—Strong formations of American Flying Fortresses heaved explosives and fire upon the Bulgarian capital of Sofia today amid reports that the German satellite is girding for an attack on Turkey and new signs of the growing importance of the Balkans as a war theater.

The strong raid on the rail communications center serving Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria was the fifth in two months and was made from newly-carved Allied air bases in Italy.

Stockholm Reports

The newest reports that Bulgaria is preparing to attack Turkey came from the Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten, which said that "Turkey is not expected to be able to remain neutral until the end of the winter."

"Military patrols searched people on the streets of Sofia last week," the newspaper continued. "The radio station, war ministry and government palace have special guards with machine guns ready for any attack, and in any case, Bulgaria gives the impres-

Morton Is Found Dead At Wichita

WICHITA FALLS, Jan. 10. (AP) —B. O. Morton, 26, of Abilene, was found dead today in a tourist hotel cabin, apparent victim of asphyxiation.

Morton, field representative in the Lubbock area for the Norris Tool company of Wichita Falls, spent Saturday here on business. He registered at the tourist hotel Saturday evening. The body was found this afternoon by a maid.

All windows were closed, and the gas heating stove was still burning with a high flame.

Morton's wife and two children live at Abilene. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Morton, reside at Lubbock.

FATHER HERE NOTIFIED OF FINDING OF BODY

Notification that the body of their son, Beverley Odel Morton, 25, of Abilene, former Lubbock resident, had been found in a Wichita Falls tourist hotel cabin, was received about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Morton, 2012 Twenty-third street.

About noon, the Lubbock man said, young Morton's employers, unable to locate their representative, telephoned him to inquire if his son had visited here durthe weekend.

The father said he was told by telephone that a gas heater had been found burning in his son's quarters. Young Morton was dis-

RAF Out Again As Evacuation Talked

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 11 (AP) RAF bombers roared over the English channel in moonlight last night to resume the blasting of objectives on the continent.

Prefects of the French channel coast departments were reported by the Vichy radio today to have met in Paris to discuss "possible evacuation of the French channel coast, particularly the area now subjected to heavy air attacks."

"Evacuation of the country districts of the Somme already has been ordered," it was announced.

The Somme region is south and west of the Pas de Calais area, the so-called "rocket coast" which has been taking a terrific blasting from British and American planes.

State Teacher Groups Named

EL PASO, Jan. 10. (AP)—Executive committees of the Texas State Teachers association for the current year were announced tonight by Mrs. Virginia Link, president.

Committee members comprise classroom teachers, superintendents and principals of city and county schools and college professors and executives, said Mrs. Link, who added that an executive meeting of the association will be held Feb. 5 at Fort Worth, at which time projects for the year will be discussed.

The committee personnel named by Mrs. Link follows:

Legislative — H. W. Stilwell, Texarkana, chairman; H. V. Harrison, Frost; C. M. Rogers, Amarillo; G. B. Wilcox, Texas A&M college professor and Miss Elizabeth Coch, San Antonio.

Organizational affairs — Nat Williams, Ballinger, chairman; Miss Doris Thompson, Waco, Dr. Sam H. Whitley, president of East Texas State Teachers college, Commerce; R. C. Roebuck, Houston; Miss Maymie Wheless, Dallas; L. H. Griffin, New Boston.

Bodies Of Ill-Fated Duck Hunters Found

HOBBS, N. M., Jan. 10. (AP)— The bodies of three Army airmen from the Hobbs air field, missing since early Saturday on a duck hunting trip, were found in the icy waters of a slough on the Pecos river about 75 miles northwest of here, the base public relations office announced today.

The body of Lt. James M. Buxton, Merced, Calif., was found late Sunday, the bodies of Lt. James B. Watson, Flushing, N. Y., and Sgt. Harold G. Richardson, Tucumcari, N. M., were found late today.

Army and civilian parties began the search Saturday after the three hunters had become lost in a raging snowstorm. The bodies were found in about two feet of water.

Texas Bankers' Head Decries CCC Sidetracking Of Feeds

DECRYING what is described a bureaucratic-inspired situation which sees hundreds of sacks of cottonseed products piling up at oil mills while cattle are dying because they lacked proper feed, telegrams have been sent Congressman George Mahon and War Food administration officials by J. O. Gillham, Brownfield banker and president of the Texas Bankers association.

The telegrams, which were filed to Cong. Mahon, Marvin Jones, War Food administrator, and Walter C. Berger, chief of WFA's feed and livestock branch, protested the recent action of the federal government requiring mills to set aside 20 per cent of cottonseed meal and 50 per cent of soybean meal of their production for the Commodity Credit corporation.

Gillham said it had "resulted in a major catastrophe for cattlemen of West Texas."

Mahon was told that the order added more woes to the already critical protein feed shortages. "Some ranchers have not been able to get any cake at all while most oil mills have hundreds of sacks on hand which they cannot release on account of the same being under control some bureau . . . hundreds of cattle died last in the Panhandle's worst blizzard in 50 years . . . the worst is yet ahead unless feed is forthcoming. The local oil mill (Brownfield) advises they have 1,200 sacks on hand which belongs to a government bureau."

The Brownfield man urged that immediate steps be taken to release the government-held feed.

Lonesome Kid Moves Up To Front, Doesn't Come Back

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, Jan. 5. (Delayed) — The kid lay on the hillside fighting to control his trembling nerves. The planes had gone. Their bombs fell several hundred yards down the valley. Their bullets had been closer.

Methodically, as though it were an old battle, the kid pulled himself together. He shook a crumpled cigaret out of his pockets, stuck it into a pair of lips surrounded by fuzzy beard patches blackened by mud.

He pulled out matches whose red, white and blue cover said "Invest in the USA, buy war bonds," and lit the cigaret. His words were unexpected.

"You got a tough job," he said. "Nothing you can write can make the folks back home understand what it's like. It's impossible. They can't understand, and it isn't their fault. Nobody could understand unless he's been through it."

The kid was a line infantryman. His outfit had been in reserve for a couple of days. It was going back into the lines shortly.

"It's funny," he said, "but it's the loneliness that always gets me. I've never thought about that. I knew I'd be afraid. Everybody is. But I never thought about being lonely."

Lying there, the relief of still being alive flooding over me in strengthening waves, I knew what he meant.

I had been the same a few moments before when the planes

The Woman's Angle
By Marguerite Tiffee

WE'VE heard in China and other Oriental countries it is regarded as a breach of etiquette not to take off one's spectacles in greeting another person.

The Woman's Angle mentioned this to Iva Collier who seems to unconsciously remove her glasses every time she starts a conversation but she says she takes off her glasses in order to see.

PRICE: $1.75

AN AMARILLO peace justice tells this story on poll taxes. Two cowpunchers were in the tax office; they learned a poll tax receipt cost $1.75. "I don't want one," remarked one of the punchers. "Never saw anybody in my life I'd give a dollar and six-bits to vote for."

The other reflected. "I want one," he said. "I wouldn't give a dollar and six-bits to vote for anybody, but I know a lot of people I'd give $5 to vote against."

It's a tradition that Texas voters take more delight in scratching names than in leaving them. But whether you are going to vote for or against a candidate, it will cost you $1.75 and the deadline is Jan. 31. You won't save money by waiting until later in the month to pay your poll tax and you will save yourself the necessity of standing in line.

We know the tax is being attacked in Washington where they are trying to make it illegal but regardless of its fate, you'll have to have your receipt to vote this year.

The Democratic primary comes in July, the general election in November. If you don't get ready to go to the polls now you won't be able to vote then. Think of it as a duty, think of it as a responsibility, think of it as a way to have some fun this summer, but first pay your money and then make your choice.

WAR ADVERSITY

A POPULAR indoor sport with some folk is to shudder at candid camera snapshots or badly posed pictures of people in the limelight and moan, "Oh, look how he, or she or they have aged!" This has been more prevalent since our country entered the war and strained looks replaced the carefree smiles worn by many Americans.

Watching Capt. Jimmie Stewart on the newsreel screen the other day we joined the list of moaners for the moment. Three years ago he was slender, youthful, a top-notch actor popular with the young and the young in heart. He was the sort of fellow you hoped your kid sister would marry sometime; the sort you hoped your son might be. He may not have rivaled the Gables and Powers and Taylors in looks nor the Colmans, the Lukases and the Munis in acting but he definitely had something.

Perhaps it was that lifted eyebrow, perhaps the hesitating voice as he back away, his lifted hands with their long fingers pressing against an imaginary object as he drawled, "Hey now, wait a minute." It may have been his lean figure, his thick black hair that set him apart.

Today Captain Stewart, who is leading a squadron in combat over Germany's skies, is a serious, aging man. His deepset eyes appear tired, his voice no longer has the touch of youth.

The war which is taking his full time is also taking his talent because when he comes out he no longer will be able to go back to the roles for which he was so well fitted.

But does he care that he has sacrificed his future? No. If we are to believe his sincere words, Captain Stewart is pleased that the war has brought him where he is today. No longer thinking that "I" must do all I can, in his newsreel statement he indicated he thinks terms now that "we" working as a unit can win the war.

Couple Celebrates Golden Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dennis of Olton entertained with an open house Dec. 28 in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. Friends who called between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock in the afternoon brought gifts.

Mrs. Dennis is the former Miss Sallie Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Robinson of McMurray county, Tenn., born Oct. 18, 1876, near old Purdy, Tenn. At the age of 13 she traveled to Texas with her parents and was married Dec. 28, 1893, at the home of her parents near Alvord.

Mr. Dennis, the son of Creighton Dennis of Decatur, was born at St. Joe Dec. 20, 1875, moving to Decatur in early childhood.

The couple's eight children are Rev. A. L. Dennis, Brownwood; Mrs. Fred Cornelius, Lubbock; Mrs. Floyd De Arman, San Angelo; Floyd Dennis, Plainview; S/Sgt. Buddy Dennis, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Lavis Hair, Olton and Miss Pauline Dennis of Lubbock; and Mrs. H. A. Jones of Kim, Colo. All were present except Mrs. Jones. Only 11 of their 16 grand children were present. The couple also has two great-grand children.

Outstanding Personalities Working In Fullest Unity

(EDITOR'S NOTE: George Jones, United Press staff correspondent, has just returned to Adm. William F. Halsey's South Pacific headquarters after a several weeks' stay in New Guinea and New Britain where he witnessed military operations under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Previously he had spent more than a year covering the Solomons campaign from Guadalcanal to Bougainville.)

By GEORGE JONES
United Press Staff Writer

HEADQUARTERS, South Pacific, Force, Jan. 10—Two outstanding military personalities of this generation, General Douglas MacArthur and Admiral William F. Halsey, have achieved strategical and tactical unity to an extent undreamed of a year ago.

At that time, observers foresaw many difficulties — inter-service rivalry, the clash of two aggressive, explosive personalities and operations separated by hundreds of miles across the Coral Sea.

It didn't turn out that way.

Honeymoon Still On

A few days ago, one of Halsey's liaison officers attached to MacArthur's headquarters was returning to South Pacific force headquarters. Before he left, MacArthur took him aside and said:

"Tell your boss the honeymoon is still on."

Military and geopraphical necessities brought these men together. Their common objective is Rabaul, keystone to Japan's crumbling empire in the South Pacific islands. There could be only one chief and MacArthur was given strategic control of the area covering the northern Solomons, New Britain and New Britain. Halsey's land, sea and air forces were operating in all these sectors under MacArthur's overall command.

As far as is known, Halsey has never expressed discontent with his lot as subordinate commander. Those who have seen MacArthur and Halsey together state without reservation that the two men understand each other and get along extraordinarily well. Their personalities seem complementary although there are surface similarities: forceful spirit colorful language and life-long habits of leadership.

Different Personalities

Halsey is pungent, salty and prone to impromptu expletives. MacArthur is lofty and given to classic, polished and occasionally mystic phrases. But both have an abiding, bitter hatred of the Japanese which is probably one of the deepest roots of their friendship.

It is extremely unlikely Halsey has any active interest, favorable or otherwise, in MacArthur's subtly defined differences with prevailing global strategy. Halsey's command operates on the belief that "we all have to get along on what we have in materials and men."

It would be extremely foolish to deny that there were some officers under Halsey's command—not all of them Navy or Marine—who took exception to MacArthur's aggressive assertion of leadership as the Solomons forces passed under his strategic control.

There was restrained ire when the general, in commenting on naval actions off Bougainville in November, said:

"I will welcome the Jap fleet . . . I will throw everything against it."

Work Strategy Together

But observers noted no perceptible increase in temperature at Halsey's headquarters. No one seemed interested one way or another.

Halsey has visited MacArthur at stated intervals to work out strategy and between these conferences both leaders maintain liaison officers at each other's headquarters.

As a result, operations on the far flung front, extending from New Georgia to New Guinea, have been well co-ordinated. For example, before MacArthur's forces invaded Cape Gloucester, a Halsey representative laid a detailed report on the Bougainville campaign before MacArthur so that the many lessons learned in the latter action were incorporated into the Gloucester plan.

Halsey's Marines who invaded Guadalcanal were used in the Gloucester show. Shipping from the South Pacific speeded the New Britain invasion. Halsey's aircraft, both from carriers and newly constructed bases in the northern Solomons, materially weakened the enemy's potential resistance with attacks against shipping and against the New Britain air fields.

Navy Takes Big Part

The South Pacific naval force played its part to the hilt by bombarding Buka island, north of Bougainville. The Japs, fearing a possible invasion, were forced to withhold some of their strength from Cape Gloucester and the Arawe peninsula.

This type of teamwork is essential to the by-passing and flanking strategy in the South and Southwest Pacific campaign. The enemy, caught by surprise behind his forward bases, cannot concentrate his defenses.

Military razzle-dazzle, such as this, is suited to the talents of MacArthur and Halsey. The Japs will be seeing more of it in the not too distant future.

Texas Negro Killed By Military Police

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 10 (U.P.) Cpl. Lance James Jackson, 23-year-old Texas negro, was killed by American military police when he threatened them with two revolvers as they sought to arrest him on assault and escape charges, an inquest revealed today.

Jackson escaped from detention barracks after seriously assaulting an officer, witnesses said. American military police trailed him to a house, where he confronted them with a .45 caliber revolver in each hand and replied to a surrender demand with: "If you come forward, I'll fire."

The American provost marshal, Colonel Barrow, ordered the military police to fire and Jackson fell dead before he used his own guns. The coroner found that the military police killed Jackson "in execution of their duty."

Snyder Man Killed In Action In Italy

SNYDER, Jan. 10 (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. George Moore of Snyder received word from the War department today that their son, Guy Moore, was killed in action in Italy. Pfc. Moore had been with Scurry county's Company G, 36th Division, since November 1941.

Survivors include two brothers, George and Raymond, both in the armed service.

COL. HATCHER MISSING

LONDON, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — Col. William A. Hatcher, jr., of Detroit, Mich., who was Clark Gable's commanding officer when the film star was in England, has been missing since Dec. 31, when he took part in a raid on Cognac, France, it was learned today.

Invasion Dates Definitely Set

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — Undersecretary of Navy James Forrestal, declaring that "invasion dates have been set" for both the European and Pacific war theaters, today opened the Navy's campaign to speed production of the landing craft so vital to the forthcoming operations against enemy soil.

His statement, warning that the outcome of the new offensives of 1944 "depends upon this nation's completion of the vast landing craft construction program," touched off the Navy's drive to whip up enthusiasm in every community with a plant, big or small, having any part in the landing craft program.

Construction Plans

The Navy's construction schedule calls for 65,000 landing craft ranging from 450-foot dock ships to amphibian tractors, as well as 15,000 miscellaneous small craft, rubber boats, rafts and similar types. Some 20,000 landing vessels already have been built.

"Invasion dates have been set," Forrestal said. "American men are going to storm hostile shores, more difficult than any we have heretofore tackled.

"Heavy casualties must be expected. However, the more landing craft we have on invasion day, the more power we can put in our punch, the more versatile our attack can be, and the lower the casualties will be in this most hazardous of military operations, the landing on a hostile shore in the face of a determined, experienced, well-equipped enemy."

Gary Funeral To Be Held At Henderson

Reconversion Plan Taking Definite Shape In S'West

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP) — Representative Patman (D-Tex), laborating today on a proposed five-state organization to be known as "Gulf-Southwest Empire Builders, Inc.," said postwar reconversion of war plants to production of civilian goods is foremost among its objectives.

The organization, expected to be incorporated with 60 days, embraces Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico.

Cooperation of congressmen, governors, and civic and industrial leaders of each state is sought to prevent complete abandonment of millions of dollars worth of industries after the war.

Organization Takes Shape

Joe Snyder of Dallas, former newspaper editor and an executive of the Lone Star Steel corporation, is contacting interested groups in the southwest as the organization takes shape.

During the Christmas holidays Patman outlined the plan to various civic groups in Texas and said the reaction was favorable.

The organization would be active also in exploiting the natural resources of the area, Patman added.

He pointed to the steel project at Daingerfield, as an example. Already completed there is a $25,000,000 iron ore blast furnace. Proposed is a rolling steel mill addition which would cost approximately $40,000,000. The development will consume coal produced in Oklahoma, iron ore from Texas, magnesium from Arkansas and Louisiana; limestone from Texas, Louisiana, and New Mexico.

Another Similar Group

Commenting on a similar proposed organization in the southeastern states, Patman said cooperation of two such groups should be to their mutual advantage. He suggested the two groups should be to their mutual advantage. He suggested the two groups might fight for a revision of the present railroad freight rate structure, which he declared was discriminatory against both sections.

The combined congressional delegations would exert considerable influence, the Texan declared. Patman said it was his firm conviction that an organization with the power and influence he envisioned for the Gulf-Southwest Empire Builders could map out a program that would make it economically judicious to reconvert war plants to production of civilian goods.

Could Mean Big Loss

"Whenever a big plant on which the government has put up an enormous sum is forced to close down," he commented, "the investment represents that much of a loss to the nation's taxpayer."

"If these plants can be turned into the making of goods for civilians, it will represent a bigger return for each dollar he has invested in war bonds. It also will help provide employment when jobs are going to be needed for our returning soldiers and sailors and for those who have been turning out the weapons for victory."

War Prisoner Seeks To Cinch Bar Exam

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (U.P.) — Maj. Roy O. Irvin, who gave no address other than a war prisoner's camp in Germany, today asked the Texas Supreme court to register him for the Texas examinations to practice law.

His post card said that he has a bachelor of science degree, thus meeting the pre-law requirements for Texas. He said he is following the course of law study prescribed by the state supreme court.

The card was postmarked in Germany Nov. 23, 1943.

Next Texas bar examinations are to be held in the spring. Court clerks wondered if Major Irvin expected the war to end by that time.

YACHT REMODELED

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10. (U.P.)— The Mariner, once the pleasure yacht of the late John Barrymore, was being remodeled today into a coastwise freighter. The present owner, Alfred A. Brown of Ensendada, Mexico, has transferred the 107-foot schooner which still holds the sailing yacht record from Hawaii to the mainland—11 days and 16 hours—to the Mexican registry.

Good News Comes In Double Doses For This Family

BOSTON, Jan. 10. (AP) — The Hyde Park Thorntons had a dramatic week-end with a happy ending.

First the family received the saddest of all messages:

"We regret to inform you." The information was that Lt. Daniel P. Thornton, 22, was missing in action in the India-China-Burma area where he was serving with the air force.

Within an hour after receipt of the message his young wife, who was uninformed of its contents, was taken to Carney hospital and gave birth to a son.

Then came another message from the war department that Lt. Thornton had landed in friendly territory and was safe.

The family arranged to notify the young mother of the joyous news today and to cable the officer that he was the father of a healthy, husky infant.

Overseas Wounded Moved By Plane To Hospital In Texas

TEMPLE, Jan. 10 (AP) — Three troop carrier command planes arrived at Temple Army Air field this afternoon with 75 wounded patients for McCloskey General hospital in the first air transfer of patients from a hospital ship to an inland general hospital ever made by the Army Medical corps.

A majority of the patients came from Italy and many were Texans and Oklahomans. Of the 75, 35 were litter cases.

Information received by Brig. Gen. James A. Bethea, commanding officer of McCloskey hospital, was that immediate transfer of the patients from the hospital ship to the planes was made early this morning by Stark General hospital at Charleston, S. C.

Gen. Bethea said the flight of patients today was the result of a conference held here a month and a half ago with a group of officers from the office of the surgeon general, Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk. The conference decided to test out a plan for saving time in bringing seriously wounded patients from the seacoast to interior hospitals in anticipation of heavy hospital demands when the invasion begins.

This method will save from 48 to 72 hours.

The planes left Charleston at 8:45 a. m. (eastern war time) and the first arrived here at 2:30 p. m. (cwt).

Sixteen field ambulances, nine from McCloskey, four from the 94th General hospital in training here and three from Camp Hood were used to take the patients seven miles from the air field to the hospital.

Frail Harry Hopkins In Hospital Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP) — Harry Hopkins, the White House confidant, whose biggest daily problem is how to make a frail physique and a driving mental energy come out even, is in the hospital again.

Hopkins, closest adviser of President Roosevelt, entered the naval hospital last week, his White House colleagues revealed today. He has influenza and may be confined for sometime.

HEAVY DAMAGE SHOWN

LONDON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Reconnaissance photographs of the targets bombed during the American heavy bomber attack of Jan. 5 showed severe damage to Kiel's submarine yards, a bolt and screw factory at Neuss, Germany, and an aircraft plant at Tours-Parcay-Meslay in France, Army headquarters disclosed today.

Five Questions In State Politics

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (U.P.) — Texas politics was made up today principally of question marks.

Number one question was: Will Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel support President Roosevelt for re-election? He dodged the question at Dallas with a statement he controlled no vote put his own — though "Pappy" has had an unprecedented popular following in the state.

Question two: Will Speaker Sam Rayburn be a candidate simultaneously for Congress and for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination? Precedent for the double race was made by former Vice-President John Nance Garner when he was in a similar position.

Will Neff Oppose Sellers?

Question three: Will Pat Neff, jr., be a candidate for attorney general against recently-appointed Grover Sellers? Neff resigned as an assistant attorney general for military service. Unless released from that, he would not be permitted to run under Army-Navy regulations.

Question four: Will state Sen. George Moffett of Chillicothe run for Congress or for lieutenant governor? Reports have been given both ways.

Question five: If Moffett runs for lieutenant governor, will Sen. R. C. Lanning of Jacksboro run for Congress? He and Moffett are in different Senatorial districts but the same congressional district.

O'DANIEL GIVES PARTIAL ANSWER TO QUESTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (U.P.) — Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel, D., Tex., said today that he was convinced after three weeks away from Washington that "the time is ripe for a complete turnover" of the Presidency, Congress and the two major political parties.

O'Daniel told reporters he foresaw the possibility of "four or five" political parties in next November's election.

"I see no difference in the two parties we now have," O'Daniel said. "They both have the same principles and are controlled by the same dynasty."

O'Daniel said he had not decided whether he would bolt the Democratic party and support a Republican for President for "it will take more than a change in the presidency to get back to constitutional democracy."

Lubbock Ranks Third In Sales Increases

According to a report Monday from the bureau of business research of the University of Texas, Lubbock ranked third among reported Texas cities in increased business done in retail independent stores both during November and the first 11 months of 1943 as compared with corresponding periods in 1942.

Such business during November in Lubbock was 46 per cent larger than in November, 1942, the report showed. During the 11 months of 1943, it was 43 per cent higher.

Ahead of Lubbock were Brownsville, with percentages of 66 and 68, and Dallas, with 50 and 46. Among the cities trailing Lubbock and their percentage increases for November and the 11 months were: Amarillo, 8 and 27; Abilene, 16 and 33; Wichita Falls, 11 and 11; El Paso, 26 and 25; and San Angelo, 28 and 25.

For the entire state, the percentage of increase during November was 34 and for the 11 months, 30.

George Young, of the district Office of Price administration staff, in a talk at the luncheon of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Hilton hotel Monday, declared that gasoline is getting scarce in Texas and there will be decreased rations for everybody. Young cited the continual drain on gasoline supplies for the war effort and the fact that the "Big Inch" pipeline to the East is taking much petroleum out of the state. He traced briefly the war price and rationing program and declared that it had had a great part in the task of 'holding the line' on the home front. He was introduced by Russell Wilkinson, also a member of the OPA staff.

Final Exams Under Way At Texas Tech

Final semester examinations for Texas Tech students, which began Monday, will continue throughout this week. Exams this fall are being given at three regular class hours, instead of the previous way of having three continuous hour exams. Change was made so that ASTP classes would not be interrupted during exam week.

Formal registration for the coming spring semester will be held January 19 and 20. Preliminary steps in registration can be done anytime after January 13. Spring semester classes will begin January 21.

Engineer's Skill Saves Fortress

ADVANCED BOMBER BASE, New Guinea, Jan. 9 (Delayed) (AP) The four-engined Liberator circled the field endlessly. A crash truck and ambulance drew up along the taxi strip. A crowd of worried watchers gathered on the platform of the control tower.

Inside the big plane, the crew of ten "sweated it out." The hydraulic system operating the ship's retractable landing gear had been shot out in a brush with a Japanese convoy north of New Britain shortly after midnight today.

Fuel Supply Low

Worse yet, one of the three wheels had dropped down and couldn't be raised again. Under the circumstances, even a belly landing appeared impossible. And the fuel was running perilously low.

The fate of the bomber and crew alike seemed to hang solely on the skill and ingenuity of Tech. Sgt. Walter Tadys. A quiet, slightly built former carpenter, the flight engineer had been working feverishly for two and a half hours. It was a far tougher job than the time he had spliced the severed control cables of a crippled bomber, enabling it to be brought in safely.

Used Improvised Equipment

Working with a screwdriver and a wrench, Tadys disassembled the plane's heater. Then from its parts he improvised the equipment—almost magically it seemed to the others—he needed to restore the hydraulic controls.

Finally Tadys was ready to make the test. In a moment, the second wheel dropped down alongside the first. Then the nosewheel fell into position.

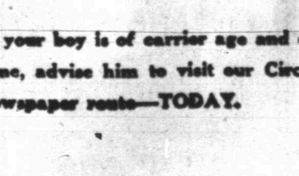

But the wheels still failed to lock into "down" position and a safe landing remained uncertain. Tadys had a suggestion for solving that problem, too.

"He told me to rock my wings," said Pilot Flight Officer Thomas Ivan, route 2, Mondamin, Ia. "I did, and the wheels snapped tight. At that instant one engine cut out, its gas supply exhausted. But by that time Ivan was making the final approach. He brought the big plane down smoothly on the dirt runway and as it touched the ground, the second engine died.

Jurist Found Dead In Texarkana Office

TEXARKANA, Jan. 10 (AP) — Chief Justice George W. Johnson of the Sixth Court of Civil appeals was found dead in his office today.

Judge Johnson, 57, serving his second six-year term, apparently died of a heart attack. He was seen going to his office late yesterday, leaving his automobile parked at the curb.

Judge Johnson left his home Saturday to go to his farm and told his son-in-law, Albert McWilliams, he would return either yesterday or today.

Justice of the Peace R. A. Burns conducted an inquest and returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

Judge Johnson, a native of Bowie county, received his law degree from the University of Texas. He served as county attorney and district judge before becoming chief justice of the appeals court.

At Austin, Gov. Coke R. Stevenson said the death of Judge Johnson was a great loss to the state. At one time, he was considered for appointment to the Supreme court's commission of appeals but declined.

Soldier Found Dead, Wife Unconscious

BROWNWOOD, Jan. 10. (AP) — Camp Bowie authorities today said they were investigating the asphyxiation death of Pvt. Albert Loveless, 32, who was found in a car trailer here yesterday, apparently the victim of a faulty gas heater connection.

Pvt. Loveless, attached to the 83rd Medical battalion, armored, was found with his unconscious wife, Mrs. Evelyn Loveless. She is under hospital treatment. The soldier's father, Jess Loveless of Elihu, Ky., was notified of the death.

Transportation Facing A Crisis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (U.P.)—The nation's transportation system is moving into a critical period that threatens "grave consequences" to the war effort unless additional equipment, materials and personnel are made available promptly, the Interstate Commerce commission warned today.

In its 57th annual report to Congress, the ICC said railway and motor transport facilities had done an "extraordinary" job in carrying troops and war cargo under tremendous handicaps since Pearl Harbor, but that they would find it difficult, if not impossible, to continue to do so without new aid.

Mishaps Increase Also

Reflecting the enormous new burden on the railroads, the report said, that during the first six months of 1943, the number of passengers carried was 43.8 per cent more than for the same period of 1942 while passenger miles increased 92.9 per cent. The number of casualties in both killed and injured increased only 73.6 while this 92.9 rise in passenger mileage was taking place, the report noted.

For railway workers, however, the ICC found that the increase in casualties was relatively "much greater than the increase in man-hours worked."

The report said there were but nine accidents for every 1,000,000 miles of locomotive travel and that mishaps due to mechanical defects increased more rapidly in percentage than those due to negligence for employes.

Summarizing the motor transport situation, the report said:

"Already there is considerable apprehension among motor carriers. Trucks and busses, as they have been built, are short-lived vehicles . . . consequently, equipment which ordinarily would have been scrapped is being kept in service in spite of increased expenditures for upkeep.

Despite the increased wartime traffic, however, the ICC said that the number of accidents and deaths in interstate motor vehicles had decreased.

The ICC said the war had brought an unprecedented growth in railway income.

Investors Get Earnings

The report noted that a greater share of the increased earnings went to investors rather than to employes as investors' returns rose from 31.5 to 38 per cent of earnings while the sum paid in wages and salaries declined from 68.5 to 62 per cent.

The ICC said that to Sept. 30, it had approved reorganization plans for 29 of 42 railroads which have filed petitions under the bankruptcy act, and that 22 of these plans had been approved by the courts, while two were returned to the commission for revision.

ATC Developments Boon To Aviation

FORT WORTH, Jan. 10. (A.P.) — Wartime operation of the AAF Air Transport command has resulted in developments that will advance peace time commercial aviation 25 years, Maj. Gen. Harold Lee George, commanding general of the ATC, said here today.

Enroute with staff members to inspect ATC facilities on the west coast, General George said that, operating under the extreme pressure of wartime necessity, the transport command has developed an efficient world-wide airlines for both passenger and materiel.

He revealed that in the past year and a half the ATC has carried over 300,000 passengers to and from all corners of the earth, and yet during that time there has not been a single accident in the Atlantic area. He added that there have been no accidents, "not even a scratch," in 12 months of ATC activity in the Pacific theater.

"We have proved conclusively that a world-wide airline, with service comparable to the best commercial lines in the United States, can be operated," General George said. "And we've had to prove it during war times."

Canol Controversy Aired In Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (A.P.)—A controversy between the War department and the Senate Truman committee over the merits of the former's $134,000,000 oil development in Canada reached the floors of Congress today.

Senator Truman (D-Mo) of the war investigating group filed formally with the Senate a report charging that the Canol project was a mistake from the beginning and that its continuance was unpardonable.

Known Dead In Ships' Collision Reaches 67

CAPE MAY, N. J., Jan. 10. (A.P.) —Thirty-seven more bodies of victims of the collision of a Navy patrol boat and a merchant vessel 60 miles southeast of Cape May Thursday night have been recovered, it was learned today, bringing the total of known dead to 67.

The Fourth Naval district conformed the information but said there would be no further announcements concerning the crash. The patrol boat which sank, was the St. Augustine, formerly a palatial yacht. The merchant vessel has not been named.

Golden Glove Date Reset Feb. 3-4-5

Prospects were brighter than ever before Monday for a slam bang session of the District Golden Glove tournament scheduled for the Texas Tech gym, but the dates have been reset for the first week end in February, Feb. 3, 4 and 5. The dates had formerly been set for Jan. 14, 15 and 17.

Morley Jennings, tournament director, said Monday that word from Tahoka indicated a strong turnout of scrappers in the tournament that opened there Monday night as a preliminary of the District Golden Glove and sponsored by Tahoka High school. The Tahoka school officials said Monday that they would offer a "team of champions" and possibly one or two others.

Jennings said last week that the tournament would be called off unless "as many as 28" fighters entered by Monday. He said Monday that headquarters for the tournament at Texas Tech had received 21 or 22 entries, and pointed out that the tournament was being postponed and not called off.

Jennings was confident Monday that the Avalanche-Journal-Texas-Tech tournament would be one of the best of the state this year and that the early list of entries indicated some matches of the highest quality were in prospect for fight fans.

Bobby Ruffin Meets Tippy Larkin Friday

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (U.P.)—Bobby Ruffin, New York lightweight contender, tackles Tippy Larkin, re-vitalized New Jersey scrapper, at Madison Square Garden Friday night in a 10-round bout that tops this week's national boxing schedule. It is Ruffin's farewell appearance before going into the Army.

Fritzie Zivic and Henry Armstrong, former welterweight champions, toss leather Friday night. Zivic meets Jake LaMotta for the fourth time at Detroit; and Armstrong engages Aldo Spoldi for the third time at Portland, Ore.

AREA WELL DESIGNATED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — According to T-Sgt. Samuel Stavisky ,a Marine corps combat correspondent, Marine and naval personnel stationed somewhere in the South Pacific, stand little chance of getting lost. They have a sign post, one arrow of which points eastward toward "Washington—11,673 Miles." A second arrow points west, "Tokyo—4,231 Miles," and a third, pointing to a jungle, said: "Nearest Jap — 14 mile."

"VULTURE" IS ARRESTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (U.P.)—Police disclosed what they called "an old racket with a new twist" after the arrest of Neil Vignapiani, accused of trying to get dates with bereaved women by selecting survivors' names from obituary columns and then writing as a friend. He was apprehended, police said, as he attempted to invite the daughter of an automobile accident victim to a movie.

American boys of today are six to eight per cent taller and 12 to 15 per cent heavier than boys were half a century ago.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Tahoka Tourney Has Big Opening Night

TAHOKA, Jan. 10 (Special) — Swinging leather from all angles, the Tahoka High School boxing tournament, held as a preliminary to the District Golden Glove tournament in Lubbock, opened here tonight with twelve bouts on the opening card to cull down the entry list for semi-finals and finals Tuesday night.

There were no knockouts, but there were a number of battles that had the fans expecting the ether punch at any moment. The bouts were held before a packed house turnout.

Only one final was held Monday night, this in the heavyweight class, which was won by A. L. Hodge of Tahoka by a decision over Ritter Holder of Lamesa.

In the middleweight class, Hillery Mather of Tahoka decisioned Gene Knight of Tahoka.

In the lightweight bracket were two fights Monday night with Bill Grider of Tahoka winning a decision over Trice Lee of Lamesa, while Derwood McClintock of Tahoka gained a decision over Lendall Sharp of Lamesa.

Most of the action Monday night came from flyweights with four bouts in this class on the card. The outcome of the flyweight battles found Bobby Scott of Tahoka winning over Dan Brookshire of Tahoka, Jackie Driver of Tahoka decisioning Pete Shaffner of Tahoka, Billy Breckeen of Slaton winning from H. L. McMillan of Tahoka, and Buddy Bragg of Tahoka punching out a decision over Murphey Horton of Lamesa.

There were two featherweight bouts on the card with Wayne Miller of Tahoka winning from Jimmy Stanfield and J. T. Miller of Tahoka beating Bill Ramsey of Tahoka.

The remaining championship bracket fight on the card was in the bantamweight class with James Tippett of Tahoka winning from Johnny Cox of Lamesa.

Wendall Stanley of Lamesa won a three round decision over Joe Minor of Tahoka in the curtain raiser, an exhibition affair. Johnny Sims, formerly of Texas Tech, was the referee.

The fights Monday night shaved off 11 contenders, leaving 20 boys to battle for the remaining seven titles on the line. There were 32 entered in the tournament.

SPAAF Offers Big Cage Week

The cage spotlight turns on South Plains Army Air field tonight as two hot post league games blast the lid on a week of promising activity on the hardwood front.

Tonight, the two leading and undefeated squadron basketball teams tangle at the post recreation hall with second division teams, their undefeated marks on the line.

Wednesday night the SPAAF post team plays host to the Lubbock Independents at the SPAAF post recreation hall at 7:30 o'clock. The Lubbock squad is a well organized and experienced team of former Lubbock High school and Texas Tech cage stalwarts of a few seasons back.

Also on the cage schedule at the field this week is the postponed game with the Lubbock Army Air field squad, which possibly may be played this week end in the SPAAF recreation hall.

The four team basketball league between SPAAF, LAAF, Texas Tech and the Army Engineers unit at Tech will get under way Wednesday night at Tech with the Engineers playing the LAAF Fliers. The Winged Commands and the Engineers continue the league feud at the big field north of the city Tuesday, Jan. 18.

Tonight's squadron games find the high scoring and undefeated 356th colored squad tangling with the Flying Squadron Two team, a five which has a .500 batting average for the season with one win and one loss. The other game on the menu tonight sends the other loop leader, the undefeated Medical detachment team, against the Student Detachment.

Both the 356th and the Medicos boast two of the league's five high scorers among their rosters with Cpl. William Norton of Aberdeen, S. D., having 32 points for three games for the Medics, and Pvt. Cecil Cotton of Frankfort, Kentucky, leading the 356th team with 24 points.

The squadron play continues Thursday night with two more games on the menu. Thursday night's games find the 995th playing 1099th, and the 64th Headquarters squadron playing the 370th Base Headquarters team.

"Class" Rate Case Is Nearing Decision

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP) — The long investigation by the Interstate Commerce commission of railroad "class" rates is nearing an end.

The South and Southwest have complained that present class rates in those sections have retarded the development of manufacturing because they are considerably higher than in the North.

The ICC told Congress today that findings in the case are "in the course of preparation," this to be followed by filing of exceptions, arguments before the commission, and finally a decision.

Westerners Tangle Tonight With SPAAF Squadron Five

Coach Dixie White has picked his Lubbock Westerners for the job of haltering Sgt. William J. Besson from Gladstone, Mich., tonight at 7:30 when Besson will lead the 848th Squadron basketball five on the Westerner court to battle the local high school five.

Besson, scoring leader in the fast South Plains Squadron Basketball League, has led the soldiers to three wins in four games in the league, and set a scoring record for the league by overworking the scorekeeper by accounting for 25 points in one game. He has totaled 46 points for the season, and the league leadership.

In the Squadron league, the 848th, are in second place with as many wins as the two teams tied for first place, but suffering one defeat.

White's lads have shown a lot of hustle this season in winning three out of four games, three of the games with the fast soldier teams from the two fields.

White indicated Monday night that he would turn the job of guarding Gesson over to R. W. Moyer, Westerner guard, and named Moyer in the starting post along with Marion Manderson, Bill Cope, Jerry Crawford and George Brewer.

The 848th Squadron five is made up from former high school stars over the nation, but no list of their personnel has been made available.

NEEDS SOMETHING DONE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Asa Bushnell, a member of the Football Rules Committee as well as director of the central office for Eastern Collegiate Athletics, told Eastern football officials yesterday that several grid rules have become "outmoded." He expressed the hope that a meeting of the rules committee would be held soon to act on proposed changes in the kickoff and offside rules.

WORTH FIGHTING FOR

KEARNS, Utah, Jan. 10 (AP) — Major Walter C. Fain, squadron commanding officer dangled a strong inducement for the contestants to mix it up in their squadron boxing tournament at Camp Kearns. To the winner of each division will go a three-day pass.

Rice-Arkansas Tilts Features SWC Race

(By The United Press)

The chips will be down early in the Southwest Conference cage campaign this season.

According to the dope as gleaned from the first week of play in the current hardwood schedule, three teams apparently will dominate the play with a fourth given a chance of stepping in and upsetting anybody's apple cart without advance notice.

Two of those first three quintets tangle this week in what may be an all-important two-game series that could either pare the field down somewhat or only further tangle it.

Arkansas' rangy Porkers lived up to advance expectations by sweeping aside a weak Texas Christian team by two overwhelming margins last week and established themselves as the No. 1 favorite.

The No. 2 spot, generally conceded to the University of Texas, found that team with a formidable rival—the Rice Institute Owls — leaving the runnerup spot more or less in a deadlock as far as favorites were concerned.

A Southern Methodist Mustang quint, running true to form with recent SMU teams that blew hot, then cold, looms as the team that could throw the monkey wrench into any one of the other three team's hopes.

Arkansas and Rice lock horns at Houston this week in the feature games of the week and if either entry should sweep the series, it would immediately become an odds-on favorite to take the title. A split would only further complicate matters. The Porkers come down from the Ozarks for the Houston games Friday and Saturday nights.

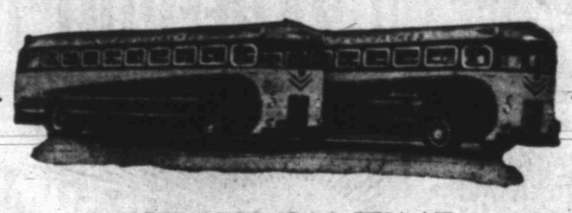

Texas plays only one game, that against a weak Texas A. and M. outfit at Austin Saturday night, as does SMU, which meets TCU in Dallas Tuesday night. Both Texas and SMU are favored.

Baylor and TCU meet in Fort Worth Saturday night to round out the week's schedule.

Arkansas' lanky Bill Flynt shoe into a long individual scoring lead as the Porkers whipped TCU, 71-50 and 60-29, Friday and Saturday nights at Fayetteville. Flynt charlked up 29 points, only seven shy of the conference record, Saturday night for a two-game total of 47 points.

His teammate, Ben Jones, racked up 30 points to tie SMU's Dennis Hayden and Rice's Bill Henry for runnerup honors in the individual race.

McSpaden Wins LA Golf Open

Sets New Course Record With 278

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10 (AP) — Tall, broad-shouldered Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia today captured America's richest golf championship, the $12,500 Los Angeles Open, with a 72-hole score of 278.

Finishing the last 18-hole round on the Wilshire Country Club course with a blistering 66, McSpadden established a new low 72-hole score for the championship on this course. The best previously was the 281 in 1933 by Craig Wood, national champion for the duration.

Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, winner of the Los Angeles Open in 1941, finished in second place with a 281. He took a par 71 for his final round after starting it in a 54-hole first place tie with La Jolla, Calif.'s Leonard Dodson. Donson wound up in a tie at 283 with Craig Wood and Byron Nelson of Toledo.

Dodson played in a threesome with McSpadden and Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, and the pace was too stiff for him. The veteran Willie Hunter of Santa Monica, Calif., finished with 284, followed by Dutra with 285.

McSpadden's five-under-par performance today was one of the two best rounds of the championship. Sammy Byrd of Detroit also bagged a 66 in the first round.

The new champion has won four of his last six tournaments, among them the All-American at Chicago. He picked up $4,375 in war bonds as first prize money today.

Wichita Falls Named Site Of Grid School

FORT WORTH, Jan. 10. (AP) — The annual coaching school of the Texas High School Coaches Association will be held at Wichita Falls August 7-11, Coach W. C. O. Harris of Amon Carter-Riverside High School here announced tonight after a meeting of the association's board of directors. Harris is president of the body.

The annual All-Star football game held in connection with the school will be held Friday night, Aug. 11.

Harris said that instructors for the school had not been finally selected. He said the association membership had been polled on the instructors they desired and that he was contacting those wanted by the majority and would release names after acceptances had been received.

He said, however, the directors planned for the first time to have the coach of the state high school championship team on the staff. This is Jewell Wallace of San Angelo.

Harris said efforts were being made to obtain a T formation instructor, a single-wing instructor, a line instructor, backfield instructor and possibly one for basketball.

Oil Bowl Postpones Annual Grid Classic

WICHITA FALLS, Jan 10. (AP)—Sponsors of the Maskat Temple annual Oil Bowl football game, played in Wichita Falls each year on Labor Day, matching the high school stars of North and West Texas, announced tonight the game for 1944 would be suspended in favor of the annual Texas High School Coaches Association's All-Star game.

E. E. Scannell, chairman of the Oil Bowl, said the classic would be resumed in 1945.

Baseball Committee To Plan For Future

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 (AP)—Postwar baseball problems, affecting Major and Minor Leagues alike, will be discussed at a special meeting in New York Feb. 5, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, announced tonight.

The principal subjects confronting the planning committees will be: (1) procedure of the return of the game for players now in the armed services, and (2) reorganization of the Minor Leagues to make more compact circuits.

In the first 30 weeks of 1940, Alberta, Canada, marketed 658,189 hogs.

Star game is played in August each year to climax its coaching school. The game will be played August 11 this year.

The selection of Wichita Falls for the coaches school was announced in Fort Worth tonight by W. C. O. Harris, president of the State Coaches Association and coach at Amon G. Carter-Riverside High school.

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Investigation Is Demanded

MANY people may have been shocked by a statement concerning Liberty ships attributed the other day to one James N. Greathouse, patrolman for Marine Firemen's union (CIO) in Seattle, Wash.

Greathouse was quoted as charging that Liberty ships are so dangerous that men who said them "have been ready to jump overboard at the drop of a hat." He added that crews have continued to man the ships and have kept silent for fear that criticisms would lead to charges that they were attempting to sabotage the war effort.

These charges are serious—no mistake about that. Many hundreds of Liberty ships have been built. Others hundreds are under construction, or have been contracted for.

But there are reasons why such criticisms by a member of this and several other labor unions, and from any one of several other sources, should be taken with considerably more than a grain of salt.

For example, the gossip has been current in Washington for some time that an organized attempt to put Liberty ships in popular disfavor was in the making. Less than two weeks ago, The Morning Avalanche received a tip from one of its sources in the national capital that initial blows in this campaign could be expected soon. It was described as a campaign seeking to arouse public opinion to an acceptance of, if not an outright demand for, the scraping of all Liberty ships.

Few people can pretend to know—and certainly we do not—whether the Greathouse statement fits into such a campaign. It could be that defenders of and apologists for Liberty ships knew what was coming and have sought to halt a campaign based on fact against Liberty ships in disrepute even before it could be started. It could be that Liberty ships are as bad as Greathouse implies. If so, it is a national scandal which should be blasted wide open and for which those responsible should be made to answer.

At the same time, there is no escaping the fact that the scrapping of a great many Liberty ships, and the building of replacements for them, would mean a great many juicy contracts. It would mean the prolongation of jobs for thousands upon thousands of men in the shipbuilding unions who have cause to worry, right now, about how long their present fat pay envelopes may continue.

Thus, very few people are in position to have any idea whether Liberty ships are good or bad. If they are bad, then this is something that should have been exposed long ago.

But certainly they should not be condemned by public opinion on the unsupported statement of a man like Greathouse, or any other person or persons, who might have a great deal to gain from the scrapping of hundreds of Liberty ships.

Our personal opinion is that the proved performances of these ships during the most critical stages of the war speak a great deal louder and more convincingly than do the words of a member of a CIO organization.

He's A Fighting Admiral!

IT'S a sure thing that when a man like Admiral William F. Halsey says—as he does frequently—that he itches for a finish fight with the Jap fleet, he doesn't have a soft spot for himself in mind.

If a land leader makes such a statement, it is apt to sound to some people like something on the order of, "Let's you and him fight." The strategy of a modern land battle, with its farflung fronts, usually requires key leaders to stay well in the rear. Most of them doubtless would prefer otherwise, but in land engagements, the generals usually are relatively safe.

Not so the admirals. If Admiral Halsey gets his wish, he will be aboard the flagship which will lead the way into action. His ship will be first under fire, and under heaviest fire. It will be the ship the enemy will be most eager to sink, and the capital ship they are most likely to sink. If they do, chances for the admiral won't be good at all.

However, Admiral Halsey apparently is not doing any worrying about that. He is leaving the worrying to the Japs. That sounds like common sense. They'll have something to worry about if the Halsey command gets a crack at them.

Since the Republicans infiltrated Kentucky and took it over by stealth, in other states below the M&D line strangers and suspicious characters are being asked, "What do you think of Roosevelt?" and those who react by foaming at the mouth are being quietly made away with.

The One Minute Sermon

1-18 center—Today's One-Minute Sermon —

Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.

Put away from thee a forward mouth, and perverse lips put far from thee.

Let thine eyes look right on, and let thine eyelids look straight before thee.

Ponder the path of thy feet, and let all thy ways be established.

Turn not to the right hand nor to the left: remove thy foot from all evil.—Proverbs, IV, 23 through 27.

Believe It Or Not --- By Robert Ripley

Gideon Planish

By SINCLAIR LEWIS
Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.
Copyright, 1943, Sinclair Lewis—

INTO the office of the dean of Adelbert College hastened a chunky young man with hair like a tortoise-shell cat. He glared down at the astonished dean, upraised a sturdy arm like a traffic officer, and bellowed:

"'If they dare to come out in the open field and defend the gold standard as a good thing, we will fight them to the uttermost!' Huh?"

"Yes, yes," the dean said, soothingly. He was an aging man and a careful scholar, for Adelbert was a respectable small Presbyterian college. And he was used to freshmen. But Gid Planish was furiously going on:

"'Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the industrial interests—'"

The dean interrupted, "It's 'commercial interests,' not 'industrial interests.' If you must quote William Jennings Bryan, do be accurate, my young friend."

Gid looked pained. Through all of his long and ambitious life—he was now eighteen—he had been oppressed by just such cnyical misunderstanding. But he knew the Bryan speech clear to the end, and he was a natural public leader, who never wasted any information that he possessed. He roared on:

"'—supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests, and the toilers everywhere, we will answer their demand for a gold standard by saying to them: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."' and look, Dean, I got to take Forensics and Extempore Speaking, I got to, that's what I came to Adelbert for, and I asked the prof—"

"The professor."

"Yuh, I asked the prof, and he said freshmen can't take Forensics, but I got to take it."

"Don't you think that Freshman English, Wordsworth and the daffodils would satisfy you?"

"No sir. I guess maybe it sounds highfalutin, but I got a kind of Message to deliver."

"And what is your message?"

Gid looked out at the waiting-room. No one was there but the dean's secretary. He insisted, mounting on his own eloquence:

"It seems to me, what this country needs is young men in politics that have higher standards of honesty and more profound knowledge of history, and uh, well, of civics than the politicians of today, and who will advance the unfinished work lying before us of leading this country to, uh, higher standards of Freedom, Liberty, Equality, Fraternity, Freedom, and —well, I mean higher standards of—"

"Of Democracy."

"That's it. Of Democracy. So you see I got to take Forensics."

"How do you spell Forensics, young man?"

"I guess it's f-o-r-e-n-s-i-k-s. Can I take it?"

"No."

"What did you say, sir?"

"I said 'no'."

"You mean I can't take Forensics?"

"No."

Gid went away, a little bewildered, as later in life he was so often to be bewildered by the world's inappreciation of people who want to help it.

A thin devil of a classmate leered at him as he crossed the waiting-room.

AT Doc's Bar-B-Q Lunch, Gid was taking refreshment, this late afternoon of his second day at Adelbert College.

Next to the broad-armed chair which was also his dining-table he found the lean devil whom he had seen in the dean's office.

"How you makin' out?" said the devil.

"Oh, all right, I guess."

"Did you get in on the public-speaking course?"

"No, damn it."

"Why don't you try for the debating team?"

"Gosh, I've tried to try already. I went and saw the captain, and he told me you can't get on the team till you're a sophomore. Gosh, I guess they don't want freshmen to be intellectual and idealistic here! But I don't suppose you care a damn about that."

"What makes you think so?"

"You look so—Say, what do they call you?"

"Hatch Hewitt, my name is."

"Gideon Planish, mine is."

"Pleasedmeecha."

"Pleasedmeecha."

"What makes you think, do I care can freshmen be idealistic in this dump, Mr. Planish?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Mr. Hewitt: it's because you look like you'd make fun of sentimentalists."

"Maybe I would, at that, Mr. Planish. But that's because I am an idealist."

"Is that a fact, Hatch! Well, well, is that a fact! Say, I'm tickled to death!"

HATCH'S room was a stable, Gid romantically found; an old small stable built for a team of inconsiderable horses, leaning and shaky, with hayseed caked about the windows. But it was as orderly as a widow's tea-room; a cot-bed in one stall, and in the other an old wood-stove and a wooden table with a dozen exactly arranged books.

"I do my own cooking here and just go to Doc's barbecue for a cup of coffee and company. With what I've saved, and a syndicate of papers for college news that I'm working up, I'll get through," said Hatch. "But this dump must look pretty messy."

"It's grand! It's Bohemian! Vie de Bohemia!"

"I hate Bohemians."

"Oh!"

"I like order and precision."

"Oh, you do!" Gid was not too meek about it.

"You—I suppose you have a handsome apartment, with a fumed-oak Morris chair."

"I have not! I just got a stuffy room in a boarding-house till I find out which frat I'll choose."

"So you're going to be a Greek—to join a select young gentlemen's social club."

"Why not?" Gid was admirably angry now; he was not much afraid of other people, only of himself. "I'm a social young gent myself. Just too bad you don't like it!"

"No, no, Gid! I guess I just have mental sour stomach. You're okay. You're not content with this dumb world, the way it is, either—you're not mediocre. I don't think you are. Forgive me."

So did Gid find his first friend, and they sat at the table drinking Hatch's privately brewed coffee—very thin and bitter—while Hatch glanced up at the small high window of the stable to make sure the Secret Service wasn't listening, and admitted his perilous secret.

"Gid, if you can't get into the debating club, why don't you—I'm going to start a Socialist Society."

"What? But socialism is against the home and marriage!"

"What of it?"

"Of course there's Gene Debs."

"Exactly."

"I hear he's a grand guy."

"Exactly. And we'll have a lot of debates, and you can be in 'em. Maybe we'll challenge the entire college to a debate."

"That would be swell. I'd like to show up those galoots that wouldn't take me in! I sure would! When do you start your society?"

"It's just started this minute. It only takes two fearless guys like me and you to unsettle one little college."

"Let's go!"

That was the entire struggle involved in the conversion of Gideon Planish to socialism. His deconversion was to take longer, a little longer.

No character and no organization in this story is drawn from any actual person or group of persons.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

SOME day I would like to meet the guys who write the copy for government questionnaires, ration books, tax forms and other official documents.

I want to find out just where you have to go to study the crudeness, lack of manners and bad grammar used in these official papers.

Nobody can come to that sort of thing naturally. It takes study, training, preparation to be that uncouth.

For instance, no decent person would threaten you with criminal prosecution every time you don't obey rules and regulations.

But your government does. Look at your gas ration book, your income tax blank. Look at anything they send you— 10 years and $10,000 is nothing.

And such language! It's never "please, it's always "must," "shall,"—it's always threat and intimidation.

But it's not only the federal government.

It's just as bad in cities, towns and villages.

This morning, while I was eating my breakfast, the doorbell rang.

A very pleasant cop was at the door.

"I'm taking a dog census."

"Come in."

"Name, please."

"Deuce."

"Last name."

"Deuce hasn't got a last name."

"I mean your last name."

"Well, Deuce isn't my first name, it's the dog's."

"Oh, well, what's your first first name?" . . .

At any rate it was a very pleasant visit by a very pleasant policeman.

HE left a blank to be filled in and taken to the Town Clerk for a dog license.

"TAKE NOTICE—DO NOT FOLD," it said in big black type on top.

"You are hereby notified that you are listed as owning or harboring a dog. Failure to obtain a license by February 10 subjects such owner to a penalty of $10 and costs and the dog is liable to seizure and if not redeemed within five days, may be sold or destroyed."

I feel better. At first when they told that I had been listed as owning or harboring a dog I had become frightened.

But when I came down to the last part where they threatened me with fine and seizure I felt at home again — it was my government speaking — offering me hospitality and — but what's that? No jail threat on this dog license?

What pikers. These local authorities don't even know how to insult their fellow citizens properly. I must send this thing to Mr. Ickes in Washington.

He'll teach them how to write a dog license that IS a dog license —10 years or nothing.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

RESORT to an "anonymous spokesman" to shape public or congressional opinion has been a frequent and handy device for cautious, ambitious and experimental statesmen in Washington.

It did not begin with the present administration. But rarely before have off-the-record and unidentified officials dealt with such grave subjects as forecasts of terrific American casualties, and denunciations of strikes as factors in preventing the speedy surrender of the enemy.

The explosions resulting from these recent incantations may hasten a reform long advocated by leading members of Congress and the corps of correspondents in the capital. Senators threaten an investigation to identify the two Cassandras, although their names are well-known now.

It is apparent that some indignant newshawk slipped the cognomen of at least one of them to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Reporters are debating a plan by which they will refuse to abet such irresponsible performances, thereby killing once and for all the use of what is generally regarded as an undemocratic weapon against an unsuspecting and uninformed nation. Such a scheme has frequently been proposed in the past, but the provocation was never so pressing as it is today.

ABANDONED: All politicians and federal jobholders employ the same method now and then. But they rarely discuss topics of sufficient gravity to cause deep concern here or abroad.

As a rule, they simply seek to grab glory for themselves or to discredit opponents. Moreover, in most instances their remarks appear only in hometown newspapers.

Official and unofficial circles are especially shocked because FDR promised to eliminate this hidden-ball trick when he was sworn in, and for a while he did. He abolished the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover program for newspapermen to submit written questions in advance at the biweekly White House interviews.

He set up three categories of news: 1. Direct quotation of his statements. 2. Attribution to him but without "direct quotes." 3. Background use of material he provided, but without revelation of the source. Writers, of course, were free to accept or disregard any information falling in the third classification if they thought it unimportant, inaccurate or time-serving.

Mr Roosevelt seemed to enjoy this journalistic "new deal." He reveled in what his daughter, Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, once charactrizd as "his ability to handle and manipulate the press".

But since Pearl Harbor he and his topnotch aides in all branches—civilian, military and naval —have abandoned this policy of frankness and straightforwardness, even when subjects affecting the country's serurity and prosecution of the war were not involved.

MISSION: The mystery man of the 1944 campaign has been and will be James A. Farley. Whenever a few party members get together, whether Republicans or Democrats, they invariably inquire, "What is Jim going to do this year?"

Will he oppose FDR of the President seeks a fourth term? By withholding delegates in Mr. Roosevelt's home state, will he try to weaken the man he placed in the White House? Or will he merely register his hostility by a frigid silence and a look the other way?

Since the New York State chairman fought a third term, it is presumed that he will, privately at least, oppose another helping.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

INCREDIBLE though it seems, we now have more airplane pilots than we can use.

As a result, the Civil Aeronautics administration's training program, which has provided a valuable pool from which military personnel has been drawn, probably will be discontinued this spring.

Flyers are still accepted by the armed services for future replacements. But the Army no longer wants students above 18 years. The Navy age preference is 20 and its prospective birdmen receive longer periods of formal education before they don wings.

The present situation represents an enormous achievement. In 1938 the U. S. Army Air Forces comprised 1,300 officers and 18,000 men. Only a couple of years previously their commanding officer knew literally every man in the corps. Today the group numbers 2,385,000.

In 1939, General Arnold's branch did not have enough teachers to handle 2,400 student pilots annually. He called in the heads of our civilian flying schools and they immediately arranged classes in primary flight.

Expansion in instruction projects is so complete today that in all probability the CAA hereafter will offer courses in elemental aeronautics to high school students of 16, or under, in preparation for peacetime military aviation.

FUTURE: The fulfillment of our vast aerial dream, according to inside authorities, will create a post-war problem of fields. This country is now so filled with airports that experienced aviators, especially in the South, constantly observe runways too newly built to be recorded on standard maps.

Tomorrow's challenge will be to discover means of controlling congested traffic in the skies. The most pressing need today is the equipment of the smaller airdromes with radio beacons and other direction-finding instruments so that machines can land in fog without collisions.

Commercial liners on specific courses are compelled now to travel 30 miles apart. It will be hazardous if that distance is lessened for private planes after the armistice.

A craft on a particular route is ordered to maintain an altitude of—say—2,000 feet. On another path a different height is obligatory. It is difficult even for veterans to hold a fixed level under all sorts of circumstances.

The huge La Guardia port in New York already has reached the saturation point. In inclement weather planes have to circle above it many times before the ground personnel flashes the signals that the coast is clear. Such conditions will be magnified when future America takes to the clouds.

PEACE: Wall Street is again buzzing with rumors about Axis attempts to negotiate peace.

The first bit of gossip-of-the-week is based, it is said, on eyewitness accounts reported by persons who were in Cairo when President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill were there. A German plane, bearing a flag of truce, flew to the Egyptian capital. From it stepped two Reichswehr officers in full uniform; they were whisked away in a military sedan.

The second tip is this: Secretary of State Hull and Foreign Minister Eden were represented as having met three important German officials in the Near East: Minister of Foreign Affairs von Ribbentrop, banker Schacht and a third—possibly Ambassador von Papen.

The Nazis—so the story goes—declared that they would sue for an armistice provided the Wehrmacht were permitted to march home under arms in order to prevent civil disorders or unofficial punishments by the peoples of Russia, Poland, France and other victimized nations.

The Anglo-Americans—according to one version—reported to their governments and later Roosevelt and Churchill broached the subject to Stalin at Teheran. The Red commissar refused to be a party to such an agreement and warned his western Allies that if they entertained the suggested arrangement he would make a separate deal with Hitler.

The two yarns are relayed by men of high standing in the financial district. Somewhat similar common talk about Axis feelers was spread in October by equally important members of the money crowd and formed the basis of the famous "peace scare" which failed to materialize.

On Being A REAL PERSON

BY DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

We Are Supposed to Sail by Conscience, We Can't Trust It

MANY people worry themselves into complete disintegration over moral trifles, and others have consciences so obtuse that they can get away with anything.

When Richard Croker approached the end of his notorious career as chief of Tammany Hall, he was once asked whether he had any regrets. Meditatively removing his cigar, he said solemnly, "No sir, not one. I do not remember ever having done anything I ought not to have done, for I have done good all of my life." Contemplating such a character one is reminded of Shakespeare's phrase, a "conscience wide as hell."

Conscience is a tricky function of personal life; it runs the gamut from callousness to hypersensitiveness; it can league its powerful sanctions with noble conduct or with bagatelles of moral custom; with equal facility it makes saints, lunatics, and bigots. Indeed, by etymology, a "bigot" is a man who associates trivialties with religious conscientiousness and says, "By-God!" about them. Following one's conscience can be a distracting experience, and numberless people are torn to pieces by it.

In social life the moral ambiguity of consicence is obvious. Galileo, standing for his truth under presecution, was conscientious, but so too were his persecutors. They honestly thought that the new astronomy, making the earth a mere satellite of the sun, would steal from man his special dignity, and make it impossible to believe in the infinite value of each human soul. They had no selfish ends to serve in persecuting Galileo—they did it for conscience' sake.

Lecky, in his History of European Morals, says: "Philip II and Isabella . . . inflicted more suffering in obedience to their consciences than Nero and Domitian in obedience to their lusts."

From such ambiguity spring many sorry tragedies, alike in mon's social history and in his personal life. Conscience is a tremendous force. It can say You ought! with a voice like thunder, and cry Shame! until sleep vanishes and to live with oneself is intolerable. Yet while conscience thus insists that we do right, it does not by itself tell us what is right.

OUR ideas of what is right come from varied sources—our inherited tradition, our contemporary culture with its prevailing customs and codes, our own passion and self-interest, our excuses and self-justifications, the books we read, the movies we see, the people we admire, the philosophy we hold.

A confluence of many streams flows into our ethical judgments, so that conscience, imperiously demanding that we do right, can back up almost any combination of ideas concerning what right is. Thus Columbus on one of his voyages wrote to King Ferdinand: "In the name of the Holy Trinity, from here we can send as many slaves as can be sold."

We are supposed to sail by conscience and yet we cannot trust it: instead of relying on the compass to keep our course straight, we must keep our compass straight, and that makes nervous sailing. Stray bits of metal may deflect a compass, and lacking careful checking many a compass faithfully followed has landed its ship on the rocks.

It is an open question whether the more distracting difficulties are me in those who evade their consciences or in those who accept them.

TOMORROW: Our desire to avoid self-blame.

Microfilmed Digest Of News Dispatched To Fighting Fronts

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — Three thousand copies of the first trans-Atlantic edition of the London Daily Mail, a microfilmed digest of the news of the week in Britain, were enroute today to American officials, industrialists and editors.

Described as "the world's first trans-oceanic newspaper," the publication was designed — "to contribute to Anglo-American relations," according to Don Iddon, American representative.

Not For Sale

Iddon said that the new edition, flown to the United States from Britain, would not be for public sale. More than the original 3,000 copies of the first edition, which was mailed from here yesterday, may be issued, he added.

Contents of the first edition, including pictures and maps, were prepared in London several days ago and photographed on film about the size of a dollar bill. The film was enlarged and printed after being flown here. One page is dedicated to messages from American servicemen in Britain to relatives in America.

HOG RECEIPTS HIGH

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10, (AP) — The Kansas City stockyards today was handling 17,000 salable hogs, greatest number in any one day since Jan. 17, 1928. The inflow climaxed a week in which receipts were 68,120, largest since 1924.

Out of the Sea come
•STRENGTH
•STAMINA
•POWER
The sea is our richest source of animal proteins, vitamins and minerals which livestock must have to be healthy, productive and fast-growing.

STANTON'S 13% LAYING MASH
brings these vital elements straight from the sea and puts them to work in your poultry yard. This fine feed, milled right here in Lubbock, contains ManAmar and B-G Plus, blended with our local-grown grains into a feed especially adapted to the needs of West Texas feeders.

B-G PLUS
is a patented vacuum concentrated extract from fish. This new and potent product, resulting from ten years of ceaseless research and experiment, supplies extra trace minerals and vitamins in Stanton's 13% Laying Mash.

MANAMAR
in Stanton's 13% Laying Mash supplies the hard-to-get feeding essentials — fish proteins, food minerals and vitamins, including the important Vitamin B "Complex."
* * *
ManAmar and B-G Plus have been developed and are produced in the laboratories of Philip R. Park, famed livestock nutrition authority. These laboratories have approved the formula for Stanton's 13% Laying Mash. Let the records of users tell the rest of the story. Get all the facts today.

Lonesome Kid

came and the ack-ack gun shook the hillside and the valley. First there was blind panic as I scrambled frantically for cover. There was none. Then panic went away and left only fear—a sensible fear which, like the sense of pain, can save your life. I flattened on the hillside, both knees skinned from the diving fall.

Then, lying there waiting for bullets, bomb fragments or flak which seemed sure to strike my exposed back, suddenly even fear disappeared in the face of the most terrible loneliness I've ever known.

"This is it," I thought. "And you didn't think it could happen to you. Even the grass under your nose looks foreign, doesn't it? You're all alone, completely forgotten—a million miles from everybody you know—and they're probably going right on with their everyday lives now and you're going to get it now on a hillside in a foreign land you don't give a damn about."

Mingled With Regrets

Mingled in with that loneliness was a quick regret that I wouldn't ever do all the things I've wanted to; a wish that my wife wouldn't take it too hard, and even a touch of pride because when death seemed to be sweeping inevitably up the valley on the wings of a strafing plane I wasn't as afraid at the end as I always thought I'd be.

But most of all I was more lonely than I've ever been before. "That's what gets you," said the kid. "It's the feeling that you're going to be killed and not a soul in the world knows about it. How can you make people understand that feeling?"

In the silence that went begging for an answer the ripple of German machine pistols fluttered over the hill. The kid jerked his thumb in the direction of the sound.

Stopped One With Rifle

"That's funny, too," he said, mashing out the cigaret.

"I stopped one of those bastards with my rifle the other day. Had to stand up and shoot him after he'd hit a couple other guys. Didn't kill them. They said I had a lot of guts, but it wasn't that. I just didn't realize what was really happening."

"Once, when I was a kid," the kid said slowly, "I dreamed I was being pushed off a cliff, but down underneath I knew it was a dream all the time so I just quit holding back and jumped—and woke up. It was like that the other day; like a dream or a game. I knew it wasn't real, so I stood up and shot. But how can you write about an unreal feeling like that so people back home will understand. It doesn't make sense."

Still Doesn't Make Sense

It still didn't make sense next morning when I met the litter bearers bringing the dead down the ravine and laying them beside the trail for the truck to pick up. I knew the kid was among them even before I asked the sergeant. He pointed at the blanket covered bodies. Only their feet showed—muddy GI shoes pointing upward.

Nobody knew how he got it—whether it was suddenly, in a flash of unreality, or slowly after waiting and sweating it out, all alone.

antiaircraft positions and destroying at least three barges.

There was no ground action reported in the Saidor area where the Americans have been expanding their beachhead holdings, but the Australians, 65 miles down the coast and moving northward toward the Americans, met some stiff resistance from enemy units now being squeezed between the two Allied forces.

Bombers and fighter planes from the South Pacific command hammered away at Japanese shipping and supply and airbase points in the Rabaul-Kavieng area. Liberators attacked an enemy convoy southwest of Cape Mantanalem, near Kavieng on New Ireland island. Results of the attack on a destroyer and four freighters were not observed.

Continuing the program of daily assaults on Rabaul, Australian Beaufort medium bombers set fires at Lakunai and Tobera airdromes.

Cape St. George Pounded

While other Allied planes were bombing and strafing enemy centers on Bougainville island in the Solomons, the South Pacific command sent more planes to raid Cape St. George on the south tip of New Ireland.

The attention given Cape St. George, hit hard in low-level bombing the day before, apparently is part of the intensified aerial warfare intended to force the Japanese to abandon Rabaul.

It was the first time our low level bombers had used the new airfield on Bougainville. The attack was made last Friday.

Some 40 to 70 Nipponese planes from Rabaul hotly contested the raiders. Ten and probably twelve enemy planes were destroyed. Three of our Navy Hellcat fighters and three dive bombers were lost. The crew of one bomber was known to have been rescued.

SPECIALTIES OUT IN FRONT

NEW YORK, Jan. 10 (AP)—Specialties remained in the buying foreground of today' market while many leaders continued to retreat moderately.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .1 of a point at 50.4.

Among stocks posting new highs for the move were Farnsworth Television, Engineers Public Service, Delaware and Hudson, South Porto Rico Sugar, American Bosch and Philco. Pere Marquette preferred were up 2¾ to 3 and Nickel Plate preferred jumped 3⅝.

The recently strong Armour preferreds dropped 2½ to 4½. Dow Chemical and Allied Chemical yielded 2 each. Backward were Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, General Motors, Western Union "A," Du Pont, Union Carbide and J. I. Case.

Curb losers included Raytheon, Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Cuban Atlantic Sugar. American Gas and Niagara Hudson Power ended a shade ahead.

Reds Closing In

most to a man—8,000 of them, the bulletin said.

Captured enemy booty listed by Moscow was tremendous. Scores of tanks and big guns, hundreds of rifles and food and ammunition stores fell to the advancing Russians. Scores of tanks also were destroyed in vicious fighting, but Moscow's announcements indicated German counterattacks were only spasmodic and on a diminishing scale along most of the active front.

The Germans clearly faced their worst disaster of the war, perhaps one surpassing the Stalingrad debacle.

The Army under Konev was driving west and northwest to effect a junction with the southern arm of Vatutin's forces in an effort to trap a greater segment of Germany's Dnieper bend troops in the Smela-Kanev sectors. The two armies were reported less than 70 miles apart.

The troops under Vatutin cut the Smela-Kristinovka railway at Yarovatka, 80 miles southwest of Smela, the bulletin said. Another railway between Kristinovka and Vinnitsa was severed with the capture of Voronovista, 13 miles southeast of Vinnitsa.

Spearheads Reach River

The capture of Voronovista put the Russians within seven miles of the Bug river, last natural German defense line before the Dniester river, pre-war frontier of Rumania 60 miles beyond. Dispatches said Russian spearheads already had reached the Bug river, which is much less of a natural barrier to the Russians than the wide Dnieper which they crossed last fall.

In line with the ambitious Russian effort to block the escape of Germany's Dnieper bend forces, Berlin reported that the Soviets had tried unsuccessfully to land on the Black Sea coast between Odessa and the Dnieper river mouth. The Germans said the amphibious attempt failed.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin radio commentator, acknowledged however, that German troops, using a "flexible defense," were giving up territory to the onrushing Soviet forces "for the purpose of sparing German forces unnecessary exhaustion or of protecting them from being cut off."

Mannstein Said Ousted

There were rumors that Field Marshal Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein had been ousted because of his failure to hold the Red avalanche.

with the Bolshevists, and the border eventually was drawn up to 160 miles eastward by the Treaty of Riga in 1921. That border existed until the Germans and Russians divided Poland between them in September, 1939.

The Moscow radio said "Poland's eastern borders could be established by agreement with the Soviet Union. The Soviet government does not regard 1939 borders as unchangeable." It suggested Poland could be reconstituted with territory now part of Germany, saying this would give the Poles an outlet to the Baltic sea.

In drawing the new borders of Poland, the radio said, "Corrections can be included to the advantage of Poland in that direction (in the west) in order that districts in which there is overwhelming Polish population be handed over to Poland."

This apparently referred to the East Prussian area.

The statement concluded with strong criticism of the Polish government in London, which, it said, "cut off from its people, has shown itself incapable of establishing friendly relations with the Soviet Union."

sion of a country preparing itself for war."

An attack on Turkey would indicate that the Nazis have successfully averted attempts by pro-Allied elements to overthrow the government and have brought overwhelming pressure to bear for a strong demonstration of German support.

Resistance Mounts

These developments came also as Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) indicated that his Yugoslav Partisan guerrilla armies were meeting stiffer opposition in their attempts to repel the German invaders.

A broadcast announcement said the Nazis were employing infantry, tank and motorized units in their newest five-pronged drive to crush the guerrillas, and that heavy fighting was raging in western and central Bosnia.

Another announcement with direct bearing on the Balkan theater was that Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, newly-named Allied commander in the Middle East, had arrived at Cairo to take up his command. He replaces Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, newly-named commander in chief of the Mediterranean forces.

Advances In Italy

sino plain.

The 29th Panzer division, which, with units of the Herman Goering division, was entrusted with the task of defending Cassino against the grinding Fifth Army offensive, was taking a heavy mauling. Clark's advance units were nearly halfway through the six-mile zone of fortifications between the village of San Vittore and Cassino.

Look Down Into Streets

Freezing weather caused great discomfort to the infantry, but the hardened ground was welcomed by Allied armored divisions, which had seen but little action since the Italian rainy season began a short time after Naples was captured.

As matters stood today — six days after the start of the new drive on Rome—American infantry fighting from peak to peak northeast of Cassino had reached a point where it could look down into the streets of that key communications center. Both infantry and tanks were driving in on the bastion from the front.

American doughboys battered through strong opposition to seize the 3,500-foot peak of Catena Vecchio, north of the highway into Cassino. South of the highway they captured 1,500-foot Mount Chiaia and 900-foot Mount Porchia. Units which won Mt. Chiaia continued their advance northward toward the village of Cervaro, some four miles east of Cassino. They were strongly supported by Allied fighter-bombers.

Cling To Bridgehead

Near the western end of the 10-mile offensive front, British troops clung to a bridgehead they had established across the Peccia river west of Mt. Maggiore. German artillery gave this force a hard plastering. Field dispatches indicated the British had worked their way around southwest of Cassino, directly opposite American troops slugging their way in from the northeast.

Deep snows restricted fighting in mountainous sectors of the Eighth Army front to patrol activity and artillery exchanges. A German armored column, trapped in hip-deep snow in a mountain pass 10 miles southeast of Sulmona, was wrecked by a force of Warhawks fighter-bombers that bombed and machinegunned the helpless Nazis all afternoon.

engine trouble near a Pacific island base some time ago. The skipper, J. H. Hamilton, had a Clipper at Wake when the Japs came, and got it out under fire. This time he sat in the PBY on the water for two days. A destroyer came alongside to take off the passengers, but it wasn't necessary. Repair parts were flown down by another plane, and both took off in a fairly high sea, using a new technique which is like surfboarding on high waves.

Life aboard an airplane for two nights and three days is not as hard as one might think. You sleep a lot, even though you sit up all night. The galley is going all the time, and coffee and fruit juice and sandwiches are always available. Members of the crew who are off duty play cribbage or poker.

The crew members make passengers feel important by getting their signatures on Short-Snorter bills. They flash crude Fiji Island money, and currency of almost every other country on earth, on which they have collected the signatures of everyone from Eleanor Roosevelt to General Marshall.

My favorite autograph is that of Maj. Gen. Ralph Smith, who signed mine: "Makin taken." He was there.

AT ONE fueling point on the way we were met by Col. James Doyle, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who is collecting autographs for his 13-year-old boy. This was his fourth Christmas away from home, he said. Even though that is a long time, he would rather be out here helping than being miserable in the states, feeling he was not doing his part.

"Of course, I'm a long way from the front," he said, "but the wounded come back through here and I talk to the boys, and I get a feeling of being close to it, so I shouldn't be unhappy."

He is a middle-aged man, but he has the same spirit as the young junior-grade naval officer who has been on shore duty after six months on Guadalcanal and who worked on one of our party for a transfer nearer to the front.

They Just Want To Fight

I asked one man what he and the others thought about things at home.

"We're not interested in politics," he said. "Just send us the stuff to fight with."

"What about the strikes?" I asked him.

"What we say," he replied, "is send the strikers here and let us go home."

That was when we were riding through a cocoanut grove at a place where the Seabees and Army engineer battalions have made a vast model military base in just one year, with 300 miles of road and accomodations for many thousands of men.

A car stolen in Lubbock Sunday was recovered by the Lynn county sheriff's department at Tahoka, and a vehicle stolen at Tahoka early Monday was recovered in Lubbock by city police last night. A 1941 black Ford coach bearing Texas license K-82494 was taken at Brownfield about 8:55 o'clock last night, state police there informed the Lubbock police radio.

A grass fire in Carlisle park, in southwest Lubbock, resulted in a fire department run about 8 o'clock Monday night.

None was reported hurt when cars driven by R. E. Eakin, 1918 Fifth street, and Walter Lee Overbay, 18, 619 Avenue F, collided about 7 o'clock Monday night at Fourth street and Avenue K. Damages resulted to the left side of the vehicle driven by Overbay and to the fenders of the Eakin car. Police said Eakin was traveling east on Fourth street and Overbay north on Avenue K, when Overbay prepared to make a left turn into Fourth street.

Ciano Given Death

Count Dino Grandi, former ambassador to London and president of the chamber of fasces and guilds, who led the battle in the council to depose Mussolini. The dictator was ousted July 25 and placed under guard, but later was "rescued" by Nazi troops.

The German dispatch said the trial was held at Verona.

Captured By Germans

Ciano, whose last job in his father-in-law's government was as ambassador to the Vatican, was placed under arrest by Marshal Badoglio's government but later escaped. The Germans said they then captured him at the Swiss border.

Ciano, 40, was reputed to have become one of the richest men in Italy under the Fascist regime. The son of Admiral Costanzo Ciano, Conte di Cortellazo, a naval hero and early supporter of fascism, Ciano held obscure posts in the diplomatic service until his marriage to Edda Mussolini.

Reports on Dec. 6 from the Swiss-Italian border had said that Ciano had been executed, shot in the back by a firing squad. The Germans denied this and subsequently announced the treason trials would start last Saturday. The account today gave no details of the trial.

Poll Must Be Paid

He added regarding payment of poll tax:

"It will be seen that the poll taxes imposed by the . . . constitutional and statutory provisions for the year 1943 are now due and payable if they have not already been paid. The constitution provided that such taxes owing by the individuals subject thereto cannot now be released.

"Neither can the individuals subject to such taxes be permitted to vote at the coming elections unless such individuals have paid such taxes and have a receipt evidencing such payment prior to February 1, 1944."

Dnieper Bend May Turn Out As War's Decisive Battle

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

A climactic Russian effort to turn both ends of the Bug river defense line before German forces all but isolated in the Dnieper bend can reach it, seems to be brewing.

Success would mean entrapment in Russia of anywhere up to a million Nazi troops. It would expose Rumania and the southeastern flank of the Nazi defense front covering th Balkans to swift Russian penetration, and would go far to confirm the conclusions of gloomy German broadcasters that the decisive battle of the war in Europe is being fought now between the Pripet marshes and the Black Sea.

SIMPSON

From Berlin comes the first word of an indicated Russian move to couple a two-way drive from the south at the Nikolaev anchor of the lower Bug line with the many-pronged Red attacks to the north. Nazi bulletins told of a Russian amphibious assault beaten off at Ochakov, 40 miles southwest of Nikolaev at the mouth of the lake-like Dnieper-Bug estuary.

Russians Say Nothing

Moscow had nothing to say about this. An attempted Russian landing at that point to take Nikolaev in the rear would be a logical companion piece for a surge at the same objective across the frozen lower Dnieper, however. The Nazis have been expecting that ever since they abondoned their bridgehead opposite Kherson on the lower Dnieper.

Ochakov to the southwest and Kherson to the southeast lie about the same distance from Nikolaev, lower Bug metropolis. It is about 40 miles to the indicated Russian objective in each case.

Nikolaev itself lies on the east bank of the lower Bug. It is the southern transportation hub of the whole Dnieper bend. Lost to the Germans, it would leave their southern flank in the bend as much in jeopardy as their northern flank where two Ukrainian armies are converging toward an early junction at Novo Ukrainka.

Trap Nearing Close

The Second Ukrainian Army which took Kirovograd is now within 20 miles or less of Novo Ukrainka, controlling central Bug crossings. Capture of that rail hub would virtually close the trap on Nazi forces routed from their last central Dnieper foothold southeast of Kiev, cutting them off from escape across the Bug. The only other escape route is the Cherkasi-Vapujarka connection and the First Ukrainian Army at Buki was within artillery range of that line Sunday, and only 70 miles west of the Second Army spearhead aimed at Novo Ukrainka.

A successful drive at Nikolaev from the south to match these dangerous stabs from the north is to be expected if ice on the lower Dnieper is thick enough to carry heavy equipment. The reported amphibious attempt at Ochakov, backdoor to Nikoaev, looks like the beginning of such an operation, whether as a diversion or an encirclement movement. It cannot be questioned that simultaneous Russian capture of Nikolaev and Novo Ukrainka would snap shut the Dnieper bend trap and spell military disaster for the Nazi Army on a scale far surpassing either Stalingrad or Tunisia.

Death Brings End To Long Sleep Of 9-Year-Old Girl

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 10. (AP) — Nine-year-old Doreen Shook died today after more than four years of uninterrupted sleep.

The attractive child was stricken Aug. 14, 1939, with an unknown form of encephalitis which physicians said destroyed her brain cells. She had steadily lost strength in the last few weeks.

Despite the diseased slumber, nurses at a hospital for incurables kept flowers in Doreen's room, propped a toy panda bear by her side and arranged ribbons in her flaxen hear. Sometimes, they said, the child 'looked as though she wanted to speak but couldn't." Her blue eyes opened every morning, and the pupils responded to light, but they were sightless.

Blockade Runner Is Scuttled By Nazis

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 10. (AP)— A German blockade runner was scuttled by her crew on Jan. 3 while being chased by American and Brazilian Navy Air forces and 145 crewmen have been interned in a camp at a northeastern base in Brazil, the newspaper O Globo reported today.

The newspaper said this was the same ship which an official announcement on Saturday stated was sunk by joint action of United States and Brazilian Navy ships and planes while enroute to Japan from Germany with contraband.

O Globo added that the ship was destroyed somewhere between Ascension island and the African coast and was the third blockade runner sunk while attempting to carry war supplies from Japan to Germany in recent months.

One was sunk by American and British planes in the Bay of Biscay on Dec. 27, and the other was the armed merchantman Elizabeth which was intercepted and sent to the bottom off Dakar "some months ago," O Globo said.

This was the first mention of the Elizabeth, but O Globo said crewmen from the ship also had been disembarked at the northeast Brazilian base.

Three Gunners Die When Oxygen Fails

FRESNO, Calif., Jan. 10 (AP) — Hammer field authorities today announced the death of three gunners aboard Liberator bombers due to failure of their oxygen supplies while at high altitude.

They said they knew of no similar accident having occurred before. The deaths occurred Saturday night while one plane was over Tonopah, Nev., and the other over its base here. The deaths were not discovered until after the planes had landed.

The victims were Sergeant Clement G. Amory, 21, New York City; Staff Sergeant John F. Atz, 24, Milltown, Ind., and Sergeant Billy H. Novotny, 19, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Drop Noted In Grain Storage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)— The Agriculture department today estimated corn store on farms January 1 at 1,996,100,000 bushels compared with 2,246,592,000 bushels a year ago and an average of 1,562,290,000 during the 1933-42 period.

Stored wheat totaled 397,121,000 bushels compared with 490,781,000 bushels a year ago and an average of 226,579,000 during the 10-year period. The oats figures were 709,170,000 bushels January 1 compared with 881,542,000 a year ago and a 10-year average of 639,939,000 bushels.

The department estimated that 58,119,000 bushels of soy beans were stored on farms compared with 88,215,000 bushels last year. There were no comparative 10-year figures.

Outlook Unfavorable

"The outlook for a continued heavy volume of crop production in 1944 is not as favorable at this time as it was at the beginning of 1942 and 1943," the department said.

"While the total acreage of crops grown is expected to increase in response to the goals established for 1944 by the War Food administration, the prospects for better than average yields are not as bright. All precipitation, September through December, was the lightest since 1939 and about 21 per cent below normal."

The department said, however, that many other conditions are favorable for a large agricultural output in 1944, including record numbers of livestock remaining on farms. Feed supplies in the aggregate are ample, though not plentiful, for the country as a whole.

For 1944 large supplies of fertilizer are available and more materials have been allocated for farm machinery and repairs parts.

Nazareth Soldier Is Awarded Decoration

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Southwest Pacific, Jan. 3 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied air forces in the Southwest Pacific, has awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross to Tech. Sgt. Rex N. Brown, (Tulia route) Nazareth, Tex., for more than 50 aerial missions transporting troops and supplies to advanced positions.

The Silver Star has been awarded Pct. Dallas E. Johnson, Amarillo, an ambulance driver, who braved heavy bombs from airplanes and shelling from enemy ships the night of Oct. 13, 1942, to drive about picking up wounded at Guadalcanal.

Jams And Jellies To Be More Plentiful

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (U.P.) — Jams and jellies will be appearing on grocery store shelves in larger quantities soon, the War Food administration said today.

About 416,000,000 pounds of the spreads, made from fruits harvested last summer and fall, will find their way to retail outlets by next June, WFA said.

The jam pack will be relatively light because of poor harvest of strawberries, peaches, apricots and sour cherries but there'll be plenty of grape jelly, plum preserves and citrus marmalade as well as blackberry, raspberry and youngberry jam.

Letters To The Editor From Readers

'TEEN-AGE WRITES

The Editor, Avalanche: I would like to give my opinion on the juvenile delinquency. The letter J. L. Lane wrote was partly right. The parents of the 'teen age boys and girls have a lot to do in order to prevent their daughters and sons getting into trouble.

I'm a 'teen age girl and I think that if the children were the right kind to begin with, there would be no juvenile delinquency. The parents of a child can be too strict, or not strict enough. But if a boy or girl wishes to do right, he or she will. No one forces you to go to honky-tonks, or to all-night cafes and hotels. You go there on your own accord.

Boys and girls, have you ever stopped to think that your parents are blamed for a lot of things that you do? They take blame for not controlling you when they should.

There is no time in a child's life when he gets down-hearted and "would do anything."

Parents should raise their children for honorable citizens, not dishonorable criminals. The child plays a large part in how they intend to live. Girls walk streets because they're "soldier crazy." Do parents make them soldier crazy? No, the girls are fools enough to think a soldier will fall for them if they stand on a corner and whistle. Girls like that have something wrong with them. Parents are not to blame, altogether. If a boy or girl is determined to do such things, they will do them. So, boys and girls, let's do our part in this war and keep down juvenile delinquency. We can with the help of the parents. Delinquency would not be what it is, if everyone did his or her part. So come on kids, let's make Lubbock a better place for our soldiers to come home to. What would sister or brother in the armed forces say to you if they knew what you were doing?

Juvenile delinquency can be solved by the help of the 'teen age kids and their parents. How about it, aren't you ready to do your part, if everyone else is?

Views Differ On FDR's Support

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP) — Senator O'Daniel (D-Texas) came back to Washington today convinced that the people are fed up with the Roosevelt administration and Representative Johnson (D-Okla) returned with the equally firm conviction the people are lining up behind the president.

The varying appraisals they gave newsmen were based on "back home" talks during the Congress vacation:

Reported Johnson:

"The Republicans have run into the ground their propaganda that this is going to be a big Republican year. They're over their peak; the swing in sentiment now is back toward the Democrats."

"President Roosevelt's newest slogan, 'win the war,' has caught on in Oklahoma, and the folks are thinking more about winning the war than anything else, including strikes and OPA troubles."

O'Daniel, saying "I'm a Democrat but the one-eyed mule they're riding around here is not our southern donkey," declared that the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt and his congressional followers is "the only hope of restoring constitutional government in this country."

"The time is ripe," he continued, "for a complete turnover in both the executive departments and on both sides of the aisle in Congress."

O'Daniel said the country needs a "top to bottom" house-cleaning of the Roosevelt administration, but even then, he added:

"It's going to take more than a change in presidents to bring back constitutional government and get government out of competition with private enterprise."

Gable Is Bruised In Prosaic Car Wreck

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10 (AP)— Army Air Forces Capt. Clark Gable, who came through uncathed in bombing missions over France and Germany, is nursing bruises sustained in a prosaic automobile collision.

Gable, a police report said, was making a boulevard stop when the rear of his car was struck by a war worker's auto. Its driver and three passengers were taken to Van Nuys receiving hospital, but Gable did not require medical treatment.

Armed Service Out For Solons

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP) — President Roosevelt ruled today that legislators can't serve both in Congress and in uniform.

Attorney General Biddle advised him that the constitution forbids service in Congress and the armed forces at the same time, so Mr. Roosevelt asked Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox to see to it that legislators confine themselves to legislating.

It seems that only two representatives were affected by the ruling: Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash), who is a private in a tank destroyer unit at Fort McClellan, Ala., and Albert Gore (D-Tenn), who volunteered recently and now is on furlough under orders to report at Camp Shelby, Miss., Jan. 19.

Said Gore, 36, married and father of a daughter: "All I can do is what I am ordered."

No Active Tours Oo Duty

Mr. Roosevelt's order apparently will prevent members of Congress who hold reserve commissions from going on tours of active duty. A number of them have done that, including Senator Lodge (R-Mass), Rep. Mass (R-Minn) and Rep. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex).

Mr. Roosevelt wasn't against congressmen fighting on battlefields. In fact, he said, "the desire of the national legislators to serve their country under arms is understandable and appreciated—and does them honor." But he added

"Aside from the constitutional barrier, there is also the problem of evaluation of service to the nation. One of the greatest strengths of our democracy in the time of crisis is a strong, virile Congress to meet the problems arising from the demands of total war.

"The election of these congressmen, after war was declared, showed that their constituents believed that their service as legislators was their paramount contribution to the war effort."

Congress Gets Set For Stormy Session

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP) — Congress went through the motions of reconvening today and then sat back to wait for a presidential message that at noon tomorrow will set the session really on its way through a maze of issues complicated by election-year considerations.

President Roosevelt has not recovered sufficiently from the grippe, his physician ruled, to deliver his annual "state of the union" speech in person and it will be read by clerks.

But the president added a note of significance to the arrangements by deciding to broadcast a boiled-down version to the nation at 9 p. m. eastern war time.

Many Were At Home

While a goodly part of the members of Senate and House stayed in Washington for the three-week vacation ended today, others went home to see how their constituents are thinking this election year.

Speaker Rayburn said "I didn't hear a lot of politics" down in Texas and added the people "are for going on and getting this war over with, without too much grumbling and complaining."

He added, with respect to the new session of Congress:

"There's going to be a lot of talking, and I hope it's good."

Hog Shipments Glut National Stockyards

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Jan. 10. (AP)—A tremendous run on hogs estimated between 33,000 and 36,000 head glutted National Stockyards today and apparently bettered the old commercial record of swine receipts set in 1915.

Another record also was set—a 16,000 to 20,000 head holdover which commissioners fear might necessitate placing the third embargo in a month on hog shipments before next week end.

The government market office estimated receipts at 33,000, but its reporters and H. A. Powell, secretary of the St. Louis Livestock exchange, conceded the estimate was conservative, that receipts might go over 35,000.

SERIOUS TYPHUS OUTBREAK

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 10 (AP) — Norwegian legation sources said today that a serious outbreak of typhus in Kirkens, chief German base in the far north, had forced the Germans to isolate the area to prevent the fever from spreading to other fronts.

Jet Propulsion Has "Definite Future"

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10 (AP)—Aircraft Builder Glenn L. Martin declared today that the jet propulsion principle used in the Army's newly-announced experimental combat plane has a "very definite future in commercial planes as well as military.

Martin, head of the Glenn L. Martin company, said the fuel consumption of jet-propelled planes now is fairly high, but added that "jet propulsion, when developed past the experimental stage, will give higher speed for the same amount of fuel."

"There will always be propeller-type airplanes," he continued. "The propeller has certain advantages, just as jet propulsion has certain different advantages. Jet propulsion's major contribution is extremely high speed."

No one knows precisely how fast jet-propelled planes will fly, he said, but "everyone is certain that they'll be faster, much faster, than propeller-driven planes."

Blood Donors Respond Over The Nation And Billy Will Live Longer

DALLAS, Jan. 10 (U.P.)—Response from blood donors throughout the nation indicated today that four-year-old Billy Charles Meers, victim of an incurable kidney ailment, would get enough blood and plasma to live—at least a while longer.

Physicians told his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meers of Seymour, Saturday that he was doomed without blood plasma, but that the hospital would be forced to halt the supply of plasma from its bank in fairness to the public.

Billy had received 227 pints of blood from the hospital since September—a rate which was fast exhausting the institution's supply. But a story of his plight brought offers from blood donors in the northern and eastern parts of the nation and physicians said Billy could live indefinitely if the transfusions were continued.

New Substitute For Cork Said Developed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10 (AP) — Development of a new type of cork substitute from farm wastes was announced today by the Agriculture department.

The new product, reportedly the equal of cork discs used in bottling food and beverage products, is made from pitch and fibers from sugar cane, cornstalks, peanut hulls and similar materials combined with animal or other vegetable glues and sugars, apple honey or glycerine.

Farm Homes Still Minus Electricity

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (U.P.) — Some 7,000,000 homes in farm and other rural areas still are without electricity despite the great increase in electrification activities in recent years, the Rural Electrification administration said today.

In its report for the fiscal year ended June 30, the REA said that although material shortages limited new large-scale construction in the past fiscal year, there was a gain of 60,000 or 6.17 per cent in the number of customers served by REA borrowers.

The increase raised to 1,041,000 the total number served and is primarily the result of farm connections authorized by the War Production board to stimulate food production or the purchase by borrowers of new lines, the report said.

REA said power consumption on the average American farm increased by 14 kilowatt hours, although the rise was greater in heavy food producing states, where the average was 26.

Houston Traffic Man Accepts Post At Yale

HOUSTON, Jan. 10. (U.P.) — Thomas E. Willier, Houston city traffic engineer, resigned today to accept a position as assistant professor on the faculty of Yale university.

At Yale, Willier will handle student training in traffic engineering and also will participate in the Yale bureau of traffic research assignments.

HOUSTON WOMAN BURIED

HOUSTON, Jan. 10 (U.P.)— Funeral services were held here today in Christ church for Mrs. Ida K. Mullen, Houston civic leader, who died Saturday night in her apartment at a downtown hotel. Mrs. Mullen, 76, had been ill for several months. She was one of the donors of the land on which this city's museum of fine arts was built.
