MARTIN'S DEATH WARRANT READY

District Clerk Draws Up Document for Sheriff

Rufus Martin's death warrant has been drawn up and signed by District Clerk John A. Martin and by Mart H. Hardin, chief deputy, who prepared the warrants. It will be read to Rufus Martin July 12, just before he is taken from the death cell in the county jail to the scaffold on which he will pay the penalty imposed for the murder of Charles Swackhammer.

The warrant reviews the trial of Martin on the indictment charging him with the crime of murder, gives the verdict of the jury, signed by J. B. Sprinkle, foreman, the motion for a new trial overruled by Judge Kirby Dunklin, notice of appeal and the appeal to the criminal court of appeals, affirming the decision of the Texas court of criminal appeals, the mandate to the latter court ordering the enforcement of the verdict, and the mandate of the civil court of appeals to be hanged in the Tarrant county jail, Thursday, July 12, 1906.

Following the foregoing comes the sentence of Martin by Judge Dunklin to be hanged in the Tarrant county jail, Thursday, July 12, 1906.

Martin, under the death watch that has been kept over him ever since his conviction, is bearing up remarkably well under his long confinement and the knowledge that the day of his death is rapidly approaching. He reads his bible regularly and says that he is preparing himself to meet his Maker. So far he has given no evidence of letting down, and when asked if Martin would make a confession, Deputy Sheriff Ralph S. Purvis said to a Telegram reporter:

"He has never intimated that he would, and I do not believe that he will. From what I have seen of the man I believe he will die without acknowledging the crime for which he is to die."

Either times are good and a man is worked to death, or they are hard and he starves to death.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I had a bad case of catarrh and suffered with terrible Catarrhal Headache for about four years. My nose and head were in an awful condition. Nothing did me any good until I bought a bottle of Thurmond's Catarrh Cure from E. E. Clements, Goldthwaite, Texas.

I began using it according to directions, but my head and nose were so irritated that I could hardly stand to use it. After using about one week I went back to the druggist, intending to return the bottle and get my money back, as he had guaranteed it to me. He offered me my money back, but begged that I try the remainder of the bottle, and assuring me that I could get my money back then I was I was dissatisfied in any way. Before I had taken all the bottle my nose and head healed up, my headache stopped, and I was cured. I am now well and have not had a headache since.

I gladly give this testimonial, hoping the medicine will be used by all sufferers and help them as it has me. Respectfully,

S. S. WOLFE.

WILLIAMS ANSWERS CHALLENGE OF JUDGE STOREY REGARDING RECORDS

Fort Worth Candidate Makes Pertinent Comparisons

WORK FOR STATE

Says Opponent Has Been Asking Public Favor for Past Thirty Years

Special to The Telegram. ATHENS, Texas, June 16.—In a statement for the press issued by W. D. Williams, the Fort Worth candidate for railroad commissioner, replies to a statement issued recently by Judge J. L. Storey and makes some pertinent comparisons on the subject of records. Mr. Williams' statement is as follows:

"The communication from Judge Storey, published in some of the last Sunday daily papers, makes it clear that it will not be his fault, if, during the present campaign the public gets any information concerning railroad rates in Texas, or the manner in which he, as railroad commissioner of this state, has discharged his duty of preventing extortions, abuses and discriminations in the transportation of freight and passengers, and in the charges made for such services. According to the judge, he seems to be set upon the watchtower, in the official position which he has held for some thirteen years, with its salary and perquisites, not for the purpose of regulating railroads, but in order that he may preserve the democracy pure and undisturbed, by keeping out of office all those who at any time in the past have differed with any of the numerous planks in the party platform. We are told how in Heaven there is much joy over every sinner who has repented, but Judge Storey appears to welcome converts for voting purposes only. His membership in the official trust must not be disturbed.

Political Beliefs
"In 1896 I was not a believer in the double standard and did not pretend to conceal my disappointment that this issue had been made to obscure our complaints against an extortionate tariff, under whose cover the trusts were grinding the faces of the poor throughout our country. Nevertheless, I voted for Mr. Bryan, because I believed in democracy as affording the voter hope for the preservation of the rights of the individual against the encroachments of avaricious and greedy interests, which were then, as they are now, seeking the control of the government for selfish purposes. If Mr. Bryan is again the democratic nominee in 1908, as now seems probable, and if I live to that time, the vote which I will then cast will be the third which I will have deposited in his favor.

"It may be true, as Judge Storey claims, that his political record is an open book, but I do still protest that it is long and uninteresting, and that it is unfair and even cruel of him to demand that I examine it and give the public the benefit of anything I find in it deserving of criticism. Thirty years ago, when I was farming in South Texas, and my wife and I were scrapping and saving in order that we might get together enough to enable me to begin the practice of the law, the judge, already an officer holder of long experience, was a candidate for renewed preferment. And, so far as I have heard, he has been running pretty much ever since, and in the course of all those years he has accomplished anything noteworthy in the service of his people, current history has done him the injustice of having failed to record his achievements.

Results of Office Holding
"For close upon thirteen years,

Judge Storey has sat upon the railroad commission, drawing $11 a day, Sundays, rainy days and all, and if he has once during that time strained himself, mentally or physically, trying to reduce railroad rates for the benefit of that public which has been taxed to pay his salary, no word of it has ever come to my ears. As contrasted with that record of official inaction, I may perhaps be pardoned the pride I feel that on a temporary salary, paid during legislative sessions only, of $5 a day for the first sixty days, and $2 for each day thereafter, I succeeded, after three years, in securing the enactment of a reformatory tax measure, which the state tax board, after a thorough hearing, say will yield an annual revenue of $1,500,000, secured out of properties which had before that time, continuously escaped taxation. Even though I was against the double standard in 1896, which one of us has been the more profitable public servant, Judge Storey or I? Which is the true democrat, he who gives unquestioning verbal submission to every current party doctrine, and having place and power, fails to use them for the betterment of those he serves, or he, who in the face of the most powerful opposition, undismayed by threats, untroubled by the storm which rages around him, strives successfully to gain for every man a square deal, and by sweat and strife, puts an end to an injurious and unwarranted exemption graft, which time without end had burdened all private property and every industry within the state? Which is the better democrat, he who says things, or he who does things?

Present Conditions
"There are questions before them which live in the present and which will affect the future, and I take it that what the people wish to know in a campaign made by Judge Storey for re-election as railroad commissioner is how it comes that, after the commission has had the benefit of his services for thirteen years, 50 cents still hauls a 500-pound bale of Texas cotton only twenty-four miles on the Texas railroads, while that same 50 cents paid all last year for hauling the same weight, 500 pounds, of Kansas City grain and flour, for a distance of 800 miles, to Galveston for export, both products passing over the same roads in this state, going in the same direction and frequently in the same train. Is this fair to the Texas farmer, and, if so, what are the circumstances which make it just and right that we shall submit to a discrimination so enormous as this? Why is it that flour was carried all last year from Missouri river points to the gulf, through Texas, at 10 cents a hundred, while the retail grocers of this state were compelled, under a rate fixed with Judge Storey's consent, to pay 10 cents a hundred for carrying Texas flour a distance of only 40 miles? Why are the producers and consumers of this state subjected to this great disadvantage? Is it fair, and, if so, why? Why is it that the cotton rate over the Houston and Texas Central has more than doubled itself in thirty years? Why is it that Navarro county suffers an annual loss of $30,000 because of this increased charge upon this product alone? Why does Ellis county pay every year an average additional $150,000 and why does Dallas county pay its $70,000, and Collin county its added tribute of $75,000 every twelve months? Why was it that Judge Storey opposed the proposed reduction of 50 cents a bale at the cotton rate hearing a little more than a year ago? Why is the average local rate in Texas as high as 6 cents per ton per mile, while the average local rate in interstate traffic combined is only 1 cent per ton per mile? Why is it that the rate from Dallas over the Texas and Pacific to the Gulf of Mexico, for agricultural implements had been advanced by 50 per cent over the rate which was made by that company in 1894? Why is it that the railroad commission has the power to order that the cotton employees may accompany shipments of live stock, but has no authority to make a similar order for the protection of the truck growers? Is it worth while to teach diversification of Texas farm products, so long as the new crop cannot be got to market in a saleable condition? Why is it that lumber rates are fixed at 18 cents to a multitude of Texas points, when the same road will haul lumber through those points, on beyond our border and deliver it on the Missouri river for $1.50 a thousand feet? Why is it that Texas and Texas commodities are discriminated against in favor of the industries and commodities of other states and of foreign countries? Why is our internal commerce fettered and bound and laid at the feet of foreign merchants and manufacturers? What effort has Judge Storey made to free people from the servitude in which they are held, and why has he resisted so many efforts which others have made in their behalf?

A SOUTHERN PERIL
The south is struggling for and has perhaps already in a large measure achieved supremacy in the cotton goods trade of the Orient. To maintain or increase its position in the cotton industry it is essential that the south should produce its export cotton goods at low initial cost. One of the large factors in the cost of production of textiles is power. The maintenance or loss of foreign trade may very well rest in the cost of power.

Like most countries underlying an extensive mountain system, the south is rich in water powers, many of them of great volume. A relatively very small number of these have as yet been fully developed. The character of the southern Appalachians is such that in their natural condition, with their relatively dense forest areas, their thick tangles of laurel, and their deep bed of moss, loose decomposed rock, vegetable mold and other absorbent material—all technically known in forestry, I believe, as the "sponge"—these mountains are almost ideal in their ability to store up the rainfall and deliver it over slowly and at an equal rate to the headwaters of the rivers which flow into the Atlantic.

The stripping off the forest, giving the rain full immediate access to the "sponge," rapidly washes away all of the loose and absorbent material, and the result is quite obvious. Nature's storage system is destroyed, the water is no longer conserved and fed down to the streams at a uniform rate, but rushes immediately into the stream heads and thence into the sea in floods. A short period now suffices to carry off the rainfall, and in a brief time (and especially during periods of drought) the streams are without water. This "sponge" washed down from the naked mountains, becomes mud and silt in the stream bottoms. Carried down yet further, it deposits in the lower reaches of the streams, filling channels and obstructing deep waterways, and finally, by rendering the harbors unsuited for deep water vessels, has a direct and serious effect upon the shipping trade. More than one harbor which fifty years ago gave anchorage and wharfage to deep water craft, is today practically ruined for foreign trade purposes.

The general sweeping away of the forest areas of the Southern Appalachians would menace and in a large measure destroy the water powers of the south. The destruction of the water powers of the south would seriously increase the gross average cost of cotton fabrics, and an increase in the

Pabst Beer is the Clean Beer

CLEAN things to eat and drink are as desirable as pure food. Food may be pure yet unclean. It is the method of handling in the manufacture of a food product that makes it clean or unclean.

Pabst beer is not handled. It is manufactured from the purest materials by the most scrupulously clean machinery. From brew to bottle or keg it is never touched by human hands and never comes in contact with anything but pure, filtered, sterilized air. It never touches tube, pipe or storage tank that has not been perfectly sterilized beforehand.

Millions of dollars have been spent to make possible the manufacture of Pabst Beer in an absolutely clean and wholesome manner.

of apple and cherry trees. In some experiments made he found that the root-pruned trees made fewer deeper, larger and more robust roots. These roots penetrated seventeen and a half inches against nine and a half inches for the roots of unpruned trees.

Cut flowers will last much longer in water if the stalk is peeled. This is especially true in the case of any shrub plant. Succulent stalks may be split up the ends. This process expedites the absorption of water and keeps the plant fresh. The Japanese jab a bit of salt at the end of some blossoms to postpone the drooping which is occasioned by dryness.

gross cost of cotton fabrics directly menace the maintenance and growth of foreign trade in these commodities. The loss of foreign trade in cotton fabrics directly menaces the prosperity of the south—Extract from Forestry and Irrigation.

Mowing the Lawn
Some persons advise raking after each mowing. I do not, because the clippings drop down into the grass and because there was growth enough to partially hide the sword upon which it falls. This will wither and turn brown in a day or two and greatly detract from the beauty of the lawn. But if you keep your lawn well mowed—and that means going over it at least three times a week in ordinary seasons—the amount clipped off at each mowing will be small and there will not be enough of it to show.

Do not set the knives so low that they shave the lawn. This practice will soon spoil a lawn, as it interferes with the crown of the grass plants. It clips away the blades of grass which sprang from the surface and destroys all that part of the plant upon which we must depend for color and soft, plush-like effect. Let the blades be set high enough to leave at least two inches of the foliage—Outing Magazine.

WIND UP AFFAIRS
Bixby Busy Settling Up Business with the Five Tribes
Special to The Telegram. MUSKOGEE, I. T., June 16.—Tams Bixby, commissioner to the five tribes, will be a very busy man for the next few months. With his duties of winding up the affairs of the five tribes, he must also assist in the selection of the election judges of the new state to be. To a reporter yesterday Mr. Bixby said:

"The first step after the President signs the statehood bill will be the appointment of the two judges from the Indian Territory, who, with myself, will constitute a board to divide the Indian Territory into fifty-five election districts before the election of delegates to the constitutional convention can take place. The board will hasten its work in order that our senators and congressmen can be seated early in January of next year. Congress will hold a short session next year and we must get a move on us, as there is much legislation that this country needs."

Indian and Negro Schools Fittingly Celebrate Occasion
MUSKOGEE, I. T., June 16.—Flag day was fittingly observed at the Dunbar public school in this city, where the Creek and Seminole colored normal is being held. A number of addresses were made, among the speakers being Leto W. Taylor, Colonel Clarence E. Douglas, C. W. Raymond, R. P. De Graffenreid and M. G. Bailey.

"Every man should know his duty," remarked the Wise Guy. "Yes, then he can recognize it in time to dodge," added the Simple Mug.

from Kansas City to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Dubuque and Des Moines is the Chicago Great Western Railway. Three well equipped trains daily. Best of service. For further information apply to Geo. W. Lincoln, R. P. A., 1 W. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo.

When Edward de Renzle comes to this country next fall to sing he will begin again to make his fortune, it is said. Most of the money that he made here has been lost, so the basso finds himself, near the end of his career, compelled to start over again.

The Eyeland of Colorado

Colorado is veritably a land for eyes. There are no monotones within its borders; rather all is variety and change and difference. It is a land of surprises and astonishments—all picturesque and glorious. The mountains are higher and nobler in aspect than those of far-famed Switzerland, and there are multiplied times more of them. The canyons are deeper, the streams are as clear, the woods as entrancing, and on 120 peaks there lies the mantle of snow eternal; but what's the use—Colorado is a region unique—apart—and cannot be compared. Once let its charms fascinate you and you shall be spellbound evermore.

The way to this EYELAND is the ROCK ISLAND. Through Sleeper leaves Fort Worth 9 p. m. daily, reaching Denver second morning at 8 o'clock—just the right time. Very low rates are in effect via the Rock Island daily with long limit to all the favorite resorts of the Rockies.

THE ELKS—they are wise—have selected the ROCK ISLAND as their official route to Denver in July. We have made them a rate—it is open to you—of $24 round trip, July 13, 14 and 15, and if you feel the necessity of economizing on your summer trip, this rate is just what you have waited for. Ask for our folder "With the Elks to Colorado in July"—it's a beauty—and it's free. And our 84-page booklet "Under the Turquoise Sky" tells COLORADO in the best—in the Rock Island way.

California, the Golden State is beckoning the tourist in a myriad of manners this year, and for the first time continental tourist rates have been authorized throughout the summer, and for $60 you can take in Colorado, Utah, California and the intermediate territory, stopping at pleasure, going one way, returning another.

In addition to this, you can, for $78.50, include Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska and Wyoming in your itinerary. Then, on June 18 to 22 round trip to Portland will be only $55. On June 25 to July 7 round trip to San Francisco or Los Angeles or both, will only be $52, and for $69.50 we can send you one way via Portland and Seattle.

Tourist Rates to Chicago, Kansas City, St. Paul

and to innumerable other places, including St. Louis, Memphis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Toledo, Detroit, Mackinac, Milwaukee, Devil's Lake, N. D., Montreal, Boston, Portland, Me., Harper's Ferry, Pittsburgh and the resorts in Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, North and South Carolina and Virginia.

THROUGH SLEEPERS TO DENVER and CHICAGO daily via the ROCK ISLAND. WE SELL STEAMSHIP TICKETS TO ALL EUROPEAN PORTS, make reservations, give full information.

FRUIT

PROPAGATING ROSES
For rooting rose cuttings the following is the surest and best way: Have a box about three inches deep, with bottom so open as to insure perfect drainage. Fill this with sand and place at the north side of the house in summer. For cuttings, select short branches of three or four buds and break (not cut) the buds from the main branch, leaving them holding by enough wood and bark to keep them alive, while the broken part dries or heals, which should be in about one week.

Planting Cuttings
Then take them off from the parent bush and strip off all the leaves but one, stick them in the box of sand, leaving but one or two buds above the surface. The sand must be constantly kept moist, and in very dry, hot weather sprinkle with water several times each day. Grass clippings scattered over the sand will help to keep them moist. If, at the end of four weeks they are still green, they are likely to grow, but should not be disturbed until they show actual growth; they are then ready for potting. Roses can be grown in this way at any and all times of the year, but indoors they must be covered with glass to hold the moisture, but air must not be entirely excluded.

Layering
However, it is to be wondered at why any one except those who grow roses in large quantities to sell, should resort to this when layering is so easy and so sure. This is done by bending down a branch till it touches the ground, cut a little way into the wood on the under side just where it touches and fasten down with a forked stick or a little soil, leave the tip of the branch out and in a few weeks you will have a new plant.

SEVERE ROOT PRUNING FAVORED
Although the horticulturist of the Georgia experiment station declines to make any positive statement concerning the advisability of severe root pruning when planting young trees, he says that he is fully satisfied that peach trees from which the roots have been largely cut off will live and flourish in Georgia even in stiff clay and under adverse weather conditions. The same statement may also be made

Prickly Heat

YIELDS readily to the application of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. Bathe the parts in warm soapy water, and dry thoroughly with a soft towel. Then bathe the irritated spots with the Antiseptic mixed with an equal part of warm water. Should this be too strong, more water may be added to good advantage.

Apply once or twice daily, increasing the amount of Antiseptic each time. The first or second application will give you relief, and a few more times will so toughen the skin and stimulate the circulation to these parts, as to prevent recurrence of the trouble.

Should this application smart, fanning will stop that immediately, and the soothing coolness felt then is indeed grateful to the burning irritated skin. If you have not yet tried this, it is certainly worth while doing so—you will be gratified with the results.

VICTIMS MEET DEATH IN FIRE
Wounded Left Dying in Streets Without Care

WOMEN TORTURED
Bloody Scenes Rival Those of Last Winter in Russia, or of French Struggle

Special to The Telegram.
ST. PETERSBURG, June 16.—While the rioting continued in Bialystok today with increased violence, the disturbances spread to other points in the empire and tonight the situation is regarded as decidedly gloomy. It is admitted that a general peasant uprising is feared. So imminent is this peril, especially in the southern and southwestern provinces that all the infantry and army reserve men in that region are to be put on a war footing. Similar precautions are to be taken in central and northern Russia.

Victims Tortured
While the government is seeking to minimize the slaughter in Bialystok it is known now that the massacre there rivals those in Kishineff and that they have been accomplished by the most appalling tortures. So great is the anti-semitic fury of the mob that the mere killing fails to appease the butchers. Torture of the most fiendish nature adds to the horror of it all. Women have been brutally beaten to death after being subjected to the most terrible inhumanities. Among the dead are many whose skulls have been beaten in with iron bars, eyes have been gouged out, limbs have been cut off, while many have been burned to death in their homes. The wounded everywhere have been left to perish miserably from lack of care or in the flames.

Nor were the men alone in perpetrating these awful crimes. Women urged on the rioters in many instances and took a prominent part in the death work.

City is Burning
Tonight word came that almost the entire city of Bialystok, which was a thriving place of 75,000 inhabitants a few days ago, was in flames and that the murdering and looting was going on with no sign of diminution. Troops have been hurried there, but they are either powerless or too indifferent to check the carnage. To make matters worse, peasants from the surrounding country are crowding into town and are joining the work of destruction. Jews in the railway station have been dragged from passing trains and murdered.

The governor of Grodno has telegraphed that for two or three days at least there can be no stopping the butchery in Bialystok. In Kishineff there is almost a panic owing to reports of a threatened massacre. Messages from Yelianshtehr and Kremenchug report that anti-Hebrew excesses are also apprehended there. A mob devastated the Jewish shops in the town of Chernyaviez.

Policemen Killed
In Warsaw two police sergeants were shot and instantly killed and another policeman was wounded by terrorists and a policeman who pursued the assassins was shot and killed by a passing woman. Alarming reports from Kieff, Kharkoff and Rostoff where there are fears of risings against the Jews, who are in dread of a fate similar to that of their kindred in Bialystok.

Unconfirmed rumors are in circulation to the effect that anti-Hebrew outbreaks have occurred in Brest-Litovsk and Vilna.

Bourse is Panicky
In government circles there is a distant feeling of alarm. On the bourse there is a feeling which borders on panic. Merchants in many places are feeling ruin.

In Moscow where a general strike has been proclaimed, agitators are fanning the revolutionary sentiment and the city is like a smoldering volcano. Violent outbreaks are expected and may not be delayed another day.

The lower house of parliament assembled in this city, has practically defied the czar and a dictatorship is possible. If parliament is dissolved, as threatened and a dictator named, a revolution is declared certain. In the meantime all eyes are centered on the lower house, whose attitude remains one of unflinching opposition to the autocrat.

DECLARED INSANE
Woman Who Caused Disturbance in J. P. Morgan's Office Unbalanced

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, June 16.—After all the varying legal proceedings instituted against and in behalf of Mrs. Ellen B. Williams, the English woman who was arrested last March for creating a disturbance in the office of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., she was judicially declared to be insane today. Unless her relatives take charge of her or see that she is returned to England, Mrs. Williams is in danger under this decision of being committed to an institution should any complaint be lodged against her.

INJURIES FATAL TO CONGRESSMAN
Col. Lester Dies Without Regaining Consciousness

Special to The Telegram.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—Colonel Rufus Ezekiel Lester, representative in congress from the first district of Georgia, and one of the nine remaining members of the house who served in the Confederate army, died at 6:22 p. m. today as the result of injuries he sustained by falling through the skylight in the cupola of the Capitol apartment hotel, shortly after 8 o'clock Friday evening.

Colonel Lester was conscious at intervals up to the time of his death, but never rallied sufficiently to offer any explanation of the facts that led to the fatal accident. Why he attempted to gain access to the roof by climbing a frail wooden ladder to the cupola and drawing himself through the narrow opening will always remain a mystery. The only explanation offered by his friends is that they believe his mind was temporarily affected and that he had realized the danger he was running.

Relatives at Beside
At the bedside in his apartments at the Cairo when he died were his wife, Mrs. Laura Lester, his son-in-law, Mr. Randolph Judge, Charles F. Bartlett, representative in congress from the Sixth district of Georgia; Mrs. Bartlett, Colonel Lester's secretary, S. D. G. Heldt Jr. and the three attending physicians, Dr. Charles W. Browne, Dr. James Parr and House Physician Dr. T. J. Kemp. No hope was ever entertained for his recovery.

Colonel Lester was born in Burke county, Georgia, Dec. 12, 1833. He graduated from Mercer University in 1857 and two years later was admitted to the bar in Savannah and commenced the practice of law.

MANY INQUIRIES MADE
Letters were received and answered Saturday by the secretary of the Home Factory and Industrial Association, making many inquiries about Texas in general and Fort Worth in particular, in addition to inquiries from from merchants and individuals asking about Fort Worth.

The following inquiries about Fort Worth and its business possibilities received attention: A chemical engine company from Ohio, a wholesale wall paper house from New York, a can company from New York, a comb and gin company from North Carolina and a match and machine company from Illinois.

The foregoing are all new inquiries and go to show how the manufacturers are looking to this state.

The Home Factory and Industrial Association has been in correspondence with a number of other factories and wholesale houses for some time and will be able to give out some good news for this city in a few days.

HYPNOTISM CURES
NEW YORK, June 16.—Harry Mukja, the 16-year-old son of a silk weaver, was today reported to have been cured of virtual blindness by means of hypnotism. The cure was effected, the boy says, by a hypnotist after he had been vainly treated by several doctors in the city.

The doctors just put me to sleep, said the boy, "and when I woke up he told me to go home, that I was able to see all right again. It was so. I could see as well as before I got the trouble in my eyes."

POLICE BAFLED BY GIRL'S DEATH
Was in Attitude of Prayer Beside Dentist Chair

Special to The Telegram.
CHICAGO, Ill., June 16.—Miss Grace Stone, 25 years old, of No. 902 West Van Buren street, was found dead under mysterious circumstances today in the offices of Dr. Joseph J. Sherrill, 213 South Dearborn street. The position of the body was found and convinced the police that the girl had died while in an attitude of prayer, kneeling on the floor and resting her head on a chair. Her hands were clasped as if in supplication. She is believed to have committed suicide, but the dentist was taken into custody pending an inquest.

Died During Night
Added mystery was thrown over the case by the fact that the girl died some time during the night, but that the coroner was not notified until the afternoon. No report was made to the police by the dentist. Miss Stone, who was a proofreader in a downtown office, is said by Sherrill to have turned on the gas and ended her life. He left her in his office early today. They were together last night.

Sherrill is married, but his offices with Dr. McDonald.

ROBBERY FRUSTRATED
Negro Planned to Dynamite Paymaster and Secure Booty

Special to The Telegram.
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 16.—Plans for a daring robbery were frustrated last night. It is believed, by the arrest of Charlie Jackson, a negro, formerly in the employ of Thrasher & Co., at the tunnel now being built under Lookout Mountain.

Jackson's plan, according to the story of John Foster, was to secure several sticks of dynamite and bury them in the roadway near the camp, and as H. P. Darnell, the bookkeeper and paymaster for the contractor, returned from the city with the pay roll today, to explode the dynamite by means of an electric battery and make off with the money.

Was Offered $200
Jackson offered him, says John Foster, $200 of the money to assist him by furnishing the dynamite, but Foster refused. Thursday night the magazine was broken into and several sticks were taken. Friday evening Foster became frightened and, going to one of the bosses of the camp, told him of the alleged plot which, had it been carried out, would have netted fully $5,000, as today was the monthly pay day.

CLEAN-UP ORDER WORRIES PACKERS
Special to The Telegram.
CHICAGO, Ill., June 16.—A new investigation of the stock yards, it was learned today, has been begun by the Chicago Medical Society and the Chicago Commercial Association. The authority, which is secret, is being conducted along strictly scientific lines and some of the best-known physicians in Chicago are among the investigators.

W. A. Evans, the famous pathologist, and Dr. H. Horsog are prominent in the inquiry. Among those who have agreed to take part is Dr. A. T. Peters, head of the experiment station of the University of Nebraska.

The official notice served by Chief Sanitary Inspector Perry L. Hedrick on Nelson Morris & Co., "clean up," and giving the firm three days to do it, was a bombshell in the stock yards.

All Will Be Notified
All the other beef trust firms will receive similar notices within a week, it is expected. Here are Mr. Hedrick's demands:

"Rats and vermin must be excluded from the meats by floors and walls of concrete construction."

"Special receptacles must be maintained to receive all meat which falls upon the floor."

"All pieces of meat which fall upon the floor must be discarded and must not be used for food products."

"Leaf lard must not be laid upon the floor."

"Cuspidors containing a disinfecting solution must be placed upon all floors and no employe must be permitted to expectorate upon the floor."

"All employes who handle food products must be cleanly in their personal habits and attire and must wash their hands before beginning work."

"All sanitary toilet rooms must be removed and approved toilet rooms and washing facilities for all employes must be provided with clean towels and soap."

Mr. Hedrick's examination of the Armour plant was completed yesterday and it was rumored today at the city hall that the Armour report would be the next major public.

SENSATION PROMISED
Report Ohio Governor May Take Stand to Testify

Special to The Telegram.
CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 16.—Strangers said to be legal representatives of the Wisconsin legislature, have been making inquiries regarding the condition of Governor Patterson's health. As far as can be learned they are not made their identity extensively known.

The governor is president of the Union Central Life Insurance company and it is supposed his presence may have been desired before the committee at Milwaukee which has been investigating the affairs of the company. This story is not given credence because the Wisconsin company has completed its examination of the governor's company. Dr. Glover, the committee's expert actuary, stated several days ago Governor Patterson would not be disturbed, as other officers of the company had appeared and answered all questions presented to them and had given the committee all information desired.

The new uniforms for the proposed company of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, are promised for about July 2, that promises is realized the new members, perchance, and entered into the rank and in any event can appear in uniform.

No, Maude, dear, we shouldn't advise you to wear garden hose to a lawn party.

NEW YORK LIFE TIPS BEVERIDGE
Indiana Man Receives $5,000 Gift From Company

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, June 16.—It was learned today that the New York Life Insurance company made a payment of $5,000 for "law expenses" to Albert J. Beveridge in 1905. The United States senator from Indiana who has taken such a conspicuous part in the fight to remedy the evils of the packing house industry, was the recipient of the big fee. It is known that the Indiana senator is acquainted with George W. Perkins, former vice president of the New York Life, and the partner of J. P. Morgan. Recently Senator Beveridge paid a visit to the office of Morgan and company and had a conference with Mr. Perkins. Whether it related to insurance matters could not be learned.

Senator Gets $5,000
The year (1896) that the New York Life made the payment of $5,000 to Senator Beveridge was the same year that he was elected to the United States senate by the legislature of Indiana. Senator Beveridge took his seat the following year.

Recently Senator Beveridge was asked to join a committee formed to protect the interests of the New York Life policy holders. The senator declined, saying that he had the utmost confidence in the present management of the New York Life.

Perkins Must Go
It developed today that the trustees of the New York Life are waiting for Mr. Perkins to give the word before formally accepting his resignation as trustee of the company. The resignation has been before them since last winter, ever since Mr. Perkins resigned as vice president and chairman of the finance committee. There has always been some kind of a string attached to his resignation as trustee. The plans were made for its formal acceptance last week but at the final moment they were upset and the resignation was allowed to go over.

Novel Editorial Written on Political Situation

Special to The Telegram.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—Tomorrow the Post will print this forecast of 1908, given by a local practitioner in the occult science: "The democratic national convention will be held in Denver. There will be very little opposition to the nomination of Mr. Bryan. An overwhelming majority of the delegates will be instructed to vote for him. The utmost good feeling will prevail and the convention will adjourn upon a united party."

Sees Bryan Win
"The republican national convention will meet in Philadelphia. I see great strife there. Many candidates are striving for the nomination and bitter feeling is apparent. On the third ballot, Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated by Secretary Taft, whose forces will go over to him. Vice President Fairbanks will receive the next highest number of votes while Secretary Taft, Secretary Root and Secretary Shaw will follow in the order named. "When the votes are all counted I can see that Mr. Bryan won by a great majority, carrying with him a demo-

COREY SCANDAL AFFECTS STOCKS
Public Refuses to Buy Up Steel Shares

Special to The Telegram.
NEW YORK, June 16.—Because William Ellis Corey refuses to resign as president of the United States Steel Corporation, and because the directors refused to ask for his resignation, steel trust stocks are becoming a menace to the situation in Wall street. Although the trust is working at full capacity and earning perhaps more than ever before in its history, its stocks are lifeless. The public won't have them. The remarkable attitude on the part of the public is something which financiers believe would have been impossible before the present campaign of exposing graft began. The idea of demanding that the heads of the great trusts be pure in their private lives is something new in Wall street.

Schwab Driven Out
Charles M. Schwab was driven from the presidency because of reports that he had gambled heavily in Monte Carlo. These reports proved false, but the public never knew that they were false until after the storm of denunciation had caused Schwab's retirement. He was a tireless worker for the steel industry several months ago, but it died down. Now that his wife has been her suitor for a divorce the storm is rising again.

Heaping coals of fire on a man's head must be equivalent to giving him a good roast.

WALTER WELLMAN PLANS AN EXPEDITION TO ROOF OF WORLD IN A DRIGIBLE BALLOON; TO MAKE FIRST START FROM SPITZBERGEN

PARIS, June 16.—Walter Wellman, the American chief of the expedition planning to journey to the north pole by dirigible airship, is in Paris. Wellman announces that the ice steamer Fridtjof, which the Zeigler expedition used, has been engaged. All the paraphernalia was collected at Tromsø, Norway, and June 5 the Fridtjof conveyed to Spitzbergen, which will be Wellman's headquarters and from where the airship will start. The expedition has announced a two-year campaign to the pole. If upon being carefully tested the dirigible is found to be in fit condition for the voyage, an effort to reach the pole will be made this year; if not, the flight over the Arctic ocean will be deferred to next year, as Wellman says decidedly that he will not start until all his equipment is in the best possible order, whether it be this year or next.

WALTER WELLMAN AND HIS DRIGIBLE BALLOON.

Wireless telegraphy will be a feature of this hunt for the pole. A station has been established at Hammerfest, Norway, a second at Spitzbergen and another will be on the airship. If the pole is found, Wellman will send the news by wireless.

To your correspondent Wellman said: "When we start we hope that the greater part of the voyage and back may be made by airship. The period of the whole trip by airship is assumed at ten days, or 240 hours, and, I believe, the dirigible can be kept in the air as long as twenty, possibly twenty-five, days.

"But supposing some accident should happen to the aerial craft, we have not got all our eggs in one basket. With such a contingency the crew of five will resolve themselves into a sleighing party, and equipped with motor towing machines of the lightest and strongest kind and provisions for seventy-five days, we hope to be able to complete our task.

"The polar airship," continued Wellman, "which M. Godard and his staff of experts in Paris have in hand, will be by far the largest ever built. Its great size enables it to lift not only the balloon, but the car of steel, the three motors, comprising a total of eighty horsepower, two propellers, a steel boat, motor sledges, instruments, tools, repair outfit, grubbing sleds and 5,500 pounds of gasoline for the motors.

"The total length of the airship is 164 feet, the lifting power 16,000 pounds, the weight, steel car, motors and machinery, crew, instruments and other apparatus complete, 16,000 pounds. The engine room and cabin for the crew are inclosed. The steel boat is carried suspended below the car and serves as a working deck."

ONCE ENEMIES, NOW FRIENDS

Aldrich and President Have Friendly Interview

FOUGHT RATE BILL

Senate Leader Contested President's Railroad Propositions Tooth and Nail

Special to The Telegram.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—An event of no inconsiderable contemporaneous interest was the visit to the White House the other day of Senator Aldrich, accompanied by Senator Crane of Massachusetts. They had a long and pleasant chat with the President, but then they left the executive office, and refused to discuss any phase of their interview. That it was entirely pleasant, however, there can be no doubt. Not so much importance can be attached to the visit, though, as there could have been had it been known, as seems generally to be believed, that for several months President Roosevelt and Senator Aldrich had not met and conferred pleasantly.

No Ill Will

It is well known to the intimate friends of both that they have met frequently during this session of congress at the residence of mutual friends, and in the little informal gatherings they have followed these meetings they have discussed in a spirit of frankness and good feeling the proceedings of congress on the rate bill and other matters of legislation in which the President was especially interested. By this means they have been enabled to understand each other, and as a result there has been no ill will or misunderstanding as to what treatment the senate would accord the railroad rate bill.

Aldrich Against Rate Bill

Mr. Aldrich frankly and openly opposed President Roosevelt's railroad policy from its inception, and he never attempted to mislead the President as to what his (Mr. Aldrich's) attitude or policy would be. The Rhode Islander has always told the President that the

Philippine Bill Dead

Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Crane informed the President that after a careful canvass of the situation they had become convinced that it would be useless to attempt to revive the Philippine tariff bill; also, that the easiest way out of the Santo Domingo muddle would be to let that question rest in its present form until the senate meets again next December. As to statehood, it is demonstrated to his satisfaction, it is said, that the most practicable scheme in the present temper of the senate is to put single statehood for Oklahoma and Indian Territory as a rider on the sundry civil bill, and thus completely drop further consideration of the Hamilton-Beveridge bill, which, as amended by the senate, is out of all semblance to its original shape, and which is now deadlocked in conference.

Adjournment Sent

They also assured the President that with the program thus mapped out they could bring about the adjournment of congress not later than June 18, and probably a day or two earlier. With this understanding Messrs. Aldrich and Crane left the White House, and when they returned to the senate they quietly communicated to their republican colleagues the result of their amicable conference with Mr. Roosevelt. Everybody seemed genuinely rejoiced by their report, as the fear had been haunting some republican senators that President Roosevelt might even yet make trouble over the rate bill by either permitting that measure to become a law without his signature after it has finally been licked into shape by the conference committee, which has the affirmative approval of his signature, he would encourage the impression to be spread abroad in the land that he did not regard it as a very effective piece of legislation. However, all such apprehensions have now been dissipated, and the President will defend his party from all assaults that may be made on the rate bill by democratic candidates and other carping critics in the congressional campaign that already is opening in various parts of the country.

THERE ARE FEW

people who know how to take care of themselves—the majority do not. The liver is a most important organ in the body. Herbine will keep it in condition. V. C. Simpkins, Alba, Texas, writes: "I have used Herbine for Chills and Fever and find it the best medicine I ever used. I would not be without it. It is as good for children as it is for grown-up people, and I recommend it. It is fine for La Grippe." Sold by Covey & Martin.

NEW MARYLAND SENATOR IS 83

Weight of Years Sits Lightly
on Vigorous Shoulders

Special to The Telegram.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 16.—Nearly 83, practicing law over sixty years, a servant of the people of Maryland nearly sixty years, William Pinkney Whyte has been sworn in to serve out the unexpired term of Senator Arthur Pue Gorman.

Familiarly he is called by thousands "Governor." He is an ex-governor. Incidentally he is several other "ex.s." Here is his record:
1846-48—Member of legislature.
1853-57—Comptroller.
1868-71—United States senator.
1874-77—Governor.
1878-81—United States senator.
1881-83—Mayor of Baltimore.
1887-91—Attorney general.
1900-03—City solicitor.
1906-08—United States senator.

Once he was elected to congress, in 1857, but the house refused to seat him on account of a supposed claim for a pension. When named as mayor of Baltimore the nomination and election were unanimous, both parties uniting behind him; the only Marylander to whom this honor has ever been conferred. This will be his third term in the senate.

A quarter of a century has come and gone since William Pinkney Whyte sat in the senate. More than ten years before that he was the colleague of Wade, Sumner, Conkling, Edmunds and Thurman.

Vigorous, hearty and unimpaired of work, he still practices law. He carries an ancient green felt bag that the barristers of the old school used, and hates a typewriter. He prepares his own briefs with ancient quill-shaped pens.

He has defended sixty-eight murderers in his time and not one was hanged. His age doesn't annoy him at all. One of his lifelong friends is former democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Henry G. Davis. Last winter Davis visited Whyte about some law matters. Whyte's office is up a flight of steep marble stairs. Davis sprang up these steps as though he was 40. Not to be outdone when Davis was leaving, having forgotten a package of papers, Whyte rushed up the steps into the office and down again to Davis' carriage without so much as losing breath. Door bells aren't to his liking, and there is a big knocker of the old type on his residence and office entrance. And they are for use, not show. Occasionally he works until late at night. He never seems to tire. When leaving the office of city solicitor three years ago he remarked: "Well, I think I'll try to start in making a living now." But he said nothing of the two and twenty servants he employs.

A lover of horsemanship, he took a long driving trip two years ago in the Blue Ridge mountains, and handled a pair of spirited horses for thirteen long days. And how he enjoyed it! His home life is typical of the man. He loves to read, never smokes or drinks, and likes cold tea. He has three sons by his first wife, who died in 1880. He remarried twelve years later.

FETE CLOSES SCHOOL

St. Mary's Year Ended With Brilliant Event

NOTRE DAME, Ind., June 16.—Hundreds of people coming from nearly every state in the union congregated here Wednesday to witness St. Mary's elaborate festival and commencement exercises. St. Mary's has fifteen young ladies who have completed their work in the English course and five who have done the work necessary to get a degree in music.

The great outdoor event of the day was the fete at St. Mary's college, in which the crowning of the queen of May took place. Miss Ethel Eberhart, of the graduating class, was the recipient of this honor. Two hundred girls of the college and academic departments, dressed in white and pink, marched upon the spacious college lawn in step with an inspiring air of the hand. These were followed by the girl graduates in graduation gowns, who preceded the graceful May queen.

A dozen little flower girls followed in the train of the honored one and this scolding brought forth claims for the throne, a magnificent embankment of amplex and plumes over which was a bower or canopy decorated beautifully in sympathy with surroundings. Miss Margaret Ryan of Wausau, Wis., president of the class of '07, placed a crown of laurels and pink roses upon the queen's brow.

CANDIDATES SPEAK

Large Crowd Leaves for White Settlement

The county candidates met the voters at White Settlement Saturday night and presented their claims for office to them. White Settlement is one of the larger voting precincts and this vote will be a material factor in deciding some of the contests. The candidates know this and there was a general political exodus from Fort Worth Saturday afternoon. It is quite a distance to White Settlement and in order to be on time the candidates had to start early. They went singly, in pairs and in sets of four—some horseback, some in squeeze tight buggies and others in double seated rigs. The crowd was so large that after the start from the court house was made and the prairie was reached the scene was similar to that presented by people going to a country fair. The speaking was scheduled to begin at 8:30 o'clock and as it required at least three and one half hours to finish up the last speakers couldn't make the ride back home much before 2:30 a. m.

C. A. Waterman to Remove from Dallas to Colorado

Special to The Telegram.
DALLAS, Texas, June 16.—C. A. Waterman today resigned as president of the International Travelers' Association because of the fact that he has to leave Dallas and locate in Pueblo, Col. as commercial agent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company. H. A. Benton was promoted from vice president to the vacant presidency and T. L. Monagan elected vice president.

At Fort Worth Rink

Messrs. Eber and the Fort Worth skating rink, Bunn of Dallas and Teague of the Lake Erie rink will contest for the skating championship of Texas next Friday night, June 22, at the Fort Worth skating rink.

Bunn is a favorite of the Dallas enthusiasts and Teague and Ball are the favored ones here. Considerable enthusiasm is being manifested in the race. Spoony couples should remember that although love is blind the neighbors aren't.

ICEMEN CELEBRATE

Bibulous Buoyancy Brings Battle—Police Suppress Hostilities

Driving near a railroad station Saturday their friendship in the bubbling with life. The weather was warm and business was thriving. Moreover it was payday and good hard cash jingled in their pockets.

The two ice men grew convivial as do capitalists when the lamb in Wall street are easily shorn. They celebrated afternoon, two ice men were bling bowl and flowing foam. They became as brothers, although of no nearer relationship than the distant connection sustained through Father Adam.

The two ice men, when the sun had well begun the trip from the meridian toward the Western horizon, were exuberantly joyful, but the reaction came and, with it a complete revulsion of feeling and this finally resulted in actual hostilities, while the two big stout mules attached to the ice wagon wandered nonchantly down between the railroad tracks, until observed by a sober citizen, who notified the police. The result was that the two tipplers were suspended from appearance in public and confined in a room with barred windows.

Others also ran.

Thirty-six Girls From One Store to Be June Brides

Special to The Telegram.
PITTSBURG, June 16.—Thirty-six young ladies, according to reports in Allegheny tonight, severed their connection with a department store where they had been employed as clerks to join the ranks of blushing June brides. The timekeeper of the store when interviewed said she had received a number of resignations—not thirty-six, however, but intimated that young ladies about to depart upon the matrimonial sea occasionally do not disclose the fact, in many instances leaving what wages they had coming to them. She stated that it would be Monday before the exact number would be known.

In beauty town there dwelt a lass,
Her face was fair to see;
The secret of her beauty lay,
In Rocky Mountain Tea.

TANGIER, June 10.—Mohammed Mesfesi, the arch murderer of Marakesch, has been walled up alive. Mesfesi, who murdered no less than thirty-six women, was a cobbler and public letter writer. Associated with him in his crimes was an old woman, aged 75 years, named Annah. Many women disappeared and in the last days of April the parents of a young woman who had disappeared traced her to the cobbler's shop. Annah was put to torture and confessed. She told that the girls who came to dictate letters were treated to drugged wine and then beheaded. Twenty decapitated bodies were found in a deep pit under the shop and sixteen more in the garden.

Murder Confesses

Annah died under the torture and Mesfesi confessed. By an ancient Moorish custom here, he was condemned to be crucified. His crucifixion was set for May 2, but this form of punishment was given up because of the foreign clamor and it was announced that he would be beheaded. Mesfesi was kept in the Marakesch jail until outside attention was dulled and then on May 15 his torture began. Daily he was led into the market place and whipped with thorny switches. The cobbler was stripped to the waist and two assistants held the victim's arms outstretched the city executioner laid on the spiked rods.

Ten Strokes Daily

Ten strokes were given each day and each stroke drew blood. The number of strokes kept down because Mesfesi was an old man and the people had no idea of letting him die too easily. After each flogging the cobbler's back was toughened and anointed with vinegar and oil so that he might be fit for the next day's ordeal. So the daily whipping went on and when it was seen that despite all care Mesfesi was falling into exhaustion it was decided to carry out the supreme sentence. This was that he be walled up alive in the public market place. The day of execution was set for Monday, June 11, that being the market day. The news of the execution had been spread and the market place was thronged with thousands of Moroccans.

Walled Up Alive

Just outside the jail where Mesfesi was confined stands the chief bazaar. It has very thick walls and in one of these, facing the market place, two masons dug a hole six feet high, two feet square. Mesfesi was very thin and these dimensions gave the doomed man quite a free space and some little air, for just as his fellow townsmen would not let him die by too much flogging, so they did not want to smother him too quickly. About three feet up two staples with chains were fixed in the back of the wall. The purpose of these was to keep the victim erect so that he might not huddle down out of sight of the crowd.

Screamed When Chained

Mesfesi was thrust into the recess in the thick wall and screaming, he was chained up. There he was left for a while, for there was plenty of time. The masons stood aside and the crowd struggled and fought to get in the rank, scoffing in derision at the screaming old man and pelting him with the frightful filth and offal of the market place. Then the masons came forward and very deliberately laid on the first courses of the masonry. The stones and mortar rose to Mesfesi's head and then the chief jailer came forward and gave him bread and water. The masons again stood aside and again the crowd jeered and belabored the victim.

Buried Stone by Stone

So it went on, course, by course, stone by stone, water and bread until Mesfesi's screaming head was seen. The last stones were thrust in place and Mesfesi's living tomb completed.

The throng pressed forward and kept near to hear the muffled screams for mercy that came out of the wall.

Night came, braiser was lighted, coffee was made and still Mesfesi screamed and the crowds yelled.

Died in Agony

Tuesday, June 12, came in and the market place was as crowded as ever and Mesfesi was still screaming for mercy. So it went on all day and all night. When Wednesday broke those close up to the wall reported that the dead-alive was only moaning. Finally the moaning stopped and the crowd cursed Mesfesi for dying so soon and the delayed business of the market was resumed. So had Mohammed Mesfesi suffered for his crime.

Mutilated Victims

The first news of the terrible offenses of the cobbler came in a special cable to the Hearst newspapers April 23. It was reported that Mohammed Mesfesi was to be crucified May 2 for an extraordinary series of murders. Twenty-six corpses of women had been found under the cobbler's shop and ten in his garden. All were mutilated with dagger wounds. It was proved that they had been murdered for money—most of it in trifling sums.

Crucifixion the Punishment

The Koran provides crucifixion for terrible crimes and though the form of punishment has not been used for a generation it was decided that the cobbler's crimes deserved that classical punishment. The next news came in a cable of May 2, saying that the execution by crucifixion would not take place. The rest of the story and its tragic end is told in the present dispatch.

THE PUBLIC EYE

Galveston's Growth

If Mr. Jefferson thought it worth the trip across the Atlantic to see how the cotton business has changed since he came to the harbor, the storm of 1900, the great hurricane—a cataclysm destroying in round numbers over $20,000,000 worth of property with a loss of life amounting to no less than seven thousand human souls.

Today, Phoenix like, except not from fire, but from water, Galveston has arisen to be in export (1905) second in the United States and fourteenth in imports, the latter having increased 60 per cent.

The city is the greatest cotton exporting point in the world, is first in the amount of cotton seed products and the first in wheat. In value the leading exports for 1905 were: Cotton $123,710,078; oil cake and meal $5,935,288; cotton seed oil $12,133.

These are mentioned because they are cotton and products of cotton.

Galveston ranks first in the exportation of cattle hogs and live stock to the amount of 102,336 as shipped that year. Other articles are too numerous to mention. Lumber, for example, amounted to $2,136,617.

Galveston today is a city of wharves, elevators, railroad terminals and steam ships. There are nine railroads connecting directly into the city and across the bay whose terminals are the city. There are fifty-nine steam ship lines, only two of which may be considered coast lines, the others all cross the ocean.

With these results—these connections of steam and steel—of rail and water lines, it is not surprising to see how Galveston has come to the front, both as to exports and imports.

From very accurate observations and reliable figures, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce state officially that these facilities have reduced the freight rate on the shipping through Galveston—shipping through Galveston—Galveston—in the last ten years have received the benefit of $36,594,063.39.

All this may be set down as the result of the pluck of the enterprising and the people fully illustrated and confirmed by the poet.

"There is no chance, no destiny, no fate,"

That can circumvent, or hinder or control

The firm resolve of a determined

Gifts count for nothing; will alone is great.

All things give way before it soon or late;

What obstacles can stay the mighty force

Of the sea seeking rived in its

Or cause the ascending orb of day to wait?

Each well born soul must win what it deserves.

Let the fool prate of luck. The fortunate

Is he whose earnest purpose never swerves.

Whose slightest action or inaction serves

The one great aim, why even Death

And waits an hour sometimes for such a will."

Of course the deep water and later the wall and the elevation of the grade—the filling in process—the raising of the island—have all helped to inspire the good people of the Island City to accomplish these results.

The people themselves say their new form of government has had a great deal to do with bringing about their present prosperity.

The government, under a special charter granted by the legislature in 1901 (but since amended) is composed of a board of city commissioners consisting of four members and a mayor-president.

The mayor-president and each of the commissioners are elected biennially at large—each member of the board is vested with equal power and each commissioner is responsible for some one department of the city government. All four officers of the city government are appointed by the board and are responsible thereto.

The waterworks, sewer and electric light plants are owned by the municipal body, and operated economically and annually produce a handsome profit.

Such is the verdict of the people with the writer there to see. The results are the best evidence of this form of city government.

ALEXANDER HOGG.

(Note.—The writer has just returned from a visit to Galveston.)

Trusts and Trust Management

In his speech in advocacy of his election to the office of chief executive of the state of Texas, Col. Quinn uses the following language: "I have said that the railway trust is the greatest of all trusts and it is."

Some of the people of Texas have known this for some time, and others are rapidly arriving at a knowledge of

Your Thirty Feet of Bowels

is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel-Muscles.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weakens these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg Muscles. Castor Oil, or Glycerine, will grease the passages for one load of Food at a time, but these lubricants can't help the Cause of Delay.

"Physic" like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Soda, Mineral Waters, simply flush-out the Bowels for the one occasion only.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

Moreover, they waste so much of the precious Digestive Fluids, in the flushing process, that it takes a bigger dose every succeeding time to move the Bowel load. But it is different with Cascarets.

Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man.

They act like exercise.

A Cascaret produces the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce.

vestige of competition among the rail-

There are cities in Texas that have contributed hundreds of thousands of competition has been established by

A PAGE FOR THE BOYS & GIRLS

The three little Macys at the Zoo

BY HELENA DAVIS.

Mr. and Mrs. Macy took their three little ones, Mabel, Artie and Leonie, to visit the zoo one beautiful, bright winter day. It was more pleasant to study the animals at this season of the year they thought than when the weather was hot and the poor beasts so uncomfortable in their small dens.

For two hours the children kept close to their parents as they wandered about the big grounds looking into the cages with deep interest and paying close attention to their papa's little explanatory talks about the animals, birds and reptiles. There were the old lion and the fierce lioness that walked cautiously to and fro before the iron bars which held them such unhappy prisoners. There was the royal Bengal tiger so magnificently striped, and the graceful leopard, whose silken coat was so artistically "polka-dotted," as little Leonie declared. And most interesting of all—because so amusing—were the monkeys; those fellows who resembled for all the world the comic pictures of humorous Irishmen.

Then came luncheon at the zoo restaurant, where papa said the money he paid for refreshments outweighed the food they got. But it was a gala day, and he only laughed over the unfair exchange, saying one was never too old to learn the trickery of his fellows.

Then they set out again to continue their sightseeing, heading direct for the bearhouse. On their way they passed the camel lot, and Artie, who was making a study of Africa in school this term,

"Now come off, sis," said the boy, angrily.

stopped to get some sketches of the Sahara Desert. "Say, papa," he cried, "you and mamma and the girls go on to the bearhouse and I'll follow in a few minutes. See that great old camel over there? I want to get a good look at him. Just notice those immense horns on his knees."

"He'd better pay a visit to the chiropodist," smiled Mabel, lifting her eyebrows. "No use, in these days, of people or beasts suffering from corns."

"Oh, sis, please don't inflict us with any more of your witticisms today," begged Artie, frowning a pain in his brow by placing his hand over it and looking distressed. Papa and mamma both laughed at the action grew animated. Leonie became impatient for she saw the boy with the coveted popcorn turning away from the prairie dog house. In another minute he would be gone, and she might hunt in vain for the place where he had bought the dainty confection. "Sister," she said, shaking Mabel's arm, "I'll go and ask the boy where he got the goods. You stay here and wait for me. I won't be a minute."

Mabel, glad to be so easily rid of the task, gave her consent and told Leonie to come to the aviary, just round the bend in the path, where she would be with Annie and Stella.

Little Leonie, clutching tightly her education was not easily obtainable in the south, and her father, Thomas Lincoln, could neither write nor read. But we are told his mother "could read and spell tolerably," and that she taught her ignorant son to "spell his way through the Bible."

When Abraham was seven years old his father packed the family and household goods and moved to a clearing on Pigeon Creek, where, in a clearing on Pigeon Creek, they took up their abode in what was known as a "half-faced camp," being a rude log structure of three sides, one side being left open as a means of entrance, light and air, for Thomas Lincoln loved not to work and the building of doors and windows was doubtless thought too serious an undertaking for a carpenter of his ability. But the hardships endured in such a hovel, thus open to wind and storm, seems to have had some effect on him, and after a year spent in the miserable "half-faced camp" he built a more habitable cabin of logs, into which the family moved, a house about 15 feet square and having a doorway, without a shutter, and a good fireplace. And in this cabin a year later came the first of his mother's life, the loss of the great grief into Little Abe's life, the loss of his mother. The description of this sorrowful event is quoted from Lincoln's admiring and conscientious biographer, William Herndon:

"Meanwhile Abe's mother had fallen a victim to the insidious disease. Her sufferings, however, were destined to be of brief duration. Within a few days she rested from her labors. She struggled on day by day, says one of the household, 'a good Christian woman, and died on the seventh day after she was taken sick. And his sister Sarah waited on their mother and did the little jobs and errands required of them. There was no physician nearer than 25 miles. The mother knew she was going to die, and called her two little children to her bedside. She was very weak, and the children leaned over while she gave her last message. Placing her hand on little Abe's head she told him to be kind and good to his father and sister. Then she bade them to be good to one another, expressing a hope that they might live, as they had been taught by her, to love

A Saint Valentine's Party.

If several girls that move in the same social set desire to give a St. Valentine's party at a small outlay to each it is a good plan to join their forces and funds together and give the entertainment at the home of one of the girls. The home affording the largest drawing-room and dining-room should be chosen as the place of merriment, for young folks delight in plenty of room to move about in. Let the young hostesses get together and arrange their plans fully, counting the cost of everything before definite arrangements are made. Then no cause for dispute or misunderstanding can later arise.

The luncheon might be left to the management of one girl, the invitations and decorations to another and the program to a third. In this way much can be done quickly and thoroughly without the mud-die that so often comes of "too many fingers in one pie and none to mix the porridge."

In the drawing-room where the party is to be given the door should be closed as for dancing. Cover the lamp or glass globes with shades made from comic valentines. Comic masks hung about the walls and Chinese lanterns from the ceilings add to the uniqueness of decoration.

When the guests enter the parlor the girls may be presented with small ribbons adorned with bows and the boys with arrows to match. Each arrow pleases a small card which bears the name of the girl who is to be the partner for the evening. This manner of pairing off the couples affords much amusement and surprise, all accepting their "fate" gracefully.

In one corner of the room a postoffice has been arranged by means of a tall three-panel screen, a window having been made in the center of the screen through which to pass valentines to the guests.

After the couples have joined and placed themselves in line (being instructed to do so by one of the hostesses), a hidden bell rings in a corner, the postoffice window springs open and old Saint Valentine is seen doing duty as postmaster. He hands out dainty envelopes to the couples as they pass, large ones to the boys and small ones to the girls. When all have been given their mail the postoffice window closes and the jolly old saint comes forth to join in the frolic of the evening. He proves to be one of the guests whose identity is hidden by the appropriate costume of Saint Valentine.

Then comes the fun of opening the envelopes. In those drawn by the girls the most dainty little hand-painted valentines are inclosed, and in those drawn by the boys are found the most comical and absurd valentines, bearing humorous verses and meaningful prophecies. These little souvenirs are to be kept by the recipients as mementoes of the gay evening spent with old St. Valentine.

Now follows the program of the evening, which may consist of games before supper and dancing afterward. In the parlor the pastor is placed a bulletin board, which is painted in bright circles. (An illustration accompanies.) This heart serves as a target for the boys and girls who may test their skill with the bows and arrows with which they are supplied.

After the repeat St. Valentine holds up high the loving cup as all rise to drink to the health of the evening. He has so graciously given them "Is right good cheer."

ers of the bureau were full of flowers for table, beds and bodies. She taught Sarah and the little Abe to wash and comb before each meal and to observe care in regard to their homepun clothes. The necessary things that the children's poor, patient, enduring mother and not dared even to wish for their stepmother did not hesitate to make demands for; and she got what she demanded. Thomas Lincoln had needed just such a practical, determined and energetic woman to bring out what little good he possessed. His second wife dictated the work to be done on the farm and he bravely followed her orders, after a fashion. Of the rude, bare, unkept but this new woman made a comfortable and cherry cabin wholesome with good cheer.

Of the little Abe the stepmother grew very fond, and in no respect did she show favors to her own children over the half-orphan who claimed a share of her love and her sweet motherly influence.

Of Abraham Lincoln's first school days the following is quoted from "Herndon's Lincoln":

"Hazel Dorey was Abe's first teacher in Indiana. He had forth a mile and a half from the Lincoln farm. The schoolhouse was built of round logs, and was just high enough for a man to stand under the roof. The door was of split logs, or what were called punchons. The chimney was made of poles and clay and the windows were made by cutting out parts of two logs, placing pieces of split board a proper distance apart and over the aperture taut formed pasting pieces of greased paper."—admit the light. At school Abe exhibited ability enough to gain him a prominent place in the respect of the teacher and the affections of his fellow-scholars."

How to Tell a Person's Age and Month of Birth.

Sometimes it is a standing joke that certain girls will not tell their ages. If you would discover their little secret apply the following formula, allowing the girl whose age you wish to discover to do the figuring. Tell her that you do not wish to look upon the paper, and that after she has done as you request her

The colored bands about the heart are green, blue and yellow, the center being left white. A small "heart card," bearing verses which give the significance of these colors, hangs at the side of the heart, but none are permitted to read these till after the shooting contest is over. During the sport one of the young hostesses keeps a tally-card which shows the marksmen's shot. This, with the prophetic "heart card," is read after the shooting is over and affords much laughter, for nearly all will have tried to hit the white center of the heart—the "bull's eye"—as it were.

The verses on the "heart card" are:

"Love and riches wait, I ween, Him or her who shoots the green."
"Arrow hits the yellow high, You'll be married ere you die."
"Should your arrow break the blue,
To your love you'll ever be true."
"But do you pass the colors by,
Love will bring you many a sigh."
In the dining-room the decorations should correspond with those in the parlor and hall. Over the banquet-board hangs a large heart made of red roses. The roses may be of paper, inexpensive, but very artistic. Directly beneath this rose heart the great white cake, also in the form of a heart and placed with a gilt arrow, should hold the place of honor. The cutting of this cake is awaited with great anticipation, for each guest in turn must cut for himself or herself a slice, and each will do so with the hope of securing one of the two hidden treasures that are concealed within it. These treasures are a small gold ring, emblem of true love and happy marriage, and a silver dish, emblem of great riches. So good luck to the two guests who so cut the cake as to secure these much-coveted articles.

she may destroy the figures without your looking upon them; but that you will wager to tell her age, also the month in which she was born.

Tell her to put down in figures the number of the month in which she was born; multiply it by 3, then add 5 and multiply the amount by 50; then add 5; then ask her to please give you the amount she has left. This she will unwittingly do, and you will tell her that the last two figures to the right represent her age and the others the number of the month in which she was born. For example, if the amount is 719 she is 19 years old and was born in July, the seventh month.

If this formula is carried out according to directions there can be no mistake.

LITTLE BIOGRAPHIES OF BIG MASTERS.

"The short and simple annals of the poor." That's my life, "d that's all you or anyone else can make out of it."

So spoke Abraham Lincoln when a well-known newspaper man asked him for biographical facts to use in his (Lincoln's) presidential campaign, quoting the pathetic and expressive line from Gray's Elegy as descriptive of his own early life.

"The short and simple annals of the poor." How truly indeed does this sentence cover almost all of Abraham Lincoln's worldly existence.

Born in Hardin county, Kentucky, February 12, 1809, of extremely poor parents the child "Abe" had small promise of future greatness. If such promise comes through the possession of educated and conscientious parents whose worthy ambitions for their children's welfare find the means of accomplishment, but the fact is the little Abe began life in the midst of poverty and illiteracy, for at that time their kindred and worship God. Amid the miserable surroundings of a home in the wilderness Nancy Hanks passed across the dark river. Though of lowly birth, the victim of poverty and hard usage, she takes a place in history as the mother of a son who liberated a race of men.

Early little Abe was taught to be a skilled hunter, going with his father and boy companions through the great woods in quest of bear, deer, turkey and other game, which kept the family supplied with wholesome and palatable meat. This, with coarse cornmeal bread, constituted the principal diet of the pioneers.

About a year after Thomas Lincoln's wife died he made a trip to Kentucky, bringing to his rude home a second wife and a mother to his children. It would seem that she was a woman of some property, since she brought "a wagon-load of furniture, bedding and kitchen utensils, among which was a walnut bureau worth about $20," into the cabin, until now, so empty of furnishing. And this new mother—who also brought three little ones of her own, children by a former husband—brought comfort and refining influence into the wilderness home of the Lincoln children. She insisted that her husband make a second wife and a mother to his children. It would seem that she was a woman of some property, since she brought "a wagon-load of furniture, bedding and kitchen

GLENWOOD CHURCH REVIVAL BEGUN

Services to Commence With Singer and Evangelist

As was announced in The Telegram of last Sunday, revival services will begin at the Glenwood Methodist church today with the morning service. The pastor, Rev. C. W. Daniel, has been working for some time in preparation for this period of revival and he hopes to awaken renewed enthusiasm among the membership of the church and add many new names to the church roll. Rev. Charles E. Brown, a retired minister and formerly pastor of the First Methodist church of Cleburne, will conduct the meetings with the assistance of Rev. W. H. Harris, a singing evangelist of some note. The meetings will continue for ten days.

This morning at the Kentucky avenue Baptist church a special service for children will be held in connection with the revivals now in progress there. Evangelist Hallett will address the children. The regular meetings will continue during the week and increased interest is expected. The conversions now number near forty souls.

At the Grace Baptist church, Peach and Hampton streets, the revival services continue to grow in interest and attendance. Rev. J. D. Harlin is preaching at morning and evening services and the attendance is encouraging.

WOODMEN CARING FOR INJURED MAN

Boilermaker Is Brought Here
From La Junta, Colo.

Several days ago a boiler maker, Clarence Mulholland, was crushed about the hips at La Junta, Colo. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and J. A. Todd said Saturday night that learning this, after the injured man was brought here by the Rock Island, that order is giving him special attention until the responsibility for his care can be determined. It was stated that the Rock Island denied responsibility. Dr. Barber says it is not a city case and the Woodmen do not see that they are called upon to do more than they are now doing.

The man is seriously but not fatally injured.

OIL OPERATOR HERE

Claude Witherspoon Likely to Sell Interest in Powell Field

Claude Witherspoon, one of the most extensive oil operators in the Powell field, near Corsicana, is in Fort Worth negotiating a deal with Fort Worth people for an interest in that field. Mr. Witherspoon declined to give to The Telegram reporter names of the persons with whom he is negotiating, not being at liberty to make them public until the deal should be concluded.

"Fort Worth capital to some extent is already interested in the Powell field and more of it will become so," he said. "The average output of the wells in the Powell field is 25 barrels per day, which is a better average than the wells in the original field in the Corsicana field ever had. Drilling operation are increasing and the field is being extended. W. G. Baker, a former Fort Worth man, is operating at Powell and is doing well, having a number of the best producing wells there."

Mr. Witherspoon will be in Fort Worth several days.

ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT PROPOSED

North Ft. Worth Business Men
Talk of Forming Company

SWIFT & CO. CONSULTED
Arrangements for Additional Service
May Be Made With Packing
House if Possible

North Fort Worth and Marine office of The Telegram, 1410 street, W. G. Holland, circulator. Classified advertisements and subscriptions received there.

There is now a movement on foot in North Fort Worth to secure better electric lighting service in the business store rooms and residences. To accomplish this the business men are agitating the formation of a stock company composed of local capital, or inviting a foreign company to locate a plant in their city.

"Anyway, to get better lighting service in our homes," said a prominent property owner Saturday, "I can't read a newspaper in my house after dark on account of the poor lights."

Rochester Haddaway said Saturday evening, "The people in North Fort Worth want good lights in their homes. The business houses have very poor service. I believe that there is a splendid field in our city for a new company and I am sure that such a company would receive a gratifying patronage from the start."

The Rosen Heights Company are furnishing power to the North side and have many customers, but they have several large demands for power."

Swift & Co. interviewed

During the last few days several business men of North Fort Worth have called on Swift & Co. with a view ascertaining the position the officials of that company would assume were a proposed plant from the city to be made them to furnish lighting power from their own plant. It has been stated that this could be easily done as the Swift plant has sufficient power in addition to that necessary for offices and packing buildings, new wires only being necessary. Although no official action has been taken as yet to interest Swift's, it is understood that a conference between the company officials and the officials of the city of North Fort Worth will be held in the near future.

"I don't know what will result from this agitation. Of course there have been several complaints to the present service and a need for better service has been felt by some for quite a time back," said Mayor W. D. Davis late Saturday. "Yes, I do believe there would be a pretty fair field for a new company as there is a good amount of electric power used in North Fort Worth."

There are about 800 business and resident houses who are users of electric light now in North Fort Worth. In addition the several incandescent lamps in use in each building many have electric fans which power alone is worth considerable.

OFFICE BUILDING MOVED

Work of Extending Exchange Avenue to Start Soon

Work of moving the office building of the North Fort Worth Townsite Company was started Saturday. The safe has been moved out and the building is being put in position for the moving of the building the first of next week.

An published in The Telegram a few days ago, to the effect that the city had extended west through to Ellis avenue, and this necessitates the moving of the Townsite Company building to a new site, it is now being surveyed. The opening of this busy street makes another very valuable block for business houses and it is announced as soon as the street is surveyed A. J. Long and Gus O'Keefe will erect substantial business houses.

Delegate Returns Home

B. M. Trazett of North Fort Worth returned last Thursday from Denison, where he had attended the convention of the State Association of Grocers and Butchers. He reports a most pleasant time during the two days of his stay. The use of the long-distance telephones and articles from the cigar and soft drink counters had been arranged for before hand and the delegates were not permitted to spend their money even on street cars. One of the best features of the convention was a banquet tendered the delegates in Woodlawn Park, which is about half way between Denison and Sherman.

North Fort Worth Notes

The art class taught by Miss Margery Winter of North Fort Worth will give an informal reception at the home of Mrs. George L. Dupree next Wednesday afternoon, June 20, from 3 to 6 o'clock. On this occasion the work in china decoration done by Miss Winter's pupils during the last three months will be displayed.

City Marshall O. R. Montgomery of North Fort Worth returned Saturday from Amarillo, where he has attended the convention of the City Marshals and Chiefs of Police Association of Texas. After the business of the convention was finished a party of delegates took a side trip to Roswell, N. M., returning to Amarillo Friday.

Mrs. J. E. Gillam and little daughter, Marie, returned to their home in Denison, Tex., Saturday.

E. B. Hayward, Twentieth and Calhoun streets, North Fort Worth, sold his house and lot about two weeks ago and has just bought a lot from the North Fort Worth Townsite Company.

BUILDING MANY WALKS

Fort Worth Busy Providing Paths for Pedestrians' Feet

"More cement sidewalks are being built in Fort Worth this summer than ever before in the history of the city," said J. R. Puckett to a Telegram reporter Saturday.

"Unless a man makes a tour of the city he can form no idea of how much of this kind of work is being done, and if it continues at the same rate as it is now being carried on, it will be but a short time until Fort Worth will be ahead of any city in Texas in the way of good sidewalks. Today (Saturday) the force of men I have engaged to lay 1,500 square feet of work by noon; and for the day the showing was 2,500 square feet. This

Two events of interest to public rather than exclusively of the past weeked together in some mind at first glance there seems vergence. The lecture dealt largely with the city of Harrisburg, Pa., by the way, that has more of the matter of a place on the least. A most enjoyable musicale was tendered Miss Rose Howard and her pupils by Mrs. Newton H. Lassiter at her home in Penn street Wednesday afternoon from 4:30 until 6 o'clock.

The program was extremely interesting to those who love artistic, careful study, though emanating from infant minds and fingers. The Kindergarten class gave an illustration of the table-work, showing that children 5 years of age and upward could absorb "history of music," learn to build their scales with ease, never losing sight of tone, which is the real excellence we listen for in music. The guests appreciated this feature of tone work demonstrated by the youngest child as well as by those older, who did not venture a harsh unfeeling sound during the afternoon.

ON THE FIELD OF GLORY

A plot portraying a powerful Polish passion, "On the Field of Glory," by Henryk Sienkiewicz, translated from the Polish original by Jeremiah Curtin (Little, Brown & Company, Boston, decorated cloth, $1.50), and the book shows no deduction from the strong direction, forceful style and deft manipulation of love passages by the author.

Such a book is to be expected from the author of "Quo Vadis," and in this the reader will not be disappointed. The vividness of the incidents of the plot are such as to make distinct and lasting impression on the mind, while the general flavor of the pages is of the character which make a book to be one that one will read again.

Heralded far and wide by the press as about to be published, even during the last days of the translation, "On the Field of Glory" fully comes up to the expectations of lovers of good fiction and, as to locality, purpose and life, even surpasses other notable matter that has come from the same prolific pen.

The very first paragraph of the book takes a hold on reader that causes an absorbing interest in what is to follow, this last feeling remaining to the end of the last chapter. Here it is:

"The winter of 1682-3 was a season of such rigor that even very old people could not remember one like it. During the autumn rain fell continually, and in the middle of November the first frost appeared, which confined waters and put a glass bark upon trees of the forest. Icicles fastened on pines and broke many of the branches. In the first days of December the birds, after frequent biting frosts, flew into villages and towns, and even wild beasts came out of dense forests and drew near the houses of the people. About Saint Damascus day the heavens became clouded, and then snow appeared: ten days did it fall without ceasing. It covered the country to a height of two ell; it hid forest roads, it hid fences, and even cottage windows. Men opened pathways with shovels through snowdrifts to go to their granaries and stables; and when the snow stopped at last, a splitting frost came, from which the forest trees gave out sounds that seemed gunshots."

Following this striking paragraph, the reader is at once introduced to a forest scene and an aristocratic old noble, a female relative and a young girl, the ward of the old noble, with their attendants, are brought on the scene in the most natural way possible.

The story glides into itself, it seems and we are aware of the aims and purposes, ambitions and present desires of almost every character from the moment we see them, all on account of the subtle manner in which they are shown. Pan Gideon comes of an old family and he is wealthy and proud. Panna Anulka, the girl, the ward, the heroine, is also from one of the most ancient and highly respected families of the realm. A newly made noble's son rescues the party from wolves by the aid of a party which includes the brothers three, the Bukoyemskis. The young rescuer is Pan Stanislaw.

The rescuing party accompanies the travelers to the house of a noble who was a wealthy Armenian who attained nobility through the war and was sold. He is Pan Serafin, father of Stanislaw. The next day the travelers are accompanied on their way and, at a forest inn, there is encountered another young noble, but of a different family, called Pan Tachevski. This young man has lost his only horse by being compelled to climb a tree to escape the attack of the wolves, and the steed and howl about the tree until daylight.

A horse is provided for the use of the stricken noble and the entire party starts to the abode of Pan Gideon. On the way the brother three, who, in much vodka (whisky) the night before each fell in love with the girl, finally deciding that Stanislaw shall have her, concoct a scheme to pick a quarrel with young Tachevski, who appears to have more than an ordinary interest in the young ward of Pan Gideon, and the next day, Tachevski wounds and disarms the brothers three, also defeating Stanislaw, who is drawn into the quarrel, whereupon Pan Gideon insults the poor young noble and the girl cries, secretly, after the young man has tried to explain to her that he was forced to fight them. He leaves her in anger.

Pan Gideon entertains the visitors who rescued his party from the wolves in the forest and, about this time, it is decided that the army of the king is to go out against the heathen.

Pan Tachevski wants to go to war. He has been trained in the way of battle by an old priest, who is formerly a warrior, and who arranges for the mortgage of the poor young noble's estate, which is really worthless, and the former guardian becomes his friends, all go off to war together.

Pan Gideon decides to marry the girl, so that his property will not revert to his second wife's relatives, the greater portion of his estate having accrued to his name through the last wedding. The girl is persuaded, after she is also falsely persuaded that Tachevski is a traitor and does not love her.

At the betrothal announcement feast, Pan Gideon is stricken about the heart and breathes his last breath, the suppressed joy of his wife's relatives, who saw their loss in the gain of the girl.

That one of the relatives who "looked at Panna Anulka like a goat" later, installed, with his aged father and spinster sisters, in the mansion, the girl also remaining for the reason that she has no other place to lay her head. The Goat wants her to wife. She does not like the Goat and does not hesitate to say so, whereupon, in the final scene, when she "absolutely and unequivocally" refuses him, the Goat, enraged at her "persistent stubbornness," seizes her by the beautiful hair and inflicts corporal punishment on the child, who is something like 19 years of age. She screams and the butler rushes to the rescue. Noble butler-faithful servant-honest man: he it is that bears the broken and weeping maiden to the suspicious apartments to waiting wagon. She is taken to the house of Pan Serafin, father to Stanislaw, who headed the party that rescued her from the fate of being the chief dainty morsel in a dinner for forest wolves. The priest, he who prepared Tachevski for the battlefield, is there. They receive her with open arms and the mother, housekeeper blinds up her bruised head and shoulders. The Bukoyemskis—brothers three—are there. They hear of the outrage and, laying in wait for the Goat, far and feather him, after which the maid is borne away toward where the regiment of Tachevski. After numerous hair-raising adventures a reconciliation between the two factions and they are married in the presence of the king, having two days' of honeymoon, after which the regiment is to proceed to the field of glory described at the end as follows:

"We will crush every enemy.

"For thee, O pure Lady, O Mother Immaculate, We go to defend Christ, Our Lord.

"For thee, O dear country, For you, O white eagles, We will crush every enemy On the Field of Glory."

Major; Volumes XI and XII of "Hakluytus Posthumus; or, Purchas His Pilgrimage," a new edition of "Literary Associations of the English Lakes," by the Rev. H. D. Rawnsley, in two volumes; "Anthology of French Poetry; From the Time of Francois I. to the Beginning of the Present Century," compiled by Frederick Lawton, M. A.; and "An Enquiry into the Evidential Value of Prophecy," being the Hulsean Prize Essay of 1904, by E. A. Digbill.

The fact that Mr. Winston Churchill has been for several years the most popular novelist in the United States lends special interest to an announcement by the Macmillan company of his new novel, "Coniston." Primarily a love story, Mr. Churchill's new book derives part of its interest from politics, but much more from its superb character drawing. Those who have read it pronounce it by far the most vigorous, attractive, and engaging novel that Mr. Churchill has yet written. The volume is freely illustrated from pen drawings by Florence Stovel Shinn.

J. B. Lippincott company are very much gratified at the reception and sales of their "New Gazetteer" in England. The London office reports a steady and increasing demand for the volume, which is pronounced the claim that it meets the needs of every one in search of geographical information.

William Sage, the author of "The District Attorney," a timely novel of political and financial life, published May 24 by Little, Brown & Co., says he is a New Englander and is glad of it as New Englanders should be. Although he now resides in New York city, he spends his summers up among the presidential range of mountains in New Hampshire, his native state, seeking relaxation and inspiration while living the simple life. Sage went eight years in Wall Street, in the office of one of the largest banking firms, and his pen picture of Samuel Haverland, the father of the hero of "The District Attorney," may be said to take of the characteristics of a famous New York banker. Mr. Sage's first novel, "Robert Tournay," a story of the French revolution, was published in 1900. This was followed by "The Claybornes," one of the best of the civil war stories; and "Frenchy, the Story of a Gentleman."

The Macmillan company announce that "Christus Redemptor," the new volume in the United Study of Mission Series was published June 13. This volume consists in an outline study of the missions in the last world by Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery.

Lillian Whiting has left her Boston home for an extended visit to Colorado and Arizona in the preparation of her new book, "The Enchanted Mesas," in which she aims to interpret the wonderful progress and the splendor of scenic grandeur in those regions. Miss Whiting will remain in Arizona for some weeks at the Grand canyon and other interesting points, and she plans to pass the month of August at Glenwood Springs in Colorado—a beautiful resort in the heart of the Rocky mountains. Her new book will be published by Little, Brown & Co. in the fall. In the early autumn, Miss Whiting will sail for Europe, to pass the winter in Rome.

The steady demand for that standard book "Plant Breeding," by Professor L. H. Bailey, has necessitated the making of a new edition. The book has been very much enlarged, especially by the introduction of a new chapter on "Current Plant Breeding." Professor Bailey gives his estimate of the most discussed work of Luther Burbank, presenting a novel view of it, and discusses the plant breeding work of other persons of the experiment stations, and of the United States department of agriculture—all with good illustrations. Forms of field records and specific advice for operators are given in considerable detail, most of which has not heretofore been printed. The Macmillan company are the publishers.

"An Introduction to the English Historians" is to be the title of a new book by Dr. Charles A. Beard, lecturer in history at Columbia university, which is announced for the Macmillan company.

New Broadway

As a magazine of metropolitan interest and therefore one which will have a general appeal, the New Broadway Magazine makes an interesting bid for public attention. Its cover is a three-color drawing of a handsome basket, trap emerging from the Fifth Avenue, and the interior is filled with a long list of subjects which covers the range of metropolitan interests for the month. The opening article is an entitled "Three Million for Charity," which shows very strikingly, by means of photographs and description, just how New York came to the aid of San Francisco in its hour of need. An article with strikingly pleasing photographs, beautifully reproduced, tells of "La Sorella," a new dance in society, and still another called "Transforming the Slums into the Beautiful," showing what is being done to make the metropolis more beautiful.

THE MODERN HERO

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner.

When we read in song or story of the heroes, crowned with glory, Who have fought in famous battles of the past, We are prone to sit down sighing for the heroism dying From the world of men with whom our lot is cast.

And we sorrow for each Nation, cursed with soft degeneration, As it follows down the path the Romans trod. When no mighty purpose thrills it, when but lust for riches fills it, It has lost the great creative spark of God.

'Twas but yesterday one doubted men had courage still, and flouted At unselfishness, "that vague, unmeaning word;" Then there came a sound like thunder, and the doubter saw his blunder; 'Twas the passing of the Engines that we heard!

For they broke upon our quiet with a mad and reckless riot, And they shattered all the silence into sound. How the engines hissed and spattered, how the flying horses clattered, As their iron hoofs sped by us with a bound!

And the men with knightly bearing, on to smoke and battle faring, Seemed like heroes of an age of war and strife, For they boldly courted danger, aiding foe and friend and stranger, With the courage that outweighs the love of life.

Facing flame and falling ember, not a man paused to remember Home and wife and little children left behind. Rushing in through smoke and cinder, not one selfish fear could hinder, Or duty drive from the throne room of his mind.

There was someone yonder calling, and the mighty beams were falling, And the smoke was like a raging devil's breath; Still, without one moment's waiting or a second's hesitating, On they leaped, and wrenched a human life from death.

"No, true courage has not vanished, nor has Time all heroes banished." Spake the doubter, with concession, at the last. "In this daily scene of Duty lies unselfishness and beauty." And he stood with head uncovered as they passed.

Evening

The half moon touched with golden light, An orange glow on the margin of night The still song of the cricket heard, And the whispering wings of the passing bird—

The smell of smoke from the upland brown, And silent fields lying low and lone.

The laugh of a child from a wooded lane, The last bright gleam of a window-pane, And shadow weavers under the moon, The missions lost in the darkness soon.

A star on the crest of the purpling hill, And its other self in the river still.

A melody born of days no more, A lisp of lips along the shore, A voice that speaks to me out of the gloom, Till the rose of my heart is again in bloom—

And lo! in the darkness shining free The window light where she waits for me.

"It's certainly too bad!" with sighful solemnity said Miss Henrietta Stang, over the back of her chair, "but according to all reports, it's what he said himself that started the talk—young Lester Pinney is going to the dogs just as fast as he can! Why, he owned up to Gilbert Pine, and Gil told 'Lias Turner, and 'Lias told Amzi Sussions, and Amzi told it to one of the Bump Twins, and the Bump Twin told it to Mary Elletts, and so it was perfectly proper that he should—and she told it to me; that when Lester was up to the city last week he made a practice of coming around of nights till 10 or 11 o'clock, and one day he stood right in front of a saloon and saw one of them giddy chorus girls ride by in an automobile, and she winked at him—he wasn't any farther away from her either, than from your front door, to the gate! and all his folks are such nice people, too!"—July Smart Set.

Success

Rosamond Johnson, of Cole and Johnson, composers of that once popular song "Under the Bamboo Tree," once held a position as bell boy in Young's hotel in Boston. This place he once nearly lost, through taking the liberty of playing Paderewski's "Minuet" for the great pianist. Paderewski, who was engaged to the hotel, was so angry that he threatened to play the "Minuet" for him. Paderewski could not understand English then and the boy thought from his gesticulations that he wished him to play it. So he sat down at the piano and commenced playing. Paderewski's manager happened to enter the room just then, and, enraged at the Paderewski's presumption, threw him out of the room and went directly to the management and had him discharged.

As soon as he learned what had been done, Paderewski, who had been pleased with the lad's playing, went for the manager of the hotel and had

Technical World

"Science, which lately furnished a mechanical substitute for the horse, has now set about putting the lowly silk worm out of business," writes Clarence Hutton, in Technical World Magazine for July.

Almost unknown in the United States, the manufacture of artificial silk has been on a commercial basis in France for several years. The daily production being now about seven tons.

In forming a chemical compound corresponding to the viscous fluid out of which the silk worm spins his delicate thread, the French chemists found, strangely enough, that the best substitute was a solution of gun cotton, which also serves as the basis for the most powerful and deadly of modern explosives. To what extent this gun cotton silk is relieved of its explosive qualities before being woven into laces and dresses, it seems to be somewhat questionable. Certainly a young woman gowned in gun cotton and wearing a dainty nitro glycerin wrap about her white shoulders, would be a most formidable not to say dangerous object.

If the new fabric ever becomes popular in this country it will plainly be necessary to warn young men not to approach its wearer with lighted cigarettes or other combustibles in their hands. And sparking will become a most hazardous occupation.

Reader

In the Reader Magazine for June there is a continuation of the series "At the Foot of the Ladder," in which the writer, Francis Hackett, relates some of his experiences as a "cub" reporter on a "yellow journal." Incidentally telling numerous interesting details as to how news is made to fit the ideas of those who run the "yellow" press, the record of events that occurred during Mr. Hackett's term of employment on one of the best known of the "yellows," adds the value of actual news to a story on a very interesting topic, news paper work. No one who has not had the real experience could have written as Mr. Hackett has done in this article, and his article forms one of the most valuable, as well as entertaining and enlightening, discussions of the methods employed by "yellow" newspapers that has appeared in many years.

David Graham Phillips' story, "The Fortune Hunter," reaches its conclusion in the June Reader, and after carrying Hilda, his heroine, through a terrible and to the reader, wholly unsuspected climax, the writer works up for her a logical and happy culmination. There are three striking pictures by E. M. Ashe.

Everybody's

While it is impracticable to consider the law in detail, generalizing it may be said that woman now possesses (1) complete control of her person and of her property, real and personal, (2) freedom to enter into contracts, (3) the right to sue for injuries to her character, person, or property, (4) the joint custody of her children, though this is a recent development and it must be admitted that the exception states far outnumber those where the rule is in force, (5) in four states the right of equal suffrage and in twenty-two others and two territories a restricted right applicable only to school affairs.

In some respects, the pendulum has swung far. That it is well night impossible to convict a beautiful woman

Johnston reinstated in his position.—Success Magazine.

It is known to every criminal lawyer, and susceptible juries are not uninfused in civil cases by the piteous glance of soulful eyes, dimmed with tears. Well, let it be so, though we should remember that, in the language of Judge Buckley, formerly of Georgia's supreme court, "in pleading women, courts and juries should be careful to protect men, too, for men are not only useful to general society, but to women especially."—Gerald Chaplin in "Women First," in Everybody's magazine for June.

Pilgrim

In the Pilgrim for June the Club Woman's page is of increasing value and promises to be of vital interest to the great army of club women. "The Quiet Hour" page is also proving most popular. The closing page is a devoted to Preparations for the Heated Term, suggestions how to enjoy God's great out-of-doors even when held down at home. Taken altogether, the June Pilgrim is the best of the long series of most excellent numbers. The change to Detroit is evidently a decided advantage, especially to the Pilgrim family, which is rapidly increasing.

Farming

June is not altogether a month of roses and poetry. The June number of Farming is intensely practical and its leading articles point out large money making possibilities in various departments of farm activities.

The Profits of Breeding Draft Horses tell by actual facts and figures what is being accomplished by some Middle West farmers who are breeding hardy, wool producing breeds of sheep, and why it does not pay to raise sheep for mutton on Western ranches.

Garden

The June Garden Magazine is an inspiring outdoor number which opens up with a comprehensive review of the gorgeous magnolias, the most beautiful of the early flowering trees. It tells the amateur just which ones he should buy, which locations they suit best and where it is unsafe to plant the more tender kinds. The value of ornamental grasses as garden plants is ably treated and illustrated. It shows that in this huge family there are a host of delightful plants which can be used to make all sorts of striking combinations for garden effect. They are especially valuable because their vigor and beauty endure until after the early frosts, and when the

FAST TRAIN THROUGH TEXAS

A Fast Train Through Texas! One thousand smiles in 120 minutes. Such is the title of a recent work from the pen of John Ott. It is very similar to "A Slow Train Through Arkansas," but, naturally, the jolly vein and rich humor of the book appeals especially to the Texan.

The stories are unconnected, but in all of them the independence and happy go lucky spirit of the Southwest is illustrated in such a way that it appeals to the humor of the reader and never offends the Texan.

The jokes and sallies are the latest and mirth provoking situations are presented continually in kladeliascopic order. Life in all its stages in the Lone Star state is given in notice. To be true the writer oftentimes in dealing with a certain situation makes it humorous where it could easily be tragic and the effect on the reader is two-fold, but his interest is held until the end of the book.

The writer describes conditions from the police court and saloon to the church and what is known as high society.

Vagrant, felon, minister, judge, doctor, laborer and farmer all come in for their share of satirical allusion.

The book has little to do with any fast train, as the title would imply, but serves as an excellent catch word to interest the reader. The story is told in the first person. For light reading it can be well recommended.

B. C. U.

flowering plants have been killed. A Southern writer tells of the fairy-like wonders of the Texas rain lily, a little starry, white flowered bulbous plant that can be naturalized in the grass, and which covers the lawn with its bright flowers three days after a soaking from heavy rains. Special attention is paid to the chrysanthemums. Mr. Allen French writes delightfully about the hardy little pompons (the so-called artemisias of the old-time gardeners). He uses the plants for screens and for borders, and though he cures whole armfuls of gorgeous flowers every day in the late fall, there always seem to be just as many left behind. The more critical reader will turn to the article on growing large flowered chrysanthemums outdoors—these are the flowers which the florists grow under glass.

Women's Home Companion

Edward Everett Hale's optimistic article on "The Comforts of Today," and the first article of a serious campaign against Child Slavery are the contrasting features that distinguish the June number of the Women's Home Companion. The latter subject is handled in a masterly way in the first of a series of articles called "To Save the Children"—each article sustained by actual photographs and names of the sufferers of little children drugging all around you.

The rest of the magazine—and there is the equivalent of 150 pages in all—is alive with the practical and interesting matters that women most appreciate. This month's fiction is especially good, including "A Home of Your Own," by Juliet Wilbur Tompkins; "Peter and the Faculty," by Mary Wilhelm Hastings; "Muriel Tewksbury's Life," by Mary Heaton Vorse; "An April Shower," "His Way with Children," "Siegfried and the Bandit," and the last of Elliott Flower's amusing "Boney and Norah" sketches, and the conclusion of Burton E. Stevenson's serial "Affairs of State."

Delineator

"There is an overwhelming demand for hand made effects, notably in embroidery and in the manipulating of lace," writes Mrs. Helen Berkeley-Loyd in the Delineator for June. "Lingerie effects are introduced wherever possible and the richest embroidery is lavished upon every textile, from leather to lace. It is worthy of remark that only high grade embroideries are accepted by smart dressers, and that the designs must show a certain degree of originality. So incessant is the demand for embroidery, that it is seen even on gowns and coats made wholly of lace. Used in the form of bands and motifs the embroidery is inserted in lace all-over just as lace is inserted in other materials. Edges of it border the skirt and coat, and other pieces are introduced in the form of revers and berthaes, and in every conceivable manner. The embroidery may be the wonderful machine made products of Plauen and St. Gall, or it is hand-worked upon fine batiste or filmy Persian lawn. The Plauen and St. Gall embroideries approach so closely to lace that it is often difficult to designate them correctly. Indeed, frequently a flounce or band is merely an artistic combination of embroidery linking thin and heavy laces and it is remarkable how beautifully the different grades and patterns go together. Quite in keeping with the popularity of embroidery and lingerie effects is the tremendous vogue lace has attained. It seems that every kind of lace has its particular use in the summer wardrobe."

BABY'S HEALTH

The Health-Care of the Baby," a handbook for mothers and nurses, was written by Louis Fischer, M. D. (Fink & Wagnalls company, 44-60 East Twenty-third street, New York city, 75 cents.) Dr. Fischer is a specialist on children's diseases, being attending physician to the Willard Parker and Riverside hospitals; former instructor in diseases of children at the New York post-graduate medical school at an hospital. He is also the author of "Infant Feeding in Health and Disease," "A Book on Diseases of Infancy and Childhood," etc. The present work, which is a handbook for mothers and nurses, will be especially timely now that the baby's most trying period, hot weather, is at hand. The book covers the subject of feeding in health and disease, gives directions for the management of fever, and is a guide during such diseases as measles, croup, skin diseases, etc. It gives ample advice in cases of accidents, poisoning, etc. The correction of bad habits, and the management of rashes, have received careful consideration.

OUR LAY SERMON

I beseech you that you walk worthy of the vocation in which you are called.—Eph. iv. 1.
 St. Paul evidently had the Christian in mind when he penned this particular epistle, but the text is broad enough to fit all men under all conditions and surroundings. Christians should at all times be conscious of the dignity of their vocation and walk worthy of their high standing. But they do not always do it.
 There are men and women in the churches today who apparently have but a faint conception of what Christianity even in the abstract means. They apparently labor under the impression that their names upon the church register is all that is required to furnish them with an "open sesame" to the pearly gates of eternal habitation. Is that home all contrite hearts are pining for.
 Modern Christianity is rapidly assuming a new meaning. Some how or other it does not carry with it the idea of "Old Time Religion" it once did, and there are new and strange departures from the faith and covenants of the fathers that are both confusing and injurious to the spread of the gospel. The license often claimed under church membership is sufficient to cause men who are stumbling about the threshold of the church to pause and draw back with a shrug of the shoulders and an allegation of hypocrisy. "I do not want to become a member of the church that cloaks the nefarious practices indulged in by that man," they exclaim, as they point the finger of scorn at one of those modern or latter day Christians, and who can blame them?
 There was a day and time when Christianity meant a great deal more than it does today. There was a time when men and women were willing to be broken on the great iron wheel before they would surrender one jot or tittle of their religious convictions, but that day is gone. The general disposition of today is to temporize with spiritual things and stick to the flesh pots in the most uncompromising manner. The men and women who dare stand out for the real and true principles of Christianity are denominated old fogies and backnumbers. They are out of place and generally made to feel the fact most keenly.
 "I beseech you that you walk worthy of the vocation in which you are called."
 Right here in this admonition of the apostle there is a halting place for all. The man who calls himself a Christian, but who is constantly indulging in procedure calculated to bring Christianity into disrepute should carefully consider what he is about. He should see that he is walking according to his high vocation and setting the stumbling blocks that come after him the proper example. And if he is blind and leading the blind he should make haste to set his feet in the right path.
 God Almighty holds us personally responsible for all we do in this life, as well as for the things we do not accomplish. There can be no evasion or equivocation when we are called face to face with the record. We cannot offer any excuse or palliative. As we have walked in this life, so must we expect to walk in the life to come. If we have saved up treasures in the Heavenly kingdom we may expect to enjoy them. If we have sown to the flesh, we may expect of the flesh to reap corruption, for there is absolutely no escape from the consequences of our action.
 Whatever a man does is worthy of being done well. And the man who walks worthy of his vocation can always be depended upon to do things well. This principle is as applicable in the every day affairs of this life as it is to the spiritual. The world needs more of those men of heroic mould who do not stop to look back when once they have put their hands to the handle of the plough. If you are a ploughman, it is a duty you owe to the world and yourself to run the straightest and best furrow possible. If you are an architect, it is your duty to ever call into requisition the very best of your talents. If you are a professional or business man, God expects and demands that you measure up fully to the standard of excellence with which He has endowed you. If you are a bootblack, it is your duty to outshine all the other bootblacks in your vicinity.

"I beseech you that you walk worthy of the vocation in which you are called."
 And the idea above everything else is to walk. Don't be a crawler and wobble on the face of the earth. Be a man. Walk uprightly and in the fear and admonition of the Lord.

TEXAS AGITATION HURTS CATTLE INDUSTRY

The Breeders' Gazette, of Chicago, is universally regarded as the leading live stock publication of the world. It is usually conservative and evinces a strong tendency toward justice for all interests. Published in the greatest live stock market of the world, it is in position to judge of cause and effect from an intelligent standpoint. In commenting on the recent break in the live stock market, the Gazette says:

While agitation has been the progenitor of reform, pernicious agitation has no place in the category of beneficencies. Agitation affecting live stock is uniformly disastrous to the producer. There may be exceptions to the rule, but they are rare.

Texas has recently furnished fresh evidence of this fact. Several weeks ago legal proceedings were instituted against the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange under a state anti-trust law. The campaign was loudly heaped and as a result commission men, acting in self-defense, were compelled to call their cattle loans as rapidly as they fell due. Unable to secure recommendation at reasonable rates elsewhere, cattlemen who had borrowed this money were forced to sacrifice. A rush of Texas cattle to Fort Worth, Kansas City and St. Louis resulted. The wave of forced and unnecessary liquidation extended to Chicago, packers getting so many Southern cattle at Missouri river markets that they were forced to send them to Chicago for slaughter.

At Fort Worth values broke 50 to 85 cents per cent, or $5 to $8 per head, a hardship that fell not only on the producer in Texas where the movement was inaugurated, but spread all over the country. In the aggregate losses resulting from this agitation are enormous. Every feeder in the country has been more or less affected and the damage to the industry cannot be expressed in less than seven figures.

Coming as it did when a horde of muck-rake agitators were assailing the slaughtering interests, the blow to the cattle industry was like lightning out of a clear sky, injecting depression where the reverse had been confidently expected. If the pernicious agitation against the cattle industry the past few years could have been restrained it would have put a large sum to the credit of the cattle raiser.

Here we have faithfully portrayed the net result of the agitation set in motion by the attorney general of Texas reflected in a depreciation of cattle values ranging from $5 to $8 per head. And the unfortunate feature of the situation is that the burden has fallen wholly on the producer—the very one the agitation was intended to benefit.

Texas is believed to contain somewhere in the neighborhood of 7,000,000 head of cattle, and if these cattle have depreciated an average of $5 per head, it means that the cattlemen of this state have lost the sum of $35,000,000 in consequence of the agitation instituted by the attorney general of the state—a sum more than double the hair-raising penalties sought to be recovered from the alleged infractors of the law by the legal department of the state government.

And if the state should recover every penny of the penalties asked for what benefit will it be to the men who are engaged in producing the cattle? If the packing plants located in this city should be closed and moved to some other point as has been threatened, and the Fort Worth market wiped out of existence, where would the benefit inure? Would it come from other markets confessedly under control of the very same influence that is alleged to be in control of the local situation?

The net result so far of this campaign of agitation should be a lesson to the state officials in future proceedings of the kind. Sensationalism is not the weapon with which to combat real or imaginary grievances. It is a mistake to go beyond the bounds of prudence and conservatism, even in the application of the principles of justice, and the boomerang is a dangerous weapon in hands that are not skilled in the practice of handling such a weapon.

It is a peculiar condition that has been brought about in consequence of the Texas agitation, and it would have been much better for the producers of this state if the ill complained of had perhaps been patiently endured than to have deliberately invoked the consequences that have proven the unfortunate result. So far the men reached for have not been landed, but the force of the blow struck by the state has landed squarely on the people it was designed to protect.

TERRELL DECLARES FOR BELL

Judge Alexander Watkins Terrell, the venerable statesman of Austin and author of the Terrell election law, has come out in a ringing endorsement of the candidacy of Judge Charles K. Bell of this city for governor and this action on his part will certainly result in the precipitation of a perfect avalanche of caustic criticism from the supporters of the other aspirants for gubernatorial honors.

Those newspapers of the state that have stood for the blanket primary idea during the recent special session of the state legislature and which so bitterly bemoined its fate, at the same time charging Judge Bell with slaughtering the proposition, will show especial rancor toward the venerable author of the measure. It was known that Judge Terrell favored the blanket primary system, but he was wise enough to know that under the call of the governor that feature could not be considered. For that reason he did not insist, but gracefully accepted the inevitable. His espousal of the Bell cause will now have the effect of inciting rabid denunciation and perhaps the charge that he has been in constant covenant with Bell, but such aspersions will have no effect on the thinking people of Texas. In commenting upon Judge Terrell's declaration, which was printed in The Telegram of Saturday, the Houston Chronicle says:

Having filled many high and important positions with ability and distinction, and having now "put away ambition," he writes not as one seeking to propitiate any power or desiring any office, hence is free to express his honest convictions.
 His defense of Governor Lanham is simply unanswerable, because it is the truth and the truth can never be answered. Every man knows that the legislature and the governor fell short in the performance of public duty.

The Chronicle feels complimented that Judge Terrell agrees with it that the attack on corporations is unwarranted and ill-timed. This fact is so obvious that no stronger evidence of a man's unfitness for governor can be produced than the fact that he makes such attack and appeals to such prejudice.

There is not a man who possibly appreciates the measure of official obligations who does not know that there is absolutely no excuse for an appointive judge and a railroad commissioner abandoning their posts of duty in their efforts to get another office.

Doubtless Judge Terrell's letter will excite the ire of some candidate, and he may be denounced and defied and jumped on, as others have been who have dared criticize a candidate who seems to claim immunity from error, but if he is he will be heard from on the stump, and then there will be something to do.

Judge Terrell's references to Judge Bell and Governor Lanham are graceful, truthful and generous, and following upon the transparently unjust attacks on both gentlemen will reach many a voter and influence many a vote.

There is much in Judge Terrell's letter that is worthy the serious consideration of the people of Texas. He gave utterance to some very plain and wholesome truths, and The Telegram agrees with its esteemed Houston contemporary that it will not be without beneficial results. The gubernatorial campaign is rapidly reaching the point where the people of the state will assume settled convictions, and the action of Judge Terrell will have a very salutary effect in settling many votes that may have been wavering to some extent in the proper direction.

Judge Terrell has done the proper thing at the proper time and in the proper manner. There may be some wincing in quarters where his shot have found lodgment, but he has simply exercised his prerogative as a free born American citizen and expressed his honest convictions. Judge Terrell knows the best interests of the people of this state demand the election of Bell, and he has the moral courage to properly admonish the suffragists of the state.

NO MORMON NEED APPLY

No Mormon need apply, is an inscription that should be placed permanently above the United States senate chamber. When Brigham Roberts was refused membership in that honorable body the answer of the church of Latter Day Saints was to send Smoot, one of the twelve apostles of the church, in his place.

And these apostles not only practice polygamy, but they encourage it.

They set the law of this fair land at defiance and when put to the supreme test do not hesitate to declare they consider their allegiance to the church paramount to their allegiance to the United States government.

The majority of the senate committee has declared that Reed Smoot is not entitled to membership in the United States senate and demand his summary expulsion. And there is no doubt as to the result. The prayers and petitions of the mothers of America have been heard and are to be answered. The Mormon senator must go. The committee declares:

"In the judgment of the committee Mr. Smoot is no more entitled to a seat in the senate than he would be if he were associating unlawfully with a plurality of wives."

It may be true that Smoot has but one wife, but it is a fact that he is a member of a hierarchy that believes and teaches that men are entitled to more than one wife. He is a member of a so-called religious cabal that is a growing menace to this government of ours, and which public policy demands must be ineffectually suppressed.

Reed Smoot is a member of an organization that has taken an oath of vengeance against this government, which he is now professing to serve. He has himself subscribed to that oath, which is as follows:

"Each and all of you do covenant and prize that you will pray, and never cease to pray, Almighty God to avenge the blood of the prophets upon this nation, and that you will teach the same to your children and unto your children's children unto the third and fourth generation."

Can a man who has subscribed to that obligation properly serve the people of the United States in the capacity of a lawmaker?

The people of the entire country will indorse the action of this senate committee in the action taken, which is calculated to relieve the senate of a stain that has rested upon it ever since Reed Smoot was permitted to occupy a seat in that honorable body.

Let the entrance to the senate chamber of the United States be permanently emblazoned with the inscription: "No Mormon need apply."

Oklahoma and Indian Territory come into the union as one state, and New Mexico and Arizona are to do the same thing in the event their people vote such a desire. That looks like a reasonable proposition. And it is not believed the invitation will be accepted by Arizona and New Mexico. They prefer waiting a while longer and coming in as two full grown sisters in spite of the opposition of the Republican party.

They are calling Mrs. Longworth "Princess Alice" over in England, but it will not spoil that very charming young woman's level head. She realizes that she is infinitely more than a princess, for she is queen of a happy American home.

Handley park with its splendid auditorium affords an inviting spot for the assemblage of the democratic state convention. Committeeman Moreland should press this point until it is fully appreciated.

Rufus Martin, the negro to be hanged at Fort Worth, objected to being hung on Friday, July 13, on account of the unlucky 13 and also unlucky Friday, so the judge fixed the date of execution on Thursday, July 12. He thought it would bring bad luck to hang on these fateful days.—Abilene News.

There is no law compelling a man to be hanged on Friday in preference to any other day in the week and custom is what has made the practice common. The judge who breaks away from a senseless and unnecessary custom is to be commended for his action, as he establishes a new and wholesome precedent.

Wool growing in McCulloch county is increasing very fast. Several years ago there were several herds of sheep over different parts of the county, but in a few years wool dropped to almost nothing and most of the sheep were sold, while there were a few men who held their sheep and profited greatly thereby. Now they are vastly on the increase and will only be a few years until the county will be well stocked with one of the best paying industries the world has ever known.—Brady Enterprise.

Texas was at one time one of the greatest wool producing states in the union, and there is no reason why this condition should not again prevail. Every western ranch could easily carry a good bunch of sheep and thereby make just that much additional clear profit.

The committee awarded the convention to Dallas, and Dallas, of course, is happy, but delegates to the convention are kindly warned against liquor sold there. It is said to contain several kinds of "masked batteries" that go off sudden like and floor a fellow.—Austin Tribune.

Delegates to the state convention at Dallas all know that the breezes blow the coolest in this city and the liquids dispensed here the most seductive. Thousands of Texas democrats will visit Fort Worth while attending the Dallas convention.

LITTLE COMEDIES OF SUCCESS By T. O. M'GILL

THE TELEGRAM AND THE TEXAS PRESS

WEDDED TO ITS IDOL
 The Post is very unkind. The reduction of passenger rates on the Houston & Texas Central is about all the official work its candidate for governor accomplished during the month of May, and the Post should be more generous.—Fort Worth Telegram.

Whatever the Post's candidate for governor may have accomplished officially during the month of May, it can be said without fear of successful contradiction that the work thus far done by him in June in the way of showing up some of the political schemes to fasten corporate domination upon the state, is to the people of Texas of almost inestimable value, and is a patriotic service for which they will hold him in gratitude long after the present campaign has passed into history.—Houston Post.

BIG CATTLE RANCHES

The big ranches out in West Texas are being steadily cut up and sold in small bodies to the people who are flocking into that section in search of homes. The prediction is now being made that the time is near at hand when big ranches in that section of the state will be so rare as to almost constitute a memory.—Fort Worth Telegram.

There it is like the diamond market. It is said that the diamond market is controlled by parties in London, who have so many diamonds on hand that, were they to put them all on the market at once, the price of $500 diamonds would not be any more than say $10, and they would be so common then that even country newspaper men would not have them.—Bonham Herald.

UP TO THE PEOPLE

Judge Bell has now put it up to Candidate Colquitt in such a manner that the Kaufman county man ought to be found looking for a convenient and medium sized aperture through which to make an unceremonious exit.—Fort Worth Telegram.

This is the way it goes: Bell puts it up to Colquitt, Colquitt puts it up to Brooks, Brooks puts it up to Campbell and Campbell puts it up to the people—asking them for votes.—Bonham Herald.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

Corruptionists will stop buying votes when there is no more voting.

It would be pretty comfortable not to have a large family to support.

After a man has run an automobile for a season he is no longer in the rich class.

It would be a lot of fun marrying money if you could spend it with somebody else.

OUR GROWING HOME MARKET

The population of the United States is increasing every year at the rate of nearly 1,500,000. This means 1,500,000 more stomachs to be fed, more bodies to be clothed, more brains to be educated. This fact is one of the most substantial reasons for the continuance of our national prosperity. And it explains why our home market continues to seem so much more important to us than the task of conquering foreign markets.—Wall Street Journal.

THE PALACE CAR TRUST

Senator Bailey is entirely right in insisting that the Pullman company shall not be exempt from the provisions of the rate bill. It is a distinct part of the transportation system of the country, overlapping nearly every railroad line. If it escapes regulation where the railroads and other companies do not the opinion is certain to spread that it has enough political influence to purchase immunity.—New York World.

STANDPATISM

Standpatism is daily mounting to new heights of unreason, resembling mania. Like the defenders of slavery just before the war, protectionists are making a religion of their practice, and every man who dares dissent from it is an infidel and a heathen.—New York Evening Post.

A CONSOLATION

Anyway, there isn't anything in the rate bill about jail for taking presents from old friends.—Philadelphia North American.

THE BRIGHT SIDE

Why should we cloud the sunshine
 God sends to us today
 By fearing that tomorrow
 May have a sky of gray?

Why should we mar the blessings
 The present has in store
 By longing after others
 Or wishing these were more?

Look on the bright side always.
 What better plan than this?
 Since fretting never changes
 What we think's gone amiss.

Let's take things as we find them
 And make the best of life
 By thinking of its blessings
 And not its wrong and strife.

Enjoy each hour of sunshine;
 God gives it all in vain
 If foolishly we waste it.
 Forboding future rain.

Look on the bright side always.
 And watch the blessings grow
 And flowers do in the summer
 God likes to have it so.

Take what a good God sends you
 With thanks for what is giv'n.
 And trust him for tomorrow
 Just as you trust for heav'n.

Aye, make the most, my comrade,
 Of time that flies so fast,
 By gathering up its gladness
 Before the chance is past!

Look on the bright side always.
 And sing when skies are gray,
 And little ills and worries—
 Let's laugh them all away.

Amicable Outcome of Algier Conference Throws Wilhelm in Rage

PARIS, June 16.—William II has completely lost his temper and is engaged in making things pretty lively for his ministers and ambassadors and for his political entourage in general. The reason for this extraordinary behavior is that the emperor cannot forgive his agents for having shown moderation in the course of last summer's negotiations which resulted in the Algeiras conference.

He reproaches them for having made war avoidable at a time when there could have been no doubt as to its outcome, and for having failed to take a more aggressive attitude against England's policy and the concerted action of the other European powers who were in league to resist Germany's imperialism.

Now it is too late for him to think of war. France has had time to recover herself. According to the unanimous opinion of the chiefs of the French army that they have reached the maximum possibilities of preparation, and the result of a struggle against her now would be disastrous to the nation which set out upon it. The emperor realizes that his chance is gone, and like the coachman who whip his horses when through their own fault in driving, an accident happens, the kaiser is engaged in venting his ill humor pretty freely.

One of his earliest victims will be the German ambassador in Paris, Prince Radolin, who will be shortly recalled. This distinguished gentleman is going to pay the penalty of having taken his mission as diplomat and conciliator seriously. He is to be replaced, so it is said, by Prince Livorno.

Frenchmen, advised of the change, are not likely to accord the kaiser's new representative so cordial a welcome as his predecessors, by his perfect fact and many qualities as a man, had won for himself among us.

LONDON, June 16.—The Marquis de Soveral, the popular Portuguese minister, and the king's most intimate friend is "being deviled and the deep sea." His master and sovereign, the king of Portugal, wishes to make him his premier, and King Edward wishes to retain him as jester at the court of St. James forever.

M. de Soveral has told his friends that he would infinitely prefer to remain in the London he loves and where he is such a great success, than to go to the least mind being called "The Blue Monkey," a name given to him because of his blue-black cheeks and chin, which he is compelled to shave twice a day.

He arrived from Lisbon recently, is going to all the entertainments and is more lively and amusing than ever. Even the prudish and strait-laced James have been known to laugh at some of the marquis' stories, which may be described as extremely varied, according to his company, but he has a very delicate way of telling them.

The participants in these little scandals have evidently forgotten the ways of their ancestors who were among the musketeers around whom the celebrated novelist Alexandre Dumas wrote the glories of a famous romance.

PARIS, June 16.—As if he had not already done enough to shock his cardinals, Pope Pius X has created consternation in the Vatican by endorsing a book on spiritism, written by his physician, Professor Dr. Loppin. The cardinals who, without any exception are opposed to spiritism as the work of the devil, made the utmost effort to have the book placed on the index expurgatoris, but his holiness, who had read part of Dr. Loppin's manuscript insisted that the book contained many valuable things and refused to listen.

In his work, the title of which is "Impossibilis Spiritismus," Professor Loppin, who for many years has been engaged in psychological researches takes the same stand as Lombroso, Schiaparelli and Crookes and through many wonderful stories of ghosts and spirits endeavors to prove the connection between the material and the spirit world.

The book has aroused a sensation in Rome and aroused a very strong interest in spiritistic phenomena among members of the high aristocracy who have begun to experiment with mediums and several of whom declare that they have been able to communicate with the dead.

Horrible dictum!—It is also declared that the pope has refused to condemn Christian Science, saying that he is not yet familiar enough with its teachings to express an opinion and that he even sees much that is beautiful in it.

TITLED LAUNDRESSES

Penniless Women of Nobility May Live

LONDON, June 16.—Such a situation for women who have to make their livelihood is an ever-recurring topic. The last idea is that ladies of education and culture should learn laundry work, and it strikes the fancy of the aristocracy. There is no individual who is probably more reviled than the laundress. Spoiled clothes, badly ironed shirts, ill-folded table linens, the source of the complaints of the mistress of a household, Chinamen, no doubt, are first rate at laundry work, but here in London there are no Chinese.

One firm set up not long ago, but the clothes were washed away, and when the police called they failed to secure them. Now the El Dorado for the penniless laundresses is to be a laundry, managed by ladies with lady ironers, clear starchers and golfers, with hard-working, respectable but uneducated women as washers. The whole direction carried out by a head capable of organizing and able to grasp the details of the work.

The thought may be attractive to many girls who would like to appear in beautiful caps like Madame Rejane in "Madame Sans Gene," who makes the ideal laundress in the first act, but undoubtedly the work will be pursued from morning till night in very hard.

Nevertheless it may be some comfort to know that they are helping to beautify the world. The idea is that they may perhaps dance at night, and whose shirt fronts will have been made immaculate under their discerning hands. In any case, the idea has been discussed and will probably be started before long, and the titled laundresses will soon be to the front.

PARIS, June 16.—Though legally declared "dead," being thought to have perished in the Mont Pelée disaster, Jean Marie de Floride, formerly a planter, Marie's wife, has returned to France, and relates a thrilling story of his adventures.

After the eruption of Mont Pelée he took a ship to the island of Annam, and thence to Japan. When the Russo-Japanese war broke out he started the perilous enterprise of running the blockade of Port Arthur with arms and provisions. He was successful in this, but was shipwrecked on the Korean coast.

For his services the Russian government rewarded him handsomely at the end of the war, and he returned to France to live on his new fortune. M. de Floride found, however, that his brother and sister had returned to France, and relates a thrilling story of his adventures.

Jean Marie de Floride is now to be legally raised from the "dead."

PARIS, June 16.—Poor Count Boni de Castellane is having a real miserable time of it this summer now that he has at last become convinced that his Chelsea works, to the order of Queen Charlotte, as a present to her brother, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, will not pay for themselves.

His father, the old Marquis de Castellane, has for years been in the habit of dabbling in journalism and though he would probably never amount to very much or rise very rapidly, he was on the staff of a paper, and his paragraphs are at least readable and sometimes full of fine sarcasm. Boni, however, has absolutely no journalistic gift, and when the novelty of his divorce affair wears off and he drops out of politics, as he must now do, as he can no longer command millions, he will very soon find it hard to dispose of his pot boilers.

With no gift of any kind beyond that of squandering money, it would surprise no one should he in time accept the offer of some manager to appear in vaudeville in America.

LONDON, June 16.—The whole American colony has given a warm welcome to Lady Waterlow, perhaps the most popular American in London. All last winter Lady Waterlow was in very bad health at her villa on the Riviera, but she is now looking radiant and has returned wittier and more vivacious than ever.

One of the first to welcome her at her home in Chesham place was Princess Louise, duchess of Argyll, who was allowed a day or two later by the duchess of Albany. Lady Waterlow is keenly interested in "slum work" in the East end and last week the duchess of Albany held a meeting at the Waterlow mansion in aid of the parish of Deptford, one of the poorest in London.

The drawing rooms were filled with flowers sent by various members of the American colony, and Lady Waterlow managed to swell the Deptford fund considerably by making a coaxing speech.

LONDON, June 16.—The young sultan of Zanzibar, who is the blackest of potentates ever seen in London is becoming a very familiar figure at all the restaurants, and he is seldom ever glanced at now, except when he drives slowly through Hyde park on Sundays during the church parade and doffs his silk hat to his many friends. The other night there was a very unpleasant scene at a certain hotel much frequented by Americans.

The sultan, who, by the way, was educated at Harrow, and is intensely English in his ideas, was being entertained in the restaurant by an English business man who had asked a small party, including two or three ladies, to meet the dusky sultan.

At the next table were two newly arrived Americans, who immediately got up on seeing the sultan, and after making a few ill-chosen and loud remarks moved away to another table. The business man who was entertaining the sultan called the manager. The manager foolishly expostulated with the Americans, and the latter left the restaurant altogether.

The sultan beamed through the ordeal, but a silence fell upon the party for the rest of the evening. Later on the English host and the Americans met in the hall and exchanged a few heated remarks, but still later on in the evening, when the Americans had had their dinner elsewhere, the parties parted the best of friends. Differences in customs were explained, and the Americans asked to shake hands with the sultan.

Coronation of Norway's Queen Attracts Attention

LONDON, June 16.—While one English prince has left England to become, in a singularly royal and magnificent manner, the queen of Spain, another yet nearer to the throne of England in a few days is to be crowned queen of Norway.

The coronation of Queen Maud is treated in England with much less curiosity than the Spanish wedding, but with a greater amount of individual enthusiasm. There is particular affection throughout the country for the daughters of the king and queen, and the event of the coronation of Queen Maud has been met with a sympathetic outburst of acclamation which is resulting in a national gift to be presented to her.

Scotland especially, which in reality is somewhat of an island, has celebrated, and much less in the habit of seeing royalty at close quarters than one would imagine, observes in this union with a northern nation a link unattainable before.

But there has been particular enthusiasm in Scotland in connection with the gift to Queen Maud. Like the king's eldest daughter, who made before all things a happy marriage, and has shown herself light-hearted and very lovable. The Princess Royal (the Duchess of Fife) takes a quiet place beside all these later magnificences, and finds a far more prominent position more to her taste. Her children are among the pleasant sights of Brighton, where they are continually to be seen, very bright and merry, thorough lovers of the open air.

PARIS, June 16.—Paris as a health resort is what the doctors advised at the last meeting of the Academy of Medicine. They declare that the City of Lights is a good deal more wholesome than many of the popular resorts to which people flock both summer and winter.

The average mortality in Paris in 1905 has been 17.4 per 1,000 inhabitants. There have been no serious epidemic of contagious diseases, such as measles, typhoid and scarlet fever, etc. Even isolated cases of these diseases have been very rare during the past year. On the other hand deaths from liver complaints due to the excessive use of alcohol have greatly increased.

Men must work and women must weep, but the women always do their end of the job with more gusto.

LONDON, June 16.—A very amusing correspondence which has passed between Lady Haversham, a new peeress, formerly known as Lady Hayter, a well known society woman and "lion hunter," and Mrs. John Burns, the wife of the labor president of the local government board, is the talk of the political set just now.

John Burns has, of course, been feted a great deal, but it was only when Mrs. Burns appeared at court for the first time, looking very sweet in a gray dress, that his wife has attracted any attention at all. Lady Haversham, who has the idea of becoming a liberal hostess, wrote a note to Mrs. Burns to her humble home in Battersea, as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Burns—I should be glad if you could come to my 'at home.' You will excuse my not calling on you, but I find Battersea is such a long way from Grosvenor square."

To which Mrs. Burns promptly replied:

"Dear Lady Haversham—I have been studying the map and find that Grosvenor square is exactly the same distance from Battersea as Battersea is from Grosvenor square."

He opened the knife and raised the blade to slash the picture.

With a cry Parsons dropped the knife and wheeled around at that imperious command. At the further end of the room, candle in hand, stood the tall form of a woman. She wore a dressing gown hastily thrown over her shoulders; her hair was loose, her feet were bare, and she approached the steward noiselessly and swiftly. It was Marion Danetree, and her eyes were full of anger.

"What are you doing here at this time of night?" she demanded haughtily of the sullen old man. "I heard a cry and the noise of a fall, and I came down."

"I want to spoil that picture," said Parsons between his teeth.

"Destroy Castagnio's 'Nativity'! Take away my only way of restoring the family fortunes! You are mad."

"No, I am Frank's father. You despise him; you hate him. Through him you have found the picture, but now—"

"Wait a moment," said Marion, comprehending Parsons' motive. "If you destroy that picture, you prevent my marriage with Frank."

"What?"—the knife crashed on the floor—"are you going to marry my boy?"

"Yes. Did not Frank tell you? When we discovered the picture together this afternoon he asked me to be his wife. I consented only too gladly."

"But—but I thought you despised him!"

"Despise him? I love him better than all the world. Go away, Mr. Parsons, and thank God that he sent me to prevent you from committing a crime. I shall bring that picture to Frank as my dowry. He shall take my name, and there will once more be a Squire Danetree at the hall."

"O Miss Danetree—Marion—forgive me!" cried Parsons, quite broken down. "I forgive you. It was love for Frank made you think of this folly. But go—go! It is not seemly that you should be here at this hour of the night!"

"What is this?" asked Marion, smiling. "My gift to you; my marriage gift; the copper key which has brought you a husband and a fortune."

Next Week—"The Sixth Customer and the Teapot."

Miss Yerner—"Mr. Hussel was going to call on me this evening, but he heard you were to be here."

NEW YORK STOCKS

Anasconda Drops 10 1/2 Points—Bears Continue Aggressive Tactics and Market is Demoralized

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, June 16.—The stock market was active and excited during the brief session today. Bears, not being satisfied with the heavy tributes which they have collected during the last few sessions, pressed themselves over night for another attack and being helped along by the timidity of the longs, were enabled to engineer the campaign to successful completion. Although London cables reported a firm market for Americans, the local market was weak from the start. Reading being the only issue which exhibited any strength on the opening and was soon utterly demoralized. A fusillade of selling orders started the decline and stop-loss orders soon came out in abundance, long being afraid under the existing conditions to hold their commitments over the holiday.

The most conspicuous break was in Anasconda, which dropped 10 1/2 points. Smelter sold 5 points, Colorado Fuel and Iron 3 and New York Central 2, while Reading after rising 1 1/2 points, sold off 4 1/2 points. The balance of the list lost 1 to 2 points. The market closed weak and excited. Total sales 449,400 shares.

and will gladly furnish data and full information as to costs, the scope of the service and of operation. There is no greater servant to convenience, no greater to luxury, and no greater necessity than the Electrical Current.

Electricity is that which no other power can do.

It is economy where every other device is costly, in motor work it saves money and time. Motors save labor and in doing so quicken the commercial pulse and widen the scope of the manufacturer.

Electrical advertising signs sell goods. They attract by day and night—double the service of other signs. They catch the eye and hold it.

Bright and correctly illuminated windows attract buyers to that street. It means increased trade.

Electricity in the home means comfort, the correct lighting effects mean greater home enjoyment. Home decorative work is enjoyed by everyone and is produced at small cost.

The Electric Light Office is essentially the best place to obtain full information, and our facilities are such as enable us to serve you promptly and advantageously. Suggestions and advice free. Let us know your wants. Give us your ideas, let us give you our ideas.

Lack of Rain in Texas and Too Much in Other States Makes Shortage Nervous

Special to The Telegram.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Bullish week-end statistics and unfavorable weather conditions lent strength to the cotton market today, and while the volume of trading did not exceed the usual week-end standard, prices ruled at an advance during the session and showed a fair gain in the final sum up.

The statistical position prevented the foreign market from responding in full to our decline of yesterday and this in connection with detrimental rainfall in the Atlantic states and a lack of moisture in the portions of Texas from which complaints of dry weather have originated, caused a steady opening in the cotton market and a greater advance being in the new crop options.

Shores were intimidated by the weather conditions and many of the local crowd covered, sending prices to a net gain of 5 to 6 points. The market opened at 11.20c for middling, while Reading after rising 1 1/2 points, sold off 4 1/2 points. The balance of the list lost 1 to 2 points. The market closed weak and excited. Total sales 449,400 shares.

New Orleans Cotton

Special to The Telegram.

NEW ORLEANS, June 16.—The cotton market was extremely dull and entirely without feature today.

The day's news favored the longs, the week-end statistics being bullish, Liverpool advances better than expected and weather conditions disappointing to shorts. But despite these facts prices were flat, the market opening at 11.20c for middling, while Reading after rising 1 1/2 points, sold off 4 1/2 points. The balance of the list lost 1 to 2 points. The market closed weak and excited. Total sales 449,400 shares.

Liverpool Cotton Cable

There was a fair demand for spot cotton, 8,000 bales, including 7,100 American, being taken, with the price 1 point higher at 6.08c for American middling. Receipts, 7,100, all American.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Oats Still Climbing—Prices Advance More Than Two Cents—Wheat and Corn Strong

Special to The Telegram.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 16.—The wheat market again derived its stimulus from the lack of rains in Nebraska and the strength of the coarse grains. Liverpool also sent over favorable news. The market opened strong, prices being 1/2 to 3/4 c hitherto in the first call. The session was fairly active for a week-end and under continuous covering by shorts as well as good buying of the long, the market advanced steadily, eventually touching a net gain of 1/2 to 1 1/4 c. The market closed firm with prices at a net gain of 1/2 to 1 1/4 c.

Local receipts 10 cars vs. 4 cars this day last year.

Corn

Corn prices exhibited consistent strength today and final figures were near the week's best, which was reached during the session. The failure of Clark & Co., which was announced at the opening, was partially responsible for the advance, as the firm was short of both corn and oats and covering for their account sent prices soaring to a level 1 1/4 c to 1 1/2 c above yesterday's final. The higher price of the market closed taking and prices eased off, the close being firm at a net gain of 1/2 to 1 1/4 c.

Local receipts 439 cars vs. 438 this day last year.

Oats

Oats established a new high level, the July option selling at 42 1/2 c, a net gain of 1 1/2 c, while September sold 2 1/4 c above yesterday's final. The market closed strong, with prices at a net gain of 1 1/2 to 2 c.

Local receipts 178 cars vs. 160 this day last year.

Provisions

Provisions were in good demand and the market exhibited strength throughout the session. Final figures showed gains of 10c to 13c for pork, 5c to 7c for lard and 5c for ribs.

CATTLE AND HOGS

Good Steers Slow Sale—Steady Prices on All Other Grades of Live Stock Including Hogs and Sheep

Special to The Telegram.

Receipts of cattle on the local market have been of a moderate character for the past week, though slightly in excess of those of the week before. The total of receipts of all classes of live stock for the week are: Cattle, 13,400; calves, 6,500; hogs, 7,500; sheep, 3,100; horses and mules, 108.

The week's marketing opened on Monday with markets generally lower, caused by very liberal receipts. At Fort Worth, hogs, dressed and well-fed steers sold steady, but most other grades of live stock were lower. Tuesday's experience was much the same on good beef cattle, the price reduction being 15c to 20c. However, a lot of prime steers made 5 1/2 a steady price. All of the Tuesday loss was regained on Wednesday's light receipts, and the steer market thereafter ruled steady to the week's close, with prices the same as at the close of last week.

Good to choice fed steers are quoted at $4.50 to $4.75; grassers, $3.75 to $3.85; medium to good grassers and culls, $3.30 to $3.65; fair killers, $3.10 to $3.25; plain steers, $2.75 to $3.00.

NEW BUILDING IN MAIN STREET

T. B. Ellison to Erect Three-story Office Structure

Bids will be opened Monday for the erection for T. B. Ellison of a three-story building having a frontage of fifty feet on Weatherford and 100 feet on Main street, running from Main south to the alley between Weatherford and First streets. The old buildings that occupied this ground, some of them for nearly a half century, will give way to a structure that will be an ornament to Upper Main street.

The old concrete building on the corner was for years occupied by Jesse James as a grocery store on the ground floor and on the second floor up to the fall of 1886 was the home of the Fort Worth Democrat, published by Dr. W. P. Wilson. In September of that year the Democrat was purchased by Mose C. Harris and consolidated with the Fort Worth Mail, a little six-column, four-page paper from which grew the present Fort Worth Telegram.
The old Mail, which can be appropriately styled the father of the Telegram, was run on very economical principles and while it was published in the building that will soon be replaced by a modern structure, had no telegraph report, the news in its columns being purely local, except what was clipped from other papers and dated up.

Toby Holt was on the staff of the Mail at that time, having dropped into newspaper work after having just cast with the telegraph lines, where he was an operator, and it was through him that the old Mail got its first genuine telegraph news. Good news stories were going over the wires every day, but not to the Mail, but Toby got it all the same, and for a week had George Franklin, news superintendent of the Western Union at St. Louis, then in charge of the Western Union office here, jumping sideways to find where the leak was.

Toby Holt was a good telegraph operator and could read by sound as well as the best in Fort Worth. The Western Union office at that time was on Second street, between Main and Houston, on the first floor, just back of where the First National bank then was. The ladies who were in the window of the telegraph office would be left open and Holt would spend considerable time on the outside of the window, talking to the men inside, keeping his ears open all the time to the clicking of the instruments. When he got all he thought the paper could stand he would make a run to the office and write from memory the news he had stolen from the wires. He never missed getting his date in the paper and the paper bristled with a good telegraph report that didn't cost a cent.
For three or four days even the owner of the paper didn't know how the news was obtained. Holt finally told him
and then there was a love feast down at the old White Elephant. Holt got so mellow that he consented to use his machine from 8 to 10 o'clock on Friday night, the views to be shown in front of the Board of Trade office. Between the views, the rest of the news
final hours of the canvass will be shown on the screen.

BUSY WEEK FOR Y. M. C. IS DUE

Big Membership Canvass Will Take Place Friday

The prospects for the success of the big day's work in Young Men's Christian Association membership campaign, June 22, are very bright and the enthusiasm of those who were selected at the Delaware cafe meeting are at work planning for the work. Many of them will have meetings early in the week.
The ladies who were selected at the canvass for junior memberships expect no trouble in reaching the total number which the size of the building will allow. A number of the boys are so soliciting their friends, and all the committees will take junior memberships as well as any other class.

The business men who have before assisted in the work of canvassing are asked to again help in getting members, and many of them will give the whole day on Friday. A man has been selected to canvass almost every large place of business in the city and the faithfulness of these men much of the success of the movement depends. A friend of the work who has a splendid stereopticon and an abundance of the paper didn't know how the news was obtained. Holt finally told him
and then there was a love feast down
at the old White Elephant. Holt got so mellow that he consented to use his machine from 8 to 10 o'clock on Friday night, the views to be shown in front of the Board of Trade office. Between the views, the rest of the news
final hours of the canvass will be shown on the screen.

A member of the association who is an amateur photographer has taken some views of the building as it now stands, and slides from these views will be thrown on the screen Friday night.

The directors want all to understand that memberships taken now do not date until the opening of the building, and need not be paid for until that time unless the member so desires.
They also ask every man and boy to hand in his application now, that they may know how many members to expect. Should the 1,600 mark, which is the limit of the building in all classes, be reached, the directors will then be justified in planning for the best and largest work in the southwest.
The more members secured up to the limit, the better things can be planned for all.

CASE TO BE APPEALED

Effort Will Be Made on Behalf of C. E.
Childress

Judge W. R. Parker has prepared and will file an amended motion for a new trial in the case of the state vs.
C. E. Childress.
Childress was convicted at a recent term of the district court of the alleged crime of criminal assault upon step-daughter and given the death penalty. A motion for a new trial was overruled, and notice of appeal was given.
In order for the amended motion for a new trial to be entertained, the notice of appeal will be withdrawn, and the amended motion for a new trial of the court a new notice of appeal will be given.

WOODMEN PICNIC TO BREAK RECORD

Lodges Hope to Establish New Attendance Mark

Lone Star Camp No. 2, Woodmen of the World, holds its annual picnic at Lake Erie Thursday, June 21. Special invitations have been sent to all Woodmen camps in the county.
Last year the Woodmen had the greatest attendance of any picnic held at Lake Erie, and as they have recently added over five hundred members to their organization, it is anticipated that this picnic will be a record breaker.
Arrangements have been made for 4-500 pounds of barbecue meat, so that there will be a supply for everybody.
There will be several new features added by the management at Lake Erie that will be ready for opening on the day of this picnic.
Besides these there will be the usual games and contests that are features of the Woodmen picnics. Special prizes of a gold piece each will be given for the prettiest baby girl and boy under 18 months of age.
As the committee wishes to have a record of the number attending the picnic it is requested that all secure tickets at the Interurban offices before getting on the cars. Cars will run every half hour.
