U.S. Oil Cars Are Seized In Juarez

(By The Associated Press)

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico, March 25—Seventy railroad tank cars belonging to United States interests were under control of the Mexican government tonight while reports of acute shortages of oil and gas in northern Mexico filtered into this border city on the Rio Grande.

E. H. Todd, El Paso manager of the Standard Oil company, said the tank cars, seized yesterday in Juarez yards, belong to the United Tank Line Express, which leased them to Standard and other oil companies.

As the effects of President Lazaro Cardenas' order expropriating the foreign-owned oil industry reached here, Francisco D. Gonzalez, Mexican customs chief, said: "orders have been issued to the Juarez railway station to prevent return of the tank cars to the United States."

It was said seizure of the tankers would mean the last shipment of gasoline and fuel oil from the United States into Mexico through regular freight channels. Railroads were refusing to continue shipments into the republic following expropriation of the tank cars.

Fifty-gallon containers were bringing gasoline and oil into Juarez from El Paso. The price on high grade products rose seven centavos per litre, and there was a four-centavo increase on inferior qualities.

There were reports of acute shortage of fuel oil and gasoline in Chihuahua City, Casas Grandes and other northern Chihuahua cities. Electric current was suspended temporarily here because the power company's generators are diesel powered and dependent on fuel oil.

Ten Don'ts For The Successful Wife Offered

LONDON, March 25. (AP)—To be a successful wife, Dr. Ethel Dukes, psychologist, said in a recent speech here, a woman must not:

Be domineering.

Criticize her husband in the presence of others.

Insist on changing him.

Refuse to be friends with his friends.

Try to show him off.

Make him into an extra servant.

Insist on constant entertaining when he is tired and prefers a good book and his pipe.

Run down his mother or other relatives.

Get into debt.

Refuse to have children if he wants them provided there is no medical reason for not having them.

More Revisions Being Made In Tax Proposal

Gift And Estate Taxes Pared From Bill; Members Swayed By Words Of State Leaders

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The senate finance committee performed another major operation on the house-approved tax revision bill today, removing its gift and estate tax provisions.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the committee said members were swayed by arguments of state officials that the house provisions would lead the federal government farther into state fields of taxation.

Eliminates Confusion

Rejecting the house levies, the committee wrote into the bill those in the existing law. Harrison said this would eliminate confusion and would not reduce revenue.

Yesterday, the committee wiped out the house-approved undistributed profits tax and overhauled the capital gains levy. The changes today left only minor portions of the house measure intact.

Exemptions Provided

The house bill would provide a flat $40,000 exemption for both estate and gift taxes, reduce a separate annual exemption for gift taxes from $5,000 to $3,000, and reduce credits allowed for state gift and estate tax payments from about 25 per cent of the federal tax to 16.5 per cent.

The senate committee recommended retention of the present separate $40,000 exemptions for both the estate and gift levies, or a total of $80,000, and eliminated the other changes voted by the house.

Sovereignty Threatened

Harrison said statements by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York and other state officials had a great deal of influence on the committee's decision.

Lehman, in a letter to the committee, charged that the "independent sovereignty of the states is threatened by federal taxing policies."

Row Over Powers Heads For Court

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The case of Dr. Arthur Morgan versus President Roosevelt et al., which may ultimately be decided by the supreme court, promises to bring not only presidential removal powers, but those claimed by congress in the Tennessee valley authority act, under judicial scrutiny.

The case may be a new and crucial test in the long struggle for power between the executive and legislative branches of government—a struggle that has continued ever since the constitution was adopted.

Question Almost Ignored

The argument over the president's removal of Dr. Morgan has all but ignored a phase of the dispute that might prove more important to the future of the nation and its governmental system than the fate of Morgan, or even of the vast experiment in the Tennessee river basin.

That is the question whether congress can virtually thumb its nose at the veto powers of the presidency and by mere majority action remove federal employes from office through adoption of a concurrent resolution.

A provision in the TVA act, fathered by Senator Norris (Ind-Neb), says congress may remove TVA directors by concurrent resolution. A concurrent resolution does

Strikes Sweep France; Blum Averts Crisis

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, March 25.—Premier Leon Blum tonight failed to halt wave of strikes which his own supporters inspired to prevent his cabinet's overthrow.

Strikers, estimated to total 26,720, got out of hand and demanded concessions which employers so far have refused. The government sought a method to appease them.

Averts Cabinet Crisis

The socialist premier, however, averted a cabinet crisis by withdrawing a plan to divert 3,145,000,000 francs (currently about $95,900,000) from the exchange equalization fund to a special defense fund.

The senate yesterday refused to approve this proposal and senators demanded Blum quit the office he has held since March 13 in favor of a national government with another leader.

Blum declined to press his plan.

Borrowing Approved

He took to the chamber of deputies the measure the senate had approved for borrowing 5,000,000,000 francs (currently about $152,500,000) to meet immediate bills and received its ratification.

This money was necessary for payment of the governmental payroll of 1,200,000,000 francs (currently $36,600,000) today.

Speaking just before the chamber vote on this measure, Blum announced he would submit a bill to parliament for sweeping reorganization of French economy and finances to strengthen the nation in face of threats of an European war.

Crowley Studying Chances In Race

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 25.—Karl Crowley of Fort Worth, solicitor of the United States postoffice department, began a first-hand study of the Texas political situation today with a view of deciding whether to step into the governor's race.

After conferring with both Governor James V. Allred and former Governor James E. Ferguson, Crowley said he still had not made up his mind but would before leaving Texas next Thursday.

Adds To Criticism

He added to his previous criticism of Candidates Ernest O. Thompson and William McCraw.

"If the foreign corporations which largely run our state have their way," he said, "there won't be any more candidates."

Crowley said he urged Allred and Ferguson to "help save Texas from complete domination by big, foreign corporations."

The potential candidate advocated a substantial increase in the oil production tax, asserting a bill could be drawn in such fashion that gasoline consumers in other states and nations would be forced to pay it.

To Announce Decision

Crowley intended to go from here to Fort Worth and said he would announce his decision on the governor's race at Fort Worth or Dallas.

Ferguson left the impression, Crowley said, that he did not yet know whether his wife, former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, would seek to return to the governor's office.

Odd Happenings In Day's News

(By The Associated Press)

ABERDEEN, Md., March 25.—Magistrate Frank F. Aaronson sentenced Edward Johnson, negro, to a year in jail after Johnson pleaded guilty to charges he entered the home of Fred Seibert while the family was away, virtually destroyed the furnishings with blasts from a shotgun, turned Seibert's horses loose, broke down a fence, wounded a negro woman who tried to stop him, and threatened the Seiberts when they returned.

President Roosevelt's Own Story Of The New Deal

FDR Tells How Unemployment Relief Was Carried On

(Editor's Introductory Note)

(When by executive order of May 6, 1935, the President launched the vast works program with the present WPA as its key agency, not less than 40 federal agencies participated in it. These, with their alphabetical names lending the New Deal a distinguishing characteristic, had been hastily organized to combat the emergency in 1933.

(The administration's first move had been the President's message to Congress on March 21, 1933, calling for three attacks upon the problem—the Civilian Conservation corps for idle young men, the Public Works administration for large-scale projects to put workers into jobs, and the Federal Emergency Relief administration for aiding state and local authorities in general direct relief.

(The CCC is the subject of the next installment of the President's commentaries to his "Public Papers." In today's article the beginnings of the FERA and its development through various stages into the present WPA are narrated in President Roosevelt's own words taken from his five volumes, and never before published.)

* * *

IN 1933, direct relief work was immediately necessary to feed and clothe millions of our destitute and unemployed citizens, whose resources and means of livelihood had completely vanished during the years of depression.

When I first took office, there existed little of importance either in the way of precedent or in factual knowledge to guide us in the formulation of an adequate policy of unemployment relief.

Unemployment Total Mounts

Indeed, although the depression had continued for more than three years and the number of unemployed had gradually risen to more than 15,000,000 employable persons, the very idea of federal aid to the needy had been stubbornly resisted by the then federal administration until the passage of the Emergency Relief and Construction act approved July 21, 1932.

Even there, the measure of responsibility assumed by the federal government was slight. That statute, disregarding the then desperate financial condition of many states and cities, still assumed unemployment relief to be a matter of exclusively local responsibility. It proposed to lend money, through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, at 3 per cent interest to the respective states, up to a total of $300,000,000.

These loans were to be repaid to the R.F.C. by deduction from future federal highway grants to the borrowing states. As an alternative, loans could be made directly to cities and counties to aid in financing projects which were "self-liquidating in character."

Learns Better Later

Later experience has shown that a proper recovery and relief policy should avoid great reliance upon self-liquidating projects and schemes, because these add little to the total volume of spending, and do not create large-scale purchasing power. We now know that adequate care of the millions requiring public assistance necessitated a system of outright federal aid, consisting of grants rather than loans.

The problem of unemployment was a national one—beyond the resources of states and municipalities, already overburdened by decreasing tax receipts and increasing indebtedness. Private philanthropy was wholly inadequate to supplement local public relief efforts.

In accordance with my message, the Congress passed the Federal Emergency Relief act, approved by me May 12, 1933.

* * *

New Relief Policy

THE statute was expressive of the new government attitude.

First, it recognized that relief was a social problem to be administered by a social agency rather than by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which was purely a financial agency.

Second, it provided for outright grants to states instead of the prior system of making loans to states

One can get a proper study of a husband by the expression on his wife's face.

HOW VERY TYPICAL!

TO us the funny thing in Thursday's papers wasn't on the comic page but in a three-paragraph story out of Hollywood telling of the birth of a daughter to Mrs. Bob Burns, wife of the man who made us Van Buren conscious. Said Mr. Burns a few hours after his wife was admitted to the hospital: "I hope it's a girl, because I don't want a boy to go through what I'm going through now."

That little utterance must have brought smiles to many mothers' faces and brought memories to many a father who remembered nervously pacing a hospital corridor and the rather uncomforting advice of the doctor of something like: "Cheer up old man, I've never lost a father yet."

College Groups To Have Two Dances

One hundred women have made reservations for a Delta Kappa Gamma luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today at the Hilton hotel. The organization is a national teachers' society. Miss Eula Carter of Fort Worth, state president, will preside and Miss Dorothy Lomax will be toastmistress.

Speakers will be Miss Berneta Minkwitz of Fort Worth, national treasurer; Mrs. H. F. Godeke, honorary member; Mrs. J. T. Baisden, Miss Elizabeth H. West and Miss Flora McGee.

Tonight's social calendar includes two Texas Technological college club dances.

D. F. D. club is entertaining with an annual presentation dance at the Auditorium. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock, and 14 members and pledges will be introduced at 10 o'clock.

The Plant Industry club of the college will entertain with an annual sport dance in the men's dormitory. The Melody Maids, an all-girl orchestra will play. All proceeds, above expenses, will be used to send a grain judging team to an international contest in Chicago. Seventy-five cents for couples and one dollar for stags are to be admission charges.

Models were Misses Rose Rooney, Helen Allen, Beryl Duff, Geraldine Crow, Marie Shook, Orvalene Price, Addie Lee Terrell, Margaret Hemby and little Margaret Ann Garlin.

Garments modeled included negligees, pajamas, beach wear, play suits, sports, knitted, travel, afternoon dinner and evening dresses and frocks for two wedding parties. The first group was made up of a bride modeled by Miss Crow, who wore white, hand-embroidered supernet over satin. Miss Hemby, bridesmaid, who wore blue supernet and the flower girl, Margaret Ann Garlin, who wore rose supernet.

Miss Duff modeled the bridal dress for the second party. She wore an aqua blue taffeta frock made in typical Marie Antoinette style of 40 yards, scalloped and plaited with puff sleeves, draped shoulders and long veil.

Texas Rangers Ask Aid In Finding Owner Of Cattle

Texas rangers Friday solicited the aid of the Morning Avalanche in locating the owner or owners of four head of livestock which were believed to have been stolen.

Frank Mills, ranger stationed here, described the cattle as a dark blue two-year-old Jersey bull, right horn drooped, left horn broken one and a half inches from the tip; a half-breed yearling bull with horns, small nip out of the right ear on the lower side; a white spotted Jersey bull; and a white and red spotted yearling heifer.

The stock was located by the rangers and other state and county officers recently north of Lubbock.

Mills asked that the owners or persons who might be able to identify the stock to communicate with him either at the Lubbock hotel or at the office of Sheriff Tom Abel.

When frightened, rabbits stamp several times on the ground with their hind feet, making a sound which can be heard a long way off. This serves as a danger signal to fellow rabbits, who scamper off to safety.

No New Candidates Announce In City

At Friday midnight, deadline for filing for candidacy in the city election April 5 in order to have names placed on the printed ballot, no additional aspirants had announced, officials said.

However, any prescribed legal form of announcement received in the mail bearing a postmark of earlier than Friday midnight will obtain a place on the printed ballot, said Miss Lavenia Williams, city secretary.

Unless there are additions to the list in the mails, there will be two candidates in the mayor's race, two for commission place No. 1 and four in the race for place 3.

The candidates, in the order of filing, are:

Mayor—Pink L. Parrish and Carl F. Slaton; commission place No. 1—L. D. (Pup) Thomas and W. B. (Bill) Price, seeking reelection; and place No. 3—A. S. Jackson, Hub Jones, L. R. Rampy and T. J. George.

News Briefs...

W. B. Irvin, superintendent of Lubbock Public schools, left Thursday for Dallas where he will attend a state conference on what might be done regarding the 12 year system in Texas. At this conference superintendents, principals, and teachers from all over the state will attempt to decide on the course of action for the next year.

A chartered bus taking 18 mechanical engineering students and three faculty members of Texas Technological college to College Station is to leave from the men's dormitory at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. H. F. Godeke, head professor, and V. L. Doughtie, assistant professor, and Sgt. William B. Richards are to go. The group will attend a southwestern regional meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Monday and Tuesday.

Two new buses, powered with Yellow Coach engines, were placed in service Friday by Lubbock Bus Co., said Ray Farmer, manager. One of the machines was placed on the Broadway and Main street run and the other on Nineteenth street. Both are 21 passenger capacity.

Final meeting of chairmen of committees making arrangements for the Texas Intercollegiate Dramatic tournament to be conducted here Monday through Wednesday was held Friday afternoon at Texas Technological college. Miss Ruth Pirtle, head of the speech department, presided. Casts will begin arriving Sunday and registration will open at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Eight colleges will be represented. Notification was received late Friday that the University of Houston cast will be unable to participate.

Lubbock was selected as the host for the next meeting of the District 9 Baptist Training union, Women's Missionary society, and Sunday School joint convention at the closing session in Plainview. The 1939 meeting will be held March 7 and 8.

Three or more fellowcraft degrees will be conferred in a ceremony by the Masonic lodge at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the lodge hall, according to announcement by Guy Casey, worshipful master. Members from several out-of-town lodges have been invited. Refreshments will be served, Casey said.

Ross Berry, Lubbock resident 14 years and for a time a deputy constable, Friday announced he would be a candidate for the office of constable, precinct No. 1, subject to action of the Democratic primary elections. He will oppose Winnie Roberts Coleman who was appointed to serve the unexpired term of her father, Berry said he would make a public statement Sunday.

Justiceburg lake, well-known fishing area of West Texas will be closed to all but members only after April 1, according to S. H. Peavey, president of a group of Slaton men, who leased it from the Santa Fe.

Articles by two members of the history faculty of Texas Technological college are included in the recently published West Texas Historical association yearbook. Dr. S. S. McKay, professor, wrote an article on the Texas State Democratic convention of 1878, and Ernest Wallace wrote one on the early career of Charles DeMorse, who was prominent in state politics several decades.

A paper on "Mechanical Engineering Courses for Non-Mechanical Engineering Students," written by V. L. Doughtie, mechanical engineering professor at Texas Technological college, was printed in the March issue of the Journal of Engineering, published by the national Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. The paper was chosen from those presented at a meeting of the Texas section of the SPEE in Dallas in April, 1937.

Approximately 12 masters and 35 den chiefs of the South Plains council will attend. Dr. C. C. Schmidt, cubbing commissioner for the council, and Lyndon T. Grant, assistant executive, will be in charge. The camp will be concluded Sunday afternoon.

Decrease In Traffic Deaths Over The State Expected

An appreciable decrease in Texas traffic deaths in 1938 is expected by state safety experts according to Capt. W. W. Legge of the Lubbock district office of the Texas Highway Patrol.

February closed with 143 crash fatalities as compared with 157 in February, 1937. Total accident count for February was 1,129 with only 853 reported in 1937 for that month. This means, state police said, that more drivers and pedestrians are surviving accidents.

New York state spends $134.13 annually, more than any other state, for the education of each child in its public schools.

Major General Inspects Corps

After inspecting the Texas Technological college engineering unit of the Reserve Officers Training corps and seeing a review of the Tech unit of 115 members, Major General H. J. Brees, commander of the eighth corps area with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, left Friday for Amarillo.

Approximately 500 persons witnessed the review. The Tech band played.

Greeted At Airport

In a group which met the major general and his aide, Lieut. Paul A. Gavin, and accompanied him to the airport when he left were R. C. Hopping, president of the chamber of commerce, Spencer A. Wells, vice chairman of the college board of directors; Capt. Frank A. Pettit, commander of the Tech unit; J. H. Brock and Dick Shinkle of the chamber of commerce; R. F. Hinchey, vice president and general manager of the West Texas Gas company.

As corps area commander, General Brees has as his only superior Gen. Malin Craig, chief of staff of the United States army.

Major General Brees only exercised his prerogative to inspect the unit at any time, Captain Pettit said this morning in correction of a report that the commander was to make the annual war department inspection of the unit. The official inspection will be made April 6 by Major Robert O. Poage, assistant civilian components officer of the eighth corps area, Fort Sam Houston.

Goes To Amarillo

From here, the commander and his aide and pilot went to Amarillo where the general will inspect the high school R. O. T. C. unit there.

Immediately after the review, which began upon arrival of the party from the airport, the corps area commander inspected the unit building and equipment.

Officers of the unit are Captain Pettit, Lieut. Harrol J. Skidmore, Sgt. William B. Richards, and Sgt. Leonard R. Day.

Frances Turner, honorary co-ed commander for last year, and Nancy Anderson, honorary commander this year, were present at the review. Student officers are Rufus Ryan, commander; Amatus Chamberlain, captain of Company A; and W. Noel Bryant, captain of Company B.

Escort Is Furnished

A motorcycle escort from Lubbock police department preceded the party when it came into Lubbock and on the return to the airport.

General Brees and his aide were shown through the textile building by M. E. Heard, head professor of textile engineering, and were presented with ties made in the department, at conclusion of the inspection.

The corps area commander was highly complimentary of the city and college and with the R. O. T. C. unit.

Farmer Of Near Woodrow Is Treated Following Mishap

After treatment for injuries suffered when his automobile was struck by a truck near the Cooper Rural High school under construction at Woodrow, Clyde Mote, 30, farmer of near Woodrow, was dismissed at West Texas hospital Friday.

His left arm was broken just above the wrist, and a deep gash in his forehead required several stitches to suture. He also suffered bruises over the body.

Mote said at the hospital his car was swung over in front of an approaching truck when the wheels struck sand. The front of his automobile was damaged badly. The driver of the truck was not injured, according to reports here.

Sanders ambulance went to the scene, but the man had been brought to the hospital in an automobile. Two highway patrolmen were investigating.

Play Day Program Is Slated Today

Girls of Junior and Senior High schools, ages 9 to 16, will participate in the play day at Senior High this morning. Registration began yesterday, but girls who have not registered may do so between 8:30 and 9 o'clock this morning.

The day of play is the second such event to be sponsored by the girls' physical education teachers of the two schools. Mrs. L. H. Kirby and Misses Catherine Jameson, Nancy Leaverton, and Ouida Davis, teachers, will be assisted by practice teachers from Texas Technological college and a few students.

The morning will be divided into three periods of one hour each. During the first hour girls will register for basketball, captainball, jacks, deck tennis, and kick baseball. Volleyball, tennis, horseshoes, and ping-pong will be played during the second period, and relays, skating, clogging, folk dances, aerial darts and baseball the third.

A registration fee of 5 cents will be charged each girl.

R. A. McKinney's Breakfast Egg All Wired Up, He Finds

Perhaps it was mistaken for a worm by some hungry hen, or it might have been the power of suggestion that placed a wire in R. A. McKinney's hardboiled egg.

Mrs. McKinney, while cooking at their home at 1701 Nineteenth street, was telling her husband of an account she had read in a newspaper about a wire being found in an egg. She placed a hardboiled egg on her husband's plate.

He broke it open — and there was a copper wire, extending through the yolk.

Hawaiian Music Is Featured At ABC Luncheon Friday

Hawaiian music by a native of Honolulu, John (Jack) Kaaua, who both sang and played a ukulele, featured yesterday's American Business club program at the Hilton hotel. W. T. (Highpockets) Overton and his tin pan band gave the program, which included a tap dance, orchestra numbers and three by Kaaua.

Dr. U. S. Marshall presided as chairman of the day, with Joe McIlhaney his associate. Sam Richardson, captain of the bowling team, said the team would practice Monday and Tuesday nights. They defeated the Lions club team last week by three points.

J. Ray Dickey, club representative on the Lubbock Safety council, announced the club would be host Monday night to the council at Junior High school. President William Collins named Guy Wheatley, Fenner Tubbs and Hugh Anderson as hosts.

Casinghead Gasoline Plant In KMA Oil Field Is Planned

PONCA CITY, Okla., Mar. 25. (AP)—Plans for immediate construction of a casinghead gasoline plant in the K. M. A. oil field near Wichita Falls, Tex., were announced here today by the Continental Oil company.

J. G. Dyer, manager of the company's production department, said the plant would have an initial capacity of 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily but would be designed to permit later enlargement. He said a site for the plant would be selected at once.

Dyer said the plant "should greatly increase the recovery from the leases served and assure long life to the leases." He said gathering lines would be laid to bring gas to the plant from great distances.

Registered Mail Pouch Being Sought By Postal Officials

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Mar. 25. (AP)—Postal inspectors sought today to trace a registered mail pouch, missing with contents of unestimated value somewhere between the Albuquerque postoffice and Belen, N. M.

"We don't know yet whether it was robbery or not," said J. H. Walker, superintendent of the mails.

Postmaster J. A. Werner said the pouch was last checked Monday morning as it was about to be placed on a station-bound truck. Mail clerks reported it missing at nearby Belen, where it was to have been transferred to a train for Amarillo, Texas.

Last Hopes Of Lubbock Entries In AAU Boxing Tournament Fade In Finals

CCC Battler Is Decision Victim; Bates KO'd

By COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche Sports Writer

DALLAS, March 25.—Last of the Lubbock district delegates to the southwestern AAU boxing tournament faded from the picture when Wayne Penn, plucky CCC fighter, lost by a technical knockout to Alex Parrish, clever state Golden Gloves featherweight champion from Wichita Falls, soon after Billy Bates of Slaton had lost by a clean kayo to Johnny Page, Dallas champion.

Bout Quickly Ended

The bout ended after a minute and a half of the second round after Penn had been floored four times—three times in the first round. He demonstrated fine courage in coming back, and swapped punches with the classy Parrish for the first minute, drawing nice applause.

Referee Johnny Harrison stopped the fight after one of Parrish's left hooks had caught Penn on the jaw. It was a nifty fight, but Penn was outclassed by the more experienced Golden Gloves champion.

For the second night in a row, little Billy Bates of Slaton, representing the Lubbock district in the flyweight division opened the show. He was down for the 10-count, after an early knockdown in the first round. Dallas' Johnny Page, several years older, both in age and fighting experience, rushed Bates with a double salvo of rights and lefts, and it was over almost as soon as it started.

Knockout Not Injurious

Bates had looked good in winning two previous fights, both by unanimous decisions, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The plucky little Slaton High schooler was not hurt by the knockout, although the kayo blow caught him flush in the face. He fell flat on his back, turned over on his stomach at the count of five, and stayed there. He was able to leave the ring under his own power, and apparently suffered no ill effects.

OTHER RESULTS

DALLAS, March 25. (AP)—Pete Pietzsch, of Amarillo, a student at West Texas State Teachers college, sprang an upset tonight by winning the heavyweight title of the Southwestern A. A. U. Boxing tournament.

Pietzsch took the championship by decisioning Dewey Vaughan of Dallas in a slugfest.

Champions in seven other divisions were decided.

In a match which had the fans on their feet, George Porter of Dallas defeated W. C. Kirkland of Waco for the lightweight title.

The only clean knockout came in the first bout, when Johnny Page of Dallas flattened Billy Bates of Lubbock to take flyweight honors.

Alex Parrish of Wichita Falls was given a technical knockout victory over Wayne Penn in the featherweight class. Penn was so groggy in the second round Referee Johnny Harrington stopped the bout.

Arthur Dorrell, state Golden Gloves champion in the welterweight division, defeated Earl Brown of Lubbock; Edward Russey of Wichita Falls, bantamweight, won by decision over James Masters of Fort Worth; Charles Henderson, Dallas middleweight, defeated Neil Milton of Amarillo, and Delmar Koch, Amarillo, won the light heavyweight title on a default from Lee Parris of Dallas. Parris suffered an injured rib in a bout last night.

Bear Triple With Two Aboard Bests Texas Aggies, 7 To 5

WACO, March 25. (AP)—Ross Hightower lambasted a triple in the seventh inning with two mates aboard to give the Baylor Bears a 7 to 5 victory over the Texas Aggies in their Southwest conference baseball encounter here today.

Woody Bell's homer in the seventh stanza which tied the score was the only earned run made by the cadets off the delivery of Tommy Fine who gave up but three hits, although he walked eight batters. He struck out six others. Baylor bobbles donated the Aggies their remaining tallies.

Battle Of Sophs Allows SMU To Beat Texas Christian

FORT WORTH, March 25. (AP)—Sophomore J. C. Wofford of Southern Methodist university bested Sophomore Woodrow Duckworth of Texas Christian university in a 10-inning mound duel today as the Mustangs took their opening Southwest conference baseball game 5-4.

The teams clash in a second battle here tomorrow.

Posey Defeats Estacado In Events Of Interscholastic League, Class B

Posey defeated Estacado, 32 to 27, in class B events run off in the grammar school Interscholastic league contests held at Tech field Friday afternoon.

Rodgers of Posey ran off with individual honors, capturing first places in the 50-yard and 100-yard dashes, two second places, and running a lap in the winning relay team. He compiled 15 1-2 points.

In class A tennis, little Rex Anderson of Shallowater copped top place in boys singles by defeating W. H. Vermillion of Slaton, 6-3, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. The mite was in top form and showed signs of good tennis throughout preliminaries and the finals.

Slaton, Idalou Tennis Winners

Team of Frank Todd and James Thornton of Slaton bested Lynn Arnold and Ralph Avery of Shallowater in boys doubles.

Ruth Boyd of Idalou beat Thelma Jo Melton of Slaton for the girls singles crown. Dortha Nell Dawkins and Margaret Leggitt of Cooper won the doubles title by default from Jimmie Jean Guinn and Fern Wheatley of Slaton.

We Hear From Faraway Friends

Mr. James Turner of Boston and Nashville, Tenn., is visiting in Bradenton, Fla., where he has been the guest of honor on many delightful social occasions, such as the one pictured here. Mr. Turner has renewed many friendships of former days.

An outstanding event on the social calendar of Bradenton was the arrival of Mr. Casey Stengel of the Boston Stengels.

Mr. Wallace Moses of Philadelphia recently was seen in Hot Springs, Ark., according to one of our faithful correspondents.

Mr. Elwood George English of Brooklyn, N. Y., is enjoying a restful vacation absorbing fresh air and sunshine in the South. He is spending some time in Florida, and is not expected at home before the latter part of April.

Mr. Clifford George Melton of Brevard, N. C.; Baltimore, Md., and New York City, has written friends of the delightful time he is having in the Southland. He expects to extend his stay for the duration of the "racquette" season.

DODGERS BEAT REDS

TAMPA, Fla., March 25. (AP)—Held hitless and runless through the first four innings, the Brooklyn Dodgers landed on Lee Grissom for two tallies in the fifth, and picked up one each off Whitey Moore and Peaches Davis to down the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 2 in an exhibition today.

Battleship Wins Sweepstakes In Exciting Race

By SCOTTY RESTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

AINTREE, Eng., March 25.—Running on his heart with a 17-year old kid on his back, Battleship oday won an heroic "All-America" victory in the 100th grand National steeplechase to take a place alongside War Admiral as a worthy son of mighty Man O'War.

They said he was a pony out of his class and started him at 40-1. Yet he carried the rose and silver colors of Mrs. Marion duPont Scott of Montpelier, Va., wife of the screen actor, Randolph Scott, near the front all the way.

He stepped in command a second time over Becher's brook, slipped back and then came again. He was beaten at the last fence by a half-length but he answered the whip and won by a head from H. C. McNally's Royal Daniele, an 18 to 1 shot. Sir Alex Macguire's Workman was far back for third place in the field of 36.

Beautiful Ride Results

The kid on Battleship's back was Bruce Hobbs, American-born apple-cheeked boy. His father trained Battleship and two weeks ago decided the boy should ride—that decision won the race. For this youngster, who was taken to England at the age of two after his father had handled F. Ambrose Clark's horses at Westbury, L. I., for 20 years, made his mistakes, mastered them and then whipped his mount home like a veteran twice his years.

There are a lot of "firsts" to report about this race witnessed by a crowd estimated at 250,000. It was the first time a father-son trainer-jockey combination had produced a winner. In 1935, however, Raynoldstown was owned by Maj. Noel Furlong and ridden to victory by his son, Frank. It was the first time a horse actually bred and raced in America ever won the jumping classic. It was the first time a lad so young had ridden the winner.

History Made

The only other American-bred horse ever to win the race was the California-foaled Rubio in 1908 and he was owned by an Englishman.

A few yards from home Battleship got his head in front and there it stayed to win approximately $35,000. His time over the rain-drenched course was nine minutes, 29 4-5 seconds.

The most grateful crowd in town tonight were the bookies who figured to lose around $5,000,000 if almost any of the real favorites had won. Several were tied up in the "spring double" with Phakos, winner of Wednesday's Lincolnshire.

Battleship hadn't annoyed the judges much all season. The best he was able to do was third in his last three races. His best year on the American soil was in 1934 when he won the Grand National at Belmont park, the National Hunt cup and three other major races.

He was entered for the Aintree classic last year but didn't start.

Tom Yawkey Still Hopeful Of His Red Stockings

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Staff Writer

SARASOTA, Fla., Mar. 25. (AP)—Joe Cronin, manager of the gilded Boston Red Sox, was at the plate, swishing hard but vainly at a splendid assortment of curves, and a fan whose voice carried was yelling with a degree of scorn: "Sit down, ya quarter-million dollar bum, ya."

The young man sitting next to the writer was able to grin and remark: "That must be my money he's indignant about." It was, for the man who still could smile about it was Tom Yawkey, who has sunk more genuine spending money in the Red Sox than grandpa had oats.

Yawkey isn't indignant at all and he has no particular regrets. He is proud, rather, that he has kept faith with the fans of Boston in trying to give them a winning club. He's quit tossing his riches about quite so lavishly as in his first flush of enthusiasm at owning a ball team, but there's still more where the other came from if Yawkey sees a player he really wants.

Not Bitter

"I never did think I could go into the market and buy a championship team," Yawkey declared. "I realize that will upset the general opinion but it's honest truth. What I knew had to be done was to restore the faith of Boston fans in the Red Sox. I believe I have done that even if we haven't won a flag. That will come later.

"I could have gone along slowly establishing a farm system and in time probably have given them a better team. But in the meantime they would have become soured even worse, if possible. I considered the better way was to show them some quick action, and at the same time be building for the future.

"Of course, if we had been fortunate enough to buy a championship combination right off the bat, so much the better. But what I'm getting at is that I hadn't counted on it and that I'm not the bitter, remorseful soul some of the boys have made me out. Things are going all right."

"Nothing To Worry About"

Things were not unfortunately going all right for the Red Sox at that moment on the field. They were trailing, 2 to 1, and such high-priced individuals as Cronin, Jimmie Fox, Frank Higgins and Roger Cramer weren't hitting anything except fouls.

"It's nothing to worry about," said Yawkey optimistically. "We were late starting and our batters haven't caught up with the pitchers yet, but it's a good team. All we need is for one of our young pitchers to come through and we will be up there in the race."

Helen Dettweiler Winner Of Augusta Women's Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 25. (AP)—Blonde Helen Dettweiler of Washington, D. C., won the eighth annual Augusta women's golf tournament today, defeating Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., 3 and 2.

She ended the match on the 16th after making the turn two up.

San Bernardino county, Calif., has an area of 20,175 square miles.

Ghezzi Wins North-South Tournament

PINEHURST, N. C., March 25. (AP)—Shooting a 279 for the 72 holes, Victor Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., won the 35th renewal of the North and South open golf tournament today.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., who won the 1935 event with a record score of 276, was second with 285. Horton Smith, Chicago, the defending champion; Ed Dudley, Augusta, Ga., and Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., tied for third place with scores of 286. Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, L. I., followed with a 287.

Top Dog From Start

Ghezzi had a fourth round 70, his third sub-par round of the event. Par is 72.

Ghezzi dominated the proceedings from the start. He led in three of the four rounds and tied for the lead in the other. He was over par in only one round.

Ghezzi collected $1,000 of the $1,000 purse which hoists his year's winnings to $2,225. He was second in the Sacramento open and fifth at New Orleans. He will be a hot favorite in the $5,000 open starting at Greensboro, N. C., tomorrow.

Lubbock Thinly Clads Winners Of Tourney

Lubbock High school gained 13 first places to amass 91 points in an invitational track and field meet at Texas Tech field Friday afternoon.

Only Jackson of Spade was able to win a first place for other of the four teams, his 10.1 century dash, beating Jumbo Webster of Lubbock to the tape by a foot or more. It was the feature race of the afternoon, Webster having shaded the Spade lad last Saturday.

Cooksey High

Melvin Cooksey of Lubbock was high point man, garnering 16 1-4 points on three firsts and a place on the winning mile relay team. Performance of Lyons of Lubbock in clipping off the 880-yard run was considered the best of the day.

James Simms of Lubbock piled up 11 points, and Jackson came in with 8 1-2. Crosbyton was second in the meet with 22 points, with Spade making 13; Ralls, 12, and Slaton, 7.

The meet was a warm-up for the district meet to be held at Tech field April 8 and 9.

Dykes Will Sacrifice Hitting For Defense; Cubs Announce Outfield; MacPhail Pays Off; Giants Routed Out Early

(By The Associated Press)

PASADENA, Calif. — Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox is determined to make the club good defensively even if it costs hitting power. After trading Zeke Bonura for Joe Kuhel he is sticking to his purpose of developing Larry Rosenthal, a fine fielder, as a regular outfielder in place of the weak fielding but heavy hitting Rip Radcliff.

Cubs Expect To Be Out In Front Aug. 1

LOS ANGELES—The Chicago Cubs have decided on their 1938 outfield. Manager Charley Grimm will have Augie Galan in left, Joe Marty in center and Frank Demaree in right when the season opens. Grimm contends that if the pitching holds up the Cubs will be "out in front by Aug. 1 and will win the pennant breezing."

MacPhail Believes In Paying Off—And Does

TAMPA, Fla.—Larry (Bonus) MacPhail, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, believes in paying off on the spot. Cookie Lavagetto broke up yesterday's game with a 360-foot homer and MacPhail, who has offered Cookie rewards for luster hitting, promptly dug down and came up with $10 for the circuit clout.

Yank Hurler Doing Right Well, Thank You

SEBRING, Fla.—Spud Chandler, the right-hander who went so well with the New York Yankees last year before a sore arm put him on the sidelines, is making a bid for a starting berth with the champions. He has hurled 11 innings so far and has yielded seven hits only one run.

Bill Terry Still Slave Driver; Team Up Early

BATON ROUGE, La.—According to Bill Terry hard work is the only antidote when a team becomes self-satisfied. So the colonel had his New York Giants out of bed at 9 a. m. and practicing at the ball park. Result: After two nightmarish trimmings by the Athletics they beat New Orleans of the Southern association.

McKechnie On His Ear After His Club Takes Drubbing

TAMPA, Fla.—The Cincinnati Reds' manager, Bill McKechnie, planned to throw Lee Grissom and Whitey Moore against the Dodgers to get even for Wednesday's defeat. The Reds were on their good behavior after dropping one yesterday to Kansas City, an event that filled the deacon with wrath.

Feller Through? No Runs Scored In Eight Innings

NEW ORLEANS—Bob Feller has not yet been scored on in the eight innings he has pitched for the Cleveland Indians in exhibition games. He has allowed only three hits, all singles, in four innings against the Giants and four more against the Athletics yesterday. The Tribe meets the A's again today.

The ashes of W. E. Milton Bode, a horse and dog fancier, were buried at his request in an English dog cemetery.

Glenn Cunningham And Chuck Fenske To Vie Tonight In Gruelling Race

By WILLIAM WEEKES

CHICAGO, March 25.—The making of a spectacular new rivalry for the star role in that stirring foot-racing drama, the great American mile—between Glenn Cunningham and Chuck Fenske—will be tested tomorrow night for the first time.

Cunningham and Fenske have met before, but not since the young Wisconsin speedster suddenly established himself as a definite threat. Tomorrow night they will get together under the new setup in the famous Bankers' mile, feature of the Chicago Daily News relays at the international Amphitheater.

Glenn Would Climax Season

The Kansan will seek to bring his greatest indoor season to a fitting climax against Fenske. He has won 14 races this year on the boards, including the greatest of all miles, his 4:04.4 at Dartmouth college a month ago. He has run the distance 10 times under 4:10. Against this stunning record, Fenske has youth and a fine 4:08.9 mile, achieved last week, to offer.

They will run over a new track. Special 7-8-inch spruce stock was used in its construction to make it the fastest board oval in the country.

The field includes another pair of stars, Archie San Romani and Gene Venzke.

The Bankers' mile will be flanked by a half-dozen other events with all-star fields. Ben Johnson, fleet Columbia negro, will tackle Bill Clifford of Notre Dame, John Davenport of Chicago, and Eulace Peacock of Temple in a sprint series at 40, 50 and 55 yards. Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist, and Allan Tolmich of Wayne university will hook up in a hurdles over the same distances.

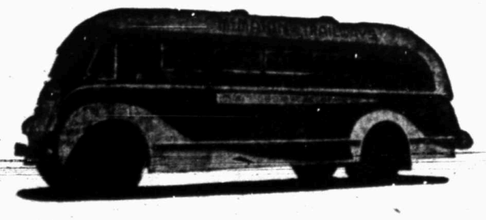

Other Noted Stars Entered

Jimmy Herbert, of New York university, who holds the world indoor mark of 1:11.1 for 600 yards, and Chuck Beetham, former Ohio State star, who beat him here last year, will try it again at the same distance. Indiana's Don Lash, world-record holder at two miles, goes against Joe McCluskey, durable former Fordham distance man, over that route.

Cornelius Johnson, Dave Albritton of Ohio State, Eddie Burke of Marquette, and Chuck Bechel of Northern Illinois Teachers, will try for a new top in the high jump, and Earle Meadows, co-holder of the world pole vault mark, meets Milt Radway of Wisconsin, and Dick Ganslen of Columbia.

Texan Declares Congress Has Done Nothing And Appears In Sort Of Stupor

The Story Of The New Deal By The Man Who Originated It

repayable out of future highway grants.

Third, it definitely recognized that relief was not the complete responsibility of the states and their local political subdivisions, and that the federal government had its share of responsibility where local and state resources proved inadequate.

Enter Harry Hopkins

When, as governor of New York, I set up a Temporary Emergency Relief administration in 1931, to administer state appropriations of money for direct aid to the localities, I appointed Harry L. Hopkins as its head. When this new national agency was set up in 1933, I appointed him administrator.

The task he faced was stupendous. Little was known at Washington about the efficiency of the local relief organizations. There were no such organizations in some states and in many counties.

Action had to be immediate. It was immediate. The day after he took office, on May 22, 1933, he telegraphed his first communication to the governors of the respective States; and before nightfall he had made grants of money to Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Mississippi, Ohio and Texas.

Two Points Of Policy Evident

From the very beginning two important points of policy were evident: (1) The operations of the program, aside from certain basic standards and stipulations, were to be decentralized and local in character, and (2) work, rather than idleness on a dole, was preferred.

Again and again I found it necessary to repeat the principle that when the locality has done all it can, the obligation is on the state to try to complete the unfinished job, and that only after the state and the localities have done their utmost should federal funds be provided.

The FERA in Washington was concerned primarily with the granting of funds to the governors of states. After the grant was made the funds became the property of the state, and were thus beyond direct administrative control of the FERA. Virtually all the $4,114,000,000 expended through this cooperative federal-state-local relief system from June, 1933, through August, 1936 was disbursed by the local offices.

* * *

Program Based On Needs

The program provided for either work relief or direct relief to a destitute family, according to its needs, as determined by investigation. Families sometimes had no member able to work, or communities did not have public projects on which to employ them. In these cases the needy were supplied directly with cash or with groceries, fuel, clothing and other necessities.

Approximately 2,000,000 persons were engaged in work relief in March, 1933, and 1,500,000 in November.

In these early months of the program, relief work projects were carried out entirely by local officials without any federal visa. Much was excellent and of pronounced permanent value, but a considerable quantity was too hastily planned or of the "leaf-raking" type.

CWA Created

In November, 1933, a new emergency brought about the creation of another relief agency by executive order, the Civil Works administration (CWA).

I decided to initiate the CWA at this time for a number of reasons: Relief needs continued with increasing seriousness as the winter months came on. The sharp business revival of the summer months had ceased; and indeed, a reaction had set in. The relief rolls which had declined sharply from March, 1933, had begun to rise again in October, 1933. The Public Works administration (PWA) had not been able by that time to commence a very extensive program of large public works.

I came to the conclusion that by shifting to this new CWA program 1,500,000 people employed in local work relief activities, and other employables who were then on direct relief, a great quantity of purchasing power could be injected into the economic system in a short time; that the direct relief rolls would be greatly reduced; and that adequate wages for useful projects would be substituted for inadequate pay on work of little value.

Its organization and operation were essentially different from that of the FERA, which was mostly a state and local program. The CWA was completely operated and 90 per cent financed by the federal government.

* * *

Millions Given Employment

BY the end of November, more than 1,500,000 persons were at work on CWA projects, and in January, 1934, the CWA reached its peak of 4,263,644 workers earning more than $64,000,000 per week.

The CWA was not designed as a continuing program. By the end of March, 1934, it was largely terminated, despite widespread pressure to make it permanent.

CWA was relatively costly, when compared with the FERA; and as soon as its prime purpose was believed to have been served, it was abandoned in favor of a work relief program hiring only destitute unemployed on a budgetary deficiency basis. The step was taken as a matter of economy.

Program's Need Proven

In evaluating the benefits of CWA there must be taken into consideration the dire necessity for such a program, the speed with which it was inaugurated and its quick termination within five months. It provided definite proof that an extensive work program could be quickly and profitably undertaken with benefit to the communities and to the unemployed.

Upon the dissolution of the CWA the FERA again fostered large-scale work relief called the Emergency Work Relief Program. By January 1935 its employment peak of 2,500,000 was reached. However, during this period, more cases were receiving direct relief than work relief.

* * *

Works Progress Administration

THE next great step in the program of relief was taken by the organization, in 1935, of the Works Progress administration.

There had been a growing conviction on the part of the Congress and myself that the time had come when the federal government could well afford to withdraw from the field of direct relief, leaving that responsibility to the various states and localities, and to establish a larger works program.

My executive order of May 6, 1935, established the Works Progress administration (WPA) as the key agency in the federal works program.

The works program is the term used to designate the entire program of emergency work provided by the Emergency Relief Appropriation acts of 1935, 1936, and 1937. Forty federal agencies participated in it, including Resettlement administration (REA), National Youth administration (NYA), Civilian Conservation corps (CCC), Public Works administration (PWA), and Works Progress administration (WPA).

WPA Largest Employer

Works Progress administration was charged with the responsibility for an honest, efficient, speedy and coordinated execution of the work relief program as a whole. It was the largest employer; by February, 1936, it had reached a peak of over three million persons.

The works program had the advantage of the experience of the prior agencies in large-scale emergency work relief. It left the entire responsibility for direct relief for unemployables to the States and localities.

With respect to work projects, the state and local governments were given the responsibility, with few exceptions, of originating and planning the work to fit local needs and also of determining the eligibility of workers on the basis of actual need.

Responsibility Centralized

At the same time, through federal approval of these projects and through the carrying out of a federal wages and hours policy and by means of federal accounting and purchasing, there were obtained a general centralized planning and responsibility.

In view of the fact that the principal purpose of WPA was to provide work, federal approval was given only to projects which could be carried out by the type of unemployed workers available in the respective communities. The aim was to obtain projects in each community which could be performed by the kind of workers in that community who were employable.

Hours Of Work Reduced

WPA in its wage policy sought to provide an assured monthly income called a "security wage," slightly higher than the income from direct relief but lower than the monthly wages in private employment. In order to meet the criticism that the low relief wages would drag down prevailing hourly rates of other labor, the policy was adopted in 1936 of paying prevailing hourly wages, but reducing the hours of work so that total earnings remained at security wage levels.

The future need of a Federal Work relief agency will depend, of course, upon the trend of business and the supply of private jobs, but the outlines of a sound national policy for work relief have become fixed through the long experience which culminated in WPA.

BUYS LITTLEFIELD LOTS

LITTLEFIELD, March 25.—J. O. Garlington has bought 62 lots from R. S. Thomas, of Philadelphia, in the College Heights addition. The lots are adjoining a group sold recently to employes of West Texas Cotton Oil mill. Cash was paid, it was reported.

Holdings In Archer Sold For $1,000,000

WICHITA FALLS, March 25. (AP)—L. V. Hull and W. W. Silk, Wichita Falls oil operators, Friday afternoon sold 320 acres of their holdings in Archer county for $1,000,000 to the Blackwell Oil company of Cushing, Okla., and the Helmerich and Payne, Inc., of Tulsa. Terms of the sale were $500,000 in cash and $500,000 in oil.

Properties purchased were one-half interest in 160 acres on the L. F. Wilson ranch, located in the northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 25, A.T.N.C.L. survey on which is one well estimated at 5,000 barrels. The other 160 acres adjoined the well, in which Hull and Silk owned seven-eighths interest.

The sensational Hull-Silk well was at one time believed to be a duster until the operators brought it in for the sensational strike of the year in this area. It stimulated an interest in deep drilling in a new field and started a scurry of lease buying.

Chamberlain Is Given Rebuke

LONDON, March 25. (AP)—The national council of labor, central body of the British labor movement, today issued a sharp condemnation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's "cynical disregard of the need for defending democracy."

The council's political wing rallied powerful trade union representatives—whose cooperation is essential to success of Chamberlain's rearmament speed-up plan—to support the attack.

Labor To Cooperate

Despite it, some quarters believed labor would cooperate. Reliable sources said Chamberlain had greatly impressed trade union leaders with private information Britain was rearming solely against Germany.

Trade union leaders declared they were bound to secrecy and refused to confirm or deny the report, however, and belief was widespread the attack indicated labor's united opposition.

The manifesto came from an emergency meeting called to consider the prime minister's declaration of foreign policy yesterday in the house of commons and his interview with labor leaders Wednesday to ask their support for accelerated rearming.

Meeting Is Demanded

The labor leaders demanded an immediate meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations to consider "the appeasement of Europe" and declared "the government's continuance in office, is a grave menace to the peace of Europe."

The manifesto assailed what it called Chamberlain's failure to disclose a "constructive policy" against war and demanded abandonment of the "farcical" policy of non-intervention in the Spanish war.

Maury Maverick Hurls Charges

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—Rep. Maury Maverick (D-Tex.) accused congress today of contributing to a constant increase of executive power by its own inaction.

Maverick, usually an advocate of administration measures, interrupted house debate on the $447,000,000 war department appropriation bill to make a general criticism of congressional "stupor."

In Sort Of Stupor

President Roosevelt, he said, cannot be accused of attempting to dominate congress, especially since the special session began last November.

"In spite of the fact that the president has left congress to its own devices," Maverick said, "congress has done nothing and seems to be in a sort of stupor.

"It is reasonable to say that congress as a whole is trifling with Democratic liberties, abandoning its own prerogatives and causing the constant increase of executive power through its own inaction."

Fell Into World War

"There exist many deadly parallels between the administration today and that of Woodrow Wilson," the Texan continued. "Then we started out with great reforms, bogged down and muddled ourselves into the World war."

He charged that congress has evaded the nation's most immediate economic, business and labor problems and even has sidestepped such matters as the Tennessee valley authority.

"The present muddled and unfortunate situation of the TVA, the greatest of the New Deal enterprises, would not have occurred had congress acted to investigate and study it, when such resolutions were offered months ago."

The Texan also criticized the "lopsided policy" of emphasizing naval expansion at the expense of the army air service.

Hitler Warning

minority in Czechoslovakia.

But he emphatically declared that when decisions affecting the destinies of German populations were to be made, they would be made by Germany without asking permission of anyone.

"If the world is deaf to all pleas for justice," he exclaimed, "then the reich must take justice into its own hands.

". . . Our text is 'help yourself and God will help you' and God has helped us."

Justifying his annexation of Austria, Hitler compared the regime of former Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg with the counter-reformation in Austria centuries ago.

Just as thousands left that country then, rather than give up their faith, so thousands of nazis left Schuschnigg's Austria rather than give up their faith in Germany's future.

Cry To Be Set Free

Again and again, Hitler said, such fugitives "came across the border to me and cried out 'when will we finally be set free'?"

The fuehrer said he finally called the Austrian chancellor to Berchtesgaden, for the conference held Feb. 12, and added:

"I told him 'Herr Schuschnigg, you are oppressing a country without justification and that country is my country just as much as it is yours.'"

The crowd laughed boisterously when Hitler asserted he offered to run against Schuschnigg in an open Austrian election "and let the people decide."

"I warned him," he said, "that if a new crisis arose the German people of Austria could count on my help."

No Vengeance Planned

The fuehrer said his triumphant Austrian followers would not indulge in an orgy of vengeance against their former persecutors although, "it would be just if the people took vengeance now. I know how richly earned that vengeance would be."

With great emotion he referred to the hanging of 13 nazi putschists by Schuschnigg's government in 1934.

"These men whose only crime was love of country," he said, "were not even granted death by the bullet—they were hanged."

Indirectly referring to other nazi casualties in the ill-fated putsch of July in that year, Hitler said "over 400 were murdered and approximately 2,000 shot—those were victims of the Schuschnigg regime."

He charged that the powers had given Austria "sham sovereignty because they wanted to keep Germany impotent."

They cared not, he said, whether the country was economically doomed nor that her deaths far exceeded births."

He asserted he had called the plebiscite for April 10 "because I am a better democrat than so many democrats. The people shall speak out."

Suspect In Robbery Of Bank Is Held

IDABEL, Okla., March 25. (AP)—Howard Phillips, McCurtain county attorney, said tonight one of three persons seized in a surprise early-morning raid on a farm house 30 miles southeast of here today had been identified by an old photograph as one of two robbers who held up the bank of Paoli ten days ago and escaped with $1,000.

The other two, a McCurtain county resident and his wife, were released. Federal, state and county officers continued a search for another suspect, concentrating on the rugged area between Tom, Okla., and Foreman, Ark.

Phillips said the identification was made from a picture by D. F. Pendley, cashier of the bank, who with his wife was kidnaped by the robber pair after the holdup of the bank in Garvin county, south central Oklahoma. The Pendleys escaped unharmed.

Fishing Quarrel Believed Ended

WASHINGTON, March 25. (AP)—The United States and Japan settled tonight their quarrel over Japanese salmon fishing in Alaskan waters.

The dispute had threatened to lead to "an undeclared war" between Japanese and American fishing fleets.

Assurances Given

Japan gave the United States assurances that:

1. She is suspending her three-year salmon fishing survey begun in 1936.

2. She will not issue licenses to boats for fishing in Alaskan waters and will punish offenders.

The United States accepted these assurances for the time being.

Nevertheless the bureau of fisheries and the coast guard will keep a sharp lookout over fishing activities off Alaska.

The driver of the truck was killed and almost 50 train passengers, including members of Hal Kemp's orchestra, were injured, some of them critically.

Conquering Of Wheat Rust In Canada Nearing Realization

OTTAWA, Ont., March 25. (Canadian Press)—Wheat rust is near being conquered, Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, told the house of commons agriculture and colonization committee today.

Three million to 5,000,000 bushels of seed of rust-resistant wheats will be available for sowing this year, he said. It will be sown chiefly in Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan.

"After this year there will not be much excuse for sowing varieties susceptible to rust," Dr. Newman said.

Rebel Soldiers Break Through

HENDAYE, France (At The Spanish Frontier), March 25. (AP)—Spanish insurgent troops broke through the government's defenses today and advanced to within 25 miles of Catalonia, target of the northeastern campaign.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces swept through the government stronghold of Bujaralos and pursued fleeing government troops down the Zaragoza-Barcelona highway.

Fraga Next Objective

Their next objective was Fraga, 25 miles to the east and a gateway to Catalonia, Spain's northeastern corner. The highway leads from Fraga to Lerida, key Catalonian city, and on to Barcelona, present government capital.

North of the highway, another insurgent army was aimed at Lerida.

A Spanish government statement said Franco's onrushing armies included "40,000 Italians, 60,000 Moors, 10,000 Germans" and Portuguese, Rumanians and Hungarians. It added that the retreat was orderly, and that "our will to resist is entirely unchanged."

Fighting Is Heavy

Fighting was reported heavy on a jagged front extending more than 12 miles along which the insurgents' Navarrese, Galician and Moorish troops were attacking government positions at a number of points.

The second army, further north, occupied the village of Torralba de Aragon, insurgent reports said, and moved slowly down the railroad toward Granen.

A third column, the insurgent southern flank, was held up on the Alcaniz-Caspe line waiting for the other forces to draw up.

For Sale Miscellaneous

Here is a big idea that will--if enough people act on the hunch --convert thousands of unwanted articles now gathering dust in Lubbock and South Plains' attics, basements, garages, storerooms, offices, stores and warehouses into thousands of dollars of ready cash.

Its possibilities are great. It is a sort of "share your own wealth" campaign—for there is scarcely a family in the whole community which has not some things for which they no longer have use that can be converted into cash, and thus transformed into all kinds of much wanted new things.

If you—and you—and you—and all of us will just take inventory of the dust covered or closet-space-robbers that we no longer want and advertise them in The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Want Ads we will start a great new miscellaneous market humming—for in a city the size of Lubbock there is always someone to buy what you no longer need or want.

This idea of checking upon your articles that are no longer needed or wanted turns out to be just like finding money. The cost of advertising such things in The Avalanche-Journal Want Ads is slight and the sales possibilities—if you remember that thousands read these Want Ads every day . . . are so great as to be almost a sure thing.

Of all the classifications in The Avalanche-Journal Want Ads there is probably none that is so helpful to the public at large as those listed under "For Sale—Miscellaneous." And what greater service can be offered—especially at the low price—than one which makes it possible for you to dispose of something you no longer want but for which one of your neighbors will gladly pay cash.

Begin the big inventory now! You will be surprised at what you find and when you have the money to buy something new you will have a new and friendlier feeling for Avalanche-Journal Want Ads—unless, of course, you are one of the thousands who have long been reading the "For Sale—Miscellaneous" classification to a profit.

Japan Begins To See Light

EVIDENCE piles upon evidence that United States approval recently of a billion-dollar naval expansion program has caused serious thinking in certain capitals of the world.

From Japan, for example, comes a statement suggesting that the island empire has begun to wonder whether a naval race, after all, is worthwhile. The fact that the statement comes from Japan is of particular significance, because the Japs precipitated the naval building race in which the world now is engaged. They are the people who knocked navy limitations agreements into a cocked hat. They are the ones who suggested that the United States, Great Britain and France mind their own business when they asked whether Japan was building ships and guns beyond certain sizes.

Japan's thought at the time, according to world observers, seems to have been that although Uncle Sam could build what he chose, the American people were too avaricious and too pacifistic to permit any considerable expenditures for naval expansion. The Old Gentleman fooled them, accepted the challenge and let the world know that if he has to get into a naval race, he'll make it one to write home about.

* * *

HIS decision already has the Japs talking to themselves. Witness, for example, the lament of a "Japanese naval spokesman" that our program indicates an intent to attack the islands.

Does it appear reasonable that we who are getting rid of the Philippine islands, which are neighbors of Japan, would now want to become uncle to another mess of islands in the same general area of the globe?

Our adequate navy will mean merely that we, the richest of nations, are prepared to protect ourselves from the "robber nations" which infest the world. Our navy merely means that if there must be war; our defense can swing into action before our cities have been laid in ruins, our soil invaded, our countryside ravaged. It means, if there should be war with Japan, that the first scene of action likely will be somewhere in the vast expanse of ocean east of Hawaii where the United States would have everything to gain and not a great deal to lose; where Japan would have everything to lose and relatively little to gain. Defeat for Japan would mean disaster—national starvation. For the United States, it would mean that the conflict was to be prolonged.

But now that the United States has served notice that this nation intends to be ready, the probability of war with the Far East has lessened definitely. At the same time, the probability of arms limitation has been strengthened because other nations—Japan in particular—apparently have begun to realize the futility of continuing a building race they cannot win.

With Our Contemporaries

"While the trailer-house route may not be desirable a solution to our housing problem as we might desire, it is at least, a quick method of supplying places for people to live, and they are much more convenient and desirable than might at first be expected, especially when they are fixed up with so many built-in features, showers, sewage, etc.'" notes R. W. Jones in the Whiteface News.

"Have you seen the cemetery since the 'clean-up' held on March 2?" asks Eddie Warren in the Post Dispatch. "The drive down the tree-bordered highway and through the gate will be one well worth the time and will satisfy that feeling we all have of knowing a job is well done."

Empire For A Lady

By Alan LeMay
C. By The Associated Press

SYNOPSIS: Our love for a young English girl has kept my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) in tropical Balingong through a Dyak revolt and Malay defeat. Christine Forrester, visioning a great empire here, has made Clyde rajah. Clyde antagonizes the sultan's representative, Rentongen, by trying to end the traditional depredations of the Malays. War threatens. In the pouring rain we are paddling down-river with Christine and her sick brother who are finally leaving this fever-ridden spot.

Chapter 36

Whanging Nerve Strain

"You've heard Rentongen talk," I said. "You know how bitter he's become."

"I've heard him often." Christine agreed. "But — lately it has seemed to me that we have heard very little from him. Perhaps I've been foolish to hope; but I've been hoping that the Malays were becoming reconciled. It's weeks since we've had a really vigorous complaint from Rentongen."

"That's just what worries me," I told her. "Something is happening in the background; I see evidences of it, but I can't find out what it is. I know what I think it is. Something has happened to Mantusen. We haven't heard from Mantusen, or Saremba, since Mantusen sailed. I think Mantusen's deal with Clyde angered his sultan. It's Rantongen now who represents Massin Ali—and I think he has his orders."

"I've thought of that," Christine admitted. "I've thought of it often. We should have heard from Saremba long ago."

"I think we're going to hear from them in a way that we won't like."

"And all this is what you're making me run away from," Christine said.

"We'll handle it a whole lot better without you here."

Her voice lashed at me hysterically, like a whip across the face. "You've got to stop talking to me like that."

"I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry."

We were coming to the mouth of the Siderong, and I could smell salt water. For a moment some trick of the torches showed us the jungle wall, a black lacquer palisade webbed over by giant creepers. Our roof was beginning to soak through, putting an occasional drop of luke-warm water down our necks.

Perhaps that cramped shelter of matting over our heads was what had given me the sense of being near to Christine for a while; whatever it was, that feeling dropped away as we now crossed Siderong bar. There was open sea ahead, and Christine would soon be beyond it; but she would hardly be farther away from me than she was already.

I said, "We're going to pull this thing through. I promise you that. I admit I don't know how we're going to do it. But it will be done."

Her face was as lovely as I had ever seen it, but it was no longer close to me. For a little while it had seemed to me that I could have reached out and touched it. Not with my hands alone, for that would have been easy enough, there in the bankong—but with a feeling of possession and a knowledge that her face was held between my fingers because she wanted it to be. That was all gone now; this was Anthony Forrester's daughter again, with her grave clear eyes set on a future in which I could see no part for myself.

"Clyde will win this," I said. "That is a hard man to stop."

Christine faltered. "There is so much danger ahead—"

"That's what makes a victory out of it. Otherwise it would be just a trade."

Change Of Mind

"Yes," she said slowly, "that is true. This will be the greatest thing that has ever happened in the islands when it is done."

"Clyde," I agreed, "will have a nice thing here some day."

I was watching her profile, dimly seen by the torchlight, but very near. I was unwilling to lose one moment of memory of her. She turned now, and looked at me very straight, but with a curious expression in her eyes.

"Of course, someday all of this will be yours."

I knew that this was not so; I had helped Clyde to draft his will. I knew that all Clyde's claim on Balingong rai, and everything in it was deeded to the Ranee Christine.

"The hell with it," I said.

"You—you don't want it?"

"No."

"But, Paul, you've given so much of yourself—"

"What I want is to sit on a cool veranda overlooking the sea, and take a good rest, and drink a slee gin fizz. The Harbor Club at Singapore has a better veranda for that than Clyde will have in years."

She turned her face away from me and she was very still. Far up ahead we could see the lights of Robert Forrester's bankong, already well out on the bay.

"I think," Christine said, her voice distant, "that we should go alongside the other boat."

I called out an order, and my paddlers picked up their beat. The bankong began to lift and drive over the water. We were nearly at the end of it now. In a little while more what magic there was in Balingong was going out of it, and nothing would be left of the thing this girl had bewitched us into except war and fever, and a struggle against going broke. There were years of it ahead without anything in them that a reasonable person would want. Yet I knew that Clyde could not quit, and neither could I. And I knew that we were fools.

We were alongside Robert Forrester's bankong; we were under the Avon's black hulk. Clyde and Marvin Stocker were calling back and forth. Christine groped for my hand, and for a moment pressed it against her cheek, her face was wet, but it was impossible to tell now whether with rain or tears. Then abruptly she threw my hand away.

"I can't do it," she said. "It's too much to ask."

"You can't—what are you talking about?"

She was silent for a long moment. Then she called out across the narrow strip of black water.

"Goodby, Bob. . . . I'm going back."

I would have supposed that our life here would now go on as before, unaffected by the fact that Christine had made a false start at departure, but balked. But it was not the same as before—nothing could have been more different.

A taut, hard strain came upon both Clyde and me, in spite of everything Christine could do to making things smooth. After we had got over the first shock of the idea that she was going to stay with us we had the feeling that Balingong must somehow be pulled and hauled and hammered into a fit place for Christine. It must be done immediately—and it was impossible. Clyde and I fought our work harder than ever before, harassed by an unsleeping desperation. That whanging nervestrain, in itself, later accounted for many things.

I made no further move to persuade Christine that she must leave Balingong. I had already done all I could, and perhaps more than was appropriate, it was hardly my place to try to send away the girl with whom my uncle was in love. And Clyde, although he agreed that she should not be here, seemed strangely baffled.

I took to avoiding them both as much as I could, which was easy, for I was now seldom in Balingong. The need of protecting the Dyaks from Malay extortions increased in importance as the famine had now reached proportions of real calamity.

In the previous year most of the Dyaks had delayed planting until it was all but too late—in the case of some villages too late altogether—for no better reason than that the magic auguries were unfavorable. Throw against the poor crop and the waste and spoilage of war, and it is hard to see why they expected anything but famine.

When a one-crop food supply runs out it runs out suddenly; most villages had come to the end of their rice long ago, and it was very difficult to see how they lived at all. It was a fortunate thing that whatever rice was going to be planted was already in the ground, for I am certain that in their extremity the people would have eaten the seed. They knew better than that, and it was against custom, but these people were at the end of their string. Game was scarce, and the fishing bad. The situation could hardly have been any worse.

Daily the Siderong before the bamboo palace was banked with the prais of people who had come to beg the white rajah for aid. We did what we could; but if we were able to give a few handfuls of rice to the exhausted men at the paddles we could no longer expect to do anything more.

The jungle was stripped of everything fit to eat, and it was strange to see so much vegetation and yet so little food. The people were eating weeds, and soup made of boiled grasses and scrapped moss. They ate the bark of trees, and even weighted their poor flat stomachs with a kind of clay found on the river banks.

It was a temptation to send our vessels to distant islands with our precious store of rifles, to trade for food where and however we could. But we knew this would have been fatal. It would not only have finished, but would have finished Balingong. We had to sit there and endure it while we watched the people die.

Is it love that keeps Christine there? Continued Tuesday.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE most influential figures in reshaping American foreign policy these days are not President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. They are British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Germany's Adolf Hitler.

The antics of these two are forcing American apostles of internationalism to crawl back into an isolationist shell, despite Mr. Hull's idealistic statement of this country's eagerness for peace and world cooperation. At that, the Secretary's recent declaration lacked the fire of F. D. R.'s "quarantine" pronouncement, which marked the high point of implied intervention in other nations' business. In tossing the program for a two-ocean fleet out of the navy bill, and in demanding repeal of the Neutrality act, Congress has served notice that it doesn't want to play with dictators of their friends. Ambassador Kennedy also piped the same tune.

Hitler's Austrian putsch and the prospective Anglo-Italian alliance have had two distinct results on Capitol Hill. They have fired enthusiasm for a powerful navy, but they have also intensified the demand that it be used only for home defense—and not for world policing. Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull now feel the same way.

PLOT: Undercover reason for stormy revival of the Senate lobby investigation is the White House conviction that powerful private interests have spurred recent Congressional demands for exposes of various administration agencies. The Black committee used this same strategy to smear opposition to the holding company bill.

Rich lumber people opposed to conservation have been charged by Rooseveltian spokesmen with stripping the reorganization measure of regulatory features. Senator Edward Burke of Nebraska is understood to have cooperated with manufacturers in preparing his indictment of the National Labor Relations board. The private utilities have helped to foment T.V.A. dissension by distributing reprints of Chairman Morgan's attacks on his co-directors. Certain coal operators rushed in to blacken the record of the unhappy Guffey Coal commission. In short, the New Deal opposition has been having a field day behind the scenes.

Mr. Roosevelt's aides remember that several administrations have been blown skyhigh as a result of senatorial curiosity, including Taft's, Wilson's after the war and Harding's. So they intend to brand the present offensive as "another plot to discredit the President."

* * *

HURRY: Senate Leader Barkley is quietly assuring colleagues that Congress will quit Washington not later than May 15, leaving less than seven legislative weeks for enactment of a still heavy program. Either he's an optimist, or the wish is father to the thought.

It's probably the latter. Mr. B.'s private reports frim his Kentucky scouts cast grave doubt on his chances of reelection. While he lingers at the capital to combat senatorial filibusters and opposition, his opponent, Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler, is making votes at suppers, receptions, political shindigs. The harder the Senate boss struggles on behalf of the White House, the more he hurts himself at home. So he wants to shut up shop here, even though it involves pigeonholing important administration bills.

More leisurely fellows including Mr. Harrison, confide that Mr. Barkley will be lucky if he adjourns on June 15. Having no primary troubles back home, they are in no hurry to leave town.

* * *

STIFFEN: President Roosevelt broke a long and troublesome patronage jam the day before he left for his Georgia vacation. He sent the renominations of more than 300 postmasters to the Senate—the largest batch at one time in the memory of Washington veterans.

Smart politics lies behind the move, and National Chairman Farley rates major credit for it. F.D.R. had held up the names out of resentment against House members who have wandered off the reservation at the present session. But his No. 1 political adviser argued that it would be smart to bribe than to bully the lower chamber. It has passed three major measures in a form fairly satisfactory to the White House—tax, navy and reorganization—and would appreciate a kind word from on high.

This patronage may also stiffen House resistance to senatorial changes in these bills. As the President knows, Senate strategists—and some House members—scheme to adopt anti-administration Senate amendments when the measures reach the conference chamber. Now the boys who got the plums may fight harder for the donor.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE committee of three named by President Roosevelt to draft a program to save the railroads is due to report. Their plan won't be any half-baked creation of a week's frenzied deliberation. I.C.C. Chairman W. M. W. Splawn has been privately working on it for about three years.

Insiders say he is the real author, although his associates, Commissioners Charles D. Mahaffie and Joseph B. Eastman, will undoubtedly have contributed suggestions and amendments. New York for once approves Roosevelt selections. The three men named are rated the ablest and best-informed members of the I.C.C.

F.D.R. seems to have recaptured his old finesse in smoothing the squabble about who's to get credit for rescuing the rails. He rates his share for calling the conference to consider rail problems. The I.C.C. figures in the picture through this committee. And Senator Wheeler will probably be given a chance to wave his flag by introducing any necessary legislation. This division of kudos should appease the jealousies that have hitherto delayed effective action.

* * *

DAYLIGHT: It will take many months to work out consolidations and financial reorganizations in practice under the most favorable conditions. Meanwhile it is important to keep the existing railroad setup from falling apart. That's where Jesse Jones and his R.F.C. come in.

Financial sharps estimate that the R.F.C. must advance an average of $10,000,000 a month to ailing roads to avert possible receiverships pending a permanent solution. That's not expensive as compared to the cost of a general collapse. Moreover, the R.F.C. will be a preferred creditor when the railroad structure is revamped, so Uncle Sam should lose little or nothing in the long run.

The revamping process will be painful in spots, but for the first time since last October a faint streak of daylight is visible on the railroad horizon.

* * *

PRESTIGE: Senator McAdoo of California is fighting to keep the three Panama-Pacific "luxury liners"—Pennsylvania, California and Virginia—on the intercoastal run. The owners say they cannot afford to operate these ships any longer, so McAdoo wants to pay them a subsidy. But President Roosevelt is not sympathetic—and thereby hangs a tale.

When F.D.R. made his "good neighbor" visit to Rio de Janiero and Buenos Aires soon after the '36 election, he was impressed by the big modern English, French, German and Italian vessels he saw in South American harbors. He felt that the contrast with older and smaller American ships was harmful to our prestige in Argentina and Brazil and that we would attract more Latin-American tourists and trade with a better maritime showing. The Panama-Pacific boats are the best we have available, and it has been a pet idea of his ever since to transfer them to the South American route. One reason the government is moving to foreclose its mortgage on the four Munson liners now in that service is to get them out of the way.

Abandonment of Panama-Pacific's intercoastal schedule would also bring the project a step closer to consummation. But shipping experts doubt that the President's plan will have the desired effect even if he surmounts all obstacles and puts it through. They point out that the three ships in question, although bigger and newer than the Munson vessels, still do not measure up to standards of luxury set by European liners.

Side Glances---By George Clark

"I wish you and Dad would stop trying to stay young for our sake, and stay home once in a while."

The Plainsman Says:

That Girl on Broadway says when all men are what they pretend to be, the millenium will be here!

★ ★ ★

Somebody sent in this anonymous note:

"Dear Plainsman: I am glad I am me instead of being you. If I knew all about everything I'm afraid it would cause me too much worry!"

Wow! That was a hot one!

★ ★ ★

AND speaking of worry, The Plainsman pleads guilty to being a worrier of the worst—and chronic—sort.

It is natural for him to worry about something—and when, occasionally, he finds he has nothing to fret over, he begins to fret over that.

He feels like things are going entirely too perfectly and that he's in "the lull which precedes the storm."

Then he feels better—with something to worry about!

★ ★ ★

We had a story in the Morning Avalanche the other day in which some dear, old sister in Missouri had reached the age of 105 and was advising people not to worry if they wanted to live a long life like hers.

And frankly, such advice—which frequently is seen in the papers—gives The Plainsman a great, big pain.

People are of one of two types: either they are worriers, or non-worriers. And all the advice in the world won't keep the worriers from worrying.

That's just as natural a function with them as breathing!

★ ★ ★

THE other day a congressman from Arizona referred to that portion of the U. S.-Mexican border between El Paso and Los Angeles as "the back door through which this country some day may be attacked."

While striking, his statement was not original.

It has been made before—and probably has a lot of basis.

★ ★ ★

To anyone with a smattering of information regarding the Northwest part of Mexico, and that portion of Southwestern United States between El Paso and Los Angeles, the statement clicks.

Impossible of immediate defense, that strip of alternate mountain and desert land is this country's chief danger point.

RECENT events in Mexico make logical the calling of American attention to the "danger strip."

No one either wants or expects trouble with our Mexican neighbors, with whom we all prefer to live in harmony.

But Mexico's very definitely drifting into communism, and the ever-threatening possibility her being sucked into an international pact with land-hungry European powers makes it highly advisable for us to keep an eye on the situation.

Anything can happen. And as some wag remarked, it frequently does!

Sam Lewis brought this in:

The sales manager of a big New York firm had a very loud voice. One morning the president of the concern heard earbursting sounds coming from the sales manager's office and sent his secretary to find out what was going on.

"Mr. Blank," she reported, "is talking to our Cleveland office."

"Confound it," ejaculated the president. "Tell him to use the telephone!"

APPOINTMENT of a chamber of commerce committee with the end in view of hastening the erection of an office building somewhere in Lubbock is a commendable step.

The Plainsman has been wondering for quite a spell if and when the chamber was going to take such a step—and if not, why not. However, after a little gum-shoeing, we discovered that the chamber has not been asleep in the matter as we—and probably some other souls—once suspected. It has had fingers in several office building pies which failed to materialize and now, in the opinion of directors, it is time to make the problem one for a committee's active attention. The committee, therefore, is in the making.

The need of a large office building in Lubbock is too apparent to require discussion. It is known that several groups at various times have given varying degrees of consideration to such an enterprise. It is believed generally none of those plans have reached consummation because each group has been uncertain as to what other groups might do.

Those who contemplate the huge investment an adequate office building would require are wholly justified in their caution. They keenly realize the dangers of over-building, as has been the experience of so many cities. They know, of course, that there would be no lack of tenants for such a building at first. But the important consideration for them is: Will the building still be a profitable investment 20 years hence? It usually takes about that long for such a building to pay for itself, and many of them never return a profit.

Because there are so many factors to be considered, the chamber of commerce committee may be able to render a real service both to its city as a whole and to the individuals or groups who undertake the erection of the office building which is certain to be built before very long.

At any rate, The Plainsman hopes so.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 60 — By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The voices came closer—the voices of women. Tarzan heard them cry out with satisfaction when they saw that the covering of the trap was broken through. Presently they stood at the pit's edge, staring down at him, their faces filled with astonishment.

Then they began to babble. "A man!" exclaimed one. "A fine specimen, too. I hope Queen Gonfala will give him to me for a slave-husband," said another. "Maybe none of us will have him. Maybe Mafka and Gonfala will want to kill him!" "Well, let's get him up.

They threw down a rope. "Catch it and tie it under your arms," one cried. "Hold it," answered the ape-man, "and I'll climb up." He swarmed up with agility of a monkey, and found himself facing several spear points. The amazons took away his knife.

Tarzan might have made a break for freedom; his swiftness promised success. But the mighty Tarzan did not wish to escape! Loyalty to Wood and Van Eyk required him to go to the Kaji city, to face the terrible Mafka. He would save them—or share their fate!

Auction Sale
TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
With all markets showing 50c or more lower, our sales held up remarkably well, showing only about 25c lower on cannie cattle.
Good fat cattle are holding steady; stockers are in good demand.
You can always count on our market as being the best place in West Texas to bring your cattle and get them sold for every dollar they will possibly bring. We always have plenty of buyers who are in need of cattle, and they are ready to snap up the cattle just as soon as they come into the ring.
Get your cattle in early as this assures you of a good place in the auction.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, March 25. (AP)—Heavy liquidation hit the stock market today, sweeping leaders overboard for losses of 1 to 5 points generally to new lows for the past three years and longer. There were isolated declines of 8 or so.

Selling attained greatest momentum in the final hour when the ticker tape was for some time as much as 4 minutes behind floor transactions.

Brokers attributed the relapse to a combination of depressing circumstances including discouragement of stockholders at the recent unsuccessful attempts to rally the list, fears of fresh troubles in France and growing doubts business can get back on its feet in nearby months.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues tumbled 2.1 points to 35.7, a new bottom since April 4, 1935. It was the sharpest day's break since Nov. 22, last. The breadth of the downswing was indicated by the fact 946 individual stocks changed hands. Of this number there were 578 new 1938 lows. There were 785 declines against only 34 advances, while 127 were unchanged.

Transfers totalled 1,677,340 shares, the largest turnover since Jan. 10. It compared with 890,160 yesterday.

Conspicuous losers were Allied Chemical at 141⅛, off 8⅞; Westinghouse 71, off 6; American Can 76¾, off 5; Bethlehem Steel 47, off 4⅞; U. S. Steel 44¾, off 4; Chrysler 42½, off 4; General Motors 29⅝, off 2; American Telephone 120¼, off 3¼; Sears Roebuck 50½, off 3½; Loew's 36½, off 4½; Douglas Aircraft 35⅝, off 2⅞; U. S. Rubber 25¾, off 3; Anaconda 26, off 2¾ and Standard Oil of N. J. 42⅞.

Cotton . .

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, March 25. (AP)—After advancing 50 cents or more a bale the cotton market reacted partially in later trading today and closed steady at net advances of 3 to 5 points.

Extension of the loan deadline by the Commodity Credit corporation from March 31 to July 1 was regarded as bullish and succeeded in bringing in some new buying and covering by shorts.

Foreign markets were better than expected and helped sentiment in early dealings. At the best of the day active positions showed net gains of nearly 75 cents a bale but subsequent realizing by recent buyers and selling on weaker securities shaded the advance.

May closed at 8.77@8.78, July at 8.85, Oct. at 8.89, Dec. at 8.91, Jan at 8.93 and March at 8.96.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, March 25. (AP)—Cotton advanced today on a favorable view of extension of the expiration date for making loans on 1937 cotton to July 1, 1938. October advanced from 8.72@8.79 and then reacted in sympathy with weakness of stocks to close at 8.72, with final prices 4 to 6 points net higher.

The market opened higher and on foreign and trade buying sold up to net gains of 9 to 12 points during the morning. A belief that growers would prefer either to hold cotton or place it in the loan rather than sell at current prices attracted buying. Foreign interests were credited with buying here against sales abroad.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, March 25. (AP) — The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 8.69 cents a pound; average for the past thirty market days 9.03 cents a pound.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, March 25. (AP) — Jolted by downward plunges of securities, the Chicago wheat market late today suffered a cent a bushel tumble, and ended at the day's bottom prices.

Setbacks of wheat values were in the face of a spirited demand for corn futures, which at one stage rose about a cent to the topmost level in more than a month. Active purchasing by export houses was the principal feature of the corn market, and it was estimated about 1,000,000 bushels of corn were acquired to be shipped overseas.

Apprehensive over prospective scantiness of Argentina's corn crop, Europeans were said to be showing much augmented interest regarding corn supplies from the United States.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅝ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, May 85⅞@86, July 82½@82⅝, corn ⅛ to ⅜ up, May 60⅝@60¾, July 62¼@62⅜, oats ¼ off to an equal advance, rye unchanged to 1⅛ lower, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents decline.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, March 25. (AP)—Demand for grain was fair here today. Estimated receipts for the day were: wheat 17 cars, corn 7, oats 2, sorghums 2, and cane seed 3.

Several Processes Are To Be Shown At Engineering Show

Processes for carding, testing, weaving, spinning, and dyeing will be shown at the Texas Technological college engineering show, April 8 and 9.

The spinning department will display ring spinning frames, twisters, spoolers, bobbin winders, and cone winders. Cleaning and preparing from the baled cotton will be shown by the card department. The dye department will demonstrate the newest methods of dyeing and finishing.

Financial Drive Draws Support

Lubbock Crippled Children's council pledged financial and cooperative support to the Texas Society for Crippled Children in their annual Easter seal fund drive in a special meeting Friday afternoon in the office of Neil H. Wright in the Citizens National bank building.

Plans for the drive for benefit of crippled children in Lubbock and the whole of Texas were outlined to the council by Glenn Burgess of Littlefield, field representative of the state society.

Seals To Be Mailed

Seals costing one cent each will be mailed to citizens by the Lubbock council in sheets of 100 seals. Persons purchasing the seals will send in to the council the purchased amount. The council may keep 55 per cent of the net return from sale of seals. The remainder will be sent to the state society's treasurer to be deposited in the general fund.

There are approximately eight children in Lubbock in need of assistance of this sort. There are 800 on the waiting list of the state society's files.

Seals will arrive in Lubbock about April 1. Other members of the Lubbock council, other than Wright, are: J. B. Maxey, president; Dr. John Broome; G. R. Kennedy; Dr. M. H. Benson; Dr. Jack M. Lewis; Dr. Allen T. Stewart, and Dr. J. C. Loveless and John W. Hood, both of Slaton.

INCREASE FOR WPA

WASHINGTON, Mar. 25. (AP)—The Works Progress administration reported today it had 2,356,870 persons at work March 19. This was an increase of 113,010 over the preceding week. The WPA plans to have approximately 2,500,000 at work by April.

GIVEN FIVE YEARS

HOUSTON, Mar. 25. (AP)—Harry Alonzo, 29-year-old nursery worker of Genoa, was found guilty by a jury today of murder without malice and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

He was convicted of killing Mrs. Laura Hughes, 22, last July 6.

Food Provided Needy Negroes

More than $50 worth of food and medicines for ailing negroes in a Cochran county labor concentration will be sent from Lubbock this morning in a truck furnished through the maintenance division of the highway department.

Subscription was made of Lubbock persons, said Robert Gragg, deputy labor commissioner, who will go there with J. P. Oliver, negro physician of Lubbock.

To Give Transportation

Gragg indicated further steps to provide transportation of negroes from the concentration to their homes in various sections of Texas and of other states would be made.

Fifty negroes and 30 Mexicans live in squalid surroundings on a 6,000-acre plantation.

Some are ill and all are making barely enough money to subsist, they have informed.

The group lives in four or five long semi-dugouts.

Leon Harrison, son of J. C. Harrison, overseer of the great cotton plantation, and James Lopez of Teague, Mexican labor contractor who has commissary rights say frankly that those who are left of the "top" load of 500 who worked the cotton crop at its peak generally do not make more than a few cents a day above their living expenses. But none is in danger of starving, they say.

Several Are Ill

Several are ill and none are making much money, said both men. But employment at the moment is not likely to absorb such a type of laborers, they explained, expressing their belief the Mexicans and negroes are doing as well or better where they are than they would if they returned to their East Texas homes and elsewhere "before cotton chopping season sets in."

As a matter of fact, said young Harrison and Lopez, the field hands, not crowded as they were, have a warm place to live, fuel to burn, credit at the commissary that, while it amounts to only 20 cents a day when a given individual does not work, will "keep body and soul together."

Settlement Inspected

The Avalanche-Journal, through two staff members, inspected the settlement Thursday afternoon and talked with young Harrison, Lopez, several Mexicans and numerous negroes. Negroes, who said they went to Cochran county from as far away as New York City and Shreveport, said they wanted to go to their homes "bad."

They presented the following interpretation of their condition and circumstances governing their daily existence:

They are not overcrowded now, as compared with a near incredulous condition recently.

They are given a choice in their work—that of pulling boles for 25 cents a 100 pounds or of "getting half the cotton they pull, provided they pay half the price of hauling it to market." The overseer, who has two trucks and a pickup, does the hauling.

"Good Days" Sometimes

They sometimes have "good days" when they can clear as much as $1.35.

Such periods of wetness, whether by rain, snow or heavy dew, as may fall result in their making nothing. Then they receive credit of 20 cents a day from Lopez. (Twenty-three such days fell consecutively in February, they and Lopez said.)

Only about 150 bales remain to be "pulled." From 1,700 to 1,800 bales have been ginned.

The dugouts, 85 feet long, 12 feet wide and approximately seven feet in the ground (a shallow superstructure having been erected above the ground level), cannot be kept sanitary—what with the fact water has to be hauled from a windmill a few hundred yards off, overcrowded conditions, (until recently) inadequate bed clothing and no sanitary facilities for disposal of wastes.

One Family Has Thirteen

Babies of only a few months play against bunks (only one of which showed to have bed springs) on which lie persons complaining of illness. Only one skillet had meat in it—the others having beans or bread.

The long dugouts have six and seven kitchen stoves each. Families huddle there, one being composed of 13 persons, eat and sleep and hope tomorrow will be warm and dry so the laboring members may earn a few more cents toward transportation of the family back to its home city.

Gragg and Judge Allison said the negroes went to work the great farm and were stranded when they failed to save enough money to pay for their return transportation.

Want To Get Away "Bad"

Most of the single men and women have gone. Families are those who apparently cannot get away.

They shake their heads, the negroes, when asked about how they fare. The answer is the same, couched in different language. They want to get away "bad."

Lopez has a different slant.

"Next year I workee Mexicans and Americans," he said. "You know how about—negroes—they no satisfy anybody. They get work if they not lazy and lie around, but they not satisfy anybody.

"I ready pay them if I owe them anything, and if they owe me I ready to forget about that if they just leave and don' come back."

FDR Claims America Offers Safe Haven For All Peoples

Charley Lockhart Is Visitor On Friday

Charley Lockhart, candidate for reelection as state treasurer, visited in Lubbock Friday. The former Scurry county man is a brother of G. E. Lockhart of 1611 Broadway, Lubbock attorney.

The treasurer, serving his fourth term, said he had been at the West Texas Pharmaceutical association convention at Big Spring and that he would leave today for Fort Worth and a Roosevelt rally and banquet tonight.

The diminutive official takes "pleasure in recalling I handle $200,000,000 in a year and that when corporations of that financial rating lost heavily Texas did much better. Of 24 state depository banks that failed to open when the governor lifted the banking moratorium, all later pulled out, the last one last July."

Lockhart has two opponents. "I am asking reelection as a reward for faithful service," he said.

Invitations To Open House At Tech April 8-9 Are Mailed

Home economics department at Texas Technological college has mailed invitations for open house April 8 and 9 to home demonstration agents in Lubbock, Hockley, Lamb, Lynn, Bailey, Hale, Swisher, Kent, Dickens, Palmer, Cochran, and Yoakum counties.

Invitations will also be sent to home demonstration clubs and 4-H clubs in this district.

The open house is held in connection with the district Interscholastic League meet, Engineering show, and vocational agriculture judging on Tech campus the same weekend.

RURAL ROUTE EXTENDED

SPUR, March 25. — Rural route No. 1, formerly known as Route A, has been extended to include 40 more families, Postmaster O. C. Arthur announces. Luther Powell is the carrier. Route 2, formerly route 1, has about the same area. Boyd Rice will be the carrier, transferring here from Lamesa. The change is effective April 16.

Helping Hands Are Extended

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., March 25. (AP)—President Roosevelt enlarged the scope of America's political refugee relief proposal today by asserting it provided an asylum here not only for Jews of Germany and Austria, but for other oppressed minorities there and in all other lands.

While primarily intended to assist Jews in Germany and seized Austria, he told a press conference that, under a policy adopted at the time the American constitution was being drawn, the helping hand was extended to all races and creeds—within present immigration quotas.

Applies To All Groups

He replied affirmatively when a reporter asked whether it applied to political and religious groups like the Catholics under the Barcelona government in Spain, Trotzkyites in Russia, and anti-fascists in Italy.

He expressed belief requests for aid had come from Protestants and Catholics, as well as Jews, in central Europe.

The president talked to reporters while sitting behind the wheel of his new, five-passenger car.

Proposal Is Discussed

Hatless, he drove up with William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, and Basil O'Conner, former law partner, and stopped in a dirt road in front of one of two press cottages.

He discussed Secretary Hull's proposal inviting nine European nations and the 20 other American republics to join the United States in setting up a committee to find private financial help in transferring oppressed peoples to this and the other countries.

He said no new legislation would be required in the United States. In connection with Germany and Austria, he pointed out that, under the present law, the immigration quotas were merged when two countries became one political entity.

Under the Hull proposal, Germany could send about 26,000 immigrants.

Building Total Nears Record As More Permits Are Given

Construction estimated to cost $8,500, authorized in two permits issued Friday by the city building inspector, sent the week's aggregate to within less than $7,000 of a new record for any calendar week of 1938.

The week's total was $65,652, a figure exceeded only by the $72,531 of last week, which set the six-day record for the new year. Several applications for permits are pending, according to the city building inspector's office, and if routine technicalities are satisfied, a new record will be set before noon today.

New permits were to Hal P. Bradley for a brick veneer residence costing $7,000 at 3002 Twentieth street and to E. M. Copp, for a frame residence costing $1,500 at 1608 Twenty-third street.

Total for March was increased to $213,959.47 and for the year to $515,446.22.

WOMEN PLAN DRIVE

LITTLEFIELD, March 25. — The Women's club of Littlefield has planned a book drive for Wednesday. They will solicit books for the city library. House to house solicitation is planned.

He Wants To Be In Pictures

Work can be lots of fun, too, Jack Mulhall, jr., must be thinking, above, as he tries out for the movies at the request of Director Andrew Stone. Young Mulhall, son of the star of silent films, was spotted as he guided tourists around a Hollywood studio. The object of his screen test affections is Cheryl Walker, queen of Pasadena's Tournament of Roses.

Forgery Charge Is Filed Here

G. B. Laird, 35, Friday was charged in the justice court of Walter Davies with forgery of a $9 check. According to the complaint, the name of H. C. Laird was forged.

Upon arraignment, bond of $1,000 was set and late Friday it had not been posted, said members of the sheriff's department. The defendant had been arrested Thursday by Bill Mabray, police identifications officer, Grady Harrist, deputy sheriff, and Frank Mills, Texas ranger.

Two Are Charged

As the result of an asserted altercation at a place a mile and a half north of Lubbock on the Plainview highway Thursday night, Haskell Ford, 23, was charged in county court with aggravated assault and Bascom Allen, 23, was charged in the justice court of S. E. McMillan with assault. Both were charged with assault on Jimmie Sellers of Lamesa.

Sellers was given treatment at Lubbock sanitarium for lacerations of the head.

Melvin Alvey and O. E. Rush of the police department arrested Ford and Allen early Friday morning. Both defendants were released on bond.

Taken To Plainview

A 24-year-old Lubbock man, arrested Thursday, was transferred to Plainview by Hale County Sheriff Kelly Hooper where he was wanted on a charge of forgery.

Jas. P. Posey, chief deputy sheriff, and Cap Moore, another deputy, arrested a man, about 30, for authorities at Little Rock, Ark., according to information from the sheriff's office. Officers here said they thought the man was wanted for desertion of his wife and a child.

Vitamin B, necessary for good appetite and normal muscle tone in the digestive tract, is destroyed by over cooking.

BUILD NEW HOME

LITTLEFIELD, March 25.—Henry Eanks has had plans drawn for a 5-room modern home in the Duggan addition. He will receive bids soon.

Abilene Is Chosen As Meeting Site

BIG SPRING, Mar. 25. (AP)—West Texas druggists, closing the convention of their pharmaceutical association here today, selected Abilene for their next meeting place on August 16, 17 and 18.

Gerald Allen of Robert Lee will serve as president, and Leroy Clark of San Angelo as secretary until officers are elected in August.

A resolution adopted by the group called on the state liquor control board to cancel liquor permits of chain organizations obtaining permits "by subterfuge" when the two-year operation requirement had not been met.

America's first theater was built in Williamsburg, Va., in 1716.
