ROSCOE BAPTIST

HAVE NEW PASTOR

Roscoe.—The Rev. Graves Darby, of Cross Plains, was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church here Sunday morning.

The church had been pastorless for more than two months since the resignation of the Rev. W. H. Howell.

TAX AMENDMENT WOULD FREE 565,270 HOMES FROM LEVIES

Texas will free 565,270 homes from state property taxation (up to $3,000 value) if a proposed amendment to the state constitution is adopted at the November general election.

As last number is more than half the total number of votes ever cast in a Texas election, it is practically a foregone conclusion the amendment will be adopted.

The figures are approximate. Questionnaires now are out asking for accurate figures from each of the 254 counties in the state on the number of homesteads that will be affected by the proposed amendment. The figures used are taken from federal census reports. They include 190,515 farms in Texas operated by the owners.

Some persons own and operate more than one farm but it is estimated that the duplications occurring for that reason are offset by excluding all of two other farm classes, though a few of these classes will fall within the tax exempted class.

There are 301,660 farms listed in Texas as operated by tenants. A number of these, however, may fall within the homestead classification as actual residences is not always a requisite to property being a homestead. There are also 3,314 farms operated by farm corporations with managers in charge.

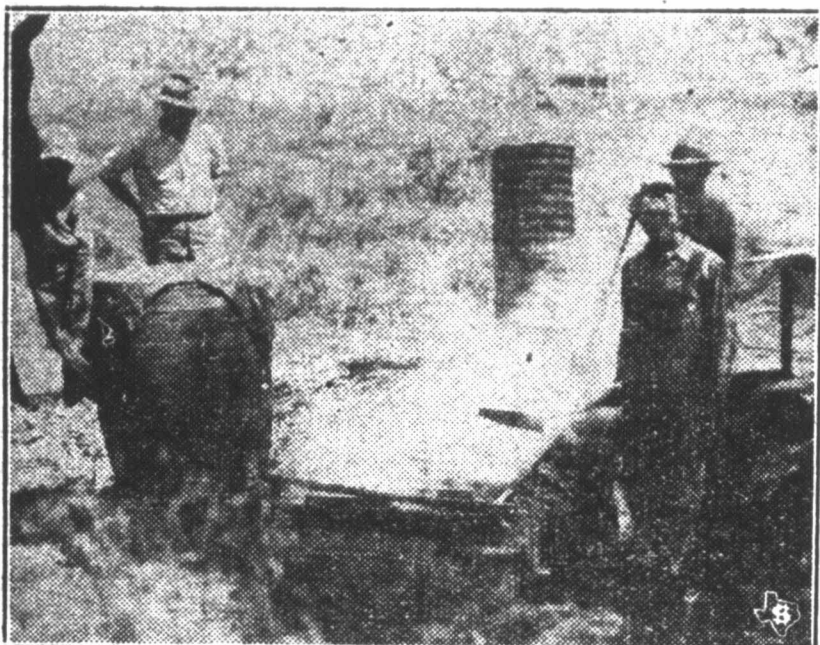

In cities and towns there are 471,902 families living in rented homes, according to the 1930 census.

Homestead owners whose homes are assessed at not over $3,000 average valuation for tax purposes is fifty per cent in practice. It will mean a man with a $6,000 home will escape state ad valorem tax on only $1,000.

How many homes and farms with a valuation under $3,000 is also a matter of estimate. Again using census figures as a basis for an estimate, the probable number is 294,238.

Making Syrup in West Texas

Equipped with an up-to-date syrup mill, J. F. Lollar, farmer living near Anson is making sorghum syrup on the shares for his Jones county neighbors. He is shown by his vat where 150 gallons of syrup was made from a fraction over two acres of Japanese Honey Drip cane. Making sorghum syrup is new to most West Texas farms but it's becoming a more common practice this year because of the activities of county agents. C. C. Johnson, county agent in Jones county, says 20 farmers are making syrup this year by demonstration methods.

Adams of the advertising department writes as follows: "It will be a pleasure to have the Mitchell county 4-H club boys as our guests on Friday the 14, and we will arrange to have a special guide to conduct the party through the plant on that date."

WARNS AGAINST IMPURE SEED

College Station—Citing the Biblical command "Thou shalt not sow thy fields with mingled (mixed) seed", E. A. Miller, agronomist in the Texas A and M College Extension Service warns farmers at the start of the fall planting season to beware of using seed from irresponsible parties. "The only seed that a farmer can afford to buy is good seed of high quality," he says. "Be sure that the seed is pure and at least carries a tag showing the per cent of germination, per cent of weed seeds, etc. There is always a risk in buying seed from any trucker or peddler who happens along and who has no business reputation to uphold."

"In these days of low prices big yields are more important than ever, and they can only be obtained by planting seed of high yielding strains. The handicap of inferior seed cannot be overcome by good soil, good rainfall and good cultural methods, although these factors are very important. Seed that look good may have a very poor pedigree or none at all, and may be full of weed seeds or disease germs. Germination alone does not give a true idea of the value of seed, for it often happens that poor seed look good and germinate well. The safest way is to buy only tagged seed or seed of known origin."

Gonzales—A saving in seed cost of about $30,000 is in prospect for cotton farmers in seven Gonzales county communities where the pure seed from the one-variety cotton block in Schoolland Community is to be sold. The county agent explains that under agreement with the cooperating Greenville Federal Experiment Station, Schoolland farmers are to sell their pure seed at oil mill prices wherever farmers arrange for one-variety blocks.

J. W. Howell and W. W. Smith made a business trip to Abilene Friday.

317 Bales Ginned Here To Date

At noon Wednesday the five gins in Loraine reported a total of 317 bales of cotton has been ginned in Loraine to that time. The continued rainy weather for the past two months has delayed opening and harvesting of the crop. Picking would have been under way several weeks ago but for the wet weather.

With a few days sunshine the crop will be moving at the rate of several hundred bales a day. Quite a number of pickers have stopped here and have been waiting for fair weather to begin work. Cotton is opening fast.

TRUCK LAW INJUNCTIONS ARE HELD INVALID

The Texas Supreme Court Saturday held that district judges were without authority to issue writs of injunction to restrain enforcement of the law regulating load limits of motor trucks.

The court ordered L. G. Phares, chief of the State Highway Patrol, and several of his officers released from custody on charges of contempt of court, made when the officers refused to abide by district court injunctions restraining them from interfering with certain operators who carried loads in excess of that provided by the law.

The law had been held valid by the United States Supreme Court.

Phares and his officers had been adjudged in contempt of court. They were arrested but released on writs of habeas corpus issued by the Supreme court.

RETAIL STORE SALES INCREASE IN AUGUST

Austin, Texas, Sept. 30.—An increase of 10 per cent was noted in August sales of 96 retail stores reporting to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. These sales totaled $2,618,644, as compared with $2,371,733 in July. The usual seasonal increase is only 3 per cent. This notable increase is attributed partly to cool August weather which naturally interested customers in fall merchandise, and partly to im-men's ware shops. buying public is restored and as customers begin to take advantage of values being offered, the lag in dollar value of sales as compared with a year ago may be greatly reduced before the end of the year," the Bureau's report said.

The best showing as compared with July was made in El Paso stores, where sales during August exceeded those of the previous month by 27 per cent. San Angelo made a gain of 24 per cent and Dallas sales increased 23.3 per cent as compared with July.

TWO HUNDRED TWENTY-FIVE MILLIONS

That is a large sum of money in anybody's language. It represents the amount invested in Texas by life insurance companies doing business in the state under provisions of the Robertson law.

Those whose memories hark back to the time of gaitation for such law as that sponsored by Judge Robertson was begun, will recall that the motivating eastern companies were not in reason was the fact that the vesting in Texas.

They had many good reasons for that discriminatory policy. The one most frequently cited, however, was the Texas homestead law.

When the Robertson law was passed the eastern companies had no substantial investment in Texas. Should that law be repealed would they make any substantial investments in Texas? Or, at the same time we repealed the Robertson law, would we also be required to repeal the homestead law?

Before we repeal a statute that is responsible for the investment in Texas of $225,000,000, should we not get some definite assurance that eastern companies thus favored (at the expense of Texas companies) were really ready and willing to invest their money here. Or should we repeal the Robertson law first, and then discover that the homestead law also must be thrown overboard?

THE NEW PRINCIPLE IN CHILD WELFARE

By Jane Lacy
The state of Texas is in the business of salvaging child life. The work is directed by Violet S. Greenhill, chief of the Child

The Hitcher!

Welfare Division' Board of Control.

In the discharge of its work the division of child welfare is emphasizing the practical application of a new principal. While orphans, homes are still maintained by the state they have become the last, instead of the first thought of the welfare worker.

The chief concern of the child welfare division is to preserve 'if possible' the child's own home. It is his normal environment for which there is no real substitute' declares Mrs. Greenhill.

Where preservation of the home is impossible the next step is placement of the child for adoption. Only when every other recourse is exhausted does the child welfare division send its ward to a state institution.

The new principal is expressed in this quotation from a recent brochure written by Mrs. Greenhill: "After many decades of too hasty removal of children from their own homes thoughtful social workers are coming to realize that although sometimes difficult, it is in the long run more constructive and more economical to preserve the child's own home in the beginning."

It is gratifying to know that the vast power of the state, in its child welfare work, is at last bent, to the preservation rather than the disruption of the home. Such a program should earn for the department of state government headed by Mrs. Greenhill, the respect and co-operation of all thinking citizens.

TRADE AT HOME

The following "Trade at Home" suggestions are made by one of The News readers:

"If a city is worth living in, it is worth trading in. Money spent away from home never returns to make the home town prosperous."

"Trade at home! Money spent away from home doesn't pay, our home laborer, or teachers' salaries, or repairs on the school buildings. Taxes have to be increased to make up for this loss."

"Are you helping your home town? The wealth of its citizens is the capital of a city. Its prosperity depends upon the business Trading at home is good business."

"The business men and merchants are counted upon to keep the town in a progressive condition. Help them by trading with them. A town cannot be better or bigger than its business and professional interests."

"It's the solid worth of home-spent money and good words that will make our city bigger and better in every way."

"Your children will not live in a 'dead' town. Home-spent money keeps the town growing and the children from moving away."

"It is the money spent in your home town that gives your property greater value and protects it."

"Your town depends upon the money spent in it by its citizens for its growth and prosperity. For a prosperous city—trade at home."

"Who wants to live in a 'dead town'? The merchants and professional men are the life of your city. Trade with them and keep the town alive."

"The size of your taxation depends upon the wealth of your community. Increase this wealth and reduce taxation by trading at home."

"You like to live in a prosperous town. Prosperity, like charity, begins at home. Every dollar spent out of town is a check on your own town's prosperity.—Trade at home."

"Dollars spent at home return to the spender in the form of better police protection, better fire protection, better schools and better churches."

"He who takes and never gives may last for years but never lives."

"The people" choose Barabbas.

bringing the total in the county, exclusive of King Ranch, to 56.

Summer fallowed wheat on 640 acres harvested by Herman Borth in Sherman county averaged 21 bushels per acre compared to averages of 5 to 8 bushels per acre on unfallowed wheat on adjoining land.

Al Kuntz increased his income $4.20 per acre by producing 37 bushels of wheat to the acre on old sweet clover land. He lives in Wolfe Ridge community in Cooke county and as told by the county agent, wheat on old corn land nearby made slightly less than 25 bushels to the acre.

U. OF T. ISSUES BULLETIN ON DEBATE SUBJECT

Austin, Texas, October 1.—With a view to meeting some of the problems that the high school, Interscholastic League debater is confronted with in the question for debate this year, the University of Texas League Bureau has issued a bulletin containing summaries and brief of affirmative and negative arguments, carefully prepared by an expert in the subject.

The question is "Resolved, That at Least One-Half of All State and Local Revenues in Texas Should Be Derived from Sources Other Than Taxes on Tangible Property." The University bulletin has been prepared by Dr. C. A. Duval, a specialist in economic theory and instructor in the University. He has had the advice and counsel in this work of Dr. E. T. Miller, University professor of economics, who is generally conceded to be the most distinguished authority on taxation in the South, Roy Bedi-check, chief of the Bureau, declared.

There is no investment in the world quite like insurance. On it a man has the opportunity to build a business of his own, acquire money enough to educate his children, pay monthly bills when disabled, protection to one's family in case of death, or provides an income in old age.

Why not choose wisely and make the best investment of your life. One that will meet your needs in adversity as well as prosperity.

I will be glad to serve you in any way I can in the insurance business. If that old policy needs repairs will be glad to help fix it up if new business have insurance that meets every requirement please see me.

MITCHELL COUNTY FARM NOTES

R. L. Solomon of Cuthbert says, "I didn't think there would be so much difference in hickory and every row maize. Where I have it planted two row skip one, two rows will head out more than four rows where every row is planted."

More home-made syrup has been made this year in Mitchell county than in any other year in the county's history according to folks who have been checking up on the number of syrup mills running this year. There are probably more sweet potato patches this year than ever before.

A. J. Hooks, S. O. Wulfjen and J. M. Doss are among those planning to furnish beehives for the beef killing and cutting demonstration by the state meat specialist next month. The demonstration will be held at the A. L. White farm. The beehives will be cut up in town.

Ralph Mann has used a "multiple hitch" for five horses in flat breaking and he says it is the best hitch he has ever used. "After I plow two rounds I can almost throw my lines away," he says. With this type of hitch only the lead team has lines; the others are "tied in" and "bucked back". When one horse moves every trace tightens.

R. H. Bush, A&M Pasture Specialist was in Mitchell County this week. He recommends Burr Colver and Italian rye grass to improve native pastures of this section. J. L. Bowen has splendid results with the Italian rye grass he planted two years ago. It re-seeds itself.
