Anti-Castro Insurgents Are Fighting

By RICHARD VALERIANI
HAVANA (AP) — A band of about 150 armed anti-Castro insurgents was reported fighting in central Cuba today after a new landing near Ciego de Avila on the north coast 120 miles east of Havana.

Although the Armed Forces Ministry denounced the report as a "counterrevolutionary rumor," sources opposed to Prime Minister Fidel Castro insisted it was true.

Persons arriving in Havana from Matanzas, west of Corralillo, said the invaders have been engaged in sporadic battles the last two days. Some claimed to have seen truckloads of troops diverted to the area while en route to the Escambray Mountains to fight other insurgents.

Two militiamen were reported killed by one such band which came out of the mountains on a raid for food Thursday and clashed with troops at Cumanayagua, one of the gateways to the rugged range.

This report—one of several concerning armed clashes—came amid these other developments: Authorities at Cienfuegos, near the south central coast, announced one person was killed and four injured in an unsuccessful attempt of a group of counterrevolutionaries to seize a Cuban airliner in flight and force the pilot to fly out of the country.

A Cuban diplomatic note to the United States charged that a doubleheader space rocket, which fell in fragments near Holguin in eastern Cuba 10 days ago and killed a cow was a part of a "tremendous plot" of aggression.

The attempt to commandeer the airliner was balked, Cienfuegos officials said, when the pilot crashed the plane during a dramatic airborne gun battle.

Reports from Cienfuegos said a group attempting to flee Cuba opened fire on the plane's crew five minutes after takeoff from that town on the 150-mile flight to Havana. The shooting started when the pursuer refused to open the locked door into the control cabin.

The military guard said five persons, including two middle-aged women, attempted to seize the airliner.

The man killed in the battle was identified as Ramiro Rodriguez Verda, 28, of Holguin, a passenger believed to have been one of the group.

Freezing Rain Coats Area Roads Today

Freezing rain mingled with sleet to clog city streets and area highways with a coating of icy slush this morning in Snyder, as the second pre-winter storm within a week moved in from the west.

Temperatures in the high thirties had thawed the area Thursday, but a 30-degree reading early today marked a return to the freezing trend. Weather forecasts indicated that conditions in West Texas would get worse before they improve.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for the Panhandle and Plains areas, while freezing rain and snow are in prospect for the remainder of West Texas.

A drizzling rain began to freeze at daybreak in the Snyder area. School officials in Fluvanna and Hermleigh put out last-minute notices that their schools would be closed today due to icy road conditions.

Meanwhile, the Scurry County area was reaping some benefits from new moisture. Most of the area was extremely dry before this week's spell of weather set in. The overnight measurement here was 15 of an inch, making a total of 37 in two days.

The Highway Department reported that roads in this area were icy today, but driving conditions were becoming more hazardous every hour during the morning as the icing conditions endured.

The Snyder area had missed most of the severe ice storm earlier in the week, as the brunt of the cold spell hit areas to the west and south.

GUEST IN THE LIVING ROOM—Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Barsha of Los Angeles, Calif., finish the evening on the remaining furniture after unwelcome guests drove into their living room. The informal call came when Mrs. W. P. Sharpe of North Hollywood, with her husband as a passenger, lost control of her car in a puddle of water and blasted through the front of the Barsha home. A wrecking truck hauled the car from the living room and the Sharps presumably continued their drive. (AP Wirephoto)

El Paso Area Roads Closed

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A six-inch snow, heaviest in two years, closed schools Friday and blocked roads into El Paso, the state's fifth largest city.

Up to eight inches of snow fell in the mountains around El Paso as the big storm swirled across southeastern New Mexico and into far West Texas and the Texas Panhandle.

The storm came on the heels of an ice storm that gripped much of the area for two days and caused extensive damage to telephone and electric lines.

The snow began falling at El Paso Thursday afternoon. By 8:30 p.m. all bus and plane schedules had been cancelled into El Paso. Trains continued to run.

Many cars stalled on slippery streets. Electric power went out in many parts of the city.

At a motel on the edge of the city, guests sat in the restaurant during the night and drank coffee to keep warm. The motel was without heat after a power failure.

Road graders worked all night pushing snow from streets. Friday morning traffic moved at a snail's pace.

At midmorning the Weather Bureau issued a heavy snow warning for the Texas Panhandle and South Plains. It forecast six or more inches of snow in the El Paso area Friday afternoon and night.

The bureau also forecast freezing rain and glazing of highways as far east as North Central Texas as Friday night.

Southwest of El Paso two inches of snow fell on the ground at Alpine and a light snow continued to fall.

The main power line to McDonald Observatory on Mt. Locke in the Davis Mountains broke under the weight of ice. Six inches of snow fell there during the night, bringing the total to eight inches.

Five inches of snow piled up at Muleshoe and Bovina. At Morton, south of Muleshoe, 3 inches of snow was on the ground.

Schools also closed at Muleshoe, Farwell, Friona, Bovina, Lubbock, Otton, Amberst, Anton and Spade.

At least three persons died in accidents during the snow, ice and rain storms Thursday night and Friday.

The Rey, George Akin, a Negro minister from Los Angeles, was killed Thursday night when his car skidded on icy pavement at an underpass on U.S. 80 near Sierra Blanca in far West Texas. Two passengers were injured.

Leola Lee Watson, 42, and Yldro Guerrero, 33, were killed Friday when their car skidded on a rain-slick street in San Antonio.

Heaviest snow was in the El Paso-Muleshoe areas. Freezing rain and a light snow fell at Marfa. A trace of snow was on the ground at Lubbock. Alpine measured 2 inches.

Light freezing rain and sleet fell at Amarillo. An inch of snow was on the ground at Dalhart.

A mixture of light snow, sleet, freezing rain and drizzle fell over

Labor Joins Tax Proposal Opposition

AUSTIN (AP)—Organized labor joined with organized teachers to join in promising a fight against legislative recommendations urged by the Governor's State Finance Commission.

The Texas state AFL-CIO said that working men and women and others with a small income will take a "dim view" of the commission's proposal for a one percent payroll levy.

The Texas State Teachers' Association said the commission's recommendations for school improvements goes only "half a step" when a full step is needed, not only in giving teachers a pay raise but other phases of improving the teaching program.

The TSTA said today its comments on the commission's action apply only to education improvement recommendations and the teachers pay raise. "We have a long standing policy not to take a stand for or against any specific tax proposal," a TSTA spokesman said.

The opposition from teachers and unions joined protests already received from some legislative legislators as Sen. George Parkhouse and Rep. Ben Atwell, both of Dallas.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo

(AP)—Supporters of Patrice Lumumba, who ruled the Congo, today threatened to kill an unspecified number of Belgian hostages unless the deposed premier is freed.

They made the threat in a telegram to President Joseph Kasavubu and Col. Joseph Mobutu, the Congolese army commander whose troops arrested Lumumba and clamped him into prison.

Bernard Salumu, boss of the regime at Stanleyville, capital of the Congo, threatened to arrest all Europeans, kill some of them, and "sabotage all Belgian interests in the province" if Lumumba was not released within 48 hours.

The United Nations took immediate emergency action to protect the estimated 2,000 whites living in the province, half of them in Stanleyville.

Rep. Jim Wright's Campaign Started

FORT WORTH (AP)—Fort Worth business, professional and civic leaders representing all shades of political opinion—kicked Rep. Jim Wright's campaign for the U.S. Senate off to a roaring start Thursday.

Nearly 400 persons were on hand at a luncheon to pledge their support and financial backing to the 37-year-old congressman.

They called upon all citizens of Tarrant County to join in a campaign to make known to every Texas voter Wright's "ability, sense of fair play, devotion to his state and nation, and his untiring efforts, in behalf of those he represents."

All phases of political opinion assembled for the rousing send-off, assuring Wright of widespread support.

Attending were Republicans and Democrats, Conservatives and Liberals, some of whom expressed radically different political views as recently as Nov. 8.

Wright, aiming for the seat held by Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson, noted that a number of persons who opposed him when he was first elected to Congress in 1954 were in the gathering.

Mayor Tom McCann, who campaigned vigorously for the defeated Republican presidential ticket, was on hand to offer his backing.

So was attorney Bill Brown, a leader in Democratic party affairs.

"I hope I have shown you that I do not believe that 'the victor belongs the spoils,'" the congressman said.

He said, however, that "to support me in this will not buy you any preferred representation because there will be no preferred representation."

Lending a note of optimism to the rally, Wright said that recent visits into other areas of the state have produced encouraging signs of support that is needed to win.

"I was heartened by the response that I found," he said.

United Fund Campaign Hits 50 Per Cent Level Today

The Scurry County United Fund Campaign was right on schedule today, as the second report, session of the drive accounted for 50.3 per cent of the goal.

The total reported at today's meeting was $10,061.78, making a grand total of $20,837.28 accounted for in two report meetings.

Two other report meetings are scheduled, and the goal will be reached if the present pace is maintained, campaign leaders reminded.

Totals reported so far by divisions are as follows: Advance Gifts, $14,008.50, or 69.3 per cent of goal; Employee Gifts, $3,091.28, or 29 per cent of goal; Special Gifts, $1,141.00, or 11.4 per cent of goal; General Division, $535.50, or 5.6 per cent of goal; Women's Division, $332.50, or 3.1 per cent of goal; County Division, $799.50, or 7.8 per cent of goal; Branch House Division, $1,125.00, or 11.1 per cent of goal.

The next report meeting is set for next Wednesday, and campaign officials are working toward a final push to complete the campaign by Dec. 16. By then, leaders hope to reach the goal of $41,000 which will be divided among eight national, state and local agencies which have subordinated their contribution efforts to the one combined campaign.

Aim of all division chairmen, according to the Campaign Chairman John Boren, is to lead their hundreds of volunteers in a "do it now" effort to put the United Fund over the top for the first time in years by one week from today. With the drive cut in length from previous years, United Fund officials scheduled a total of four report sessions with a goal of 25 per cent improvement at each session.

"We are at the time when a really united effort is needed to reach our goal," Boren said. "I know the workers and their leaders can make this drive successful and I believe they will do it in the allotted time—before Friday, Dec. 16."

United Fund officials admitted that the weather could affect the schedule and were urging all workers to make the final push toward completion.

"Take advantage of this weather," Boren urged. "Any prospect is bound to be impressed with the speed and urgency when you have to go wading through rain and sleet in 30-degree weather to see him."

More than 300 county residents are working to obtain funds to be given to the Boy's Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Heart Fund, Medical Research Program, Red Cross, Salvation Army and Texas Rehabilitation Center.

Assisting Boren, the campaign chairman, is Mel Gilbert, United Fund president, and division chairmen, including Mark McLaughlin, Bob McAlister, Walker T. Dabbs, Harold Bennett, Mrs. J. E. Sorrells, Herman Stahl, Clarence Wade, W. J. Jones, Mrs. Thomas F. Hartley and Joe Cargile.

Mob Violence Hits Algiers As French President Arrives

By ANDREW BOROWIEC
ALGIERS (AP)—Mob violence erupted in Algeria today as President Charles de Gaulle flew into the rebellious territory wearing a general's uniform to whip up support for his plan for home rule.

Special riot police battled thousands of demonstrators in the packed streets of Algiers, and tough soldiers moved into the great city square of Oran, 220 miles northwest of Algiers, to control a mob of thousands.

A call for a general strike proclaimed by the Front for French Algeria, largest group of diehard settlers, was heeded to a large extent in most big cities.

But De Gaulle stubbornly went ahead with his tour, pressing his plan that could even lead to Algeria's independence. That is what the settlers fear most, for they would be far outnumbered by Algeria's Moslem majority.

De Gaulle's first stop was Ain

Temouchent, a city of 25,000, about half European.

As he stepped from his car, a hail of stones and bricks was thrown out by a mob of "Algerians is French." Police said 5,000 people stood in a chill downpour to shout their protests.

De Gaulle smiled thinly and strode erect to City Hall. After he had gone inside, an army colonel addressed the crowd through a loudspeaker. He told them to "demonstrate peacefully."

De Gaulle is to spend six days trying to persuade the population his policy is the right one. His presence, as the symbol and a sign of a policy they hate, stirred thousands to riot in Oran and Algiers.

In Oran, relative quiet was restored when soldiers replaced hated riot police squads. Tear gas was fired on the mobs in both cities.

The army also moved into some areas of Algiers shortly after noon. Soldiers set up gun emplacements near the university, deserted by students who took to the streets.

Most of the rioters appeared to be students who had turned out early in the morning. Women and girls, some of them still wearing bathrobes, lowered huge French tricolor flags to the marchers and urged them on. The students threw notebooks, bricks, glass and even typewriters.

The violence of right-wing reaction was not unexpected. As the hours passed, it began to appear that De Gaulle had thrown the challenge to his opponents, daring them to come out of hiding and fight him.

For months now, right-wing activists have operated under cover. De Gaulle's arrival in Algeria forced their hand and, true to their tradition, they took to the streets.

Women Now Comprise Nearly Half Of U. S. News Staffs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Nelly Bly, that daring young girl reporter of 1893 who plodded around the world in 72 days to eclipse the record of Phineas Gage, hero of Jules Verne's best-seller, was just a pretty piker compared with today's jet-traveling newswoman.

But as the nation's first lady journalist to represent the New York World, Nellie must be sentimentally honored as the determined torchbearer for a legion of feminine news writers who have fought their way into newspaper acclaim during the last few decades. Each year these confident and talented women are building bigger names for themselves in this profession where once their presence excited only profanity from hard-boiled and, of course, only male city editors. They have got it made as equals—or better—of many newsmen in the business today.

The federal census takers surprisingly can point out that nearly half—38,596 out of 60,750—of the editors and reporters in the United States are women.

More women are graduating from journalism schools every year. They received 32 per cent of the journalism degrees conferred in 1959, and they started work at an average salary of $71.50 a week—only slightly less than the $75 average for male graduates of such schools.

Most important, opportunities for the educated girl with a news sense and writing skill and ability to meet people at all levels are expanding in what once were newspaper areas restricted to men. It's still an irrevocable rule today that a woman, no matter how charming, can't just slide up to a major assignment or beat. She has to show exceptional ability to get ahead as a foreign correspondent.

A political or financial analyst or columnist, or a crime reporter. But more and more of them are succeeding. The bylines on the front pages of any metropolitan daily offer proof.

Wide Range of Assignments
The major wire services—Associated Press and United Press International—have assigned women to beats of such stature as the U. S. Supreme Court and to foreign news bureaus from hot-and-cold Moscow to La Paz, Bolivia. Big metropolitan papers send star women reporters to cover the state legislatures and interview touring international dignitaries, or even cover such sports events as the Kentucky Derby or heavyweight championship boxing bouts. Many of these smartly-coiffed journalists are assigned to major criminal trials or United Nations sessions.

On the small city papers, and in the more remote wire service bureaus, women reporters cover everything from weddings to elections to kidnappings or floods. And they learn to dig the facts swiftly and write them accurately against the unrelenting deadlines their papers present most days of the publishing year.

One of the most exciting and significant trends today—both for working newspaperwomen and for women who read them—is the development of the "women's interest" pages and sections of papers in nearly all circulation brackets.

Women's Pages Improved
These pages and sections are getting so good that many highly-talented young women reporters who once accepted women's page jobs only to get professional toe-holds, and then escaped as fast as they could to general assignment reporting, now prefer to stay with those jobs.

The prestige of women's pages received a boost in June of this year when it was announced a grant to the University of Missouri, which is the home of the nation's oldest journalism school, to establish a series of awards for excellence in general women's interest and fashion reporting.

Importance of these pages and sections to the publication of today's newspapers is underscored by the fact that there are many more business and professional women now than there were 15 years ago, or even one year ago. Again the U. S. Census Bureau will show that more than 3,400,000 business and professional women were reporting to well-paid jobs in commerce and industry in 1959.

Because these competent women are necessary to the nation's economic well-being, the affairs of politics and business and international relationships and government, they have become more avid newspaper readers than men.

A Bureau of Advertising survey over the last 10 years shows that 71 per cent of the women queried read all the general news, sports, society and women's pages in a newspaper, while only 61 per cent of the men sampled could make the same boast.

Thus, it is obvious that women writers with intelligence, imagination and craftsmanship are required to know what appeals to the readers of these women's interest pages, and produce it for these sections.

N.Y. Times - Not After Dark

Back in 1936, when a woman was expected to be decorously seen but not heard, the revolutionary Ladies Morning Star was founded in New York City and aimed "exclusively at women". Merchants doomed it to an early death by withholding all advertising until the word "Ladies" was deleted from the masthead. Remembered, too, is how James Gordon Bennett, who launched his brilliant New York Herald in 1835, used to stalk through the editorial rooms growling, "Who are these females? Fire them!" And for many years Editor "Carl" V. Van Ande of the New York Times would turn away women who sought reportorial work with the gentle admonition that the Times could not possibly risk sending a woman out after dark.

But the women refused to be daunted. And they had their own subtle, or brass, methods for breaking down the ancient prejudice against the fair sex in the fast-breaking, bawling newspaper-business. Easy—Ann-Royal stopped at nothing to get a story. When interviewing President John Quincy Adams she sat on his clothes as he jaded in the Potomac, refusing to budge until he answered her questions. The great Joseph Pulitzer finally had to yield to Nellie Bly's persuasive arguments and the New York World was even greater fame through the exploits of this international stunt reporter.

Several generations of readers followed faithfully the advice to the lockstep penned by that kindly soul of the women's department, Dorothy Dix, who had won her early reportorial spurs in the tough field of court reporting. She had covered the murder trial of Harry K. Thaw in 1907 and larded on sympathy so heavily she was labeled the first "sob sister". That word is now part of everyday language.

Women Hold Top Posts

—Win Awards
Many of the present-day women newspaper leaders made their way to the top with one insuperable formula—a determined will coupled with unusual reporting-writing skill. A former U. S. cabinet member, Oveta Culp Hobby, is now president of the Houston Post and a respected publisher. Dorothy Schiff publishes the New York Post. Alicia Patterson set up a desk on Long Island and built the reputable Newsday into a 288,000-plus circulation with a shrewd business hand and a policy of presenting bright, accurate news. Marya Mannes of The Reporter magazine is one of the most discerning of America's reporters.

Betsy Zavala, UPI staffer, covered the recent Bolivian revolt and Kay Lawrence, AP reporter, was the only woman invited aboard a U. S. nuclear-powered submarine. Journalism's coveted award, the Pulitzer Prize, went to Marguerite Higgins of the New York Herald Tribune in 1951 for national reporting, and she also distinguished herself as a war correspondent. In 1955 the Pulitzer award went to Mrs. Caro Brown of the Alice Tex. Echo, and in 1959 to Mary Lou Werner of the Washington Star for local reporting.

The list cannot be complete without the name of Inez Robb, the versatile New York columnist who can write on the cold war or Valencienne lace with equal facility. Doris Fleeson, former women's editor of the Associated Press, both have won University of Missouri awards for distinguished service in journalism, as has columnist Doris Fleeson. Able representation of the Hearst newspapers with glamor and talent is Dorothy Kilgallen, who aside from covering the foibles of the Hollywood set is one of the nation's best crime reporters. Her stories on the sensational Dr. Sam Sheppard murder case in Cleveland were some of the best written at that time.

Cynthia Lowry is a radio-television columnist for the Associated Press while Sylvia Porter has millions of daily readers as a financial and market expert.

Wall Street Executive Finds Ice Skating A Social Hazard

By INEZ ROBB

In small communities, the countryside and even in the suburbs, exercising or conditioning of the torso often consists of doing what comes naturally — mowing the lawn, chopping wood, cleaning the cellar, raking leaves, spading up the garden, putting a new roof on the house, beating rugs. It includes a hundred and one things, including golf and tennis, and even these are much easier come by and the playing fields much harder than they are for the city slicker.

So a formidable number of city men, often country products in the beginning, spend considerable time in the metropolis trying to get adequate exercise. And this is a special preoccupation of executive types.

Cries, in the long run, are apt to be sedentary. Exercise is something that has to be planned for consciously, like a trip to the dentist or the Museum of Modern Art.

Now, after this introduction on the life and hard times and a metropolitan Walter Camp, I shall introduce a friend of the family who plays golf and tennis in the warm weather and ice-skates in the winter to the great glory of his waistline and a flat stomach.

He is an estimable, upright type of about 40, and first vice-president of a Wall Street firm as fringed with dignity as a Georgia oak with Spanish moss.

A few weeks ago his wife presented him with a new pair of ice skates of the racing variety. Only last Saturday he had a chance to try them out on the Wollman rink in New York's Central Park, in company with a caddy, another impressive Wall Street executive suitor.

The skates turned out to be a dream, but a trifle speedier than our friend's old pair. He discovered that they went faster and farther, as you will see, than he, and seemed to have a will of their own.

The first time the skates got out of control, our friend sideswiped another man and the duo made an inadvertent half gainer before coming to rest on the ice.

Our friend then proceeded with commendable Wall Street caution, a prudence clearly not shared by the new skates. About 30 minutes after his first swift dive, he realized to his genuine horror that the unmanageable skates were proceeding at such a speed that he was about to collide with a toothsome young lady, an agile skater, just ahead of him.

Now on the old skates he would have had ample time to pass this pretty obstacle, but he reckoned without the treacherous new skates.

When he realized he was powerless and about to collide with the young lady, he believed he could save them both by lightly clutching her waist, a neutral zone, and gliding around and past her.

But either the skates were better or the lady was shorter than our man—an individual of spotless reputation—had reckoned. He clutched at the lady, but his arms shot around her and, to his horror, he found himself inadvertently grasping her rather north of the waistline.

The startled young lady let out a shriek of surprise and indignation. That upset our friend so much that he started to fall and take the lady with him, which only made him involuntarily clutch the tighter and hang for dear life.

There is little more to tell except that the guard rushed over and warned our friend against rowdiness. His friend has spread the story through the financial district, and he has given away his skates and taken up handball. But he is still known the length and breadth of Wall Street as The Gay Blade.

Exile Shakes Confidence Of Family Cat

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—It is hard to shake the self-confidence of a cat. But Lady Dottie, the cat who rules in our house, is no longer quite so sure of herself. She nearly lost her empire.

She is like a veteran politician who, after surviving a close election, isn't certain whether he loves the electorate for returning him to office—or hates it for scaring him to death.

Lady Dottie nipped our 7-year-old daughter, Tracy Ann, in the face and, although I'm not sure it was altogether her fault, was punished and temporarily banned from the living room.

About this time someone gave us a pair of zebra finches. Their cheerful chirping turned Lady Dottie into a leering, stalking tigress.

Once the finches escaped from their cage and it was all we could do to save them from being pawed apart.

A family conference was called to order by the chairman of the board, my wife, Frances.

"This is making me nervous," she announced. "We'll have to send Lady Dottie away for a while—and, the way I feel about her right now, it may be forever."

"Oh, not forever," cried Tracy. "If you do she'll die—and I'll die, too."

Well, we did send her away to stay with a friend, who has a cat named Bruce. We thought he and Lady Dottie would be friends.

A few days passed. The new birds didn't seem so new. They came up with no fresh tunes.

"When you hear one bird, you've heard them all," said Frances. "It's kind of like someone around here without Lady Dottie. I miss her."

The chairman of the board called another hurried family conference. It was decided to give the birds to our goddaughter, and bring back the cat—on probation.

Well, Lady Dottie came back to an acclaim as wild as greeted Napoleon when he escaped from Elba and marched to Paris. We did everything except throw concrete at her.

But when the excitement of her return died down a brooding look came over her face.

"You sent me into exile once," her expression says. "Will you ever do it again?"

It's a bit sad to see a cat with a hangdog look, but I'm sure it won't last long. A good cat, like a good woman, never surrenders to time or fate.

During Endorse Long Courtship

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I believe every couple should take time to learn each other's faults," says Jimmy Durante.

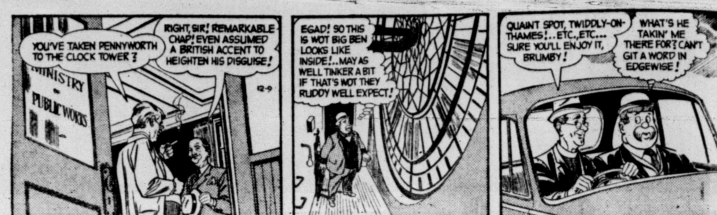

And that's why, he says, he and Miss Margaret Little dated 15 years and had a four-year engagement in a town known for speedy marriages.

On the other hand, the comedian added Thursday: "I figure you oughta get married when you're still young."

And that's why, said Durante, 67, he and Miss Little, 39, a former actress, are to be wed Dec. 14 in New York City.

"All this fuss" around "the bridegroom-to-be" complained "he is just wanted to have a quiet wedding and get it over with. Now everybody wants to get into da act."

BOX, BOXER, BAG, BIFF — Tuning up for tonight's matches here against Abilene is young Pete Rios, a member of the Snyder Boxing Team. Since he's too short to reach the punching bag without some sort of "equalizer," he beat the system by standing on a ready-made pedestal in the form of a wooden box. The matches will get under way tonight at 8 o'clock in the Towle Park "Barn," with a fine parade of talent set for action. No admission will be charged. (Photo by Jackson)

NO POWER FAILURE HERE—Three games were reeled off in the Fluvanna Invitational Tournament prior to a power failure yesterday and the eventual calling off of the meet due to inclement weather. Hermleigh Cardinal Jimmy Robinson (15) shoots a basket above during the first half of his team's 29-25 win over Sands as teammate Ken Bell (23) braces for a possible rebound and Port Fortune (33) and Larry Hall (35) of Sands attempt to block the attempt. In other tournament action the Hermleigh girls downed Sands "B", 34-29, and the Dawson girls got past Southland 25-21. (Photo by Jackson)

WE WUZ BUFFALOED...

'Black Thursday' Hits Jr. Highs

Action on the far-flung Snyder junior high cage fronts last night coincided with the weather—dismal and drab—as five-of-six quarters absorbed likings. Sweetwater applied the whammy on its own court at the expense of the Lamar Texans, while Lamesa played the part of the "bad host" in sneaking up on the Travis Blue Devils. Coach Ned Underwood's varsity 9th graders fell behind and never were able to pull back into the picture in going down by 46-34. Sweetwater held quarterly leads of 13-11, 25-15, and 39-26 in posting the victory.

Jimmy Wilson topped the Lamar scoring effort with 12 points, followed by Gail Potter (10), Edward Schultz (6), Benny Minor (4), and Larry Lee and Jim Markum (2 each).

Sweetwater's Parsons was high point man for the game with 20. A field goal with only 14 seconds left to play sealed the Lamar 40-34, as they were edged out by 24-22 in their game against Sweetwater 8th.

The contest was nip and tuck all the way, with the score all even at 6-6, at the end of the first stanza, 12-12 at the half, and 20-20, Sweetwater, at the three-quarter mark.

Pace paced the winning surge with 18 points. Tom Kincaid sparked the Texas output with 17. Other Lamar point production included that of Jay Williamson with 6, Larry Stewart and Jerry Vestal with 4 each, and J. N. Wall with one.

Lamar 7th got itself peppered to the tune of 21-10 in other activity of the evening.

Sweetwater's Richards was top scorer for the game with 5 points, while Lamar tallies showed Fred Kizer with 4, Bill Blum and Fred Wiman with 2 each, and Kenneth Deike and Ray Kizer, 1 each.

A chilly fourth quarter served to smash the Travis 9th hopes in its quest to upend Lamesa, as the Blue Devils were clipped by 41-34 after bolting into a 33-33 tie at the end of the third stanza. Previously the Travistates had lagged by 9-14 and 19-23 at the quarter and halfway marks.

The Lamesans, hot as frecklers from the floor as they hit for 40 percent to Travis' 26, were out-rebounded by the Blue Devils, 40-35. Travis had a productive night at the free throw line, making good on 70 per cent of their loftings.

Billy Stewart was high for the Blue Devils with 15 points, and also aided the cause by grabbing off 17 rebounds. Roy Rice had 10, Jackie Stewart 6, Ygnacio Benitez 5, and Robert Thomas 2 to complete the Travis scoring.

Coach Bob O'Day was pleased with the Blue Devil showing, stating that they put out a good team effort and looked better than their winning opener against Sweetwater.

Travis 8th had the same trouble as did their 9th grade brothers—inability to hit from the floor—going down by 46-37.

Travis led for only 17 per cent from the field in that game, while Lamesa swished the nets for a most respectable 52 per cent mean. Leslie Brown showed the way for Travis with 10 points, while Reed Robinson added 4, Gary Bergeron 2, and Jimmy Feathers, 1.

Racking up the only win of the night was the Travis 7th outfit of Coach Charley Sparks.

A wild and productive fourth quarter pushed the youngest of the Blue Devil fives to an 18-16 win in that one after they trailed by 3-6 and 6-12 at the end of the second and third quarters. The two teams fought to a scoreless deadlock during first stanza play.

Mack Gayleman, with 6 points, spurred the Travis five to the win. Larry Clark contributed 3, Marvin Mayfield 4, and Powers Boothe 3 to complete the Travis scoring. Lamesa's Robinson topped all scorers with 12.

Stunnett and White Oak are expected to make the big game of the season.

The schedule: AAAA—Fort Worth Paschal at Wichita Falls, Port Arthur at Corpus Christi Miller, each at 2 p.m. Saturday.

AAA—Cleburne at Port Lavaca vs. Olney at Snyder Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

AA—Bellevue vs. Devine at Austin Friday, 8 p.m.; Denver City vs. Olney at Snyder Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

A—Stunnett vs. Albany at Childress Friday, 7:30 p.m.; White Oak vs. Crosby at Liberty Saturday, 7:30 p.m.

Class AA has divided semifinals, with Bellevue meeting Devine Friday night and Denver City opposing Olney Saturday night.

Stunnett, the unbeaten, untied leader of Class A, takes on Albany at Childress Friday night. Saturday night White Oak and Crosby battle at Liberty to see which opposes the Stunnett-Albany winner in the finals of Class AAA.

Class AA also has divided semifinals, with Bellevue meeting Devine Friday night and Denver City opposing Olney Saturday night.

Boxing 'On'

There will be boxing tonight, as per scheduled, in the Towle Park Barn here, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Coach Lacy Lacy received confirmation late this morning that conditions are such that Ablett will bring his team as planned, and also there is a good chance that they will be able to bring along a portable ring for use in the matches, which would serve as a welcome addition. Due to lack of a ring the bouts had tentatively been slated to run off on mats at floor level.

The public is invited to the matches and no admission will be charged. Also, it has been stressed that the building is adequately heated for the comfort of both fighters and fans.

Additional word received today is that Lamesa is also planning to bring a team over, thus expanding the bouts to a three-way affair.

Tigers 'Off'

Due to hazardous road conditions, the Snyder Tiger-Tom Lubbuck cage game slated for tonight in Lubbock has been called off, athletic director John Conley announced late this morning.

No plans have been made for re-scheduling of the game as of this writing.

National Council Selects First Layman As President

By HAROLD V. STREETER
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The largest religious organization in the United States, the National Council of Churches, today marshaled its 40-million member strength behind the first layman ever chosen as its president for an assault on the barriers of race and denomination.

By resolution, the council's general assembly called on race-troubled New Orleans and the state of Louisiana "to bring their policies and practices into accord with the dictates of Christ-like conscience and the laws of the land."

By policy message—a painstakingly compiled document processed since last February—the council envisioned "the time when each member denomination, recognizing the authenticity of Christian discipleship in all the others, will entrust to any of them the care of human souls."

The new president, J. Irwin Miller, 51, and a multimillionaire manufacturer who teaches Sunday School in his hometown of Columbus, Ind., quickly voiced support of both goals.

Against denominationalism—"I think the most remarkable development of this assembly has been the widespread acceptance of the urgent necessity of churches coming together in more than a co-operative sense."

Against racial discrimination—"God shows no partiality. We ought to take those words literally and act accordingly."

Message to the Churches—"Message to the Churches" was considered one of the strongest appeals for unity ever made by a representative American church body. It called on all congregations in each community to work together as one church, urged denomination to accept the validity of the ministry of others and advocated "further development of common ministries."

Hailing the movement that has brought more mutual trust and co-operation and enabled denominations to break "from their prisons of self-containment," the message called denominational divisions a sin and added: "Not the churches' diversity but their aspiration from one another is the heart of this sinfulness."

Belief that the New Orleans resolution would prompt many new hesitant persons to work openly for social integration was voiced by three of those who introduced it, a white woman and two Negro ministers.

Miss Madeline Stevens, of New York Methodist social relations executive, said she felt the resolution's impact would help the council's liaison man who works on the race problem in the South from his office in Nashville, Tenn. He is the Rev. Will Campbell, a associate director of the council's department of racial and cultural relations.

Miss Stevens voiced her views while seated at a press conference on Thursday, the day after the resolution was passed. He heard the governor of Alabama say on television that should integration be attempted in his state the reaction would dwarf that at Little Rock and New Orleans.

"That's a threat, a waving of the red flag," said Bishop Jordan. "The church that governor belongs to shouldn't wait until the explosion comes to speak out on the matter."

POWER that sustains may be found thru regular church attendance

... in the little animal is the inherent, industrious characteristics of self preservation.

A delight to the eye in its graceful movements, but behind its moves, more than the childish eye can see... a desire to keep her bin full of food to guarantee her survival.

We, like the squirrel, must prepare for our future and for those who depend upon us. But human needs reach beyond food, and house and clothing... beyond the physical and the material. We are persons, we are spiritual, our concern is for the mind — the soul — the spirit. We are social persons whose deeper needs may be satisfied in a church which majors in fellowship and prayer and builds us into a group of good people with common loyalties to God and things of the spirit.
