Dreams Of House Restoration Did Not Include A $100 Per Day Fence Cost

By Pat Blair

Jerre Bardin dreamed for 20 years of buying and restoring an old house.

Now his dream has turned into a nightmare that could cost him $100 a day—unless he can get a reversal on a decision that prohibits his building a fence in front of his house.

Friends of Bardin are now circulating a petition asking for such a reversal. An exact count is not available at this time, but one petitioner reports more than 100 signatures have been collected.

The house is a two-story blue structure on Church Street—reported to be 113 or 114 years old—and Bardin bought it December 15, 1978, from Kearney Albaugh and began restoration work.

The wooden picket fence, which extends across the front yard only, was constructed by Rockport Fence Company, based on Bardin's design. What Bardin did not know at the time, he said in a recent interview at the house, is that he needed a permit from the City of Rockport to build the fence.

"When I learned a permit was required," he said, "I went to the City of Rockport—and was told that no permit could be issued because the fence was in violation of city ordinance."

Quoting the ordinance, Bardin said it prohibits construction of "solid wood or masonry" in a front yard or within 50 feet of an intersection or exceeding six feet in height.

Bardin continued, "I don't consider a picket fence being solid wood." He also pointed out that the only part of the fence that exceeds six feet is the gates. The fence is tallest at either end, sloping down toward the center where it is about three feet in height. "The average height of the fence can't be six feet," Bardin added.

Bardin said his next step was to go before the city's Variance Committee, to request that he be allowed to keep the fence even though it is in violation of city ordinances because of its location across the front of the house.

His request was met by opposition led by Rockport resident Ed Armstrong and based, Bardin said, on "erroneous information." His opposers, he said, "believed this was not going to be my home. . . that I planned to use it for commercial venture . . . they'd heard rumors that it was going to be everything from a bar and grill to I don't know what." Bardin stressed that he does plan to use the house as a home, that he does not plan any commercial use for the property.

After the initial meeting of the Variance Committee, in which Bardin's request for a variance was denied, he was notified of a second meeting of the committee. In this second meeting, he was given 60 days "to make the fence conform to the ordinance or take it down." He added he was not told how to make the fence conform. "That meeting," he said, "was 67 days ago."

Last week, Bardin continued, he was notified that he had seven more days "to do something about the fence" or face a fine of $100 per day for each day that he remains in violation of city ordinance.

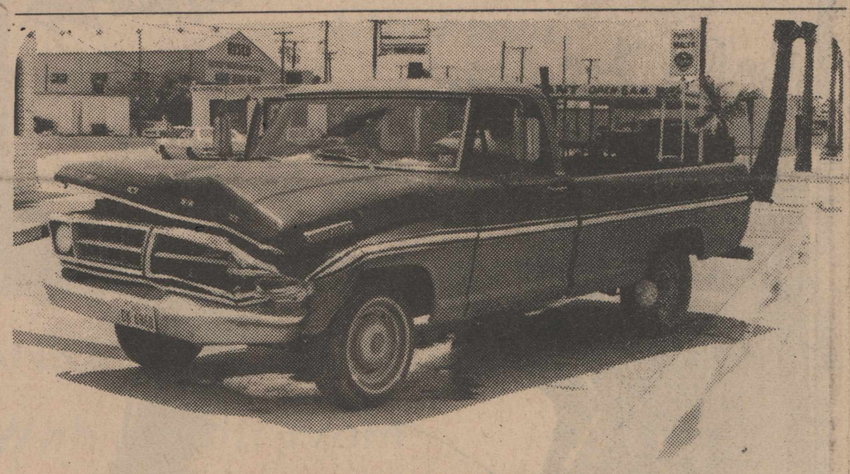

This past weekend, Bardin wrote a letter to the city asking for a new hearing on the matter, "asking the city what I can do to my fence to make it legal." The petition now being circulated will be presented to the Variance Committee "as part of my secondary appeal to the city" when the Variance Committee meets again.

Asked what he would do if the Variance Committee refuses to hear his appeal, Bardin said, "I'm assuming—I have been told—my only recourse is district court."

At the same time the Variance Committee refused his request for a variance on his fence, Bardin said, it granted a variance on a house in the 600 block of Magnolia Street so that a solid wooden fence six feet in height could be constructed there.

"I understand the house is at the back of the lot and they have small children, animals and a garden," Bardin said, adding, "I'm not condemning (the Variance Committee's approval of a variance). All I want

FENDER BENDER

Patricia Jaynes Kimbro, 117 Island Dr., and her son Jeff were traveling north on Austin Street when they collided with a pickup driven by Curtis Alton Jenkins, Portland. The accident occurred at 12:30 p.m. Thursday at the intersection of Austin and North Streets. Both trucks were traveling north on Austin, when Jenkins stopped to turn left on North Street, and Mrs. Jenkins ran into him. There were no injuries and no charges were filed. EPA Sets Participation Rules

Public participation requirements relating to grant applications were set forth for the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District at their meeting Thursday, May 24.

Bobby D. Whitefield, Austin, public transportation coordinator for the Texas Department of Water Resources, spoke to the board about the requirements for their Step 1 grant for a county-wide sewer system.

He told members of the board that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has new regulations effective February 16 this year which require an active public participation program in association with the construction grants program.

The intent of EPA is to attempt to involve the public in the program to a much greater extent than was previously required by any federal regulation or state requirement.

As the state administering agency for the program, the Department of Water Resources is required to ensure that grantees comply with these new regulations. The regulations apply to all agencies such as the Conservation and Reclamation District receiving an EPA construction grant to build wastewater treatment or collection systems, according to Emory G. Long, director of the construction grants and water quality planning division.

The regulations establish two levels of programs in the facility planning process (Step 1): a "basic" program for less complex projects, and a "full scale" public participation which is required for more complex projects with "potentially significant community impacts."

Aransas County's grant application is in the range of $75,000 for the Step 1 portion. Whitefield told the board that from five to 15 per cent of the grant amount would be available to the board to aid them in complying with requirements. This amount would be in addition to the grant money, when allocated.

The regulations require an active public consultation program which includes both structured activities, such as public hearings and meetings and advisory groups, and less formal activities, such as workshops and seminars.

The district is required to notify and consult with the public in the development of the plan of study, and submit an outline of the proposed public participation program with the study plan, to EPA. Upon acceptance of a Step 1 grant award, the district has 45 days in which to develop a work plan which establishes how public participation will be provided.

Some of the elements needed in the plan include

Seniors Talk To Rotary

Mary Ballou and Erin Falk, valedictorian and salutatorian of Rockport-Fulton High School's Class of 1979, were honored for their scholastic achievements and school activities at a luncheon meeting of the Rockport Rotary Club Wednesday at the Bayhouse Restaurant.

In keeping with a practice of several years' standing, each was presented a check from Rotary as a contribution toward college expenses.

Chester R. Barre, high school principal, described the honors each achieved during high school years. Mary's grade average was 98.42, while Erin was close behind with 97.38. Both have been members of the National Honor Society.

Barre said that while achieving near-perfect records in the academic field, both girls found time to become widely involved in a variety of student activities.

Mary has played first chair clarinet in the school band, including a number of solo parts while participating in district, regional and state competition. She also served as assistant drum major during marching events.

For three years she participated in school plays and was judged best performer in one-act play competition. She also has served as president of the speech club and has been on the

"Saltwater Pool" Issue Continues

The pot is bubbling once again around the so-called "saltwater pool" and the Rockport Sailing Club's proposed use of that tip-end portion of the extension of the Rockport beach as a harbor for the club's sailing ships.

The Sailing Club's petition to the Corps of Engineers for the dredging of the harbor has been approved. The remaining change necessary for work to begin on the clubhouse is the granting of a "Special Use" permit from the City of Rockport, since the entire beach area is zoned residential R-1.

The Pilot has been requested, by both sides in the issue, to restate the case for and against.

We have editorialized our feelings concerning the use of that part of Rockport's beach area. There are no new developments or information concerning the issue which would indicate a change in our view.

The petition against the special use permit circulated by the Concerned Citizens is a restatement of previously published reservations about the issue.

Their four-point document states total opposition to ALL requests for changes in the beach area zoning, implying that others are considering requests for using parts of the beach for other developments in the future. This is misleading, because there are no other changes being considered at present. It is true, however, that the Navigation District has refused several requests in the past because of the commercial nature of the requests, such as bait stands and restaurants.

The second item refers to the citizens being told 21 years ago that the extension of the beach "would be for 100 percent public use."

Nothing in the Pilot's coverage of the issue even shows the "saltwater pool," nor a statement of the percentage of public use intended for the area. (see architect's drawing taken from The Pilot's files of Thursday, April 11, 1963).

The other two items in the petition continue, "if this or if that...might lead to a succession of things..." and "...any variations would be discriminatory of the tax dollar..."

In short, the same group of citizens still oppose the change of use in that end of the beach area and they are entitled to a complete hearing and consideration given to the facts they present.

The Pilot is reprinting on this page, a reproduction of the April 11, 1963, engineer's drawing and the accompanying front page story concerning the bond issue.

Also, you will find a copy of the Navigation District's Series 1963 bond setting out the legal detail of the bond issue.

We offer the following points for consideration by both sides of the mini-controversy surrounding the changes of the beach area.

First, we have not been able to justify the claims of heavy use by swimmers or anyone else of the "saltwater pool" because of poor swimming conditions, silting of the deep areas, and large amounts of dangerous debris such as broken glass. This is not to say that some avid swimmers will not be forced to swim at the Fulton Beach or other area if a change is made.

Secondly, proposed use of that end of the filled beach area would more compliment the water sport activities of the entire area than would additional harbor facilities.

Thirdly, the permit for the dredging work has already been approved and the action of the city council concerns only the construction of the clubhouse and small land area supporting the docks.

All of the citizens of the Navigation District insist upon all of the facts being considered equally in the final decision for the special use permit.

The granting of one permit does not and will not bring a rash of other permit seekers. And the city council of Rockport will control all use of the beach areas including traffic on the beach in the future.

The battle is not, as has been inferred so often, between the rich boat owners and the less rich land and swimming lovers.

The two points of view have both had their day in court, so to speak, and it is time for the city council to make a decision on the facts, keeping what is best for the growth and progress of this area ever in mind.

Reprinted From Pilot Files April 11, 1963

Approximately two-thirds of the $400,000 in Navigation District bonds which voters are asked to approve at the election on Saturday, April 13, will be spent on improvements to Little Bay and to the beach. (See related map.)

The other third will go to a breakwater and retaining wall at Fulton, repair of storm damage at the Cove, and to construction of an office building for the District, between the present structure and the marine laboratory.

The improvements contemplated at the beach include extension to the northward and to the west, making a buttonhook-shaped park area, with paved roads; deepening and lengthening of the Little Bay channels; construction of picnic cabanas; erection of rest rooms both at Little Bay and at Fulton; extension of water lines to serve these areas; and delineation of parking areas along the beaches.

The Aransas County Planning and Development Board, headed by President James Sorenson, Jr., the Chamber of Commerce, and practically every club in the area have given the plans their unqualified approval. The construction considered under this program will help Aransas County keep pace with the growing tourist industry, on which so much of the economy depends, according to T.E. Griffith, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The bonds can be paid for in nine years at the present tax rate of 30 cents per $100 valuation. All other bond issues have been paid. The tax rate and the assessments will remain the same, if the bonds are approved.

Only resident, property-owning tax payers can vote in the election.

The polls open at 8 a.m., and close at 7 p.m. Saturday. There are five polling places.

In Precinct One-A At Aransas Pass, votes will be cast in the Aransas County building, and judge will be Mrs. Glenn Ellis. In Rockport, in Precinct One, the voting place is the fire station, and the election judge is Mrs. Alvin Brundrett.

Precinct Two voters will cast their ballots at the courthouse, where Mrs. Elbert Mundine will be the election judge. In Precinct Three, the voting place will be the Fulton Fire Station, and Mrs. Harry McDow is the election judge. Mrs. E.N. Adams, Jr., is election judge in Precinct Four, and the votes will be cast in the concession building at Goose Island State Park.

State Of The Region

The Drug Abuse Council, with headquarters in Corpus Christi, is laying the groundwork to provide counseling throughout the region for drug abusers and their families.

The Council operates a methadone clinic in the Memorial Medical Center complex. Men and women from throughout the region are treated there, receiving methadone or a newer drug, LAAM, or levo-alpha-acetyl-methadol. It will still be necessary for those receiving the drugs to come to Corpus Christi. Because of the tight security which has to be placed on the drugs, they cannot be distributed at numerous centers.

Information compiled for the COG's 1980 Drug Abuse Plan shows that the incidence of drug abuse known to authorities is decreasing slightly in the urban area of Corpus Christi and increasing in the smaller cities and rural counties of the region. This is the basis for increased emphasis in other communities.

Russell Rowley, director of the Methadone Clinic, says the first work out in the region will be conducted in probation offices. Many drug abusers are either on probation or parole, as it is nearly impossible to support a $200 or more a day drug habit without getting involved in criminal activity.

All treatment is on an outpatient basis. Rowley explains that detoxification is only a first step. If a person is institutionalized and all of his needs cared for, he may be able to stay drug-free. But the important thing is to develop his abilities to take care of his own needs and withstand pressures, as he must do sooner or later to live independently and stay off drugs.

Letters From Our Readers

To the Editor:

Regarding Sgt. Banning's letter concerning the gunnery range.

A very simple phone call would have answered any questions regarding the closing of the range. All four Commissioners, the Judge and the Sheriff have listings under Aransas County.

The range was closed because the Judge and Sheriff requested it for a very good reason. Even so, the Commissioners held it open for a considerable time while we searched for another location. A gun range, like a dump yard, is a desirable facility, but everyone always wants it on the "other" side of town.

We were unable to find another location that would not be a hazard. Both you, as an Army sergeant, and Lt. Hinojosa, as a police officer, can understand that an unsupervised gunnery range is, indeed, a serious and very dangerous matter. Vandalism was serious, and the Judge and the Sheriff justified and right in their request.

Sgt. Banning, I am the one who built the range in the first place. I built it at the request of the Sheriff for the purpose of practice for all area police. Some came all the way from Sinton. It was used considerably for awhile. Practice ceased, for what reason I do not know, and the range fell into dis-use. Adjacent landowners complained and the facility was removed.

If you have any suggestions regarding another location and a responsible organization to operate it, I think the Judge, Sheriff or any Commissioner would like to talk with you.

I am an ex-CBM from WW2 and have had some experience with guns. I also hunt and like to check my rifle regularly.

Sincerely,
s/Raymond Owens,
Commissioner, Pre. 3

THE FUTURE OF THE MAN-MADE COVE AT THE end of Rockport Beach will, most of us hope, be decided at a hearing scheduled June 4. As many of you know, this writer supports development of a sailboat harbor at the location. The development is needed for existing boats, those that will come to a growing community, for visiting sailors, and as an aesthetic attraction for area visitors. One of my fondest fancies is that of driving along Fulton Beach Rd. and looking toward a sailboat harbor at Christmastime, the night scene brightened by lights from mastheads to bows and sterns of boats. Admitting my prejudice, I believe that I am still capable of writing objectively on the subject.

IN MAY, 1978, THE ROCKPORT SAILING CLUB WAS granted a lease by the Aransas County Navigation District No. 1. The agreement, pending approval by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other concerned governmental bodies, was for dredging the silting cove, construction of piers and eventually a club house.

The site, once maintained as a salt water swimming pool was abandoned some seven years ago because of safety factors and high cost of insurance. Since then half a dozen or as many as a dozen people, ignoring warning signs, have continued to swim at the location intermittently during the four-month swimming season. Example: Sunday, May 27, 2:45 p.m. five swimmers in the water at the cove. At the same hour, 100 or more cars parked along Rockport Beach with several hundred people in the water, all cabanas occupied.

APPROXIMATELY ONE MONTH AFTER THE LEASE was signed between ACND and RSC, a series of inflammatory letters opposing the lease began to appear in the local press. The letters were filled with half-truth and total untruth. Navigation district officials were portrayed as betraying public trust, sailing club members as people seeking to rob the public of its rights.

I am respectful of people who disagree with my views. By the same token, I have no regard for those who deliberately falsify facts and, especially, when they intentionally mislead the public. And that is precisely and exactly what some members of a group who call themselves "Concerned Citizens" did and continue to do. A few distortions of the truth, all well-known, are: the club plans to build a ten-foot fence topped with barbed wire around the cove (totally false; never contemplated); members of the club mostly reside on Key Allegro, the inference being that they belong to an undesirable segment of society. (Fact: less than one-third of the membership resides on the island. The roster reveals names of men and women who are concerned in virtually every facet of community life: schools, church, civic groups, service clubs, Rockport Art Show, Little League, Aransas County Medical Services, Seafair, ad infinitum. They represent a typical community cross-section of people engaged in trades, crafts, professions, and retired people. True, there are no food stamp recipients. Contrary to inferences by "Concerned Citizens," the club is not a rich man's hideaway. Dues are $20 per year and membership is open to all interested in the sport of sailing.)

Most lately there has been a rumor that the club will establish an exclusive restaurant and bar on the premises, thereby hurting local businesses. There is and has been no such intent. More, the lease with ACND prohibits establishment of commercial enterprise, other than rental of docks.

THE APPLICATION TO DREDGE THE HARBOR WAS approved in February by Army Engineers after a public hearing. At the same time requirements of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife, National Marine Fisheries and Texas Parks and Wildlife were met. The project was endorsed by the Rockport Chamber of Commerce, the Tourist Bureau and Marine Advisory Council.

More, the use of the pool for swimming was declared unsafe by the county health officer, local paramedics and a Red Cross Water Safety instructor. Yet "Concerned Citizens" would allow their children to swim there!

ONLY A FEW WEEKS AGO IT WAS LEARNED THAT the proposed harbor area is zoned R-1 Residential by the City of Rockport. The club has asked for a waiver, and so the June 4 hearing. As a result the "Concerned Citizens" are at work again, seeking sympathy by once more misleading the public.

A petition claims that "approximately 21 years ago the taxpayers were asked to vote for a bond issue for these improvements. "These" improvements are not defined in the petition.

Actual facts are that a $400,000 bond issue was proposed and approved by ACND voters in April, 1963. The bond issue was "for the purpose of acquiring additional navigational facilities, including improvements and additions at Fulton, at Cove Harbor and at Little Bay Development"—from a copy of an ACND No. 1 Bond. The April 11 issue of the Rockport Pilot, published a few days before the election, was more detailed. Two-thirds of the money was to be spent for improvements in Little Bay and Rockport Beach. Specifically, at the beach: "Extension to north and west, making a button-hook shaped park area with paved road, deepen and lengthen Little Bay Channels, construct picnic cabanas, restrooms and extend water lines to serve these areas, deliniation of parking along the beach." Not one word about a salt water pool! More, engineers' blueprints depicting plans for the project show no intended swimming facility. In brief, the cove evolved, happened.

Here I shall not dwell upon the fact that the ACND later made some improvements in the area, then abandoned the endeavor some eight years ago because of legal prohibitions, safety and high insurance rates. The area was offered to the city and rejected twice, for obvious reasons.

SCARCELY WORTH DWELLING UPON IS THE petition's contention that "permits granted to private individuals might lead to long-term leases. This might lead to a succession of things that could be competitive with local businesses." Scare tactic! The sailing club has under lease a small portion of Rockport Beach which it plans to make a real Rockport attraction. Terms of the lease do not allow a commercial operation.

"CONCERNED CITIZENS," A HANDFUL OF PEOPLE at most, is suspect. They have sought to mislead the people of this county and in so doing have indicated that when it comes to truth, let the devil take the hindmost. Is it not then, perhaps, in order that they apologize to those whom they have deceived by asking their signatures to a petition that is meaningless, empty of facts?--ahab

Clements Declares June 1-7 As "Texas Safe Boating Week"

Governor William P. Clements Jr. has proclaimed June 1-7, 1979, as "Texas Safe Boating Week" in conjunction with National Safe Boating Week.

The National Safe Boating Council has designated June 1-7 as National Safe Boating Week in recognition of the growing number of Americans who spend their recreational time on the water. The idea behind this campaign is that boating for the amateur, as well as the professional sportsman, can be more fun if it is done right, with safety in mind. The Boating Trades Association of Texas (BTAT), which provides leadership for Texas boat dealers, manufacturers and retailers of related products, wants to bring this message home to Texas.

During Texas Safe Boating Week, BTAT plans to remind Texas boaters of safety measures that they might be neglecting in their enthusiasm to get out on the water this season.

Mrs. Jeffee Palmer, water safety consultant for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Austin, reminded boaters to carry at least one flotation device or life preserver for each individual in a boat while on the water, as required by Texas law.

She also suggests that boaters avoid drinking alcoholic beverages, overloading their boats with too many people, maneuvering at high speeds, riding on the decks or gunwales, and driving too close to scuba divers and swimmers.

In the recent weeks there have been several drownings and boats having trouble. Summertime is here and everyone should take the time to make sure that if they are planning on going to the beach or boating that they have everything they need to make their fun safe. Boaters, don't forget those life jackets, and for the swimmers, don't go out alone or out too far. You can have as much fun when you are careful.

One of our REACT monitors told me that while they wre monitoring channel 9 that they kept hearing a Mayday call. Being a monitor for several years, she realized that she was hearing skip. She could also hear another REACT monitor, she believed he said, from Florida. The monitor kept telling the Mayday caller to keep repeating his position. After awhile she could no longer hear them and assumed that they had gotten help to the breaker.

Last week while driving by Super D there were three children running back and forth across Highway 35, just tempting the cars. Several cars slowed down and honked but this just seemed to add to the children's fun. After being a REACT monitor for some time you just can't sit back and watch something like this happen. I told my two little stinkers to stay in the car and then I took out after those kids. I caught two of them by the shirts. Before I went out after them I tried to contact REACT but with the noise level being so high at times, I could not reach anyone.

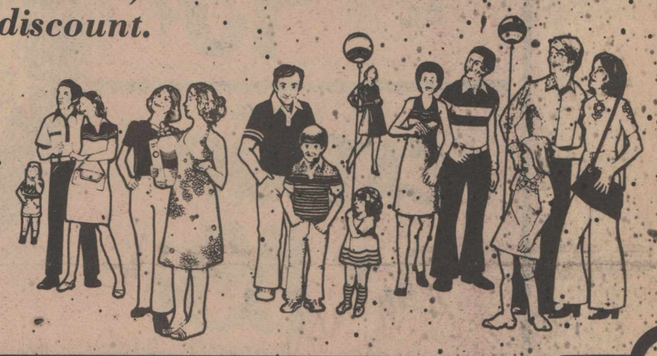

After getting the two out of the street I informed them that if they didn't hightail it home right then and there that I would take them down to the police station. Those kids were only four or five years old. After they had taken off and headed home I began to think that the mothers might have gotten pretty mad at me for butting in. Then I thought that I would much rather have them mad than to have to have had to call an ambulance.

Well, another big weekend is upon us and there will probably be a lot of traffic on the road even with the gas shortage.

THE PILOT Society

Cabaniss - Arthur Exchange Vows

Roseanne Cabaniss and Robert Arthur exchanged wedding vows May 26 during a candlelight ceremony at St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Rockport, with Reverend Walter Clark Jr. performing the double-ring ceremony. Reverend Larry Murphy assisted in the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Cabaniss, Rockport, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fitch of Kingsville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose to wear a blouson gown of ivory chiffon with three-quarter length sleeves and a scalloped yoke of sheer net. Rows of tiny pearls and floral lace enhanced the portrait neckline, and the skirt was accented with a pearl rope belt and a chapel length train. A matching picture hat completed her outfit and she carried a bouquet of peach roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Linda Burns, Houston, Texas, and bridesmaids were Sandi English, Houston, and Mary Lou Tiner, Rockport.

The attendants wore floor length blouson gowns of peach jersey, overlaid with chiffon, and wide-brimmed hats. They carried nosegays of irises and daisies, accentuated with peach streamers.

David Tiner was the best man, and groomsmen were Andrew Huffmeyer and Richard McMarin, all of Rockport.

Traditional wedding music was played by Cliff Brown, and ushers were Burke Cabaniss, San Antonio, and John Cabaniss, Houston.

The mother of the bride wore a blue floral chiffon gown of floor-length blouson design. The mother of the groom chose to wear a floor-length gown of pale blue silesta accented with inserts of lace. Both ladies wore corsages of peach roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home. Members of the houseparty included Misses Katherine Cabaniss and Elizabeth Cabaniss, both of Houston, and Misses Linda Cabaniss, Leal Gessner and Gail Gessner, all of San Antonio. Also assisting were Mrs. John Cabaniss, Rockport, Mrs. Burke Cabaniss, Robert Gessner and Martin Cabaniss, all of San Antonio.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Arkansas, and is currently employed as a ready-to-wear buyer for Craig's of Texas. The groom is a graduate of A&I University, and is presently employed by the Houston Chronicle as a systems programmer.

After a honeymoon cruise to Bermuda, the couple will make their home in Houston.

PROBLEMS

Do you have problems? Who among us does not? Met in the right way, problems work good for us. Two things are essential in problem solving. [1] We must face the facts as they are and learn to profit from experience. [2] We must be willing to subject our ideas to criticism. The more ideas we have about the solving of a problem, the more we are likely to arrive at a solution. That is why we need not only the Lord but the church as well.

"Bear ye one anothers' burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." [Galatians 6:2]

Schwartz Sends In New Legislation

Senate Bill 300, sponsored by Senator A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, has been sent to the Governor for his signature. The legislation places all the waters of Galveston County under the regulatory authority of Parks and Wildlife. Representative Lloyd Criss of Galveston was sponsor of the bill in the Texas House.

The new legislation applies to all marine species except shrimp. Schwartz emphasized that Senate Bill 300 is aimed at most efficiently conserving the fishery resources of our area and will benefit Galveston County citizens as well as those who come to the Bay area for recreation.

"This legislation will promote our recreational fishery without harm to any commercial fishermen. Parks and Wildlife will be able to respond quickly and properly to changing conditions in Galveston County waters," explained Schwartz.

He added that, "Growing demands and diminishing habitat for fishery resources make wise management of our bay waters a necessity. I hope that the future under regulatory authority will prove to all that intelligent day to day management is far better than attempts by the Legislature every two years to react to emergencies without scientific facts."

identification of the target population, types of public consultation to be used, types of information, how the facility plan will be coordinated with 208 (Council of Governments) planning, key activity dates.

An advisory board is to be appointed by the district, to provide advice and recommendations to the elected decision makers.

Board president John M. McDavid Sr. and other members of the board received a number of guideline documents from Mr. Whitefield, setting forth the requirements as noted by EPA and the Texas Department of Water Resources.

FENCE

is a fair shake. If they can have a fence on the basis of their need, why can't I?"

Bardin described the fence as "a facade for the architectural enhancement of the house," which he wants to restore to "the way I think it might have looked in 1865 or thereabouts." He has been told the house is about 113 or 114 years old, and he has found tax records back to 1917.

Since buying the house in December, Bardin moved it a total of 50 feet south and east and has changed the elevation from less than two feet to its current height of about six feet. The boards forming the walls of the foyer were taken from partitioning that Bardin removed—and are thus as old as the house, and he stripped down to the original flooring of the house before laying new flooring. He said he will stain the new flooring by the original method, using turpentine and tar.

"For the first time since I was notified that I needed a permit (for the fence,)" Bardin said, "I'm hopeful I'll be able to keep the fence. I have no gripe toward the city. All I'm asking is that I be granted a variance on the same grounds as the house on Magnolia. They have a need—I have a need."

In other board business, Secretary David Crooks submitted his resignation from the board, effective immediately. He stated in a letter that he wished to become less involved on the community level, and have more time for family matters. His resignation was accepted "with regret" by the board.

Discussion was held briefly on the problem of water line conflicts with the new Hwy. 35 bypass. City Secretary Herman Johnson reported to the board that the city council will hold a workshop on this matter after their June 4 meeting. Board attorney Reese Rozzell reported that he was researching some right-of-way matters, to see if there was a way that the state highway department could relocate their route along the Avenue A area and eliminate the need for a nearly $1 million estimated expenditure to relocate the water line.

The water line is an 18-inch source for almost all the water coming into Aransas County. Some of the problems with the line is the depth to which it is buried. Depth is supposed to be at least three feet, but highway survey teams reported that the line is nearly at the surface in some locations.

A workshop was set for Thursday, May 31, for the board to discuss the new EPA regulations and work on details.

Bagels break out of the ethnic mold

"Bagels aren't Jewish anymore. They used to have the image of a strictly ethnic staple of the New York Jewish community. But now they've found broad acceptance from people of all ethnic groups in all parts of the country," says Murray Lender, whose company opened the first automated bagel bakery in the country in West Haven, Conn., 14 years ago.

"We figure that about 70 to 80 percent of our bagels are consumed by non-Jewish families. It's all a part of the current craze for good, wholesome breads, and the movement to eat what is best for you.

"The bagel is giving English muffins, dinner rolls and breakfast toast a run for the money."

Lender's father came from Poland in 1927 and spent six months in New York before moving to New Haven to open a bagel bakery.

"There were only about 15,000 Jewish people in the city, about as many as you'd find in one good-sized New York City apartment house today."

The bakery prospered, but slowly. For 300 years, all bagels had been shaped by hand. In 1965, pressed by increasing national demand for the crusty, chewy ring, Lender installed machinery which shapes bagels at the rate of 12,000 per hour.

Bagels are the only bread that is both boiled and baked. The dough is made of high-gluten flour blended with water, malt, sugar, yeast, salt and flavorings. No artificial ingredients or preservatives are used.

After the shaping, the bagels are allowed to double in size before going into boiling tanks for about one minute. Then they are drained and sent to baking ovens.

The freshly baked bagels are cooled, sliced, packaged and blast-frozen, then shipped to supermarkets, grocery stores and delicatessens in all 50 states, Lender said.

These are his suggestions for hearty vegetarian meals:

BAGELS FLORENTINE

- 1 pkg. frozen pre-sliced bagels (plain, onion or egg bagels)
- 1 (10 oz.) pkg. frozen chopped spinach
- 2 tbsps. minced onion
- 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 2 tbsps. flour
- ¼ cup milk
- Salt and pepper
- 3 slices Swiss cheese, halved
- 6 fried or poached eggs

Thaw bagels and toast or heat. Cook spinach according to package directions and drain well, reserving one-fourth cup cooking liquid. Saute onion in butter in a small saucepan until golden. Blend in flour until smooth. Gradually stir in milk, spinach and reserved cooking liquid. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and boils. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Spread one-fourth cup spinach mixture on six bagel bottoms. Place half-slices of cheese on spinach and top with fried or poached egg. Bake at 375 degrees for five minutes.

EGGS BENJAMIN

- 3 frozen pre-sliced bagels (plain, onion or garlic bagels)L 3 tbsps. tartar sauce
- 1 tbsp. butter or margarine
- ¼ lb. mushrooms, sliced
- 6 poached eggs
- 3 slices Swiss cheese, halved

Eat Yourself Slim

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

America is getting older. The number of people in the 65 and over bracket is increasing every year. Collectively they represent a powerful segment of the population if effectively coordinated — but they are not.

Many of our senior citizens are forced into poverty level lives that produce illness and disabilities preventable by adequate food and housing. While bureaucratic Washington is busily handing out funds to the rest of the world, thousands of older Americans are sick and dying from lack of proper food. A shame that cannot be overcome with glib talk and procrastination.

The way we take care of our elderly is a disgrace. While other countries provide hot meals, decent housing and respect for their elders, they can point the accusing finger of neglect at us.

There is no "old age" diet that applies to all, rather, there are nutritional requirements that are necessary for decent health. The disabilities of advanced age often prevent the individual from properly preparing his own meals.

There is sometimes a general apathy that develops toward food and its preparation. It becomes "too much trouble." The tea-and-toast syndrome is an easy habit to develop, and the elderly become prime candidates for nutritional illness.

Calcium levels become low. Inactivity and bone demineralization develop, along with vitamin and protein deficiencies. Lack of sunshine and low intakes of vitamin D may contribute also to osteoporosis, a common disease of elderly women.

Loss of teeth or poor dentures prevent adequate chewing of meats, fruits and vegetables which limits the diet even further. Many elderly people do not absorb and utilize nutrients in their intestinal tract as adequately as they once did, so their need for supplementation is increased.

Water may be another nutrient lacking in the geriatric diet. Everyone benefits from sufficient water intake, but elderly people may develop moderate to severe dehydration simply because they forgot to drink it.

How can we help? If our government ignores their plight, then individuals should help. Everyone knows some elderly people probably within their own family. Take a little time out, once in awhile, for a visit with them. A gift of food and love will bring a warm response, seldom matched in the work-a-day world.

Do you have any elderly neighbors that need food or clothing? Check your own neighborhood. Women's clubs and church organizations, searching for projects and charitable activities in other lands may be shocked to learn that some elderly Americans have to subsist on canned cat or dog food, right in their own vicinity. There are organizations that do help, but more is needed.

The next time you find yourself bored with nothing to do, look for an elderly friend. Make a simple tuna, macaroni and cheese casserole. Take along with, some fruit and gelatin dessert, for an easily chewed and digested meal. Yogurt with fruit at the bottom is a high-calorie, delicious snack that needs no preparation.

Eggs should not be overlooked in the diet of the elderly. They are easily prepared, provide good protein and excellent nutrition.

Cheeses, canned seafoods keep well and need little preparation. Whole-grain cereals and breads are usually well tolerated and enjoyed by the older person.

Non-fat dry milk can be added to casseroles, meat loaves, soups and desserts for increased nutrition.

Dear Shirley: My Jewish mother always prepared hot chicken soup for us when we had a cold. Is there any truth to that old remedy? — G.M.

Dear G.M.: Yes, there is. Recently, hot chicken soup was shown to be much superior to hot water in increasing the mucous flow through nasal passages.

For Shirley's booklet on "How Diet Affects Your Heart" and information on Shirley's weight-reduction program, send $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Shirley Bright Boody, Box 1038, Rancho Mirage, Calif. 92270.

Backyard Gardener

Old Carpet makes good mulch

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

The backyard gardener who uses a mulch between the rows of his garden plot is a wise man indeed. He saves himself a load of weeding and watering while he contributes to the health and vigor of his soil.

The most recent style of mulching, with several articles and even a book being written about it, is the use of old carpet between the rows. Proponents of the carpeted garden contend that their method of mulching has more advantages than any organic mulching.

Old carpeting and remnants can be had free on trash days and from neighbors who are laying new carpet. The old carpet is cut in strips the width of the rows between your plants, minus three inches.

Carpet mulchers like this method because footwear is protected from clinging dirt and mud. You can go barefoot in your garden in comfort, and kneeling on so carpeting is easy on the knees. And certainly, no weeds are likely to grow up through solid carpet.

I prefer a mulch of some organic material myself, because I believe that we backyard gardeners only hold our backyard plots in trust. One of our obligations is to keep the soil enriched, to pass it on in better condition than when we started with it.

Our present backyard garden plot began as a veritable sandtrap. When we watered it, the moisture sank straight through and disappeared. Over the course of the last few years, we have converted a soil consisting of pure sand into a rich, black, beautifully crumbly mixture that is well balanced in all nutrients. We accomplished this transformation by digging all the kitchen vegetable waste into the ground, and by laying organic mulches during the season, to be dug in during the fall.

Mulching with organic materials has a threefold purpose— to control weeds, to conserve soil moisture and to add enriching organic matter to the soil.

The most practical way to mulch is to use whatever materials you have on hand, whether that be sawdust, straw, wood chips, grass clippings or seaweed. If you are lucky enough to have access to a shredder, then your dry fall leaves, corn stalks and so forth can be made into a fine mulch.

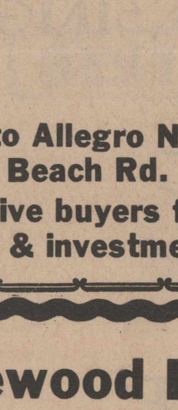

But the one mulch that is loaded with nitrogen, and easily accessible to most of us, is grass clippings. Our next door neighbor brings us his each week, because he does not want them and our garden makes an excellent disposal ground for them. So we have a good supply of high-quality mulch to cover our garden.

Grass clippings, however, must be applied in a thin layer not much more than one inch thick to begin with. If they are layered thickly, they will turn to slime and smell. Once they have dried another thin layer ma laid on top.

With organic mulches, a couple of things have to be watched. If earwigs or slugs begin to be a problem, the mulch affording them hiding places, use bait for them. Watch also for any sign of yellowing of the foliage. This could mean that the mulch is using up too much nitrogen from the soil in order to decompose. An application of fast-acting nitrogen would remedy the situation — nitrate of soda or sulfate of ammonia.

This nitrogen depletion is usually only a problem with the use of fresh sawdust or wood chips as a mulch.
