HOUSE ASKS 'MA' TO SUBMIT RE-ENACTMENT OF A LAW TO PROVIDE FORECLOSURE STAY

LONG REPORTS NOTHING UNUSUAL ABOUT ACCOUNTS

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (AP)—A resolution was adopted in the Texas house today asking Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to submit re-enactment of a law to allow judicail stay of mortgage foreclosures.

The law was passed at the regular session and its constitutionality now is being tested in the state courts.

Opponents of the resolution asserted it had been declared unconstitutional by several courts and that it would be futile to re-enact it.

"Yes, it was declared unconstitutional by a 'pee-wee' court in San Antonio in a dicta opinion," Representative Joe Greathouse of Fort Worth, who sponsored the bill at the regular session, said. "The question of constitutionality was not before the court but the court took it on itself to declare it unconstitutional."

Greathouse said a similar law had been held constitutional by the Minnesota supreme court under the general welfare clause of the constitution and the decision now was pending before the United States supreme court.

The law provides that property owners in danger of foreclosure may plead that forced sale of their property will not bring its actual values. Judges were given power to stay foreclosure for 180-days and to grant an extension of an additional 180-days on similar showing.

The first 180-day period will expire October 27. Re-enactment was sought to allow property owners who did not take advantage of the first 180 day stay to avail themselves of the second 180-day extension.

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (AP)—W. R. Long, Jr., bookkeeper for the American National bank here, was called back before the senate today to give additional testimony regarding accounts controlled by James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Asked by Martin if there was anything "unusual" about the accounts since January 1, Long replied that the "deposits came in just like items theretofore had been coming in," and that the money was checked out "in the regular routine of business."

D. A. Bandeen of Stamford, manager of the West Texas chamber, testified about the allegation that the West Texas chamber had used the distribution of the relief money as a club to obtain membership subscriptions for its own maintenance.

Bandeen denied that charge. He said that two counties had asked if they might deduct their West Texas chamber membership fees from the federal funds allotted them and he replied that they could not.

DAVID M. WARREN in Panhandle Herald: "The recklessness of driving in this country amounts to a national tragedy. It is a constant menace to the lives of us all. Mother of 'Bob' Watson Is Dead

News of the sudden death of Mrs. H. W. Watson, 62, mother of R. R. Watson, manager of the local branch of the Western Union, was received here yesterday. Mrs. Watson left here only two weeks ago after spending a long vacation with her son and was with friends at Muskogee, Okla.

The body was sent to Roswell, N. M., the family home, and funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon with burial by the side of Mr. Watson, who died nearly 15 years ago. Mrs. Watson is survived by four daughters and three other sons.

Mr. Watson was joined here by his three brothers, and they left this morning for Roswell to attend the funeral services.

I HEARD—

It rumored this morning that the good old game of soccor would be brought to Pampa in the near future. It was said that teams were to be organized by the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotarians, and Jaysees and that a round-robin series would be played. Soccer is the good old English game and the word was enthusiastically received by M. K. Brown and C. P. Buckler, who are to furnish the rules. Several weeks of tarining will precede the games.

A number of "wise" football fans making anything but complimentary remarks about Captain Jess Patton's defensive playing Friday afternoon against Capital Hill Indians. For the benefit of those "boosters," let me say that Jess played according to orders from his coach. On the defense he was up against a 205-pound man and instead of Jess charging, he stood back and drew the big fellow out of position.

Convicts Beat Warden Badly

A RIOTOUS demonstration against prison conditions at Philadelphia's old Eastern penitentiary was staged by more than 1500 convicts when, screaming curses, they flung burning mattresses in the cell corridors and beat Warden Herbert Smith. Warden Smith, with patches on his face, is pictured with Captain Thomas F. Martin after firemen and state and city police had quelled the riot.

SENATOR WOODWARD INTRODUCES BILL TO PROVIDE FOR ISSUANCE OF $7,500,000 IN RELIEF BONDS

Commissioners May Distribute Funds In Counties

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 2. (AP)—Another bill to create a new agency to supervise the distribution of funds to the needy was introduced in the Texas senate today by Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman.

The bill would provide for the issuance of $7,500,000 in state unemployment relief bonds.

The new agency would be known as the Texas employment and relief commission. It would comprise the chairmen of the board of control, the industrial accident board, the highway commission and the board of water engineers and Col. Ike Ashburn of Houston, state chairman of the federal public works advisory board.

The money would be distributed within the counties by the commissioners' courts. The state commission would employ an executive secretary who would have direct supervision of the work. The bonds would be retired out of the beer tax.

A bill to permit the insurance of deposits in state banks after next January 1 was sent up by Senator Walter Woodul of Houston. This would be made possible through authorizing state banks to purchase stock in the federal deposit corporation, created by the banking act passed by the last congress.

Senator Archie Parr of Benavides introduced a proposal to appropriate $100,000 for the establishment of farm centers for the destitute unemployed. Part of the money would be used for the purchase of "250 or 300" acres in Zavalla county.

GORCZYCA LEADS

DALLAS, Oct. 2 (AP)—Miss Aniela Gorczyca of Fort Worth, southern champion, scored a 79 today to take an early lead among qualifiers in the Dallas Women's Golf association invitation tournament at the Dallas Country club. Mrs. C. F. Rochon of Wichita Falls had a 90.

W. R. Bingham of Tulsa was here last week.

Glen W. Jones of Tulsa is a Pampa visitor for a few days.

LATE NEWS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Appealing for patience and "faith in the new deal," President William Green told the American Federation of Labor convention today that unemployment would not be eliminated until a 30-hour work week was established.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2 (AP)—A short and sharp earthquake rocked southern California at 1:10 a. m. today, resulting in at least one death, injury to four persons and a light property damage. The coroner's office reported that Mrs. Sophia Kanapow, 73, became hysterical after the shock and died a few hours later from heart trouble.

HAVANA, Oct. 2 (AP)—An attempt to bring a truce between the embattled army and navy officers in the National hotel and the military forces besieging them apparently failed this afternoon. The firing ceased momentarily after two men bearing a Red Cross flag gained entrance to the hotel, but was resumed a few minutes later when the workers departed, apparently empty-handed.

Lipscomb County Legalizes Beer

LIPSCOMB, Tex., Oct. 2. (AP)—Lipscomb county citizens Saturday voted to legalize the sale of 3.2 per cent beer locally by a vote of 464 to 358.

In the regular election on August 26, the official tabulation showed a one vote majority against local option, but a district court contest threw out the vote of an unnaturalized resident of Higgins and declared the vote a tie. The special election Saturday attracted 166 more votes than were cast in the regular election.

AMERICAN KILLED WHILE CUBAN SOLDIERS BOMBARD HAVANA'S NATIONAL HOTEL

ECONOMY TALK IS BACKED UP WITH A SMILE

NEW PRINCIPLE ADDED TO VETS' RELIEF PROGRAM

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt backed up his veterans economy program with a plain talk and a comrade's smile today before the world war soldiers assembled in the American Legion convention.

The band swung into the national anthem as the president took his place on the platform. With an overseas cap of the national press chapter of the American Legion set jauntily on his head, he stood rigidly at attention while the band finished playing.

He told the cheering men in blue after a tumultuous reception that greater benefits were hoped for the veterans who suffered disability in service, but he stood by his rule against "special benefits" to those who incurred injury or disease not connected with service.

Walking on to the platform where he accepted the nomination as president from the democratic convention in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt donned the cap of the Legion as the massed stadium roared with cheers and applause.

Cheered Loudly.

Striking at class distinction as an enemy of national unity, President Roosevelt assured the veterans that any suffering and destitute would be assured of the same relief the government was giving to other citizens in the same plight.

Mr. Roosevelt, who served in the war as assistant secretary of the navy, was cheered as he recalled his own service and his Legion membership. He spoke also as a veteran disabled after his war service. An attack of infantile paralysis in 1922 made it slightly difficult today for his legs to carry his robust body and broad shoulders out to the front of the platform.

Government Will Distribute Pork To County Needy

Gray county will receive 3,405 pounds of cured pork to be distributed among the needy of the county by the Gray County board of relief and employment, Mrs. W. H. Davis, administrator, received word this morning. The government is placing several million pounds of pork with relief boards throughout the nation and that amount is Gray county's share.

A car load of the pork will be received at Memphis and Gray county's share will be brought to Pampa by truck. It will be stored in a suitable refrigeration plant and distributed to the needy.

The date of arrival of the meat has not been learned.

PLAN NRA CENSUS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—NRA announced today the immediate start of a canvass to cover every employer in the country to establish how much new employment and increase in payroll has been secured by the recovery program since July 15. The "recovery census" will be handled by means of 3,000,000 questionnaires to be distributed by the post office department together with return envelopes.

SPECIAL PROBLEMS OF PAMPA HOUSEWIVES TO BE ANSWERED AT NEWS' COOKING SCHOOL

'Happy Kitchen' Will Open Thursday Afternoon

WITH the completion of all arrangements for the Happy Kitchen School of Cookery, Miss Beulah Mackey Yates, noted food economist and lecturer is scheduled to open her first session of the Happy Kitchen next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the auditorium.

The School of Cookery will be conducted for three days, and is for the women of this city and vicinity as a compliment from this newspaper and the local and national advertisers participating.

New recipies, ways to make the old dishes look different, better—little tricks to brighten and lighten the home-maker's task—all will be given. And if there is any question bothering anyone concerning cooking, such as baking cakes and pies, preparing tasty salads and other appetizing dishes, she is invited to bring them all to the Happy Kitchen.

Miss Yates, famed throughout the south for her knowledge of cookery and her insight into the everyday problems of the housewife, will be in charge of the programs.

"We're just going to show you a 1933 fashion revue in foods," says Miss Yates. "For fashions in foods do change, you know."

Each day's program will be entirely different and no house-wife should miss a minute of the entertaining demonstrations. Some forty distinct and separate dishes are to be made by the culinary artist during the school, and each day's work will be correlated with the next program of the following day.

When asked what her primary aim in the Happy Kitchen is, Miss Yates replied, "That's easy. It's the little things about the kitchen that count most."

"Most women are already good cooks. I don't even try to go thru a full course in cookery from the beginning to the end. That would be almost impossible. But I can help answer some of the problems that confront the housewife in her kitchen; how to get variety in her menus, what makes meringues fall; how to use that little dash of spice or flavor that adds so much to a dish; how to successfully bake cakes and pies and many other little prob-

Aspirants For Tree Army Jobs Will Register

Registration blanks for the second contingent to the government re-forestation camps have been received and young men between the ages of 18 and 25 years, inclusive, and who meet the requirements may register with Mrs. W. H. Davis in her office in the basement of the city hall.

Only sons of needy families who are registered with the Pampa Welfare board will be eligible for service. Only 12 will be taken from Gray county this time.

The date when the youths will be called has not been set, but those desiring to go to camps should register immediately so that applications may be checked and the ones eligible given approval so that they will be ready to leave immediately upon call.

It is not known whether this contingent will go into training camps or go direct to some re-forestation camp already established.

Accuse Lawyer

CHARGED with acting as agent for George "Machine Gun" Kelly in attempting to obtain $73,250 from the place it was hidden on a Texas farm, Langford Ramsey, 25, Memphis attorney, above, is under arrest.' Ramsey is a brother of Kelly's first wife. The money, found by authorities, was reported to be Kelly's share of the Urschel kidnaping loot.

SERIES PARTY WILL BE HELD BY THE NEWS

Games Will Start At 12:30 p. m. Pampa Time

ANOTHER series of baseball parties will be launched by the Pampa Daily NEWS tomorrow.

When the Giants and Senators line up at the Polo Grounds tomorrow at 12:30 p. m., Pampa time, the big electric playerboard on The NEWS building will flash every ball and play made throughout the contest.

The party is free to the fans and everyone is invited. The NEWS' leased wire will be tied into the press box at the Polo Grounds and each ball thrown or hit will be known here within a few seconds.

The baseball parties will be held every day of the series.

Roosevelt Visits Chicago's Fair

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt motored to the grounds of A Century of Progress exposition today after addressing the American Legion. He received the 21 gun presidential salute from the army post at the exposition as he drove through the gates.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and Governor Horner of Illinois, he went directly to the administration building where luncheon was set for the party.

FIRING FATAL TO AT LEAST 20 SOLDIERS

ARTILLERY SHELL HITS FORD BUILDING IN BATTLE

HAVANA, Oct. 2 (AP)—The firing around the National hotel ceased shortly after noon today after one American had been killed, approximately 20 soldiers slain, many other Americans endangered and the Ford Motor company's building damaged, in a battle between soldiers and officers besieged in the hostelry.

The shooting was stopped after two men carrying a Red Cross flag made their way into the hotel thru scattered firing.

The United States embassy meanwhile initiated efforts to arrange a truce between the embattled factions to permit the evacuation of the 90 Americans inside the battle zone.

The American killed was Robert C. Lotspeich, local manager for Swift and company.

After President Grau San Martin had been informed there were no Americans in the National hotel in which army and navy officers barricaded there there have been held virtual prisoners since mid-August, additional soldiers were ordered to join the attack.

Stray bullets peppered the walls of the Castro building where an Associated Press observer was posted. Slugs occasionally whistled into the rooms, forcing the occupants to flatten themselves on the floor.

The battle, which had raged for hours, assumed the appearance of real warfare as the Red Cross established a first-aid station a half block away from the hotel.

Colonel Fulgencio Batista, commanding Cuba's "enlisted army," set up field headquarters in the district and personally directed the attack.

Two American newspaper men escaped through heavy fire.

Topping off many other reports concerning the cause of the conflict, was one that shooting began when an attempt was made to drive two trucks loaded with ammunition to the hotel.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Secretary Hull declared today that no change in policy toward Cuba is contemplated as a result of the fatal shooting of an American at Havana.

At the same time, he urged in press conferences that Americans in the disturbed island use all possible care in avoiding danger, especially when peril is imminent.

Inspect Local Buildings For Fire Hazards

Fire Chief Clyde Gold and S. F. Thornton, electrical inspector, started inspection trips in the city fire zone this morning. Next week is Fire Prevention week in Pampa and the preliminary work being done is to give owners of buildings and vacant lots within the fire zone a chance to make corrections.

The men look over the buildings and premises and leave written reports of their findings. The property owners will be given a week or two to make the corrections before another inspection trip is made.

Fire prevention in the homes will be through the schools. Each child will be asked to make an inspection of his home to see that there are no fire hazards. The co-operation of the public is necessary to make ire Prevention week a success. Mayor W. A. Bratton has asked full co-operation from the public.

"Alley Oop Club" Organized By Pampa Boys

Clubhouse With Many Secrets Built by Lads, Who Like NEWS Comic Strip

LAWRENCE—he's Alley Oop.

Not a cave-man exactly, with that pleasantly grinning face topped by reddish hair, but when he grabs that big club, that bow and arrow, and dons those moccasins he made himself—well, he's not the kind of a person to meet on a dark night.

"Alley" is chairman and secretary of the Alley Oop club formed in Southeast Pampa and based on the comic strip which is proving so widely popular among young and old readers of the Pampa Daily NEWS. He is Lawrence Johnson, 14 years old. His brother, Leonard, two years younger, is vice-president, deputy, and janitor. It takes several good titles to make up for sweeping and dusting out the clubhouse, you know. Denver Tucker, who is oldest and biggest, is president of the "corporation," as well as its manager and chief deputy.

Typically boylike is the Alley Oop club. Soon after the club was formed, the lads began to "dig in" on a vacant lot. First there was just one room, made half-dugout style. That was more than a year ago, when the club had no name. But more room was needed. And Denver was getting too tall to stand up in the clubhouse.

So, after school closed, digging was started for a new "secret room" east of the main room and an extension on the west deepened to accommodate Denver's height. Pieces of old lumber and strips of roofing tin were used to build a neat if not entirely waterproof house. Inside are many things obvious at a glance—carpet, chairs, lamp, tools, books, sporting goods, and other things dear to the heart of boyhood. But other things are shown only to the most trusted guests, such as the secret room, hiding places galore, and push-buttons which do things the writer must not disclose! Pictures of Alley Oop and a file of the funny cave-man and his pals are taken from The NEWS and colored. Some are framed. The clubhouse has bars on the windows and is padlocked, of course.

The minute book, kept by Alley himself, reveals fines assessed and paid for swearing, asking "goofy questions," smoking, and giving away clubhouse secrets. The treasury is also enriched, we read, by selling of bottles and junk and spading of yards. The entries are small—a nickel here and a dime there. And the treasury was drawn upon several times for swimming fees at the municipal pool. Some other entries:

August 13—Ate rhubarb pie and a big bunch of grapes.

August 14—Bought lamp, ate cake, grapes, and chocolate pie.

August 15—Ate candy, grapes, and mincemeat.

August 16—Started digging for new room.

Sept. 8—Had cake and grape juice.

Sept. 9—played 42, put bars on windows, made a shelf, then played tennis.

The Alley Oop club does much more than eat. Yessir, just ask the boys' mothers or Wilbur Irving, 15, an associate member whose prowess at digging proved welcome. That pie and cake didn't find its way to the clubhouse for nothing, although mothers are very generous and understanding.

The meeting we attended broke up when a big tomcat, the official mascot, bolted through the door and the Alley Oppers, with many a shout and a "Come again!" started merrily in pursuit of sleek and swift Mr. Tom.

I SAW—

A happy child this noon in Jo Jean Stewart, daughter of Mike Stewart, postal clerk. She was rejoicing over the return of her dog which has been missing two weeks. The dog turned up at a local cafe. It was easily recognizable since one ear stuck up and the other down, and the dog's hair was long in places and short in other places.

Listeners expressing amazement as C. P. Buckler told how a burglar took a wrist-watch off the arm of Oscar Dial last night while that young man was asleep.

Hizzonor, the Mayor of Kingsmill, Dan McGrew, back from a trip to the Century of Progress, Pennsylvania and other "points east."

THE price we pay for machine politics

IN ALL THE NOISE that is being made about the mayoralty fight in New York City, you could hear, if you listened closely, the ominous howling of a very cold wind—the coldest wind, perhaps, that has ever shaken the fabric of American democracy.

PAMPA
TOPICS OF OUR CITY
By O.E.H.

Back of the frantic negotiations, campaignings and wire pullings of the New York situation, where the nation's largest city tries desperately to get Tammapy off its back, there stands the simple and unpleasant fact that our system of municipal government has come perilously close to breaking down entirely.

New York is proving—just as Chicago and a host of other cities have already proved—that our familiar type of machine politics is totally inadequate to meet the problems of the modern world.

For a great many years we have innocently gone along, handing over our city, county and state governments, to men who quite frankly were not especially interested in good government, but whose chief concern was the building up of their own political fortunes.

The results were scandalous—but while times were good we could afford them, or we thought we could. The local government became the weakest link in the democratic chain, but the chain was slack during prosperity and nobody minded very much. Now the chain is stretched taut. The weak link is being strained right to the breaking point.

Machine politics, in other words, is as anachronistic as one of Columbus' caravels. We have got to the point where we simply can't put up with it any longer. And what is happening in New York is an object lesson for the remotest county courthouse, town hall and state capitol in America.

* * *

Foreign observers have long predicted that if the American democracy broke down the collapse would begin with the municipal governments. Are we beginning to witness that collapse now? Is the cold wind that howls in from Manhattan island going to be a destroying cyclone that finds us with no storm cellar handy?

FOUR INJURED BY QUAKE IN LOS ANGELES

BUILDING COLLAPSES; FALLING BRICKS HURT WOMAN

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2 (AP)—A sharp earthquake of short duration, apparently centered in the Pacific ocean or the desert, awakened residents from Santa Barbara to Long Beach at 1:10 a. m. today, caused the injury of four persons in Los Angeles and light property damage.

The telephone companies and railroads, three hours after the shock, reported they had no reports of extensive damage or any deaths. The sheriff's office of Los Angeles county, in which the shock may have centered, checked all communities through its sub-stations and reported likewise.

Dr. Harry O. Wood, in charge of the seismological laboratory of the Carnegie Institute at Pasadena, reported the quake the worst he had felt with the exception of the one March 10, which resulted in more than 120 deaths and property damage running into the millions.

Of the four injured in Los Angeles, only one, Mrs. Marie Benedict, 57, was hurt critically. She suffered a possible skull fracture when a medicine cabinet in the bathroom of her home fell and struck her on the head.

Others injured slightly were: Miss Charlotte Wilson, 28; Miss Helen Apodar, 26, and Lewis Montay, 26.

Only one building collapsed, police reports showed. That was a market building on Central avenue in the southern section of Los Angeles. More than a ton of bricks were thrown from the front of the old Central police station into the street. One woman, sitting in an automobile, was said to have been injured slightly by the falling masonry but she did not appear at any hospital for treatment.

Mrs. T. B. Gillis of 926 E. Fisher was admitted to Pampa hospital Saturday night for treatment of a hip fracture, received when she fell at her home.

'Death' Charges Against Kelly, Bates Prepared

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2. (AP)—Two state charges of robbery with firearms were drawn today in the government's fight to "wipe from the face of the earth" George "Machine Gun" Kelly and Albert L. Bates, alleged kidnapers of Charles F. Urschel.

Based on the robbery of Urschel and his guest, Walter Jarrett, the charges were designed for the avowed purpose of sending Bates and Kelly to the electric chair. Robbery with firearms is a capital offense in Oklahoma but the supreme penalty has been exacted only once.

Half Inch Rain Falls In Pampa

Rather general rains, which differed widely as to amounts of precipitation, fell on the north plains early Sunday and left .53 of an inch of moisture in Pampa.

Highways were nearly impassable early yesterday, but quickly were beaten out so that motorists could move more rapidly, even if joltingly.

Road grading and planting of winter wheat will be expedited by the moisture. City dwellers welcomed end of dust storms which had harassed housewives for a week. For some, the rain meant drenching of lawns on which no more city water will be used. However, the city commission has extended the lawn rate through this month.

The skies cleared early today after being overcast Sunday.

Burglars Break Into Office of Texas Company

The office and garage of the Texas company, wholesale department, were entered sometime last night but only a truck tire was reported missing. Entry to the office was gained by picking a lock. Efforts were made to break into a locked filing cabinet but were not successful.

The thieves also tried to break into the warehouse where gasoline and oil is stored but they failed to smash the lock on the door. The lock on the garage door was successfully smashed and the tire removed.

City officers are investigating the burglary which was the fourth at the same place during the last two years.

Doctors Give Creosote For Dangerous Coughs

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (Adv. 1A)

NRA Code Cited To Halt Jimmie Allred's Suits

AUSTIN, Oct. 2, (AP)—Defendants in the state's suit to penalize 17 oil concerns for alleged anti trust law violations today argued before the court that the NRA code prescribed by the president for the oil industry superseded the statutes against combines.

James V. Allred, attorney general, told the court he was ready to proceed to trial with the case save for some exceptions the state desired to file to a cross action brought by the Texas Petroleum Marketers association, one of the defendants.

Charles I. Francis of Wichita Falls, one of the defense attorneys brought the NRA code to the court's attention, and the proposition that the suit should be dismissed was to be argued this afternoon.

NEW YEARS ARE STARTED IN DEPARTMENTS OF CHURCHES

AWARDS GIVEN AS PROMOTION DAY OBSERVED

AMARILLO PASTOR IS SPEAKER AT ONE SERVICE

NEW Sunday school years were started in two churches yesterday, when officers of Sunday school and church departments were installed in a special service at First Baptist church, and pupils of First Methodist Sunday school took their places in new classes after promotion.

A visiting minister, Ferrell Fox of Amarillo, filled the pulpit at First Christian church yesterday evening. Other services were conducted by resident ministers. The day at the Church of Christ was marked by reception of 10 new members into the congregation.

Rain Cuts Attendance.

Rainy weather curtailed Sunday school attendance at all churches, but the evening young people's services at First Baptist church had a gain over last week, with 154 present. Promotion day was observed in this department.

The Presbyterian church had 67 in Sunday school, Central Baptist 77, First Baptist 341, Church of Christ 84, Christian church, 220, Methodist church 264.

As a part of the Methodist promotion service, medals were awarded to Jo Ella Shelton, who has a perfect attendance record of three years; Pauline Stewart, who has attended without absence for two years; and nine other pupils who have perfect one-year records.

Lawn Supper at Horace Mann Is Well Attended

About 300 persons were present for the ice cream supper sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association of Horace Mann school, on the brightly lighted school lawn Friday evening.

Music by the high school band and the Horace Mann harmonica club entertained the crowd, which enjoyed the informal gathering and program.

Ice cream and home made cookies were served at tables decorated with fall garden flowers. The association added about $30 to its treasury as a result of the sales.

Members of the P.-T. A. today expressed their appreciation to all who assisted in making the event a success, including committee members and girls who acted as waitresses.

HOT LUNCH IMPORTANT TO SCHOOL CHILD

Ways Suggested To Meet Various Situations

Does your child come home to lunch or does he carry lunch to school? Has the school a cafeteria? Does the school serve milk, or any part of a lunch for the children?

This subject of school-day lunches is important to mothers, to teachers, and to every community, especially now as the school term begins. The school child's lunch has much to do with his health, his education, and his behavior, says the bureau of home economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

If your children come home at noontime you serve them a hot lunch, if you possibly can, or at least you serve them one hot dish. You give them at least one glass of milk to drink, unless the milk is used in soup or in cooking something else for lunch. That is one way to make sure each child, each growing boy or girl, gets a daily quota of at least a pint-and a half of milk, or 3 glasses a day.

Lunch Box Is Problem

If the child cannot come home at noon time, and must carry his lunch, then the problem is one that taxes the mother's imagination, for the things that can be put in a carried lunch are not very numerous or of great variety. Yet the lunch should furnish its due share of the child's daily food requirements, and it should consist of food that he will enjoy. Apparently, however, the box lunch must depend on sandwiches, and unless the child can carry a thermos of hot cocoa, or hot soup, or unless the school provides something hot, the box lunch offers, literally, only cold comfort, and a greater effort must be made to have it satisfying.

There are many communities where the parent-teacher organizations have for a long time promoted or maybe supervised school cafeterias, or have seen to it that the children were provided with one hot dish at lunch. But there are many other communities where no such thing is done. It was to meet such a situation that a teacher in Maryland "started something." She was disturbed over the health and attendance records of her pupils. With the help of the district nurse and the county home demonstration agent, she started lunch clubs. Although they had to get along with very little equipment and limited supplies, these women succeeded in serving one hot dish for the children every school day throughout the winter, and the idea spread to all the 17 schools in this and an adjoining county.

The second year home demonstration agents and teachers raised the funds, and the home demonstration agents trained older boys and girls to prepare the hot food that was served. The third year the parent-teacher association took over the project and made it their own. Teachers report that children gained weight and school attendance is greatly improved. Children who had not been bringing lunch came with biscuits or bread to eat with the hot food, and lunch time became a sort of picnic hour.

In schools with cafeterias the home economics teachers have a chance to teach the principles of good diet by means of well-chosen menus and by guidance in selection of food. There is no reason, of course, why the foods the children need should not be also what they like. Appetites can be educated by judicious guidance.

Mrs. Teeters Is Hi-Lo Hostess

Decorations in a lovely pink and white scheme were stressed when Mrs. Graydon Teeters entertained the Hi-Lo bridge club last week at her home.

Touch-me-nots in those color formed bouquets; table covers were pink and white, and the sunbonnet girls given as plate favors with the salad course were dressed in pink and white.

Mrs. Homer Lively won high score, while Mrs. N. B. Ellis scored low for the afternoon.

Other members present were Mesdames Roy Dyson, Tom Morris, R. Myers, W. M. McWright, William Dull, E. P. Hollingshead, and the hostess.

Members will meet next with Mrs. Tom Morris, on Oct. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Davis spent yesterday afternoon in Amarillo.

YOUTH KILLS 13-YEAR OLD GIRL AFTER SHE BEGS HIM TO MARRY HER DURING DATE AT MIDNIGHT

MARLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—Fearful of returning home after midnight from a "date," 13-year-old Dorothy Baugh, a Marlin high school student, begged her escort to marry her, but he refused and shortly afterward she was wounded fatally with a pistol.

This version of the girl's tragic slaying was embodied in a statement officers said they obtained from her escort, an 18-year-old ice company employe. Murder charges were being prepared for filing against him today.

Dorothy was found unconscious on a highway just north of Marlin early yesterday, with a bullet wound near her heart. Passing motorists rushed her to a hospital, where she died.

Investigators learned that another couple had been riding in an automobile with Dorothy and her purported slayer until midnight Saturday. Then, according to the statement, the other couple was taken home and Dorothy and her escort drove out of town again, parking near a cemetery.

The statement said they remained parked for about an hour and a half, during which time Dorothy became greatly worried about the late hour and pleaded with the youth to marry her.

Officers quoted the youth as saying in his statement that he did not intend to kill the girl but that she wanted him to marry her and he fired "to scare her."

Dorothy made her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Emma Baugh.

O about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish—are blended and cross-blended the Chesterfield way.

Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better. Chesterfields satisfy—we ask you to try them.

Hill Suffers A Broken Leg In Game Saturday

Paul Hill, a graduate of Pampa high school with the class of 1931, will be lost to the Texas Christian Horned Frogs for at least a month and perhaps the rest of this season. The big tackle received a broken ankle in the first play of the game Saturday afternoon when the Frogs played the Denton Teachers.

The former Pampa star went to a hospital for x-ray pictures after the game and physicians announced that the ankle was broken. Coach Francis Schmidt, when informed of the extent of the injury said, "We have lost one of the most promising tackles in the history of the school. If Hill was faster he would be one of the outstanding linemen in the country and he was learning fast."

Paul, brother of Frank Hill, district clerk here, came to Pampa in 1929 and made his home with his brother. He played fullback on the Harvester squad his two years here. He weighed 240 pounds and was a freshman star at T. C. U. last year. Paul limped off the field and walked and stood around the sidelines until the end of the game. Paul said he hurt himself when he tried to stop a man with his foot.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Ratman and children of 811 E. Craven returned Saturday from a 10-day vacation visit to Moreland, Oklahoma.

PIRATES AND YANKS FINISH IN 2ND PLACE

BABE RUTH WINS GAME ON MOUND—HITS 34TH HOMER

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.

The long grind of the baseball season, which started last April, again has narrowed down to the two-club battle for the world's championship which starts between the Washington Senators and New York Giants tomorrow. The other 14 major league clubs finished up their chores yesterday but some of them and their followers still are wondering how it happened that they are not occupying the champions' positions.

When the season started, the New York Yankees, 1932 world champions, and the Pittsburgh Pirates were generally ranked as favorites. The end yesterday saw these two second in their leagues and the Pirates didn't even clinch that post until they defeated Cincinnati in the first game of their closing double header. Meanwhile, Washington came thru with a powerful, well-balanced club to finish seven games in front of the Yanks and the Giants' remarkable pitching and defensive strengtn gave them the National League flag with a five-game margin at the end.

From start to finish it was a pitchers' year and as a result batting averages were generally lower than last season. The two new batting champions, Chuck Klein of the Phillies and Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics, who succeeded Frank O'Doul and Dale Alexander respectively, kept swinging at the old speed. But after yesterday's games, Klein with an unofficial average of .368 and Foxx with .356, had margins of around 20 points over their nearest rivals. Foxx held the home run crown he won last year with 58 four-baggers but this season he fell ten below that mark.

The Boston Braves, who played good ball all year and for a while looked like a real contender for the National League flag, got the best results from the closing day's games. Scoring all their runs on Wally Berger's pinch homer, the Braves defeated the Phillies 4 to 1 and slipped into fourth place ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals. Texas Carlton's wildness enabled the Chicago Cubs to beat the Cards 7 to 1, win third place for themselves and shove St. Louis a half game into the second division.

Both of the new champions lost their final games. The Giants dropped a 5 to 2 decision to the Brooklyn Dodgers while Washington bowed to the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-0, after an eleven-inning duel between Rube Walberg and Rookie Ray Prim. Pittsburgh swept its twin bill with Cincinnati, 7-5 and 6-5, the second game going ten innings. The Yankees, with Babe Ruth on the hill against the club which gave him his major league start, defeated the Boston Red Sox 6-5. Ruth helped win his game with his 34th homer. The Chicago White Sox ended their best season in years with a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns and Detroit finished off by beating the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

GAME SITE CHANGED

LUBBOCK, Oct. 2 (AP)—The football game between Texas Tech and Dixie university of Dallas will be played here Friday night instead of in Dallas as originally scheduled, Coach Pete Cawthon announced here this morning. The transfer of the game to Lubbock was made at the request of Dixie officials. The game will be played under the lights at Tech field Friday night and will be the second appearance of the Matadors this season.

J. W. Hornsby, Harvey Cobb, D. A. Davis, Leon Bodine, Frank Bell, and Carl Carpenter of McLean were here for jury duty today, but were excused until Thursday.

HUBBELL UNANIMOUSLY VOTED NATIONAL'S MOST VALUABLE

Jimmy Foxx Wins American League Award For Second Consecutive Time

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 2.—For the second time since the most valuable player awards were inaugurated in 1922, an unanimous vote of the committee making the selections has been cast. Carl Hubbell, the screwball pitching ace of the New York Giants, is so honored in the annual most valuable player choice for the National League by The Sporting News, the national baseball weekly of St. Louis, Mo. Babe Ruth was the other receiving unanimous vote, in 1923. Jimmy Foxx, the Philadelphia Athletics' first baseman, won the Sporting News' 1933 award in the American League. It is the second time in succession that he has been so chosen.

Hubbell's selection in the National League also marks the first time since 1924 that a pitcher received the honor, Walter Johnson of Washington and Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn, both, winning the distinction that year in the two leagues. Only one player other than Foxx has been named the most valuable in his league twice in succession, Chuck Klein of the Phillies being selected in 1932, after being named in 1931. It is the fourth time a player has been named twice, Rogers Hornsby and Lou Gehrig also having that distinction.

The Sporting News has made the selections for the two major leagues ever since the National and American circuits discontinued their official awards, the latter in 1929 and the former in 1930, using the same method of having a baseball writer from each city, pick the players and then getting a consensus by giving eight points for the one considered the most valuable, on down to one point for the last named, as was employed by the two leagues before they abandoned the plan.

DESPERATE INDIAN FIGHTING NEAR FORT ELLIOTT SITE IS DELINEATED BY NOTED SCOUT

(Editor's note: Here is another of the series of daily historical articles on Indian fighting in this area in 1874.)

BY LEMUEL T. WILSON, Famous Scout.

Late in the afternoon, after the last fight and the remaining Indians had been driven back, we were resting about 1,000 yards out on the staked plains and out of range of the Indians' guns. Lieut. Baldwin took from his jacket pocket a photograph of his wife and little daughter, gazed long at them, shaking his head he said, "I never expected to see you again."

We were tired and hungry, as we had not had a bite to eat since our scanty breakfast at early dawn. Fate befriended us. A sudden rain came up—almost a cloud burst, then a steady rain. The Indians bothered us no more. Then came night that we had longed for. We traveled as long as we could keep our course, then camed. Or rather we just stopped, for we had lost our entire equipment back in the draw that morning. We picketed our horses to let them graze, and we laid down on the ground, using our saddles for pillows and saddle blankets for cover, the only protection we had.

Next morning (Sept. 8) just at daylight we started again, a little rested but still hungry. Late in the afternoon, near Sweetwater creek on which Fort Elliott was later built, we ran onto an old buffalo which had been killed. We cut out a big chunk from his rump, which we ate raw. None of us had any matches and if we had had any we would not dare to use them, as we were afraid to build a fire. We rested for a while and let the horses rest and graze.

About 4 p. m. when we came to a ridge betwen Gageby creek and the Washita, we saw spread out on a hill across the Washita a large herd of animals about a mile away. We stopped for council. Lieut. Baldwin said, "That must be a herd of buffalo." I said, "Lieut., did you ever see any white buffalo?" "No," he said, "then it must be mules and horses of Maj. Lyman's train." I said "Maj. Lyman would have over one hundred wagons, that would mean about six hundred horses and mules. There must be at least fifteen hundred head of horses there." He said, "That's right, but what is it?" I said, "There are Indians near and those are their ponies." We went on about a quarter of a mile and just over a little knoll, we looked down into a big camp. He said, "That is Maj. Lyman's camp." I said, "That's an Indian camp." He said, "No, it can't be, there are not many Indians behind General Miles." We drew a little nearer and I showed him they were tepees and he was convinced they were Indians.

Then the question was, what shall we do? Lieut. B ldwin said, "We will keep on and ride right through them and strike the plains beyond Washita." I said, "No, there are too many of them. They will run right over us, tromp us into the ground and kill us all without ever firing a shot." Baldwin said, "Well, what shall we do?" I said, "We will circle off to the right, work over and strike the Washita farther down. If they discover us we will separate—every man to himself—get into the swamp and maybe some of us will get to Camp Supply." The argument lasted several minutes. Lieut. Baldwin said, "I am in command; follow me." I said, "I for one will not go. Lieut. you are in command but you can not make me go into certain death. I refuse to follow and will not put my head into a halter that means sure death." The lieutenant's eyes flashed fire. He surely was an angry man. Finally he said, "Come on, all who want to go to Camp Supply, all who want to go to Camp Supply, follow me," and he mounted his horse. I said, "Come on all who want to go to Camp Supply follow me," and I mounted my horse. Baldwin started one way and Wing went with him. I started the other way and Schmalsle followed me. After going a few hundred yards I said to Schamisle, "Let's take the last look at Baldwin and Wing we will ever have." We turned and looked only to see that they had stopped also. When they saw we had stopped, they turned and came toward us. Upon reaching us, Lieut. Baldwin, still angry and his voice trembling, said, "Wilson, if you are going to take command of this outfit, lead on." "Lieutenant," I said, "I don't wish to take command, but if you will follow me, I will take you to Camp Supply." He said, "All right, lead on, I'll follow." Thus we started my way, the scouts in the lead because they knew the way.

That was one of the occasions that he afterwards many times mentioned and said that I had saved his life. He said, our good luck of the day before in fighting our way through had made him over-confident. We had not gone very far, when I, who had the best horse, was riding a little in advance. In going over a little ridge I saw an Indian, naked except for his "gee string" and moccasins, riding a pony and leading another which was loaded with meat. He was riding along singing his Ki-yi song with his head hanging forward and he did not see me. I backed down making signs to the others for silence and told them what I had seen, and that they would see him in a few minutes coming around the point. We held council and Baldwin said, "What will we do?" I said, "We can't shoot; we are too close to their camp. We will catch him, disarm him, and take him with us." So we waited till he appeared, then I rode right onto him, grabbed him by the neck and choked him to silence. We both fell from our horses but I hung onto him while Schmalsle and Wing disarmed him. We made signs to him that if he made a sound we would kill him. It was later learned that he was a white man who had lived with the Indians since he was six years old. We cut the meat from both horses and turned one loose and tied him to the other and took him with us.

At one time we had to pass in plain sight of the Indian camp some distance away. We rode single file, as Indians do. If they saw us they probably thought we were Indians. As soon as we got out of sight we rode as fast as we could for the Washita. We had to swim it. Wing's horse gave out and when we got across he couldn't make it up the bank which was very steep. Wing jumped off and saved himself but his horse fell back into the river. Not having any other horse we decided Wing should ride the Indian's pony and we would make the prisoner walk. He had to trot or run most of the way.

BETTING ODDS FORCED DOWN FROM 10 TO 7

IDENTITY OF CRONIN'S PITCHER IS STILL A SECRET

BY HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—The New York Giants and the Washington Senators prepared for a last-minute "fire drill" today before they plunge into the blazing competition of world series combat in the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

An overnight flood of New York money had forced the betting odds, favoring the Senators, down to 6 to 5 from 10 to 7, with prospects of a further shortening to even money.

This swing toward the Giants and indications that the ticket sales for the first two games in New York, tomorrow and Wednesday, have not come up to expectations, took all the play away from the actual competitors and their pre-series practice sessions slated for the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

The Giants' business office announced yesterday that beginning at 9 a. m. today reserved seats would be sold separtely for either the first or second games. This ruling, reversing the Giants' previous policy of disposing of tickets only in strips of three, covering the first, second, and sixth games, does not apply to the 4,000 box seats, all of which have been sold, nor to the 5,000 bleacher seats which will go on sale the morning of each game.

Washington announced several days ago that single game seats would be sold for the three games which will be played there Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The only apparent explanation for the Giants' decision to follow Senatorial policy was that the advance sale had indicated a strong disinclination on the public's part to put $16.50 on the line for three games.

The shift in betting odds failed to perturb Joe Cronin, youthful manager of the Washington club. Cronin believes implicitly in the ability of his well-rounded team to "take the Giants, not in four games as the New York Yankees made a habit of doing, perhaps, but comfortably."

As for Bill Terry, who led the Giants to a smashing and unexpected National League pennant triumph in his first full year as John McGraw's successor, he's conceding the American Leaguers not a single thing so long as Carl Hubbell's left arm is in serviceable condition.

He said a week ago that Hubbell would pitch the first game and nothing has occurred since then to make him change his mind. The great southpaw pitched ten shutouts in winning 23 games this season and Terry thinks the Senators will find him just as much a puzzle as did the National League teams.

Identity of Washington's opening pitcher remained a secret. Cronin himself insists he hasn't got the slightest idea whether he'll nominate "General" Alvin Crowder, his crack right hander, or one of his left handers, Earl Whitehill or Wally Stewart. There's small chance now that the Senators will call on that expert mathematician, Monte Weaver, for first game duty.

Some baseball critics think Cronin will send Crowder in against Hubbell, hoping to beat the Giants' ace and shatter their morale at the same time. Admittedly the Giants are placing their main reliance in their great lefthander and his defeat would leave them small hopes of winning the series.

Another school of baseball thought inclines to the belief that young Joe and the Senators' "Old Fox," Clark Griffith, will prefer either the left-handed Whitehill or the equally left-handed Stewart on the theory that a southpaw will throttle Terry and Mel Ott, the two battering rams of the Giants' rather anaemic attack. Both Terry and Ott hit from the "wrong" side of the plate.

Fighter's Motorcycle Hits Automobile On Highway; Recovery Chance 'Fair'

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2. (AP)—Fate, bowling along a Georgia highway on a sunny Sabbath, has struck, lightning fast, to end the boxing career of William Lawrence (Young) Stribling.

The boxer, once a contender for the world's heavyweight championship, lay today in a hospital, his left foot gone and his pelvis fractured.

His doctors and the chances of recovery of the 29-year-old fighter were "fair."

Travelling 35 miles an hour yesterday on a motorcycle, the "King of the Canebrake," en route to a hospital to visit his wife and their third child, born two weeks ago, waved a greeting to a friend passing in an automobile. He failed to observe another car behind, that of his friend, Roy Barrow.

The ring veteran who packed 300 engagements into 15 years of fighting without receiving a permanent scar, attempted to dodge the second car but was too late. The fender of the automobile struck Stribling, crushing his left leg and sending him sprawling to the pavement.

Stribling's foot was left dangling and he was brought to the hospital here where the member was amputated.

Even as his recovery remained in doubt, Stribling fought off sleep, awaiting the arrival of his parents, "pa" and "ma" Stribling, whose names have been closely linked with his fight career.

The elder Striblings, en route from Texas, were located in Birmingham and started immediately for Macon.

COURT RECORD

District Court

Judge W. R. Ewing today told prospective jurors to report at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. He then began hearing pleadings of attorneys seeking to stay the execution of sheriffs' sales involving the judgment in the case of First National Bank & Trust company of Tulsa et al vs. Operators Royalty & Producing company. Both the receiver in bankruptcy and the management of the company are seeking more time, citing that conditions are improving but that a sale now would be damaging to the defendants. The Texas moratorium law is involved. Judgment in the case was entered about 11 months ago. The bank holds a first lien on a loan of $150,000, drawing interest at 10 per cent. Most second lien holders and the bank are resisting the motions. The Operators property, valued as high as a million dollars, is located in 8 counties.

New divorce suits filed here are those of Lessie Spencer vs. Henry Spencer and Juanita Anthony vs. Scott Anthony.

County Court

Judge C. E. Cary opened county court and began setting jury and non-jury suits. The third week of the month's term will be jury week.

Tennis Club To Be Organized In Pampa Tonight

Although the time for tennis is nearly over, it is not too late to organize a club and start building courts so that they can settle by next spring. Such a club will be organized at a meeting of enthusiasts in the chamber of commerce rooms in the city hall at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Every player and parents of high school tennis players are urged to be present. Officers will be elected, reports of committees that have been working for the last two weeks will be made. A location has been secured where lights can be installed for night play.

Chris Martin, elected temporary chairman, will preside at the meeting and call for committee reports before the election of officers.

'Ma' Submits 11 New Subjects to Special Session

AUSTIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—Eleven additional subjects were opened to the special session of the legislature by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today.

She suggested passage of a law that would regulate the occupation of haid ressers and cosmetologists by creating a state board for the licensing of persons, firms, co-partnerships, associations or corporations in that business. Another bill would reduce the state poll tax, required of voting citizens, from $1.50 to $1.

She submitted a bill that will make an appropriation to reimburse growers and producers of cotton for expenses incurred by them thru the years extending from 1929 to 1932 by reason of the state having established regulations requiring the growers to fumigate their cotton and sterilize cotton seed as a precaution against the spread of the pink boll worm.

Other matters submitted included: Live stock law for Upton county.

To validate all issues of funding and refunding notes, bonds, warrants, time warrants, and treasury warrants issued or authorized to be issued by all cities under charters adopted and amended under provisions of article 11, section 5 of the constitution.

To provide insurance of deposits in state banks after next January.

To provide for the government of water power control districts and water improvement districts organized in accordance with the provisions of chapter 247, acts of the fortieth legislature.

Provide for governing bodies of all cities, towns and villages operating under title 28 of the revised civil statutes of 1925, the power to establish or erect warehouses and elevators for the storage of agricultural products.

GRIDSTER KILLED

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30 (AP)—Leroy Hay, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hay and a member of the Jefferson senior high school football team, was instantly killed and Riley Williams, also a Jefferson student, injured in an automobile collision just north of Floresville on the Corpus Christi highway late today.

J. C. Ray entered Pampa hospital Saturday night for an appendectomy. He is a Humble company employe.

DEVELOPMENT OF OFFENSIVE IS PARAMOUNT

HARVESTERS PREPARE TO MEET BIG SPRING

Blocking and training for offensive play will be the lot of the Harvester football squad this week as Coaches Odus Mitchell and Argus Fox get their team ready for Big Spring Saturday afternoon in Big Spring. The team will leave here early Friday morning by bus and car.

The boys came out of the game with the Capitol Hill Indians of Oklahoma City Friday afternoon in fairly good condition. They were sore and bruised from hitting players who outweighed them 17 pounds to the man. The team showed a world of improvement from the previous week, when McLean played the Harvesters to a tie.

The backfield will come in for most of the strenuous work during the week of hard practice. Although blocking was better Friday, there is still room for plenty of improvement in that department. Sidestepping without falling, and hard charging will be the other major activities along with a new passing attack.

Practice will be behind closed gates until Wednesday afternoon, when the regular weekly scrimmage will be staged. ans will be welcomed to Harvester park between 3:30 and 5:30 o'clock. It should be a much strengthened team that will be in action. Positions are at a premium the boys are fighting harder than ever.

It cannot be said that there were any outstanding stars in the game Friday afternoon. The team clicked with precision and team work. The Harvesters were outplayed in most departments but their fight cooperation pulled them out of most difficulties. With every boy playing his part like he did Friday, the team will be hard to conquer next Saturday.

The Harvesters will not play at home until Oct. 21, when Cisco comes to Pampa.

FREED ON BOND

ABILENE, Sept. 30 (AP)—Will Casey, Coleman county farmer charged here Friday with conspiracy to conceal George R. (Machine Gun) Kelly, kidnaper, was released from the Taylor county jail late this afternoon. Casey made the $10,000 bond imposed by Mrs. Ida M. James, U. S. commissioner. Sureties were a brother, J. Fix Casey, and William Lobstein.

Outrageous Fortune

—By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

SYNOPSIS: A dazed man picked up after the wreck of the Alice Arden is identified by Nesta Riddell as her husband, Jimmy Riddell, and taken to Nesta's brother's home in Ledlington. He has been talking in his sleep of emeralds and murder. Shortly after his removal from the hospital Caroline Leigh calls there, think he may be her distant cousin, Jim andal. She is leaving, disappointed, when the nurse recalls a scrap of letter in the man's pocket, with the signature of "Caroline." So Caroline continues her apparently hopeless search and meanwhile the man wakens, and is told by Nesta that he has stolen the famous Van Berg emeralds—although he remembers nothing back of his awakening. Now Nesta describes their meeting and the beginning of the Van Berg "job."

Chapter 11

"YOU SHOT VAN BERG"

Nesta laughed.

"Well, that's where I came in. You tried pretty hard to make me believe you were crazy about me, but you needn't imagine I was such a fool as to believe you. You were crazy about the emeralds, and you needn't have troubled to make love to me, because I'd taken the length of your foot in the first five minutes."

"But you married me."

"Did you think I was going to trust you? I married you because I meant to get my share."

"And why did I marry you?" said Jim Riddell pleasantly.

Nesta colored high.

"For what you could get out of me," she said. "You wanted my help, and you thought it was safer."

"It's very interesting," said Jim, "won't you go on?"

"Interesting!" She struck her cigarette against the arm of the chair and sent the ash flying.

"Very. Do you mind telling me how you helped?"

"I was staying with old Caroline Bussell. I've known her all my life—she's some sort of twenty-eighth cousin. She's been housekeeper at the Hall since the year one, and she does what she likes with Mr. Entwhistle. When you spoke to me that day in the drive—"

"Yes?"

"I was going to go next day, because the Van Bergs were coming. I will say you had a nerve."

"What did I do?"

She stared at him resentfully.

"Why you got me to work it so that I stayed on. It was quite easy for old Caroline. She said I was her cousin and the Van Bergs didn't care. And then—"

"And then?"

She reached out for another cigarette, struck a match and looked at him over the little yellow flame.

"Are you trying to make me believe I'm telling you something you don't know?"

"I can't make you believe anything," said Jim.

She threw the match into the grate just short of the spangled shavings.

"Oh, have it your own way! Do you want me to tell you how you pinched the emeralds?"

He had himself well in hand. He said cooly:

"I stole them?"

Nesta laughed.

"You make me tired, Jimmy Riddeyy! You stole them?" She tried to mimic his voice. "Do you think you can act the innocent with me like that after the way I've heard you talk in your sleep? Why you have never stopped talking, and if I hadn't got you out of the hospital in double quick time, we should all have been inside." She laughed again at his blank look and flung out: "Jug—(tod—dir!" Haven't ever done time, I suppose? Well you will over this if you don't cure yourself of talking at night."

He leaned forward with his elbow on his knee and his chin in his hand.

"You say I took these emeralds?"

"I say you did—and I'll say it was a pretty nippy bit of work. Pity you shot him, though."

He jerked away from the word.

"What are you saying?"

"You shouldn't have carried a gun," said Nesta maliciously. "I said so all along."

He got up. His spine had gone cold. He felt the sweat break out upon his temples.

"What's that you're saying?"

Nesta got up, too.

"I'm saying that you shot Mr. Van Berg.

He went over to the mantelpiece, leaning on it with his two hands, his head bent between them, his eyes staring blankly at the spangled shavings of the grate.

What nightmare was this? He had broken into a house, stolen property, shot a man for a handful of green stones—eight square green stones—chained two by two with pearls — swinging from a man's hand. Whose hand? Van Berg's hand?

He could see it under the light. It was as plain as anything he had seen in all his life—a powerful hand with spatulate fingers and an old healed scar running from the lower knuckle of the first finger to the root of the thumb.

He didn't see Min's carefully polished grate with the dazzle of shavings and the small bright blue tiles; he saw Van Berg's hand with the scar on it, and he knew how the scar had come there. Out of all the things that he had forgotten he remembered this one—that Van Berg had got that scar playing with a pet monkey.

No. It wasn't a bite. The monkey had got fooling with a razor. It was a clean cut. He ehad forgotten everything in the world, but he had not forgotten Van Berg's monkey.

His head swam for a moment. Then he straightened up and half turned, still leaning on the mantelpieae. He caught a curious look on Nesta's face, a watching look, but it went past him.

"Is Van Berg dead?"

"Not yet," said Nesta.

"Is he bad?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"If he doesn't die for a year and a day, they can't gang you."

His voice came at her with an angry leap.

"Is he bad?"

"So so," and then: "It's not your fault he's not dead. You let him have it all right."

He went over to the window and threw it up. He had to push past the pink geraniums; one of the bright blooms snapped off. The room had suddenly seemed crowded with used air. Outside, a light wet wind blew veeringly. There was rain in the wind, but it would not fall yet awhile. It struck damp and cool against his face, and he was glad of it.

Nesta's voice came from close hind him.

"Where did you put the emeralds Jimmy?"

He turned blindly, pushed past her and went blundering through the door and out into the street.

Caroline drove to Marley, which, as the day nurse had told her, was only eight miles from Elston. She found a charming little village with stone walls and thatched roofs.

The thatched roofs were doubtless a refuge for earwigs, but although Marley contained some six hundred inhabitants, with the usual allowance of cows, cats, pigs, hens and children. It did not, so far as Caroline could ascertain, conceal Mr. and Mrs. James Riddell.

At first this made Caroline angry. A very bright color bloomed in her cheeks, and she thought of several things which she would have liked to say to Mrs. Riddell. Later on, while she was having tea in the prettiest of the cottage gardens, she had a brain-wave. There were earwigs in the thatch. She had just fished the third out of her tea, and the brain waved and she wanted to know why Mrs. Riddell had said she was coming to Marley when she wasn't coming to Marley.

Caroline had, of course, taken the greatest possible dislike to what she described as that snatching woman. But even people whom you dislike very much don't as a rule tell entirely purposeless lies; so why had the Snatcher said she was coming to Marley?

Caroline drank some of her tea hastily, because she was very thirsty and she wanted to get in before the next earwig. She had a feeling that there were going to be more earwigs, and sure enough when she put down her cup there was one in the saucer. She thought very seriously about Mrs. James Riddell. And the more she thought the less she could think of any reason why she should have told that lit—unless—

The "unless" was so exciting that Caroline felt quite dazzled by it. Why does anyone give a false address?

Because they don't want to give a real one—and they only don't want to give a real one because they've got to hide. Mrs. Riddell had come and fetched Jim away from the Elston cottage hospital.

She had said that he was Jim Riddell, and she had said that she was going to Marley. Well, she had not told the truth about going to Marley, so why should she have told the truth about Jim being Jim Riddell?

--LEGIONNAIRE

Reaching Chicago at 11 o'clock (Central Standard Time) the president remained on his private car to communicate with Secretary Hull about the Cuban situation before motoring to the stadium.

Crowds jammed the streets and cheered lustily. Ticker tape and confetti blanketed the streets.

Pension Policy Flayed.

The president pounded the desk with his fist as he asserted with a friendly smile: "The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he (the veteran) can demand and receive from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives."

The president's appearance before the Legion, which has taken issue with him over the cuts in veterans' compensation, was fully as dramatic as his previous appearance in Chicago stadium.

Looking fresh, in spite of the hasty departure from Hyde Park, N. Y., the chief executive addressed the crowded stadium, his face alight with vitality, his words coming sharply and carrying clearly to the huge reaches of the hall.

Happy Days.

Seeming to sense the drama of the occasion, the huge assemblage hung tense on the executive's word.

As the president left the plaform, the band swung into "Happy Days Are Here Again," the tune that rocked the stadium during the bitter fight for the democratic presidential nomination.

He left the hall to the strains of the music.

"The car was stalled," he said in speaking of the spring of this year. "Obviously, the first objective was to get the engine running again. It is true that we succeeded in reopening a large number of the banks, but this would not have been possible if at the same time we had not been able to restore the credit of the government.

"In speaking of national credit we are again dealing with a real thing, not a theory in books. Industry cannot be restored, people cannot be put back to work, banks can not be kept open, human suffering can not be cared for, if the government itself is bankrupt.

"We realize now that the great human values, not for you alone but for all American citizens, rest upon the unimpaired creidt of the United States.

Vet Principles.

"It was because of this that we undertook to take the national treasury out of the red and put it into the black. And in the doing of it we laid down two principles which directly affected benefits to veterans—to you and veterans of other wars.

"The first principle is that no person, because he wore a uniform must thereafter be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all other citizens. The fact of wearing a uniform does not mean that he can demand and receive from his government a benefit which no other citizen receives. It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive a pension from his government because of a disability incurred after his service has terminated, and not connected with that service."

The president went before the opening session of the convention immediately upon his arrival here just before noon after a last minute decision yesterday to break up his summer White House at Hyde Park, N. Y., and visit both the convention and the Century of Progress.

Relief Corporation.

As he rode westward last night to the mid-west metropolis he announced from his special train the creation of a gigantic government corporation to purchase and distribute the necessities of life to the destitute this winter. This program, involving about $330,000,000, calls for about the same amount as was reduced from veterans allowances under the economy plan.

Discussing other national affairs, the president warned that the realization of the domestic recovery drive cannot be attained in six months, but he reported progress.

"Reemployment has proceeded only a part of the way," he said, "from week to week there will be ups and downs, but the net result is a consistent gain. The freezing of credits has been stopped and the ice is definitely melting. Farm income has been increased; it must be further increased. Industry has picked up, but an increased purchasing power must stimulate it further.

"I ask your further and even greater efforts in our program of national recovery. You who wore the uniform, you who served, you who took the oath of allegiance to the American Legion, you who support the ideals of American citizenship, I have called to the colors again. As your commander-in-chief and your comrade, I am confident that you will respond."

Mrs. Dale Low and baby daughter, Jean Carole, left Pampa hospital yesterday for their home in Miami.

F. R. Riddle, Tulsa attorney, was in district court here today.

Get Rid of Malaria!

Banish Chills and Fever!

To conquer Malaria, you must do two things. (1) Destroy the infection in the blood, (2) build up the blood to overcome the effects and to fortify against further attack. There is one medicine that does these two things and that is Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic! The tasteless quinine in Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic destroys the malarial infection in the blood while the iron builds up the blood. Less Work—More Fun

ONE of the red-letter events of the year for women is almost here. A cooking school it is, to be sure, but what a cooking school! This year's cooking is done in a kitchen much different from that of grandmother's day. There are hours and hours less time needed in cooking—there's less work and more fun. Today's kitchen is a real "Happy Kitchen,"—or ought to be. If your three meals a day seem just a succession of toast and eggs and potatoes and roast beef and pie, our cooking school is made to order for you! And if you've already found the secret to pleasure and fascination in mixing dainty new dishes and dressing the old stand-bys in colorful new fashions—you'll love the cooking school just as much.

There will be romance—mapping of uncharted seas of the kitchen—at the cooking school. Each session will glow with new ideas, appetite thrillers, the simple secrets that make cooking happier and easier. We invite you to hear dozens of practical suggestions that make kitchen hours more fun and more joy—to see demonstrated before your very eyes those inspired touches that raise the meal and its preparation to the realms of a happy adventure.

Remember—everything shown in our cooking school has been tried and tested by a whole staff of "Happy Kitchen" experts. Months of planning have gone before. There are three afternoons of enjoyment in store for you . . . come as our guest!
