We're No. 1! — Hereford Whiteface players and coaches acknowledge the cheers of the fans following the 52-21 victory over Caprock. The victory Friday night gave the Herd the outright claim to the District 3-4A championship, the first time since 1992. The Herd will meet Plainview at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 12 at Plainview in the area playoffs. Fans are encouraged to buy their game tickets early, which should go on sale Monday or Tuesday at Troy's Sweet Shop.

Hyer 'Net'-ted a career early

By Donald M. Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

When Allen Hyer got his first computer when he was 12 years old, he never imagined a love of computer games would turn into a career.

But it did.

Now Hyer is system administrator for WT Computer Services, a subsidiary of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative.

One of his co-workers is Heath Urbanczyk, a long-time friend. The two men met about the time Hyer got his first computer, and they discovered they shared the same interest.

"We wanted to make games and learned to program them. We taught each other and read tons and tons of books," Hyer said.

"When we started (working with computers and programs), we didn't know anything, but we learned. It's been a blast, but there've been some real long nights along the way," Hyer said.

Hyer joined the cooperative in 1989, working — and learning — alongside Urbanczyk. They were responsible for writing software for WT Services and its subsidiaries, a job that Hyer said kept them busy.

In March 1996, the cooperative established its computer service, which builds, repairs and services computer hardware and software.

"What fueled it was the Internet," Hyer said. The cooperative launched its operation as an Internet service provider (ISP) for the same reason it had begun the telephone service — the people in the rural areas of the Panhandle were not receiving the service from neither the large telephone companies nor the ISPs.

"We offered it originally as a service to our telephone customers," which included Hereford, Hyer said.

"It just exploded. It was far beyond any of our expectations," Hyer said.

"We had to rebuild the entire system three times because of the growth. That's a good thing to happen," he said.

The cooperative had conducted a marketing survey to determine the future of the Internet service.

"We had more customers in the first year than they thought we'd every have," he said.

"We (WT Computer Services) do everything to computers, build them, repair them and provide support to our customers, the Internet is the focal point of our work," he said.

There are about 1,500 customers using WT Services as its ISP, which Hyer said is very close to capacity. How-

Healthy students, better students

■ School nurses get together to conduct student screenings

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Health concerns have long been known to affect the learning abilities of students. School nurses know that healthy students learn better than those with even minor health problems.

For this reason, the nurses of the Hereford Independent School District have banded together to complete annual health screenings — en masse.

School nurses routinely check and record data concerning students' vision, hearing, dental, height, weight and head and scalp problems. Normally, this process takes each campus nurse weeks to complete, with each nurse completing each step and recording pertinent information.

> "We detect a lot of sore throats and ear infections or even hearing problems that are still in the early stages."
> Kathy Whipple

This year, though, the nurses converged on each of the campuses for one day each and used assembly line methods to complete health screenings in record time.

The only campus left is Hereford High School and the nurses will meet Tuesday to complete the task.

"This way, we will have everybody screened before Thanksgiving," Shirley School nurse Mary Ann Warren said. "They all have to be screened within 120 days of registration. This just gets the job done quickly with as little disruption as possible."

During these screenings, nurses commonly find a number of health problems which can affect the students' learning. Problems such as sore throats and ear infections if left unattended can cause students to miss school and cause more problems.

"We detect a lot of sore throats and ear infections or even hearing problems that are still in the early stages," Bluebonnet nurse Kathy Whipple said.

The annual health screenings help detect problems other than hearing and vision.

"We can find kids with eat-

Covenant sets coat drive

Covenant Family Healthcare Center of Hereford will conduct a community-wide coat drive Nov. 22-Dec. 15.

Covenant Family Healthcare Center, 125 W. Park Ave., will serve as the drop off site for the donated coats. The Deaf Smith County chapter of the American Red Cross and Guadalupe Economic Services will be the recipients of the coats donated this year.

Each coat will be cleaned free of charge by Custom Clearners. The drive will accept men's, women's, and children's coats of all shapes and sizes.

Covenant Family Healthcare Center of Hereford is part of a primary network in24 communities that Covenant Health System is developing throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Business mixer scheduled

All local businesses are invited to join together for Hereford's Chamber of Commerce annual Business Mixer at 5 p.m. Nov. 18 in Sugarland Mall, 400 N. 25 Mile Ave.

Sponsors for the mixer are Stevens Chevrolet and Choice Directories. There will be plenty of snack entrees.

Everyone is encouraged to bring plenty of business cards to give out to others and also to register for a Hereford Bucks drawing. The only way to register for the drawing is with a business card.

This will be a mix-and-mingle affair and will give local people the opportunity to exchange fellowship and share ideas.

Coulter faces hearing

■ Former city resident is accused of being part of a multi-state pyramid plot

By Donald M. Cooper
Hereford Brand Managing Editor

A hearing involving a former Hereford businessman accused of involvement in a pyramid scheme has been set for Dec. 13 in a Dallas federal court.

Robert A. Brunig, trial attorney for the Securities Exchange Commission Dallas Division, said the hearing is a status conference, which "is mostly see where everything is in the case."

The SEC's attempt to collect assets from Gene Coulter, formerly of Hereford, and several other individuals in connection with a scheme to bilk more than 100 investors out of more than $14 million is taking considerable time, Brunig said.

A receiver appointed by the federal judge overseeing the case has been collecting assets, but the progress has been slow.

The agency's efforts have been focused primarily on Florida, where apparently the bulk of the assets are located.

Earlier this year, one of the defendants, Earl D. McKinney of Minnesota, delayed in responding to the court order to provide information about various assets. The man later was arrested on a bench warrant after failing to appear in court as scheduled.

The court-appointed receiver seized about $1.7 million in cash and a variety of other assets, including a $500,000 airplane, in Florida, and an additional $1.2 million in the state also was targeted for seizure.

The receiver has seized cars, boats and cash in the Houston area, as well as an $800,000 residence and other property in Minnesota.

The receiver also has been involved in negotiations with some of the principals in the case, Brunig said.

In March, a U.S. district court in Dallas granted the SEC request for a permanent injunction against Coulter, 62, now of Grapevine, and the others involved in what the SEC described as a pyramid scheme.

The federal suit was filed Nov. 18, 1998, in U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas.

The litigation names several investment partnerships and individuals, including Coulter; Quentin Hix, 50, of Dallas; Carolyn Don Hicks, 63, of Sulphur Springs; Carl LaDane Weaver, 46, of Blossom; and Robert Cord, 44, of Seabrook;

Also, Steven C. Roberts; Raymond G. Parr; Willard Vearl Smith; and McKinney.

The complaint states Cord also is known as Robert F. Schoonover Jr.

According to the SEC complaint, the individuals and companies were "involved in the fraudulent sales of interests in a succession of nonexistent prime bank trading programs."

The SEC claims these sales involved more than $14 million from investors in Texas and 17 other states.

When it filed the complaint, the SEC requested the court to freeze the defendants' assets. The request was granted, and the court also ordered all defendants to provide a full accounting for the investment funds and appointed a receiver to control the assets.

The permanent injunction also continues the those orders.

The companies involved in the complaint are listed as:

- Funding Resource Group;
- MVP Network Inc., also known as MVP Network (Trust);
- FMCI Trust;
- Funders Marketing Co. Inc.;
- Fortune Investments Ltd.; Winterhawk West Indies Ltd.

The SEC contends the defendants "raised $14 million by telling investors that these programs were successful, that their funds were completely secured by guarantees issued by banks or insurance companies, and that the investments would generate returns between 6 percent and 18 percent per month."

However, the SEC claims the trading programs didn't exist and there were no security guarantees.

Also, the SEC charged "these defendants used most of the investor funds for their own benefit and the benefit of the relief defendants, Howe Financial Trust and Treds Financial Trust, and for payments to other investors."

Coulter formerly was agency manager of Texas Farm Bureau in Hereford. He served in that position for about 10 years before leaving the firm in 1983 to being a private insurance venture in central Texas.

House shifts focus to other budget fights

WASHINGTON (AP) — With passage of foreign aid legislation moving Congress closer to completing work on the government's spending bills, budget negotiators are trying to resolve remaining disputes with the White House over abortion and other issues.

Even with three spending bills yet to be resolved, Republicans were claiming victory in their drive to shrink government and balance the budget without touching Social Security surpluses.

"As we close out our budget negotiations with the president, we will keep our promise" to balance the government's books, House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bill Young, R-Fla., said today in the GOP's weekly radio address.

"The president says we don't distribute federal funding the right way," Young said. "We say it's better to provide the money directly to our local communities, not through a bloated federal bureaucracy."

But House Democrats weren't so optimistic, saying that even the foreign aid bill Congress passed Friday contained loose ends.

"The child is in bed, but he is not yet asleep," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis.

Congressional and White House staffs expected to work through the weekend on outstanding issues, buoyed by Congress' step forward Friday that increased the chances of finishing the annual process next week, more than a month after the new fiscal year began Oct. 1.

ing disorders by looking at their height and weight and also their teeth," nurse Karen Fangman said.

Nurses check kindergarten students closely for muscle balance in the eyes, sometimes called lazy eye. Third-grade students are checked for color blindness and fifth- and eighth-grade students are checked for scoliosis — curvature of the spine.

All the screenings are based on state-specified growth and development schedules and all the nurses are certified to perform the screenings.

Another portion of the health screenings includes checking students for head lice.

"It's easier to get control of the lice problem if we catch it early on," Fangman said. "It gets worse at different times of the year."

This year, the nurses have a new weapon in the battle of head lice — a special electronic comb that whistles until it detects a bug or a nit. This, too, can help in early detection – before the bug populations get out of control.

Nurses screen the students and those who fail any portion are then rechecked a few days later to see if there is actually a problem or if the student was just having an off day.

Should the student fail the test a second time, the nurse tries to communicate with a parent.

"Students benefit the most from these early screenings," Warren said. "Sometimes if the family needs help with glasses or something else, we can get these kids the help they need. Funding for that is usually better earlier in the year."

"More than anything, these screenings let us see each child and evaluate them," Fangman said. "We provide a valuable service to the community, having nurses on each campus who complete the screenings and follow through."

ever, the cooperative is working to expand the capacity at its central office in Friona, where the ISP modems are established.

"We're running more lines and they're been dedicated to the Internet. ... It's a priority for us. Right now, from about six o'clock to 11 o'clock is our busiest time.

"We're aware of it and we're doing what we can to handle it. It can be frustrating, believe me, I know. I needed to get on the Internet really, really bad and I had to dial and dial until I finally got in," he said.

Although the hours have been long, Hyer said he enjoys his job because of the challenge of learning something new.

"Every day's something different," he said. "It has been a blast."

Hyer, who is divorced, is the father of two children, a 10-year-old son, T.A., and an 8-year-old daughter, Kimberly.

Mr. and Mrs. Guadalupe Villarreal

Local couple observes wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Guadalupe Villarreal of Hereford will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary on Nov. 6.

Villarreal, originally of Edinburg, and the former Norma Longoria, of McAllen, were married on Nov. 6, 1959, in Hereford.

The couple has three children, Diana Garcia of Albuquerque, N.M., Saul Villarreal of Dallas and Jennifer Villarreal of Hereford.

Mr. Villarreal works as a semi-truck driver for Purina Mill Industries. Both are members of the Templo Calvario Assembly of God.

The couple plans to take a weekend trip to celebrate their anniversary.

Microsoft ruled to be monopoly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge who declared Microsoft Corp. a monopoly dropped powerful hints he may have harsh punishment in mind for the software giant.

Microsoft founder Bill Gates sent signals of his own after Friday's ruling, hinting he is more willing to negotiate with government lawyers who have fought an 18-month antitrust battle to prove the company holds illegal power over its competitors and harms consumers in the process.

"Most harmful of all is the message that Microsoft's actions have conveyed to every enterprise with the potential to innovate in the computer industry," U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson concluded.

In 207 pages of findings tilted heavily toward the government's view, Jackson said Microsoft has "demonstrated that it will use its prodigious market power and immense profits to harm any firm that insists on pursuing initiatives that could intensify competition against one of Microsoft's core products."

The judge used other blunt terms — calling one of Microsoft's key legal arguments "specious," for example — but stopped short of saying Microsoft behaved illegally.

Jackson cited Microsoft abuses of computer firms Netscape, IBM, Compaq, Intel and others.

"Microsoft's past success in hurting such companies and stifling innovation deters investment in technologies and businesses that exhibit the potential to threaten Microsoft," he wrote.

The result, he said, "is that some innovations that would truly benefit consumers never occur for the sole reason that they do not coincide with Microsoft's self-interest."

The "findings of fact" are a preliminary step toward a final judgment in the case. That decision, which may come by yearend, could lead to sanctions as serious as the breakup of Microsoft and a reshaping of the multibillion-dollar high-technology industry.

Other possibilities include forcing Microsoft to allow rivals to sell their own versions of its Windows operating system; requiring Microsoft to incorporate rival products in Windows; or barring Microsoft from selling Windows at lower prices to favored computer makers.

Quiz hints Bush should study

By Ron Fournier
The Associated Press

ANALYSIS

Should a presidential candidate be required to know the heads of Pakistan, India, Taiwan and Chechnya? Maybe so, maybe not. This much is certain: The way George W. Bush handled his pop quiz on foreign policy suggests he's still not ready for the tests ahead.

"Wait. Wait. Is this 50 questions?" a flustered Bush asked the Boston television reporter who posed four surprise questions. The Republican frontrunner got one name right, admitted he didn't know the other three, and fumbled on the crisis in Pakistan.

And he looked badly doing it, glaring off camera after dressing down the interviewer with a convoluted rebuke — his jaw clenched in anger or frustration.

The episode is unlikely to damage Bush's sky-high polls numbers or leave a long-lasting impact. But it does suggest that the two-term Texas governor has an Achilles' heel: Unexpected questions that lead to embarrassing answers, fueling charges that he is not ready to be president.

"If Bush's rap is going to be that he is weak on foreign policy — not that foreign policy matters to voters —this just adds to the buzz," said Republican consultant Tony Fabrizio, who worked for Elizabeth Dole's failed presidential campaign.

Bush should have been prepared for the sneak attack.

The interviewer, Andy Hiller of WHDH-TV, is known for asking aggressive questions and relishes his role of provocateur. Bush was not warned because his aides in Texas didn't know about Hiller's reputation and were not alerted by their Boston team.

However, the Austin camp had been preparing for this kind of confrontation since the spring, when a few foreign policy gaffes became fodder for Jay Leno and David Letterman. Bush called Greeks "Grecians," Kosovars "Kosovoians" and mistook Slovakia for Slovenia.

Knowing somebody would try to trip him up, Bush was prepared with a reply to any question he couldn't answer. Aides say it went something like this: "Americans don't expect their presidential candidates to be trivia experts; they want a leader who has a clear vision for America's future."

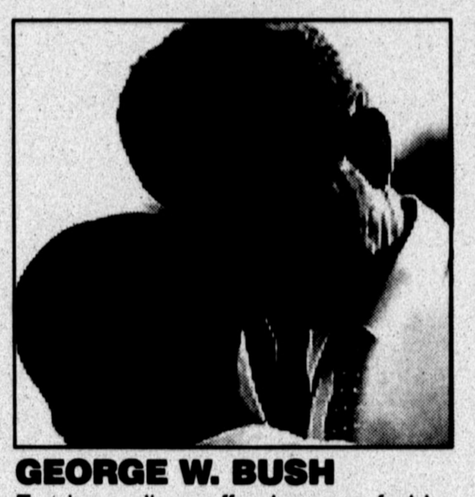
When it came time to deliver, Bush failed.

He let Hiller get under his skin, asking the interviewer to name the foreign minister of Mexico. When Hiller drew a blank, Bush launched into a pale imitation of the well-rehearsed reply.

"What I'm suggesting to you is, if you can't name the foreign minister of Mexico, therefore, you know, you're not capable of what you do. But the truth of the matter is you are, whether you can or not," Bush said.

He also said the president "has to have a vision for the world," but the damage was already done. Clinton rubbed salt in the wounds by telling reporters Friday that knowing names is not as important as "knowing what America should look like."

Spokeswoman Karen Hughes said she was pleased with her boss' performance — "You saw a leader who was even keel." Others in Bush's camp said the governor is still learning to adapt to the change from Texas, where he was comfortable with the state's issues and press corps.



GEORGE W. BUSH
Foreign policy gaffes become fodder for Jay Leno and David Letterman.

One adviser said Bush got miffed at Hiller, and lost his train of thought.

Republican officials not associated with the campaign said Bush shouldn't be faulted for not knowing the answers, but he should have been prepared to handle the situation better.

"This is a lesson that every good campaign learns," said Ari Fleischer, who also worked for Dole. "It's part of a healthy process where a nominee becomes battle-tested for all eventualities."

Reaction among Democrats was mixed.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, former National Security adviser under President Carter, said he could have answered only two of Hiller's questions. "Bush fumbled and stumbled, but quite honestly I don't think that anybody would think it is significant," he said.

Democratic presidential candidate Bill Bradley said the questions were "a little out of left field."

Bradley's rival, Vice President Al Gore, was less forgiving, noting that Bush said the Pakistani general who seized control in a coup had brought stability to the region. Bush also said the general has "just been elected," but quickly corrected himself.

There is a threat that Bush will join legions of other candidates who developed unwanted reputations, exaggerated by the media and late-night television comics. Accurate or not, the perceptions harden with every episode that fits their political myths.

Gerald Ford is a klutz.

Bob Dole is mean.

Bill Clinton is loose with the truth.

Al Gore is boring and exaggerates his record.

John McCain has a bad temper.

Dan Quayle is stupid.

Quayle, who served as vice president under Bush's father, never recovered from a spelling gaffe. Should a presidential candidate be required to spell "potato"?

Maybe so, maybe not. But he better be ready to explain why he can't.

FIRST AMENDMENT TO THE CONSITUTION

COMMENTARY

Day reflects common bond

(Editor's note: This commentary was written by Alan G. Lance Sr., national commander of the 2.8-million-member American Legion and attorney general for Idaho.)

What is it about America's veterans that brings us together on Veterans Day? Are we living in the past — attempting to capture a fleeting moment that has long since passed?

Certainly not!

What brings veterans together for Veterans Day is a bond formed in uniform. It is the bond that is entwined within our hearts and minds, which is simply stated: I shall not fail those with whom I serve.

It has been more than a quarter century since the guns fell silent in Vietnam. Longer still for Korea — and nearly a lifetime for World War II. Yet, that bond of military service, which transcends the years, compels us to come together and keep the faith with those with whom we served.

This final Veterans Day of the 20th century will include observances with the youngest generation of veterans, the men and women of the Persian Gulf War. These are Americans who sacrificed for others. These are Americans who continue to serve us in uniform. These are Americans who will gather on many more Veterans Days because they also feel that common bond.

As young American military members spend this day deployed to Kosovo, Bosnia, Iraq, at sea and in distant remote locations, it is appropriate for all of us as a nation to take the time to say, "Thank you."

Ironically, this Veterans Day comes on the heels of a disclosure by the Pentagon that a drug given our troops might cause Gulf War illness. It is tragic that it took nearly a decade to make this discovery. Without a common bond between veterans, compelling them to keep the pressure on our government, there would have been no studies. It is this common bond that compels us to continue to struggle to find answers for what is right and demand that our nation provide a strong veterans health care system for those who gave so much when called upon. As veterans we have kept our bond of service to our nation. As veterans we ask that our government keep faith with us.

That is why we gather on this Veterans Day. That is why all Americans should gather with veterans this day. For American's veterans a special group of men and women — bonded through service, committed to the future.

Who is the more annoying?

Donald Cooper

A couple of e-mails that popped into my cyber-mailbox recently had some very interesting material.

My stepdaughter in East Texas provided these marvelous insights from youngsters:

A first-grade teacher collected well known proverbs. She gave each kid in the class the first half of the proverb, and asked them to come up with the rest. Here's what the kids came up with:

Better to be safe than — to punch a 5th grader.

Strike while the — bug is close.

It's always darkest before — daylight savings time.

Never underestimate the power of — termites.

You can lead a horse to water but — how?

Don't bite the hand that— looks dirty.

No news is — impossible.

A miss is as good as a — Mr.

You can't teach an old dog — math.

If you lie down with dogs, you — will stink in the morning.

Love all, trust — me.

The pen is mightier than — the pigs.

An idle mind is — the best way to relax.

Where there is smoke, there's — pollution.

Happy is the bride who — gets all the presents.

A penny saved is — not much.

Two is company, three's — The Musketeers.

None are so blind as — Helen Keller.

Children should be seen and not — spanked or grounded.

If at first you don't succeed — get new batteries.

You get out of something what you — see pictured on the box.

When the blind lead the blind — get out of the way.

There is no fool like — Aunt Edie.

Laugh and the whole world laughs with you. Cry and — you have to blow your nose.

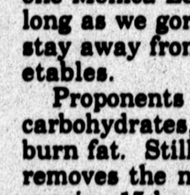
We want the truth



Mauri Montgomery

Hello, Hereford.

We Americans want the truth. "You can't handle the truth," say the dietary scientists (largely suspected to be idiots). "We're going to lie to you once each week in order to regulate your eating habits."

So far, the strategy seems to be working because deprived weight watchers are finally hearing good news — that food previously branded as toxic to good health and longevity is perfectly acceptable now.

Gluttons everywhere are smug. We've earned a reprieve from milk diet drinks, granola bars, bean sprouts and carrots.

Most recently, the skinny on eating has been that we can eat Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory and feel better for it.

Just in time for Halloween, news reports chimed with reports touting the benefits of chocolate to the intricate human body's constitution — that, like broccoli and tofu, chocolate might boost our immunity to certain cancers, heart disease, and maybe one day replace Viagra.

Add this revelation to the latest low-carbohydrate diet craze, where weight-loss experts say we can shed the equivalent of one Monica Lewinsky from our waistlines as long as we gorge on proteins and fats, and stay away from grandma's fruits and vegetables.

Proponents of the diet say that without carbohydrates, our bodies are forced to burn fat. Still, others argue that the diet removes the necessary nutrients we need to survive 15-hour per-day jobs and bolster the stamina required for weekend shopping.

In the meantime, lab mice appreciate our indecision and are generally eating better than the average American.

The dietary announcements have created another phenomenon, too — a sudden interest in network news by my 10-year-old son, who takes after his dad in the eating department.

"Dad, does that new diet say it's OK to eat pizza?"

"Only if you gnaw-off the pepperoni and cheese, and throw away the crust," I said.

"Man, there's always a catch. You mean we have to cut out crust, bread, spaghetti, cakes, cookies, pies and donut holes to lose weight?"

"Sacrifices help us build character and will-power, son. No pain, no gain. If we don't show some gumption, then we're no better off than President Clinton," I said.

He was still weighing the options, but then quickly decided he could suffer through a steady diet of baby back ribs, pepperoni slices, mozzarella cheese and chocolate bars without much real pain.

The discussion prompted me to consider the possibility of developing a few designer diets of my own, cashing in on the multi-billion dollar diet book industry.

"Cool Whip for the Soul" would hopefully be a best-seller appealing to women like my wife, who have for years been trying to hide their habit of pilfering the dessert topping before dessert is even conceived. Research would show that consumers who ate nothing but Cool Whip for three months would eventually be sickened by the sight of the product, and eventually shrink to a size one petite.

While enjoying that book's quick success, I would then begin to write my second widely-anticipated hit, "The Whole Lotta Enchilada." The book would turn conventional caloric theory on its heels. It would describe how an independent scientific study, conducted at the University of Juarez, confirmed what many Mexican food afficionados had guessed long ago — jalapenos force calories and cholesterol to run for the border before they can take up residence.

I would then finish the trilogy with a book designed for those extremists who want to go the distance. The book, entitled "I Don't Know Where It Has All Gandhi," would rediscover the myths about fad diets and the eat-everything-but-the-kitchen-sink weight-loss plans.

As they delved deeper through the self-help diet manual, readers would be forced to swallow the age-old axiom that starvation is the quickest way to godliness.

It wouldn't sell well. Most of us are comfortable being couch potatoes.

Critics would surely pan the book, declaring it too unpalatable for our robust society.

And an inevitable boycott of the book by consumers would undoubtedly be mirrored, in part, by my own son's prevailing culinary attitudes.

"Dad, I want the truth," he would say.

"You want me to tell you it's OK eat to the whole pizza, don't you?"

"Yeah, and with a little room left over for the pies, cookies and donut holes, too."

McCain's temper becomes issue

Walter R. Mears
The Associated Press

Don't get mad, the saying goes, get even. Sen. John McCain has been known to do both. Now his temper is becoming a topic in the Republican presidential campaign.

McCain is not the first sometimes angry man to run for the White House. Or to get there.

At this point, McCain's temper can hardly be called an issue, and it isn't likely to become one unless there is an outburst of anger in the glare of the campaign. McCain certainly knows that.

For evidence, there's the case of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, whose fierce temper erupted in the 1972 New Hampshire campaign, when he either cried or, as he said, "choked up over my anger" in denouncing a column critical of his wife. It was a landmark episode in his fall from Democratic leader to loser.

McCain is trying to deflect temper talk by casting himself as the reformer, angered at waste and injustice.

It fits a candidate running against the system in which he serves, a tactic that irks, even angers, Senate colleagues and campaign rivals. "Sen. McCain really offended most of us," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, who is both. "In his zeal to talk straight, he's talked rotten."

Hatch said he resents anyone implying that there's an appearance of corruption in Congress.

That's a reference to McCain's assertion that the campaign finance system he wants reformed has corrupted Congress.

"I haven't won Miss Congeniality every year in the U.S. Senate," McCain says, a sure laugh line in his standard campaign speech. "I've missed a couple of years."

That is McCain the national politician, tackling the establishment he contends is beholden to special interests. He is breezy, bantering, open to questions. It's a style that made him popular on the Washington circuit, a constantly quotable senator, long before he ran for president.

His feisty ways in the Senate have led to run-ins with at least a half dozen of his colleagues, once in a joint appearance with a Democrat on CNN, for which McCain apologized on camera. Washingtonian Magazine headlined a 1997 piece on McCain "Senator Hothead."

No one is calling him Candidate Hothead. But he does not suffer Senate slights lightly. In debate on an airport improvement bill a month ago, Sen. Peter Fitzgerald, R-Ill., mentioned McCain's campaign was a distraction.

JOHN McCAIN
"I haven't won Miss Congeniality every year in the U.S. Senate. I've missed a couple of years."

McCain interrupted. "It has nothing to do with any presidential campaign or anything else," he said. "The senator should know that and correct the record."

The airport legislation showed another side of McCain's style, the get even side. McCain, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, demanded more flights in and out of Reagan National Airport in Washington, including long range service beyond the limits that now apply. He said he was trying to promote competition. The changes would permit flights to Phoenix, a plus for America West Airlines, based there.

When that was blocked in 1998, McCain used his position to effectively freeze $211 million in construction funds for Washington area airports. The added flights are being approved this year, over local opposition.

McCain's temper became a campaign item after Arizona Gov. Jane Hull, who has endorsed front-running Gov. George W. Bush, told The New York Times she's experienced it, and that he "has to keep control." McCain said that the Bush campaign was behind the story, attacking because he is gaining on the leader. The Bush camp denied it.

McCain

Then The Arizona Republic published an editorial saying that McCain has a volcanic temper, questioning whether he has the temperament to be president, and saying it is time for the rest of the nation to know him as they do at home.

McCain is trying to present a far different image. "Do I insult anybody or fly off the handle or anything like that?" he said. "No, I don't." There is evidence that he has in the past. But not now.

"I have been — gotten angry at my contemporaries," McCain said in an ABC interview on Thursday. "I've got staff who have been with me for 10, 15, 18 years and friends who have worked with me for even longer. And I don't think they would agree with the assessment of The Arizona Republic."

Political tempers do tend to be short-fused. President Clinton's sometimes shows. Richard M. Nixon raged on the White House tapes. Even the affable George McGovern got fed up near the end of the 1972 campaign, when he told a heckling woman to kiss his rear end, although he didn't put it so politely.

In his family memoir, "Faith of My Fathers," McCain tells of his "outsized temper" as a young child. "When I got angry, I held my breath until I blacked out," he writes.

The cure for tantrums: His parents put him into a tub of cold water.

"Eventually," he said, "I achieved a satisfactory (if only temporary) control over my emotions."

It is being tested, more than 60 years later.

Walter R. Mears, vice president and columnist for The Associated Press, has reported on Washington and national politics for more than 30 years.

Y2K fears seem to be easing

John Cunniff
Associated Press

The decision appears to have been made, and it is that a society ingenious enough to create the computer is capable of avoiding disaster because of a few ominous zeroes.

You can tell that the decision has been made by the way people act. Consumers are spending, investors investing, and corporations completing plans for even bigger sales and revenue in 2000.

In short, as Y2K approaches, the vague but intense concerns of earlier this year, such as the fear of economic collapse, seem to have dissolved into mere concern about disruptions and irritations.

As most now understand, if only superficially, Y2K involves the ability of computers to realize we are passing from 1999 to the year 2000, not to 1900.

Maybe no decision was involved at all, just a growing sense of reassurance that the $50 billion spent by businesses and the $8.34 billion by government was enough to fix the tiny but massive defect.

True, airline reservations for New Year's week are said to be down, some families are hoarding food and water, and banks are ready for cash withdrawals, but fears of cascading disruptions are fading.

Still, opportunists will exploit the days before year's end with terror tales and rumors, and amulets, tokens, souvenirs, insurance policies and final testaments. Entrepreneurship will be alive and well.

Most likely there'll be some disruptions, even serious, but more localized rather than regional, and very unlikely on a national scale. That is, speaking domestically.

Overseas, it may be a different matter, and since we now have a global economy, certain foreign breakdowns could spread beyond national boundaries.

Still, reassurance comes from government and business: The Senate's Y2K panel, the Federal Reserve Board, Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the Pentagon, and telecommunications and financial industries, among others.

Of course, the major question involved in all such reports of Y2K readiness is to what degree these reports reflect the true situation or are designed to quell public doubts while final preparations continue.

For example, in an Oct. 15 letter to House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Bill Archer, R-Texas, Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Charles Rossotti expresses confidence his agency will be ready. But he conceded, "We do have some trouble spots in our effort."

Americans may be placing more faith in their economy than in anything else.

Their faith is in companies that produced the Internet Age and that seemingly can overcome any obstacle; in the strength of their incomes and ability to spend; and in an economic advance that has trampled for most of a decade the negative expectations.

That in a sense is like saying, we've faced more threatening situations and come through, so why shouldn't we just overwhelm the enemy again.

Dear Editor:

On Oct. 25, 1999, the Moovies 6 manager Mary Hamby and her staff of workers sponsored a canned food drive for the benefit of the Hereford Food Pantry. It was a very successful drive because the people of Hereford responded in their usual enthusiastic way and supported it.

The shelves of the Food Pantry are once more stocked and we are able to assist families that need a little extra help to have nourishing food to eat.

MY DEAREST FRIEND
Dedicated to Mary Lou Garcia
(Maggie Vasquez)

My dearest friend, Mary Lou,
Why did you have to leave me so soon? I didn't know what
I had 'til you were gone.

I know that you would want me to be strong. I know that I will never again, have a friend like you were all the way to the end.

LOVE THAT NEVER ENDS
To Nathan on His 21st Birthday
(Kari Lisa Martin)

Rainbow colors made brand new across the sky a promise to fill the earth up with joy when a precious child was born, a boy.

Far from heaven is this earth,
yet there is a promise in new birth,
for into this world, of cherished worth,
was a son who was given to reclaim our hurts,
to a soul that has known the hardship
of many tears
a son was born to bring new joy across the years.

The rainbow shines once again,
May his new life begin for he brought joy just as a promise of rainbow's end,
and blessings upon us.

Look into the deep night sky.
Look into my child's eyes.
There is a place that does not lie,
a mother's heart and her child's cry.
The rainbow ends for we walk near it.
In a year of goodness may we see it.
Look at where the rainbow begins.
Look deeply into love that never ends.
I love you, Nathan.

LIMERICKS
(Margaret Schultz)

A COLLIE'S TONGUE
Out in front of a lawn by the trail,
A guy showed a big collie for sale.
I quizzed with a shout,
"Why does his tongue hang out?"
"It's so that he can balance his tail."

SOAP FOR A ROPE
With the witness, a judge on a jog
Barked out, "I see a spitz in the fog."
"My wife traded a rope
For a peck of canine soap.
Therefore, we had to get a dog."

CRACKED AND TRACKED
In the country, a rustic agog
With his car, motored over a log.
Because the spark plugs cracked,
The hayseeds wished him tracked
To the bank with his bronc and his dog."

SOUNDS OF A HORN
In the outlet, a lad with an owl.
Asked for a motor horn with a dowel.
The corner dealer asked,
"Must it come with a blast?"
"No, just sounds of a snarl and a growl."

SOUNDS FOR ROCK
In the diner, a cairn by the clock
Leaped on steel pots and pans and a wok.
Six people with a prance
Edged to the floor for a dance.
They said that the sounds were for a rock.

WTAMU to honor former professor

Special to The Brand

CANYON — A musical fixture at West Texas A&M University will be honored during a special tribute beginning at 3 p.m. Nov. 14 at Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall on the WTAMU campus.

The program honors Royal L. Brantley, who composed a wide array of music during his 30-year tenure at WTAMU.

"This will be a unique opportunity for the community to hear the music of Royal L. Brantley," Dr. Joe Ella Cansler, program coordinator and assistant music professor, said. "He is one of America's hidden treasures. He wrote some of he most beautiful pieces that have ever been published."

Brantley, WTAMU professor emeritus, was the head of the voice area at the university from 1953 until 1984. While working at WTAMU and since his retirement, Brantley has written some 200 pieces, most of which have never been published.

"He is one of our own artist composers," Cansler said. "He wrote because he loved it."

Cansler designed the tribute, "An American Treasure: The Vocal Music of Royal L. Brantley," to include the early, middle and late stages of Brantley's career as well as the different styles, such as opera, cantata, art songs and chamber music.

"Somehow late at night, in the wee hours of the morning, snatches between other duties and holidays, I found time to compose a considerable amount of music," Brantley said.

Cansler; James Gardner, director of music at St. Thomas Catholic Church in Amarillo and a former WTAMU instructor; Dr. Robert Krause, WTAMU professor of music; and Perri Zimmerman, WTAMU music instructor, will perform the collection of pieces.

Cansler's study of Brantley's work led to her doctoral dissertation on the subject.

"There are so many wonderful pieces in his repertoire," Cansler said. "He would sometimes write something special for a student's senior recital, or he might write about an event in his own family."

His music has been performed in recitals, churches and in theater. Cansler has had some of Brantley's works published.

Cansler attributes the lack of published works to Brantley's unassuming nature.

"He is a very humble writer, and a career in composition at that time and in this geographical area was hard to establish," Cansler said.

Chiropractic Q & A

Q: When I move my head from side to side I hear my neck "crack." It doesn't hurt but it is loud. Should I be worried about this?

A: The sound you are hearing is called "cavitation." This is caused by gasses in the fluid between joints being released by a sudden change in pressure on the fluid. This can occur naturally and be of no concern, as it does when you receive a chiropractic adjustment. However, excessive popping of joints can also be a sign of a problem which may need attention. Additional causes of excessive popping are overstretched ligaments, arthritis, or a locking together of the vertebra (also known as a "subluxation"). If the popping continues or causes pain, you should see your chiropractor to determine the cause of the problem.

We accept assignments on Medicare & Medicaid & most insurance carriers.

Run, Run, Run — Kyle Artho runs away from the pack of Longhorns for positive yardage gain. Artho only gained 31 yards, but led the team in yards rushing as the Whitefaces win the District 3-4A championship. Whitefaces, Longhorns get wild start, but Hereford settles down and denies Amarillo Caprock a playoff spot, 52-21

By Yuri Soto
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Fifty-nine seconds.

That's all it took for the Hereford Whitefaces and the Amarillo Caprock Longhorns to score the first 21 points of the ball game.

The beginning may have resembled a six-man football game, but in the end, Hereford blew away Caprock 52-21.

The victory assured Hereford of its first outright district title since 1992.

But it came at a bitter price.

Two key Hereford players went down to injuries. L.J. Vallejo was injured after making an interception at the Caprock 28 and returning it to the Herd 20 in the first quarter. Andrew Ramirez suffered a hip-pointer after a running play, which also happened in the first stanza.

Vallejo's and Ramirez's returns are questionable.

"It was a really good victory for us, but we can't really enjoy celebrating it," quarterback Cody Hodges said. "We got to bounce up and get read for Plainview."

On the opening kickoff, L.J. Vallejo returned the ball 96 yards for the first score of the game. The Whitefaces led 6-0 after Rafael Campos missed the extra-point kick.

After a kickoff by Hereford went toward the end zone for a touchback, the Longhorns took over from their 20-yard line.

Their first play from scrimmage was a short six-yard pass from Tanner Craven to Jay Fields, who ran the ball the next 74 yards down the sideline to end zone, completing a 80-yard touchdown play. Caprock had a brief 7-6 lead with 11:18 left in the first quarter.

Hereford then returned the ball to their own 39 on the ensuing kickoff. On the next play, Cody Hodges threw a screen pass to the left side to Vallejo, and then evaded Caprock tacklers and outran them all, taking the ball 71 yards for a touchdown pass with 11:01 left in the first quarter.

The completed the 59 seconds of excitement the game had to offer.

"Coach (Yenzer) told us that we were going to air it out and I am glad he said that," Cody Hodges said. "I guess he wanted to tune up the shotgun offense for the playoffs and we did. We spread the ball to a lot of people and every receiver that played caught a pass."

Then comes the rest of the boring 23 minutes of the football game.

Two more steps to Austin

Lady Whitefaces take away momentum from Pampa and dominate regional quarterfinal match, 15-6, 15-1

By Yuri Soto
Hereford Brand Sports Editor

AMARILLO — The Lady Harvesters of Pampa are known as late bloomers.

They succeed in the latter part of matches.

But against the Lady Whitefaces of Hereford, they picked up little momentum and couldn't get anything going as they were eliminated by Hereford 15-6, 15-1 in the regional quarterfinal round Friday at Amarillo High School.

"I really felt that Pampa never got rolling," Hereford coach Brenda Kitten said. "A lot of it had to do with our kids attacking aggressively."

Two set errors, a block error, three kill errors by Destiny Engel and Tandy Morton and a kill by Tori Walker gave Hereford a commanding 6-0 lead in game one.

But Pampa came back with some momentum, the only of its type for the Lady Harvesters.

Kills by Tandi Morton, a lift error by Catherine Beville, a kill error by Walker and a dig ace from Chelsea McCullough closed up the score at 6-5 in the first game.

But Hereford never let them get any more momentum.

Two kills by Toni Eicke, a kill each from Audra Witkowski, Ashley Fangman and Michelle Bernhardt put the Lady Whitefaces up big at 11-5.

"We had to fight back and we wanted it more," Bernhardt said. "We just fought and didn't let them get their momentum going."

But Morton scored for Pampa on a kill and cut Hereford's lead to five.

But that's all she wrote for Pampa in game one. A net violation by Pampa, two kills by Walker and a kill by Bernhardt finished off the Lady Harvesters in the first stanza.

"We've been working a lot in practice with our passes and it showed tonight," Witkowski said, who finished with two kills. "We let some weapons out on the court."

Hereford pulled out an 8-0 lead in the second game in this order of scoring: two net errors, a set error, a Bernhardt kill, two a kill and set error on Pampa, a kill by Fangman, a kill by Walker and a kill error by Pampa's Lindsey Hampton.

Pampa would manage to get on board thanks to an Eicke kill error. But that was it for Pampa, as Hereford blew them off the rest of the way.

"They're such a scary team that we wanted that little momentum break to be the difference," Kitten said. "Any little thing could have made a difference. We're thrilled to death to get out of this match with this kind of a victory."

A kill error by Hampton, a set error by Anne Gaddis, a service ace by Walker and an Eicke kill put Hereford up 12-1.

A set error and kill error by Gaddis put Hereford up 14-1, setting up Walker's service ace and the final point.

Biologists rate Texas deer hunting outlook as "best in years"

The Sportsman's Den

By Jim Steiert

Ranges, pastures and ponds remain dry across much of Texas, but despite this fact the outlook for deer hunting this season is the "best in years" and prospects for quail hunting are termed the best since the "very good year" of 1992.

Butch Young, deer program director with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department says this will be an excellent deer season both for antler growth and sheer numbers of deer due to an excellent fawn crop in the Edwards Plateau and South Texas.

In the Panhandle, the white-tailed deer season will run November 20 through December 5 in six counties, and the mule deer season will run concurrently, except for six South Plains counties, where it spans November 20-24.

Elsewhere in the state, the general season on whitetails is November 6-January 2 in North Texas, and November 13-January 16 in South Texas.

Texas is home to 4 million white-tailed deer and the average annual harvest over the past decade has totaled 431,562 deer taken by 576,857 hunters. Texas ranks tops in the nation in economic impact from deer hunting at $2.2 billion, according to the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, using 1996 national survey data.

The top two counties in the state for whitetail harvest last season were Llano, where 14,478 hunters took 14,365 deer, and Gillespie, where 16,334 hunters bagged 11,609 whitetails.

The Panhandle deer crop should be decent thanks to timely summer rains that made good nutrition available to both mule deer and whitetails.

Timely spring rains across the Edwards Plateau, into the Cross Timbers and on into the Trans-Pecos prompted ideal conditions during the antler development period, and some good racks should be seen by hunters this season.

In the rain-short Edwards Plateau, antler development is expected to be average to above-average, but deer body condition will be only fair, to poor. Biologist Max Traweek of Kerrville urges sportsmen to take an adequate number of animals including antlerless deer, and to take them early to relieve pressure on dry ranges.

The Post Oak Savannah in East Texas is dry as well, and deer sporting average to above-average antlers, but in poor body condition are expected to respond well to feeders and food plots in that region.

Hurricane Bret soaked South Texas and range conditions there are excellent going into deer season. Mast, fruits and browse are bountiful, and deer are in excellent body condition in this region. Antler development for mature bucks should be above average--but hunting may be more difficult since deer won't have to move much to find food.

In the Trans-Pecos, hunters can expect to see some quality-antlered whitetails and mule deer, thanks to timely moisture and forb growth, and the outlook is for an average or slightly above-average season.

Young says that in some areas of Texas with traditionally large whitetail populations, hunters will need to harvest some of the big, older does in order to make room for the crop of young deer born under the good conditions this spring.

As with deer, favorable spring and summer conditions in South Texas, the Trans-Pecos and the Gulf Prairies set the stage for good quail hunting this season.

Prospects are for at least some decent hunting on the Rolling and Southern High Plains this go-round, but conditions weren't as favorable in the Rolling Plains and Edwards Plateau, where quail numbers remain below the long-term average. However, some areas within these regions that have been under proper range management are holding average numbers of birds.

Biologists say local quail production is often dictated primarily by ranch management decisions that impact on the habitat available.

Quail season got underway statewide on October 30 and continues through February 27. Daily bag limit is 15, with 45 in possession. Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset.

Upland and big game hunters aren't the only sportsmen being impacted by rainfall or the lack of it. In some areas of Texas, what were prospects for an excellent duck and goose season are in doubt now, since little or no rainfall has been received in several months in some key wintering areas. Some duck hunters along the Texas/Oklahoma border in North Texas say their hunting ponds are currently dry, and ducks aren't much on hanging around where it's dry.

Locally, excellent numbers of ducks are already on-hand, sandhill cranes have been arriving for a couple of weeks, and the initial flights of Canada and snow geese have begun to appear.

We should be in shape to winter a good number of waterfowl and cranes hereabouts for the second consecutive year.

STILL TIME TO COMMENT ON SNOW GOOSE ISSUES

The scoping process by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service concerning issues of snow goose management is still underway this month. The Service is preparing an Environmental Impact Statement that considers management alternatives to address population expansion of lesser snow geese, Ross' geese, and greater snow geese. If you'd like to express your support for continuation of the special late snow goose season that allows use of electronic calling and other measures to boost the harvest of light geese, written comments on the EIS scoping can be submitted until November 22. Send them to the Chief, Office of Migratory Bird Management, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, 4401 Fairfax Drive, Suite 634, Arlington, VA 22203.

Comments may be submitted electronically to white_goose_eis@fws.gov.

Rodeo athletes to compete this weekend

Rodey Wilson will be trying to get another shot at the All-Around Cowboy title when he competes in the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association Hereford High School Rodeo competition at the Barn Church Arena in Hereford.

Wilson currently leads the boys tie-down calf roping and is in second place on the season in ribbon roping and team roping. He currently leads the All-Around Cowboy list with 120 points.

Other Hereford participants include Kip Kendrick (team roping-heeling), Jordan Satterfield (team roping-heading) and Marty Wilson (bull riding, bareback riding).

Amanda Schumacher, who's ranked second in barrel racing and fifth in pole bending, goat-tying and breakaway roping will compete this weekend. She is currently fifth in the All-Around Cowgirl points.

The rodeo competitions will continue through Sunday.

Dean to have basketball meeting Monday at Jr. High

From Staff Reports

Head basketball coach Randy Dean will be holding a parents meeting for all boys basketball players on Monday, 7 p.m., at the Hereford Junior High Gymnasium.

Things that will be discussed are insurance and schedules.

All parents are encouraged to attend.

After forcing Caprock to punt deep in their own end zone, Hereford got the ball on the 30-yard line after a 17-yard punt return by Vallejo.

Three plays later, a scrambling Cody Hodges found Cody Marsh on a seam route and ran into the end zone, completing a 17-yard touchdown pass play with 8:53 left in the first. The Whitefaces led 21-7.

"Caprock comes in and does a lot of things that we find difficult, but our defense and offense played outstanding," Hereford coach Craig Yenzer said. "They had a big play to start the game and that didn't faze on us."

Hereford could have had another score after Gilbert Hernandez recovered a fumbled punt snap at the Caprock 22. But after catching a 19-yard pass from Cody Hodges, Slade Hodges was hit hard near the goal line and Caprock recovered the ball at its own four-yard line.

"It feels like a dream," Hernandez said of the victory. "I am happy with the way we all played and we'll be going far in the playoffs.

"This game was easy, to tell you the truth," Hernandez added. "But this is going to help us get farther and farther into the playoffs."

The next score proved a little costly for the Whitefaces. Vallejo intercepted a Craven pass at the Caprock 38 and returned it to the 20, but left the game limping and his night was over.

The interception by Vallejo set up James Miller's 7-yard touchdown pass from Cody Hodges with 1:46 left in the first quarter. Hereford led 28-7.

"Hereford's got an outstanding football team," Caprock coach Ron Rogers said. "Our goal was not to let them score 100 points on us, but our kids played hard and did that in the second half."

Ramiro Zambrano replaced Vallejo at running back and responded by scoring Hereford's first rushing touchdown of the night. His 8-yard run through the left side with 8:26 left in the first half put the Whitefaces up 35-7. The pass play was set up by 19-yard pass play from Cody Hodges to Tony Lopez.

On Hereford's next series, it only took two plays for Hereford to score again. This time it was the Double H combination of Cody and Slade Hodges, who connected on a 59-yard touchdown pass play with 4:22 left in the first half. Hereford led 42-7.

"To win this, you have to have good athletes," Yenzer said. "They all sold out to get where they are and their character has been unbelievable. Whether they play football or not, that's makes them special."

Rafael Campos added a 34-yard field goal with 1:25 before halftime. Hereford now led 45-7.

"I was looking forward to get into the end zone and the ball came up behind me," Slade Hodges said. "I knew we were going to have an awesome night and there's no doubt about it. Our defense was spectacular and our offense was awesome, especially our offensive line."

In the second half, after Caprock failed on a fourth-and-8 from their own 18-yard line, the Whitefaces drove the length of the field, capping an 82-yard drive with a three-yard pass from Cody Hodges to Miller with 8:14 left in the third quarter. The Whitefaces now led 52-7.

Caprock added two more scores to make the final margin. Craven ran for a four-yard run with 8:14 left in the game.

The next score came off a Michael Lange 5-yard catch from Craven to complete the blowout.

Craven finished with 374 yards passing on 14-of-16 attempts, but was intercepted four times, once each by Vallejo, Steven Northern, Nathan Horrell and Jose Garcia.

But the blowout was forgotten for a few moments to the apparent injuries to Vallejo and Ramirez. Many of the fans had tears of joy, for the victory, and sadness, for the injuries.

"It was an accident, but I hope God is with him and this team," Cody Hodges said.

"We've been working to clean up our game all week and concentrate on the little things and I think that helped a lot," Walker said. "In the playoffs, you have to expect that momentum changes in the game very rapidly but you have to keep your composure."

Tori Walker finished with eight kills, two blocks, and five digs. Michelle Bernhardt, Ashley Fangman and Toni Eicke each added 2 kills. Witkowski had 16 assists and Catherine Beville added five digs to lead the defense.

The Lady Whitefaces now advance to the regional semifinal against this weekends' quarterfinal winner between Denton High and Saginaw Boswell, which will be 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Vernon.

"We're looking for that and we're going to use the Saturday to work on things," Witkowski said. "We hope we play hard and go all the way."

South Texas city trying to lure Cowboys

HARLINGEN (AP) — There's an excellent chance that the Dallas Cowboys' training camp will move next summer to the Rio Grande Valley, the head of the Valley's sports authority said Friday.

The Rio Grande Valley Sports Authority, as well as commissioners from Hidalgo County and the cities of McAllen and Mission will soon vote whether to approve a letter of intent from each entity confirming a commitment to host the team, Sports Authority chairman Randy Whittington said

Whittington said since the Cowboys could make a formal announcement about training camp sometime this month, the letter of intent must be formalized quickly

"I feel real good about it but they have not told us yes," Whittington said. "If they did, I'd be sitting here drinking champagne."

Whittington also asked the city and county leaders to make themselves available for a possible announcement in Dallas beginning next week, just in case.

"Everything is looking positive toward them doing that (moving to the Valley). They just haven't called and said 'We're ready to announce we're ready to sign,'" Whittington said. "It could conceivably come as early as next week ... and it might not happen at all."

The team said Friday that no final decision had been made.

"No agreement has been reached and no announcement is pending regarding the future of our training camp," Cowboys spokesman Rich Dalrymple said.

After Jerry Jones bought the team in 1989, the Cowboys left their longtime home in Thousand Oaks, Calif., and spent eight years training in Austin before going to Wichita Falls for two years.

In the Valley, the Cowboys would train at a new sports complex in the Sharyland Plantation development, a mixed commercial and residential development now under construction in southern Mission and southern McAllen.

The sports authority will meet Wednesday in Weslaco to vote on the letter of intent.

Artist in residence selected

Special to The Brand

CANYON — Mary Jane Johnson will be this year's artist in residence at West Texas A&M University.

Johnson, who was the WTAMU artist in residence last year, is considered to be a great dramatic soprano and is one of opera's premier interpreters.

Johnson, who received her master's degree from WTAMU, was discovered during the finals of the Luciano Pavarotti International Vocal Competition in 1981. The prize, a performance with Pavarotti, led her to a career that has taken her to stage and opera houses across the world.

Her career highlights include the role of Emilia Marty in Janacek's "The Makropoulos Case," which she said at the Metropolitan Opera in New York; Lady Macbeth in Verdi's "Macbeth," as well as Katarina Ismailova in Shostakovitch's "Lady Macbeth of Mtsensk," which she performed at the Opera Bastille of Paris.

WTAMU received a grant from the Harrington Foundation and the Amarillo Area Foundation to fund Johnson's artist in residency for the 1999-2000 academic year.

"The generosity of the foundations has given our students the opportunity to receive direct instruction and inspiration from an international artist," Dr. Ted Dubois, head of the Department of Music and Dance, said. "Her impact is evident in the voice program this year. The recruiting class is larger and the students are very talented."

The artist in residency program also provides opportunities for Johnson to visit area schools to enhance arts education across the Panhandle.

"Working with young people is a great way to enhance appreciation of the arts," Johnson said. "Most students enjoy music and learning about it from another perspective. We try to instill appreciation and achievement in music."

TAES research engineer gets 'Engineer of the Year' honors

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO — Thomas H. Marek, research engineer with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center here was recognized as "Engineer of the Year" by the Texas Section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers at their recent 1999 annual meeting in Corpus Christi.

The 440-member state group began the award in 1975 to recognize technical achievement and outstanding contributions to the profession. Marek was selected for his noteworthy accomplishments in irrigation water management.

Marek has distinguished himself as an outstanding research engineer, and provides additional technical support for projects of other scientists' in addition to his own, according to John Sweeten, Experiment Station resident research director here. The recipient is a registered professional engineer who holds both graduate and undergraduate degrees in agricultural engineering from Texas A&M University.

His early career focus evaluated emerging irrigation technology. His work helped producers in the region convert their high pressure sprinkler irrigation units to more conservative, low pressure systems. Later, he helped design and build the world class, large, weighing, monolithic lysimeter facility located at Bushland.

Teen violence seminar slated

Special to The Brand

AMARILLO — Free seminars on teen violence will be conducted at Amarillo College.

"Teen Violence: Saving Lives by Heeding the Warnings" will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Durrett Hall on the Washington Street Campus.

The three-hour course also will be at 9 a.m. Nov. 13 in Ordway Hall; at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 18 in Durrett Hall; and at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 8 in Durrett Hall.

Individuals who work with young people will learn how to recognize the early warning signs of trouble and how to ask the right questions. Parents, teachers, coaches, scout leaders, church workers and community leaders will learn how to intervene upon seeing the potential for violence, alcohol or drug use, depression or suicidal behavior.

Instructors will offer guidance on confrontational vs. supportive approaches, and provide referral information. The curriculum includes three parts: motivation, awareness and intervention.

Instructors are Diana Rudolph, a clinical psychologist with Northwest Texas Healthcare System, and Roberta Allen, a clinical social worker and alcohol/drug counselor. Allen also is the new director for therapeutic services for Quest Hospital.

Rudolph and Allen are the co-founders of ParentNet, a monthly support group for parents of troubled teen-agers.

The seminars are funded by a grant from the Office of the Governor. Criminal Justice Division.

For more information, contact Gay Mills at 371-5244.

Lions Club gives $1,500 to fund drive

A donation of $1,500 was presented to United Way at Wednesday's Lion's Club meeting.

United Way executive director Jamie Campbell accepted the check on behalf of the organization.

The United Way is lacking in donations to reach their $132,000 goal and Lion Club president, Mike Harris had the check in hand ready to donate and handed it off to Campbell to help enable United Way reach their goal.

Doin' a double take

"Double take at Beatrice's Boarding House,or... Things ain't always what they seem"

Mystery member of the melodrama cast is shown with those not-so-mysterious members whose zanny antics keep viewers returning to the Senior Center year after year.

Melodrama has mystery cast member

Hereford Senior Citizens Association members are offering their annual melodrama production as a traditional part of the coming Festival of Trees.

Performances will be at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 18 and Saturday, Nov. 20.

Tickets for the Thursday performance include finger foods and the melodrama, while Saturday's tickets include dinner and the melodrama.

This year's offering is titled "Double Take at Beatrice's Boarding House...or Things Ain't Always What They Seem."

Beatrice's Boarding House is in the fair-to middlin' town of Goodale. Beatrice, the young, beautiful – but somewhat long-winded – owner is in distress. If business doesn't pick up soon, the honorable establishment will have to close its doors forever.

If the poor heroine loses her abode, she and her two closest friends will find themselves on the town's streets.

Luther Swett, the cad, not only wants the boarding house, but has his eyes on the beautiful Beatrice. Can the ugliest hero in the history of melodrama save the day?

And will the changing of the boarding house to a hilarious "Broadway and Brunch" solve all the problems? Throw in a mild-mannered mortician and a cranky boarder who needs a hearing aid and you have quite a show.

The cast includes Carole McGilvary as Beatrice Goodale, Mary Dziuk as Beulah Mae Forbush, Lucy Martin and Adelaide Worthy, Earl Brokhart as Mortimer Taylor, Bill Phipps as Luther Swett, Truman Thurston as Judge Obidiah Colvin and a "mystery cast member"as Augusta Worthy.

Tickets for the melodrama can be obtained at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center of by calling 364-5681.

War memorial to be dedicated in Amarillo on Veterans Day

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary, Hereford Unit 192 met in regular session with president Troyce Hanna presiding.

Americanism chairman Ruth King called attention to the dedication of the Texas Panhandle War Memorial on Veterans Day in Amarillo. The memorial will honor all veterans living and deceased. It is located in Veterans Park in Amarillo located at the corner of Georgia St. and Interstate 27.

Hanna reported attending the 18th District Convention held at Borger. Department chairman Dorothy McMillan conducted a Leadership Workshop. Fourth division president Linda Horton presented plans of work for the year with emphasis on education scholarships, VA&R and membership. Hereford unit was presented a membership citation by 18th district president Roberta Roberts.

The Christmas Gift Shop sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary at the Amarillo VA Medical Center will be held Dec. 6-7. Members are urged to bring their contributions and gifts to the American Legion hall on Veteran's Day, Nov. 11. Call 364-1932 or 364-0211 if gifts need to be picked up or for more information.

The Annual Holiday Dinner will be held on Dec. 7 at the American Legion hall in Veterans Park at 6 p.m. All Legionaires and their families are urged to attend. A covered dish meal will be served with meat, bread and drink furnished. Members are asked to bring vegetable, salad or dessert dishes. Members are asked to bring a gift not to exceed $5 in value for the gift exchange. Legionaires bring a man gift and Auxiliary members bring a lady gift.

The charter was draped for Mrs. Ira (Pet) Ott. She has been a member for 66 years and had been honored by Hereford Unit 192 with a Life membership. She had served the unit as presidnet several times; 18th district president 1956-57. She was appointed Department Hospital Representative to the Amarillo VA Medical Center in 1958-70. She was elected Department vice-president, 4th division 1970-71. Her contributions to the community were numerous and she became a mentor for many of her friends.

Ann Landers

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a faithful reader of your column in the China Post in Taiwan. Please print my letter so we Taiwanese can express our gratitude to the people all over the world for sending rescue teams and donations to Taiwan during the worst earthquake in Taiwan's modern history. The death toll climbed to 2,300 and the aftershocks still continue. In fact, a second large quake shook Taiwan two weeks ago.

People in our country were touched by the rescue teams' efforts to help save survivors trapped in collapsed buildings. They rushed here immediately after the quake, and worked with our rescue people day and night. They shared our joy when victims were found alive, and grieved with us when the dead were discovered.

The heroic efforts of the people who came to help us earned not only the respect and gratitude of the folks of this country, but also the rest of the world. When the earthquake struck on Sept. 21, it was the first time that politically isolated Taiwan has felt warmth from the international community.

You have said you love the way your readers take care of one another. I hope our experience will encourage more countries to help their neighbors when help is needed. Those countries that sent rescue teams to Taiwan are Australia, Austria, the Czech Republic, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hungary, Israel, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, the Philippines, the Republic of Slovak, Russia, South Korea, Singapore, Spain, Switzerland, Thailand, the United States and Turkey. None of the above has diplomatic relations with Taiwan. They deserve applause. Thank you, Ann Landers. — Sung-Gong Lai from Taiwan

Dear Sung-Gong Lai: Thank you for a letter that will remind my readers worldwide that we are all brothers and sisters under the skin, and that we need one another. I am grateful to you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a control freak. He controls the money, the home, and tries to control my life. "Darren" has two grown children from a previous marriage. In the eight years we've been married, they have been to our home once. He neither calls them nor invites them for holidays. He feels it is THEIR duty to call HIM. The same with his grandchildren. We have only seen them twice in eight years.

Darren's son is getting married soon to a lovely girl. Because I want to have a relationship with his children and grandchildren, I called and offered our home for the rehearsal dinner. They want it to be simple, so I planned to have a catered meal in a tent set up on our lawn.

Here's the real problem. Darren does not want 35 people in our home using the bathrooms, nor does he want the expense of feeding these people. He also thinks 35 is too many people for a rehearsal dinner. Ann, we have a lovely home and never have visitors because Darren doesn't want to spend the money to have the carpet cleaned. He has plenty of money, but he is extremely cheap. We haven't had a vacation in the eight years we've been married because Darren won't spend a dime for pleasure.

I would like to wash my hands of this rehearsal dinner and let Darren handle it any way he likes, but I don't want to disappoint the kids. A relationship with them is important to me. I am lonely — and angry. What should I do? — Ohio Blues

Dear Ohio: Fight for the rehearsal dinner, and tell Darren you will pay to have the carpet cleaned out of the grocery money. P.S.: What are YOU getting out of this marriage? Is it worth it?

HRMC's Surgical Services...

Hereford Regional Medical Center's surgical staff realizes that surgery, no matter how minor the procedure, is a major event in a person's life. To us it is critical each patient receives high quality, personal care in a familiar setting.

After all, the best medicine should be close to home.

HRMC's Surgical Team is made up of highly trained professionals that perform both inpatient and outpatient services. Some of these services include general surgery, endoscopy and optical surgery.

Obstetrical and surgical patients can now take advantage of the new epidural services at HRMC.

Hereford Regional Medical Center's full line of surgical services allows patients to receive high quality care with the personal attention they deserve.

It also underscores our belief that the best medicine is close to home.

The couple plans to exchange wedding vows Dec. 7 in Las Vegas, Nev.

The prospective groom is the son of Pat and Deborah Smith of Dawn and Larry and Sondra Noland of Amarillo.

The bride-elect is a 1995 graduate of Panhandle High School. She currently works as a patient care specialist in the neonatal intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

The prospective groom graduated from Hereford High School in 1995 and is a self-employed cattle rancher.

Hagar honored as Alumni of the Year

Kelby D. Hagar, son of Kenneth and Shannon Hagar, son-in-law of Bill and Barbara Allen and grandson of W.P. (Hap) and Mary Kay Hagar and Reba Watson, all of Hereford, was recently honored as the 1999 Carr Scholar Alumni of the Year at Angelo State University. In ceremonies over Homecoming weekend in San Angelo, Hagar was presented with a plaque commemorating the event.

Kelby D. Hagar

Hagar received the award based on accomplishments achieved since graduating magna cum laude from Angelo State in Dec. 1991. After leaving ASU, Hagar attended Harvard Law School and graduated cum laude in June 1995.

After law school, Hagar moved to Dallas where he began work as an attorney with Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher LLP.

Recently, Hagar founded a start up Internet company in Dallas called GroceryWorks.com. This company is an online grocery provider that allows customers to order home-related products over the Internet and receive the products via home delivery. He is currently President and CEO of the company.

Hagar serves on the board of directors of the Dallas Center for Non-Profit Management and was the Chairman of the 1999 Get On Board organizational fair in Dallas. He is also an active member of the Texas and Dallas Young Lawyers Associations. Hagar and his family are also members of the Prestoncrest Church of Christ in North Dallas.

He, his wife, Brenda Hagar, and 19 month old son, Trenton reside in North Dallas.

Military Muster

Navy Petty Officer Third Class Chad M. Stephens, son of Dennis L. and Dianne Stephens of Hereford, recently returned from a six month deployment. Stephens was aboard the amphibous assault ship and Amphibious Ready Group (ARG) flagship USS Kearsarge, home ported in Norfolk, Va.

During the deployment, the USS Kearsarge assisted in the NATO peacekeeping operations in the Aegean Sea off the coast of Yugoslavia. They also assisted in the humanitarian efforts after the earthquake in Turkey.

Stephens also had the opportunity to visit ports in Israel, Italy and Spain, where Sailors from Stephens' ship had the opportunity to enjoy the local culture, sights and cuisine, as well as participate in community relations projects.

Stephens' ship and its embarked Marines present a formidable U.S. presence which can provide a rapid response in times of crisis. Sailors and Marines aboard USS Kearsarge can conduct a variety of missions from reconnaissance and amphibious assaults to evacuating civilians and providing humanitarian aid.

The 1995 graduate of Hereford High School joined the Navy in July 1995.

Thank You

To our friends, we would like to express our sincere gratitude for all the many expressions of sympathy, prayers, food, flowers and cards during the loss of our loved one, Larrey. Thanks to Rix Funeral Home, Don, Larry and Staff, who showed us such love and kindness. A special thank you to Pastor Ted who has always been such a blessing to our family.

May God Bless You All

YOUR EYES

Watch Out For UFO's

If you're working around machinery, construction, under your car, or anywhere else where there's a chance dirt, sawdust, or some other object or chemical could get into your eyes, wear safety glasses or goggles.

The best safety glasses have polycarbonate lenses, which don't break. In fact, they're made of the same material bulletproof windows are made of.

The same is true if you play a sport such as racquetball, tennis, or basketball. Protect your eyes. Don't take a chance.

DR. HAROLD W. BRIGANCE

Former resident receives award

Cynthia Hanna Shattles, Ochiltree County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences was presented the Texas Agricultural Extension Service Superior Service Award recently in College Station. She grew up in Hereford and is the daughter of Grant and Troyce Hanna.

The award was presented by Dr. Edward Hiler, Extension Director and Dr. Chester Fehlis, Deputy Director. The award is the highest recognition given to faculty and staff and was presented for the program efforts in health and wellness, child care, community leadership and 4-H and youth work.

Cynthia Shattles

Shattles conducted a comprehensive weight management and healthy lifestyles effort reaching 1,427 people in a 12-week series and a second eight-week series. During a two year period she reached 2,866 clientele with direct health education programming, 1,000 with a four part health series newsletter she wrote, 1,549 clientele with exhibits and 2,500 with informational brochures distributed by volunteers. She has also received specialized training in diabetes education and has done district training for health professionals and extensive county programming.

In partnership with agents from five surrounding counties, she has coordinated a Child Care Conference for day care providers reaching an average of 60 providers a year. She also coordinated a three part series for caring for the elderly. In community leadership she has been actively involved in Family Community Leadership (FCL) on the county, district and state level training approximately 500 leaders. She also wrote a lesson on communication which is now used as a training lesson on the state level.

The 4-H program in Ochiltree County has grown during the last six years with 200 member and 150 volunteers expanding their skills and community involvement. In partnership with the 4-H and Youth Committee and Perryton High School she has coordinated a Career Day program two times. In 1998, the program reached 566 students with 84 sessions taught by 65 different career speakers.

Cynthia graduated from Hereford High School. She received a BS degree from Texas Woman's University in Home Economics Education and an MS degree in Home Economics from Stephen F. Austin State University. She served as Assistant County Extension Agent in Van Zandt County and County Extension Agent in Upshur County prior to moving to Ochiltree County in Jan. 1993. She has one daughter, Michelle, who is a senior student at Texas Tech University. She is active in the First United Methodist Church, Perryton Rotary Club and Friendship Quilters Guild as well as numerous professional organizations.

'Buddy' Poppy Day has been proclaimed as Tuesday, Nov. 9 in Hereford. Mayor Bob Josserand is pictured above as he signs a proclamation urging all patriotic citizens to wear a "Buddy" Poppy Tuesday as mute evidence of their gratitude to all who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms we enjoy as American citizens. Members of the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 4818 observing the signing are, from left, Frankie Ruland, Marie Goheen, Imogene Sweeney, Earline Schneider and Betty Boggs.

'Buddy' Poppies are once again offered by VFW Ladies Auxiliary

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary to Roy Wederbrook Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4818 will distribute "Buddy" Poppies in Hereford on Tuesday.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars have been distributing "Buddy" Poppies since 1922. The proceeds from the annual campaign are used exclusively to assist disabled and needy veterans and the widows and children of deceased veterans.

The VFW maintains a nationwide system of Veteran's Service Officers trained to help veterans obtain "veterans benefits," and to assist in establishing disability claims. This service is provided free of charge and a portion of the cost comes from the proceeds of the VFW "Buddy" Poppy campaign.

Nearly 500,000 men, women and children donate considerable time and effort annually conducting the distribution of the "Buddy" Poppy.

VFW "Buddy" Poppies are assembled by disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the United States.

What better way to bring meaning to the VFW motto, "Honor the dead by helping the living," than by buying and wearing a VFW "Buddy" Poppy.

Dianna F. Dandridge

I watch and listen as farmers battle the ongoing problems of low prices, unfair markets and unequaled export concerns.

Earlier this year, I read numerous reports that said the consumer price of cheese and other dairy products should drop by June. I haven't seen that drop.

Milk is still nearly $3 a gallon; cottage cheese continues to push $2 for a 24-ounce carton; and cheddar cheese pushes $4 a pound.

For more than a year, we've been hearing about a world glut on meat products causing the prices to stay low.

One more time, I haven't seen those low prices being passed on to the consumers.

Talking to farmers, I realize they are not getting rich either. Figuring the cost of the crop input, labor, water, crop insurance, freight and marketing costs, it's easy to see why our nations's producers are rapidly going under.

It's a pretty fair indicator that some middleman is making a killing when consumers pay 39 cents a pound or more for a head of cabbage that the farmer sold for only 13 cents a pound.

Producers have the highest cost of everyone involved with stocking the nation's cupboards, yet they get the lowest return.

I'm afraid that doesn't add up correctly.

Manufacturers produce their goods, figure the costs of that production, sell it to a dealer at some sort of profit. The dealer then sells the product to the consumer. The consumer decides if the product is worth the dealer's profit or not.

Farmers, though, sell their product often on a losing scale, then watch as a series of middlemen each claim a larger profit. The broker, the buyer, the wholesaler, and the final retailer get a cut far above what the producer claims.

Adding to this, our exported goods, which are usually highest quality, do not bring producers top pay from the countries purchasing them. Never mind the fact that imported goods – which are produced and paid for with government subsidies — are brought in at a higher price than what our farmers receive.

Why are we paying more for imported grain, meat, produce, and other goods than we are paying our domestic producers? Why are we importing goods from countries that subsidize agricultural businesses when our own farmers are going under?

Supposedly the big-whigs who know how things work have used some sort of formula to determine X-number of tons of American grain is worth X-number of electronic components; X-number of pounds of U.S. meat is worth X-number of sweat-shop produced name brand jeans. Somehow if we purchase X-amount of another country's only product that will give that country an opportunity to purchase other goods.

I'm not an economist or a mathematician, but the algebra just doesn't add up.

United States farmers have always been the leaders in feeding, clothing, and educating the rest of the world. With each passing decade, our producers feed, clothe and educate growing numbers.

I enjoy and recognize the fact the U.S. consumers pay far less for their foodstuffs than any other nation, but the producer has to be able to make a profit.

Each year, more farmers call it quits. Each year, more family farms are merged into large conglomerates. All because the individual producer can no longer compete with imports which glut the American markets.

I don't want to see the American consumers have to pay more to feed their families, but I would like to see the American farmer get his share of the pie.

The farmers and producers should be able to grow the crops they choose to grow, knowing that the market will consume American goods before importing goods from other countries.

Like other businesses, the farmers have to take a certain amount of risk, they should also work to protect themselves in any way possible.

Bailouts won't work; subsidies won't work. Just look at the welfare system.

Farmers and producers must be able to stand on their own merit.

Maybe the government should look at it from that standpoint and make sure the domestic producers profit before others.

County farmers to receive $9.9 million emergency aid

FSA issues federal funds to growers

By Dianna F. Dandridge
Hereford Brand Staff Writer

Area farmers and producers began receiving much-needed financial help last week as the Deaf Smith County Farm Service Agency sent out $9,822,535 in federal aid.

The aid is part of an $8.7 billion emergency farm relief package (H.R. 1906) approved by Congress on Oct. 13, and signed by President Bill Clinton on Oct. 22.

"These payments are designed to make up for low commodity prices," said Ted Peabody, executive director of Deaf Smith County Farm Service Agency. "This is far from a farm welfare program."

Peabody said the financial woes of American farmers have been brought on by numerous problems, such as the collapse of the Asian market, low commodity prices and no production control. Just as the financial problems are extremely complicated and intertwined, so are the answers to those problems.

The money being received by area farmers will help pay off outstanding loans and keep farmers going until a more complete farm package can be designed.

"The amount of disaster aid is at the top end of funding estimates that the Secretary of Agriculture (Dan Glickman) testified was needed," said House Agriculture Committee Chairman Larry Combest, a Lubbock Republican whose 19th District includes Deaf Smith County.

"In addition to this aid, Congress is addressing the producer's more lasting needs through legislation for expanded crop and livestock revenue insurance coverage, as well as my agenda for an early review of current farm policy," he said.

Emergency assistance within H.R. 1906 (FY 2000 agriculture appropriations) includes:

- Market loss payments of $5.544 billion;
- Oilseed assistance providing $475 million in direct payments;
- Production loss payments of $1.2 billion for 1999 crop and livestock weather losses;
- Crop insurance premium discount of 30 percent continued in the 2000 crop year;
- Cotton Step 2 replenishment;
- Kncreasing payment limitation for Loan Deficiency Payments and Marketing Loan Gains from $75,000 to $150,000;
- Livestock assistance totaling $200 million;
- Extension of Dairy Price Support Program and suspension of Recourse Loan;
- Mandatory livestock price reporting;
- Authority for producers to collect transition payments at any time during the fiscal year;
- $56 million for staffing needs at the Farm Service Agency using unspent USDA accounts.

The emergency package may contain other assistance as well.

Combest was distressed at the presidential delay in signing the package, but was pleased that producers would not have to wait eight months as they did last year.

"America's producers know that in very short order they will have in hand this greatly-needed assistance they have been countin on," Combest said.

Payments for a single farm have been capped at $160,000.

Other counties receiving payments include: Hale $14.3 million; Castro and Lamb, $10.9 million each; and Deaf Smith bringing in $9.9 million.

The way of things to come -- John Deere is at it again. This John Deere track tractor, 9400 T, is Deere's newest model. Equipment such as the 9400 T will be used more and more as the family farm moves into more conglomerate industries. The 9400 T comes with a choice of rubber tires or tracks.

Ogallala added to Superfund list

LEVELLAND, Texas (AP) — Federal regulators say an aquifer near this West Texas town is contaminated with toxic chemicals, possibly threatening the city's water supply.

As a result, a mile-wide swath, or plume, of the Ogallala Aquifer has been added to the Superfund priority list for hazardous waste cleanup.

The Environmental Protection Agency and Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission proposed the listing in July after officials found contaminants in a public water supply well. Levelland, about 30 miles west of Lubbock, pumps about a third of its drinking water from the Ogallala.

The Superfund status was announced Friday and means the site qualifies for federal money, although no dollar amount has been determined, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported.

EPA officials said the TNRCC will take the lead role in the cleanup. Toxic chemicals turned up, either singularly or in combination, in 30 groundwater wells near Levelland.

"Because the city's water wells are down gradient from the contaminated plume, they are considered at risk for contamination," an EPA statement said. Regulators have yet to say what may have caused the contamination.

Texas has 35 Superfunds.

FDA issues sprout standard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crunchy raw sprouts are full of nutrition — but too often, they also carry dangerous bacteria that can cause food poisoning. To make sprouts safe to eat again, the government is ordering farmers to use new growing methods.

The Food and Drug Administration warned Americans last summer not to eat alfalfa, clover and other types of sprouts after confirming that at least 1,300 illnesses in recent years were caused by bacteria-laden sprouts. Other research, however, estimates that many more people — up to 20,000 — may have been sickened.

Even healthy people can become ill from sprouts tainted with salmonella or E. coli. But high-risk people — such as children, the elderly and people with weakened immune systems because of cancer, AIDS or other conditions — could contract life-threatening infections.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Is Customer Service Dead...Or just dying?

(First of two-parts)

Time: Wednesday, 8:47 p.m. Place: A small town near Austin, TX. Two men pull into a Dairy Queen with the intention of grabbing a quick bite to eat. There were no other cars in the parking area but the lights were on the neon sign flashed, "OPEN."

Three employees - teenagers - were visible through the front window. They were eating ice cream. When the employees saw the car pull up they scattered. In a few seconds the lights went off.

The driver got out of the car and tried the front door. It was locked. The "business hours" sign stated that the business was open until 9:00 p.m. The man scowls and returns to the car. All Dairy Queens get a black mark in his mental book of places to eat. This Dairy Queen is dying.

Another time, another place

Time: Friday, 5:05 p.m. Place: Nashville, TN. A couple approached the registration desk of the Crowne Plaza Hotel. Three employees are behind the counter, but 12 minutes pass before the couple is motioned up to the desk. They give their names and confirmation number.

The clerk informs them that they can register, but their room is not ready. There was a big convention in town and the rooms are still being cleaned.

They are told it will take only 20 minutes. Fifty minutes later someone finally gets a room clean and the couple receives a key. As they leave the lobby they see at least 20 others waiting for rooms.

When they arrive at their room it is nearly 85 degrees inside. The bathroom still has hair on the floor and in the tub. The couple decides not to complain because this may be the only room they'll get.

Both of these travelers agree to avoid Crowne Plaza hotels in the future. Listen closely and you can hear the death rattle in the hum of the alleged air conditioner. The hotel is dying.

Death on the strip

Time: Monday, 7:10 p.m. Place: Las Vegas, NV. Two couples hail a cab in front of the Treasure Island Hotel. They are going out for dinner and want to see the other end of the strip.

They ask the driver to take them to the Bellagio Hotel, a long walk or answer questions about the strip. The fare came to $5.80. He's given $6.00 and told to keep the change. The couple agrees the 20-cent tip is too much. Somewhere is Las Vegas a cab company is dying.

Service is declining

The scenes I just described are true. They are not isolated cases. Customers agree, service stinks. Sadly, these stories are repeated every day in millions of similar situations. Your friends and co-workers all have their own stories to share.

Customer service is an area where perception is the reality. If the customer feels that service is declining, then it is. Most customers are ready to attend the final rites for customer service.

The American Customer Service Index, complied by the University of Michigan, shows a dramatic decline in customer satisfaction between the years of 1994 and 1998. Most Americans are fed up with poor performance.

How much will we take? What happened to good service? Will the lack of service open the door to more E-commerce? Are there opportunities for companies who stay focused on caring for customers? We'll tackle these questions and more next week. Don't miss "Is Customer Service Dead..." Part two.

Some Books Worth Reading

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls

I had a very exciting call last week from the assistant librarian at the Amarillo Public Library. They had just had an expert come into their library and conduct an evaluation of their rare book collection for insurance purposes.

One of the volumes in their collection was appraised at $8,000 and according to the computer we had another copy of that same title. I thanked Greg for the call and information and immediately went to the shelf to check our copy.

As it turned out, our copy was a 1980 reprint of the original 1800 copyright date. I was very disappointed in not having the original copyright material. However, as a result of the call we were able to locate and re-catalog a book that had been showing up on our monthly statistics as having been a circulating Rare Book.

We knew there was one book cataloged years ago with the wrong location code but until now we were unable to find it. So if any of you are interested in seeing a reprint of a historic document worth $8,000 come in and I'll show it to you.

Eat, Drink and be Merry is a book written by Dr. Dean Edell, M.D., to offer you the truth about healthy living.

Dr. Dean tells what has been scientifically proven in an attempt to give the readers the tools needed to make good personal health decisions. Dr. Dean's experience within the medical establishment, in the alternative medicine community and in the media give him a unique vantage point from which he evaluates the breaking medical news.

Dr. Dean exposes the sloppy, irresponsible and dangerous health reporting that happens daily in newspapers, talk shows and TV news segments.

In the book, Dr. Dean takes on the health gurus who urge you to abandon many things we enjoy most and make patients worry needlessly. He urges us to calm down and gives you the truth about what really goes on in hospitals and inside the minds of Doctors.

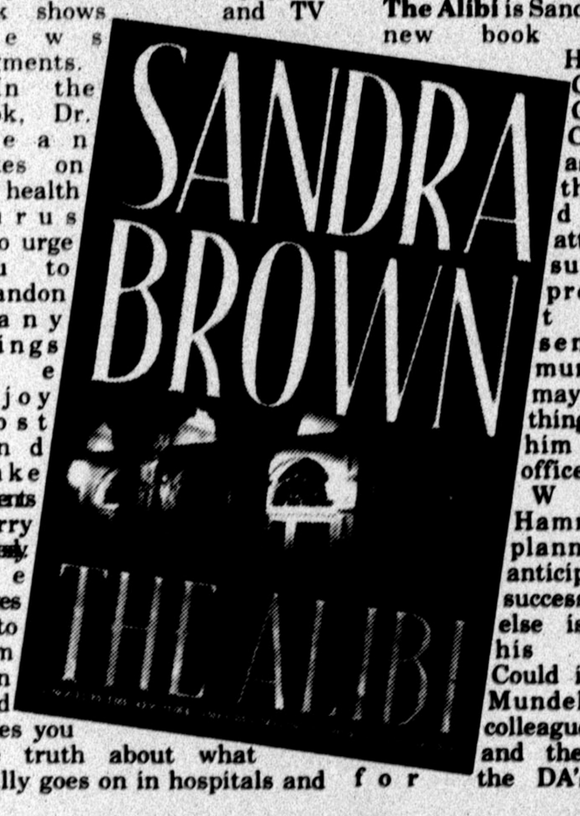
While scare stories of mad cow disease and ebola and miracle cures make the news, responsible follow-ups rarely do. In book Dr. Dean tells you what has been scientifically proven and what has not.

Worst Fears Realized is Stuart Woods' newest book. Former cop turned lawyer turned investigator, Stone Barrington is back in this book.

Stone is surrounded by dying people, he suspects the killer may be someone he helped put in prison years ago. Stone's ex- partner Dino Bacchette, now the head of the detectives in the 19th Precinct, is also involved.

To keep their families safe, Stone and Dino pool their resources. Dino and Stone find themselves on a life and death hunt that is full of twists and turns. Stone prays that his worst fears will not be realized.

The Alibi is Sandra Brown's new book featuring Hammond Cross of Charleston. Cross aspires to be the next district attorney and successfully prosecuting this sensational murder case may be just the thing to place him in that office.



While Hammond is planning and anticipating his success, someone else is planning his downfall. Could it be Steffi Mundell, the colleague, ex-lover, and the opponent for the DA's position; Rory Smelow, the A-1 homicide detective and Cross' avowed enemy; or Davee Pettyjohn, Lute's widow and Hammond's lifelong friend, who is too honest to mourn her despised husband?

For the first time in his career Hammond begins to bend the rules in favor of the suspect, the one who holds in reserves, the perfect alibi, Hammond Cross.

Sue Grafton continues through the alphabet with "O" is for Outlaw. He scavenges defaulted storage units at auctions.

In the last auction he bought a stack of cardboard boxes. In one he finds a collection of childhood memorabilia with Kinsey's name over all of it. He gives Kinsey a call and offers her the lot for $30.00.

Kinsey has never been someone who gets sentimental over things, her curiosity gets the best of her, so she agrees to meet the guy.

What Kinsey finds is an undelivered letter that causes her to re-examine the reasons for dissolving her marriage, the honor of her first husband and an old unsolved murder. Kinsey is also put in the gravest danger.

Writing want ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

- Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.
- Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.
- Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the words, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.
- Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

CLASSIFIEDS WORK!!

There's a place for EVERYTHING In the Classifieds.

Newspaper is usually the first place people go when considering a purchase. It's their primary source of advertising information.

Newspaper helps spark the local economy by putting dollars into circulation. And that's good for everyone, not just the retailer.

Because a strong local economy means lower property taxes, more jobs, tax support for community services and a better place to live.

Newspaper is more than just a smart place to advertise. It's an integral part of our lives.

10TH ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF TREES

RETAIL OPEN HOUSE

Trees, trains herald holiday season

Always changing, yet ever the same.

The Festival of Trees.

The annual Hereford Senior Citizens Association fund-raiser always has an array of elaborately decorated trees, but they are never like those from previous years.

There is always the Lionel train display by the Nolan Henson family of Happy, but each year the display features new and different scenes.

There is always the Festival Gala, followed by the Festival Auction but each year the amount collected by the auction varies.

The 10th annual Festival of Trees will be held Nov. 17-21 at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger.

The five-day festival agenda will follow basically the same time schedule as in the past years.

Continuous festival activities and children's programs will begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 17.

A preview of this year's trees is scheduled for 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, providing extra viewing time for anyone interested in bidding on one of the ornate, seven-foot trees.

The Festival Gala is set to begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 19, followed by the Festival Auction at 7:30 p.m.

Last year's auction of trees and other items, such as over-sized lighted wreaths, brought in a record $36,550. The previous high of $28,675 was four years prior.

Contributing to the total was the top-selling tree at $6,000 with a second tree selling for $5,600.

The trees are provided by the Senior Center, are sponsored by local and area businesses and are decorated by individuals, businesses, school groups and service clubs.

Decorators determine what theme will be used for each tree and the variety of theme ideas is limited only by the imagination of the decorators.

The Memorial Tree, offered for the first time in 1994, will be featured again this year. The lighted, wooden Christmas tree serves as a tribute where people may honor loved ones through monetary contributions.

Silent Night was the title of this tree which was included in the 1998 Festival of Trees. It was sponsored by Bar-G Feedyard and decorated by Sharon Bodner and members of the Senior Citizens.

Donor levels and corresponding tree light colors are:

Green Light - $10-$99
Blue Light - $100-$249
Red Light - $250-$499
Gold Light - $500-$1,000

All proceeds benefit the Hereford Senior Citizens Association which offers services to area senior citizens that include congregate and home-bound meals, transportation and a modern and multi-functional senior center.

According to the Hereford Senior Citizens Association, more than 2,000 senior citizens were assisted in 1998.

Once again, this year's festival will include the always popular melodrama. The play will be presented at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 18 and again on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Finger foods will be served at the Thursday performance for a cost of $10 per person, and the Saturday evening performance will include a full dinner for $15 per person.

Another continuous festival activity, the Holiday Bazaar, offers visitors a chance to browse at their leisure and shop for Christmas gifts.

The bazaar is famous for its holiday gift baskets which are assembled, filled and wrapped by members of the senior citizens. Each basket contains an assortment of items built around a central theme and each basket is unique.

The Lionel train display continues to be popular year after year with the young and the young-at-heart. The display features numerous trains on tracks which pass through village after village, all unique and different each year.

The train display will open on Nov. 17 and continue through Dec. 11.

There is something for everyone, every age and every budget at the Festival of Trees.

Included in this year's fare are the Herd Restaurant, Bake Shop, children's programs and children's crafts. There is no admission cost for continuous festival activities, tree auction, preview of trees, Lionel train display or children's programs.

The final day of activities will include a Holiday Turkey Buffet served from noon to 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 21. The cost is $7.50 for adults and $3.50 for children 12 and under.

Advance tickets are required for the melodrama due to limited seating. For reservations call 364-5681 or go by Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Sponsors make the special events of the Festival of Trees possible. Following is a list of special events and their sponsors.

Auction - Oglesby Equipment Co. and Southwest Feedyard

Gala - FirstBank Southwest and Hereford State Bank

Children's Hour - John and Amy Gilliland

Preview of Trees - West Texas Rural Telephone

Christmas Stocking Fund

A TALE OF RESURRECTION

The two-decade saga of success of Hereford's Christmas Stocking Fund might well be termed a tale of resurrection.

CSF was organized by several local businessmen in 1980 as a means to help the community's less fortunate during the holiday season. From 1980-1985 CSF raised $43,728 toward that end. During those six years the group depended heavily on a social services worker who volunteered her services for help in screening of applications and prioritizing of help to be given.

When concerns were raised over several issues including potential liability in the event of a lawsuit, the anonymous group of men who first launched the project decided in mid-November of 1986 to discontinue the program.

Word of the "Grench stealing Christmas in Hereford" was promptly ballyhooed by the Amarillo media.

A core group of concerned, anonymous Hereford residents took it upon themselves to salvage the Christmas Stocking Fund. At an informal initial meeting that included a handful of folks from all walks of life in the community the Christmas Stocking Fund was loosely reorganized along much the same lines as it functions today. The Hereford Brand agreed to continue to serve as the official donation collection point. With only about two weeks to get the massive job done, the volunteers set to work taking and screening applications, and arranging the logistics of food and clothing assistance.

The Hereford Brand helped launch the renewed CSF fund raising campaign for 1986 with a $100 donation. Early fund collecting was alarmingly slow, and more than a little worrisome to the volunteers who were matching themselves against time.--Only $800 had been raised by December 7, and about $1000 by mid-December. The Brand and radio station KPAN championed the CSF cause in stories and broadcasts, and after the pressing needs of several applicants were highlighted the Christmas Spirit of Hereford kicked in.

Elementary and junior high students in Hereford schools collected 700 cans of staple foods to help CSF. Local grocers gave the charity a discount on many of the food items needed. A hometown merchant cut prices on clothing needed to help CSF applicants. Volunteers helped to box food for deliveries. Local civic and study clubs took up special collections. Donors dug deep in their pockets. Despite the shaky start, and to the jubilation of volunteers, giving soared to a whopping $10,626.90 by Christmas--easily the most ever raised by CSF at that time--surpassing the existing record of $8,417 raised in the 1982 campaign.

Once local residents saw that the charity was going to survive and work, success fostered more of the same. Never, since its reorganization in 1986, has giving to CSF dropped below $13,600--a new high figure in 1987, but now well-off the record-setting pace. Fund raising by CSF is primarily on a year-to-year basis, with proceeds raised during the annual late-November through December campaign determining how much help is extended in that season.

Volunteers have discovered through the years that it's fun and downright Christmas-spirited to help with the packing and delivery of food boxes for CSF. Helpers have ranged from housewives, nuns and nurses to school children and 4-H club members, to burly firemen, police, and utility workers.

A rugged utility company employee who helped with food box deliveries during a campaign brought back one of the enduring and endearing lump-in-the-throat tales that are shared by CSF volunteers. When the man made his food delivery of food boxes at a needy home and turned to leave, a small boy dashed up to him, hugged his legs, and shouted," Thank you, Santa Claus."

Volunteers administering the program over the years have become proficient at the difficult job of screening applications, prioritizing needs, and making choices on help to extend. The charity gives its highest priority to children and the elderly in need.

By unofficial tally, all-time giving to CSF stands at $279,527. Included in that total is an $8,000 gift from the Ruby Hill estate that is jump-starting the 1999 campaign. A total of $235,799 of the all-time total, including the estate gift, has come since the 1986 reorganization.

The standing record for CSF fund raising is $21,772 in the 1997 campaign. Collections of $21,451 in 1993 rank second, and the 1989 tally of $20,718 is third.

CSF donation totals by year:

1980-1985-$43,728
1986-$10,626.90
1987-$13,600
1988-$15,441
1989-$20,718
1990-$18,026.22
1991-$17,258.57
1992-$17,225.35
1993-$21,451
1994-$18,414
1995-$18,435
1996-$18,393
1997-$21,772
1998-$16,236

Canisters, like this one shown by Joyce Wells at Inkahoots last year, for depositing donations to Project Christmas Card will be placed in numerous businesses on the Monday after Thanksgiving.

Project Christmas Card provides dual services to hospital, community

Why is a fund-raising campaign that doesn't involve sending Christmas cards called "Project Christmas Card"?

Because the project is an alternative to sending individual Christmas greetings to local friends.

L'Allegra Study Club sponsors Project Christmas Card which offers individuals a way to make monetary contributions in the amount they would typically spend on Christmas cards and stamps.

The club provides envelopes on which contributors are asked to print their name as they would like it to appear in the newspaper, then deposit the envelopes in canisters which have been placed with numerous area businesses.

The names of contributors will be printed in a full page ad appearing in the Christmas Eve edition of the Hereford Brand. Everyone listed in the ad is sending a collective greeting to the whole community.

The project for sending the collective greeting was started in 1956 by a group of doctors' and dentists' spouses who wanted to offer local residents an opportunity to support specific needs of the local medical community.

L'Allegra Study Club has sponsored the project since 1986, collecting a total of more than $69,000 which has benefitted Hereford's hospital.

Proceeds raised by the project have been used to purchase a non-invasive blood pressure machine, serum electrophoresis lab equipment, oxygen monitor and blood pressure monitor for obstetrics, fetal monitor, cardiac enzyme monitor, gazebo, mammography grid, colposcope for rape examination, renovation of obstetrics waiting room, anesthesia multiple monitor and smartscale digital baby scale.

Area residents will be able to begin contributing to Project Christmas Card when canisters are placed in businesses on the Monday after Thanksgiving. The deadline for contributing will be Dec. 22.

Canisters will be located at the Hereford Brand, FirstBank Southwest, Kid's Alley, Terry's Floral and Design, K-Bob's, First American Bank, Wishes, Covenant Family Healthcare, Hereford Regional Medical Center, A Touch of Class, Billie's Beauty Salon, Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union, Hereford State Bank, Senior Citizens Center, Inkahoots, Hereford Country Club, Boots and Saddle, Yiota's and Francisco's.

Handmade gifts found in abundance at array of holiday arts, crafts bazaars

Handmade items make a welcome gift for nearly anyone on your Christmas list. Annual arts and crafts bazaars are an excellent source for such items.

If you are an artist or craftsman, the bazaars offer opportunities to display your handiwork and perhaps increase your income as well.

Local and area holiday bazaars currently scheduled are:

Westway Country Christmas Bazaar

The Westway Country Christmas Bazaar is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 13 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The bazaar will feature about 55 booths selling a wide variety of mostly-handmade merchandise.

Proceeds from the bazaar benefit Deaf Smith County 4-H and other community projects.

For more information, call Carolyn Evers at 364-4739.

Festival of Trees Holiday Bazaar

The annual Holiday Bazaar will be held in conjunction with the Festival of Trees from Nov. 17-20 at the Senior Citizens Center, 426 Ranger, Hereford, from 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m.

The bazaar is famous for its holiday gift baskets which are assembled, filled and wrapped by members of the Senior Citizens Association. Each basket contains an assortment of items built around a central theme and each basket is unique.

WUMC Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts

Wesley United Methodist Church will hosts its 19th Annual Festival of Arts and Crafts on Saturday, Dec. 4 from 9 a.m.- 5 p.m. in Hereford Community Center.

Booth rentals are available at a cost of $10. All items are screened to determine their handmade authenticity.

Applications may be obtained from Ellen Collins, 801 Miles St., Hereford, Texas 79045; or call 364-0774.

Annual Christmas Bazaar

Moonlight Extension Club announces its 21st Annual Christmas Bazaar to be held Nov. 12-13 at the Baily County Civic Center and Coliseum in Muleshoe.

Canyon Christmas Delights Roundup

The Heritage Woman's Club of Canyon will hold a holiday bazaar on Sunday, Nov. 14 from 1-5 p.m. in Cole Community Center, 300 16th St., Canyon.

The bazaar, "Canyon Christmas Delights Roundup," will feature exhibitors from the entire Panhandle area.

It will offer a bake sale featuring a wide assortment of homemade food which can be eaten on the spot or frozen for later.

Gift baskets are a popular feature at the Holiday Bazaar held in conjunction with the annual Festival of Trees at Hereford Senior Citizens Center. Executive director Margie Daniels admires some of the handiwork. Arts and crafts festivals are scheduled in Hereford and throughout the Panhandle during the holiday season.

Holiday Arts and Crafts Bazaar

The Nazareth Art Club will host its annual Holiday Arts and Crafts Bazaar on Sunday, Nov. 21 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Nazareth School Cafeteria.

In addition to the display of arts and crafts, a turkey dinner will be served from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. in the Nazareth Community Hall sponsored by the Christian Mother Society.

Booth space for the bazaar is available until Nov. 13. For more information, contact Lucille Drerup at 806-945-2562.

Erick Honey Festival Arts and Crafts Show and Sale

The Honey Festival Arts and Crafts Show and Sale will be held from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 13 in the Erick, Okla., High School Gym.

There will be many booths offering all types of handmade crafts including dolls, ceramics, stuffed animals, wood crafts, Christmas decorations, baskets, decorated sweatshirts, T-shirts, jackest and vests, country and Southwest art, afghans, floral arrangements, jewelry, yard items and more.

Pep Community Thanksgiving Festival

A sale of homemade crafts and baked goods will be held in conjunction with the Pep Community Thanksgiving Festival on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25 in St. Philip Neri Parish Hall in Pep.

Pep is located in Hockley County on Highway 303: coming from Hwy. 54 turn south onto Hwy. 303, coming from Hwy. 114 turn north onto Hwy. 303.

German sausage, turkey, dressing and trimmings will be served from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

Rejoice!

Santa Claus did the honors of turning on the lighted 45-foot red cedar tree in Mother's Park during "Christmas-in-the-Park" festivities last year, then he joined amazed young people in applauding the results.

City of Hereford will sponsor 4th annual park lighting display

Community fellowship, holiday spirit and an appearance from Santa Claus will combine in one meeting at 7 p.m., Monday, Nov. 29 as the City of Hereford hosts the 4th Annual "Christmas-in-the-Park" celebration of lights.

The popular event, set in the heart of the downtown area at Mother's Park on the corner of Main St. and Park Ave., marks the beginning of a bright and dazzling holiday light display in the park.

This year the display will be complimented with an array of banners down Main St. and lighted snowflake and angel ornaments on the light poles along Park Ave.

Following traditions of past years, musical entertainment will be provided, Hereford Pilot Club will serve hot chocolate during the event and Santa Claus will have the honor of turning on the lighted 45-foot red cedar Christmas tree in the center of the park.

All surrounding streets to Mother's Park, with the exception of Park Ave., will be closed to through-traffic until the conclusion of the ceremony.

Women's Division seeking entries in holiday contest

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will sponsor the annual Christmas Lighting Contest for homes and businesses.

Nominations will be accepted for any home or business in Hereford.

Entry forms will be available at the chamber office, 701 N. Main, beginning Dec. 1 and completed forms must be returned to the chamber office by 5 p.m. on Dec. 15.

Categories are: residential, total home or residential windows and doors; and total business, or business windows and doors.

Previous winners are eligible to enter again, but must compete in a category different from the one entered the past year.

Judging will be Dec. 16-17 and 1999 contest winners will be announced in the Sunday, Dec. 19 edition of the Hereford Brand.

Hereford Bucks will be awarded to contest winners.

1998 winner — The home of Maria Gavina at 720 Avenue K was the first place winner in the residential display division of the 1998 Christmas Lighting Contest. Many homes in Hereford are expected to once again be entered in the contest sponsored annually by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Smiles abound whenever the Jolly Old Elf is around as evidenced by these smiles when Santa made his appearance at Christmas in the Park last year. He will undoubtedly make numerous appearances in the community again this Christmas season.

Museum will host Christmas Open House

A Christmas Open House will be held from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 5 at the Deaf Smith County Museum, hosted by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

Refreshments will be served throughout the afternoon.

The open house is sponsored annually by the historical society as a special thanks to county residents for their support.

Music will be provided by the Jack Nunley Band and by the handbell choir of First United Methodist Church.

A feature of last year's open house which proved popular was a variety of demonstrations. Visitors this year will again be able to observe demonstrations on making Christmas arrangements by Terry Sparks, making bows by Carmen Flood and pulling taffy candy by various members of the historical society.

Members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society decorate the museum and the E.B. Black House each year in observance of the holiday season.

All Deaf Smith County residents are invited to attend.

Christmas arrangement making was demonstrated by Terry Sparks during the Christmas Open House last year at the Deaf Smith County Museum. Visitors will again be able to observe Sparks and others giving demonstrations during the open house from 2-4 p.m. on Dec. 5.

Books

Giving makes the season complete

Rewarding gifts to give or receive

By The Associated Press

You know what it is even before you tear off the rectangular wrapping, but a book still is one of the most rewarding gifts to receive, and to give:

For Grown-Ups and Grown-Up Minds

— You won't find any pretty postcard photos of Europe and Great Britain in "Brandt: The Photography of Bill Brandt" (Abrams, $75 hardcover), by Bill Jay and Nigel Warburton. Brandt's black-and-white pictures make a grittier, less opulent, but still robust portrait of the Europeans and especially the British. The pictures capture the contrasts of rich and poor and peace and war through the 1930s and 1940s.

— Houses where the noted or notorious once lived are fascinating because what they reveal about their former inhabitants. "If This House Could Talk..." (Simon & Schuster, $35 hardcover), by Elizabeth Smith Brownstein, is a tour in print of such places as a Lower East Side tenement in New York City; Eleanor Roosevelt's Val-Kill Cottage in Hyde Park, N.Y.; William Randolph Hearst's fabulous estate at San Simeon, Calif.; and Abraham Lincoln's house in Springfield, Ill., among others.

— Photographer Fred Maroon had no inkling of its dramatic end when he began a project to photograph the Nixon presidency. "The Nixon Years: 1969-1974" (Abbeville Press, $29.95 hardcover) portrays the period, from Richard M. Nixon's election to the end of his presidency with the Watergate scandal, with many photographs that have not been previously published. Text is by former New York Times columnist Tom Wicker.

— Norman Rockwell used to be dismissed by critics as a mere illustrator. Nobody liked him except, it seems, the millions of readers who enjoyed his Saturday Evening Post covers. In "Norman Rockwell: Pictures for the American People" (Abrams, $35 hardcover), curators Maureen Hart Hennessey and Anne Knutson compile new critical acclaim from modern critics, who appreciate Rockwell's contribution to American 20th century culture.

— Aerial photography reveals the earth in fascinating patterns and perspectives. "Earth from Above" (Abrams, $65 hardcover), by Yann Arthus-Bertrand, distills his five years of airborne photography across five continents and 60 countries.

— "Chronicle of the Old Testament Kings" (Thames & Hudson, $34.95 hardcover), by John Rogerson, covers 1,500 years of history of the leaders of Israel, from the Ancestors through the united monarchy under David and Solomon, the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, the rule of Persia and Greece, and ultimately, Roman domination.

— "I'll Be Home for Christmas" was the title of a favorite sentimental tune of the World War II years and also is title of a new book (Delacorte Press, $24 hardcover) showcasing pictures of the era, from the archives of the Library of Congress. They show not only American soldiers celebrating the holiday while serving abroad but people on the homefront, including Japanese-Americans who were interned during the war.

— "A Treasury of African-American Christmas Stories, Volume II" (Henry Holt, $20 hardcover), collected by Bettye Collier-Thomas, continues the re-discovery of long-forgotten stories and poems once published in black newspapers and journals.

For the Young in Age and Outlook

— "Stormy Night" (Kids Can Press, $18.95 hardcover), by Michele Lemieux, is a serious, philosophical book for children, approaching their fears and questions about God, life, death, abandonment, chance, happiness, sadness, and what-happens-if. Lemieux, with simple text and drawings, enables youngsters to grasp these abstracts. The book, first published in Germany and subsequently translated into nine languages, is winner of the Ragazzi Prize awarded at the Bologna Book Fair.

— It's "The Ultimate LEGO Book" (DK Publishing, $19.95 hardcover), tells how these addictive plastic bricks have fascinated children and adults alike. The book shows how these simple toys have been made into fabulous sculptures and constructions and gives you ideas for creating your own.

— The youngest opera fans will appreciate performances more with "The Barefoot Book of Stories from the Opera" (Barefoot Books, $19.95 hardcover). Seven operas, including Benjamin Britten's "The Little Sweep," Richard Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman" and Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "The Magic Flute" are retold by Shahrukh Husain, with illustrations by James Mayhew.

"The Ballet Book" (Firefly Books, $19.95 hardcover, $12.95 paperback) is the classical ballet guide from the National Ballet School of Canada.

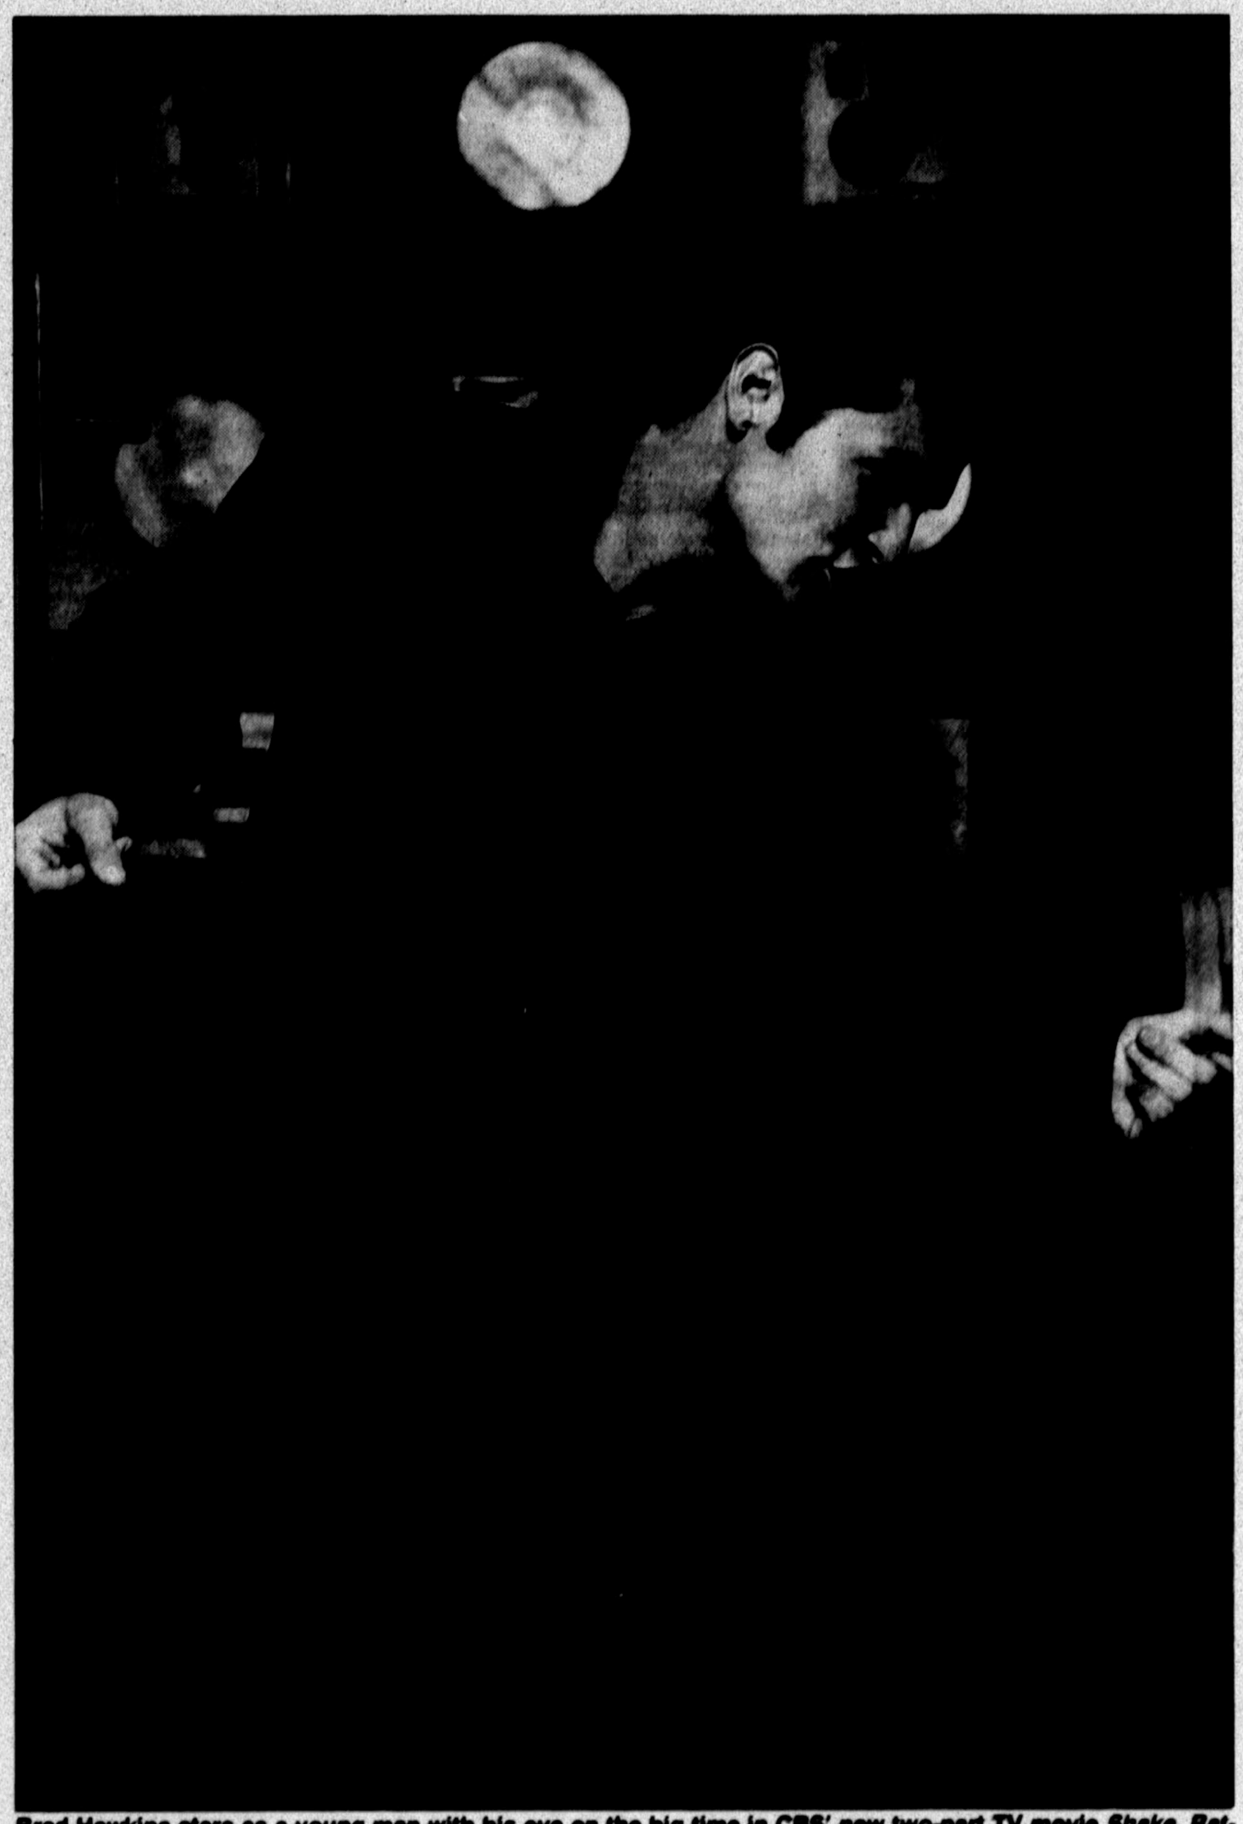
New CBS movie mixes rock'n'roll, romance



Brad Hawkins stars as a young man with his eye on the big time in CBS' new two-part TV movie Shake, Rattle & Roll, airing Sunday and Wednesday. It's an endearing drama about two young lovers following their dreams in the early years of rock 'n' roll.

With rap lyrics urging listeners to commit felonies, it seems quaint that rock 'n' roll was once thought of as the devil's music – and not just by extremists.

CBS takes a look at the controversial birth of rock 'n' roll from the vantage point of a couple of kids in the heartland falling in love with the beat and with each other in the two-part movie Shake, Rattle & Roll, airing Sunday, Nov. 7, and Wednesday, Nov. 10.

Tyler Hart (country music performer Brad Hawkins) and Lyne Danner (Bonnie Somerville) are the great-looking youngsters who form a band and a bond in the early years of rock. When they hear Chuck Berry sing "Maybellene" for the first time, you can nearly feel their souls soaring. These kids were starving for rhythm and fun and torn between the new music and their old lives.

An interesting aspect of what could otherwise have been a corny movie is that Lyne, who is white, has a black best friend in Marsha Stokes (Samaria Graham, Blossom). The girls' fathers are in the military, and they played together for years in Guam while developing a healthy appetite for the new music.

The movie is set against the social upheavals that began in the late '50s and erupted in the '60s. Viewers empathize as the friends sometimes have to be separated, without having to be told again how awful segregation was. But through all their travails, there is rock 'n' roll.

The soundtrack is a lot of fun, with songs by Bob Dylan, Carole King, Graham Nash, Lamont Dozier, and Leiber and Stoller. There also are new songs, which have the gritty, real feel of the classics, and some of the era's anthems, including "Ain't That a Shame," "Sh'Boom," "Long Tall Sally" and "Shake, Rattle & Roll."

Terence Trent D'Arby as Jackie Wilson and Billy Porter as Little Richard prove the adage that there are no small parts as they steal scenes. And a cameo by blues legend B.B. King is a treat.

The high-school kids are preparing to graduate and do whatever their parents expect them to while shuffling to Perry Como. But once they've danced to Little Richard, how can they return to Como? They can't – and don't.

So the rebellion begins, and the barn band lands a few gigs, including one at a fledging hamburger drive-in called McDonald's. If the group is going to make it to fame, however, it needs an agent and a manager. Enter one agent (Dana Delany), looking like the original Barbie with her short bubble-bouffant hair and haute-couture wardrobe – just one example of how the movie looks as terrific as it sounds, thanks in part to costumer Peggy Farrell.

"I had a lot of fun," says Delany, who took the job because it was a fun role and because "I wanted to work with James Coburn," who plays her husband.

"He was everything I wanted him to be and more. He really is Flint," Delany says, referring to the swinging spy Coburn played on film in the '60s. "He talks like that. He called me 'broad' and said 'groovy' and 'baby.' It was a fun character."

Also a busy one.

"It was just a blast," Delany continues. "I got to have James Coburn on one hand and this hot young guy (Hawkins) on the other."

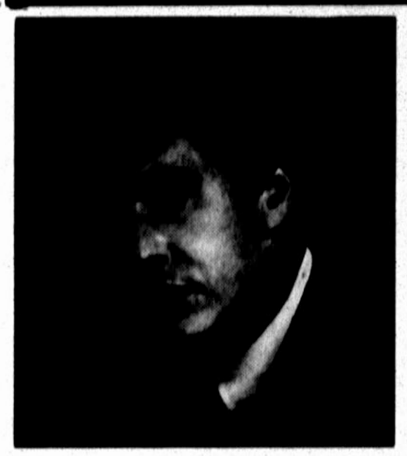
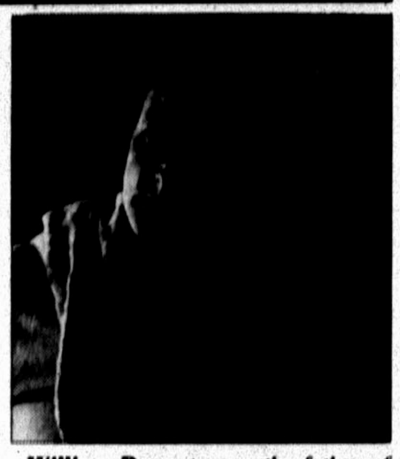
IN FOCUS



Look into the hearts and souls of American heroes as actor Tom Berenger narrates Medal of Honor, a two-hour special airing Sunday, Nov. 7, on TNT.

Through first-person accounts, the program profiles U.S. soldiers whose acts of courage in battle won them the Medal of Honor – the nation's highest award for military service. Heroic stories of combat include conflicts from Somalia and Vietnam to World War II and the Korean War.



William Russ stars as the father of Danny Bonaduce, who played Danny Partridge, in the ABC movie Come on Get Happy: The Partridge Family Story, airing Saturday, Nov. 13. The TV movie depicts cast members coping with family problems and the pressures of fame.

The Partridges were a fatherless yet happy fictional family who also happened to be one groovy rock 'n' roll band in the '70s TV cult classic The Partridge Family. But as the TV movie illustrates, the series' stars weren't necessarily happy away from the cameras.

Bram Stoker's Dracula ★★★ (1992) Gary Oldman, Winona Ryder. Francis Ford Coppola's Oscar-winning account of the vampire who left Transylvania for the blood-rich shores of England. 3:00. November 13 9:30pm.

Breakheart Pass ★★½ (1976) Charles Bronson, Jill Ireland. While transporting a prisoner, a disguised federal agent is caught up in a dangerous sequence of events aboard a train. 2:05. November 10 1pm.

The Bride Came C.O.D. ★★★ (1941) James Cagney, Bette Davis. A down-on-his-luck pilot falls in love with the wayward oil heiress he was hired to retrieve. (CC) 2:00. November 10 11pm.

The Bride Goes Wild ★★½ (1948) Van Johnson, June Allyson. A carefree bachelor pretends an orphan is his son to capture the affections of a prim New England schoolteacher. 2:00. November 10 5pm.

Brother Rat ★★★ (1938) Ronald Reagan, Eddie Albert. The romances and problems of three students are set against the backdrop of a hectic military academy. (CC) 1:30. November 11 3am.

Brothers of the Frontier (1996) Joey Lawrence, Matthew Lawrence. A young pioneer falls in love with an American Indian woman as he and his brothers search for their parents. (In Stereo) 2:00. November 13 1pm.

C

Caged ★★★ (1950) Eleanor Parker, Agnes Moorehead. An innocent woman involved in a holdup is sent to a women's state prison. 2:00. November 7 9am.

Can't Buy Me Love ★★½ (1987) Patrick Dempsey, Amanda Peterson. A misfit teen gets more than he bargained for when he hires the most popular girl in school to pose as his girlfriend. 2:15. November 12 9:50pm.

Burns brings master's touch to story of Stanton, Anthony

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

Some TV events just call for a party. What would the Super Bowl be without a bunch of buddies and the refreshments? The Academy Awards show almost requires catty friends and a buffet. Though documentaries don't usually prompt such bashes, Not for Ourselves Alone: The Story of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony should.

Women will want to invite their friends to watch its two-part premiere on PBS Sunday and Monday, Nov. 7 and 8 (check local listings). It's not for women only, but it certainly should be mandatory viewing for mothers and daughters.

It's not just that the latest documentary by Ken Burns and Paul Barnes is important, or that it's spectacularly made. It's that the women's revolution is both eloquently explained and put into a concise historical context.

The film traces the lives of Anthony, who is revealed as a rather dour woman whose mission in life was to get the vote for women, and Stanton, who is portrayed as a gracious, married mother who campaigned tirelessly for the vote and other necessary aspects of equality.

Through Burns' trademark use of magnificent photos and film footage, Not for Ourselves Alone reminds us that American women once had no constitutional right to attend college, work, vote or even own property. Tell a girl today – she of soccer meets and self-esteem classes – how it was a century ago, and her jaw will drop. Tell most adults and they, too, may be surprised. That's what enticed Burns.

"Ten years ago, my editor was reading a biography of Stanton, and each day at lunch he regaled us with more and more stories until we vowed on the spot to make (the documentary)," Burns explains, confessing that "I was first humiliated that I knew nothing, and here I claim to be a filmmaker focusing on American history."

He says he vowed to redress his lack of knowledge with a piece on these pivotal women in part because "the largest social transformation in American history goes unmentioned in our textbooks and that clearly has to change."

Burns and Barnes dedicated the documentary to their daughters. After watching Not for Ourselves Alone, Burns says, "They will learn from Stanton and Anthony the true meaning of courage."

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: Is Eric McCormack of Will & Grace really gay? What other shows has he done? –Crystal Martin, Ephrata, Pa.

A: Toronto-born McCormack, 36, has been married to Janet Holden since 1997 and says he is just "playing gay" on his sitcom. A classically trained actor, he racked up a number of stage credits before landing roles in several Canadian series and TV movies.

McCormack probably first caught the eye of U.S. viewers as Col. Francis Clay Mosby in the two syndicated Lonesome Dove series, although he had a recurring role on the ABC flop Townies and the NBC bomb Jenny. He had much better luck in Borrowed Hearts: A Holiday Romance, a 1997 TV movie in which he co-starred with Roma Downey.

He plays Mel Ferrer opposite Jennifer Love Hewitt's title character in ABC's upcoming Audrey Hepburn movie.

Q: When did The Cosby Mysteries air on TV? And what was the name of the moose who walked through the town in the opening credits of Northern Exposure? –Mrs. Mary C. Love, Lock Haven, Pa.

A: Cosby Mysteries, which starred Bill Cosby as New York criminologist Guy Hanks, aired on NBC from Sept. 21, 1994, to April 12, 1995. James Naughton and Rita Moreno co-starred.

Morty the moose in Northern Exposure was part of a captive moose herd maintained at a research station affiliated with Washington State University. He died during the run of the show, apparently of a copper and cobalt deficiency. His offspring include Melody and Matilda, born in 1993.

Q: Who created the role of Alice Kramden on The Honeymooners? –M. Huberth, Port Charlotte, Fla.

A: The character of Alice first appeared on Cavalcade of Stars with Pert Kelton in the role.

Eric McCormack

Q: I heard that Tea Leoni and David Duchovny are expecting. Has the baby been born? –Roseanne Harrington, San Angelo, Texas.

A: A daughter, Madelaine West Duchovny, was born April 24.

Q: Is Rebecca Romijn-Stamos related to John Stamos of Full House? –Alesha Stewart, Centerton, Ark.

A: They're married.

Q: Where was Joe Lando (Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman) born? –Donann Ausderau, El Paso, Texas.

A: Lando was born Dec. 9, 1961, in Chicago.

Q: Can you provide the title of a TV movie set in a Pennsylvania coal mining area and starring Colleen Dew-hurst, Jason Robards and Kathy Bates? –April, Punta Gorda, Fla.

A: That was Johnny Bull (1986), which also co-starred Peter MacNicol (Ally McBeal).

SOAP TALK

Sorel at end of her Days; others remain in the Light

She has portrayed the often-wicked Vivian Alamain on Days of Our Lives since 1992. Now Louise Sorel is moving on. The actress will depart the role when her contract expires in 2000.

"Louise Sorel is a great actress and a class act who brought to life perhaps the most original role in the history of daytime television," say the show's producers, Ken Corday and Tom Langan.

"She is always up for playing whatever the role requires – whether it is unrequited love, the fierce love of a mother, comic relief or literally falling from a hot-air balloon. Louise has had a fabulous run on the show. We love the character of Vivian, and hopefully she will return sometime in the near future."

Also leaving daytime is Susan Misner, who plays Grace Davidson in One Life to Live. Misner's departure is dictated by the story line.

Over at Guiding Light, Crystal Chappell and David Andrew Macdonald (Olivia and Prince Edmund Winslow) both have signed long-term contracts. Olivia isn't happy about the way her life is going and blames Reva Cooper (Kim Zimmer) for her troubles. Producers say Olivia will become a much darker – and likely meaner – character.

Dear Candace: I was wondering what happened to the guy who used to play A.J. on General Hospital. I haven't seen him in a long time. –A fan via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Sean Kanan is playing Jude on Sunset Beach. Some personal problems kept him from the acting world for a short time, but he's back and better than ever. He recently wed his longtime girlfriend, Athena Ubach.

Dear Candace: I really like the new NBC drama Passions. Can you tell me about the actor who plays Ethan Crane? He's really handsome. –M in Milwaukee.

Dear Reader: Travis Schuldt, who plays wealthy Ethan, was born in Topeka, Kan., but grew up in Fort Worth, Texas. He graduated from Texas Christian University with a theater degree. Schuldt has worked in theater, but Passions is his first TV show. He says he loves playing ultimate Frisbee and mountain biking.
