Agree To Restrictions...

Reagan Faces Uphill Fight To Sell Planes To Saudis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, opening "an uphill fight" to keep Congress from rejecting the sale of sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia, says the Saudis have agreed to restrictions that would lessen the threat to Israel.

President Reagan officially notified lawmakers Monday that he has decided to sell the Saudis $8.5 billion in arms, including five Airborne Warning and Control System — AWACS — planes and gear to increase the flying range of 62 U.S.-made F-15 already purchased by the Saudis.

It would be the largest U.S. arms sale ever to another nation.

State Department officials, who briefed reporters on the condition they not be identified, said the Saudi planes would be less sophisticated than the AWACS used by the United States and its NATO allies.

There also would be restrictions on where the planes could operate and Americans would be on them initially, although they would be manned entirely by the Saudis after five years, the officials said.

While they refused to say what areas would be off-limits to the planes, one official repeated past administration statements that Israeli fighters could shoot them down if they flew close enough to spy on Israel's air operations. AWACS can monitor all planes within 200 miles.

Another official conceded there was no way to guarantee the safety of Americans, either on the planes or on the ground, in the event of a Saudi-Israeli conflict.

State Department officials said more than 400 Americans, including 30 Air Force training personnel, would be assigned to Saudi Arabia under the proposed contract. The numbers would diminish with time but Americans would be assigned there as long as the planes lasted, they said.

Under the timetable administration officials announced Monday, the sale will go through unless both the House and Senate vote against it by Oct. 30. The first planes would be delivered in late 1985.

A majority in both houses already have indicated opposition to the sale.

One State Department official said he would not deny "it's going to be an uphill fight, but we are confident, very confident, that the sheer logic of what we are proposing is so overwhelming as to guarantee the sale."

The administration told four congressional committees Monday that it will give them formal preliminary notice of the sale Sept. 9 and final notice Sept. 30. The final notice will trigger a 30-day period for Congress to either veto the sale or allow it to go ahead.

The Israeli Embassy on Monday reiterated opposition to the AWACS sale, saying Israel "considers the sale of the AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia a danger to its security and to the military balance in the area."

Tuesday update

Inflation Rate Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soaring housing costs and food prices boosted the nation's annual inflation rate to 15.2 percent in July, the highest rate since spring of 1980, the government reported today.

Increases in transportation and medical care costs also contributed to the 1.2 percent gain in the seasonally adjusted July figure, which would total 15.2 percent if reported for 12 consecutive months.

The sharp gain brought the inflation rate back into double-digit territory for the first time since February. It was the biggest one-month rise since the 1.4 percent increase of March 1980.

From July 1980 the rate has run at 10.7 percent. For the first seven months of this year, it was 9.4 percent on an annualized basis.

Weteyes Leak

DENVER (AP) — A "minute" amount of nerve gas has been found in the shipping container surrounding one of the Weteye nerve gas bombs scheduled for shipment from Denver to Utah, according to the chief chemist of the Colorado Health Department.

Chemist William Dunn said Monday the concentration of nerve agent found during preflight testing was barely detectable and was so low the bomb was not considered to be leaking by U.S. Army standards.

"You could walk around that bomb all day and it wouldn't affect you" because the concentration was so low, Dunn said.

Juvenile Cubans Released

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A federal judge in Cheyenne, Wyo. has ordered the release of five juvenile Cuban refugees and caustically criticized the federal government for keeping them in jail more than a year without cause.

"I think it's time the federal government's ostracism of Cubans was stopped," U.S. District Judge Clarence Brimmer said Monday.

For Abscam Conviction...

Williams Fights Expulsion Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., vowing to fight a committee recommendation to expel him for "ethically repugnant" conduct, says he is heartened by the panel's plea that Senate punishment await appeal of his Abscam bribery conviction.

The Senate ethics committee, interrupting its summer vacation, met for seven hours Monday before recommending that the 61-year-old New Jersey Democrat be the first senator to be expelled since the Civil War.

At the same time, however, the committee urged the full Senate to delay action, citing "the gravity of this sanction and the complexity of this case."

"I have indicated that I am not going to resign," Williams told reporters afterward. "I am going to advance every opportunity that is before me to show clearly my innocence. This is a significant step in furtherance of my opportunity."

Williams, now in his 23rd year in the Senate, was convicted May 1 by a federal jury in New York of nine bribery and conspiracy charges for agreeing to trade his influence for a hidden share of a $100 million loan from an undercover FBI agent posing as an Arab sheik.

U.S. District Judge George Pratt is not expected to rule until October on Williams' appeal.

Enrollment Here Continues Gains

Public school enrollment logged a substantial gain here today, following an opening day total that had exceeded the first-day figures of a year ago.

Supt Bill J. Hood said 76 more students were on hand for classes today. This is considered a rather heavy increase for the second day , and it may be attributed to the early starting date.

Anyway, total enrollment this morning had reached 3,428, with gains recorded at all levels. There were no figures for second-day totals a year ago since the changes that early were negligible and the second enrollment report for the fall semester was not made until he end of the first week.

The figures today showed 858 in high school, an increase of 14 over Monday; 534 in junior high, an increase of 18; 300 in North Elementary, an increase of nine; 373 in Central Elementary, an increase of 14; 339 at East Elementary, an increase of three; 398 at West Elementary, an increase of 10; 370 at Northeast Elementary, an increase of six, amd 256 at Stanfield Elementary, an increase of two.

Hood said the next enrollment check will be made Friday, the end of the first week of instruction.

Last year, Snyder Public Schools did not begin classes until Sept. 2, the day after Labor Day. The starting date was moved up this year in order to end the first semester before Christmas and end the spring term earlier.

HOUSTON (AP) — A recently developed color photograph "definitely" shows a propeller of the sunken ocean liner Titanic, the Abilene millionaire who has bankrolled two searches for the ship told the Houston Post.

Grimm told the paper Monday the propeller was photographed during a July expedition to find the "unsinkable" luxury liner which went down on its maiden voyage after striking an iceberg in 1912.

He said the propeller matches dimensions of the Titanic's propellers — about 16 feet in diameter.

"I feel we definitely found one of the propellers," Grimm said from his Abilene office. "If you find an acorn, the tree can't be far away, can it?"

He said the prop was in the same area from which the Titanic's last SOS was thought to have been sent, about 250 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

"I'm very encouraged by what we've found," he said. "It just looms stronger and stronger that that's it."

Grimm said the still photo confirms a videotape of the propeller taken by searchers. But he said the film was not developed until the Texas A&M research vessel Gyre was about 200 miles from the propeller's location and headed into port.

The SDN Column

Although the calendar says there is nearly a month more of summer, it is, for all practical purposes, fall at our house.

It matters not that the mid-day temperature soars into the 90s and some people still have vacation time left, it is the same as fall when the public schools and colleges open their sessions and football begins.

In case you were not prepared for it, or had not been alerted, football season was well underway the past weekend with professional games on television Friday night, Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. There will be more, of course, when the professionals begin playing for the title and the college teams join the weekend fare. Add a little Canadian type on the all-sports cable channel, and the fully-dedicated fan will tell you that things are in fairly acceptable perspective.

Already we can see new trouble ahead for the men in the striped shirts at the professional games. The commentators had to explain some strange calls in the past week's exhibition games, the main one being the new rule, or new interpretation of the rule, on pass receptions. Now, they say, if a receiver gets his hands on the football and manages to get both feet on the ground, it is a completed pass even if a defender rips the ball free or he drops it in a split second. This, of course, can work to the advantage of either team. If the receiver bobbles the football after that split second when he had his hands on it and touched his feet to the ground, it might be recovered by the opposition, it might go out of bounds, or, he or one of his teammates might recover it.

But we noticed that different sets of officials had a tendency to call the completion, or incompletion, differently the past weekend. In fact, some were calling passes completed when it appeared that the receiver not only failed to hold the ball long enough to get both feet on the ground, but they never had it at all. Some of those in the TV booths, especially old, exhausted players, expressed disbelief.

We predict a lot of confusion if they do not develop consistency on this call. And when there is confusion, the zebras always absorb a lot of flak.

About the time we were watching the past weekend's games on the tube, notice of a rule change in another department arrived.

The U. S. Department of the Interior has advised that the alligator is no longer a "threatened " species in Louisiana. Since the depth of alligators has increased rapidly there in recent years, this must be good news to Cajuns. It seems only yesterday that they were telling us in Washington that alligators definitely were on their way out. Cajuns and even deep East Texans knew, however, that if you give an alligator an inch, he will take the entire swamp.

Chapman Gets 20 Years For Murdering Lennon

NEW YORK (AP) — Mark David Chapman, sentenced to 20 years to life in prison for gunning down ex-Beatle John Lennon, has taken a "vow of silence," his lawyer says.

Chapman was sentenced Monday by acting Justice Dennis Edwards, who said he should receive psychiatric treatment during his imprisonment. Chapman was to be taken today to Sing Sing prison in Ossining, N.Y., to await a final prison assignment.

"He's a very dangerous man," lawyer Jonathan Marks said about his client. "Through that treatment, perhaps the sentence will make some sense."

Marks had planned an insanity defense for Chapman.

But then the former mental patient from Hawaii pleaded guilty June 22 to killing Lennon outside the posh Dakota apartments, where the singer-songwriter lived with his wife, Yoko Ono, and their son, Sean. Miss Ono was not in court Monday.

Marks said he would not appeal unless Chapman asked him to.

During Monday's sentencing, Chapman, protected in a bulletproof vest, read aloud what he called "my final spoken words" — a passage from J.D. Salinger's book "Catcher In The Rye." Marks said Chapman has taken a "vow of silence."

Chapman has insisted the book explains his reason for killing Lennon last Dec. 8. In the passage read in court, the book's troubled teen-aged hero, Holden Caulfield, visualizes thousands of children playing in a field of rye. Caulfield thought it was his job to keep them from falling over a cliff.

Chapman did not elaborate on the connection.

Dr. Daniel Schwartz, a defense psychiatric witness, said during the sentencing hearing Chapman was a "chronic paranoid schizophrenic" who had experienced delusions since childhood.

The murder was Chapman's "psychiatric substitute for suicide," Schwartz said. He explained Chapman had projected his own shortcomings onto Lennon and "killed himself psychologically" by committing the murder.

The prosecutor, assistant district attorney Allen Sullivan, said Chapman committed "a public crime" when he shot the 40-year-old Lennon. "He wanted to steal someone else's fame," said Sullivan. "He got what he wanted."

The prosecutor said Chapman planned the crime for at least two months. He visited New York last October but left, Sullivan said, since he could not obtain bullets and Lennon was inaccessible.

Chapman returned Dec. 6 and "stalked" Lennon, "waiting all day" for his victim outside the Dakota Dec. 8, he said. Lennon, leaving his home with his wife for a recording session, stopped to autograph a copy of his last album, "Double Fantasy," for Chapman.

When the couple returned shortly before 11 p.m., Chapman stepped from the shadows of the Dakota's arched entranceway and fired five shots. Four hit Lennon.

Chapman was arrested within minutes. He was sitting near the shooting scene, reading "The Catcher in the Rye."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Self-treatment is not wise

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother practically lives on antacids. I don't know how many she takes but a box disappears very quickly. And she uses several different kinds. I have suggested that she should see a doctor but she says it is just too much acid and the doctors would just give her an expensive prescription for the same thing she can buy herself.

Is there any danger from taking all those antacids, even if you can buy them without a prescription? Is there a difference in the pills and if so what one is best?

DEAR READER — There hasn't been a pill invented yet that is safe for everybody on all occasions. The biggest danger here is the same you have with many pills people can buy for themselves — the patient may be self-treating the wrong thing. Anyone who requires the regular use of antacids to prevent complaints of indigestion deserves a medical examination. She may have a hiatal hernia — or even a cancer of the stomach. Fortunately these are more rare today. She could even have gallbladder disease.

There are a lot of problems associated with antacids. Some authorities have been concerned about the possible relationship of aluminum (found in aluminum cookware) and possible brain cell changes of the type seen with aging, but you will absorb much more aluminum from antacids that are made with aluminum preparations — and a major portion of them are.

Magnesium in antacids can be a real problem. After age 50 people don't eliminate magnesium as easily from the kidneys and they may accumulate a high blood level which causes magnesium toxicity. The symptoms are those of confusion and senility. Because many older people are the very ones who get overloaded with magnesium in antacids and laxatives, the danger is that someone will be thought to be senile when in fact magnesium toxicity is present.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-4, Use and Abuse of Antacids, which you might want your mother to read. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes a list of the ingredients in commonly available preparations and their effects.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can an eight-hour open heart surgery cause a complete personality change in a person? The surgery was done 10 years ago on my husband at age 40. There wasn't a sweeter and nicer husband or father on this earth before that time. Then five years ago at age 45, he had a complete change in his personality, morals, habits and everything. He became a non-caring, non-feeling, heavy drinker and started dating very young girls.

Four men had the same surgery about the same time. Two have died and one has been in the hospital for a nervous breakdown. They were all about the same age.

DEAR READER — Don't blame it on the surgery. It is true that many patients do develop a postoperative psychosis after major surgery. That can be open heart surgery or other operations. But that change would have been immediate and not five years later. Your husband may be reacting to his life stresses or be in need of psychiatric counseling. Depending on which came first, the alcohol may be a cause or a result of his problem.

Early on the morning of Aug. 13, 1961, barbed wire was strung along the 29-mile border between East and West Berlin, severing the last remaining free passage between the Soviet bloc and the West. The Berlin Wall was born. The wall sealed off what had been an open boundary dividing Soviet-occupied East Berlin from the French, British and American sectors forming West Berlin.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

It's been coming for a long time, but I didn't put my finger on the problem until the other night.

Every time a news story breaks, I find myself knowing more about it than I care to know. If it's a Washington scandal, I see the "scandalee" on television, in the newspaper, in magazines, authoring a paperback, on radio talk shows, on a poster and a few weeks later on Hollywood Squares.

The other night as I watched two TV reporters interviewing one another, it hit me. We don't have enough major news stories to go around.

Suppose it's a slow news days and a congressman is suspected of paying $130,000 a year to a secretary who couldn't find her office.

We get to see the congressman with his head in an attache case hiding from cameras, lurking behind the blinds of his apartment and shouting obscenities to the press as he runs to the elevator. After we have seen his mother, his birthplace and the typewriter that was never unpacked in he office, we are treated to an interview with a psychiatrist who explains mid-life behavior, an interview with the head of the secretaries' association, plus a few tabloids that will examine the contents of the congressman's garbage.

The answer is simple. Those of you living ordinary, uneventful lives are just going to have to get off your apathy and start supplying news to fill the demand.

Heaven knows, Elizabeth Taylor, the baseball strike, Sandra O'Connor, Prince Charles and Lady Diana. William Casey and John McEnroe have done their share. (Do you think Bani-Sadr enjoyed describing the dress he wore to escape from Iran to France to Woman's Wear Daily?) It's time for all of us to pitch in and bear our Media Burden.

The next time you feel like staying home and doing something uneventful, just think about the 1,769 daily newspaper in this country that are counting on you, the 1,013 television stations with 20 hours of time to fill every day, the thousands of radio stations that want to hear your questions, the hundreds of magazines and newsletters who need to know what you have never told anyone before and hunger for details of your life.

So, don't just sit there...do something.

Quirk Of Nature Caused 1st Raisins

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Nearly half of the world's raisin supply is produced in California's fertile San Joaquin Valley and local growers say the first American crop came through a quirk of nature, and not man's ingenuity.

Long before the "FortyNiners" set out from San Francisco in search of mineral wealth, Spanish missionaries had established a string of vineyards along the California coast to make sacramental wines.

Soon former prospectors and local farmers were growing grapes and selling the harvests for fruit and wine. Then, before the harvest of September 1873, a severe heat wave struck the San Joaquin Valley and shriveled most of the grapes on the vine before they could be harvested.

One farmer recalled that grapes had been dried and sold as raisins in Europe since the day of ancient Rome, when physicians recommended them as a cure for just about everything from mushroom poisoning to old age.

The farmer took his accidental raisin crop to San Francisco, where an enterprising grocer agreed to sell them. Their popularity soon spread and raisin growing was developed in California into a scientific process that now yields some of the world's finest raisins.

Today, some 6,000 California growers produce an annual crop of about 200,000 tons that are shipped all over the world.

About 90 percent of California's raisins are made from a seedless thin-skinned grape brought to this country many years ago by an Englishman named William Thompson.

Raisins are a key ingredient in a number of desserts, including such yuletide favorites as fruit cake, plum pudding and mince pie. They are a valuable addition to many baked goods, helping to keep them fresh and moist. Here is a recipe for a raisin and nut cake.

2 cups sugar
2 cups black coffee, or water if preferred
½ cup shortening
2 cups raisins
1 apple, peeled and grated
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon each cinnamon, allspice, cloves and nutmeg
1 cup chopped walnuts

Combine sugar, coffee, shortening, raisins and apple and simmer for 10 minutes over moderate heat. Mix together remaining ingredients and stir into mixture in saucepan. Pour batter into well-greased and floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour till toothpick inserted comes out clean. Cool in pan, then turn onto wire rack to finish cooling. Dust with powdered sugar if desired.

South was tempted to duck the queen of hearts when East led it at trick two. But he would have felt rather silly if East had only been dealt a five-card suit, so East played his king and West ruffed.

Now West led the queen of diamonds to South's ace. South's first thought was to run off trumps and pray for rain in the form of some really bad discarding by East and West. Then South decided that wouldn't work.

As he explained later on, he looked at the players and they didn't look like they were unable to play cards.

Now South worked out a sure-thing play. That is, it would be a sure thing as long as East held the ace of clubs. South led another heart. West ruffed with the nine and led a trump. South won and ruffed his last heart with dummy's eight.

Next came the king of clubs play. East played his ace. South ruffed and drew trumps. Finally, he led a diamond to dummy's king and discarded his last diamond on the queen of clubs.

Beauty Digest

New casual looks

If you want to look casual for a date or party, but you're bored with those same old jeans, try a ruffly peasant skirt with a T-shirt or tank top for a style that's simple but feminine. If you prefer wearing pants, this year's cute culottes or a jumpsuit are great choices. For a little added pizzaz, wear an Indian belt or a pair of moccasins — they'll even liven up those same old jeans.

Fine hair remedy

Marlo Thomas let "Beauty Digest" in on some of the special problems she has keeping her hair beautiful: "Some years ago, due to teasing, my hair started splitting and breaking off at the ends. So I stopped doing that. Since my hair is fine and quite straight, I must wash it daily or it just hangs limply. I prefer using a hood dryer, but in a rush I will blow-dry."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Bill and I were married June 1, 1980. We received many gifts of money from relatives, but we never got anything from my mother's sister, Aunt Jenny, who is usually pretty generous. We thought it was rather strange, but of course we didn't say anything.

Well, we just found out that the May before our wedding, my mother borrowed $500 from Aunt Jenny with the understanding that starting June 1 she would give Aunt Jenny $100 a month to pay back the loan. Since our wedding was June 1, Aunt Jenny told my mother to give the first $100 to Bill and me as her (Aunt Jenny's) wedding present.

It's been over a year now, and Mom still hasn't given us the $100. My mother is always crying "poor mouth," but she eats out with her friends nearly every night, plays bingo three nights a week and works two jobs. The money would come in handy now as we have a baby.

Bill says we should skip it. I say my mother owes us $100, and if she doesn't pay it, Aunt Jenny should because she committed herself for that amount as our wedding present.

Abby, who owes who what? And what do you think of this whole family mess?

HOLDING THE BAG

DEAR HOLDING: As I see it, the only person who "owes" anybody anything is your mother, who owes Aunt Jenny $500 because she borrowed it. Aunt Jenny doesn't "owe" you anything because a gift is never "owed," it's voluntary. I think your mother's word isn't worth very much, and your Aunt Jenny's style of gift-giving is tacky. I vote with Bill. Skip it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had an article regarding children answering the telephone. I have something I would like to add that I think is worthy of printing because it would save thousands of people hours of wasted time: Have paper and pencil handy to write down any message or phone number.

It is astonishing to me that only about 1 in 50 people answering the telephone (other than business establishments) have anything available to write on or write with. And the person making the call has to sit and wait while the other person hunts up something to write with—and I am talking about adults.

ELSA IN FORT MYERS

DEAR ELSA: Hear, hear! Now if only someone would perfect a pencil that can be chained to the telephone so the kids couldn't carry it off!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married a few months ago, and since then we've had a bit of a mystery on our hands.

At our reception, shortly after our wedding cake was disassembled, it was discovered that the decoration piece from the top of the cake was missing.

Someone then informed us that it was a customary wedding prank. Someone "steals" the decoration, and the bride and groom then have until their first anniversary to figure out who has it. If they find out who's holding it, a party is given for them by this person. If not, the newlyweds must give a party in order to get back the decoration.

I have never in my life heard of such a custom.

We've asked a number of people, and nobody we spoke to has ever heard of it. The ornament that topped our wedding cake has sentimental value to us, and of course we hope to get it back, but we'd like to know if you or any of your readers have ever heard of such a custom.

SUSIE IN WAUKEGAN, ILL.

DEAR SUSIE: It's news to me. But if such a custom exists, I'll surely hear about it after this hits print. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: I just read the leter from the woman whose husband goes out to fetch the morning paper in the nude. She said, "I can hardly look my neighbors in the face, wondering if they've seen my husband picking up our morning paper."

Please tell her I've seen her husband, and I can understand why she can hardly look her neighbors in the face.

Voyager 2 Nears Saturn's Surface

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 2, America's mechanical emissary to distant worlds, swooped past battered, frozen moons and glimmering rings today as it neared its closest approach to Saturn's pastel surface.

On the eve of the encounter, the 1-ton Voyager was pronounced "in excellent health," with everything working smoothly both on the spaceship and at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, where nearly 500 scientists, engineers and technicians were making final preparations.

Mission director Richard Laeser said last-minute changes were still being made Monday in some of Voyager's assignments.

The ship cruises just 63,000 miles above Saturn's cloud tops at 11:24 p.m. EDT. News of the fly-by won't reach Earth, however, until the radio signals arrive at 12:50 a.m. Wednesday.

Its television eyes shifting frantically from one mystifying sight to the next, the robot explorer was giving earthlings their best look at an exotic kingdom 967 million miles away — a giant, gaseous world swaddled in delicately painted clouds.

The ship's cameras and instruments examined the strangely misshapen moon Hyperion late Monday, then looked from 413,000 miles at giant Titan, a planet-sized moon hidden inside a dense atmosphere, early today. On Saturday evening the spacecraft scanned another of Saturn's 17 known moons, two-tone, reddish Iapetus, with one extremely dark hemisphere and the other, a shiny region of cratered ice.

Voyager continues poking and probing one of the solar system's most spectacular sights and greatest mysteries — the cradle of rings that reaches 150,000 miles from Saturn. A major chore for Voyager 2 is to search for clues that might explain the myriad of tiny ringlets found hiding in the major rings when a sister ship, Voyager 1, encountered Saturn last November.

The ship's cameras have been taking high-resolution pictures of selected regions of the rings in hopes of confirming a popular theory for the rings' startling complexity. The search is for small moonlets — less than 20 miles across — that might be sweeping out gaps within the rings and thus creating the smaller ringlets.

With most pictures of target areas already examined, imaging team leader Brad Smith said Monday no moonlets have turned up and the theory seems to be slipping away.

Pictures of Hyperion, taken before Voyager's encounter, from 300,000 miles, with the moon late Monday, revealed an object that looks like a giant peanut or a battered beer can, although Smith said, "It's beginning to look more like a hockey puck."

Roughly 130 miles by 220 miles, the moon's long axis seemed not to point as it should at Saturn, leading some scientists to suggest it might have been knocked out of its normal orientation by a strong impact of some kind.

As it races past Saturn, at speeds reaching more than 50,000 mph, Voyager 2 will grab close peeks at four more icy moons.

Plead Guilty To Kidnapping

HOUSTON (AP) — One of two men who pleaded guilty to kidnapping charges also pleaded guilty to an unrelated robbery charge filed when the victim identified him from a news photo, prosecutors said.

Paul Phillip Steffler, 49, and Jack Donald Curfman, 25, pleaded guilty Monday to charges they abducted the infant son of a grocery store manager and the child's 16-year-old babysitter last August.

Assistant District Attorney Chris Hanger said Steffler and his 25-year-old son, Charles, also pleaded guilty Monday to the robbery charge.

Anonymous Tip Leads To Raid

Acting on an anonymous tip received by Officer Robert Harbin, Snyder police conducted a narcotics raid on a house at 201 N. Old Lubbock Hwy shortly before midnight Monday.

Approximately six ounces of marijuana in several plastic bags and various paraphernalia were found in the residence and one 22 year-old man was taken into custody. Felony charges are expected to be filed in District Court later today, said Lt. Steve Warren.

In other activity, a minor accident occurred at 4:45 p.m. Monday in the parking lot at Wilson Motors. Involved was a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Michael Dean Clifton and a 1977 Ford driven by Robert Charles Joplin.

At 8:47 p.m., a 29 year-old man was picked up for driving without a license and being an illegal alien.

A 36 year-old man was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated at 9:52 a.m. at Varsity Square.

Cool carefully and help hold down your bills.

In many homes, summer air conditioning uses more electricity than all other appliances combined. To help hold down electric bills, use it sparingly. Set your thermostat at 80 degrees or higher, and use a fan to circulate the air. A fan uses considerably less electricity than air conditioning. And when no one is going to be home, make sure your air conditioning is turned off. It pays to know how to cool carefully.

LITTLIEST SKATERS-- Brandon La Roux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe La Roux, and Stephanie Buchanan, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Buchanan, were two of the littliest skaters to participate in the Muscular Dystrophy Skate-a-thon sponsored Saturday at Skateworld by the Snyder Jaycees. The little tykes took their turn skating to the beat of modern music, managing to keep up just fine with their older counterparts. (SDN Staff Photo By Shirley A. Gorman)

Help Needed To Move Books

DEPTFORD TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The James H. Johnson Memorial Library has enlisted worms to help its move to new quarters.
Bookworms, that is.
Lois Greene, director of the library, didn't think this Gloucester County town could afford moving 23,000 stories to a new building that opens Sept. 9.
So, she asked everybody in town to check out 20 books from the old and bring them back to the new.
So far, the town has been checking out 600 volumes a day, she said. But even that pace is too slow, so 15-year-old Boy Scout Mike Bengel, who is two merit badges and a public-service project shy of becoming an Eagle Scout, was appointed by his scoutmaster to oversee getting the rest of the books from here to there. He signed up 14 other scouts and rounded up 225 cardboard boxes.

Siamese Twins Have Adjusted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Yvette and Yvonne Jones are Siamese twins, best friends who share a lively interest in the world. But even with an intimacy that dictates both will die at the same time, they can never see each others' faces, except in a mirror.
The women were born 32 years ago joined at the tops of their heads — a condition known as craniopagus twins.
The Siamese twins have normally developed bodies, separate brains and different personalities. It is a type of abnormality that doctors say occurs perhaps once in every 2.5 million births.
The twins must walk with their necks turned to the side at nearly a 90 degree angle, but they insist it does not hurt. And with their connected circulation, the death of one would mean death for both, said Dr. Frank Anderson, a pediatric neurosurgeon at Childrens Hospital.
Despite lives that began as circus attractions to help pay their hospital bill, the twins are free of bitterness and can charm people who are shocked by their appearance.
Recently, a stunned waiter dropped his order pad and spilled the wine he was carrying as he approached their table.
Never missing a beat, Yvonne calmly introduced him to everyone at the table except her sister. When Yvette piped up to introduce herself, Yvonne joked, "Oh, yeah, I forgot about her."
The waiter was at ease.
"People can't help themselves," said Yvette, the more timid of the pair.
The first streetcars in America, drawn by horses, began service in New York in 1832.

The 57-year-old Smith currently is serving as the administrator of the Alton Mental Health Center, a facility of the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities. He has held that position since 1957.

Green Gets Red Over Umpire's 2nd Base Call

by The Associated Press

Manager Dallas Green was long gone when Manny Trillo slammed a two-out, two-run homer that boosted the Philadelphia Phillies to a 13-inning victory over the Atlanta Braves. How long Green will be gone may be up to National League President Chub Feeney.

Green and Philadelphia shortstop Larry Bowa were ejected in the ninth inning from Monday night's game after what at first appeared to be an inning-ending double play.

Bowa grabbed Dale Murphy's grounder, ran to second base, then threw to first. As the Phillies started to leave the field, thinking they were going into the bottom of the ninth with a 4-4 tie, second base umpire Steve Fields ruled runner Chris Chambliss was safe at second as Atlanta's fifth run crossed home plate.

"He (Bowa) wasn't even close to tagging the base," Fields said. "The only thing I can tell you is he straddled the bag...He just flat missed it by six inches."

Bowa charged Fields, yelling at the umpire, waved his glove and slammed his hat to the ground.

"I ran Bowa for throwing the glove," Fields said.

Green raced from the dugout, put himself between Bowa and the umpire, screamed at Fields, bumped him several times and grabbed the umpire's hat, knocking it off his head. Philadelphia players finally restrained Green after he bumped Fields several times.

Bowa also was restrained by his teammates and the other umpires as he tried to get at Fields a second time.

"I ejected Dallas because he threw his hat and threw my hat," Fields said.

In other NL games Monday, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Diego 9-8 in 11 innings, Los Angeles blanked Pittsburgh 3-0, Cincinnati shutout the New York Mets 2-0 and St. Louis needed 10 innings to get past San Francisco 2-1.

"I've been in the game 25 years and seen that play 10,000 times," Green said of Bowa's "phantom tag" at second. "Five thousand times he (the fielder) touches the bag. Five thousand times he doesn't. But 10,000 times the runner is out.

"Bowa touched the base."

The shortstop later described Fields as incompetent.

"I hit the bag with my heel," Bowa said. "If I didn't think I hit the bag, I wouldn't argue. I've never seen that call ever."

The Phillies came back to tie the game in the bottom of the ninth and send the game into extra innings, setting the stage for Trillo's heroics.

Another argument broke out after the game in the tunnel leading to the umpires' dressing room. Nick Colosi, the umpire-in-chief, turned on a television commentator, cussed him out and reportedly smashed what the commentator said was a $40,000 camera.

Vikings Loom As Top Team In NFC Central Once Again

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - If there is one thing that can be said about the National Football Conference Central Division, it is that the more things change, the more they remain the same.

Although the Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears and Tampa Bay Buccaneers have all made substantial improvement over the past few years, they still seem to be chasing Minnesota.

The Vikings, who have won 11 division titles in the last 13 years, have a simple formula for success - stability in the organization from top to bottom.

Since Bud Grant took over at Minnesota in 1967, the other four teams in the NFC Central have gone through 14 head coaches - Detroit five, Green Bay and Chicago four apiece and Tampa Bay one.

"The teams that have the greatest success are those that have the greatest continuity in coaches, general managers and owners," says Grant. "Continuity breeds security; security breeds success; success breeds a winning football program."

Perhaps the rest of the division has finally taken note. Monte Clark has been at the helm since 1978 and looks like he has Detroit headed in the right direction.

Likewise, Neill Armstrong, a former assistant under Grant, has been at Chicago since 1978 and John McKay has guided the expansion Buccaneers since their inception in 1976.

Only Green Bay, where Bart Starr is beginning his seventh season, has failed to make consistent progress.

As defending division champs, and with essentially the same team back in 1981, Minnesota will be considered the favorite. Detroit and Chicago loom as the two teams with the best chance to unseat the Vikings, while the Bucs and Packers must regroup from disastrous 1980 seasons.

In the last four years, two teams have tied for the division crown, with the championship being decided via the tie-breaker. In three of those seasons - 1977, 1978 and 1980 - it was the Vikings who came out the winner.

"Personally, looking at our division from top to bottom, I think it is one of the most competitive in the NFL," says Grant. "For years I watched teams from Dallas and Oakland and Los Angeles win their divisions when they didn't have any competition. Last year they got some competition and none of the three won their division championship, although I certainly must give Oakland credit for rebounding to win the Super Bowl."

The Vikings, who are to move into a new domed stadium in downtown Minneapolis next season, love to pass. Minnesota ranked 27th in the National Football League in rushing last year, with halfback Ted Brown (912 yards) the only threat.

Quarterback Tommy Kramer, in his third full season since taking over for Fran Tarkenton, has thrown 1,088 passes in the last two years for nearly 7,000 yards. He must, however, cut down on his interceptions.

Kramer has brilliant targets in wide receivers Ahmad Rashad, Sammy White and top draft pick Mardye McDole, plus tight end Joe Senser.

Minnesota's defense, once the cornerstone of the Vikings' franchise, ranked 26th last year and isn't likely to show dramatic improvement in 1981.

The return of quarterback Gary Danielson and the rise of running back Billy Sims rejuvenated the Lions' offense last year, but the sparks lasted only until midseason, when Detroit lost six of eight games, including a 34-0 pasting by Minnesota.

Still, the Lions finished 9-7 after a 2-14 season in 1979, the best turnaround of any team in the league.

Sims gained 1,303 yards rushing, fifth best in the NFL, and also caught 51 passes while being named NFL Rookie of the Year.

This spring, Detroit drafted wide receiver Mark Nichols to help balance the offense.

The Bears apparently have decided to live or die with young quarterback Vince Evans, who took over for Mike Phipps in mid-season and was 5-5 as Chicago's starter.

Play It Again Muhammad Ali

An AP Sports Analysis
By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

Muhammad Ali, 39 years old and 244 pounds, and Joe Frazier, 37 and 236, say they are going to fight again. This proves boxing needs to copy sports such as baseball, golf and tennis, which have Old Timers' Fights or senior divisions.

Wouldn't an Old-Timers' Fight between Ali and Frazier, who fought three wars for real that will always be part of boxing legend, be something to take your son to?

"The one in the white trunks is Muhammad Ali," a man would say to his lad. "He doesn't move much now, but he was like lightning." The man, if a true fight buff or overcome by nostalgia, could then chant 'Float like a butterfly, sting like a bee."

"They used to call Frazier 'Smokin Joe,' he would say to the boy. "I know, I know, he's puffing. But he used to charge in like a freight train and hook. Oh, how he could hook!"

For a bonus, Sugar Ray Robinson and Gene Fullmer or Archie Moore and Joey Maxim, wearing boxing trunks, could take bows — like Joe DiMaggio doffing his cap at a baseball Old Timers' Game.

The man would buy an autographed glove and maybe, if caught up in the moment, purchase a video cassette of the great moments Ali and Frazier had when they were heavyweight champions of the world, commanding respect and big paychecks.

Or the man could take his boy to see Ali vs. Frazier in a senior-divison fight on a card in which younger, stronger, faster men fight. It wouldn't be the main event, but would be a lure for the older crowd.

Maybe another senior division bout could be held on the same card — Floyd Patterson against Ingemar Johannsen or Ken Norton vs. Jerry Quarry. There would be a 50-year-age limit, big gloves, three two-minute rounds. Nobody would get hurt, the money would be decent, but nothing like it was when they fought as younger, faster, stronger men.

The attention would be much less, too — and these men thrived on attention because it is one of the real rewards of a sport in which the many competitors toil in the shadows and in which those who reach the top spend countless, lonely hours in preparation.

Of course, none of the above is serious, except, unfortunately, the part about Ali and Frazier intending to fight again.

Ali sang the old refrain of being the greatest and shocking the world after getting a license last week from the boxing commission of that hotbed of boxing, Richland County in South Carolina, Smokin' Joe's native state.

Tourney Slated Here Friday

See For Yourself!

I was a calisthenics instructor in Abilene, exercising 2½ hrs. a day to try to get in shape. However I found myself developing muscles, not losing weight in my hips and thighs. Since I've joined Pat Walker's I have lost 15 lbs. and 23 inches (2½ inches in each thigh). I thoroughly enjoy the passive exercises on the symetricon unit which is simply designed to melt the fat from the body without the hard work. I eat three meals a day, enjoy my foods more and don't feel guilt ridden about dining out. For all of you who have taken my classes I invite you to come to Pat Walker's and see for yourself.

Twin engines, really flies.

The CarpeTwin vacuum has two motors for speed and endurance. One drives the rotary brush. A second generates the powerful suction. Definitely not a light-duty household vac. Designed for rugged 8-hour-a-day commercial service.

Hi-Vac Riding Lawn Mower Is Newest Feature At U-Rent-Em

A new addition at U-Rent-Em is the Snapper Hi-Vac riding lawn mower featuring an 8 h.p. Briggs & Stratton engine.

If you're not in the market for a new lawn mower, U-Rent-Em can repair your old one. George Lowe does repairs on just about any kind of small engine, and the firm is a dealer for Briggs & Stratton engines and parts.

The folks at U-Rent-Em can also duplicate all types of keys. So don't be caught without a spare, go by U-Rent-Em and have an extra set of keys made while you wait. In addition, they sell replacement locks and rekeyable locks as well as repair those damaged locks for you.

If you need something sharpened, which is much cheaper than replacing it, U-Rent-Em can do it. They sharpen scissors, lawnmower blades, knives and planer blades.

U-Rent-Em rents just about anything and everything you might need. Roll-away beds, Steamex carpet cleaners, folding chairs, etc. are just a few of the services they offer.

If you need to rent, to buy, or just need something repaired, stop by and see the friendly folks at U-Rent-Em, 3403 College Avenue.

Hillside Monument Works Sells Both Large, Small Monuments

Hillside Monument Works is next door to Hillside Memorial Gardens. W. C. Graves is the maker and designer.

Hillside Monument Works sells all types of monuments, large and small, to be set in all cemeteries at the most reasonable prices.

Hillside is the only monument works in this area. They have the latest equipment for designing and delivery service. The designer, Mr. Graves, has just completed a school for updating his skills in monument making.

Hillside Monument Works uses only Number 1 granite from Georgia and Marble Falls, Texas. The monuments are guaranteed, and fast service is their motto.

A monument is a lasting memorial to a loved one.

Remember, a monument does not show that someone died, but that someone lived.
