COLQUITT APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO STUDY REVENUE SYSTEM

MAKES PICK OF MEN WHO WILL OVERHAUL TAX

ARE TO FORM A PLAN OF ACTION FOR COMMISSION

ANALYSIS FIGURED NEW WAY OF RAISING STATE'S EXPENSES MAY RESULT

(By Associated Press)
AURIFIN, June 9.—A central committee of six to look out a definite plan of operation for the state tax survey commission was appointed late Thursday, first day of a two-day conference on means of revising the state tax system for relief of property tax payers now believed to be bearing an unfair burden.

Members Witz and Wood, representatives from Lubbock, J. Wilkey, San Antonio, and Dr. E. Miller, of the University of Texas, were named by former Governor O. B. Colquitt, chairman.

Appointment of the committee came after discussion of whether a commission should study state governmental operations, tax laws, and other pertinent matters, or whether the commission of 1925 should be split up into five sub-committees and each assigned particular phases to study.

Colquitt Analysis Needs
Chairman Colquitt, who believed that by making studies of governmental operations in the state, a study of the tax situation, going into detail on costs of government, how much of such are met with a laborer's revenue, and how the amount of revenue from state and county taxes is distributed, would result in a new way of raising state expenses. Ad valorem revenues were to be about fifty percent of taxes collected.

The report was held for further study and verification.

The committee, appointed by former Gov. Moody under authority of a resolution passed by the 25th legislature's regular session, is to make a thorough study of the tax situation, with a view to revising which can be enacted.

Representative Stevenson's proposed constitutional amendment, in effect to amend the present constitution, to make a thorough study of the tax situation, with a view to revising which can be enacted.

FATHER AND PREACHER ARE VICTIMS OF YOUNG MAN

NO MOTIVE KNOWN

EACH HAD BULLET IN TEMPLE WHEN DISCOVERED

(By Associated Press)
SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 9.—The Rev. William Wambagans, pastor of the German Lutheran church, and Frank Doering, Sr., were shot and killed today by Walter Doering, 21, the latter's son, who then ended his own life.

An investigation has so far failed to establish a motive.

Doering, 62, was the father of ten children, and the Rev. Wambagans the father of twelve children, some of whom live in New York state.

The slayer shot his two victims in the temple with a revolver. Mrs. Doering said she saw Walter on an errand shortly before noon and then went into the basement. There she found her husband's body. The son returned from the errand to be told of his father's death. While Doering was being investigated, Doering shot his bicycle, despite a paralyzed leg, to the home of the pastor where he asked for a private audience.

The minister left the dinner table and escorted young Doering into his study. No shots were heard, but when the minister fell to the floor, Doering shot him and found his son through the head. Young Doering's body was a few feet distant. There was no evidence of a struggle.

The Rev. Wambagans was 51 years old and a graduate of the St. Louis, Mo. He had been pastor of the Bethlehem German Lutheran church here for 27 years.

Police Doubt Explanation Of Branding

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 9 (AP)—The slaying of the letter "K" with a safety razor blade upon the forehead and one hand of Doris Williams, 21, stage and screen actress also known as Doris Dore, was being investigated today by police detectives.

The actress with two of the wounds bandaged and the rest treated with iodine, sat in her home relating confused accounts of an attack by a neighbor of a neighbor of a neighbor who had brandied her across the country.

The attack of an unidentified man with "terrifyingly long arms" occurred in the early hours today Miss Dore told the police when she opened her apartment door in response to a knock. She thought the knock was from a friend with whom she unrecalled yesterday, who had come to apologize. The man entered her room and despite her struggles held her on the bed with his hands while he carved out the initial on her forehead, chin, breast, hands and arms. When she revived she found herself splashed with blood and the man gone.

The detectives openly doubted the account related to the room, which showed no evidence of a struggle and to the bed clothes which bore up bloodstains.

CROWDS CHEER THE AMERICANS AT BANQUET

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, June 9.—Most of the flying German war aces assembled this afternoon in the German aerial club to welcome Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, American trans-Atlantic fliers, at the club.

The pair, accompanied by Ambassador Schurz, president of the club, were escorted to the table of honor, while their 400 hosts jumbled to attention and stood silent until the Americans were seated.

Among the notable German aces gathered to greet them were General Von Hagen, war time inspector of army aviation, Major Von Parzidal, who carried out Zeppelin's idea of rigid airships, Dr. Koehel, army surgeon for aviation in the war, and Professor Hezon, who for 25 years held the altitude record for balloons.

Wore Iron Cross
A goodly number of those assembled wore the iron cross of the first class awarded for bravery in battle, their many scars testified. There was a fair sprinkling of officers, including the president of the club, and a large number of young civilian aviators, contemporaries of the American guests.

After the company had congenially sipped tea and nibbled delicacies, the hostesses, including Major Von Kehler, first in German, led them to the hall where the fliers, old and new, were being proved the truth of the proverb "Here there's a will there's a way."

POLICE AND MILITARY TO PROTECT AIRMAN WHEN HE ARRIVES

WASHINGTON, June 9

Washington, June 9.—Fearing that Washington's usually enthusiastic when Lindbergh comes home Saturday, military and police authorities are making elaborate plans for his protection.

Should the thousands which will strain against the protesting wires along Pennsylvania avenue break through the ranks of the air police, cavalry, infantry, artillery, marines and sailors to the number of two thousand will surround his car to fend off the crowds.

Conditions surrounding his reception here will be materially different from those in France, Belgium and England where he landed on broad flying fields that are almost deserted by those seeking to personally congratulate him on his solitary flight from New York to Paris.

The air here will land at the navy yard which will be closed to the public and will be under the escort of both mounted cavalry and police when his car swings out into Eighth street, southeast en route to the presidential reception and reception at the Washington monument.

At Peace monument Lindbergh's car will fall in behind nearly 2,000 soldiers, marines and sailors for the march from the capitol over the stretch where the crowds undoubtedly will be the largest. These troops will be deployed around the official reception stand to protect both Lindbergh and President Coolidge should there be any mad rush by the hundreds of thousands.

Youth Admits Charge Of Attempt To Slay Premier Mussolini With Infernal Machine

ROME, June 9 (AP)—With neither remorse nor defiance in his voice, Gino Lucetti, young Italian anarchist who went on trial today for the attempted assassination of Premier Mussolini last year, recited in colorless tone a full confession of his guilt to the members of Fascism's supreme military tribunal.

"It was in December, 1922, at Marseille, when I heard of the murder at Turin of several Italian workmen," the tall peasant youth said coolly, "that I decided to return to Italy to kill one of the leading exponents of Fascism."

In January, 1923, Lucetti said, he came to Italy with the intention of assassinating the premier, but on realizing that his plans were impractical, he resolved to postpone the attempt in the hope that a spontaneous uprising against Fascism would make it unnecessary.

"I told none of my friends of my scheme and had no accomplices," Lucetti declared.

Grand Old Lady Of U. S. Approves Modern Life

(By Associated Press)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., June 9.—Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, the only woman ever to sit in the United States senate, looks confidently at life from her 82nd milestone and is going to make Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh "her model" for future activities.

Georgia's "grand old lady" will be 82 years old tomorrow, and her home town is planning to make this birthday the most memorable one she has ever had since she came here 74 years ago as a bride. Everybody is invited to the municipal birthday party, where Mrs. Felton proudly remarked "They're going to brag on me." But she's going to be "like Lindbergh and be modest," and then make a speech herself and do a little bragging about the home folks.

Lindbergh's New York to Paris flight furnished the turning point with one of the "biggest thrills" of her life. "I read all about that and I'm proud of him. I'm going to take him for my model."

Everything about the modern aviator with Mrs. Felton's hearty approval with the state, prohibition of prohibition. "Prohibition is hurting our race," she believes, "and people won't tolerate present conditions much longer."

In the days of her room she was a prohibitive worker, but she said now that "people are going to have liquor and in common humanity we ought to let them have good liquor instead of poison."

"I never had but one slogan," she said, "and that was 'sober homes for mothers.' We still haven't got them. We ought to face conditions and realize that the bootlegger is in power today. The government has got to regulate liquor selling in some way. Today children can buy it."

Modern girls are as sweet as their mothers were and Mrs. Felton "loves" them. "As for women smoking, 'why can't they if they want it?' Their great-grandmothers smoked, didn't they, and there's a lot worse things than smoking a cigarette." Besides, she added, "there's too much meddling with other people's business."

"Short skirts—well, here at present they're reasonably short, and they've had no skirts were in my day."

Laundrymen Rally To Defeat Barbers By 7 to 6 Score

With the assistance of the Auto-Barbers in the last inning the Laundry pulled a rally over the Barbers three run lead and won the game with a score of 7 to 6 yesterday afternoon at the Merrill Park. The Laundry scored in the first inning with a hit an error and a sacrifice for two runs. This was tied by the city shavers in the second with about the same procedure. The Laundry then took the lead, scoring one run in the second, but this was not sufficient after the city shavers scored three tallies in the fourth with five hits and then again in the last inning the Auto-Barbers combination put across another run to lead with three runs. This was tied by the Laundry washermen with three hits and two costly errors. John Whipp who had counted three singles in three trips for the Barbers, dropped a high and long hit fly ball to deep left field to allow the tying run and then it was Fowler's hit that brought the second straight victory for the Laundry.

SO THINK WE

We think that men are just liable to die under most any conditions Arthur Brisbane says, according to the records of accident insurance companies golf accidents come third in their list of claims paid off.

We think it is a wonderful thing for sons to think for themselves, but we think that they should first appreciate the wisdom of their fathers.

We think millionaires are becoming so common in the United States that they cannot attract much attention any more unless they get into a red hot scandal suit or divorce entanglement.

We think that a great many people only criticize others when they are envious of them.

We think that most people are more or less selfish, but some folks are nothing else, and work over time on the job.

We think that living in an anti-climatic frame of mind is the real life of some folks. If they could not have the anticipation of the four seasons spring, summer, fall and winter they would have nothing to wish for that they are sure to get.

We think that few want to get old, although there is a beauty in old age that no other period of life can produce, and make of us something to be proud of.

We think that it may be true that money talks, but what we can learn there are very few people who are really bored with it.

We think that Lubbock possibly misses the young Tech students more than any other one thing in the summer time.

We think that Lubbock possibly is not just as wide awake to the importance of highways as she might be.

We think since we are to pass this way but once it is a very good idea that we do our kind deeds as we pass as we may lose an opportunity some time and some one will possibly suffer because of this mistake of ours.

We think there is just about as much common sense in a merchant getting out and asking what the farmers will give him for his merchandise, as there is in the farmer asking the merchant what he will give him for his produce.

We think if we undertake to straighten the Mississippi river as some seem to think they will since the big flood, they may be able to take some of the double money we have thought for several years, or ever since we learn to spell the word that there were too many of these crooks in the name.

We think it is a very unfortunate condition, when one cannot find a friend to every other man, or else he was an enemy, and in the latter case the fellow that he did not like, knew it, and there was no beating around the bush about it.

We think from the noise that Tom Cantfield is making up at Berger there must be fire on that city, in spite of the recent contentions that Berger was alright, and no bad place to live, just listen to what he says.

OUT OUR WAY

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that fifty combines are operating in Hardeman county. That sounds like biscuits for West Texas.

It is reported that up Tulla way there has been a profaned tent meeting and a murder trial going on within the sound of one's voice.

It is reported that Lindbergh was a playmate of Quentin Roosevelt, son of T. E. and possibly that is where he learned some of his daring stunts.

It is reported that as soon as Chamberlain and Levine landed in America they asked for an order of beer and sausage.

It is reported that in some towns rabbit cats are at large. We do not know that there are any cats mad in Lubbock, but from the way some of them fight they evidently have family disagreements, and at least we think there are too many cats and a thinning out would not hurt anything.

It is reported that Governor Moody is not pleased with the work of the special session of the legislature. It must be extremely embarrassing to a governor to make a bunch of campaign promises, and then have a legislature that will not back 'em up.

It is reported that our government has said that by reducing the size of our currency that we will save two million dollars a year.

It is reported that one can be killed with kindness, but we have never known a coroner's jury to render a verdict of this kind.

OPINIONS

LAW OR OUTLAW: WHICH DO YOU FAVOR? Outlaws are engaged in a war against society.

Society includes you and all of us who are not outlaws.

We have made laws for the good of the majority, for the good of society at large, and those who do it these laws are threatening the safety and prosperity of us all.

Law enforcement officers are not so many men to think them, a foreign army, merely using our soil for a battle against bandits.

We should aid them, rather than continue to look on and applaud with a cold indifference.

It is your money that bandits take from banks. They are your friends who are shot down by bandits in the pursuit of gain.

Matthew Eames and Ray Terrell, their wives and their associates, are said to be responsible for much of the outlaws in this and adjacent territory, and if so will be responsible for more, until they are captured and confined where they cannot rob and kill. If so, they are a menace to society, to you,

LAUGHS

THERE WERE OTHERS The young man hesitatingly entered his father's presence. With a preliminary clearing of his throat and a nervous twitch of his fingers, he said:

"I have come to ask if I may marry your daughter Gertrude."

"You may," said the father, promptly, as he passed the cigars. "And now may I take you into my confidence?"

"Well, my boy," said his father, "I just want to say that as you pass around among your friends I wish you'd get some of them excited about Margaret, Dorothy, Bella and Nancy. And put a couple of cigars in your pocket."

Customer: "I don't want those crackers. Some one told me that the life ran over them."

Grocer: "That isn't true, because the cut sleeps in the box every night."

ONCE ENOUGH FOR ANYBODY "That son of yours certainly has got a will of his own."

"Yes, that's why I'm cutting him out of mine."

"Shear robbery," complained the man as he protested at the executive into the barber had charged him for a haircut.

SELFISHNESS Sweetwater must conserve water. Records at the pumping station show that since the appeal was made a week ago for citizens to be sparing of the water, practically no steps have been taken by them to save.

It isn't pleasant to without all the water we want, but unless we voluntarily deprive ourselves of the luxury of waste we are apt to find ourselves cut off altogether.

Apparently the condition may affect persons of any race, since cases have been reported in whites, Africans and Indians.

When the case is in a man, it acts much the same as in a woman. There is also a "pain" some times a discharge from the breast in the male is a more dangerous signal than in the female.

Many lovable people make each other in the world, as most modern people do. There is the nice and vertical frontal of delirium to be got over. From timidity or lack of opportunity a good half of possible love cases never get so far, and at least another quarter do never come and determination. A very adept person to be sure manages to prepare the way and out with his declaration in the nick of time.

There is a fine, solid sort of man, who goes on from such to such; and if he has to declare forty times will continue impudently declaring until the astonished consideration of men and angels, and he has a favorable answer. I fancy, if one were to marry a man who was capable of doing this, but not quite one who had done so, it is not a little bit of gross and marriages in which one of the parties has been declared into consent scarcely form agreeable subjects for meditation.

Love should run out to meet love with open arms. Indeed the ideal story is that of two people who go into love step for step, with a fluttered consciousness, like a pair of children venturing together in a dark room. From the first moment when they see each other, with a pang of curiosity, through stage after stage of growing pleasure and embarrassment, they can read the expression of their own trouble in each other's eyes.

There is so plainly shown that as soon as the man knows what is in his own heart, he is sure of what is in the woman's - Robert Louis Stevenson.

Every man, however obscure, however far removed from the general recognition, is one of a group of men, responsible for evil, and it is in the nature of things that he can not really improve himself without in some degree improving other men.

Be not prodigal of your opinions, lost by sharing them with others who do not without - Ambrose Blyden.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

By Clara Quistin

THIS HAS HAPPENED

From his big department store, Q. CURTIS chooses three girls to come into his home as his daughters for one year, because he wants to help them further. Any girls such as expressed, BILLY WELLS, anxious to be a concert artist, is the only one of the three that is chosen. The others are NYDA LOMAX and WINNIE BELTON—lie to enjoy the old man's generosity.

Billy becomes infatuated with EDDIE BANNING, nephew of Mrs. MADOWS, the hostess Unknown. Q. the girls learn he intends to adopt one of them as his daughter when the year is up. Billy and Nyda turn the house into a place of intrigue. Mrs. Madows, Dal, who in spite of his engagement to Billy is "playing" for love, and EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's former sweetheart, strangely implicated in the intrigue.

One night, Nyda, who is ill, asks Billy to get her a book from the library. While there, Billy breaks a tray of beads and the butler, WYVERS, finds her stooping before the safe. He misinterprets her actions. That night, she meets Eddie Banning in the garden, and she starts toward the house, she sees Eddie Banning peering from Nyda's window. The next morning when it is found Q.'s safe has been robbed, T. Q. tells Billy the "butter" placed suspicion on her. Terrified, Billy decides to tell CLAY, one of her father, what she dares not tell her father—that she suspects Eddie and Eddie. Clay has disintegrated himself and is living at Wells home in a poor part of town, working by day in a factory writing music at night. Clay loves Billy, vows to help her in a few days brings Eddie to Q.'s library where T. Q. Nyda and Billy face him. He tells Nyda he double-crossed her. "A few days ago, you are, he tells at Nyda as she faints.

WHAT GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LII

Yeah, my wife! Eddie Banning said. "We got married after the trial. That meddling old bird, he'd for his flock of pots nearly two ago. The next day when he came across with that fool of his to give these three girls some for a year, she still wanted to keep her trap shut about the married the night before, she goes and double-crosses me, she helps me take the old safe for a cleaning."

Q. Curtis passed a bewildered look over his eyes, then he turned to Billy who was trying to make the suspicious girl comfortable on the bottom drawer of my Billy. You'll find a flask there a glass," T. Q. commanded.

He stood guard over the startled chauffeur while Nyda lifted in T. Q.'s arms and Nyda lay for a moment with closed, then began to weep. "I'll be about it, Nyda," T. Q. gently, stroking her hair.

"I made me do it," Nyda said. "I've been giving him all along to keep him from you I was married to him—don't quite understand, Nyda, you kept your marriage a secret. T. Q. said gently, "With publicity the 'Cinderella' story had the wrong for me," Nyda sobbed. "After that he—he just made me with him. We drove over to the county seat, and got Nyda Lomax, ah! my name—my legal name, Lomax, my stepfather's name—he and other are divorced now—but married him when I was a little girl and I took his name. My name! No wonder you don't want to leave all this. Well, the race narrows down to two. How are you getting along? Just as a sporting proposition, what odds could I get on you to win?"

"Don't say that!" Billy protested in a strangled voice. "The year is almost over and I'll be glad, glad—as Nyda said. It's been a nightmare of a year. But—" she shivered—"I don't know what's to become of me when it really is over. Just three weeks more, and then—back to working for little Billy. How is mother? She asked abruptly. "I haven't seen her for two weeks. Does she hate me for neglecting her? If I've lost mother, too—" "Mothers aren't so easy to lose, I imagine," Clay answered lightly, his eyes closed in enjoyment of the hugging comfort of the chair. "Now that you've had your big year, aren't you about ready to fiddle for the public?"

"No," Billy confessed, hurt beyond words at his casualness. "I've wasted the year, Clay. I'm just plain—no good. Nayratil lost patience with me months ago. Oh, he's still giving me lessons, and I've learned a good deal. I'm glad, but—I'm not a great genius, Clay—" "You have no right to say that," Clay interrupted her sternly. "You have the genius all right, but you've buried it under the angel feathers of luxury. I found out that I couldn't have chairs like this—the struck the arm of the chair a blow which only denoted the softness of it—and all that goes with chairs like this and amount to anything as a composer. I tried to warn you—"

"I know," she whispered, tears beginning to slip down her cheeks. She had been standing. Suddenly she stooped and lifted his feet from the hussack and sank into a little heap of misery upon it, laying her head on his knees. "You've been splendid, Clay. And I tried to ruin you. I'll never forget that I tried to make you give it all up, come back for my sake—" "Don't cry like that, kiddie," he begged huskily. "I guess I've been too hard on you. I might have helped you to enjoy your year and to keep it from hurting you, but this hellish temper of mine got the best of me—" "I'm trapped, Clay!" She sobbed more vehemently because of his sympathy. "I'm spoiled for the other life and now my year here is nearly up. I haven't been happy here but it's ruined me for the old life of penny-pinching poverty. What shall I do, Clay?"

"I'm afraid I don't know," Clay said slowly, his hand resting heavily on her head. "Unless—" "Unless what?" She raised her head and stared at him.

"I'm going to be disgustingly prosperous," he told her, his mouth twitching with a smile of wry humor. "Next year my royalties on a few songs will be sufficient to let me retire for a year, just to write good music. 'The Song of Toil' is almost finished. In fact, I'm taking it to New York next week for a tryout with the Philharmonic Orchestra. The conductor has agreed to play it—" "I'm awfully glad, Clay," she spoke in a small voice, hope dawning within her. "Really awfully glad. You've earned success, if anyone ever did."

"I shall probably live in New York," he went on, his voice casual and careful again. "Great place, New York—great place to study—the violin—" "Oh!" She dropped her head upon his knees again, and began to tremble.

"I was—just wondering," Clay's carefully controlled voice went on, breaking just a little. "If you're rested up enough after a year of angel feathers to get down to real hard work—in New York—" "Oh!" she cried again, tears pushing out of her eyes and soaking through the thick tweed cloth that covered his knees.

"Oh!" can mean so much—or so little," Clay laughed shakily. "Just what does it mean, doesn't it? Does it mean by any chance—mean that—you want me to put it into plainer words?"

"She waited a breathless moment, then nodded, her forehead bumping slowly up and down upon his knees. "Then—I love you, Billy. God knows I've tried to get over it, but—here it is! I love you and I adore the genius that you've buried, and I want to give both their chance. What do you say, Billy? Do—you—love—me?"

"I know," she whispered, tears beginning to slip down her cheeks. She had been standing. Suddenly she stooped and lifted his feet from the hussack and sank into a little heap of misery upon it, laying her head on his knees. "You've been splendid, Clay. And I tried to ruin you. "A telegram for you, Miss Billy!" She sprang to her feet, dashing at the tears in her eyes with a trembling hand. Sawyers advanced solemnly into the room.

Before Sawyers had reached the door she was tearing open the yellow envelope. Her eyes took in the words at a glance:

"Arriving Monday five-thirty. Meet me Marquette Hotel for dinner. Important. All my love. Dal."

With real happiness in her grasp will Billy throw it over again for the fascinating Dal Romaine?

STEAMSHIPS START COAST LINE SOON

VESSELS TO OPERATE FROM CORPUS CHRISTI TO PHILADELPHIA

Corpus Christi, June 9.—Through the efforts of Robert Driscoll, chairman of the Nueces county navigation commission, and Roy Miller, acting vice-president of the Intra-Coastal canal association, a coastwise shipping service between Philadelphia and Corpus Christi will be inaugurated.

According to present plans, the first vessel in this newly established service will sail from Philadelphia on July 2nd, make its first stop at New Orleans and leave that port shortly for Corpus Christi about July 15th. Following that sailing, sailings will be made semi-monthly and a vessel will leave Philadelphia for Corpus Christi every other Saturday.

Docks Arranged
Operators of the vessels that will ply between Corpus Christi and Philadelphia are Moore and McCormack Inc. The fourth section of the docks has been assigned as a berthing place for their ships until a new unit is completed, according to an announcement made by J. L. Boyd, director of the port of Corpus Christi.

Boyd also stated that arrangements have already been completed with the Humble Oil and Refining Company whereby these ships that will be engaged in this coastwise service might replenish their oil bunkers at the Humble plant located directly on the ship channel at Ingleside.

Result of Negotiations
Robert Driscoll declared that the inauguration of this service resulted from negotiations that have been pending since the opening of the port last September and that the success of the service would depend on the co-operation of the shippers in the port territory including San Antonio, Laredo and the entire valley of the Rio Grande.

Navigation officials are well pleased with the tonnage that has already been handled and believe that this service, together with the assurance of the United States Shipping Board of European service will cause Corpus Christi to soon become one of the most important shipping centers of the entire South.

SLATON BIRTHDAY JUBILEE PLANNED

RACES AND CONTESTS WILL FEATURE GATHERING ON JUNE 16

SLATON, Texas, June 9.—Plans for the all-day celebration of Slaton's sixteenth anniversary next Thursday, June 16, have been virtually completed by the Chamber of Commerce committee in charge. J. A. Elliott and S. E. Stagers are chairman of the committee.

Features of the day's program will include band concerts by the Slaton band; an address by R. J. Murray of Lubbock; races of different kinds; a parade of all who have lived in the Slaton territory continuously since 1911; a basket dinner at the noon hour; a public wedding ceremony in the afternoon provided a couple can be found who are willing to be the contracting parties; and a baseball game in the afternoon between the "old timers" and the "new comers."

The day's program has been arranged for people of Slaton and surrounding territory, and a large crowd is expected to attend according to the arrangements committee.

A new "safest-pin currency" has been introduced by the cooperative stores of the neighboring city of Leningrad. As a means of working off surplus stock, small change is being returned in safety pins, one pin for every copeck.

DE PINEDO RETURNS TO RESUME HIS FLIGHT
A HORTA, Island of Faya Soavia, June 3. (AP)—Commander Francesco De Pinedo, Italian long distance aviator, who is returning to Rome from his recent South American flight by way of Newfoundland and the Azores, will resume his flight tomorrow. He will proceed to Lisbon and finally to Rome.

Built the Plane

While the world cheers Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh for his hop across the Atlantic, an insuring hero in Los Angeles is having more of a thrill out of it than most of us. He is William H. Bowlus, who designed and built the Ryan monoplane that carried Lindbergh across. This picture was taken when Bowlus was told Lindbergh had made it.

Mrs. Elsie Moore of Chicago gossiped about Mrs. Ruth Ryan, who tore Mrs. Moore's new hat to pieces on the street and was fined $25.

The oldest university under the United States flag is the University of St. Thomas Aquinas, at Manila, Philippine Islands. It was opened in 1661 on a grant by Philip II of Spain.

Navigation officials are well pleased with the tonnage that has already been handled and believe that this service, together with the assurance of the United States Shipping Board of European service will cause Corpus Christi to soon become one of the most important shipping centers of the entire South.

Use CLOROX in drain pipes

By regular cleansing with Clorox, costly stoppages in bathroom plumbing can often be prevented. The home will also be more sanitary if Clorox, the household disinfectant and deodorant, is used in cleansing washbowl, bathtub, sink and hopper, drainpipes. See directions on Clorox label.
