HICKMAN CASE NEARS END IN PLEA FOR LIFE

DEFENSE REITERATES
INSANITY EVIDENCE;
KEYES CLOSES

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9.—The final act of the drama enveloping William Edward Hickman's fight for life through a sanity trial, was opened today in the courtroom of Judge J. J. Trabucco.

Richard Cantillon, defense attorney, went into the details of testimony given by defense alienists and by William Thomas Hickman, father of the youth who kidnapped and killed Marian Parker.

Evidence of insanity in a quiet voice the young defense attorney rapidly rolled out his closing argument. He pointed out bits of testimony that he claimed were evidences of insanity in the prison.

ARGUMENTS CLOSED

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9 (AP).—Arguments in the William Edward Hickman sanity trial were completed today and the court recessed until 2 o'clock.

His family. He often told the jury "I think" from this or that evidence, that the evidence of the prisoner's insanity was preponderant. Cantillon referred to the sobbing father's testimony of his which afflicted the grandfather of an epileptic cousin and of a mother who was in an Arkansas insane asylum for a period.

Hereditary Background
"I think," he told the jury, "these conditions background of heredity which should have made even the state's alienists suspect the defendant suffered from dementia praecox." "You can't tell me," Cantillon argued, "that when a brilliant scholar suddenly turns into a criminal whose sanity is not equalled in the dark archives of criminal history, you can't tell me that it's anything but insanity."

Only the fact that he was an officer of the law kept him from wanting to be "in the front ranks" of a mob and out a rope about the neck of Edward Hickman, District Attorney Asa Keyes today told the jury in the trial of the youth, for kidnapping and murdering Marian Parker.

Keyes made this statement in summing up the argument of the state.

"Keyes spoke 'for the rights of not only the people of California but for the rights of the people of the United States.'"

"It was only for the fact that we are civilized," Keyes shouted, "that a mob did not take this man from the officer of the law, and if it was not that I was an officer of the law, I should have wanted to be in the front ranks of such a mob to help put a rope around this man's neck."

"I'm going to be fair to this man, although I loathe the ground he walks on. But I'm going to be fair to the other side of this case too."

Jury To Get Case
Probably Tonight
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9 (AP).—Only three hours of argument, the judge's instructions, the jury of Austin, Texas, today between William Edward Hickman and his fate.

Barring unforeseen delays, attorneys for prosecution and defense will have painted their last word pictures of the kidnaper and murderer.

BODIES FOUND IN CAR AFTER LONG QUARREL

BOY BELIEVED GIRL'S SLAYER AND VICTIM
OF HIS OWN GUN

(By Associated Press)
BRYN MAWR, Pa., Feb. 9.—An apparent murder and suicide of the youthful principals in a love-affair was discovered today in the finding of the bodies of a young man and girl huddled together in an automobile in Haverford township, near here.

The girl, Bella Alexander, 17, was not dead when police came upon the coupe, but died later without gaining consciousness. Death was due to a bullet wound of the head and another of the abdomen.

Her twenty-one-year-old sweetheart, Louis Shapiro, is believed to have died instantly from a bullet which pierced his temple.

The pair were to have been married in two weeks. For some unknown reason, the girl postponed the wedding recently and her parents advanced the theory that Shapiro shot the girl and himself when she refused to accede to his request for an immediate ceremony.

Man Confesses To Slaying Of Sister

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, Feb. 9 (AP).—James E. Patrick, prosecutor of Tuscarawas county, today substantiated the fact that William D. Herron, 41-year-old painter, had confessed he killed his sister-in-law, Miss Viola May, 22, and threw her body in the Tuscarawas river near Dover.

Patrick said Herron had not signed a statement, but that he had confessed in a three hour grilling yesterday he killed the girl after a quarrel that followed two assaults, as he took her to her home Tuesday night after a visit at his home. May was a sister of his wife.

The prosecutor said that a first degree charge would be filed against Herron but that he intended to delay the action as long as possible.

Long Day's Labor Is Collector's Lot

Over at the County Collector's office they are still writing January 31 on tax receipts.

"It's the longest day we have ever had," says A. J. Clark, deputy collector, who explains that the mail posted on or before January 31 is still being answered by the deputies. A stack of several inches of letters remained to be gone through at noon today.

So if you haven't received your 1927 tax receipts from the office yet, after sending in your check before legal time expired, don't worry as the boys have been "snowed under" in a deluge of mail.

Lieutenant LeBrix made this announcement today in discussing future plans. He added that stops probably would be made, enroute to San Francisco, at Detroit, Chicago, Omaha and Salt Lake City.

Whisked Away Easily

"We are particularly pleased to reach America because we spent all last summer hoping to fly here directly across the north Atlantic."

Lindy's Flight "Chic"

HASSELL, CONFESSED SLAYER OF 13 CALM TODAY ON EVE OF EXECUTION WITH HIGH HOPE OF ESCAPING CHAIR

(By the Associated Press)
HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 9.—George J. Hassell, self confessed slayer of 13 persons, ten of them small children, whose electrocution in the state penitentiary here has been fixed for some time after midnight, ate a good breakfast and entered on the last day of his life with no apparent change in his calm demeanor.

He was not told until today that physicians sent from Austin by Governor Dan Moody to examine into his sanity had found him sane and that the governor had declined to intervene.

He not only received the news with composure but appeared hopeful. Warden N. B. Speer said, that through some fortuitous circumstance he might yet escape the electric chair.

Hassell confessed that he killed the housekeeper and three small children in Whittier, Calif., in June, 1917, and buried the bodies under their home. In December, 1926, he said, he slew his wife, who was the widow of his brother, and her seven small children on a farm near Fawcett, Texas, and three days later, when the boy returned home killed the woman's 21-year-old son. All the bodies were buried on the farm.

Hassell professed no motive for the murders. "I wish some one would tell me why I did it," he said in the confession.

Unless plans are changed another man will be executed tonight also. Robert Lee Benton, alias Herbert Stanley, a negro, is scheduled to be executed for the murder of B. E. Morgan, a farmer of near Crosbyton.

Morgan was shot to death by Benton and another negro. The negroes confessed. Governor Moody declined to commute Benton's sentence. The other negro was sentenced to 50 years imprisonment.

BAKER LEASES BUILDING; WILL ERECT NEW ONE

EXPANSION OF RETAIL
SECTION TO FOLLOW
WILL BETTER CITY

Montgomery-Ward and company, one of the world's largest retail organizations, will open a retail store and mail order house in Lubbock within the next 90 days, the Baker Furniture company will erect another new and modern home, larger than the one it now occupies, and unprecedented building is forecast for Thirteenth street, between Avenues J and L as a result of two announcements made here this afternoon by Nor-

Baker, owner and manager of the furniture firm which bears his name.

The Baker Furniture company's building, located at 1107-09 Thirteenth street, has been leased to the Montgomery-Ward company, the lease to take effect 90 days from date, Mr. Baker announced.

During the three-months interval Mr. Baker will build another building and will move his furniture store into that building in time for Montgomery-Ward's entry into the business life of Lubbock and the South Plains. A few minor changes in the present Baker building will place it ready for its new use, Mr. Baker said.

Is New Structure

The building leased by the mail order firm was completed on August 15, 1927, and the Baker store was formally opened on August 29 following. It contains 22,500 square feet of floor space and its appearance material and arrangement is one of the most modern buildings in the city. Its erection aided immeasurably in opening the new retail section of the city lying to the south of Broadway and to the west of Avenue J.

Mr. Baker declined today to make public the monetary consideration involved in the lease or the length of time which the Montgomery-Ward company has contracted to use the building. He did say, however, that the deal was made upon the basis of a long time lease.

Baker Works On New Plans

Plans for the new Baker building have not yet been completed. Mr. Baker said, he reported that the building would be as fine and as modern in every way as his present structure. In addition, more floor space will be included in it than is in the building he now uses. Mr. Baker stated, and the new business will be erected with a view to future enlargement.

Rumors of Montgomery-Ward's entrance into this section of the state have been rampant here for the past several weeks and a representative of that organization was in Lubbock some weeks ago making a survey. It was not until today, however, that telegraphic advices from the company's southwestern headquarters at Ft. Worth officially closed the deal which brings the big firm here.

The coming of the mail order house to Lubbock marks the firm's second entrance into West Texas business circles, one house having been in operation in Fort Worth for the past several years. Company officials made a complete survey of all of the cities in West Texas before deciding upon Lubbock for its second store, the location, transportation facilities, surrounding territory and apparent future swinging the pendulum to the Hub of the Plains. Mr. Wood, Texas manager, who was in Lubbock when the original survey was made, told representatives of the Journal then that the promise of the growth of the South Plains made it practically essential that his firm establish a house here.

TITLE FORFEIT RECOMMENDED IN LAND GRANT ROW

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—In an opinion of the land grant case of the Northern Pacific railroad company, the department of justice today recommended that congress declare title to the disputed three to five million acres forfeited and then suit be brought in the courts for final adjustment.
The case, a long pending one, grew out of the claims by both the government and the railroad that they were entitled to part of the land, and the department's opinion was submitted at the request of a special joint congressional committee appointed at the last session of congress to investigate the grants.
The government claims that the railroad company should turn back approximately 5,000,000 of the 43,000,000 acre grant because it had absorbed land belonging to forest reserves, Indian reservations and mineral deposits.

TELEVISION

Hart and Morse opened Morse communication between 2K2, the London station, and 2CVJ, his own set. This communication was maintained during the experiment.

Vision Not Started
Shortly before 10 o'clock Hart announced that the "vision sound" was coming through from London. This noise was very much like a bumblebee's hum and was the representation in sound of the lights and shadows of the face of the subject before an electric eye in London.

Capt. O. G. Hutchinson, general manager of Baird's company, Benjamin Clapp, Baird's chief engineer, and an Associated Press reporter, went to the darkened cellar of the house, where the television was installed, and saw the sound being turned back into light.

On a whirling screen about six inches by four a myriad tiny rectangles of light appeared, looking like a row of tip-toed skaters at night. These rectangles began to move, jostle each other, shift and swirl, and at last formed in the outline of a head.

Suddenly More Distinct
This head became suddenly more distinct, and though the vision fluctuated and dimmed it was plain. Hart telephoned down to say that London reported the head was that of a ventriloquist's dummy and that next, Fox of the London Press association, would take the seat before the electric eye.

The tiny oblongs of light went through another dance and formed another head, but this time it was not so distinct, more flutery, more broken by flashes of light. But this time the mouth was seen to open and the vague head moved from side to side and nodded solemnly.

London announced then that the next subject would be the wife of James Hume of the London staff of the Associated Press who was present with her husband.

And following this the rectangles shifted and swirled again and a different head appeared more vague even than before and yet evidently that of a woman. It turned from full face, to profile once, twice, and then suddenly was gone.

Figures Not Distinct
None of the images was so distinct as to be "sacredly recognizable" to people who knew the sitters, although Capt. Hutchinson felt that he would probably have known that Fox was on even if he had not been warned in advance.

They were not for instance, anything like as clear as the images carried from Washington to New York last year by the American Telephone and Telegraph company. But that was done by wire instead of radio and only over a distance of slightly more than 200 miles. They were comparable to the vision brought in at the A. T. & T. demonstration by air from no farther away than New Jersey.

The vision of the dummy in fact, was clearer than those, but the moving faces were not so strong.

Captain Hutchinson was elated at the results of the demonstration, predicting that with more power only two kilowatts was available from the London station used, trans-Atlantic television would shortly approach perfection and that in a short time two-way television across the ocean would be a commonplace.

Plan of Operation
The television works on the system of turning the light waves reflected from a face into electric waves for transmission, to be picked up as sound and turned back into light. Given perfection of this system the only needed aid is sufficient power for transmission.

The greatest obstacle to good reception is interference by static or other stations. "At last night's demonstration the visions were time after time scattered into a thousand specks of light by the sending of one short wave Morse operator in Paris and another in Mexico City."

SHIPS HUNT FOR OCEAN VICTIMS IN PLANE WRECK

(By the Associated Press)
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 9.—Searchlights of the destroyer fleet swept the waters 35 miles off Point Loma, near here, during the dark hours this morning in the hope of spotting the wreckage of a navy air plane which plunged 1,000 feet into the sea yesterday, carrying Lieut. Fitzhugh Lee Rhea and Radioman Lea Richard Lonnegan to their death.

A sudden and unexplained tailspin, the terror of all ocean fliers swept the plane and its occupants into the sea as they were "spotting" torpedoes. The destroyer fleet was engaged in battle practice and the plane was assigned to follow and observe the course of torpedoes being fired.

Several of the destroyers abandoned practice and cruised about the area throughout the night, while their lights played over the wide area aiding smaller craft in the search.

Whether Rhea and Lonnegan escaped from the plane as it fell or when it struck the water was not learned.
Lieut. Rhea was born in Virginia in 1903 and was appointed to the naval academy from that state. He made his home in San Diego. Lonnegan was 25 years old and made his home here.

THERE are two kinds of high-compression motors. In one the compression ratio has been raised purposefully by the car manufacturer to produce more power; the other is a high-compression condition caused by the natural formation of carbon in the combustion chamber. This condition exists, to some extent, in every motor.

But in either case there is one best fuel to release the full power caused by high compression. That fuel is Winter Conoco Ethyl Gasoline, the super-gasoline that knocks out the "knock," turns carbon into power and assures a smooth-running motor at any speed and under practically all operating conditions. It gives the extra pull you need for snow and slush and muddy roads. It is the last word in motor fuels.

Kellogg's Plan In Subs Is Attacked

COLOGNE, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Gazette in stating that Secretary Kellogg's plan for scrapping submarines is admirable in itself, contends that it would simply result in making stronger powers mightier and small powers weaker. The paper suggests that it would be better if the United States gave proof of its good will by scrapping her giant battleships and deciding to build no more.

FARMERS RAP LOW PRICES IN COTTON MARTS

"PEASANTRY" EFFORTS TO BE FOUGHT UNDER RESOLUTION PLEA

The South Plains, a veritable empire in itself, was destined to be the seat of another great fight against what is claimed to be unfair policies used against its people as a resolution, drawn up yesterday afternoon, in the district court room by some 150 group leaders and county officers of 11 counties of districts 18 and 19 of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, leaves Lubbock today for executive centers of the organization in a reaction against agencies which allegedly have been responsible for the downward trend of the cotton market and the low price of staple.

"Peasantry" charged—Tired by what was termed attempts to establish "peasantry" on the American farm, the members pledged "to go out from this meeting and defy any man or men that dare to attempt to defeat our effort to thwart peasantry in free America."

A series of meetings will be held in the neighboring counties where the facts will be given the members of the organization and copies of the resolution read. Others will be held at Ralls, tomorrow night; a county-wide meeting here Saturday; Lamesa, Saturday night; Tahoka, Monday at 2 o'clock and at Post, Monday night.

Copies of the resolution passed in the meeting will be sent today to the state board of directors, the state officers and to executive groups of the southern district where it is hoped that further action will be taken in ousting the unfair policies. The American Cotton Growers Exchange in Memphis will also be sent one of the resolutions.

The meeting was held in the district court room of the court house here, and was presided over by W. H. Hames of Ralls, acting as presiding officer in the absence of Douglas Pounds, president of the Lubbock county farm bureau. Mr. Hames is president of the Crosby county farm bureau.

The resolution was signed by 102 members of the association, representing Lubbock, Dawson, Lynn, Garza, Terry, Hockley, Lamb, Crosby, Floyd, Hale, and Motley counties. Two state directors of the bureau, R. E. Overstreet of Lubbock and M. S. Hudson of Hale County, were present, as were the following field men: D. A. Adams, Garza county; M. Mitchell, Dawson county; Frank Tarplett, Hale county; J. W. Hammock, Lamb county; H. H. Reed, Crosby county; and N. H. Payne and Frank McClendon, Lubbock county.

The resolution was passed after a very frank and open discussion of the policies of the bureau. Among the proponents of the organization was Mrs. E. M. Dunn of Ralls, who declared that she had the "sensation of a bulldog, and would hold on as long as I can, and take a piece with me as I go." Others who gave a like expression of their sentiments were Don L. Jones of Lubbock, A. P. Timms of Slaton, and Flen T. Gillespie of Ralls. Nearly everyone present was allowed to express his opinion.

Resolution
The resolution passed reads as follows:

We, the officers and representatives, and members of Dawson, Lynn, Garza, Terry, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Crosby, Floyd, Hale, and Motley counties, at the request of our directors: R. E. Overstreet and M. S. Hudson, have, this 8th day of February, 1928, assembled at the courthouse in Lubbock to discuss the present crisis of the cotton farmer in general and the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association in particular, and

"Whereas: After a free and frank discussion of this question by our directors and all parties present, it was brought out that the world production of cotton for 1926 was 27,813,000 bales and world consumption was 25,869,000 bales; leaving a surplus of only 1,944,000 bales. The estimated production of the world for 1927 is 22,789,000 bales of cotton, and the present rate of consumption is equal if not greater than that of last year, which would indicate no carryover, if not a shortage, because another crop can be produced."

Whereas: When the above facts were made evident by the government estimate in November, the price of cotton jumped to 24.90 which we believe was not out of line from the standpoint of supply and demand but at which time our secretary of agriculture made his now famous statement of "I do not choose for the farmers to get much for their cotton" this year, which brought about this outrageous condition that we find in the South at this time, And,

"Whereas: We realize the liberal advance our association has extended to our members, (and we believe it was justified if the market had not been tampered with) but this fact has put our association in a precarious position at this time and made doubly so due to the libelous reports put out by the cotton exchanges throughout the country against the association.

And,

"Whereas: We believe that the present condition was brought about not only to defeat the organized farmer who is fighting to improve the living condition of the American farmer, but was directed also at the unorganized farmer who dared to believe he was entitled to a better price for his cotton from the standpoint of supply and demand, and held his cotton to that end."

less of the financial outlook of our association this year, we do hereby reaffirm our faith in our organization, and do hereby pledge ourselves to go out from this meeting with a determination to defy any man or men that dare to attempt to defeat our effort to thwart peasantry in free America.

"And be it further resolved: That whereas cotton is the basis of our prosperity, not only to the cotton farmer, but our state as a whole, we therefore appeal not only to every red-blooded cotton farmer to join with us in this fight that our posterity may not become vassals in the hands of a few, but we also appeal to our friends in the business world to give us their moral support and their co-operation for the betterment of all."

HAYNIE CALLS STATE MEET IN PINK WORM WAR

GOVERNOR AND OTHER
STATE OFFICIALS TO ATTEND SESSION

(By Associated Press)
ABILENE, Feb. 9.—Following the suggestion of Governor Dan Moody, President R. W. Haynie of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce late yesterday called a statewide pink boll worm conference for February 25 at Sweetwater with the warning that the people must either stamp out the pest or "accept" it. The latter course might mean eventually that the state would import cotton instead of exporting it, he declared.

The date named by President Haynie makes the conference fall just two days before the initial meeting of the state pink boll worm commission, which yesterday announced postponement of its Lamesa and Big Spring meetings until February 27. A third and fourth hearing by the commission will be held at Midland on February 28 and at Marfa on February 29.

Governor Moody and representatives of the state department of agriculture and members of the federal pink boll worm commission are to attend the Sweetwater meeting. The call declares also that the business and agricultural interests of Texas should be represented in the meeting in large numbers, together with county judges, mayors of cities, chambers of commerce, agricultural organizations and the public in general.

If the people of Texas show a willingness to do everything possible to co-operate, the federal government will help stamp out the pest, Mr. Haynie declared.

Commercial frauds cost manufacturers and wholesale firms more than $1000 a minute for each business day.

Anne's Ambitions

The money that Anne Caldwell won in her $50,000 breach of promise suit against John W. Hubbard, Pittsburgh shovel czar, is to be invested in a fashion shop in New York. So she said when this photo was made.

NEW TESTS FOR DRUNKS

LONDON.—An English justice ruled that if two litres of a man's breath contained 15 milligrams of alcohol the man was 50 per cent drunk and guilty of drunkenness. Then someone discovered that a football bladder would hold about two litres of breath. Now when an Englishman brought in for drunkenness, denies the charge, he is forced to blow up a bladder. If the evidence shows him to be more than 50 per cent drunk, the magistrate invariably holds it conclusive and hands out a stiff fine.

SEEK DAMAGES FOR SON'S LOST ASHES

NEW YORK.—Forty-three years after their son's body had been cremated, Daniel Fuchs, and his wife of Elmhurst, Queens, filed suit against a crematory company for the loss of the urn containing the ashes. The complaint says that Daniel Fuchs died and was cremated in 1884, and charges that the urn containing the ashes could not be found when the father called for it on July 23, 1923.

Senator Glass of Virginia, told the Senate he never had taken a drink in his life. Condolences have been offered.

PLANS OKED ON DEMO HALL FOR HOUSTON

STRUCTURE WILL BE FINISHED IN MAY
UNDER CONTRACT

(By The Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Feb. 9.—The first step toward ultimate completion by mid-May of the national democratic convention auditorium was taken by the city council here late Wednesday when it approved plans and specifications for the structure and authorized advertisement for bids. Bids, which will be based on all forms of construction by one contractor, including plumbing and electrical equipment as well as the building, will be opened Monday, Feb. 20. Contract will be awarded the following Wednesday. Mayor Oscar Holcombe announced.

The auditorium must be completed and ready for use May 15, terms under which the contract will be awarded state.

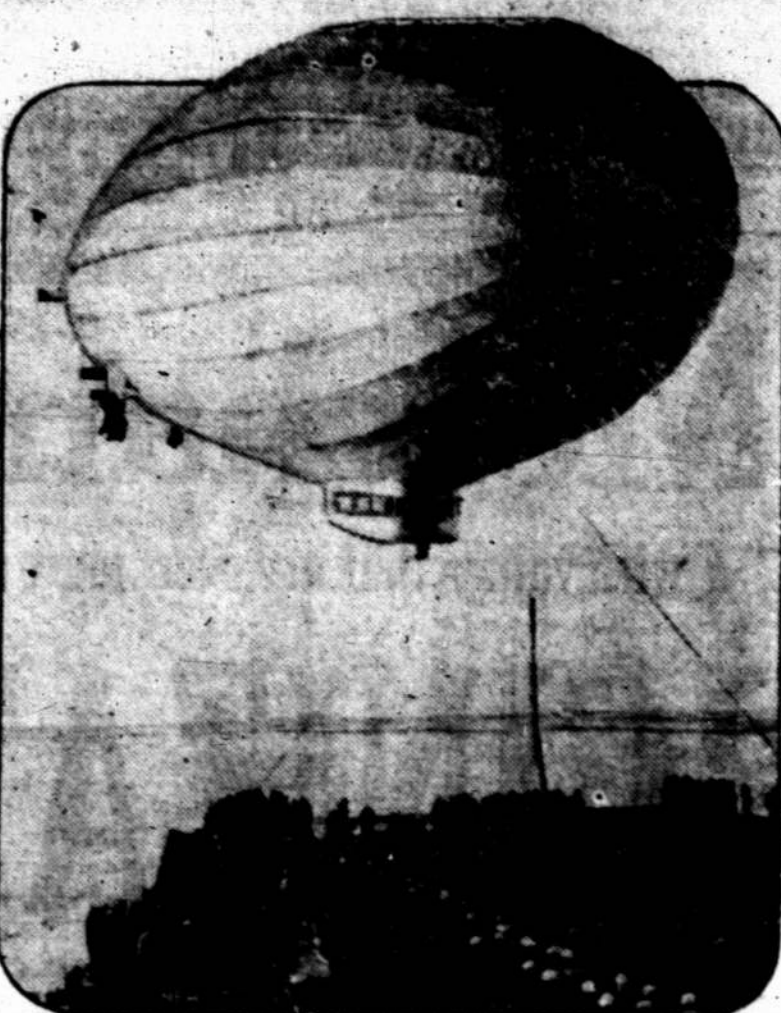

The adopted plans are those drawn by New York architects but revised by W. A. Dowdy city architect, to fit needs which have arisen recently.

It was necessary to make numerous changes in the plan. Mr. Dowdy told the council "due to the fact the contract is to be awarded on the lump sum basis. If the cost plus basis of construction had been followed, no change in the original plans would have been made."

As to the actual design of the roof of the structure, four alternate bids will be asked. Cost will guide city officials in choosing between these types: Arch roof construction, lamella construction, Miller dome type and a special design of a structural steel canopy.

Practically the entire structure including exterior beautification effects, will be built of wood, the specifications prescribe.

Censored By Navy

This remarkable photograph, showing the giant dirigible Los Angeles landing on the new airplane carrier U. S. S. Saratoga near Newport, R. I., was censored by naval officers. Part of the deck of the Saratoga was cut off by the officials who said it "showed too clearly the secret devices of the deck."

Farm Conference Oked By Farmers

WAXAHACHIE, Feb. 9 (AP).—Resolutions strongly approving the action of Governor Moody in calling together governors of cotton producing states for a conference and discussion of cotton marketing conditions, 1928 acreage and similar matters were adopted Wednesday by 500 Ellis county farmers at a county-wide mass meeting here.

It is said that Anatole France, the great French writer, would go to any lengths to avoid the use of a semicolon.

The advertising man for the Red Cedar Shingle Manufacturers was trying to tell the lumber dealer he should stock EDGWOOD Red Cedar Shingles.

The Roof the Lumber Dealer Puts On His Own Home

"No," said the dealer, "don't want them... couldn't sell them... my trade only buy a 'cheap' shingle... Clears or Stars."
"But, you know there is very little difference, if any, in the cost of the ordinary shingle and the EDGWOOD Shingle ON THE ROOF, because of the difference in exposure to weather permitted and the resulting covering capacity of the EDGWOOD Shingle."
"Yes... but..."
"What kind of a roof would you put on your own home?" interrupted the advertising man.
"Well... I'll admit I'd use EDGWOOD Shingles myself... but..."
Here again the advertising man interrupted, "Sure, you would... you would, use EDGWOOD Shingles, and so would I. Why? Because it's our business to know something about the comparative costs and construction of roofs."
"Yes; but the public don't know..."
"That's my job to tell 'em," said the adman.
"About time," said the dealer, as he signed the order.

EDGWOOD SHINGLES

The essential difference between EDGWOOD Shingles and the "ordinary" Shingle is that EDGWOODS are sawn edge-grain.

This prevents warping. EDGWOODS lay tight and flat to the sheathing permanently. As a result there are no leaks; the roof retains its pleasing appearance; there are no curled shingles to loosen the nails and create a fire-hazard. Cut from the great Red Cedar trees of British Columbia, hundreds of years old, nature has endowed EDGWOODS with a decay resisting preservative. They will serve forty years or more!

EDGWOOD Perfection Shingles are 16" long and nearly 1/2" thick at butt... specifically manufactured for 5" exposure to the weather. 1,000 ordinary shingles exposed 4" cover 100 square feet. 4 or 4 1/2" exposure in all this type of roof will permit, as it is sawn flat-grain and warps. One square of EDGWOODS also covers 100 square feet (EDGWOOD Perfection) are sold by the "square." There is very little difference in the cost per 100 square feet of roof. With EDGWOODS you have a 40-year roof free from trouble; with flat-grain shingles you have a 15-year roof; possible leaks; and a fire-hazard.

CONTRACTORS NOTE: You handle 40% fewer Shingles in laying an EDGWOOD roof. EDGWOOD 16" Shingles should be exposed 5".

This booklet offers many helpful suggestions to those who are going to build, re-roof or re-style. It features many beautiful houses, showing you how you can save from 8% to 25% on construction. It's FREE—mail coupon now!

ELECTRA OFFERS TO AID CAMPAIGN BY SUBSCRIPTION

(By the Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Feb. 9.—The Electra Texas chamber of commerce in a letter received by the Houston finance committee Wednesday explained that because it is a non-partisan organization, it could not contribute to the Democratic national convention fund of $700,000, which is being raised to finance the gathering.

Robert P. Hall, the manager, however, said he is circulating a subscription list for those who might wish to contribute to Electra.

Meanwhile, Galveston plans a money raising campaign for convention funds. A letter from J. V. Davis, manager of the chamber of commerce, said that President Franklin Harris had accepted a committee to canvass the city. R. C. Epler of Galveston, however, did not await for the committee to begin and sent a contribution of $5. The Houston society for the deaf mailed $25 to R. C. Epler secretary of the Houston finance committee, and M. D. Bennett, Houston gave $10.

The campaign for funds has not opened in Houston but according to present plans will begin next week.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 9 (AP)—Despite higher Liverpool cables the cotton market was easy in early trading today on expectations of rain in the western drought section and fears of a bearish textile report by the cotton textile institute to be issued either today or tomorrow.

First trades were 2 points up to 1 down. Following a small rally of 1 to 2 points the market eased off until March contracts reached 17.35, May 17.52, and July 17.57, 11 to 13 points under the initial price.

At the end of the first thirty minutes the undertone was still easy.

The market rallied later on covering by ring shorts disappointed at the smallness of the early decline. There was also some buying induced by reports of the rapid spread of the pink boll worm infestation in western Texas. Before noon March reached 17.54, May 17.55 and July 17.58, 21 to 22 points above the lows and 10 to 11 points above the previous close. At noon the market was quiet but at the highs.

NEW-YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 5 points. Buying on the firm showing of Liverpool was readily supplied by realizing combined with local selling promoted by better prospects for rains in the southwest.

May contracts sold off to 17.77 and October to 17.52 after the opening, net declines of 7 to 10 points, but there was very little southern selling in evidence and after initial offerings had been absorbed, prices steadied on covering and trade buying. May sold up to 17.78, and active months generally were within 2 to 3 points of yesterday's closing figures at the end of the first hour.

The market showed increasing firmness later, on local and New Orleans buying accompanied by continued talk of a steady spot situation and reports of a better tone in the goods market. May contracts sold up to 17.92 and October to 17.69, making net advances of 16 to 12 points and the market was within a point or two of these figures at mid day.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP)—Prices were considerably mixed at the opening of the stock market today. Aggressive buying was resumed in Consolidated Gas and American Can, forcing them up to 137 and 80 respectively. The first transaction in American Can was a block of 10,000 shares. Heavy profit taking developed in Montgomery Ward which opened 3 points lower.

Buying expanded somewhat in the subsequent dealings, carrying a number of stocks up 1 to 3 points. Motor shares were quiet in the early trading on the eve of the General Motors dividend meeting. Montgomery Ward soon attracted support and recovered its initial loss. American Can extended its advance to 82, a record price, and Consolidated Gas went up to 133, the highest in 5 years. John Mackay, newly listed, opened at 125, but quickly fell back to 123.1-1.

Among the early strong spots with gains of 2 points or more were Sears Roebuck, which reached a new high of 92 1/2, Vick Chemical, Victor Talking Machine, American Railway Express, American Sine, Brooklyn Edison and a few others. Early weakness was displayed by American Sugar, Freeport Texas and Air Reduction, the last named dropping back 5 points.

By his plea Hickman has legally admitted commission of the offense charged—kidnaping and murder.

If found sane, Judge J. J. Tribucco is required to pronounce sentence not less than two and not more than five years from the time the verdict is returned. The choice between a sentence of life imprisonment or the death penalty is discretionary with the judge where the jury makes no recommendation and in this case the jurors—stating only the sanity or insanity of the youth—legally can make none.

After Jerome Walsh, young chief of defense counsel in his argument to the jury yesterday labeled the kidnapping and slaying of the school girl as "the most dastardly thing that a human ever set out to do," court attaches remarked that his course left little chance for a plea of mercy for Hickman if the youth were found sane.

No Relief for Murderer.

"For Hickman, the murderer, I hold no brief. It is for Hickman, the madman, that I come to speak to you," the boyish Kansas City attorney said in opening his impassioned plea to the jury.

Quoting the commandment "thou shalt not kill," Walsh declared it applied to every human being, to the jurors as well as to Hickman.

"The antics of a madman," he said, "Hickman's placing of the body of Marian Parker in his car and its delivery to her father."

The horror of the slaying, let Walsh to the belief, he said, that it will present the complete plans, portfolio and scope of the proposed Community Advertising campaign of the South Plains. Every money, her present will be supplied with copies of ads to be used and other information, and the talk of one of the best authorities obtainable on "city planning, what it is and what it is not, the dollar and cent value of it and how to go about developing and securing it."

HICKMAN CASE

derer of little Marian Parker and the case will be in the hands of the jury before night. The jury must decide whether Hickman is a cold-blooded criminal or a madman, he having pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Parker looked at Hickman but once. It was a long, intense stare. Then without any outward show of emotion the banker said:

"He is the man who took the money."

Swiftly then the state rung down the curtain on its testimony.

Preceding Walsh in the final arguments, Deputy District Attorney Forrest Murray, opened the prosecution's analysis of the case, leaving the heavy fire of the closing plea to District Attorney Keyes.

Murray pinned the jurors down to a single issue: Was Hickman sane or insane when he committed the act? "And the law presumes that he was sane," Murray added.

Murray's picture of Hickman was that of a murderer with feelings so calloused and greed so great that human life meant nothing to him, but knowing clearly right from wrong—the legal mark of sanity.

"One of the clearest witnesses in the case was that poor old lady, Mrs. Eva Hickman, who struggled all her life to give that greedy, selfish creature an education," said Murray of Hickman's mother, held by the defense to have shown evidence of insanity.

Richard Cantillon, associate defense counsel, merely covered the introduction of his argument before adjournment last night and had slightly more than an hour of defense time to fill at today's session. In event that Hickman is found perpetrator was insane and he pleaded with the jury to agree with him. Caroleen was at the trial.

"The carelessness of his flight, the very fact that he took his gun with him, show he was primarily anxious to save himself," he said of his client. "He escaped capture as long as he did only because the officers were not looking for a man like Hickman—they were looking for a fiend."

He turned a flood of sarcasm on all the prosecution alienists except Dr. Thomas Orsborn.

The apex of the state's case came just before Walsh made his opening argument, when Perry M. Parker, father of the slain girl, was beckoned to the witness stand by District Attorney Keyes. For the first time since Hickman took $1,500 from the banker at the point of a gun and in turn dumped the body of Marian Parker almost at the father's feet, Parker looked into the face of the youth.

Hickman was not prepared to meet his gaze. The slayer kept his face turned slightly aside. He wiped down into his chair behind his attorneys and bowed his head.

He turned a flood of sarcasm on all the prosecution alienists except Dr. Thomas Orsborn.

The apex of the state's case came just before Walsh made his opening argument, when Perry M. Parker, father of the slain girl, was beckoned to the witness stand by District Attorney Keyes. For the first time since Hickman took $1,500 from the banker at the point of a gun and in turn dumped the body of Marian Parker almost at the father's feet, Parker looked into the face of the youth.

Hickman was not prepared to meet his gaze. The slayer kept his face turned slightly aside. He wiped down into his chair behind his attorneys and bowed his head.

Long Intense Stare

Parker looked at Hickman but once. It was a long, intense stare. Then without any outward show of emotion the banker said:

"He is the man who took the money."

Swiftly then the state rung down the curtain on its testimony.

Preceding Walsh in the final arguments, Deputy District Attorney Forrest Murray, opened the prosecution's analysis of the case, leaving the heavy fire of the closing plea to District Attorney Keyes.

Murray pinned the jurors down to a single issue: Was Hickman sane or insane when he committed the act? "And the law presumes that he was sane," Murray added.

Murray's picture of Hickman was that of a murderer with feelings so calloused and greed so great that human life meant nothing to him, but knowing clearly right from wrong—the legal mark of sanity.

"One of the clearest witnesses in the case was that poor old lady, Mrs. Eva Hickman, who struggled all her life to give that greedy, selfish creature an education," said Murray of Hickman's mother, held by the defense to have shown evidence of insanity.

Richard Cantillon, associate defense counsel, merely covered the introduction of his argument before adjournment last night and had slightly more than an hour of defense time to fill at today's session. In event that Hickman is found perpetrator was insane and he pleaded with the jury to agree with him. Caroleen was at the trial.

"The carelessness of his flight, the very fact that he took his gun with him, show he was primarily anxious to save himself," he said of his client. "He escaped capture as long as he did only because the officers were not looking for a man like Hickman—they were looking for a fiend."

He turned a flood of sarcasm on all the prosecution alienists except Dr. Thomas Orsborn.

PLANES TO AID MOVEMENTS OF MEXICO TRAINS

AIR ESCORTS ORDERED IN REGIONS WHERE
REBELS ACTIVE

(By Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, Feb. 9.—Military airplanes have been ordered to escort trains moving in districts where rebels are now active, the war department announced today. The move was made to further ensure the safety of passengers aboard the trains which are already traveling under armed guard.

The planes will scout in advance of the trains. If they see a massing of rebel forces they will fly back to the train and it will be halted while troops go forward to clear its path.

Both Suffer Casualties
Dispatches from Guadalajara, state of Jalisco, said that both federal forces and rebels had suffered casualties in the government's drive to exterminate the rebels. Nine rebels were killed and one executed. One federal officer and four soldiers were killed and four soldiers wounded.

The army stormed the rebel strongholds at Cerrillo and Jaja Hills on the slopes of the Volcans of Colima in the southern part of the state. Unofficial estimates placed the number of federal troops engaged in the campaign at from 10,000 to 15,000. Reinforcements numbering 3,000 arrived in Jalisco from Sonora.

The rebels are understood to have broken up into small bands and sought safety in mountain strongholds. A virtual blockade is in operation in the district to prevent food, arms and ammunition or recruits from reaching the rebels.

Many Refugees Arrive
Nevertheless many refugees are arriving in Managua from Matagalpa.

Gotham's Heaviest Fog In Years Lifts

NEW YORK, Feb. 9 (AP).—The heaviest fog this port has experienced in years lifted when the sun broke through after 42 hours today, freeing incoming liners which had been held in the lower bay since Tuesday night.

The Berengaria, bringing 1,136 passengers hoisted her anchor from the bottom of Gravesend Bay and swung slowly toward her pier in the north river. Others of the fog-bound fleet turned after her.

Outgoing vessels which had been held up until the mist should clear were preparing to put to sea. Ferry-traffic returned to normal after two days of disrupted schedules.

Canadian And U. S. Rivalry Friendly

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 9 (AP).—The rivalry of Canada and the United States is a rivalry without bitterness, raising no problems which cannot be solved by acquaintance, respect, tolerance and patience. Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg of the United States said at a dinner in his honor given by Premier King of Canada.

"We are rivals in all those accomplishments which make great nations," he said, "in economic, scientific and educational developments, but it is rivalry without bitterness."

ONE KILLED AND SECOND HURT IN DETROIT MELEE

DETROIT, Feb. 9 (AP).—Another death by bullets in the feud between extortionists and rum smugglers has started police on a general roundup of bad men.

Floyd Beck, 33, whom police knew as a rum racketeer, was caught in a volley of pistol shots last night as he and his brother Roy, 30, were leaving a warehouse. Floyd was killed and his brother probably fatally wounded.

A police theory today was that the Beck's, whose joint holdings have been estimated at half a million dollars, were shot in retaliation for the killing Tuesday of Police-man Vivian Welch, who was said by police superintendent Sprott to have been a member of an extortionist gang was shot nine times. His body was tossed from an automobile onto the steps of his precinct police station.

Activities of the extortionists who preyed on gaming house keepers and liquor dealers, died down several months ago when four gang members were trapped in an apartment by machine gunners and shot to death.

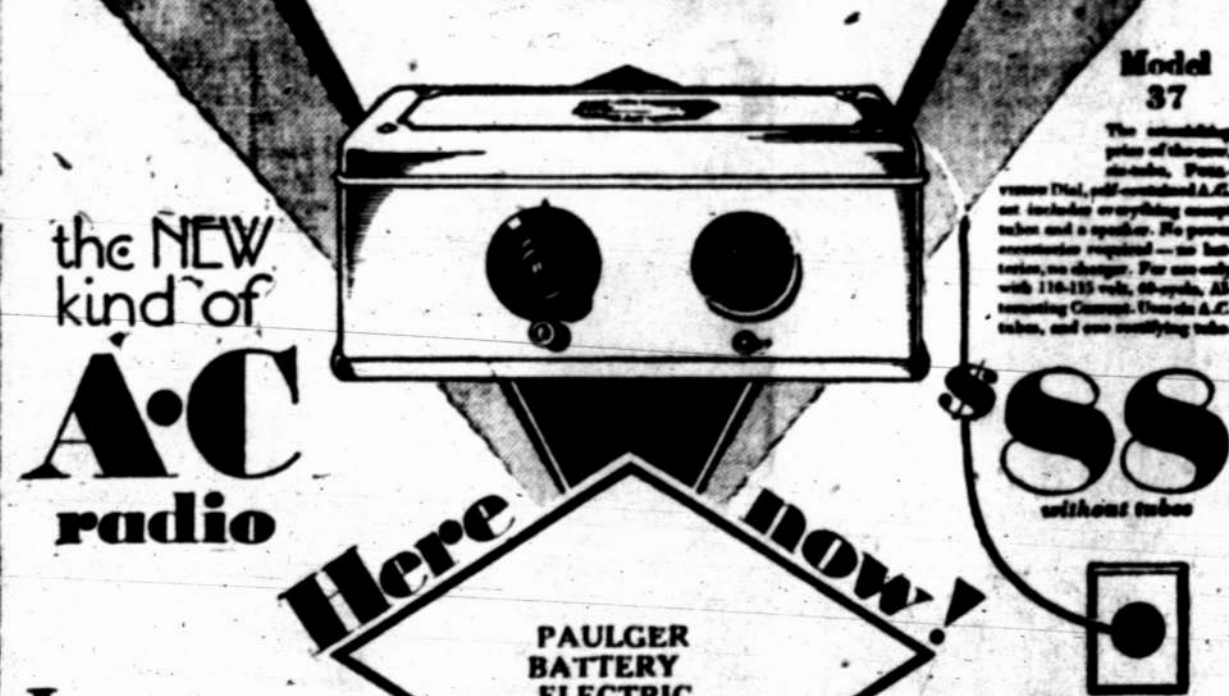

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Cremolun, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Cremolun is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Cremolun contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Cremolun is "guaranteed satisfactory" in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

THE JAZZ SINGER

Novelized by Arline De Haas
Taken from the scenario "The Jazz Singer" Starring Al Jolson.
Copyright, 1927, By Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

The New York Ghetto seethes with activities of preparation for the celebration of Yom Kippur, a most important Jewish holiday. Cantor Rabinowitz of the Orchard street synagogue, who abominates jazz and teaches his son, Jakie, the songs of the synagogue, scolds the boy for his lack of interest in religious music. To his father's horror, Jakie announces that he does not want to be a cantor, but that he wants to sing in a theater. A quarrel ensues and the child goes to a "beer garden" where, without his father's knowledge, he sings ragtime. Mobba Yudelson, the Cantor's friend, hears the boy singing. The Cantor is telling his wife of Jakie's insubordination and she takes the child's part.

The Cantor stared at his wife, incredulous. Twice this day now the members of his family had defied his authority: had set aside as naught the dearest wishes of his heart. He walked the floor excitedly, muttering imprecations in Yiddish against the thanklessness of children, the insubordination of woman, and the pain of thwarted ambitions.

Mrs. Rabinowitz cowed by the storm her words seemed to have created, hurried busily out into the dining room, her arms filled with linen and silverware. She waddled silently about her tasks, making as little noise as possible for fear of again offending her husband.

"Mama, mama!" Cantor Rabinowitz called impatiently. "You know where is Jakie?"

"No, papa," she answered, stopping in the doorway, a big brass chopping bowl filling her arms. "He is maybe playing with the boys."

"So!" The Cantor pulled a great silver watch from his pocket, held it close to his eyes to see the time, and snapped it shut. "Tonight Jakie sings 'Kol Nidre' in the school, and already he doesn't come yet."

"He don't know what is the time, papa," Mrs. Rabinowitz coaxed. "And the supper ain't yet ready."

"Humph!" The Cantor sniffed disdainfully. "Shoudn't he don't come now in a minute he starts his Yom Kippur fasting without no supper."

Mrs. Rabinowitz went back to her kitchen with an anxious heart. At every footfall, every noise, she jumped, hoping against hope that it might signal the approach of her son. If he would only come now, the papa would soon forget his anger and peace would reign once more in the household. At last there came a knock. Mrs. Rabinowitz hurried to the door and threw it open. But there to her surprise, instead of the expected child stood Mobba Yudelson.

"Good evening, Mrs. Rabinowitz. The Cantor is home?" began Yudelson, stepping into the room.

"Good evening, Mr. Yudelson. Come in, Yosele!" Mrs. Rabinowitz called her husband in attention. "It's Mr. Yudelson."

"Good evening, Yudelson," the Cantor turned to shake hands with his friend.

"Cantor, good evening," Yudelson answered.

"Sit down, Mr. Yudelson. Sit down," Mrs. Rabinowitz fluttered about, dusting off the Morris chair with her apron. "It's a pleasure we should see you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Rabinowitz, but I just came to—ahem," Yudelson cleared his throat nervously. "Of course, it ain't my business, but I say to myself, it's mine duty."

"He floundered, scarcely knowing how to break his news."

"Yes, yes, Yudelson, you come to say?" the Cantor prodded the delinquent speaker.

"I feel I should speak to you from this Cantor," Yudelson began again. "It's from Jakie."

"Oh, oh, has happened something?" Mrs. Rabinowitz wailed.

"Nein, nein, Mrs. Rabinowitz, it ain't that," comforted Yudelson. "It's my boy Muller's cafe for the first time. So, is by Jakie Rabinowitz such a voice I should take a look. I take a look and in the true, is singing ragtime Jakie by der garten."

"Oh, wh is mir!" the Cantor exploded. "I fix him. Ragtime he sings. So!" The Cantor reached for his hat and started for the door.

"Papa, papa! Don't!" Mrs. Rabinowitz wailed.

"Of course, it ain't any of mine business," Yudelson was becoming frightened by the disturbance he had created. But the Cantor had already slammed the door.

Mrs. Rabinowitz stood wringing her hands helplessly.

"For why you should tell the Cantor this—and tonight! Is enough you should attend your own business, and leave my Jakie alone."

She sank down into a big chair and buried her face in her apron. "You excuse me, Mrs. Rabinowitz," Yudelson fumbled for words. "I—I go by the store."

He settled his hat more firmly on his head and let himself out quietly. Once on the street he looked down towards the cafe. He could just make out the hurrying figure of the Cantor, who was brushing aside the shopping crowds, scattering them like chaff before a wind. Yudelson shook his head, slightly puzzled. He hadn't meant any harm, actually. He only felt that he was serving the Cantor's interests, and he was devoted to his friend. But it seemed as though he had stirred up trouble by acting out of the goodness of his heart. He wandered slowly towards his jewelry shop.

The Cantor by this time, had reached the family entrance of the cafe. He could hear the strains of the jazz music and the voice of his son. He pushed the door open violently, and stood there for a moment surveying the scene. There was Jakie, his arms outstretched, his voice crying as his father had taught him to make it cry, but the words were not those of the synagogue.

"I wanna dance out both my shoes When they play those Jelly Roll Blues."

Jakie had warmed up to his work. His eyes were rolling. He was giving as good a presentation of the "Strutters Ball" as any actor on Broadway. But as he leaned forward towards his audience the vast bulk of his father loomed ominously before him. The child caught his breath and stopped, staring. Slowly he drew back, but the Cantor reached forth a long arm and caught him by the coat collar in a vise-like grip.

With the squirming figure of the child, the old man made his way to the door. The spectators looked on, amused at this unexpected bit of comedy. As the two disappeared everyone laughed, and the pianist struck up with "They Always, Always Pick On Me."

Up the street went the two figures, the Cantor firmly grasping Jakie's arm. Neither spoke. There was no need for words. The boy knew exactly what was about to happen, and he knew that his father knew that he knew. Jakie felt only sorrow for the mama. It always hurt her, so to see her son punished. Even now she was sitting anxiously awaiting the first sound that would announce the presence of the two. She dried her eyes but they would fill again with tears. The dishes were getting cold, and she set them back on the stove to warm them.

But at last they were home, and the mama was rushing to meet them. She threw open the door and the Cantor thrust Jakie ahead of him into the room. The boy tried to break away, but the irate father held him all the closer.

"Jakie! Jakie!" Mrs. Rabinowitz called, holding out her arms to the child.

"Nu, nu, mama, you will please leave this to me," the Cantor motioned his wife away with an austere gesture. "Singing nigger songs by a beer garden yet!" he shook the boy roughly. "You hummer! You no-good lowlife! I fix you!"

"Papa, you shouldn't!" Mrs. Rabinowitz seized her husband's arm, but he thrust her aside.

He pushed the boy before him towards the bedroom door.

"I teach him he should never again use his voice for such low things."

"But, Yosele, he don't mean bad," Mrs. Rabinowitz pleaded.

"It don't do good to whip him," she said. "I tell you once for all I should teach him to be a cantor in a synagogue; not a lowlife actor in a theater."

"It makes no good, papa," Mrs. Rabinowitz implored, "and so soon Yom Kippur begins he must be ready for the school."

Thought For Today
Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own?—Matt.
23:15.

Responsibility walks hand in hand with capacity and power.—J.
G. Holland.

The Middle
The middle of the road man is seldom popular. There is something in human nature which makes us dislike the person who refuses to take definite sides on any disputed question but insists that the proper course is about half way between the two extremes.

This is unfortunate for it often happens that the middle-of-the-road man is right.
Consider the Nicaraguan situation, for instance. One party insists that we have no right there at all; another party insists that we should go even further than we have gone and put Nicaragua squarely under the rule of the American flag forever.

We suggest that the truth must lie somewhere between those two extremes. The vast majority of Americans undoubtedly have been sensible, feeling toward the Central American republics and want to see them remain free and independent; yet it is undeniably true that constant disturbance such as Nicaragua indulges in are unhealthy conditions for our own back yard.

The middle course? It's no unpopular, yet it's no given correct.

Chamberlin's Tour
Ask how Clarence Chamberlin, with made a very notable flight
across the Atlantic last summer, has begun an aerial tour of America, similar to the one Lindbergh made a few months ago.

His tour has much the same aim as Lindbergh's—to foster civilian aviation and create new public confidence in airplanes. This is a job worth doing.

Chamberlin's doubts will get a warm reception from all of the cities he visits. He deserves it. His feat has been slightly dimmed, through no fault of his own, because of the fact that his flight across the Atlantic came right on the heels of Lindbergh's.

But Chamberlin is an aviator, apparently a fully Lindbergh's equal, and he has conducted himself with the conclusion of his great flight with just as much composure and good taste as his predecessor.

A forced landing, marred the first leg of his aerial tour. Let's hope that bad luck leaves him clear for a while now so that he can have an entirely successful and enjoyable trip. He is a credit to the country and he deserves all the good fortune an aviator can have.

The Flag
Gridley Adams of New Rochelle, N. Y. chairman of the National Flag Code Committee, tells a congressional committee that flag ethics are violated even by our White House.

The eagle on the president's flag is wrong, points the wrong way.
This has pained Mr. Adams, and he wants something done about it.
Probably he's right. These sticklers for points of etiquette usually are. But somehow, for the life of us, we can't get excited about it.

We hope it is not unpatriotic for us to remark that there is just a few too much fussing nowadays about "ethics of the flag." After all, the flag itself is the important thing. It is a symbol of our country and the love we have for it, an emblem of our patriotism. So that it be honored in spirit, who cares whether the formal details be absolutely letter perfect?

Too much officious attention to minor points doesn't do a bit of good.

Seventy-five per cent of the prohibition agents fell down on civil service exams, according to a dispatch. Evidently Uncle Sam wants them to be able to both raid and write.

destinies of the largest chain of mercantile establishments in the world when just out of high school and fresh with the enthusiasm of youth, found at the conclusion of his first effort that he was a failure. That fact would have dampened the ardor of many a man more mature than that high school graduate.

The Plainsman knows nothing at all concerning the personal attributes of E. C. Sams. But he imagines that he knows something about them and has come to the conclusion that the now proven executive ability of the high school graduate, who failed in his first undertaking as bolstered by a will to carry on despite all odds. Which,
as we all know, is essential to any measure of success.

When we face the daily disappointments of life—when the stream of success seems to have changed its course as it rolls toward the sea of independence—we will do well to remember the case of Sams.
In the swirling maelstrom of what was probably the keenest disappointment of his career he relied his spirits in the face of disaster and plodded onward, unheeding to fate, to ultimate wealth and power in the world of commerce.

One swallow doesn't make a summer—and one flop need not make a failure.

Clarence Kelley, a mulatto,
and 19-year-old Beatrice Fuller, descendant of a Northern Civil war general and of direct kin to Mayflower stock, excited the nation with the announcement that they will wed. Unless their plans have gone away, by the time these words are transcribed into type, some sort of an authority will already have made the two man and wife.
The case presents a serious problem.

Several different efforts were made to intimidate Kelley. Other efforts were made to convince the girl that her betrothed was a white woman. Maledictions have been heaped upon the head of the mulatto, no doubt muttering threats of violence have been heard in the Connecticut community where the girl has made her home.

The Plainsman is certainly opposed to the union of a white with a black. No sane man could find any other way about it. Yet whose fault is it that the situation has arisen? Is it the fault of the smirking mulatto seeking to raise his social standard through marriage with one of a superior strain?
Is it the fault of the bearded, evidently ignorant little Beatrice Fuller, her head turned at least momentarily by the mating urge?
Believe either of the principals are entirely to blame. Instead, he places the blame upon the shoulders of a people who, after generations of civilization, have not yet seen fit to place upon their statute books laws prohibiting such unions.

The legislature of every state seemingly to hog wild on the subject of passing new laws every time they gather in session and the record of Congress is no better. Yet in the hurry and scurry to pass this law and that law, destined to protect this ally and that ally, the principle in such unions has no more judgment than to desire it.
The matter of personal liberty, so easily over-riden in some other cases surely should prove no bar to the passage of the bill.

That Man on Avenue Q says
the time will come when women get men's wages—and it will probably be next Saturday night.

From the space it has been taking up, it is the Hickman case had come up just when it did a lot of papers would have to cease publications.

A small town is one which has less than 17 filing stations.

Let's go out on that floating
"dock."

No sooner said than done.
And when the couple reached the place.

They had a raft of fun.

Pennsylvania Sends Lone Democrat To Congress But The Republicans Find He'll Do, Rodney Dutcher Announces

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING
ON BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Along the snake-like alleyway that is Doyer street and those narrow parallels that are Mott and Pell streets there is a colorful dragon
in the very shadow of elevated tracks and of severe municipal buildings with cold Greek faces.

The dragon is a gorgeous dragon,
with a head as large as a Ford of pre-war vintage. It is a dragon head of enormous glass eyes and a great white tongue, of gold paper and green paper and red paper, a treasure and beautiful thing to look upon.

And as it weaves, the rhythmic drum beats of a far-away Orient keep time to its steps and its capsized head. In a moment it halts and a Chinese in the best American suit that Division street can supply steps out into a hollow square, adjusts his very American spectacles and reads his even-American and hand. In a moment he has swung into the stilled, muscled contortions of a strange dance.

In the windows Chinese youngsters are peering like beautiful dolls in a toy shop. They wear their bright paper suits, and their heads are gold and bejeweled.
Through the pavement
patting the soft soled slippers of old-Chinese merchants in their somber black skull caps. On the sidewalks the Chinese in the wind it is the custom that the dragon shall go from there to stare and in the oldest legends, that he must be fed. Where there is no money blowing in the wind there is a leaf of lettuce, or an orange or an apple. Sometimes there is both food and money.

Even a giant it would seem, can change his taste. He knows American money well. And his inward operations, whatever they may be,
are equipped with bill cleaners and send them fluttering into his greedy maw. It is quite as strange to see a dragon with a taste for dollar bills as it is to see a dragon at all in the shadow of an elevated train.

Those who feed the dragons well will continue to prosper. It is written in the book of some men—other. Perhaps the merchants have laid aside their superstitions, but custom and tradition must be observed. Besides, it does bring success, since the festival here many tourists and tourists have money dollar bills which are salvaged off by the chop suey merchants and the dealers in antiquities.

ALONG the street the licker-nut peddlers are out with their carts, and the dealers in candied orange-peel and the dealers in cocoanut dainties. All Chinatown is out on its fire escapes. All Chinatown is in the streets. During the New Year's runs are tossed in the corner. All town difficulties are forgotten. Enemies can meet and exchange blows, but they cannot exchange shots. Men who have been hiding in dark hide-aways for a month or more suddenly forth and see the sky and smell the air.
If any.

And Chinatown demands that all debts be cleared during the New Year's. Slaten must be cleared.
There are many such customs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—If Congressman Rodney Dutcher doesn't watch out, they'll stuff him and put him in the Smithsonian museum.

Kent is the only Democratic congressman from Pennsylvania. He got into the House after a gory battle with a powerful machine and a big slush fund. He is so intelligent and aggressive that he has taken command of a fight which may save Boss Bill Vane of Pennsylvania his second bad licking here this session.

Defying the 35 other Pennsylvania representatives, Kent is out to unseat the Hon. James M. Beck.
Boss Vane, elected to the Senate and doomed to be thrown out, gave Beck his old seat in the House last fall after Beck had lawyered for him even unto the point of writing a book to prove Vane's right to the senatorship.

The allegation against Beck is that he wasn't even a legal Philadelphian and hence had no right to run in the special election arranged for him by Vane.

Kent, 39 years old, is a former machinist, newspaper reporter, school teacher and principal, considered a dealer and lawyer. He served a term here once before, being elected in 1922.

With reference to his last election, Kent was asked:
"How did you, a Democrat, ever get elected in Pennsylvania?"

"Simple," said he. "I went to the people with a doctrine of equal and exact justice to all and special privilege to none. Did the people get what I meant? You bet they did!"

"The gang raised $75,000 to beat me. Prohibition enforcement officers and other federal jobholders diverted most of it by squeezing it out of the liquor dealers. The liquor dealers were called on to contribute. They had to pay, but they were so angry about it that they voted for me after supporting me on the quiet."

"The output of several breweries was diverted into my district in the last four days of the campaign.
Anyone who wanted to distribute it to persuade the voters to vote against me could have a barrel free. But most of them took it and sold it for 15 cents a glass and then voted for me."

"I couldn't get a campaign card on railroad property. The railroad officials placarded their grounds with opposition placards and worked on their employees, but the workers came to my meetings at night and all employees except the railroad voted for Kent."

"In 1924, during the Republican landslide, they counted me out in districts that were positively mine.
This time I served notice that they hadn't better try it again, paid $300 for watchers and won by 1500 votes.
I've got the great independent district of Pennsylvania, which has never been debauched."

"When I tell the railroad men, farmers, miners and factory workers that the Pennsylvania tax system has widows worst of all—especially widows forced out to make their own living scrubbing floors, dressmaking or in factories and all sound ones. Meanwhile the dragoon sweeps through the 8-shaped Doyer street and trails along Mott and Pell. And Manhattan has brought to it for a few days a touch of the far-away and the bizarre."

MISUNDERSTANDING

A speaker before the Rotary club yesterday declared that the reason for the failure of the League of Nations as it was first projected following the world war that the five statesmen who met in conference to outline the League did not understand each other and did not speak a common language. If his analysis of the matter is defensible—and it probably is—it offers another illuminating example of the tragedy of misunderstanding.
If the world of war must hang over the whole world, because five men sitting around a conference table could not envision the difficulties under which each is laboring and can not sympathize with each other in their common effort toward a given objective, what can one say to the limitation of the serious consequence of misunderstanding?

Jesus was misunderstood and His motives were challenged, despite the fact He was a perfect man and His motives were absolutely pure.
Even His friends and followers misunderstood Him, and quarreled with each other as to the division of His kingdom among them. When in the course of His ministry He returned to the town in which He spent His boyhood, the people refused to hear His message and the hostility of the community was so pronounced that He could do no mighty works there save that "He led his hands upon a few sick folk and healed them."

Ever since that time Jesus has been misunderstood, and His followers have been misunderstood. Instead of crowning Him the King of Glory, religious enthusiasts crucified Jesus on Calvary. Instead of bearing their messages of salvation, the people murdered the Disciples who followed Jesus and sought to evangelize the world even in comparatively modern times.

Christians have died at the stake, branded as witches and devils, and in our own day an degeneration, Christians are criticized as narrow minded bigots and dreaming fools who are trying to get the world to believe in a Savior who never existed so that they may escape from damnation that is not impending.

The tragedy of misunderstanding is that we condemn those whom we do not understand. Human experience, as well as God's revealed Word, teaches us that it is folly to undertake to fathom the depths of another man's soul and reach a conclusion as to the great purpose of his life, and yet there is hardly a day in which we do not do exactly that which we condemn in others. Misunderstanding is not merely a negative frame of mind, a failure to get a grasp upon that which is laid before us, but it is a positive action that rejects as all that we do not see as good and worthy. We undervalue our friends—our own loved ones, sometimes—we criticize our neighbors, we question the plans and purposes of groups and organizations, we even challenge Christianity itself because for some reason we have misunderstood ourselves to substitute charity for misunderstanding and tolerance for suspicion. And while we do so, we endanger our own souls because we are following a wrong example—the example of those who crucified Christ rather than the example of Christ Himself, who was patient and loving even in the midst of his enemies and who was sympathetic and helpful even to those who misunderstood Him and persecuted Him most bitterly.—Brownwood Bulletin

"Bandit holds up drug stores as handicraft shops, says a headline probably from Chicago. Well, you can't blame them for that."

Bert Acosta was arrested for flying his plane too close to the ground. We thought people were jailing just for flying high."

Old-fashioned oil lamps are coming back. They make excellent stoves for modern apartments.

Even so, old saws are better than musical ones.

While nine billion dollars of corporate wealth goes untaxed, they know what I mean because they've seen it work. My opponent had referred everybody who wanted anything in Washington to the county chairman at home and they didn't like that.

I made 139 speeches and spoke wherever I could get a front porch,
a church social or an abandoned hotel barroom."

Kent predicts that Democracy will soon recover itself in Pennsylvania.

As for Beck, on whose case he has been working late at night, Kent has dug up a mass of material from ancient constitutional records, but he relies especially on the constitutional requirement that a congressman shall, when elected be an inhabitant of the state in which he shall be chosen, and the Pennsylvania law requiring a candidate to live in Pennsylvania six months before election.

Beck was elected Nov. 3, 1926. He had rented an apartment in Philadelphia only in July, but Vane controlled Philadelphia and someone had assured Beck for a poll tax on May 3, exactly six months back.
Kent says Beck has no property in Philadelphia, that the assessment was fraudulently postponed and that the record of it has now been spoiled away, although two of Kent's witnesses managed to copy it first.

Kent quotes framers of the constitution as warning that unless congressmen were required to be inhabitants of the districts they ran for "rich men of neighboring states may employ corrupt methods and get into the public councils after having failed in their own states."

Beck may retain his seat, but Kent probably has ruined his chances of being appointed to the seat refused to Vane in the Senate.

and wives have had troubles and misunderstandings and the family relations have been torn through misunderstandings, and so on down through a life. Misunderstandings being about a tremendous amount of trouble, and if this be the case in the matter of the League of Nations, it should be tried over and over again, in order that we may not be dragged into another world war, just because one nation does not know the mind of the other.

Among the lost property found in London's underground railways during the past year were 20,000 pairs of gloves, 12,000 umbrellas and 5,000 walking sticks.
