(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The department of justice stepped actively today into the controversy over the right of Federal Judge Wilson at Fort Worth, Texas, to release on probation Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Polar explorer serving a 14 year sentence for fraud in the Leavenworth penitentiary.

Directions were transmitted from the attorney general's office to the warden at Leavenworth, instructing him to hold Cook pending further orders. Although the prison official is instructed not to honor the release order issued several days ago there is little likelihood of this exigency being as Judge Wilson has given the department of justice assurances that he will cooperate in making out of Cook order a test case.

To Be Test Case

On its outcome will depend the establishment of the important legal principle of whether a federal judge can release a convicted person on probation after he has served part of his sentence. It has been the attitude of the department that this could not be done but that the probation law of 1925 empowered a court to place a defendant on probation only after sentence but before serving of the term.

Suspect Outlaws In Slaying At Borger

BORGER, Texas, March 19 (AP)—J. L. Walker, and Ed Bailey, charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting at one o'clock Saturday morning of Coke Buchanan, Borger night policeman, were released on $3,500 bond after arraignment before Justice of Peace S. M. Spencer. They were later re-arrested when new evidence was uncovered, and were taken to the county jail at Stinson. According to Assistant County Attorney J. O. Cooke, Mr. Cooke said that two and possibly three men escaped after the shooting. Although no further charges have been filed, Mr. Cooke declared that from descriptions given by Officer Neal, who was with Buchanan at the time of the shooting, Ray Terrell, who escaped recently from the Oklahoma penitentiary and Matthew Kinney, who escaped from an Oklahoma jail, were in the party at the time the shooting took place.

Prefers Death To Revealing His Pals

ENID, Okla., March 19 (AP)—Rather than reveal the names of his confederates, Dave Brown, 19, today at Cherokee voluntarily accepted a sentence of death for bank robbery.

This was the first time that the death penalty has been assessed in Oklahoma for that offense, although there has been a law for some time making robbery with fire arms a capital offense.

The youth admitted his part in the robbery of the bank at Jet last year in which $1,100 was taken but positively refused to name the other two youths who were with him. Judge Charles Sewell agreed to lighten the sentence if he would tell.

Brown says he is 19 years old. His mother was in court and pleaded for him, declaring that he was mentally unsound. Execution was set for May 29.

No one was killed or injured in the robbery. The young men held up the officials of the bank and escaped with the money without a shot being fired.

CROWDS HINDERING FORD LIBEL TRIAL

RUSH FOR SEATS MARKS THE OPENING OF TRIAL
EVERY DAY

DETROIT, Mar. 19.—Crowds that daily have tried to "crash the gates" at the trial of the $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford present a serious problem to court attaches as the time for Ford's appearance on the witness stand draws near.

Although the proceedings thus far have not been of a sensational nature, there has been a spirited fight each session for seats. No injuries have been reported in jams at each door but clothes have suffered.

The beautiful little court room accommodates but a handful. Aaron Sapiro who claims his reputation as an organizer of co-operative farmers' organizations was injured by articles in the Dearborn Independent, has been the only one of the principals regularly in court. Although Ford was reported to have been in the Federal building the opening day of the trial, it later developed a thin slender court attaché had been mistaken for him.

Sitting quietly behind his attorney, the black haired professional has had little to say other than to advise from time to time with his lawyer, W. J. Cameron, editor of the Independent and F. D. Black, its business manager, have attended more or less regularly. Cameron being the first on the witness stand.

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, brought the first bit of action to the trial in his opening statement for Ford. He charged failures and consequent loss of millions of dollars through Sapiro, smiling sardonically as he told of promises made by the Chicago attorney and resorting to mockery in quoting from speeches of Sapiro, the veteran senator held the undivided attention of the jury and packed room.

LEGION MEETS MONDAY

Plans for Division Convention to Be Held Here During May to Be Talked

The local Post of the American Legion will meet in regular session on Monday night in the basement of the Temple B'nai B'rith building, and will take further steps in the plan to entertain the division convention that meets here May 21 and 22, it was announced Saturday.

One or two committees have been appointed to begin preliminary plans for the convention, and other committees probably will be named at the Monday night session. It was said. A good program has been arranged, and light lunch will be served. Every member of the Post and interested ex-servicemen is urged to attend the meeting, beginning at 7:30.

MAINTAINED SILENCE

LOYALTY TO WIFE COST
MAN HIS LIBERTY
FOR YEAR

(By The Associated Press)

WILLIAMSBURG, Ky., March 19.—A woman scorned, a girl dissatisfied with home and a tight mouthed mountaineer formed the "eternal triangle" in a case which resulted in the mountaineer being sentenced to life imprisonment for a "murder" that was never committed.

Two of the three principals today disclosed the circumstances under which Mary Vickery, 16 years old, disappeared; some bones were found later in an abandoned mine shaft, and a woman's revenge sent Conley Dabney, 32, to the Frankfort reformatory under life sentence. The third, Marie Jackson, 27, was in jail as a sequel. Her story has not been told.

RETURNS AGAIN

Mary Vickery, appeared at her former home here today after being missing and believed dead since August, 1925, and broke a silence that has kept Dabney in prison for more than a year.

"I disappeared from home because I was not happy with the home life with my father and step mother," she said. "I had Conley Dabney take me in an automobile to a country railroad station. He left me there and drove away. I took the train to Cincinnati, where I worked in a women mill."

"I heard about Dabney being charged with killing me, but I didn't want to be taken back home, so I kept still and did not reveal that I was still alive. I stood it as long as I could and then decided to make it known that I was alive, so Dabney could be set free. I didn't want to go home, so I returned again."

Penalty Of Life Imprisonment Is Assessed Him In Slaying Of Spavinaw Merchant

PRYOR, Okla., Mar. 19 (AP)—Ben Schup, 34, of Varina, Iowa, today was convicted of murdering Leonard F. Greer, Spavinaw, Okla., merchant in the latter's home, last October, and was sentenced to life imprisonment while Greer's father, Leonard F. Greer, sr., who had sat in the court room throughout the trial, wept.

Sentence was set to April 2, when also a motion for a new trial will be heard by Add V. Coppedge, trial judge. The sister Greer later expected satisfaction with the verdict.

Mrs. Anita Greer, wife of the slain man, also charged with his murder, will go to trial Monday. W. W. Powell, county attorney said he would ask the death penalty for Mrs. Greer.

DR. GRANBERY WILL ADDRESS CARPENTERS AT LABOR MEET

Dr. J. C. Granbery, head of the department of history of the Tech, will address the Lubbock Carpenters' union in their regular meeting tomorrow night at the Labor Temple.

The address will be along similar lines as those of which he gave the Union last fall, some phase of economics being his subject. The meeting tomorrow night has been designated as ladies night and a special program has been prepared.

Blizzard Is Cause of Death For Two

DENVER, March 19 (AP)—Two persons were dead because of the blizzard and three to seven inches of snow covered Colorado and Wyoming tonight as one of the biggest storms of the winter began to abate.

As snow flurries fell today on the Colorado Plains, assuring sufficient moisture for crops, a crew continued to clear the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad tracks near Silverton, isolated a month ago by blizzards and snow-slides, and the end of their labors was in sight.

The efforts to re-establish railroad communication with Silverton cost a life. Antonio Lagato, laborer, died today of exposure endured while shoveling snow.

The blizzard, beating down from the north, caused another death at Laramie, Wyoming. Miss Ella Bruchet was killed and eight persons were injured when two automobiles, the drivers' vision obscured, collided today.

MOB DROWNS SLAYER OF MAYO OFFICER

IS HURLED IN SEAWANE RIVER
AFTER FATAL SHOOTING OF A DEPUTY

(By Associated Press)

MAYO, Fla., Mar. 19.—Bert Allen of Mayo, was seized by a mob and thrown into the Seawane river late today while being taken to a lake city hospital suffering from wounds received when his barricaded home was dynamited by a sheriff's posse after the shot and killed Will Brock, ranger, and seriously wounded Deputy Sheriff Frank Murray.

"A part of Mayo citizens was in the vicinity tonight searching for his body."

The tragedy has its beginning this week when Deputy Sheriff Murray accompanied by his friend Brock, attempted to serve papers on Allen and remove his two children to public institution. Allen, according to witnesses, opened fire and killed Brock and shot Murray in the stomach, inflicting a possibly fatal wound.

Girls Refuse Show Take Tech Instead

In the same matter that "love lauch" at back-slashes, interest declines to be decorated by pleasure or by distance and to prove it nine Rotap high school girls, chaperoned by Prof. Guy E. Casey, superintendent, and Miss Ruby D. Harris, instructor, were in Lubbock yesterday inspecting Tech college. The trip from Rotan and return was made in a school bus and comprised a total distance of more than 230 miles.

Last week Rotan high school sent 30 boys, all students of the institution, to the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth, and offered to do the same for the girls of the home economics department. Those young ladies, however, decided that "it all the same to be teachers" they would rather view the wonders at Texas Tech so their plea was granted.

The route to Lubbock the party stopped at Post City where the Pastors of the Methodist church here, under the tutelage of Dean J. M. Jordan, was their reward for the trip.

RARE OPERATION MADE

Otha McCleod Relieved of Suffering
When Nerves to Feet Are Cut by Physicians

Relieved from the pains of Ethrobelagia, a rare disease of the blood vessels, Otha McCleod, 17, local youth was carried to his home late Friday after he had undergone an operation in the Lubbock Sanitarium several days ago.

The boy was brought to the sanitarium, suffering intensely, with his feet paralyzed turned dark as if they had been badly burned. Physicians at the sanitarium diagnosed the case and performed an operation of the nerves which led to his feet, relieving the pain. He is unable to use his feet and although it is a possibility doctors believe that he will be able to walk.

DISTURBANCE

(By The Associated Press)

COFFEYVILLE, Kansas, March 18.—The military, cooperating with civil authorities, clamped down the lid on Coffeyville tonight to prevent a recurrence of last night's race rioting in which four persons were injured and the city hall stoned by a mob.

All business houses, cafes, theatres and other public gathering places were ordered closed at 9 a. m. as a precautionary measure.

With the city under strict military rule the situation remained outwardly quiet and authorities expressed confidence that there would be no repetition of last night's disorders, which were precipitated when a group of whites clashed with negroes after unsuccessful attempts to seize a negro held in the city jail in connection with an assault on two white girls.

Order Streets Cleared

Orders to clear the streets at 9 p. m. tonight and tomorrow night were issued by Major E. T. Patterson, commanding three troops of National Guard cavalry on duty here, on the advice of Mayor Elmer Joyce.

Troops guarding the city hall, in which the jail is located, were withdrawn and deployed along Union street, a thoroughfare given over to negro business and amusement places.

Curtis Smith, the negro sought by the mob, was released after the girls were unable to identify him. Sheriff W. D. McCrabb declared. Rumors persisted, however, that Smith was in custody in a nearby county.

Several negro leaders protested to the military over the searching of negroes on down town streets by soldiers. They said some negro citizens had been stopped and searched for arms as many as ten times.

Negroes Dispersed

Negro gatherings in cafes and barbershops were broken up.

The order issued by the National Guard commander was stringent and enforced.

BROWNFIELD ROAD BIDS ARE RETURNED

COMMISSIONERS TO DROP THE CONSTRUCTION OF THIS HIGHWAY NOW

The Lubbock county commissioners' court, in session here Saturday afternoon, passed an order calling for return of bids retained by the court on the construction project on State Highway No. 53 from Lubbock to the county line toward Brownfield following refusal of the state to participate in expenses of the project. Bids and certified checks will be returned to W. T. Hudman, of Alpine, who was awarded the contract by the court here; R. B. Stroup, of Albany; and Griffin, Dodson and Welch, all of whose bids were retained pending action by the State Highway Commission on the contract award.

The contract was awarded subject to approval of the state department, and when this approval was withheld after refusal of the state commission to participate in the project the sense of the court was that the project could not be continued. It was explained that the award was made contingent upon state aid, and that the county could not go on with the contract paying the full expense.

This is the second project in the county that has been blocked after advertising was out for bids, proceedings had been had, and the contract awarded. The first was the road to Shallowater having been halted last fall by the injunction granted to Dan Moody, then Attorney General, after bids were advertised to have been received in December. The court announced no plans for future activity toward highway improvement.

DISTURBANCES SAYS
WEATHERMAN

GREEN FOREST, Ark., March 18.—Twenty-one persons were killed and more than 100 injured by the tornado which struck this region late last night.

Seventeen were killed at Green Forest and four at Denver, eight miles northeast, the injured included 57 at the emergency hospital here, 27 housed in homes around the town and 15 or 20 taken to Eureka Springs. Two to the latter died tonight and one other person was in a critical condition tonight.

Added to the fatalities caused by the storm in Saline county on the preceding night, the 21 deaths in this region bring the two days storm toll of Arkansas to 33.

Relief Work

Red Cross workers and National Guardsmen from Harrison were taking relief to the stricken area in the northwest section of the state.

Meanwhile, eleven victims of the storm in Saline county Thursday night were hurriedly taken. Relief measures were being well organized under local control at Benton, southwest of here.

Telephone and telegraph lines delayed reports of the loss and the damage in Green Forest. The property loss was believed to have exceeded $200,000.

Thirteen of the dead had been counted tonight and two others died after they had been removed to the Eureka Springs hospital. Nearly a score of the injured were in the hospital.

Hail and windstorms in Missouri across the Arkansas line, did considerable property damage. Two persons were reported injured there.

Quar Epizootic

The whirling wind visited Denver and Colo. other communities in Carroll county, but reports of death there were disputed by later accounts and the number of injured was not known here. One house at Green Forest was lifted clear of the trees top by the tornado and set down again without serious harm to its occupants.

Another residence was borne away.

A Journey With NEA'S Camera Man Through The Big League Camps

Two youngsters have been with McGraw since last year and saw service on the New York infield many times. Neither is expected to play regularly this season, but both are so valuable as reserves that the yare practically assured of keeping their jobs under McGraw.

Watch the Phillies climb a bit this year, broadcasts Stuffy McInnis from Bradenton, Fla., where the Phils are now in training.

McInnis has one consolation other managers who are playing a club for the first time in the majors haven't. The Phils can't finish any lower this season than they did last year. Stuffy says they're going a few pegs higher up the ladder.

Mitchell has been showing enough stuff with his left arm in Bradenton to make McInnis feel as if the left-hander will be able to take a regular turn on the mound. Thompson, who made an enviable record in the International League last season, is just about certain of a regular job on the Phil's infield this season. He specializes in extra-base raps.

Here's Boss Jack McCallister of the Cleveland Indians, now training at Lakeland, Fla., telling his first lieutenant, George Burns, that the Tribe men will be in the pennant fight this year. Speaker or no Speaker in center field.

The way George smiles as his boss does the talking makes it rather convincing, doesn't it? McCallister has many problems on his mind down at Lakeland, the biggest of which is filling Speaker's shoes in center. He believes, however, that Summa will fill the job. Burns does, too.

MATADOR BASEBALL ASPIRANTS SHOW GOOD FORM AS FREELAND PUTS THEM THROUGH PACES FOR MERIT DISPLAY

Brilliant prospects are looking in Tech baseball. Although the term examinations denied the work of the Matadors in the last weeks, Coach "Big Ed" Freeland is calling back the crew on Monday for a week of hard training. With a few weeks before the college season starts, the big senior is working hard and putting the lads through a rough of final preparations. The biggest problem now confronting Freeland is a full-in for the short garden, and also is finding that his pitching staff will be somewhat weaker than first thought.

Several promising lads are taking regular turns in the short field and just who will fill the bill has not been determined by Coach Freeland. "Red" Walker, Peterson, "Doc" Harlow, and "Windy" Watkins are all making bids for the short stop position. At the present time "Windy" Watkins, last season outfielder, is snagging the grounders and flinging the ball to the first sack better than the other recruits.

Other Jobs Filled

The Matadors are well fixed with the other infield positions with "Tah" Nicholas, a former Amarillo product, and for several years a member of the Amarillo city club, is holding his own at third; while Bud Taylor is working Nicholas for the position. "Topper" Ruffey, keystone man of the Tech infield and a veteran of the Matador infielders is showing his usual form. Ted Stans, a Texas university product, is displaying rare ability in holding the initial sack.

"Chubby" DeWitt, central high school product of Fort Worth and for two seasons a member of the Redwood team in the Panther city league, is giving the outfield a work and is bringing out good hits in the daily workouts. Buster Kaufman, another Amarillo product, is also presenting a strong bid for the center garden duties. Veterans of the outfield that are working with DeWitt and Kaufman in the outfield are Marshall, Blackburn, Watkins and Hill.

Few Southpaws

The hurling crew of the Matadors that will have mound duty to work with are: Earl Stuckey, of the Amarillo high school and city team, catcher and fast ball pitcher; "C" Craver, pitcher; Eitzenman, of the Plainview high school; and Walker, also hit out with the pitching training. "Satch" Hill, moundman of the last season's nine, will likely be unable to assume duties on the mound this season due to injuries received in the football game of last fall. Hill's hitting, which is a big factor in the heavy line playing, will be used to a good advantage, however, by shifting him to the outfield.

Hamilton Looks Good

On the receiving line of the Matador baseball team, Coach E. J. Freeland has listed "Bud" Hamilton, "C" Craver, and Robinson, who are all working competently for the team. Hamilton, veteran of the great American machine and last year's captain, is looking like the best bet for the other end of the baseball battery.

Ingerton Plans New Tech P-T. Contests

Captain Rhoades Ingerton, director of physical training, of the Tech, is preparing a schedule for the ten sections of the P. T. department that will be carried out during the spring term of the college year. One game a week will be played among the different sections of the department and the section concluding the season with the highest percentage will be awarded the departmental championship.

Captain Ingerton states that unusual interest is already being shown in the baseball activities of the physical training department. The P. T. games will afford much pleasure to the fans of the city and college. Mr. Ingerton stated yesterday.

Champions of all weights in the wrestling tournament were given gold medals by the athletic department of the university, as follows: 110 lb. class—L. Cranfield of Amarillo, engineer; 125 lb. class—Tom Butler of Tyler, business administration; 135 lb. class—Barber, 145 lb. class—J. P. Foster of Dallas, pre-law; 160 lb. class—R. D. Bedford of Austin, engineer; 175 lb. class—Bedford, heavy class—H. R. Phillips of Dallas, engineer.

IMP WINS CUP IN BISCAYNE BAY REGATTA

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 19 (AP)—The "Imp" won the gold cup class boat race today in the 14th annual Biscayne Bay regatta, easily defeating her closest rival, Miss Tampa, by a half lap. Her average time was 44 minutes per hour.

The E. H. B. Green trophy for outboard motors was won by Baby Bant, driven by J. A. Fisk, Cocoa, Fla., when it finished first today after a third place yesterday. Poison, owned by B. H. Conklin, West Palm Beach, was second.

College Golf Meet Draws 30 Entrants

Some thirty college golfers have already entered into the all-college golf tournament which will be held this week on the municipal course. Herschel MacFarland, supervisor of the tournament, states that numerous other Tech students will enter the meet before actual developments in the feature begin. A number of good golfers are enrolled at the college and the meet is expected to stimulate much interest among the golf fans of the city while being played off.

Qualifying rounds will be played through this week and all scores should be turned in to Herschel MacFarland at Bowen's Drug Store when finished. The sixteen best scores made in the qualifying rounds will be sent into the first and second elimination flights and then with the semi-final and final played off the tournament will likely be completed next week.

Attractive prizes are being offered to the winners of the meet by the merchants of the city.

DALLAS, March 19 (AP)—Negotiations leading to a post season football game Christmas week of this year between Southern Methodist university and West Point were reported as successfully concluded here Saturday in an exchange of telegrams between managers of the teams.

While it has not been announced where the game will be played, it most likely will be at West Point.

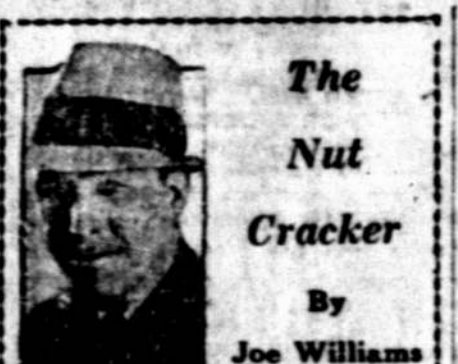

FLOOD AT McALISTER

McALISTER, Okla., Mar. 19 (AP)—Rain that fell during 26 minute cloud-burst Wednesday night did approximately $50,000 damage to property adjacent Sandy Creek, which traverses the heart of the city. Water more than two feet deep rushed through many streets, buildings, and bridges were badly damaged. The fire department was called out to assist some families to safety when the inundation brought water above the floor levels of their homes.

NINE NEW TENNIS COURTS FOR TEXAS UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, March 19—There have been opened recently nine new tennis courts for women students at the University of Texas. The new courts have a natural clay surface such as is found on the varsity exhibition courts for men, and are regarded as much better than those previously used by the co-eds. Members of eight physical training classes will make use of the courts during the spring term. When they are not being so used, they are open to any woman student of the institution.

These schools are among the 65 universities, colleges, and secondary schools that have filed entry applications for the games with L. T. Bell, athletic director of Texas University.

Where To Play Big George Kelly Will Be Heavy Problem

ORLANDO, Fla., March 19—The Reds have George Kelly, versatile athlete late of the New York Giants, but Jack Hendricks, Cincinnati pilot, does not know what to do with him. "Kelly's versatility makes him such a valuable player that we don't know where to play him," said Hendricks. Kelly is primarily a first baseman. He served most of his time with the Giants at that position, although he was used at other spots on the infield and also used some in the outfield.

OFFICERS INVESTIGATE FORD TO DETERMINE OWNERSHIP

Mrs. Wightman Wins Indoor Tennis Meet

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 19 (AP)—Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston made a clean sweep of the 26th National Women's indoor tennis championships late today, when, paired with G. Peabody Gardner, Jr., of Boston, she defeated Miss Sarah Palfrey and Malcolm T. Hill, youthful stars, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2, to win the mixed doubles title.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Wightman had captured the singles title by defeating Miss Margaret Blake of Boston, 6-0, 2-6, 6-4; and had teamed with Mrs. John R. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., to carry off honors in women's doubles, defeating Miss Blake and Miss Edith Sigourney, of Boston, 8-6, 1-6, 6-2.

FRANK BROWN IS NEW ASSISTANT CHAMBER SECRETARY

PLAINVIEW, March 19—Frank L. Brown of Plainview, has succeeded Mack Boswell as assistant secretary of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture and Board of City Development. Brown has been employed for the past several months in the postoffice at Plainview and is the son of Postmaster F. L. Brown of this city. Boswell resigned several days ago to accept the secretaryship of the Ford County Chamber of Commerce at Crowell, the duties of which he has already assumed.

BROWNFIELD FARMERS DISCUSS COTTON OUTLOOK FOR YEAR

BROWNFIELD, March 19.—On Monday afternoon farmers from all sections of this county met at the district court room for the purpose of reviewing the cotton situation and for formulating plans that might result in stabilizing the price at marketing time this coming fall. No definite plan was decided upon although several speakers were of the opinion that a price reduction is necessary while others expressed themselves in favor of state bonded warehouses. Other meetings will be called before planting time and it is hoped something feasible will be worked out that will be subject to adoption by other cotton counties.

French Tennis Team Beat U. S. Veterans

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—The French tennis combination of Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon today clinched the international team match by capturing the doubles in a hard fought five-set contest with the veteran American pair, Watson M. He served most of his time with the Giants at that position, although he was used at other spots on the infield and also used some in the outfield.

The Reds have Wally Pipp at first. Pipp, while hitting below .300 last season, drove in more runs than any other man on the club. That makes it hard to put Kelly in his place. Only time will solve Hendricks' problem about Kelly. Kelly may fill the place of Eddie Roeder, whom he was traded for, in center field. He may try his hand at some other spot on the infield. But he is going to play some place. He is too valuable a man to be kept on the bench.

MAJORS HIT FASTER PACE IN TRAINING GRIND

CLEVELAND INDIANS LAGGING WHILE YANKEES AND ATHLETICS ARE ALSO SLOW IN ATTAINING TOP CONDITION

(By Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Mar. 19.—The fourth week of the spring training grind of Major League baseball clubs closed today and found most of the stars and lesser lights in fine fettle. With the opening of the National and American Leagues now less than a month away, the work out for the next fortnight is of a finishing nature and will find managers expecting veterans and youngsters alike to show "under fire" qualities.

Jack McCallister, pilot of the Cleveland Indians, seems to be the only really dissatisfied leader in the south. The Tribe is conditioning slowly at Lakeland, as evidenced by the consistent losses in exhibition games of the last ten days. The lineup has been shifted considerably in an effort to find a more successful combination.

Yankees Slow
In two other camps, those of the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics, the men have not reached desired form. Several of Miller Huggins' stars are not yet able to travel the route. These include Bob Meusel and Combs. Both were excused from today's exhibition clash with the Boston Braves at St. Petersburg. However, Babe Ruth, who has been off the field for some time, is in the Yankee line-up.

As for the White Elephants at Fort Myers, Connie Mack, has noticed the underpinnings of Eddie Collins have been wobbly of late. The veteran second sacker, again a "rookie" in the A's camp, is noticeably apprehensive about his legs as he goes through the daily drill.

Exhibition Games
Exhibition games engaged practically all of the fourteen clubs quartered in the south. Of the eleven aggregations in Florida, all were in action save the St. Louis Cardinals. They went through a stiff workout at Avon Park, in anticipation of a heavy schedule next week. Tom Thoenes signed this week following a three week holdout, is due to join the team tonight. O'Farrell had been bothered about the short stop gap several days. Jack Flowers, who was filling in the position in handy fashion for some time, has an injured foot and Tommy is looked to as the necessary cog to close the infield leak.

A new note has been heard in the Washington Senator's dugout for this speaker, another of the famous "crucifix" of the year, is slugging with great gusto. The "Glorious Eagle" has been clouting for an average of .371.

MORE INTEREST BEING SHOWN DAILY BY LARGER OIL COMPANIES AS THEY SECURE LEASES OVER SOUTH PLAINS

With more interest being shown in the prospects for oil development on the South Plains and surrounding territory, major companies are directing their activities to this section. Leases are being checked over in more than 25 of the counties surrounding Lubbock and representatives of the companies are making a careful survey of the structure and formation of various localities.

The World Oil company, of Ft. Worth, will be the next company to make a location on the South Plains. Its test to go down in the Wilbarger county school land on the Spade ranch in Hockley county. Other drilling contractors and promoters are interested in locations in this section.

Interest Is Rising
While new locations are being sought and interest in rising, drilling operations in more than 20 counties are continuing along an average rate. A number of the wells are below the 2000 foot level and indications for pay are favorable.

The Yellowhouse number 1 test in Lamb county is to be abandoned at 4235 feet, the bit resting in a brown lime formation. Operators feel that the test has been a success to a certain extent in that it has given the source of information for the other tests of this section.

In Lubbock county, the Center Oil company's Boles number 1, 5 miles of Lubbock is drilling at 410 feet, after having gone through a hard surface formation in their first 100 feet and hitting the water sand at 200 feet.

Robertson Going Down
The El Capitán Oil company number 1 Robertson test in Crosby county is drilling at 2660 feet and structure indications are good. This well is about 20 miles southeast of Lubbock.

In Hockley county, to the west of Lubbock, the Ricker-Dodson (El Capitán) Elwood-Meyrick number 1 is drilling at 716 feet. The World Oil company is to make their location in this county also, possibly in the center of a 1000 acre tract.

Goehran county's test, the Whicker number 1 is not showing activity, the inch casing is being cemented at present.

The Engleklime-Kegans at El number 1 Mulliken in Hale county is spudding at 154 feet and operations are to be continued until favorable pay is shown.

Being farther west from Lubbock to Castro county, the Colorado oil and development company number 1 Clements test has the derrick near completion and the test well is being spudded in soon. The Gulf production company number 1 Clements is drilling at 1615 feet, the well being located 3 1/2 miles southeast of Dimmitt. The Mystery oil company's Crum number 1 has no activity at present.

Burned Rig Replaced
Going into Farmer county, the Humble's Farwell number 1 has a new rig going up, the old one being burned several weeks ago. The well is down 1220 feet.

Making a circle of the territory we find that the Chechako Oil company's

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Walter Hagen Laughs Last
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Walter Hagen is having the last laugh at the expense of Gene Sarazen. I happened to be in on the affair when the "Hag" was laughing loudest.

Recently, at St. Petersburg, I watched the final 18 holes of the much discussed feud match between Hagen and Sarazen. At that stage of the event, Hagen enjoyed an eight-hole margin.

Continuing the fine play of the first 36 holes at Miami, Sarazen's home course, where Hagen finished three up, stretching the advantage to eight up in the next 18 holes played at Sanford, he ended the match on the eleventh hole, 8 and 7.

The crushing defeat Hagen administered to Sarazen, one of the worst drubbings Gene ever has received, was merely Hagen's emphatic manner of telling Sarazen no one had Walter Hagen's goat securely lassoed.

Hagen-Sarazen Golf Feud
It will be recalled a story was published during the winter in a weekly magazine play-off Sarazen's name, in which he insisted he would be perpetual golf champion if all the players were as soft for him as Hagen.

According to Sarazen, he had Hagen's goat; any time Hagen beat him it would be pure luck; he would like nothing better than a match with Sarazen at stated intervals with a nice side bet hanging on the issue. It would be getting the money softer than Rockefeller does.

Sarazen, flooded with denunciations from Hagen-admirers for the rather rough manner in which he had treated the subject, later repudiated the interview and started a suit for something like a million dollars, more or less, for damage done his golfing reputation.

I haven't heard anything of the suit lately.

Hagen in Old-Time Form
Getting back to Hagen, who simply outclassed Sarazen in the latest so-called grudge match. Possibly the two are the best of friends and the article was merely a bluff. Regardless, it created much gossip as well as interest in the meeting.

Prior to coming south, I read much copy turned out by the golf experts who, it seemed, had consigned Hagen to the cemetery of golf has-beens. His mediocre winter at Hereford is expected to give other schools keen competition in the tennis contests.

I do not pose as a golf critic, but Hagen still looks great to me. Ten years ago I watched him win the national championship from Mike Brady in the play-off at Braeburn. He was great that day.

In turning Sarazen back in the final 18 holes of their 72-hole match, he didn't seem to have lost any of his uncanny ability from the tee or on the greens.

Some Real Golfing Logic
"Guess that finish will make some of the boys up north realize I am still a fair golfer," said Hagen in the clubhouse after the match.

"Cooper played marvelous golf when he beat me 19 up in our 72-hole match. I played practically par golf. I wasn't so poor; Cooper was simply unbeatable."

"I defeated Bobby Jones 12 and 11 in our special match last winter. I was at the top of my game, got all the breaks, while everything went wrong for Bobby."

"That was a worse trimming than Cooper gave me, yet not one counted Jones out because of it. Later Bobby went on to win the British and American open titles—proof that one drubbing is just a part of the game."

"I am still capable of making the boys stop some to trim me."

It was evident to me that never in his life did Hagen get more satisfaction out of a match than his victory over Sarazen. You could hardly blame him.

Hereford School Keen On Athletics

OLD SQUAD REPORTS BACK TO BASEBALL PRACTICE THIS YEAR

HEREFORD, March 19.—Athletics in the Hereford high school are taking on new life, as the spring season approaches, and each afternoon athletes can be seen "doing their stuff" on the baseball diamond, on the track, and in tennis competition. C. W. Humble states that more interest is being taken in the various forms of athletics here now than ever before.

More than thirty aspirants are out in baseball togs each afternoon, trying for a berth on the local high school team, and Coach C. W. Humble is all "pepped up" over the bright prospects for a good team. Every man from last year's squad is back, except two, and a number of new men are out for places on the team. As the youngsters are warming up their throwing arms, three are showing stuff as twirlers. George Murphy and Hubert McIntire, both of last year's squad, look good, and a new Oliver Keesee, is showing up well in practice.

16 Trackmen
Track work under the direction of J. Forrest Riggs, has a lure for sixteen high school athletes and many of them look good in training work. The local school has not put out a track team for two or three years, but interest is keen, and Coach Riggs believes he will have a number of youngsters ready for the district track meet at Canyon next month. There seems to be better material for hurdles and distance races than for the sprints.

C. W. Humble is also coaching tennis, and a number are coming out daily and are keeping the two courts occupied most of the practice hours. Tennis teams will probably be ready for the district meet, and Hereford is expected to give other schools keen competition in the tennis contests.

G. D. Allen, of Saginaw, is a visitor in Lubbock for several days.

Would Name Hills After the Tonkawas
SWEETWATER, Mar. 19.—Out from the town of Sweetwater is a beautiful wooded range of hills extended toward Buffalo Gap. Picturesque with mounted growth of scrubby cedar, the hills stand an unnamed scenic beauty spot of the state.

Judge R. C. Crane, president of the West Texas Historical Association, at the request of the West Texas chamber of commerce, has suggested a title for the declared hills. He believes the wooded slopes should be called Tonkawa Hills. The Tonkawas were a friendly tribe of Indians during the pioneer days of the Comanches, one of the whites' most fierce Indian foes. Tonkawa braves, often served as scouts for the rugged West Texas plainsmen and many times fought with them in battle against the Comanche warriors.

According to Crane, the name of Tonkawa should be honored by the whites, and he suggests that the wooded range be named after the friendly Indian tribe in order to perpetuate their name. The Historical Society has asked Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas chamber of commerce to lend support of that organization in securing legislative designation of Tonkawa Hills as official name for the hill range near Sweetwater.

Twins Will Be Wed In Double Ceremony
Claude and Clinton Weir, who were born 22 years ago and have since that time spent most of their time together, see no reason why matrimony should be a barrier to their brotherly companionship. Hence, last night at 9 o'clock they were married simultaneously, each to a bride of 18 years, and left for a joint honeymoon, after which they plan to return to Lubbock and live in the same dwelling in separate apartments.

FOUR PLAYERS SURVIVE FOR FINALS OF DARK HORSE GOLF TOURNAMENT WHICH WILL BE COMPLETED IN TODAY'S PLAYING

Today the "Dark Horse" tournament of the Lubbock country club will be completed with the following horses still in the race: John Jarrott, Don Mitchell, Eric Posey and L. H. McLarty. The semi-finals will start this morning and the finals will be played off this afternoon.

GAS EXPLOSION STARTS FIRE IN HOUSE AT AVENUE E
Negligence of a youngster in pouring gasoline into a stove caused an explosion which would probably have destroyed the two-story house belonging to the Citizens National bank at 1616 Avenue E shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday. Firemen arrived in time to extinguish the blaze after it had damaged the paper in three or four of the rooms of the dwelling. The damage was estimated at $50.

Would Name Hills After the Tonkawas
SWEETWATER, Mar. 19.—Out from the town of Sweetwater is a beautiful wooded range of hills extended toward Buffalo Gap. Picturesque with mounted growth of scrubby cedar, the hills stand an unnamed scenic beauty spot of the state.

Judge R. C. Crane, president of the West Texas Historical Association, at the request of the West Texas chamber of commerce, has suggested a title for the declared hills. He believes the wooded slopes should be called Tonkawa Hills. The Tonkawas were a friendly tribe of Indians during the pioneer days of the Comanches, one of the whites' most fierce Indian foes. Tonkawa braves, often served as scouts for the rugged West Texas plainsmen and many times fought with them in battle against the Comanche warriors.

According to Crane, the name of Tonkawa should be honored by the whites, and he suggests that the wooded range be named after the friendly Indian tribe in order to perpetuate their name. The Historical Society has asked Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas chamber of commerce to lend support of that organization in securing legislative designation of Tonkawa Hills as official name for the hill range near Sweetwater.

FUNDAMENTAL CONDITIONS HERE ARE BETTER NOW THAN A YEAR AGO, CITY BANKERS AND C. C. HEAD HAVE FOUND

Fundamental conditions in Lubbock and over the entire South Plains are now much better than a year ago, with indications that while prices of farm commodities probably will not be high, the year will be one of the best ever experienced in this part of the state. Business generally is on a sounder basis, and the farmer, backbone of this or any other part of the country, is living at home, almost literally, with demands few for loans from banks to add him in financing his crop.

This statement is concurred in by the heads of the three banking institutions of this city, and Spencer Wells, president of the Chamber of Commerce, the organization that has meant much to the development, not only of this city, but of this entire part of the state.

Co-operation Helping

Men in what is usually termed the commercial world long ago learned their lesson of co-operation and the method of keeping their expenditures within their income, and the past two years have served in a large measure to teach such a lesson to the farmer, these men agreed. A digest of their statements gathered at random indicates that they believe the farmer has been convinced that he must "live at home," diversify his crops, and depend on himself rather than his banker to "run him for the year."

General economic conditions are fully 25 per cent better this year than last, in the opinion of F. A. Norman, of the Citizens National bank here, who, like the others, has been in personal contact with farmers throughout this territory. Liquidations of farmers' notes held by the bank has been fully fifty per cent more the past fall and this spring than a year ago, and to date the bank has had practically no calls for loans from farmers to finance them during the year. Mr. Norman said.

Diversification Cited

He cited the diversification program as launched throughout the state about two years ago as having borne fruit, and said that but for the two rather lean years that have been going through, farmers of the country possibly might never have been brought to a realization of the real condition under which they were living. He said that every farmer now has learned the lesson, and that the putting of this lesson into practice is now in the hands of the individual farmer.

The condition of any city or country is reflected directly through the banks that do business in this particular city or country, according to O. L. Slaton, of the First National bank, and in this connection, he said that banks of Lubbock and surrounding towns are in much better condition now than a year ago. Loans made by the institution of which Mr. Slaton is head are now approximately 50 per cent of the total deposits, reflecting an exceptionally sound condition, and while Mr. Slaton admitted that the institution is discouraging, and in some instances refusing to make loans to farmers, he said that this attitude is being taken for what is believed to be for the good of the farmer.

Desires One Type

He desired sincerely the practice of some farmers in depending on the bank to "run him," as is often stated, saying that such a practice, now being gradually overcome, has gone far toward keeping the farmer's nose to the grindstone, and that it is the duty of the farmer to think for himself instead of leaving all this to his banker or financial adviser.

This was capped off with the rather startling statement that there is now more money actually in possession of farmers than has been for some time, and to substantiate his statement, cited several large purchases of farm equipment for which settlement was made in actual cash. Many farmers are selling their products and keeping receipts in their possession, but this money is gradually finding its way back into the channels of commerce, he said.

The past two years, one a partial crop failure due to an early freeze, and the other a bumper crop with very low prices, have been a blessing in disguise, not only to the farmer, but to the country in general, in the opinion of L. C. Ellis of the Lubbock National bank, who said that farmers have, practically been forced into the "live at home," or diversification farm program.

Ellis Sees Bright Spot
The bright spot of the past two years, Mr. Ellis said, is the fact that farmers have learned to depend upon themselves, and have learned, rather forcibly, the art of living within their income. Under such conditions, he continued, the farmer does not need so much, and is taking better care of what he has. He lauded the diversification plan, urging that every farmer raise his own meat and keep plenty of chickens and cows at least to supply his own needs in this line.

The situation from the standpoint of merchandising as seen by Spencer Wells, president of the Board of City Development, is much better than in recent years, with merchants reporting an increase in general business. He pointed to the present price of cotton as a boon to Texas farmers, many of whom are still harvesting their crop, bringing ready cash into the channels of commerce, and to the coming of the Denver railroad, the possibility of natural gas in this part of the state, and to the development of the oil prospects in the entire western part of the state.

No Reduction Seen
It apparently is agreed, however, that there is to be no reduced acreage in cotton in the western part of the state, due mainly to the new land that will be put into cultivation. It is generally believed that a few farmers will reduce their acreage to cotton, but that with the many acres of new land that will be brought under cultivation, it is probable that no general reduction will be effected.

This is accounted for partly by the fact that cotton can be produced so much more economically in West Texas than for just whatever the individual makes it cost him.

Based on the undisputed soundness of general financial conditions, and the attitude the farmer is taking to his profession, the year ahead is seen as one with many opportunities.

Technical Topics

BY C. W. RATLIFF

Registration for the spring term of the Tech will be completed tomorrow and the classes will start Tuesday, officials of the college announced yesterday. A large part of the student body registered during the exams of the past week and the remainder together with the new students will register tomorrow.

Registrar E. L. Doherty announces that 11 new students must report to his office for their credits. New students and those who have changed or expect to change boarding places should report to Mr. Cecil Horne, rooming, east wing of Main Building, for approval of boarding places.

All students will go to their faculty advisors to have schedules made; then to each individual instructor for course and section numbers to be checked or entered; then to their respective deans for final approval and finally to the Business Office for audit and payment of fees.

Deans and Heads of Departments will be in their respective offices.

Faculty advisors and instructors will be in their department offices except the Department of Mathematics, which will use Room 206 in addition to the office and the English Department will use Room 305 for advisors and instructors.

The officials are looking for a large number of new students for the spring term as numerous inquiries have been received in the past few weeks.

CONVOCATION TO BE HELD TUESDAY

The first convocation of the Spring term will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, Dean James M. Gordon announced yesterday. Announcements for the students will be given and a member of the faculty will make a short address.

DEBATORS PREPARED FOR CONFLICT WITH T. C. U. FRIDAY

Tech will go into battle with Texas Christian University again Friday night, but in a verbal conflict this time, when the debaters will meet the team from that school on the radio and, in a verbal question, the Tech team has been working steadily for the past two months on their material and Miss Ruth Pirtle, coach, states that the boys have an excellent argument to present.

E. E. Jordan, of Amarillo, and J. Sewell, of Slaton, are to represent the Tech in the debate. The contest will be held Friday night at 8:00 o'clock in Room 202 of the Administration Building.

The other debate teams are working on their questions also and in the next few weeks will be ready to offer competition also with McMurray, Clarendon, and West Texas.

SENIOR HONOR DEAN GORDON

Dean James M. Gordon was awarded the first A. B. degree of the college Friday when the first senior class presented him with a Senior pin bearing the year and degree. The pin is of the same design as the rings which the seniors are wearing, the Spanish motif being carried out in the design.

BUSINESS CLASS TO BE OPENED AGAIN

The business class, which met with much popularity during the past term, will be opened again tomorrow night. It was announced yesterday. The class meets in shorthand and typing and meets every night from 7 until 7:45. Miss Margaret McNabb, secretary to Dean Gordon, is in charge of the class. More than 25 students have already signed for the course and a good enrollment is expected.

STUDENTS TO JUDGE DEBATES AND TRACK CONTESTS THIS WEEK

In answer to the many calls which are coming to Prof. A. W. Evans, director of the district interscholastic league, a large number of students will go to various points over the South Plains this week to judge in the contests held by the schools. A majority of the county contests will be held this week. A number of professors and students made trips during the past two days to judge these contests. The students from the public speaking departments are to do most of the judging of the literary contests while the athletes will judge the athletic events.

More Storms

CHICAGO, March 19. (AP)—Districts repeatedly swept by death-dealing tornadoes will have them all the time, said Henry J. Cox, head of the Chicago weather bureau, in commenting today upon the frequency of such storms in Arkansas and middle western states.

Especially with this true in the south, he added, because of the low pressure areas prevalent there during March and April.

From figures gathered from 1917 to 1924, Arkansas leads the country in the number of tornadoes. Cox said "During the eight years, 74 storms originated in the state, and 76 others cut into it. These storms occurred in March, proving beyond a doubt that this month is the most prolific of the year."

Kansas Affected

"March also is the month for tornadoes and abnormal storms in Kansas, which ranks second, having 67 storms in the eight year period. Texas is a close third."

"So many people get the idea that a tornado is a cyclone, as a matter of fact, a tornado is much smaller, covers less ground, and its intensity in spots is far greater than a cyclone. A cyclone is a storm more general and covers a greater area, for instance the storm of 1896 that swept a swath a mile wide through the business section of St. Louis."

sentence had begun.

This issue will be brought before a circuit court of appeals for the first time within a few months and may be carried to the supreme court.

It was not regarded here as probable that the circuit court of appeals would pass on the case until fall at least with a probability that its decision might be delayed a number of months. Both sides must file briefs before the court and are expected to appear for oral arguments.

Ohio Case Dropped

FORT WORTH, March 19. (AP)—A move to have Dr. Frederick A. Cook, convicted here of using the mails to defraud, tried under similar charges in Cleveland, Ohio, will probably be dropped as a result of a decision reached Saturday to leave the noted prisoner in the penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, until government's appeal from his five year probation is carried to the supreme court.

Cook will stay in Leavenworth as the result of a gentlemen's agreement reached by Judge James C. Wilson, District Attorney Henry Zweifel and H. C. Wade and S. J. Callaway, counsel for the former captives. Saturday in this conference it was decided that no formal motion should be made for a stay of the probation order, but that Cook will simply remain in jail.

MAIN DRAG DOIN'S

Today while strolling down the main drag I saw:

A newsboy who told a prospect that he had pretty eyes and a nice face and didn't he need a paper? The man was flattered enough to buy one.

A six-foot, two hundred pound husky who said "Oh Dear" when he stubbed his toe against the curb; figured he probably carried a powder puff along to use on his nose.

College boys almost wreck a fiver in his attempt to right it after a black cat had run across the street—he explained he had a final exam coming up in the afternoon.

A fairly newly wed who said he eats onions to keep his wife from getting him up too much—claimed she would smack him right out in public and it embarrassed him.

Two small boys fighting over a penny. The loser wept and a passer-by gave him a dime to make him shut up. The winner walked off looking as though he thought there isn't any justice in the world.

A school teacher giving a few lessons of a different sort outside of school hours.

came to Williamsburg, where I formerly lived."

From his prison cell in the reformatory, Dabney told his story. He attributed his predicament to a chance acquaintance with Marie Jackson, chief prosecution witness against him at his trial, with whom he had several "dates."

Marie Jackson swore against me because I would not leave my wife and go with her," he declared, as he related the story of the girl's disappearance, his arrest and conviction.

"The Jackson woman at the trial testified she was with me and the girl and saw me attack and kill her," he said.

"You could make any of my family believe I am guilty," he continued, and then the one bright spot in his luckless career appeared to him and he added:

"My wife has stuck by me through-out this trouble. She certainly has been loyal."

Bones Identify
Several months after the Vickery girl disappeared, prohibition agents found a body 100 feet from the entrance in an abandoned mine. Charlie Vickery, a palmer, identified it by a hat and clothes as that of his missing daughter and Dabney was brought to trial.

The report of Miss Vickery's return created a stir in Harlan, Ky. Miss Jackson was arrested and held on a minor charge pending an investigation. Sheriff George S. Ward asked the authorities here to hold the Vickery girl and G. G. Hawkins, counsel for Dabney, began steps to establish Miss Vickery's legal identity and to obtain release of his client.

"The corpse found in the mine was nothing but bones," This statement by Dabney is the only thing definitely known about the body.

Edick is also charged with embezzlement of a government pistol.

TO CONSIDER FARM FUND

All members of Bureau Asked to Present April 5, When Use of Money Is Decided

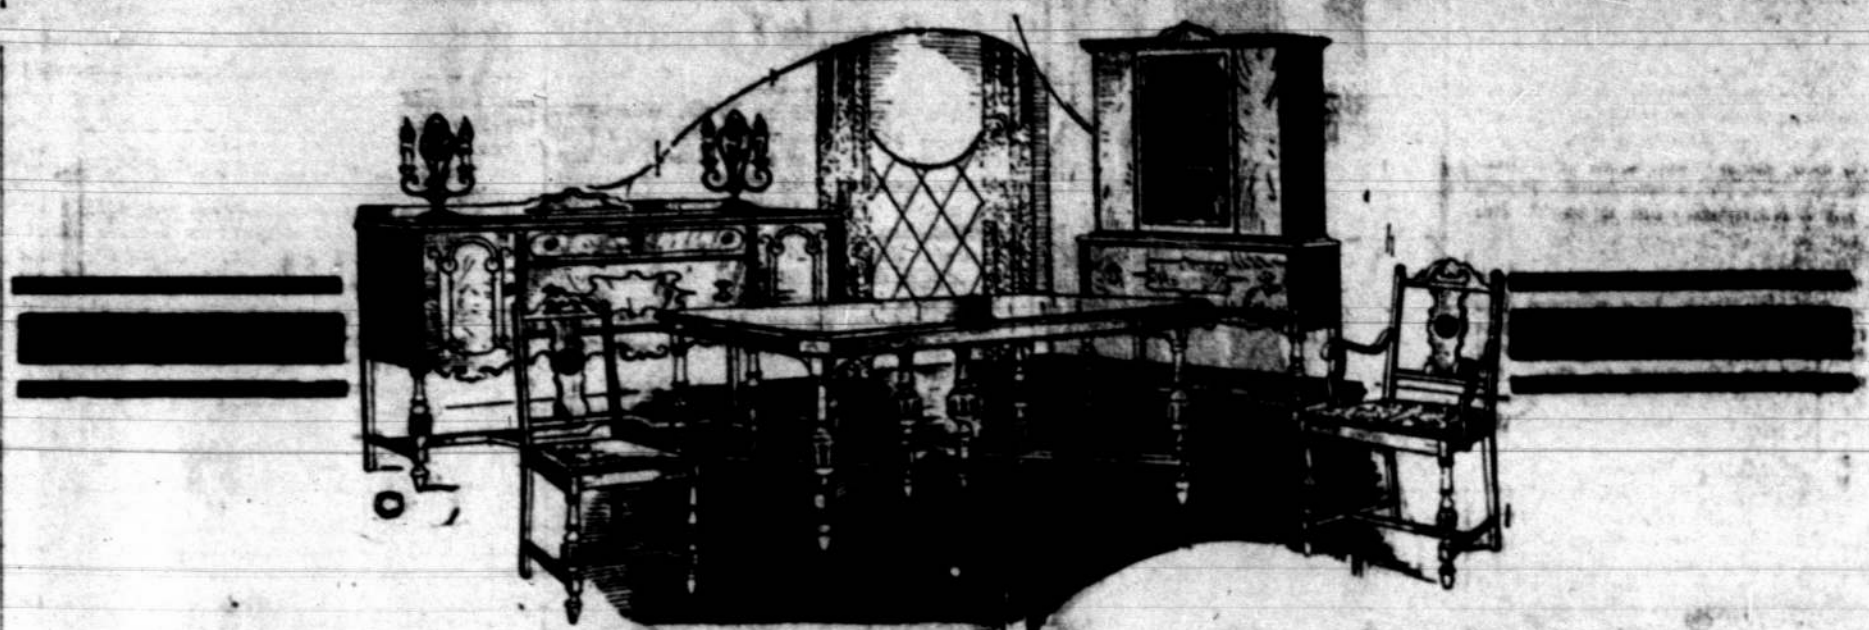

The disposition of the one percent reserve fund of the Farm Bureau is to be determined when a district meeting of this organization is held on the afternoon of April 2 in the district court room of the county house. This was planned as a meeting of the directors yesterday afternoon.

J. D. Coghlan, district field supervisor, who is the principal speaker at the April gathering and women of the board are to provide a program to precede the business session.

Since all members of the Farm Bureau will be affected by the disposition of the fund, they are being urged to attend the April meeting. It was announced last night and the heads of directors from adjoining counties and members from over the district, who may be interested, are invited to attend.

You Can Depend On the Quality, Newness and Correctness of the Goods You Purchase Here

We believe that this means more to you than any other feature of the goods you may select. In stressing these features we do not imply that the price is not correct. It is. We do believe, however, that because we count these other things as coming first that we are not tempted to sacrifice them in an attempt to sell the "cheapest". It is a policy with us that every item we sell must give you your complete money's worth in actual service. Liberal guarantees protect you in this policy. In this way we believe we more surely supply you with the "cheapest" in the final analysis—that in furnishing you with high quality new style merchandise that we are rendering a service you appreciate.

Every item listed below is new, correctly styled—high in quality. We would have you consider these features along with the entirely correct prices quoted in every case.

NEW MEMBERS ARE RETAILERS' GOAL

BUSINESS MEN ARE TAKING BIG INTEREST IN LOCAL ORGANIZATION

In addition to a large number of members obtained early in February, the Lubbock Retail Merchants Association is adding new business and professional men to its ranks each week. A week has not passed since the drive for members during the first week of February that several new members have not been added to the association.

The membership is taking a greater interest in the work of the association. The weekly credit meetings have experienced a good increase in attendance. The number of calls for credit information has more than doubled.

Many new credit ratings are being added to the files of the association daily. The actual paying record of Lubbock individuals are being recorded every day. The motto of the association is "Every Man makes his own credit rating, we keep the record."

Floydada Rotarians To Sponsor Scouts

FLOYDADA, March 19.—The organization of a Boy Scout troop was one of the many projects on the program of the Floydada luncheon club and work began on this phase of the program this week when Scout Commissioner L. G. H. Williams of Lubbock was the guest of the club and made an interesting talk on the work being done by South Plains scouts and the advantage to the community which has a troop.

Following Mr. Williams' talk a scout council was named by the membership of the club and instructed to begin arrangements to organize the scouts immediately. "The" luncheon club will be the sponsor of the organization and will lend their aid and assistance to financing the movement.

A troop of scouts from Lubbock will be the guests of the luncheon club at the close of the annual membership drive of the Floydada chamber of commerce which will close with a scenic roast on Blanco Canyon Friday evening. The troop will give exhibitions of signaling, calling, fire starting and many various features taught them by the work. They will also give an exhibition on the streets of Floydada Saturday morning.

Crosbyton Scouts Hold Honor Court

CROSBYTON, March 19.—One of the most interesting boy scout programs ever held here took place last night, when the scoutmaster and troop committee staged a court of honor for the local troop of boy scouts.

The scouts stood at attention in a semi-circle around a huge camp fire in the canyon five miles east of town and were presented with merit badges and certificates of honor by A. H. Watts, the new executive of the South Plains area. Mr. Watts said this was one of the highest ranking troops of the entire district. Rev. E. P. Bule was declared by Mr. Watts and other speakers to be one of the best scoutmasters in Texas.

The court of honor was followed by an old-fashioned goat barbecue. This treat was furnished by Professor Owens, superintendent of the Crosbyton schools and chairman of the court of honor.

Declaiming Contest Entrants Selected

Girls and boys who will represent Lubbock high school in declamation contests during the annual tournaments between schools of the county were selected Friday afternoon in final contests. Miss Lathrie Bishop and Homer Hatterger received first places and Miss Hawn Sawyer and Herbert Hopper received second places. Mrs. W. P. Clement has been training the group since Miss Cornelia McAfee was called to her home.

A New Fad

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—Smith college has taken to roller skates. Girls sporting the latest inspiring togs are rolling about the paved campus roads and through the city streets. Stores are all out of skates.

Cusses 'Right Hard' Swallows Two Nails

Sam Nutting has "had his iron today."

In fact that young man, a native of Amarillo and a student of Texas Tech, is practically certain that he has had enough iron for several days as he lies in bed at 1922 Ninth street, with two shingle nails reposing somewhere in his anatomy.

Young Mr. Nutting, who like most industrious Tech students is working his way through school, swallowed the nails several days ago while pursuing his duties in the circulation department of the Avalanche-Journal, when, he says, something went wrong "and I cussed right hard," causing the nails, placed in his mouth for safe-keeping, to slip down his throat.

A Lubbock physician has been administering to the care of the young man, who, incidentally insisted upon taking his college examinations despite his illness. He is expected to be "up and around" soon.

INSPIRATION

Backed by Ideals

A store or an institution is in its character and methods only a reflection of the character of those who guide it through the years.

Behind every institution, formulating the ideals of its business and shaping its policies, is some personality or group to whose inspiration the structure owes its existence.

The founders of this Store, when they laid down the fundamentals of this House, had their inspiration—the ideals of Quality and Service. How well they carried out this spirit through the years of service is attested by the steady business growth.

Satisfying All!

This Store justifies its existence because of its single-purposed policy of giving the public only merchandise of character and dependability coupled with an aim to the customer's absolute satisfaction.

These principles first implanted here are as active and vital today as they have been throughout the years. They operate in the conduct of every member of our organization and are manifested by quality, service, courtesy and hospitable spirit.

This is the fruit of inspiration passed on by the founders as a heritage to every participant in our service.

The stock of Barrier Bros. is new, fresh and stylish. Our policy of keeping the merchandise moving and our large volume assures you of getting only fresh, new goods. Therefore our slogan: "Always Something New."

"The Old District School," a play, is to be given Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the First Christian church, the Sunday school class of Mrs. F. Mills. Proceeds from the entertainment will go into the class treasury.

EST TEXAS TEACHERS BAND PLANS EXTENDED TOUR

CANYON, March 19.—The West Texas State Teachers college's thirty band under the direction of C. Strain will leave Canyon at noon March 19 for an extended trip through North Plains region. Concerts will be given at Amarillo, Dumas, Elkhart, Stratford, Hansford, Spearman, Perryton, Darrington, Follett, Combs, Canadian, Miami Pampa and Panhandle. The band will return to Canyon Thursday, March 24.

President J. A. Hill will go with the band as speaker and will make arrangements for meetings with Boy Scout workers in towns which the band visits.

This band trip has been arranged under terms in order that the students may lose a minimum of work.

KEEN ARRIVES IN LUBBOCK BECOMES MAIL OFFICIAL

John R. Green, of Fort Worth, who has been with the postal department of the United States government for the seventeen years, has been transferred to Lubbock as superintendent of mails in the office here, and has assumed his duties. Postmaster John L. Shahan said Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Stout have returned from Abilene where they have been visiting her father, Dr. M. T. Council.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Howard have gone to Tucuman, N. M., for the week-end. They took Mrs. Howard's mother, Mrs. E. Y. Lee, there to visit with her mother, Mrs. Tom Gohlson.

Mrs. P. M. Chambers of Snyder is visiting in Lubbock as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McKnight, 2122 Main street.

Mrs. W. L. Burleson and daughter of Tahoka are visiting in Lubbock for a few days with relatives.

Mrs. W. K. Dickinson, Jr., of Tatum, N. M., and children are visiting relatives here for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Washington and son left last night for Dallas and Marlette, Okla., where they will visit for a few weeks.

An exhibition of water color paintings, done by Walter Campbell, of New York City, will be given at Tech college early in April. Prof. Edgar Shelton, of the department of architecture, said yesterday. The exhibition, which includes four big boxes full of Mr. Campbell's works, will be free.

The artist is a widely known architect and was at one time professor of architecture at Armour Institute, Chicago. He is now director of the Bozart Arts Institute, in New York City.

Bodily Beauty's Ups and Downs

ANOTHER EXERCISE ENTAILING THAT BENEFICIAL SPINE-STRETCHING

Posed for NEA Service by Davenie Watson and Kathryn Appar, of Ned Wayburn's studio.

BY NINON
For NEA Service

That beauty has its ups and downs is demonstrated by the exercise I am going to advise today. It combines a number of highly effective muscular movements, with the spine-stretching that I recommend so highly.

Stand upright, knees together and arms stretched as high in the air as possible. Then bend the knees until you are sitting on your heels, at the same time lower your arms until they are at right angles with your body. Then up and at it again.

This is more strenuous than it looks and is apt to cause rather acute discomfort unless you begin with five or six bendings and work up gradually to greater speed and endurance.

As you raise your arms, try to raise your body as high as you can from the hips, and make yourself as tall as possible.

This exercise is more interesting if you do it to music. When you finish, it is well to rest by lying flat on the floor. Then follow with previous exercises which may be done in a reclining position.

Of Interest to Women

(By the Associated Press)

Lady Londonderry

Political Hostess

LONDON, Mar. 19.—Lady Londonderry, who entertained for the government on the eve of the opening of parliament, is the wife and daughter of politicians and carries on the traditions of political hospitality handed down by her mother-in-law, who was one of the greatest hostesses of her generation. Londonderry House, her London home, is one of the few famous residences suited to political receptions on a grand scale.

Lady Londonderry has the distinction of being one of the first British women to be made a peer. During the war, she inaugurated the plan of training women to replace men as army cooks.

She is keenly interested in child welfare work and the status of domestic servants. She also found time to write the memoirs of her father, Lord Chaplin, who for 40 years was a member of the House of Commons.

Chapel Mosaic Shows Virgin As Daughter

CHICAGO, Mar. 19.—A "mother and daughter" chapel in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church offers Chicago Catholics a miniature place of devotion which has come to be a much-sought shrine. Its distinction lies in the portrayal of the mother of Christ, not as a mother, but as a daughter. A great mosaic altar piece pictures Mary as a young girl listening to her mother, St. Anne.

Women Light Guards Direct Gulf Sailors

BILOXI, Miss., Mar. 19.—A woman's hand has guided the Biloxi Light to storm-tossed sailors in the Gulf of Mexico for more than sixty years.

Among old sailors there is a superstition of good fortune radiating from Biloxi because the light has never faltered through the fiercest West Indian hurricanes.

When Perry Youngmans, of Albany, N. Y., appointed keeper of the light-house in 1866, died in the first year of his service, he was succeeded by his widow, Mrs. Mira Youngmans. She retired in 1920 after 53 years as keeper and her daughter Miranda took over the duties.

Painter Presents Daughters At Court

NEW YORK, Mar. 19.—An American woman artist interrupted her career to present two young daughters at the Court of St. James. She is Olive Bigelow, known in society as Mrs. Bigelow Tilton.

After the girls were presented Mrs. Tilton came to New York to hold an exhibition of her paintings, including portraits of Princesses Immeretinski, Princess Ileana, Lady Constance Leslie, F. K. Juillard, Charles Dana Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Guest of London.

"Mother Confessor" Advises Employes

NEW YORK, Mar. 19.—Mrs. Jonathan Scott, social worker for a fashionable interior decorating interior decorating establishment here, is exploring a new field in women's activities. Mrs. Scott is a kind of official "mother confessor" for employes of the firm, giving them advice in family and financial matters, smoothing out differences with employers and other employes and giving individual aid generally. She works only part time, since she has two small daughters in school.

Coming Of Margaret Matzenauer To Lubbock Hailed as Opportunity for South Plains' People To Enjoy Treat

BY E. W. PROVENCE

Madame Margaret Matzenauer is a handsome and beautiful woman. Vibrant with a supreme ambition, she is the embodiment of all that is glorious and attractive as a woman. But transcendent over her personal charm is her great art.

She possesses probably the greatest voice in the world.

MADAME MATZENAUER

Great as a soprano, she is equally great as a contralto.

The critics of the world have exhausted their superlatives in an attempt to describe Matzenauer's wonderful voice—its height and depths, its richness and beauty.

Opportunity is here
To hear her in Lubbock next Thursday evening is an opportunity that cannot be overestimated. It will be an inspiration. It is bound to enrich the lives of all who hear her.

The grand opera skeptic—the man who says he cannot appreciate the best in music—should hear Matzenauer. Such skepticism will be turned into enthusiasm before the first number is finished.

Everyone who aspires to teach should hear Matzenauer. Every student should hear her.

Those who would live somewhat above the commonplace, the prosaic should hear, and be inspired by this great artist.

Her Coming Big Event
Her coming to Lubbock will mean just as much to the community as the people will let it. Certainly one or more from every family should hear this great singer. As a selfish consideration it is worth more than its costs. But as a community project this concert is deserving of the patronage of all individuals and interests. Anything that ennobles and refines will be a contribution to the community—a distinct help for every agency and activity that has for its object the betterment of the people and the community.

If the patronage justifies the Matzenauer concert will be followed by the appearance of other great artists in Lubbock. Those who are responsible for the coming of Matzenauer have confidence that the people of Lubbock and the South Plains would give this world-famous singer a great welcome when she appears here. It is expected that she will find here on the plains of Texas just as much appreciation of her art as she would on Broadway, and that possibly she will find these western people possessing hearts and souls that will respond in an even greater way than she has ever known.

Sanders P-T. A. Plans Financial Program For Spring

In order to accumulate sufficient money to finance a program outlined the Sanders school Parent-Teacher association, children in the institution are to sell apples according to specific arrangements, a box supper will be held at 8 o'clock next Saturday evening and members are paying their dues.

A program was given Friday after-this month, to compete in an international pulchritude contest at New York. Something for our native Venues to worry about!

Camp-Fire Girls Give Program In Level-land Friday

In order that Level-land girls might see the work of Camp Fire and might be educated in the machinery of organization, the Sunova group of the local association and the guardian Mrs. Sam A. Henry, went to Level-land Friday evening and held a council fire ceremony, bestowing the wood-gatherers rank upon Wanda Butler, Ethel Green made an explanatory talk on the work. Refreshments were served the visitors at the close of the evening.

The Level-land girls who were at the gathering expressed the intention of organizing.

Members of the troop who made the trip were Ethel Green, Wanda Butler, Louise Pierce, Rosemary Leaverton, Joan Sears, Jean Shelley Jennings, Frances Snyder, Mollie Par-tain, Priscilla Watson, Edith Phipps, Coleta Baker, Mary Ansley, Martha Spencer, Dorothy Wolfarth, Roberta Myrick, Roberta Raybon, Grace Hankin, Elaine Henry and Sue Michie. Misses Grace Jennings, Lou Alice Watson, Emma Holder and Mrs. Henry accompanied the group.

noon at a regular meeting the money making plans were discussed. Reports showed that a Victrola has been placed in the school by the association and that the members had met in all-day session a week before, cleaned up the school grounds and planted trees and shrubs in a beautification program.

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the city schools, talked on the problem and project method of teaching, music was furnished by pupils of the fifth and sixth grades, the third and fourth grades gave a play and Miss Blanche Fann entertained with a reading.

In addition to the beautification program being carried on in the school, the members plan to buy some needed equipment, particularly music memory contest records.

A Visitor Gives Impression Of Lubbock He Talks Frankly Concerning His Ideas

Lubbock is laying down on the job, is the frank impression of one stranger, picked at random from the ones who swarm the streets here, and questioned by a reporter.

With his hat tilted down over one eye, a black cigar mounting heavenward from one corner of his mouth, and a diamond in his tie which was matched in brilliance only by the mate to it on his little finger, a stranger stood at the corner of Avenue K and Broadway, frankly giving the town the "once over" when the reporter approached him. His expression was highly critical and entirely interested.

"What do you think of it?" he was asked after he had scrutinized everything in sight with a frank stare.

Trees Are Needed

"Needs trees," he replied, as he switched the cigar to the opposite corner by a simple contortion of his mouth, and blew an immense cloud of smoke.

"No, seriously, what are your impressions of the place, as viewed by a stranger?" he was questioned.

"I aim to buy some property here, if that's what you mean. I think it has a wonderful future. But frankly, just as a stranger, I am disappointed."

"Whether you know it or not this section has been so talked of that citizens from all parts of the United States have come to regard it as a sort of mecca, or model country, with virgin opportunity offered. I imagine most people come here, like myself, expecting more than they should."

"But the thing I am disappointed with is not in the country or its opportunities but in the city of Lubbock. I have been here only a week, and of course all this is just my impression. But impressions are what count with outside people."

"Lubbock hopes to become the metropolis for a good sized district here, they tell me, and is instigating a good roads program and a lot of things like that, to accomplish this. But there is something lacking in the town itself for that kind of project."

Cites Large Cities

"Take Fort Worth, for instance, which seems to act as a sort of capitol for all West Texas. Your total impression of Fort Worth, if you will analyze it, includes a couple of factors. One, if you have anything to sell, you can take your stuff there to market, and get the best price obtainable for it. The second is, every time you go there, you have a good time. Whether you know someone there and they show you around, or whether you just get caught in the whirl, every time you go there you are entertained. All the conventions that are held in Fort Worth are treated as special guests and a good time is just forced upon them. Those factors make up the main principle of drawing any trade territory to your city."

"Lubbock seems to be slightly lacking in this respect. There are very few means of entertainment here, especially on Sunday and for an out-of-town man. Of course the people that live here, and know everyone, probably don't notice this. They are highly friendly sort of folks too. But you can take the matter of swimming pools, resorts, entertainment places, etc., and you don't have them here in quantities to draw people in from outside communities. There ought to be a whopping big pool here that would attract customers from several counties around all during the summer. You ought to have some means of entertainment on Sunday. You ought to have the best golf course in West Texas and if a single out-of-town golfer happens through here, show him over your course. Professional friendliness is one of the main factors in city building."

"As to the marketing, of course I don't know about that. But it seems to me that if this phase were properly taken care of, the fact that you have better marketing facilities than other cities, would be forced upon the attention of anyone staying here any length of time."

"But the entertainment proposition is the big one. Any city that is visited habitually by residents of surrounding counties just because it offers the best entertainment is a prosperous city."

"Other than that you have a remarkable little city here. You have a college with a wonderful future, a well-aided off-town, fine trade territory, and all the needed requirements for a big city, and you have the right people."

Dorothy Devore In Cinema Drama Role

When producer Sam Sax was considering the players for the leading roles in "Money to Burn," the screen version of Reginald Wright Kauffman's popular book, which comes to the Lyric Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, he informed director Walter Lang that he had decided on Dorothy Devore for the part of Dolores Valdez, the Spanish senorita and heroine of the story.

"Why, Miss Devore is a comedienne," said Walter Lang. "Precisely," answered Mr. Sax, "that's why I selected her." He then went on to explain that most of our best screen dramatic stars had their first training along comedy lines, and could easily adapt themselves to dramatic roles.

Miss Devore was delighted with the opportunity, as she had often requested dramatic roles but had been kept playing light comedy roles because of her ability along those lines.

Her work in this unusual story proves that it is but a step from comedy to drama, as in the earlier scenes of the picture she portrays a carefree, frivolous girl, and in the later scenes she is the center of some tense dramatic and emotional situations.

MAGNITUDE OF COLLEGE HERE IS AGAIN SHOWN BY NEW STORY OF ITS GROWTH

The statement oft repeated, that the people of this city and section of the country do not yet realize the importance and magnitude of the Texas Technological college and the place the institution is believed destined to fill in the industrial world, apparently is well taken, for it is evident that such is the case.

The institution, yet in its infancy, is attracting attention all over the United States and other parts of the world, as evidenced by a wealth of publicity that has been given it through the columns of many of the largest papers and magazines throughout the country.

The following article, taken from "Commerce and Finance," a weekly publication in New York City that specializes on matters pertaining to its name, is considered worth more than passing note, and the article is reprinted for what it may be worth to local and other South Plains people:

"Commerce and Finance," a weekly publication in New York City that specializes on matters pertaining to its name, is considered worth more than passing note, and the article is reprinted for what it may be worth to local and other South Plains people:

"Texas never does things by half and that State has once again risen to its opportunities for leadership in providing excellent facilities for teaching technical engineering and home economics. The Texas Technological College, now in its second year, already has an enrollment of 1,600 students and has devoted one of its finest and best equipped buildings to the textile department of its School of Engineering.

"Students taking the four-year course obtain first-hand information about the planning, harvesting and marketing of cotton. They are taught the technique of weaving, spinning, knitting, etc. in a research laboratory equipped with modern textile machinery. To secure a well-rounded knowledge, students are required to spend about half their time in cultural studies and receive instruction in civil, mechanical and electrical engineering to supplement their textile education, thus enhancing their value to an organization in providing them with a broader viewpoint of industry and engineering as a whole.

"The School of Home Economics teaches girls to judge the values of fabrics, inferring a knowledge of how production, quality of raw materials, manufacturing process, finishing processes and marketing difficulties affect price and value. As producers, they are trained in the developing of wider uses for cotton and in developing designs which can be used in manufacturing cloth.

"In addition to having every other qualification of a great textile school, Texas Technological College," says John W. Carpenter, a member of the board of directors, "has the sunshine, the soil, the season, the cotton itself and nearby a justly growing infant sericulture."

The services for the day are changed slightly by the Sunday School Day program which will be given at the morning hour 10:35. There will be no separate meeting of the Junior Church as all the children will go upstairs Junior League at 2:30. Intermediate League at 5:30. Senior League at 6:45 with supper at 7:30.

Corner Fourteenth and N. REV. JACK M. LEWIS, Pastor. Today is the day when Lubbock Presbyterians will be granted a wonderful opportunity of revealing their true loyalty to the Church, and the Church's Lord. Such a splendid opportunity is not ours every Sunday.

Come to Sunday School at 9:45. Remain for the 11:00 o'clock service. Return home and await a committee of your friends representing the church of which you are a part, which will visit you between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30. During this time the church will go over the top on her financial budget which will insure a wonderful year ahead. Then return to church for the evening service at 7:30.

The men who will make up the canvass teams will meet in the basement of the church immediately after the morning service. After lunch together a conference will be held preparatory to making the canvass. If you have been asked to work on one of the teams you are urged to be present for the morning service and remain for lunch.

Do not forget the C. E. meetings at the usual time.

Tech Students Talk Hello Club Planned

A few students of the Tech were discussing school spirit the other day. Each was giving his views for the promotion of a genuine friendly atmosphere on the campus.

"Of course," said one who had attended an "other" institution, "this school is too young to have developed an amiable feeling among students. It lacks traditions, the most vital thing for the inculcation of loyalty. When real loyalty is evidenced by every individual, then every one will be more cheerful."

Congeniality Gratifying. Another contented that Tech's congeniality is gratifying, to which most of the group agreed. It was his belief that students came here because of the infancy of the college, feeling that a superior friendliness would prevail. Singular in his position, a senior averred that college spirit did not concern him. He was enrolled for the educational value, regardless of the personality of his colleagues. "In my professional life I intend to acquaint myself with all associates, however, he concluded.

Fraternalism Discussed. Then a real debate ensued when fraternalism was mentioned. Opinions were well divided on the question of textile industry. It is a winning combination. It is a combination that carries an immediate appeal to every man whose destiny is wrapped in cotton.

"The new textile school has attracted students from all over the United States and Canada as well as from many foreign countries including England, Japan, Germany, China, Chile and Mexico.

whether or not the organizations would wholly fraternize the campus. The meaning of the word "fraternities" is good all agreed, but some were of the opinion that such institutions would not augment democracy. Others were favorably impressed with colleges where fraternities prevailed.

An interested listener, recently of a northern school, added that he marvelled at the hospitality of Texans and the remarkable sociability of Tech students.

"What we need," concluded a more enthusiastic colleague, "is to inaugurate a 'hello' club. After all, that would be the best old fraternity in the world. It would be the duty of each member of this proposed club to say 'hello' to every one he meets, regardless of sex. We might try that" and observe the results.

CHAMPIONS OF JUSTICE AND RIGHT

Church and state. We hear much about it. There are those who insist that the church must be silent on matters other than that of reading the bible in the church, the saying of prayers and the singing of songs but we are of the opinion that it is one of the great mistakes of the churches of the land, and the reason that possibly the influence of the religious organizations are not felt any more than they are some time. The church is certainly not out of line when it sponsors things in a civic way that will lead to the betterment of the community, and the life of the young people, and the coming generations, and on the other hand when it is right for them to protect the life of the young people by sponsoring things of this nature, where can there be any harm in condemning the things that are wrong, and taking a stand against the evils of the community.

We recently read of the action of the churches in three Georgia counties that convinces us that the religious organizations over there are not flinching from their duty. Aroused over the recital of conditions brought to light by a survey which the Atlanta Constitution conducted, 81 Georgia church congregations have addressed a petition to Governor Walker. They urge that effective steps be taken to end the epidemic of floggings by masked gangs in three counties, and to bring the perpetrators of these cowardly outrages to justice.

"Georgia is being disgraced in the eyes of the world," this petition asserts.

The story is old, however. It has been repeated in newspapers throughout the country after almost every such crime. In each instance one heard demands that the guilty persons be punished, but without avail. These offenders in Georgia have not been brought to bar.

Then the Atlanta Constitution undertook to ascertain and publish all the facts concerning masked-mob activities in the State. Its report has produced the hopeful effect of prodigal awake a long-somnolent civic conscience, and the prospect is that at last some remedial action will be taken.

Georgia floggers apparently follow the usual course of groups that take the law into their own hands and "get away with it." At first content with whipping persons whom they charge with violating social conventions, they soon extend their monitoring over the morals of all the community.

A man is flogged for being drunk and lazy—a lawyer, for assisting in prosecution an alleged lyncher—an editor, for being too outspoken against bootlegging, and so on. Terror ensues, and no citizen feels secure in his person or his home. None dares file a complaint or testify against the gangsters, lest he be their next victim.

In this day it seems incredible that an entire community—and even three counties—should be intimidated thus by a few masked lawbreakers. Yet Goose Creek (Texas) was plagued in such a manner until the ringleaders were caught and legally punished.

Here is an example which the authorities of Toombs, Montgomery and Treutlen counties profitably might follow. Or they might find a precedent closer home, in the Coffee county court's record in dealing with 13 lynchings.

That the church speaks out as a champion of outraged justice is significant. It may exert a great influence—yet too often it is silent in such circumstances.

It might well be added that floggings are not the only evil that the churches might take a hand in. There are many of the evils in the local communities that the churches could correct if they had the backbone to oppose. The moral standing of every community would be improved if the churches of the community would stand pat for the things their church disciplines and the bible itself teaches which is the basis of all of the rules and regulations of the protestant churches of this country. The lack of courage on the part of these organizations has had much to do with bringing the churches into ill repute to a great extent and has caused the world and its lusts to become more brazen, and bold in the community.

EDUCATION

Education. It's a wonderful thing if properly given, or rather if it is in the right direction. Literary education is wonderful. It is necessary. It is something that we are very greatly in favor of, and want everyone to get all of it they can. We believe too that the American people in general are eager that their children obtain the very best education they can, but what a great percent are neglecting one of the very important items of education—the religious side of it. We cannot conceive of a more dangerous enemy to our beloved country than the man or woman who would deprive, or even fail to provide for the religious training of their children.

There is in most every community churches of the various denominations. In Lubbock, all branches of the most prominent church denominations have buildings, and have ministers and bible school organizations and a corps of teachers, but it is appalling the number of families in the city of Lubbock that never get one bit of religious training. The parents themselves are indifferent, and do not avail themselves of the opportunity of church services—not even the preaching services, and never attend Sunday-school.

No other source than God Himself is sufficient to beget in the soul of the child—later to be the citizen, the father or mother—an abiding reverence for and conscientious obedience to authority, respect for the rights of others, and a proper sense of accountability for one's conduct. Religion teaches the little child, at the dawn of reason, all these virtues which are the basis, too, of the highest ideals of civic duty. The constitutional inhibition to the teaching of religion in our schools imposes on us all the solemn obligation of fulfilling this duty outside of the school curriculum. Surely it was not the mind of the Fathers of the Republic that our boys and girls should ever come to feel that the American ideal is atheistic or agnostic. When one reads, in a spirit of profound gratitude to God, the Declaration of Independence, it needs no straining of the imagination to feel that the framers and signers of this immortal charter of American liberty might well have knelt in prayer as they gave expression to their reliance on the protection of Divine Providence and to their recognition of God as the Creator of mankind, the Maker of laws, and the Giver of inalienable human rights.

If Washington knelt in prayer at Valley Forge, if Lincoln did likewise on the eve of Gettysburg; if President Coolidge, like his immediate predecessors, has not failed to emphasize the organic value of the spiritual to the security of the Nation; if Benjamin Franklin could say to Washington, at a critical moment, that God governs in the affairs of men, and that if a sparrow cannot fall without His notice how improbable it was for an empire to rise without His aid—then it is far from being un-American for us to urge today the obligation to teach our children to know, love and serve God in this world, that they may be law-abiding, worthy citizens of the State, and, as followers of Christ, at the end of a useful and beneficent life, may become more than citizens of the heavenly country, namely, Sons of God for all eternity. Surely the American people do not intend to close the Book of Revelation, silence sacred tradition and set up science and nature as the forms of moral character.

The youth of a nation is among its greatest and noblest assets for the future, and the guardians of that invaluable asset are the elders of each successive generation. The heralds and bearers, to the next generation, of our revered traditions and priceless heritage are the babes now in their cradles, the little tots now brightening our homes, and the cheery boys and girls now thronging our schools.

It is the height of scandal and the depth of tragedy to fail to turn the faces of our children toward God, to join their hands in prayer to Him, and to warn their hearts with the glow of the love of their Heavenly Father.

Little Avalanches

A stay-at-home week has been inaugurated in Ohio, and it is said to have gone over good. The idea was to have all functions suspended, and all families get together during the week, and get better acquainted. We feel favorable to this idea, and believe that if families could spend more time at home there would be more happy homes.

No dinner at my house today was the way one husband expressed it yesterday. His wife was busy selling tickets to the Lucy entertainment for the benefit of the high school grads, who will be sent to Amarillo. It is a fine thing to be interested in the schools. Too many of these things makes it mighty hard on hubby's "digestion."

You can talk about no building in Lubbock if you want to say something that is not true. Just drive over town and see how many new houses are being built. You will decide that there is considerable activity along that line even now.

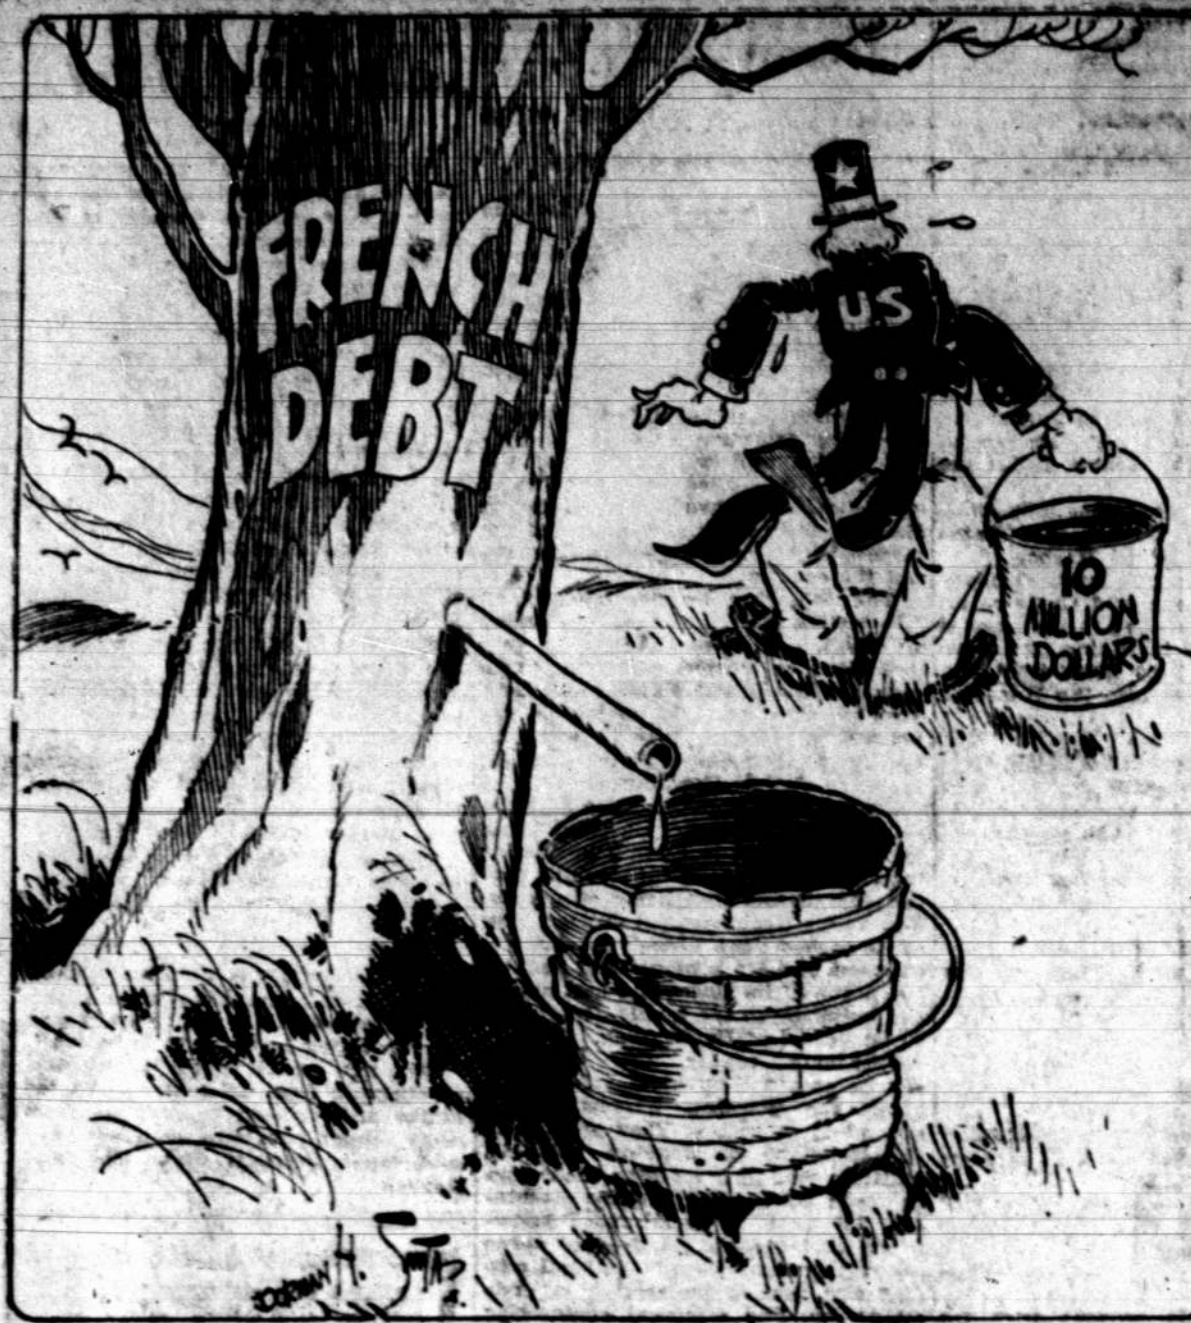

Regardless of the President's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, the Senate before adjournment passed a measure for farm relief. It was in the form of a joint resolution setting apart the first Thursday in October each year as "Agricultural Day," on which the farmers may celebrate whatever they have to celebrate.

Henpecked husbands have found a potent champion in Judge C. A. Miller of Kansas City, Kan. Upholding an order restraining Mrs. Neugebauer from talking to her husband, he also added an amendment charging her not to lay hands on him.

Current problems appear too commonplace for discussion by the stewards of Central Methodist church at Meridian, Miss. In a recent debate, which was won by the negative, the question was, "Resolved, That I would rather be Daniel in the lions' den than Jonah inside the whale."

A new kind of competition reported from Tuscaloosa county, Alabama, is a "law observance contest." Participation of competitors is purely academic, however, as the contest consists merely of oratory on the subject.

Good to the Last Drop

SO THINK WE

We think Mussolini has appointed an aerial police squad to chase high crime. He proposes to run down the fellow who is flying away from his crime. He might send some of 'em over here and get some of the high flying bootleggers of whiskey.

We think possibly now and ever before the greatest trouble with the fathers of the children and we also include mothers, since the days of the automobile, and the card party and the skating rink, and the dance hall, we do not spend as much time with the children as we should. Many fathers, intent on making money, or selfishly devoting all of his spare time to a nearby pool hall and not going home, or on the golf course every minute that he is off duty, do not give the child enough of his time and attention. Some of them hardly know their day. He is off early in the morning, rushes home for lunch and back home in time for late retiring, and the child does not know how their daddy looks.

We think about the most disgusting sight we have cast our eyes upon is a girl with painted lips and cheeks, with dresses above her knees, wearing five thousand dollars worth of diamonds and smoking a cigarette. We have worried your picture young miss and you live in Lubbock.

We think if this thing medical science continues the new born babe, before it has time to defend itself will be placed on an operation table, and all of the parts of the body removed, or properly adjusted to avoid later development of disease, and eliminate many of the common ailments of the human body, by removing the cause and susceptible part before they have had an opportunity to become disease laden, and thereby cause people to live to a greater age.

We think if it was not for the numerous earthquakes in Japan, there would be more people in that country than the territory they possess could take care of, but by the aid of the friendly earthquake, possibly enough of the population will be consumed each year to keep the population down to the limit of their national boundaries and they will not need worrying Uncle Sam about coming over here.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that Lubbock will soon have an active Junior Chamber of Commerce again. That's fine. Lubbock has always profited by the work of the Junior Chamber, and they will do a lot more good constructive work.

It is reported that fifteen drug stores have been served notice in Kansas City that they will be closed if they do not refrain from selling bootleg whiskey and other things in violation to the prohibition laws. A few stunts like that would probably cure a lot of Texas joints especially that type that have a sign "Drugs," but sell very few drugs.

It is reported that Japan has recently purchased of France 172 fighting airplanes including 40 big bombing planes, of which twenty could wipe out any city in the United States. She paid a big price for them, and is making more. Mr. Coolidge there is a reason for this, and whether we be a peace loving nation or not we may be blown into atoms some day before we know it has struck us.

It is reported that arrests are being made almost daily for violation of the traffic laws. The officers say they are not desirous to inflict fines on people for driving without proper plates, but they have been put in the position to enforce the law, and that is what they are trying to do without fear or favor. The safe pen and the good citizen plans is to stay the laws, and enforcement will be necessary.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

One year ago today the annex to the Ellwood hospital was destroyed by fire.

One year ago today, Dr. P. W. Horn, president of the Texas Tech college dedicated the high school at Morris.

One year ago today the seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gordon of Seminole died at a local sanitarium, and the body was shipped to Corpus Cove.

One year ago today D. W. Robertson brother of E. L. Robertson, local drug-gist visited here from Elmd, Okla.

One year ago today several Lubbock boys were found guilty of stealing gasoline out of cars, and were fined five dollars and cost.

FOOL'S GOLD

In Death Valley out in California a strange thing has occurred. A shifting sand dune has uncovered the skeleton of a miner. One of his bony arms was curved around a block of pyrites—known as fool's gold. A scrap of yellow paper was also found with the words "I die rich."

Poor fellow, he died hugging to his heart a yellow lump of worthless fool's gold. When a lad I found a large piece of it in a pile of coal. With great joy I hurried home my my find, only to be laughed at by the family for my foolishness.

That luckless miner was not the first, nor will he be the last, mortal to mistake something that shines for the real thing.

I was saddened recently in learning that a certain young man had deserted his wife. I had married them two years ago. At the time of the wedding I remarked to my wife, "He is one of the finest looking grooms we have even seen."

The real truth concerning him was that he was a clever, sleek-looking crook, forger, gambler—a piece of fool's gold, good looking but worse than worthless.

Another acquaintance of mine married a lovely young woman, only to find himself married to a drug addict. Fool's gold.

Real gold may become fool's gold when we are tempted to get it in illegal and unjust ways. Short weights, undue monopolies, working little children in sweated industries, just for gold, is the gold of a fool.

God has put into nature the essence of a thousand pleasures. They are the possession of all people who will live sensibly and righteously. Yet in the nature of pleasure there is a secret fire that may consume and destroy if used by a fool.

Called to a hospital last week to pray with a dying woman, I found a poor creature whose husband had shot her. Drink, infidelity, and dishonor had written another chapter in the book of life where the gold of love is turned into the fool's gold of lust. The real riches of life are within rather than without us. Whoever will try to follow in the way of life first lived by Christ will find gold in thoughts that are ever uplifting; gold in fancy where imagination builds her chaotic castles in the air; gold in habits that carry us safely through the pitfalls and trials of life; gold in the heart love of our own dear ones which is richer than all rubies; gold in friendships that make life well worth while; gold in the faith that after this life, the real value of character will shine undimmed for aye—real gold.

Highway Laws

To the Editor of Lubbock Avalanche:

A few days ago there appeared an editorial regarding the action of an officer of the state highway department employed as state license inspector. You asked for letters on this subject, as many of our out-of-town friends had been picked up and made to suffer money penalties and embarrassment.

When principles were constructed and incorporated into the laws governing the state highway department, and good laws can do and have done much for the benefit of humanity, but nothing is more fatal than to over-estimate this power. To do so tends to breed in man the most deadly of all diseases, which can afflict human society, the loss of self-dependence and the weak impulse to look for help to something or somebody outside one's self at every step upon the road of life.

In the past three hundred years there have been enormous advances in political freedom, in the protection of human rights, and guarding the weak from the oppression of the strong; but those advances, so great when we look back over the centuries were slowly and painfully obtained. They did not come in a day or a year, or even in many years; they came little by little, but when they came it that way they were lasting.

I do not think it can be said truthfully that the officer above mentioned, acquired an aspirations from the law of the good old days. Any who were violators of the law, through innocence, ignorance or otherwise, were made to suffer a penalty. Thompson said "Speak the commanding word and it is done." This must have been his motto. Anon said "Courage is the armed sentinel that guards liberty, innocence and right." With some of those who were not among friends, being held for payment of the penalty or the proper execution of their courage seemed to have failed them, and they paid cash penalties.

American liberty and American institutions have thriven and added examples to the rest of the world because they were the work of people who had been trained for self-reliance. It is a part of the philosophy of success to say that no honest citizen can issue in defeat or recall in failure. I am of the opinion that those who carry their cases to court and fight for their rights will not lose them, but that those who do not fight for their rights will not gain them and freedom. I am

Yours very truly,
 L. R. CAMPBELL

An Individual Responsibility

Brownwood Bulletin:

There are few lands on the face of the earth in which the Christian religion is now "unknown." Into all the far-away places Godly men and women have gone with the gospel of Jesus Christ, seeking with all their power to aid in Christianizing the whole world according to the commandment of the Lord, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Despite the hardships that are sometimes suffered by the foreign missionaries, a veritable army of men and women have dedicated their lives to this work; and, in fact, thousands of persons have voluntarily offered themselves for foreign missionary work who can not be sent although there is a constant demand for more workers and more working equipment. Almost all of the churches which are engaged in foreign mission work have been able to secure more workers than can be used, for the appeal of the foreign mission field reaches many hearts and there is an ever-increasing group of workers willing to sacrifice all else in order that they may respond to the call of the Master for gospel mission work.

What, then, is holding up the work of missions throughout the world?

There are plenty of workers, and why are they not working? The answer is that while the appeal of foreign mission has reached the hearts of a sufficient number of persons to provide an adequate working force in all the mission fields, it has not reached the hearts of a sufficient number of persons to finance the work that is needed. The churches are pledged to this task, they have developed practical plans for the work, they have secured a sufficient number of workers, but they have been unable to equip their people to give as much money as is needed for financing the large missionary budgets from year to year. If there is any church which has been able to secure as much money for its mission work as is needed, we have not heard of it. Almost every one of them is laboring under the handicap of a deficit at the close of each fiscal year.

Obviously, such a condition is indicative of a bad condition throughout Christian America. Individual Christians must realize that the call to evangelize the world is an imperative and personal command; and that everyone who can not actually devote his life to the work must do his share toward making it possible for some other person to carry on the task. Like America appears to be, the unlimited funds for financing relief work wherever there is calamity and need in the world.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TREES ON SECOND AVENUE

So many motors up and down
 Go rushing day by day
 The trees we planted, as a town,
 The city cuts away.

Those great arms grew until at last
 Their boughs seemed to meet
 To shelter everyone who passed
 Along that lovely street.

In June the song birds twittered there
 In autumn all who strolled
 Along that peaceful thoroughfare
 Walked beneath an arch of gold.

But progress strode into our town
 And talked of greater things
 Of population and renown
 And all that commerce brings.

And beauty sickened in the shade
 And loveliness turned pale,
 The elms and maples seemed to choke
 In that on rushing gale.

Today the lovely elms are down,
 "We need their room," they say,
 The trees we planted as a town,
 The city cuts away.

Co-operative Marketing Expert Hopes To End Automobile Magnate's Attacks On The Jews

By NEA Service

DETROIT, Mar. 19.—Genius meets genius in a duel of wits and law when Sapiro, one-time street wail, emerges as the creator of farmers' co-operatives, trying to collect a million dollars damages from Henry Ford in federal court here soon.

It is a duel of billionaires, too, in a way—for Sapiro is a billionaire in the case that farmers' marketing agencies over the country, which are his handiwork, handle each year products of the oil running into ten figures in value. Sapiro charges that articles in Ford's weekly magazine, the Dearborn Independent, defamed him. The articles charged a conspiracy of Jewish bankers who seek to control the food markets of the world, and linked Sapiro's name with those of Julius Rosenberg, Otto Kahn, Bernard M. Baruch, Albert D. Lasker, and Eugene Meyer, Jr.

The Million a Minor Issue

Though a million dollars is the surface stake in the suit, Ford's whole attitude toward the Jews and toward Sapiro's "cause" are larger issues.

Weighing before a court the whole question of whether co-operative marketing benefits the American farmer may feature evidence in the trial.

Sapiro, 42 years old and like Ford an example of self-made eminence, is the chief apostle of marketing co-operation.

Henry Ford, through his magazine, has discounted the worth of marketing, as people to the agricultural industry.

Reed Is Ford's Counsel

James A. Reed, U. S. senator and presidential possibility, is Ford's chief attorney, at a retainer fee said to be $100,000 or more.

Sapiro, himself a lawyer of note as well as an economist, conducts his own case in company with William Gallagher of Detroit.

The poverty-stricken home of a San Francisco teamster and later an orphan, Sapiro gave his start in life.

He roamed the San Francisco and Oakland, Calif., streets as a newsboy. In public school his principal was Edward Markham, the poet.

Life was drab in the orphanage, in which Sapiro, at the age of 10, was placed when his widowed mother found it impossible to feed and clothe all her children. But Sapiro shone as a student.

As a result, the trustees selected him to be sent to the Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati to study for a career as a rabbi.

Wins Phi Beta Kappa Key

He entered the University of Cincinnati as well as the Hebrew Union college, dividing his time between the two schools and won a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Giving up the idea of becoming a rabbi, Sapiro returned to California, studied law, and began delving into the problems of farmers.

Fired by an eagerness for public service, he accepted for a short time post as assistant superintendent of the orphanage which once had sheltered him, and transformed it into the best institution of its kind on the Pacific coast. Miriam Johnson, then California's governor, heard Sapiro make a speech and appointed him as secretary of the State Highway Board.

Fosters Co-operatives
Dynamic as an organizer, Sapiro envisioned the power which co-operative selling would give the farmers, and set about fostering marketing pools among growers of fruits, wheat, cotton, tobacco, dairy products and the like.

He drafted a standard co-operative marketing act which two score states have adopted.

For many co-operatives, Sapiro has served as legal counsel.

Sapiro is prepared not only to defend his own reputation but also fight out to a finish any argument as to the soundness of his favorite "cause" which he seeks before Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond here to put a million-dollar nick in the Ford fortune.

He once was a street wail, but now Aaron Sapiro is suing Henry Ford for a million dollars. Senator James A. Reed will be Ford's attorney.

Mineral Deposits Bring Wealth To City Of Burnet As Companies Begin Operations

BURNET, March 19.—From the depths of the earth comes the chief wealth and prosperity of Burnet, county seat of Burnet county, Texas. Mineral resources and the discovery of them, according to local opinion, are the cause of the city's growth. It is the people of that section this year who have long awaited exploitation of the mining industry there. At last a flow of money means agents for local labor to work the mines is being felt, and the magnitude of mineral wealth in Burnet is being realized.

In addition to the Southwestern graphite mine, considered one of the richest assets of the town, a new company has been organized, the Burnet Copper Mining company. This organization has been granted a charter with a capital stock of $200,000 and the section feels that it is destined to become a regular mining concern.

Not Only Aspects
Though mineral wealth is a chief resource of Burnet, it is by no means the only field in which the section prospers. Burnet is considered one of the leading stock raising and farming counties of the state and is considered to have one of the best sheep and goat ranges of the country. The section's industry and commerce are not only contributing to the general prosperity of the county, but Burnet is located in one of the most picturesque sections of the state. The town lies in Hamilton Valley, and is surrounded by rugged hills. To the west, Fort Mountain stands as a sentinel.

In the early days, Burnet was a lonely pioneer station. Robert E. Lee and other illustrious characters of history were posted there. Remains of the old forts and a soldier's cemetery still stand near the town and are objects of its pride.

Business Good
Burnet is served by a chamber of commerce which is ever awake to the needs of the town. The organization's 1927 program is a comprehensive post construction campaign. Citizens of Burnet, in cooperation with a move of the commercial club, turn out weekly to work their route. Most of the chamber's budget is used for highway building. Some of the most scenic roadways of the state are located in Burnet territory and the section is attempting to get them in the state so as to attract more tourists.

Though the Burnet chamber of commerce is only two years old, it has accomplished many things in building a real town and good county. This activity has been made possible due to the efforts of efficient workers connected with the organization. If the local people will, the Burnet chamber of commerce will be able to do more.

secretary, and his board of directors includes S. E. Lammie, Dr. A. Howell, S. B. Kameel, J. H. Hatcher, and W. C. Galloway. The chamber recently affiliated with the W. H. Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Cross Plains Men To Kidnap Duggan

CROSS PLAINS, Mar. 19.—A kidnapping party of seven men from Cross Plains citizens will attend the Oil Belt district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Dallas, March 23. The big delegation plans to capture President Arthur P. Duggan and Manager Homer D. Wade of the regional organization and take the two officials to Cross Plains immediately following the convention session. There the Chamber would hold a big general assembly and will initiate a speaking tour of the oil belt. Details and itinerary for which are now being worked out. The Cross Plains delegation is organized solely as a good will representation according to F. G. Gwin, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce.

SLIP-UP KILLS FLOYD JUNIOR COLLEGE SENATE BILL

AUSTIN, March 19 (AP).—An unexpected slip-up in a routine procedure has proved the unexpected "death" of the Floyd senate bill to regulate establishment of junior colleges, which both the senate and house approved Wednesday after conference adjustment of differences. It was stated today at the secretary of states office. Although the bill got to the governor's office, it cannot become a law because it failed to get enrolled in the senate in the confusion preceding the legislative adjournment Wednesday.

Kansas May Have Better Highways

By NEA Service

TOPEKA, Kas., Mar. 19.—Highway interests in Kansas are conducting a spirited campaign to take the state out of the neglected road class and establish a system of first class roads.

Officials of the National Old Trails highway are behind the movement, in hopes of removing the last barrier to an all-improved cross-country route.

At present there is a patchwork of better class roads in Kansas, construction of them having followed no definite plan.

The campaign has as its aim an amendment to the state constitution to create a highway commission and a state roads system.

There are about 290 miles of unsurfaced road in Kansas on the National Old Trails route. Of this, 75 miles will be gravelled and 25 miles will be paved, leaving 190 miles to be completed.

If the amendment is passed it is believed that this highway will have the two-mile gap closed in short order.

Local Bachelors Talk Of 'Dream Girls'

They Tell What They Want In Fair Sex

By ELANQUE E. DEAN.

Gentlemen prefer blondes and brunettes. Bachelors love them all, but when it comes to "with all my worldly goods, I thee endow" it is still another story.

A census this week of those men who, seemingly, are enjoying life says matrimonial readiness established a few facts concerning the likings of the local bachelors and, apparently, the maiden "plains and pure, modest and yet so brave" of poetic fame can't hold the proverbial candle to the not-so-idealistic maiden who pets, curtsies those hard-sung locks and "who can get by anywhere and make me proud of her."

Clinging Vine Rapped

The wall-eyed baby-doll, the clinging vine, meets with almost as much discount among these bachelors as does the over-bearing Amazon who can shoot a golf ball farther, swing the longest, repair the most obstinate car or excel in any of the more admittedly masculine fields of endeavor and lose that innate femininity. At least, so they say.

And beauty is of little consideration, proclaim these answers-to-a-maiden's prayers. Just so she wears "en ritzy" avoids that boyish hob and doesn't agree too consistently.

Blonds or brunettes, curly, straight or permanent, titian-topped or there's the rub—it's all the same to these men, gave those sunlight-catching, rufous-locks. Hardly a man of them could pass up a copper-headed damsel and say that complexion matters not.

Many Don't Care

But they did, and old smoking (tobacco), they would never. "I don't care, just so she—" And then they would begin.

May she drink? May she smoke? Well, that's according to who is speaking. To the man, they agreed that woman has the right and part of them affirmed "She'll have to drink and smoke if she is able to get by in all the places I would have her shine." Others voiced no objection to these habits; one cautioned that she might take one small sip occasionally at home; four bachelors' admiration for the girl who smokes, from smoking or drinking, and two added tobacco. No one, however, smoking or drinking.

They want to be sure. To the question about smoking and drinking, the men usually countered with "Are you talking about the girl I might run around with or the woman I would marry?" and one remarked that, since he associated these habits with immorality, and must always prove himself to be moral after he found that she smokes or drinks, whereas otherwise he presumed that a woman is virtuous.

No mothering for these men. No nagging. No "learned lady, famed for every branch of every science known." "No dumb sister for me," cautioned one, "but if she is smart enough, she will appear to know little." They ask for intelligent, well-educated girls who are not ostentatious about their knowledge and one ventured, "I don't want her to be too smart."

"Whatever I do, whatever I say, whatever I think, my ideal woman realizes that she cannot do it as well."

Treasure Hunt Scene

Church Ruins Hide Rich Gems

This exclusive picture of the ruins of San Jose church, Old Panama, beneath which buried treasure has been found, was taken recently by H. F. Kendall of Madison, Illinois. The church was razed to ruins by the pirate Sir Henry Morgan in 1671.

B. NEA Service. Buried gold—emeralds, rubies, sapphires, diamonds—hidden from the eyes of man for two and a half centuries!

These are the rich prizes being found by three treasure seekers in ruins of the ancient city of Panama, Central America, sacked in 1671 by the pirate Sir Henry Morgan.

The bond of radio has pointed the way to the discoveries. The three explorers, George Williams and Fred Selley, Englishmen, and Wallace Bain, an American, are using in their hunt of a Britisher.

In the ruins of San Jose church, Old Panama, the middle of the "a" "radio gold" located, the invention of the radio pointed to a spot where golden ornaments and chains and many precious stones were found.

Through an agreement with the officials of Panama, by which 25 per cent of all the treasures found go to the government, the three gold seekers were given an exclusive concession to recover the treasures. Sir Henry Morgan, conqueror of the Caribbean, plundered many rich cities and used part of his booty to win a British knighthood.

NEW YORK, March 19. (AP)—The trial of the separation suit brought by Count Ludwig Salm von Hoegestraeten against his wife, the former Millicent Rogers, was ordered resumed next Monday by supreme court Justice Levy Friday.

A report was circulated several days ago that the count had received between $250,000 and $300,000 in settlement of the action and that the case would be discontinued.

Auto Buying Not Over Done, Claim

Instalment buying either of automobiles or other goods is not overdone. In the opinion of C. W. Churchill, Buick Motor company general sales manager, Churchill cites findings of the National Bureau of Economic Research in support of this statement.

"While there has been a huge increase in credit buying in the past few years," he said, "this condition does not necessarily indicate credit inflation. We find that the purchasing power of the actually employed is increasing at the rate of seven per cent per year, and has done so since 1921. The total income is now 90 billions, as against 62.7 billions six years ago.

LEVELLAND APPROVES BAND

Before a large and appreciative crowd, the Lubbock high school band gave their first out-of-town concert of the year at Levelland Friday night. Fifty pieces made the trip. It is the plan of Director Crowley, of the band, to give a number of concerts in the various towns in this section. F. A. Norman, Rev. L. G. H. Williams, and Mrs. J. H. Jenkins accompanied the band last night.

MILLIONS FOR ROADS

An estimated total of $75,000,000 will be spent during 1927 for California's city, county and state highways, according to the engineering club of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

DOCTORS CRITICIZED

CHICAGO, March 19. (AP)—The staff of Columbia memorial hospital, was scored for laziness and inefficiency in a verdict returned Friday by the coroner's jury which investigated the recent deaths there of six infants given boric acid instead of sterile water. No criminal responsibility was fixed.

MORE CALIFORNIA CARS

Registrations of motor vehicles in California increased 11.1 per cent last year.

The government still has approximately 200,000 acres of land in the public domains, exclusive of national forests and other reserved areas.

BARGAIN RAIL RATES ASSURED FOR TEXANS ATTENDING CONFERENCE IN DALLAS TO DISCUSS BOOSTER TRIP

DALLAS, Mar. 19.—Bargain rates will be placed at the disposal of persons attending the state-wide conference called for March 28 at Dallas by the Texas Daily Press League. Rail officials at St. Louis Wednesday advised S. W. Papert, president of the League, that fare-and-a-half rates would be available and applicable on Texas lines for the occasion.

The conference, sponsored by the League, but designed for participation in by representatives of all state interests, will map out the itinerary and decide the date of departure of the "All-Texas Special" train for its tour of the principal cities of the north and east. It is expected that the trip will be started about the middle of May.

Will Carry Exhibits

The special train will carry, in addition to a heavy quota of Texas business men, exhibits of the state's products and resources to be presented in material form in the business and manufacturing centers of the north and east. Approximately a score of scheduled stop-overs have been tentatively agreed on for display of the exhibits and their inspection, Papert said.

Dispatch of the "All-Texas Special" train was agreed on by the League following the favorable reception of more than 250 pages of full page advertising setting forth the potentialities and resources of Texas through the press of the nation in the last few weeks, Papert said.

Disillusionment of those who think of Texas in terms of the "ten-gallon hat and chaps" of fiction and, in their places, presentation of evidence of the state's enormous possibilities as a future manufacturing territory is the goal of the "All-Texas Special", according to Papert. Working on the plan of "appealing to the mind instead of the eye," the conservatively-dressed modern business man will replace the cowboy and his accoutrements on the "All-Texas Special" tour.

Tires on the right wheels of a car wear faster than those of the left because the car is driven on the right hand side of the road. The right wheels support most of the car's weight and come in contact with ruts, debris and the curb of the highway.

APPEALS ONE DOLLAR FINE IN POLL TAX TRIAL

AUSTIN, March 19. (AP)—Fined $1 on conviction of an attempt to obtain illegally a poll tax receipt, S. E. Beles of El Paso, today filed appeal from the sentence in the court of criminal appeals here.

Beles was convicted of becoming the agent of Candelaria Sierra to obtain for him a poll tax receipt.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO CARRY LEGIONNAIRES TO HOUSTON

AUSTIN, March 19. (AP)—American Legionnaires from the entire Rio Grande valley will charter a special train to go to the state convention in Houston, July 4, 5 and 6. S. M. Hankins, state adjutant, was notified Friday.

The delegation will be one of the largest from the valley ever present at a state convention he said.

Olney Paving Work Nears Completion

OLNEY, Texas, March 19.—The Thurber Construction company, contractors for the paving program now under way in Olney, have completed Third street by topping the concrete base with brick. The entire street is now open to the public. First street, from Avenue C to Avenue K has been excavated and the concrete base laid. As have also two blocks from Third street to the Gulf, Texas and Western railroad. Eight blocks on Avenue F, as well as two blocks on Second street have been excavated and the concrete curb and gutters set. The concrete base will be poured this week.

There are several other streets called for in the paving order, and work on these will commence in a few days. When the present paving program is completed, Olney will enjoy a little more than one hundred blocks of pavement. Forty blocks were laid two years ago, and about sixty blocks will soon be completed in the present program.

Winning New Thousands To the Eight

IN beauty of body and fittings, no less than in performance and riding luxury, the latest series Hupmobile Eight is competing and winning on its merits against the most costly eight productions.

Gracefully compact in appearance, the new closed models are held lower to the ground by means of modish smaller wheels.

Mohair upholstery of finest quality enriches the interior of closed cars; and the long wheelbase and chassis frame provide roomy comfort.

Fourteen Distinguished Body Types—priced from $1945 to $3795 f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax. Custom Bodies Designed and built by Dietrich.

Power is increased, and economy as well, by a newly designed manifold, higher valve-lift and new-shape combustion chambers.

Before you pay more than the Hupmobile Eight price for any other car, eight or six luxury, compare values as they exist today.

You will be pleasantly surprised to find that no other car, however high priced, can go beyond the kind of performance you get from this beautiful Hupmobile Eight.

WHAT WAS GOING ON? Death of GARRY SEARS, SON of the late GARRY SEARS, Town, N. J. It is thought at first he is a stroke victim, but investigation shows he has been stabbed to death beneath the water.

Folsom's swimming companions had been ROBERT NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNABY, and GARMETTA VALDON. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been drinking with SEARS, known as the "cigar king," ANASTASIA FOLSON, eccentric and masterful sinner of the dead man, arrives and takes command of the inquest. It is learned that the death weapon was a pican, an Oriental knife and that it had been bought on the boardwalk.

It is also learned that one CROYDON SEARS, who was in SEARS' party, is a fancier of various knives. Anastasia engages TITE RIGGS, an expert, to do the work on the case. DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives and is intrigued by the curious French dolls in Folsom's room.

He believes his uncle had been blackmailing several people and he and Riggs discover some documents in Folsom's effects, bearing the initials of Croydon SEARS.

Carmelita Valdon admits that she is anxious to recover some letters that were in Folsom's possession. A remark from Riggs rattles her and she leaves.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII

Carmelita evinced no anger, made no quick or peevish motion, but as she went off the Duchess observed:

"She's mad clear through. See it sticking out of her back!"

"She'll get over it," said Neville, carelessly. "Now Riggs, circle on the table. Want the Duchess to stay?"

"As she wishes."

"I'll go then," and Mrs. Barnaby rose with an air of relief. "Had you wanted me to go I should have stayed, and I know I'd be bored to death."

With her wife, seemingly vapid, but really wise smile, she followed the direction Carmelita had taken.

"Great little woman," and Neville looked at Riggs.

"Does she know anything?"

"Everything."

"I don't mean generally speaking. I mean about the Folsom murder."

"Good Lord, no! How should she?"

"I don't know how she should, but that doesn't argue that she doesn't."

"She may for all I can say—I've really not talked to her about it."

The Riggs watched his man, for in a sense Neville was his man, for the moment. Riggs didn't actually suspect him, but a number of vague vapors had begun to crystallize suddenly and all at once, and Tite wanted to be sure.

"Have you talked much about it, Neville?" he said. "I mean, have you heard or gathered anything that would help me in any search? For you must be interested in getting at the truth."

"I dare say I ought to be," the other cut in. "But I'm not. I don't look at these things as some people do. I'd rather let poor old Garry lie. To dig into that man's past would not only mean a lot of reproach to his memory but trouble and annoyance for other people who, whatever they may be, are innocent of any complicity in his death."

"Complicity? How can you think more than one person acted? Even the coronor's jury said 'at the hand of a person unknown,' omitting the alternative plural."

"I used the word carelessly, but even so there may have been complicity of intent with an individual action. I don't suggest this at all; I'm only defending my English."

He smiled. Neville was a map of charm, and the more Riggs looked at him the more he felt certain that the charm was of a sort that could expand into tact, even policy, even deception.

"Well," he said after a moment's pause. "I believe 'cards on the table' was your phrase. Spread your hand."

"Why, dear fellow, I meant your cards. I haven't any. I'm not in this, as I told you. What I meant was spread your cards, so I may know what you're up to."

"What was going on?"

"I've practiced asked you all a number of times, but you haven't answered me. Do you know of his being conversant with details of other people's lives, that said people would give almost anything not to have known?"

"Yes."

"And did give almost anything?"

"Yes."

"Youself among them?"

"Yes."

"You know of no others?"

"If I do, I don't propose to tell of it."

"Very well, and thank you for your frankness. This is not news to me of course. But I will not ask you for any more than you want to tell."

"You've reached your limit, then?"

Tite Riggs smiled. He began to like the man, though against his better judgment.

"What became of that valet of Folsom's, that Ross?" Neville asked.

Again Riggs smiled. He could so often read silent connective thought.

"You mean he knew about his master's business?"

"Yes, Riggs, you're uncanny! That's early Doyle work."

"Only to a mild degree. Why the nephew, Dan Pelton, one of your co-heirs, accumulated Ross as a part of his inheritance. I suppose he had a right to."

"Oh, hardly a question of right. Yes, I do rather think that Ross knows a lot about Garry's doings under the rose, as well as out in the moonlight."

"But faithful and loyal, as I see it."

"All of that. Old Ross is salt of the earth, if you ask me. And I don't believe you could get him to squeal on Folsom to the extent of one single sentence."

"That's the conclusion I've come to after several attempts. Now, for a parting shot. What do you know of Croydon R. SEARS?"

"Nothing but good."

"I hate that expression, 'nothing but good.' There's no man of whom that can truthfully be said."

"No, I suppose not. But SEARS is then the average—or above the average, as you like—honorable, upright citizen. The square business man, the courteous gentleman, and the man of intellect—with a hobby."

"The hobby is of no interest save as it impinges upon the case we have in hand. Could he have done in Garry Folsom?"

"Not for a minute! He didn't buy that wicked old knife."

"How do you know he didn't?"

"He said so."

"Wouldn't you have said so if you had been the murderer?"

"Like a shot! But SEARS? Why, he had no motive."

"Look here, Neville, if these things we've just spoken of are true bills, about 'other people's secrets,' any man may have a motive."

"Yes, yes, I suppose so."

"Or Carmelita Valdon."

"Oh, don't take that too seriously. Carmy's notes were—just what you called them."

"To come back to SEARS, then. Doesn't the mere fact that the weapon used was an antique curio seem to have a bearing?"

"Not a definite one—at least, not to me. Besides, as I understand it, SEARS was a 'thundered' foot or more away from Folsom."

"We've only SEARS' word for that."

"By the Lord Henry, Riggs, you make me damned uncomfortable! You may like this sort of probing, but I don't. If you suspect Croydon SEARS go and tell him so, but let me alone!"

Neville was on the verge of being angry, so, being a diplomatic man, Tite Riggs made some laughing retort and sauntered away.

Seeing SEARS and Ned Barron who had returned together he went to speak to them.

"Might as well put it through," he told himself.

"Been in?" he asked, noting the vigorous glow that seemed to follow as an aftermath of the salt water dip.

"Rather!" answered Barron. "None of the traidler sex along, and we swam—how far did we swim, Croy?"

"A million miles, at a rough guess. And uphill all the way."

"You look it! You two ought to pose for an advertisement picture of somebody."

"Snap!" laughed Barron.

"No, salt, I guess."

"I suppose we look like a pair of Lot's wives. And there's my own wife," and Barron left them abruptly to go toward Madeline, who had just come in sight.

Riggs snatched his chance.

"Great old swimmers, you chaps," he said heartily. "Can you give me a bit of help in my work, Mr. SEARS? That young hopeful of yours has lain down on his job."

"Why—that is, I don't see how I can, Mr. Riggs. I know nothing about it, you see. I was 'way off; I didn't see the thing at all."

"Yes, I know, but—I'm only checking up the facts—who was the man in the green bathing suit who stood near you?"

"I haven't an idea, and—excuse me, said—I shouldn't tell you if I had."

And Croydon Rochester SEARS, with a slight, formal bow, turned and walked away to where the Barrons were standing.

Tite Riggs looked critically at Mr.

Riggs can't put SEARS out of his mind when he thinks of the murder. Why do so many people act suspiciously? Who killed Folsom, anyway?

Rail Consolidation By Ford Is Refused

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Henry Ford's proposal to consolidate his railroad properties into a single corporation eliminating minority stockholders, met Friday with the disapproval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Detroit and Boston company, a new corporation of which the Ford interests are the sole stockholders, was refused permission to take over the Detroit, Toledo and Iron-ore railroad, in which Mr. Ford owns nearly 99 percent of the stock.

The commission based its decision against the Ford plan principally on technical legal grounds, holding that the project contemplated was a railroad consolidation under the transportation act and now a unification project.

The discovery that cod and haddock frequently waters where the temperature is between 40 and 50 degrees Fahrenheit has led to the extensive use of thermometers by fishermen.

DODGE BROTHERS' MOTOR CAR

Facts that Draw Crowds and Sway Buyers

Little wonder Dodge Brothers Motor Cars today are accorded such widespread and enthusiastic commendation—

Smart new body lines and attractive color combinations—

A new seating arrangement that provides still more roominess and comfort—

A new clutch, simple, sure, silent—

Softer pedal action, easier gear shifting—

Quicker acceleration, still greater steering ease—

More rigid engine support—and smoother performance—

New, silent-type muffler—

Sturdiness and dependability made still more pronounced by vital betterments in body construction and in the propeller shaft, differential and axle shafts.

Add to these the new five-bearing chrome vanadium crankshaft, with its remarkable improvement in engine performance, the excellent new starting and lighting system and many other recent betterments, and you understand why owners proclaim today's car—

"The finest Dodge ever built!"

GAIN IN GENERAL MOTORS IS SHOWN

FEBRUARY FIGURES SHOW BIG GAIN IN SALES OVER PREVIOUS YEAR

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, in a statement regarding the corporation's February sales, says:

"The retail sales by our dealers to users in February were 102,025 cars, compared with 64,971 in February, 1926, and further with 39,579 in February, 1925.

"The February sales by our car divisions to dealers totaled 124,426 cars, compared with 81,313 in February, 1926, and 49,146 in February, 1925.

"The following figures show monthly sales of General Motors cars, by dealers to ultimate consumers and sales by the manufacturing divisions of General Motors to their dealers:

Dealers sales to users: 1927-Jan. 81,010, Feb. 102,025; 1926-Jan. 63,698, Feb. 64,971, Mar. 106,051; 1925-Jan. 25,593, Feb. 39,579, Mar. 70,594.

Divisions sales to dealers: 1927-Jan. 99,367, Feb. 124,426; 1926-Jan. 76,332, Feb. 81,313, Mar. 113,341; 1925-Jan. 30,642, Feb. 49,146, Mar. 75,527.

"These figures include passenger cars and trucks sold in the United States, Dominion of Canada and overseas by the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick and Cadillac manufacturing divisions of General Motors."

How the Lubrication

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

THAT run-down feeling, an automobile has after it has gone through the winter's siege may be bolstered up by the simple practice of greasing its joints and other movable parts.

Regularly in this practice will lengthen the life of a car, will keep its cost of upkeep down and will make riding comfortable.

The car that isn't kept well greased soon appears shabby, protests in squeaks and hard bounces and endangers its occupants.

The danger lies in the liability of ungreased moving parts to break easily.

THE greasing operation nowadays isn't the grimy and tortuous occupation of years ago, when grease cups afforded the only means of applying this lubricant to individual joints. Pressure systems, and especially the latest mode of unified and single-control pressure system, have done away with this.

It takes a short time and little effort to grease the car, thanks to these appliances.

For these, however, a special grease usually has to be used so that it may move freely from the gun and through the entire joint. The best type is a heavy grade of good mineral oil mixed in a lime base and cooked to a jelly. There are oils with soda base which aren't so effective, because water will saponify them and wash them off. Lime base oils, on the other hand, are not affected by water and stick to the joints and bearings.

The parts of the car that require grease every week are the spring shackles, spring blocks and ends of springs; the tie rod bolts, the ends of the steering connecting rod, brake and clutch pedal hubs under the floor board, the clutch release fork pin under the clutch cover, the clutch release bearing retainer which is fed by a cup outside the transmission housing, the ends of the brake shaft, the starter sliding gear, the brake cam shaft and the distributor gears and clutch on the generator.

These require merely a turn of the cup, if cups are still attached to these parts. Otherwise a slight turn of the pressure gun handle is all that's necessary.

Complete greasing is necessary every thousand miles. Then the front wheel hubs and hub caps are filled with soft grease, the rear wheel plugs and hubs are filled with the same type and similar grease goes into the pinion shaft bearing.

There are other parts that require oil, rather than the heavier grease, to keep them running smoothly. These relate to the motor and generator, where motions are quick and constant.

STEAM cylinder oil, which is a heavy mineral oil with a lime base similar to the type used in special grease guns, is useful for the efficient operation of the gears in the transmission and rear axle housing.

Now that warm weather will soon be upon us, the oil in the transmission and rear end should be drained out and a heavier injected. Too thin an oil here would lose its effect as a film against the friction of the gears, especially as the days get warmer.

The steering gear also should be greased with the same type of oil or thin grease put into the transmission. The grease goes into the steering gear housing at the side of the engine. Ordinary cup grease might do, however.

STUDENTS POLICE CAMPUS TRAFFIC

CORVALLIS, Ore., Mar. 19.—Every faculty and student owner of an automobile at the Oregon agricultural college must register it with a traffic committee of the student body.

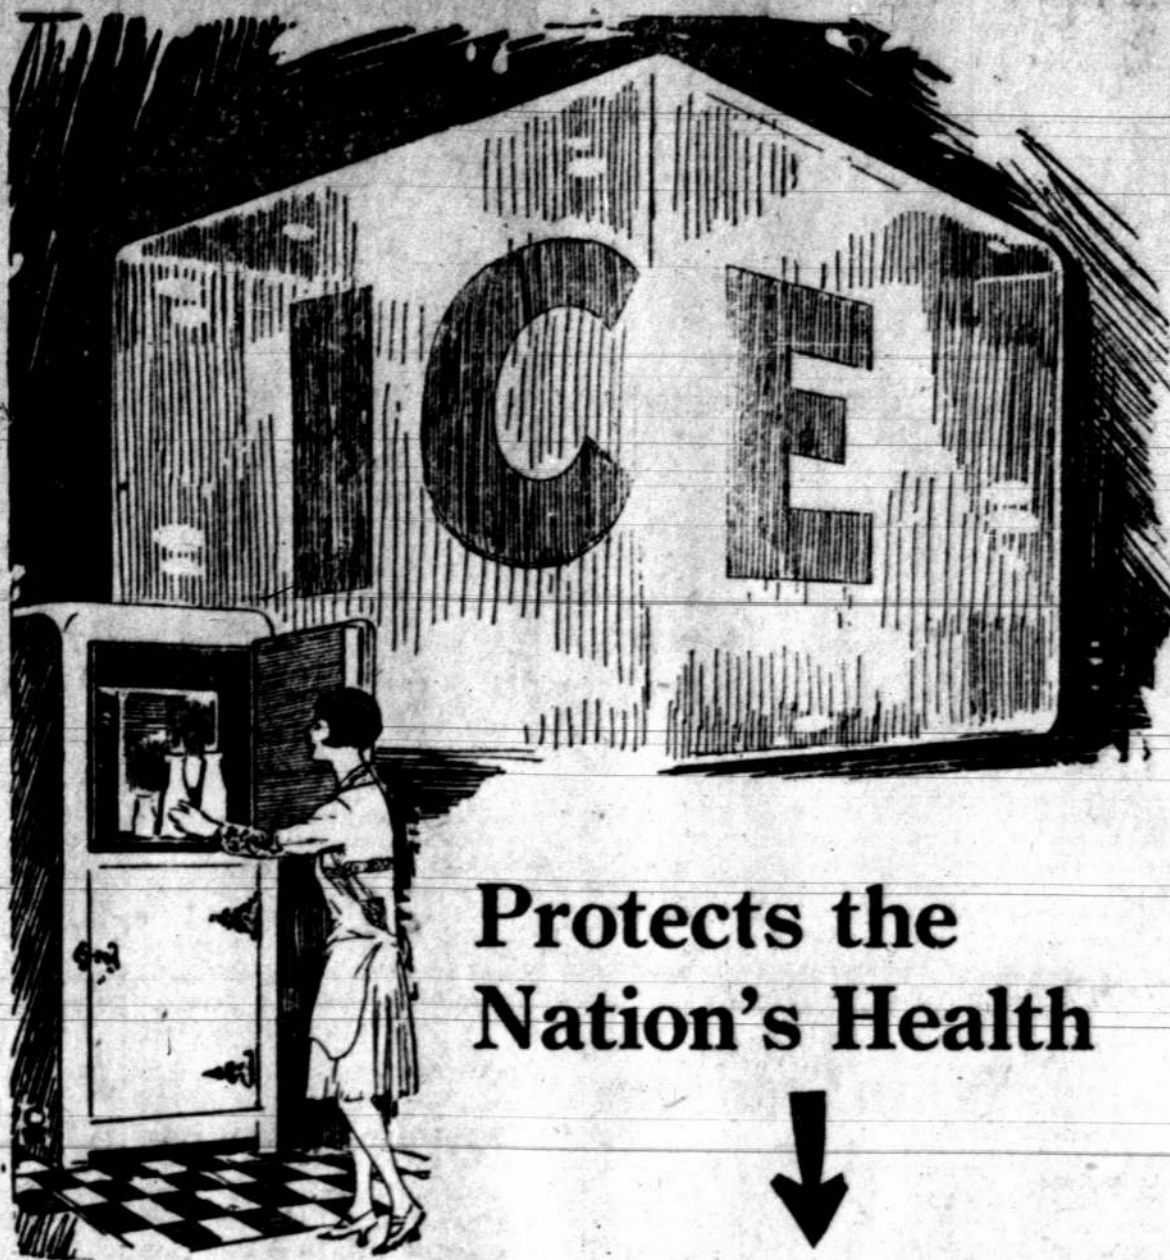

New speed rules and strict parking regulations have been adopted on the campus and violators are fined by a student court. Fines collected go to a student loan fund.

GOODBYE BACK-SEAT DRIVERS!

LONDON, Mar. 19.—A British automobile manufacturer has introduced a car with the rear seat backed up against the front in hopes of solving the back-seat driving problem.

Passengers in the rear seat are spared the distractions of driving which spoil motoring for some people. Windows are cut in the rear of the car to give a view of the fleeting landscape.

In Palestine the official languages are Hebrew, English and Arabic, but French, Spanish, Greek, Italian, German and Rumanian are also heard.

Protects the Nation's Health

The Thermometer Should be the Means of Determining Use of ICE

When the thermometer rises is the time to protect your foodstuffs from losing their usual firmness and delicacy of flavor.

Many homes wait until the calendar month shows an indication of warm weather rather than basing their ice order according to the recording of the thermometer. It is the safest way of all to assure the keeping of foodstuffs and keeping them palatable under every condition.

We are proud of our ice plant for it is modern in every respect, and thoroughly upholds the reputation for quality, found in products sold by the Texas Utilities Company.

Place your ice order in proportion to the size of your refrigerator and the temperature, for only in this manner can you hope to keep its contents thoroughly chilled and appetizing.

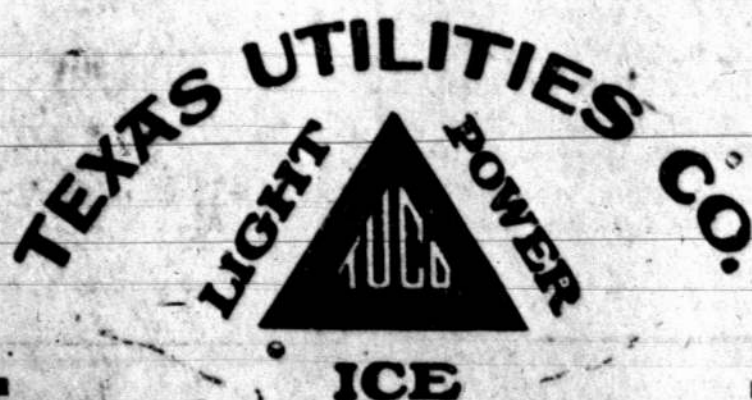

ELECTRICITY economical and efficient

Electricity has accomplished for the modern housewife what Abraham Lincoln did for the slaves. It has freed her from so much of the household drudgery that the difference is almost incomparable.

Electricity is so clean, so sure in its source, that the home that is not making use of it, is missing one of the big things that our modern age has to offer.

For those who wish to learn more about the many uses of electricity as applied to the home, we have in our organization, a commercial representative who will be glad to give you the benefit of his knowledge. It is yours for the asking; make use of it.

EUROPE MAY BE JUSTLY ENTITLED TO CREDIT FOR MAKING POPULAR KNIGHT MOTOR BUT IT WAS INVENTED IN U. S. A.

While Europe may be justly credited with the early development and popularizing of Knight-engine motor cars, it is not generally known that the dual sleeve valve engine was invented by a Chicago engineer, over twenty-four years ago. The first automobiles powered with engines of this type were built in this country by the F. B. Stearns company, Cleveland, Ohio, in 1911, although as early as 1908 several of the leading European manufacturers were building motor cars having Knight engines.

The early lead established by European manufacturers in building cars with Knight engines presents an interesting study in view of the fact that the basic patents awarded to Charles Y. Knight of Chicago covering the principle of the sleeve valve engine are still in force.

Engines Used in Europe
In 1908 one of the leading car manufacturers in each of the four European countries was producing cars powered with Knight type engines and as the result of the sensation these cars created in motoring circles, this type of car immediately became one of the most popular in the large car class. The manufacturers of cars of this type in Europe at the time were Daimler company, England; Alvis of Belgium; Mercedes in Germany and Daimler and Lorraine in France.

Hearing of the striking performance of the Knight-engine cars in Europe, the Stearns Company in 1908 began their first experimental work on Knight-engine cars. It was not until 1911 that the first Stearns-Knight model was offered for sale and it called for considerable courage at that time to introduce a radical change in engine design to motorists who regarded any new idea with the utmost suspicion. From 1911 to the present time, sleeve valve cars have been built continuously by the Stearns Company and one of the most striking cars of this year is their new Eight-in-line Knight-engine car having a 100 h. p. and a speed in excess of 85 miles per hour.

First Models 14 Years Old
Willis-Overland Inc. up to this year was the only other producer of Knight-engine private passenger cars, concentrating upon building automobiles of this type. The first Willis-Knight models were produced nearly fourteen years ago and today Willis-Overland Inc. is the largest manufacturer of sleeve valve engine cars in the world. Each year this Springfield, Mo., company recently formed to build Knight-engine cars exclusively on a quantity production basis will introduce a six cylinder sleeve valve engine car to compete among the low priced sixes.

Saint and Sinner

AS had been expected Stephen Churchill motion for dismissal of the indictment against Cherry had been denied instantly by Judge Grimshaw and, almost before Faith was aware of what was going on, Bob Hathaway was summoned to the stand, as the first witness for the state.

Banning's voice was bland and courteous as he began his examination of the witness: "Your name?" "Robert Lee Hathaway," Bob spoke clearly his brilliant blue eyes fixed in steady gaze upon the district attorney.

"What was your relationship to the deceased, Ralph Winston Cluny?" "He was my uncle, my mother's brother."

"What is your relationship to this defendant?" Banning's voice was deceptively suave, ingratiating. "That of a friend," Bob Hathaway answered curtly.

"May I ask, Mr. Hathaway, if you are engaged to be married to Miss Faith Lane?" "Objection!" Churchill roared, leaping to his feet.

But Bob had answered "Yes," before Churchill's interruption. "Now, Mr. Hathaway," Banning went on triumphantly "I will ask you if you were ever engaged to be married to this defendant, Cherry Lane Wiley?"

"I object!" Churchill shouted, "on the grounds that—"

"Your honor," Banning addressed the judge, while Bob sat white-faced tense. "My question and the answer are intended to bring certain important facts before this jury, so that they will realize in the very beginning that the testimony of this witness is biased inevitably in favor of this defendant."

"Objection overruled," Judge Grimshaw said wearily. "I was for a very short time," Bob answered clearly, the blood creeping slowly up to his high cheek bones. "Earning, to the surprise of every spectator, switched his questioning abruptly. 'Now, Mr. Hathaway, I will ask if you clearly recall the events of Thanksgiving Day, November 25?'"

"I do," Bob nodded. "Now, Mr. Hathaway, will you kindly relate to the jury just what happened on November 25 last, beginning at about eight o'clock in the evening of that day. I refer of course to your discovery of the body of the deceased, Ralph Winston Cluny?"

Almost without interruption, Bob was allowed to tell how he went to his uncle's home, arriving there at eight o'clock, his encounter with the maid, Mary Kearney, his discovery of the dead body of his uncle in the latter's bedroom on the second floor of the Cluny mansion.

"My uncle's body was lying sprawled on the floor, the head being about three feet from an open window—"

"Just a minute," Mr. Hathaway, Banning interrupted. "Your honor, I offer as the state's exhibit A, a photograph of the bedroom in question."

After some parley between Churchill, the judge and Banning, the photograph of the interior of the bedroom, a view which included the window in question, was admitted into the record, and upon it Bob pointed out the location of the body in reference to the book case beside the window.

"You say that this window was open when you discovered the body?" Banning rapped out. "Are you sure of this?"

"Quite sure."

"Did you walk to the window and look out, or examine the window in any way?"

"No, not at that time," Bob answered quickly. "Later—"

"Answer only the questions that are asked," Banning instructed him sharply.

Colonel Lee Plans To Run Model Farm

CISCO, March 18.—Col. R. Q. Lee, who as president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce devoted an entire year to the task of preaching diversification to West Texans, believes in practicing what he preaches. He is now preparing to establish near Cisco a model diversified farm and operate it along the lines he advocated during his memorable campaign. He plans to construct a small lake on the farm and irrigate land from the water impounded. He will follow a balanced program and will produce a great variety of crops on the place. He will keep livestock and poultry to consume the feed raised on the farm, and will have a truck patch sufficient to supply the table demands of the average Texas farm. He will probably produce some cotton, but will make it a side line and a cash crop after all other crops are produced.

Like Safe Farming

Mr. Lee has for years been an advocate of safe farming. Reared on a diversified farm, he has spent a number of years of his life as a farmer. He was for years a country merchant, selling largely with farmer customers. He is one of the outstanding poultrymen of the state. He financed one of the largest poultry farms in West Texas and is now constructing another farm for his son, to cost fifteen thousand dollars. His home is a model of what a man living in town can raise. Not only is the Lee table supplied constantly with poultry, fresh eggs, and vegetables, but it is supplied with home grown fruit, including apricots and strawberries from his own garden. And Mrs. Lee's rose garden is one of the show spots of the city.

Col. Lee is thoroughly sold on West Texas as the greatest farming section on earth. He gave practical demonstration that Eastland County is ideally suited for poultry production and his model poultry plant pioneered the way for vast poultry development that has come to this county. It is believed that his model poultry farm irrigated by a simple storage will revolutionize the farming of the section just as his poultry work revolutionized the poultry industry.

PREDICT CHEAPER ROADS

Mass production may reduce expenditures in the construction of roads, predicts A. J. Broussau, director of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

CITY DIRECTORIES RECEIVED BY C. C.

FORTY-TWO VOLUMES ON CITY DEVELOPMENTS ADDED TO LIBRARY HERE

Forty-two volumes have been added to the city directory library of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce in a shipment received here and shelved Saturday, bringing the total number of volumes representing as many cities in the United States and Canada, to approximately 100.

One volume from the city of Toronto, Canada, was received in the shipment Saturday, the others coming from the states of California, Colorado, Florida, Kansas, Massachusetts, Maine, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington and New Mexico.

To Be Increased
The library, originated through a suggestion of the Hudspeeth Directory company, which compiled and published the last city directory for Lubbock, will be enlarged from time to time through a co-operative movement of directory companies, and by the exchange of volumes from various cities the library is expected to eventually reach the point that information concerning almost any city in the United States will be at the disposal of citizens or visitors to Lubbock.

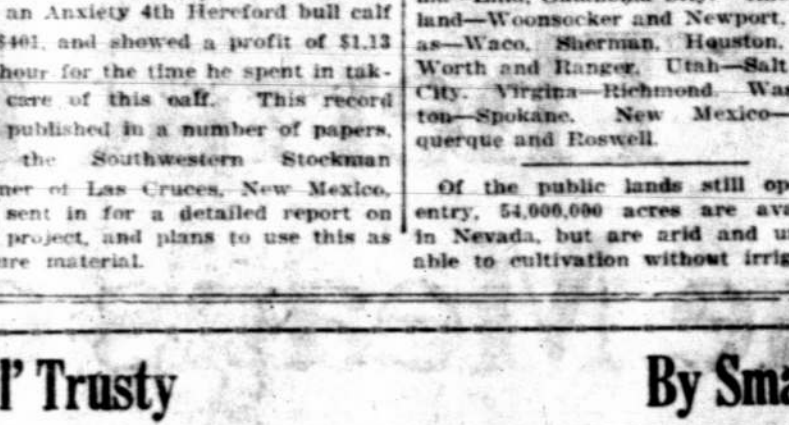

Volumes included in the Saturday shipment are: California—San Jose, Monrovia, Arcadia and Duarte in one volume; Sacramento, Fresno and Fresno county; San Francisco, Berkeley, Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda in one volume; and Los Angeles, Canada—Toronto. Colorado—Fort Collins, Loveland and Larimer in one volume. Florida—Lakeland. Kansas—Kansas City. Massachusetts—Fall River, Waltham, Boston, Lawrence, Taunton, Lowell and Lynn. Maine—Portland; Bangor, Brewer and Hampden (one volume). Minnesota—Duluth. New Hampshire—Manchester. New York—Syracuse, Auburn, Albany and Rensselaer (one volume); Troy, Cohoes and Weatherford (one volume). North Carolina—Greensboro. Oklahoma—Enid, Oklahoma City. Rhode Island—Providence and Newport. Texas—Waco, Sherman, Houston, Fort Worth and Ranger. Utah—Salt Lake City. Virginia—Richmond. Washington—Spokane. New Mexico—Albuquerque and Roswell.

Of the public lands still open to entry, 54,000,000 acres are available in Nevada, but are arid and unsuitable to cultivation without irrigation.

HEREFORD BOY SETS RECORD STOCK RAISING PERFORMANCE

HEREFORD, March 18.—Much publicity is being given Hereford and the Hereford cattle industry by the report in various daily newspapers of Raymond Purcell's record in vocational agriculture in the Hereford high school. Young Purcell recently sold an Anxley 4th Hereford bull calf for $401, and showed a profit of $113 per hour for the time he spent in taking care of this calf. This record was published in a number of papers, and the Southwestern Stockman Farmer of Las Cruces, New Mexico, has sent in for a detailed report on this project, and plans to use this as a feature material.

Articles And Local News about South-Plains Farmers; Community News By Correspondents

The President's Veto of the Farm Aid Bill

The veto is what might have been expected, however we do not think the veto will work as much harm as many farmers and others seem to think. First of all we agree with the President's idea that we have too much law on most subjects. Then this plan would create more offices and high salaries which would very likely be filled by men who do not understand the farmers' problems and the cost of operating the law as outlined in the bill would be more than the probable benefit to the farmers of the country.

We have often said in these columns that there is no need for such a law and for such legislation. That is not the correct plan to benefit the farmers and the law contemplated that the farmers would be taxed enough to take care of the surplus and for operating the business.

To our way of thinking this would not, absolutely, not solve the problem. There is one and only one correct plan that will ever solve this surplus problem and we have mentioned this several times in these columns. First of all there should be a surplus of all the principal crops grown in this country. The Government should be as prudent as our best farmers who always try to produce a surplus of the main crops and hold such surplus until the price of the next crop is known. But the great wrong is done when the larger crop is sold for less money than a smaller crop will bring.

Now there is no reason in fact for a larger crop of any thing selling for less than a smaller crop will bring. But we are met in this claim by that class of individuals who claim that that inexorable law of supply and demand governs the price. We deny this emphatically, and will insist if you 15,000,000 bales of cotton are worth 13c or 12.5c or a total of $1,875,000,000, there is no valid reason why an 18,000,000-bale crop of cotton should bring from $200,000,000 to $200,000,000 less than the smaller crop.

The Reason The Larger Crop Brings Less

The reason why the larger crop brings less is when there is an abundant crop made, there is no fear that there will be any lack of supply. And the gamblers by their system of chalk marks begin to bear the market by selling that sweet "lullaby" to the farmers of over-supply and delude them into believing this should really take less for the larger crop.

Now What Should Be Done

If the world will use 15,000,000 bales of cotton at an average of 13c and there is a crop of 18,000,000 bales made then the same thing to do is to sell only what the world really needs, and hold the balance of the crop for further demand. This is where the Government should step in and say to the consuming world, "The farmers' cotton is worth as much as it was when the smaller crop was made, and Government will furnish the farmers all the money necessary to hold this surplus, if there really is any surplus, until needed. Let the farmers hold the surplus themselves and that will cause them to be more reasonable and careful than for the Government to take, or offer to take, care of the surplus for the farmers. The farmers are the proper ones to keep the surplus and should build and own the warehouses in which to hold such surplus until the demand calls for it.

Why Has Not the Farmers Done This Before

The reason the farmers have not done this is that when the price begins to decline they know it is wrong but they usually are burdened with debt and they fear that if they fail to sell the price will soon be so low they will not be able to meet all their obligations. He rushes his crop on the market to try to be able to pay out and have a few dimes left to buy some of the necessities, and possibly a few of the luxuries of life for his family who have usually helped to produce the crop. Notwithstanding these solemn facts, the farmers are blamed by many (who do not use their brains to think if they have any) dumping their cotton on the market.

In all the meetings held in different parts of the country there has not been a single one mentioned any more that the 1926 cotton should be sold for. They have all admitted that the crop was being sold at a loss but none ever mention or tried to know what the loss really was. Mr. Hester of the New Orleans cotton exchange was the only man who had the temerity or we might say had the nerve to mention any price the crop should bring. He said early in the season that the world would take 17,000,000 bales at 12c if the growers only knew it, and went on to say the consuming world would absorb 20,000,000 bales at 15c if we had it to offer. With all this information the Southern people sat by and saw the gamblers and speculators mark the price down with their chalk markers and let the farmers sacrifice their cotton at the price the markets made under the false pretense that we had too much cotton and that unfailing law had to operate as it always has operated to the disadvantage of the producers.

There Has Not Been as Good Demand for Cotton in the History of the Country

Mr. Hester says there never has been as strong demand for cotton in the history of the country as this season has shown. There was no other supply under the canopy of high heaven where the cotton could have been secured and with all these advantages our Southern people have sustained a loss of from $500,000,000 to $700,000,000 on this crop.

Who Is to Blame For This Loss

Now when we attempt to place the blame for this loss we are sure to meet strong opposition, but we propose to deal with this from the stand point of the facts as we will show to all fair minds.

We think the bankers and the business interests of the South are to blame for this unwarranted loss. The bankers are supposed to hold the purse strings of the people and they showed some interest in helping the farmers but they did not take the right course. All the remedies they suggested have signally failed, as we outlined early in the season they would fail. The talk of acre reduction and seedling three or four million bales would, we are afraid, not solve the problem and experience has fully demonstrated our claim along this line. It is true the pooling was too long in forming to accomplish what was claimed for it at the time it was proposed. And to talk reduction of acreage last fall while the crop was being sacrificed was as said at the time, a display of human blindness unworthy of these enlightened times.

To reduce is all right, but to even think that such talk would disturb the market was too silly for serious consideration.

The Proper Thing To Have Done

The proper thing to have been done was for the bankers and all legitimate business interest of the South to have joined with the farmers and named a price the crop was worth and should bring—and then to have said stop selling until the crop brought that price.

There is nothing miraculous about this; it is the only way that the crop will ever bring a fair price unless the acreage is reduced to a point where all the spinners will compete eagerly for their needs.

This is not the proper thing to do, but to reduce some is all right. But the way this crop has been snatched up in proof that the world will absorb 15,000,000 or even 20,000,000 bales and would have used it at 20c if only the Southern people had named such a price and then stopped selling until the price named was paid. There would have been nothing wrong about this as the crop sold last year for an average of 13c and all cotton goods were made on that basis and the producers have had to buy their cotton goods on a basis of 13c cotton.

Now reverting back to the President's veto it might be possible that the President and his attorney general did think the bill was unconstitutional and it might have been, but we think it was wrong in the very nature of things. All that is necessary for the Government to do is to furnish the farmers with adequate means to carry over any surplus of any main crops such as cotton, grain, etc., and some surplus should always be made, to keep the nation secure, from any probable shortage that might come the following year. We think such surplus should remain in the hands of the parties who produce them, or better still to have co-operative warehouses where the surplus could be kept in cotton goods on a basis of 13c cotton. Every business man and banker should and does really feel an interest in the crops produced in any part of the country, but when the marketing seasons appear they all seem to think the farmers should be left to battle with the selling part of the same which is not the proper thing to do—should help and see that the producer receive the largest dollar their crop will justify—and that would mean much better business for the merchant, banker and for all concerned.

If such a course had been pursued last fall the Southern people would have had today at least a half billion dollars more in the South than is here now. There would have been such a wave of prosperity in the country had never experienced before.

There would not have been any forced sales of goods and hundreds of additional clerks would have been needed to transact the business that this bountiful crop would have brought to this section and to all sections of the South.

The Only Thing That the Government Should Do

The only thing that the government should do for the farmers is to take off all special favors granted to other interest in the way of unfair tariffs and to absolutely stop all gambling in farm products. This will give the farmers and all interested in the farming business a right to name the price their crops should bring and to receive the price that would put the farmers in a much better condition than they are today. This should be done and not delayed another season. Who will take the lead in such a move?

WELTON WINN.

The Government has generally been able to help the tax eaters, but we are not advised of many conspicuous examples where it helped the tax payers.

A cellar full of canned fruits and vegetables and a barrel of good home-made molasses are very satisfactory substitutes for something to eat.

Dean Predicts More Students In Agriculture In 1937

STILLWATER, Okla., March 17.—Enrollment in agriculture, while not in the lead over other divisions of the Oklahoma A. and M. college, has shown a gain of more than 123 per cent within the last five years, declares Dean C. T. Dezell, and he predicts that the increase is likely to continue.

From a study of senior classes in his school, Dean Dezell has found that 43.3 per cent of all graduates in agriculture at the college have received their degrees within the last five years. The first class was graduated in 1932. The largest number of graduates in any one year up to 1932 was nine, in 1930. In 1932 the number of graduates was 18. With the exception of two or three years, this number was not increased until 1932. The number of graduates in 1932 was 17. In 1935 it reached 47, and last year went to 54. There are 28 members of the senior class in agriculture this year.

"In this connection, it is worth noting that the enrollment in the school of agriculture is not as great as it is in some other divisions of the institution," says Dean Dezell. "But for the last two or three years we have had more graduates in agriculture than any other division of the institution. While our enrollment is not as large as it is in some other divisions, yet a survey by Dean R. L. Watts of Pennsylvania State college shows that the percentage of increase from 1915 to 1935 in the school of agriculture of this institution was third largest in the United States. During the first five years of this ten years we had a decrease in enrollment so there has been more than 123 percent increase within the last five years, because the 123 percent increase is for the ten-year period.

"Facts show that the purchasing power of farm products has been increasing for the five years up to 1935. We have no figures on that subject for 1936. As this purchasing power increases, it means that the condition of the farmer is getting better and it is expected that as farm conditions get better we will have an increase in enrollment in schools of agriculture throughout the country. There may have been a number of factors bringing about the decrease in enrollment in agriculture in most of the states but undoubtedly the rapid industrial development of the country and the relatively poor position of agriculture have been the two main factors that have caused the decrease in enrollment in other states.

"Our industrial development will continue and this will offer attractive openings for a large number of young men, but the rate of increase in industrial development probably will not be so great in the future as it has been within the last twenty years. If this is true, it will mean that there will be a let-down in the enrollment in agriculture in most of the states, and with an improved condition in farming I think we can naturally expect an increase in enrollment through out the country."

The way the Federal Congress proposes to help the farmers to get a better price for their products is to levy a tax on every bale of cotton, and every bushel of wheat, corn, etc., produced. This may be a fulfillment of the Scripture which says: "For he that hath, to him shall be given, and he that has not, from him shall be taken even that which he hath." Since writing the above the President has vetoed this bill and saved the farmers the payment of the tax.

Vegetables for the garden should be selected from the standpoint of food value, quantity produced for canning, drying or for storage qualities. The state college extension service has a circular on "The Balanced Garden" that lists varieties suited to South Dakota conditions. A request sent to the extension service at Brookings will bring it to you by return mail.

A snake house full of good pork, lard and sausage is a great insurance against hard times and may cause less anxiety about low priced cotton and high priced meat.

Copper carbonate dust when properly applied to seed wheat will eliminate smut disease. One pound of the dust will treat eight bushels of seed.

Green Bugs

By R. R. REPERT, Entomologist
Extension Service, A. & M. College

Green bugs have appeared in great numbers and are doing extensive damage in the counties of Dallas, Tarrant, Denton, and others of that locality.

No very effective means of control can be suggested for these insects that will be practical over a large area.

Under some circumstances, rolling a badly infested field with a weighted roller, frequent use of a brush drag, or heavy pasturing with stock have given some relief, although the success of such a method will depend largely upon the condition of the field itself.

A statement of conditions favorable or unfavorable to the insect's increase, constitutes about the only useful purpose of this article. The insect is carried through the late summer on volunteer grain (usually oats) and then attacks grain planted over these volunteer hosts or nearby, slowly reproducing through the fall and winter. They are held in check by a little bee parasite, which however, requires a period of two to three weeks to multiply to such numbers as to be effective. They also do not multiply

Farmers Have Power To Control Price Of Cotton—Begin By Reducing Acreage At Planting Time—Surplus Too Large

George B. Terrell has the following to say in regard to the cotton situation. Mr. Terrell is Commissioner of the Agricultural Department.

Cotton planting will soon begin in South Texas and will continue throughout the state until sometime in June. The prosperity of Texas farmers will depend very largely upon whether they receive profitable prices for the coming cotton crop. They have it in their power to a large extent to control prices by controlling production, and certainly they should use every effort to limit the production of cotton by "choosing the acreage which makes it plain that we cannot depend upon the government to solve our marketing problems, but should go ahead with a business organization to solve our own problems. Such an organization should be formed this year, and upon the advice of many leading farmers a statewide meeting may be called at an early date to form such an organization. The department of agriculture will welcome suggestions along this line.

The world's production of cotton for the past two years, as shown by the government's most recent estimate is as follows: 1935, 27,087,000 bales; 1936, 28,732,000 bales. The United States produced 16,164,000 bales in 1935 and 18,613,000 bales in 1936. This estimate for 1937 may be a little too high, but the crop has not all been gathered and may not all be gathered, but the amount of cotton gathered and ginned is large enough to materially reduce the price.

Surplus Cotton

It is estimated by the government that there is now a world's surplus of approximately nine million bales from the crops of 1935 and 1936, when a surplus of four or five million bales is sufficient to meet all emergencies caused by a short crop and any surplus above that amount practically depresses the market.

These two large crops and present surplus are responsible for present low prices. The world's consumption of American cotton has been about 15,000,000 bales a year for the past two years, which gives a surplus of 4,000,000 bales of American cotton. This indicates that the United States should reduce its production this year at least 4,000,000 bales, if we expect to advance the price any at all.

Texas Should Do Her Part

Texas farmers planted 12,900,000 acres in cotton last year, and produced nearly 6,000,000 bales. They should reduce the acreage this year to not exceed 14,000,000 acres, and produce a maximum crop of not exceeding 7,000,000 bales if they expect to get a profitable price. Texas makes the lowest yield of cotton per acre of any state except Florida. Common sense and good business judgment ought to convince us of the importance of reducing the acreage in order to make a profit.

Texas farmers do not produce half enough meat and lard to do them, and they buy a large amount of dairy products and canned goods that can be produced at home, and if they will produce enough feed and food products to supply the State, I will guarantee that they will not lose cotton, and get a better price for it.

Self Help The Best Help

Farmers should organize for marketing their cotton and other cash crops, but the first steps to help the farmers to get better prices should be taken by the farmers individually at planting time, by reducing the cotton acreage 25 per cent or 30 per cent, and if every farmer will make this reduction and not depend upon others to make it for him, it will be made. This is the first step towards better prices, for if production is reduced the price will advance in proportion to said reduction. Common sense and necessity will determine the amount of reduction.

If we produce another crop of 18,000,000 bales this year, we cannot expect to get over 10 cents per pound, or $90,000,000 for it, but if we make only 14,000,000 bales or less we may get 20 cents per pound, or $1,400,000,000 for it, or $500,000,000 more than the larger crop will bring. This is a true mathematical calculation based on past experience and past prices. Surely we should not act a fool any longer.

Farmers need a strong marketing organization to enable them to have their cotton properly classed and stapled and sold collectively in order to get the best price for the market of exports. The congress has recently enacted a law with the declared purpose of aiding the farmers in marketing their surplus crops. We hope it will be beneficial, but fear that it will be an extra burden without benefits. Since this article was written the president has vetoed this measure upon constitutional grounds which makes it plain that we cannot depend upon the government to solve our marketing problems, but should go ahead with a business organization to solve our own problems. Such an organization should be formed this year, and upon the advice of many leading farmers a statewide meeting may be called at an early date to form such an organization. The department of agriculture will welcome suggestions along this line.

Cotton Crops Pay Many Debts In Hale County

PLAINVIEW, March 17.—Chas. A. Maloney, president of the South Plains Ginners Association and a resident of Plainview, says that the cotton crop in Hale county has paid more debts since Christmas than it did before. Unusual efforts have been made to save all of the crop, especially since the price has shown an upward trend.

The production of cotton in Hale county this season will exceed 50,000 bales. Cotton has brought immense sums of money to the county this year despite the fact that the price for a part of the season was very low. From the crop there will be a total proceeds of $2,000,000.

The credit side of Hale county's cotton crop for the season is 50,000 bales of cotton at a season average of $45.00 per bale—$2,250,000.00; 25,000 tons of seed at a season average of $18.00 per ton—$450,000.00. Added value to Hale county cotton seed by reason of working through oil mill—$250,000. This increases value of hulls, meal, cake, oil, lint and other by-products of cotton seed working.

Cotton growers of Hale county know it to be out of their reach to increase the price of cotton, but they can decrease the cost of production to a great extent by seedling and therefore reaped the same benefits as an increase in price. Just what the expense bill is for raising, harvesting, marketing, ginning the cotton and working the seed is a matter for their experience in tabulation, but a conservative estimate of the income from cotton shows it is an approximate three million dollars. This price is an average estimate for the season and the number of bales an actual count.

ALL MASH RATION FOR CHICKS

A chick that is well started is half grown. For this reason it is important that the young chicks be started off on the right feeds.

Chicks should not be fed until they are from 36 to 48 hours old, according to South Dakota State college specialists. The first feed for the chicks should consist entirely of milk either in the sweet or sour form.

An all-mash ration for chicks is advised by the specialists. It is the Wisconsin all-mash ration and consists of 50 pounds ground yellow corn, 20 pounds wheat middlings, 5 pounds pearl grits, 3 pounds raw bone meal, 1 pound of salt and skim milk in place of water. The milk should be used in place of water at least during the first six weeks and longer if the supply is adequate. At the end of this time milk may gradually be replaced by adding 15 or 20 pounds of meat scraps to the mash mixture.

During the first three or four days the mash mixture should be placed before the chicks five times a day for half hour periods. After this time the mash mixture and milk should be kept before the chicks at all times. If the chicks are confined to the brooder, one or two quarts of cod liver oil should be added to each 100 pounds of mash mixture.

"Clean ground is a great aid in preventing chick troubles," says D. C. Henderson, extension poultryman at State College. "A portable brooder house is useful because it can be placed on ground that has not been used for poultry of any kind for at least one year. An ideal chick range would be in a cornfield that joins an alfalfa field. The corn furnishes shade and the alfalfa furnishes green feed."

It is a well established fact that those who dance must pay the fiddler. Why not make those who sue the public highways pay for them in proportion to the amount of travel measured by the amount of gasoline consumed? This is a very good speedometer.

Most of the losses of pigs, after they are three or four days old, are due to the pigs becoming infested with worms and mange and infected with necrotic enteritis and other disease germs during the first few days of their lives. Filthy, contaminated hog pens and yards around the hog house and barn are the sources of this trouble.

New brooder house plans are now available from the South Dakota state college extension service. Already there have been 100 requests for these plans this spring. Cost of materials for a brooder house built according to these plans should be under $100.

FARM BUREAU HAS Hereford Boys Do INTERESTING MEETING Landscape Tasks

The Farm Bureau held a very interesting meeting in the district court room with about twenty members present. Mr. Overstreet, one of the state directors spoke of the work of the bureau done in the past few months, also Mr. Trippett who is field representative from Hale county, spoke about educational films and it is expected that some special educational work will be done here in the near future, possibly in the nature of a special short course by postmaster from the Farm Bureau work.

It was a very successful meeting on the subject of cotton and wheat. Many other matters were discussed, and Farm Bureau work seems to be making good progress in this county.

Tornado Sweeping Missouri Hurts Two

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 19 (AP).—At least two people were injured when a tornado swept through the countryside a mile and a half north of Marshfield, Webster county, late Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Stovall were badly cut and bruised when their home was demolished. Two other homes are known to have been wrecked. There were some destroyed and livestock killed. Telephone wires are down and information is meager.

NEVADA LEGISLATURE MAKES DIVORCE CASES EASIER

CARSON CITY, Nev., March 19 (AP).—Divorce will be easier in Nevada, already widely known for its liberality in freeing visitors from matrimonial bondage.

Henceforth, three not six months will be the sojourn within the state's borders as the requirement to residence preliminary to divorce.

Before dawn this morning the amendment to the divorce law slipped through the assembly and senate of the legislature in its closing hours, and was signed by Governor Fred B. Balcer before breakfast.

HEREFORD, March 18.—The two Hereford High school are setting some practical demonstrations in cement mixing and landscape gardening. The first year class is busy, this week, doing practical work in cement mixing, and the youngsters are actually putting down some sidewalk on the campus.

The second year class is making plots for various flowers, trees and shrubs. It is boys first learn the kinds of plants best adapted to this section, and are using the ones that do best here. Most of the stuff is being secured from the local nursery, as this institution has spent nearly twenty-five years, selecting and adapting trees and plants to this section.

The Argle boys, under the direction of instructor A. W. Rombley, plan to make the best class set of composite ones of the best attractive ones in northwest Texas.

TEXAS U. SENDS OUT 7,000 PACKAGE LIBRARIES

AUSTIN, March 19.—Over 7,000 package libraries have been sent out from the Package Loan Library of the University of Texas since January 1, according to Miss LeNor Dimmitt. The package libraries are loaned for two weeks, but are frequently renewed for a similar period of time.

More Eggs... Strong Sturdy Pullets... at LESS COST

Do you want more eggs—at less cost? Experiments conducted by the Texas Experiment Station give good evidence of the usefulness of COTTONSEED MEAL as a feed for laying hens. Our specialists on feeds and feeding have prepared a very complete and authoritative folder on the value of COTTONSEED MEAL 43% protein as a poultry ration. The ration and methods of feeding baby chicks, growing pullets, laying hens, etc. have been completely worked out. Results from experiments are given. No raiser of poultry should be without the information this folder contains. Write for it. It's free.
