Two-Night Rodeo Slated Aug. 20-21

Wellington will have its big two-night rodeo on Friday and Saturday, August 20 and 21, at the VFW Arena.

A group of business men and others interested in this great southwestern sport are now organizing the Wellington Rodeo Association, with the rodeo as its big immediate goal.

President of the rodeo association is Eddie Blacksher, while Jim Henard is vice president, Kirby Campbell secretary, and Walter Clements treasurer.

These men and a large crowd of others who have volunteered to work met Tuesday night, July 27 to put the rodeo plans together.

"This will be a big two night event," declared Walter Clements, acting as spokesman.

Freddy Cordell of Childress will furnish the stock and the usual rodeo events will be presented: bareback bronc riding, saddle bronc riding, bulldogging, heading and heeling, tie down roping and bull riding. There will be barrel racing for the girls.

Two specialty events are planned. One that has not been seen here, in many years will be the wild cow milking. Six three-man teams will compete each night, and one team member must be Wellington business man, Clements declares.

The other event will be a calf scramble for the kids, ---See RODEO, page 2

City State Bank Announces Four New Board Members

Four new directors have been elected to the board of City State Bank, according to an announcement made following a meeting of the present board Wednesday, July 14.

The four are John Robert Henard, Jr., of Wellington; William O'Rear of Rolla; Raymond Ward and Earl Patterson both of whom live near Wellington.

Three directors were elected earlier this summer, Ralph Owens, Wayne Cudd and Cliff Hartman.

Other directors are J.L. Diamond of Bartlesville, Ok., chairman of the board, Richard Fourmentin, Louis Allred and Paul Bell.

Three of the four new directors were born here and have lived in the county all their lives.

Henard is a rancher-farmer who served 15 years on the board of directors of Salt Fork Soil and Water Conservation board. He is a member of the North Rolling Plains Resource Conservation and Development committee for Collingsworth County and served on the ASCS committee.

He was named the Outstanding Farmer and Rancher for the state in 1975 and in 1976 he received a similar award from the Texas Bankers Association. He belongs to Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Raymond Ward came to Collingsworth County 54 years ago from Atoka, County, Oklahoma, and has farmed the entire time he lived here.

He lived in the Shinnery community before moving to near Wellington, and he has extensive land holdings in several communities.

Ward served as a director of Farmers Co-op Gin for a number of years. He was on the AAA (ASCS) committee, belonged to the farm bureau and was on the Shinnery School Board.

He has turned most of his farming operations over to his son, Bruce Ward.

Patterson was born in Collingsworth County and has lived here all his life. He has farmed all of his adult life.

Patterson is now in his third 5-year term as a director for Salt Fork Soil and Water Conservation District and he is a past president of Collingsworth County Farm Bureau for two terms. He also served as a director and delegate to state conventions. He is a former member of Quail School Board.

O'Rear is also a native of the county and has lived here all of his life. His office by Thomas J. Pappas, state chairman.

Upon receiving the appointment July 19, Taylor said:

As an active black Republican entrepreneur, I am very happy to accept the appointment. I feel that I may be an asset to the administration to serve on such a distinguished board.

Charlie Taylor, as he is best known here, has been living in Phoenix for the past 16 years.

In announcing his appointment, Malcolm Baldrige, Secretary of Commerce, wrote Taylor: "We are pleased to notify you of your appointment to the Industry Sector Advisory Committee on Small and Minority Business for Trade Policy Matters. NOAH BEACHY AND COURTHOUSE LAWN

Duck Eggs, Grass Keep Beachy Busy

The influx of southeast Asians, especially Vietnamese, into Amarillo provides an unusual business for a Collingsworth man on his own farm. Noah Beachy, who lives a quarter of a mile west of Quail on Highway 203 raises ducks whose eggs he sells to the Vietnamese for their famous pickled eggs. Most of the eggs go to Amarillo; some are bought by Oklahoma City stores.

That is but one of Beachy's enterprises, for he is also employed by the county's STEP program to maintain the courthouse yard, County Judge Zook praises the lush green manicured look of the lawn.

In this Beachy follows the footsteps of another man whose care of the courthouse lawn was locally famous for a long period, J.F. Isaacs. During his tenure, the lawn caught the eye not only of county residents, but of many visitors.

Finely manicured and lushly green, the courthouse lawn catches the eye of everyone coming into Wellington's business area.

"He goes in a run all day long. I've never seen anyone work harder," the judge said as he praised Beachy's success with the lawn.

Beachy has more to say about his egg business.

Before the eggs are sold, however, they are incubated 17 days, as specified by the buyers. His Vietnamese customers then cook the eggs and follow this with a pickling process.

Beachy, who worked for Iowa Beef before moving to Quail a year ago, entered the duck business by chance.

"I got acquainted with some Vietnamese working for Iowa Beef and learned they were buying duck eggs. They told me they were paying $1 each for the eggs," he said. That was enough to encourage Beachy to buy ducks.

He sells the eggs for 35 cents each and they are picked up at regular intervals. Besides the Amarillo store, he has also sold eggs in Oklahoma City stores.

Recently he bought 300 ducklings, part of which he will sell.

Beachy raises the Pekin variety--the big white ducks that most people associate --See BEACHY, page 2

sponsored by the Department of Commerce and the office of the United States Trade Representative. The program was established under the Trade Act in 1974 to provide private sector advice to the Secretary of Commerce and the United States Trade Representative on trade negotiations and the administration of U.S. trade policy.

Taylor's appointment is for the duration of the charter of the Committee, which expires in March 1984, but he is eligible to apply for reappointment.

Because of security considerations, alternates may not be designated to attend committee meetings as Taylor's representative.

Secretary Baldridge continued:

"Your work with this Program will enhance the ability of the U.S. Government to pursue trade objectives which reflect the concerns and interests of the private sector. This is critical to implementing the Tokyo Round trade agreements, negotiating new agreements reviewing export policies, enforcing U.S. rights and managing serious trade problems."

staff are expecting about 55 players, approximately the same number as reported for the 1981 season.

The Skyrockets lost heavily to graduation and the head coach will wait until he knows who will be on this year's squad before he makes any generalizations.

Farmers Must Certify Cotton, Feed by Monday

Monday, August 2, is the deadline for cotton and feed grain farmers to certify their acreage with the county ASCS office, Bob Weatherly, administrator, has reminded.

It will be necessary for farmers to certify their acreage before they can apply for disaster payments, he emphasized. This applies both to the small group of farmers who did not replant and will collect now and to those who did replant and will collect disaster payments after harvest next fall.

"When they certify, we are taking the number of acres they had destroyed," said Weatherly.

"It is up to the grower to certify his cotton and feed grain acreage by August 2 or they won't get anything out of this disaster program," he repeated.

Weatherly said that every year, there are a few farmers who do not certify their acreage or who do not think it important.

with farms. "They are better layers, they are larger, so they can't fly off," he explains. The ducks sell for $5 each. Beachy feeds them alfalfa and wheat screenings.

Beachy, had lived many places before he and his family stopped at Quail and built the attractive yellow and white house on land he bought in 1977, while he was working at Iowa Beef. "Night work is no good," he says, explaining why he quit that job.

Beachy says he was born in Kansas, raised in Delaware, and married in Illinois. After he and his wife were divorced, he took his two children to California, where he worked as a bricklayer for Kaiser Steel. It was where he married his present wife, Thelma. They have two boys, John 7, and Joe 6.

About the time they married, Beachy's older son, Dan Beachy, who also lives at Quail, met Thelma's much younger sister and they also married. They have a son, also 7. Dan Beachy works for the city. The sisters are from Guatamala, Beachy said, but were living in Los Angeles when they married.

On leaving California, the Beachy's next stop was in Tucson, Arizona, where he operated an ore truck for Anaconda Cooper (now Anamax). "That work aged me," he declares. "I liked the work, but I aged 10 years while I was there."

He believes it was from the smut emissions of the oar cars and lack of ventilation in the mine.

Amarillo and Quail were his next stops.

with $10 going to the first child to get the ribbon off the calf's tail.

A rodeo dance is slated for both nights, with the tentative location being the National Guard Armory. Time will be 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Arrangements are being made to secure a band and the admission fee will be $6 for singles and $10 for couples.

Beginning this week, the rodeo will be advertised through the southwest in order to attract some of the top rodeo cowboys on the circuit.

The entry fee for rodeo performers is $50 for each contestant and the books will remain open throughout the rodeo.

There will be a slack in all events and this will be run off Friday night after the regular show.

Admission to the rodeo will be $4 for adults and $3 for children under 12 years.

Howard Murdock will be in charge of the concession stand and anyone wanting to help either night should call him at Wellington Lumber Co.

Volunteers for other work should contact any one of the officers.

"We had a big crowd at the meeting and there's lots of interest. We're all real excited," declared Clements. "It looks like it's going to go."

In the next three weeks, west stands of the VFW arena will be repaired with part of the seats being replaced. Everything will be painted and numerous other repairs will be made. Work on the grounds will start immediately. One chute will be enlarged and more lights put in.

Anyone wishing to donate time or money should contact one of the officers. "This is a non-profit organization and we've set out to see that we have a rodeo here and that it stays here," Clements declared. "There's no way we could do this if there weren't as many people interested in keeping the rodeo right here."

Clements estimated that between 100 and 150 individuals and businesses are already involved in working on the rodeo and more will become a part of the big project as it goes along.

Genetic Engineering Develops New Plants

Agricultural scientists are using genetic engineering techniques to develop plants that have the same high-quality protein as animal foods, and are also pest resistant, can fertilize themselves and enrich the soil, and can grow and produce well in drought conditions. In fact, the nutritional equivalent of beef may one day be reproduced in plants, such as genetically engineered corn-which may someday be known as "Beefcorn."

The experts at Bethesda Research Laboratories (BR-L) think that genetic engineering techniques will be a big part of the 1980s, expanding into the dairy, baking and brewing industries.

Mrs. Patterson announced a project that will begin with this reunion: finding the names and addresses of all those who graduated from Loco High School. The goal is to complete it during the coming year and use this as a base for the program at the 1983 reunion.

Although the register of the Loco-Arlie reunion has been lost, Mrs. Patterson said that approximately 160 names have been compiled, and those living out of the immediate area have been notified.

"If you know someone who lived in one of these communities that you can call about the reunion, please do that," she urged.

Some of those who have notified Mrs. Patterson that they will be here Sunday are Stella Mae Wattenburger Plummer of Hollis, Faye Stout Elledge of Farmington, New Mexico, Bessie Stout Miller of Channing, Thelma Adair of Littlefield, Hill Wells, Lewis Wells and Willard Harris Spencer all of Memphis, and Lucille Harris Todd of Hamilton, who lived in the Arlie, Loco and Fresno communities.

Clements Heads "Wheels For Children's Lives"

Walter Clements, vice-president of Wellington State Bank, has been named to lead the 1982 fall BIKE-A-THON in Wellington, for the benefit of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

"We are extremely proud to find such dedicated people for this important job," declared Clifford Damstrom, St. Jude director of the Southwest Region.

Date of the Bike-A-Thon is Saturday, September 25, with a rain date of Saturday, October 2. Details of the bike ride will be announced later, Clements said.

"St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is the largest childhood cancer research center in the United States, and it is the first research center dedicated exclusively to the research and conquest of catastrophic diseases of children, such as cancer and other life-threatening diseases," Damstrom stated.

"When St. Jude accepted its first patient in 1962, the survival rate for children diagnosed with acute lymphocytic leukemia was less than 5%. Today, the disease free survival figure for children has grown to over 50%.

Cancer treatment procedures that originated at St. Jude are now being used to treat children throughout the United States and in other parts of the world. Such progress has brought world-wide acclaim to St. Jude."

"Children come to St. Jude for one purpose: A chance to live!" Damstrom stated. With the wheels turning in this Bike-A-Thon, you will be making it possible for these children to have a chance to live! You will make it possible for daily treatments to continue. You will enable basic research into the cause and cure for cancer to continue. Make your wheels turn in this Bike-A-Thon!

Danny Thomas, who founded St. Jude Children's Research Hospital because of a vow, stated its purpose clearly: "To wipe catastrophic diseases of children from the face of the Earth."

"Since Thomas opened the research center in 1962, his dream of conquering cancer and other diseases that destroy our children has been brought closer to reality," stated Damstrom.

"Thomas is still extremely active in pursuing this goal, and he inspires all of us in this cause."

Hearing at Hedley to Explore PRPC Programs for Elderly

PRPC-Residents of the Wellington area will have a first-hand chance to hear about regional programs for the elderly during a hearing scheduled for Wednesday, July 28 from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. in the Hedley Senior Citizens Center, Main Street.

The hearings are being held in five area towns to acquaint citizens with the Panhandle Area Agency on Aging's operating plans for 1983. The budget year for the agency begins October 1 of this year and runs through September 30 of 1983. The hearings are required by the Texas Department on Aging so that private citizens can comment on the Panhandle agency's three year plan, now entering its third year. The agency receives $762,487 from the state aging department. Over $578 thousand of that goes directly into services in the region. The remainder is used to finance administration of the programs.

These types of programs are funded in conjunction with senior citizen centers: transportation, information and referral, homemaker services, emergency response system, adult day care, legal services and congregate and home delivered nutrition services.

Like all other state and federally-funded programs, the aging appropriations are being cut for the upcoming year. This year's $762,487 is off $25 thousand from last year's appropriation. There are $7,080 Panhandle citizens over the age of 60. The PAAA programs are used for about 8,000 people in the area.

RRC Rejects LS Rate Increase

AUSTIN, Tex., July 20—The Railroad Commission has suspended a $90 million natural gas rate increase requested by Lone Star Gas Company. The proposed increase would affect 451 Texas cities and outlying areas and more than 1.1 million bill-paying customers.

The 120-day suspension order signed by Chairman Jim Nugent and Commissioners Mack Wallace and Buddy Temple will delay the effective date of the proposed increase while the Commission's Gas Utilities Division examines the Lone Star request in detail. The company had asked that rates be increased effective August 2.

A hearing on the Lone Star application has been set for September 14.

The statement of intent filed with the Commission by Lone Star asks for an increase in its city gate rate. The city gate is the delivery point at which a city distribution system receives gas from its supplier.

In examining the proposed rate increase, the Railroad Commission will analyze Lone Star revenues and determine the reasonableness of the company's expenses.

Mr., Mrs. John K. McGill, Jr., Observe 40th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John K. McGill, Jr., of Denver, Colorado, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary with a buffet luncheon and garden party at their home 1606 South Downing Street at one o'clock Sunday, July 18.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McGill were raised here.

The 30 guests were received in the garden by Mr. and Mrs. McGill, and a photographer took pictures of guests as they arrived.

George Shelley escorted them to the dining area overlooking the garden.

The buffet was draped with a red lace cloth over white and the centerpiece was a bouquet of 40 red silk roses and other flowers in a crystal holder.

A table for the anniversary cake and punch was also covered with a red lace cloth over white and centered with a dozen long stemmed red roses.

The ruby theme of the 40th anniversary year was further carried out with the red roses decorating the anniversary cake, and red frozen hearts floating in the punch bowl.

Mrs. Jane Shelley presided at the buffet, Mrs. Betty

Miller poured punch, and Mrs. Lois Bickford served the coffee.

Party favors of a red and white wedding bells were given.

After the luncheon, Mrs. McGill took guests through the garden, which includes 150 varieties of trees, shrubs, plants and flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. McGill were married July 18, 1942, in the parsonage of First United Methodist Church by the pastor, Dr. Hubert Thomson.

They had one son, who was killed in an automobile accident June 22, 1967 at the age of 23.

Mrs. McGill is the former Lovera Kitchens and is the daughter of the U.S. and Ella Kitchens of Wellington.

McGill is the son of the late John K. and Mattie McGill of Wellington.

The couple owned the Club Cafe that they built in 1944 and operated until 1950. The building has been demolished and another business in the location.

In reminiscing of the Club Cafe on their anniversary, the couple recalled the reunions of Wellington men returning from the Armed forces at the end of World War II, most of them the age of the McGills.

"There was great joy and smiles and tears of joy that they had come home safely, and tears of sorrow for those we know who would never return," Mrs. McGill said.

There were other memories, as the bootlegger who attempted to use their cafe as a "front."

They also recalled the Wellington streets, lighted around the square until 10 in the evening, for the stores were open for business and cars were parked in every space. Wellington then had two motion picture houses.

Club Officers Announced

Down The Up Escalator

The scene is Circus Circus, a Las Vegas casino and hotel that features live circus acts in a tent-like building. The huge complex is also crammed with all manner of slot machines and electronic games and pinball machines. There are restaurants, cafeterias, souvenir shops, night clubs, and even a wedding chapel.

The place is packed. There are several thousand adults, many with their children, wandering around Las Vegas' most family-oriented pleasure dome.

There are dozens of enticements for children from cotton candy to Pac Man.

In the midst of all this, I noticed a boy who appeared to be about eight years old. He was having a great time. But he wasn't availing himself of any of the recreational opportunities so carefully provided. He was walking down the "up" escalator.

What is it that makes riding an escalator in the wrong direction so much fun? Doing something you're not supposed to?

We didn't have any escalators in Wellington when I was growing up. Still don't. But I remember how much fun it was to go to Blackburn Brothers' Polk Street store in Amarillo in the 1950's and ride the escalators.
And what a thrill it was to sneak away from your Mom, carefully reconnoiter the scene to make sure there was no one coming up, and dash down the up escalator.
Sometimes the lady at the candy booth at the bottom of the up escalator would scowl threateningly, but that just made it more exciting. When you finally reached the bottom stair, you could simply turn around nonchalantly and glide back up. What fun.

I still think it's fun, although people seem to be less forgiving of such antics when you're 33 than when you were 8.

Now I usually have to content myself by riding escalators the right direction. Amid Las Vegas' flashy nightclub acts, slot machines and gaming tables the thing that looked like the most fun was a run down the up escalator.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

A PLACE TO GO

AUSTIN - One unfortunate aspect of modern life
is the breakup of the extended family. Now, most of us are either living in small family units or alone.
Either way, we are pretty much "on our own."

Women and children many times suffer the most from this isolation. Husbands and boyfriends are abusing these weaker family members in record numbers.
Experts estimate about half of all women in a family
suffering physical abuse
sometime during their lives.

Police officers also suffer.
The Senate Human Resources Committee judges that at least 30 percent of all injuries to police officers are caused by answering domestic violence calls. No one knows how much time
the police spend on these family brawls, but it has to be a lot.

There are limits to what government can do for people, and with half the married and live-in women involved in a problem, the problem probably is too big for the state to solve.

But we can help, and there are some good reasons that we should help.

One thing a beaten or battered woman needs is a place to go. Many times she has no family, or her family has been threatened by the husband, or will not stop

the husband from seeing and abusing the woman
more.

Shelters for battered women provide the protection these women, and their children, need. (The average woman brings 2.3
children, many times abused children, to the shelter.)

At least 85 percent of men in prison grew up in a violent home. All authorities agree that people growing up in a violent home are more likely to become violent when they grow up.

There are about 35 family violence shelters in Texas
now. All are full and have waiting lists nearly all the time. The nearest overnight shelter in our part of the state is Lubbock. This is unfair, because people in the Panhandle and the South Plains need help
sometimes, too, just like everyone else.

We probably will never be able to stop family violence.
It's too common, the job is too big, and trying to wipe it out completely would be too much of an intrusion
into people's private lives.

We want to do something.
At the very least, we want Amarillo or some other city in our district to get enough funding to open a shelter. Also, we want your ideas on what the state can do to help solve the domestic violence problem.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Governor Bill
Clements apparently has decided that Texas and the nation have waited long enough for present and past presidential administrations to come up with a national energy policy, so he has come up with one of his own.

Clements said last week
that he will present his plan to the upcoming Southern Governors Association meeting at Hilton Head, S.C.
Clements is slated to become chairman of the group at the close of that conference.

Clements said his proposal will properly represent the "Texas position" on a national energy policy. He expects the plan to gain the support of both the Southern Governors Association and the National Governors Conference, which meets next month.

Clements described the Reagan administration's energy policies as "in limbo."

So far as an overall energy policy goes, "this administration does not have such a policy," he said, pointing out that Presidents Carter, Ford, Nixon, Johnson and Kennedy
didn't either.

The Republican governor, who currently is facing Attorney General Mark White
in the race for re-election,
gave few details of the plan
other than it addresses differences in the pricing of interstate and intrastate natural gas sales.

Senate Campaign

The 1982 election campaigns are beginning to heat up again and one of the hottest statewide races at the moment is the contest for U.S. Senate.

Democratic incumbent
Lloyd Bentsen and his Republican foe, Dallas congressman Jim Collins, traded barbs last week, with Collins charging that Bentsen improperly reported a $79,850 campaign contribution and Bentsen criticizing the GOP contender for voting against disaster aid for farmers.

Collins said the $79,000
from the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee properly should have appeared on the committee's financial report, not Bentsen's.

Bentsen said Collins' charge implied his campaign was "being too open" and was the
"dumbest thing I've ever heard."

Bentsen's charge that Collins repeatedly voted against emergency disaster aid for farmers during the past 14 years came after Collins took credit for getting a U.S. Agriculture Department task force to survey severe crop damage recently suffered in the High Plains area.

Bentsen's campaign also has just released a poll showing that National Conservative Political Action Committee advertisements attacking Bentsen have done more harm to Collins in the Panhandle.

The poll, conducted by Shipley & Associates, Inc. of Austin, shows that the incumbent's lead in a 19-county area near Lubbock
rose while the GOP challenger suffered an increase in "unfavorable impressions"
because of the ads.

Bentsen is among the "liberal" politicians targeted
for defeat by NCPAC.

Airline Hearing

Attorneys for the Texas
Alcoholic Beverage Commission have recommended that Southwest Airlines lose its license to sell beer and liquor for five days for allegedly serving seven cans of beer to a 14-year-old boy on a flight from Lubbock to Austin.

The boy contended he drank three beers on the flight from Lubbock to Dallas and four more from Dallas to Austin. He claimed he was so drunk when he arrived in Austin that he needed assistance from airport police officers.

The flight attendants testified, however, that it would have been "impossible" to serve any passenger that many drinks, particularly because the plane was only in the air for 31 minutes on the Dallas-to-Austin leg of the flight.

A final decision on the matter is expected in a month or two.

Bid Rigging

And in other legal hassles,
two more highway contractors have been fined a total of more than $300,000 in the federal investigation into bid rigging on state highway construction contracts.

U.S. District Judge James
Nowlin ordered Stafford Construction Co. of Lubbock
to pay $100,000 on one count of conspiracy to restrain trade and $500 on one count of mail fraud.

Brannon Contractors Inc.
of Victoria was fined $200,- 000 on a similar conspiracy charge.

Stafford pleaded no contest and Brannon pleaded guilty to charges they conspired with other contractors to fix bids on numerous highway projects during the last few years.

Both companies have agreed to cooperate with the ongoing investigation.

Boswell & Crafton Inc., also of Lubbock, previously was fined $200,000 on bid rigging charges.

Fuel Tax

A task force appointed by Gov. Clements has made formal a recommendation that the state impose an aviation fuel tax to help support airport development.

The panel voted 15-3 to recommend a one-cent-per-gallon tax for airliner fuel and three cents per gallon for private aircraft.

That recommendation is not likely to please the airline industry, which is already faced with dire economic conditions that may force more than one company out of business.

The airlines have been fighting an aviation fuel tax
for years.

Task force member G. W.

Kyle, general manager of American Airlines in Austin, said the proposal could cost
his company as much as $15 million annually, but other members of the panel contended the cost could simply be passed on to customers.

Some opponents of the tax have asked Clements not to accept the recommendation,
but even if he does, the proposal faces a tough fight in the Legislature in 1983.

DEFENSE The House
rejected, 127 for and 289
against, an amendment to meet military cargo airlift needs by purchasing used Boeing 747's rather than Lockhead C5B's. Backers said the wide-bodied 747 is not nearly as costly as the C5, is more reliable mechanically, and would be available to the Pentagon much sooner. Opponents said the 747 cannot land on rough terrain, that tanks
and trucks can be driven into the C5 but must be lifted onto the retrofitted 747, and that the C5 has a longer flying range.

Members voting "nay"
favored purchasing the C5
rather than the 747 as the primary military cargo aircraft.

Archer, Leland, Paul and Frost voted "yea."

lins, Ralph Hall, Mattox,

"nay."

De la Garza did not vote.

MX MISSILE By a vote of 212 for and 209 against, the House adopted an amendment to spend $1.14 billion in fiscal 1983 to buy the first nine MX missiles. The vote occurred during debate on the $177 billion defense bill for 1982 (see preceding vote).

Members voting "yea"
wanted to move ahead with the MX missile program.

Sam Hall, Wilson, Collins, Ralph Hall, Gramm,
Archer, Fields, Leath,
Wright, Hightower, Pat-
man, White, Stenholm,

SENATE

WATER The Senate
rejected, 39 for and 58
against, an amendment to require large farms in the West--those above 960 acres--to pay the full cost of irrigation water they receive from federal reclamation projects. Additionally, farms of 320 to 960 acres were to have paid more than they now pay for the water, although not full cost. The vote occurred during debate on a bill (S 1867) to legalize
the current practice of large farms getting subsidized reclamation water.

Senators voting "nay"
wanted western farms of more than 960 acres to continue to receive federal irrigation water from reclamation projects at taxpayer-subsidized rates.

Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, D,
and John Tower, R, voted
"nay."

REAGANOMICS By a vote of 45 for and 54 against,
the Senate rejected an amendment to exclude those earning $78,700 or more from the third installment of the Administration's three-year cut in personal income taxes. Additionally, incomes between $46,500 and $78,700 would have received less than the 10 percent cut in rates due to take effect next July 1. Revenue generated by this Democratic-sponsored amendment was to have been used for Medicare to avert planned hikes in the federal unemployment tax, the telephone excise tax, and other taxes that would be raised in the major revenue
bill now before Congress.
The bill (HR 4961) was headed for final passage.

Senators voting "nay"
wanted to preserve the full third-year tax cut for salaries of $46,500 and above and to raise needed revenue by increasing other taxes.

Bentsen voted "yea."
Tower voted "nay."

Road Reflectors Tell Much About Dangers of the Road

AUSTIN—Have you given much thought to traffic delineators?

Probably not, because you may be sure you know what a traffic delineator is.

If we had said road reflectors, you would have immediately visualized the objects beside the road on metal posts that reflect light back to you from your car headlights when you drive at night. These reflectors send you messages to make your night driving easier and safer.

There are five basic traffic delineators. Each one signals its message to make you aware of potential driving hazards.

A series of single white delineators beside the road shows an upcoming curve and the extent of its curvature, as well as the width of the safety parking strip should you need to pull off the road.

A series of delineators with two amber reflectors one above the other sends a message to make you aware of an upcoming entrance or exit point. These delineators extend the length of the entrance and exit ramps.

For your convenience and safety when approaching the double amber delineators, proceed with caution because vehicles may be exiting or entering the thoroughfare. If the entrance or exit is channelized, the first delineator will have three horizontal amber reflectors.

The same arrangement also warns of potentially dangerous objects in the middle of the road such as the beginning of a median strip or center island. You are to pass on the right of these.

They also are used to show the division point of a branching highway, channelized exit or entrance ramp, which you will pass to the right or left.

A delineator with three amber reflectors mounted one above the other appearing in isolated places marks roadside hazards such as interruption of shoulder pavement, bridge structure, light-pole traffic sign, tree, boulder, etc.

The fifth type of traffic delineator is a diamond shaped series of three parallel sets of triple reflectors arranged in echelon. This delineator advises of a dangerous situation in the form of an immovable object such as a massive bridge pier, dead end, or a 90-degree turn of the road.

The traffic delineators placed on the roads and highways by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation send distinct messages to aid you in your night driving, making it safer for you and your fellow motorists.

GTE Late Charge For Delinquents

MEMPHIS—General Telephone business customers who do not pay their telephone bills on time will be charged a late charge fee on past due amounts effective August 4.

The charge will apply only to business customers in accordance with Public Utility Commission of Texas rules.

The fee will be equal to 5 percent of the delinquent amount. The late charge will apply if the bill is not paid by the due date shown on the bill.

James H. Davis, general manager, said the late pay charge is designed to place the costs associated with collecting past due business account bills on those customers causing the costs.

"It is not fair to customers who pay their bills on time to have to pay higher monthly local basic rates because of customers who do not pay on time," Davis said.

"Another advantage will be to reduce the amount of uncollectible bills since those business customers who will pay their bills will now have an incentive to pay it before the late charge is assessed. We will be in a

GTE to Charge For Directory Assistance

MEMPHIS -- Beginning Aug. 1, General Telephone customers in Texas will be charged for calls to directory assistance that exceed a 10-call per month limit.

Each General customer will have a 10-call per month per line allowance without charge. The caller can also obtain a maximum of two telephone numbers during each call under the plan approved July 14 by the Public Utility Commission.

"After the 10-call limit, a 25-cent charge per request will be assessed."

Calls for which no charge would be assessed will be those made from coin telephones, from hospitals, by certified handicapped persons who cannot use a telephone directory, and calls for long-distance directory assistance which are offset by a long-distance call.

"The increasing volume of calls to directory assistance is one factor that has made local basic monthly rates paid by all customers go up in the past," James H. Davis, operations manager-Western Division Operations for General Telephone, said.

"With the directory assistance charging plan, the local rate increases recently placed in effect would have been without directory assistance charging."

David pointed out that charging for calls to directory assistance exceeding a 10-call per month limit will have little effect on the majority of the company's customers, except to help keep basic rates lower than they would be without the charge.

better position to determine the bills that may have never been collected and take action sooner to reduce losses," Davis said.

COUNTY EXTENSION AGENTS REPORT

by DON REEVES
GETTING READY

A fall garden often produces better quality and high yielding vegetables than a spring-summer garden.

Cooler weather means a longer harvest period for many vegetables. Lettuce and leafy greens are sweeter and more tender. Lettuce, collards, spinach, broccoli, Brussels sprouts and Swiss chard will continue to grow to be a part of your Thanksgiving and maybe even Christmas feast.

A fall garden requires careful planning. Planting must be timed to allow frost-sensitive vegetables to mature and be harvested before frost. Those which will tolerate frost can be planted for harvesting to continue after the first fall frost.

Vegetables adapted to fall gardens can be divided into four groups by their tolerance of freezing temperature.

Some warm-season vegetables adapted to fall gardens--but killed by frost--are snap beans, southern peas, summer squash, winter squash, cucumbers, sweet corn and early maturing pepper and tomato varieties.

The second group includes cool-season crops usually damaged by light frost when mature, such as lettuce, cauliflower, kohlrabi, celery, cabbage and broccoli.

The third group contains those which are moderately tolerant of repeated light frosts: carrots, parsnip, beets, Brussels sprouts, leaf lettuce, endive, radishes, rutabagas and turnips.

Members of the fourth group, which tolerate night after night of freezing and have even survived a mild winter, include bulb onions, green onions, chives, garlic, leeks, multiplier onions, shallots, spinach, parsley, collards, kale and Buttercrunch and Romaine varieties of lettuce.

Seed of snap beans, baby lima beans, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, collards, chard, sweet corn, cucumbers and summer squash planted in mid-summer will produce crops ready for harvest before the first fall frost.

Beets, kohlrabi, leaf lettuce and spinach seed-planted in late summer will likewise provide abundant fall harvests. Mustard greens, radishes and turnips planted in early to mid-September will make it to the table in October and November.

Gardeners have several choices for starting their fall gardens. Summer vegetable seedlings require constant attention. Sowing seed in the garden in summer is one choice but will require repeated irrigation and careful attention to pest control. It's often easier to start seedlings of tomatoes, peppers, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts and parsley in boxes or pots of potting soil, culture them in protected areas, and transplant them to the garden when four to five weeks old.

A third choice to help fall gardeners is too buy transplants of these vegetables at local nurseries to set in the garden at the right time.

"WHAT ARE GENERICS"

"Generics is a term heard frequently today, often in connection with products that are sold without a brand name or fancy labeling. Generic foods and non-food items are increasing in popularity as wise financial management becomes more and more vital to consumers.

Generic grocery items are usually marketed in cheaper packaging to help keep costs down. Generally the labels are white with bold black lettering giving only the "official" or "non-proprietary" name such as green beans or corn.

Also found on the labels are the essential information about ingredients not contents and the manufacturer or distributors names as required by law.

Labels are printed in lighter non-varnished paper to minimize design, photography and printing expense.

ses. Packaging may be lighter weight and have slight imperfections. They are usually more utilitarian without spouts, protective coatings or pull tabs.

Generic canned foods are safe, wholesome, nutritious and packages under USDA grades. Grade A canned foods are fancy or select products of uniform size. Grade B canned foods are of good marketing qualities. Grade C meets USDA minimum standards and are of acceptable quality for standard use. Generic products are generally 80% Grade C and 20% Grade B. The canned products may vary in appearance, flavor, tenderness, size and uniformity.

"Generics" are now common sights on many grocery store shelves. The products packaged under these plain labels can be one means that today's home manager can utilize in confronting today's economic pressure.

Mangum Tests Wind Generators

Mangum City Commission has approved an agreement with Jay Carter Enterprises, Inc., of Burkburnett to test the potential of wind generation as a supplementary source of electrical power for the city.

Beginning in September, tests will begin using four of Carter's wind generators. The two-year test will explore the feasibility of incorporating the wind-powered generators, capable of producing 25,000 wats of electricity each, into the existing power supply.

Firemen's Retirement Program

Wellington's 25-man Volunteer Fire Department is now covered by a new Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund, adopted by the City Council in its regular meeting Monday, July 19.

Action on the retirement program came after a 10-month study, and a memorandum from Rudd and Wisdom, Inc., of Austin, consulting actuaries, to the effect that the plan is actuarially sound, Mayor Ralph Owens has announced.

It was effective retroactively to July 1, 1982.

In the future, firemen who retire from the department after 20 years of credited service or upon reaching age 55, or both, will receive retirement pay of $75 per month.

Although that may not seem like a large retirement check, it is up from $25 per month, which retired firemen received prior to July 1, Mayor Owens points out.

Widows of firemen will receive $50 per month in the future, up from $16.67 per month which they formerly received.

The City of Wellington is financing its own retirement program, which it has the option of doing under legislation which mandates a volunteer firemen's retirement benefit program, said City Manager Glen Taylor.

Retirement guidelines make it possible for the city to know well ahead of time how many firemen will be retiring within a specific period.

The retirement program will be funded by contributions from the City of Wellington which amount to $105 per year per active volunteer firefighter, a maximum of $2,625 if the department remains at membership of 25.

For the 10-year period from July 1, 1982 to June 30 1992, the City of Wellington will contribute, $11,309. per year.

This money will be invested and at the end of 10 years, possibly before, the interest earned will be enough to pay the benefits for the future retired firemen. The Fire Department has a fund of between $6,000 and $7,000 which it will donate to the fund.

Wellington volunteer firemen receive no salary, therefore they will pay no other money into the retirement fund, Taylor explains.

Their only compensation is that the city pays $10 per month on each water bill and carries workmen's compensation and pays into the retirement fund.

Only a small number of the 25 volunteer firemen will ever qualify for retirement, the city manager points out, for only a small percent will remain in the department 20 years. Some will drop out, others will move away or for one reason or another will no longer volunteer for Wellington's fire protection.

Tenure, or years of service is not transferable from one volunteer fire department to another in cities that finance their own retirement program.

The Wellington department, in fact, has one or two members who had accumulated a number of years retirement in other towns when they came here. Upon entering the Wellington department, they started from the bottom to build retirement.

Of all the men who have fought Wellington's fires, only one is now eligible for the retirement program, Russell Yates.

Four widows of four deceased firemen also draw retirement: Mrs. Hiram Cudd, Mrs. Jake Leach, Mrs. V.H. Lindsey and Mrs. Alton Wilkins.

Two active firemen are eligible for retirement when they wish to take it. Another will be eligible within the next 5 years or so if he remains an active fireman. After that, Taylor points out, it will be a good many years before there will be another fireman eligible of the retirement program.

If a volunteer firefighter has completed at least 20 years of service but has not attained the age of 55 at the time of termination of his service, he will be entitled to receive a deferred service retirement benefit commencing at the end of the month in which he attains

It is a pot luck affair and everyone coming is asked to bring a dish. Even those traveling a distance can bring cold food, says Anita. But she would like for those planning to attend to let her know what food they will be bringing. Add a little extra, too. Everyone's going to be hungry.

FIRST TIMER

Ruth Jesse Docktar of La Habre, Ca., (1946) has written Bethine Adkins Wolf, who has the responsibility for the 1945-46 events, that she will be here.

"Will you put this in The Wellington Leader so my friends will know I'm coming. I want to see them," Ruth has said.

Due to the efforts of Louise Lancaster Peters, the Ex-Students Association now has addresses of 18 more Exes, Vickie Porter, secretary, reports. The students and towns are:

age 55.

In addition to the widow's retirement payments, the program provides for payment of death benefits to dependent children $18 per month each, or if there is no widow or the widow is not entitled to a death benefit, each dependant child will receive $36 per month.

The benefits are payable also from age 18 to 22 as long as the child remains a full-time student.

Although the city is financing the retirement program, it will not administer it.

As soon as the program is organized, it will be turned over to a 5-member governing board, which will be composed of the Mayor of Wellington, who will serve as chairman, a secretary and treasurer, and three members to be elected by the Fire Department. At present Mayor Owens and Bill Hatch, secretary-treasurer, have been named.

These entrants already have won in county competition. Contestants are judged on their sewing and construction skills, as well as overall appearance.

They will model their creations in a public fashion revue at 7 p.m., July 29 in the auditorium of the Extension and Research Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West, Amarillo.

Each contestant will compete in one of the four clothing categories: daytime tailored, daytime non-tailored, active sportswear and evening and speciality wear. Special awards will be presented the Senior exhibiting the best cotton garment or ensemble and the senior modeling the best wool or mohair outfit.

Senior, Juniors and intermediate contestants will be judged in separate groups and compete for awards in their own skill classification. Only the Senior winners advance to the state contest.

NOTICE TO CABLECOM CUSTOMERS

All Amarillo channels are not up to full quality on the cable system yet, but equipment is on order that will complete the necessary repairs.

Thanks for your patience. Work will be done as quickly as possible.

Hall Reports on Farm Bureau Youth Citizenship Seminar

Darren Hall, who will be a senior in Wellington High School this fall, was selected to attend the Texas Farm Bureau Youth Citizenship Seminar on the campus of Baylor University, Waco, Monday through Friday, July 19-23.

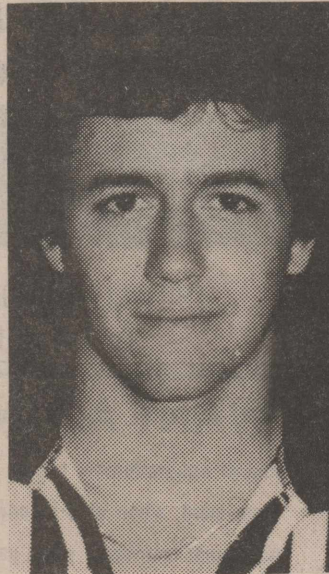

Keynote speaker and the one which Hall found most interesting was Glenn Kimber, vice president of The Freeman Institute, Salt Lake City, Utah, whose discussion of "The Miracle of America," was given in a series of talks Tuesday and Wednesday.

A Vietnam veteran, Kimber told the boys and girls why he believes that war was politically set up and prolonged.

He cited one incident in which 500 of the enemy were surrounded but could not be taken prisoner because the technology available to the American soldiers could not be used. Kimber told the group he did not learn why. In spite of his experiences, Kimber was not cynical or bitter, said Hall, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hall.

From Alex Shekkel, a Russian emigre, the boys and girls learned about "The Real Russia."

"We were told about communism and how much better America and American life is than the Russian," Hall remarked. "Shekkel told us that in technology and computer, we are 30 years ahead of the Russians.

DARREN HALL

Presiding at the seminar was Carol G. Chaloupka of Dalhart, resident of the Texas Farm Bureau.

Dr. Clifton Ganus, president, Harding University, Searcy Ark., discussed "Understanding and Preserving our American Heritage"; also "Moral Foundation of Freedom," and "Pyramid of Freedom."

Dr. Thomas Cunningham, family life specialist, Institute of Family Strengths, Stillwater, OK., used the theme, "Citizenship and Self Esteem". Tom Catchings, Jr., director of special activities, "What Can I Do?", while John D. (Jack) Jackson, humorist and instructor of American Airlines, Ft. Worth, gave the humorous side of Free Enterprise.

Two other Wellington students were selected to attend, but were unable to make the trip, Belinda Crelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Crelia, and Roy Mote, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mote.

More than 400 boys and girls from throughout the state attended the Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar and this was the largest number to attend one of these programs.

Hall estimated that 90 percent of them were the sons or daughters of farmers.

Twice-daily recreation periods alternated with the sessions given over to serious discussions.

Welcome to Collingsworth County

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Paul Belew and daughter, Jessica Lee, and her brother, Ruben Rankins all of Benton, Ark., have moved to Wellington.

The men will commute to their jobs in the oil field at Elk City.

Belew is the grandson of Mrs. Pauline Patterson and Mrs. Mary Belew.

The Grand Coulee Dam, begun in 1933 and finished in 1942, ranks as the mightiest piece of masonry built by man. It is made of 10,585,000 cubic yards of concrete.

Norwood Duo Attends Annual Staff Meeting

Two members of the Samnorwood School yearbook staff attended the 6th annual Western Oklahoma Publications Seminar Tuesday through Friday, July 20-23.

They were Crystal Breeding, 1983 yearbook editor and Becky Barton, a staff member. They were on campus with their yearbook sponsor, Jane Sheer, who was completing work for her Master's degree.

The seminar was conducted on the campus of Southwestern Oklahoma State University by Doug Altom, a representative of Taylor Publishing Co.

Crystal and Becky were the only Texans attending the seminar.

It covered basics such as putting a yearbook together, yearbook finances, pictures and headlines.

GARDEN PRODUCER

Tom Caterlin and his wife, Florence, have this lush garden, just coming into production, at their home, 1511 Haskell Street. Corn in the background is actually more than head high. At left and in the right foreground are tomato vines growing on tall round wire supports, and in between are bean, squash, okra and several other vegetables now producing. The couple also have fruit and English walnut trees. Their own well provides water for irrigation.

Rabbits and cats both wash their faces with their paws, but a rabbit uses both paws at once and the cat only uses one paw at a time.

Any goods found in English waters or goods that have floated onto an English shoreline belong to the crown.

Meeting of Farmers at Memphis Thurs.

A farmer's meeting for all those interested in the Federal Disaster Program will be held at Memphis Thursday, July 29, at 9:30 a.m. in the Memphis Community Center.

Announcement was made by James Shepard, manager of the Farmers Co-op Gin.

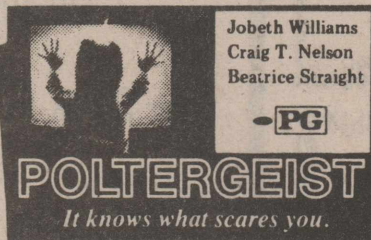

Circulars distributed here give the purpose of the meeting as "address questions of disaster program by USDA Washington officials (FmHA and ASCS) and National Cotton Council Staff."

However, Bob Weatherly, ASCS county executive, said Tuesday he was told that day by ASCS District Director Johnny Fowler of Jayton that he (Fowler) would be the ASCS representative.

Raymond Hodges, FmHA county executive, said he had received no information on the meeting, but he pointed out that Collingsworth County is not in the same district as counties in which the hearings are being held.
