OVERTHROW OF GOVERNMENT IS FEARED BY KING

100,000 Armed Insurrectionists Met By the Regiments

COMMUNISTS INVOLVED

General Strike is Ordered to Take Effect on Monday

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Sofia says the present insurrection in Bulgaria is spreading and gathering strength. One hundred thousand peasants, a majority of whom are armed and fairly well organized are marching on Sofia in an attempt to overthrow the government.

The dispatch adds that the cabinet sat throughout Saturday night. It was presided over by King Boris. Two regiments have been dispatched against the oncoming peasants who are reported to have halted in the face of rifle fire.

Bulgar towns along the Jugo-Slav frontier are showing special activities. Athough it is asserted in Sofia that the movement is purely agrarian, the communists have taken a hand in the controversy and are directing a general strike which is to become effective Monday.

GERMAN FINANCE NEARING CRISIS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Fantastic figures on Germany's financial plight, were given in cables today to the commerce department from Charles E. Herring, American commercial attache in Berlin. His reports also gave details of a German export embargo effective September 27 on food stuffs, indispensable raw materials and semi-manufacturers.

"The critical state of German public finance," said Mr. Herring, "is shown by the practical doubling of the floating debt in discounted treasury bills to 2,380 quadrillion in the first 10 days of September. Expenditures during that period reached 1.3-quadrillion, or $43,000,000, at the average Berlin rate of exchange, as compared with $19,000,000 in the proceeding 10 day period. Of the expenditures in the September period 871 trillions were from general expenses, including the Ruhr support, 436 trillions were from railway deficit and eight trillions were for posts and telegraphs.

German tax receipts for the 10 days were reported at 49 trillions which were less than four per cent of current expenditures.

"Government expenditures the first 10 days of September were about 18.5 million times the average in the year 1923," Mr. Herring's report continued, "while the income was two million times that of pre-war days. The increase in the current government expenses exceeds the rise of internal prices and the depreciation of the mark. Thus the government cost of living index for September 10, was five million times pre-war. The government wholesale indices stood at 11.57 millions times pre-war."

"Nobody is willing to gamble on the improvement of the mark," the commercial attache said, "and the reichsbank cannot or will not restrict paper mark credits to strictly essential enterprises. The new measure is generally believed to be the fore-runner of compulsory gold credits by the reichsbank but there is no immediate prospect of a such a change."

NO WORD HEARD FROM EXPLORERS

By The Associated Press.

KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 23.—No word has been received from the United States geological survey party which started down the Grand Canyon several weeks ago, since they left Supai three weeks ago to negotiate the most dangerous part of their journey consisting of one hundred miles of canyon and gorges to a point on the river at Dismond Creek where they had planned to receive additional supplies.

This, in itself is not alarming, as they did not expect to reach Dimond Creek until the latter part of the month, but owing to the fact that the river rose 20 feet in four days last week and they had no means of receiving the warning of the rise and also that a United States government boat came floating down the river, bottom-side-up, caused apprehension. This apprehension was relieved somewhat, however, by the news that a United States government boat similar to the ones they were using and to the one sighted at Retherine Thursday got nway at Grand Canyon Wednesday.

Alleged Hammer Murderer Is Dead

Long Gun battle Between Man Charged With Slaying Woman and Posse Ends in Suicide.

By The Associated Press.

SWEETWATER, Texas, Sept. 23. The body of I. H. Martin was found in a draw north of Sweetwater late today following a pitched gun battle with officers and citizens which continued practically all day. Martin was sought by officers following the finding of the body of Mrs. Lelah Beall near Clyd Saturday night.

Finding of Martin's body brought to a close the stiffest man hunt this section has ever seen, in which sheriffs and deputies from Callahan, Taylor, Mitchell, Scurry and Nolan counties were joined by members of the national guard and numerous citizens.

Following a long period of silence after an exchange of shots and after smoke and fumes from flaming gasoline had failed to dislodge Martin, officers plunged boldly into weeds shoulder high and underbrush in the draw and found Martin's body. He was shot through the heart and his gun lay in his outstretched hand. Powder burns on his vest led to the belief that he had taken his own life rather than be captured. Numerous holes in his hat and clothing showed that volleys fired by officers had not missed their mark. Martin's body is at a Sweetwater undertaking establishment awaiting advices from relatives.

Mrs. Beall was slain by a blow upon the head with a hammer or other blunt instrument. Her body was thrown from the car and was found on the road side. Officers later engaged in a running battle with the driver of the car and he escaped when the machine collided with a wagon east of Sweetwater. Officers lost trail of Martin until today when he was seen in Sweetwater.

Martin was out on $2,500 bond following his arrest in Colorado City Thursday on a charge of violating the prohibition laws.

Cotton Crop Still Deteriorates; U.S. Reports Heavy Damage Done

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—The cotton crop has continued to deteriorate according to the semi-monthly crop notes of the department of agriculture, for the first half of September. Extremely heavy damages has been caused by the boll weevil in most areas the reports states.

"Some improvement has been made," the report continues, "the western and northern Texas, but heavy rains in other sections of the state and in Oklahoma have caused much damage. Picking is making considerable progress in southern areas.

"In many sections of Virginia the condition of the crop is the best it has been for years. In Tennessee, the Carolinas, Alabama, Georgia and Florida heavy weevil damages are reported from all sections. In the northern part of this territory the weevil is attacking the grownbolls and the outcome of the crop is uncertain. In the southern part picking has progressed rapidly and the crop is very poor with an almost complete failure in many counties. The boll weevil damage is heavy in Mississippi and Louisiana. In Louisiana fruiting has been unsatisfactory and the plant has been shedding heavily."

Corn is ripening slowly as a rule. It is generally quite backward and a large portion of the crop is still in danger of frost damage. Yields are light in Oklahoma. Rains have benefited the late crop in Texas and injured it beyond recovery in Western Arkansas.

In Oklahoma fall plowin is progressing rapidly, some disking has been done and seeding of wheat is going on in the drier sections. Plowing for fall oats is not yet general in the section including Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The weather has been unfavorable for the rice harvest. There is some sprouting in the shocks in Texas and threshing in Louisiana has been delayed by rains.

Rains of late have improved pastures in Texas and Oklahoma and they are in good condition in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

The condition of livestock is specifically reported good in Texas and some other states. Cattle are doing well in Texas, are healthy but thin in Oklahoma and are in good shape in Louisiana.

Apparently broom corn has made smaller yields this year in most sections than last, and the quality will not average high. Harvesting is well advanced in Oklahoma with light yields. In New Mexico the crop has been improved by recent rains.

Grain sorghums are generally doing well, though chinch bugs and adverse weather conditions have done some damage in different areas. In the south central and southeastern sections of Kansas grain sorghums are badly burned, but in other sections of the state the crop is heavy. Kafir is being harvested in Oklahoma, with some damage by chinch bugs showing.

Grain sorghum is improving in Texas; maturing well with good yields indicated in Colorado and has been improved by recent rains in New Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Postmaster General New today appointed Hal Singleton, Sr., as acting postmaster at O'Donnell, Texas.

The Comptroller of the currency today received an application from C. H. Appleton, of Llano, Texas, for permission to organize The Citizens National Bank of Llano which would have a capital of $50,000.

The comptroller of the currency also announced that The First State Bank of Graford has been converted into the First National Bank, Gaford, with a capital of $50,000. Its president is J. L. Cunningham and cashier, A. F. Jones.

HOLD A MEXICAN IN DEATH PROBE

By The Associated Press.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 23.—While inquiry into the killing of Holly Herring and Grover (Buck) Kornegay, American cattlemen, in the state of Chihuhua, Mexico, is being conducted by Governor Enriquez. A 20-year-old Mexican youth is being held incommunicado by Mexican authorities at Ascension, Chihuhua, for investigation in connection with the Herring murder.

This became know yesterday when W. F. Cantelleo, representative of the Livestock and Agricultural Loan association arriving in El Paso after taking Herring's body to Deming, New Mexico, for burial.

According to the account given by Mr. Cantelleo, of the Herring killing, it took place on the 12th or 13th of September, two or three days after the body of Grover Kornegay was found on his ranch south of Columbus, New Mexico.

Herring's body was buried in a shallow hollow near a sotol distillery on the south side of the Ojo Frederico ranch south of Columbus. The discovery was made by John Wotten, a cowboy on September 18, after Herring had been reported missing since September 12. Mr. Cantelleo said. The dead man had ben shot through the left breast with what appeared to be a .45 calibre bullet. According from appearances he had been shot from the side, only one bullet taking effect; it entered the breast, evidently striking the heart and passed out under the arm.

MAY WINS NATIONAL HORSESHOE CONTEST

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23.—George May, of Akron, former national title holder, today won the men's horse-shoe pitching championship of the United States, by defeating Charles C. Davis, of Columbus, another former champion, in the tournament of the National Horse-Shoe Pitcher's association. May went through the tournament, which ended today, with only one defeat.

Although nosed out of the title, Davis did something no other horse-shoe pitcher ever did—threw 67 ringers out of every 100 shoes pitched. Loren May, of Akron, finished third; Frank Jackson, Kellerton, Iowa, fourth and Oklahoma's champion, R. P. Spencer of Pitcher, Okla., next. Sixteen players participated in the finals.

"It's Forgery," Says Governor Of Alleged Ku Klux Klectokon

(By Central Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23.—This state is witnessing a bitter fight between two duly elected branches of its government—the executive and the legislature.

Governor Jack Walton in his war to drive the nightshirted ku kluxers from the state has "crossed the Rubicon" and even gone Caius J. Caesar one better by burning his bridges behind him.

Declaring that the klan had set up an invisible government within the state through control of public officials and the judiciary and was responsible for hundreds of floggings and other outrages, Walton invoked the aid of the state military.

In Tulsa, the hotbed of recent disorders, martial law was declared, the right of habeas corpus suspended and military courts substituted for civil ones.

As the klan flung back its defiance Walton ordered state troopers into the capital here and armed guards were posted about the capitol and other public buildings.

Censorship of the press was threatened. Editors rose in arms declaring against both the klan and the governor.

The Oklahoma legislature threatened to meet to consider impeachment proceedings against Walton.

He retorted by declaring the legislature controlled by the klan and threatened to throw the members into a military stockade, if they attempted to meet, declaring that under the constitution he alone had the right to call the legislature into session.

A call was sent out and more than a majority of the lower house agreed to meet to consider Walton's impeachment.

He retaliated by declaring that he

HULL FOR MEET TO AID FARMERS

Believes Congress Could Help By Foreign Foodstuff Disposal

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Cordell Hull, democratic national chairman, in a statement today dealing with agricultural conditions declared examination of European markets for the disposal of surplus foodstuffs was one of the principal needs of the American farmer.

"It is a huge joke," he said, "to see the same special interests and republican national leaders urge as a remedy of relief that the farmers cut down production and that Americans eat more bread."

"If they are at all serious and disposed to give real farm relief," he said, "they can give the farmers much earlier aid among other ways by convening congress and effecting a prompt reduction of existing profiteering tariff rates and transportation rates and by offering some moral and economic co-operation to stabilize and fetter international trade conditions so that 250,000,000 underfed people in Europe can purchase all surplus food stuffs at the prices fixed by the law of supply and demand, which has been suspended in Europe and prices fixed in a prostrate market, during the past three years.

MAY CONSCRIPT TO END STRIKE

Berry Proposes Bringing Men From Other Cities—Hall Empty

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Conscription of newspaper pressmen from other cities to operate the presses of New York's strike-hampered daily, even at the cost of suspending publication of other papers, was threatened today by George L. Berry, president of the Pressmen's International union. Berry announced his program in an address to a virtually empty hall, after striking pressmen had stampeded at a meeting called to permit him to explain the new agreement signed with the publishers by the international union Friday.

Mr. Berry said his purpose in making the speech to the handful of pressmen, newspaper men, detectives and ushers in Town Hall after virtually all of the 400 strikers had left was to have the address printed and distributed among the striking members of local union 25, which was declared dissolved after officials of the international head characterized the strike as illegal.

The strikers stampeded after one of their number suggested David Simmons, head of the outlawed local, should call the session to order.

Officials of the international were on the stage. Mr. Berry asserted he could not permit an official of a union not recognized by the international to take the platform. Simmons rose from the audience and shouted: "Boys, we will not listen to a strike breaker. Let's go." Most of those who seemed hesitant were rounded up by leaders of the strikers, who announced they would hold a meeting in another section of the city.

3 MEET DEATH IN ANNUAL RACE WITH BALLOONS

Swiss Bag Struck By Lightning—U. S. Entry Bursts

By The Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 23.—The Gordon Bennett cup clasic, the annual balloon race for aeronauts for all countries, which started here today in terrific gusts of wind and a driving rain, has already cost three lives. Of the 17 entrants assembled for the race, 13 so far as is known are in the air.

One of the balloons reported to be the Swiss "Geneva," was struck by lightning, and Lieutenants von Gruningen and Wheren were killed. The Spanish balloon Polar caught fire and its pilot, Penaranda, was killed and his assistant Gomez injured.

The American contestant Saint Louis, with which Captain H. E. Honewell hoped to capture the trophy, was unable to withstand the pressure of the anchor rope when hit by a half gale and burst before the start.

The United States army S-6 glided into the Belgian Villa de Bruxelles when she was taking off, and damaged the Belgian so badly that she had to be emptied of gas for safety's sake.

Because of atmospheric conditions, the United States navy A-6699 with Lieutenant Lawrence in command had a narrow escape from colliding with others waiting for the start, but hastily dropping her ballast, she soared high enough to get into the air currents and sail away.

Thus two of the American contestants are striving against three French, two Belgian, two Spanish, two Swiss and two British. The Italian and Polish entries had already been withdrawn.

Seventeen balloons lined up for the Gordon Bennett cup race for lighter-than-air gas bags. The United States, Belgium, France, Spain and Switzerland were represented by three entries, and England by two.

The three Italian entries withdrew, as well as one carrying the colors of Poland.

A torrential rain fell as the bags were being filled. At noon conditions were so unfavorable that only the precise texts of the rules governing the race prevented a postponement.

NEW RECORD IN AUTO OUTPUT

The entire output last year was only 2,339,414 and 147,168, respectively.

The peak of production this year came in May when 350,106 passenger cars and 43,228 trucks were turned out, later months showing slight decrease, those for August being 304,010 and 30,251, respectively.

Garman Agents Are Involved In Mexican Claims

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Activities of German agents in Mexico during the world war have been made the basis of a new series of claims laid before the German-American mixed calms commission. Asserting that specific cases of loss of life and property by American citizens in Mexico can be laid to acts of German agents, and counsel for the claimants have petitioned that suitable compensation be allowed and that the German government be called upon to deliver, in accordance with the peace treaty, all official documents in its possession bearing upon operations of the former emperor's representatives in Mexico between 1914 and 1918.

The first test case probably will be that of Mrs. Nella Gregory, of McGhee, Ark., widaw of Charles R. Watson, an American mining engineer. Watson, while employed by the Cusi Mining company, with headquarters in Chihuahua, was slain January 10 1916, "by armed Mexicans," according to the brief filed in his widow's behalf. His death was attributed by her counsel, "as a consequence of war activities carried on by Germans in Mexico," and particularly "as a result of German propaganda in Mexico directed against the United States."

REVOLTING MOB STORY IS TOLD

Negro Testifies Tulsa Mob Tried to Make Him Eat Ear

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23.—A revolting story of how members of a masked mob at Tulsa, after mercilessly beating a victim cut off one of his ears and tried to force him to eat it, was made public tonight by Governor J. C. Walton in the form of testimony given the Tulsa military court by J. H. Smitherman.

"This is only one of the hundreds of such crimes committed which the civil authorities of this state refused to prosecute," declared the executive. "I ask the people of the civilized world in the presence of this testimony, if I was not justified in proclaiming martial law in the city of Tulsa."

Smitherman a Negro.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 23.—J. H. Smitherman, a negro deputy sheriff of Tulsa county, whose left ear is badly mutilated by knife scars, was appointed to his place by Sheriff R. D. Sanford, a short time after a mix-up in which he suffered the injury. Seen at the court house on several occasions this week, the deputy refused to talk of the incident.

Sheriff Sanford declared he appointed Smitherman to his staff to work among his own people, and that he is one of his most efficient assistants.

Smitherman, a negro, related how on the night of March 10, 1922, he was summoned to his door by 12 men, eight of whom were masked, forced into an automobile at the point of revolvers, taken into the country, stripped of his clothing, handcuffed and tied to a tree, whereupon his captors accused him of registering negroes as democrats and advising them to vote against the city administration.

Next, one of the men spit in his face, Smitherman testified, after accusing him of "ungentlemanly conduct" towards a white woman. Then he was beaten severely by two of his abductors, he declared, adding:

Whipped Until Exhausted.

"One would whip until he had exhausted himself and then the other would whip me.

"Finally," Smitherman's testimony said, "the man who spit in my face, stuck a gun to my head and said 'I am going to kill you.' But one of the unmasked ones dissented so they talked over privately for a few minutes. Then the same man who wanted to kill me came up, pulled a knife out and cut off my ear. Then he tried to make me eat it, and when I refused, he took the butt end of the whip and hit me in the face, until he was tired, all the time trying to make me eat my ear. Finally they turned me loose and they told me to leave Tulsa and to leave Oklahoma, warning if I did not, one of the 12 would kill me."

Smitherman testified that he told his captors he had advised all the negroes who could to register as democrats and vote that ticket because he himself was a democrat.

"There was nothing else to do," he said he told the men.

He said he denied the accusation concerning his conduct toward a white woman.

PRISON LABOR FOR STATE ONLY NOW

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 23—Agreement has been reached by the International Association of Garment manufacturers and the Reliance Manufacturing company of Chicago whereby no further attempt will be made for the present by the Chicago firm to obtain a contract for convict labor of the Texas penitentiary for manufacturing shirts, according to information received here by the state prison survey commission it was announced today.

It has been agreed between the two interests that an effort will be made to work out a plan whereby articles for state use only will be manufactured in the prison, according to reports to the commission. Such a plan was presented to governor Neff recently by representatives of the International manufacturers and Texas manufacurers' associations.

This agreement is expected to settle the controversy over the prison letting a contract for prison labor. Such action was strongly opposed in resolutions adopted by the state legislature. Members of the prison commission recently stated that a new contract plan had been placed before it by the Reliance company.

WELCOMES U. S. TEST

Law Also Used as Basis For Suspending Habeas Corpus Writ

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23.—A test in the United States courts of his authority to prohibit the convening of an extraordinary session of the Oklahoma house of representatives slated for Wednesday, will be welcome, Governor J. C. Walton declared tonight.

"I want to place the issue of the ku klux klan before federal authorities and an investigation of my acts will be the most direct method of bringing this about," he asserted.

Governor Walton said that "the ku klux klan is bound to be an issue in the next national election."

The executive's statement was in reply to a declaration of members of the house that they would resort to court action if he carried out his announced intention to bar the session.

He declined to say whether he would be a candidate for the United States senate on an anti-klan platform.

"I have no announcement to make at this time," he said.

Believes Klan Licked

The governor said that he believed the klan was licked," but that he was prepared to go on indefinitely with his campaign against the organization. He said that if lack of funds later prevented the purchase of supplies for troops on duty he would commander what was necessary.

A statement replying to critics who have assailed him for suspending the writ of heabas corpus and quoting a federal statute passed in 1871 which he said "outlawed the klan in the United States," was issued by the executive.

Klan Outlawed

"Much has been said about the suspension of the writ of heabas corpus, and there are those who declare that during the days of reconstruction following the Civil war the writ of heabas corpus was never suspended," the governor said. "I fear the memory of some people is failing for there was passed a law by congress and approved April 20, 1871, which was known as the 'ku klux klan law.' This law was directed at the klan and outlawed it in the United States."

He quoted the law as follows:

The Law

"That if two or more persons within any state or territory of the United States shall conspire together to overthrow or put down or to destroy by force the government of the United States—or by force, or intimidation, deter any party, or witness in any court in the United States, from testifying or attending at such court, in any matter pending in such court fully, freely and thoughtfully, or to injure any such witness in his person or property on account of his having so attended or testified; or by force, intimidation or threat to influence the verdict, presentment or incrimination of any juror or grand juror in any court of the United States, or to injure such juror in his person or property on account of any verdict, presentment or incrimination lawfully assented to by him on account of his having been such juror, shall conspire together, or go in disguise on public highways, or upon the premises of another, for the purpose, either directly or indirectly of depriving any class or classes of persons, of equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges or immmunity under the laws, or for the purpose of preventing or hindering the constituted authority of any state from giving or securing to all persons within such state the equal protection of the laws; or shall conspire together for the purpose of in any manner impeding hindering, obstructing or defeating the due course of justice in any state or territory with intent to deny any citizen of the United States the due and equal protection of the laws, or to injure any person in his person or property, each and every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a high crime."

Suspending of Writ

Governor Walton pointed out that section four of the act provides:

"It shall be lawful for the president of the United States when in his judgment public safety shall require it, to suspend the privilege of the writ of heabas corpus, to the end that rebellion may be overthrown."

"1—Whenever in any state or part of a state that unlawful combinations named in the preceding section of this act shall be organized and armed and so numerous and powerful as to be able by violence to either overthrow or set at defiance the constituted authorities of such states, and the United States, within such state.

"2—When the constituted authorities are in complicity with or shall connive at the unlawful purposes of Wet weather in the western belt and increased talk of another short crop as the result of damage over wide areas were the principal reasons for the advance in prices. Oklahoma complained of a delayed movement of the crop and points in the central and eastern sections of the belt told of more or less damage, either from insects or from too much rain. Large sections of the western belt claimed that weevils were taking the entire top crop.

would arm every citizen of Oklahoma if necessary to break the rule of the klan.

Unless one side gives way before the hour for the meeting a clash seems inevitable. Some anticipate bloodshed.

In the legislature are many men like those who braved the danger of the unsettled west 30 or more years ago, men who have "notches on their guns," and who can shoot straight.

They talk little, but there is grim determination in their attitude and actions, which would appear to make certain that they will hold their ground.

Others believe the governor will not permit the situation to reach the stage of actual violence, but he has a reputation for holding fast to a fixed determination when he has power behind him to carry out his orders.

Some high national guard officers are not in sympathy with his orders and there would be many resignations from the militia were it not that they fear the guard would pass into the hands of irresponsible persons.

Paraphrasing the declaration of independence, the call for the extra session recites a long list of irregularities by the governor and demands that the house conduct an inquiry into each with a view to bringing impeachment proceedings before the senate, if evidence to sustain them is found.

The klan has published the alleged electchon or application of Governor Walton for membership in the hooded organization.

This purports to show that Walton made application and was accepted into the ranks of the invisible empire.

Walton declares the document is a forgery and offers a thousand dollars to any person who can prove its authenticity.

Taken As Earthquake Crumpled Japan; How Hundreds in Harbor Met Death

Hundreds of persons and scores of autos dropping into harbor as earthquake destroys pier at Yokohama

This remarkable photo, taken from the deck of an ocean liner as the earthquake brought death and devastation to Japan's greatest cities, Yokohama and Tokio, was rushed across the Pacific on the liner, then relayed by airplane and fastst trains. The photo shows how hundreds of persons were thrown or forced from one of the piers in Yokohama harbor in an effort to escape death. Autos on the pier plunged grotesquely into the water. A tidal wave increased the death list.

"The federal government was having to meet the very same conditions that I have to meet," said Governor Walton, "and met them just as I have have to meet them. I have the greatest authority in the land for precedent and have followed that precedent with much less hardship on the public than did the federal government under the conditions.

"Now let the newspaper court, headed by E. K. Gaylord (publisher of the Daily Oklahoman) pay its respect to the United States law that made it a high crime for masked and robed organizations to pass along public highways.

"Under the above mentioned statute the whipping of an individual by a mob was sufficient grounds for declaring a state of rebellion and a suspension of the writ of habeas corpus.

"The Daily Oklahoman and other Oklahoma newspapers have advocated appealing to the federal courts. Under the statute I have just quoted, before one could sit upon a jury in a federal court he had to swear that he was not connected with an organization named in the acts and that he had no knowledge of any of their conspiracies. If it was evident that he perjured himself in taking such oath, he was subject to severe penalty."

"I submit this so that the people of the state may know that I am not doing anything that has not been done before to protect the rights and liberties of the people and I have the precedent of the greatest government on earth for my guide."

The Tulsa military commission continued its investigation today, hearing about 15 witnesses, most of them residents of the city proper, who told of alleged flogging parties involving local men and women. Last night the commission had heard of 121 separate cases of alleged mob activities but the number revealed in Sunday's executive session, was not taken.

ADA, Okla., Sept. 23.—The fiery cross over klan headquarters here was torn down today by Sheriff J. E. Sloan, following the receipt of a telegram from Governor J. C. Walton ordering this done.

The telegram was signed by Walton as "commander-in-chief of the military forces of the state."

Reputed officials of the klan here stated that while, in their opinion, the governor has no right to molest private property, they would do nothing to antagonize him.

GERMANY CANNOT-DRIVE BARGAIN

By The Associated Press.

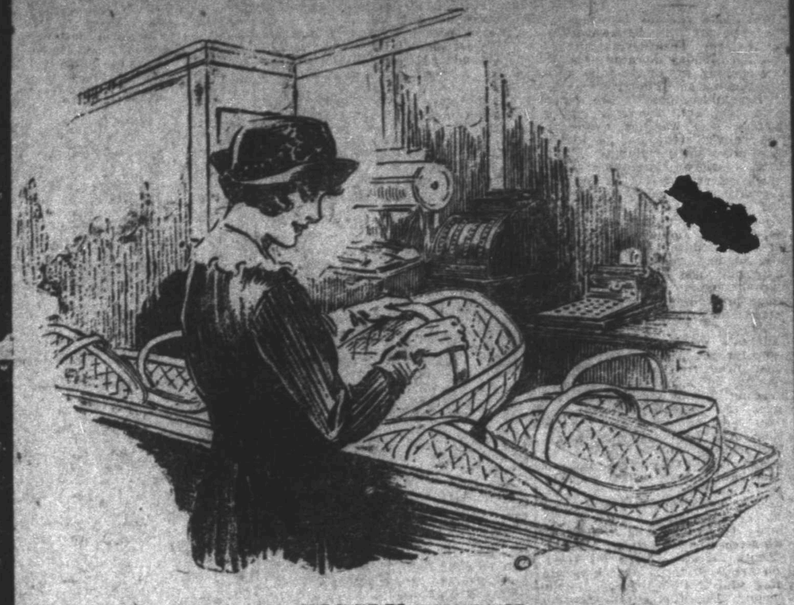

PARIS, Sept. 23.—Premier Poincare made three speeches today—at Champenoux, Toul and Bois le Pretre—in none of which did he make even the most distant reference to the visit of Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister, to Paris. The speeches might have been, in fact most probably were, written before that event.

The point M. Poincare sought to make clear today was that Germany must not expect to be able to make the collapse of passive resistance in the Ruhr, a means for driving a bargain with France or obtaining any concession.

Inaugurating a monument to the war dead at Champenoux, in the center of the world war battle line on Grand Couronne Height, Premier Poincare said that such ceremonies as those being held were not intended to fan hatred or resentment but merely to glorify the heroism of those who fell in the cause of justice and liberty. He expressed surprise that Germany was forgetting the generosity of the victors in signing armistice when they were on the point of invading German territory and destroying the last divisions of the army of the reich.

LARGEST CHILDS' PARADE PLANNED

Elaborate Event Is Contemplated on Opening Day of the Fair

The procession, made up of tiny tots in buggies and go-carts, little girls pushing doll buggies, boys riding velocipedes and auto cars, and older children dressed to represent characters in history, nursery rhimes, and fiction, will pass in parade before the grandstand at 10:30. Laughing, playing, pretending they will go by in review the pride of Wichita Falls, their day.

Children's parents are asked to register for the pageant in three divisions. The first division will be the babies in buggies and go-carts. The second division, ages two to five, includes the little girls with dolls and the boys on velocipedes. Third division, ages 7 to 9, inclusive, will be the dress-up portion, in which boys and girls will masquerade as famous characters in history and fiction.

The two booths provided for taking entrant's names are located at the Wilford Harrison drug store on Eighth street and the Oriental Studio, 706 Tenth street. Hours for registration are 9:30 to 11 o'clock in the morning and 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. For further information applicants are requested to get in touch with Mrs. Homer McGregor, Mrs. John Tancred or Mrs. Charles Murray.

He Displayed Flag Of U. S. A. First In The World War

By The Associated Press.

TEMPLE, Tex., Sept. 23.—Robert Davis, the American-Canadian soldier, who is credited with having placed the first American flag on the battlefields of Europe during the world war, has just returned home to be with his mother and other relatives on a farm four miles west of Pendleton, a small town in Bell county.

Davis participated in a number of the most important engagements of the world war. He is said to have been wounded 21 times by machine gun and shrapnel fire after he placed the American flag on a bayonet and hoisted the flag above Vimy Ridge, April 9, 1917.

"I went to Canada and enlisted in the Canadian army when war broke out in 1914," Davis said. "We landed in France, January 2, 1915, and saw our first fighting in the Ypres salient. It was in this sector that the Germans first employed, with such disastrous results, their poisonous gas.

"Just before we entered into the battle of Vimy Ridge, a French girl in the small town in which I was billeted, asked me to carry the American flag into the coming battle. America had just entered the war. I did not think of the significance of the act; but I was proud to carry the flag of my native land into the fray. When we went 'over the top,' I tied the flag to my bayonet, and stuck my rifle in the mud of the ridge; I learned later that the flag rested there for more than a year."

Davis has apparently recovered from his war experience.

RAINS CONTINUE TO IMPROVE PASTURES AND FEED CROPS

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 22.—Pastures, late feed crops and truck continued to improve in condition during the past week as result of rains which have been general over the state, according to the weekly crop and weather summary prepared by L. H. Dalngerfield, meteorologist of the U. S. department of agriculture here. The report covers conditions for the week up to September 19.

The rains were unfavorable and delayed field work generally, the summary declares. Floods along the lower Rio Grande valley delayed fall truck crops. Rice harvest was delayed further and there are complaints of rice sprouting in the shock, it is reported.

"Cotton made fair progress in west and North Texas," continues the report, "but too much moisture caused deterioration in most other sections. Frequent showers increased insect activities and there was considerable damage to new growth by boll weevil and leaf worms. Grades were lowered and some complaints were reported of bolls rotting and seed sprouting in the bolls. The general condition of the crop continued rather poor to fair; picking made fair progress during forepart of the week but poor during latterpart."

LUMBER PRODUCTION OF TEXAS IMPORTANT

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 22.—Texas produces in excess of 1,500,000 board feet of lumber annually, according to a review of lumber production prepared by Burt C. Blanton, industrial engineer of the Texas chamber of commerce. The production average is based on records of production from 1900 to 1921.

This production places Texas third among 13 leading southern states in lumber output, it is stated.

"Texas has an estimated net pine area of 7,424,000 acres, the area of old growth being 2,000,000 acres," the report declares. "The area of restocking saw timber aggregates 1,700,000 acres, with a total merchantable pine stand of 27,525,700,000 feet."

Blanton said the South Atlantic, East Gulf and lower Mississippi states are estimated to contain 39 per cent of the forest area of the nation and 23 per cent of all saw timber

Washington, D.C., Now Affords Many "Prizes" In Husbands

By MARGARET EPPLER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—In its moments of idle speculation, Washington is wondering whether C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president and a "marriageable eligible," will follow the tradition of bachelor secretaries and turn benedict.

It has been said that Washington is the last place in the world to find a husband! Men in Washington society! A species of homo that baffles classification.

Such statements and their like have become commonplace remarks in the capital of the United States. Yet these statements will not be argued. However, there are a large number of unmarried (widowers being included in the term "unmarried") and apparently eligible men in Washington society.

That they may be difficult to corral into the matrimonial ranks will not be disputed but it is certainly possible that they can be lassoed with wreaths of orange blossoms. (Written history affords few examples of permanent bachelors and without doubt unwritten history would reveal still fewer instances of sustained bachelordom.)

Since, according to statistics, age is no barrier for a man when considered matrimonially, age will not be used against any names mentioned in this bachelor compendium.

As the diplomats have unquestionably the highest social rating their sphere will be viewed first as a place for potential husbands. A rapid glance discerns several laudable prizes, the choicest of which probably is the Italian ambassador, Prince Gelasio Caetania, who arrived in this country last year as a representative of the Mussolini regime. Then there is Vicount d'Alte, the Portuguese minister, who has been in Washington since 1902 and isn't married yet. The distinguished Portuguecse is either inherently reticent or willfully a recluse. At any rate rarely does he appear at the local social activities. A wife might "bring him out."

Other ranking diplomats that haven't wives are Dr. Bedrick Stepanek, the minister of Czecho-Slovakia; the minister from Finland, Axel Leonard Astrom, and the Persian minister, Mirza Hussein Khan Alai.

The "smaller fry" of husbands-to-be at the various embassies and legations are too numerous to mention by name. There are dozens of them. The British embassy offers the greatest number of bachelors—some rather nice-looking fellows, too—and the English are quite keen about marrying American girls of the right sort—that is, attractive and with some money, more or less.

The army and navy contribute most generously in potential husbands for Washington society. The army leads off with General Pershing, who, in turn, is followed closely by his aide, Major General John Quekemeyer. Then there are the bachelor White House aides and scores of lieutenants, captains and majors, with a fair sprinkling of colonels and an occasional major or brigadier general. The same condition prevails in navy ranks, with the lack of a duplicate for General Pershing.

The congressional set is next in line, and whether he has achieved in Washington society or not, the mere fact that an unmarried congressman has the prefix of senator or representative to his name gives him possibilities for a rial development.

With the coming of the next congress there will be quite a list of "eligibles" from a matrimonial standpoint including many senators as well as congressmen, with the latter a majority. Representatives Hatton W. Sumners, Clay Stone Briggs and Marvin Jones are the three unmarried Texas congressmen in the congressional field.

Fall brides will have their day in the sun despite the manifold attractions of the debutante bouquet and announcements are being made daily of new romances leading to the bridal altar.

Petrsburg, Va., was the scene of a pretty wedding last Wednesday evening, when Miss Frances Garland Royal, of Petersburg, became the bride of Fred Charles Knipp, son of Mrs. Katherine Levyson, of Cameron, Texas.

A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony immediately after the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Knipp left for a motor trip through the west. After October 1 they will be at home at the Westgate hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burdette of Hyattstown, Md., announce the marriage of their daughter, Julia June, of Washington, to Hendrix Ballard of Austin, Texas. The wedding took place at the home of the brides son's brother, J. J. Ballard, in San Antonio, Sunday, August 26. After a stay in San Antonio and New Braunfels, Mr. and Mrs Ballard will reside in Austin.

Mrs. George H. King and her daughter, Miss Lillie Dee King, of Houston, have taken an apartment at Meridian mansions for the winter. Miss King will attend the Holton-Arms school here.

Mrs. Clarence Richmond Day and her children will leave Washington about the middle of October to join Col. Day at San Antonio.

Mrs. Lewis H. Barnes and her daughter, Miss Mildred C. Barnes, who have been passing the summer with relatives in Denison joined Mr. Barnes in Buffalo last week and are expected in Washington this week.

Mrs. Charles A. Cline of San Antonio, is visiting her brother-in-law and sister, Major and Mrs. Oliver P. Newman, in Washington.

Col. Ernest O. Thompson of Amarillo and national commander of the American legion, Col. Alvin Owsley, of Texas, were guests at luncheon Monday of the president and Mrs. Coolidge.

Mrs. Hampson Gary, of Texas, wife of the former minister to Switzerland, and her daughter, Miss Helen Gary, who passed the summer abroad, arrived in New York Tuesday.

Among the Texas visitors in Washington this week are W. B. McFaddin of Beaumont and S. D. Young of Dallas.

Past, Present, and Future Of Movie Is Book Subject

From the New York Times:

A Review by

MODAUNT HALL

THAT MARVEL—THE MOVIE. By Edward S. Van Zile. With an Introduction, by Will H. Hays. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons.

A most interesting study of the motion picture, embodying a serious argument on the power for good or evil of the cinema, is contained in Edward Van Zile's volume, "That Marvel—the Movie." The author dwells at length on the far-reaching effects of the photoplay throughout the world and lights upon the happy idea that the motion picture is the "Esperanto of the eye. He concludes that Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde are struggling for domination of the screen, and that the issue of the conflict is still in abeyance. He has a great deal of faith in what Will H. Hays will be able to accomplish with the producers—perhaps too great a faith in view of what even a Hays is talking—and refers to the erstwhile Republican National Chairman's figures and his declaration that the motion picture has grown from a naked idea to the chief amusement of millions.

Possibly the most compelling portions of this book are those in which Mr. Van Zile tackles the early history of the cinema. He brings out that two Frenchmen, two Americans, and two Englishmen share the glory of the discovery of the moving picture. He outlines his notion that there could have been no such thing as a motion picture if it had not been for the first still photograph made by Daguerre, and also that it would still have been impossible if it had not been for Eastman's share in the discovery. Thomas A. Edison also receives a credit for his part in the invention, as well as Muybridge and Robert Paul, the two Englishmen. In referring to the six men responsible for the amusement for millions Mr. Van Zile writes:

The early history of the cinematograph presents a study in international rivalry. The United States, England and France wrote names on the scroll of fame upon which the scientists and promoters who rendered motion picture possible make thier bid for immorality. Edison and Eastman, Americans; Daguerre and Messrs. Lumiere & Sons, Frenchmen; and Muybridge and Paul, Englishmen. Daguerre, a Frenchman, rocked the cradle of photography. Muybridge, an Englishman, taught it to run, and Edison, an American, gave it wings.

Tlactaaatnioovbg nET AE: ET

Muybridge was an enthusiastic on cameras and race horses, and during a visit to California he met Senator Leland Stanford, also a crank on blooded trotters. During the visit the merits of a certain horse were discussed. Stanford differing with Muybridge. To settle the dispute Muybridge conceived an ingenious plan. He placed a row of twenty-four cameras along one side of the race course. Attached to the shutter of each he fastened a long thread, which in turn was carried across thetracks, and then to make certain of getting sharp exposures, he erected a white screen opposite to serve as a reflector. When all was in readiness the horse was turned loose down the track. Mr. Edison in explaining this is quoted as declaring that when the horse passed the various cameras the threads snapped and a series of photographs, establishing each successive point in the action of the horse, were registered. On developing the plates they revealed for the first time a complete photographic record of the minuest details of a horse in actual motion, and Muybridge had the satisfaction of using them to win his argument. It appears that he might have just put the pictures away, but someone suggested trying the effect on a zoetrope, something, something like the kinetoscope. The effect was so startling that it created a sensation.

It is interesting that if an attempt had been made to make a real motion picture lasting just one brief minute it would have required under Muybridge's plan, seven hundred and twenty cameras. All this happened in 1872.

Referring to Frederick A. Talbot's writings, Mr. Van Zile points to the turning point in the career of Robert W. Paul.

About three o'clock one morning in the early months of 1895 the quietness of Hatton Garden was disturbed by loud and prolonged shouts. The public rushed hurriedly to the building and found Paul and his colleagues in their workshops, giving vent to wholehearted exhuberance of triumph. They had just succeeded in throwing the first animated pictures on a screen. To compensate the police for their fruitless investigations the film, forty feet in length, producing a picture, seven feet square, was run through the special lantern for their edification.

Of special interest in the reference to the fact that Paul, the stepfather of the movie, as Van Zile calls him, entered into partnership with Sir Augustus and Lady Harris and the Olympic Theatre in London the first picture place in the world catering the popular fancy with what was called a "theatograph." Eventually Paul controlled eight London theatres showing motion pictures, and he made a contract with the Alhambra for two weeks of pictres in March, 1896, which was stretched to four years.

Both Paul and Sir Augustus believed the fickle public would soon tire of what seemed to be to them merely a ephemeral novelty. In the chapter in which Mr. Van Zile writes the movie grew up in the slums he refers to the decision of the natives of Stratford-on Avon not to have their town desecrated by movies. The author goes on to say that it is not for Americans to jeer at the inhabitants of Shakespeare's birthplace, as in 1826 the Lancaster (Ohio) School Board adopted the following resolution:

Such things as railroads are impossibilities and rank infidelity. If God had designated that His intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of fifteen miles per hour by steam, He would clearly have foretold it through His holy prophets.

The author asserts that whatsoever is new under the sun must fight for its place in the sun, seeing that even bathtubs were denounced by our medical men as a menace to the public health, and that for centuries the printing press had to struggle for freedom against restrictive influences that looked upon it as an "agent of the devil."

In another reference to Mr. Hays the author says that Judge Landis is endeavoring to do for the national game and Augustus Thomas for the stage is, in a general way, what Will H. Hays has been called upon to effect in the field of the motion picture. He does not mention the fact that Mr. Hays did not strengthen his position with the motion-picture producers or the public when he lifted the ban on Arbuckle's pictures.

Mr. Van Zile, always willing to indulge in alliterative phrases, asserts that the cinematograph has risen from mush to masterpieces, and sets forth the lurid titles of some films, some of which were produced last year, such as "Deserted at the Altar," "More to be Pitied Than Censored," "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," "The Curse of Drink," "How Women Love," and "The Lure of Broadway." He praised the wonders worked by David W. Griffith, whose "Birth of a Nation," he says has been called "a celluloid Peter Pan which will never grow old." Mr. Van Zile declares that this production was also the birth of a new aren for the screen. He goes on to say that the carper and skeptic will always be with us, and that Will H. Hays, capable of organising victory for the Republican party, is thought by the pessimist to be attempting an impossible task in endeavoring to make permanent the loftier scope that Griffith and other praiseworthy producers have given to the screen.

To these Van Zile replies:

But these ntrabilious knockers, short-sighted, narrow-minded and unimaginative, have failed to take a bird's-eye view of the varied influences and enterprises now in action with the avowed purpose of perpetuating the impetus given to the better type of photoplay by the permanent success of "The Birth of a Nation."

He goes on to point out that "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalyse," as presented on the screen, was free from the shortcomings ascribed to Thane's novel. In another chapter Mr. Van Zile deals with the capacity for stories developed by the screen, asserting that an audience of several millions daily cannot have the cream of the world's imaginative literature without resorting shortly to skimmed milk and eventually coming to the end of lacteal resources. He is of the opinion that what the hokum audiences accepted in the past they will now reject, and admits that there has been tendency to underrate the general intelligence. He opines as a medium for drama the screen is only just beginning to break away from the influences that controlled its first stages.

Mr. Van Zile mentions productions that are milestones in the progress of the industry, and his whole volume is sincere and frank. However, concerning his faith in the future, one must bare in mind that producers, as a body, are not particularly keen about anything new that attacks their purses, and his argument for an improved type of pictures will only carry weight if he can prove that these productions will bring in as much money as the others.

WARNED NOT TO GIN COTTON WHILE WET

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 22.—Cotton growers and ginners are advised by Charles E. Daughman, state commissioner of markets and warehouses, not to gather and gin cotton while it is wet as a result of excessive rains in numerous sections of the state recently. Such action, Daughman states results in reducing the staple and grade and in losses to the farmers in the end.

Ginning wet cotton also results in heavy loss in weight, it is stated. Losses running as high as $50 per bale have been known which the crop was ginned in moist condition, Baughman said.

"It is a temptation to farmers and ginners to overlook such losses in face of the high prices now prevailing," Commissioner Baughman said, "but the growers should remember the enormous losses that occurred in 1919 when Texas producers lost about 30,000,000 because cotton was gathered and ginned in a wet state and stored in open places."

MAKE A NOTE OF THIS

Not long hence, the rough riding on Indiana avenue, which has caused that otherwise commendable street to have a lot of things said about it that really were not justified, will be a thing of the past. Possibly you noticed a newspaper item to the effect that the chamber of commerce was successful in its effort to get property owners in Indiana, between Seventh and Tenth streets, to agree to the laying of paving more substantial than the wooden blocks that were previously laid.

There is no need of rehearsing the sad events that were connected with the Indiana paving. Everyone in town knows it was mighty rough riding, and when the rains came—well, the street usually gave up enough blocks to pave another thoroughfare.

Now Indiana is to be paved and everyone will rejoice. The progressiveness of the property owners who made this thing possible is worthy of note, for they came through with true Wichita Falls spirit. Likewise the chamber of commerce committee who organized them into one voice in favor of the paving deserves credit for its splendid work.

Those persons whose favorite chant is: "What has the chamber of commerce done?" are respectfully referred to the facts in the case. In this instance they did a lot, and while it took considerable time to materialize the thing, no one can deny that the time was well spent.

And incidentally the city, while unable to pave the streets with asphalt or brick, had declared that it was ready to pave this street with wooden blocks, if the conditions made it necessary.

THIRTY CENT COTTON

Thirty cent cotton came in long before the month of September passed out. Thousands of Texas farmers are receiving $160 per bale for the fleecy staple, including the seed, and there is more money being turned loose in the cities and villages in the cotton producing sections than at any other time in the history of the product.

Pickers in North Texas counties are being paid two dollars per hundred for their work and the demand for pickers is greater than ever before known. After the news of the Japanese disaster had been received in the cotton belt there were many prophets of disaster, but the market never sagged. Indeed, the advance continued until the thirty cent peak had been touched.

Now it is estimated that the destruction of the Japanese spindles was about one million one hundred thousand in number, or about one-quarter of the total cotton spindledge of the country. The trade editor of the New York Times makes the concession that this can hardly result in a decrease in the comsumption of the raw material because other countries, principally the United States and Great Britian, will be called upon to produce the goods which Japan cannot.

In addition to this the earlier reports of the destruction of raw silk in warehouses in Tokio and Yokohama were grossly exaggerated. It was stated that fifty million bales of silk had been consumed by earthquake and flame. Now the silk importers say that the loss is less than eighteen million bales and that early shipments of silk from Japan to America may be expected.

Again, financial experts connected with the Japanese commission in the United States estimate the loss by the earthquake to be $932,500,000, which is about thirteen per cent of productive value of the area affected and less than 2 per cent of the wealth of Japan proper.

Japan will continue to be the silk producing nation of the Orient and Japan will continue to be a buyer of American cotton. Census figures on August consumption of cotton showed a total of 491,000 bales, compared with 526,000 last year. The stock in American mills on August 31 amounted to 806,000 bales compared with 1,024,000 a year ago.

At the present rate of consumption of American mills and the foreign demand for the last fiscal year it is certain that the fleecy staple will be a very scarce article before the coming of the cotton crop in 1924.

Texas planted a very large acreage to cotton this year and the yield in some sections, drouth considered, is surprising.

Cotton seed is selling at fifty dollars per ton in some sections and thirty cent cotton is certain to induce thousands of cotton growers to part with their prize possession just as fast as it is picked and ginned.

Speaking of cotton seed, a writer in the New York Times tells of chemistry uses for cotton seed. Huge piles of cotton seed that rotted on the ground or found their way into the rivers and creeks to clog them, he says, formed a problem that worried ginners and farmers in the South sixty years ago. Cotton seed was an apparently useless bi-product of the South's greatest industry.

Southern generals and southern historians declare that the South lost the war because there were no fats for the soldiers. No one had discovered that the seed possessed the slightest economic value.

Speaking of the magnitude of the loss suffered by the South in the failure to discover earlier the possibilities of Cotton seed, the Times writer says can hardly be computed but it can be understood in a degree when it is considered that the seed represents two-third of the cotton crop and the cotton itself only one-third.

At present the value of products obtained from cotton seed in this country is in excess of one hundred and fifty million dollars annually based on the price paid for seed in 1922. And thus it is that the one time nuisance has become a veritable gold mine of enormous importance in the prosperity of the cotton states and of wide diversity in its uses.

Utilization of cotton seed, continues the Times article, is only one of the hundreds of contributions made by chemicals and chemists to the wealth of the world—contributions that increase continually as the results of laboratory research and experiments.

Manufactured articles that trace their source back to cotton seed, we are told, include many of the necessities and comforts of modern life. Cotton seed oil has driven olive oil from the market; combs are made of the bi-products. Garments of artificial silk are made from nitrated cotton linters.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

Libra.

Until 5:30 p. m., the moon is approaching an adverse opposition to the sun making the day inauspicious for important undertakings. Favors asked of friends or business associates may be rebuffed. It is not a very favorable time for proposals of marriage, and affairs of the heart may have a slight set back.

A child born today will be ambitious and generous and might excel in financial affairs.

If today is your birthday you are resolute and fearless and on the whole your personality is one to be admired rather than loved. You are both persistent and persevering and you are capable of sustained effort in the face of untold hardships.

Intellectually you are gifted far above the average. Your mind is clear and logical but seldom analytical or profound. There is nothing of the philosopher in your nature, but there is a great deal of the constructor and the administrator. In fact you are mentally equipped for success rather than for fame.

You have an extremely magnetic personality and you know how to use it only too well. In fact you do not hesitate to use even your dearest friends in the execution of your plans, regardless of the harm or benefit to them. You are neither cruel nor inconsiderate, but to you life is a gem in which the strong survive and the weak perish, and you like to associate with people whom you admire because you cannot bend them to your will.

You have an excellent head for business and you should succeed in any occupation which demands risk and responsibility, as you are enough of a gambler to take chances, and enough of an individualist to hold yourself entirely responsible for your own blunders.

Emotionally you are cold and unresponsive, though easily intrigued by a person of the opposite sex who treats you similarly. You ate, however, capable of a fine affection if properly approached in the spirit of give and take—without quarter.

Successful people born on this date are: Augustus P. Clarke, surgeon; William O. Stoddard, author; Mark A. Hanna, U. S. Senator.

So Goes It

By B. H.

It is a pretty sure sign that, if a man suggests a poker game and an all night party, his wife is out of town.

William Allen White, in his newspaper, the Emory Gazette, suggests that if people continue to increase their use of the motor car, there legs will become useless and about the only place an able bodied pair of legs will be seen is in musical comedy.

"Generally speaking, women are—" remarked friend husband.

"Are what?" snapped friend wife.

"Generally speaking" mildly replied friend husband.

Some women certainly are unreasonable. We read of one just yesterday who sued her husband for divorce because she insisted on keeping frogs in the bathtub.

The poor man probably was trying to get a mess of logs for his home brew.

We never can help wondering how a man feels when his better nine tenths gets the literary bug and writes "Confessions of a Wife," or something of that stripe.

An optimist is a man who can get real enjoyment out of smoking a cherroot.

Listed among the peculiar individuals of the present day is the man who will beef about his wife paying $4.98 for a shopworn hat and then spend $15 for a quart of likker.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

The Influence of Oil on the Price of Land.

It would seem in view of the fact that much of the irrigation project is either oil land or potentially so, that if a land owner sold his oil rights at the same time he sold his other rights he would naturally ask more. As we saw in yesterday's article the majority of those answering are willing to sell their oil rights as well as their land.

However, the mere fact that a land owner is willing to sell his oil rights does not mean that he would not take less for his land if he could retain the oil rights. Therefore, the question was asked, "how much more do you want for your land if you sell all of your oil rights with it than if you do not?"

This question was answered in part by the answers to the previous questions concerning oil, but for some reason, probably because the value of oil rights is so variable, many owners simply checked this question and passed on to the next.

Only six owners gave definite specific answers.

Two state they would make no difference in price.

Two said they would take $50 less per acre if they could retain their mineral rights.

Another said he would sell for $30 less per acre and still another said he would reduce his price $10 per acre.

Many people have thought that the value placed on their oil rights by the land owners had a tendency to keep up the price of land.

Certainly the replies given here are too few in number compared to the total to allow a definite conclusion to be drawn now. However, answers to questions in other parts of the questionaire may shed some futher light on this subject.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

DISILLUSIONMENT

I was taught as a lad that to hustle like mad
Was the way to be wealthy and wise,
To waste any time, I was told, was a crime
Which led to an early demise.
The "go-getter" cults pointed out the results,
To be garnered by getting there first,
And showed that to wait fon the favor of fate
Left a fellow forever accursed.

So I rose with the lark, and till long after dark
I was out on the trail of success;
My meals I gulped down as I hurried to town
And slept not for five years or less.
Whenever I went I was never content,
Unless I was leading the van,
And the neighbors whuld cry as they saw me pass by:
Say! Aint he a hustling young man."

But at forty I found I could not get around
With the speed that I had at the start.
My stomach went bad, and the Doc said I had
A dangerous leak in my heart.
"There isn't any doubt that you've worked yurself out,
You'll never see fifty," said he;
"Why people like you do the things that they do,
Was always a puzzle to me."

And now I have learned that success isn't earned,
By cutting out slumber and rest.
And that people who play at least half of each day,
Are most likely to feather, their nest.
Still I toil toward the top, for I'll starve if I stop,
Growing steadily glummer and surlier.
This "go-getter stuff" is the worst sort of bluff.
And I wish I'd discovered it earlier.

REASON ENOUGH

France and England are singing to each other: "I can't get away to fight with you today; the banks won't let me."

THE WRONG WAY

President Coolidge's pledge of economy indicates that if he wants a renomination he expects somebody to give it to him besides the politicians.

OBVIOUS

Germany evidently doesn't care who pays for the wars as long as she can make them.

TODAY LAST DAY TO ENTER DOGS

Today is the last day in which entries may be made for the dog show to be held at the Texas-Oklahoma fair officials announce. By special arrangement, entrants are given the opportunity to register their dogs names tonight at the ofifce of Allan Montgomery in the Staley building.

One of the biggest dog shows in the southwest will be held here during the fair, it is believed by directors of the event a large number of out of town entries having already been made. St. Louis, Tulsa, San Antonio and Dallas are some of the towns sending dogs here. But local entries are few to date and Wichita Falls owners are urged not to wait too long.

The closing of the entry dates is being made today in accordance with the rules of the American Kennel club, under which rules the show is being put on. These rules state that all entries must be made at least a week before the event the books closing a week in advance.

The Wichita show will be the second on the southwestern circuit, there being one scheduled at Abilene this week. Others will be at San Antonio, Tulsa and Dallas. The local management is optimistic that the show will be the class of all in this circuit.

BLUE SKY LAWS IS CUTTING STATE FEES

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23.—The state blue sky stock sale regulation law is apperently costing the state $300 a day in franchise fees.

The loss from charter filing fees is apparently even larger but the law increases fees on recording declaration of trust concerns and joint stock agreement firms.

From an average of 8 to 10 corporations chartered daily, the number dropped sharply this week. On Wednesday there were no charters granted and on Thursday only two. For the week the average will be less than five daily. Capital stock of corporations averages $20,000 so that the average filing fee is $60. The fee is $50 for the first $1,000 capital stock and $10 per $1,000 thereafter.

State officials believe that after a code of regulations under the blue sky law is drawn up, distributed and becomes generally known by prospective organizers of corporations, the loss in fees will be decreased. At the present rate, the reduction in filing fees would exceed $110,000 per year.

EIGHT DRUNKS IS SABBATH TOTAL

Eight charges of drunkenness, made by the sheriff's department was the total for breaches of the law in Wichita Falls yesterday. This constituted just that many more than last Sunday's, which was a quiet day for peace officers.

Six of the cases were picked up in one raid yesterday, where a party was in progress with much liquor. The other two were a man and a woman picked up in a car, the woman being far gone in a state of intoxication. The defendants were lodged in the county jail for the night, to appear this morning to meet charges.

CORSICANA OIL FIRE BURNS ITSELF OUT

CORSICANA, Sept. 23.—The oil fire in the Corsicana deep field on the S. D. Ramsey eleven acre lease of the E. L. Smith Oil company, which caught fire Saturday afternoon, burned itself out late Saturday night, causing an estimated damage of $40,000. About 10,000 barrels of oil, twelve 1,000 barrels storage tanks and three 500 barrel flow tanks, two derricks, two standard rigs and a quantity of derrick tools were destroyed. Origin of the fire is undetermined.

National Bank Takes Over Defunct State Institution

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 22.—The Farmers & Merchants' State Bank of Quitman, which was closed September 1 has been taken over by the First National bank of Quitman, under an arrangement approved by Banking Commissioner J. L. Chapman. Mr. Chapman visited Quitman and arranged for disposition of the former state bank's affairs.

Depositors will sustain no loss, though the state guaranty fund, of which the bank was a member, will be called upon to pay a small part of the loss sustained in closing of the bank, it was stated

Getting Your Money's Worth

By GERTRUDE FISHER.

ECONOMY

Unfortunately to most people the word economy has a rather unpleasant sound because to them it means going without things one wants. Is certain that if we cannot get with our resources all that we would like to get, we must go without some of it, but it is most regrettable to have this negative aspect of economy so prominent. "Economy" does not mean "saving" but "right use." The right use of part of our money leads to saving that part, but what part we spend on recreation, food clothing or anything else is just as economically used as that saved, if we have been wise in our distribution of our money resources.

Extravagance is wandering beyond the proper bounds of one's income. He who spends more than his money income is extravagant. That sounds axiomatic, yet it is always true. Are there no occasions where borrowing is justified? Or the use of accumulated savings? Such questions lead back to the obligations implied in the word proper.

If the right use of the income is to procure the greatest possible amount of health and happiness then these considerations are the "proper bounds" beyond which we cannot wander without extravagance.

Obviously the family may borrow or call on savings.

Decorative Lamps And Utility Lighting

The Woman of Taste Reflect Much of Her Own Individuality and Charm in the Lamps Which She Selects for Her Home, and Unless They Are Colorful and Warm There Are Certain Elements or Hospitality Lacking. No Matter How Costly or Elaborate the Furnishings.

"One might find quite an amusing pastime in guessing the character and personality of the unknown owner of a room by the lamps she is willing to live with," said Miss Elsie de Wolfe, prominent interior decorator, "and yet many people continue to exist in unattractive surroundings just because they have not realized the decorative possibilities and value of lamps."

There are two primary factors to be considered in the selection of lamps—namely, color and type. The size, shape and character of the room determine the type of the lamp, and the general color scheme—the back ground, as it were, determines the color of lamp base and of the shade that will best bring out the decorative qualities of wall or floor coverings, furnishings, hangings, and the like.

The attractively furnished home is not necessarily the mansion, nor is the quaint cottage the only structure that lends itself to coziness of decoration. Simplicity and neutrality of color are the secrets which underlie all that is truly artistic in a scheme of decoration. The spacious, low ceilinged rooms of an old farm house have the same decorative possibilities as the modern apartment or town house, if a neutral color scheme is held to, depending upon lamps and art objects to introduce the necessary spots of color.

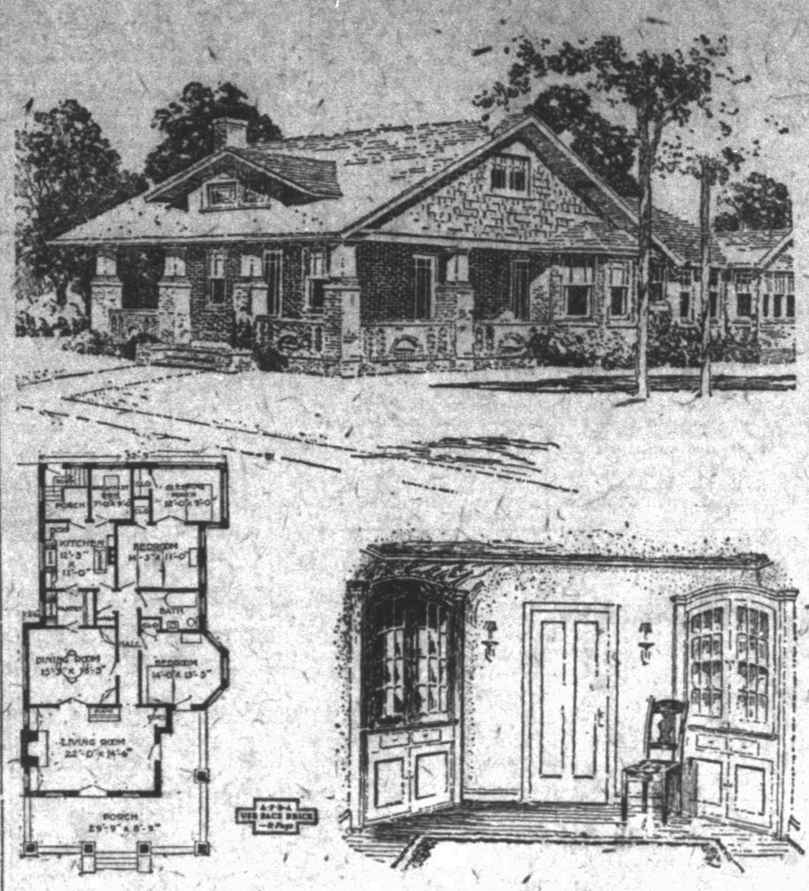

While no set rules can be prescribed, certain fundamental principles, if adhered to, will guarantee beauty and restfulness, the two most important qualifications in the house that is a home.

Simplicity of design and neutrality of color are well exemplified in a combination of sand color and old blue. There are unlimited decorative possibilities in a room with sand-colored walls and white woodwork, sand and brown rug, gold colored silk curtains and sand and old blue brocade for hangings and upholstered furniture. The vivid spots of color in such a room would be found in the wired vases for lamps and gay colored shades which adorn them. Vases of blue glazed porcelain would be unusually decorative in such a room either as lamps or as art objects, and if gold colored silk shades were used on the lamps they would add an attractive bit of color to the room by night or by day.

Side wall illumination should augment center/ceiling illumination and is gaining favor constantly. Attractive floor lamps and side wall brackets are being featured for practically every room in the house.

In the room outlined above the shades on side wall lamps may be of gold silk, parchment or amber translucent glass. The latter is by far the most desirable for utility lighting—that is to say, the lamp used for reading, sewing or other close work should be shaded with translucent glass if eye strain and fatigue are to be avoided. While parchment and silken shades are decorative, recent developments in the science of illumination have conclusively proved that glass is by far the best medium for utility lighting.

A BUNGALOW OF DECIDED WESTERN TYPE

The wide-spread gables, the dormer, the over-handing eaves, the low, broad porch suggest the origin of this type in the southwest where protection from the summer sun is always grateful. While the attic might, on occasion, be fitted up as a low room, its chief function is to provide ventilation and insulation from the heat.

The roof line is very pleasing with its low, rambling sweep. The porch in this case is made somewhat more secluded by the pleasing brick parapet which would lend itself to very artistic treatment. A few dollars added here to the skilled craftsman's pay could be made to enhance the beauty and desirability of the house. Bear in mind that very often a little more expenditure at the beginning will pay for itself many times, in the long run.

The living room, occupying the entire front of the house, is accessible from the porch either on the front or side. The fine brick hearth is flanked by bookcases which suggest delightful winter evenings.

The dining room is entered through folding doors from the living room or through the hall, and opens to the kitchen through a pantry, with cupboards and also butler's sink, which, if desired, could be converted into a breakfast alcove leaving the present breakfast room for other purposes. The ample kitchen has all modern conveniences and an enclosed service porch.

The sleeping quarters—two bedrooms, a sleeping porch and the bathroom—are secluded. The sleeping porch can do duty the year round for it is entirely glazed and has a good closet.

The basement, is provided with laundry, heating apparatus, vegetable cellar, and proper storage space, but may be restricted in area at the option of the builder. The ceiling height is 8 feet 6 inches and the content 36,000 cubic feet.

Altogether this is an unusual house, both outside and inside, but above all it is decidedly a comfortable and convenient house to live in.

Sanitation

Cowardly dirt—that hides and flies when you chase it. Obstinate dirt—that lingers and lurks just out o' reach, in cracks, crevices and creases—laughing at duster, whiskbroom and dustcloth.

Dangerous dirt—germ-laden, disease-bearing, doctor inviting—a perpetual menace to your home happiness. All are defeated now by the vacuum cleaner in the hands of the housewife.

Why worry and flurry over grit, grime and dust. You can't stop its coming—but you can speed its going.

Stone Work In The Garden

Next to the flowers themselves, there is nothing that gives so much charm to a garden as a little rough stone work. A low, irregular stone wall against a little bank, two or three curving stone steps around a bend, stepping stones set in the grass, or a built-in pile of stones holding a bird path in their laps—all these add immeasurably to the garden's lovableness.

To suburban dwellers such effects are not difficult. Small stones generally are to be had not far from home. As to the builder of the walls or steps, many a man attributes his splendid fitness and hard muscles to outdoor work he does around his place on week-ends and holidays.

Autumn is the ideal time to do this work. By October the air is cool and crisp, and one may work outdoors without getting heated and perspiring. Then, too, the stones get a sort of settled look before next spring, and when the new grass comes in March, it will grow up around the stones and make them look as if they had been there for years.

It is not only country dwellers who may indulge in decorative stone work. One city back yard, the tiny garden of a famous painter, has wandering cobblestone paths, a low stone wall with vines clambering vore it, and a semi-circular flight of stone steps leading from the house to the garden. He did all the stone work himself, in moments of relaxation and play, when he laid his busy brushes down and went out to get some muscular work in the open.

If stones are not to be picked up in your immediate neighborhood, a carload can be delivered to you at a low price.

The Kitchen

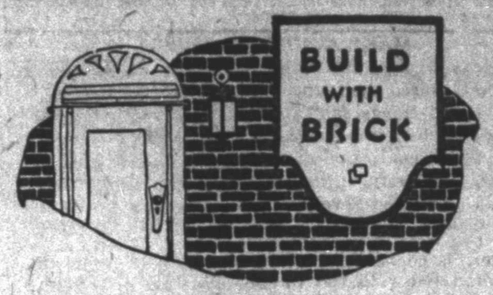

Whatever may be said of a comfortable amount of disorder in the rest of the house, in the kitchen everything must have a place, and must be kept in it's place. It is like a shop in miniature, and the only way to work comfortably is to have the orderly shelves of a shop and to stick to established places for things. The intimacy of a woman with her own kitchen is delightfully rewarded when a Sunday night supper time comes, and she knows just where to find everything. Ane should know one's kitchen as one knows one's library—to put out a hand and find the thing desired.

A lot of people do not believe in curtains for the kitchen but I not only believe in them—I believe in several washable sets. Calico and gingham are so cheap and so lasting, and so easily washed that the kitchen's may have it's curtains changed every week or every fortnight, according to the grime and dust it is subject to.

No matter how sound the wooden floor may be, a linoleum covering will be a good investment, because one's feet will not be so easily tried and because linoleum is so easily cleaned. Gone are the days of cheap ugly patterns in oil cloth and linoleum. Now we have dozens and dozens of designs and colorings to choose from. There are several perfectly plain colors, as well as imitations of black marble or green marble. There are also many excellent wall coverings that may be put on like wallpaper and washed like porcelain. The tiled walls and floors are quite popular now for the walks and floors of kitchens, they cost a little more in the beginning but save in the long run.

Make your kitchen delightful to your own senses and you will have no trouble in keeping a cook.

Remember that a clock ticking as much a part of it as a warm spicy fragrance of some mysterious dish. A pot geranium on the window sill is as useful as a basket of fresh eggs in the refrigerator. A comfortable chair near the lightest window, light well placed heat stove and sink, a floor not too hard for tired feet—All these make a good appetite and good digestion.

Good Lighting Is Inexpensive

—In comparison to furnishings such as a piano, rugs, tables, draperies—it costs very little; yet the enjoyment of the piano may be spoiled by improper lighting: the effects of well-selected draperies, paper and rugs ruined by the wrong method of illumination, while furniture may lose half its charm under the glare of improper light.

Southern League Play Ends, Memphis Third

GREAT YEAR FOR SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION SAYS MARTIN; ALL SET FOR THE PANTHERS

By The Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 23.—"It was a great year for the Southern association," said President D. Martin tonight, after today's games had run down the curtain on the 23rd season, with Larry Gilbert's Pelicans giving to New Orleans its sixth pennant.

"We are now ready for the post season series with the Fort Worth champions of the Texas league, and are confident the Pelicans will show the Panthers the same find brand of baseball that won the Southern association pennant for them," the league president continued.

The race in the Southern was interesting throughout the season. It has been a spirited struggle between Mobile and New Orleans for first honors and only after today's tie game between Memphis and Atlanta was third place settled—Memphis holding the post by the narrow margin of five points in the percentage column. In the 23 seasons played New Orleans has won six pennants, Atlanta five, Nashville four, Memphis and Birmingham three each and little Rock and Mobile one each.

The third official post-season series with the champions of the Texas league will open Tuesday at Fort Worth. The Pelicans and Panthers will play in the Texas city Wednesday, and will go to New Orleans for games Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

On the next Wednesday, unless the championship should be decided by that time, a game will be played in Fort Worth and if the decision is still unreached, a coin will be tossed to fix the place for the seventh game.

CATS TAKE LAST GAME OF SERIES

Three Hurlers Bring Fort Worth an Easy 2 to 7 Victory

FORT WORTH, Sept. 22.—Jakie Atz's Texas league champions flashed old time form Sunday and had it easy in the final game of the exhibition series with Jim Galloway's All-Stars. The final was 7 to 2 for the Cats. Three Cat hurlers were used during the game, Pate, Stoner and Wachtel, all working three innings and showing lots of stuff. Kraft hit a home run in the second inning which was his third in the six games of the series. Score:

All-Stars	110 000 000	2	4 3
Fort Worth	031 101 01x	7	10 1

Ryan and Jonnard; Pate, Stoner, Wachtel, Haworth and Moore.

With the American league pennant the season still a couple of weeks to go, the New York Yankees will have considerable time to tune themselves up for the world's series' clash with the Giants or a rival that may beat McGraw's team out in the eleventh hour. Also the Yankee lads can figure on what they'll do with their slice of the world's series melon—the third helping in three years, albeit a loser's portion, and watch the Giants battle for first place.

S. W. FOOTBALL OPENS FRIDAY

Southwestern Conference of the T. I. A. A. Is Off

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23.—The 1923 football season in Texas will get well under way this week. Coaches of Texas members of the Southwestern Conference and of the state conference teams today began the last lap of training before sending their teams onto the gridiron for opening games next Friday or Saturday.

This week will mark the opening of the gridiron season for the state university here, for Baylor university at Waco; and for Southern Methodist university at Dallas. Texas A. and M. college was scheduled to open its session last Saturday against the Sam Houston normal team. In the state conference, a majority of the games scheduled this week are with southwestern conference teams.

For the past two weeks coaches have been grooming their teams in preparation for the opening of the season this week. Hard scrimmage and stiff training are the schedules of the week for most of the teams. Coaches, as yet, are reluctant to give any opinion on the prospects of their teams for the season.

Although practically all of the games this week will be non-conference, the outcome of the clashes will give some indication as to the strength of the respective contenders for the championship of the southwestern conference and Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association.

Texas University will play Austin college at Austin Friday. The Texas Aggies will meet Howard Payne Friday at College Station, and the game is expected to be one of the most interesting of the early season engagements, West Texas normal against Panhandle A. and M. college of Oklahoma at Canyon is the other game scheduled for September 28.

First Modern Home-Run Star Slips Quietly Out Of Baseball

Two Views of Baker, At Bat and Off the Field

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Few of the hundreds of thousands of fans who followed Home Run Baker's career in the big show know what has become of the world's series hero.

For Baker, whose name was upon every fan's lips for years, dropped out of the game as quietly as the idle spectator at a cross roads prize fight.

Baker is now back in his home state of Maryland. And he is still interested in baseball to the extent of managing and backing a team in the Eastern Shore league.

Two seasons ago Baker, then a retired "farmer," was called back to baseball by the New York Yankees. And the club's efforts to induce him to return drew more space in the newspapers than the news about Babe Ruth and other stars of the day. Baker returned and for a season fulfilled the hopes of the Yankee bosses in filling the gap at third base. Last year he failed to hit his stride and this year gave it up.

Baker must be credited with starting the present day home run "business." It was his spectacular hitting in two world's series for the Athletics that brought the art of home run hitting to the foreground. In two world's series against the Giants Baker saved the day for the Mackmen by driving out home runs. In those days, with the balls that were used home runs were home runs any time, to say nothing of getting them in a world's series.

And Baker's hitting wasn't a flash in the pan. He was a natural slugger. He hit consistently and forcibly for the Mackmen while proving himself one of the greatest third basemen in the game.

When Connie Mack busted up his $100,000 infield in 1916 Frank decided to quit. He was sold to the Yanks by Mack, however, and eventually joined the Gothamites. Five years later the decided once more he was through, only to reconsider when the Yankee bosses got to running over to Maryland every week end to persuade him.

There is no doubt about Baker having one or two years of baseball in him yet. He still loves the game. But he is well fixed financially and has children, which were left motherless a couple of years ago. Swinging around the circuit with a big league ball club does not permit of enough association with one's family. So Baker, having considered all things, has made the great and final decision.

If all ball players leave the game with as clean a record as Baker bouts the game will thrive for many years.

Superstitions Of India Impressed British Explorer

Somewhere in the Naga Hills of Northeastern Indian is a strong dislike of blood. Whoever drinks therefrom acquires the unhappy faculty of remaining a man in the daytime and becoming a leopard on darkness.

At least that's the story brought back by J. H. Hutton, British explorer and member of the Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain, whose account has just been published by the Smithsonian institution.

Hutton's naive story of this superstition, with the observations he recounts in support of the claims of the Naga tribesmen, constitutes one of the weirdest papers ever included in the Smithsonian collection, says the Washington Star.

"The sema were-tiger, or reputed were-tiger, with whom I was best acquainted" says Hutton, "was Chekiye chief of Lukamni. I took part in a tiger hunt in 1916. A tigress broke near him, came within a few feet of him and mauled his next door neighbor. Chekiye, when remonstrated with for having stood quietly by said: 'I did not like to spear it because I thought it was a friend of mine.'

"In 1919 an Angami interpreter, happened to meet a sick man being carried home. The man complained of having had an accident but on being pressed several times for details admitted he had no external injury that could be seen, but was suffering from the effect of wounds inflicted on his tiger form by the interpreter.

"I have known personally a large number of Semas who are, or claim to be, were-leopards or were-tigers."

Hutton describes vividly how powerful the mind control is over the natives. "The soul," he says, "usually enters into the leopard in sleep and returns to the human body with daylight, but it may remain in the leopard for several days at a time, in which case the human body, though conscious, is lethargic. It goes to the fields and follows the usual routine of life, but is not able to communicate intelligently until the possession expires.

"When a leopard is being hunted by men the human body behaves like a lunatic, throwing itself about in its efforts to escape. Under these circumstances the relatives of the were-leopard feed him ginger as fast as possible in the leopard body, on which the life depends, may have the agility to escape its pursuers. Were-leopards are particularly liable to possession between the expiring of the old and the rising of the new moon."

Longhorns Show Up Good Despite Number Of Crips

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 22.—Despite injuries to 15 members of the Longhorn football squad at the end of the second week of practice prospects are far from discouraging. In baseball in early spring there are always many sore arms and other ailments reported and the same thing goes for football in early fall. The present injured list includes Gilstrap, Bluestein, Bradley, Curtis, Higgins, Clarence Smith Dayvault, Settegast, Ramsey, Shearer, Barton, Toland, and Trammell, but practically all of these players will be ready for the initial game of the season.

Judging from practice sessions, the Longhorns will have one of the best backfield players in the conference in big Oscar Eckhardt, of Austin. Eckhardt is showing much better form this year than in previous seasons. He is the best punter on the squad, can forward pass, hit the line and is as fast at circling the ends. Captain "Buddy" Tynes reported this summer in excellent condition and should have the best season of his long career.

Among the new linesmen, Leon Gorman, Sprague and Newell are giving the old-timers a gift for regular positions. Newell was center of last year's freshman squad while Gorman and Sprague have played tackle.

"Red" Fly of Gonzales, from last year's freshman team is giving the veteran, George Gadere, a fight for the quarterback position. Both are showing splendidly in practice.

The longhorns will be well fortified this year with punters. Oscar Eckhardt and Bobby Robertson, the veterans, are kicking the ball higher and further than ever. Big Ben Dave Allen, a newcomer, is developing rapidly. He is big and tall and is considered a good prospect.

Coach "Doc" Stewart has perfected a chart, whereby he grades all of the players. This chart is something new in Texas football. He gives each candidate a grade on his fight, weight, speed, spirit, football intelligence, temperament, signals, physical condition, defensive, offensive, studies, team value, blocking punts and tackling. The coach also has the players to grade one another. He then strives to develop the players in the departments where they receive low grade. Coach Stewart says this will aid him in having a well-balanced team and will enable him to find out all about his players possibilities.

NEARLY 19 MILLIONS IN TOLLS

The tenth anniversary of the opening of the Panama canal occurred August 14. Figures made public a few days ago show that 4,272 vessels with a cargo tonnage of 21,210,000 used the great water-way in the fiscal year ended June 30, and that tolls of $18,975,000 were collected. In the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1922, the official report shows that 2,736 toll paying ships, with a net tonnage of 11,417,459, traversed the ditch. The tolls collected in that year were $11,197,832.41.

The great growth was in shipments in the coastwise trade. At the same time the trade between the Pacific ports of the United States and of the Dominion of Canada and Europe has steadily grown.

However, the waterway is not profitable on a strictly commercial basis. In addition to payments to the Republic of Panama and to Columbia the United States has expended more than 375 million dollars on the canal.

"Yeh, I've Heard That Before"---

Ever tell a story that you thought was a real funny story, and have your listeners just sit there and look like they'd lost their best friends, and then—

Thinking they didn't get it, you went into a lot of detail and made it as funny as it could be made—

And, yet they never cracked a smile.

Then some bird would yawn and say—

"Yeh, I've heard that before."

Ever pick up the newspaper you read every day, and selecting some apparently choice news item, read it to your wife, and have her say: "Yeh, I've read that before."

If you had that happen to you the chances are ten to one THAT NEWSPAPER WAS A PRE-DATE—printed hours before the date it carried on the front page, because it had to be in order for it to reach you the day you received it.

The Record News reaches you the morning of the day it is printed!

The Record News has no pre-date editions!

The Record News carries to you news that is as fresh as griddle cakes just off the fire!

Today's news today—that's the kind of service you get from The Record News.

KAY TALKS OF 'FALSE PROPHET'

Discusses War Among 'Isms' in Connection With Address

Judge John C. Kay, in his address to the Kay Bible class at the Strand theatre yesterday morning, talked interestingly of the contention now going on between the "Fundamentalists" and the "Evolutionists." Basing his talk on Paul and Timothy, he explained that Timothy's value lay in the fact that he was the kind who would go out on work in a great cause without working for himself. The address in full follows:

"I am mighty glad to see Dr. Cantwell here this morning. I think, and have for long thought, that the teaching profession, school teachers are too modest. They ought to be the foremost citizens of their community. When we think about what we have entrusted to them, we begin to realize their importance. They are too modest. There is no reason why one, who bears about his waist the keys of knowledge, should not be very greatly respected in every community. They ought to come to town with more ceremony. Shakespeare understood that better than we do, and better than the teachers do. When Caesar's sister came slipping into Rome Caesar julked to her about it, he says: "You have slipped in here like a market maid Why, there ought to have been soldiers out there to greet you and the trees ought to have been full of people to witness your approach."

Coming to this lesson: There are two or three things in it—you know Brother Downing always explains the lesson here and sometimes I wander far afield from the text; I repeat things here sometimes, too. You, no doubt, have noticed that, and St. Paul says, in one place, that "I don't mind saying the same thing to you over and over, if you can ever get it into your head."

Of Tremendous Import.

There are some things in this lesson that are pretty deep some things of tremendous importance to you, and to me. I want to read you one or two of them, and these are the things that I mean to talk about. Briefly, Paul is an old man, now. He is in jail for the last time, in prison at Rome. He feels that he is not going to escape. He had once escaped the den of lions by claiming his Roman citizenship, but the constitution was not so much respected, now, and he finally lost his life, even as you might lose yours, not withstanding the constitution reads to the contrary. He is writing to Timothy, a young man, wanting him to go and preach, and teach, and he says this hard thing: "For I have no man likeminded, who will naturally care for your state. For all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's."

Now, what does he mean there? He means that Timothy is the only man available to him that would go out and work without working for himself.

In another place: "But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and has been assured of knowing of whom thou hast learned them."

I have at least one Scotchman here who couldn't vote and is for me for governor. I am pretty nearly bound to notice a compliment as great as that. If I should go out here and go into politics, it would—with me, as with other men—knock off a little of the fine edge of my conscience. Destroy a little of my affection for humanity; leave me a little more pessimistic about the future, and a little more uncertain about myself, and I am not going.

Tempest In A Teapot.

Now this expression in the lesson, and I want to read one more verse, but I will read that directly, "Knowing of whom you have learned it."

Now, when you say you know something, this lesson would drive you to ask, from whom did you learn it?

There is sort of a tempest in a teapot, a sort of embryonic war going on in this country, religiously speaking, by a group of men who have named themselves "Fundamentalists." They have attacked the Evolutionists, and have said anathema to all those teachers, and professors, and philosophers who teach part or all of the theory of evolution.

But, they are pretty strong men and pretty ambitious men and, since being against the evolutionists, is merely a negative proposition, they couldn't start a new church on that, as they mean to start a new church, so they have to have a positive doctrine, knowing that they could never win with a mere negation. Now, what is their positive doctrine? How many of you know? The positive doctrine of every one of them is that the second coming of the Savior is right upon us. They all preach, and they all teach, without exception, that we may look any date now for the second coming of Christ.

Another of their doctrines is that they believe in a literal and full interpretation of every word in the Bible. They have just discovered that within the last few years. I believed in it from my infancy, up, as some of you did, many of you, perhaps most of you. But, in undertaking to deal with the future, in undertaking to deal with this question of the second coming of the Savior, they lead you into a field where there is no light at to dates and no chance for you to exercise a sound discretion or judgment.

Difference Only In Detail.

If I undertook to say to you this morning, with all kindness in my heart toward both camps, that there is no material difference between the evolutionist and the fundamentalist, because, the earth being round, two extremes, or two lines, if projected far enough, will meet, now, is there any difference between them? There is a difference in detail, but none in result. The evolutionist would prevaricate to you about the past, and the fundamentalist pretends to know the future, and both are at sea, I think, without a compass. But, they say, I shouldn't talk to you at all about this. I don't know that I ever went into a matter like this before and I don't know that I would have ever talked to you about it, except that it is highly important to notice and understand, as best we can, a movement of that description.

Now, when you hear a man say he believes the Bible better than other men, and more strongly than other men, and more definitely than other men—hear me!—you will always find that he believes only such part of it as supports his own propaganda.

Now, it is written in my New Testament, the one that I have up at the house—I do not know how it is in yours—but, it is written in mine, in the very words of the Master Himself, when He was talking about this second coming, He first says: "Many false prophets shall arise." That is a kind of a promise for He starts out with a much greater statement, and, having said that, and got our recent situation described, He said: "No man knoweth the hour nor the day of that second coming, not even the angels around the throne." Yet, here is some fellow will hold a convention out here on Bush Creek to tell you that he knows. It does not appeal to the intelligence, it does not require much philosophy, nor skill, nor brain power to talk about the future, because it is a door that is shut. Lord McCauley was right, I think, when he was writing about false prophets, and said that one of the greatest weaknesses of false prophets was that they made their predictions so that they could be proved true or false while the present generation was on earth. So, if you ever go out to prophesy, put it two or three hundred years from now and then they will never catch you. In this day, or generation, at least, it will not embarrasss you.

How Men Will Be Judged.

Then, every man will not be judged, as I am saying to you that men are not to be judged, by platforms, and creeds, and statements of beliefs, or by having an abundance of that idea, and a poverty of this idea. Then, how are we to judge them? We find some light in this lesson. "Be thou an example of the believers." How? In saying that the world is coming to an end, right away like the fundamentalists? Or, in saying that men came up from the acidian and shell fish, like the evolutionist? Or, in writing a great creed? That's not what this book says. "Be thou an example of the believers in word, in conversation, in charity, in spirit, in faith, in purity." Isn't that a wonderful bunch of jewels that are crowded together there in two lines in the Bible? Don't be an example in serving your ambition by starting a new church, or by predicting that, this and the other, that is going to happen, or, like the evolutionists, in predicting that this or that has already happened.

Now, I hold no brief here for the evolutionists. I think it might be possible —it just might be possible—that no man in this country has looked with more infinite care into that question, than I have. The evolutionist is like a man who went out to hunt a bear and took his back track and followed his wanderings in reverse order until he comes to where he is a little cub. Now, you know whether that kind of a man would catch a bear.

An evolutionist is a man who would if he could, direct the attention and the effort of humanity towards a past which he says himself is impounded in a mist that cannot be removed, and humanity is going the other way. Whatever my ancestor was a thousand years ago, certain it is that I cannot do anything about it now.

So, I say to you, that these extreme men, these men who pretend to unlock the door of the past, and these men who would invite the supreme tragedy of the end of the world upon us by their prophecy, are neither the one nor the other to be followed.

Living In Practical World.

We are living here, now. Living in a practical world. We are to show our belief, says this book. Not by stating that belief. You know, you might have a great many beliefs. I think Halley's comet is coming back. I know it is, if there is any truth in mathematics, but I am not going to do anything about it. We are to show our beliefs by purity, says this book in this lesson. So, you take the evolutionist, or his half-brother the fundamentalist, and we would not condemn them here this morning, because I have no pile of rocks here to throw at men that are to be judged as you are to be judged, by whether they exercise faith and purity.

Here's a man jumps up and says that he believes the Bible better than I believe. How are we to know? We cannot take his exparte statement about it, but we are to put upon him this yardstick that is here furnished bys us, and if this fundamentalist is living a life better than other men are living, if his faith is brighter, if his example and his purity is greater, then you ought to listen to him.

You know, the trouble with fellows that get greatly concerned and greatly excited about doctrine—the trouble with that kind of a fellow is, to my mind and to my somewhat limited knowledge of life and history,—that kind of a fellow always wants to punish somebody. In place of exercising this purity that the lesson calls for, he wants a victim that can suffer. He wants to throw some preacher out of his pulpit, some professor out of his chair, some unbeliever, as he calls him out of the church. And, you show me a man who says that he has got a better comprehension of the Bible than other men, that he understands it better than other men, and believes it better than other men, and I will show you a persecuter.

Must Have Love and Respect.

And then he reads about Paul and about the Flavian amphitheatre and the lions that raged and ate the Christians, and he wishes that he had some lions. Such a thing as that is not the love of man. A man don't want to get himself in that frame of mind. What can I do with this Sunday school class unless men love me? What can I do anywhere unless men feel that I have got their welfare at heart and that I care about their bodies and their souls? Nothing!

Now, I have said more here this morning perhaps, than has ever been said before. I have had it in my heart some time to try to clear up some things that are going on in this country. You go out here and beware of the extremists. You go out here and beware of that man who would pull his robes about him and say that "I am more righteous than other men." You go out there and into your life and beware of that man who preaches a doctrine with one breath and seeks to serve his own ambition with the next breath.

"I know," says Paul, "and you know, Timothy who taught you." Now, who taught you? Who taught you what you know about the Bible? I will tell you who taught me. My own mother and my own father, neither one of whom had any commercial or financial interest in it, and no ambition to serve, and no selfish purpose in sight. Who taught me the Bible? Saintly preachers, who were working in those days for salaries that are unthinkable now. Men who went out and devoted their lives without reward, or, as the old English commonlaw says without even the hope of reward here in this world, taught me the Bible and they did it disinterestedly and without ambition. I think that is the way you learned it. Who taught it to me? From men who were not concerned about their own ambitions, professors and teachers who were teaching for the very love of the work, and the love of humanity, and not to further any purpose of their own.

I saw a man this summer that taught me when I was a boy, two of them, three of them, old now, poor now as they ever were poor, still sitting in their ancient place where they have all been 40 years and more working disinterestedly, truthfully and with mental purity to the uplifting of young men.

Thank God for any teacher or any preacher, or any man who comes to you with purity for his doctrine and his belief. Thank God for any man who tells you something about a great truth and doesn't serve himself in the telling of it.

CALLED MEETING SCOUTMASTERS

Will Outline Work of Boy Boy Scouts at Texas Oklahoma Fair

A meeting of all scoutmasters of the various Boy Scout troops has been called for Tuesday night at 6:30 o'clock for the purpose of outlining the part that the Boy Scouts will take at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. This is one of the first things that Frank B. Creighton, the new Boy Scout executive of Wichita Falls has done for he realizes the interest that everyone has in promoting this big and useful event. He said:

"There may not be as many Boy Scouts in Wichita Falls as everybody wants but just the same you can depend that the quality of performance and public service will not be lessened."

Mr. Creighton will confer with fair officials upon his arrival early Tuesday morning and will be in a position to announce full plans of scouts part at the end of the day. Tentative plans of some magnitude have been made but in order to safeguard their safe delivery it is thought best by scout officials to withhold the nature of them for a few days.

Mr. Creighton the new executive, comes to Wichita Falls with a very successful record as a boy's worker and scouting experience. He is a graduate of Y. M. C. A. college of Chicago which is recognized as one of the leading institutions of its kind. Mr. Creighton was for two years associate general secretary of the Fort Worth Y. M. C. A. but for the past five years has been an active worker in the Boy Scouts. He is recognized as an authority on boy's work, and particularly is he proficient in the scouting tests and court of honor procedure.

All persons interested in the scouting program for boys are most cordially invited to come to the scout headquarters and to meet the new executive. Scout headquarters are in the basement of the Morgan building, corner Eighth and Ohio streets.

HUNTING LICENSES TO BRING $150,000

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23.—Hunting license fees of over $150,000 will be collected during the new fiscal year by the state game department, according to early indications, Commissioner W. W. Boyd declared.

An open season on prairie chickens during the first 10 days of September in Hemphill, Lipscomb, Gray and Wheeler counties resulted in the visit of many hunters to those counties, and the payment of a large total of hunting fees, it was said. The resident fee is $2, while the hunters from Oklahoma or other states visiting Texas in order to hunt prairie chickens, are required to pay a fee of $15.

Next Bowman Meet.

The Bowman Social club, which met at the home of Mrs. R. A. Crowell last Thursday, will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Will Guinn on October 18. It is understood that if weather conditions hinder a session on the set date, the members will gather the following Thursday.

At the meeting last Thursday, Mrs. Crowell was guest to nine members of the club, an enjoyable afternoon being spent in fancy work. Delicious refreshments were served to Mesdames Will Guinn, Parson, P. P. Pechecek, J. O. Ayers, John McNeil, Hattie Baldwin, W. H. Hill, Ralph Crowell and R. A. Crowell.

Struck Anvils.

LOCKHART—Striking of a large number of anvils for an extender time was one of the ways used by Mexicans here to inform citizens they were observing Mexican independence. The Mexicans continued their celebration for four days.

Wichita County Oil Operators Giving Good Co-operation

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 23.—Oil operators in the Wichita county field are showing splendid co-operation with the state oil and gas conservation officials, Chariman Clarence E. Gilmore declared on his return from an inspection of the field, and conference with oil and gas supervisors there. R. B. Walthall, chief supervisor, remained over and will visit the Graham field.

"There has been no complaint of failure of a Wichita county producer to comply with our conservation rules," Chairman Gilmore declared.

Enrollment Passes 600 Mark at Simmons College

ABILENE, Texas, Sept. 23.—For the first week of registration at Simmons college, enrollment has gone past the six hundred mark, with others, especially in the fine arts, still to come in. President J. D. Standefer stated that the enrollment for the fall term would easily go beyond seven hundred and he was confident that for the whole session, 1923-24 Simmons would have a student registration well over a thousand.

Several additional faculty members have been placed on the staff of instructors this year, and a faculty of full strength is on hand for the thirty-second session of the institution. Registration in the fine arts department is unusually heavy, due probably to the interest and impetus given this department by the opening of the new Caldwell fine arts building.
