Taxpayers Association targets school and navigation districts for probe

By Becky Werhan

Now in its sixth month of existence, the Aransas County Taxpayers Association has launched two major investigations into local government. The ACTA probe into the Navigation District, begun last month, is "still in the research stage" say spokesmen. A separate investigation of the Aransas County School District was authorized by ACTA members at their most recent meeting, held Tuesday, Jan. 12.

The Navigation District investigation is being handled by ACTA officer Ed Brennan and member Homer Faber, with the legal assistance of San Antonio attorney Tom Martin.

James Metzner, ACTA officer, is spearheading the probe into the school district. Metzner appeared before the school board at their last meeting, Jan. 11 and requested that the board not extend a contract to Superintendent Joe Randow. Metzner backed up his request with what he referred to as "ample proof" of wrongdoing, citing numerous alleged violations by Randow and the board of the principles and regulations set forth by the Texas Association of School Boards, which charters the Aransas County board. In Goose Island Lake Estates

Property tax decision anticipated

By Pat Blair

LAMAR — Property owners in Goose Island Lake Estates expect to learn what their 1981 tax rate will be next Monday, Jan. 18, when the Aransas County Municipal Utility District No. 1 holds its second meeting for this month.

Also anticipated at that time is a decision by board members on an offer by Envirogenics Systems Company (ESCO) of California to repair the nonfunctioning water treatment plant built in 1978 to serve the district.

Utility district board members met Jan. 4 to set the 1981 tax rate — already deferred from earlier meetings — but again voted to delay the matter pending a report from Larry Hoover, a representative of South Coast Development Corporation.

The board, and Goose Island Lake Estates property owners, hope to receive some news in next Monday's meeting that will allow the board to set a tax rate at less than the $8.10 per $100 originally predicted.

Herman Little, attorney for the district, told the board in one of its earlier meetings that, without funding assistance from some other source, the $8.10 rate must be set in order for the district to meet its financial obligations.

The board is hopeful that assistance may come either through action taken recently by South Coast Development or from Southmost Savings & Loan, one of the companies that foreclosed on South Coast mortgages after the development company declared voluntary bankruptcy two years ago.

Hoover is expected to appear before the board Monday with a report on South Coast's attempts to sell its repurchase options, retained when the company declared bankruptcy in January, 1980.

The land owned by South Coast was foreclosed on by five of the development company's major creditors. Hoover told board members when he appeared before them in a meeting of the district in December.

However, South Coast still held repurchase options on the land, with a stipulation that the options had to be exercised prior to Dec. 31.

When he appeared before the board in December, Hoover told the board member that South Coast wanted to resell those options to another development company.

It was anticipated that this company would exercise the options and reopen development in the financially-pressed Goose Island Lake Estates.

Board member hope that such action might bring in some of the money the utility district needs to avoid what has been termed a "disastrous" tax rate.

In other action looked for at the Jan. 18 district meeting, board members are expected to consider an offer made Jan. 4 by ESCO to make some $20,730 in repairs to the water treatment plant at no cost to the district.

In return for this, ESCO is asking that the district pay for replacement of the 114 membranes required in plant operation and place in escrow the $40,000 the district still owes for the construction of the facility.

Board member have balked at paying for the membranes with board Chairman Richard Hughes declaring the membranes would not need to be replaced if a tank that is part of the treatment system had been properly lined.

The board in its Jan. 4 meeting voted to take no action on ESCO's offer until Little had talked to representatives of Southmost Savings & Loan and Hoover's group — the district's two possible sources of outside financing at this time.

Park board reactivated, set to meet

The seven members of Rockport's city park board were named, their terms set and the board's organizational meeting called for 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 18, during action in this past Monday's city council meeting.

Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. read the ordinance naming the board members and appointing four of them to two-year terms and three to three-year terms.

The council then called for the board to meet next Monday to elect its chairman. After the organizational meeting, the park board will set its own regular meeting dates although it may meet any time at the request of the city council.

Serving for two-year terms, until Jan. 1, 1984, will be past board members T.E. Griffith, Howard Black, Kathryn Winkelman and Patty McArdle.

Named for three-year terms, until Jan. 1, 1985, are recent appointees Gordon Dancer, Cy Richards and George McCague.

Republican filing announced

Those persons wishing to run for office on the Republican ticket for the June 5 run-off or the May 1 primary, is advised of the filing deadline, 6 p.m., Feb. 1. Persons may file two ways, by submitting a filing fee to the county chairman or filing by petition. Petition forms are available from the county Republican chairman, Harold Shirey, 729-5816 or vice-chairman, Anthony S. Thorne, 729-2667. County offices up for re-election are County Judge, District Clerk, County Clerk, County Treasurer, County Surveyor, County Commissioners, precincts 2 and 4, Justice of the Peace, Precincts 1, 2, 3 and 4. For more information, contact the county chairman or vice-chairman.

Bait stand on new pier protested

FULTON — Bait stand owners in Fulton crowded the city council meeting Tuesday night to protest city plans to build a bait stand on the new public fishing pier now under construction.

In the meantime, city officials found they could not consider bids on such a project because of insufficient notice. A bid opening date of Feb. 2, at 7 p.m., was scheduled to give officials sufficient time to post proper bid notice.

The question of proper notice came up when Kirk Holman, navigation district commissioner and owner of a bait stand in Fulton Harbor, pointed out that the time of Tuesday night's meeting wasn't posted on the notice of meeting in the Post Office.

City Secretary Cindy Tilden said she had made an error, forgetting to put the time of the meeting — 7 p.m. — on the notice.

Despite a comment by Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline that "for three years we've been having 'em (the meetings) at 7 o'clock," the city attorney, Allen Lee, said, "You may have insufficient notice to take any kind of action" on the bids and recommended that the bids be tabled.

Lee then asked if a bid notice had been published and upon being informed, by Casterline, that none had, recommended a delay until bid notices could be published.

Lee recommended a delay of at least two weeks following initial publication of the bid notice and the council voted to hold the special meeting on Feb. 2 on the matter.

Bait stand owners in the area later questioned the city's intention to put a bait stand on the pier, with one of them, Bill Williams, saying, "I'm not too tickled to see my tax money put into something to compete with me."

The city proposes to use some $10,000 (See Bait, Page 10)

Four seats up for election in Rockport, Fulton

Four city council seats will be up for election this year in Rockport and Fulton — and voters in Rockport, no matter which ward they live in, will all be voting at City Hall.

Assistant Rockport City Secretary Helen Braffett said the city has already filed designating City Hall as the sole polling place for the April, 1982, city elections after a poor voter turnout in April, 1981, made the change necessary.

Under state election law, she elaborated, if voter turnout in the last general election does not exceed 400, the city will be restricted to only one polling place. In the last April elections, she added, Rockport's turnout amounted to 288.

The council seats currently held by Betty Jean Ward, city Ward 1, and Murray McMillan, Ward 2, will be at stake in this year's elections. McMillan was appointed to his present post to fill the vacancy created by the death of Alderman Henry Bent.

Rockport's city council is expected to officially call the city elections in its Jan. 25 meeting, in time for the opening of filing on Feb. 1.

Fulton city officials called their election in Tuesday night's council meeting. The mayor's post, now held by L.E. Casterline Sr., and Seats 1 and 2 (now held by Elgin Dietz and James Metzger, respectively) are up for election.

Mike Arthur named to West Point

High school senior Michael Wade Arthur has received an appointment to the United States Corps of Cadets at West Point. Arthur, who will graduate from Rockport-Fulton High School in May and report to West Point in July, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Will D. Arthur of Rockport.

Replying "Of course," when asked if he was excited, Arthur admitted he was surprised at his acceptance. "I didn't know if I could do it," said the senior.

Following submission of his nomination to the Academy by United States Senator John Tower, Arthur received a letter confirming nomination from Col. Manley E. Rogers, director of admissions for West Point. Shortly after the Christmas holidays, Arthur received his confirmation of admission from Rogers.

He will receive the equivalent of a full undergraduate scholarship, including room and board, medical and dental care and monthly pay. A commission in the U.S. Army will be awarded following Arthur's graduation from the Academy with a Bachelor of Science.

Asked what motivated his application to the Academy, Arthur replied, "Coach Connelly, I want to play football and receive the best possible education I can get."

Draft should show cross section

IT SCARCELY NEED BE said that this writer is relieved and pleased with the announcement that the President has altered his stance on the draft registration. In true his earlier opposition has seemed to me to be out of character in a man who gives national defense such high priority, and wisely.

Actually, as I have said many times before, the draft should never have been ended, a circumstance which came about during the Nixon administration and one that I, for one, regard as Nixon's greatest mistake. Far worse than all the folderol over Watergate. An army of mercenaries is not appropriate to a democracy, and shake it how you like, that is precisely what this nation has today.

Properly speaking the armed forces of a democratic republic should be composed of a cross section of all the people, men and women of every race and creed, from every social and economic class. Naturally I regret that we need military forces, regret that it is necessary to take even a red cent from the economy to support a military machine, but necessary it is.

Here I realize that there are people who believe to the contrary. Thankfully they are numerically few.

Now there is nothing new, and actually nothing debatable in the foregoing. However the commentary that must be made is shameful to contemplate, because it forces us to the conclusion that all the great and beautiful things in the history of mankind are in vain.

Our poetry, music, literature, philosophy and religions, all are and have been for nothing. A terrible thought, one that many will attempt to deny. There are those who will point to the good things in our world, the kindnesses, the worthy acts of men, but none can refute the fact that men live in fear of each other, that they kill and maim their fellow beings in the same barbaric manner today as they have in every century past.

I'm sure that some reader will want to ask: "Why all the gloom. You are right, but why dwell upon it?" Fair enough, but I have a deep feeling that many of the world's woes result from our sort of shrugging them off. It's comforting, too comforting to dismiss reality and turn to the brighter side of life.

The tune to a melancholy but popular song of a few years ago keeps running through my head. The words told of a young girl and later a woman's disillusionment, each verse ending with words something like: "So, break out the booze, let's dance, and have a ball." There is a more meaningful line that precedes the one so ineptly quoted, but I can't remember it for the life of me. So?

IT'S ON DAYS LIKE this, the temperature at 24 degrees with a chill factor that makes it 4 degrees, that I envy columnists like Andy Rooney. Even when Andy gripes he makes his readers laugh. There are folks that think the comic strip "Doonesbury" should be on the editorial page where one finds Andy, rather than the comic section. I disagree. There is wisdom in Andy's humor. There is nothing anymore conical in Doonesbury than in any of the other comics. Instead Doonesbury is worse than cynical because it is often vicious. Now I find myself wondering what would Andy, assuming that he lived in our semi-tropical climate, have to say about our present arctic weather?

Certainly he'd not be so cruel as to observe that in our northern states the cold is so much worse, not when people are dying, freezing to death. Hard as I try, have been trying for the past five minutes, to slip Andy into my typing chair it has been to no avail.

AT THIS POINT I FIND myself wondering about a chap whom I met at a party a few days ago, wondering what his reaction to today's column might be. My host introduced me, identifying me with this column. His response was at least a little bit different from that of most. The average reader when he encounters a columnist, even if he likes him, feels obligated to add that he doesn't always agree with everything you say. The words are spoken in such a manner that is almost defensive. He might as well say: "Well, what you write is pretty close to gospel, but don't think I swallow it all."

My new friend almost said that — but didn't. I've been reading you every week since I came here three years ago. Through about the first ten columns I read I found myself saying: "One guy can't be so right all of the time." "Since then I agree with you, oh well, maybe half the time."

I have this to say about columnists and most who are worth their salt will agree. None of us, except a few muckrakers, write just to please the reader. Yes, we like to please, but don't feel obligated to pull our punches to make sure no one will be offended. In truth, to let you in a not very well kept secret, we sometimes write words that we less than half believe ourselves — just to test reader action. That is often fun and who can think of anything better than fun? —ahah

Nation likely to suffer withdrawal pains

By Preston Pendergrass

The nation is likely to suffer more welfare state withdrawal pains in 1982 and thereafter for some years to come because the national government that gave so much to so many for so long found itself at a crossroads in history in 1981.

Since the days of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt and during the intervening half-century until now, the nation sank deeper and deeper into the mire of welfare state philosophy.

The Great Depression of the late 1920s and early 1930s left the U.S. economy in disarray. When FDR took office in 1933, millions were out of work and many were hungry. His victory in 1932 was inevitable mainly because of the financial crashes, unemployment and the Democratic promise to repeal Prohibition.

The new president was quickly granted broad emergency powers by an anxious Congress which may have feared the economic conditions would cause people to rise up and rebel against the government.

Armed with the governmental powers he sought to bring the country out of the depression, FDR proclaimed the "New Deal." He put into effect a vast array of administrative changes. Foremost was "pump priming" or use of public funds for relief and public works.

This "pump priming" quickly resulted in deficit financing, which has mounted with succeeding presidential administrations until the nation now finds itself saddled with a public debt totaling more than a trillion dollars.

What is so amazing about this horrendous debt is that it has not forced the nation into bankruptcy. Economic "smarts" probably can explain why this has not happened.

At any rate, the problem we now face is that we have spent public funds much faster than federal coffers have been replenished. This has caused our currency to be devalued by inflation and made it less likely that we will ever be able to pay off the trillion dollar debt.

Most of us, since we were old enough to listen and learn, have known that some day a halt must be called to the government's spendthrift

1982 offers clean pages

By Sen. John Tower

Now that we've discarded our 1981 calendars and face the blank pages of 1982, let us look for a moment at the unfinished business of the old year, and the agenda for the new.

Certainly 1981 was a watershed year for American government. In response to the overwhelming mandate of the citizenry, Washington ended the old "business as usual" approach. For the first time in a generation, firm action replaced rhetoric in the battle to control the size and cost of government. Bureaucrats who for 20 years have looked complacently as politicians came and went — secure in what they perceived as the invincibility of their red-tape fortress — suddenly realized that this time the people and their representatives were serious. Not only has growth in government spending been curbed, but also a new philosophy has emerged in which every program, every use of the people's money, must be justified.

The cuts in growth enacted in 1981 are only the first step, however. There still are vast areas of the federal budget which must be scrutinized and controlled in 1982 and beyond.

Progress has been made in reducing the number of federal regulations. The panel chaired by Vice President Bush has made a good start in identifying regulations which are unnecessary, counter-productive or cost-inefficient. A cooperative effort between the executive and legislative branches of the government in the coming year could yield significant results in the effort to reduce the intrusiveness of government.

Decentralization of crude oil prices in 1981 was a major step toward ending disruptions in the market forces. Decentralization, if allowed to work, encourages production as well as efficient use of fuel. Natural gas controls currently have a negative effect in these same areas, and legislation will be needed next year to deal with this area of counter-productive regulation.

In the area of national defense, several strides in 1981 started to reverse the deteriorating trend in our defense capability. The President's strategic modernization plan, improvements in our readiness capability, military pay and benefit improvements to help keep trained men and women in the service and an improved shipbuilding program were enacted this year.

However, rebuilding our defense capability will take sustained commitment over a period of years. We must be prepared to withstand the almost inevitable pressures from those who wish to protect narrow-interest domestic programs to back off from our rebuilding effort.

During 1982, I expect to see the benefits of the economic recovery program enacted in 1981 to revitalize our economy. Already interest rates are dropping and the inflation rate is out of the double-digit range. There is unfinished business here, too, however. Congress failed to enact all of the domestic budget cuts that were part of the President's economic recovery proposal. Particularly, we must deal with the so-called "entitlement" programs over which Congress has yielded its obligation to control spending levels. This is essential if we are to control the deficit and eventually balance the federal budget. True, long-term economic recovery and renewed prosperity can come only if we are able to tame the deficit monster.

policy. And we knew this would demand great personal sacrifice and suffering for many Americans.

It fell the lot of a Republican president — and a very conservative Republican president at that — to try to turn the country around and head it back toward fiscal sanity. His efforts are causing great anguish as millions of individuals accustomed to receiving a government check each month are forced into an agonizing reappraisal of their future.

For those who may be interested in a brief history refresher, during his 13-year stint in office FDR greatly expanded controls of the central government over business. By an excess profits tax and pyramiding income taxes he produced a redistribution of earnings on an unprecedented scale.

The Wagner Act gave labor advantages in organizing and collective bargaining. This was one of the many laws passed during the FDR years that bore witness to the fact that he never once forgot to grease the liberal political machine that perpetuated him in office.

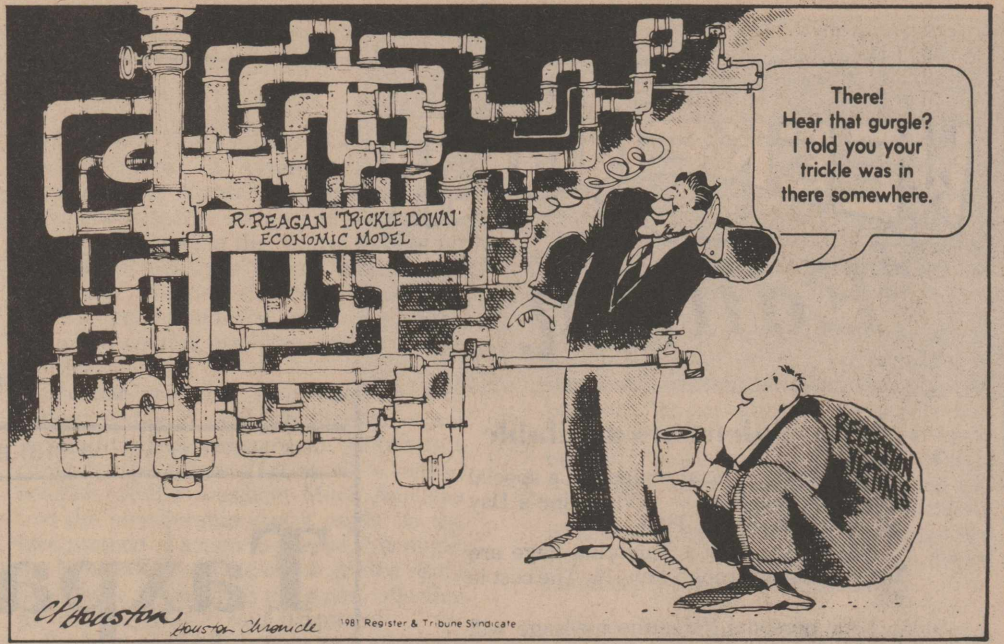

Roosevelt was the past president inaugurated on March 4 (1933 in his case) and the first inaugurated on Jan. 20 (1937 in his case).

The president was a tireless worker and traveler despite his physical handicaps. In August 1921 his legs were paralyzed by polio, but he learned to walk with braces and a cane. As a result of his illness he established the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia for helping other polio victims.

He was the first president to use radio for "fireside chats," said by politicians to have been a strong factor in his political influence.

When the Supreme Court struck down some New Deal laws, an angry Roosevelt sought power to "pack" the court with more justices, but Congress refused to give him the authority. However, court resignations enabled him to replace conservative justices who had opposed him.

FDR was the first president to break the third-term tradition and was elected to a fourth term in 1944, despite failing health. He died at Warm Springs on April 2, 1945, during the height of WW II, the culminating event of his career.

AUSTIN — The credit for the accomplishments and the successes of our state belong to the men and women who worked so hard to make our state what it is today. They met the challenge of building a state that is the best in the nation, and this state and nation stands in debt to them.

Now many of these people face another challenge, that is, successfully continuing life in our great state. Long ago a philosopher made a statement that still holds true today: "To know how to grow old is the master work of wisdom, and one of the most difficult chapters in the great art of living."

Texas has the fifth largest population of older citizens in the nation due to the fact that since 1900 those people over 60 have increased four times as fast as those under 60. Also, in recent years there has been a significant influx of newly retired persons to our state.

We, the 67th session of the Texas Legislature, responded to the concerns of the aging in as many areas as possible. The Texas Department on Aging was created. It is expected to coordinate government and private agency and facility programs, encourage the establishment of Area Agencies on Aging for the development of local level services, sponsor voluntary community rehabilitation and recreational facilities as well as conduct studies on the special problems of aging.

One critical issue addressed by the Legislature relates to the abuse of elderly

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Why do politicians take money?

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassy farm discusses human nature this week, sort of.

Dear editor:

I was reading the letters to the editor in a newspaper the other day and ran across one that asked a question. Why, the writer asked, would a millionaire holding down a big government job paying $60,000 a year with limousine furnished except a thousand-dollar-stuffed envelope when it's against the law?

I know the answer: it's on account of human nature.

The fact that a man has a million dollars doesn't mean he's not interested in picking up more. There's something about cash in hand that

The fact that a man has a million dollars doesn't mean he's not interested in picking up more. There's something about cash in hand that practically all of us find very satisfying. Not all of us however are in a position to get it from under the table, or would take it if the chance arose.

I new a young boy once who, while walking home from school along a dirt road, found a shiny new 50-cent piece. He held it in his hand and admired it happily, feeling like the whole world was on his side.

Then he pitched it forward and walked up and picked it up again, recapturing the fine sensation of spotting a half-dollar on the ground. He did this several times, just for the sheer fun of it.

I don't care how rich a man is, you won't find one who, on spotting a $5 bill on the sidewalk, won't stop to pick it up. It would be a violation of human nature not to. Face it, money is fascinating.

This explains why politicians accept cash handouts in envelopes. Some then put it in an office safe and claim they forgot about it. What they mean is they hope everybody else will forget about it. They're unable to recognize that money under the table is different from a half-dollar found on the way home from school.

Yours faithfully,

J.A.
P.S. I sure enjoyed spending that half-dollar.

R-F Pirates win over Beeville

Rockport-Fulton's Pirates could write a book on how to gain the lead and then lose it in the final seconds of the game, and Tuesday night in Beeville, they nearly wrote another chapter, but fate smiled and Tim Redden fired a desperation shot at the buzzer which hit nothing but net to give the Pirates the narrow victory.

The Pirates held a ten point lead after three quarters, and controlled the lead until eleven seconds remained in the game when the Trojans went ahead after fighting back to erase the Pirate lead. In fact, the Pirates were ahead as much as 16 points with half of the last quarter gone, but Beeville pressed and the Pirates began turning the ball over and over and over to the Trojans. Beeville scored 25 points in the last quarter to erase the Pirates' lead, only to see Redden bomb the winner at the buzzer.

The Pirates jumped ahead in the opening quarter with even scoring by Michael Simmons, Dennis Hull, James Walls, and Redden. After a quarter the Pirates held a lead of 18-11.

Beeville fell further behind in the second period as Walls and Hull combined for 10 points to stake the Pirates to a 34-24 halftime lead.

The third period was played dead-even, with both teams scoring 14 points. The Pirates managed to pick up 10 points in the final frame from the free throw line, but the last three minutes, they missed eight of nine to nearly blow the game.

The win brings the record of the Pirates to 12-8.

Lady Pirates take win over Beeville

Rockport-Fulton's Lady Pirates used a second half surge and some good defense to win their first district game of the year as they defeated Beeville 41-19 in Beeville. The win was a special one because Coach Dennis Gartman will be leaving the school teaching and coaching to enter into the business world with an oil company the middle of January.

Diana Herman and Mona Cowen led the assault for the Lady Pirates who outscored the Lady Trojans 23-7 in the last half as the Lady Pirates picked on an iron-clad defense, especially in the third quarter when Beeville picked up only single point in eight minutes of play. Herman pitched in nine of her thirteen points in the second half, and Cowen had six in each half.

Before the night was over, five other Lady Pirates had scored points: Lee Anna Cassel (5); Lori Register (5); Maggie Kiker, Helen Jenkins, and Missi Krogsgaard all came through with two points each.

Coach Gartman in recalling the game said, "I didn't know if we were ever going to get started or not, but in the second half we got things together."

JV Lady Pirates notch win

The buzzer sounded just in time Tuesday night when the Lady Pirate JV notched a 32-27 win over Beeville in Rockport. The Lady Pirates were ahead by ten points after three quarters, but then they went ice-cold, scoring only two points in the final period as Beeville chopped away at the lead.

By the third quarter, the Lady Pirates had staked themselves to a 30-20 lead behind the shooting of Eleanor Lott (10 points), Jodi Welsch (8), Carolyn Carpenter (6), and Pam Willett (4). Only Willett added any points in the last quarter.

Beeville tried to demolish the ten point difference, but Rockport managed to hold on to outlast Beeville.

Beeville drops Lady Pirate freshmen

Beeville put good back-to-back efforts in the second and third quarters to lead the way to a 38-33 victory over the Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirate Freshmen.

Although Sylvia Ayala poured in 16 points, her effort was not enough to pull the game out for the younger Lady Pirates.

The Pirates had taken the lead in the first quarter, but hot shooting by Beeville allowed them to dissolve a four point lead and then go on to take a three point lead by halftime.

Beeville freshmen humble Pirates

In the game all the way until the final three minutes, the Rockport-Fulton JV couldn't convert the big play to overcome the lead that Beeville had established as the game wore on.

Jay Roberts paced the Pirates with twelve points, popping for eight of Rockport's 17 first-half points.

Rockport's main failure came in the third period when they played only two points. Luckily for the Pirates, the Trojans played poorly in the third period and points, only Scott Russ, Rusty Stovall, and John Longino scored as many as four points. The failure to hit the big basket when the opportunities were there brought on the defeat according to Coach Jim Hatfield. scored only four points for the quarter.

Besides Robert's twelve

JV fall to Beeville

Not accustomed to losing, the Rockport-Fulton Freshmen were dealt a bitter dose of defeat Tuesday night by Beeville, 46-41.

With the exception of Bill Mott's 23 point performance, the Pirates could not get much production from the other players who have been putting points on the scoreboard.

Although the Pirates made a big effort in the fourth period (15 points), the Trojans had stacked up a lead by halftime which held up for the remainder of the game.

By the game's end, besides Mott, only Louis Solis and Trinelle Walls had more than two points on the books. The loss was the second of the year for the Freshmen.

New laws highlight fisheries in 1981

AUSTIN — Enactment of some of the most stringent conservation laws in the state's history highlighted the year for Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fisheries activities during 1981.

One of the most newsworthy happenings of 1981, was the passage of House Bill 1000 by the 67th Legislature. The bill placed a ban on the sale of red drum (redfish) and spotted seatrout (speckled trout) taken from Texas waters.

The law, which went into effect Sept. 1, was supported by the Parks and Wildlife Commission as being necessary to allow a dwindling resource to make a comeback. The ban on sales of trout and redfish may be reviewed by the commission after two years. Meanwhile, sales of redfish produced by licensed fish farmers remain legal, and importation of redfish and trout from outside Texas are allowed if properly packaged and labeled.

While House Bill 1000 concerned mainly the state's commercial fishing interests, some tighter restrictions imposed by the commission affected all fishermen who go after redfish. The minimum length was increased from 14 to 16 inches, and no redfish longer than 30 inches may be retained by fishermen.

New regulations are not the only moves being made to help the beleaguered redfish populations. Increasing efficiency in hatchery production of redfish holds potential for brightening the future through stocking of Texas bays with fingerlings.

During 1981 a portion of the 1.9 million redfish fingerlings produced at the department's marine research station at Palacios were stocked experimentally in St. Charles Bay near Rockport. The rest were stocked in seven freshwater reservoirs.

Also in saltwater developments in 1981, shrimpers enjoyed one of the best seasons in years. Landings of brown shrimp for the year are expected to exceed 45 million pounds. These near-record landings were attributed to favorable environmental conditions as well as to the first-time closure of U.S. waters to shrimping during the period when Texas waters traditionally have been closed. The closure was designed to increase yield by allowing shrimp to grow larger before capture.

Freshwater fisheries activities also were at a fast pace in 1981. Legislation opened the door to the stocking of white amur (grass carp) in Lake Conroe in an effort to control hydrilla and other aquatic vegetation in the reservoir.

From a freshwater fisherman's point of view, the top story of 1981 was a feat accomplished by Richardson resident John Alexander. He caught back-to-back state record largemouth bass in the span of a month, and both from the same lake. He landed a 14-pound, 3 1/2-ounce lunker in Lake Echo on Jan. 10, then followed his own act Feb. 7 with a 15-pound, eight-ounce bass. Lake Echo is a private reservoir near Athens.

The state record for striped bass also fell March 21 when Harry Lamb of Austin caught a 38-pound, four-ounce striper in Lake Austin below the Lake Travis Dam.

Also on the striper front, biologists consider a helping hand by the Trinity River Authority last spring one of their highlights of the year. Faced with low water flows in their traditional brood fish collecting areas, the biologists were invited by the TRA to utilize the stilling basin below the Lake Livingston Dam. The TRA's donation of manpower and equipment made possible the capture of more than 120 mature stripers — enough to produce more than 16 million fry for stocking in Texas lakes.

Research projects initiated in 1981 may bear fruit for anglers in the future. These include investigations of Firehole and red-band trout, orangemouth corvina and blueback herring. The two trout imports are being tested to determine if they have the ability to survive in warmer water temperatures than can be tolerated by hatchery rainbow trout currently being stocked. The orangemouth corvina is a saltwater predator fish being tested for temperature and salinity tolerances. A hardy fish, the corvina is viewed as a possible introduction either to fresh or salt water. The blueback herring is a small species which holds promise as a forage fish for inland lakes which have not been able to maintain adequate populations of native forage such as threadfin shad because of cold water temperatures.

Fishermen in some inland lakes also have new, more restrictive regulations to be aware of as a result of commission action during 1981. Calavaras Lake near San Antonio, and Lake Monticello, the now-famous largemouth bass hotspot near Mount Pleasant, have a new "slot" limit on largemouths. The slot limits are designed to maintain balanced bass populations in the face of heavy fishing pressure.

Worship in Church This Week

CHECK-UP TIME

Periodically my company requires me to have a "physical." My health is too important to them — and to ME — to neglect it.

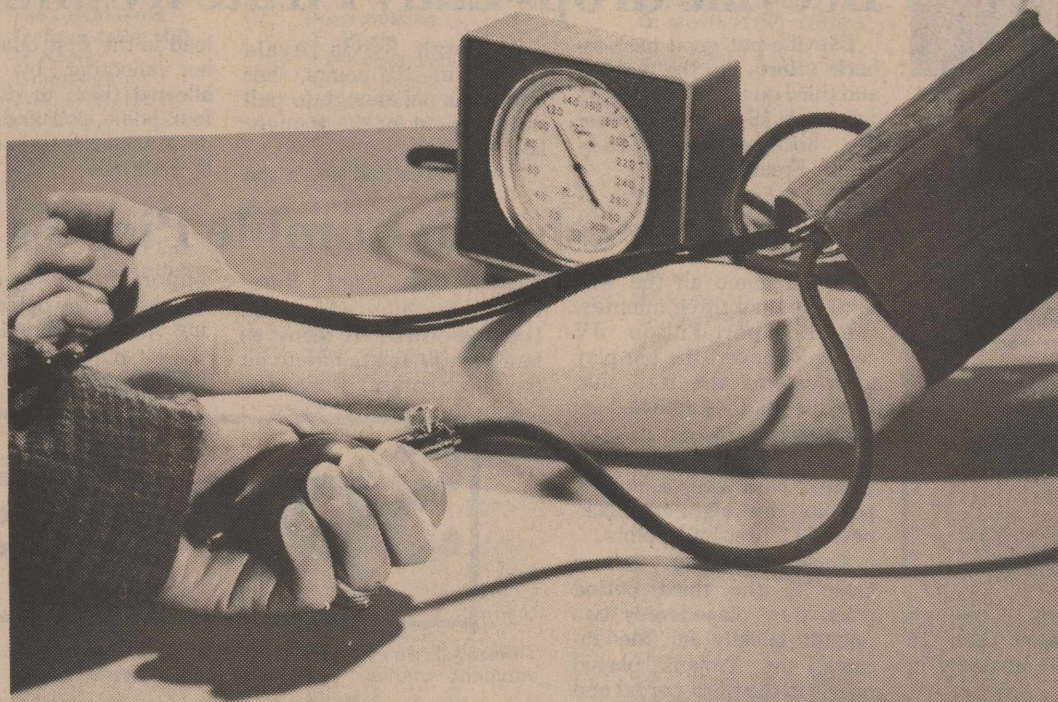

Nobody requires me to have a "spiritual." The world figures rightly that a person's religious vitality is his own business.

Unfortunately, check-up time for our spiritual health is often some unexpected crisis. We learn the hard way that the soul as well as the body must be strong.

Each week brings opportunity for worshipping God, for deepening our religious insights, for cultivating spiritual strength. What our churches and synagogues provide is vital.

First United Methodist Church

I didn't give you a Christmas gift; there are just too many of you out there for me to give to and I don't have the money to do so. But, I'm here on the coldest day in a long time thinking about you and what I could do for you for a New Year's gift.

I don't even know how many of you there are out there readers. I mean. Come to think of it I have never heard a comment good or bad or anything written by any of us pastors in this "religious" section of the paper.

I occasionally look in to see what the other reverends have written and by and large it is interesting and readable. Although, I must say, it is always a little churchy and preachy! I guess that's a characteristic we all have. Give us the space and we can all come up with a sermon.

So instead of a sermon, I'm going to give you the names of three books I have recently read and that I recommend. One is written by a Catholic, one by an Episcopalian and the other by a psychiatrist and I don't know his church. All the books are about love. That's something we need more of, love.

The first book is by John Powell. "The Secret of Staying in Love". It's about staying in communication in the marriage relationship. It's about sharing feelings and the day to day maintenance of love for each other. It also has some practical suggestions about how to do this.

The second book is "Caring" by Morton T. Kelsey. The first five chapters talk about love in general; the next seven describe certain specific situations such as "Loving Those Who Love Us", "Loving the Stranger", "Love in Social Action", "Love, Sex and Christianity", etc.

The last book is an older one by Erich Fromm, "The Art of Loving". The book is divided into two main sections: the theory and the practice of loving. Fromm states that like any art, loving requires discipline and practice.

Go over to the library and read one of these books. It's my New Year's gift to you.

Funerals and deaths

DeWitt Kinard

Funeral services for DeWitt Kinard, 73, were conducted at 3 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14 in the Marshall Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was Friday in the State Cemetery in Austin.

Mr. Kinard died Tuesday, Jan. 12. He had been a Rockport resident for the past five years. He was a member of the First Methodist Church of Rockport, the Rockport Sailing Club and the Key Allegro Men's Club. He served in the U.S. Navy in World War II and had served three terms in the Texas House of Representatives, in the 46th, 47th and 48th Legislatures. A native of Port Arthur, he was in the real estate business there and in Orange for 40 years.

Survivors include his wife, Marguerite; two sons, Stuart Kinard of Salado and Brent Kinard of Round Rock and three grandchildren.

Clarence E. Gambill

Funeral services for Clarence E. Gambill, 77, were conducted at 1 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15 in the Marshall Funeral Home Chapel.

Mr. Gambill died at his home on Jan. 11. He was born in Linton, Ind. and had lived in Rockport for 40 years. He was a transport driver for Aransas Butane. He had served two terms in the Army, from 1923-26 and 1929-34.

He is survived by two brothers, Raymond A. Gambill of Terre Haute, Ind. and Lloyd Gambill of Vicksburg, Ind.; two sisters, Reba Cox of Vicksburg, Ind. and Rena Hotel of Vicksburg, Ind.; 11 nieces and nephews.

Carrie T. Clawson

ARANSAS PASS — Graveside services for Mrs. Carrie T. Clawson, 95, were conducted at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 12 at Rose Hill Cemetery in Corpus Christi with the Rev. Don Delaplain officiating.

Mrs. Clawson died Sunday morning in an Aransas Pass hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was a housewife and had been a resident of Aransas Pass for the past 35 years. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star and of the Rebekah Lodge in Jet, Oklahoma.

Survivors include two sons, S.T. Clawson of Mathis and Kenneth Clawson of Corpus Christi; eight grandchildren, 21 great-grandchildren.

Marshall Funeral Home in Aransas Pass was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

COA has bright idea

Looking out for light may save life

The Aransas County Council on Aging has developed a "bright" idea to help solve a common problem among elderly people.

Many local elderly people live alone and if they become sick or hurt, they have no way to let people know.

According to Gwen Gonyea, director of COA, the council is urging these people to turn on their outdoor door light when going to bed. In the morning, the light should be turned off when they get up. Says Gonyea, "people checking on the house and seeing the outdoor light on will know that the resident inside wasn't well enough to get up and turn it off."

Gonyea says that such a system is necessary, especially during the harsh winter cold spells lately. The council director cited recent cases of three local elderly people who became ill because of the hard freeze of last weekend and couldn't reach anyone for help quickly.

"This happens more often than it should," she said. "With this new idea, we're hoping all local residents start keeping an eye out for front door lights left on during the day."

Gonyea's message to the community is "Look out, you might be instrumental in saving a life."

Von Heuvel and Gaskamp marry

Sandy Von Heuvel and Dennis Gaskamp, both formerly of Rockport, were united in marriage, Oct. 17 in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Charles Fake officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Von Heuvel of Rockport and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gaskamp of Brenham.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of white with an Alencon lace bodice forming a Queen Anne neckline. The empire waistline fell to a white pleated flounce with a lace border, which went around to form a cathedral train. The sleeves of the gown were sheer, bishop-style of Alencon lace.

The bride wore a veil falling from an Alencon lace-covered cap with lace trim. Her bouquet was a small nosegay with red and white roses, pink carnations and baby's breath.

Maid of honor Karen Von Heuvel and bridesmaids Dee Drews, Luanne Sammons,

Janet Schenpp and Carol Gaskamp wore long dresses of burgundy with a pink sheer jacket. They each carried two red roses with baby's breath and each wore baby's breath in their hair.

Best man was Thomas Baldaras and groomsmen were Mark Gaskamp, Rickey Gaskamp, Eddie Bradley, Robert Bruce Kilpatrick and Gerald Schulze.

Jennifer Hutson was flower girl and Andy Youngblood was ringbearer. Ushers were Norman Von Heuvel, Michael Von Heuvel, Robert Jeske and David Reue.

Soloist for the ceremony was Jimmie Sue Jones, who sang "Evergreen" and "The Lord's Prayer."

A reception was held after the wedding at the VFW

Hall. A buffet meal was served and included turkey and ham, Swedish meatballs and boiled shrimp.

The couple, following their honeymoon to Puerto Vallarta, returned to make their home in Corpus Christi. The groom is employed by Athena Cablevision and the bride is a switchboard operator for American Bank.

Bon Appetit

by Ann Thomas

With the temperatures in the 30s and 40s, it seems to be a good time to offer a few chili recipes. All of us are aware of the jealousy with which individuals guard their chili recipes so it is with some degree of apology that these are printed, since they are just ordinary, and not at all what could be called coveted. However, they are good and you will probably enjoy them as much as though they were.

HOT CHILI

This comes to us from Pat Jones of Calhoun, Ga., via Southern Living magazine.

4 lbs. ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced

1 t. oregano
6 T. chili powder
1 t. ground cumin
1 T. salt
2 (10 oz.) cans tomatoes green chilies
2 c. hot water.
Combine meat, onion, and garlic in a large skillet. Cook until meat is lightly browned. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour, skimming off grease. Yields 8-10 servings.

JACK'S CHILI

This is from some old recipes cut from a newspaper in West Texas years ago.

3 lbs. chili meat
1/4 c. chili powder (that's right . . . cup)
3 T. paprika
1/4 t. black pepper
1 pod dried pepper, dried and cut fine
1 1/2 t. salt
1 1/2 t. cumin seed
6 small pieces garlic, chopped fine
1 sm. can tomato sauce
Sear the meat and leave in it's own juice. Add other ingredients and simmer 2-3 hr. Do not let scorch.

CHILI CON CARNE

This recipe is for those of you who want to put your crook pots to use. It will take

5-7 hr. cooking time.
1 lb. lean chuck or hamburger
1 c. chopped onion
1 large minced garlic pod
1 t. oregano
1/4 t. black pepper
1 t. ground cumin
1 1/2 T. chili powder
1/2 t. salt
1 - 7 1/2 oz. can whole tomatoes
2/3 c. drained red kidney beans
4 c. hot cooked rice
To Cook: Place all the ingredients except the rice in the cooker. Cover and cook on Low for 5 to 7 hours. Before serving: If the sauce seems thin after cooking is finished, pour it into a small skillet and simmer over medium heat until thick. Pour over the chili and serve with hot cooked rice on the side. Yields 6 servings.

RICH TEXAN CHILI con FRIJOLES

This recipe comes from a native Houstonian and does its title justice.

2 T. veg. oil
2 lb. lean beef, chopped into very small cubes
2 cloves garlic, chopped
6 T. chili powder
2 t. ground cumin
2 T. flour

2 t. oregano
1 - 13 3/4 oz. can beef broth
1 - 1 lb. can stewed tomatoes
1/4 t. pepper
1 - 15 oz. can pinto beans, drained

Heat the oil in a large heavy pot. Add the beef and cook, stirring until no longer pink. Lower the heat. Stir in garlic, sprinkle chili powder, cumin, and flour over meat.

Stir for about 30 seconds. Add beef broth and stewed tomatoes and stir until liquid is well blended. Season with salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Reduce heat and simmer, partially covered, over low heat about 1 1/2 hours, or until the meat is tender. Add beans and cook a final 15 to 20 minutes. If you wish to make it look and taste even more special, squeeze lime juice over slices of avocado, put a dollop of sour cream on the bowl of chili and the avocado in the center. Serves eight.

Hope you enjoy these recipes and join us next week, won't you? Until then . . . Bon Appetit!

[Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition]
By Jean Glowka

Q. What's the difference between niacin and niacinamide (if any)? And what are they both good for?

A. Niacin is a member of the B-complex family. Large doses, usually 100 mg. or more, may cause tingling and itching sensations and intense flushing of the skin — this is not considered dangerous and passes in about 15 minutes. By taking the synthetic form of niacin, niacinamide, a person gets all the benefits of niacin without the side effects. Only 2 disturbances, acne and migraine headache, do not respond as well to niacinamide as to niacin.

Niacin (or niacinamide) appears to be beneficial for atherosclerosis, vertigo, deafness, high blood pressure, diarrhea, indigestion, schizophrenia and other mental problems. There has also been some research done indicating that niacinamide may be a factor in preventing cancer, due to enzyme regulation which protects normal cells and prevents their becoming malignant.

Individual needs for niacin vary, but nutritionists recommend from 40 to 100 mg. daily. Rich food sources of niacin are lean meats, poultry, fish, peanuts, brewer's yeast, wheat germ and disiccated liver. An amino acid, tryptophan, can be converted to niacin by the body — 60 mg. of tryptophan yields 1 mg. of niacin.

Remember that when we take one B vitamin, we need to back it up with the complete B-complex, and/or a good natural source of B's such as brewer's yeast.

Q. What's good for bloodshot eyes?

A. The most common cause of bloodshot eyes is a vitamin B2 deficiency. However, this condition can also be a result of a deficiency of vitamin B-6 or any one of several amino acids (the "building blocks" of protein).

Until next week, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Commissioners okay penalty for overdue taxes

A 15 percent penalty charge will be added to all delinquent tax bills as a result of approval by the Aransas County Commissioners in their first meeting of the year, held Jan. 11. The charge will enable the county to pay the fee for the delinquent tax attorney hired to collect these overdue bills.

This and two other tax office items were acted upon by commissioners in addition to their vote on a bingo election and their approval of the 1982 budget for the county. (See Pilot Midweek)

Other action during Monday's meeting included votes setting the rates for the county garbage compactor and the completion of an application for the purchase of juvenile services.

Tas Assessor-Collector Allena Jones was present at the meeting and she and County Judge John D. Wendell explained to the commissioners that a recent legislative act made it possible for the county commissioners to authorize the 15 percent penalty to cover legal fees for delinquent tax attorneys. Saying "If we have to hire a lawyer to get the taxes out of those people, they should pay for it," Wendell approved of the vote of the commissioners to do so.

Wendell then read a letter to the commissioners that had been sent to Jones from one Donald W. Ragin, an Aransas County property owner living out of town. Ragin wrote that he had received a letter from delinquent tax attorneys Calame and Linebarger, the firm hired by Aransas County.

According to Ragin's letter, the firm claimed he had not paid his delinquent taxes. Ragin, claiming that he had, made a trip to Rockport and went to Jones' office, where he claimed Jones could not find his files and indicated to him that the problem was the fault of the commissioners who allegedly would not give her extra help for her office.

Wendell then read Jones' letter of reply, and Jones herself explained to the court that Ragin's letter contained falsehoods and that he, according to Jones, had been rude and uncooperative. She wrote that she hadn't made the statement about the commissioners that Ragin claimed she had. Included in her reply was her statement to Ragin that he wouldn't have had this problem if he had paid his taxes on time to begin with.

Wendell told the commissioners that the letters were read to them for their information, no action was necessary, but he felt that they should be aware of the situation.

Jones then spoke to the commissioners, explaining that in April and May, she expected a heavy work load due to the fact that new license plates would be handed out. In light of the extra work entailed, Jones asked the commissioners for $3,000 to pay for the hiring of part time help during this time and in October.

Commissioner J.M. Sprigle indicated to Jones that he felt she did not need the help, saying, "We all have times when we have more work than usual, but I don't see how a few extra steps to pick up a license plate justifies hiring extra help."

Commissioner John Lee agreed with Sprigle, saying, "In a business, you've got slow times and other times when you have to pull together and work harder." The item died for lack of a motion and no action was taken on it.

In other action, the judge informed the commissioners of the possibility of a Council of Governments grant for $3,300 to purchase juvenile services for the county, including equipment and paid sitters. Wendell told the commissioners that he had filed for the grant without asking and needed their approval. Approval was given.

In related action, the commissioners agreed to pay the juvenile officer's salary at a rate of $200 per month. Wendell explained that no full time juvenile officer was needed for Aransas County and that the adult probation officer was doubling as the juvenile officer.

In the discussion of the correct rate to be charged for the garbage compactor station, a matter having been discussed at the past three court sessions, a decision was made to set the rate at two cents per gallon or $2 per cubic yard for loose garbage. "We can't make any money off this," said Commissioner Peter Sanders, "we just want to break even." Agreement was made to commission a sign, stating the rates and regulations, for the compactor station.

A salary grievance committee was appointed by the commissioners and will consist of Roy W. Ohlrich, Janet McGlasson, Charles Boone and alternate Harold DePuma.

In other action, Sanders requested permission to go on private property with county equipment for the purpose of obtaining rip rap material for the beach. Sanders explained that the owner of a house to be torn down had offered the concrete and brick material to the county. Approval was given.

In other action, the court gave permission to American Drilling Corporation to conduct a seismographic study along part of the 881 right-of-way.

Police report

Five thefts keep police busy

Five thefts and burglaries kept Rockport busy this past week and resulted in the loss of almost $1,000 in money and property.

Household items including furniture, towels, blankets, dishes, flatware and cooking utensils were taken when Robert W. Shook's residence at Oleander Courts was burglarized.

The incident occurred between noon and 1 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10, and the missing items totalled around $275 in value.

Also valued at $275 was the 35 millimeter camera taken from Compass Printing Tuesday, Jan. 12, between 2 and 6:30 p.m. The theft was reported by owner Carl Hoyt.

An electric lawn mower and cord valued at $160 were taken from the yard of H. Marie Williams, 515 Magnolia, about 1:35 a.m. Monday.

Cash — an estimated $118 — was reported taken from a cash register at Jackson Seafood Warehouse. That theft occurred between 8:30 a.m. Tuesday and 9 a.m. Wednesday.

And about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, $10 in cash, food-stamps and miscellaneous personal items were taken when a car belonging to Louanne Arispe was burglarized in the parking lot of a local grocery store.

Police said the vehicle was unlocked at the time.

Intoxication

Police made three arrests during the week on charges of public intoxication. One of the persons arrested was also charged with disorderly conduct.

Sheriff's report

Construction site theft solved

Theft of two batteries and an aluminum ladder from the Reynolds Metal job site near Redfish Camp was solved within hours after the theft was committed Monday, Jan. 11.

The theft occurred about 4 a.m. when thieves entered the job site just off FM 1069. The batteries were taken from two trucks at the site, one of which was allegedly used to knock down a gate then free the thieves' car after it became stuck in a ditch.

Investigating officer Doug Carroll reported the subjects were found and given an opportunity to make restitution of the stolen items — valued at $240. Carroll added that restitution was made and the case closed.

Jewelry taken

Sue Waugh reported a gold cross and chain valued at $350 were taken sometime since Dec. 23. Theft was reported on Jan. 1.

Criminal mischief

Ruth Marten told deputies someone damaged the hood of her car while it was in the parking lot of the Canoe Club, where she is employed, between 6 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 9 and 1 a.m. Sunday.

No estimate was given on the amount of damage.

Two accidents reported

Two accidents were reported in Rockport this week, resulting in one traffic citation being issued but no injuries.

The ticket was issued to Ricky Lynn Littleton of Fulton following a collision at the intersection of Ann and Liberty about 8:05 a.m. Thursday.

Police said Littleton, turning from Liberty onto Ann, entered the path of a vehicle driven by Mary Ellen Montemayor of Rockport, Littleton was cited for making an improper turn.

In an accident earlier in the week, a car driven by Richard Lilly of Rockport was in collision with a vehicle driven by Linda Jean Simmons, also of Rockport, as Lilly was pulling onto Bronte from a parking lot.

That accident occurred about 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Johnson named Todd-Moore president

Charles A. "Mike" Johnson has been named president of Todd-Moore Properties, Inc. The appointment was announced by Harvin C. Moore, Jr., and Tyler D. Todd—owners of the Houston-based commercial and investment property development firm.

Previously executive vice president for Todd-Moore Properties, Johnson joined the company in 1979. Prior to that he was a project manager for Gerald D. Hines Interests, and earlier was an architect for three major Houston architecture firms.

Johnson is a native of Rockport, Texas, and a graduate of Texas A&M University.

Todd-Moore Properties, Inc. is a subsidiary of the Houston-based real estate development firm of Village Developers Inc. Other projects by the company include the Corporate Plaza office complex in southwest Houston; Richard Park/Westchase, 10800 Richmond Avenue; the Pinecreek One office building in Conroe; and the restoration/conservation of the original Houston National Bank Building in downtown Houston.

with the exception of a mallard which was used on the 1981-82 stamp.

Coastal Bend Construction building
a good reputation

Dennis Donnelly

"When people call me they know that I supervise the job and I do a lot of the work myself," says Coastal Bend Construction's Dennis Donnelly.

Donnelly who has been self-employed in the building business for 12 years, began his business in Rockport nearly two years ago, after moving here from the Houston area.

Specializing in concrete work, such as bulkheads and seawalls, as well as wooden docks, Donnelly says, "I can build anything." His jobs have ranged from the small vacation cottages he builds to large $500,000 projects. His success is evidenced by the fact that nearly 90 percent of this work comes from referrals and word of mouth from satisfied customers. Coastal Bend Construction has completed jobs from Ingleside to Holiday Beach. Donnelly's crew ranges in size, depending on the time of year, from seven to 15. About half of his jobs are commercial, with the remainder being residential-type projects. He has also done work for the county.

"I'm very competitively priced and my materials are high quality. I'm not the cheapest builder, but I don't want to be known as the cheapest," says Donnelly. "I've built a good reputation and can furnish anyone with a lot of local references from realtors, to builders to satisfied home owners."

Ehrlich print will be Winter Carnival prize

The print these three Fulton Elementary fourth-graders are showing off is by Jack Ehrlich. This well-known portrait of the Fulton Mansion is the prize in a drawing to be held on Feb. 20 at the school's annual Winter Carnival. Tickets for the drawing can be purchased for $1 from any Fulton Elementary mother or at the door on Winter Carnival night. Students shown with the print here are [l to r] Julie Daly of Rockport, Shawn Stanley of Fulton and Angela Huffmeyer of Rockport.

[Phot by Becky Werhan]

Fifteen graduate in winter commencement

Fifteen seniors graduated from Rockport-Fulton High School in winter commencement exercises held Friday evening, Jan. 15 in the school auditorium.

Erica Katherine Arkell, Leslie Marie Boling, Diana Estella Cline, Donna Lynn Garcia, Donna Denise Hall, Hilda Pae Harris, Charlene Marie Harrison and Lorrie Ann Horton graduated during the ceremonies.

Also receiving their diplomas during the ceremony were Susan Gayle Lauderdale, Dana Fay James, Denise Renee Johnson, Yolanda Mora, Heidi Katrine Potter, John Anthony Scott and Sheryl Ann Wells.

The graduation ceremony began with a processional by Wanda J. Lynn. Charlene Marie Harrison gave the pledge of allegiance and the invocation.

The Rockport-Fulton Choir Ensemble, under the direction of Martha Luigi sang prior to the commencement address given by the Rev. Charles Fake.

School Superintendent Joe Randow certified the fifteen graduates. Certification was followed by the presentation of diplomas by school board president Ottie Mundine.

Diana Estella Cline gave the benediction, which was followed with the recessional by Wanda J. Lynn.

contract. Metzner went to the membership of ACTA, as he had told the school board he would, and asked for permission to proceed with an investigation.

At the ACTA meeting on Tuesday, Brennan spoke first, informing members of the progress in the Navigation District investigation. "Patience is the virtue," said Brennan, who indicated that much paperwork had yet to be done before the investigation could move along. Accounting for part of the delay is the fact that attorney Martin was involved in a serious boating accident on New Year's Eve. Brennan asked for the patience of the membership and assured them that he would have more news at their next meeting, Feb. 9.

Brennan said he felt certain there was a substantial amount of evidence of wrongdoing for a lawsuit. "They (Navigation District) seem to exhibit a complete disregard for anybody's law but their own," he told the membership. Referring to the Navigation District meeting of Jan. 5, Brennan called it a display of "buffoonery and a sad situation."

Brennan, who is ACTA's issues chairman, told the members that he and Faber had met with County Judge John Wendell several times in reference to their investigation. Wendell had explained the Navigation District set up and the various changes occurring in the control system for the district over the years. According to Brennan, Wendell indicated that the county commissioners may not have complete control over the actions of the district.

Brennan said that Tom Martin was at present trying to establish whether or not navigation commissioners are subject to a recall by the voters. If a recall is indeed possible, ACTA president Mitch Ammons told the membership that it might be the best method of action to pursue. "It might not be as sweet of a victory to go to a recall but maybe it would be more cost effective for the taxpayer," said Ammons.

Brennan ended his report and asked for "a re-affirmation" from the membership to go on with the investigation, pledging to keep all communication from the attorney open to the membership. The members voted to continue with the probe.

James Metzner reported to the members his actions at Monday night's school board meeting (See Pilot Midweek) and explained that he had made his presentation to the board as an individual, not representing ACTA. He told the members he now wanted to pursue an investigation under the auspices of ACTA, as he had indicated he would if the board ignored his request, which they did.

Reviewing his charges against the school district, Metzner called their handling of the bond election funding the building program "an outright lie." He said he had seen four different versions of the same budget, "none of which jibed." Other complaints against the board included the taking of the minutes by Randow, violations of the Texas Open Meetings Act and "complete disregard" for the TASB handbook rules, alleged Metzner.

He explained that he wanted to enlist the aid of a private lawyer, not at the expense of ACTA, and the county judge. Another mode of action to be employed by Metzner includes calling TASB and TEA and asking for a complete investigation of the board by these agencies. The membership of ACTA approved Metzner's request and he promised to report on the progress at the next meeting.

left over from the federal pier construction grant to fund construction of the bait stand. Although a bait stand was not mentioned in the original grant application, officials said they would seek an amendment to allow the facility.

City officials say the bait stand is planned in order to pay the costs of lighting on the 1,000-foot-long public pier — and to have someone on the premises to discourage vandalism. The operator of the pier would be determined possibly through bids submitted to the city.

Another bait stand owner, Jack Bohn, suggested that the city might charge a fee for people to use the pier. City officials have said they want use of the fishing pier to be free to the public and Bohn said, "I like the idea of a free pier. But in this day and age, I think people wouldn't object to paying to fish. I like the free pier idea, but whether the city can afford it is the thought."

Holman said he would be willing to pay for the lighting of the pier himself "as a service to the city" but objected to another bait stand being located in the area.

"I think the bait stand would create a hardship for the others there," Holman said. He urged the city to seek another way to pay for the lighting, saying, "I feel a more innovative way can be found."

Another man at the meeting, John Dyer, suggested that the city meter the lights on the pier. "Put a 25-cent meter for a man to use the lights he wants to use," Dyer said. "If I come fishing, it won't hurt me at all to put quarters in there."

In other action in Tuesday's meeting, the council voted Alderwoman Pat Loflin assistant city secretary to handle the city secretary's duties when Mrs. Tilden is away. Mrs. Loflin has served in Mrs. Tilden's absence in the past but has not had the title.

County Commissioner Pete Sanders

appeared before the council to discuss drainage problems in the city and said he would work with the city in solving those problems. "I don't know," Sanders said, "but I suspect our drainage ditches (in Fulton's Pct. 3) are actually below the water table."

In another item relating to the pier, the council voted to investigate prices and programs for liability insurance on the facility.

Lee suggested that the council take no action on the request of the Fulton Cemetery Association for a donation from the city. "Since there is no formal organization to donate to," Lee said, "I don't believe the city can commit public funds to the purpose."

In an unscheduled item, Leslie Cole, chairman of the upcoming Oysterfest III, March 5-7, appeared before the council to invite everyone at Tuesday's meeting to the upcoming event.

Traffic accidents up in Rockport in 1981

Traffic accidents in Rockport during 1981 took an increase over the previous year, 188 compared to 152 accidents for the 12 months of 1980.

That was according to the police report presented by Chief Joe Hinojosa to Rockport's city council Monday night at City Hall.

Hinojosa added that accidents during the month of December were down slightly from December of the prior year, 12 for 1981 compared to 14 during December, 1980. City police officers issued 25 traffic citations for the past month.

Arrests during December, '81, totalled 23 with 11 of those for drunk in public and four driving while under the influence. Police also made one arrest on a charge of attempted murder.

Other arrests during the month included two for simple assault, four on warrants and one each on charges of disorderly conduct, theft and unlawful carrying a weapon.

Driving without a license led the reasons for traffic tickets during the month, with eight citations issued on that offense. Another seven tickets were issued for driving with expired license plates and one for an expired driver's license. Two tickets were issued for violation of driver's license restrictions.

Police issued two citations during the month for operating an unregistered motor vehicle and one for excessive noise.

Other tickets included five for following too closely and one each for changing lanes unsafely, disobeying a stop sign, improper start, improper right turn, speeding,

"exhibition of acceleration" and driving the wrong way on a one-way road.

A ticket was also issued to a driver for having fictitious license plates and another for defective turn signals.

Police made 663 property checks during the month and responded to 83 alarms.

They were called to assist the county 14 times, responded to two fire calls and served as funeral escort seven times.

There were 18 calls of family disturbances, eight prowler calls, one runaway, one animal call and one emergency message.

25 dogs, cats impounded in December

Twenty-five animals — 23 dogs and two cats — were impounded in Rockport's city pound during December, according to the animal control report presented to the city council last Monday night.

Animal Control Officer Dick MacMurphy reported that 16 dogs were returned to their owners or adopted during the month and four dogs were destroyed because of injury or sickness.

MacMurphy issued nine warnings, no citations, during the month and logged 838 miles. The animal control department received 97 calls.

MacMurphy added that no dog bites were reported during the month.

The city pound was inspected by an official from the State of Texas Board of Health on Dec. 17 and passed, MacMurphy said, with only one "very minor repair" of loose wiring on the bottom of some cages being needed.

Social Security representative to visit

A representative of the Social Security Administration will be at the Court-house in Rockport on Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 9 a.m.

The representative will answer questions and help claimants file applications for the regular Social Security benefit payments as well as for Supplemental Security Income benefits.

Corps of Engineers special notice

The Galveston District of the Corps of Engineers has in the past required permittees to post bonds to cover activities related to oil exploration and/or development in waters of the United States within Galveston District boundaries.

Inquiries for additional information should be referred to Mr. Marcos De La Rosa at 713-766-3930.
