Some observers have noted from time to time that humanity might better be served if, instead of wars, nations could engage in contests of a different nature, perhaps on the football or soccer field, or even in the boxing ring.

By the same token, communities sometimes find it profitbale to engage in friendly competition above and beyond their school athletic programs. Snyder and Sweetwater Chambers of Commerce hope it works out that way in their contest for new members. The contest will be concluded by Oct. 22, the date of the Snyder-Sweetwater football game in Sweetwater. Not only will the "Losers" be hosts to the "winners" for dinner that evening, but even more attractive incentives are involved. The 10 top membership-getters from each city and their wives and-or husbands will get a special trip to see the Dallas Cowboys and the New York Giants play football at Texas Stadium.

Both organizations doubt that there will actually be any losers in this contest. Off hand, we would say that Snyder should win it. The local Chamber of Commerce has not conducted a full-scale drive for new members in some time, and the potential is tremendous.

★ ★ ★

Our Chamber, now that it is firmly established in its new permanent home and various business concerns, civic organizations and individuals have learned where it is, should be on the threshold of a new era of achievement. But active members are needed to give it the necessary strength to perform. It is amazing how much has been accomplished by so few. It makes you wonder how much could be done with a multitude involved.

September is gone, October is here, and the Governor's Office on Physical Fitness has reminded that this is National Jogging Month. National Jogging Day is set for next Saturday, Oct. 9. Moreover, they have asked us to report on participation here. At least 600,000 school aged youth are definitely involved in the program, but they want adults to participate, and any who do so and wish to have their participation duly recorded are asked to sign a statement such as, "I am aware of and assume full responsibility for my personal well-being as a participant in this jogging event."

The objective, of course, is physical fitness. Many of us have a tendency to consider jogging something for the younger generation. The old SDNer manages to get in a session of walking occasionally, but little or no jogging. But perhaps he'll try it for a few moments on National Jogging Day.—WACIL McNAIR.

SNYDER..... LAND OF OIL AND INDUSTRIES

BLACKSMITH.—Homer Merritt rests his hand on a drill press in the blacksmith shop of the Scurry County Museum during a recent visit. Merritt still operates his own blacksmith shop near Snyder.

Museum Stirs Memories Of Veteran Blacksmith

Homer Merritt, who celebrated his 81st birthday last July, felt right at home when he visited the Scurry County Museum recently.

He sat in a buggy that was a lot like the one he drove when he went courting Miss Fleeta Mathews more than 60 years ago. Nearby is the counter from the Fluvanna First State Bank which was in business in 1907 when Merritt made his first deposit at Snyder National Bank at the age of 12.

But the most familiar sight to Merritt was the replica of a blacksmith shop set up inside the museum's permanent exhibit gallery. Merritt has been a blacksmith for the past 68 years, and is now, by his own description, the "sole owner, manager and operator" of the R.H. Merritt Blacksmith shop west of town on the Lamesa highway.

"I'm not stretching it any when I say I stood on a box to pump the bellows in a blacksmith shop when I was seven," Merritt says. He was 10 when he undertook his first project in the shop. He fashioned a stove cap lifter from a horse shoe, and he remembers clearly just how he shaped it. (For those not familiar with stove cap lifters, a word of explanation: the wood or coal burning range had circular caps which were removed so fuel could be added. The lifter slipped into a slot so the cap could be moved when necessary.)

"That lifter was the most valuable thing I ever made that wasn't worth a dime," Merritt says. It was given to a neighbor who used it for many years. She liked it because it was shaped so that she never burned her hands on the hot range and she valued it highly.

Merritt was born near Mansfield and moved to Scurry County with his family when he was about 10. He was the first mechanical-minded Merritt he knew of, he said, since most of his ancestors were farmers.

Merritt and Fleeta Mathews were married in Ira on March 12, 1916, and have made their home in or near Snyder most of the time since then.

Merritt praised the museum's blacksmith shop for its authenticity. John Portis, who has been responsible for most of the planning and construction on the shop, was raised around a blacksmith shop and has duplicated the old shops he knew as closely as possible. Merritt fingered the coal in the forge appreciatively, and gave the wheel on the hand-powered drill press an experimental whirl.

"I made thousands of holes with one of these about 1920," he said. Burglar bars were being put on the Bryant-Link Store building on the west side of the courthouse square, and it was easier to have the holes for the screws drilled at the blacksmith shop than to drill them on the site.

The drill press was a gift to the museum from Martin Murphy, along with several tools and the anvil where "Smitty," the museum's resident smith, works steadily. Murphy's father used them in his own farm workshop.

Merritt also eyed the brands burned into the blacksmith shop's walls appreciatively. He was one of those who couldn't get his branding iron to the museum in time for the branding held Sept. 25, but he plans to bring one in later.

Dedication ceremonies for the museum building are planned on Oct. 10 and the public is invited to attend and to tour the building during the afternoon. The museum is to be open on the following Sundays in October and is open on week days.

Murray Speaker For Dedication

Dr. Grover E. Murray, past president of Texas Tech University, will be guest speaker at dedication ceremonies for the Scurry County Museum and the Edith Whatley McKanna Memorial Garden on Oct. 10, Ernest Sears, president of the Scurry County Museum Association, has announced.

The dedication program is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. at the museum building on the campus of Western Texas College, and the program will be followed by tours of the museum.

Dr. Murray was the eighth president of Texas Tech University and the first president of the Texas Tech University School of Medicine. He is serving his second six-year term on the National Science Board, the governing body for the National Science Foundation.

Before coming to Texas Tech University in the fall of 1966, he was vice president for academic affairs at Louisiana State University, where he received his Ph. D. degree in 1942 and his master of science degree in 1939. He had earned the bachelor of science degree from the University of North Carolina in 1937.

Dr. Murray has held high committee assignments and offices in the Geological Society of America, the Society of Paleontologists and Mineralogists, the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, the American Commission on Stratigraphic Nomenclature, Gulf University's Research Corporation and the Gulf Coast Association of Geological Societies.

Upon his resignation as president of Texas Tech on Aug. 31, 1976, he was appointed by the regents as a university professor with teaching and research assignments in the University and the School of Medicine.

Of higher education, Dr. Murray has said, "Basically a college or university can do one thing: teach its students to think, and in doing this give permanent stimulation to their curiosity so they may continue to learn."

Hundreds Are Killed As Hurricane Rakes La Paz

LA PAZ, Mexico (AP) — Mexican troops dug victims of Hurricane Lize out of the mud and buried them in mass graves today after 100-mile-per-hour winds slashed across the Baja California peninsula. Officials said the storm killed at least 630 persons.

"We think the number of deaths could reach 1,000. We urgently need clothing, medicine and food. The situation is very grave. There are many people still buried in the mud. It's frightening," a spokesman for the governor's office, Rogelio Felix, said.

Heavy rains from the hurricane burst a 30-foot-high dam just outside this desert-area resort city, sending a wall of water and mud over a shanty town where 10,000 people lived, thousands of them in cardboard shacks. Some of the shacks were swept as far as six miles, a spokesman for the governor's office said.

Many of the deaths occurred because the residents of the shanty town either did not hear or did not heed warnings to take shelter in public buildings, a spokesman for the La Paz mayor's office said.

An official at the port captain's office, Balazar Vuelna, said the known death toll of 630 did not include victims found by Mexican troops who were helping "dig up bodies which they are now burying, most of them in common graves."

An airlift of food, blankets and medicine got under way shortly before dawn. Rescue supplies were also brought in by navy ships.

Felix said that "an enormous blanket of mud" covered the area below where the dam broke along the Cajoncito River outside La Paz, devastating the shanty town.

After inspecting the damage, Mexican President Luis Echeverria early today ordered emergency aid sent to La Paz and other coastal communities including Ciudad Obregon, Los Mochis and three ports in Sonora state.

94th Congress Ends Its 2-Year Wrangle

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The heavily Democratic 94th Congress has closed up shop after spending much of its two-year life wrangling with President Ford over taxes and spending.

One of its last major actions was the passage of a massive tax revision bill that extends through Dec. 31, 1977, individual and anti-recession tax cuts amounting to about $19 billion a year. Ford wanted a $28 billion cut.

Congress said the government should spend no more than $413 billion in the coming year. Ford wanted a $400 billion limit.

Ford used his veto on bills he said would add unnecessary spending and increase inflationary pressures. Congress overrode some, but failed to override the majority.

This Congress, which began in January, 1975, talked about, but took no action, on such issues as national health insurance and welfare reform.

It conducted investigations of abuses of power by the CIA and the FBI, and also a probe of a sex and payroll scandal in the House.

The tax bill makes hundreds of changes including an increase in taxes on the wealthy and corporations of about $1.6 billion the first year and a complete overhaul of gift and estate taxes.

At the windup of its first session last year, Congress had first extended the antirecession cuts and also eliminated the oil depletion allowance for major petroleum companies and scaled it down for smaller producers.

Ford had urged a tax cut of about $28 billion with an offsetting reduction in federal spending, and has vowed, if elected, to renew his efforts in the next Congress.

His major proposal for easing the tax burden on individuals is an increase in the personal exemption from $750 a year to $1,000.

Congress balked at cutting taxes as deeply as Ford recommended, contending this would deprive the government of funds necessary to provide job opportunities and stimulate the economy.

Under its new budget procedures Congress decided to permit the government to spend $50.6 billion more than it takes in during the next 12 months.

It approved a resolution putting a ceiling of $413.1 billion on federal spending, and setting a floor for government revenues of $362.5 billion.

Any legislation that would increase spending above the limit or reduce revenues below the floor would be out of order unless Congress voted to revise its budget resolution.

In his first television debate with Jimmy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate, Ford said his vetoes had saved $9 billion and, if they had all been sustained, would have saved an additional $13 billion.

The 94th Congress began with the Democrats outnumbering Republicans 290 to 145 in the House and 62 to 38 in the Senate.

But despite these topheavy majorities, the Democrats were frustrated for the most part in their attempts to override Ford's vetoes.

The biggest of all the appropriations bills passed this session was a record $104.3 billion for the Defense Department, but this was $3.6 billion less than Ford requested.

A key provision of the bill held up funds for full production of the B1 bomber until after next year's presidential inauguration to let whoever takes office decide whether to go ahead with it.

Ford has advocated putting the plane into production while Carter, his Democratic rival, has indicated he favors scrapping it.

With federal spending outrunning revenues, Congress this year boosted the national debt limit to a record high of $700 billion.

Senators and House members shied away in this election year from giving themselves another pay raise on top of the one they got last year.

Butz Remarks Spark Turmoil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, reprimanded by President Ford for slurs against blacks, was described by Jimmy Carter today as insensitive to people, an embarrassment to the Ford administration and a danger to Ford's election prospects.

Butz says he regrets his language, but some fellow Republicans are calling for his dismissal.

Ford's vice presidential running mate, Bob Dole, called Butz remarks "stupid" and "ill conceived," but compared them to recently criticized statements by Carter about lust and adultery. "Whether its Butz or Carter, it seems to me the American people deserve better," Dole said.

The agriculture secretary was summoned to the White House on Friday and was given "a severe reprimand" by Ford, who found Butz' racial comments "highly offensive," presidential aides said.

But reaction rolled in quickly from both Republicans and Democrats. There were strong calls for Butz to resign or for Ford to fire him.

At a news conference today in Pittsburgh, Carter said Butz' slurs are "a continuation of the insensitivity of Mr. Butz for people of this country."

Asked by reporters whether Butz should be fired, Carter repeated his long-standing position that Butz "should never have been in office as secretary of agriculture."

Carter said Butz' statement "is certainly an embarrassemnt to the administration." Asked if he thought it reflected badly on Ford, Carter replied: "I think so, to the extent it is condoned and permitted, yes."

The Democratic presidential nominee was asked if he thought it would have an impact on the election. Carter replied: "I don't know that the news media has reported what Mr. Butz said. I think to the extent people know what he said, it would be very damaging."

Girl Scouting Provides Training In Citizenship

Girl Scouting is dedicated to helping girls to develop as happy, resourceful individuals willing to share their abilities as citizens in their homes, community, nation, and the world. Scouting is recognized as an excellent way of giving girls realistic citizenship training.

Scurry County girls are involved in all four levels of Scouting in 20 troops directed by 34 adult leaders and assistants. Of the four levels, Brownie scouting is the first and is open to girls in the first through the third grades. Brownies learn how to function in a group while having fun learning new skills.

Junior Scouts make up the second level of scouting. Open to girls in the fourth through the sixth grades, junior troops help girls to discover that they can do many things through organization and through earning proficiency badges.

Cadette Girl Scouts, the third level, learn to meet challenges in their lives and in their community, working through a pattern for action. Cadettes, who are in the seventh and eighth grades, are eligible to go on out-of-town canoe trips and to serve on Scouting Board Committees.

Senior Scouts in the ninth through twelfth grades learn to fulfill promises to themselves and to society through continued service projects and practical application of skills as they serve younger troops as assistant troop leaders.

Seniors participate in the Wider Opportunity program, which provides travel and learning experiences throughout the United States and many foreign countries. This year, six Scurry County Girls were able to take advantage of various opportunities throughout the United States and Mexico, including visits to Washington, D.C.

All Scouts are involved in varied activities, such as learning about their community and country, maintaining their health and learning safety practices, discovering how to cook and to sew, preserving nature and a clean environment, and camping and surviving in the wilderness. The promises are endless in Girl Scouts. Scouts can even create their own projects if no program is found for their interests.

Girl Scouting encourages girls to accept challenges without the fear of failure and translates growing pains into growing pleasures.

Parents Don't Like Bearded Suitor

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this guy for five months, and both of my parents liked him a lot until he grew a beard. When he showed up at my house with his new beard, my parents were actually rude to him.

They said he looked like a bum or someone who was trying to overthrow the government. Abby, I think his beard looks great and told him so. It's not shaggy or neglected-looking—it's carefully cropped and really looks neat.

I was so embarrassed when my folks put this guy down, I didn't know what to say or do.

Abby, you're my parents' age, at least. How do you feel about beards?

BONNIE L.

DEAR BONNIE: If they're neat and well-cared for, I think they're great. Some of the most important men in history had beards: Moses, Jesus, Abraham Lincoln and Sigmund Freud, to name a few. And the Smith Brothers, who coughed up a fortune.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 40 years old and should know better, but it still hurts.

I'm married and have three attractive children. I have one married brother who also has a fine family. My brother lives in the same city as do our parents, and he sees them often. I live in another city, but for many years I've visited my folks once a month.

My mother has a large picture of my brother on her living room wall, and several pictures of him, his wife and all their children displayed in the same room.

MY picture is hidden in a back bedroom. There isn't one picture of my three children anywhere in sight, and I've given her several.

When I shop with my mother she takes pictures of my brother out of her wallet and shows them to store clerks, saying, "Here's my son. Isn't he handsome? He's the president of the Blank Company."

It takes several days after I return home to get the ache out of my heart.

Abby, I wonder how many mothers have favorites? Is there a solution to my problem?

HURTING

DEAR HURTING: Although they won't admit it, most mothers (either consciously or unconsciously) have their favorites, but your mother is extremely insensitive to act out her preference so blatantly.

I suggest that you bring your hurt feelings out into the open! Perhaps it will motivate your mother and will remedy the situation. It's too bad you have to prompt her to keep her from hurting you, but it's preferable to aching forever.

CONFIDENTIAL TO V.H.: That little "gem" about "talking health" was written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox: I quote: "Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tale of mortal maladies is worn and stale. You cannot charm or interest or please by harping on that minor chord—disease. So, say that you are well, and all is well with you. And God will hear your words and make them true."

THE BUYING CROWD—This was typical of the scene around the courthouse square Friday and Saturday as merchants staged a sidewalk sale. Hundreds of persons took advantage of the sale that began Friday morning. Everything from shoes to halter tops were featured in the sale and Snyderites lost no time in picking up the bargains.

Analysts Study Index Downturn

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, jolted by a downturn in government statistics on the economic outlook, sustained its sharpest setback of the year this past week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 29.42 points to 979.89, posting losses in all of the last four sessions of the week after a modest gain on Monday.

It was the largest weekly loss for the average since it bumbled 41.87 points Dec. 1-5 of last year.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index skidded 2.63 to 104.17, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was down 1.32 at 55.70.

Big Board volume averaged 18.26 million shares a day, down from 25.32 million in the previous week.

The selloff began at Tuesday's opening, when the government reported that its index of leading economic indicators fell 1.5 per cent in August for its first decline in a year and a half.

The figure seemed to give new weight to the concern traders have been showing in recent months over the progress of the recovery from the recession.

In Tuesday's trading the Dow fell 18.20 points for its worst daily showing in more than four months. It then lost 3.74 on Wednesday, 1 on Thursday and another 10.30 Friday.

Brokers said some added downward impetus late in the week was provided by a news story that said the inquiry into President Ford's congressional campaign finances had been initiated by top Justice Department officials, including Edward Levi, the attorney general.

Commerce Department figures Friday added to the atmosphere of uneasiness, showing a 0.8 per cent drop in factory orders during August after a downward revision of the data for July.

It all added up to a sharp and unpleasant contrast on Wall Street to the previous week, when the Dow rose 14.21 points and hit a closing high for the year of 1,014.79.

That upsurge had raised hopes that the average had at last punctured the stubborn resistance encountered at the 1,000 level all year.

National Semiconductor was among the week's losers, following a company report of lower quarterly earnings.

Bandag, a producer of tread and equipment for recapping tires, ran into selling pressure after the company reported its third quarter sales and earnings would fall short of comparable year-ago figures.

The weekly tally of NYSE-listed issues showed 1,302 losers and 541 gainers among the 2,093 traded.

There were 207 new individual highs for the year and 60 new lows.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 2.12 to 101.56.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 8.7 to 313.9.

LeBus Begins Prison Term

DALLAS (AP) — James F. LeBus, a prominent former Wichita Falls stockbroker, began serving a four-year sentence here Friday for burglary.

LeBus, 37, a popular figure in Wichita Falls society, plead guilty in connection with the burglary of $26,000 worth of gold and silver bars from a Wichita falls firm in 1974.

In a surprise move, LeBus plead guilty two days after the beginning of his trial, in which convicted murderer Clyde T. Burns testified LeBus urged him to commit the burglary.

LeBus and others were indicted after victims of a burglary ring — which took more than $1 million in gold and silver coins and jewelry from Wichita Falls socialites — began suspecting that members of their own social circle might be involved in the crimes.

LeBus is also under indictment for three other burglaries in Wichita Falls. No trial date has been set on those cases.

Stock Market Sustains Heaviest Loss Of Year

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The index the government uses to forecast economic trends turned down for the first time in 18 months, it was reported this past week. But analysts don't know if the downturn means the economy has begun to slip after a long recovery.

The Commerce Department's index of leading indicators fell 1.5 per cent in August, with the decline attributable to two factors that have been consistently troublesome: employment and capital spending.

The new indication of a decline in capital spending — the money manufacturers spend for plants and equipment — was strengthened later in the week when the chairman of the nation's largest chemical maker forecast a spending drop.

Irving S. Shapiro of E.I. duPont de Nemours & Co. said the giant manufacturer spent about $1.1 billion annually in 1975 and 1976 and about $1 billion the year before. But duPont "is deliberately slowing down" its capital expenditures, he said.

One reason for the anticipated decline, Shapiro said, is continuing slowness of man-made fiber sales.

While makers of such materials continue in a recession, Shapiro said, industry capacity has risen 30 per cent. "We think the industry will have a shakeout," he said.

The indication of people trouble with employment came in the Labor Department's layoff rate. The government said 1.5 per cent of the people at work in manufacturing were laid off in August, up from 1.1 per cent in July and the highest since the 1.6 per cent level was reached last November.

The statistic is politically as well as economically significant, as President Ford has cited increases in total employment in an effort to offset three months of a rising jobless rate.

Ford and his advisers fear the President may lose votes if people fear they are in danger of being laid off from work.

In other economic news this past week:

—Chrysler Corp. said the average price of its base-model 1977 cars would rise by 5.1 per cent, or $251 a vehicle, over last year. Ford Motor Co., meanwhile, said it will build an $800 million auto manufacturing complex near Valencia, Spain. The complex is expected to employ more than 9,000 people and produce 250,000 cars a year.

—In Richmond, Va., U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige found Allied Chemical Corp. innocent of all criminal charges involved in the pollution of the James River with the pesticide Kepone while the product was being made for Allied by Life Science Products Co.

—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported the nation's money supply — the total of cash in public hands plus checking account deposits — dropped a record $2.8 billion in the week ending Sept. 22. Analysts in the past have said a dropping supply may prod the Fed into lowering interest rates to spurring monetary growth. But the latest announcement failed to rekindle hopes of an immediate drop in interest rates.

Three Cars Are In Collision

A minor three-car collision at the intersection of Twenty-fourth Street and College Avenue was reported by city police officers.

Involved in the 1 p.m. Friday mishap were a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Chester Cobb, a 1974 Dodge driven by Thomas Wayne Marricle and a 1973 Dodge driven by John Boyd Young.

Officers said no one was injured in the collision and only minor damages were reported to the vehicles.

Letter To Editor

To the Daily News:

I wonder how many Snyderites have driven through the residential areas of "Our town" recently? I'm so happy to see all of the painting and bricking of homes that has been done in the past few months. The yards are pretty and green.

I hope that if you haven't already noticed, that you will take time to drive around to see and appreciate what people in "our town" have been doing to help makes us all look good; Thanks!

Less Steel In Jails Is Due

EL PASO (AP) — The vice chairman of the Texas Commission on Jail Standards says the agency will abandon proposed requirements that would force counties to use large amounts of steel in new jails.

Hull Youngblood told a public hearing here Thursday that dropping the steel requirements also would take the heat off him because he is president of Southern Steel.

Plea Entered In County Court

One more guilty plea was entered in county court Friday, bringing the total number of cases dealt with last week to 15.

Carley Delbert Tidwell pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was fined $100 and sentenced to three days in jail.

He had been arrested Sept. 22 by the Highway Patrol.

More Gas Station Jobs For Women

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Next time you drive in and say "fill 'er up" there's a good chance the pump jockey will be a woman.

WIGS — Women in Gas Stations — are showing up in every city, town and hamlet in the country, says an official of a company that operates some 1,500 gas stations in mid-America.

In 1975 almost 10 per cent of station employes in the country were female, according to Richard J. Boushka, president of Vickers Energy Corp., a subholding company of Esmark, Inc.

"There were approximately 70,000 women pumping gas, changing oil and tires, checking batteries and cleaning windshields — in addition to giving information on the next entrance to the interstate highway," said Boushka.

In 1970, there were 51,000 employed — 7 per cent of the total station attendants — and Boushka predicted that by 1980, 14.5 per cent of all filling station employes will be women.

"Station owners report their female employes are competent and well respected. Some, the more proficient ones, service racing cars at various tracks," he said.

Why are young women turning to these jobs — work that has traditionally been a man's bailiwick?

One WIGS remarked that she took up her job to insure her own car's being properly serviced and cared for.

"And many of them are mechanically inclined and feel they can repair a car as well as any male," Boushka added.

Lasser Sees Psychiatrist

NEW YORK (AP) — Louise Lasser, star of the television comedy-soap opera "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," says she is seeing a psychiatrist rather than attending drug rehabilitation classes after her arrest for possession of cocaine.

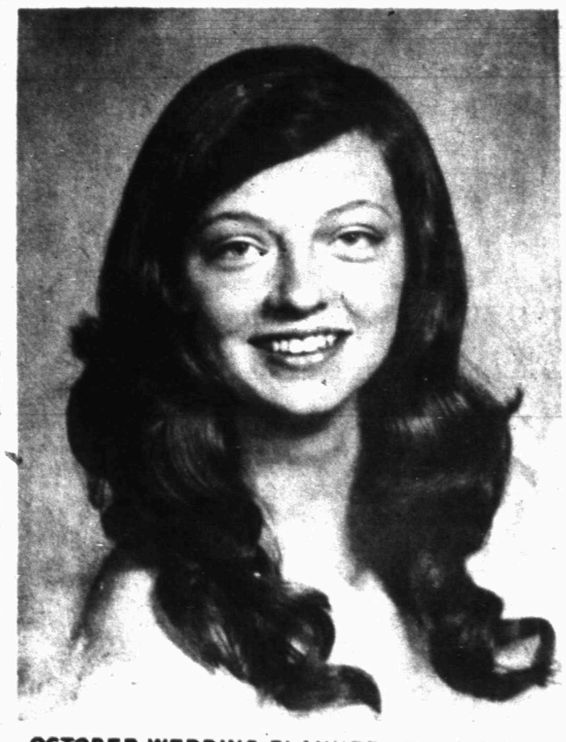

In an interview taped for this morning's NBC-TV "Tomorrow" show, Miss Lasser explained that "the judge said it would, in effect, be penalizing me for my celebrity" to order her to attend the classes.

Miss Lasser, ex-wife of comedian Woody Allen, was placed in a six-month drug diversion program by Beverly Hills Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolf last June.

She was arrested in Los Angeles in May when a shop manager complained to police that she was making a disturbance over the shop's refusal to accept her credit card.

A routine search by police turned up a vial in the actress' purse which contained eight milligrams of cocaine.

In early Texas, $10 bought a cow and a calf.

Not What, But Where Counts

DALLAS (AP) — It's not that eating tortilla chips is illegal, a pizza parlor manager explained to his client, but eating them in the wrong place at the wrong time can be illegal.

Mrs. J. E. Ellis learned this truth the hard way. She was put in jail for eating her Mexican delight in a pizza parlor, where she didn't buy the chips.

She testified in court Thursday that her husband and three children "were dying for pizza" one night last August while she was on a Mexican food binge. So she said she compromised.

"I got my Mexican dinner to go and kept my family company in the pizza parlor," she testified.

Mrs. Ellis said she had no intention of eating her Mexican dinner in the pizza restaurant, but decided to compromise again and settle for a few tortillas.

"I took a tortilla chip out of the box and started munching on it."

The manager informed her that bringing outside food into the restaurant is illegal, and told her she had to leave.

"I told him I'd put away the tortilla chips, but I didn't want to leave until my family had finished their pizzas," she said.

When the manager repeated himself, Mrs. Ellis said she pointed to people at the next table who had brought an ice cream and cake and were openly eating it. She asked why they weren't asked to leave.

About five minutes later the police arrived, took Mrs. Ellis to jail and booked her for criminal trespassing.

Corporation Court Judge Francis Goodwin dismissed the case.

Order Prohibits Record Release

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge has issued an order preventing former Beatle George Harrison from releasing a solo album through his own company rather than A&M Records.

The order stems from a suit by the company against Harrison, his manager and Dark Horse Records seeking to make Harrison live up to an agreement to produce four solo albums on the A&M label, an A&M spokesman said Thursday.

On Wednesday, Superior Court Commissioner Clinton Rodda ordered Harrison to show cause why an injunction should not be issued and a receiver appointed to control his three record companies while the matter is under litigation.

Harrison also was restrained from releasing a solo album except through A&M and and also prevented from releasing through his own companies any of his own recordings made since last January 27.

The dress was trimmed with lace, and featured a lace bib, lace cuffs and chapel length train of white crepe. The veil of bridal illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of white crepe covered with lace. The bride carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations with yellow roses atop a white Bible.

The bride's attendants wore floor length empire dresses of Schiffi eyelet lace and underlining of dacron with short puffed sleeves, long ruffled at hem and sash tie in back. The dresses were in the bride's chosen colors of pastel blue, pink, yellow and green. They carried nosegays of carnations matching their dresses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Mark Johnson of Guthrie, Okla. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Trent Alexander of Mountain Home,; Mrs. Debbie Simpson of Tulsa, Okla; and Mrs. Johnnie Ezell, sister of the groom, of Lubbock. The flower girl was Miss Shirley Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hodges of Mountain Home. She wore a pink and white dress fashioned like those of the bridesmaids, and carried a small nosegay of carnations matching her dress. Ring bearer was Mel Crawford, brother of the bride.

Best man was Alfred Smith, brother of the groom, of Waco. Groomsmen were Gary Crawford, brother of the bride, of Mountain Home; Johnnie Ezell, brother-in-law of the groom of Lubock; and David Poe of Key West, Fla. Ushers were Allen Hodges of Mountain Home and Scott McCormack of Indianapolis, Ind.

The wedding cake was made as a gift to the bride and groom by Mrs. Ira Barnes of West Plains, Mo; Presiding at the serving table were Miss Deniece May, Miss Tami Ridenour and Miss Sue Loudermilk. The reception was hosted by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Norman McCormack of Indianapolis, Ind. A rehearsal brunch, hosted by the groom's parents, was held at the Holiday Inn in Mountain Home.

Suit Is Filed Against Agnew

BALTIMORE (AP) — A $2-million suit against Spiro T. Agnew and a tax-exempt foundation he heads has been filed in U.S. District Court here.

Sam Polur, a resident of Miami and a member of the New York bar, filed the suit Thursday asking for a jury trial. The suit against Agnew, who resigned as vice president in October 1973, and Education for Democracy Inc. alleges that Agnew concealed dealings with Arab countries in violation of antitrust laws.

The complaint alleges that Agnew deals with the United Arab Republic and oil cartels that imposed an oil embargo and other economic sanctions against this country.

THE PASTORAL COUNSELOR

By JOHN ZELL GASTON III

HONESTY AND AGONY

Much has been written about the need for honesty in communication in the family. The need is great. Honesty is essential in any relationship. However, several people have asked lately where to draw the line between honesty and cruelty. When we think about honesty in a relationship, right away we are faced with two extremes. At one end is the mousy individual who is afraid to make any comment at all for fear of hurting another, or for fear of retribution. At the other extreme is the viciously honest person who rides roughshod over the feelings of all around him. He can hardly open his mouth without pouring out acid. The first has few friends: they do not trust him, only pity him. The last has no friends, only a string of victims. The problem is to maintain a proper balance between the two extremes.

Let us look at them and see if we can find a middle way. We first notice that both of these extremes have one thing in common: we feel toward both of them some kind of contempt or disgust. The person who huddles up, too afraid to speak his piece, arouses our scorn. The brutally honest person arouses our contempt. It becomes clearer if we try to walk in their shoes to see how they feel toward themselves. This is easy enough to do. It does not take imagination, only memory. We have all had our moments of both cowardice and brutality. By looking back at those moments, we can recall that each had its own form of self-disgust. When we were silent, we were ashamed of ourselves. We had hoped that our silence would help us be liked. Somehow we failed. When we have been brutally honest we have been aware of how hurtful we have been. Have you noticed that it is right then that we are most likely to demand that people accept us as we are? We are aware that we have attracted and hurt, possible hurt deeply. Then we draw back and ask to be liked. It almost doesn't make sense.

As we look at ourselves when we have retreated into silence or when we have attacted with the truth, it gradually begins to dawn on us that we were really trying to do something for ourselves while we were thinking it was for someone else. We are really not trying to be helpful to someone else. We are trying to win acceptance for ourselves. We are using a disguise. The attempt to not hurt others or the attempt to give honest information even if it hurts is a mask which we hide behind in our search for someone to like us. I am convinced that this self-deception is what causes us to be disgusted with ourselves and is what awakens the scorn of others.

Really, any of these are legitimate ends to strive for. We need to be liked by others. At times we need to hold our tongues to keep from hurting someone or from inviting retribution. At times we may need to give someone else vital information even though it hurts them. However, it is very difficult to chase two rabbits with just one dog. If I choose to be honest and brutally frank, I must accept the consequences. I will hurt someone else, and I must be prepared for the backlash. If I choose to be gentle, I must be aware that this may also mean that I am almost invisible. If I am honest with you or gentle with you, I must decide whether I am doing it for my sake or for yours. Each way will have its own consequences. Contempt, scorn and disgust come to me when I fool myself. If I choose one path, hoping for the consequences of another, I am foredooming myself to failure, and am increasing my own self-contempt. Maybe, to have honesty in a relationship, first I have to become honest with myself.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

When Barbara Walters left NBC for ABC's million dollar offer, everyone said it would be impossible to fill her shoes. NBC has done the impossible. Polly-Bergen not only fills them, but wears them well. Survival – this is the success formula that took a skinny, 11-year-old with a 40-inch bust from Knoxville, Tennessee to the heights of stardom; from the depths of depression to the summit of happiness. A formula that has allowed her to become a successful business woman, an accomplished actress, a famous singer, a concerned mother as well as a very groovy-looking lady.

MAURICE: Is there a beauty secret that you could give to my women readers?

BERGEN: Yes, think beautiful. I believe that beauty really starts inside a womans' head and I think that when a woman likes herself and respects herself that that is the beginning of looking the very best that she knows how.

MAURICE: Was your childhood a happy one?

BERGEN: I think that my childhood was probably sad. I could never put the blame of that on my family. Because of my father's occupation, we traveled a great deal. It was too painful to make friends because I had to leave them. So I stopped making them. Then after a short period of time I discovered I no longer knew how.

MAURICE: Do you find that you take life too seriously?

BERGEN: Oh yes. I don't think there is any doubt about that. I am a high-low person. I am not easy going. I don't think I have the sense of humor that I should have about life. Set backs, I take too seriously. I am very self-critical.

MAURICE: How do you feel about older women dating younger men?

BERGEN: I think it depends on the emotional compatibility of the two people. I don't think age should be important. However, I think we have been taught that we look ridiculous walking in with a young man. It's acceptable for an older man to walk in with a younger woman. In fact they even look up at the man which is one reason why I think a lot of men do it. I think of these men as terrible insecure and worried about their ability to perform as a man. I think that an older woman, younger man combination makes more sense than an older man, younger woman combination. I believe that women are younger than men, basically.

MAURICE: At what age was the biggest crisis for you?

BERGEN: 30 was terrible for me. 40 wasn't a problem for me at all. 30 was a horror for me. I couldn't believe it when I turned 30. It is really only in the last couple of years that I have truly liked myself, and perhaps that is why I wouldn't want to be say, 10 years younger.

MAURICE: You seem to be a very domineering woman. Do you recognize that in yourself?

BERGEN: Yes I do recognize that in myself and I think that there is a lot of strength in me. I think that my whole life has led me to being a woman who is the survivor. I'm a woman who will survive through whatever happens in my life. I also have an absolutely incredible facade and what I appear to be is not always what I am. To describe a woman as strong, aggressive, competitive is like slapping her in the face. You're saying to her that you're not feminine, your masculine. I am slowly realizing that I can be strong and be capable and I can also be soft and be indicisive and all of those can make up a woman. Because the day of role playing is hopefully over for both men and women. Just as a man should have the right to cry and not be considered less of a man, a woman should have the right to be strong and not be considered less of a woman.

MAURICE: If you had one wish, what would you wish for?

BERGEN: Oh, that's so hard. I would wish to love and be loved.

More TV Crews Shooting Scenes In Real World

EDITOR'S NOTE — Pardon me, lady, but I'd like to film the end of the world from your living room. More and more, TV crews are shooting their scenes, violent or not, in the real world. The old movie lot may have priced itself out of existence.

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You have to befriend them before telling them you want to blow out their windows or take down their Christmas tree," says television location manager Dick Vane.

Despite the hassles of dealing with the real-life citizen, television production crews are increasingly finding it cheaper and even artistically desirable to roll their cameras, lights, commissaries and hairdressers out of the studio lot.

Destination: Just about anywhere.

When television detective Barnaby Jones, played by Buddy Ebsen, drives up to a house to interrogate a murder suspect, chances are he's driving on a real city street up to a real home. Vane, or someone like him, has paid for temporary takeover of the place by a production crew.

Robert Norvet, a CBS vice president, estimates that only about a third of all television drama is filmed on studio lots.

It wasn't always so. Twenty years ago, the TV or movie detective would walk up to a suitable housefront sitting on a lot. If it wasn't already there, carpenters would build it.

The 24-year-old Vane, who works for Quinn Martin Productions, drives 200 or 300 miles a day looking for locations.

"I just finished the toughest negotiation I've ever done," said the tousle-haired son of ABC vice president Ed Vane. The younger Vane, a four-year veteran of location work, currently finds sites for "Most Wanted," a new detective series starring Robert Stack, and for "Barnaby Jones."

"It took me a week to convince a supermarket to let them 'blow up' a pile of watermelons with a 'laser gun' in the store with customers around."

Realism, convenience, artistic merit and logistics are evaluated by the producers who must decide whether this scene or that will be filmed on the lot or on the street.

But the bottom line is cost.

"It's a matter of dollars," says Norvet. "You evaluate what it would cost. It's obviously more expensive to go to a location because of transportation ... If you can do it in a studio cheaper, you will probably do it there."

Howard Alston, executive production manager for Quinn Martin Productions, estimates it costs between $3,000 and $4,000 to move a 600-foot long convoy out to location.

Sleepy neighbors, Vane says, will likely spot parked outside their home a dressing room-toilet trailer, three or four equipment trucks, a truck containing a generator, a mobile home set up as an executive office, three vans to transport people, a catering truck and at least five staff cars.

Then location men fork over about $1,000 a day to rent out a mansion, or about $150 a day for an ordinary tract home.

"It would cost about $30,000 to build an equivalent front on the lot," Vane says. And then the union carpenters would have to start work on the interior sets.

Vane introduced himself to Muir Dawson, whose Hollywood bookstore has been rented for $1,000 for a day's shooting of "Most Wanted."

Art director Richard Berger estimated the cost of "dressing" a studio with books and other shop frills at $2,000 to $3,000.

Lloyd Allen, the show's first assistant director, says a bookstore set would cost about $16,000 to build from scratch. The figure would double, he says, if the lush and attractive patio view from Dawson's Book Shop was recreated.

"This is basically for us a business proposition," said Dawson. He estimated the rental figure would make it worthwhile to close up for the day.

It's not always so easy.

"We needed a convent recently for a show in which six nuns get raped. The Catholic church wasn't too interested in helping us show that. We found a girl's school that looked like a convent, but we still needed a church. The Catholic church finally agreed but they insisted on approving the script to delete any inaccuracies about their ritual.

"We made a donation," Vane grinned.

"On 'Most Wanted' we show a lot of violent action. We had one scene shewing an airport baggage terminal blowing up. Now not many airports were interested in letting us show that. The only one that would let us film was Las Vegas."

SHS Dedicates Cullar Painting

A new Warren Cullar painting was dedicated at Snyder High School Friday afternoon. Cullar, the painter of the picture and a former Snyder resident, was present for the dedication.

The 22 x 30 inch watercolor painting depicts a creek scene somewhat reminiscent of Deep Creek. Shown in the painting is a creek lazily meandering along its pre-set path with boulders and trees strewn along its course.

Cullar was commissioned to do the painting by Mrs. Elizabeth Connell. A native of Abilene, Cullar was a Snyder resident for five years when he taught at Western Texas College's art department. Prior to teaching at WTC, Cullar taught at Hardin-Simmons University for three years.

Cullar moved to Bertram last May where he has become a professional artist and has set up his own studio. Strictly a watercolor artist, Cullar is a member of the Southwest Watercolor Society, the Texas Watercolor Society and the Texas Fine Arts Association.

Saturday, Cullar presented an art demonstration at the Big Country Art Association in Sweetwater showing, from start to finish, how he produces watercolor paintings.

Cullar, 35, has displayed a lifelong interest in art and painting. He took his first art lesson when he was nine years old and became seriously involved in painting when he was in junior high school in Abilene. He received his Master of Fine Arts degree from the Instituo Allende in San Miguel de Allende in Guanajuato, Mexico.

Cullar said he prefers watercolor painting because of its "fluidity, the fresh and cheerful aspect the painting takes on and the thinking required to produce a watercolor painting."

One spectator present at the dedication was heard to remark that the painting "looks like a dream set in color."

The new painting will be on display at the Snyder High School Library.

WTC Exhibiting Lorette's Works

Sculpture and paintings by Richey Hooper Lorette of Odessa will be exhibited in the Fine Arts Building at Western Texas College from Oct. 4-29.

Mrs. Lorette was winner of the Jonisue Cogdell Stiff Purchase Prize for Sculpture at the 1974 Snyder Palette Club's show. She has been accepted in the Museum of the Southwest's juried shows in both painting and sculpture, and has shown in the New Orleans Art Association's Annual National Exhibition, the Sun Carnival National Exhibition in El Paso and the Texas Fine Arts National Exhibition in Austin. Works by Mrs. Lorette and Elizabeth Griffith were exhibited by the art department of Odessa College last March.

She has had one-man shows in Texas and Oklahoma, the first being by invitation from Fr. Emilio Caballero at West Texas State University in Canyon.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Mrs. Lorette formerly taught art in Odessa public schools. She has lived in Odessa for 25 years and is an organizing charter member and past president of the Odessa Art Association. She is also a member of the Permian Basin Association of Creative Art, the Texas Fine Arts Association and the Texas Society of Sculptors.

She judged the 1973 Big Country Art Association Exhibit held in Abilene, and has given demonstrations and art workshops in surrounding towns.

Mrs. Lorette designed, edited and published two stuffed doll patterns, Gleeful Glee and Loveable Lin, named for her children. With the help of her husband, Willard, Mrs. Lorette has set up ceramic shell investment equipment, the ceramic shell burn-out kiln and smelting furnace out of oil field materials.

The gallery in the WTC Fine Arts Building is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p .m. Monday through Thursday and from 8 to 4 p.m. on Fridays. There is no charge for admission.

Oldest Wines

NEW YORK (AP) — Sherry is among the oldest of wines.

According to Rand McNally's "Entertaining With Wine," all sherries, which are made by a continuous blending of old and new wines, century after century, fall into two basic categories: the light, dry finos and the darker, robust olorosos.

The vintner can't plan which type he will make — the wine decides and develops for itself.

A TROUBLED DR. LYMAN—(Lee Kirby of Lubbock) explains his deepest, innermost feelings to a very gullible young bus stop waitress, Elma (Teresa Johnson of Rankin.). She seems to be a ready listener to all types of people who wait for the bus at her counter in "Bus Stop, which opens Tuesday night in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College.

THE LOCAL SHERIFF—Will (seated right, played by Joy Evans of Lubbock) drops into Grace's Diner and listens to tall tales about the stranded passengers from the bis driver, Carl.

CHERIE—(Sarah Coleman of Snyder) thinks of herself as a real chanteuse ("that's French for singer"), but she represents the lonely and restless seeking approval as a substitute for love. She's the first one off the stranded bus, rushing to get away from her abductor who wants to take her to his home in Montana.

Governor's Son Is Married

HUNTINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Janie Pearce Amis and Dolph Briscoe III, son of the Texas governor were married Saturday in Old First Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles James Amis of Lloyd Harbor, New York, and Sandbridge, Va. Her father is vice-president of Allstate Insurance Companies for the New York metropolitan area.

The couple was graduated in 1975 at the University of Texas at Austin.

BO DECKER—(Brian Nobles of Lubbock) and his sidekick Virgil (Scot Purkeypile of Lubbock) discuss Bo's problem. "I just never thought that she'd not love me," Bo explains. Virgil listens patiently, but advises that the girl involved "may not be exactly the kind of girl" Bo would want anyway.

CARL (SAM THOMPSON OF LUBBOCK)—is smitten with Grace, the owner of the diner-bus stop and says he "loves a woman with big hands!" Grace (Jackie Byrne of Sweetwater) is slightly skeptical of his sincerity.

'Bus Stop' Opening At WTC Theatre Tuesday

The Western Texas College drama department will open its 1976-77 season with the production of "Bus Stop" Tuesday through Saturday nights at 8 o'clock in the Fine Arts Theatre.

"Bus Stop" is a nostalgic view of the brief but impactful moments passengers on a bus spent in a lonely bus stop-diner, Charles Holland, director, said. The bus is forced to delay its trip when the highway is blocked by a snowstorm. The main plot involves Bo Decker, who has kidnapped the girl he fell in love with and is taking her to his Montana ranch.

The girl, Cherie, protests loudly, but she does have an idea that she "will eventually wind up in Montana."

The playwright, William Inge, is also the author of such well-known plays as "Picnic" and "Come Back, Little Sheba." Both of these plays were made into movies, as was "Bus Stop," which starred Marilyn Monroe.

Advance tickets for the WTC production are now on sale at West Texas State Bank, Snyder National Bank, Snyder Drug, the Fine Arts Division office and the campus bookstore. Admission prices are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students. (Photos by Neely Wright)

Blend Of Air

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ice cream is a frozen confection obtained by blending air and ice cream mix at lower than freezing temperatures. Most market grade ice cream deliberately contains as much air as mix, a good product.

No Celebration

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Civil Rights Commission vetoed a suggestion that it celebrate its 10th anniversary with a $10-a-plate dinner.

"We're two years behind in investigating cases," said Executive Director Thomas Mann Jr. "I'm not sure we'd get a good image by celebrating."

SCENE FROM COMEDY-FARCE—Rosemary Parks and Brad Maule are shown in a scene from "Natalie Needs a Nightie," a comedy-farce playing at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo.

Brad Maule Has Starring Role

Brad Maule, former Snyder resident and a graduate of Snyder High School, has a starring role in "Natalie Needs a Nightie " at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre in Amarillo. The hit comedy-farce will play through October 9 at the Amarillo Hilton Inn, playing Tuesday through Saturday evenings.

Maule is a young man with a busy schedule. In July he completed a production of Irene with Jane Powell in Hawaii, and in June appeared in Honolulu in "Fiddler on the Roof" with Jan Peerce of Metropolitan Opera fame.

Formerly one of the famous Serendipity Singers, Brad traveled throughout the United States with the group as manager and lead singer. Nightclub appearances include a stint with the Don Ho Show in Hawaii and entertainment acts for oceanliner cruises. He appeared in productions for two seasons with Casa Manana Playhouse, and was in the musical drama Texas at Palo Duro Canyon.

Dr. Lamb

Women carry more fat

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 80 years old, 5 feet 4 and weigh 118 pounds. My blood pressure is 150. I do not smoke and only drink one cup of coffee a day.

I do have pernicious anemia and am being given B-12 shots once a month. Is there anything that will cure this or do I have to continue with the shots the rest of my life?

My yearly tests were all right otherwise and I feel as well as can be expected at my age. I walk a mile or more every day.

DEAR READER — A shot a month is a small inconvenience for protection against what was once a fatal disease. Did you know that Madame Curie, the famed discoverer of radium died of pernicious anemia in 1934? It was with the discovery of the use of liver extracts and later the ability to manufacture B-12 that this once dreaded disease became just a minor inconvenience.

Now people like you can live a normal lifespan and enjoy life without fear of pernicious anemia, provided they follow their doctor's instructions and continue to take their medicine. No, there is no other cure and I am sorry you have to take the shots but I am glad they are available for you.

To give you more information on your illness I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-5, Vitamin B-12, Folic Acid, Pernicious Anemia. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station,New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has a slow heart. It varies from 47 to 59. His doctor advises having a pacemaker installed. For some reason he hesitates to do this.

He is 76 years old and up to about six months ago was quite active and took long walks each day. He still walks some but not far.

A few qeeks ago he passed out while sitting on a bench in a shopping mall. This spell lasted for a few minutes. I am so afraid he will pass out while driving the car or fall and injure himself.

The doctor advised him not to drive and he hasn't since his last episode. Please send information as soon as possible as I am worried.

DEAR READER — Your husband should follow his doctor's advice at once. A slow heart rate is expected in a healthy young vigorous athlete but in a man of his age who is not an athlete it is usually because of complete heart block.

The danger is that the heart will beat too slow to provide adequate circulation to the brain and he will faint or have a convulsion. Also his heart could stop entirely. This is a real danger to his life.

Pacemakers have saved or prolonged many lives. I often cite former Associate Justice William O. Douglas as a well known example. He had a pacemaker installed years ago and remained active because of it for many years afterward, long before he had a stroke. It could add a great deal of enjoyment to your husband's life as well as help protect him from the danger of a serious heart irregularity.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Having retired to Florida six years ago, not only do I find that my husband and I differ in toleration of heat but many "couple" friends have this problem too. In 99 per cent of the situations it is the woman who cannot tolerate the heat. Is there any physical, medical explanations for this ? I have met native Floridians who have lived here their entire lives in these situations and the woman never tolerated the heat.

Relying on air conditioning in the home was not a factor in my findings, for many women of whom I speak do not have air conditioning in their homes.

Thank you for your trouble and any information you can give me.

DEAR READER — You may be right. Women tend to have more body fat than men. This is a fundamental difference in males and females. We accept more body fat on the female as normal. This body fat characteristic provides for the curves and feminine figure. While the absence of fat in the male results in the sharply defined muscular body.

The fat pad acts as insulation. It makes it harder for the body to cool off. In a sense it is as if you already had on clothing to provide insulation.

Now this isn't all there is to it but it is a frequent factor in why some people feel hot before others do.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever to give you a more complete discussion of how the body temperature is regulated. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please give me some information about tubular pregnancy after surgical removal of the uterus. I read years ago that it is possible for a woman to be artificially inseminated and conceive a child in a tube and have this child if she receives hospital care during the period of the tubular pregnancy. Is this really a possibility?

DEAR READER — That's a bit far out. A tubular pregnancy means that the fertilized ovum has implanted in one of the small tubes rather than the body of the uterus. As the pregnancy progresses the enlargement usually causes a rupture or presents a surgical problem.

Once the uterus is out there is no way to get healthy sperm from the vagina to the tube to induce fertilization, even through artificial insemination. The vaginal vault is literally a dead end street with no remaining openings.

The only possible way a pregnancy can occur after the uterus is removed is in that rare chance that a woman may have healthy sperm in the tube already, just before the operation to remove the uterus. Then if she ovulates within two days there is a chance of a pregnancy without a uterus.

To avoid this one need only avoid sex for about two or at the most three days before surgery to remove the uterus. Then once the uterus is out you have 100 per cent effective birth control thereafter. The treatment for tubular pregnancy is surgical removal as soon as the diagnosis is made.

"SHE'S JUST CRAZY ABOUT BATHS. AFTER SHE WORKS ME OVER, SHE TAKES ONE HERSELF!"

'I Can't' Isn't In Her Vocabulary

By CHARLOTTE BLACK
Albuquerque Tribune Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — She buys her jeans in the young boys' department. Everything else is too big.

She's a former stripper, but was so scared the first time she went on stage that she tripped and fell flat, and brought the house down with applause.

She's a first-rate mechanic and a partner in a business dealing in rebuilt auto parts.

She started a worm farm because "I plan on being a very old lady, and if I can't repair cars from my wheelchair, at least I can push it between the worm beds."

Wendy Stewart bought Albuquerque Generator Exchange — recently rechristened AGEX — two years ago. She operates it with her partner, Ann Fagin.

She's small and dynamic, with short, curly, frosted hair. A former Californian, she has lived in most of the 50 states, surviving for 43 years by a mixture of charm, wits and guts.

She's the daughter of a Los Angeles businessman and was taught quite early that if she wanted some roller skates she'd have to earn the money herself.

"At various times my father owned a liquor store, a feed store, a grocery store, an orange juice stand and an apple ranch, and my parents ended up fairly rich.

"But I never knew it. My father was determined to teach me what life was all about."

She got married the day she was 18. That marriage and two others are now over. She says she's been "happily divorced" for 10 years.

She also didn't listen when a business colleague told her, "Wendy, don't treat your employes like members of the family. They'll break your heart."

"There isn't a one of them that I wouldn't give this place to," she retorts. "I opened up here with $5 in my pocket, guts and a lot of help from them. And you know, your shop is only as good as they are."

WORKING WOMAN—Wendy Stewart, first-rate mechanic and partner in a business dealing in rebuilt auto parts, checks some of her stock in her Albuquerque, N.M., shop.

Last Christmas she opened a savings account for each of them, hoping to encourage them to save. Only one did.

It hasn't slowed her down a bit. They gather after work to share a beer and some shop talk.

The staff of a dozen or more employes is largely male. Do the men mind working for two women?

Wendy laughs.

"I weeded out the ones who did."

It's worth the trip to climb into her red pickup with her while she runs errands. She says she likes the customer contact she gets by doing it herself.

There's a plastic sign that says AGEX that she'll stick to the door of the truck. They'll buy a big wooden one for the front of the shop after they've bought some more equipment.

She emerges from Western Tractor carrying two obviously heavy alternators.

"That's typical," she laughs. "He said I couldn't carry these."

At New Mexico Marine she joshes with the manager.

"Why don't you fix that thing," he says, as the truck bounces and rattles into the yard.

"Listen," she quips. "I'm proud of that thing. It's paid for."

Men, in general, are somewhat taken aback at finding two women very capably running what is usually a male-oriented business.

Wendy Stewart's and Ann Fagin's success is largely due to plain, old-fashioned hard work.

In dusty jeans and scruffy cowboy boots Wendy digs through wrecking yards for the used generators, alternators and starters that provide the raw material for their work.

She says Ann is the financial wizard and keeps a close rein on the books.

"So many businesses fail because they think all the business is at the counter, but it's really in the bookkeeping."

They don't have much time for dressing up.

"I have four or five pairs of Levis, sweat shirts and tank tops, two nice dresses and no bras," says Wendy.

She came to Albuquerque 10 years ago, traveling through from Florida to California. She was trailering a horse, which had gotten sick on the journey, and just as she drove up Central Avenue the truck broke down. There wasn't much she could do but stay.

So, with a quarter in her pocket, she hunted up a sympathetic veterinarian, found a job at the Triangle Lounge, and set up to live here.

Four years ago she went to work for Albuquerque Generator Exchange. Two years later she bought it.

Wondering what kind of sandwiches to pack into that lunchbox? Finely chopped ripe olives and walnuts blended with mayonnaise is an old-fashioned spread that still tastes delicious.

Sometimes principles of dummy play seem to conflict. Thus, in general, declarer should defer a problem as long as possible in the hope that he will acquire information or that the problem will just go away.

Acting on this principle, declarer will take dummy's ace of diamonds, play out four rounds of trumps, cash the clubs and then discard two hearts from dummy on the high diamonds before leading a heart to try to guess how to play the suit.

By this time West, with a smidgeon of bridge ability, will know enough to play a low heart. South will have nothing better than a 50 per cent chance to guess right.

An expert South will study the dummy before playing to trick one and see that the time to play hearts is early and not late. He can learn nothing from the opponents. Why let them learn anything from him.

So expert South leads a spade to his ace and puts the eight of hearts on the table. West is caught asleep at the switch. He hesitates and then produces the ace of hearts to give declarer his slam on a silver platter.

Ask the Jacobys

North opens one spade an rebids two hearts over South's two-club response. Is that two-heart bid forcing?

It is not forcing in basic standard American, but it is in all expert circles. It is now taught as forcing in modern standard American. Remember that South has shown at least 10 points by his two-club call.

Handbook Gives Tips On Restoring Antiques

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Tag sale enthusiasts are beginning to take a long look at some of the great buys they made during the height of the summer season when such events take on the competitive glamor of bargain basement sales.

Never mind the handsome bird cage that needs a bird — what to do about the chipped pitcher, the cabinet without a key, the damaged papier mache tilt top table?

In an unusual approach to such repairs, authority George Grotz passes on many trade secrets in "The Antique Restorers Handbook." Directions are not pat for amateurs — some may need to be reread several times before proceeding — but he tells it like it is. Best of all, he tells where some of the magic mending materials may be obtained.

For example, a locked drawer in a cabinet might be reached by removing the dust boards from the back of the case and prying out the back of the drawer so the lock can be reached. That is a good professional tip which might not readily occur to the amateur refinisher.

In mending papier mache — it might be the black kind that was molded during the VICTORian era — he suggests white glue "which the paper will suck in" and which has correct pliability for the purpose. After the piece has been stabilized with glue, cracks can be filled in with black shellac sticks or black wax. This is a very simple solution to what might appear at first glance to be irreparable damage requiring the services of "an expert" if you are lucky enough to locate one.

As for repairing ceramics, it is for "the kind of people who like to wear close-up magnifying glasses, even a jeweler's glass and work slowly and painstakingly." It isn't to be sluffed off in a quick operation, but he tells how to do it.

For cleaning old prints, etchings and other printed matter, there are a number of techniques that might be used to remove various stains.

As a first step he suggests the discoloring might be nothing more than surface dirt. After first dusting it with a soft brush, you use an eraser made of soft, moist bread. Any cheap, spongy bread will do, he explained. It should be soggy enough for easy handling. Knead about eight slices into a ball, making it a little moister with water if necessary, so you can get a hard roll to move across the paper. This should erase surface dirt without disturbing the print or picture.

Some papers can be washed carefully in lukewarm water, but the technique needs experimentation, he cautions.

Fly specks or spots can be removed by picking them off the paper carefully with a needle and then bleaching the remaining stain with hydrogen peroxide which is applied with a fine-pointed brush. Directions for additional bleaches are given in the event that doesn't work.

Grotz gives directions for removing brown foxing (mildew) spots caused by spores which feed on paper in moist conditions, and he tells how to remove the black stains made by inks having soot or other carbons in them.

In providing directions for restoring furniture finishes, Grotz gets away from the traditional seven coats of shellac, seven sandings method. After cleaning the old finish by scrubbing the surface with a wet cloth and wiping it dry, douse it with mineral spirits with a rag to remove any wax or oil. Wipe it dry (hard) with paper towels. Repeat process twice, getting into carvings with an old toothbrush. (A crazed surface should be treated with a nailbrush used over the entire surface.) Dry the piece for five minutes before trying to reamalgamate it.

It is possible to reamalgamate because for 200 years, until 1900, shellac was used on all furniture, he maintains.

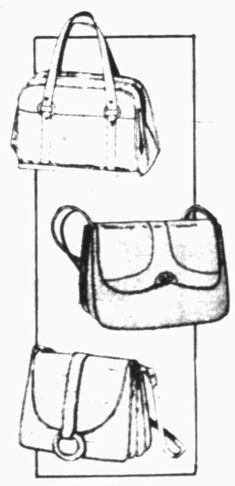

Mix a cup of denatured alcohol in a bowl, add one ounce of lacquer thinner and brush it lightly on the wood with a clean brush. The shellac dissolves as you brush it on as if you were brushing on fresh shellac. Dry finish overnight in dry room (avoid dampness). The following day, polish the piece to smoothness with steel wool, wax it with paste wax. If the old shellac has been brushed too thin in some areas, spray a coat of clear dull lacquer over it or, after buffing with steel wool, apply a coat of varnish over the shellac.

Professionals use padding lacquer when they reamalgamate, he insists, because it is faster. They apply it with a three-inch square of padding (15 or 20 layers of cotton sheeting) which is rubbed hard over the surface as the pad is wetted with lacquer. That technique takes special skills and special lacquer.

Coyotes Get First '76 Win

GARDEN CITY—Eurdist Rinehart went on a touchdown binge here Friday night as the Borden County Coyotes won their first football game in the 11-man ranks, decisioning the Garden City Bearcats, 19-18.

Rinehart scored on a 62-yard pass and got other six-pointers on runs of 55 yards and 65 yards. But it was a point-after-touchdown by Blayne Dyess that provided the margin of victory as the Bearcats made a desperate bid for victory in the final period.

Borden County moved up from the eight-man football ranks after the 1975 season when that division was eliminated by the University Interscholastic League.

The Coyotes had absorbed four straight defeats, bowing to powerful Roby in the season-opener and then following up with losses to Forsan, O'Donnell and Loraine, but they had been showing improvement each week. Garden City's record now is two victories and three defeats.

Borden County leaped out to a first quarter lead by scoring 13 points while the Bearcats were getting six. Borden added six more in the third and then withstood a fourth quarter surge that saw Garden City put 12 points on the board. Steve Smith scored twice for Garden City, on a 24-yard pass and a 50-yard return of a blocked punt. Wayne Hirt got the other Garden City TD on a three-yard run.

The Borden County Coyotes open conference play in District 3-B next Friday when they entertain Dawson at Gail

Sherman's No. 1 Team Is Tied By Unranked Plano

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Sherman's No. 1 ranking wasn't enough to break Plano's six-year unbeaten streak in district play Friday night, but the top-ranked Bearcats came close.

A field goal in the final minute by Steve Haynes gave unranked Plano a 13-13 tie. If the two teams finish the season with no losses, Plano would advance to the playoffs because it had led 4-3 in penetrations inside the 20 yard line.

The rest of The Associated Press' Texas Class 4A Top Ten managed to avoid defeat. Third-ranked Odessa Permian blasted Midland 42-13, No. 4 Longview shut out Nacogdoches 28-0, No. 6 Port Neches-Groves blanked Beaumont French 34-0, No. 7 Killeen clubbed Bryan 42-14, eighth-rated Spring Branch Memorial tripped Alief 21-7, No. 9 Brazoswood whitewashed Bay City 36-0 and 10th-ranked Temple outscored Conroe 24-17. Second-ranked Houston Kashmere was idle and No. 5 Tyler John Tyler played Texarkana Saturday night.

Eighth-rated Pecos had the week off.

Kenedy and Pearsall, the ninth and 10th-ranked teams in Class 2A, lost to Pleasanton 36-0 and Medina Valley 7-0, respectively, while the first-rated team in the division — Rockdale — tripped Cameron 14-6. Other 2A results saw No. 2 Columbus beat Schulenburg 21-6, No. 3 McGregor master Leander 28-7, fourth-ranked Bowie blank Jacksboro 7-0, No. 5 Childress waste Clarendon 26-0, No. 6 Paris North Lamar crush Quinlan 47-0 and No. 8 Comanche massacre Hamilton 41-6. Seventh-ranked Slaton was idle.

Some people are drug dependents says the American Pharmaceutical Assn. A drug dependent is a person who takes a drug or medicine regularly, often out of habit. IS ALI SERIOUS?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Muhammad Ali serious or does he have his tongue in his cheek again?

Who knows?

As has often been the case with the puckish heavyweight boxing champion, only he knows for sure—and no one would bet on it.

There was considerable skepticism among the fight mob to Ali's cataclysmic announcement Friday in Istanbul, Turkey, that he was hanging up his gloves.

"I am skeptical,'" said James A. Farley, Jr., chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission. "He has said it before—now we will just have to wait and see."

'I think he's deadly serious," said Harold Conrad, publicist and promoter who has had a prominent role in many of Ali's fights, directing the second bout with Sonny Liston in Lewiston, Maine, in 1965.

"He hid out at my house four days before the Ken Norton fight this week. He reflected a lot of inner conflict. A fighter is the last to admit that he is slowing up. Ali complained a lot about the rat race and the rigors of training."

Many of boxing's leading personalities were gathered at a midtown steak house Friday for a CBS preview of the Ali-Norton fight film and the place buzzed with speculation over the champion's true intentions.

Norton was there, still insisting that the officials robbed him Tuesday night.

"Sure, I was surprised when I heard the announcement," Norton said of Ali's voluntary surrender of the heavyweight crown. "I think he did it because I knew I whipped him. My manager tells me I am the people's champion now, anyhow, because most people thought I won."

The place crawled with entrepreneurs, the guys who get up the money and choreograph these multi-million-dollar ring spectaculars. All apparently were saddened by the news from Turkey.

Ali's skills, unpredictability and personality have turned the once decaying sport into a skyrocketing bonanza. Ali wouldn't put on gloves again for less than $6 million.

"Ali has talked of retirement before,'" said Bob Arum, chief of Top Rank, Inc., which marketed the Ali-Norton fight to 300 closed circuit theaters and overseas. "Let's wait 'til he gets back to the United States."

Don King, who promoted Ali's ventures in Zaire and Manila among others, said he was convinced the retirement was genuine.

John Condon, publicist for Madison Square Garden, had this interesting version: "I am 100 per cent sure Ali is retiring. But you have to know the man. He will let George Foreman and Ken Norton fight it out for the championship and then he will come out of retirement and take on the winner.

"It would tickle his vanity to be the only man in history who won the world heavyweight title three times. I wouldn't put it beyond him. He is a fabulous man."

Hermleigh Decisions Wildcats

WATER VALLEY—In six-man football Friday night, the Hermleigh Cardinals edged out the Water Valley Wildcats by a score of 15-14. But the Cardinals' victory came in the second half of the game.

The Wildcats got the jump on the Cardinals early in the game as they scored on a 37-yard run made by Tom Jameson. Their attempted extra point failed.

The Cardinals rallied and halfback Carroldon Burrleson scored a 15-yard run. Tim Dacus kicked the extra point bringing the tally 8-6 where it remained at the end of the first quarter.

In the second quarter, the Wildcats again got the jump on the Cardinals when Doug Schwartz passed to Derek Barnett for a touchdown. But again, the attempted extra points failed.

Still in the second quarter, the Cardinal quarterback Wesley Kruger was tackled in the end zone for a safety.

The third quarter, however, proved to be decisive for the Cardinals. Halfback Carroldon Burrleson scored when he ran the ball in nine yards for a touchdown. The Cardinals also made good their two attemps for extra points, bringing the score to 15-14 where it remained through the fourth quarter.

The Cardinal offense showed Carroldon Burrelson with 72 yards rushing; Wesley Kruger 43 yards passing and Joe Don Williamson 65 yards rushing.

The Cardinals now sport a 3-1 season record while Water Valley fell to 2-2 as a result of Friday night's game.

Seahawk Coach Thinks Cowboys Toughest Yet

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

There are six undefeated teams in the National Football League but only one of them—Dallas—gets to play the Seattle Seahawks Sunday.

"Over-all, they're the best team we've seen," said Jack Patera, coach of the expansion Seahawks.

The Cowboys—mixing explosive offense, ample defense and luck—edged the Baltimore Colts 30-27 last week on a 32-yard field goal by Efren Herrera with three seconds left. That gave them a 3-0 record for the young season, giving them three more victories than Seattle.

The Seahawks are still finding their way around the NFL. Seattle has surrendered 98 points so far—only the New York Jets have given up more—and will have their hands full trying to keep Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach in check.

Staubach is coming off one of his best days as a pro, having completed 22 of 28 passes for 339 yards and two touchdowns against Baltimore.

Seattle will counter with left-handed rookie Jim Zorn, who was cut by the Cowboys last year. Zorn hit 20 of 43 tosses for 264 yards in last week's loss to San Francisco. He also is Seattle's leading rusher with 99 yards on 13 carries.

In other Sunday NFL action, Oakland is at New England; San Diego at Denver; Philadelphia at Atlanta; Cincinnati at Cleveland; Washington at Chicago; Tampa Bay at Baltimore; Detroit at Green Bay; the New York Giants at St. Louis; Houston at New Orleans; Kansas City at Buffalo; Los Angeles at Miami; San Diego at Denver, and the New York Jets at San Francisco.

Pittsburgh is at Minnesota in a Monday night nationally televised game.

Quarterback Steve Grogan, who has been making New England fans forget about the departed Jim Plunkett, will be trying to lead the Patriots to their third straight upset. The Pats stunned Miami and Pittsburgh the past two weeks. Ken Stabler, out of action last week, is due back at quarterback for the Raiders.

The San Diego-Denver game matches the NFL's two highest scoring teams. Chargers' quarterback Dan Fouts has passed for 618 yards in three games. Denver's Rick Upchurch has become one of the league's most dangerous kick returners, having raced 145 yards on four punts last week against Cleveland.

Philadelphia lost running back Art Malone for the season with a bad knee and had several other ball carriers injured in last Monday night's overtime loss to Washington. Atlanta is coming off only its second shutout victory in its 143-game career, but the Falcons offense still is questionable.

Cincinnati's pass defense limited Green Bay to 45 yards through the air and returned two interceptions for TDs last week. Brian Sipe again will start at quarterback for Cleveland in place of Mike Phipps, who has a shoulder separation.

Bill Kilmer has a sore shoulder but nevertheless is expected to start at quarterback for Washington. Chicago will be trying to regroup after being blanked 10-0 by Atlanta.

Baltimore, coming off the tough loss to Dallas, boasts the American Conference's leading rusher in Lydell Mitchell, who has gained 294 yards. Tampa Bay has yet to score a touchdown. Quarterback Steve Spurrier is expected to start for the Bucs despite a bone chip in his right hand.

Detroit and Green Bay, 1-5 between them, both have had offensive problems. The Lions blew a chance to tie Minnesota last week when they messed up an extra point. The Packers' passing game and running game were virtually non-existant against Cincinnati.

St. Louis will get a boost with the return of fleet wide receiver Mel Gray, who has caught 26 passes for 716 yards and 10 TDs in his last 10 games against the Giants. Gray has been out with a bad ankle. The Giants, 0-3, will be playing their fourth straight road game.

Running back Ronnie Coleman, who led the AFC in rushing after the first two weeks, will return to action for Houston after missing last week's game with a knee injury. New Orleans got in the victory column against Kansas City last week, rolling up a club record 299 yards rushing.

Buffalo, with just 38 points in three games, will be looking for a big game from O.J. Simpson. Simpson had 538 yards rushing after three games last year, but has only 105 so far this year. Mike Livingston will call signals for the Chiefs despite a bad back.

Both sides would like to call off the Los Angeles-Miami game. Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom is angry the game is being played late in the day (4 p.m. EDT) because it interfere's with Yom Kippur and he says Commissioner Pete Rozelle scheduled it that way purposely. And Miami is worried because quarterback Bob Griese dislocated a finger during practice Thursday. Griese will play but his capabilities are uncertain because of the injury.

Lake View, Dunbar In Easy Wins

The Snyder Tigers had an open date on the gridiron this weekend, but other teams in District 3-3A launched the conference season and two of them served notice that they must be reckoned with when title time rolls around.

Lubbock Dunbar racked cross-town Lubbock Estacado, 27-0, in one of the major surprises of Friday night play. Estacado had been considered a top contender for the district crown by all observers, and an out-right favorite by most.

Lake View continued its awesome display of power and tenacious defense by walloping Brownfield, 55-0. The high-flying Chiefs now are 5-0 for the season and have had only one touchdown scored against them and that came during a 33-7 romp over San Antonio Central Catholic in the season-opener.

In other 3-3A game Friday night, the Lamesa Tornadoes edged the Sweetwater Mustangs, 10-7.

The District Standings:

Team	W	L
Lake View	1	0
Dunbar	1	0
Lamesa	1	0
Snyder	0	0
Sweetwater	0	1
Brownfield	0	1

This week's schedule: Lamesa at Snyder; Brownfield at Sweetwater; Estacado at Lake View; Dunbar, open.

Cowboys Still Don't Know Their Strength

SEATTLE (AP) — Just how good are the Dallas Cowboys?

"Well, they were supposed to be a rebuilding team last year. If you can go to the Super Bowl while rebuilding, I would suppose by the next year you'd be pretty set," said Seattle Coach Jack Patera, whose winless Seahawks meet the unbeaten Cowboys in a National Football League game Sunday in the Kingdome.

"Over-all they're the best team we've seen," said Patera, a member of the Cowboys' expansion club in 1960.

But Seattle's rookie head coach says his expansion team will approach the Dallas game like any other—expecting to win.

"We have as much chance to beat Dallas as we had against the other three teams," Patera said with a wry smile.

Seattle, 0-3, is coming off a 37-21 loss to San Francisco, a game in which the Seahawk secondary was burned for three Jim Plunkett touchdown passes in the first half. In Dallas, Seattle will face red hot Roger Staubach, who had his best day as a Cowboy in last week's 30-27 victory over Baltimore, completing 22 of 28 passes for 339 yards and two touchdowns.

Staubach has completed nearly 72 per cent of his passes in Dallas' first three games and has been intercepted only once.

"Even a quarterback who doesn't have a tendency to run will take off and run and hurt you occasionally," said Patera. "Roger is the type who will take off and run up the middle. But he's also a very fine passer, and if you don't put pressure on him he'll throw for 40 yards in stead of run for 10."

Patera says he's not overly concerned by one of the Cowboys' favorite offensive formations, the shotgun.

"Actually you have a little bit of an edge in the shotgun," he said. "The quarterback has declared his intention to pass and they're limited to the type of running they can do. It's very nice to see the quarterback back there and the running backs out of the backfield."

However, Patera is wary of Drew Pearson and Golden Richards, who he says are "as good a pair of receivers as there are in the league. We'd rather have them catch the ball in front of us than behind us."

Seattle has rookie Steve Largent, who caught seven passes for 128 yards and a touchdown against the 49ers.

The Seahawks will counter Staubach's passing and scrambling with first-year quarterback Jim Zorn, a left-hander who was the last player cut by Dallas a year ago to make room for running back Preston Pearson.

Zorn completed 20 of 43 passes for 264 yards and a touchdown against the 49ers. He also leads the team in rushing with 99 yards on 13 carries.

By Tuesday, 64,752 tickets had been sold for the 1 p.m. PDT game, assuring the Seahawks of their first sellout and a local television audience.

Stram Dabbling In Superstition

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Never one to overlook any kind of an edge, New Orleans Saints Coach Hank Stram is apparently dabbling in superstition for Sunday's National Football League meeting with the Houston Oilers.

The Saints, 1-2, won their first regular season contest last week in Kansas City wearing their white traveling jerseys. During the preseason, the Saints were 4-2 with three straight victories in white jerseys.

Stram has announced that the Saints will wear white Sunday in the Superdome, even though the usual home uniform is black and gold.

The coach says it's so the home fans will get a look at the team in their other uniforms, but nobody's denying that superstition could be a factor.

"What the heck," said an Oilers spokesman. "We're 7-2 in our powder blue over the past two regular seasons. If it comes to jersey colors, we're not backing down."

Pastorini has been dropped eight times while trying to pass this year, four of those sacks coming in the Oakland game.

Most Texas Harvesting Runs Behind Schedule

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Harvesting of most crops around the state is generally behind schedule, Dr. Daniel Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Although recent rains slowed harvesting, they gave a boost to pastures and ranges, he said.

Pfannstiel said cotton harvesting has started in North Central Texas and on the Rolling Plains. However, the weather has slowed the crop in the South Plains.

Early cucumbers are being harvested in the San Antonio-Winter Garden area and around Eagle Pass, he said. Some early harvesting of citrus is under way in the Rio Grande Valley.

Livestock are generally in good shape, Pfannstiel said. Marketing has been active in most areas.

District agricultural agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Wheat planting is about 75 per cent complete. Corn and sorghum are moving toward maturity. Some early corn has been harvested. Sugar beets are maturing. Cattle are in good condition.

South Plains: Recent hail damaged thousands of acres of cotton and other crops. Verticillium wilt is expected to increase in cotton because of weather conditions. Wheat planting continues.

Rolling Plains: Limited acres of small grains are up. Some cotton is being defoliated. A good sorghum crop is being harvested in most counties. Guar prospects range from 300 to 400 pounds per acre.

North Central: Peanut harvesting will start soon. Pastures and ranges are improving but armyworms are causing some damage. Hornflies are active in livestock.

Northeast: Corn yields have been good. Sweet potato harvesting is at the halfway point. Soybeans are setting pods. Final hay cuttings are under way. Livestock marketing is increasing.

Far West: Rains have delayed the sorghum harvest. Cotton bolls are beginning to open. Alfalfa is producing a final cutting. Bell peppers are being harvested. Range and livestock conditions are excellent. The wildlife situation looks good.

West Central: Sorghum yields are fair to good. Cotton is opening. Small grain planting is in progress. Grazing conditions are mostly excellent.

Central: About 10 per cent of the peanut crop has been dug. Some cotton has been so poor that it is not being harvested. Other fields are producing excellent yields. Cattle prices are poor.

East: A good corn harvest is about complete. The peanut harvest is fair in yield and quality. Planting is active for fall vegetable gardens. Moisture is needed.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: The corn harvest is about complete. Farmers are busy destroying cotton stalks. Peanut harvesting is active in Waller and Colorado counties. Oats are being planted in some areas.

South Central: Rains have delayed the cotton harvest but the moisture should boost pastures and ranges. A light pecan crop is maturing. Some winter pastures are being planted. Livestock are in good condition.

Southwest: Early cucumbers are being harvested. Rust and leaf spot are increasing in the late peanut crop. The pecan crop will be light. Ranges and pastures are in excellent shape. Screwworms remain a problem in cattle.

Coastal Bend: Harvesting of a good corn crop is about complete. Commercial cucumbers are making good progress. Pecans are dropping because of pecan scab. Screwworms, ear ticks and mosquitoes continue to be a serious problem in livestock.

South: Fall vegetables are making good progress. Too much rain has caused some peas to yellow. Some early citrus harvesting is under way. Planting of oats is active. Cattle have good grazing.

SMALL GRAIN INSECTS:

Much of the small grain is up to a good stand already and probably more to be planted. Don't forget to apply fertilizers before you plant if you intend to fertilize.

We have seen some small grain fields already infested with white grubs. This pest can destroy a good stand of small grain quickly and producers should be alert to possible damage from these grubs.

If you haven't already seeded your small grain, I suggest you check your field for the presence of this insect before seeding. If present, treatment of the field should be done prior to seeding. Little control can be obtained after your stand is established.

These white grubs are the larval stage of the May and June beetles. Damage to plants results from larvae feeding on the roots. Small plants are often killed, resulting in plant stand loss. Severely pruned roots of larger plants result in stunting or plant lodging.

Soil application of insecticides to control white grubs should be based on the presence of the insect. Examine a one-square foot soil sample for each 5 - 10 acres before planting. Research data have shown that an average of one white grub per square foot is enough to cause significant damage. These one square foot samples should be at random places in the field. They are usually found in the top 6 inches of soil.

Best results for control is obtained by broadcasting the insecticide on the soil before planting, and then incorporating it 3 to 5 inches deep. Where grub populations are high, seed furrow treatments are not effective.

Presence of white grubs is indicated by bare or dead areas in the small grain fields. By taking your pocket knife or a stick and scratching down a seed furrow, these grubs can be found about two - three inches under the ground.

The grubs work from center of the dead areas out, so they are more easily found near the edges.

Small grain fields already up and growing that become infested with white grubs requires more detailed and expensive control. These areas can be treated, incorporated and reseeded if the producers so desire.

Control measures consist of applying Diazinon granules (14.3 per cent) at the rate of 7 - 10 lbs. per acre and incorporating to a depth of 3 - 5 inches. The other control measure is spraying Diazinon at the rate of 4 lbs. of the concentrate per acre and incorporating. These are methods of control before planting or after the grain is up.

These grubs usually feed the entire season and in addition to small grain will cause damage to other crops with fibrous root system such as sorghum, corn, grasses, etc.
