To Base Missiles In NATO Countries...

Talks Begin To Save Plan

GLENEAGLES, Scotland (AP) — Western alliance defense ministers, faced with a growing ban-the-bomb movement in Europe, begin two days of talks today in an effort to hold together plans to base new U.S. missiles in five NATO countries.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger told reporters he would brief the ministers on testing of Cruise and Pershing II missiles that will make up an arsenal of 572 weapons the North Atlantic Treaty Organization wants to deploy in Britain, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and West Germany beginning in 1983.

In return, he will ask ministers from those countries to reaffirm a 1979 decision to deploy them and implore them not to be swayed by growing anti-nuclear sentiment.

Weinberger and representatives from 12 other NATO nations, including Greece, began holding informal meetings Monday before formal talks opened today.

Fearful of anti-nuclear demonstrations or Irish terrorists, British officials placed a heavy security blanket over the Gleneagles Hotel, the country resort where the conference is being held in the hills 40 miles north of Edinburgh.

More than 250,000 demonstrators protested the basing decision in West Germany two weeks ago and another mass march is scheduled this weekend in London.

Government opposition to the missile basing is strongest in the Netherlands, which has indefinitely deferred a final deployment go-ahead.

Belgium has made a commitment in principle but said it will delay specific basing plans pending the outcome of disarmament talks between the United States and the Soviet Union scheduled to begin Nov. 30 in Geneva, Switzerland.

West Germany, Italy and Britain have maintained their pledge to base the missiles.

Despite the wavering, U.S. officials say they are optimistic about fulfillment of the plans which they assert are necessary to counter a build-up of Soviet SS-20 missiles capable of hitting all NATO countries in Europe.

Before flying to Scotland, Weinberger told reporters in Stockholm, Sweden, that Western defenses would weaken if Greece's new Socialist government of Andreas Papandreou fulfills a campaign pledge to pull out of the alliance.

Branch Approved For Savings Firm

Application of Homestate Savings Association of Sweetwater for a branch office in Snyder has been approved by the Texas Savings and Loan Dept.

The firm submitted application for a branch here last May, and a hearing on the application was held in June.

Actually, it was the second application for the Sweetwater firm. It had sought a branch here in 1979 while operating under the name of Sweetwater Savings and Loan, but the application at that time was turned down in Austin.

Subsequently, the name was changed to Homestate Savings.

Homestate Savings will become Snyder's sixth financial firm, and its third savings institution.

Already operating here are Snyder Savings and Loan, which is based in Snyder, and First Federal Savings and Loan, a Big Spring based organization that has a branch here, plus three banks.

It was not learned immediately when Homestate will open a branch here, but in its application it indicated that the site for its Snyder branch would be 3405 College Ave.

Sales Tax Rebates Far Ahead Of '80

Snyder's city sales tax rebates continue to run more than 30 percent ahead of last year's figures and lead area cities in its population bracket by a substantial margin, according to reports from the State Comptroller of Public Accounts.

The city's October rebate check amounts to $49,225, which pushes the total for the year to $657,385. At this time last year, Snyder's sales tax rebates had reached a total of $504,279.

Current figures for other area cities of comparable size include the following, with the October rebate and the total for the year, in order:

Pecos, $53,939 and $384,920; Levelland, $33,956 and $518,618; Sweetwater, $32,077 and $466,903; Monahans, $31,200 and $379,085; Lamesa, $25,712 and $349,775; Andrews, $25,645 and $393,472; Brownfield, $20,530 and $324,888.

Reports for other towns in the Snyder area include Colorado City, $13,973 and $153,757; Post, $8,509 and $128,494; Roscoe, $1,592 and $25,506; Rotan, $1,204 and $42,209; and Roby, $686 and $10,389.

Tax Increase Is Being Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, reshaping President Reagan's latest austerity package to their liking, are considering a $6.2 billion tax increase as part of a plan to cut the 1982 budget deficit by $14.7 billion, sources say.

The plan envisions selective tax increases of more than $27 billion over three years, a figure that sources say could rise as Republicans struggle to come up with $115 billion in spending cuts and extra revenue to balance the budget by 1984.

Benefit programs such as food stamps and government pensions would be cut by $25.8 billion over three years, although no reductions in Social Security are anticipated, sources familiar with the program said Monday.

The sources said the actual legislation to raise taxes and cut the benefit programs would not be debated until next year, although the Senate would be asked to mandate them next month when it debates a budget plan.

These sources, who asked not to be identified, said the plan under consideration would be discussed at a meeting today of all 53 Senate Republicans.

They added that while changes were possible, it appeared certain that the GOP majority is inclined to back a plan that cuts spending less over the next three years than Reagan wants, and raises taxes more.

In all, the plan under consideration calls for spending cuts and revenue increases of $73.4 billion through 1934, short of the $80.1 billion in "identified savings" that Reagan has requested from Congress. It will take $35 billion in addition to that to balance the budget, according to most experts.

For 1982 alone, the $14.7 billion in the Senate package would fall slightly short of Reagan's recommendations for $16 billion in spending cuts and tax increases.

The details of the proposal under consideration by Senate Republicans came as Reagan, budget director David A. Stockman and Senate GOP leader Howard H. Baker Jr. all denied an agreement had been reached on modifying the program Reagan outlined in a nationally broadcast speech last month.

"We have not had any meetings yet on that that I have been involved in," Reagan said as he returned to the White House from a trip to Williamsburg, Va.

Despite the denials, congressional sources insisted there was a "pretty good understanding" on remaking Reagan's proposals.

Tuesday update

Administration Eyes Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is studying higher cigarette and alcohol excise taxes, elimination of credit-card interest deductions and limits on exemptions for health insurance premiums to stay on track toward a balanced budget by 1984, sources say.

These proposals, among a variety being analyzed by Treasury Department officials, could increase revenues by more than $9 billion in 1982 and $17 billion by 1984, according to administration estimates.

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, said White House budget director David A. Stockman is the administration's leading advocate of increased taxes to curb a growing 1982 deficit and fulfill President Reagan's pledge to balance the budget by 1984.

Goodfellow Chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An advanced radar warning complex designed to guard against possible attack from Soviet submarine-launched ballistic missiles may be built at or near Goodfellow Air Force Base, San Angelo, Texas, the U.S. Air Force has disclosed.

Possible construction of the radar warning complex was disclosed during an Air Force announcement that it has decided against shutting down Goodfellow, a move first proposed more than three years ago. The Air Force said it will retain Goodfellow as an active base where it will continue training of airmen in code work.

Location of a radar system called Pave Paws at or near Goodfellow was cited as another reason for keeping the base in operation.

Unemployment To Increase

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is considering new curbs on state spending even as criticism mounts that her tight-money policy is exacerbating unemployment — already at 12.4 percent and expected to go higher.

She was planning to call a Cabinet meeting to discuss further restraints, while forecasters were suggesting that new figures due out today would push the October unemployment toll closer to the 3 million mark.

The two events symbolize the record of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party administration, elected with a sweeping majority in 1979 on a promise to tackle inflation and encourage free enterprise.

In September, 2.9 million people were out of work — 12.4 percent of the nation's work force. As a result, there are calls from within and outside the Conservative Party for Mrs. Thatcher to ease her tight-money policy.

Leaders To Arrive

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Leaders from five continents start flying in to this posh playground of the rich today for a historic conference on how best to help the world's poor.

Mexican authorities, the assassination of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat fresh in their minds, have ringed the Caribbean island resort with gunboats and guards for the meeting Thursday and Friday of 22 world leaders, including President Reagan.

Security officials will not say how many military men and police will guard the visitors, but the loua puts the number at 5,000.

Six gunboats cruise offshore, and marine patrols walk beaches. There also are armed frogmen watching below the waves, with their focus on the pale blue waters off the Cancun Sheraton, site of the talks and hotel for the chiefs.

Reagan's stay will give him a look at a Third World phenomenon his administration repeatedly rejects — state planning and investment.

The SDN Column

Oklahomans may have made the University of Texas football team look good---temporarily, at least---but there are others north of the Red River who are making another group of Texans look bad.

That was the comment as Scurry County commissioners read some information about kickbacks and rakeoffs accepted by some of their counterparts in the Sooner state. Actually, the investigations which uncovered these misdeeds extended into Northeast Texas, but the base of operations apparently was centered in Oklahoma.

Commissioner Hassie Sneed said he read about one Oklahoma commissioner who admitted that he took kickbacks on purchases and contracts, but was running for re-election on a platform stressing that his kickbacks were much smaller than others.

It is like some comments on the nation's economy that we hear from politicians. They say it's still getting worse, but it's not getting worse as fast as it was.

★ ★ ★

Scurry County Commissioners are somewhat thankful that this county has had an independent audit annually for many years. In fact, some thought that annual outside audits were required by state law, but that is not the case. But such laws may evolve from the cases in Oklahoma and Northeast Texas that have been publicized this year.

Some of the reports indicate that commissioners in some counties regarded kickbacks merely as part of their rightful salaries. Such attitudes can develop easily if these situations continue unnoticed for a long period of time. And no entity or business is immune.

We recall a story about an underworld character who got control of a newspaper in Chicago years ago. As he looked over the payroll records, he was astounded to see that the paper was paying its sports editor a salary.

"If he can't make a living with the hatchet he has, he shouldn't be in the business," said the hoodlum.

Could this be the zaniest football season ever? Perhaps, according to some of the experts. They blame it on the recruiting limits of 30 players each year. Or, maybe "credit" is a better word than "blame" in this case. We think it makes the season more interesting.

For example, last week was the first time since Nov. 25, 1970 that Oklahoma was not ranked in the top 20. And it took Coach Gerry Faust eight years to lose three games while coaching at Moeller High School in Cincinnati, but he did it in five weeks at Notre Dame.

And what would you think about Iowa and Washington State in the Rose Bowl? It's a little early yet, but if they were writing the tickets on the records as they stand today, that's who would be in Pasadena come New Year's Day.

Measured Phone Service Defended By Officials

Fears of "measured service" billing for local telephone calls are premature and misconstrued, according to Southwestern Bell officials.

Responding to reports of a petition here opposing measured service, Jay Allen of Midland, spokesman for the phone company, said the measured service plan proposed by the company is strictly optional and that it is being advanced to save money, rather than increase costs, for customers who use their phones sparingly.

Allen had heard about a petition being circulated here in opposition to the measured service, which actually is a toll type service for local calls.

"We are aware that measured service will not be practical for everyone," said Allen. "But we are offering it as an alternative to those who do not make many calls on their telephone, because telephone rates are going up."

Allen said the measured service actually was recommended by regulatory agencies in some states. He said they realized that the flat rate for local service must go up and those who make fewer calls would get a better rate under the measured service plan.

"The average flat rate now is about $8 per month, which is about $16 under cost," Allen declared. "It actually costs about $25 per month to provide telephone service to a customer. Long distance revenue has helped subsidize local service in the past, but it won't in the future."

Allen said measured service could not be offered immediately in Snyder. Equipment here would have to be upgraded to provide it. However, he indicated this would be done if the Public Utilities Commission approves measured service.

Allen denied that there is any plan by the phone company to increase flat rates for local service to exhorbitant levels to force customers to take measured service.

Petitions were started here last week opposing measured service. It attracted considerable interest, especially among senior citizens.

Measured service also is being opposed by the Texas Municipal League, which claims that the optional proposal is merely a first step toward forced measured service. Attorneys for the cities fighting the telephone rate case now before the Texas Public Utilities Commission state in one of their reports that "although such service would be optional, it is clear that the flat rate would be raised so high that most people would have no real alternative to switching to toll service.....unfortunately, the long range plan is to persuade the bulk of customers to switch to this optional service and to then gradually raise such prices in an effort to obtain greater revenue from local exchange service."

The Fort Worth Star Telegram's Austin Bureau reported that during an appearance before an Iowa regulatory conference, Lawrence Garfinkel, assistant vice president of AT&T, made a "hypothetical" projection indicating that the flat rate for phone service would hit $80 per month by 1889.

Allen said he had heard nothing about $80 per month flat rates, but conceded that they are certain to go up.

Ask Us

Q.—Why does the city let people accumulate junk in their yards and create eye-sores and breeding places for flies and mosquitoes?

A.—The city has an ongoing program for eliminating such situations, and if you know of one, you should report it to city hall. They do not have the personnel to seek out all junk, etc., but will respond when any is called to their attention, says City Manager John Gayle. Also, people in neighborhoods who want to clean up their property may have a city dump truck parked overnight in their neighborhood free of charge if they want to fill it with junk and trash that are not suitable for disposal in the regular sanitation containers.

New Hampshire Primary...

Presidential Hopefuls Scouting

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — It's been just nine months since Ronald Reagan moved into the White House, but already a lengthening line of Democrats is scouting New Hampshire with an eye on its 1984 earliest-in-the-nation presidental primary.

"John Glenn, Gary Hart, Mondale, Biden. We've had some contact with them all. Everyone wants to come up for a visit," says Richard Boyer, head of the state Democratic Party. Sens. Glenn of Ohio, Hart of Colorado and Joseph Biden of Delaware all have been mentioned as possible candidates.

Joan Mondale, wife of the former vice president, Walter Mondale, visited the state for two days last week to promote the arts, and Glenn, an Ohio senator, is scheduled to speak at a fund-raiser next month for Gov. Hugh Gallen.

Aides to both insist the visits are non-political. But many see it differently.

"Of course they're political visits. There's no question about it," says Dudley Dudley, a member of the state's Executive Council who headed the New Hampshire presidential campaigns of Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona and Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts.

"They can say they're looking at the fall foliage or want to find a place to ski, but politics is always behind a politician's visit to New Hampshire," she says. "They are making initial contacts now...people they can go back to next year."

Ms. Dudley and others cringe at the early start of "silly season." But, on reflection, they say the preliminary incursions into New Hampshire are not early. Jimmy Carter started about the same time, and no one is going to forget it.

"I just can't believe it's starting again. We just finished the last circus," Ms. Dudley says. "Sometimes it seems like the campaigning never ends."

Those testing the political waters will take any opportunity to visit the state, including judging a cattle show or log-splitting contest. In 1974, Carter spoke to a high school civics class.

They jump into the presidential primary pool as often as they can, leaving the warmth of their families and the plush comfort of Washington two or three years before every presidential election and become almost commuters to New Hampshire.

Three-piece suits are replaced with down vests and parkas, and men who hate the outdoors find themselves braving subzero temperatures at ski areas to shake hands with people who more often than not are from Massachusetts.

Politicians who routinely draw crowds of thousands become content with expounding their views on international trade credits or nuclear proliferation to three men clustered around a potbellied stove in a general store.

No other state gets the fawning attention New Hampshire receives from presidential aspirants, pollsters and reporters. But many people question whether a rural state with a population of 900,000, few minorities and little heavy industry should be a bellwether for the rest of the country.

Nevertheless, since the presidential primary system began in 1952, no one, not Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, Carter or Reagan, has reached the White House without winning the New Hampshire primary.

William Dunfey, a prominent Democrat active in behind-the-scenes machinations of the past five presidential primaries, says courting New Hampshire is something would-be presidents are almost trapped into doing.

"It's almost like a religious ritual. You've got to light the candles, burn the incense, have the ceremony. It's part of the process and if you don't do it, it appears you've somehow lost your religion," he says.

Dunfey believes the primary system must be shortened and streamlined, but says doing that will be difficult. "Not supporting New Hampshire's presidential primary is like being against maple syrup," he says.

New Hampshire law requires that the state's presidential primary be held one week earlier than any other state primary. The state has fought all attempts to include it in efforts to streamline the lengthy primary process, which in 1980 spanned 37 state elections on 17 different days.

A bipartisan panel recently recommended that all primaries be held on one of four specified days, each a month apart.

In 1980, New Hampshire Democrats won an exemption from a similar streamlining effort, but the exemption was supposed to be the last.

"There is no provision for a special exception for New Hampshire's primary as there was in 1980," says Robert Neuman, a Democratic National Committee official.

"The DNC is now armed with a new weapon," he adds. "The Supreme Court, in a case involving Wisconsin, ruled that the DNC is the final authority in deciding its delegate selection."

Nevertheless, state Democrats are preparing to do battle to save the questionable honor of being first. Party leaders are gathering documents to use at a meeting in Washington next month to support their hold on first place.

Whether the effort succeeds or fails, most New Hampshire Democrats believe the primary will survive.

As one active Democrat, Phil Grandmaison, put it at a party meeting last week, the only thing worse than not being first would be not having a primary at all.

Drugs Found In Presley's Body

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — When Elvis Presley died, his blood and tissues contained toxic levels of the sedative methaqualone, 10 times more codeine than needed for therapy and low levels of 10 other drugs, including morphine, a biochemist testified.

The testimony Monday in the drug trial of Dr. George Nichopoulos, Presley's physician, marked the first official release of any of the evidence that went into the rock 'n' roll idol's autopsy.

Presley's death on Aug. 16, 1977, at the age of 42 was said by the medical examiner of Shelby County to be the result of heart disease. Published reports have said Presley's death was related to drug abuse, but the autopsy itself, requested by the singer's family and conducted by nine doctors, including Nichopoulos, has been kept secret.

"I have not seen the number of drugs in one serum or blood sample as we found in this person," said Norman Weissman, a biochemist with Bio Science Laboratories of Van Nuys, Calif., one of five laboratories that tested tissues and blood from Presley's body.

Nichopoulos, a 53-year-old internist, went on trial Sept. 30 charged with prescribing excessive amounts of amphetamines, barbiturates and painkillers for himself, Presley, rock 'n' roller Jerry Lee Lewis and others. Nichopoulos isn't charged with causing Presley's death.

Weissman said Presley's body contained levels of the sedative methaqualone, "above the line of toxicity."

He said preliminary reports sent to Baptist Hospital by his lab said the level of the painkiller codeine in the singer's body was 10 times the therapeutic level. He didn't say what ailment might have been treated by therapeutic levels of codeine.

Because he is not a physician, Weissman wasn't permitted to testify on the effects of combining the drugs.

Weissman said in Criminal Court before Judge Bernie Weinman that Presley's body contained therapeutic, nontoxic levels of the following drugs: morphine, a pain-killer; Amytal, or amobarbital, a sedative; pentobarbital, a sedative and sleep-inducer; phenobarbital, a sedative; amitriptyline, a sedative; Demerol, or meperidine, a painkiller; Valmid, or ethinamate, a sleep drug; Placidyl, or ethchlorvynol, a sleep drug; Valium, or diazepam, a muscle relaxant; and phenyltoloxamine, a pain-killer.

The chief pathologist at Baptist Hospital testified Monday that tissue and blood samples sent to the laboratories didn't include the contents of Presley's stomach, which was pumped when the singer arrived at Baptist Hospital. The pathologist, Dr. Eric Muirhead, said he didn't know what happened to the contents.

Muirhead said he, Shelby County medical examiner Dr. Jerry Francisco, Nichopoulos and six other doctors performed the autopsy. Nichopoulos' attorneys have argued that the document is a private document that should not be released.

Hidden Message On Delta Billboard

MIAMI (AP) — There's a hidden message on Delta Air Lines' big billboard, and Eastern Airlines has a lot to do with it.

As part of a federally funded beautification project, six young royal palms — each 15 feet tall — went up in downtown Miami in front of the blue-and-yellow Delta billboard that says "Fly Delta."

Two months later, somebody sawed the trees down, leaving six gray stumps. County officials called for a police investigation.

But the unobstructed view of the billboard didn't last long. When Eastern officials learned of the vandalism, they contacted the county with some good news. The Miami-based airline had seven 35-foot-tall palms to donate.

Eastern officials said the palms became available because of company expansion at the airport. Engineer Victor Citarella, who arranged the gift, said he didn't know there was a Delta sign nearby.

"I had no idea about that," Citarella insisted. "We don't have any comment on that."

Eastern and Delta compete hotly on routes throughout the eastern United States and the Midwest.

"I don't care whether they are competitors are not," said Jorge Morales, the chief planner with Dade County's Office of Community and Economic Development. "These trees are expensive. I'm just happy to get them."

The seven trees donated by Eastern were planted Monday, along with seven smaller palms from other donors. The sign was partly visible behind the original trees, but Eastern's palms tower over the billboard.

Yields Are Up Slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — After declining in four of the previous five weeks, yields on short-term Treasury securities were up slightly in the latest weekly auction, government officials report.

About $4.5 billion in six-month T-bills were sold Monday at an average discount rate of 13.795 percent, up from the 13.5 percent of Oct. 9.

The government also sold about $4.5 billion in three-month bills at an average yield of 13.613 percent, up from the previous 13.526 percent.

You have to understand, I was born in an era where the human body was not real. Oh, sure, everyone had one, but if you asked anyone to describe an organ like the heart, they'd draw a picture of a valentine with an arrow through it.

I loved being naive. The stork stories were such fun. When my babies were born I was given a sedative which knocked me out until the kids were entering first grade. I had no reason to believe a giant bird did not make the delivery.

Today, through the miracle of curiosity and malpractice suits, we are in an era where we are forced to know everything there is to know about the human body. Sometimes I think it's more than we can handle.

Like the man in Arizona who wrote that his wife was going into the hospital for some "simple repair" work. He said she was in great spirits. She hadn't thought about a new will, burial arrangements, putting things in storage, calling everyone she knew for a last goodbye, or even having a quick affair with her hairdresser.

Then the hospital sent her a release form to sign and return to the office. The words leaped out at her from the page: POSSIBILITY THIS OPERATION WILL NOT HELP...POSSIBLE TO HAVE WORSE PAIN THAN YOU HAVE NOW...COMPLICATED BY BLEEDING AND INFECTION...DAMAGE TO STRUCTURE...WEAKNESS...PAIN...NUMBNESS IN LEGS, THIGHS AND FEET...NERVE DAMAGE.

The only possibility they didn't mention was the cardiac arrest when she read the release form.

His wife fell apart and it was all he could do to get her to go through with it.

The human body is tough. It's the mind that's very fragile and given a choice I'd opt for a doctor who lies between his teeth.

I once had a pediatrician who could give a common cold a future you didn't want to hear about. I needed a man who would tell me there was nothing wrong with my child that a laxative wouldn't fix...that his measles probably weren't the kind that spread to the entire family just before Christmas...or that we didn't have to talk orthodontics until my husband's raise came through.

I just don't want to see this truth-in-surgery get out of hand. Can you imagine the panic if every mother-to-be was given a list of the hazards and side-effects of prolonged child-raising?

She might survive the delivery, but the depression she could die from.

Recalls Are Now Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recalls involving more than 120,000 stationary exercise bikes and about 17,000 portable cribs are under way, the Consumer Product Safety Commission says.

The commission said Monday that six injuries were reported since 1979 when the metal support posts on the exercise bikes broke through the seats. The agency and the manufacturer, Beacon Enterprises, Inc., of Yonkers, N.Y., said the problem was caused by failure to follow assembly instructions.

The recall involves units of Beacon's Scandia model 462 dual-action cycler built between August 1976 and July 1980.

Meanwhile, Questor Juvenile Furniture Company of Piqua, Ohio, is recalling about 17,000 portable cribs because the bottom may separate from the sides, allowing an infant to fall to the floor.

The recall applies only to model 320 Kantwet Trav-L-Cribs that do not contain a date code on the reverse side of the white tag attached to the crib mattress.

NOODLES PLUS

We've updated a popular recipe from the 1950s; in addition, it's now a make-ahead dish.

1 pound ground chuck beef
15½-ounce can tomato sauce
Tabasco sauce to taste
8-ounce package broad egg noodles
8-ounce package cream cheese, soft
1 cup creamstyle cottage cheese
¼ cup commercial sour cream
1-3rd cup finely chopped firmly packed scallions (green tops included)

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat cook the beef, crumbling with a fork, until it loses its red color; off heat, stir in tomato sauce and tabasco. Cook noodles according to package directions. With a spoon, stir together the cream cheese, cottage cheese and sour cream until well mixed; stir in the scallions. In a buttered 2-quart oblong baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) spread half the noodles; top with the cheese mixture; cover with the remaining noodles; top with the beef mixture. Refrigerate up to 2 days. Bake (directly from refrigerator) in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbling around edges and hot in the center — about 30 to 40 minutes. Let stand about 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings. (If mixture begins to bubble over toward end of baking, place a sheet of foil on rack below baking dish.)

Smoking Dangers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some segments of the general public do not know there is a relationship between smoking and heart disease, according to a national medical publication.

Internal Medicine News, citing government findings, says nearly one-third of Americans are unaware of the dangers of smoking cigarettes, despite increasing scientific documentation of the health consequences.

In addition, almost one-half of the women surveyed were unaware of the increased risk of stillbirth and miscarriage associated with smoking during pregnancy.

The magazine says perhaps the most surprising finding was that 20 percent of the public was ignorant of the fact that smoking has been linked to cancer.

The government agency conducting the survey was the Federal Trade Commission.

MAWC Has Board Meeting

The board of directors of the Martha Woman's Club met recently for their regular monthly meeting.

The board gave a memorial in memory of Mrs. L. Dee Harlon and announced they will have a baked goods table at the Christmas Bazaar. The bazaar will be December 5 beginning at 4 p.m. The chicken enchilada supper will be served at 5 p.m.

Soviet Novel Needs Polish

PRETENDER TO THE THRONE. By Vladimir Voinovich. Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 358 Pages. $17.95.

"Pretender to the Throne" is a novel whose parts are better than the whole.

That's probably because the book itself is a part of an apparently unfinished series. Chonkin, the character around whom this book is fashioned, first emerged a couple of years or so ago in "The Life and Extraordinary Adventures of Private Ivan Chonkin."

That was a very funny book, as is this one, but it was selfcontained. "Pretender to the Throne" can be read and enjoyed by itself, but the reader gets much more out of it if he is familiar with what has gone before.

Despite this drawback, "Pretender" still has a lot going for it. Although he's the character around whom the plot revolves, Chonkin doesn't appear center stage all that often. Rather the story primarily deals with the lives of those who have had the misfortune to be touched in some manner by Chonkin's various misadventures.

Chonkin is a Soviet soldier who made the mistake of doing as he was ordered. Since Russia is at war with Nazi Germany, it is a relatively easy matter for the authorities to turn Chonkin into a German agent and, of course, when this happens those who once regarded Chonkin as a hero are now regarded with deep suspicion by the authorities.

There are many funny bits and set pieces in the meandering narrative which allow Voinovich to display his superb sense of humor — as well as of the absurd — as he ridicules the excesses of Soviet bureaucracy.

Voinovich has many winning ways as a writer, and he displays them to advantage here. It's unfortunate his hand wasn't firmer in the shaping of this comic narrative.

Here is another Jannersten hand. You are in six clubs missing the ace of trumps and an almost sure spade loser. You can't do anything about the ace of trumps. How about the spade loser?

Forget about a singleton king. That is too small a chance. Now you are down to an end play. If West holds ace and one trump and the king of spades you can lead a low club and hope he will duck. Give that one up. West isn't going to duck. He has heard about end plays.

Now we get down to one chance. One opponent must hold the singleton ace of trumps, not more than two diamonds and that king of spades. Now you are ready for the one chance.

Discard one of dummy's spades on your second-high heart. Then cash the ace and king of diamonds and lead a trump.

Lo and behold everything has come up roses. East must take his ace and lead a heart or a spade. He leads the spade. You play low and your spade loser has disappeared.

Lucky, but you made your own luck.

Dear Abby

Men Don't Measure Up To Big Woman's Standards

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm 32, single, and all my life I've been just plain big! (I'm 5 feet, 10 inches and weigh 200.)

There's a single man who just started working where I work and I think he finds me attractive. He hangs around my desk and greets me every morning with, "Good morning, Beautiful!" Abby, does he really mean it, or is he making fun of me? Are men really ever attracted to big women, or do they think we're desperate?

I like him, but I'm afraid he is just out for what he can get. Not long ago, a man I hardly knew propositioned me, and I said no. Then he said, "Don't hold out too long, Honey. A girl your size doesn't get many chances." I'm beginning to think he was right.

BIG AND HURTING IN N.J.

DEAR HURTING: Don't fall into that trap. Many heavy women suffer from low self-esteem and are inclined to take anything they can get because they're lonely and their chances are few.

Please get IT'S ME — an excellent new magazine especially for the big woman. The current issue addresses itself in particular to the problem of weight-related promiscuity. The article titled, "Sex — A Weighty Problem — In Your Head or in Your Bed?" deals realistically with this problem. I urge you to read it!

• • •

DEAR ABBY: This problem really bothers me. My only grandchild is 3½. When he sees his mother and her boyfriend drinking, which is nearly every night, he grabs for their can or glass and they let him drink a swallow or two. I am so afraid that this will turn the boy into an alcoholic. His mother disagrees. She says it will keep him from drinking later on.

She also lets him walk around with a cigarette in his mouth (unlighted) so he can pretend he's "smoking" while she smokes. She says there is nothing wrong with letting him "pretend." I say it will encourage him to smoke eventually.

Abby, wouldn't you say my daughter is guilty of child abuse? I love that little guy so much, I hate to see anything happen to him. What can I do?

HEARTSICK GRANNY

DEAR GRANNY: Yes, I agree, your daughter is guilty of child abuse. And if you "love the little guy," don't risk alienating his mother, because the child needs as much of your love, concern and wholesome influence as he can get.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a copy of your column I have kept for nearly 20 years. This column was a constant help during a very difficult period of my life when I often felt I just couldn't make it through another day.

"Very Poor" gave me the courage to do so, and perhaps if you print it again it may help others as it did me. I still carry a copy in my purse and reread it when the going gets difficult.

J.J. IN N.Y.

DEAR J.J.: I agree. "Very Poor" richly deserves a rerun. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading the "problems" sent to your column, and I hope you print this because it might do a lot of people some good.

I'm in a charity hospital with arthritis, TB, heart trouble, and I am gradually losing my eyesight. I'm only 38, but I can't remember being free from pain in 22 years. If I could wake up one morning feeling good again I wouldn't care if my wife (if I had one) flirted with another man.

What I am trying to say, Abby, is if a person can get up in the morning and go to work on his own two legs, he should get down on his knees and thank God, for without health, you have nothing — even if you are rich.

VERY POOR

• • •

Everybody needs friends. For some practical tips on how to be popular, get Abby's Popularity booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed stamped (35 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.

Smith Wins Oyster Title

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP) — Aw shucks, Ruth Smith won again.

For the third straight year, Mrs. Smith claimed title Sunday as the nation's premier oyster shucker.

And it looks as if it's turning into a real family affair: Her brother, for the second year, was runner-up in the annual contest.

"It's no secret, just practice and concentration," the winner of the U.S. National Oyster Shucking Championship here said of her victory at the 15th Annual St. Mary's County Oyster Festival.

Mrs. Smith repeated as champ by shucking 24 oysters in 3 minutes, 51 seconds. Her brother, Cornelius Mackall of Lusby, came in at 4:08.

The champ, who placed third in the International Oyster Shucking Championship last year in Galway, Ireland, is to travel there to compete again in the worldwide competition next September.

Vickie Daniel Trial...

Defense Theory Called Conjecture

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor in the Vickie Daniel murder trial says it is "conjecture only" that the defendant's husband grabbed the death weapon moments before he was shot to death.

But a Houston pathologist testified Monday metal-trace tests performed on the hands of former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. do not rule out that possibility.

Harris County Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk said the tests reflect a metal-trace pattern "consistent" with such a theory.

The testimony plunges to the heart of a defense contention that Daniel might have grabbed the .22-caliber rifle his wife was holding and caused it to discharge accidentally, causing his fatal wound.

"You can't say with any certainty that he gripped that gun, can you?" asked District Atttorney Carroll Wilborn.

"No, sir," Jachimczyk replied.

He also said the metal-trace pattern could have been made had Daniel picked up a handful of coathangers.

It was Wilborn who later told newsmen that it was "conjecture only" and that he and the defense could swap such conjecture indefinitely.

Mrs. Daniel, 34, the victim's second wife, all but admitted shooting her husband but said it was an accident.

Daniel, 39, died Jan. 19 at the couple's home on a sprawling 3,000-acre ranch just outside Liberty.

Jachimczyk, the state's sixth witness, told the jury Daniel died of an abdominal bullet wound that severed the body's main artery.

He said the missile entered just below and to the right of the navel, penetrated the intestine, cut the aorta and lodged in a vertebra. Jachimczyk said Daniel might have lived 10 or 15 minutes after the shooting but would have lost consciousness very quickly because of heavy internal bleeding.

The pudgy, widely respected pathologist said the bullet was fired at close range and traveled upwards at a 20-degree angle.

Mrs. Daniel had testified during a bitter child-custody hearing she did not remember firing the fatal shot but said the rifle discharged as Daniel descended an attic stairwell.

Jachimczyk's testimony appeared to corroborate contentions that a physical confrontation between the couple preceded the shooting. He said he found bruises, cuts and scratches on Daniel's nose, chin, chest, knuckle, wrist and shin and said they were "consistent with a struggle."

Lead defense lawyer Jack Zimmerman asked Jachimczyk if the marks could have been made if Daniel were the aggressor in the struggle.

Could Price's knuckle bruise, for example, be the result "of a punch being thrown?" Zimmerman asked.

"Yes, sir," Jachimczyk replied.

Mrs. Daniel maintains she and her husband argued over their pending divorce and that he struck her shortly before the shooting.

She has portrayed the widely known, generally respected Daniel as a hard-drinking, drug-using womanizer with homosexual tendencies and no qualms about abusing her or her children.

Jachimczyk said at the time of death, Daniel's bloodstream contained the equivalent of one and one half ounces of hard liquor and he conducted no drug tests.

Outwardly, however, Daniel was circumspect, a reform legislator and the namesake son of three-time Texas Gov. Price Daniel, himself a former U.S. Senator, state legislator and Texas Supreme Court justice.

Zimmerman said the trace-metal tests were significant because they showed Daniel did not touch the back doorknob or locks nor the handle on his pickup truck door.

He says the state would like to show that Daniel opened the back door, loaded some personal belongings into his pickup and was preparing to leave Vickie when he was shot.

According to that scenario, Mrs. Daniel locked the back door to prevent his escape, removed the rifle from a hall closet and "knowingly and intentionally" killed her husband in cold blood.

Daniel might have lived 10 or 15 minutes after the wound but he would have lost consciousness quickly because of heavy internal bleeding.

Home Video Recorders Violate Copyright Laws

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The future of the booming business in video tape recorders was cast into doubt by a federal appeals court ruling that millions of Americans are violating copyright laws when they use the machines to tape television shows.

Under the ruling, the makers of the machines could be required to pay royalties to the owners of television programs or even be forced to halt the manufacture and sale of the devices.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Monday that the estimated 3 million home video recorders in America exist for "copyright infringement," and makers and sellers of the machines are liable for damages.

The appeals court reversed U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson in the case, and sent the matter back to his Los Angeles courtroom for consideration of what should be done about what it said was an "exceedingly complex" problem.

The three-man appeals court suggested he look into the possibility of royalties or even an injunction barring the manufacture and sale of the machines. But the court acknowledged that an injunction could result in "great public injury."

Appeal of the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court was a strong possibility.

Kenji Tamiya, top officer of Sony Corp. of America, chief defendant in the lawsuit, said: "All parties to this litigation always have expected that the final decision in this case will be made by the U.S. Supreme Court."

In Tokyo, Naozo Mabuchi, managing director of the parent Sony Corp., also a defendant, called the ruling by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals "anachronistic."

He said that video tape recorders sold in the United States are used by consumers "for their own personal use."

Officials of the Electronic Industries Association of Japan also expressed anxiety over the ruling, pointing out that private recording of copyrighted television programs is allowed in Japan and parts of Europe.

The suit was brought by Universal City Studios and Walt Disney Productions against Sony Corp. of America and Sony Corp.; four retailers: Carter Hawley Hale Stores Inc., Associated Dry Goods Corp., Federated Department Stores, and Henry's Camera Corp.; the Doyle Dane Bernbach advertising agency; and William G. Griffiths, a Sony Betamax owner.

The plaintiffs claimed copyright infringement was committed when home video recorders were used to tape shows they produced.

Ferguson had ruled that even if home video recording did infringe on copyrights, the defendants were not liable for damages. He said copyright holders do not have a monopoly over the recorders.

But the appeals court found "no congressional intent to create a blanket home use exception to copyright protection and that home video recording does not constitute fair use."

Center Once Adult Book Store

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The adult book store once bore a sign in red letters saying, "Do not enter if offended by nudity or the human body." But behind the white door these days there's a mural of Jesus Christ.

The Chapman Highway Adult Book Shop has been turned into the Pentecostal Revival Center. There are pews where projection booths stood. Stained-glass windows decorate the front double doors, and the scarlet letters on the side entrance are hidden by white paint.

There's a steeple on the roof.

"From darkness to light," said the Rev. William Bryant.

Congregation members met in Bryant's home for several months while they searched for a church building. Church member Howard Pennell said he found the abandoned book store after seeing it in a dream.

You'll learn many simple do-it-yourself ideas for conserving energy by attending one of Texas Electric's Operation Tighten-Up workshops. They're free, and last only about an hour.

Learning to save energy and money at home is important, especially since electricity will cost more next year. This is partly because the last of our contracts to buy low-cost natural gas expires December 31.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Walking back to fitness

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to get back in shape and improve my fitness. I have not been doing anything for years. I'm 56 years old and a little overweight.

I had planned to start a walking program. Now my neighbor tells me that walking will not help my circulation and I really have to jog. He is something of an expert on this subject and says you have to increase your heart rate to 60 or 80 percent of its maximum or around 140 beats a minute to do any good.

Now I am wondering if he is right and I won't get any health benefits from walking. I surely won't have a heart rate that high with walking alone and I'm not so sure it would be good for me to do that much exercise. What do you think? Will the walking be such a low level of exertion that it can't help me?

DEAR READER — Stuff and nonsense. Let your neighbor keep his rigid rules; start your walking program. And I think you should limit your walking speed to the point that you don't get a high heart rate, particularly at first.

Of course you can get benefits for your circulation from a walking program. Such rules as having to have a high heart rate are terrible oversimplifications that do not apply to everybody. If you had been at bed rest for four weeks, just starting walking down the hall is a training step. Each time you increase your exercise above the level you are already adapted to, it is a training experience. If you were already trained for the Boston Marathon, a walk wouldn't raise your fitness level much, but for most people who have not been that active it is a wonderful way to start and even maintain a good level of fitness.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 18-4, Walking to Health, which will tell you how to do it and the benefits you can derive from it for your health. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Walking can train your heart and as you increase your distance and speed it will train it to a higher exercise level. It can help to lower blood pressure, cholesterol and to keep your weight down. That goes a long way toward improving your health.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a ganglion cyst on the back of my hand and have had it drained three times. Cortisone was injected, which gave some relief for brief periods of time.

The cyst is back again and my doctor said that he would not drain it again but would prefer to perform surgery and remove the "joint capsule." I am a secretary and it has become increasingly difficult to type; also this has been keeping me awake at night. Is there another method of permanently removing or dissolving this cyst other than surgery? I have had this for more than three years.

DEAR READER — Most such cysts are really a little bag of tissue, like a plastic bag. Draining it doesn't remove the bag and it tends to fill again with fluids and gelatinous material. Obviously, when it continues to recur it is a good idea to remove the sac-like structure and that is probably what your doctor intends to do. Such cysts can be painful if they press on nerves but others cause no pain.

Dropping Of Charges No Setback

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The dropping of kidnap charges against Donald Michael Corey is no setback in the investigation, a police spokesman said.

"The idea that this is a major setback is an error," Lt. Tom Mundy said Monday. "It is just as much our responsiblity to discount Corey as a suspect as it is to confirm it."

Oklahoma County District Attorney Bob Macy dropped two kidnapping charges Monday against Donald Michael Corey, arrested in connection with the disappearance Sept. 26 of two 13-year-old girls from the State Fair of Oklahoma.

Macy said police had verified that Corey was in Texas the day the girls vanished. He said Corey bears a "striking" facial resemblence to a man last seen with the girls, but is much smaller in physical appearance.

Charges were dropped after police made a weekend trip to Dallas to confirm Corey's alibi that he was not in Oklahoma City when the kidnapping occurred.

Macy said he now has a better description of the man who may have kidnapped Cinda L. Pallett and Charlotte Kinsey from the fairgrounds.

"The real suspect is tall and gangly, and not like Corey. Corey is 5-feet-10 and our suspect is 6-feet-1 or more," the district attorney said.

"Apparently, Corey's picture looks just like him. We are dealing with witnesses who had only seen the picture," Macy said.

"We have a case of two young girls who are missing — two lives may be in danger. In a case like that, you don't have the luxury of waiting to check someone out in detail before making an arrest."

Police were compiling a detailed description of a man witnesses have described as the one last seen with the girls, Mundy said. It will be sent via teletype to police stations across the nation.

Investigators are concentrating on finding the missing girls, Munday said.

"We are not investigating it as a runaway but as a criminal abduction — period," he said.

"Right now, I'm just glad to be out of jail," said Corey, 36, during a brief interview. "I want to start all over with a clean slate."

"I'd like to find the guy who did this," Corey said. "There are a lot of things I'd like to ask him."

Corey was released from Oklahoma County Jail Monday afternoon and stepped out for a minute to buy a sandwich and soda with three dollars he borrowed from his lawyer.

He left three hours later with two Oklahoma City police officers for the trip back to Greenville, Ala., where he was arrested Oct. 9.

Macy kept intact drug charges filed against Corey, "pending on the condition that he turn himself in to be cured of drug addiction."

Bob Ravitz, assistant public defender representing Corey has agreed to the stipulation, Macy said.

Macy said his office and Oklahoma City police will provide transportation for Corey back to Greenville, Ala., where he was arrested Oct. 9.

Cops Want To Question Man

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Peace officers from Arkansas, Colorado and Mississippi converged on this Panhandle city today for a chance to question one of the FBI's most-wanted fugitives.

Marion Albert Pruett, 32, of Charlotte, N.C., was wanted in seven states on charges of murder, abduction and bank robbery when Texas state troopers arrested him during a routine traffic investigation.

He remains in the Potter County jail here pending an Oct. 26 extradition hearing, after being arraigned Monday on a Mississippi warrant.

U.S. Magistrate Bob Sanders said he would appoint a lawyer for Pruett before the out-of-state investigators questioned him.

Pruett fidgeted during the proceedings and, at one point, told Sanders sarcastically, "Just say I did it and lock me up."

Pruett was stopped for speeding Saturday night near Stratford, and when the troopers checked his identification they learned he was wanted by the FBI. A search of the 1969 car turned up a .38 caliber revolver which was sent to Colorado for ballistics tests in a pair of robbery-shooting investigations, police said.

A hitchhiker in the car was questioned and released. The car, a 1969 Cadillac with New Mexico license plates, had been reported stolen.

The Mississippi warrant sought Pruett in a Sept. 17 holdup at a Jackson, Miss., savings and loan association. The gunman escaped with $6,700 and took a female employee hostage. The woman, 43-year-old Peggy Lowe of Brandon, Miss., has not been seen since.

Pruett also is wanted in Sandoval County, N.M., on a murder charge in connection with the slaying of his wife, Michelle Lynn Pearson. She was beaten to death March 2 and her charred body was found April 16 at a suburb of Albuquerque, police said.

The murder warrant was issued after William Sherman told police he helped dispose of Ms. Pearson's body. Sherman is awaiting trial in New Mexico.

Pruett was arrested in his wife's death but was released by a judge who told him not to leave the area. New Mexico authorities had not seen him since.

Colorado authorities plan to question Pruett about two robbery-murders in that state. Clerks James Balderson, 24, of Fort Collins, and Anthony Tice, 21, of Loveland, were murdered Friday after convenience store robberies at their respective towns.

Pruett also is named in a capital murder warrant from Fort Smith, Ark. Investigators there said the bullet-riddled body of Bobbie Jean Robertson, 30, was found Oct. 12 in a wooded area near the convenience store where she worked.

A Seattle warrant charges Pruett with robbing a savings and loan association June 26 and abducting the bank manager, who escaped from a motel where he was tied to a bed.

Pruett is charged with robbing another savings and loan in Bridgeport, Pa., on Sept. 30. Bank manager Helen Wozniak, 60, was abducted and left in the trunk of her car, but she was freed unharmed.

He also is named in the Sept. 26 robbery of a Tallahassee, Fla. savings and loan, where another woman was abducted.

Theft, Mishaps Occupy Police

One reported theft and four minor accidents highlighted a routine Monday for Snyder police officers.

Around noon, the manager of the local Food Basket stores reported a theft at the store located at 3906 College. An as yet undetermined amount of money was taken from the store sometime between Saturday morning and Monday.

In the first of the minor traffic mishaps, a 1974 Mercedes driven by Sharon Douphrate was involved in a collision with a 1979 Cheverolet operated by Patricia McFaul. The incident occured at the intersection of Beaumont and 30th St. around 8:30 a.m..

At 12:43 p.m., police investigated another accident in the 1000 block of 25th Street. Involved were a 1980 Ford driven by Ronald Clark of Abilene and a 1975 Dodge driven by Bessie Sims of Seminole. Only minor damage was reported.

At 3:59 p.m., three vechicles were involved in an accident in the 2400 block of College. A 1967 Ford pick-up driven by Tommy Caldwell, a 1978 Honda station wagon driven by Rhonda Otten, and a 1974 Cheverolet pick-up operated by Warren Graham were all involved in this mishap. Only minor damage was reported.

The [illegible] of the accident at 5:25 p.m. at the intersection of 26th St. and Ave. T. Involved were a 1976 Buick driven by Toni Winders and a 1976 Chrysler operated by Mo-dean Riley. Only minor damage was reported.

Two subjects were arrested for DWI and one for public intoxication rounding the day for the local officers.

Uprising Based On Foolishness

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — Knife-wielding Iowa State Penitentiary inmates who briefly took six guards hostage were angry about being punished for an uprising that they had no part in, an official says.

The prisoners, locked up since Sept. 2, released the guards after two hours when authorities said, "We're coming in." One hostage was hit in the head, but his injuries weren't serious, officials said.

Supreme Court Ponders Barring Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years after banning the death penalty for convicted rapists, the Supreme Court is considering attempts to bar executions for two other types of criminals.

The high court agreed Monday to decide the constitutionality of executing accomplices of criminals who kill someone during a major crime.

At issue are those convicted and sentenced to die under felony murder laws — criminals who didn't commit the slaying and usually didn't intend to cause anyone's death.

The justices agreed last April 6 to decide whether juveniles can be sentenced to death for murder.

Lawyers for Monty Lee Eddings, who gunned down an Oklahoma state trooper at age 16, claim that executing someone for committing murder at that age would be unconstitutional.

Both cases are expected to be decided by next July. But they are expected to have only a limited impact on the more than 800 people now on death row nationwide.

On June 29, 1977, the high court banned the use of the death penalty for rape, striking down the death sentence for condemned Georgia rapist Ehrlich Anthony Coker.

Justice Byron R. White, writing the majority opinion in the rape case, indicated that the death penalty may be valid only for those convicted of murder. Only a year earlier, the high court ended a four-year moratorium on imposing the death penalty.

In the case acted on Monday, Florida death row inmate Earl Enmund was convicted of murder in the April 1, 1975, slayings of a Hardee County, Fla., couple.

Enmund's appeal says he helped plan the robbery of Thomas and Eunice Kersey's home near Wauchula, Fla., but did not know his accomplices would gun down the couple. Trial testimony indicated that Enmund was not in the Kersey home when the killings occurred, but was waiting in a getaway car.

Enmund claimed that his death sentence violates the constitutional ban on "cruel and unusual punishment."

The court had been expected in 1978 to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty for felony murder but struck down Ohio's death penalty law on a separate legal issue.

In other matters Monday, the court

World Series Opens In N Y

NEW YORK (AP) - The World Series makes its latest start in history tonight with a duel of left-handers as Jerry Reuss of the Los Angeles Dodgers faces Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees.

The Dodgers qualified by surviving a battle of endurance for the National League pennant, outlasting the Montreal Expos in five games. Los Angeles finally nailed down the title with a 2-1 victory Monday, delivered in dramatic fashion on a ninth-inning home run by veteran Rick Monday.

The Yankees have been waiting for them. New York eliminated Oakland in three straight games to capture the American League pennant and has been sitting back, marking time, while the Expos and Dodgers settled the National League title.

"If we lose (tonight), it will be because we were rusty," laughed Yankee Manager Bob Lemon. "If we win, it will be because we were well-rested. I've been asked about the layoff a lot, but it really doesn't matter that much."

Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda said he wasn't certain about his pitching after Reuss in Game 1, although it seems likely that playoff Most Valuable Player Burt Hooton, a right-hander who won two games against Montreal, will get the Game 2 nod.

Noting the Yankees' left-handed power, Lasorda said he'd love to have another southpaw to follow Reuss.

Using Hooton in Game 2 would leave lefty Fernando Valenzuela, who pitched a three-hitter over 8 2-3 innings against Montreal in Monday's clincher, for Friday night's third game in Los Angeles. Projecting even farther, if Valenzuela pitches Game 3, it would make him available for a possible seventh-game assignment with a full four days of rest, should the Series go the limit.

Lemon, meanwhile, will feed the Dodgers a diet of three straight left-handers. After Guidry, there's veteran Tommy John for Game 2 and young Dave Righetti, who'll face Valenzuela in a battle of rookies Friday night.

Because of the strike-split season and additional layer of playoffs, this year's Series is the latest-starting in history, easily beating the old record of Oct. 17, the starting date for the 1917 Series between Philadelphia A's and the Chicago Cubs.

Tigers Welcome Andrews Tonight

Snyder volleyball teams take it down the stretch here tonight, hosting Andrews as the regular season makes its way to the finale.

Coach Joyce Elrod's varsity Tigers, 4-1 in round-two play, have just three more district matches, including tonight's 7:30 contest, left on the schedule.

A freshman contest will open this evening's show at 5, followed by a junior varsity match at 6:30. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

The Tigers, 24-5 for the season and ranked No. 1 in the state, won the first half of conference play with an 8-0 record. Monahans, scheduled against Pecos at Pecos tonight, appears to have wrapped up the second round with a win over Snyder last Saturday.

If the Loboettes can hold on and not become an upset victim, it would force a single match playoff between Monahans and Snyder for the district championship. That would presumably take place some time during the week of Nov. 1-7, at a site as yet undetermined.

Monday Hero In Dodger Win

MONTREAL (AP) - If Rick Monday decides to retire, he'll always remember that he went out of baseball as a hero.

Monday, who smashed the game-winning home run that gave the National League pennant to the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday and put them in the World Series against New York, is considering retiring to take a broadcasting job.

But, as he noted, they don't pour champagne on you for good work behind a microphone.

"This makes the decision pleasantly more difficult," said Monday, who completed his 15th major-league season as a part-time player.

The conversation will have to wait. For the moment, Monday has other things to occupy his mind. The Series - "The Fall Classic," shouted Monday - begins tonight.

"I can't wait," chortled Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda, going up against the Yankees for the third time in the last five years.

"I believed from Day 1 we could come back and beat them," said Lasorda, whose team rallied in both the divisional playoff against Houston and the League Championship Series against Montreal. "I believed it more than anything in my life."

Los Angeles lost two straight against Houston before sweeping the next three in the divisional series, then had to win two straight on the road against Montreal to capture the NL pennant. The clincher was a tense 2-1 victory, decided in the final inning.

Monday said he almost missed the most dramatic moment of his career.

"I wanted a ball I could handle," he said, "something I could get my bat on."

Steve Rogers, working in relief, had offered one on his first pitch to Monday, who fouled it off. "I thought to myself, 'You won't see another one like that to hit,'" Monday said.

But he did. On 3-1, Rogers delivered a belt-high fastball. "A mechanical mistake," the Montreal ace said. Monday jumped on it.

But it was almost premature. Dodger pitcher Fernando Valenzuela, working on a brilliant three-hitter, retired the first two Montreal hitters in the ninth before walking both Gary Carter and Larry Parrish on 3-2 pitches. That brought Bob Welch into the game, and he needed just one pitch to retire Jerry White and finish the job.

Jerry Reuss will open the Series against the Yankees tonight, and Burt Hooton, named the playoff's Most Valuable Player, is almost certain to be the Game Two pitcher Wednesday night.

Lions Find A Leader; Rip Hapless Chicago

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The Detroit Lions, beset by quarterback injuries and inconsistencies, were looking for a shot in the arm offensively. And they may have found it in Eric Hipple.

Hipple, a second-year quarterback the Lions drafted in the fourth round out of Utah State, concluded a storybook week Monday night by leading Detroit to a convincing 48-17 National Football League victory over the Chicago Bears in a nationally televised game.

Making his first NFL start and playing in just his second regular-season game, the 6-foot-1, 196-pound Hipple completed 14 of 25 passes for 336 yards and four touchdowns, including three in succession on the last three passes he threw. And he ran for two other touchdowns as the Lions ran up their highest score since defeating the San Francisco 49ers 48-7 in 1954.

Hipple was the Lions' No. 3 quarterback when the season started, but second-stringer Jeff Komlo was unsteady in two starts - both defeats - after regular Gary Danielson dislocated his left wrist. So Coach Monte Clark decided to give Hipple a start.

"He could be the glue to put this puzzle together," said Leonard Thompson, the Detroit wide receiver who hauled in Hipple's last pass in the fourth quarter and turned it into a 94-yard touchdown - the third longest touchdown pass play in Lions' history.

After running for touchdowns of 1 and 4 yards, Hipple passed 2 yards to Rick Kane, 10 yards to David Hill and 44 yards to Freddie Scott for touchdowns before hitting Thompson for the final score. Eddie Murray booted field goals of 49 and 53 yards for the Lions who improved their record to 3-4 while dropping the Bears to 1-6.

Chicago split end Marcus Anderson turned a short Vince Evans pass into an 85-yard touchdown. Walter Payton ran 1-yard for the Bears' other touchdown and John Roveto booted a 22-yard field goal in the fourth quarter - somewhat surprisingly because the Bears were down by 20 points at the time.

Three times in the second half the Bears were inside the Lions' 5 yard line and came away with only Roveto's field goal.

Bolden To Aid Westerners In Needed Board Strength

Keary Bolden is one of several players who could bring some experience to Western Texas College's young Westerner basketball team this year.

Bolden, a 6-5 leaper from Bakersfield, Calif. is a sophomore transfer from Bakersfield Community College.

"We look for Keary to be able to help us on the boards," said Westerner coach Larry Dunaway. "He's a good leaper and has excellent timing on tipping the ball and rebounding.

"He'll be additional depth for us on the front line, and hopefully will make a difference in the ballclub for us."

Oilers Helping Other Teams Get On Track

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers have added the New England Patriots to their list of reclamation projects.

The Oilers already have helped the New York Jets remove themselves from the low-rent district of an 0-3 record to a 3-3-1 standard.

Sunday's 38-10 loss to the Patriots, who won for only the second time this season, was just another Oiler effort to spruce up depressed areas of the NFL.

"Since we played the Jets they have gone on to show the type of club they really are," Oiler Coach Ed Biles said. "I think New England is in that same category. I don't think it was a case of us losing to a team we were supposed to beat.

"According to the so-called experts, we were the underdogs."

After lending a friendly hand to the Jets and Patriots, the Oilers must now try to rebuild their own playoff hopes. They must go on the road the next two weeks to face divisional foes Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

Biles said one are of concern is the Oiler secondary but he wanted to study the problem before making any decisions.

"We've got to see if it is a lack of a an adequate pass rush, a lack of concentration and preparation or if it's the nature of the game right now," Biles said Monday.

Biles also stopped short of castigating cornerback J.C. Wilson, the youngest member of the Oiler secondary, who gave up a touchdown bomb.

"This was the first time he was truly responsible for a play that went for a touchdown," Biles said. "Other than that one play, I thought J.C. played a good game."

Biles is also convinced Sunday's loss was not from a lack of effort.

"I've looked at the films again today and I can assure you that what happened to us was not from a lack of effort," Biles said. "We were playing hard. If I had seen some guys not trying to get to make a tackle it would be different.

"But we were trying to make the tackles, we just missed them when we got there."

Mosi Tatupu rammed 43 yards in the fourth quarter, bouncing off at least six would-be Oiler tacklers before he finally was brought down by linebacker Robert Brazile. The run set up a 15-yard touchdown run by Vagas Ferguson.

Rose Voted Top Athlete

NEW YORK (AP) - Pete Rose, the Philadelphia Phillies record-setting first baseman, was voted the Athlete of the Decade in a poll sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

The vote was conducted of a panel of 300 sports writers and broadcasters and takes into account athletic achievement for the years 1971-1981.

Former football star O.J. Simpson, who set the single-season rushing record of 2,003 yards in 1973, finished second in the voting, followed by center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Ward Could Be Standout

Daryl Ward may not be the conference's tallest player at 6-1, but Western Texas College coach Larry Dunaway is counting on big things from the San Antonio native, one of five Texas recruits on the Westerner team this year.

DARYL WARD

"Daryl is a very exciting player. I think the fans will really enjoy watching him," said Dunaway. "He's a trememdous leaper. He has a vertical jump of 43 inches, and that's getting up there with some of the big time pros.

"The biggest thing right now is for him to learn to adjust to playing the fast tempo type ball we play. He's got a lot to learn, but he's a real tough competitor and a hard-nosed player. He's not intimidated easily, and that will help him," added Dunaway.

---

In a charged time-out in the NFL, the field judge restarts his watch after one minute and 30 seconds. However, the referee can allow two minutes for an injured player and three minutes for an equipment repair.

Scrimmages Continue For College Cagers

Coach Larry Dunaway's Western Texas College Westerners were to take on Lubbock Christian College in scrimmage action this morning at 10 in Lubbock.

It is the only scheduled scrimmage remaining for the Westerners, who begin the 1981-82 basketball season here Nov. 2.

Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters have four scrimmages slated. The girls travel to ACU on Oct. 15 at 4:30, travel to Odessa Oct. 22 at 3:30, test McMurry on Oct. 28 at 7, and meet WTSU at Ralls on Oct. 28 at 2 p.m.

Both teams open regular season play Nov. 2 in the Snyder High School Gym. The Dusters entertain Cisco at 6, followed by a game between the Westerners and McMurry at 8.

Nov. 4, WTC men take on McMurry at 8 in Abilene.

On Nov. 6, the women welcome Ranger Junior College to SHS Gym at 6.

Prison Violates Court Order

HOUSTON (AP) — Certain prisoners in the Texas Department of Corrections are selected as supervisors over other convicts and allowed to carry knives and clubs and discipline their subordinates in violation of a federal court order, a report released Monday said.

A prison spokesman denied the charge.

A system of inmate bosses was banned as part of wide-ranging prison reforms ordered April 20 by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler. But the office of the special master chosen to oversee those reforms filed a lengthy report with the court saying the outlawed practice was still going on during a monitoring period from July through September.

The report said supervisory inmates were allowed to carry weapons, roam in and out of their cell blocks at will, administer discipline, count other inmates, possess cell keys and in some cases coerce less influential inmates into having sex with them.

The report, compiled by monitor W. David Arnold for Special Master Vincent Nathan, was filed with the U.S. District Court here late Friday, and copies were made available to reporters Monday.

Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley said Monday he had not yet seen a copy of the report, but he denied that any such boss system was used at TDC.

"We do not have inmates in the Department of Corrections who have authority or control over other inmates," Hartley said.

The report said after Justice ordered the elimination of convict bosses, the prison simply stopped using terms such as "building tender" and "turnkey" in official correspondence, referring to them instead as "support service inmates" — but Arnold said the jobs themselves were not changed.

"The all-encompassing title 'support service inmate' is a cosmetic change insofar as the identity of the individuals performing those jobs is concerned," his report said.

Arnold said there were 2,976 such support service inmates out of a general prison population of 30,523.

He said a major obstacle to gathering data for his report was a "climate of fear of retaliation" on the part of inmates who talked to the federal investigators. "This pervasive climate" forced him to agree to identify many inmates quoted in his report simply by arbitrarily assigned numbers.

"Inmate Six, a former turnkey, states that at least some support service inmates are allowed to choose and keep homosexual partners," the report said.

He said in one instance an inmate placed in solitary confinement was given extra food and commissary items in exchange for sex with one of the top-raking inmate-bosses and was later homosexually raped by a lower ranking boss, a porter, who had easy access to the solitary confinement cell.

Arnold said support service inmates were also allowed to keep pets, including a rabbit and tropical fish, in violation of TDC rules, and were given favorable treatment when accused of breaking other prison regulations.

There were "eight instances in which a support service inmate was involved in an altercation with another inmate and was not charged with a major discpiplinary offense although the general population inmate was charged," Arnold said.

Japanese Fight To Save Beaches

TAKASAGO, Japan (AP) — It was a prophetic poet who wrote in the year 1201, that "even the pines of Takasago will one day fade into the distant past."

Almost eight centuries later, the celebrated pines of this western Japanese city have been replaced by smokestacks, and the famous white sands of its beaches are buried under concrete. Takasago is today a symbol of industrial pollution, and the home of Japan's first campaign to win back for the public the right of access to the nation's threatened coastlines.

"It's too late to save Takasago," said Hiroshi Takasaki, 49, founder of the coastal access rights movement, "but we need to make others aware they are in danger of losing an irreplaceable natural asset."

Takasaki, who runs an English school in the city, said there were about 500 participants in the movement, which has had some modest success in protecting public tidelands from encroachments of industry.

Japan has about 18,000 miles of coastline, with beauty to rival that anywhere in the world. Because of its mountainous interior, the nation's population has always been concentrated along the coastal lowlands, and the sea has been an important source of food and recreation, and a place where the divinity of nature is worshipped.

The natural coastline, however, has disappeared at an alarming rate in the past three decades. Skyrocketing land prices along the industrialized Pacific shore, combined with advanced landfill technology, have brought radical changes to the pristine beaches.

Environment Agency figures show that as of 1980 only 49 percent of Japan's beaches were natural, with the rest either reclaimed land or "seminatural," somehow tampered with by man. In 1973 when the coastal rights movement began, natural beaches still made up 58 percent of the total.

There are few natural beaches left around the industrialized Tokyo or Osaka bays, the Ise Bay near Nagoya, or the Seto Inland Sea. Takasago, a city of 80,000 along the islanddotted Seto Inland Sea between the main islands of Honshu and Shikoku, is a worst-case study of the effects of industrialization.

Between 1961 and 1965, at the peak of Japan's high economic growth period, all three miles of the city's seashore were turned into a sprawling industrial complex for chemicals, steel, pharmaceutical and power-generating plants. It meant jobs for local residents, but it destroyed all remnants of the beaches once popular for swimming and shell gathering.

Within a few years the Takasago shore was dangerously polluted with PCB and mercury. The contamination put an ironic end to a centuries-old ritual in which portable Shinto shrines annually were carried into the sea to be purified.

There were almost no protests when the complex was being built, Takasaki said, but the pollution caused people to reassess the drive for economic expansion and helped give birth to the coastal rights movement.

Takasaki's group, basing its claims on a constitutionally guaranteed "right to maintain the minimum standard of wholesome cultured living," has sought to repeal the National Landfill Law and supported a national coastal environmental protection law to ensure coastal access rights for all people while putting a freeze on all new landfill projects until such a law is enacted.

Moscow Traffic Risky Despite Cops Efforts

MOSCOW (AP) — A cartoon in the Soviet satire magazine Krokodil shows a man passing a wall poster that declared: "Traffic safety month begins today."

The man is hobbling along, a crutch under his right arm, his left arm heavily bandaged and in a sling. "It should have started yesterday," he growls.

Officials in the Soviet capital mobilize thousands of traffic police daily in an effort to keep order on the roads, and frequently launch driver safety campaigns. To keep order at busy intersections policemen stand guard with megaphones, shouting angrily at careless pedestrians.

But police say their job keeps getting tougher as the number of automobiles grows, and Moscow officials this summer decided to post new speed limit signs — apparently because drivers were not heeding the smaller, older ones.

The same Soviet citizens who uncomplainingly endure long lines for food, clothes and other essentials show little patience as drivers and almost no caution as pedestrians.

Never mind that it takes Muscovites as long as a year to buy a soviet-made Zhiguli or Moskvich automobile and that they cost the equivalent of three or four years of the average worker's salary.

It is standard practice to see drivers here darting in the compact cars from one lane to another, zigzagging between often-empty trucks and taxis that clog the center city, or racing above the speed limit of 37.5 mph to the jeopardy of often absent-minded pedestrians.

No one seems to pay attention to the law forbidding drivers to blow horns, either.

Still, there is a certain, unusual order to driving in Moscow.

The man who blasts his horn at a slow driver and then gestures angrily as he passes is almost sure to screech to a halt seconds later if the traffic light switches from green to yellow. Almost no one runs a red light here, probably because there are so many policemen on the street.

Though they maneuver freely on the city's broad avenues, as many as eight lanes across, Moscow drivers almost never cross into the far left lane. A solid white line separates the lane from the others, and it is reserved for official cars — medium-sized government Volgas or black limousines with curtains in the rear window for high government or Communist Party officials.

Fire engines, even those apparently on emergency runs, are sometimes stopped along with other cars to let a government limousine pass.

The politics of the country may tilt left, but it is virtually impossible to make a left turn on any heavily traveled road in the capital. Drivers often have to go well past their destination, make a U-turn at a specially designated spot, then circle back.

Only parking lights are supposed to be used at night.

Violators of traffic rules face an uncertain future after being whistled down by police who, a government newspaper acknowledged, are sometimes rude.

Russians can be fined on the spot or have a hole punched in their license. After a certain number of holes, the license is revoked.

Foreigners, whose cars bear special license plates identifying them by occupation and country, sometimes escape with little more than a harsh word.

Solidarity To Avoid Conflict

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity says it will avoid showdowns with the ruling Communists since their latest shakeup, but the independent union refuses to renegotiate rights won last year and warns some strikes are inevitable.

Union leaders telegrammed locals nationwide Monday to end "unjustified protests," but thousands of workers stayed off the job anyway. In Zydarow west of Warsaw, 12,000 strikers went into the eighth day of a sit-down strike at textile plants to demand more food; in southwest Zielona Gora province, 3,000 more downed tools over a management dispute, the union said.

Marek Brunne, Solidarity spokesman, issued a statement saying the union would "make all efforts to achieve agreements with the authorities before the emergence of explosive situations and conflicts."

The statement came one day after the party's 200-member Central Committee ousted Stanislaw Kania as chief and replaced him with Wojciech Jaruzelski, who is also premier and defense minister. He promptly warned the 9.5-million member union to stop strikes and help restore Poland's shattered economy.

The committee also demanded suspension of the right to strike and no more free Saturdays. Those concessions were won last year by Solidarity, which has challenged the Communists for power since it was formed during strikes in August 1980. It is the first union in the Soviet bloc free of government control.

"Our union cannot agree to any kind of renegotiation of the agreements," Brunne said.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, visiting Paris, said he hoped Jaruzelski's concentration of power would help Poland solve its economic crisis but that "small strikes might continue."

"We have been betrayed many times," Walesa said. "We don't trust the government. We need control over our own fate. Protest is necessary in a democracy."

Jaruzelski spent his first full day as party chief reassuring Warsaw Pact allies of "fraternal cooperation," and conferring with army generals, the official PAP news agency said.

In Moscow, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev congratulated the new chief and urged him to fight "encroachments by counter-revolution," a reference to Solidarity.

The Soviets have complained about reforms won by the union, criticized Kania's lenience and hinted they would intervene in Poland to restore the Communists' unchallenged authority.

Assassins Were Small Group Only

NEW YORK (AP) — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak was quoted today as saying Anwar Sadat's assassins were part of a limited group of fanatics and that security forces are smoking them out.

In an interview in Cairo Wednesday with The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal, Mubarak said the accused leader of the assassination squad was linked to a Moslem fundamentalist who belongs to a violent sect.

HERE ARE THE RULES OF THE CONTEST

In each advertisement on this page you will find the contestants in a prominent football game being played around the country this weekend. Get an entry blank from one of the merchants who are helping sponsor this contest and whose message is on this page. Fill in your selection of the WINNING TEAM only...opposite the name of the firm on the entry blank. Then send your complete blank to FOOTBALL CONTEST EDITOR, THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS or bring your entry by the Snyder Daily News office. Entries must be in the hands of the editor by 12 o'clock noon, Friday. Games ending in a tie must be specified as a tie or else it will be considered a miss.

If there is a tie for first place the winners will divide the cash money of $17.50 and no second prize will be given. If there is a first place winner and a tie for second place, the second prize winners will divide the money for the place. If more than two persons tie for second place, no second prize money will be awarded and the cash will be added to next week's prize. Tie for perfect score will split $100. There will be fun for the entire family. Only one entry blank will be permitted from any one person. More than one will disqualify all the person's entries. Scores listed on the entry blank will have no bearing on the choice of the winner. Sign your entry blank and list your address and phone number and watch for the story on next Tuesday's front page for the winners. Hurry now, and get your entry blank from one of the merchants on this page. The contest blank must be in your own handwriting.
