Local Man Robbed By Two Youthful Bandits

Hundred Dollars in Cash, $1,000 in Checks Taken

EARLE Moore, 2514 23rd St., salesman and collector for the Lubbock Fruit and Vegetable Produce company, was held at the point of a gun while two unidentified youths relieved him of $100 in cash and more than $1,000 in checks, part of which is negotiable, on the highway between Hobbs, N. M., and Lubbock Thursday night.

The holdup occurred shortly after Mr. Moore had left Hobbs on the return trip to Lubbock, after making various collections in the interest of the company around the vicinity of that city.

Accosted With Gun

According to Mr. Moore, who was traveling alone, he stopped his car on the highway to inspect his tires. While so engaged another automobile, whose lights had been turned off, drove alongside from the rear, and two youths stepped out. One of them advanced to Mr. Moore, showed a pistol to his ribs, and ordered "hands up" As Mr. Moore complied the other youth took his wallet containing the currency and the checks. After taking all of the money and checks the men entered their car and departed toward Lubbock, after warning the victim to remain till until they were out of sight.

Mr. Moore returned to Hobbs and notified the police there, who in turn warned surrounding towns to be on the lookout for the alleged bandits. No clew concerning the identity or whereabouts of the young robbers, whom Mr. Moore described as being 21 years old, had been been obtained yesterday afternoon.

J. B. Wheeler, giving El Paso as his home, is in the county jail here under $3,000 bond awaiting action of the federal grand jury on a charge of passing raised federal bills. Bond was set by Leonard Pearson, U. S. commissioner, at a hearing here.

Wheeler was arrested in Floydada last week by Sheriff P. S. Stegall, following complaint by C. D. Gibbs that he had passed a one dollar bill that had been raised to a five dollar bill.

Deputy S. H. Wright and a secret service man brought Wheeler to Lubbock where he was arraigned.

Confession Claimed

FLOYDADA, July 18. (Special)—J. B. Wheeler, arrested here for alleged passing of a raised bill, is said to have confessed to Sheriff P. S. Stegall and others that he had passed several in Floydada. He was sent to Lubbock.

Wheeler was found by C. D. Gibbs manager of the C. E. Stone store here attempting to cash a bill in that store. Gibbs noticed the bill and made the excuse of having to get change from the bank. Instead he got Sheriff Stegall.

According to the sheriff Wheeler admitted passing a raised bill at the Woody Drug store. Two other raised bills were reported being passed at Plainview recently by the secret service man.

Robert Woolsey, above, 14-year-old son of a prominent Ridgewood, N. J., family; is alleged to have confessed to stabbing to death his nurse, Anna Miller, 23, of Scranton, Pa., when they quarreled during a hike through the mountains near Green Pond, N. J. treaty to exhaust its debate and permit a vote. The contest on the naval limitations agreement seemed to have narrowed down to an endurance test with the foes hoping to out talk the patience of the overwhelming majority favoring the pact.

Johnson Leads Fight

Senator Johnson, republican, California, leader of the opposition, gave notice as he began his second speech of the day; just when the electric lights were coming on for the night session, that "you have the power but, by the heavens, you have got to use it to the full before this document can be ratified."

Friends of the treaty have threatened to use the cloture rule which shuts off debate but they have decided to withhold this move to permit an exhaustion of legitimate debate. Several already have charged a filibuster against the treaty but the opposition has vig-

Germany Faces Reorganization

Another National Elections Campaign Prepared After Reichstag Dissolved Over Financial Reform Plan

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, July 18.—Political Germany was rolling up its sleeves tonight in preparation for another national election campaign, after the Reichstag had been dissolved this morning when it attempted to thwart the program of financial reform submitted by the Bruening cabinet.

Until the new elections, which will be held not later than September 14 next, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his colleagues will govern the country under the emergency dictatorial powers conferred by Article 48 of the German constitution.

Free To Act.

Bruening and his finance minister, Dr. Hermann Dietrich, will be free meanwhile to push through the measures they consider necessary for putting Germany's finances in order.

Their freedom of action will be limited, however, by the knowledge that the new reichstag will be able to revoke any interim decree it deems contrary to public interest.

The reichstag which was sent home this morning because it attempted to revoke the tax decrees promulgated the night before, comprised 13 political parties.

Just a Hint for Hot Weather

NEA Cincinnati Bureau

Any "tired business man" would really enjoy dictating letters to dissatisfied customers if his stenographer followed the example of Mary Belle Smith of Cincinnati, and donned a bathing suit when the mercury flirted around the 100-degree mark. Her boss, William Danziger, is shown catching up with a lot of correspondence and Mary Belle, of course, is trying to keep her notes in shape. And who says it isn't a good idea during hot weather?

Hundreds Dead After Typhoon Sweeps Japan

One Village Buried By Heavy Landslide; Ships Smashed And Sunk As Storms Sweep Islands; Panic Results

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO, July 18.—Swirling out of the western Pacific, a wind and rain storm slashed its way across the Loochoo and Kiushiu Islands in southern Japan and swept unabated northwestward across Korea, leaving widespread death and damage in its wake.

Ships were smashed and sunk, houses collapsed. Landslides were caused by the gale and downpour that ripped across the Korea strait at 100 miles an hour.

Village Buried.

One report said a village of 300 on Kiushiu Island was buried in a landslide loosened by rain. The governor of Nagasaki prefecture said many ships in Nagasaki harbor capsized with an undetermined number of casualties. Several bodies were recovered.

A Rengo dispatch from Fusan, important Korean seaport, said the storm struck at noon crushing buildings and causing a panic. It continued inland undiminished.

Death Toll High.

Even tonight, hours after the peak of the typhoon, only fragmentary reports were available due to disrupted communications and confusion. But authorities pieced these reports together and estimated the dead would run into hundreds in southern Japan and Korea.

No definite estimate of damage was possible but it was considered the worst typhoon in 40 years.

Blackmailing Attempt Bared At Fort Worth

Woman Seeks To Force E. T. Renfro To Pay $5000 Under Threat Of Death; Effort To Catch Blackmailer Fails

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, July 19. — A woman's attempt to force E. T. Renfro, city councilman and druggist, to pay her $5,000 under threat of death, was revealed today after attempts to surprise the blackmailer or accomplice in the act of collecting what she thought was the money had failed.

The woman wrote Renfro a lengthy letter explaining he had played her husband "a dirty trick" which she said caused his death and left her and her baby without support. Threatening to kill him if he failed to do as she requested or if he turned the letter over to police or newspapers, she instructed him to deliver two envelopes, one containing $2,000 in ten dollar bills and another containing $3,000 in $20 bills to a cigar stand, before 4 o'clock this afternoon.

To B. B. King, proprietor of the cigar stand she wrote another letter instructing him to receive the envelopes quietly and place them under the west end of the couch in the men's rest room in a theater.

Renfro, at the suggestion of Sheriff Wright, to whom he showed the letter, prepared two envelopes, addressed according to the woman's instructions. When he attempted to deliver these to King, however, the latter became excited, refused to accept them and called police, then it was learned of the letter that King had received.

The envelopes were placed under the couch later but an all afternoon virgil failed to reveal anyone seeking them.

Governor Not To Give Stay Of Execution

Two More Lamar Bank Bandits Scheduled To Die On Gallows Last Night For Fatal Robbery Of 1928

Reprieve Refused

Condemned Men Give Up Hope Of Clemency; Execution Is Set Eight Days Following Hanging of Ralph Fleagle

(By Associated Press)

DENVER, July 18. — Governor Adams tonight again refused to grant a reprieve for Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier.

The request to spare the lives of the two Lamar bank bandits was made by representative of the Colorado Bankers' association, Chief of Police Hugh Harper of Colorado Springs and Ralph L. Carr, United States district attorney for Colorado.

Execution Prepared

CANYON CITY, Colo., July 18 (AP) The state of Colorado prepared to execute two more members of the Lamar bank bandit gang tonight.

Just eight days after their reputed leader, the taciturn Ralph E. Fleagle, went to death on the gallows, Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier faced execution for having participated in the 1928 robbery which cost the lives of four men.

Both gave up hope of reprieve, although late yesterday stays of execution appeared momentarily to be imminent as the United States district attorney for Colorado and postal inspectors tried ineffectively to obtain some inforamtion from them, which, they thought, might have cleared up several "jobs" of the Fleagle gang.

Clint Small had to take an airplane to do it but he got back to his home section, the Panhandle, Friday while the rest of the active candidates for governor were in other parts of the state.

Small spoke at San Antonio Thursday night and he had to get to Pampa for an all-Panhandle celebration in his honor Friday night. The senator's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Small of Shamrock, were other honor guests. Senator Small took a plane from Fort Worth to Memphis, Texas, where he spoke Friday afternoon.

Sterling Replies.

At Cumby Friday, Ross S. Sterling for the first time replied to critics who had accused him of excessive expenditures in the current campaign.

"I have not dignified their assaults with notice because I will not get down in the mud and wallow with them," Sterling said. "I am not spending any more money, if as much, as the candidates making those wild and unfounded statements. If my friends are spending more of their own volition to advance my candidacy than their friends are spending for them it just shows I've got more friends than they have. Those who know me know I would not for anything in the world violate the law in order to be governor."

Miller At Groesbeck.

Suit Echo to Bank Closing

Banking Commissioner Files Cases Against George Wolffarth as Outgrowth of Defunct Bank at Seagraves

An echo of the closing two years ago of the First State Bank of Seagraves, in Gaines county, will be heard in county court here following the filing of a suit by the state bank commissioner against George C. Wolffarth, of Lubbock. The action was filed yesterday by James L. Shaw, bank commissioner, for the benefit of the Seagraves bank.

Wolffarth, according to the petition, at the time the bank closed July 20, 1928, was listed on the books as the owner of five shares of stock in the bank, par value of $100 each.

Shaw says the assessment made on stockholders to cover losses of depositors was never paid by Wolffarth. Judge Gordon B. McGuire of the district court, issued orders in the bankruptcy proceedings.

The Weather

WEST TEXAS: Partly cloudy Saturday and Sunday, not much change in temperature.

"Tree-Sitters" Sit On As Police "Pooh-Pooh" Idea

LUBBOCK'S tree sitting trio —Alton Phillips being augmented Friday by Frank Cook and Ronald McClain — today were off to a good start on their efforts to cop honors, titles and what not in tree sitting.

Late Friday a threat of possible police action was heard but John Lemond, chief of police, told the Avalanche that he would not order any tree sitter down unless formal complaints were lodged with the police department.

Don't See Idea.

"I don't see what any one wants to sit in a tree for," the chief added. "All the tree sitting I did was to get green apples and things like that."

Frank Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cook, of 1412 Texas avenue, is perched high in a black locust tree in his front yard. With him is Ronald McClain, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McClain, 1619 Avenue H.

These boys began at noon Friday and at a late hour last night were still up in the air. Their platform, on which they eat and sleep, is about 18 feet above the ground.

Drinks, Papers Provided.

E. Paul Carter and the circulation boys of the Avalanche, are providing the sitters with free drinks and copies of the daily newspapers.

Alton was also going strong last night. The Sally Ann bakery is providing Alton with free bread and the Dandy Bakery with free cakes. The Mistletoe Ice Cream company has told F. E. Alverson, druggist to give Alton all the ice cream he can stow away.

Alverson is providing other eats for Alton, who, wise beyond his years, is laying off ice cream sodas. "He only drinks two or three a day for some reason," the druggist said.

Good crowds have been attracted to both places by word of the boys trying to set records.

Parents of the newcomers are providing their sons with the eats so far. They have consented to the boys trying to get into the winning class.

"We're going to sit it out up here for a while," the boys said from their leafy perch.

Young Phillips has announced the opening of school, September 4, as the date he will come down from the tree. "In time to go to school," he declares. He started at 4 p. m. Thursday.

Grain Alcohol Shown Three Times More Stimulating Than Wood Alcohol As Rub

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

COLD SPRING HARBOR, N. Y. July 18. (AP)—If men respond to alcohol like frogs, barnacles and planaria (worms), then grain alcohol should be about three times more stimulating as a rub than wood alcohol.

By the same scale of measurement grain alcohol is less stimulating than several of its lesser known brothers, propyl, butyl and amyl, all of the primary alcohols. Propyl is nine times as stimulating as wood, butly 27 and amyl 81 times.

Methods Discovered

These comparisons come from discovery of a method to measure accurately the chemical simulation of alcohol and other compounds reported to the biological laboratory here by Dr. H. H. Cole, professor of physiology and biochemistry at Rutgers university. His experiments were upon frogs, barnacles and planaria. He devised a tank in which they could be kept under a constant flow of pure water along with means of recording normal rates of motion, such as the jumping of the frog.

He tainted the water with various alcohols, obtaining a precise record of the amounts necessary to stimulate the animals into more than normal activity. In addition to showing effects somewhat slimar to those of a rub down, the animals may have been exhibiting also the equivalents of intoxication. Dr. Cole believes his experiments show how chemical stimulation starts in any part of the body touched by alcohol or other compounds.

Molecules Spread

When contacts is made, he believes the alcohol molecules spread about under control of definite forces instead of scattering haphazard, the pattern made by the molecules of one substance, or one kind of alcohol.

As the molecules spread, their energies are released. This release may be likened to billions of tiny hammers striking the contact surface. These "blows" set off processes deeper in the tissues, which in turn reach the nerves and so produce the stimulation.

The pattern forming habit of molecules, called molecular orientation, Dr. Cole says is governed seemingly by electrical forces. Certain groups of molecules are polar, other non-polar in an electrical sense, and still others partly polar and partly non-polar.

Thus some of the stimulating effects of an alcohol rub may be considered as starting from the electrical control of the molecules. This is one further indication of the electrical foundation of all substance, a fundamental phenomenon that is coming to light in many years, including some recent Einstein equations.

Files of Mrs. McCormick Are Looted, Claim

Republican Senatorial Candidate Begins Probe Into Ransacking of Her Private Correspondence

CHICAGO, July 18. (AP) — The senate's inquiry into her campaign funds recessed, Ruth Hanna McCormick, republican senatorial candidate, today began an investigation of the ransacking of her private correspondence.

Shortly before Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the senate campaign funds committee, temporarily halted the inquiry yesterday, the Illinois congresswoman issued a statement saying the office of her Rock River farm estate at Byron, Ill., had been broken into Wednesday night and her letter file ransacked.

After Correspondence.

While she refused to say the "outrage" had any connection with the inquiry, Mrs. McCormick pointed out that the "raiders were not in search of money or other loot because they did not break into the safe, contenting themselves with an examination of my correspondence."

"I have no clue to the perpetrators but I have employed detectives," Mrs. McCormick said.

Senator Nye said he "hoped the ransackers would be caught and punished."

Nye's decision to recess the inquiry was made after a subpoena was issued for Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, election commissioner and former internal revenue collector, who was described by the senator as a "key witness," whose name "dotted the inquiry." She is away on a vacation.

Senator Nye said the inquiry into Pennsylvania campaigns would begin the first week in August and that he did not anticipate returning to Chicago until after the Keystone State primary had been scrutinized.

In addition to the $252,500 of her own money expended and the $67,214 spent by volunteer groups, all of which had been reported by Mrs. McCormick, the inquiry disclosed that an unreported $7,267 had been spent by W. D. Alexander, a Bloomington, Ill., lumberman. Another $10,000 contribution, made by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, was not reported by the Illinois congresswoman, because, as she explained, it was not used in the primary and had been kept for the fall campaign.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in him.—I John, i, 4, 5.

WHY WE CHOOSE SMALL

TONIGHT marks the date of an event toward which the Morning Avalanche has been looking ever since the present political campaign swung into action. Senator Clint Small, of Wellington, will be here this evening to bring to a very considerable portion of his homeland, West Texas, his views and his hopes concerning the governorship.

From the time the present campaign took on activity, this newspaper, with practically all others in West Texas and a considerable scattering over the state, has espoused the cause of the Wellington solon. For this action there are two reasons. First, we believe Senator Small is the best man in the race from many different angles. Second, he is a West Texan who knows West Texas, where we live, work and hope.

We West Texans are selfish people. We have become selfish because past experience has taught us that people in other portions of this vast state are not particularly interested in us or in our welfare. We have learned that we must fight for our rights, must stand together to prove our points and, in general, must toot our own horn if there is to be any music.

The overlooking of West Texas has cropped out in many ways, not the least of which has been from a political standpoint. The people of this section have noticed it—and have grown tired of the practice. The newspapers, which are really mirrors of public opinion, have taken up the battle.

So, when Senator Small entered the campaign The Morning Avalanche saw in his candidacy a golden opportunity for West Texas—providing the candidate's record of service, his honesty and ability warranted support. We dug into his record, into his character and into the things he has accomplished and further realized that in Clint Small West Texas had a 'white hope.' To the best of our opportunities we have supported his campaign ever since.

The Morning Avalanche is honest in its support of Senator Small. Mere patriotic pride, or sectional selfishness if you prefer that term, would not have brought this newspaper out in his behalf had not Mr. Small's untarnished integrity, wide experience and ability been found to support his cause. In other words, we are fortunate in that a West Texas candidate is of the unimpeachable stamp of the Wellingtonian, so that we may support him, whole-heartedly, without an apology.

We see in Mr. Small an executive worthy of the office he seeks, a judicious student of public and private affairs and a man whose character is of such a stamp that, if elected, he will do the office the honor it is due. Top these points with the fact that he happens to hail from our own section—and we couldn't have found a reason for opposing him had we sought it.

Then there is another angle, although seemingly far off at this time, which demands consideration. That angle is Small as a Democrat.

Close students of Texas politics have seen the Democratic party toppled to second place in a Presidential election and have seen it threatened in the Butte-Ferguson derby of six years ago. They also see on the sidelines of Democracy's family fuss, an alert and strengthening Republican party, ready at a moment's notice to send a henchman into the governor's office.

There are some leaders, or would-be leaders in the Democratic party in Texas who, if placed in nomination as governor could not beat back the GOP advance. There are others, who if nominated, would drive thousands of votes from the Democratic party to the Republicans and once the divorce stage is reached it will be easier, as time goes on, to place the Republicans in power in Texas.

In addition to his other talents, Clint Small can—and if nominated will—halt the GOP drive. And that's another reason why this newspaper has seen fit to support him.

The Morning Avalanche, in conclusion is for Small, for Texas, for West Texas and for the Democratic party as long as it can consistently be. Further, it is proud to announce the stand.

Fears are felt for one of the late neighborhood romances: The lady in question, a bride since June 13, hasn't succeeded in boiling the breakfast eggs exactly four minutes.

SENATORS WITH SUPERIOR ATTITUDE INCLINING TOWARD SECRET POLICIES NOT SO PLENTIFUL THESE DAYS

By Charles P. Stewart
(Central Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Unless the average citizen is willing to admit he is too much of a chump to be trusted with full information concerning his own affairs, lest he butt in mischievously, it is hard to understand how he can merely accept the view of statesmen like Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania that the more secretly public business is transacted the better it is all around.

That most folk are boneheads, who ought to let the intelligent few run their government for them, uninterfered with, is real Hamiltonism doctrine, to be sure.

Perhaps it is correct, too. Nevertheless, would one expect the voters, so classified, to concur in such a contemptuous estimate of themselves in the present day and age? Once, maybe—in olden times, when "common people" were most modest than they are now. But in this generation, I wouldn't have supposed so.

* * *

In fact, I question if the pooh, pooh attitude still assumed toward the populace by a few present-day politicians is a safe policy even for the David A Reedian type of them, who have stuck to it thus far.

There are not so many of them as there used to be. Reed is left, and Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, and Senators Arthur R. Gould of Maine and "Old Joe" Grundy of Pennsylvania, like Reed—but Gould is just retiring, and Grundy, as we know, was beaten for renomination in May.

In the next congress Reed and Bingham will be about the only survivors of the "truly superior" breed of Senators.

There are others who are quite as ultra-conservative as Reed and Bingham, or Gould and Grundy. For example, Senators Smoot of Utah, Metcalf of Rhode Island, Moses of New Hampshire, Phipps of Colorado. No one ever was more conservative than Senator Smoot. Probably he is more so than Senator Reed. But these senators are not so exalted as Reed and Bingham. Though conservative, they put on no airs; a great gulf is not fixed between them and the hoi-polli.

* * *

It must be conceded that Pennsylvania is not a commonwealth where popularity with the voters signifies as much at the primaries and on election day as in most states.

If a candidate is right with the organization, in Pennsylvania, presumably he wins, regardless of the electorate's ideas.

However, even Pennsylvania seems to be changing. Senator George Wharton Pepper, who was Reed's Pennsylvania senate-mate for awhile, was as superior a Senator as Reed himself—but Pepper was beaten for renomination. And for this reason—"He was too superior," as a Keystone State congressman whispered into my ear at the time. There may have been other reasons, too, but that one was beginning to count even then—in 1926.

* * *

Only this last spring Senator Old Joe Grundy likewise fell a victim to his superiority. True, he did get into the senate, but that was by appointment; not by popular acclaim. His superiority was of a different sort from Reed's or Pepper's, but it was of the thoroughly contemptous sort—contemptuous of popularity.

And bingo out he went on primary day.

In place of him, already nominated and with his election twice as good as cinched next November, we have one of the least superior candidates between the oceans—James J. Davis, our superlatively popular secretary of labor for two and a fraction presidential terms.

* * *

All of which seems to hint that superiority is not the asset that it was, even in Pennsylvania—that vote-getting qualities are in the ascendent even there.

Once a candidate is nominated, the difference may not signify, but it's sufficient if it signifies adequately in the primaries.

Moreover, one hears Pennsylvania politicians wondering, "What of Dave Reed's chances in 1934?" It's looking a good way ahead, but Pennsylvania politicians are remarkably farsighted. They can see things over the horizon that another person never would suspect were there.

What calls Senator Reed's superiority to mind is his attitude in connection with the senate argument over ratification of the London naval treaty.

Certain secret correspondence has been mentioned as having figured in the negotiations preliminary to this pact's conclusion.

Senator Reed, as one of the negotiators, has wanted it kept secret all along. He always does want such things kept confidential. He fought public senate sessions on the confirmation of appointments. He wants committee meetings held behind closed doors. It always makes trouble for ordinary folk to know what their government is doing, he argues—until after it is finished: then it can be announced to them, as what diplomats call "un fait accompli," meaning "an accomplished fact," for the benefit of those who are not so extra superior.

SUSCEPTIBILITY OF PRINTERS TO "T. B." IS STILL A PUZLE

By Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The printing and publishing industry has become so great that the disease conditions which affect its workers constitute a special problem in modern medicine.

For a long time information concerning printers was limited to records of deaths. It was found that those engaged in printing have lower death rates from all causes, except tuberculosis, than corresponding men in general, while their death rates from tuberculosis at all ages are definitely higher and often much higher than for men in general.

Among the factors which it was thought might be responsible for the high rate in tuberculosis are exposure to lead, crowding and bad ventilation, dust, exposure to gas, and the fact that the industry seems to attract a physically poor type of worker. It is quite possible that all of these factors have some bearing in an explanation of the unusual fact.

A special study of the situation made in Great Britain has attempted to analyze the conditions from the point of view of special groups among the printers, such as compositors, bookbinders, machine operators and stereotypers. The figures, as analyzed by A. B. Hill, indicate that there is a high incidence of tuberculosis among compositors in early life and that they are then comparatively free from the disease until the end of their working days.

He has also shown that there is a heavy tuberculosis rate among machine printers from the ages of 40 to 60. The compositors and machine printers are numerically the largest group among printers in general. Hence it becomes necessary to give special attention to this group in relationship to the tuberculosis factor.

It seems quite likely that the establishment of systematic periodic physical examination with special reference to the incidence of general tuberculosis might serve to elucidate still further the question as to why the printers particularly suffer with this disorder.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

JUDITH GRANT, beautiful artists model, shares her Greenwich Village apartment with CHUMMY MORLEY, a lovely girl whose mind has been a blank ever since her lover, ALAN STEYNE, disappeared seven years ago. Steyne returns suddenly, Chummy fails to recognize him, and he and Judith fall in love. He tells Judith he never loved Chummy and never knew Chummy loved, him; but when Chummy's memory finally returns and she recognizes him he feels in honor bound to ask her to marry him. Judith, to get out of their way, accepts the offer of rich BRUCE GIDEON, who is infatuated with her, to become a star in a musical show he is to promote, and starts studying dancing. BASTIEN DUMONT, a young artist who loves her, tells Steyne she is "getting in Gideon's clutches" and Steyne tries to warn her against him; but Judith feels insulted and tells Steyne to mind his own business.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

A week later Bruce Gideon came to Guarvenius' house and found that Judy had just finished her lesson for the day.

"I came to find you, Judy, he said, after greeting the maestro. "The big Russian ballet opens tonight, and I have a box. I thought you would like to come."

"How gorgeous! How kind you are!" she replied impulsively.

"That's settled, then." He followed her out into the street. His big car was waiting there. "Where are you going?" he asked her.

"To Mr. Stornaway's."

Stornaway had suddenly asked for her services again. She liked sitting for him beter than for any one else, except Max Dickbread, of whom she was really very fond, for all his rudeness and his exacting ways.

"Let me drive you," Gideon said.

For the first time she hesitated.

"You must be tired and hot and you will catch cold," added the soft voice.

"Thanks you very much. You are very kind."

And Judy got in the car.

She reached home about half-past six, and found Chummy waiting for her in some excitement.

"Oh, Judy, how late you are! Do hurry up and dress. Alan has seats for the first night of the Russian ballet—boxes! He's taking us out to dinner first—a real nice dinner at the Malaya!"

Judy shook her head.

"Sorry, darling; I'm booked."

Chummy's face fell.

"Oh, Judy, can't be anything so important as the Russian ballet!"

"It is the Russian ballet, pet. I'm going with Mr. Gideon."

"Oh, how unfortunate! Alan will be disappointed. Are you dining anywhere?"

"No. Mr. Gideon is calling for me here at eight o'clock."

"Then come to dinner at least, Judy."

* * *

Judy could hardly refuse. She dressed quickly, and when Alan came to fetch them she was ready. She had managed to buy herself a new dress of rich red gold, with a hint of bronze in it. It matched her hair and subdued the paint on her face—such a wonderfully eager little face!

The dinner at the Malaya was rather a silent affair. Chummy had explained to Steyne that Judy had already accepted an invitation from Bruce Gideon. Alan made no comment.

There was a slight restrain upon them. Judy and Alan had not met since the day when he had ventured his ill-timed warning. Chummy was frankly disappointed, and already looked upon the evening as a failure, because it had been planned to give Judy pleasure.

Neither of the girls wanted to eat. Steyne was hungry, having been for a tramp in the country after several days of unsuccessful effort at the art school. His appetite was almost the only topic of conversation. Judy joked about it, and Chummy gently encouraged him to eat. Over the coffee they grew more gay, and Judy forgot the time. She started up at a quarter to eight.

"My, I shall be late! I must get back!"

Steyne rose, too, and bent and whispered something to Chummy.

"Yes, that's a splendid idea!" she exclaimed. "Why didn't we think of it before? I'll stay here for a minute or two, Alan, and then I'll walk over to the theater. It's only a few steps. It's not worth while my coming all the way back."

Steyne assented and paid the bill. Then he followed Judy out of the restaurant.

"I'll drive you back, if I may," he said. "I'm going back to see if Clara Jenks is at home and would like to see the show. It's a pity to waste our third seat."

"Oh, she'll love it!" Judy cried. "I do hope she's there!"

In the cab they hardly spoke. Judy felt a little frozen by Alan's attitude. His voice was the essence of polite friendliness. She concluded that she had offended him beyond pardon the other day. Indeed, she had been very rude and flippant; but then, he shouldn't have interfered with her.

* * *

He asked her how she was getting on, and she said, "Very well." She asked him what he was painting, and he told her he had again come to the conclusion that he could not paint at all. He was thinking of giving it up and going in for farming.

Judy said she was looking forward to the fancy-dress ball at the Lemon Grove, 10 days from that very day. It was to be a real artists' and models' ball, like the fa-

Extension of Cavern Route To Be Sought

International Highway from El Paso Into Mexico Aim of Carlsbad Association; R. A. Singletary Here

Plans for the extension of the Carlsbad Cavern Highway from El Paso down into Mexico to form an international highway will be pushed, R. A. Singletary, manager of the good roads division of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce declared while in Lubbock Thursday night enroute to El Paso.

From El Paso Mr. Singletary will begin logging the route to Chihuahua he said while here. Distance is about 180 miles.

Recent dasignation of the highway from Maysville, Ky., to El Paso by the Federal bureau of roads, is U. S. highway No. 62. This has all been logged Mr. Singletary added.

In Good Condition

From Maysville to Oklahoma City, a distance of 1,071 miles, all has been paved or graveled except 42 miles. Between Oklahoma City and El Paso through Lubbock, Brownfield, Tatum and Lovington to Carlsbad, it is 767 miles. All of the road is graded and some is paved or plans for paving have been approved.

While here Mr. Singletary conferred with J. H. Hankins, president of the association and A. B. Davis, secretary. He told officers he believed the great part of the distance in Oklahoma and Texas would be paved within a few years.

ADELAIDE, South Australia, July 18. (AP)—Two convicts were killed, one wounded and two police injured in a dash of prisoners to escape from a jail quarry today at Yatala.

Chased by motor patrols from Adelaide the fugitives took refuge in a school yard when a tire on their car burst.

Guards finally rounded up the embattled fugitives.

Allison Wins First Match For U. S. In Davis Cup Race

Conqueror of Cochet Comes From Behind

Texan Defeats De Stefani of Italy in Five Sets but Is Twice on Edge of Defeat; Darkness Ends Second Play

(By Associated Press)

AUTEUIL, France, July 18.—America won the opening match from Italy in the Inter-Zone Davis Cup tennis final today and took two out of three sets of the second before it was called on account of darkness.

It was close work, however, that gave Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, a five-set victory over Georgio De Stefani, the ambidextrous Italian, and enabled the United States to take a one-up lead in this battle for the right to meet France in the challenge round.

The scores were 4-6, 7-9, 6-4, 8-6, 10-8, and the Texas giant-killer, conqueror of Henri Cochet at Wimbledon, was at least twice on the verge of defeat at the hands of Italy's No. 2 singles player. To take the final set and win Allison had to come up from 1-5 in an amazing rally.

Chicagoan Loses Set.

George Lott of Chicago lost his first set to Baron Humbert De Morpurgo, veteran of many Davis Cup contests, 3-6, and had to play his best tennis to take the next two, 9-7 and 10-8.

At the end of the third set it was 8:30 p. m. and darkness was falling. Players and spectators had had enough and the officials called it a day. The entire program had been held up more than an hour by rain and wet courts and the Allison-De Stefani match had lasted fully three hours.

De Morpurgo and Lott will resume their match at 2 p. m. tomorrow and the doubles teams will clash in the third battle of the series.

Manhunt That Is Different Under Way In New York

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Police of New York and Chicago are engaged in a manhunt that is different.

If they find Joe Ferra, 42, of Rosebank, Staten Island, they will assure him he has committed no crime and will urge him to go back to his family.

Ferra, a night watchman at a building in course of construction, was busy filling the little red danger lamps out in front one night when he heard a scream within. On the floor he found the crushed body of a young boy who, sneaking into the building with his playmates, had fallen through the steel frame of the second floor.

Nobody accused Ferra. But that night he quit his job. For 12 days he stayed home debating with himself his responsibility and waiting for police to come for him. Finally, on June 30, he kissed his family goodbye and went to Chicago to Chicago the "disgrace."

His wife, fearful he might take his own life, asked police to send him home.

Ex-Champ Hits Road for Home

Mandell Does Not Remember Being in Ring with Young Singer; Goes Home to Rest and Forget Nightmare

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Sammy Mandell hit the trail for the west tonight a tired, saddened youngster, bereft of his lightweight championship and rather glad of it.

He is going back to Rockford, Ill., to rest and forget the nightmare in the Yankee stadium last night where Al Singer jumped on him in less than a round and battered him to the floor. Mandell today still was trying to puzzle out the happenings in the ring.

"I'm sure making the weight didn't hurt me," he said as he sat in Madison Square Garden and groped for reasons for the surprising defeat. "But I felt dead. I had no pep or life and I couldn't seem to arouse myself. I was strong physically, though.

"I don't know what happened in the first round. I never saw the first left hook that knocked me down and never felt any of the punches. I don't remember being on the floor at all."

Mandell Not Bankrupt As Resault of Fight

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Sammy Mandell was $45,382.12 richer, today although losing his lightweight boxing title to youthful Al Singer at the Yankee Stadium last night. That amount represented 35 per cent of the net gate receipts, which totaled $129,663.36.

Singer's share of the gate was 15 per cent and amounted to $19,449.48. The gross receipts for the fight, however, were disappointing, being only $162,358.30. Deduction of the state and federal taxes left the net receiptsfar below expectations.

PRISONER RETURNED

MONTREAL, July 18. (AP)—Four American officials entrained today for Washington, D. C., taking Henry Herman Barere, itinerant painter, to face a charge of murdering Mary Baker, navy department employe.

DANCING JUDITH

By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN

mous Julian's ball in Paris. What was he going to wear?

He didn't know. What was she going to wear?

Oh, she wasn't sure, but a Columbine was the cheapest, she thought. She had quite decided that Chummy ought to go as Diana. That was what everybody who knnew her likened her to. Chummy thought the costume too scanty, but Judy was trying to persuade her.

She saw Alan from slightly afar, she rejoiced bitterly, thinking she had shocked him. The more she could shock him the better for everybody.

Gideon's cig car was at the door, waiting for the Sperly. The outer door was still open, and he was standing just outside, smoking a cigar. There was no help for it, Judy had to introduce the two men, with a brief explanation. Then she turned to Alan.

"If you like, I'll run up and find out about Clara. I could tell her to get dressed as quick as she can, and I could help her, too."

Before he could demur she was gone.

Gideon turned to Alan with a smile, and offered him a cigar, which the young man decided on the plea that he was going over to the theater as soon as Miss Jenks came down.

"You may as well dismiss your taxi, then," suggested Gideon. "We'll all go together."

Again Steyne decided with cool politeness. Miss Jenks might not be ready immediately, and he knew Miss Grant did not want to lose a moment of the ballet.

"You're engaged to Miss Morey aren't you?" was Gideon's next question. He adopted a slightly patronizing air, with which mingled a smothered hostility that must have been instinctive. You were away when I met Miss Morley again the other day. She didn't remember the previous occasion at all. She has made a remarkable recovery. You must think yourself very lucky, Mr. Steyne. What a lovely creature she is!"

"I did not know you had met Miss Morley before, Mr. Gideon," Alan replied with great formality. "Oh, yes—at your little cafe. I was there with Stornaway one night, and he introduced me. Miss Morley was not very complimentary to me. She said I was ugly, and called me 'Punch.'"

He laughed, not entirely without malice. It pleased him to reveal Clarissa to her betrothed husband in such an impolite light. He disliked this young man, and resented his appearance. The Morley girl was Judy's best friend and house companion, and who knew what bad influence they might not have on her? By "bad" influence Gideon meant, of course, an influence detrimental to his own plans.

* * *

Steyne looked at him with obvious frigidity.

"I trust you forgive Miss Morley for her rudeness, Mr. Gideon," he said. "Perhaps you did not know at the time that she was not responsible for what she said."

"Of course, I thought nothing of it," replied the rich man, chuckling. "I was vastly amused. It's only too true. I know I'm no Apollo. I admired Miss Morley immensely, and was fascinated by her romantic story. You must allow me to say how glad I am that it is to have a happy ending."

"Thank you very much," replied the young man, with an inward groan.

Just then Judy ran down to say that Clara war overcome with joy and would be down directly. The chauffeur opened the door of Gideon's car. Judy gave Alan a smile and disappeared into the luxurious interior. For a moment he saw her bright hair and vivid lips against dark cushions. Gideon followed her with a slightly effusive farewell.

As Alan stood and watched the car slid away, a deadly hatred of Bruce Gideon and a conviction of the man's evil purpose were born in his heart.

In the vestibule of the opera house, after the performance, Steyne saw Judy again. She looked half wild with excitement; her eyes had the amethyst sparkle in them that meant extreme elation. Alan had seen her look like that before, when she had sat in a box at the musicale with him, and they had seemed to be the only people in the world.

He knew that she would not be responsible for what she did in that mood. The wonderful dancing had gone to her head. She was living, for the time, in another world. He registered a vow that she should not leave the opera house alone with Bruce Gideon.

In the crowd he became separated a little from Chummy and Clara Jenks. He looked back and told Clarissa, by a series of signs, that he saw Judy and was going to fetch her, so that they might all go to the Cafe Truc together. Chummy nodded assent.

When he did find Judy, she was alone. She seemed to be waiting. Most of the crowd had passed on.

"Come along, will you, to the cafe?" he asked her. He did not know how harsh and dictatorial his voice was. The look of her filled him with despair. Clara and Chummy are at the door.

"Oh, thank you," she said, "but I am waiting for Mr. Gideon."

"Where is he?"

"Talking to his sister, Madame de Toros."

"Why are you not talking to her, too?"

"I don't know her."

"And I won't come to the cafe, thanks!"

"Yes, you will," said Alan. "Clarissa wants you to come along."

"Another time, then, thanks." Judy's voice was contemptuous. "I am waiting for Mr. Gideon."

"Judy, you'll come with us, please!" He looked round and saw the rich man's bulky form coming toward them. Gideon was smiling. The gross lines of his face and the pin points of his cruel little eyes made the young man feel sick. "You'll come with us, Judy," he said again in a hoarse whisper, and his mouth set itself into a line of inflexible determination.

Cotton Market Is Fairly Active on Friday — Livestock Slaughter Cattle Sell About Steady — Grain Good Demand for Wheat Continues

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, July 18. (AP) — The cotton market was fairly active today and prices developed considerable strength; advancing mainly because of the increasing seriousness of the drought in the central and western belts, shorts covered freely and found contracts scarce. July opened 9 points down owing to the issue of additional July notices for 2,150 bales and new crop months opened 1 point up to 1 down. July advanced sharply when the notices were stopped, gaining 35 points while new crop months advanced 29 to 30 points mainly on the drought news. The market continued firm to the end and made new highs in the final trading 32 points above the lows and closed near the top, the general market showing gains for the day of 30 to 31 points.

Liverpool came in as due to 4 points better than due. First trades here showed a loss of 8 points on July, a gain of 1 point on October and a loss of 1 point on December Prices soon started to advance mainly on the reports of increasing drought damage and by the end of the first hour July traded at 12.39, October at 13.03 and December at 13.20, up 13 to 15 points from the lows.

NEW YORK COTTON
NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Cotton was higher today on covering and trade buying which appeared to be coupled with some broadening of commission house demand due to prospects for continued dry weather in central and western belt sections.

Talk of rather an improved tone in the cotton goods market may also have had a contributing influence on the advance which carried new October contracts up to 13.19, or 32 points net higher. They closed at 13.15 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 21 to 29 points.

Rains Reported

Some further rains were reported in the eastern belt, and the forecast was for clearing weather in that section which many thought would be desirable following recent precipitation seemed to center on conditions i nthe Mississippi valley and westward.

Stock Market Bears Get Another Dose Of Bull Medicine In Friday Trading

By JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, July 18. (AP)—Stock market bears got another dose of bull medicine today. Just when the list seemed about to oblige the prophets of reaction, operators for the advance administered a strong tonic of buying orders, stimulating many pool favorites to the best levels of the recovery.

The market seemed to be completely under professional auspices, and it was obvious that holders of the long position wished to keep bullish sentiment simmering, if not boiling, for the week-end. Although some of the recently active issues were dropped, other leaders, particularly U. S. Steel, were quickly forthcoming and advances of one to four points on the day were numerous. However, the fact that the price index of 90 stocks rose only 1.4 points testified to the selectivity of trading.

Last Hour Rally

Much of the rise was accomplished in the last hour. Up to then, some of the pivotal shares; including American Can and American telephone, had been reactionary and the bear faction lost some of its caution. The weakness of Johns-Manvill, Vanadium and Worthington Pump, which had been active on the advance, encouraged short selling, but the tendency toward reaction proved to be a costly decoy. The strong support thrown into the market is the late dealings induced covering and the shorts found prices rising rapidly.

Copper stocks rallied in the face of a reduction in the price of the metal to the pre-war level of eleven cents. There apparently was some tendency to believe that this represented the bottom although it was recalled sentiment had followed a similar course on earlier cuts. Anyway, the short covered, sending Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco and Calument and Arizona up 1 to 2 points.

BOMBAY, India, July 18. D. P. Kaithan, of the Indian Chamber of Commerce, announced that by the end of next June there would be a carryover of an unprecedented number of bales of jute in Calcutta alone.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Police Convinced Of Their Mistake

JACKSON, Miss., July 18.—(AP)—County officials were convinced tonight that the story told by a stranger to a county sheriff that a prominent Harrison county widow was Belle Gunness, who years ago poisoned 15 husbands of the farm near LaPorte, Ind., was erroneous and that the entire affair was a case of mistaken identity.

The sheriff and his deputies went to the widow's farm early today, but learned the woman was visiting friends in Peoria, Ills. They learned also that the widow was prominent in club and social affairs of Gulfport, where she had been known 13 years.

When her friends heard the story they became indignant and gave her history for the last 42 years, dispelling all suspicion of any connection between the woman and Belle Gunness.

DALLAS, July 18. (AP) — Anxious to have republican primary elections held in every county in the state, even one-man primaries are provided for in instructions being prepared for issuance Monday from republican state headquarters here by E. C. Tootman, organization director.

"Please understand that the republican party in Texas wants primaries held in every county and wants as many republicans as possible to participate," the instructions read, "but if you alone are interested, you alone can legally do all the things listed above. You can elect yourself county chairman and precinct chairman and delegate to the county convention, then delegate to the state and district conventions and thus legally save the republican party in your county and give it a chance to be built to full strength during the ensuing two years."

Two Men Shoot Each Other to Death Friday

State Trooper and Suspected Blackmailer Are Slain in Cemetery when Man Appears o Receive Money

MONESSEN, Pa., July 18. (AP)—A state trooper and a suspected blackmailer shot each other to death in a cemetery here early today.

The trooper, private Charles Stewart, 23, was assigned with other officers to guard a packet containing $10,000 in marked money, placed near a tombstone by W. F. Wright, wealthy furniture dealer, who recently received a death threat.

Both Men Die

Shortly after the trooper took up their vigil, a man later identified as John Sabo, 25, Monessen, appeared in the cemetery. As he stooped to to pick up the packet, Stewart pounced upon him. Sabo whipped a pistol from his pocket and fired at Stewart, wounding him in the abdomen. As he fell Stewart fired at Sabo, killing him instantly. Stewart died a few minutes after being removed to a hospital.

Wright told police he received a letter several days ago, demanding he place $10,000 in the cemetry at 2 o'clock this morning. He was to be slain if he faled to comply with the demand, the letter said.

Policeman Slain

CHICAGO, July 18. (AP)—Robbers slew one policeman and probably fatally wounded another early today when the officers sought to arrest the thugs after they had held up a gasoline station. The bandits caught in a nearby garage, shot their way to freedom, but abandoned their car.

Policeman John J. Guiltinane was killed and his companion, Anthony Wistord, was severely injured. Later, detectives, taking a clue from the abandoned car, arrested Harry Yetter as one of the slayers. Yetter said he had been drinking heavily all night and did not remember what he had done. The police are seeking his companion through a bill of sale and parole papers found in the bandits' automobile.

Stay Refused

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—Justice McReynolds today refused to stay the execution on July 25 of the three men convicted of the murdre of traffic Policeman James H. Smith at Kansas City, Missouri. Justice Butler recently refused to grant a stay.

Counsel for the condemned men, Carl Nasello, Tony Mangiaracina and John Messino, said they would probably apply to other members of the supreme court for a stay.

The patrolman was killed following the robbery of the Home Trust company in Kansas City. He was shot by the robbers as they fled from the bank.

Value of automobile tourist trade to Canada in 1929 is officially estimated at $208,744,000.

Texas Loses Land In Boundary Move

DALLAS, July 18. (AP)—A special dispatch to the Dallas News says the El Paso County club remains in Texas but the El Paso Electric company's plant falls in New Mexico and Texas loses 2,496 acres to New Mexico, as a result of a re-survey of the boundary between the states in the region of El Paso.

A report to this effect was made at Washington by Samuel S. Gannett of the United States geological survey, acting as commissioner for the United States supreme court. The court's decree directed that the boundary be established and monumented marking the Rio Grande as it ran in 1850. Only in one place does the Gannet line lie in the center of the present bed of the river.

LEAVE PERMITTED

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—Disabled World war veterans who are employed under the civil service today were permitted in an executive order issued by President Hoover to take unlimited leave without pay to obtain medical treatment.
