'Something for everyone' tax bill passes Senate

By PAUL E. STEIGER
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Senate passed a massive tax bill Friday extending or making permanent $17 billion worth of 1975 tax cuts otherwise due to expire, cutting out more than $2 billion in preferences now enjoyed by a variety of taxpayers and installing an even larger list of new special benefits for various individuals and corporations.

The new tax preferences would cost the Treasury $2 billion next year and $6 billion annually by 1981. The vote on the bill was 49 to 22.

The measure is formally titled the Tax Reform Act of 1976 but is swiftly being termed "a raid on the Treasury" by disappointed Senate liberals who failed in most of their efforts to close what they saw as loopholes for the rich. The bill now must be reconciled by a joint House-Senate conference committee with a similarly titled measure passed by the House last Dec. 4.

The differences between the two bills are vast. The House version does more to curtail tax benefits for the wealthy and for corporations and the Senate bill contains numerous special benefits not in the House measure. These benefits include credits for college tuition, investment incentives for airlines, and a special subsidy for worker pension and bonus programs known as employee stock ownership plans, or ESOPs.

The new Senate measure also contains many provisions that more or less parallel provisions in the House version. These include:

—Expansion of the so-called minimum tax, designed to assure that those with high incomes pay at least something to the Internal Revenue Service every year.

—Restrictions on the use of "tax shelter" investments in real estate, farming, movies, sports franchises, and the oil and gas industries to shield ordinary income from tax.

—Curtailed of current tax exemptions for sick pay and military disability pay.

—A new and broader child care tax subsidy for families where husband and wife both work.

—Restrictions on deductions now claimed by people who conduct some business in their homes or occasionally rent their vacation dwellings.

It is expected to take until well into September for the members of the House-Senate conference to work through the two bills' scores of provisions, most of them conflicting and many of them affecting only a handful of taxpayers each. After that, assuming that the conferees manage to hammer out a compromise version, it must be sold to both houses, an uncertain prospect.

The only element seen as all but sure to emerge from this process is the extension of last year's tax cuts, at least through 1977.

Last December, these reductions were extended through June 30 and most of them technically expired on that date, although Congress in June voted to keep the amount withheld from employees' pay-checks unchanged, pending action on this bill.

Without a law to extend these cuts, the taxes owed by a family of four this year would rise by between $70 and several hundred dollars, and the 10 per cent investment tax credit for

3 killed in Chicago crash of converted bomber

CHICAGO (AP) — A World War II B25 bomber, converted for civilian use, caught fire after takeoff and crashed into three homes, killing three persons and injuring three others Friday, authorities said.

A police official tentatively identified the dead as the pilot and an instructor. Two persons who lived in the homes were injured.

Two minutes after the airplane took off from Midway Airport on the Southwest Side, the pilot radioed the control tower that he had to make an emergency landing, said a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in suburban Des Plaines.

All runways at Midway were cleared immediately, but the plane crashed a half-mile west of the airport, which is surrounded by residential and light industrial neighborhoods.

Controllers and witnesses said they could see smoke coming from the plane before the crash.

The plane was owned by Air Chicago Freight Airlines, located near Midway. An employee there said he had no details and did not know what cargo the plane was carrying.

The North American-built B25 Mitchell bomber was used in World War II in the first raid on Tokyo.

Chicago Fire Commissioner Robert Quinn said the two-engine plane destroyed two homes near the airport and damaged a porch of the third.

The FAA said the plane was on a local, nonbusiness flight when it caught fire.

Emmett Stovall, operator of National Air Commuter Airlines, said he saw thin streams of smoke coming from the engines on takeoff.

He said the plane took off to the northwest and turned steeply twice over suburban La Grange to about 2,500 feet before heading back for the airport.

About a half-mile from the airport the engines ignited, he said, and the blazing plane plummeted about 1,000 feet and crashed.

He said the owner of the B25 recently converted it into a passenger plane for business executives, and was believed to be undergoing testing when the crash occurred.

It slashed through electrical lines, forcing Commonwealth Edison Co. to shut off power to the neighborhood, and ripped a telephone cable, knocking out service to about 200 customers.

Pieces of fuselage and other debris were scattered over several blocks.

Texas art sparks Big Spring museum

BIG SPRING—A pale, wasted young man of 23 was carried on a cot from a baggage car of the Texas Pacific Railway in 1890, suffering from tuberculosis.

H. W. Caylor died 42 years later after chronicling his yeasty time and place in oils that now hang in some of the great private and public collections of the nation and the Southwest, with scores of excellent prints (and a few originals) continuing to return to the Heritage Museum here for the enjoyment and the elucidation of Oestexans and visitors.

I think Caylor was as good as Remington technically and perhaps more imaginative as he preserved the fact and the fancy of a dying frontier.

His "Nature Reclaims Her Own" is a monument to the memory of the lonesome chimneys that mark the site of ill-fated Fort Phantom near Abilene, with the Caylor touch of an eagle's nest compromising man's depositions in the name of conquest.

And "The Passing of the Old West" summarizes volumes of history with its solitary mounted cowboy considering a new cedar post and barbedwire fence snaking across a Texas plain into infinity.

I'd love to see the heroic roundup picture "Roping the Outlaw" that hangs in the Stock Exchange at Kansas City, and I have seen the Indian bride study at the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City (the greatest single collection of western art I know), and I treasure a miniature that was mailed as a Christmas print two years ago: Caylor's definitive paean to the passing of real one-horse travel, showing a swaybacked steed in the snow kicking at a former barn converted into a haven for a Model A.

The collection of Caylor prints has been greatly enhanced by donations from the Reynolds-Matthews family of Shackelford County (whose Reynolds Bend Headquarters of the Matthews Ranch near Albany is the spiritual fount—and often the textual inspiration—of the living Texas tradition known as the "Albany Fandangle").

And Ms. Gerri Atwell, curator of the Heritage, carries in her head numberless fascinating facts and traditions about Caylor and the land which revived him and which he immortalized in oils.

But the Heritage is a general museum also, and one of the most awe-inspiring exhibits is a new set of horns from the huge collection of the late Earle Read donated by the early Ted O. Groehl, Sr.—a seven-foot rack from what must have been a Brahma with a glandular problem and a nine-foot expanse of Texas longhorn horns.

The Heritage Museum is open from 1 to 5 p. m. Saturdays and Sundays and 9 to 5 weekdays.

Toxins head doctors' list

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doctors said Friday they are concentrating their search for the cause of "legionnaire's disease" on toxins — or poisons. But they conceded that the list of toxins was almost endless and repeated that they may never know what killed the 25 men and women who have died in the mysterious outbreak.

Doctors here and at the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said, meanwhile, that the outbreak appears to be tapering off.

State Health Secretary Leonard Bachman said that although the death toll was officially increased by two on Friday, there have been no new cases of the disease reported since Tuesday. "I do believe the guarded optimism we are showing is appropriate," he said. The two who were added to the death toll died earlier in the week, but had been listed as having suffered other diseases.

Delegate-seating fight may be test of strength

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegate-seating which could force an early test of strength between the Reagan and Ford camps at the Republican National Convention emerged Friday.

Ronald Reagan's campaign manager, John Sears, promised "we'll go all the way with Joe" in a fight to win the voting rights of a deceased New Jersey delegate.

A clear-cut credentials fight in advance of presidential balloting could tip which way uncommitted delegates are likely to vote in the tight battle between the President and the California challenger.

"Joe" is Joseph Vlesgias of Bayonne, N.J., an alternate who announced Thursday he would vote for Reagan as the successor to the pro-Ford delegate, Peter D. Morgan, who died last month.

Perry Geurin of the Lenorah community appears gleeful after winning the old fiddlers' contest Friday at the Howard-Glasscock Counties Old Settlers' Reunion at Big Spring.

Perry Geurin judged top fiddler at reunion

By ED TODD
R-T Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — "It really doesn't matter who wins," Daddy Don Brooks told his audience underneath the fan-breezed pavilion at Comanche Trail Park here.

"It really doesn't matter who loses," he said. "We're all winners at the Old Settlers' Reunion."

But it really mattered to Lenorah farmer Perry Geurin, one of 11 "old timers" who played to please in the old fiddlers' contest at the 52nd annual Howard-Glasscock Counties Old Settlers' Reunion.

He won but didn't expect to, and his eyes said he was happy about it all. "People," he said after emcee Brooks had handed him the first-place trophy, "this is the great thrill of my life. Thank you, people."

Geurin, a sentimental "old timer" at 54, played sentimentally "The Westphalia Waltz" and the "Boil Them Cabbages Down" breakdown. Leon Langley, Geurin's neighbor at the Lenorah community in Martin County, played the guitar in accompanying the reunion's No. 1 fiddler, as it turned out.

Off the stage and away from the microphones, Geurin against expressed a bit of happiness.

"Man," he said, "that's the biggest thrill of my life — winning this damn thing." He had entered old fiddlers' contests here in past years but, until now, had never got beyond the No. 2 spot. (But he won first place in Martin County Old Settlers' Reunion's old fiddlers' contest at Stanton last year.)

He was elated, but generally quiet about it.

Not quite so peaked with emotion was Chester Derrick, an Odessa whom the judges said was worthy of the No. 3 old fiddlers' trophy.

He said what was important wasn't winning but rather "the fellowship with these (other) musicians." Placing second in the contest was

Tax bill at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here, at a glance, are the major provisions of the tax bill that passed the Senate on Friday.

—Would continue an individual tax credit of $35, cut from taxes paid, through Dec. 31, 1977.

—The standard deduction would be increased and made permanent.

—A work bonus for the working poor would be made permanent.

—A college or vocational student or his parents would be allowed to subtract up to $250 a year from taxes owed.

—Homeowners and businesses could subtract some of the costs of improving weatherproofing, replacing electric heat with a heat pump or installing of solar or geothermal heat.

—The 12 tables covering 10 pages from which most taxpayers compute their taxes would be reduced to two pages of tables.

—Parents would receive a tax credit for part of the cost of child care needed for them to work.

—A simplified retirement credit would begin for the elderly.

—A worker could set aside $500-a-year for retirement for his wife, if she does not work outside the home.

FTC to study 'brand name' vs. 'generic' drugs

By The Associated Press

Consumers, legislators and government investigators are asking "What's in a name" when it comes to prescription drugs. And a growing number of people are replying: "Money."

At issue is whether pharmacists should be able to substitute less expensive but chemically equivalent prescriptions. The Federal Trade Commission announced a probe of the subject this week and U. S. Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., opened a series of hearings in New York City on proposed federal legislation to allow the druggist to select the particular product he dispenses.

The FTC said commercial pharmacies sell $7.5 billion worth of prescription drugs each year. Murphy said most of the prescription list brand-name drugs "which are usually very much more expensive due to massive promotional campaigns and drain the sick consumer of as much as $2 billion a year in excessive costs."

The Drug Research Board of the National Academy of Science recommended earlier this year that pharmacists be allowed to dispense generic drugs for brand-name items.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, representing most of the major U.S. drug makers, says, however, that the cheaper substitutes do not always work as well as the established brands.

"There are distinct differences in competence among drug firms," says the association. "The research-based companies that invest heavily in the discovery and marketing of new drugs take pride in the efficacy and safety of all their products. . . They spot-and-report-defects that less qualified firms are less apt to discover."

At present, patent laws generally give the company that develops a drug exclusive rights over its production for 17 years. When the period runs out, other companies are free to enter the market.

The drugs produced by these other companies are usually cheaper, partly because the firms did not have the heavy research and development costs involved in the initial marketing.

Keith Kellum, director of association affairs for the National Association of Retail Druggists, representing more than 30,000 pharmacies, said his group supports moves to allow the pharmacist to dispense a generic rather than brand-name drug.

This would force the drug manufacturers to "compete for the pharmacist's business, not the physician's writing habits" and would result in lower prices, he said.

The pharmaceutical makers association says there is nothing to prevent doctors from prescribing drugs by generic name. "The real issue is whether they should be compelled to."

Kellum said the number of doctors who use generic names when they write prescriptions has grown from barely 1 per cent a decade ago to just over 10 per cent today. "Over the past ten years medical schools have been teaching generic name terminology," he said.

Kellum said the biggest price differences occur with "multiple-source drugs," available from more than one supplier. "I call these 'me-too' drugs," he said.

As an example, Kellum said there are more than 200 different brands of tetracycline, an antibiotic, on the market. The best known brand, which he declined to identify by name, is sold to pharmacists for $12.90 per 100 pills. The least expensive tetracycline is 93 cents per 100 pills.

In another example, Kellum said the patent recently expired on the pain-killer marketed as Darvon compound. Several other companies have begun producing the drug under its generic name of dextropropoxyphene "and they are half the price of Darvon," he said. More than a dozen states already have taken action to make it easier for pharmacists to select which particular product they will dispense.

In addition, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has started requiring doctors treating federal Medicare and Medicaid patients to use the lowest-cost drugs. Kellum said the question of generic vs. brand-name drugs "has become an economic issue and a political issue."

At present, he said, the pharmacist may be required to stock particular brands of a given drug - and pay whatever price is demanded for those brands - because those are items demanding by doctors. "A third party made the selection and he didn't have to pay the price," Kellum said.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — Little went on here Friday that was not a part of the mourning for Rep. Jerry Litton, a hometown boy who went to Congress and was on his way to the Senate before a plane crash claimed his life the night he won the Democratic senatorial primary.

Light rain and overcast skies set the mood as services were held for Litton and five others who died in the crash, including his family.

Government offices and most businesses in this northwest Missouri town of 10,000 were closed.

Blacks, police clash

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of blacks chanting and demanding "freedom now" clashed with police for the third straight day Friday in the riot-torn township of Soweto.

At least four persons were confirmed wounded by police gunfire in running battles with rampaging blacks who attacked cars, buses and buildings, threw up street barricades and stoned police in the black ghetto eight miles south of Johannesburg. The police used armored vehicles in repelling the mobs of demonstrators.

By nightfall the violence, the worst since June, had subsided.

The demonstrators have been demanding the release of student leaders detained by white authorities without charges, but the protests have also taken on the tone of a general attack on South Africa's policies of racial discrimination.

Soweto, a community of one million blacks, was the spawning ground for widespread rioting in black townships in June that left 176 persons dead — all but two of them black.

"The disturbances show no sign of ending and it seems the responsible people of Soweto cannot or will not do anything about it," said Police Commissioner Gert Prinsloo, who put police on a nationwide alert.

Roving mobs of youths, most of them believed to be students, fanned through the township Friday, moving from one area to another trying to stop black workers from commuting to their jobs in Johannesburg.

THREE CHILDREN were killed and 32 injured, some seriously, when a school bus taking children from Neola, Iowa, on a swimming excursion crashed through a bridge railing Friday afternoon. The woman bus driver is listed in guarded condition in a Council Bluffs, Iowa, hospital.

Carter: GOP getting personal, ignoring issues

The Washington Post

PLAINS, Ga. — Jimmy Carter said Friday that Vice President Rockefeller was speaking for a party that "has lost its esteem among the people of the country" when he accused Carter of "ruthless" political behavior.

Carter pounced on the charge, which Rockefeller made in an interview published Friday in The Washington Post, as proof of his contention that the Republicans intend to ignore issues in favor of "personal" attacks on him and other Democrats.

The people, said the Democratic presidential nominee when reporters questioned him about Rockefeller's charge, will "react adversely."

Carter's reply to the Republican vice president — with his own brand of turn-the-other-cheek politics came at an impromptu news conference as Carter prepared to join various relatives and neighbors in wading thigh-deep in mud to catch fish from a family pond that was being drained.

In the interview, Rockefeller took note of Carter's espousal of "love" and "brotherhood" during his primary campaign and said that "now he's got to square that with some very hard politics and some ruthless operations."

Responded Carter, "I think this is the kind of maybe legitimate attack that might derive from a party which has lost its esteem among the people of the country, as demonstrated by the polls and so forth."

Carter put Rockefeller's comments in the same category as an earlier charge by Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) that Carter "only aspires to power and perhaps has the idea, the messianic idea, of creating a benevolent dictatorship" and added:

"Instead of being able and willing to meet me and (Democratic vice presidential nominee) Walter F. Mondale, on the basis of an open and frank discussion of the issues and the record of the incumbent President, who might be the nominee, I think and I'm afraid that the campaign on the Republican's part is going to degenerate into a personal lashing-out about ruthlessness and dictatorship and so forth."

Carter said beating rivals in primaries doesn't constitute ruthlessness. "I know I'd have made them feel much better if they'd won," added Carter, "but I'm not deeply enough concerned about a reputation of ruthlessness to deliberately lose."

Rockefeller's charge enabled Carter to fall back on his own successful pre-nomination themes of goodness and sensitivity, taking some of the sharp edges off his strongly worded attack on what he called the "scandal," "vetoes" and "empty promises" of the Nixon-Ford administration in New Hampshire last Tuesday.

"I consider myself to be a very reticent person and sensitive about other people's attitudes, feelings and sensitivities," said Carter, "and I don't believe Vice President Rockefeller could point out any evidence of ruthlessness on my part... obviously anybody who knows me would not think I am ruthless."

Shooting probe still under way

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Fort Worth police refused Friday to say whether they are still searching for the weapon used in the shooting spree at the mansion of Fort Worth millionaire T. Cullen Davis which left two persons dead and two others wounded.

Following the shootings, the search warrant for Mrs. Master's house was issued Thursday by Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore and reportedly executed Thursday afternoon.

Hospital spokesmen said Friday that Mrs. Davis, with a bullet wound in the abdomen, remained in good condition. Gavrel, they said, was in fair condition with bullet fragments lodged near his spine.

He refused to say, however, if the search revealed the gun used to kill Davis' 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Lee Wilborn, and his estranged wife's boyfriend, Stan Farr.

Davis was charged with two counts of murder in connection with the killings and two counts of intent to murder in the wounding of his estranged wife, Priscilla, 35, and Gus Gavrel Jr., a 21-year-old friend of the Davis family.

Police said they found two revolvers in an ice chest in the trunk of Davis' late-model Cadillac outside Mrs. Master's home at the time of his arrest. Another pistol, they said, was found in a box in the trunk and another beneath the driver's seat.

Investigators said they recovered a fifth pistol in a closet inside Mrs. Master's residence and another inside the $6 million Davis mansion

'Dump Schweiker' move underway in Senate

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — An organized effort to dump Sen. Richard S.

Schweiker as Ronald Reagan's prospective running mate surfaced Friday, among some of Reagan's key conservative supporters in the Senate.

At the same time, the White House, portraying President Ford as calmly and confidently proceeding in the selection of his running mate, announced that beginning Saturday an unspecified number of potential vice presidential nominees will be asked to begin compiling information on their backgrounds.

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina said that if Reagan captures the Republican presidential nomination, some of his conservative supporters may seek to have the vice presidential nomination thrown open to the convention instead of automatically accepting Schweiker, Reagan's liberal choice.

"There are telephone calls and letters criss-crossing this country like crazy," said Helms, one of Reagan's key supporters in the South. "I could name you a hundred prominent Republicans who have said they are sticking with Reagan but Schweiker is another story."

Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, another Reagan backer, said he agrees that there should be "an open convention" on the vice presidential nomination.

"I'd like to see that done, I think it would be helpful," Thurmond said. "I've heard a good many express themselves. They'd like to see an open convention." While aimed initially at Schweiker, who is unacceptable to many of Reagan's conservative supporters, an organized effort to have the convention select the vice presidential nominee could pose a serious threat to the authority of the eventual presidential candidate, be it Reagan or Mr. Ford. Regardless of its organizers' motives, such a movement, once begun, might find large numbers of supporters among the 2,259 delegates to the convention, which convenes Aug. 16 in Kansas City.

At the White House Friday there was no discussion of the convention making an open selection of the vice presidential nominee.

Instead, White House press secretary Ron Nessen described what he called "phase two" of an elaborate procedure the President is following to get advice on possible running mates and to screen those who are under serious consideration before announcing his choice to the convention.

Nessen said, White House aides Saturday will start telephoning potential running mates for the President. He said each will be asked to begin compiling information "on a broad range of questions" and to include in the compilation:

—A complete report on their health.

—A financial balance sheet showing all assets and liabilities.

—Information on their tax payments from 1966 through 1975.

Nessen said the possible running mates will be asked for a commitment to allow the public release of the health report, the financial data and the tax information if they are selected. They will also be asked to give the White House permission to contact their friends, associates or any others in an effort to check their backgrounds, he said.

In addition, Nessen said, the possible running mates will be questioned about their records and qualifications just as "any individual being considered for a high level appointment by the President."

Nessen provided few other details about the screening process, which is somewhat similar to that used by Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter before Carter chose Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota as his running mate.

Unlike Carter, the President will not publicly name those he has under consideration, Nessen said.

Jail abuse suit grows

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A Lubbock County jail abuse and maladministration class action suit has mushroomed to the state and perhaps the national level.

U.S. District Court Judge Halbert O. Woodward granted a motion Friday to include the Texas Commission of Jail Standards—the regulatory agency "vested with the duty to enforce compliance" of state jail standards—as a defendant in the suit originally filed against the Lubbock County sheriff and county commissioners.

The attorneys also won approval to add segregation of inmates on the basis of race and color—a civil rights violation—to the list of 26 separate allegations of abuse and maladministration charged when the suit originally was filed in May.

Big Spring schools eye base

BIG SPRING — The pending closing of Webb Air Force Base puts about $350,000 per year in federal funds to the Big Spring Independent School District in jeopardy, Dr. Emmett McKenzie, school superintendent said.

The closing of the base could also cause a decline in enrollment in Big Spring schools of approximately 1,160 students, he said. Any drop in enrollment would result in loss of state funds, McKenzie said, because state funding is based on average daily attendance.

Of the 6,100 to 6,200 students expected to attend Big Spring schools this fall, 740 are military dependents. The school district receives approximately $350,000 in "impact" money to compensate for the fact that this additional enrollment, often without corresponding tax base, affects the school district.

Another 410 students are children of civilian employees at the base. McKenzie said not all of these employees would leave Big Spring if the base is closed, but the effect of the closing might force others in businesses dependent on the base to leave.

McKenzie is optimistic about the future of the school district and the city, though. He said historically, when a base closes, there is "a period of economic stress," but the city involved recovers in a year or two.

If base facilities are made available to business and industry after the base closes, "you have a ready-made facility" to attract business to the city, McKenzie said.

The school district plans no new facilities or programs for this year, McKenzie said.

Elementary school supply needs listed

Buying school supplies is an inevitable part of the back-to-school preparation process.

Midland Independent School District officials have compiled a standard school supply list for elementary school students. The list follows:

Big Lake adds metals course

BIG LAKE — When school starts in Reagan County, metals will be added to the list of courses open to high school students.

Schools superintendent W. J. Teel said 54 of the approximately 250 high school students were registered for the new course, in which students will "learn about metals along with working the metal".

One skill taught will be welding, Teel said.
About 900 students are expected in Reagan County Schools this fall, about the same as last year, Teel said.

New vocational building near

McCAMEY — A $1.25 million construction project, approved by voters in May, will be completed in McCamey this fall.

A new vocational building will house high school auto mechanics, woodworking, metal and electronics courses, school superintendent Bill Little said.

The system's middle school is undergoing renovations in the same program, with air conditioning and plumbing work and a new library and learning center, Little said.

He said he expects the middle school, for fifth through eighth grades to be ready by the start of school and the entire project to be completed in November.

Approximately 765 students are expected in classes this fall, Little said.

New class at Rankin
RANKIN — Approximately 450 students will start school in Rankin this year, about the same number as at the end of last year, school superintendent, C. Copeland, said.
High school students will have the option of taking a new music theory class.
Otherwise, facilities and programs offered will be the same as last year, Copeland said.

950 pupils at Stanton
STANTON — About 950 students will begin classes this year in re-painted facilities in Stanton, Russell McMeans, school superintendent, said.
McMeans said this year's curriculum will be the same as last year. Several new teachers and coaches have been added to the faculty, he said.

Cardinals use error to defeat Phillies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals—aided by a Philadelphia error—scored three more runs in the seventh to beat the Phillies 6-2 Friday night.

Don McCauley also scored a touchdown for the Colts, his third in two preseason contests, while Lyle Mitchell ran for 79 yards while playing about three-quarters of the game.

The only scoring for the Redskins came on a 21-yard field goal by Mike Moseley early in the second period.

The Colts defense limited Washington to just 35 yards on the ground in the first half and held them to four first downs in the second half, just one of them rushing.

A crowd of 35,575, the largest ever to watch a preseason game in Baltimore, sat through a driving rainstorm which delayed the start of the game for 20 minutes.

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) — The condition of world champion race driver Niki Lauda of Austria improved to the extent Friday that doctors were contemplating his transfer to a hospital in nearby Ludwigshafen, doctors said.

The Ludwigshafen accident clinic has a highly specialized department for treating burns, Dr. Eicke Martin said. He said it was likely that the 27-year-old Lauda, who received near fatal injuries in the German Grand Prix Sunday in a flaming three-car pileup, will be moved there on Monday.

Doctors at Mannheim Hospital put some experimental strain on the Formula 1 champion and found that his breathing and circulation were satisfactory, a medical bulletin said. It added there was no need for further regular bulletins.

BER'IN (AP) — East German women set a new world record for the 1,600-meter relay Friday, clocking 7 minutes, 54.2 seconds, the official news agency ADN reported.

Elfie Zinn, Gunhild Hoffmeister, Anita Weiss and Ulrike Klapezinski were competing in the GDR track and field championships in Karl-Marx-Stadt, the agency said.

ARLINGTON (AP) — Gritty Gaylord Perry handcuffed Minnesota on five hits and the Texas Rangers turned a Roy Smalley first-inning error into three unearned runs Friday night to defeat the Twins, 6-0.

The 37-year-old Perry worked his way out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth inning and went on to his 11th victory against eight losses.

Minnesota starter Pete Redfern, 3-7, was touched for a double by Gene Clines and Mike Hargrove's single in the first inning. With two outs, Jeff Burroughs slashed a hard grounder to shortstop Smalley, a former Ranger, who booted the ball, allowing Clines to score.

Midland beats Brewers, 4-2

SAN ANTONIO—Earl Chew drove in three runs with a homer and a single to pace the Midland Cubs past the San Antonio Brewers, 4-2, before 1,787 fans here Friday night.

Wayne Doland scattered eight hits in eight and two-third innings to pick up his 11th win against five losses. He needed late relief help from Gary Junge.

Chew broke up a 2-2 tie in the seventh with a shot over the left field fence off Don Bright to score Ed Putnam ahead of him. Putnam had drawn his third of four walks in the game and had advanced to second on a sacrifice by Bob Hrapmann.

Midland had jumped off to a 2-0 lead after two innings tallying runs in both the first and second.

Jose Ortiz led off the game with a double and came home on Chew's single after Putnam and Bill Huisman had walked to load the bases.

Hrapmann and Mike Gordon drew walks to open the second inning and when second baseman Jerry Reedy threw wild to second on a double play ball hit by Tony Franklin, Hrapmann scored Midland's second run.

San Antonio tied things up in the third when Larry Bowa bunted safely, raced to third on pitcher John Denny's wild throw and scored on Garry Maddox's RBI grounder.

St. Louis rookie Terry Murphy led off the sixth with a single and advanced to third on Lou Brock's single before Crawford delivered his sacrifice fly.

An inning later, Keith Hernandez and Hector Cruz singled and both runners scored when reliever Tug McGraw threw past third base on Bee Richards' infield hit. Murphy's sacrifice fly scored the Cardinals' run in the seventh.

Ed Simmons slugged his fourth homer of the year for the Cards in the eighth.

ATLANTA (AP) — Carl Morton fired a three-hitter and Willie Montanez drove in two runs with three singles and a home run, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 7-0 victory over San Francisco Giants Friday night.

The Braves put the game on the fifth inning, keyed by a pair of Giant errors and a two-run double by Darrel Chaney.

It was only the second victory in 10 decisions for Morton, who retired 10 straight batters during one stretch.

The Braves took the lead in the first when Rod Gilbreath singled, stole second and scored on a bounce up the middle by Montanez.

Montanez smashed his seventh homer in the third, a liner over the right field fence. He also singled and scored during the fifth-inning rally and collected his other single in the seventh.

Besides Chaney's two-run double, the Braves had runcrossing singles from Jim Wynn and Cito Gaston in the fifth, with the other run crossing when Johnny Lemaster booted Ken Henderson's hard smash to short.

MONTREAL (AP) — Rick Monday's one-out homer in the 13th inning broke a tie and gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 victory over the Montreal Expos Friday night in the first game of their doubleheader.

Monday, who missed two weeks with a rib injury before returning to action Thursday night, slammed a pitch from Chuck Taylor, 1-1, off the scoreboard in right field.

Tim Foli's double down the left-field line in the eighth scored Wayne Garrett and gave the Expos a 3-2 lead. But the Cubs rallied to take a 3-3 lead with three runs in the ninth, including two on a single by Jerry Morales.

The Expos forced the extra innings with Garrett's run-scoring single and Del Unser's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth.

DETROIT (AP) — Dave Roberts pitched a seven-hitter while Rusty Staub, Ron LeFlore and Auerlio Rodriguez each drove in runs as Detroit snapped a five-game losing streak Friday night with a 3-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Roberts, 11-11, was working on his fourth shutout of the season when Cleveland scored an unearned run in the eighth inning on a two-out bases-loaded error by second baseman Pedro Garcia.

Staub had staked Roberts to a 1-0 lead off Jackie Brown, 7-7, with a leadoff homer in the fourth. Detroit added a run in the seventh when Tom Verzer singled, stole second and came home on a single by LeFlore.

Detroit added an insurance run in the eighth when Thompson walked after two outs and scored on a double by Rodriguez.

The Indians managed just three scattered singles until the eighth when singles by Buddy Bell, Charlie Spikes and Ray Fosse, plus a forfeit filled the bases. Then Roberts struck out Duane Kuiper and got Larvell Blanks to hit an easy grounder to Garcia. But Garcia's throw to Jason Thompson at first was in the dirt and Thompson bobbled it as the run scored.

Colts edge 'Skins

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fullback Kim Jones scored two touchdowns and the Baltimore defense shut down the Washington Redskins' vaunted running game as the Colts scored a 20-3 National Football League preseason victory Friday night.

The only scoring for the Redskins came on a 21-yard field goal by Mike Moseley early in the second period.

The Colts defense limited Washington to just 35 yards on the ground in the first half and held them to four first downs in the second half, just one of them rushing.

Ranger shortstop Toby Harrah singled home the second run and the rattled Redfern walked Tom Grieve and Juan Beniquez—forcing in a third run. Reliever Tom Johnson came on to get Jim Sundberg to pop out to end the inning.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie Crawford's sacrifice fly snapped a 1-1 tie in the sixth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals—aided by a Philadelphia error—scored three more runs in the seventh to beat the Phillies 6-2 Friday night.

Joe Washington pleases crowd as Chargers whip Patriots

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Running back Don Woods scored two touchdowns on short runs Friday night, carrying the San Diego Chargers to a 26-17 victory over the New England Patriots here Friday night in a National Football League preseason game.

Joe Washington, the Chargers' No. 1 draft pick, scored on a four-yard run in the third quarter—much to the delight of the sparse crowd of 23,800 at Owen Field, where Washington starred for four years for the University of Oklahoma. A two-yard plunge by Woods had given San Diego a 7-3 halftime lead. The Chargers stayed in command until New England quarterback Steve Grogan led the Patriots to two quick touchdowns late in the third period for a 17-13 advantage.

But the Chargers bounced back with two touchdowns in the final period, one on a one-yard plunge by Woods and the other on a 33-yard interception runback by Chris Fletcher on the game's final play.

Rookies grace Talladega 500

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A big crop of rookies graces the entry list for Sunday's Talladega 500. The most promising of the lot appears to be a frisky, 41-year-old Texan named A.J. Foyt.

It may seem like a long time since Foyt, a winner of nearly $3 million in prize money during his racing career, was a rookie at anything in racing. But at Alabama International Motor Speedway, he is—technically speaking.

FOYT HAS been entered for previous Talladega races. He's even qualified for some. But something always seems to come up to prevent him from starting in the race. One year an illness in the family called him away. Last year, the race was rained out and rescheduled a week later when Foyt had an Indianapolis car commitment.

So technically, Foyt's qualifying speed of 188.701 miles per hour, third quickest over-all, makes him the fastest rookie qualifier for the race.

HOWEVER, out of respect for Foyt's 14 years in NASCAR Grand National racing, and other considerations—probably the fact he has blazed around the 2.66-mile AIMS oval at more than 217 m.p.h. in his Coyote Indy car, Foyt has been spared the requirement of painting the yellow rookie stripe along the back bumper of his Chevrolet.

Foyt admitted to a common rookie problem after his qualifying run: "I probably needed more practice. 'I ran a championship car here at 217, but I've had limited time in a stock car. I don't really know the groove that well.'"

When he learns, he presumably will do better, like win the pole position. "After 10 laps or so of competition, I figure I'll know my way around," Foyt assured.

THE FASTEST rookie with a yellow rear bumper is Neil Bonnett, who is not a rookie at Talladega. He is on the full circuit this year, but Bonnett made a dramatic rookie appearance at Talladega a year ago, leading the race twice for a total of 12 laps before sidelined by mechanical trouble.

Bonnett, along with Foyt one of the first 15 qualifiers Thursday, was sixth fastest in his Chevrolet at 188.430 m.p.h.

Sam Sommers, a Georgia short track veteran who wants to run as a rookie next season, qualified 13th at 184.990 m.p.h. Thursday.

The fastest rookie, who really is a rookie, is Bobby Wawak, fifth fastest in Friday's qualifying and 20th overall at 183.814 m.p.h.

VETERAN HENLEY Gray topped second day qualifying with a speed of 186.521 m.p.h.

Gray's speed made him ninth overall, but he predicted he would not be so competitive in the race, using a weaker engine than the one he qualified with. "I would be risking bankruptcy to run this engine in the race. If it blows, I'm out of business."

"It feels good to know that you really could run with the front runners if you could afford it. But in my case, it just isn't good business," he explained.

Lennie Pond, who banged up his car in practice Thursday morning, qualified a backup Chevrolet at 180.833 m.p.h., 26th fastest.

Another 10 positions will be decided in Saturday's final qualifying session for the 40-car lineup.

Sandra Palmer does a knee bend as she watches her putt miss its mark during Colgate European Women's Golf Championship at Sunningdale, England, Friday.

Chako Higuchi strokes way to five shot lead

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Chako Higuchi, the 30-year-old Japanese champion, fired a six-under-par 68 Friday and streaked away to a virtually unassailable 12-under 210 after the third round of the European Women's Golf Championship.

Five strokes behind on Sunningdale's 6,174-yard, par-74 course was Sandra Palmer last year's U.S. Women's Open champion. She shot a 70 Friday and had to admit she'll have to be lucky as well as good in the final round Saturday to stand any chance of winning the $13,500 first prize.

THE TWO go into the final round virtually on their own. Next came Silvia Bertolaccini of Argentina, who plays out of Houston. She had a 72 for 219, nine strokes behind Mrs. Higuchi and four behind Miss Palmer.

Judy Rankin had a 72-220 and was tied with Kathy Whitworth, Pam Higgins, and Debbie Austin. Miss Whitworth and Miss Higgins each had a 73 Friday, Miss Austin 71. Next was Joanne Carner at 74-221.

It was the duel between Mrs. Higuchi and Miss Palmer, partners in the third round, which kept the gallery absorbed.

MISS PALMER, starting three under par and three behind Mrs. Higuchi, birdied the second to close the gap slightly. But despite her 70 she was never able to catch the leader.

Mrs. Higuchi started steadily for the first six holes, paring each. Then she got two birdies to turn two under in 34—the same as Miss Palmer—and really cut loose with her putter coming in. She blasted out of a bunker and sank from seven feet on the 10th. On the 13th, a par-three, she got within 20 feet with a three-iron and sank that for a two. On the 16th, she put her second within 20 feet of the pin and sank the putt for an eagle. Her 68 was the same as her opening round score.

"IT WAS depressing," said Miss Palmer. "There I was, playing really well, and I couldn't make any impression whatever. However, anything can happen tomorrow."

Whatever happens Saturday, Mrs. Higuchi is already $1,800 richer.

Jockey, trainer end association

The New York Times reported the two exchanged words after Thursday's ninth race at Saratoga Springs.

MSU player files suit

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Joseph Hunt, a suspended defensive back from Michigan State University, was penalized without being given a proper hearing before an impartial body, his lawyers claim.

The varsity player—suspended from eligibility as the result of an athletic investigation of MSU—has filed suit in U. S. District Court asking that the suspension be set aside.

Attorneys for MSU asked the court to name the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which ordered MSU to suspend Hunt, as a defendant so the organization could explain its role.

The NCAA ordered MSU to suspend Hunt from eligibility for this coming season as part of penalties levied for recruiting violations at MSU.

Hunt specifically was accused of using a credit card owned by Spartan alumnus T. Michael Doyle, whom the NCAA called a "representative of the university's athletic interests."

The university unsuccessfully asked the NCAA to reverse its ruling. Under NCAA rules, the university had to either suspend Hunt or show cause why he should not be suspended.

If MSU had failed to suspend Hunt once it did not offer just cause, the school could have been kept out of competition instead of merely being suspended from TV and bowl games for three years. Dr. John Fuzak of MSU, president of the NCAA, said if MSU had been barred from NCAA play, "it would end the football program and probably the entire athletic program."

Hunt attorney Robert Kaplan said this demonstrated MSU could not be impartial in its decision to bar Hunt. Six other players players were penalized—none as seriously as Hunt—and the school's coaching staff is virtually all new as a result of the investigation. Ohio State University football coach Woody Hays has admitted alerting athletic officials to MSU's wrongdoings.

Geoff Petrie slams Blazers' front office

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Geoff Petrie marked his departure from the Portland Trail Blazers with criticism of the team's front office and praise for the city itself.

But the man obtained Thursday as a result of the trade that sent Petrie to Atlanta, Maurice Lucas, said he's "honored" he was selected.

Bill Walton, the anchor in what has become a formidable Blazer front line, called it "probably the biggest move the Blazers have ever made in terms of personnel."

Portland sent Petrie and Steve Hawes to Atlanta in exchange for the number two pick in the National Basketball Association dispersal draft of players from the defunct American Basketball Association.

The Blazers picked Lucas and then tabbed former prep sensation Moses Malone as their own selection three choices later.

Petrie, the Blazers' top draft pick in the team's first year of existence in 1970, had parting shots for team personnel director Stu Inman and owner Larry Weinberg of Los Angeles.

He called Inman "a real flim flam man." "I find him a very hard person to deal with," Petrie said. "He's a very cold and calculating person on the inside, but outside he's very warm and acts like he's interested in you. I can see why he's a great salesman."

Petrie's contract with the Blazers had expired and talks had bogged down. He was expected to play out his option this season. He said Weinberg was trying to run the Blazer operation even though he knows little about professional basketball.

But he said he'll take mostly pleasant memories with him to Atlanta. "My first year here was great," he said of Portland. "It was a new city, a new team and we did a lot better than anyone thought we would."

"Making rookie of the year, being a starter in the All-Star Game and winning the (NBA) one-on-one competition were all thrills."

"I feel bad about leaving Portland," he said. "I always had the feeling here that people enjoyed the way I played. And I enjoyed playing for them."

Lucas, a 6-foot-9, 218-pounder who can play either center or forward, was second in the Kentucky teammate Artis Gilmore in rebounding in the ABA last season.

"I'm rather honored that the Trail Blazers traded certain people for me," he said Thursday.

He said he had talked with Portland coach Jack Ramsay and had learned he would be playing forward and backup center behind Walton.

The former Marquette star is considered a good shooter and excellent rebounder with a quick outlet pass. The Blazers already have the practitioner of the quickest outlet pass in the league in Walton.

Lucas, like Walton, is a vegetarian. Walton said the trades would help the Blazers.

"The two players we picked up are two of the best young ballplayers around," Walton said. "I'm looking forward to them being on the team."

Kroc receives public lashing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Multimillionaire Ray Kroc's checkbook saved the Padres from leaving town but apparently can't buy love and happiness—for more than 2½ years, anyway.

The diminutive owner of McDonald's hamburgers faced mounting criticism from several sides Friday as his National League baseball team wandered in the bottom half of the West Division.

wants in a hurry." Spending money, said Murphy, is what the Padres need to do in a hurry.

British pull tank upset

OSLO, Norway (AP) — John Edwin Cotton, 15, won Britain's first ever gold medal in the European Junior Swimming and Diving Championships Friday by pulling off an upset victory in the boys' 200 meters individual medley in 2:16.41.

Cotton made his race in the butterfly and backstroke legs for a 1.8 seconds halfway lead over Krasimir Tumanov of Bulgaria. Cotton won by a marginal 0.20 seconds over Tomanov, with pre-race favorite Tomasz Wolski of Poland third.

Apart from Cotton's surprise win, the most outstanding feature of the day was the East German domination in the girls' swimming events. They have won all four girls' finals so far and are well underway to their declared goal of winning all the girls' events in these championships.

East German Petra Priemer, 15, became the first double gold medal winner of these championships. In the morning she came back from second place halfway in the 200 meters medley to win ahead of teammate Danila Beier. Miss Priemer also won the 100-meter freestyle final.

Miss Priemer was second behind Kornelia Ender, who is not competing here, in the Olympic 100 meters freestyle.

In boys' competition, Victor Kuznetsov of the Soviet Union won the 100-meter backstroke, Goez Felgen-traeger of West Germany took 200-meter breaststroke and Italy's Fabio Bracaglia won the 400 freestyle.

West Germany's Will Wulbeck finished second to Britain's Steve Overtt in the 800-meter, clocking 1:46.95.

David Jenkins of Britain stormed to victory ahead of Poland's Richard Podlas in the 400 meters in 46.34 seconds.

AS THE firing of Manager John McNamara was reportedly being considered, newspaper columnists demanded that Kroc instead pay more of his reported $800 million to buy quality players.

And Kroc was taking a public thrashing instead of a public relations coup with a recent announcement that the Padres were arranging to buy the San Diego Mariners, thus saving the World Hockey Association team from folding.

"There's no way we can go to Mr. Kroc and say, 'Let's do it,' knowing we would lose at least $600,000," said Buzzie Bavasi, president of the Padres. He said rental terms of the San Diego Sports Arena were too stiff.

CITY ATTY. John Witt said Thursday that Kroc appeared to be using the Mariners "to sweeten the pot for the stadium lease with the Padres." Bavasi denied it.

An attempt to renegotiate the lease with lower payments has been made by the Padres, and Sports Editor Joe Stein wrote in the San Diego Evening Tribune: "This debt that Kroc assumed goes beyond dollars and cents—it involves honor."

The Padres expected 750,000 fans in Kroc's first season as owner in 1974 but instead 1,075,399 turned out. Wrote Stein: "Those figures have been steadily rising, making the Padres a great investment."

ANOTHER WRITER, Bill Weurding, said Kroc must buy hitters to make the Padres a contender, saying the club should be "spending money instead of counting it."

Sports Editor Jack Murphy of the San Diego Union wrote that "Kroc is 74, he is rich beyond imagination, he is accustomed to getting what he

NL owners to meet in private session

NEW YORK (AP) — A private meeting of National League club owners has been arranged by M. Donald Grant of the New York Mets and August A. Busch of the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Times reported in its Friday editions.

The private session will be Wednesday, a day before all 24 club owners are scheduled to meet with baseball officials will be to scrutinize the work of certain officials and to discuss "what we have been doing wrong," reported Murray Chass of the Times.

"We are meeting, but we were hoping that it would be a secret meeting," said Grant.

Grant and Busch primarily are unhappy with the recently concluded labor agreement with players and the loss of Toronto to the American League. According to Chass, the targets of their displeasure appear to be Charles (Chub) Feeney, the National League president, and John Gaherin, baseball's chief labor negotiator.

The new agreement gives players freedom of movement, subject to certain restrictions, for the first time. Neither Feeney nor Gaherin was available for comment on what could be an attack on their roles.

However, the Times reported that one owner, who asked not to be identified, said the feeling generated by Busch and Grant was not unanimous. "I think like all these meetings, nothing good will happen," the owner said. "What good would it do? We have an agreement and Toronto is in the American League. We can't change that."

Although the labor agreement already has been ratified, some owners in both leagues are still disturbed that their request for another meeting before voting was ignored, the Times said. They felt the agreement was railroaded through.

Chass wrote that Busch was especially vehement in his opposition to the agreement and Grant was strongly in favor of delaying ratification until the terms could be discussed more completely.

Connors top seed in meet

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors, the 1974 winner, was seeded first Friday for the $150,000 U.S. Open Clay Court Tennis Championships opening here Saturday.

Guillermo Villas of Argentina was seeded second and defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain third. Last year's runnerup, Arthur Ashe, Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg and Wimbledon runnerup Iie Nastase are bypassing the Clay Courts.

On Thursday, Leslie Hunt of Australia was chosen No. 1 seed in the women's field, depleted by the absence of defending champion Chris Evert, Evonne Goolagong and Billie Jean King.

Qualifying competition begins Saturday with 32 men and 32 women battling for the last eight spots in the field.

The women are playing for $32,000 in prizes with the championship match scheduled for Sunday afternoon, Aug. 15.

The men, playing for $125,000 in prizes, will play their championship match the following night.

Following the three top seeds are: Raul Ramirez, Eddie Dibbs, Harold Solomon, Jaime Fillol, Brian Gottfried, Onny Parun, Wojtek Fibak, Tom Gorman, Francois Jauffret, Karl Meller, Buster Mottram, Cliff Richey, and Mark Edmondson.

Jet to play for Sweden

WINNIPEG (AP) — Dan Labraaten, a Swedish player signed to play this year with the Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, will play for his home country in the upcoming Canada Cup series.

Jets General Manager Rudy Pilous announced today the stocky Swede will join a number of his countrymen from the Jets in the international tournament.

Labraaten, a 5-foot-9, 175-pound left winger, played last year with a top team in Sweden.

Artis Gilmore faces changes

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Artis Gilmore, the 7-foot-2 basketball center from the now defunct Kentucky Colonels, says he's ready to accept the challenge of the National Basketball Association, although "it's tough to pull up and leave."

Gilmore, the first pick of the Chicago Bulls in the American Basketball Association dispersal draft, logged five years experience with the ABA Colonels.

The 27-year-old former Jacksonville University star said that when he realized he was temporarily "out of basketball" after the Colonels folded, "I talked it over with me wife and we knew we had to be prepared mentally for what would come."

"We could not be concerned about the past, but get ready for all the things that would take place," Gilmore said. "My daughter was already registered for school and course Chicago—the weather is so different—it could have a psychological effect on my wife also."

Gilmore admits he's found living in the semi-southern atmosphere here comfortable. His citizens band radio handle (nickname) is "late sleeper."

Nevertheless, Gilmore says he's ready to take on the likes of Kareem Abdul Jabbar of the Milwaukee Bucks, "although I don't know just yet how I would defend him."

Gilmore said he would "talk to the Chicago Bulls with my lawyer and see what their position is with me," admitting, however, that he sees nothing wrong with the $1.1 million price the Bulls agreed to pay for his services.

"I feel flattered that I have that kind of value on myself. Of course people value their lives a lot more than that, but when it comes down to salaries... I do feel I can respond and I hope we negotiate something I can be comfortable with," Gilmore added.

"The cost of living will be doubled moving to Chicago," Gilmore said. "I feel it's really necessary that I get a satisfactory contract with those people, but I'm not going to argue with them and I'm looking forward to the first negotiating period."

Gilmore said $1.1 million "is not enough money to get rich off of, but then again to a lot of people it would be a great deal of money and it could go a long way with me. But over a period of time maybe I can increase my talents and the value of that figure."

During a television interview Thursday night, Gilmore expressed "my sympathy to the Kentucky Colonels' fans," and said "if the right people had gotten behind the Colonels and helped John Y. and Ellie Brown, the franchise might have survived."

The Browns, owners of the Colonels, decided the NBA's financial requirements for admission to the older league were too steep.

It was determined by the Browns that the Colonels would have to average 17,000 fans per game to break even in the NBA. Last season the team averaged just under 7,000 per game.

Former Kentucky Colonels center Artis Gilmore, who was picked up by the Chicago Bulls of the NBA Thursday, admits it's difficult to pull up roots after five years, but says he's ready for the challenge of the NBA.

Bengals' Kenny handles success

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Success hasn't spoiled Cincinnati quarterback Kenny Anderson. One of his teammates thinks maybe it should — but the Bengals' deadly passer doesn't agree.

"It's just not in his nature to have an 'I'm the one' type of attitude," tight end Bob Trumpy says of the quarterback who had to lead the National Football League in passing for two straight years before he was invited to his first Pro Bowl game.

"He went to a small school and has taken his success very well," Trumpy adds. "He could've really gone on an ego trip, but he didn't. I tell him he's still a rookie."

"He's really down to earth, in fact, too much. Right or wrong, we've begun to encourage him to raise a little hell. If someone does something wrong, like if they get through the pass protection, tell somebody. Be a field general. Be a little bit of an egotist on the football field."

"That's not something that's going to come naturally for Anderson. "Nothing bugs me more," he says, "than to see a quarterback chewing out a lineman after he gets sacked. I saw it happen on national TV last year, this quarterback belittling an offensive lineman."

"If I were the lineman, I'd be damned if I would want to play for him after that."

His teammates take pride in his accomplishments and what he has done for him, and they search for reasons why he has not become as well known as some of the league's other quarterbacks.

"With the career he has already had," says veteran center Bob Johnson, "a lot of quarterbacks would've been household words by now."

"I think we have to win more big games than we have. We play two Monday night games this year that'll help."

Wide receiver Chip Myers believes it's the size of the town he plays in that has to do with his lack of publicity. "You don't have to be a great player to get national press. It's playing in cities like New York, Chicago and Los Angeles where you receive national acclaim."

But Trumpy says: "Forget that. I think we have to win more big games than we have. We play two Monday night games this year that'll help."

Lee coach Jim Acree asks that his players report at 8 a.m. Wednesday for the shoes and socks. Midland High coach Jerry Hopkins says that his players may report between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. Wednesday to be fitted.

theory. I think he's content with just the people who know football recognizing he's good. Maybe there's not that much to tell about Kenny and I think he wants it that way."

Anderson is proud of his statistics which last year showed 3,169 yards and 21 touchdowns.

"I'm like everybody else who likes to see their name in the paper, it's only natural," Anderson admits. "But I don't worry about it. The only statistic that counts is the won-lost record, and until we get to the Super Bowl, I won't be satisfied."

Naber to swim one more year

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Unlike Mark Spitz after the 1972 Olympics, swimmer John Naber says he has no intention of trying to cash in immediately on his status as the winningest American at the 1976 Olympics.

"I've been offered a lot of proposals," said the 20-year-old senior from the University of Southern California. "But I'm telling the offerors to come back in a year. I've still got another year of school left, and if they're interested enough, they'll wait."

Naber, a winner of four gold medals and one silver at Montreal, said he wants to swim competitively for at least one more year.

"I only think one season ahead," he said. "But I don't think there's any way I'll be swimming four years from now."

Noting that his parents are sufficiently affluent to take care of his financial needs for the time being, he said his immediate goal is to promote swimming in the United States, not to make money on endorsements or through other financial opportunities.

"Swimming gets massive television coverage every Olympic year, but that's it," Naber said. "Once every four years just isn't good enough."

Still, Naber's friends and admirers here plan to honor him Saturday. A San Mateo County Sheriff's helicopter will deliver him to festivities at Burgess Park here.

Slightly embarrassed by all the attention, Naber said, "I just don't think I deserve something like this."

"I don't think I'm any more deserving of a Day this year than I was last. And I know I didn't deserve one last year."

"What happened (in the Olympic Games) was just the result of steady improvement."

Naber broke world records in both the 100 and 200 backstrokes, and he was a member of two relay teams that broke world records.

Staubach revisits LA

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach will lead the Cowboys against the Los Angeles Rams tonight at the Coliseum, a place where he's had some good times and some bad times.

In the 1972 edition of the exhibition meeting with the Rams here, Staubach tried to barrel his way over Los Angeles linebacker Marlin McKeever. The Cowboy quarterback wound up sidelined with the only serious injury of his career, a separated shoulder.

Then in last year's exhibition match against the Rams, Staubach saw Los Angeles roll to a 35-7 victory.

But he and the Cowboys got revenge when it counted.

Staubach, playing one of his finest games, completed 16 of 26 passes for 220 yards and four touchdowns in the Cowboys' 37-7 drubbing of the Rams in the NFC championship game last season.

Staubach, 34 and heading into his eighth season with Dallas, may have slowed a step for this year's exhibition affair with Los Angeles, but he said he's wiser.

"I'm a passer," said the Cowboys' artful dodger, "but running is part of my total game and I have confidence in it."

"But I'm a little smarter now. I'll dive to the ground after I've gotten a first down in some instances."

Looking back on the injury he suffered four years ago, Staubach said, "I was wearing these flimsy, dinky shoulder pads and it was stupid for me to have them because I do run."

"I haven't been hurt badly since then, but now I'm wearing specially built shoulder pads. They're bigger and can absorb more hits."

"Last year I began to benefit from my experience," he continued. "Hopefully, it's going to help me even more."

Staubach said he'd learned that his way wasn't always the best way.

"I've always had a strong belief in myself physically to get things done," he said. "I was always going to do it my way whether it was to run or throw. But of course I've learned that isn't the right way."

"A few years ago, if I didn't see something I liked, I just tried to shove the ball in there, or I took off running," he explained. "I believed I could do anything. I could at times, but other times I was hurting the team. Now I'm more selective."

Pitt must not fear luck of Charley Hunt

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Charley Hunt was cut from his first two National Football League teams and his third employer folded with the rest of the World Football League.

With that kind of luck, he's a little amazed he's still wearing a Pittsburgh Steeler uniform.

"It's like a miracle," he said. "I believe God must be looking out for me. I'm just happy to be in the league. But imagine, being with the champions."

Hunt, who has a shot at finding permanent work as a linebacker, even has half an exhibition game under his belt.

But his story begins in 1973 when he was drafted 10th by San Francisco from Florida State. He made the 49ers and played eight games, mostly on special teams. But the next year, he was dropped on the last cut.

"It was a little late to catch on with someone else," he said. "I just did a lot of praying."

Last year he had a tryout with New Orleans but pulled a muscle. Too far behind when he recovered, he had to settle for a season with the Jacksonville team in the WFL before it folded.

But Hunt has a friend and manager who sold Pittsburgh on giving him a chance.

"Pittsburgh doesn't go for big linebackers," says Ivery Black, who represents 20 NFL players including Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

"They want three things from them — quickness, toughness and the ability to think. They want their linebackers to cover the pass like defensive backs and play the run like linemen. And their coverage is so complicated that they do things other teams don't even try to do," said Black.

He called Steeler scout Bill Nunn in April after Hunt had diligently followed an off-season training program Black devised.

"I felt Charley had the speed and toughness to fit in and I know he's got a pretty good brain, too. I thought he could do the job. And I knew Andy Russell was talking about retiring and they might need a linebacker."
