NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin. ...Political straws which show which way the wind blows, appearing out of the Aug. 24 election, brought about two important legislative events last week in the special session.

First, the senate passed by an overwhelming vote, Senator Clint Small's bill defining an open saloon as any place where liquor is sold to be drunk on or adjacent to the premises. The senate has heretofore been regarded as the more moist of the two houses; but the very close vote on repeal and the very large territory represented by the dry sentiment, has had its effect on the upper body.

Second, the house recommitted to committee the Calvert-Hoffheinz bill providing old age pensions, with instructions to strike out its provision imposing a tax on domino tables. This provision was written so that the house could consider and add from the floor all manner of taxes to finance the pensions. But the fear of many members that they might be charged with opposition to pensions if tax measures for which they felt they could not vote were added to the bill caused the reversal of procedure. It now appears the house is determined to pass a bill ordering pensions paid and then enact as separate laws, the tax-raising bills necessary to finance the pensions. Meanwhile, the senate indicated it may take a hand by writing its own revenue-raising laws, when opinions as to the legality of the senate originating revenue measures for this purpose were asked of the attorney general.

A second special session, at a cost of about $100,000, will be necessary, in the belief of most members of both houses. The pension matter is likely to be long drawn out. Two distinct schools of thought have developed. One wants to pay a pension to everybody who is 65 years old, without other restrictions, apparently simply as a matter of reward for attaining this ripe old age. Senator Roy Sandeford of Belton heads this group, with a bill providing a 3 per cent sales tax to raise the $40,000,000 it would require. The bill is said to have been written by Ex-Gov. Jim Ferguson, who is here professionally lobbying for a sales tax. The senate is against a sales tax, and barring a miracle, will not pass one.

The other school of thought would pay pensions as charity only to old persons who are indigent and without relatives to whom they could lawfully look for aid. Such a bill following the restrictions laid down by most other states, would require about $10,000,000 a year, experts here figure. This is most likely the form the law finally enacted will take.

Probably the largest gathering of the political clans seen this year in Texas will occur in Austin Monday, Oct. 7, when Jesse Jones of Houston, who has made an outstanding record as chairman of the RFC board, will visit Austin to participate in ceremonies connected with the unveiling of his portrait in the senate chamber. Jones will be the guest of Gov. Allred, and an Austin committee will entertain him with a dance and reception. Representatives from every section of Texas will be on hand.

The state highway commission broke all records for the past four years when it let approximately $1,600,000 worth of road building contracts here Sept. 24. With the letting this month of an additional $2,800,000 now ready about one-seventh of the total of $32,000,000 of highway construction expected to be finished by July 1, 1936, will be under con-

Loraine Bulldogs Play Roscoe Fri.

Coach Ed Williams' Bulldogs have a hard assignment this week end when they engage the Roscoe Plowboys in a conference football game on the latter's grid. The game is scheduled to start at 3:30.

The Bulldogs in their first conference game two weeks ago with Roby showed a great deal more strength than was expected and tied the game 6 all. Roby, you know, was champion of the district last year. Coach Williams has been putting his charges through some hard training this week and they are in good condition to meet the foe.

The Roscoe Plowboys are expecting to win the district title this year. So far they have not played a conference game this year and it will be up to the Bulldogs to blast their hopes from the jump.

It will be a good game and every football fan in these parts should journey to Roscoe Friday afternoon to see the melee.

CHAMPION SCHOOL OPENED MONDAY

The South Champion school opened Monday morning of this week with an enrollment of 70. Others are expected to enroll shortly. Rev. J. E. Harrell, pastor of the Methodist Church at Roscoe, delivered the opening address.

The following program was rendered at the opening exercises. Song—Miss Bernice Hawkins. Address—Rev. J. E. Harrell. Piano Solo—Miss Leta Atkins. Five teachers have been employed for the school, headed by David Miller as principal. The other teachers are B. D. Smith, Mrs. Russell Cope, Mrs. Lucille Cope, and Miss Leta Atkins.

EAST SIDE SINGERS TO MEET AT PLEASANT VALLEY

The East Side Singing convention is to be held at Pleasant Valley Sunday, Oct. 6, according to announcement made this week. Singing is to start at 11 A. M. and will continue through the day.

All lovers of singing are invited to attend this convention. Thousands of laborers will be steadily employed for the next eight months on this gigantic road building program.

Highway commissioners and other public officers learned some new facts about Comal county when they visited New Braunfels recently to attend the dedication of a new $200,000 concrete bridge over the Guadalupe river. County Judge B. W. Klingeman told them the county had the smallest percentage of delinquent taxes in the state. He also reminded them Comal was the first county in Texas ever to impose a tax for public education. The tax was declared unconstitutional at that time, but county officials collected it anyway, to provide free public schools.

The report of Rep. Augustin Celaya's $1,000 oil investigation committee filed in the house last week, as a predicate for an additional appropriation to continue the probe, brought scarcely a ripple of excitement. The committee used its material for newspaper headlines thruout the summer and the rehashed material, already published, wasn't very exciting. Political observers here were wondering whether Rep. Sidney Latham of Longview, the committee's chief cross-examiner, planned to announce as a candidate for railroad commissioner against Chairman E. O. Thompson, or whether the material gathered by the committee would be used in another attempt to create a separate oil and gas commission. All such attempts have failed in the past.

Enrollment In School Increases

Enrollment in the Loraine Public Schools increased a total of 17 pupils during the first month. Enrollment in the grade school at the beginning of school was 226, and at the end of the month was 239. In the high school the enrollment picked up from 125 to 129. Enrollment in the grade school this year at the end of the first month was fifteen more than the same period last year, and in high school 20 more had enrolled. The average daily attendance the first month in the entire school was 340.

BAPTIST NOTES

Sunday School at ten A. M. Our superintendent, Mr. Bob George, is anxious to build up a stronger school, so let's help him every way possible. Come to Sunday School next Sunday and bring someone with you.

Rev. Hardin attended the Pastor's Retreat held with the Lamesa Church last week. He reports that they had a great time discussing certain Scriptural Truths and heard some very fine sermons.

Our Pastor's text Sunday morning was found in the 1st chapter of Leviticus. He read the 1st eleven verses and discussed the four distinct offerings mentioned in the Old Testament. The burnt offering, the Meat, the Peace, and the Sin Offerings. At the evening hour his text was found in 1st Timothy, 1st Ch. fifteenth verse.

Rev. Hardin attended the B.T.U. Associational rally at Westbrook Sunday afternoon and gave the Inspirational Address.

The B. Y. P. U. will meet at the Church at 6:30 instead of 7 o'clock, and the preaching service at 7:30 P. M. We urge all members to observe this change and be on time.

We appreciate and welcome visitors in all our services.

WEEKLY COTTON REPORT

For the past four weeks the weekly grade and staple reports for Texas have shown changes toward shorter staple lengths each succeeding week. This result is evident from smaller proportions of the longer lengths which are currently received from the various districts as well as from the large proportions of cotton shorter than 7/8 inch now being received from District 3 (the Red Lands and Plains), District 5 (the Cross Timbers), and District 8 (the Sandy Coastal Plains). The predominating staple length for cotton classed to date is 15-16 inch which represent about 50 per cent of the crop. About 22 per cent of the crop this season to date is 7/8 inch, while nearly 7 per cent is shorter than 7/8 inch. Cotton with staple 1 inch or longer constitutes about 22 percent of the crop.

The cotton classed during the past week is of lower average grade than cotton classed in former weeks this season. For the season to date, approximately 50 per cent of the cotton classed is Middling, 18 per cent is Strict Middling, and 24 per cent is Strict Low Middling (White and Extra White). About 8 per cent is Middling Spotted and Strict Middling Spotted.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Minnie Fisher Cunningham Service Editor

Turnips, lettuce, carrots, beets and kale are gracing the fall gardens of the Lamb county 4-H girls' club garden demonstrators.

From their earlier gardens, these girls have canned surplus and even sold some fresh vegetables. Their families have cooperated with them by arranging shelving upon which to store the canned goods. One girl's father has even dug a new cellar.

Mustard, tendergreens, tomatoes, potatoes, and collards are now ready for use in the fall garden of Mrs. B. F. Newson of the Rosedale Home Demonstration Club in Jefferson county.

By the end of August, Dorothy White, Victoria county 4-H club girl, had cleaned off the summer garden plot, and had the ground plowed, manured and pulverized ready for fall garden planting.

In a hotbed covered with canvas for protection against the heat and dry winds, she had tomato and lettuce plants to be transplanted when the rain came.

Just "for luck" in case it did rain, Theresa Byrd, Dallas county 4-H garden demonstrator, risked some garden seed in late August. And rain it did. So she now has 500 feet of pinto beans, 400 feet of blackeyed peas, 500 feet of sweet corn and 100 feet of crowder peas. Carrots, turnips, lettuce, beets, and potatoes are coming right along too.

North, south, east, west, Texas home demonstration club garden demonstrators are proving every day that home gardens can be successfully managed in every part of the State. Their families are profiting from their labors, but not their families alone. The whole State is learning from these demonstrations.

COTTON REPORT

The census report as prepared by Ed Wilson for the Department of Commerce shows that there were 15 bales of cotton ginned in Mitchell County from the crop of 1935, prior to September 16, as compared with 4,061 bales ginned to September 16, crop of 1934.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Richey left Tuesday for Ballinger to be at the bedside of Mrs. Richey's sister who is seriously ill.

157 BALES GINNED HERE THIS SEASON

The four gins in Loraine had ginned a total of 157 bales of cotton this season including Wednesday of this week.

The crop is just now beginning to move and within the next week or two the rush will be on in full blast. There were 2030 bales ginned up to this same date last year.

R. A. Edwards and son Roy G. and Doris Meadows went to Abilene Wednesday where Roy G. and Doris had dental work done.

SCHOOL AUTHORITIES CONSIDER JOINING SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION

Superintendent Clyde Bennett announced this week that the school authorities are considering making application for membership in the Southern Association of High Schools and Secondary Colleges. Membership in the association is an honor and a great distinction for the school. Schools that hold membership in the association must meet a AA standard and the Loraine school is doing that kind of work. Very few schools in Texas meet the requirements for membership in the association.

WEEKLY HEALTH LETTER

Austin, Texas Oct 2.—William McCraw, Attorney General, will be one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the Texas Public Health Association to be held in Waco, October 16-18. Other speakers of state-wide and national reputation in their respective fields will also be present, according to the president, Dr. B. E. Pickett.

Each year the Texas Public Health Association holds a meeting or short school that is attended by all who are interested in health work in Texas. Its membership is composed of doctors, nurses, sanitarians, and others. Many towns and counties send their representatives in order that they may become familiar with the trends in public health as it affects their communities and the State.

Some of the subjects that will be discussed during the meeting are mental hygiene, nursing service to schools and communities, immunization of children, control of communicable diseases, laboratory tests for disease as well as testing of water and milk, sanitation and sewage supplies.

The meeting this year is of great importance as many health features enter into the Social Security Bill; these will affect the entire State when money with which to carry it out is appropriated. The State-wide malaria and sanitation program will be described and other subjects of timely interest will be given.

In addition to the Attorney General, other speakers on the program include Dr. W. K. Sharp, Jr., U. S. Public Health Service; Dr. H. R. Dudgeon, President elect of the State Medical Association; Senator J. W. E. H. Beek; Major A. E. Wood, Texas Planning Board; Dr. E. W. Wright, Chairman State Board of Health; D. E. Cole, State Park Board; Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer; and many others.

Citizens of Loraine and surrounding community are to honor Congressman George H. Mahon with a banquet at the high school cafeteria Monday night of next week. Following the banquet Mr. Mahon will deliver an address in the high school auditorium.

The program at the banquet will include music and special numbers from the band and others of the community and will be an affair to be enjoyed by everyone.

Every man and woman in the community is invited to attend the banquet if they desire to do so. Everyone is especially urged to hear Mr. Mahon's address in the auditorium which will follow the banquet. The price of a plate at the banquet is 35 cents and those who desire to attend are asked to leave their reservation with some Loraine business man not later than Saturday of this week so that preparations can be made to take care of everyone. Cards have been mailed to those who get their mail on a Loraine route and those who get them and desire to attend are asked to mail the return card as early as possible. People in this territory who do not get their mail on a Loraine route should see some business man here and make reservations.

The committee in charge of arrangements is very anxious that a large number of people attend the banquet in honor of one of our native sons who has made a wonderful record for himself. Let's honor him with our attendance at the banquet and the following Monday night, October 7, at 7:30 o'clock.

BAUMAN NEWS

The farmers of this community have started harvesting their cotton. The crops are fine this year. Most of the farmers will make more cotton than they are allowed to gin without paying tax.

The Bauman School Bus is now in operation, with Mr. Ab Black of Loraine the driver. The bus will bring pupils to Bauman School and transport the high school pupils to Loraine. Those eligible to ride the bus should get in touch with the driver or the school authorities.

Sunday School was well attended Sunday. There were quite a few in Bauman that are not attending Sunday School anywhere yet. You have a cordial invitation to come to Bethel Sunday School and Church Services at all times.

Mr. A. R. Miles has improved the looks of his store by building a solid rock foundation around it. School is progressing nicely with a good attendance. One new pupil was enrolled this week.

On Thursday and Friday next week the school will sponsor a Ping Pong tournament for the school pupils. Prizes will be given the winners in girl's singles and doubles also boy's singles and doubles. Interest is running high among the pupils in anticipation of the tournament. The children are practicing daily.

Quite a few from Bauman community went to the Circus at Colorado Monday afternoon and night.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Fine New Jail Newspaper Prestige Easy to Buy Who Is the Man?

Not much Ethiopian news. You could hardly expect it with our own white-black prize-fighting war competing. Whatever happens, Ethiopian tribesmen will benefit. The emperor, Haile Selassie, is working on reforms, doing away with abuses that Mussolini pointed out and promised to cure. He opened a substantial concrete jail outside of Addis Ababa to replace the old jail. There, according to Mr. von Wiegand's cablegram to Universal Service, "live prisoners sometimes remained chained to those who had died for days."

Newspapers in Pennsylvania, 265 of them, have celebrated "press prestige" this week. Governor Earle tells the editors, presumably shivering with delight and surprise, about "the important part that newspapers play in the lives of our people." It is as important as the part played by the people's eyes and ears, and might be taken for granted by now. Napoleon knew about it when he said that, if he allowed freedom of the press, his power would not last six weeks. Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini could make speeches about it.

The newspaper is a mirror in which the public sees itself, the newspaper's owner and the civilization of the moment. Interesting reflections of that civilization may appear soon in dispatches from Ethiopia and from London in case Mussolini should send his first 500 airplanes in the direction of Buckingham palace, the house of commons, Downing street and the Bank of England, with the message: "What do you think of explosive and mustard gas sanctions?"

The pathetic thing in Journalism, as in politics, is the lack of names that the people know. Millions of Americans read newspapers with no faintest conception as to the character of the man whose newspaper they read. It might be called "anonymous nonentity." There are exceptions.

The most important and influential newspaper by far, in proportion to circulation, is the so-called "country newspaper," smaller dailies and weeklies.

Their readers know who runs them, and those readers, not living in city apartments, with a can opener, buy everything from the paint on the roof to the cement in the cellar floor, from the piano and radio in the sitting room to the car in the garage.

Berlin says the Nazi party plans, forcibly, to buy out all Jewish firms and businesses, suggesting that "ambitious Aryan business men will get great bargains." One idea is to allow "Aryan" employees to take over Jewish businesses with government backing. They might take it over, but what about running it? Anybody may buy a business; making it pay is another job.

The Republican committee will have "an important meeting" now, a really big, first-class, "bang-up" meeting in December, to put "pep" into the 1936 campaign.

The question is, "Who is your man?" Americans want to yell for somebody.

They have not been trained to yell for an idea.

Who is your man? What is his name?

Amusing situation in Europe: England sends her gigantic fleet to the Mediterranean, heaviest dreadnaughts, submarines, airships; parks them around the rock of Gibraltar and at the entrance of the Suez canal; sends additional soldiers to the Island of Malta.

Mussolini puts his convenient island, off the coast of Greece, in a state of siege, with submarines, airplanes, cutting the Mediterranean in two, isolating the big English fleet in the western end.

Then England, having shown an ardent desire to fight Italy, sends official word that she really hadn't any war with Italy in mind, her feelings were hurt by the Italian newspapers. That is why she sent her fleet.

DeWolf Hopper is dead at seventy-seven, too soon. He worked to the last, talked over the radio in the afternoon, and was dead at 6:30 next morning. He should find a good seat reserved for him in the entertainment that lasts forever, in a better world. He spent his life working to make people smile and forget their sorrows.

At Council Bluffs, Iowa, John Statter, seventy-one, and at present, "on relief," sits in his one-room "shack," covered with his paper, wondering what he will do this winter with twin daughters, that his twenty-four-year-old wife added to the earth's population ten days ago. He married her when she was seventeen and he sixty-four.

League of Nations Council, Still Hoping for Peace, Moves to Curb Italy—American Legion Condemns All Un-American Isms.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

ITALY having rejected the peace plan proposed by the League of Nations committee of five, and Ethiopia having accepted it, the committee reported to the league council that the league council that its efforts to solve the problem were futile. The council thereupon held a public meeting and adopted unanimously the recommendation of its president, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu of Argentina, that it proceed under article 15 of the covenant, drafting a report and recommendations for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio.

As they did once before, the Italian delegates walked out of the meeting, and a spokesman explained that this was because they "would not sit at the same table with Ethiopia." With other prominent Fascists, the Italian representatives repaired to the lobby bar, ordered drinks and rather ostentatiously consumed them and marched out.

In a secret session the council drafted its report and framed its recommendations; but it also asked the committee of five to reconstitute itself so it would be ready to take advantage of any opportunity for mediation that offered in the near future.

A feature of the council's session was an address by Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs. Conversations in Rome between British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Mussolini had led some to think Great Britain was weakening, but Eden announced his government was "steadfastly determined to abide by its policy" as previously declared. He said in part:

"In addressing my colleagues at the council on September 4 I expressed the view that it was our duty to use the machinery of the league that lay to our hands.

"Such is still my view. I therefore support without qualification the proposal of the president of the council, since we are now working under article XV, that the council should draw up a report of the recommendations provided for in paragraph IV of that article.

"So long as the council is engaged in drawing up a report of the recommendation the work of conciliation can continue and it is clear that no opportunity for such conciliation within the terms of the covenant should be missed."

Eden's attitude was supported by Peter Munch of Denmark and Maxim Litvinov of Russia.

On the whole, prospects for settlement of the African affair were very dim. It was reported that Mussolini had said to Count Charles de Chamberlain, French ambassador to Rome: "I will invade Ethiopia on the date I fixed a month ago."

Emperor Haile Selassie wired the league requesting that in view of the "increasingly provocative attitude of Italy" neutral observers be dispatched to Ethiopia to establish responsibility in case a clash occurs.

Great Britain informed Italy that her tremendous naval concentration in the Mediterranean was not ordered with any aggressive motive but because of the violent anti-English campaign carried on by the Fascist press of Italy. The massing of the British warships at Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and the Suez canal continued, and Italy responded by rearranging her naval dispositions.

One result of the supposedly improved relations between England and Italy was the cancellation of the sailing of 10,000 more Italian troops to Libya, which colony borders on Egypt.

PREPARING for the imminent probability of war between Italy and Ethiopia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull established an office of arms and munitions control to carry out the provisions of the neutrality act and direct federal control of the munitions traffic.

The office is under the direction of R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state. Joseph C. Green is chief of the office and has as his assistant Charles W. Yost.

On recommendation of the board President Roosevelt proclaimed that hereafter manufacturers, importers and exporters of six categories of war implements must obtain licenses for exports and imports. The articles named comprise only weapons and other articles used in actual combat such as guns, war vessels, military aircraft and poison gas.

Secretary Roper told reporters that the munitions control board is studying the question of whether certain raw materials should also be classed with munitions.

AMERICAN Legionnaires in convention in St. Louis adopted with shouts of approval a resolution for active opposition to "nazi-ism, fascism, communism and other isms contrary to the principles enshrined in the Constitution." Still cheering, the delegates followed that up by asking the withdrawal of United States recognition of soviet Russia. The veterans commended recent legislation for national defense and called for a larger army, continuation of the officers' training camps, the C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. in schools, and for a navy equal to any in the world. They asked all nations to work for world peace, and approved the neutrality resolution of the last congress.

Cleveland, Ohio, was awarded the 1936 annual convention after four ballots. The national American Legion band championship was won by the Chicago Board of Trade post musicians. Franklin post was second, Omaha third, and Mineral Springs, Texas, fourth.

At their final session the veterans elected J. Ray Murphy of Ida Grove, Iowa, national commander, and passed a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus. Vice commanders chosen were: Raymond A. Gales of Virginia, W. E. Whitlock of South Carolina, Whitney Godwin of Florida, Oscar Worthington of Idaho, Lou Probst of Wyoming.

Mrs. Melville Muckelstone of Chicago was elected president of the American Legion auxiliary.

SOFT coal miners were victorious in the negotiations for a new wage agreement, and resumption of work in the mines was promised for October 1. The men were out on strike for eight days. Operators yielded to the union demands when they learned that relief officials would aid the strikers.

AUBREY WILLIAMS, first assistant to Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, said in an interview that the unemployment problem will not be solved by a business pick-up unless industry "shares increased business with the workers." He asserted that the present gain in business has put few more people to work, and explained this fact by attributing it primarily to increased efficiency which permits employers to produce more goods than before with fewer employees.

Williams said there had been a drop in the number of people on relief, but he attributed this largely to a "hard-boiled" policy under which the rolls were combed of ineligible.

"As fast as they go from relief to jobs, we get as many new ones on relief who have exhausted their savings," he asserted. "We have become pretty darned hard-bull on relief."

"Even the National Industrial Conference board says there is more unemployment now than a year ago," he continued. "Business absorbs new business without increasing employment. They get a dividend out of it, but no new jobs are given. We are not feeling any benefit as far as most of our clients are concerned."

By executive order the President added $800,000,000 to the sum which Harry Hopkins has to spend as PWA administrator, making the total at his command $1,375,000,000.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT cleaned up most of the official business on his desk and started on his vacation trip to San Diego, whence he will return through the Panama canal. Mrs. Roosevelt and a large party of officials accompanied him on the special train to the coast. At the last minute the President decided to speak to the mid-west farmers, and this address was delivered Saturday at Fremont, Neb. The program called for a set speech at Boulder dam, another in the Hollywood bowl at Los Angeles, and one at San Diego. In addition the Chief Executive talked to the gathered crowds at many of the operating stops made by the train.

REPUBLICAN national committee men met in Washington and began the serious preparation of the Presidential campaign. It was decided unanimously that the party efforts in the western states should be most vigorous and should begin immediately. Headquarters will soon be opened in Chicago with National Committee man Harrison Spangler of Iowa in charge, and funds were allocated for its expenses.

The committee did not discuss candidates or the selection of a convention city. The latter will not be chosen until the winter meeting. At present Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City are the leading contenders, with the last named in good position because of its new air conditioned convention hall.

Rumors that the Republicans would attempt to hold their convention after the Democratic convention next summer were discounted for the reason that the Democratic gathering will be merely a ratification meeting for the renomination of President Roosevelt, which can be held any time next summer or fall, whereas the Republicans wish to get their campaign under way early next summer.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON will soon be out of a job again, for on October 15 he retires from the position of works progress administrator for New York city. This is in accordance with a previous agreement with President Roosevelt. He is to be succeeded by Victor F. Ridder, publisher of the German language newspaper New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold and the New York Journal of Commerce.

THOUSANDS of Catholics, from high prelates to lowly laymen, gathered in Cleveland for the seventh national Eucharistic congress. The most spectacular event of the week was the midnight pontifical low mass celebrated in the stadium by the light of a myriad of tapers. Nearly 150,000 devout men and women knelt silently in the dimness as Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, performed the rite. Later the stadium was again filled for the reception of the benediction of Pope Pius XI, which was broadcast from Castel Gondolfo, Italy.

NORTH CHINA is due for another dose of Japanese medicine, according to a statement by Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese forces there. He said the Japanese army aims to "extend relief at and to promote the welfare and happiness of the Chinese masses," and declared the army's policy is based on these points:

First—A thorough removal of anti-Manchukuo and anti-Japanese elements from north China is necessary.

Second—In order to extend relief to the masses in north China, the finances of this area must be removed from the control of the Nanking government.

Third—Sovietization must be prevented.

REICHSBISHOP LUDWIG MUELLER and his Christian church administration in Germany are about to be abandoned by Hitler and the government. A new church directorate will be established and a new national synod will be summoned. In this way the reichsfuehrer hopes to settle the bitter quarrel that has been raging among the Protestants of Germany. The plan was announced by Hans Kerrl, minister for church affairs, through his commissar, Doctor Stahn, to the Prussian confessional synod meeting in Berlin. Probably Bishop Mueller's successor will be Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, who was elected reichsbishop by the Orthodox protestant clergy two years ago and forced to resign by the government.

MEN and women from all ranks of life assembled in the Yankee stadium in New York, paying nearly $1,000,000 for their seats, and saw Joe Louis, Detroit negro, knock out Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, in the fourth round. The chocolate colored boxer was invincible, and Max was terribly outclassed. Louis plans to spend the winter and spring fighting in South America and Europe, after which he hopes to have a chance to show what he can do against the present titleholder, Jim Braddock. Judging by his past performances, he can do plenty.

LIEUT. FELIX WAITKUS, young Chicago and Wisconsin aviator, made a gallant effort to fly solo and nonstop from New York to Kaunas, Lithuania, and failed, though he did get safely across the Atlantic ocean. Lost in fog and tired out, he made a forced landing on a rough field near Ballinrobe, Ireland. The machine was badly damaged but Waitkus was uninjured.

"I had been flying blind for a long time," he asserted. "I had had visibility all over the Atlantic and when I reached the coast I ran into storms and fog."

"I tried at first to make, Baldonnell airdrome near Dublin and then headed for the Ballinrobe drome, but I couldn't find it. I was delighted to see land, for I was feeling very tired and my stock of gasoline was getting a bit low."

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, retiring chief of staff, in his final report recommended a five-year plan for making the American army into an instrument of speed, fighting ability and destructive power unsurpassed elsewhere. Quality rather than quantity, he said, was needed, and he proposed that all implements of war be modernized and that the technical training of the officers be intensified. He said: "Beyond all doubt, Gen. MacArthur may major war of the future will see every belligerent nation highly organized for the single-purpose of victory, the attainment of which will require integration and intensification of individual and collective effort."

"But it will be a nation at war rather than a nation in arms. Of this vast machine the fighting forces will be only the cutting edge; their mandatory characteristics will be speed in movement, power in fire and shock action, and the utmost in professional skill and leadership."

"Their armaments will necessarily be of the most efficient types obtainable and the transportation, supply and maintenance systems supporting them will be required to function perfectly and continuously. Economic and industrial resources will have to insure the adequacy of munitions supply and the sustenance of the whole civil population. In these latter fields the great proportion of the employable population will find its war duty."

ISAIAH PORTRAYING THE SUFFERING SERVANT

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 53:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed. Isaiah 53:5.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Best Promise.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Isaiah Foretells Jesus' Coming.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Salvation Cost.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Suffering Savior.

The prophecy of Isaiah is the grand center of the Old Testament. It pictures the Servant of Jehovah with great wisdom gloriously executing the divine purpose of redemption at the cost of great suffering.

1. The Servant's Triumph (Is. 52: 13-15). The Servant here means the coming Messiah (42:1).

1. His wisdom (v. 13). He will deal prudently, for his name is Counselor (9:6). He was filled with the spirit of wisdom and understanding (11:2).

2. He shall be exalted and extolled (v. 13). Being the mighty God, even Immanuel, Jehovah has highly exalted him (Phil. 2:9).

3. The appearance of the Servant (v. 14). Because of his marred visage, the Jews, who looked for outward signs of royalty and worldly splendor, were not attracted to him.

4. The issue of his ministry (v. 15). In his sprinkling of many nations he is revealed as the great High Priest, sprinkling the nations with his blood and cleansing them from their sins.

11. The Servant Despised and Rejected (53:1-3).

1. The unbelief of the Jews (v. 1). They despised the words of the prophet and failed to recognize the hand of the Lord in the miracles he wrought.

2. The origin of the Servant (v. 2). He sprang out of a stump of Judahism. The sad condition of the people at that time is expressed by "dry corn." He came among his own and they apprehended him not.

3. A man of sorrows (v. 3). As the Sin-bearer of the world he suffered untold sorrows. The primary cause of his grief was their contemptuous rejection of him.

III. The Vicarious Suffering of the Servant (53:4-6).

1. His griefs and sorrows were ours. Though innocent, he was loaded down with disease and pain; not his, but ours. This awful suffering was looked upon by the world as occasioned by sin.

2. He was beaten for us (v. 5). That which was our due was meted out to him. Notice the four significant words: "wounded," "bruised," "despised," "stripes." The word "our" shows that his sufferings were vicarious. The full meaning of the cross is comprehended in these words.

3. The reason (v. 6). All humanity, Jews and Gentiles, had gone astray. God had laid on him the iniquity of us all.

IV. The Death of the Servant (53: 7-9).

1. His strange silence (v. 7). He went as a lamb to the slaughter. How unlike men who, when wrongfully condemned, make a great ado.

2. Unconcern of contemporaries (v. 8). Though dying instead of the wicked people, they failed to discern that his suffering was in their stead.

3. Buried with the wicked and the rich. This was fulfilled in the crucifixion between two thieves, and burial in Joseph's tomb.

V. The Servant's Ultimate Victory (vv. 10-12).

1. His suffering expressed the divine will (v. 10). The Lord himself laid this burden upon Christ. He was delivered according to the determined counsel and foreknowledge of God.

2. A spiritual progeny resulted from his death (v. 10). Christ declared, "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone." The fundamental law of the universe, which is life out of death, found supreme expression in Christ's death on the cross.

3. Through death shall come the realization of his fondest hope (v. 11). "He shall see the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied."

4. The divine reward (v. 12). The divine Conqueror shall share the spoils of victory which by a strong arm were secured. Though he took the place of a sinner, it was for the purpose of bearing the sins of many and making intercession for the transgressor.

VI. The Servant's Suffering Historically Fulfilled (Isaiah 19:17-37).

When Jesus of Nazareth went forth bearing his cross to Golgotha, where they crucified him, the prediction of Isaiah was historically realized.

Thought

In the end, thought rules the world. There are times when impulses and passions are more powerful, but they soon expend themselves; while mind, acting constantly, is ever ready to drive them back and work when their energy is exhausted.

Influence

The ministry of personal influence is something very wonderful. Without being conscious of it, we are always impressing others by this strange power that goes out from us.—Huck Miller.

Hobo, Tramp, Bum—They Are Different

Very Distinct Class Lines Drawn Among These Groups.

To the average man the words hobo, tramp and bum are synonymous terms, used to designate a type of foot-loose, homeless specimen of the genus homo. They are terms of derogation and opprobrium. Not so! Before calling a hobo a tramp, or either man a bum, be sure you say it with a smile. For there are very distinct class lines drawn among these groups of unskilled and itinerant workers.

A hobo is a hard worker of the migratory type. He is possessed of a keen sense of his own importance and value to the world that would suffer without his services. The wheat fields of the Southwest, the timberlands in the Northwest, the fruit lands in various parts of the country could not show a profit without the presence of the hobo at strategic moments. To displace him in the economic scheme of things would be to keep on hand well fed and employed the whole year around, thousands of men whose services are only required a few weeks or months a year. Another distinction: The hobo travels on wheels although the ticket office is not always a part of his traveling experience.

The tramp, on the other hand, migrates according to whim or chance. And he walks, always. Having nowhere in mind to get, he gets there at his leisure. If he works, as he does now and then, it is because of necessity and not through any sense of personal responsibility to society at large. In the mind of the self-respecting hobo, the tramp is distinctly an inferior.

The bum is looked down upon and despised, both by the hobo and tramp. The bum travels nowhere, does nothing and is nobody. He is a parasite of the city, begging, borrowing, stealing, loafing.

Clap this out and paste it in your book of etiquette. You may need it sometimes to save yourself from one of those embarrassing moments, warns the Knickerbocker Press.

Indian Summer

Indian summer usually begins some time in October, but it may not begin until November. According to the United States weather bureau it is not a definite period occurring regularly each autumn, and is not based on accurate meteorological data. Indian summer varies greatly in duration. It may occur once or several times during the fall and early winter, or it may not occur at all, and if it does it may last a day or two or several weeks. And in some years there are more than one of these periods of hazy, tranquil days.

Mineral Water Plentiful

In some countries mineral water costs more than wine, but at Altheide in Germany it is so plentiful that the streets are sprinkled with mineral water.

Glacier Advances

The glacier at Jacobshavn Greenland, is advancing 62 feet a day.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches, or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

What may prove to be as valuable to Norway as whale oil itself, is a new kind of meat extract made from whales. Experiments described as highly successful have been carried on in the Antarctic aboard Norwegian whalers. The greater part of the world's supply of whale oil is delivered in Norway. Although the value of whale meat as food has long been recognized only the oil of the whale has been utilized, owing to the difficulty of transporting the meat from the Antarctic. Now, however, the meat is being made into a sort of meat flour aboard the whalers. The flour is taken back to Norway, where a meat extract of a very satisfactory character is being produced.

SYNOPSIS

As Alan Garth, prospector, is preparing to leave for his mining claim in the Far North, a plane lands at the airways emergency station. In it are Burton Ramill, millionaire mining magnate; his daughter, Lilith; and Vivian Huxby, pilot and mining engineer. Believing him to be only an ignorant prospector, the men offer to make an air trip to Garth's claim, although they refer to his samples of platinum-bearing ore as nearly "worthless." Lilith Ramill, product of the jazz age, plainly shows her contempt for Garth. Through Garth's guidance the plane soon reaches the claim site. Huxby and Ramill, after making several tests, assure Garth his claim is nearly valueless, but to "encourage" young prospectors they are willing to take a chance in investing a small amount.

No more was needed to confirm Garth's suspicions. He glided across the glade and ran on through the woods like a startled caribou. The thick growth of spruces screened him from the view of anyone up on the open tundra. He wanted upon the wing of the monoplane and ran along it to jump into the cockpit. In a moment he had hold of Huxby's tool kit. He went at the engine like a skilled airplane mechanic.

When, after a few moments of quick work, he replaced the tool kit and ran back out the wing, there was a small metal object inside his buckskin shirt. He jumped off and slipped away to an alder thicket, a short distance along the lake bank.

Less than three minutes later, he heard a heavy puffing and wheezing and the snap of dry branches. Then the three staggered into sight. Mr. Ramill was purple from exertion. His mouth gaped wide with his gasps for breath. Neither his daughter nor Huxby was winded. But both were flushed from the exertion of supporting the portly millionaire.

The girl's expression was one of disgust and anger. She stopped several feet short of the plane. "Oh, d—n! Why the ruse? We're out of sight now. I'm going to take a rest."

Her father was beyond words. As she let go of his arm he slumped down with a suddenness that almost pulled Huxby over on top of him. The mining engineer peered back through the spruces, and around at the thicket where Garth lay in wait.

"Just one more, darling," he appealed. "The fellow must know how to handle his rifle. If he comes in sight of the plane before we get out of range—Please, sweetheart! Remember it means millions to us—millions! I'll give you that emerald necklace we saw at Tiffany's."

"You certainly will! And Dad will do more. I'm to have a third in this mine that you say is worth so much. Is that clear?"

"Yes, darling; take hold," Huxby urged. "We both agree."

She waved him towards the plane. "Fetch a flask. We'll never get him aboard without a bracer."

Huxby ran to vault up on the wing. The girl had pointed out the obvious fact. Her father was in a state of collapse from overexertion. He could not move until revived, and he was too heavy for them to lift bodily.

The engineer swung into the cabin and hastened back ashore with a flask of whisky. During his short absence Mr. Ramill had ceased to gasp. He could draw deeper breaths. Two or three swallows of whisky tautened his flabby muscles. Helped by his daughter and Huxby, he struggled to his feet and staggered out along the rock shelf to the plane.

The wing end stood neck-high above the ledge. While Mr. Ramill took another bracer of whisky, Huxby boosted the girl up on the front edge. She grasped hold of her father's collar. Huxby gripped his thick legs below the knees and heaved. Mr. Ramill's hands were on the wing edge. He pulled with all his whisky-borrowed strength. His corpulent midbody rose above the edge of the wing.

Huxby gave a last upward heave. It enabled the girl to drag her father over on the convex surface. Huxby vaulted after to help her lift the prone millionaire to his feet. They started to lead him along the wing top to the fuselage of the plane.

Behind the backs of the three, Garth stepped clear from the alders and came forward, silent as a stalking lynx. Midway between the head of the plane and the spruce to which it was tied, he stopped and lowered his rifle, but down, to lean on the muzzle.

"Hullo," he sang out. "What's happened? Mr. Ramill huh?"

At the first word, Huxby tensed and glanced over his shoulder. He let go of Ramill. After a moment, he jerked around and thrust out his automatic pistol towards Garth.

"Swing up that rifle, but end forward," he ordered.

"My word, man, you must be stark mad. I've no thought of shooting you."

"I'm taking no chances. Put that rifle on the wing, or I'll fill you full of lead."

"Mad—mad as a March hare," muttered Garth. "Don't shoot."

He lifted the rifle overhead, but forward, as ordered, and advanced. He came within a step of the wing edge and paused. The girl was gazing at him with open contempt. He had been such an easy dupe. Her father looked grave, yet made no move to interpose when Huxby leveled the pistol and took deliberate aim.

CHAPTER III

Outbluffed.

A man of iron nerve might have risked death from the leveled automatic of the mining engineer by taking a sudden dive under the wing of the monoplane. Once in cover, anyone quick with a rifle would have had an even chance against the holder of the pistol.

Garth made no such daring break. He obeyed the order to lay his rifle on the wing top.

"There you are," he said. "That should clear your head of your crazy notion I'm dangerous."

Huxby met this with a cold smile. "You're right in part, you poor fish. It would be crazy to fancy you're at all dangerous. I'm the one who has the gun, and I'm ready to use it. For—" tunately for you, there's no need to shoot you if you keep on doing as you're told. Back up now and cast off that line."

"Don't Shoot!"

Three steps away from the wing, Garth halted to protest: "Mr. Ramill, surely you'll not abandon me this way—even let me keep my rifle. That is what is called the long travails. I'll starve before I can reach the Mackenzie."

Miss Ramill smiled mockingly. "Oh, no, woody. You can throw stones. All you need to do is stay right here and eat your fellow rabbits. As soon as we record our claims, we'll come back to replace your stakes with our own."

"Yes," her father agreed. "No danger of an experienced prospector like you starving, this time of year. Wait here for us, and I'll pay you that two thousand dollars I offered."

Huxby signed with his pistol. "There's your answer, boob. Now step lively. Cast off that line."

Before the threatening muzzle, Garth turned about and walked along the ledge to the tie tree. He passed the rope end through the tree loop, and pulled loose the bite of the stay hitch. Had he then let go of the rope end, the taut line would have whipped the loop around the spruce trunk and set the monoplane adrift. Instead, he held fast. Huxby frowned and raised the pistol. "What are you waiting for? I told you to cast off. It's no use your whining. You don't suppose we'll pass up the chance to record that placer, do you?"

"No," Garth replied. "You've shown your colors—hoisted the black flag. Only thing, a woman is a woman. Let me suggest that you try your self-starter before I let you go. I've heard that airplanes sometimes balk. If you can't get yours into the air in time, the wind and current will drift you down—like to those falls."

"How sad! You dumb dupe, if you think I—"

"Wait," cut in Mr. Ramill. "Hand me your pistol, Vivian, and try the motor. The fellow gave up his rifle a bit too readily."

Though far from pleased, Huxby passed over the automatic. Mr. Ramill had recovered from his exhaustion, and the way he handled the pistol showed that he knew how to use it.

Huxby swung into the cockpit and threw on the self-starter. It buzzed—but the propeller did not turn over. The motor failed to go. Another try brought the same barren result. The engineer pilot made a hasty examination of the magneto. He sprang out on the wing, in a cold fury.

"The d—d sneak has crippled the motor. Give me the pistol."

"Mr. Ramill held up a restraining hand. "One moment, Vivian.—Now, Garth, what have you done?"

Garth smiled. "Merely removed one of the breaker points, Mr. Ramill. It's platinum, you know, and that's what we're bargaining over. The point is quite safe here, inside my shirt."

"Shoot him," said Huxby. "We're not going to be done by a fool trick like this. Shoot the idiot. Go on, chief. He's only a lousy woods bum. It's a matter of a million at the best."

The older man leveled the pistol. "Garth, you heard him. You've played a silly trick. We have the drop on you. If you value your life, bring that stolen breaker point here, and be quick about it."

"How about the line, sir?" Garth inquired. "If I let go, the plane will be swept out into the lake."

"Tie it again."

"What if I'd rather not?"

For the second time Miss Ramill chimed in on the talk: "It would be just too bad for you, woody boy. Dad is a better shot even than you are, Vivian."

"A better shot and a no less cool thinker," Garth replied. "How can I hold this rope if I'm shot? Those falls and the rapids below—Hold on there, Huxby! Not so fast. You can come ashore; but Miss Ramill and her father will come with you. There'll be no rush to catch the line until all three of you are off the wing."

Mr. Ramill started with Huxby out along the wing. His daughter did not move.

"If you fancy I'll leave the plane, you can guess again."

Her father spoke in her ear. Non-too graciously, she took the offered arm of her fiancé. Side by side, the three came out to the end of the wing. Mr. Ramill handed the pistol to Huxby, and knelt, ready to slide over the front edge. The girl jumped down lightly, without waiting for assistance. Huxby handed her the rifle, laid the pistol on the wing edge, and grasped Mr. Ramill's hands.

As the portly millionaire slid over off the wing, Garth let go of the rope end and sprang forward. The loop whipped from around the spruce trunk. He grasped the slackened line and flipped it out into the swift rush of the milky stream.

The head of the released plane at once started to swing offshore. Huxby grabbed his pistol and leaped down to grasp the wing edge. He shouted for the others to catch hold. But the unexpected bump of the edge against their heads had made both father and daughter crumple down.

Huxby stepped back to brace himself for a shove against the rotary out-thrust of the wing. His rear foot went over the round of the water-polished ledge. The wing thrust him on backwards. Before he could get up, both of his feet were off the ledge top. He slid down with a splash into the swirling water.

The engineer plunged upstream three of four steps to a split in the glassy-faced ledge. He claved up the crevice and sprang to his feet on the rock shelf, drenched to the armpits by the milky water. But his right hand still grasped his automatic pistol.

Once more Garth seemed to have acted the part of a fool. For a few moments Miss Ramill and her father had crouched motionless, dumfounded by the letting loose of the monoplane and its shove of Huxby off the ledge.

Garth stood like an unconcerned onlooker. While the engineer was still struggling up out of the stream bed, Mr. Ramill took the rifle from his daughter and aimed it at Garth.

"Take your time, Vivian," he called. "I have him covered."

"Hu-wait," panted Huxby. "Leave him to me."

He stood dripping till he caught his breath. A flirt of the pistol barrel made sure it was free from water. He took a step closer to Garth, his eyes cold, his lips tightened in a bitter smile.

"Another clever trick, Jack—and your last. I'll be generous and give you half a minute for your prayers."

Garth eyed him gravely. "That is indeed generous. Shall I reciprocate by praying that you and Miss Ramill do not suffer too long from the tortures of flies and starvation? Mr. Ramill may possibly be able to get over the pass, though I doubt it. In any event, the first muskug will stop him. You and Miss Ramill probably will last for two or three weeks longer."

Huxby glared. "You tricky devil! Clever, aren't you? Here is where you last less than a minute."

"Yes?" Garth smiled. "I might suggest to Mr. Ramill that he reflect upon the inadvisability of murder in Canada. The Northwest Police always get their man. If he is unaware of the fact, I might appeal to the womanly gentleness of Miss Ramill."

"Go ahead," Huxby sneered. "You're welcome to try."

"Why bother them needlessly?" Garth came back at him. "My dear man, you are no rash fool. Had you been other than what you are, do you suppose I would have walked up so innocently and let you get the drop on me?"

The coolness of tone and look that went with the question compelled Huxby's consideration. His eyes narrowed. "Out with it."

"You see I have you sized up right," Garth replied. "You're neither a hot-head nor a fool. All your moves are based upon cold-blooded calculation. In this case, you'll calculate these factors: If you kill me, you will most certainly starve to death, unless you first sink in the slime of muskug bog. The only other alternative is for you to stay here and freeze at the first onset of winter. Platinum is of no more use to a dead man than is gold."

The mining engineer stood silent. Garth went on:

"We are speaking of what concerns you most. So I'll not mention the no less certain death of your partner and the lady to whom you are engaged. The other side of my argument is that, if I am not murdered, I can guide you back to the Mackenzie. What if you then had another chance to steal my claim? Wouldn't that be a big inducement?"

"Lower your pistol, Vivian," Ramill ordered. "Garth has us outplayed. He holds the ace. Look at the plane. It's heading straight down the lake towards the falls. There's no chance for it, unless the wind veers."

Garth nodded. "This breeze will keep on blowing down off the glacier until the first autumn blizzard. It's a shame, sir, to crack up so fine a plane. But you would have it."

"You and Huxby. You may be a financial pirate, Mr. Ramill; that's not saying you're a hypocrite. You'll not lie that I'm responsible for this mess. I gave you a chance to share my claim. In return, you've done your best to bilk me out of it all. This is the result."

The big "pirate" looked him in the eye.

"I offered you cash down. You refused. Said you wanted to play out the game. So far, you've taken most of the tricks. That monoplane cost me forty thousand dollars. You see it heading for a total loss. Let it go. The question now is the next play—Vivian, what do you suggest?"

Huxby regretfully eyed his pistol. "It's a damnable fact we can't kill the slick devil. We'll tie his hands, and start him guiding us out of this hell-hole at once."

Garth smiled. "What! still up in the air? Better come down to earth and face the other facts also. For the same reason you can't kill me, you can't make me guide you. I know exactly what I was doing when I turned the plane adrift. I knew I was putting you all in a hole out of which none of you can hope to escape without my help. If I die, every one of you will die. I've faced death many times. I am not afraid to meet it. None of you dare chance starvation or freezing. I do not need you, but you must have my help, or perish. Though you now have the guns, I am master of the situation. All three of you will do whatever I consider necessary to get you out alive."

"When do we start?" Huxby demanded to know.

"Garth looked at Mr. Ramill. "It's a guess. May be two weeks. More probably three."

Miss Ramill flared, outraged. "What! Hang around this disgusting hole a single day? We'll start this instant!"

Duns by Post Forbidden by the U. S. Government

Despite all that has been said on the subject of dunning by postal card, says Pathfinder Magazine, there still exists some confusion on this matter. Section 471 of the United States postal laws and regulations says in part: "Any postal card upon which any delineations, epithets, terms, or language of an indecent, lewd, lascivious, obscene, libelous, scurrilous, defamatory, or threatening character, or calculated by the terms or manner of style of display and obviously intended to reflect injuriously upon the character or conduct of another, is unmailable."

The Post Office department has ruled that this "threatening" provision covers cards which threaten bringing of suits or legal action in the event accounts or debts, etc., are not paid. However, this does not include notices of fraternal and other organizations of dues, assessments, etc., even though they call attention to the fact that failure to remit will result in suspension or other action. Neither does it include notices of when accounts will be due nor a respectful request for settlement of current accounts. But in any case such payments must not appear to be nor be referred to as past due.

MEET A PIEMAN AND ORDERED THREE OR FOUR; HE NOW EATS TUMS WHEN HEARTBURN COMES... DON'T SUFFER ANY MORE!

Stop SAYING "NO" TO FAVORITE FOODS

It isn't only pie that disagrees with some people. Many say that every milk gives them a gassy stomach. The very best foods may bring on acid indigestion, sour stomach, gas, heartburn. Millions have found that Tums quickly relieve acid indigestion. Munch 3 or 4 after meals or whenever smoking, hasty eating, last night's party, or some other cause brings on acid indigestion. Tums contain no harsh alkalies, which physicians have said may increase the tendency toward acid indigestion. Instead an antacid which neutralizes stomach acid, but never over-alkalizes the stomach or blood. You'll like their minty taste. Only 10c.

THE STORY OF JOE AND JOHN AND HERB

This is the story of the adventures of three upstanding American citizens under the New Deal—Joe Green, John Cornatassel and Herbert Hoover.

Consider Joe Green—that isn't his name, but he's a real person in Chicago. Joe's a skilled mechanic. He is employed by the International Harvester Co. He helps make machinery that John Cornatassel uses in his business. But back in 1932, when low prices put John out of the machinery market, Joe was automatically laid off and ceased to be an economic unit. He managed to squeak through, however, because the company loaned him money against the day of returning prosperity, and he was handy at odd jobs. Today Joe is back in the picture working five and a half days a week at good pay.

Which brings us to John Cornatassel. You remember him. He's the fellow who, as the story goes, was paid for loafing and plowing under things. But it now appears that his plow struck something yellow and exceedingly beautiful. Anyway, the newspapers have discovered that that's gold in them thar fields. Publishers are inviting national advertisers to come out and get some of the money through the use of space in the papers that farmers read.

"Farm Comeback Over Whole Nation 'Now Opening Up Vast Rich Markets,'" is the pleasant headline that graces the front page of Editor & Publisher, national newspaper guide, in a supplement devoted to John, his tall corn, fat hogs, loving kine—and pocketbook. "... the present fact is that the farm population, comprising one-third of the whole, is now prepared to spend money for urgently needed supplies. 'This is good news for sellers and advertisers of commodities,'" observes the editor.

Although Mr. Hearst is personally shrieking to high heaven against the New Deal, a writer on his Omaha paper, the Bee-News, happily informs us that, aided by $40,000,000 corn-hog AAA reduction fees, "a golden stream of buying power" is bless-

Winter has come, Summer has went, But it ain't no accident.

IDEALS OF THE JUNIORS
The members of the Junior Class of 1935-36 are nearing the end of their high school days. In just two more years they will be looking down the rough road of experience, which, if traveled the right way, will lead to success. Juniors, meet defeat with a smile, keep up your courage, and strive to journey on. You must have pride, which is a silent partner in every job well done. No work remains trivial if it is tackled with a proud and conquering attitude of mind. Don't lose your patience, for if you do, you might as well get out of the game, go ashore, and stand on the sidelines. Patience is not only a power in itself, but it accumulates power with the passage of time. So have pride, don't lose your patience, keep up your courage, and strive on! Remember, Juniors, that pessimism destroys all, but optimism constructs, reconstructs, heals, and inspires.

Let's go to Roscoe, Friday!

SENIOR NEWS

- Ask:
1. Doris what Mr. Williams thinks of her face.
2. Rue how it feels to be thrilled.
3. Katha Lee why she giggles so much.
4. Geneva why she is happy.
5. Eldon what he thinks about an ex-senior.
6. Zoia how she got so smart in English.
7. LeRoy why he is the center of attraction in English class.
8. Irving if he ever gets tired telling people what time it is.
9. Ask Nova Lee Groom why she chased calves Sunday night.
10. Garland why he is such a good football player.

Juanice Hart has been out of school all the week and we miss her like a rattlesnake misses its rattle.

The seniors gained a new pupil this week. It is Marie Phips of Forsan. We like her fine.

The Chemistry students will be farmers' pockets. "South Dakota crop comeback puts farmers in market for goods." "Sale of 1935 crop will start river or wealth flowing." "Michigan harvesting better than average fruit crop." "So much for John."

Now let's turn to the happiest story of all—the one about Herbert Hoover. It appears that while Mr. Hoover is publicly and politically viewing with alarm, privately he is getting in on the New Deal's prosperity ground floor. According to John E. Pickett, editor of the Pacific Rural Press, Mr. Hoover and his son, Allan, are among the largest investors in farm land.

"The smart money men feel," Pickett says, "that farm land is the soundest investment of all, and they are encouraged by the fact that agriculture has made the best recovery of any major industry and has a cheerful outlook ahead."

So it seems that things are looking up for Joe and John and Herb. Joe has a job making implements for John. John is in clover. Herb is getting in on the "smart money." We're all feeling better. What could be nicer? The Chicago Times (Independent) get to wear their aprons in laboratory tomorrow. Eldon was scared he wouldn't get to wear his this week.

Civics is still interesting. Chas. Reeder talks so much, he doesn't give the rest of the class a chance to get a word in edgeways. Kent has been studying geometry and algebra so hard he goes around talking to himself about "a", "b", and "c" and all about angles. It's a good thing someone is studying.

Help the Bulldogs beat Roscoe!

JUNIOR NEWS
We Juniors certainly missed our classmates from North Champion last week, in fact, some of the girls were lonesome and we know some of the boys were. We are sorry that we lost one of our classmates, T. A. Hart, but we supposed that he just couldn't take it. Poor T. A.

We still think geometry is hard, but we are going to keep on studying and really learn it. We got Algebra, so snap out of it, Juniors, and get that geometry!

Remember the football game at Roscoe October 4, 1935.

LIBERTY ROMAE

The Latin Club met on Wednesday Sept. 25, 1935, for their first regular meeting. The president took charge and the minutes were read and approved. The roll was called and the following program was given:

1. Song—America
2. The Importance of Studying Latin—Byron Bennett.
3. The History of the English Language—Ronel Thomas.
4. The Plea for Classics—Quita Richards.

The following officers were elected in addition to those in the first meeting: Program Committee—Ronel Thomas, Iona Callahan, and Jimmie Ruth Glass. Pianist—Kent McGowan. Song Leader—Opal Martin. Recreational Leaders—Doris Glass and Lonice Land.

The club will meet on the second Wednesday of each month.

SOPHOMORE NEWS

Garland F.: "Edward, is your girl black?"
Edward: "Why, my girl is so black the lightning bugs follow her in daytime."
A soph defined flirtation as "attention given without intention."
Winfred Simmons, on a six weeks examination paper answer-

BEAT ROSCOE

The Loraine Bulldogs are to play one of the hardest games of the season, Friday, Oct. 4, when we clash with the Roscoe Plowboys. We have been practicing hard for this game because we know that everyone is depending on our winning. We should like to see everyone go to the game at Roscoe and back the team. Get with the pep squad and help win the game!

Don't fail to see the Bulldogs bite the Plowboys in this game!

FRESHMEN NEWS

Roy G. Edwards went to Sweetwater Sunday. Wonder why?

Margaret Jarratt went to the circus Monday evening. We hope she liked it.

Sophomore, "You should place your hand over your mouth when you yawn."

Freshman: "Yeah, and get bitten!"
Wonder why Gene Roberts was absent Monday?
There are a lot of timid souls in the eighth grade. They are afraid to yell in the pep squad.

Make Jabot Solve "Weighty" Problems

Our stylist had leisure hours in mind when she designed this graceful afternoon frock for the woman of larger proportions. The soft jabot cascades down the bodice in graceful folds, concealing those extra pounds and curves! The bodice gathers in front to a double-pointed yoke, another slenderizing feature with its diagonal lines. Medium length sleeves puff, then hug the forearm below the elbow. Crepe is a perfect medium for this pattern, but in satin you'd have an all-season "best dress." Do choose sparkling novel buttons and buckle.

Pattern 9339 may be ordered only in sizes, 16, 18, 20, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 30 inch fabric. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

THE figure "2" is all Gene Sarazen needs to keep him happy, no matter how many black cats are wandering around. He was born in 1902, became a caddy in 1912, won the P. G. A. and the national open in 1922, triumphed in the British and American opens in 1932 and believes that he cannot lose a match started on the second, twelfth or twenty-second days of the month.

The day before he met Jess Willard a gypsy fortune teller informed Jack Dempsey that he could not lose. He still believes that had a great deal to do with his winning the title. On the other hand, Willard feels that he might have done much better if a black duck had not fallen dead at his feet while he was taking a walk that day.

Any race fan will tell you that if you tear the corners off your program you will have good luck, because the jinx has nothing on which to light.

If the weeds in a marshy area in South Jersey turn jet black in the fall, Princeton knows that it will beat Yale in football.

Gar Wood, the speedboat champion, insists that two Teddy Bears must trail at the stern of his boat during a race.

A pair of baby shoes tied to the steering wheel was all that Pete DePaola needed to convince him that he could win an automobile race.

A small ivory goat, presented to him by his godmother, must be in his pocket before Lester Stoenen can have any luck in a tennis match.

No matter how good his arm feels, Red Lucas knows that he will be knocked out of the box any day when he falls to step over the foul line right foot first.

No matter where he is, Barney Ross sends for his favorite Chicago barber to cut his hair. It's expensive, but Barney's a champion.

George Dempsey, the six-day bicycle rider, has different ideas about his hair. He will not permit it to be cut during a race or four weeks previous to one.

Whenever Pepper Martin is in a batting slump he chases the "jinx" by changing room-mates.

Jockeys are like other people. They enjoy seeing their pictures in the papers but they seldom will pose for one before a race.

Horses also refuse to take chances. Monarchist, a great thoroughbred of many years ago, would not run unless his jockey wore a coat over the bright silks.

Some athletes gnash their teeth at fate, but Jim Barnes always found better use for his molars. He used them to chew a lucky sprig of purple clover, just as Johnny Dundee used to trail success in the ring by gnawing at a match stick.

When the Louisiana Lottery was running you could win a fortune if you played No. 6 after seeing a stray dog. No. 14 was the one to put your money on if you glimpsed a drunken man.

Carnegie Tech students believe that if the football coach wears a derby at games the team is sure to score plenty of touchdowns. To make sure that nothing goes wrong, they take up a collection to buy the hat.

Things Box Score Never Told Me

Travis Jackson says that Hack Wilson was the toughest slider of all the men he ever tagged. He always was thankful that Hack, who waited until he was almost on the bag before coming in feet first, did not use sharp spikes. . . . Dick Bartlett's pet sliding aversion was Riggs Stephenson, the former Alabama football star, who often played football while coming into the base. . . . Both of them say that the best thing about Pepper Martin is that he usually slides head first and thus gives the base guardian some chance.

Casey Stengel's first manager told him that he never would make good because he packed too much weight around the hips. . . . The Pittsburgh dugout is the hottest in the National league, the sun shining into it all afternoon. . . . Jack Doyle, who sets the prices on most sports events, has been to the races only three times in 30 years. . . . Soldiers at Fort Hamilton claim that the ring there is the largest in the world.

FRANKIE FRISCH comes sliding into the bag while the baseman stands there, ball in hand, waiting for him. In the dugout some player yawns and turns to his team-mates.

"There goes Frankie again, making that old college try," he remarks in tones of supreme disgust.

Where the term originated I do not know, although it is obvious that it is an expression of the professional athlete's scorn for the player who does not get paid for his work. But I do know that it has become baseball's most overused term of disapproval for the player who, presumably for the sake of being theatrical, attempts to make some play that cannot be made.

Also I know that the increasing number of big timers who regard anything out of the ordinary as "the old college try" is one of the reasons why the sport lacks a very real part of its former fascination for the fans.

That Frisch lasted so long as one of the highest paid players in the game may be attributed largely to the fact that he is possessed of the spirit which drives him into making that "old college try," even though his legs may rebel against such exertions. Certainly it also is the reason why the old Orioles, who had such scant esteem for most collegiate notions, remain famous in the sporting world forty years after the days of their active glory.

Indeed this fierce impulse to lead forlorn hopes, to refuse to admit that any shoeing catch is impossible until a muscle straining effort to accomplish it has been made, is one very important reason why there are any stars to applaud today. It is a fact that makes up for the occasional athlete who may, as the dugout critics so often yell, go through the motions merely to show off.

It was the spirit which compelled him to try the impossible which made Ty Cobb the great player that he was when men of perhaps equal speed and keenness of eye were serving a dull span in the big show. In spite of the toll taken by time during his last months as a player Babe Ruth had this spirit, too. Earle Combs, so often so badly shattered in the service of a cause, had it.

"Old College Try" Is Mark of Star

Lou Gehrig, Casey Stengel, Sherry Magee, Chief Bender, Rabbit Maravilla and—but there is no need to call the roll. Search through the list of all-time greats yourself. You will discover that, almost without exception, each of them was possessed of that fierce impulse to deny that anything was impossible when victory was in sight.

Obviously, I am not suggesting that a player should sacrifice all regard for life and limb merely to provide a spectacle for the customers. The memory of Johnny Grabowski diving head first into a concrete floored dugout, of Greasy Neale crashing so hard against the right field wall at the Polo grounds that he had to be rushed to the hospital, of Frank Bowerman, Christy Mathewson's old catcher, splintering a timber several inches thick by the force of his impact while chasing a foul, would prevent me from requiring murder for my 50 cents.

Yet I am wondering how many younger players and fans realize how firmly this now scornful expression "the old college try" is bound up with all that is best in baseball. I am wondering how many of them realize that, by and large, it really is the same spirit which makes a Frisch, a Combs, a Joe Moore, a Ruth, a Greenberg or a Cobb stand out far above their humdrum fellows.

I recommend that thought to the next occupant of press box or dugout—I do not include the stands because the subject is far better understood there—who feels called upon to sneer when Joe Vosmik takes a nose dive in the outfield or when Pepper Martin comes swarming into a well-blocked base.

If that is the "old college try," and I have mentioned that the two things seem much the same to me, it is by far the most important contribution of any campus to any sport.

Joe Gould, manager of Jim Brad-dock, has bought a new automobile and a new dog. The dog is a wire-haired fox terrier named Roxy. . . . Doc Robb, the heavyweight champion's trainer, takes the stable's new honors much more lightly. Whenever he hits a new town he asks for only one thing. That is for a tub in which to ice some beer. . . . The official name for the English Lawn Tennis association is "The Tennis association."

Find Shortage in World Wheat

Production Less by 240,000,000 Bushels Than in 1934-35 Period.

World wheat supplies outside Russia and China this season are likely to be about 240,000,000 bushels less than in 1934-35, says the bureau of agricultural economics, in its current report on world wheat prospects.

World production, excluding Russia and China, is estimated at about 3,520,000,000 bushels, or about 60,000,000 bushels more than last year; but world carry-over at the beginning of this crop year was about 800,000,000 bushels, or 300,000,000 bushels less than a year ago.

Russia is reported to be harvesting a good wheat crop with fairly good yields in regions which commonly supply wheat for export. Russia may export as much as 30,000,000 bushels, but this may be offset to some extent by increased imports into China where the wheat crop is reported smaller than in 1934.

The bureau says the short supplies of wheat in the United States may result in prices being maintained close to an import basis for all classes of wheat at markets east of the Rockies. The United States carry-over into the current season is estimated at 152,000,000 bushels, and production on the basis of August 1 conditions at 608,000,000 bushels. The total, 760,000,000 bushels, is only 135,000,000 bushels more than normal utilization of 625,000,000 bushels.

These figures suggest, it is stated, that unless there should be a considerable volume of imports during the year, the carry-over into the 1936-37 season will be smaller than in the current season. The volume of imports will be influenced largely by the quantity of the domestic crop which proves unfit for milling.

The bureau says that durum wheat in the 1935-36 season probably will not command a premium over hard red spring, as was the case last season; but that supplies of good quality hard red spring appear so short there will be substantial premiums for hard red spring over hard red winter.

REV. NAYLOR RECEIVES LETTER FROM PRESIDENT

Rev. H. B. Naylor, who is secretary of the ministerial association, received a letter a few days ago from President Franklin D. Roosevelt asking for his council and help in administering the new Social Security Legislation.

Rev. Naylor stated that the Ministerial Association will meet Friday of this week.

Following is the President's letter:

Reverend and dear Sir:
"Your high calling brings you into intimate daily contact not only with members of your own church, but with people generally in your community. I am sure you see the problems of your people with wise and sympathetic understanding.

"I am particularly anxious that the new Social Security Legislation just enacted, for which we have worked so long, providing for old age pensions, aid for crippled children and unemployment insurance, shall be carried out in keeping with the high purposes with which this law was enacted. It is also vitally important that the Works Program shall be administered to provide employment at useful work, and that our unemployed as well as the nation as a whole may derive the greatest possible benefits.

"I shall deem it a favor if you will write me about conditions in your community. Tell me where you feel our government can better serve our people.

"We can solve our many problems, but no one man or single group can do it, we shall have to work together for the common end of better spiritual and material conditions for the American people.

"May I have your counsel and your help? I am leaving on a short vacation but will be back in Washington in a few weeks, and I will deeply appreciate your writing to me.

"Very sincerely yours,
Franklin D. Roosevelt."

We are glad the government permits us to run our household according to our own simple plan. If the government had charge of our home we doubt whether we could earn a living. We could not afford to pay a grocery buying committee to secure our groceries and we would dislike to employ a man, a stenographer and several assistants to look after the gas, light and water bills. We are sure we are doing some things wrong, but we would rather have a little waste here and there than to pay for a government survey of our home. We owe a number of bills that are bothering us right now and government experts might go over them and make a lot of recommendations, but we would still owe the bills and we could not pay any of them after paying the experts.—Claude Callan.

THE NEWSPAPER MAKES MISTAKES

"We made a mistake in last week's issue," says the editor of a weekly paper.

"A good subscriber told us about it. The same day there was a letter in our box that did not belong to us. We called for 98 and got 198 on the telephone. We asked for a spool of number 50 thread and when we got home it was number 60. The train was reported 30 minutes late, and when we arrived at the station 20 minutes after train time the train was gone. We got our milk bill and there was a mistake of 10 cents in our favor. We felt sick and the doctor said we were eating too much meat. We had not tasted meat in two months. The garage man said the jitney was missing because it needed a new timer. We cleaned the spark plugs and it has been running ever since.

"Yes, we made a mistake in last week's issue of the paper."—Exchange.

OLD AGE PENSIONS TO COST TEXAS 56 MILLION

"Old-age pensions could cost Texas taxpayers as much as $56,073,402 yearly if each of the 283,199 people 65 years of age and over received the full $15 monthly allotment provided for in the recent constitutional amendment," State Auditor Orville S. Carpenter said today.

At the request of Governor Allred, Carpenter and R. B. Anderson, State Tax Commissioner, prepared the report "Cost and General Plan for Old Age Pensions." Upon the Governor's suggestion it was mailed to members of the Legislature September 10.

"Experience of other states has shown that they have attempted at first to take care of only those actually in need of assistance. Requirements made of applicants have been with a view of eliminating those who, although of eligible age, did not actually need assistance. In this way other states have greatly reduced the costs from the amount necessary to pay if all persons of the required age had been included," Carpenter said.

"As there are 41,787 persons 65 years of age and over on the Texas Relief Rolls, this apparently is the minimum number able to qualify for old age pensions. At $15 a month and with 10 per cent administrative cost added, this would be $8,273,826 yearly," Carpenter explained.

Carpenter believed the figure 62,933 most nearly represented the actual number who probably would receive old-age pensions in Texas. He determined this figure by considering the experiences of other states. If 62,933 people in Texas 65 years of age and over were to receive the full $15 a month, the yearly cost to the taxpayer would be $12,460,734, Carpenter calculated. In this he included 10 per cent administrative expenses.

"The Federal Government, if funds are available, will provide an amount equal to that spent by the State plus 5 per cent for expenses. This depends upon approval of the Texas plan by the Social Security Board in Washington. The Texas Legislature will formulate a plan for distribution, and it will decide whether or not the full $15 maximum will be used," Carpenter concluded.

HAGENBECK-WALLACE CIRCUS TO BE IN SWEETWATER TUESDAY

The great Hagenbeck-Wallace and Forepaugh-Sells Bros. Combined Circus will present afternoon and night performance in Sweetwater on Tuesday Oct. 8, and circus enthusiasts of this vicinity will be on hand to participate in the gala event.

To commemorate the combination of the famous old Forepaugh-Sells Bros show with the largest trained wild animals circus in the world, many startling new features have been added for the 1935 program. These include Maria Rasputin, sensational European wild animal trainer and daughter of the famous Russian monk, Grigori Rasputin who ruled the Romanoffs with the power of his hypnotic eyes prior to his demise in 1916; Bert Nelson, youngest of the wild animal subjugators, with more than a score of fighting jungle-bred lions and tigers; John Heiliet, renowned German trainer of savage beasts; Maximo, comedian of the slack wire; the famed Christiani troupe of bareback riders in somersaults from horse to horse; the Flying Codonas, the Hills and a great group of aerialists; Rudyoff, noted equestrian and his educated horses; the Merckels, who walk upside down on lofty mirrors in the dome of the big tent; "Cheerful" Gardiner and twenty performing elephants; scores of clowns led by Earl Shiply, Paul Jung Clown Acrobatic Trio; dozens of pretty equestriennes, a huge oriental spectacle and a big contingent of Indians, Cowboys and Cowgirls from the Pawnee Bill Ranch at Old Town, Oklahoma.

Performances will be presented at 2 and 8 p. m. with doors open one hour earlier each instance to permit leisurely inspection of the world's largest and finest traveling wild animal menagerie which boasts among other zoological marvels a baby giraffe. The Hagenbeck-Wallace and Forepaugh-Sells Bros. Combined Circus is a railroad show moving on two trains of double-length steel cars.

FREE TRIPS TO CENTENNIAL CELEBRATIONS MADE AVAILABLE HERE

Motivated by desire to publicize the Texas Centennial Celebration in 1936 and to enable every Texan to attend these magnificent pageants absolutely free, a patriotic group of organizations have banded together for this purpose.

Through the medium of "Centennial Thrift Stamps," which will soon be issued in every crossroad and city in the state, every Texan will be enabled to defray transportation cost to any Centennial center, pay hotel and restaurant expenses, admission charges, and even to purchase gas and oil for the family "Lizzie."

Cooperating in this gigantic Texas plan are such famous names as the Greyhound Bus Lines, Bowen Air Lines, Western Union, some 250 hotels and restaurants and the Uniform Bodies of the Shrine. Details of the plan may be secured from any of the organizations mentioned in the preceding paragraphs and from all business houses in Loraine.

Securing these Centennial Thrift Stamps entails no "selling" or "chance taking" on the part of the individual. The Stamps are given out with all purchases and in such quantities that they accumulate rapidly. Numerous families have already saved sufficient amounts to pay ALL of their expenses for trips to San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Goliad, Huntsville, Washington, and other Centennial Celebrations in 1936. Commenting on this wonder co-operative Texas plan, an official prominent in the recent Chicago Exposition said: "Had we had such public spirited individuals and corporations in the North, we would have been able to extend the fair for at least another year. Texas and its citizens are to be congratulated in having the Centennial Thrift Stamp Plan."
