ACC Mile Relay Team Is On All American List

Hubert (Hoot) Jones of Memphis finished his career on the circuit at the N.C.A.A. National Track and Field Meet in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday, and some residents got to see Hoot on ABC's "Wide World of Sports" TV show.

Although an electrical power line blacked out part of Memphis TV reception during the show, the team placed fourth in the mile relay which earned his team place on the NCAA All American Track and Field Team. The four teams win this designation in the mile relay event.

Hoot is a member of the 1969 All American College mile relay team which won the right to compete in the Nationals. The team ran a time of 3:04.6 at Knoxville setting a new school record, breaking the 1961 record of 3:07.6 held by Earl Young's team.

Members of the team and their times include: Hubert Jones, 47.2; Roger Colglazier 45.9; Mark Jones, 47.2; and Ronny Crawford, 45.9.

In an interview Tuesday, Hoot said it all seemed to begin at the United States Track and Field Meet June 13 and 14 in Lexington, Ky. The mile relay was run during a rainstorm. The ACC quartet pulled off victory with a time of 3:11.9, beating out Southern Illinois, who had second, Rice and Tennessee, third and fourth.

Boys State Lads Give Report On Austin Trip

Donnie Phillips and Spencer Jones, Memphis delegates to the American Legion Boys State, gave a report on the activities of the week-long convention at Austin on the University of Texas campus.

Phillips was elected County Commissioner of Rossiter County and Spencer was elected to the Board of Education.

Donnie said he was a member of the Nationalist party and a member of Berry City.

Spencer was a member of the Nationalist party and a resident of McGee City.

Both boys indicated that one of the highlights of the Boys State was the address made by H. Roe Bartle, referred to as the Chief. He is the founder of the Kansas City Chiefs and head of Missouri Boys State.

Also, the Memphis lads said they were impressed by an address made by former State Attorney General Waggoner Carr, who spoke on "Students for Democracy" (Continued on Page 10)

Jones reported that the pressure really built up as the NCAA National Meet date approached which would be televised live from Knoxville. "We all wanted to run our best race of the year," Jones said. The day of the race saw early rains turn the weather humid and damp and the air was hot and heavy. "I almost passed out during warm ups," he said.

Asked about how he felt, he ran his leg of the race, running the first lap off the blocks. Hoot said for the first three-fourths of the race he ran better than he had ever done but he felt he tightened up coming in for the handoff to Roger Colglazier.

Winning the NCAA Nationals was the mile relay team from UCLA which turned in a time of 3:03.4, (.6 of a second off the world record mark). Five of the nine teams running in the NCAA finals broke the old NCAA meet record.

Teams and their places include: 1. UCLA, 2. Rice, 3. Tennessee, 4. ACC, 5. Texas, 6. S. Illinois, 7. Michigan State, 8. Notre Dame, 9. Middle Tennessee.

Hoot will return to ACC in the fall to complete 12 hours needed on his degree requirements. He is majoring in P. E. and minor in Biology and plans to coach and teach after graduation.

Hoot is the first Memphis athlete to ever be named on the NCAA All American track team. It is fitting that in the final meet of his career, he should earn for himself this title and recognition.

Appropriate plaques and certificates will be awarded to him and other members of the ACC mile relay team, when they return to school next fall.

Jones track career began in Memphis High School in 1964 to 1965, when Hoot found the 440-yd. dash to his liking. His senior year he went to Austin, and for the first time in his career he broke the 50-second mark only to place second at the State Meet.

After high school graduation he went to Lubbock Christian College and ran on their Jr. College team. In 1967 he was top contender for the National Jr. College quarter mile title, but had to settle for third after two boys whom he had previously defeated, edged him out in a close finish during the finals.

Hoot was then offered a scholarship at Abilene Christian College which he accepted and has been a member of their mile relay team the past two seasons. Hoot gives a lot of credit to ACC's track coach for the success of the squad this season. For Hoot, the career on the cinder track has meant a lot of hard work, keeping in running shape all year long, and doing road workouts in all kinds of weather. For his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Jones of Memphis, the career has taken them all over the United States to watch their son run against the nation's top athletes. They were in Knoxville Saturday and after the meet was over, called back home to give friends the news.

Hoot said he was not interested in doing any more running and felt his career on the cinders was over. He wants to take it easy for a while after a long hard season.

A Scenic Road For Palo Duro!

Men assembled here from all over the State of Texas Friday to take steps to further the planning on a proposed scenic highway across the rough and rugged upper headwater land of Red River into the lower end of Palo Duro Canyon, a dream of citizens in the Panhandle of Texas for many years.

It has just been during the past decade that men have begun working in a point effort to make the scenic highway a reality. However, much work is yet to be done to get the ball rolling. This state does not authorize construction of "scenic" roads and the Federal Government is so committed to Interstate Expressways that funds are not available.

So this project has plenty of financial problems but there are many influential friends of the Panhandle of Texas who feel this project could well prove to be the catalyst to make Palo Duro Canyon Park well known throughout the Nation. Rep. W. S. (Bill) Healy who attended the meeting said Palo Duro is the "Grand Canyon of Texas" and the most famous tourist attraction in the Texas Panhandle.

The problem is that a drive through the Park does not give the tourist a complete picture of the magnitude of the Canyon which extends for miles down the banks of Red River. Few men including those living today, have ever seen this country, but those who have describe it as rugged and beautiful.

The Palo Duro Scenic Road Assn. was officially formed Friday with Clarendon's James F. Hays as president, and Memphis' Jim Beeson as vice president. Memphis' Ex-Mayor H. J. Howell of Ennis was here to preside at the meeting until Hays was elected president. Haskell Howell was an early proponent of this project and spent many days speaking throughout the area and state on the impact a scenic road of this type could have on tourism in the Panhandle of Texas.

All of the county governments involved are in favor of the road, but these counties are not in financial position to finance the project, or even to acquire road easements, should a final route be agreed upon by the land owners involved.

Rep. Healy and Rep. Tom Christian of Amarillo were both of the belief that members of the Texas Highway Commission, will be receptive to do everything they can toward building the highway if given authorization.

In our opinion, this project is one which can bring into focus an area-wide effort on the part of central Panhandle citizens of Randall, Potter, Armstrong, Briscoe, Donley and Hall Counties toward developing tourism through more accessible routes to the Panhandle's best tourist attraction, Palo Duro Canyon.

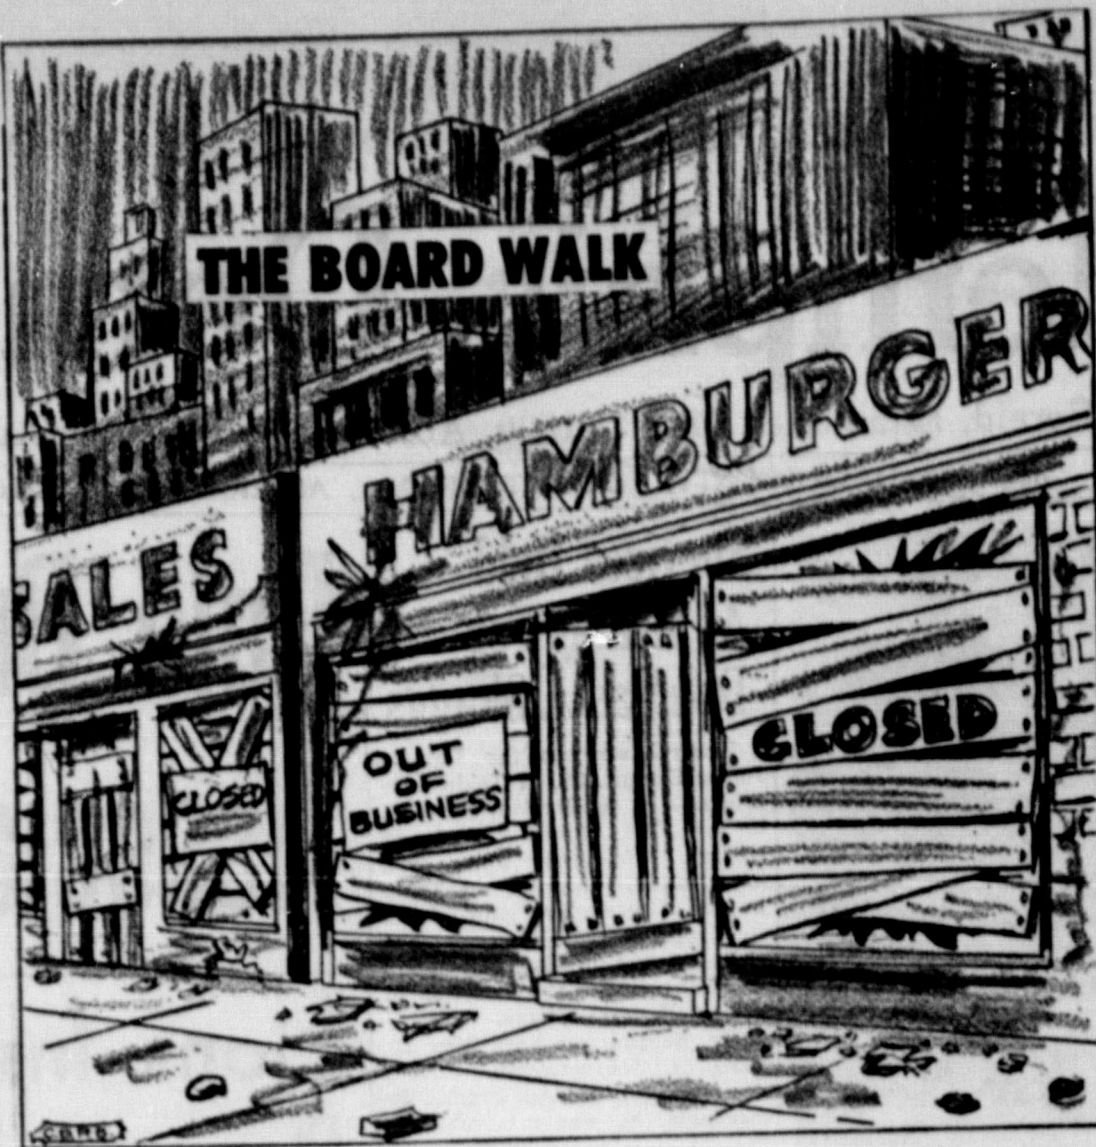

The newly formed association has its work cut out, to bring this project to reality. It will take a lot of hard work on the part of all involved. The veteran lawmakers here pointed out that it is a lot easier to stop a road project than to get one started.

Another obstacle is that this road would be built under the designation "scenic" instead of Farm-to-Market, or some other designation. The concept of "scenic" roads is new and unique. But the sponsors of the project indicate that if this road was approached on the idea that it was necessary to move crops to market, or allowing better travel over a safe route, the project would be defeated before it got started. The only justification for building a road through this country, 56.5 miles, would be to allow the eyes of the touring public to see some of the most beautiful country the Texas Panhandle and the State of Texas has to offer.

If you want to see this country now, we would suggest you fly over it. Otherwise, in a four-wheel drive vehicle, by obtaining permission from landowners, a good hard day's drive will get you over the route if you don't get stuck in the many creeks in the upper headwaters of Red River. Ranchers in the area work their cattle by horseback.

Haskell Howell has ridden over the proposed route. He told those attending the meeting that the country is more spectacular than the Canyon itself. It is not known whether or not the scenic road would actually enter the Canyon Park or whether it would by-pass the Park proper on the rim. This is a decision which will have to be worked out in future planning sessions with state officials.

With the forming of the association, the project took a step closer. In the near future, the association should have members in all the counties involved. It's worth our while to give our support to this effort and do our part.

What Other Editors Say

Limited Farm Program

Publicity out of Washington of late has opponents of the farm program attempting to establish a limit of $20,000 in payments to individuals.

Looks like it just might come about, too, though it's certainly too early to make an accurate prediction.

This is not the first time this idea has come up, but seems that it's being pushed further and harder this time than previously.

On the surface, the proposal sounds harmless enough. Nobody ever expected to get rich off the farm program, anyway, those in favor of the limit will tell you. And maybe that's right.

Still, when you look into the idea deeper than the surface, you see that this could be the beginning of the end of farm program.

And, frankly, that's probably what its backers mean for it to be—the beginning of the end of the farm program.

The limitation would force the larger farmers and there are many of them on the irrigated High Plains of Texas, to go "outlaw"—stay out of the government program and have no acreage allotments. This, then, would possibly increase production to the point that prices would go further down, thereby hurting the smaller farmers who stayed in the program and drew less than $20,000 in subsidies.

We don't have much sympathy for the farmer who is big enough to draw more than $20,000 in government payments. He doesn't need our sympathy, anyway, need less to say; he's big enough to take care of himself. And if the idea of the payment limitation ended right there period, we'd probably be for it. But as we previously pointed out, the limitation is only the beginning of something which would eventually be detrimental to farming in general and this area in particular.

If the opponents of the farm program, numerous as they are, would come out to do away with it, they would be easier to fight.

This backdoor approach has a tendency to get the non-farm interested citizens of the country more anti-farmer than they already are in their thinking and actions. This will, over a period of time, make it easier to do away with the farm program if that is the long-range plan of the limitation supporters.

The government payment limit hasn't yet become a reality, understand, and may not in the foreseeable future. Those of us in farming areas, though can be assured that there is a group of Washington politicians working against us.

Recognizing Reality

If a company can't afford to pay ever-rising wages, it has no business in operation. That, at any rate, is the view all too often expressed by labor leaders.

There are exceptions, fortunately. One of them occurred the other day in Fort Worth, where a local union agreed to accept a pay cut to keep a big Swift & Co. packing house open for at least two more years. Competitive conditions in the industry have been changing drastically; Armour & Co. closed down the only other remaining big Fort Worth packing house six years ago.

According to the president of the union local, "The vote by our union means that Swift can compete with independent packers in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area." He stressed that many Swift employees had been with the plant 35 years or more and would have found it hard to relocate.

While no one pretends that the wage cut is a complete and lasting solution to Swift's Ft. Worth problem, or to similar problems of other companies, it does give the firm time to see whether the plant can be made competitive on a long-term basis. If employees are dubious about its future, the wage cut also gives them time to look for something more promising.

Everyone, in sum, has a chance to adjust to some hard facts of the business world, where things aren't always the way everyone would like them to be. It's nice to see a union as realistic about that reality.

Howdy Neighbor

By BOYD PIERCE

The boy who never tells the truth may even grow up to be a weatherman.

Remember your teenager merely has the faults that you have outgrown.

One little lost boy asked a by-stander, "did you see a lady go by here without me?"

The acid test of man's Sunday religion is his Monday behavior.

In a crowded shoe store recently, the manager told a lady shopper, "Yes, we have loafers. Wait a minute and I'll get one to wait on you."

A woman has the right to open the monthly bills. That is, if she has the courage.

Men often search the world over for their needs only to find that they missed them in their own home town.

Some fellows are lucky: they not only have employers who tell them when to take a vacation—they have wives to tell them where.

International Textile Symposium To Be Held At Tech's Research Center

LUBBOCK—Invitations have gone out to industry, research and educational leaders of both Americans, the Far East, Europe, Africa — wherever fibers are produced and processed — to the International Textile Research Symposium to be held at Texas Tech's Research Center Oct. 30-31.

The symposium is timed to bring the world's textile industry leaders to Texas Tech for the open house at the recently expanded Textile Research Center, itself a rarity in textile research.

The center will be the "only university related research laboratory in the nation capable of performing textile operations on a commercial scale from fiber processing to dyed and finished materials," according to Director John R. Bradford, dean of the Tech School of Engineering.

Dr. Bradford recently attended the International Cotton Research Symposium in Paris to invite personally speakers and textile industry leaders to the symposium and open house.

Jack D. Towery, director of the Textile Research Center's Physical Measurements Laboratories, is spending six weeks in Indonesia for the Far Eastern Staff of the Aid for International Development, Department of State, and will extend invitations while there and at other points along his tour.

En route to Indonesia he will renew acquaintances with Hong Kong spinners who visited Texas Tech last fall.

He will return by way of Australia and visit three woolen research laboratories. At all stops Towery will be inviting fiber and textile people to the symposium and open house.

"The symposium is devoted to the subject of textiles in a continuously changing economic and social environment," Dr. Bradford said.

"It will provide opportunity for the participants to meet in formal and informal discussion of current problems and progress in the utilization of fibers and textiles.

"Interchange of ideas between the scientific and utilization communities will concern the broad sector of applied research and its relation to the expanding international fibers and textile products industries," he said.

The series of lectures and luncheon and dinner addresses are being planned to explore the subjects of:

Distribution and pattern of textile utilization, fashion and consumer demand;

Fiber properties and functions in blends, as directed by end use;

New developments and broadened potentials in chemical finishing;

Apparel manufacturing methods versus new fabrics; and Innovations in knitting and resulting effect upon the apparel industry.

Dr. Bradford said the key objective of the newly equipped and expanded center are to:

Develop new and improved textiles processing techniques and blends using cotton, wool, and mohair as well as blends of these with synthetic fibers to stimulate new markets.

Evaluate the properties and processing characteristics of natural fibers.

Provide facilities and skilled people to train students in textile engineering, and

To help the textile industry in Texas solve problems of manufacturing . . . from processing of raw stock to the procedures in finishing.

He said the modern mechanical and chemical processing pilot plant and laboratories will provide research on and expedite development of new yarns and fabrics via new processing techniques and finishes.

Academically, the facilities are used by the Department of Textile Engineering to "play a dynamic role in educating students who may assume positions in any sector of the vast industry where fibers are used."

Gov. Preston Smith of Texas called the center "another bold, exciting step toward improving and expanding our fibers industry; toward expanding our industry and agriculture . . . toward helping us realize the true economic and social benefits offered by our vast fibers industry."

Lee Scrivner Is Using Planned Wildlife Program

Lee Scrivner, Hall County SWDC supervisor, who resides 10 miles east of Turkey, has had a definite increase in wildlife since a planned wildlife program was developed.

Scrivner has a 4,896-acre ranch on the south side of Red River. In 1966-67 there was a 14-month period with only four inches of rain. Because of the low rainfall game bird population of dove and quail diminished. With the planned food and cover furnished by Scrivner Ranch, a nucleus of birds survived.

Since that date, the birds have flourished and multiplied rapidly. Due to the planned wildlife program on the Scrivner Ranch, there will be plenty of game birds for hunting this fall.

The number of ducks that stop over the ranch have increased through the years because of the increase in water surface provided by ponds installed under the plan.

Deer and turkey have started coming on to the ranch since the grass cover has improved under Scrivner's wildlife plan.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Good Hay and Grazing From Johnsongrass

"If you can't fight it — join it."

This is a good rule to follow if Johnsongrass invades your hay pasture, according to one Extension agronomist with Texas A&M University. Costs of herbicides to control the "weed" are much more than fertilizer costs, Dr. J. Neal Pratt points out.

"Nutrient value of Johnsongrass is comparable to many of the cultivated grasses grown for forage or hay and livestock can utilize it as well," he continued. If the Johnsongrass is to be baled it should be cut in the "boot" stage, or right before seed heads form. An application of fertilizer according to soil tests will help it grow rapidly and maintain nutrients.

Chemicals can be used to control other undesirable plants in the hay field. Although other herbicides have been registered for use in pastures, 2,4-D is still Texas' favorite for control of broadleaf weeds. About a pound of the chemical in 15 to 20 gallons of water per acre will give effective weed control and not harm the Johnsongrass.

A reapplication of fertilizer following each cutting, or about every six weeks when grazing, will make for high quality feed.

It is important to keep in mind, the agronomist said, to keep Johnsongrass under control and not allow it to enter cultivated row crops.

Horn Fries Cause Weight Losses Among Cattle
Horn flies are a continuous problem on beef animals in Hall County during the warm months, says county agent W. B. Hooser. These blood-sucking parasites frequently develop large populations in county beef herds, he advises. In addition to the direct damage through blood losses, horn flies cause tremendous annoyances and irritation to animals. The constant attempts to fight the flies is a continuing drain on the animals' energy and nutrition, and the cattle may be unable to graze normally. Days and weeks of such attack results in immeasurable losses by the animals, Hooser points out.

Horn flies are easily controlled with modern livestock insecticides, Hooser says. Numerous insecticides and methods of treatment are effective and the producer has a wide range of choices to fit his individual operation. Hooser invites all producers to call or drop by his office where a complete listing of horn fly control recommendations can be obtained.

Cattle Grubs Cause Extensive Losses to Livestock Producers
Cattle grubs cost the Texas livestock industry several million dollars each year. Losses to this pest are an important problem in Hall County according to W. B. Hooser, county agricultural agent. Losses occur at all levels in the production and marketing chain, he says. The cow-calf producer is concerned about the reduction in milk production by mother cows and resulting reduced weaning weights of calves. The feeder's profit losses as a result of reduced gains and a lower market price for grubby animals. The packer who buys and slaughters carcasses trim increased handling costs and lowered carcass value. Consequently, cattle grub cost deserves the attention of the tire beef cattle industry, Hooser points out.

Cattle grubs can be effectively controlled through the proper use of systemic insecticides, Hooser advises. Depending upon the operation, systems can be administered as dips, sprays, back pour-ons, mineral mixes or additives. Cost of these treatments vary with the method and chemical selected, but generally, less than 50 cents per animal most instances.

Hooser has a complete list of chemicals and methods of treatment for systemic cattle grub control. He urges beef cattle producers to call or drop by his office for the recommendations.

There are a few honest ers who tell the "hole" truth.

A regular business session was then held by the Auxiliary. Delegates to the Department convention, to be held July 18-20 in San Antonio, were announced and include: Mmes. Gregory, Billy Ballaw, John McCauley, Paula Sherry, Jay Stone, Milton Ellis and Joyce Webster.

Members voted to increase dues to $4.00 for 1970. Mrs. Webster gave a report on the Girls State delegates, Irene Foxhall and Nancy Voyles, who were then in Austin. It was also noted that the Auxiliary's youngest member, Nelda Gay Stone, had performed her first duties for the group by presenting Memorial Day poppies to the patients at Hall County Hospital and Cousins Home.

Do With Love

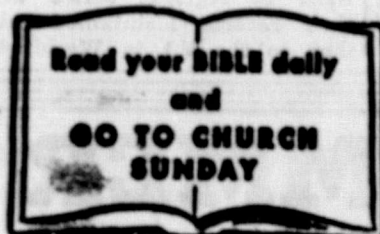

"Be watchful, stand firm in your faith, be courageous, be strong, let all that you do be done in love."
—I Corinthians 16:13, 14

Do with love, and the task is easier. Avoid self-love for it limits the capacity to do good works and shortens the eyesight to a world in shallow perspective.

Let all that you do be done in love, remembering the great example of the life of Christ, a life of giving, a life of service.

Learn to do with love and you will find your share of happiness.

Local Delegates Attend Meeting Of ACS June 17

Dr. Martin L. Dalton told delegates at the district annual meeting of the American Cancer Society in Lubbock Tuesday, June 17, that "we are beginning to win the battle against cancer."

Delegates from Memphis representing the Hall County Chapter who attended the district meeting included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd McIntosh and Mrs. Ellis Rogers.

In this address, Dr. Dalton called for a revolution in cancer control to create a cancer-free world. He offered the following suggestions:

1. Get more educational messages to the people by involving the vitality of youth and more adult citizens on education committees.

2. Reach more "high risk" populations with information they can understand and help them find treatment facilities.

3. Seek out cancer patients who need service; find what help is available from the community; and see that the patient receives the best that the ASC and the total community can give them. Curt Reimnor of the division headquarters in Austin also addressed the group. He discussed the society's points for special emphasis in 1969-70.

A new feature added to the meetings this year included a Plans and Evaluations Session during which state committee members, district directors, and unit volunteers discussed and established broad cancer control objectives for the coming year.

Hall County received an award for exceeding its fund drive quota at the district meeting. Roy L. Coleman, county chairman, announced.

completely new concept in the State of Texas.

It was the opinion of those men attending the meeting that the road would be a tremendous tourist attraction, and the formation of the organization was needed if further progress was to be made in the effort.

Attending, in addition to those already named, were A. L. Galley of Memphis, Travis Aaron, district manager of Southwestern Public Service of Amarillo, Byron Edwards of Henrietta, one of the property owners involved, and Chamber President J. B. Scott.

Problems facing the project were aired at the meeting.

Rep. Healy said that Palo Duro Canyon was the biggest tourist attraction in the Panhandle of Texas or the West Texas area, and that it seemed to him it was Texas' best kept secret. "We need to let the touring public know about the Grand Canyon of Texas," Healy said.

The proposed route would pass through some of the most rugged and scenic country the Panhandle of Texas has to offer. This is the reason the road would be unique if it was constructed under a "scenic" designation.

The social highlight of Boys State was the Governor's Ball Friday evening at which 250 Boy Staters vied for the attention of 400 young ladies who accepted invitations to attend.

For the Memphis delegates, the Boys State activities began with a briefing in Amarillo May 24 at which the boys were encouraged to have a regional spirit during elections and to enter fully into the spirit of the Boys State program.

The schedule called for the boys to be up at 5:15 a. m. and out for their callisthenics. On Wednesday morning, the Boy Staters were surprised by a visit from Texas Governor Preston Smith who spoke to them about his own system of taking exercises and demonstrated techniques he used to keep in shape.

One of the boys said the thing that surprised him the most was that, after the long hours of campaigning for candidates, after the elections were over and winners announced, the "heat" of the campaign was soon forgotten and a sense of unity was achieved.

The boys also reported that was quite an experience to live with other boys their own age. "We had a few incidents where the counselors had to use a m. track meet discipline to settle things down one of them said.

It is interesting to watch the monks gather food. This little animal, about six inches long, can carry a tremendous amount of food in the pouch of its elastic cheek.
