Shuttle's third try success

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery finally soared into orbit today on its thrice-delayed maiden flight, carrying three communications satellites and a crew that includes NASA's second woman astronaut and its first paying passenger.

After a last-minute wait to get a pair of small airplanes out of the way, Discovery lifted off into blue, cloudless skies on a mission critical to rebuilding confidence in the shuttle's commercial reliability that has been shaken by the series of postponements.

Nine minutes after the fiery departure at 8:42 a.m., Mission Control in Houston reported the launch was perfect and the new ship and its six astronauts were in orbit 184 miles high and streaking around the globe at 17,400 mph.

"We are happy the orbiter and its crew finally left town," said launch director Bob Sieck. "The launch team is ecstatic. The only way to get over an abort and two postponements is to have a successful launch."

"I know it's been kind of rough, turning this thing around ... and getting it ready to go again," commander Henry Hartsfield, 50, told the control center shortly before launch. "We're ready to go and we thank you for it."

The flight combines two missions into one as NASA struggles to get back on schedule and packs 24 tons of cargo, the heaviest yet for a shuttle.

Also aboard the 132-ton ship is a drug factory that will manufacture a hormone whose identity has been kept a secret but which is said to be of potential benefit to millions.

Discovery's inaugural, the 12th shuttle flight, began almost seven minutes late because two private aircraft had penetrated the Kennedy Space Center airspace.

Bid letting Thursday...

Project expanded to rework armory

Bids were scheduled to be opened at 2 p.m. Thursday for renovation and expansion work planned at Snyder's National Guard Armory.

Some $600,000 has been targeted for the work — the first major repair project for the facility since it was constructed in 1957.

Current plans call for a 3,200 sq. ft. addition to the existing building plus a "substantial amount of paving," according to Donald Kerr, director of the Texas National Guard Armory Board in Austin.

The work is being funded through a combination of state and federal dollars.

Expansion plans call for the addition of a small caliber weapons target range which is to be enclosed and dug into the bank of earth south behind the armory.

Also, additional supply storage space is to be constructed and the armory's classroom facilities are to be expanded.

With the added 3,200 sq. ft., the total square footage of the facility is to increase to some 19,200 sq. ft.

Renovation will entail a new roof, repainting both the interior and exterior, replacing lighting fixtures and the addition of a central heating and cooling unit for the administrative areas.

The Snyder project is one of 21 statewide now being undertaken by the Armory Board.

Kerr said that some $20 million is being channeled into the work, entailing a split of both state and federal funds.

Abilene is the only other area city targeted for this work, he said.

Once bids are opened Thursday, he said there will be a 30-day period before these are officially let. He estimated a six-month period between Thursday's bid opening and completion of the project.

Gary Guenthner, agency engineer for the Armory Board, is expected to be in Snyder Thursday for the bid-opening.

Designers for the project are the Big Spring architectural firm of Gary and Associates. They are expected to have a representative present also.

'Not like the stage'...

UIL 'best' actor gains movie role

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

David Etheredge, who earned praise from UIL judges this past school year as John Proctor in "The Crucible," has recently added another acting experience — making a movie.

Earlier this summer he was in Sweetwater for two days of shooting on the "Red Desert Penitentiary," by Dutch director George Sluizer.

Etheredge describes the movie as a comedy-spoof centering around a group of people making a movie — a western. He plays a Harvard student who appears in a flashback scene of the screenwriter's life.

The movie is being filmed on a low budget and the actors and actresses were not paid for their work. But even without salary, Etheredge said he considers the two days of actual filming a worthwhile experience because of the exposure, adding "it's something for the resume."

He said the movie would wind up filming in Sweetwater soon. Tentative plans call for the film to be released next summer, but he said that it would be shown at European film festivals first.

He said he found movie making quite a change of pace. "It's 90 percent wait and 10 percent film," he said. "The waiting is dull, but it's worth it."

Scenes takes hours to set up. During one day's shooting, he said they all worked some 15 hours to get about 10 minutes worth of film.

Since everyone in the crew spoke Dutch, communication was a problem. Etheredge added at times he felt like a prop because of all the stage directions given by crew members.

"The director knew what he was doing and even though handicapped by communication he was able to get the actors to do what he wanted them to do," he said.

Etheredge transferred to Snyder High School from Roscoe to be able to study drama in classes offered by local high school theatre teacher Jerry Worsham.

The decision paid off this school year as he earned top UIL honors including best actor at the state competition for Class AAAA.

Etheredge's brief film making experience has made him "want to and not want to" pursue a film career further.

"It didn't seem that glamorous, more like a lot of hard work," he said.

Yet the experience has whetted his appetite and someday Etheredge may pursue a career in the movies, he said.

However, for the moment his first love is drama. "On stage you just have one chance to get it right. In the movies you can do it over and over again until you get what you want.

"The theatre is an individual effort whereas movies are a group effort," he continued. "I now appreciate stage roles more."

Etheredge learned about the movie tryouts through friends in Sweetwater. He was one of the youngest to try out and to his knowledge is the youngest to be

Snyder ISD tax rate due hearing tonight

A public hearing related to setting a new Snyder school district tax rate is scheduled Thursday at 6 p.m. in the school administration board room.

Last year's tax rate was 35½ cents per $100 valuation — a rate which in part financed a budget of some $11.1 million.

The school budget approved this year equals $12.4 million and school officials have speculated the rate will likely go to at least 42 cents.

Because of a drop in the overall tax base for the district — mainly due to a $1 million decline in oil values — the district would be forced to raise the rate to at least 37 cents to raise the same amount of taxes generated last year.

Further reductions in school income occurred with the loss of some $1.4 million in state revenues. This was brought about by legislation passed this summer which reapportioned funds to Texas school districts — basing the allocation on the district's "ability to raise local taxes."

The net result distributed more state funds to districts with small tax bases and taking away funds from district's like Snyder which have large oil-based tax revenues.

The new budget equals an 11.8 percent increase over last year with increased salaries contributing to a large portion of the increase. For the year, salaries are expected to cost the district $9.2 million.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "With hospital costs what they are, it's impossible for anyone to be ill at ease."

Shelia Stanley is one of the newest employees here at the Snyder Daily News--working in bookkeeping and circulation records.

A couple of weekends ago, Shelia and young son Robert were visiting Shelia's mother who lives in Lubbock. They attended church together and witnessed a most amusing event.

A couple of rows in front of Shelia was a youngster about three years old. The lad apparently was feeling good despite getting up early on a Sunday morning. He was into everything. He pulled all the hymn books out of the racks, climbed under the pews and over the pews.

He was constant motion and despite his parents' effort to calm him down, his energy seemed to increase as the worship service continued.

Finally in exasperation, the mother yanked the youngster up to take him outside. By then everyone was watching the ordeal.

As the perturbed mother started down the aisle, the boy began to shout, "Pray for me, pray for me."

Shelia said the mother and son never returned, and from the look on the mother's face, a prayer for the youngster would certainly have been in order.

Mark Musselman, loan officer over at First Federal, said he was out playing the WTC golf course recently when he observed two preachers playing up ahead.

They were typical weekend golfers--just enough good shots to make them come back and try that ridiculous game again. Every time the preacher would shank the ball he would shout, "Hoover."

This was repeated on several holes, so Musselman got curious and inquired. "How come everytime you miss a shot, you holler 'Hoover.'"

"Well," said the preacher, "Hoover is the only dam I know."

Doggett challenges Gramm

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett says his opponent, U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, should seek the removal of a state Republican Party official who criticized efforts to register Hispanics to vote.

Doggett called a news conference Wednesday to challenge Gramm to seek the dismissal of state Republican Party vice chairman Diana Denman.

Doggett issued a news release and played a videotape of Ms. Denman, both quoting her as saying the Southwest Voter Registration Education Project is "looking for people they can control."

The project, which works to register Hispanics to vote, registers "people in the left-wing areas of the churches that are not going for the betterment of their own people," she said.

"We (Republicans) are registering the right kind of people who go out to work and support the future of this country," she said.

Doggett termed Ms. Denman's statement "a slap in the face" of Mexican Americans "and of every Texan committed to voter registration."

He said Gramm, who represents Texas' 6th District in Congress, apparently tolerates such statements.

He said Gramm had been asked about the statements during a news conference in Austin Tuesday, but he did not express disagreement with them.

Gramm, R-College Station, was contacted in Washington but did not respond directly to Doggett's challenge.

"I for one, want to see everyone turn out and vote so that the November election will reflect the will of the people of Texas," he said.

"I see no evidence to lead me to believe that Walter Mondale and Lloyd Doggett are interested in a broad-based turnout. They have given up on winning the hearts and minds of the people and have based their campaigns on appealing almost exclusively to the special interest groups."

Doggett said Ms. Denman's statement "has no place in American politics. Ms. Denman was speaking as an official of the Republican Party in Texas — not as a private citizen. Had such a statement been made by a person in high office in the Democratic Party, I would have repudiated and disavowed it totally and committed myself to an attempt to remove that person from such a leadership position.

Arab organization plans to investigate arrest of nationals from Middle East

DALLAS (AP) — An Arab-American organization says it plans to investigate the arrest of nine Middle East nationals in connection with alleged terrorist plots against the Republican National Convention.

Joe Chamy, vice president of the Dallas area chapter of the National Association of Arab Americans, complained Wednesday that the men were arrested simply because of their nationality and "guilt by association."

Federal and local law enforcement authorities confirmed this week that the nine men arrested on immigration charges were believed to be plotting some kind of attack. Officials said they were never able to substantiate that the men never intended to threaten convention security, even after given them lie detector tests.

"There's an effort now being made by the Arab-American Anti-Discrimination Committee to look into this situation," Chamy told the Dallas Morning News. "We want to find out exactly what has brought this whole scenario about and make a full study of it.

"These are people who were arbitrarily isolated in this case," he said.

Chamy said the nine — including four Iranians, four Jordanians and one Syrian — were held for about 10 days before being released. The nine include eight students in their 20s and the father of three of the men, the News reported. They were initially held without bond in Lew Sterret Justice Center.

All were out of jail by last Friday on reduced bonds, according to Wallace Heitman, the attorney for five of the men.

Heitman said he knew of no terrorist plot against the Convention Center and that his clients were not involved in any of the Iranian student protests during the GOP gathering.

Youth who fled funeral turns himself in to police

FORT WORTH — A 16-year-old boy wanted for questioning in connection with his brother's death has surrendered after disappearing from the funeral last week, authorities said.

Mark Evans Johnson of Haltom City disappeared Friday after he was released by juvenile authorities to attend his 14-year-old brother's funeral.

His brother, Scott, was shot to death Aug. 21.

At the time of his brother's death, Johnson was free on bond awaiting trial on attempted capital murder charges in a January shooting involving a Fort Worth police officer, Tarrant County Juvenile Judge Scott Moore said.

Moore had ordered Johnson held for questioning in his brother's shooting but granted a release Friday to allow the youth to attend the funeral.

Police said family members convinced Johnson to turn himself in. The youth showed up at the family's home Monday night and surrendered to a Haltom City police detective Tuesday morning, authorities said.

Johnson was being held in Tarrant County Jail without bond in connection with the attempted capital murder charge, Tarrant County assistant district attorney Brent Carr said.

BEAUTY BRIEFS

Florence De Santis

Non-soap bars

It may look like soap and act like soap, but it isn't soap if it's labeled a "complexion bar," "beauty bar," "body bar" or a similar name.

"Bar" formulas are based on ingredients other than soap to get a neutral, rather than skin-drying, alkaline factor.

Soap can strip the skin temporarily of its natural moisture shield, but "bars" leave a feeling of softness.

They are recommended to replace soap for women with dry or sensitive skin.

Help for lips

Several new lip care products are touted as preventing lipstick "bleed." They are designed to smooth out the skin above the lips where fine vertical lines form, making it hard to trace an even color line.

These are essentially moisturizing conditioners. The lip smoothers can be used whether you're wearing lipstick or not to combat the aging look of lip lines.

If lines aren't a problem, get a cleaner lipstick outline by powdering the lips lightly before applying lipstick. Wipe away the powder before you add lipstick.

Top player handcuffs East

By James Jacoby

Californian Grant Baze is leading this year's race in "The Top 500." That means he has won more master points in tournament competition in 1984 than any other player. There are four months to go, and anything can happen, but my money is on Grant to win it. Today's deal shows why.

Probing for slam with South's hand is a tedious process. Yes, declarer could be missing the diamond ace and the spade ace if the strength of the North hand is all in kings, queens and jacks. Grant bid six diamonds anyway, taking his chances.

Grant won the ace of hearts, played a diamond to the nine, and trumped a low heart. He played a diamond to the ace and led the queen of hearts. When East covered with the king, declarer simply discarded a spade. Slam was now assured, since leading into either black A-Q combination would give South 12 tricks, and a heart back would accomplish the same result since declarer would sluff a spade from his hand and ruff in dummy.

It's an easy book play, and one that all of us would probably find if the hand were presented to us as a problem. Yet it is surprising how often such a play is missed in actual competition. Not by Grant Baze, though.

Houston reaches settlement in old desegregation lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — The city's school board and attorneys for two minority groups reached an out-of-court agreement early today aimed at settling a 28-year-old desegregation lawsuit.

The only obstacle remaining is formal approval from U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor and the Justice Department, which lawyers for the Houston Independent School District predicted could take "several weeks."

The settlement capped four tense, emotionally-charged days of negotiations between the school district, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund.

"This is the highlight of my 10 years in Houston," said Superintendent Billy Reagan. "I think the children in the district are the great winners tonight."

The school board voted 5-0 Wednesday to offer an out-of-court settlement similar to an earlier proposal by the NAACP. Lawyers for the NAACP and the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund later made changes in the board's proposal.

The board made a few minor changes late Wednesday, then sent it back to the two groups, which accepted the $13.5 million package.

"I was pleasantly surprised with their proposals," said NAACP attorney Lowell Johnston.

The offer contained 24 provisions, including a proposal of a 60-40 ratio of minority group students to white students at magnet schools in an inner-city school district of 117,546 students.

In addition, it also suggested continuing desegregation in the present form but without federal court supervision and appointing a seven-member committee to monitor student achievement throughout the district.

After five years, the three groups will be able to drop the agreement, renew it for two or three years or extend it indefinitely, attorneys said.

The NAACP had proposed changing magnet programs to allow 65 percent minority students and 35 percent white students to enroll, beginning in the 1985 school year.

NAACP attorneys argued that the current 50-50 ratio limits participation by black students. They said the district's refusal to concede the issue was a major reason for a walkout by NAACP negotiators during talks Monday.

Records show that 19.9 percent of the district's students are white, 42 percent are black, 34.6 percent Hispanic and 3.5 percent Asian.

Two of the three black members of the nine-member school board stormed out of the meeting before the proposal was announced.

"This case needs to go to court," Herbert Melton said as he left the room. He followed Elizabeth Spates, who said, "The board is trying to change every word in the counterproposal."

O'Conor earlier told attorneys that if a settlement was not reached, testimony would begin Wednesday on the school district's request for dismissal of the lawsuit filed 28 years ago by two black students seeking to attend all-white schools.

Parties to the negotiations were scheduled to return to federal court Wednesday evening. Later, however, the hearing was delayed to allow attorneys to continue negotiations.

On Dec. 27, 1776, the Continental Congress granted George Washington dictatorial powers for six months, the same day that he had won the Battle of Trenton. He had been chosen commander-in-chief in 1775 when the War of Independence began.

Derwin Thompson graduates from corresponsdence course

Derwin Thompson, vice-president at West Texas State Bank, was one of 386 bankers who graduated Friday from the Herbert V. Prochnow Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

The course entailed two years work with two weeks devoted each summer to classroom actvities. In all, Thompson said they worked on nine banking problems throughout the correspondence course.

Thompson said they were exposed to many different banking philosophies not "seen in Texas."

After years of scientific research, marketing and testing, it has finally been revealed that children can open child-proof caps on medicine bottles faster than adults.

In a significant number of cases, it was confirmed that the child-proof caps could not be opened at all by adults and caused headaches for which here is no known cure.

The message to me is quite clear. Child-proof is a fantasy word that was invented to give mothers hope ... like "wrinkle-free" and "one-size-fits-all." They're catchy, but they don't mean anything.

The way I figured it out, it's God's way of propagating the species. We need kids. We cannot function in this world without them. As long as there are hermetically sealed combs in packages, children will always be with us.

To them, there is no place in this world that is "out of reach" and no package made that cannot be ripped open in 35 seconds.

They can take the bell out of a ball when they are three months old, find the end of the toilet tissue roll at six months, and scale the top of the refrigerator by age one.

By age three they can operate a lipstick tube, by age four they can find the beginning of the thread that is pasted under the label, and by five can disconnect the TV and install video games.

The way the world is going, I don't think it's too unrealistic to consider rent-a-kids for people with arthritis who ever want to get sliced bacon out of a package in their lifetime. Or how about a woman with long fingernails who has never been able to use a shopping cart because they are all welded together and can only be separated by a pre-schooler? Women climbing the corporate ladder would do well to rent-a-kid to take along on business trips if only to open the bag of airline smoked almonds.

Sometimes I feel package manufacturers don't know children at all. If you want to keep children out of something, what do you do? You put a cute little duck on the side of the package and the words, "vitamin enriched." Then the mother puts the bottle or jar within reach of the child with the lid off and says, "There is not a day goes by that I don't want you to have one of these. Help yourself."

Trust me, the bottle will never be touched.

Alan Crittenden, editor of "The Almanac of Investments," says that while Olympic commemorative coins help the U.S. Olympic teams, they are a poor investment. He says 1984 Olympic silver coins have a face value of $1 but sell for $38, while 1984 Olympic gold coins have a $10 face value but sell for $376. Even their value as collector's coins is low because the large number that will be minted insures that rarity will not come overnight, if at all, says Crittenden.

Teen Learns Painful Lesson: His Troubles Are His Fault

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm enclosing one of your articles. In it is a terrific lesson for every young person. Please run it again. It is more needed today that it was when I clipped it from your column in 1970.

YOUR FAN IN STEUBENVILLE, OHIO

DEAR FAN: I agree, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and in a pack of trouble. I was arrested for burglary and other charges. This was not my first time, so I am locked up in Cambridge, Minn., awaiting trial. I would like to express some of the things I have learned in the 121 days I have been here.

One is that you should listen to your parents, as they will never steer you wrong. I never got along too good with my dad. Every time he tried to talk to me we got into a heated argument, but now I realize if I had listened to him, I wouldn't be here.

I would also like to tell kids, don't quit school to go out and make money. I did, and look where I ended up.

Also, there are no shortcuts. A guy needs all the education he can get. And another thing. Don't blame your mistakes on other people. My friends showed me how to break the law, but I am the one who now must take full responsibility for my own actions. I will probably get sent up to St. Cloud's, but thanks, Abby, for letting me say this. Also, I want to thank Sheriff Erickson. He is a swell guy. He let me use his typewriter to write to you. Sincerely,

"THE CAMBRIDGE BUM"

DEAR SIR: You're young yet, so don't go calling yourself a "bum." You can pay your debt and still amount to something if you really want to. I talked to Sheriff Erickson, and he told me you had already been sent to St. Cloud. He said he certainly hoped you would straighten yourself out because you had a lot of good in you, in addition to being exceptionally smart. I believe him. I wish you luck.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a woman who has had her tubes tied two years ago to get pregnant by a man who said he had a vasectomy?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: If the tubes were not properly tied and the vasectomy was not properly performed, it's possible, though statistically unlikely.

More often than not, the woman is victimized by a man who claims to have been vasectomized but wasn't.

Lebanon mourns fallen chief

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival Moslems and Christians united today in mourning Pierre Gemayel, the father of Lebanon's president and a dominant figure from the nation's fight for independence through its long civil war.

As preparations got under way for the burial, Gemayel's Phalange Party militia clashed with Druse fighters south of Beirut, and rival Moslem militias battled in Tripoli, bringing the death toll in that city to 23 in three days.

In much of Lebanon church bells tolled, flags flew at half staff and radio stations played sad music in tribute to the nation's most prestigious Christian leader, the fallen founder of the Phalange Party. He died Wednesday at age 78 of a heart attack.

The government has declared a three-day national mourning for Gemayel, beginning today. His funeral was scheduled for this evening in Bikfaya, his mountaintop hometown where he died, 10 miles northeast of Beirut.

In his will, Gemayel wrote that he wanted to be buried at the family cemetery in a simple wooden coffin next to his slain son, Bashir, and Bashir's daughter, Maya, who was killed in a car bomb blast at age 4 in 1979, an official announcement said.

Bashir was elected by Parliament in 1982, but was assassinated before his inauguration. His brother, Amin, was then elected president and has held the office for the last two years.

Pierre Gemayel's death casts a further shadow on the nation's already dimming chances of halting the nine-year civil war. Only former President Camille Chamoun, a fellow Christian and political rival, came close to Gemayel in national influence.

Lebanon's Shiite Moslem warlord, Nabih Berri, and his Druse ally, Walid Jumblatt, offered their condolences in separate telephone calls to President Gemayel. Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, praised Pierre Gemayel in a statement read over radio stations.

Arab heads of state and one Israeli leader expressed sympathy with the Lebanese people over the loss of Gemayel.

"I share you sadness over the loss of a father and a leading Cabinet member of your administration," Syrian President Hafez Assad said in a message of condolence to the Lebanese head of state.

King Hussein of Jordan and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak cabled similar messages, and Israeli premier-designate Shimon Peres issued a statement praising the elder Gemayel.

Chedli Klibi, secretary-general of the Arab League, arrived to offer condolences, the state radio said.

The overnight battles near Beirut pitted Gemayel's "Lebanese Forces" militia against Jumblatt's Druse fighters in artillery and rocket duels in the Kharroub region northeast of Israel's defense line in Lebanon.

The hostilities broke a five-month truce in the region abutting Jumblatt's strongholds in the Chouf mountains. No casualty estimates were available in the battle, which police said ended at daybreak.

Although spear-slinging was known to primitive man, the javelin throw was not introduced to Olympic competition until the 1908 Games in London. he had just met with the president, to the Virgin Islands for a religious service, the White House confirmed. AP 12, UPI 0. By R. Gregory Nokes.

Menopause has varied symptoms

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My gynecologist is not giving me a satisfactory answer to this question. At age 31, I had a total hysterectomy. I am now 37. I have had no adverse or unusual symptoms and I do not take hormones. My gynecologist said I should let her know if I get depressed often or start to have hot flashes.

I am in excellent physical condition and really feel wonderful. My question is, will I go through the menopause? At what age? What should I expect to have happen to my body?

DEAR READER — Your lack of symptoms even though you are not taking hormones, and the early age for your hysterectomy suggest that your uterus was removed but your ovaries were left in. You should find out if this is true.

If it is, your ovaries are functioning just like those of any other young woman, unless you have or had some form of ovarian disease. Your ovaries will sputter to a stop in time, just like those of other women, when you reach menopause. The age of onset does vary.

Unlike most women, you won't see any change in menstrual periods, since you don't have a uterus, but if you have your ovaries, they are still on a regular cycle.

Not every woman has symptoms with the menopause, other than the change in menstrual periods. That may be because the adrenal gland produces enough estrogen to prevent the symptoms so many women experience.

You should be informed about what to expect when menopause occurs, so I am sending you The Health Letter 5-12, Menoapuse. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newsapaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York,NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — At an early age, my boyfriend was told he had a heart murmur. His parents were told that he would outgrow it and that it was no cause for concern. He is now 26, quite athletic and in very good physical condition. His blood pressure is extremely low, and doctors have always commented that his heart is very strong and he will live to an old age. No mention has been made of the heart murmur.

On occasion, he has experienced a sharp chest pain and a slight shortness of breath which momentarily has forced him to pause and wait for it to pass. When he had a physical for a job, the physician detected the heart murmur, but noted he was in fine physical shape. Now he is concerned about this pain and is considering consulting a cardiologist. We would greatly appreciate your advice.

DEAR READER — By all means, have him see a cardiologist. He will be much happier knowing what the murmuring sound really is. I must tell you that many individuals really in top physical condition have heart murmurs. The heart normally enlarges as it responds to vigorous sustained exercise. That is part of physical training. The heart rate slows and the blood pressure tends to be low. That larger, slow-pumping heart pumps a lot of blood with each beat and a murmur is not uncommon. But even outstanding athletes can have a murmur from some abnormality of the heart.

Your boyfriend's pain is not typical of heart pain and is more likely related to pleural pain or muscular pain or even being anxious about his physical status. I doubt that it is important in terms of his heart.

Street people collect cans

ATLANTA (AP) — Rick and Cherokee are the envy of their peers. They make decent money, wear designer clothes and own more watches than a jewelry store.

They are "canners," members of a population of scroungers who collect aluminum cans.

The $150-$200 a week the two young men earn affords them lifestyles that are luxurious by the standards of many of their peers.

Rick and Cherokee, the only names by which they say they are known, live under a bridge. Their place is furnished.

"Some people think we'll just crawl right into a Dumpster," said Rick, who wears a Sassoon shirt. "That ain't so. I look it over and if I see maggots — even if the Dumpster's full of cans — don't want it. I got standards."

No one knows how many canners there are in Atlanta. They tend to blend into the street scene, part of the city that is seen but seldom noticed.

"The competition's gotten bad," Rick told The Atlanta Constitution.

Rick and Cherokee used to work Ponce de Leon Avenue in the inner city, but moved out when they figured there were 200 canners in the neighborhood.

Now they scavenge in a close-in suburb, leaving their lair at daybreak and walking a 10-mile route.

Rick, a former fruit picker from Florida, has to slow down for his older companion, who limps badly from injuries he says he suffered when he stepped on a land mine in Vietnam. By 1:30 p.m., when the nearest recycling center opens, they sell their catch.

Their home is a sort of alfresco split-level above a north Atlanta creek. In the basement, a sand bar, they sit and fish. The next level, atop a clay bank, is their living room, with lawn chairs and crate furniture.

There's a cast-iron cooker, a collection of comics and a battery-powered television.

The top level, a strip of soil above a bank of crushed rock, is a sort of walk-in closet, with clothes hanging from steel supports and the inner edge of the bridge girders serving as shelves.

Goose's beak is restored

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — When Angela Everett's pet goose tangled with a dog Sunday, she wondered if her goose would end up, well, cooked. But a veterinarian's "plastic" surgery has Housa honking happily again.

The feisty, 4-month-old gosling provoked a row with an unwitting neighbor pooch that tore half the upper beak from Housa, leaving the goose unable to eat or drink.

"Most anybody else would say, 'Let's have it for dinner,'" said Ms. Everett, of Ely.

But Dr. Dean Frey grafted a replacement beak of epoxy plastic onto the remainder of Housa's beak, using a procedure he had read about in a veterinary journal.

"I had skim-read it at the time, not knowing I was going to need it," Frey said.

As it turned out, Frey, who has tended to small and exotic animals in the Cedar Rapids area for 22 years, needed only a few scraps to do the work.

"The resin I had was from boat-floor repair," he said. "The plaster of Paris was left over from something else I had a couple of years ago."

Ms. Everett had retrieved the broken-off portion of the beak and decided to put it in the freezer. She then called Frey, and he used the beak portion to make a mold for the replacement. Three wires and two stainless-steel pins hold the green, plastic snout on Housa's face.

Luckily, the break was below the nostrils, so Frey didn't need to carve air holes into the hard plastic.

Ms. Everett got the fluffy, white goose after one of her turkeys died and she wanted a playmate for the surviving fowl.

Investigation into crash not expected to affect program

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The first crash of a B-1 bomber, which killed the manufacturer's chief test pilot and injured two crewmen, will have little or no impact on the future of the controversial aircraft, proponents and critics say.

Air Force investigators converging on this desert base to study Wednesday's fiery crash of the $200 million prototype said it could be months before they determine the cause and why there were casualties when the three-man crew escaped in a parachute-equipped capsule.

The B-1A, one of four prototypes, crashed on sagebrush- and greasewood-dotted federal land about 10 miles northeast of the Mojave Desert base and 75 miles northeast of Los Angeles while on a low-speed, low-altitude test flight.

It came just six days before Rockwell International Corp., the prime contractor for the B-1, was to unveil the first production model of the B-1B, which is to be the bulwark of America's nuclear bomber force.

In Washington, Air Force Lt. Col. Ron Greer said the four-engine plane was engaged in "extremely low-level, extremely low-speed" tests on its 127th test flight.

Development of the B-1 began in 1970, and its history has been characterized by sharp debate.

The Defense Department has argued that the nation needs an advanced, multipurpose bomber with low-flying capabilities to penetrate enemy defenses. Critics say the B-1 is expensive, lacks maneuverability and that its job can be handled by existing B-52s.

After rejection by the Carter administration in late 1977, the B-1 project won a new lease on life from President Reagan. The House and Senate approved Reagan's request for $8.3 billion for 34 B-1 planes in fiscal 1985. Eventually, the Pentagon intends to buy 100 B-1s at a cost now projected at about $28.3 billion.

"Any tragedy like this is bad news," said Wolfgang Demisch, an aerospace analyst at First Boston Corp. "But in terms of the specific B-1 program, I don't expect it to have any impact."

"It shouldn't be a setback," said Rep. Robert Badham, R-Calif., a longtime B-1 supporter. "It's one of those unfortunate things that happen in a test program."

His comments were echoed by some of the plane's detractors, including Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

Nunn told CBS he did not think the crash "has any implications in terms of stopping the B-1B program. I think it may at most slow it down. Any aircraft can crash."

The dead pilot was identified as T.D. "Doug" Benefield, 55, of Marshall, Texas.

Benefield, the chief test pilot for Rockwell's B-1 program, was a veteran of Air Force F-4C Phantom combat missions in Vietnam and the man who made all the early B-1 test flights. He began as a Rockwell test pilot in 1984.

The injured were Maj. Richard V. Reynolds, 35, an Air Force pilot from Hoquiam, Wash., and Capt. Otto J. Waniczek Jr., 30, a flight engineer from Seattle. Both in stable condition at Antelope Valley Hospital in nearby Palmdale.

A formal Aircraft Accident Investigation Board will be named within a few days to probe the crash, Air Force Col. Alan Sabsevitz said Wednesday as investigators began arriving to examine the wreckage and flight tapes.

"It's going to be quite a while.... It can be a matter of months," before the cause is determined, Sabsevitz said.

The B-1B is to replace aging B-52s and eventually carrying up to 14 air-launched cruise missiles with nuclear warheads as well as conventional and nuclear bombs. Senior Airman Tom Bennas said the crashed B-1A carried no warheads, but may have had "dummy" bombs aboard.

The B-1 is designed to fly at low altitudes to avoid radar, which makes it necessary to move at relatively slow speeds to avoid high points in the terrain.

Sen. John Glenn, the former astronaut who made an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, had flown in the same jet during an Aug. 22 stop at Edwards, said spokesman Dale Butland.

Fire in Montana to burn for days

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Windborne flames that have scorched 160,000 acres of forest and prairie leaped battle lines toward more homes, disappointing firefighters as air support and reinforcements from seven states joined the war against fire today.

Residents of the 15-home El Dorado Heights subdivision near Helena were told to evacuate Wednesday after winds shifted the 22,400-acre North Hill fire toward their neighborhood.

"We're not catching up with it now. If we get a break in the winds, we hope to," said Paul May, spokesman for the Department of State Lands.

Authorities classified 18 Montana fires as "major." Because of the number of state and federal agencies involved, there have been no firm figures on the total number of fires still burning. Most of them started last weekend or early this week, presumably by lightning.

The fires have destroyed more than 30 homes and routed more than 500 people.

The 5,000 firefighters on the lines Wednesday were supported by 42 air tankers and 21 helicopters spraying fire retardant chemicals, said Dick Guth, a Forest Service spokesman.

But efforts to control the 75,000-acre Hawk Creek fire that destroyed 30 houses in three hours in the Roundup area Monday were to no avail as gusts carried across fire lines.

Firefighters did make progress at containing a 13,000-acre blaze in north-central Montana and smaller fires elsewhere.

"It's been a disappointing day so far," said another spokesman, Don Kendall. "We didn't accomplish what we wanted today, but we're rapidly building our resources.

"We're in good shape as far as resources, and we have adequate manpower," he said. "Weather is still the deciding factor."

Kendall said one mobile home was destroyed Wednesday and that air tankers dropped retardant chemicals near ranch buildings threatened by the Hawk Creek fire.

May said the fire's perimeter covered an area roughly 30 miles long and eight miles wide. Winds shifted and pushed the fire south to within about eight miles of a housing subdivison near the town of Shepherd north of Billings.

But the good news, he said, was that the fire had moved out of the Bull Mountains onto the prairie. "It's easy to get tankers there," he said.

A truck was heavily damaged by fire Wednesday despite the efforts of Snyder firemen.

Local units were dispatched around 1:20 p.m. to 13th St. and College Ave. Damaged in the blaze was a 1980 GMC pickup owned by Frontier Petroleum Services Inc.

At 10:35 p.m., firemen were called to reported house fire at 1204 20th St.

Cotton

The average price for strict low middling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 11 points to 62.27 cents a pound Wednesday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 25 cents a bale lower to 25 cents higher than previous close. Oct 65.20, Dec 66.28, Mar 68.18, May 69.45, Jul 68.40, Oct b70.00, Dec 70.25.

A cantilever bridge was opened between the United States and Canada at Niagara Falls in 1883. The bridge was the first ever to be called a cantilever.

Staubach can understand pressure Hogeboom feels

DALLAS (AP) - Roger Staubach says he knows the pressure Gary Hogeboom is facing as the new No. 1 quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys.

"I was scared when Coach (Tom) Landry named me to replace Craig Morton," said Staubach. "It'll make you nervous and (take) some getting used to."

Staubach replaced Morton in 1971 and eventually led the Cowboys to two Super Bowl titles.

When Staubach retired five years ago, Danny White took his place but failed to win in three National Conference title games which would have placed the Cowboys in the Super Bowl.

"I guess you could say my taking over from Morton and Gary taking over from White are similar circumstances," Staubach said. "It's never easy. All I know is that when I got scared during a game I ran. I don't know what Hogeboom will do."

Staubach said he wasn't certain "the evidence justified" Hogeboom taking over.

"White is one of the top three quarterbacks in the NFL," Staubach said. "Maybe it was because he didn't get the Cowboys to the Super Bowl that did it. I call that the 'Super Bowl mentality' of Dallas."

The pressure to win the Super Bowl is probably greater in Dallas than any city in the National Football League, Staubach said.

"It's just not much of a season in Dallas if you don't win a championship," Staubach said.

"Look at how great a quarterback Don Meredith was," said Staubach. "If he had won the 'Ice Bowl' game with Green Bay in the late 1960s he might still be quarterbacking the team and winning championships."

Staubach, a fiery performer in his day, is an admirer of Hogeboom.

"I think Gary is a heckuva player," said Staubach. "He is unproven, but he is getting his chance now. I like him - he's a tough cookie."

Staubach said he thinks it would be unfair to play Hogeboom just half of a game and expect results.

"Sometimes I was terrible for three quarters but could pull the game out," said Staubach. "They've got to give him a chance."

Staubach said he felt sorry for White.

"He has really got to be bewildered with as many games as he has won for the Cowboys," he said. "But this has been brewing for awhile. It always does when you don't win the Super Bowl in Dallas."

Oilers won't pocket Rozier in time for the 1984 season

HOUSTON (AP) - Mike Rozier, unable to agree on a price to buy back his contract with the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League, will not play for the National Football League's Houston Oilers this season, an Oilers official said.

Meanwhile, an agent for the player, Philadelphia attorney Art Wilkinson, said he may take action against both leagues as a result.

"We need to take a step back and look at our options," Wilkinson said Wednesday. "No. 1, we go back to the Maulers. No. 2, we take action against the Maulers and the USFL for moving to a fall season, which could be a breach of (Rozier's) contract. No. 3, we take action against the NFL bcause of anti-trust violations because of the supplemental draft."

USFL owners recently decided to switch from their current spring schedule to fall competition beginning in 1986.

Rozier has played one year under a three-year contract worth a reported $3.1 million with the Maulers. The Oilers made him the first player selected in the NFL's supplemental draft of USFL players, gaining exclusive rights among NFL teams to negotiate with Rozier.

Before he could sign with the Oilers, however, Rozier had to resolve his Maulers' contract.

"Art Wilkinson and Mike Rozier were not able to resolve their contract settlement with the Maulers in time to meet the Oilers' deadline of having Mike under contract with the Oilers for the 1984 season," said Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg, who had set a Wednesday deadline.

"We informed Art that any further negotiations with him on our attempts to get Mike under contract will be for the 1985 season and beyond. I don't anticipate any more negotiations until the conclusion of the 1984 season," Herzeg said.

Hernandez aids New York past Los Angeles Dodgers

by The Associated Press

Keith Hernandez had seen the scoreboard and realized the New York Mets needed another victory to keep pace with the high-flying Chicago Cubs.

"With Chicago winning the way they have, the gun barrel has been pointed right between our eyes," said Hernandez, whose double in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Mets a 3-2 victory Wednesday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Cubs had beaten Cincinnati 7-2 earlier in the day for their fourth consecutive victory, and the Mets had to match that streak just to stay within 5½ games in the National League East. They had the right man in the right place at the right time.

Hernandez, whose hit produced his 16th game-winning RBI to tie him with George Hendrick of St. Louis for the league lead, rifled a double into the left-field corner to score Danny Heep.

"This team's got guts," Hernandez continued. "We've risen to the occasion all year."

The latest victory, which gave the Mets a sweep of their three-game series with the Dodgers and a 9-3 edge for the season against Los Angeles, was a textbook example of clutch hitting.

First, with the score tied 1-1 in the seventh, Rusty Staub, with only one pinch hit in his last 22 appearances, doubled to score Mookie Wilson, whose hustle had just turned a routine single to right field into a double.

Then Heep, hitless in his last 19 at-bats as a pinch hitter, started the ninth against Pat Zachry, 5-4, with a bad-hop single. He scored all the way from first on the gamer by Hernandez.

Elsewhere, it was San Diego 2, Philadelphia 0; San Francisco 4, Montreal 3 in 11 innings; St. Louis 10, Atlanta 6; and Pittsburgh 4, Houston 2.

Cubs 7, Reds 2

Chicago won for the ninth time in 11 games with Leon Durham leading the way with a home run, a single and three runs batted in. Bob Dernier broke an 0-for-20 slump with a homer that started a four-run third inning to give Rick Sutcliffe his 11th straight victory. He has a 13-1 NL record since coming over from Cleveland June 13.

The Cubs broke open a tie game in the third. Dernier reached Jeff Russell, 6-15, for his third homer. One one later, Durham hit his 20th, a two-run blast.

Chicago's Ryne Sandberg had three hits, including a double and his major-league-leading 17th triple.

Padres 2, Phillies 0

Mark Thurmond's three-hitter cooled off Philadelphia, which had scored 30 runs in three games and 63 in the last eight. Thurmond, 11-7, who fanned two and walked one, retired the first 11 batters. Loser John Denny, 6-5, limited San Diego to just four hits in eight innings.

Steve Garvey's double-play grounder and a sacrifice fly by Kevin McReynolds accounted for the scoring.

Cardinals 10, Braves 6

Willie McGee drove in four runs, three with a bloop double in the fourth inning and another in a five-run eighth as St. Louis whipped error-prone Atlanta. Trailing 6-5 in the eighth, the Cardinals used three hits and errors by pitcher Donnie Moore and second baseman Jerry Royster to spark their outburst.

Giants 4, Expos 3

Catcher Bob Brenly hit the first inside-the-park home run of his major-league career as San Francisco handed Montreal its sixth straight loss, all by one run.

He hit the first pitch from reliever Dick Grapenthin, 0-2, on the fly to right-center and center fielder Tim Raines missed a diving catch.

AL roundup...

Red Sox winning but can't catch up

by The Associated Press

What a difference a division makes.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 4-0 Wednesday night, leaving both teams with 69-63 records.

The Twins are leading the American League West by three games. The Red Sox are fifth in the AL East, a whopping 17½ games behind Detroit.

"I wish we were in it right now," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said when reminded of the disparity in the two divisions.

Mike Easler delivered run-scoring singles with two outs in the fourth and sixth innings to help Boston match Minnesota's mark this season.

"It's a little bit frustrating, and you think about it," Easler said.

In other AL games, California clubbed Baltimore 7-5, Chicago hammered Toronto 8-5, Cleveland tripped Milwaukee 5-2, Kansas City beat Texas 4-1, Seattle stopped Detroit 5-1 and New York downed Oakland 4-1.

Boston's Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who has lost a trio of four-hitters this season, pitched a two-hitter for the victory.

"You expect to lose some close games, but I knew things would turn around," said Boyd, 9-9. "I was really concentrating with men on base and making sure I didn't give them any fat pitches.

"I love playing, I love pitching and right now I'm enjoying my season," he said.

The right-hander allowed only one clean hit - Kirby Puckett's line single that led off the fourth inning. The other hit came in the sixth when shortstop Jackie Gutierrez lost Tim Teufel's popup in the Metrodome lights and it fell for a single.

The Twins have lost four of their last six games and have scored just 12 runs during that time.

"We're due to break out," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner. "We'll bounce back tomorrow."

Mariners 5, Tigers 1

Rookie Mark Langston took over the AL strikeout lead while bedazzling Detroit with a two-hitter. The left-hander fanned 12 Tigers, boosting his strikeout total to 167, three ahead of California's Mike Witt.

Langston did not allow a hit after the second inning, when the Tigers took the lead on an RBI single by Rusty Kuntz.

Then, with the score tied 1-1 in the fifth at the Kingdome, Jack Perconte produced a one-out bunt single and Phil Bradley also singled. Alvin Davis blooped an RBI single and Ken Phelps followed with a three-run homer. Phelps' 22nd homer came off Dan Petry, 15-8.

The victory broke Seattle's five-game losing streak.

Tech backs injured; may miss few games

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Texas Tech football coach Jerry Moore found Wednesday that trouble comes in twos after learning Red Raiders tailback Robert Lewis will miss a month of contact drills because of a fractured arm and tailback Timmy Smith has a broken wrist.

Lewis, the starter and the team's leading rusher with 750 yards last season, suffered the injury in a scrimmage Tuesday.

Trainer Ken Murray described the injury as a non-displaced fracture of the forearm. Lewis, a senior from Greenville, Texas, will be able to participate in all team drills except contact, Murray said, but he'll likely miss the season opener Sept. 15 against Texas-Arlington.

Smith, of Hobbs, N.M., had been a contender for the starting job in light of the Lewis injury but Murray said Wednesday that his broken left wrist, also suffered Tuesday, normally takes six weeks to heal.

With the first two tailbacks on the depth chart sidelined, juniors Ansel Cole of San Antonio and Gerald Bean of Houston will vie for the starting job.

Sports in brief

TENNIS

NEW YORK (AP) - Favorites Martina Navratilova and John McEnroe breezed into the second round of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, as most of the top-seeded players found the first-round competition relatively easy pickings.

Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, the No. 2 seed in the men's singles, began the barrage, downing Brian Teacher 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. Then Navratilova knocked off fellow American Lea Antonoplis 6-4, 6-2, and McEnroe followed by destroying Britain's Colin Dowdeswell 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Jimmy Connors, the two-time defending champion who is seeded third in this year's $2.55 million tournament at the National Tennis Center, quickly ousted fellow American Matt Mitchell 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) - A man who testified last week that New York Jets players Mark Gastineau and Ken O'Brien kicked and beat him in the Studio 54 discotheque admitted that Suffolk County police have charged him with selling cocaine.

Charles McGinley, 29, of Union City, N.J., said in Criminal Court in Manhattan that he was arrested March 28, 1984, and charged with criminal sale of a controlled substance.

TRACK

KOBLENZ, West Germany (AP) - Two-time Olympic champion Edwin Moses, unbeaten since 1977, scored his 109th consecutive victory in the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles, clocking the world's best time this year of 47.32 seconds at an international track and field meet.

GOLF

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) - American Bari Brandwynne shot a first-round 75 to share the lead in the $35,-000 European Women's Open golf championship at the Belfry.

Brandwynne was tied with Britain's Dale Reid, a shot ahead of eight players at 76.

CYCLING

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) - American Connie Paraskevin defeated Ericka Saloumiaee of the Soviet Union in a tiebreaker to capture her third consecutive world championship in the women's cycling sprints.

Witherspoon says he'll be 'flashier'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Tim Witherspoon says he'll be a flashier fighter Friday night when he makes the first defense of his World Boxing Council heavyweight crown against Pinklon Thomas.

"People are going to get a little more excitement from Tim Witherspoon this time than before," Witherspoon promised. "I'm going to throw a lot of punches, more than I ever have before."

Witherspoon, still upset over the size of his purse - $450,000 - and what he expects to take home from it - about $50,000, says he realizes he must show more in the ring if he ever wants to get the million dollar-plus fights that have gone to other, flashier boxers.

"I'm doing what the (television) networks want to see me do - throw more punches," he said. "After they see how fast I am and how loose I am, they are going to be convinced."
