Chicago Communists Protest Unemployment In Riot

Mounted Officers Charge Crowds To Prevent Violence

Several Knocked Down By Swinging Night Sticks After Hundreds Rally To Cry Of "Wages, Work"

Arrest Two Girls

Eleven Held By Officers After Demonstrations In Front Of City Hall; None Injured Seriously

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 21. — Rallying to the cry "wages and work," several hundred communist sympathizers marched on the City Hall today to protest against unemployment. Riot squads and mounted police broke up the demonstration, charging the crowded sidewalks and swinging clubs among the noon-day throngs.

Night sticks thudded against the heads of pedestrians and several were knocked down as they scampered before the mounted officers or tried to harrangue their followers from boxes. None was injured seriously.

Two girls were among the 11 arrested by the police. The demonstrators themselves offered no violence.

The demonstration began at a mass meeting in a hall a block from the City Hall. Police had been warned of the meeting and detectives filtered through the hall listening to inflammatory speeches advocating soviet doctrines and urging a parade. When the thousand men and women started to form a procession in threes the detectives sounded an alarm. Paul Cline, 26, was arrested as he directed the parade.

Remnants of the agitators moved on the City Hall in small groups and found 150 police, half of them mounted, forming a cordon around the building prepared to break up any gathering. Stump speakers gathered knots of their followers around them, but were knocked down by the charging police.

At the east door of the building on Clark street, where hundreds of pedestrians on their way to luncheon had joined the crowd, one of the leaders tossed communist handbills into the air. Four police immediately spurred their horses to the sidewalk, and riding abreast, swept the pedestrians before them and cleared the walk.

Dr. Culbreath Is Heard In Student Church Conference

Southern Methodist Church Education Secretary On Program Which Continues Today And Tomorrow

BY MARGARET TURNER
Avalanche Staff Writer.

"Religion stands squarely across the pathway of civilization and cannot be ignored," said Dr. J. Marvin Culbreath, secretary of the National Board of Education of the Southern Methodist church, in a lecture on "Students and the Church" delivered last night at the First Methodist church. This was the initial talk of the church conference for students of the Southwest which continues here today and tomorrow.

"Religion is inescapable and it matters not how trivial some of its aspects, it is an experience as true as life," said Dr. Culbreath. One of the popular questions of the day among colleges is whether or not students believe in God. It is impossible to arrive at definite answers.

Majority Indifferent.

"Some one has made the statement that 100 students out of every 1,000 in the northern universities are what might be termed religious; 100 are hostile to it and the other 800 are utterly indifferent. In the South, recently a report was made that from one-third to one-fourth of the students are more or less interested in religion and very few if any are openly hostile."

Not too much attention may be paid to such statistics according to the lecturer, because of the changes of students from season to season.

Referendum Asked On Dry Amendment

Prohibition Controversy Continues In House As Opponents Seek Repeal; Canada Struggle Cited

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.— The prohibition controversy continued today in the house, where Representative Mead, democrat, New York, urged a referendum on the dry law.

Secretary Mellon set forth in a letter to Chairman Hawley of the house ways and means committee the treasury department's opposition to the Sirovich bill proposing to substitute non-poisonous denaturants for the present formulae approved for industrial alcohol.

Besides declaring that the measure was impracticable and that the proposed legislation was unnecessary Secretary Mellon wrote that the denaturants proposed would not protect alcohol from diversion for bootleg purposes.

Here's A Closeup Of Real G. Washinton

Nation's Founder Had Many Love Affairs, Wore False Teeth and Still Danced at 64

By BERYL MILLER
NEA Service Writer

Everybody knows that George Washington, whose birthday anniversary is observed today, was the nation's first president.

And most folks know, too, that the story about George chopping down the cherry tree is pure fiction—just a figment of the imagination of Parson Weems who acquired the habit of turning all of Washington's actions into virtues.

But just what sort of a man was the "Father of His Country" whose memory is honored by millions?

Historians burrowing for new information on General Washington in this inquisitive age have revealed that he was only human, that he had his faults as well as his virtues. After all, this heroic figure in the nation's history was very much like other men.

He was essentially a man's man—six feet three and one-half inches tall, "as straight as an Indian," and one of the best horsemen of the time, who rode to hounds with the gusto of an English squire.

He was a favorite with the women. From boyhood he was quick to fall a victim of the fascinations of the fair. While some historians have shown a tendency to exaggerate this amiable weakness, the truth seems to be that he often lost his heart—but experienced little difficulty in finding it again.

He fell in love with Martha Custis, a wealthy widow, at first sight and married her shortly afterward. She no more represented his first love than he did hers; he had been rejected by Miss Betsy Fauntleroy and had paid court to others. This marriage brought Washington a $66,000 dowry, then a handsome fortune.

His eyes have been described as "blueish" and a female chronicler added that they were "very lively." His teeth were defective and a badly made set of false ones distorted his mouth and gave the lower part of his face the square look seen in portraits.

Painters gave Washington a smooth face. But in truth it bore the marks of smallpox. His face was extremely pale, but burned quickly when exposed to the sun and became florid.

Out of Washington's diaries there emerges a business man—efficient, industrious, punctual, hard-headed, close-fisted, practical and cautious—a forerunner of the modern captain of industry. He was probably the richest man of the time, his

Bernice Rowe Of Tokio Seriously Crushed By Auto

Slight Hopes Are Held For Recovery Of 8-Year-Old Victim, Brought To Local Sanitarium After Mishap

Still Unconscious

Child Struck Down Friday Afternoon By Car On Way Home From School; Skull Fractured, Doctors Say

BERNICE ROWE, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rowe, of Tokio, 19 miles west of Brownfield, was perhaps fatally injured Friday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock when she was struck by an automobile on the highway near the Tokio school house.

The child was brought to the Lubbock sanitarium early last evening for emergency treatment, unconscious since time of the accident. She had not regained consciousness at an early hour this morning. Physicians, after an examination, stated that she suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, a depressed fracture on the right side of the head in which a portion of the skull was pressing against the brain, a fracture in both femurs or thighs.

The child was said to have just been released from school and was walking down the highway toward her home with a brother, Burton, 10, when the accident occurred. She was struck by a Ford touring car, driven by a school chum whose name could not be learned. Immediately following the accident the brother picked her up in his arms and carried her to a nearby car to take her home. Here another car was taken to bring her to Lubbock.

Attendants at the sanitarium last night held slight hopes for her recovery.

Parents of the little girl were not at home at the time but arrived in Lubbock a short time afterwards.

CONFERENCE PLEASED

Naval Parley Heartened By Selection Of Briand

LONDON, Feb. 21. (AP) — Naval conference circles were heartened today to learn that Aristide Briand would head the reconstructed French delegation, due back here next week for the resumption of disarmament negotiations Wednesday.

Briand, veteran of a general of international conferences, is warmly admired and respected by all of the other delegations. Although regret was expressed over the loss of Andre Tardieu, defeated premier, it was believed the conference could achieve equally great steps toward disarmament with Briand as foreign minister heading the French delegation.

Mrs. Maude Long Sobs At Verdict

Kingsville Woman Given 25 Years In Penitentiary For Slaying Of Husband; Intimacy With Boy Shown

(By Associated Press)

COURTHOUSE, KINGSVILLE, Feb. 21.—First in silence and then in tears Mrs. Maude Long today received a jury's verdict convicting her of poisoning her husband and assessing her 25 years imprisonment.

As the clerk read the judgment in a low voice before hardly more than a dozen spectators, the widow, 31-year's old and stout of figure, was expressionless, then she began sobbing on her sister's shoulder and moaning: "God knows I am innocent. I'm not guilty. I'm not guilty."

The prosecution established to the jury's satisfaction that Mrs. Long carrying on an intimacy with a 14-year-old boy, Pat Smith, finally so lost her head over him that she poisoned the husband to get his property and use it for herself and the boy.

The defense contended that Mrs. Long had nothing to do with the poisoning; that the circumstantial evidence was not strong enough; that she did not buy poison in a Corpus Christi drug store as a clerk testified, and that Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Pat's mother, less easily could refute accusation as Long's slayer.

"FAME" VANISHED

First Air Stowaway Only One Of The Mob

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 21. (AP)—There is nothing but vanished "fame" for Clarence Terhune.

In 1928 his name was on every lip, for he became the world's first air stowaway when the Graf Zeppelin pointed its silvered bulk toward Europe.

Today he labored at the International Aircraft exposition, twirling the crank of a mimeograph machine to feed out stories of another file of "paper heroes."

Great and near great stalked by the 21-year-old youth without seeing. No one knew him, no one cared.

Ancient Egyptian Curse Claims Ninth Victim Who Touched Tomb Of Pharoah In Westbury Suicide

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The tragic death of Lord Westbury today added one more to the list of those whom the superstitious believe to be dominated by an ancient Egyptian curse—"death shall come on swift wings to him that toucheth the tomb of a pharoah."

Lord Westbury, 48, jumped or fell from his seventh floor apartment in St. James' court this morning. An inquest verdict said it was suicide. Lord Westbury left behind a letter including the words:

"I cannot really stand any more horrors."

The peer was known to have been worried over the unexpected death last November of his son, Richard Bethell, who was secretary to Howard Carter, famous Egyptologist.

Excavated Tomb.

Carter excavated the tomb of Tut-Ank-Amen in Egypt six years ago. He is alvie, but among the persons more less intimately connected with the work for six years Lord Westbury's death is the ninth. It is pointed out, moreover, that the majority of them met sudden or violent death.

Lord Westbury, who was the third baron of his name, had been in ill health some time. He lived alone in his flat under the care of a nurse. When the nurse was temporarily absent this morning he went to the bathroom and from there tumbled to his death. He crashed through a glass porch roof 100 feet below and struck a woman. The woman was injured and taken to the hospital.

Discoverer Died.

The first death among those who were in any way connected with the Tut-Ank-Amen expedition was that of Lord Carnarvon, the original discoverer of the tomb. Within a year after the tomb was opened Lord Carnarvon died in Cairo of a poisonous mosquito bite.

Lord Carnarvon's half-brother, Col. Aubrey Herbert, died several

No Progress Made In Terrell Trial For Impeachment

Members Asked To Return In Effort To Get Quorum Are In Quarrelsome Mood In Friday's Session

AUSTIN, Feb. 21.—The house of representatives, trying to obtain a quorum to proceed with hearing of impeachment charges against Comptroller S. H. Terrell, made no progress today.

It finally adjourned until tomorrow, the last check made showing two fewer members available than 24 hours earlier, when Speaker W. S. Barron was instructed to issue warrants of arrest for all absentees not excused because of sickness or of illness of near relatives.

Eighty-Six Attend

There were 86 in attendance today, against 88 yesterday. Speaker Barron said he believed there would be a quorum tomorrow after 25 now enroute here at his request arrived.

Some who had returned at Speaker Barron's request, transmitted to them last night over the telephone after the house had directed that assistance of the sheriffs, rangers and constables of Texas be commanded in order to get a quorum were in a quarrelsome mood.

Representative Chas. N. Shaver of Huntsville, one of the absentees who returned voluntarily, proposed to put the house under call until tomorrow. After it was pointed out that if this should be done the members could not leave the hall during the night without unanimous consent of those present, and Rep. P. L. Anderson of San Antonio, another who had come in at

Panhandle Section Protests Gas Tax

Shamrock And Wheeler In Mass Meeting Friday In Opposition To Proposed Measure In Legislature

(By Associated Press)

SHAMROCK, Feb. 21.—Protesting a proposed natural gas tax which they declared would place the burden of redeeming the state's $3,000,000 deficit on a small group of Panhandle counties, business men of Shamrock and Wheeler at a mass meeting here today made definite plans to join a sectional move against the tax.

The meeting, called by the Shamrock chamber of commerce, echoed throughout with the sentiment that such a tax would be confiscatory in that a majority of the producing property and royalty owners in Wheeler county were paid for their gas at no more than two cents per 11,000 feet.

Business men of both cities were outspoken in their criticism of legislators who proposed and backed the measure. A move was started to send a delegation of more than 50 men from the two cities to Amarillo Monday to attend a sectional meeting called by the Amarillo board of city development.

Six Women Look On As State Of Arizona Performs Disagreeable Task Of Hanging Mrs. Dugan

(By Associated Press)

FLORENCE, Ariz., Feb. 21.—The state of Arizona today performed the disagreeable task of hanging a woman, Eva Dugan, 52, the mother of two children, for the murder three years ago of A. J. Mathis, aged rancher of Tucson, Arizona.

This was the first execution of a woman in Arizona and it was witnessed by six other women, including the prison matron. Mrs. Dugan remained outwardly calm to the last, even smiling grimly as a guard slipped the black hood over her head.

The steel gallows trap swung clumsily open at 5:02 A. M. Body and head parted as the rope jerked.

Poison In Cell

Mrs. Dugan nearly escaped the gallows, judging from a small bottle of poison in her cell, which the vigilance of the death watch presumably prevented her using.

Mrs. Dugan's attorneys had exhausted every legal effort to save her. Appeals, petitions for clemency, allegations of insanity, all were successfully resisted by the state which alleged she had slain Mathis to gain his property.

Says Farewell

Throughout her last night, Mrs. Dugan played cards with friends, talking only occasionally. Her breakfast was untouched. The rain-smeared dawn lighted her march to the gallows, where she spoke three words as Warden Wright shook her hand and said "God bless you, Eva."

"Good bye, Daddy Wright," she replied.

Building Program At Littlefield Is Given Big Boost

Construction Now Under Way In City Totals $100,000 According To C. J. Duggan

That Littlefield's building program is being given a boost was evidenced yesterday by a report from C. J. Duggan, of that city, and former resident of Lubbock, who stated that valuations of buildings now under construction there total about $100,000.

Gas was piped into the city yesterday by the West Texas Gas company, adding another unit of convenience.

Construction work is to start soon on a $50,000 city hall, following approval of plans by city commissioners.

Discussion is now centered on proposals for a new three-story hotel to be named in honor of A. P. Duggan, who, with his brother, C. C. Duggan, founded the city.

The building to house the J. F. Tompkins laundry, which will cost $15,000 is almost complete.

A two-story business structure, on which about $12,500 is being expended by Homer Snowden, is under construction.

Study Conditions Of Cattle Feeding

Sterling C. Evans And A. L. Smith Visit In Lubbock In Connection With Tour Of West Texas

A. L. Smith, beef cattle specialist, and Sterling C. Evans, district agent for the extension service of A. and M. college, were visitors in Lubbock yesterday, here for the purpose of studying conditions in this section for feeding of cattle.

Mr. Smith has only recently taken over beef cattle work in Texas and is on a tour through West Texas studying possibilities for feeding. He, together with Mr. Evans, has visited several counties already and today will go to Swisher, Lamb, Hockley and Garza counties.

"Results of a survey which was made of 50 counties in Texas during December showed that there were 225 farmers feeding 40,000 head," Mr. Smith stated yesterday. "I believe that with the coming fall feeding will be even more increased, much, however, depends upon the feed crops."

The survey revealed that Hale county was feeding 3,000 head. Lamb county 1,500, Gaines county 75, with other South Plains counties approximately the same. Most of those on feed were calves and yearlings.

The Laredo men said they did not know whether they or the cow was the most excited.

Eight Teams Remain In Running For District Title

Ralls, Wilson And Slaton Ranked As Favorites In Annual Cage Meet At End Of First Day's Preliminaries

Keen Competition Features Battle For Honors In Tournament Under Way At College Gym; Westerners Idle But Still In

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Eight contending basketball teams were left in the scramble for honors in the District Two cage tournament last night when the smoke of battle had cleared from the opening day's hostilities and two contestants were eliminated by default.

Today's second round games, semi-finals and finals will find Plainview, Slaton, Ropesville, Wilson, Ralls, Bula, Lamesa and Lubbock engaged in the deciding skirmishes of the two-day meet.

Plainview and Slaton tangle in the first contest of the second round this morning, beginning at 9:30. The Tiger-Bulldog fray will be followed by a second round match between Ropesville and Wilson. Ralls and Bula clash in the third while the final preliminary to the semi-finals will find Lamesa and Lubbock High carded.

Two Teams Forfeit

While the seven preliminaries played Friday eliminated seven teams from the district race, two county champions failed to make their appearance on scheduled time and were forced to forfeit. The result was that the Lubbock High Westerners went through the day without competition and remain in the tourney. Lubbock was scheduled to meet Liberty, of Hale county, in the first game Friday morning, but failure of Berry Flat to appear on the scene caused Chairman Freeland to shift the time for the Lubbock-Liberty contest to six in the evening.

The Westerners were on the floor when 6 o'clock arrived, but Liberty's cagers had apparently returned home to take part in an invitation event. Berry Flat was the odd entry and originally was carded to meet the winner of the Lubbock-Liberty game.

Semi-Finals In Afternoon

Four teams will enter the semi-finals this afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock. The two clubs emerging undefeated from this series will meet tonight for the championship of the district. The final game starts at 8:30.

Friday's preliminaries saw a majority of the favorites come through undefeated. Ropesville furnished the only decided upset in turning by the strong Lockney Longhorns, 44 to 36. The triumph was almost a single-handed achievement for R. B. West, Ropesville forward, who showed an uncanny eye for the basket, sinking his shots from all corners and angles to pile up an individual scoring mark of 36 points. Phillips, Lockney center, led his club with 17 markers.

Ralls, Wilson Favored

Ralls Jackrabbits and Wilson Mustangs stand out as the leading favorites to capture district honors, while Slaton and Plainview may be expected to give the other leaders considerable trouble.

While the Lubbock Westerners did not see action yesterday, the locals are considered as dangerous contenders. The Morgan basketeers are ceded an even chance with the Lamesa Tornadoes today. This game starts at 12:30.

Friday's results follow:

Seagraves (Gaines) 13; Plainview (Hale) 36.

Slaton (Lubbock) 32; Meadow (Terry) 17.

Ropesville (Hockley) 44; Lockney (Floyd) 30.

Wilson (Lynn) 46; Post (Garza) 17.

Ralls (Crosby) 42; Littlefield (Lamb) 10.

Bula (Bailey) 25; Dickens City (Dickens) 20.

Lamesa (Dawson) 33; Morton (Cochran) 20.

Golf League Will Begin Operation Here Next Sunday

Amateur Organization Will Include Sixteen Business And Professional Classifications

What is believed by its authors to be an original inovation in golf competition was inaugurated by Lubbock golfers yesterday when a host of local enthusiasts perfected the organization of the Lubbock Amateur Golf league.

Embracing between 75 and 100 golfers, the league will begin operation Sunday at the Lubbock Country club with the first week's schedule opened.

Sixteen Classifications.

Sixten business and professional classifications will be represented in the league, making a total of eight distinct teams. Each of the eight teams must be made up of men who practice the various callings specified.

Following are the classifications to be represented:

Real estate and insurance, cotton and hardware, department stores and preachers, auto and lumbermen, clothiers and newspapers, bankers and lawyers, doctors and druggists and barbers and tailors.

Organization Tentative.

A tentative organization, given out today by Dr. Fred W. Standefer, president of the Lubbock Country club where matches will be played included the appointment of captains and co-captains for each team. John Jarrott will captain the real estate and insurance team, with Carl (Bud) Roberds, as co-captain. Other teams, with captains and co-captains, respectively, will be, cotton and hardware, Don Mitchell, Walter A. Myrick, Jr.; department stores and preachers, Lewis H. Price, Ellsworth J. Parsons; auto and lumbermen, L. Henry McLarty, Emory H. (Buddy) Stewart; clothiers and newspapers, Ross A. McWhorter, L. Herbert Quinn; bankers and lawyers, Leonard Pearson, Clayton Gammill; doctors and druggists, J. O. Smith, Dr. O. W. English; barbers and tailors, Harold (Buster) Fluke and Riley F. Hule.

Matches Arranged.

The first week's bracket, which will open play on Sunday, finds the following team matches: real estate-insurance versus cotton and hardware; department stores-preachers vs. auto-lumbermen; clothiers-newspaper vs. bankers-lawyers; doctors-druggists vs. barbers-tailors. Matches Dr. Standefer said, may be played any time between Sunday morning and Friday night of each week and plans are being made now to secure suitable prizes.

League officers will be chosen at a later date and an advisory board, composed of the eight team captains and J. W. Byrnes, Country club professional, will have charge of the play, which will extend through the spring and summer, closing on September 15.

Eight Per Team.

There will be allowed but eight members of each team, to be chosen by captains. Team play will be in foursomes.

GOLF FOR JUDGES

Chicago Court House Yard To Have Course

CHICAGO, Feb. 21. (AP)—A nine-hole golf course is being laid out in the front yard of the Bridewell, or county jail.

James Curran, superintendent said there was no intention of letting the prisoners play golf. Some of the nicer prisoners may be privileged to caddy now and then, but the course will be for the use of judges, prosecutors and defense attorney with an hour or so loose from the court room.

Prisoners now are at work on the course. Several men in jail for bootlegging are assigned to construction of the water hazards.

SHIRES HOLDS OUT

Sox First Baseman Denies He Will Report Sunday

FORT WORTH, Feb. 21. (AP)—Reports that he would report to the White Sox training camp Sunday were denied today by Art Shires, Sox first sacker, who was here to referee a wrestling match.

Shires is holding out until the Sox give him an acceptable contract, he said.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 21. (AP) Miss Maureen Orcutt, New Britain, Conn., former national women's golf champion, won the Florida women's tourney today from Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, in a match that went to the 20th green.

WALKS PRETTY FAST, TOO

In addition to her graceful running speed, Miss Stella Walsh, Cleveland sprinting ace, has a reputation in her home town as a heel-and-toe walker. She won a woman's walking event in her first attempt in that branch of sport.

A jar of blue and white design bearing the date of 1341, has been found near Strabane, Ireland.

Exporters Loom As Dark Horse In Texas League Race

Purdue Seeks Second "10" Title

Hot on the heels of Purdue's glorious football season in which the undefeated Boilermakers romped to a Western conference gridiron crown, their first, the Old Gold and Black basketball squad is making a brilliant bid for the Big Ten cage title this year. Horton Smith Equals Course Record To Take Lead Over Bobby Jones in Savannah Open; Champ Falters Badly

BY DILLON L. GRAHAM
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 21. (AP)—Horton Smith, Detroit, Mich., shot a par-shattering 66 here today to take the lead among 90 entrants at the halfway mark in the $3,000 Savannah open golf tournament. His brilliant score of today, coupled with his 71 of yesterday, gave him a 137.

While the Detroit golfer, who formerly registered from Joplin, Mo., was stroking his way around in eight under par and equalling the course record, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, national open king, encountered trouble at almost every hole.

Jones Falters

Jones faltered badly on the outward nine for a 40, three over par, but settled down on the home nine for a 35. His 75 today with his 67 of yesterday, placed him a tie for fifth place with 142.

Fairley Clark, local shot maker, equalled his 69 of yesterday and was a step behind the leader with 138.

Four strokes away and tied for third honors were Emmett French of Southern Pines, N. C., and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., with 141. French had a 73 today to add to his 68 of yesterday, while Dudley, who posted a 72 yesterday, shot a great 69 today.

The slim, blonde moneymaker from Detroit collected seven birdies and an eagle as he shot his low score today.

Here's how Smith made the round:

Par, out 443 444 545—37.
Smith, out 432 543 544—34
Par, in 435 434 554—37.
Smith, in 434 234 444—32.

Clark marked up three birdies and an eagle. Clark's card:

Out 443 443 544—35.
In 426 234 544—34—69.

Jones' card:

Out 473 443 645—40
In 335 434 463—35—75—142.

THE CRY OF THE WOLVES

The suit for $20,000 against Hack Wilson by a Chicago milkman named Edward Young has been denied by a circuit judge in Chicago. Young is the fellow who criticized Hack's baseball antics in a way friend Hack didn't care for, with the result that Wilson leaped into the stands and handed his critic a generous pasting.

We suppose Hack is glad he does not have to pay the damages, but really we think he is luckier than he probably realizes. He might have made that much money by fighting Shires; he ought to figure he has made that much by fighting Mr. Young.

IS HACK SORRY?

Hack probably is sorry that he jumped into the stands that day. If he isn't he ought to be, if not for ethical reasons, then for the sake of sportsmanship. There are times, of course, when a fan's tongue gets the better of him and he descends from techineal criticism, which is sportsmanship, to personal rancor, which is no sportsmanship at all.

But for all that, even though the words flung at Hack might have been intensely personal words, we still feel that Hack made a mistake in attacking the person who uttered them. There is no great and lasting good in such chastisement. Besides, it showed up one of Hack's weaknesses, his inability to control himself, to "stand the gaff." We feel that the dent revealed in Hack's armor is deeper than the one he put in the milkman's, even if Young did take a pasting and was arrested and fined $1 for the privilege after Hack was all through.

THE TY COBB STRIKE

This brings to my mind the time when Ty Cobb almost broke up the American league with an attack on a fan in New York nearly 18 years ago. Ban Johnson socked Ty with an indefinite suspension. The Detroit players, feeling that a principle was involved, went on strike with Cobb at Philadelphia.

Ban Johnson was firm. He hastened to Philadelphia and summoned the American league magnates at once. Meantime Hughey Jennings, rather than have his owner fined $1,000 for not having a team on the field, collected a bunch of players from a college team and played the Athletics, losing, 24 to 2.

BAN TELLS 'EM

Johnson notified the striking players that not only was the Cobb suspension going to stick, but that each man who participated in the mutiny would be fined $100. They surrendered, and a few days later at Washington, the Tigers resumed play.

A ball players' fraternity grew out of this strike. It was shortlived and accomplished nothing. At any rate it didn't mean a thing to Ban Johnson, who could be mighty swift and hard when he felt that he was right.

Rainbows Defeat Fort Worth Team

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 21 (AP)—Cecil Smith played his first game in the present polo tournament Friday afternoon and scored six goals against an individual handicap of seven as Fort Worth was defeated by the Rainbows of San Angelo, 19 to 13 on Brackenridge park field.

Fort Worth was deprived of one of its stars in the third chucker when Carl Crawford, a six-goal man, was thrown from his mount in a collision, resulting in a foul, and had to retire. Weeks, a non-handicapped player, took his place and finished the game.

Fort Worth scored in every chukker but was unable to overtake the heavy handicap of 14 goals.

Beaumont Magnet Assembles Strong Array Of Players For 1930 Struggle; City Is No Longer Castoffs' Landing

"Looks Like An Exporter Year," Fans Of South Texas City Declare; Del Baker Is New Pilot

BY BILL SCURLOCK
Written for the Associated Press

BEAUMONT, Feb. 21. (AP)—Beaumont's greatest gesture in the general direction of a Texas league bunting will be made by the downtrodden Exporters this year. If you can believe in signs and records and listen to Uncle Rube Stuart, owner of the Shippers, and local ballgoers 1930 will be an Eporter year in the Gardner-guided circuit.

The order of things has been changed. No more will Beaumont be the stopping place for broken down players and castoffs from other clubs, ever again will they start a season without a ball club of known ability. The pipeline-baseball magnet has spared no expense this year and has dug deep into his jeans in assembling a club that will compare with any Class A outfit in the country.

Few Old Men Remain

Few wearers of Exporter spangles in 1929 remain. Claude Robertson has passed on as manager and Del Baker, catcher with Fort Worth last year and a minor league boss with a wealth of experience takes over the managerial reins. Del is exceedingly popular in Beaumont and the Texas league. The new Shipper boss ranks as one of the leading catchers in the league, and the bulk of the backstopping in 1930 will rest in his hands.

Harry Davey, who reported to the Exporters in late season from Toronto, is back again and looms as string maskman.

Baker and Davey are great fielders and hustlers and will hit somewhere near the .300 mark.

Infield Nearly Set

Beaumont's infield is nearly set though there may be a shift in the stations. Frank Stapleton, who whammed over .30 for the Wichita Falls Spuds last season, is slated to guard the initial bag for the Shippers. Tom Holley, coming to Beaumont straight from Hollywood with a .319 batting average, looks like the money at second base, while Hienie Schuble, after a year with Detroit in the American league, is due for a great year at shortstop. Then comes the veteran Bill Mullen, big leaguer with years of experience bought from Rochester to hold down third base. Schuble and Mullen both should hit over .300 in the Texas league.

Should anything happen to this combination, there is Jay Hughes, rookie from Bisbee in the Arizona State league, and Don Flickinger, of Evansville in the Three-Eye league, to dispute the first base job. Carl Bouton, University of Oregon graduate who performed with Evansville and Fort Smith last year, is ready to supplant Holley if the Pacific coast youngster slips. It's going to be mighty hard to keep Rush Yeargin out of the infield, for this youngster with Evansville last year batted .330. Bill Huber, Exporter last season, returns but will have a tough time beating out Mullen, whose trick knee is sound and well.

Eckhardt Can Bust 'Em

But it is the Exporter outfield that is bringing smiles to Beaumonters these stove-league days. Manager Del Baker will have five ball hawks on his hands who measure up to Class A standard. Oscar Eckhardt, former University of Texas flychaser, bought from Seattle, is nearly certain of a job with his .353 batting mark. Charles Wade, also picked up from Seattle, will be on hand with a .335 average. Paul Easterling of last year's combination is back and must be given consideration, for Paul pasted the ball for a .320 mark. The Dutchman says he's turned over a new leaf and is ready to live up to every little Exporter rule. Chick Shiver, a .320 hitter from Evansville and former University of Georgia All-American grid star, is due to camp along with Tony Boroja from Hollywood. All are classy fielders along with their hefty pounding.

Thirteen pitchers, nine right-handers and four lefthanders, will put in their appearance in spring training, six of 'em being on and off last year's twirling staff.

Among the old Exporters returning are Tom Vaughn, the knuckle ball rookie from Muleshoe, Texas, who finished the season in great style; Tink Riviere, who still is capable of lots of good baseball chunking; Jimmy Christian, tobacco chewing righthander who was released at mid-season for breaking training; Denny Burns, who ranks with the best of the Texas league tossers; Walter Newman, who finished with the Lake Charles club in the Cotton States last year; and Joe Blackwell, southpaw rookie, who pastimed in the West Texas league.

Cecil Newton comes from Muskogee and will try his knuckle ball wares. Jerry Mallett, with Washington at one time and later with Rochester, will be on hand along with Guy Green, who went great with Evansville and Fort Smith last year. Fred Pingras, brother of the Yankee star hurler, is due to make the grade, for he pitched some classy ball for Seattle last season.

The wronghanded star of the lot is William Martin, big rangy fellow who won 10 out of 14 games for Evansville in 1929. William English, lefthander with Springfield, Ohio, in the Central league, is due for a trial. Gomer Wilson is the other southpaw who has attached a name to a contract. He has been with Minneapolis and Seattle for the past five or six years, and is a cagy, crafty veteran with a puzzling change of pace.

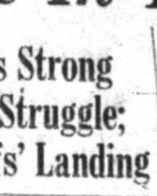

All of the Exporters' training will be held in Orange, Texas, the first time in the history of the local club that a spring camp has been held away from home fences. Pitchers and catchers will report to Skipper Del Baker in Orange on March 2, with the rest of the squad showing up March 9.

If the present Exporter lineup doesn't come up to expectations Prexy Stuart is ready to lay down the cocoanuts for any player who will bolster up his team. The Exporters have a working agreement with the Detroit Tigers this year, and much help may be expected from that source.

It looks like Beaumont's year.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

Ale is 20 cents a bottle on the Cunard liner that will take Phil Scott back to jolly old England. And, championship or no, Scott can't be said to have lost everything.

Barney Dreyfuss is strictly neutral. He sends his Pirates to California and goes to Florida himself.

Judge Fuchs of the Boston Braves ought to do something like that. He could spend the whole training season watching ball games.

Kenneth Ash, Cincinnati pitcher, says the reason he didn't do so well last year was that his pants didn't fit him. He feared to leap around too vigorously, he wrote Dan Howley, lest the enemy find gaps in his armor.

Max Schmeling's new talking movie is titled, "Love in the Ring." We have seen acts like that, but they were billed as prize fights.

Houston Tourney Semi-Finals To Be Played Today

Pair Of Texas Veterans Left In Running For Title In Invitation Event; Chicago Has Entry

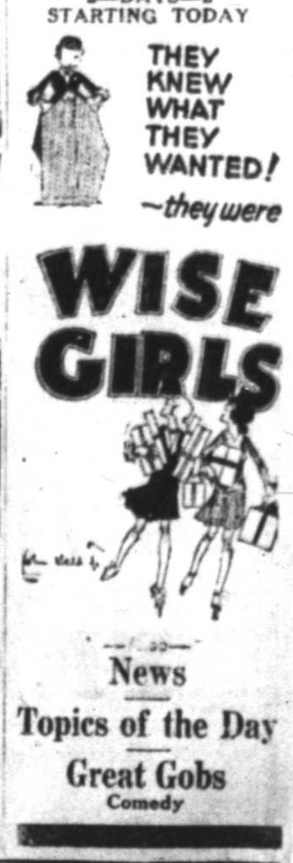

HOUSTON, Feb. 21. (AP)—Two veterans of Texas tournaments; one of the leading players from the Chicago district and a 19-year-old unknown from the banks of the Rio Grande, will tee off Saturday in the semi-finals of the 16th annual Houston invitation tournament.

Ossie Carlton and George Rotan, both of Houston, the former defending the invitation title for the third straight year and the latter a six-time winner of the championship, will represent the home club. Johnnie Dawson, semi-finalist in last year's British amateur championship, is the Chicago entrant. Bud McKinney from Del Rio completes the group.

McKinney, who registered the first upset of the tournament by knocking Reuben Albaugh out of the title hunt Thursday, continued to show disregard for favorites when he putted Don Armstrong of Chicago out of the tournament today in the quarter finals, 4 and 3. Saturday McKinney will play against Carlton.

Ossie Carlton Friday eliminated Jack Dold, Houston, 7 and 6. Dold, who sprung the other upset of the meet by whipping Jack Speer, was off color during the morning round against Carlton. He finished the first 18 holes seven down and it was by that margin that the match ended.

In the upper bracket Rotan, who eliminated Lewis Levinson, six up and five to play, will play Johnnie Dawson. Dawson was forced to the home green before he could eke out a two-up decision over Edwin McClure from Shreveport.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: The Twelve Sent Forth.

Scripture Lesson: Matt. 9:35-38; 10:8; 10:40-42.

Matt. 9:35. And Jesus went about all the cities and the villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of disease and all manner of sickness.

36. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and scattered, as sheep not having a shepherd.

37. Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few.

38. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest.

Matt. 10:1. And he called unto him his twelve disciples, and gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of disease and ill manner of sickness.

2. Now the names of the twelve apostles are these: the first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother;

3. Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus;

4. Simon the Canansean, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5. These twelve Jesus sent forth, and charged them, saying, Go not into any way of the Gentiles, and enter not into any city of the Samaritans:

6. But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

7. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

8. Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out demons: freely ye received, freely give.

40. He that receiveth you receiveth me, and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me.

41. He that receiveth a prophet in the name of a prophet shall receive a prophet's reward: and he that receiveth a righteous man in the name of a righteous man shall receive a righteous man's reward.

42. And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only, in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you he shall in no wise lose his reward.

Golden Text: The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest.—Matt. 9:37, 38.

Time: Autumn of A. D. 28, in the second year of Christ's ministry.

Place: Throughout the cities and villages of Galilee.

The special mission of the twelve which we are studying today must have occurred not less than ten months after the call and ordination of the apostles. Jesus had probably made two tours through the populous district of Galilee, attended by the disciples, himself doing the preaching and performing the miracles. Now he authorizes them to begin their ministry as his apostles. He therefore sent them out two-and-two into different sections of Galilee, empowering them to preach and heal. The purpose of the mission seems to have been threefold: (1) The apostles needed the practical experience, (2) the people needed their ministry and help, and (3) through them, Jesus could be in six different places at once, and they could greatly broaden his field and open up the way for a more thorough work by him.

Jesus' Active Ministry, v. 34

"And Jesus went about all the cities and the villages." Galilee in the time of Christ was much more densely populated than at present. Josephus declared that it had 204 cities and villages, the least of the villages containing more than fifteen thousand inhabitants. "Teaching in their synagogues." These were all open to a visiting rabbi, who would be invited to speak by the "rulers" or managing committee. "And preaching the gospel of the kingdom." The good news that God had sent his Son into the world to save men from their sins and draw men to himself. "And healing all manner of disease and all manner of sickness." It was thus a ministry to the bodies, minds and souls of men; such a ministry as the church at home and abroad has been conducting ever since.

Christ's Twelve Helpers—Matt. 10:1-4

The Saviour knew that no one person, confined to one place at a time could reach all the multitudes that must be reached. Therefore Christ inaugurated the plan which, with increase after increase, has been in force ever since, and will be used with ever-growing power and magnitude until the whole world is won for him. This plan consists in sending forth disciples to teach others about Christ, and those new disciples are to teach others, and so on until the coming of the King in his glory. "And he called unto him his twelve disciples." He had already appointed them, just before the Sermon on the Mount (Mark 3:13-19). "And gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out. The power to work miracles would be a manifest commission from him

Four Lists of the Twelve Apostles

"Now the names of the twelve apostles are there." Four lists of the Twelve are given us, one in each of the first three Gospels, this passage in Matthew; Mark 3:16-19; Luke 6:14-16; and Acts 1:13. All of these lists fall into four divisions, each containing the same names but not in the same order. Peter stands first in all four lists, and with him Andrew, James, and John, the inner circle of the Twelve, and Judas Iscariot ends all the lists. Philip heads the second division and James the son of Alphaeus heads the third division.

"The first, Simon, who is called Peter." "Peter," means "Rock," and is of Greek origin. The Aramaic form of the name, "Cephas," has the same meaning. His father was named Jonah. Born in Bethsaida, he came to live in Capernaum, and Jesus, who probably made Peter's house his headquarters, healed Peter's wife's mother of a severe fever. Peter was a fisherman and Jesus made him a "fisher of men." "Peter was full of human nature. We are ever reading ourselves over in the story of his life. No man more human than he. In this he comes near to us and cheers us. "And Andrew his brother." Andrew, whose name is Greek and means "manly," was also a fisherman. Andrew is the "bringer," forgetful of himself and ever leading others to Jesus. He was "a true, brave, humble, self-forgetting soul, loyal and ever ready at the word of command, content to fill a little place, and free frm self-seeking ambitions."

"James the son of Zebedee." His mother was Salome, one of the women at Christ's tomb. "James the Elder" and his brother John were called "Boanerges" or "sons of thunder" because of their fiery dispositions. Living at first in Bethsaida and afterwards in Jerusalem, James was the first martyr among the apostles, being beheaded by Herod Agrippa I., A. D. 44, at Jerusalem. "And John his brother." John was "the disciple whom Jesus loved," as being nearest to himself in thought and feeling. He was probably the youngest of the Twelve hardly more than a boy when Christ called him, and lived to be nearly a hundred, dying a natural death after his banishment on the island of Patmos. John wrote the world's greatest book, the fourth Gospel.

Philip And Bartholomew

Philip, who came from Bethsaida, brought Nathanael to Jesus, and also (with Andrew) the Greeks that wished to see Jesus efore the crucifixion. "And Bartholomew." This name, meaning "the son of Tolmai," was probably the surname of Nathanael, who came from Cana of Galilee and who was called by Jesus "an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile" (John 1:47). "These words, when sounded to their depths, reveal the finest compliment Jesus ever paid to a newcomer."

It is characteristic of this humble disciple that he sets down here the fact that he once was a hated and despised tax collector. His other name was Levi and his father was an Alphaeus but probably not the Alphaeus whose son was James the Less. "Only those who have been much forgiven can interpret the great Forgiver. It was a publican redeemed who first saw the infinite room for sinners in the heart of Jesus Christ."

Judas Iscariot

"Iscariot" means "of Kerioth," a town in Judah, the only member of the Twelve who was not from Galilee. "Whenever for a moment we feel our own will to be better than that of our Master, whenever we feel the love of money and pleasure grow strong withih us, let us bring to mind the Betrayer. Men still sin the sin of Judas, and give up the Lord who loves them, for gain."

The Charge To The Twelve—Matt. 10:5-11; 1.

"These twelve Jesus sent forth." They went forth by twos. We may conclude that, after a little at the beginning, our Lord seldom had the Twelve all with him; sometimes only two or four. The others would be out on their message. "And charged them, saying Go not into any way of the Gentiles." Later, after the gospel was well established among the Jews, Christ bade his followeds reach out into all the world. "And enter not into any city of the Samaritans." These Samaritans, occupying the central third of Palestine, were part Jew and part heathen in descent, and old quarrels had been perpetuated and embittered. "And as ye go, preach." "Keep preaching" is the force of the Greek. They were not to settled down in any one place which would be by far the easiest course, but were to sow the good seed far and wide.

A Little Act—A Great Reward V. 42

"And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only, in the name of a disciple." That is as a disciple of Christ making the gift in Christ's name and for his sake. In the hot, parched land of Palestine a cup of cold water would often be the most precious gift that could be proffered; but it would cost nothing and so Christ says "only." "No one can measure or discriminate between the great and the little, but each is bound to do his best and utmost. In great and little, therefore, let me do for others what the passing opportunity requires of me.

"If any little word of mine can make a life the brighter,
If any little song of mine can make a heart the lighter
God help me speak that little word
and take my bit of singing
And drop it in some lonely vale to set the echoes ringing."—David James Burrell.

THE NEW WASHINGTON

ON THE front page of today's paper there appears a story about George Washington, 'Father of his Country,' whose birthday the nation is observing. The article, based upon careful research, shows the First President in a rather different light than he is usually seen—yet the new view is reassuring for all of that.

Somehow or another, it is pleasant to discover thoroughly that George Washington, talents and all, was pretty much of a man as the world views a man.

For some reason we are glad to discover that the hero of the cherry tree episode grew up to be a man who indulged in frivolities of the heart—very much as most of the rest of us do—who liked to dance occasionally, who struck back when crossed and who was even so human that he had to install 'store teeth' before he reached old age! These facts, somehow, bring us a little closer to the man who will probably always hold the highest fame in American history and who even today, 131 years after his death, exerts more influence upon American policies than any other individual, alive or dead.

Perhaps the old method, of holding national heroes before our children as super-men and near to the gods, was a good one but The Morning Avalanche believes their presentation as strong men will have greater weight. It will at least inculcate into the minds of young America that 'what man has done, man can do' and will open wide the door which leads through ambition to everlasting fame.

RADIO COMPLICATIONS

Both the complexity of the task of the federal radio commission and the importance of its proper performance from the standpoint of investment in broadcasting and popular interest in reception, justify adequate appropriation to this agency of the federal government. As Commissioner Lafount testified before the House Appropriations Committee, the volume of the commission's work has increased about 25 fold since the creation of that body less than three years ago.

One difficulty in administering some 2,400 wave lengths and 600 licenses for broadcasting stations lies in constant changing of the administrative personnel due to the inadequacy of Government salaries as compared with commercial remuneration in the same field. Only four of the members of the original staff are still in service because "the salaries paid are insufficient to keep them. As soon as they are trained and know something about radio they are offered larger salaries by various radio corporations."

The commission has 93 employes and a $259,980 salary list. It wants a force of 128, some of whom would be traveling agents, investigating in the field conditions which cannot be ascertained in Washington, with a total salary list of some $395,000. The Bureau of Efficiency wants to cut down the force to 79.

Congress should adequately man the radio commission organization. The experimental period has demonstrated that guiding the traffic of the crowded channels of the air is a complicated job with many unanticipated ramifications. The public interest is in efficient administration, the increased cost of which could be covered by an appropriate fee system under which those who hold privilege would bear the expense of necessary regulation.

FISHING

President Hoover just completed a fishing trip to Long Key, Fla., about halfway between the mainland and Key West. Secretary of State Stimson and Foreign Secretary Briand are planning a fishing trip to the streams of Normandy when the business of the naval conference permits them to leave London long enough to cast a fly over the running waters.

Briand is a fisherman. Perhaps that is why he has been able to conduct himself with complacency in the troubled waters of French politics. It is encouraging to discover that Stimson is also a disciple of Izaak Walton.

If Shakespeare had been an angler, he would not have written that it is sleep that knits up the raveled sleeve of care, but would have given the credit to fishing. There is no more soothing occupation for its devotees than the attempt to lure a fish to the hook, Coolidge, after calling it a boy's sport, fell a victim to its fascination during the vacation that he spent in the west. The appetite for it grows by what it feeds on. If a man wishes to escape its lure, he must resist the temptation to start.

Mr. Hoover has long been a victim. One of the most delightful articles on the sport published in a long time appeared under his name in the Atlantic Monthly two or three years ago.

GLANDS

Dr. Ralph Arthur Reynolds, of San Francisco, after a study of convicts in San Quentin prison, declares that every murderer suffers from oversecretion of the thyroid gland, every forger suffers from undersecretion of the pituitary gland and that every social misfit displays malsecretion of some gland.

Hopeful folk will see here a hint for the settlement of all social problems. If their hope is justified, instead of building more prisons all that will be necessary will be to build a few more hospitals and there treat the glands of offenders.

Nor is this all. The work of district attorneys everywhere will be wonderfully simplified. Examination of the gland of a defendant will show at once whether the offense he has committed is a felony or merely a misdemeanor. After this there will be no excuse for changing the charge after the defendant has demanded a jury trial.

We just saw a picture of Nick Longworth, member of the House, engaging in pistol practice. Good luck, Nick.

LONGWORTH PROBABLY BETTER OFF AS ONE OF TRIO WHICH RUNS HOUSE

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Speaker Nicholas Longworth probably hasn't it in him to run the house of representatives as despotically, all by himself, as it was run by Czar Thomas B. Reed three or four decades ago.

To be sure, the speakership is not vested with the same amount of undiluted authority today that went with it then.

However, it is doubtful if Nick Longworth could wield as remorseless a gavel as Tom Reed even if he had as remorseless a gavel to wield. The whole secret of successful remorselessness is not to be found in the right kind of a gavel. Part of it lies in the personality of the wielder.

What it takes to be an absolute, lone-handed boss of the house of representatives Speaker Reed had.

True, the representatives' boss can get to be boss only with the backing of a majority of the members of the majority party in that house of congress. The two parties hold a caucus apiece at the start of each session; each one selects a leader, and, of these two, of course the majority leader is boss of the whole house—with the other chap simply leading the "opposition."

It is also true that, even after he is chosen, the majority leader must prevent too many of his followers from souring on him. If too many do, they can flop over to the opposition and make his position impossible.

Nevertheless, a sufficiently hard-boiled boss, once in, is mighty difficult to oust. He relies somewhat on diplomacy; somewhat on a club. Czar Reed relied principally on a club. In his time the speakership and the leadership were one and the same thing.

Speaker David R. Henderson, who followed Reed, inherited the latter's system, but he was a diplomat. He left no deep dent in history.

Then came Uncle Joseph G. Cannon. Uncle Joe revived Czar Tom's methods, but he was not Tom's equal. Though vastly picturesque, he lacked Reed's iron soul—and paw.

The representatives sensed the difference.

They had stood for bossing from a real boss. Under the diplomatic Speaker Henderson they had run along fairly well under the Reed momentum. They did not like bossing from a boss that they did not believe was the genuine article. So one day they rebelled and, without voting Uncle Joe out as speaker (for they were fond of him pesonally) transformed his job into a very ordinary presiding officer's.

Something had to be done with the authority which had been taken away from Uncle Joe.

The representatives sprinkled it around among various committees.

That was how Champ Clark found things when he came in as speaker—the first Democrat to fill the chair in quite a while. Champ was no tyrant; nor was his Republican successor, Speaker Frederick H. Gillet, now a senator. Still, even under them, the tendency was toward centralization again. The representatives are so numerous that it is hard for them to transact business otherwise.

With Speaker Longworth's advent the reorganization process set in for fair. It has been pretty fully accomplished now.

Yet the speaker is not now a czar, like Tom Reed; only a fraction of one.

Two men first gathered up the loose ends of authority which the rebels against Uncle Joe had scattered. Realizing that they could operate to best advantage with the presiding officer's co-operation, they took Speaker Longworth into partnership with them—

Chairman Bertrand H. Snell, of the rules committee, strategist.

Col. John Q. Tilson, majority floor leader—or field commander.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth, who turns the tricks.

And how does it work?

Well, to begin with, Longworth, Tilson and Snell have to be chosen by the majority caucus, just as Tom Reed had to be chosen czar, back in his day.

Next, let us assume that Representative So-and-So, from Podunk, wants to get a new post-office building for his town. He puts in a bill accordingly. Longworth, Tilson and Snell control everything. They can kill that bill, in which event the Podunk district pronounces So-and-So a fizzle and he is beaten for renomination; or they can pass it for him, and he becomes a great man.

Is it reasonable to believe that Representative So-and-So will eat out of their hands?

(It is not quite that crass, but that's the principle.)

Tilson and Snell prefer substance.

Not that Nick is unambitious. Unquestionably he would like to be exclusive boss. But the chances are he is better off as he is. He does not give the impression of being another Czar Reed. The same thing might happen to him that happened to Uncle Joe.

CARELESS COOKING OR HANDLING OF FOOD CAN CAUSE POISONING

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Up to a few years ago anybody who suffered with pain in the abdomen and nausea after eating was likely to complain that he had ptomaine poisoning. Increasing knowledge of chemistry and of the nature of the conditions that bring about these symptoms has resulted in a different point of view.

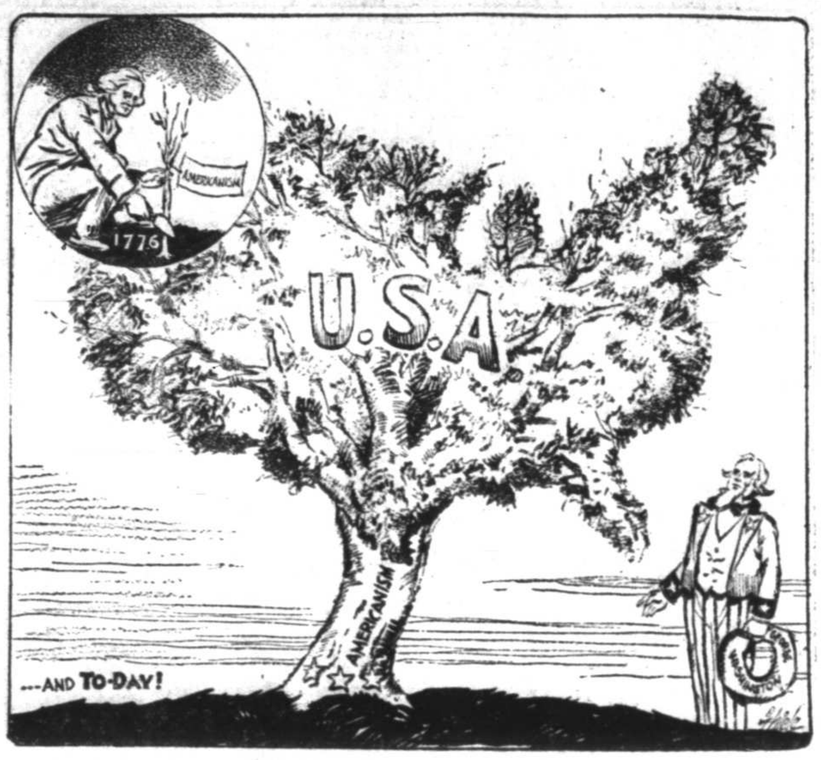

Nowadays it is realized that food poisoning may be the result of the presence of serious infection from germs contained in food, from poisons which have accidentally found their way into the food and from sensitivity to various substances. The response of sensitivity is usually in the form of an eruption and sometimes with the symptoms of asthma.

The most common cause of these symptoms is the presence of germs in food that has not been properly protected in cooking, handling or serving. The germs chiefly concerned are the botulinus, which are exceedingly dangerous because they produce serious symptoms and death so promptly, and the varied salmonella types which cause severe intestinal symptoms and affect tremendous numbers of people.

In 1174 outbreaks of food poisoning which occurred in the United States from 1910 to 1925, 148 were due to meat, 330 to fish, 480 to vegetables, 111 to fruit, 63 to soup and 72 to milk.

As a result of the understanding of the manner in which such outbreaks occur, commercial packers and canners have taken steps to control their process, handling and manipulating food as little as possible after thorough cooking and use as soon as possible after preparation. With these precautions, food is, in the majority of instances, safe for human consumption.

Anniversary Notes

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH

On Feb. 22, 1732, George Washington, first president of the United States, was born at Bridges Creek, Va.

Though his family was fairly wealthy, he received a sparse education due to the meager school facilities in the colony. At 16, his schooling over, he became a public surveyor.

His success in that profession gained for him a major's appointment three years later when the colony organized to combat French and Indian invaders.

So successful was he that at the outbreak of the Revolution he was recognized as the leading soldier in Virginia. And, after his marriage in 1759 to a prosperous widow, Martha Custis, he was also regarded as the wealthiest man in the colony.

On June 15, 1775, Washington was chosen commander-in-chief of the Continental Army. He showed great genius not only in leading his forces to victories, but in organizing efficient units from raw material.

Five years after the evacuation of the British, General Washington was chosen president of the United States. He was inaugurated at New York, where Congress was then sitting. He served a second term but declined a third.

Washington died Dec. 14, 1799, from a cold he contracted while horseback riding.

New Yorker Found In Hotel After 8-Story Leap

DALLAS, Feb. 21 (AP)—Jake C. Steinberg, 60, New York millinery salesman whose body was found today in one of the courts of a Dallas hotel, leaped from his eighth floor room "with suicidal intent," a coroner's verdict held today.

Steinberg fell through an air shaft, the momentum gained carrying his body through the galvanized roof of the shaft to the court below. Although his death apparently occurred last night, the body was not discovered until this morning. His absence was noted by a girl who assisted him in the Dallas markets, which he had attended for several years.

Today's Poem

TRUE BEAUTY

May I find a woman fair
And her mind as clear as air!
If her beauty go alone,
'Tis to me as if 'twere none.
May I find a woman rich,
And not of too high a pitch!
If that pride should cause disdain.
Tell me, Lover, where's thy gain?
May I find a woman wise,
And her falsehood not disguise!
Hath she wit as she hath will.
Double-earned she is to ill.
May I find a woman kind,
And not wavering like the wind!
How should I call that love mine.
When 'tis his, and his, and thine?
May I find a woman true!
There is beauty's fairest hue:
There is beauty, love and wit.
Happy he can compass it!

What this Doctor did for Humanity

As a young man the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, practiced medicine in Pennsylvania and was known far and near for his great success in alleviating disease. Finally he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form, his GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, the well-known tonic for the blood. This strength builder is made from a formula which Dr. Pierce found most effective when in private practice.

It aids digestion, acts as a tonic and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. All druggists. Tablets or liquid.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, New York typist, marries ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the publishing house in which she is employed. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18 in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 16, at school. When Tony returned home she denounces Judith as a gold digger.

Tony is secretly continuing a flirtation with MICKEY MORTIMER, wealthy and married. When Junior comes home for the Christmas holidays he also treats Judith coldly.

ANDY CRAIG, whom Knight has helped through college, takes a position with the publishing firm. He has been in love with Tony for a long while. In a fit of anger Tony tries to convince her father that Andy and Judith are carrying on an affair. Knight denies this but Tony tricks the pair into a compromising situation.

Knight becomes seriously ill with pneumonia. After a long period of danger during which Junior is summoned home. Knight begins to recover. Before the boy returns to school he admits to Judith he has misjudged her. Knight's recuperation is slow and Judith is resentful because he seems to prefer Tony's company to hers.

A letter for Judith arrives at the house and Tony takes it. Later she follows Judith on a trip into the city and sees her meet a young man. Next day Tony threatens to tell her father the story unless Judith will go away for two weeks. Believing Tony knows more than she does, Judith departs. She leaves a note for Arthur. Several hours pass before he finds the message. Then he is overwhelmed with remorse. Next day his office secretary reports that Andy Craig is missing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLII

With a jolt and groan of grinding brakes the train pulled into the station.

"All out!" shouted a guard. "Pennsylvania Stashun! All out!"

Judith arose and joined the others, pushing toward the door of the car. In one hand she clutched the small black traveling bag. Someone behind brushed boldly past her, crowding Judith against the row of seats, knocking her hat and tipping it at a grotesque angle.

"Excuse me, ma'am!"

A young man wearing a light overcoat had spoken. He was awkwardly trying to untangle a button of his coat from the fur of Judith's cuff in which it was caught.

"Oh—of course," she murmured.

The tangle was undone. The young man hurried forward and the girl followed. All of the others seemed in such a rush to get out of the car. Judith was at the end of the procession, almost the last to leave.

She stepped out on the long cement passageway and looked about her uncertainly.

Red caps were moving back and forth, some carrying luggage, others looking for patrons.

"Carry your bag, lady?"

Judith shook her head at the boy who had approached. She turned and followed the throng up the stairway.

In the vast upstairs waiting room other red caps came to her assistance. The girl refused their services. Her pale, bewildered expression was what attracted them.

Where to now?

Judith had made no plans. It had all seemed quite simple while she was at home, packing and making last-minute preparations. The main thing then was to get away—quickly before anyone should miss her. Once on the car, she had assured herself, she could decide where to go, how to spend these miserable two weeks.

Instead of planning, throughout the ride to the city, she had sat dazed and still, trying to realize what had happened. She could not realize it, could not believe it—even yet!

Forlorn and helpless, the girl put down her luggage and waited. Everyone else in the huge station seemed intent on getting somewhere, so energetic, so sure of themselves.

But of course she must be on her way too. A glance at the big clock told Judith it was 30 minutes of five. The rush of homebound suburbanites was already begun. The afternoon would soon be ended.

Still carrying her leather traveling bag, Judith walked through the station and out upon Seventh avenue. She walked until she came to a white-tiled restaurant.

An inconspicuous table beside the left wall was vacant. Judith sat there.

She was not hungry but she could order food here and wait until she had made up her mind what to do next.

"What's your order, madam?"

The blond girl in green and white costume who stood beside her glanced down with a friendly smile. She was holding an opened menu forward.

"Tea," Judith told her. "A pot of tea and buttercakes."

It was a familiar order. Force of habit prompted it. Some five minutes later, when the waitress returned with the plate of steaming hot bread, Judith was not aware she had asked for food.

She poured her tea and sipped the soothing beverage.

Well—she must decide what next.

Judith began to wonder if Arthur Knight had received her note yet. Miss Tupper must have left the house by this time. Perhaps he was reading the note now.

The dilemma was still so fresh in her mind she could not escape a ridiculous, secret notion that presently she would wake and find it had all been a dream. If not that, surely Arthur or some agent of fate would appear and tell her everything was a mistake and that she should come home.

No. That was impossible. Arthur was not even permitted to leave the house. And there was no way for him to trace her whereabouts if he could come.

One thing was clear in Judith's mind. She was not going to leave the metropolis. If two weeks must be spent in loneliness, she would spend them here.

She was aware, of course, that there is nowhere in the world a hiding place so secure and safe as the crowded, teeming island of Manhattan.

Again she came back to the problem—where to next?

Judith thought of the rooming house in which she had lived before her marriage. No, she did not want to return there. She did not want to meet anyone who had ever known her before.

She considered other sections of the city, sections which were vaguely familiar and which she thought she could afford. This last clause set restrictions.

Judith Knight had less than $50 in her purse. It was Arthur's money. She had not wanted to take even that much, but of course she must live. It would be ample for two weeks of the frugal existence she knew well.

Suddenly the name of a hotel north of Columbus Circle came to mind. Judith did not recall who had told her of it. It might have been long ago during those weeks in business school. No—she remembered now. It was a place Andy Craig had mentioned.

Andy had said the hotel was clean and cheap.

Judith drained the teapot. Then she picked up her luggage and paid her check.

Ten minutes later she boarded an uptown subway express.

The rush hour was on. Judith clutched a swaying strap, pinioned between men and women who had ended a days work and now, worn and tired-eyed, were going home. The stale air was nauseating. The thunderous roar tormented her eardrums and the jolting, rickety course pitched passengers against one another. They jostled and some of them swore.

"I used to do this every day," Judith thought. "How did I ever stand it?"

It was a blessing to reach her station and climb up the stairs to fresh air again. Somehow she had managed to maintain possession of her purse, her gloves and her traveling bag.

She was not sure of the location of the hotel which she sought. She was not even entirely sure of the name. Instead of making inquiries Judith set out walking north.

She was on Broadway. Beside her, and occasionally impeding progress, was the flowing stream of vehicles. Multi-colored taxicabs, sedate town cars, heavy trucks and small, smart delivery cars darted past. They added to the confused whirl in Judith's mind.

Surely the place should be around here somewhere!

Judith paused at the intersection of two streets and looked about.

There were dazzling electric movie signs, farther in the distance theater signs, but nowhere a building resembling the hotel.

But it must be near.

Judith decided to inquire of a policeman. There was one standing in the center of the street directing traffic.

She waited until the stop signal ha dflashed and the officer had blown his whistle. Then she ventured out toward the safety zone.

The tall, blue-coated man could scarcely hear her question. He bent his head, frowning, and asked her to speak louder.

What hotel? Oh, yes. Yes, he knew the place. Two blocks south and one to the left again.

Judith thanked him. She hurried back to the sidewalk and retraced her steps. Odd that she should have walked past the place.

It was after six o'clock. The sun was lost behind clouds, and high buildings and all up and down the street electric lights flashed. The big "White Way" display signs gleamed far to the southward and robbed the gloaming of its charm. There is no twilight on Broadway. Day jumps directly to night.

Judith Knight turned a corner and saw ahead of her the hotel she had been searching for. She hurried toward it.

The place was respectable looking. She went up the steps and entered a lobby with some pretense of past elegance in its worn marble floor and dull red rugs. Leather chairs were arranged in groups and against the walls. Here and there a potted palm tree stood.

A bell boy in maroon uniform approached and took Judith's traveling bag. He led her toward the registration desk at the rear of the room.

"Can you give me a room for the night?"

The clerk behind the counter had a youthful face but his blond hair was thinned to a bald spot.

"Yes, madam. I can give you a room with bath on the sixth floor."

"What is the price?"

"Three dollars and a half."

"Have you—anything for less?"

He nodded.

"Room on the court," he told her. "Fourth floor. I can let you have that at $2.50."

"I'll take it."

The clerk dipped a pen in ink, handed it to Judith and whirled the revolving registration book toward her.

She took the pen shakily, hesitated and then wrote: "Judith Cameron, Fulton, Mo."

"Front!" called the bald young man to the bell boy. "Show this lady to 419."

The boy picked up the traveling bag and Judith followed. There was a single elevator shaft at the right, and they waited there for the car to reach the ground floor.

Two men had come into the lobby while Judith was signing the register. They were talking to the clerk now. Judith glanced at them carelessly. An elderly woman in black satin entered the room from the adjacent restaurant and settled herself in one of the big leather chairs.

Judith noted that the girl at the cigar and news counter was a red-cheeked brunet.

The elevator car descended from above and the door opened with a clicking noise. Judith entered.

"Four!" the bell boy told the operator.

The car wheezed slowly aloft. At the fourth floor it settled again and the door opened.

There were lights on either side of a mirror facing the elevator shaft. Beyond these the hall ahead looked dark. The bell boy took the corridor to the left and Judith followed.

The boy paused before a door, entered and snapped an electric light switch.

Judith stood in the doorway. She saw a tiny room with brilliant flowered wall paper. There was a bed, a dressing table and one chair.

The boy was raising the room's only window.

"Anything else, ma'am?" he asked, lingering.

Judith opened her purse and handed him a quarter.

"That's all I believe. Thank you."

The door shut behind the youth. Judith drew her hat off and ran her fingers through her hair. For the last hour her head had been throbbing, and she was very tired.

Judith sank into a chair and closed her eyes.

The telephone at her side buzzed ply.

YOUR VERY BEST OPPORTUNITY
There are people in Lubbock who own their home, clear of debt, and who want to sell them. Maybe they have to leave on account of health or business changes. Or maybe they want to change their investment. Yet they can not sell and perhaps can not for several years. Houses that are worth $5,000 and $6,000 are bringing when sold $3,500 and $4,000; houses that are worth $10,000 to $12,000 or $14,000 are bringing $8,000, or $7,000 or $9,000. Raw lands are selling well, for they are still cheap and in demand, and the folks who are coming now are nearly all farmers. The very best, easiest and quickest way for you to turn your property into money is to trade it for our clients' lands in Hockley county. It is worth $30 per acre and with fair crop and decent prices this year will go to $40. It has small debt of $12.78, long terms at 6 per cent. Not leased, no blue weeds, fine school, fine water. Let's talk it over.

Cotton Quiet; Stock Prices Advance

Fluctuations Are Moderate Friday In Cotton Market

Prices Advance To Levels Above Previous Close In Late Session Following Early Declines

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21. —(AP)— Cotton was comparatively quiet most of the day with moderate price fluctuations. After an early decline the market advanced to levels 3 to 5 points above the previous close on covering by shorts in advances of the holiday and on an improvement in wheat.

In the late trading the market developed weakness due to liquidation in advance of notice day, prices losing 13 to 14 points from the highs and closing at the bottom. May after trading down to 15.31, rallied to 15.44 but eased to a new low at 15.30 down 14 points closing at 15.31 at a net loss for the day of 8 points. The general market closed at net declines of 7 to 10 points.

Liverpool came in 2 to 3 points lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 5 to 6 points. March sold off to 15.03 and July to 15.54, or 7 to 9 points under the previous close.

Would Not Take $100 For Single Bottle Orgatone

Wichita Woman Finds Relief After Seven Years Suffering

"It's worth many a dollar to feel like I do now, since taking just one bottle of Orgatone (Argotane). It has removed all of my troubles that caused me to suffer for seven years," said Mrs. W. T. London, of rural route 6, Wichita Falls, Texas.

"When a woman suffers as I did, they get to feeling so despondent and really haven't any interest in anything," she continued. "Well, that was just the way I was, until I got a bottle of Orgatone (Argotane). I just paid $1.25 for a bottle of it, but I wouldn't take $100 for it.

"I couldn't carry on my work for spells of stomach trouble and nervousness. I suffered misery from kidney trouble, and would have such intense pains in my back and sides that I could hardly stand it. I would have billious spells and dizzy spells and would at times get so blind, I couldn't see to stand, but would have to hold to something to keep from falling. Everything I ate seemed to disagree with me, and I would have a puffed up, bloated feeling, and would suffer agony from severe headaches. I was extremely nervous at times I would feel as if I were going distracted. I had a bad case of constipation. No one will ever know how much I suffered with my condition.

"Orgatone (Argotane) was advertised so highly and everyone was telling how much it had helped them, so I got a bottle. That bottle of medicine was my health. I can eat anything I want and could just as soon as I had taken my first half bottle of it, I don't have those bloated, dizzy, billious spells, and sleep fine every night. I feel better than I have in years, and my nerves are just about to normal. Orgatone (Argotane) has built me up all over. And I want to give this statement in hope that it will be the cause of others being benefitted like Orgatone (Argotane) has for me."

Genuine Argotane may be purchased in Lubbock at the Bowen's Drug Store. Adv.

Uneven Price Advance on Hogs Feature Around Eleven Market Circuit Friday

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21. (AP) — Livestock trade around the 11 market circuit was featured by an uneven price advance on hogs of 10 to 40c, weights scaling 230 lbs. down, generally showing the most upturn. Stimulating factors to the trade were curtailed receipts and fairly broad shipping demand. The top of 11.50 was paid at Chicago. Offerings 71,700, a shortage of 44,000 from a week ago and 5,500 less than the corresponding day last year.

No material price changes on killing classes of sheep. Light lambs at some centers showed slight strength and some weakness developed on lambs of undesirable weight. Choice light weight lambs in Chicago brought 11.75@11.00. The supply approximated 33,100, against 43,123 last Friday and 46,566 a year ago.

Receipts of cattle 8,600, or around 1,500 under a week ago and 2,000 less than a year ago. Packers were very bearish on both killing classes unless it was a number proposition in order to fill out the week's kill.

months later. He also had entered the tomb.

Sir Archibald Douglas-Reid, radiologist who had agreed to make an X-ray examination of the dead pharoah, died in 1924.

A little later Professor Laffleur of McGill university, Canada, died at Luxor while on a visit to the tomb.

H. G. Evelyn-White, scholar and Egyptologist, committed suicide toward the end of the same year. He left a letter containing the words:

"I knew there was a curse on me."

In 1926 two sudden deaths connected with the tomb occurred. They were those of M. Benedite, a French archaeologist, and M. Pasanova. Both had taken part in excavations in the Valley of the Kings.

Church Meet

and the tendency of the personality of a pastor, college professor or student worker to exert an influence on church-going and religious activities of the young people.

"Fear Is Past."

"Science shows that the world at heart is friendly and that fear is a thing of the past," continued the speaker. "Man is said to be less religious than formerly and certainly today it requires intelligence and patience for an adjustment to the universe.

"Science fails to support the deterministic theory. At the bottom, the universe is free. You can predict what a mass of students might do but you cannot determine the action of an individual."

Dr. Culbreath stated that religion should be classified in things which students are most interested. The time is coming, he said, when the church must specialize in religion and leave general education to the state schools.

Must Be Challenge.

"Religion must be looked upon as a challenge to young people," he said. "They must realize that it is a great field of adventure which will result in a creative activity to find better ways of doing the work of the world."

Wayne Cook of McMurry college who is chairman of the conference, introduced the speaker who was preceded by H. Y. Price, Tech student, in an address.

"The purpose of this conference," said Mr. Price, "is to neither praise nor blame the church; to make no recommendations or resolutions but instead to face up to definite problems. We want to discuss the possibility of universalizing religion and seeing how far we may go in accepting its ideas surely and courageously."

One of his statements that there is a "need for courage in the pulpit and tolerance in the pews," was commented favorably upon by Dr. Culbreath.

Opens Today.

The conference opens this morning at 8 o'clock with a service of worship in music directed by Dr. F. Darcy Bone of McMurry college. At 9 o'clock a general discussion will be held concerning problems of the local churches with questions from the floor and following an address by J. E. Shewbert, student from McMurry college, Dr. J. I. Seneker of Southern Methodist university, Dallas, will lecture on "The Pre-College Student in the Church."

This afternoon will be used for conferences and at 5:45 o'clock a banquet will be held in the basement of the church with Dr. Paul W. Horn, principal speaker.

Tonight Dr. W. P. King, of Nashville, Tenn., is to lecture on "Society and the Church."

Sunday morning at 7 o'clock Miss Madeline Cook of Canyon will have charge of a devotional service on "Worship in Poetry." At 9:30 o'clock Wayne Cook will make an address followed by a talk on "Double Standards and the Church," by Mrs. William Dingus, Tech professor.

Dr. J. Marvin Culbreath will preach at the morning service on "The Church of Tomorrow," and following his sermon the conference will adjourn.

35 Registered.

Thirty-five out-of-town students had registered late Friday evening and others are expected today. Colleges represented are McMurry, West Texas State Teachers college, Panhandle A. and M. college of Liberal, Okla., and Texas Technological college.

The various churches over the city are cooperating in the conference and are sending delegates to attend the meetings which are open to the general public.

Included in a list of those who have registered are those from McMurry college, Abilene, Lucille Gist, Eleanor Jones, Fredda Morton, Cecil Ellis, Laurel Mitchell, Jennie Tate, J. E. Shewbert Jr., Melvin Rankin, Emma Anderson, Roscoe Trostle, R. C. Wattrip, Wayne Cook, Dr. F. Dorsey Bone, Mrs. Bone, V. E. Baldridge, Fred Yoder.

Canyon — Miss Mattie Swisher, student worker; Juanita Bell, Margaret Camp, Fredda Obsert, Willie Obsert, Elmer Obsert, Edna Lawlis, Dorothy Gore, Ruth Strain, Dorothy Harris, Faye Rowe, Lorene Wherry, Eleanor Pierle.

Prices Buoyed Up On Coverings And Improved Market

Recoveries Of About Two-Thirds Of Thursday Drop Recorded; Consolidation Aids Price Rally

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. (AP)—Share prices were buoyed up today by short covering, improvement in the commodity markets and conditional approval of the Great Northern-Northern Pacific consolidation.

Stock prices indices showed an aggregate recovery of about two-thirds of yesterday's decline. The market displayed pre-holiday dullness with a total turnover of only 2,566,570 shares, about 1,100,000 less than yesterday, and the smallest full day's business in a month.

The market absorbed a moderate amount of hangover liquidation during the early hours of trading, but moved briskly higher during the afternoon.

HEALTHY LOT OF CHILDREN

Every Member of the Family Took Black-Draught When Out of Sorts.

Walnut Ridge, Ark.—"Until I was a grown girl, I did not know there was any other purgative but Thedford's Black-Draught," writes Mrs. J. C. Hathorne, of this place. "My father gave it to every member of his family.

"Whenever we got out of sorts, he got down the Black-Draught box, made a tea of Black-Draught, and gave it to us this way for indigestion and constipation.

"There were eight of us children in our family. We were a healthy lot. Black-Draught was about our only medicine.

"I have continued to use it off and on in my home as I have needed it since I have been married. I give it a good recommendation, for I know from my own use Black-Draught is a good medicine."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable cathartic or laxative medicine, composed of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in a natural way. NA-207

G. Washington

wealth being estimated all the way from $70,000 to $1,000,000.

As a planter, he practiced crop rotation, diversified his products and experimented in breeding horses and cattle. His horse was saddled and at his door at dawn ready for the daily trips about his plantations.

Honest himself and contemptuous of dishonesty in others, as stood upon his rights and took court action against those who attempted to defraud him.

As a real estate dealer and business man at Alexandria, Va., he was known as a "hail fellow, well met" and a good companion. He belonged to Alexandria's first volunteer fire company, "Friendship Hose."

Washington played a prominent role in social life of Virginia. House parties were frequent at Mount Vernon. He mentions many expenditures for arrack wine and punch; he liked afternoon tea served in the summer on the veranda; he was fond of picnics, barbecues, clam bakes, and still danced at the age of 64.

He went regularly to the Williamsburg races. He frequently lost various sums at cards, the largest on record now being 9 pounds 14 shillings. He missed few opportunities to see stage plays, though there were few theaters in his time.

His diaries indicate that his book knowledge was meager, and that he had difficulty with spelling and grammar all his life. When it was suggested that he write his memoirs he said: "A consciousness of defective education and a certainty of the lack of time unfit me for such an undertaking."

Disliking slavery on economic and social rather than moral grounds, he made the best of it, carefully clothed and fed his servants and employed a doctor for the sick.

Washington had a temper, that is certain. When he discovered the treachery or cowardliness, of General Charles Lee at the Battle of Monmouth, it is recorded that Washington "cussed him out" with some good, round oaths.

But it hasn't been reported what he said when two naughty girls stole his clothes—and watch and money—when he was bathing in the Rappahannock river. At least he failed to appreciate the joke and the girls were sentenced to six months in jail.

Sincerely skeptical of his ability to fill the requirements as commander-in-chief of the army and later as president, Washington preferred a much lower station in the affairs of his country.

But, when duty called, he accepted cheerfully and, despite many obstacles, rose to the front rank as patriot, soldier, statesman—and man.

Impeachment

Speaker Barron's request, emphatically stated he would withhold his consent. Rep. Shaver withdrew his suggestion.

Asks Resignation

Rep. Walter Acker, Sr., of Houston, 86 years old, walked feebly to the microphone and renewed his suggestion of yesterday that the entire house resign in a body and let the governor call an election to fill the places.

"I am more certain than ever, after observing this house the past few days that the 41st legislature will not solve the vexatious and perplexing penitentiary reorganization problem," Acker said. "It looks like foolishness for us to stay here, when the results seem so futile. I believe the sensible thing to do is to quit and let the people elect a new legislature to take a try at it."

Rep. Sam Bateman of Celina suggested that all the legislators who were opposed to the governor's plan to centralize the penitentiary system near Austin file their resignations and permit the voters of their respective districts to settle the issue at the polls.

Lubbock Independent Merchants Hear Employe of Henderson Radio Station

William Caraway, or radio station KWKH, Shreveport, and employe of W. K. Henderson, owner of the station, was the principal speaker at a mass meeting of independent merchants of Lubbock, held last night in the district court room of the county courthouse.

The meeting, attended by approximately 150 persons, was presided over by C. B. Powell, who introduced each of the speakers.

Caraway took as his subject "The Evils of Monopolies and the Dangers of the Chain Systems," stating at the start that he intended to show those present "how you are being city-slicked, hornswoggled and flabber-gasted."

Applied For Job.

He stated that after he had listened to Henderson over the radio several times he "just decided to go down there and ask him for a job with just enough remuneration to keep his wife and children and to live on."

"I certainly do have respect for a man who has the backbone to say what he thinks like Henderson," he declared. "How any sensible man or woman can help but realize that the constant daily withdrawal of all wealth from a town will kill it is beyond my comprehension."

Co-Worker Talks.

Jack Casey, co-worker of Caraway, also spoke briefly on the subject of chain stores.

"A lot of people look upon Henderson as a rough character," Casey said, "that he uses obscene language. But he was born with a million, he has a good education and is smart. He is not appealing to the society class of people but to the masses, the common people, like you and me."

Several other short talks were made by some of those present.

Texas Products Going To Germany

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (AP)—Germany is growing as an export market for Texas products, according to attaches of the district office of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce here.

Two Texas firms now are selling flour in Germany. One is selling rice and another rice products. Two are selling cotton seed products; two others are selling cotton and one is selling cotton and cotton-waste. One firm is selling grains, feeds, oil seeds and salad oil and another sulphur. One Texas company is listed as merchandising lubricating oils and another as disposing of grease and oils.

Those companies maintain agents or branch houses in Germany. In addition, many other products of Texas are sold indirectly through firms in other parts of the United States, such as export commission houses or brokers, attaches of the Dallas office point out. The Southwest is developing rapidly as an industrial section and many commodities which are the products of southwestern factories are being marked abroad, they say.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21. (AP) — John Delatowski, 35, shot and killed his wife Mary, as she wheeled their two children in front of their home today. Pulse Rate, Not Heat or Humidity, Causes Discomfort on Summer Days

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. (AP)—Discovery that the real index of distress on a sweltering day is neither the heat nor the humidity, but the pulse rate, was reported to the American Institution of Mining and Metallurgical engineers today.

The discovery can be used to reduce danger of heat prostration. It may even help relieve personal discomfort. At any rate, the temperamental can learn exactly how close they are to "stifling," and why some folks remain so cool.

Report Made.

The report was made by Dr. W. J. McConnell of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. He told how human beings voluntarily were tried out in a special, cork-lined heat chamber built by the U. S. Bureau of Mines and operated jointly with the American Society of Heating and Ventilating engineers.

"The observations indicate," he said, "that the pulse rate rather than the rise in body temperature apparently determines the extent of discomfort. When the pulse rate exceeded 135 pulsations per minute, the subjects complained of discomfort. They became restless and irritable and acquired a headache and palpitation of the heart. They became very thirsty. They noticed a metallic taste and spoke only with effort."

Waters of Lough Erne, in Ireland, are higher than at any time in the last 42 years, being seven feet above last summer's high level, and are expected to be much higher when the snow melts in the mountains.

To Be Knights

New Motor Patrol To Serve

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP)—The new highway patrol, soon to take to the road on shining new motorcycles, will not be the hard-boiled sort. While their principal business will be enforcement of the highway laws, they have been trained to give another kind of service as well, L. G. Phares of the State Highway Department said.

When they encounter a woman motorist with a flat tire, they will assist in its repair. When they come across a poor fellow stranded because he neglected to fill his gasoline tank before he started out they will carry a message for him to the nearest filling station.

The men will be well up on geography in their respective beats and chock-full of all kinds of information as to road conditions, so that when a traveler wants to ask a few questions they can be answered accurately, fully and courteously.

These new officers of the law may prove to be real "knights of the road."

Rock Island Asks To Build Another Line In Panhandle

Proposed Rails South And West From Vega Brings Company's Project To $20,000,000 In 2 Years

CHICAGO, Feb. 21. (AP)—Announcement that the Rock Island Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to construct a new railroad of 76 miles south and west from Vega, Texas, at a cost of $2,280,000 brought the total expenditures made and contemplated by this railroad during the last two years in the Texas Panhandle country to nearly $20,000,000.

Total mileage of new lines of the Rock Island in that section recently completed, under construction and contemplated was around 400 miles. The proposed Vega line would serve a rich agricultural section at present without railroad facilities and which is between 90 and 100 per cent under cultivation at the present time.

A line from Liberal, Kans., to Amarillo, 153 miles, was completed last year, while work on a 60-mile line between Dalhart and Morse was under way. Application of the Rock Island for a line from Shamrock to Quanah to connect with the new Frisco project was before the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval.

The announcement of application for the new railroad was made yesterday.

Revenue-Raising Will Be Goal Of Special Session

Senate In Recess To Next Monday As Lower House Investigates Charges Of Impeachment On Terrell

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP)—The fifth special session of the 41st legislature had all the earmarks of being a revenue-raising body today.

While the house of representatives investigated charges against Comptroller S. H. Terrell and the senate was in recess until Monday, tax measures piled up, awaiting action of the house committee.

The house yesterday put its foot down on a plan of the revenue and taxation committee to invite 21 "representative citizens" to sit with it in considering tax measures. The committee during the fourth session had resolved to the effect it needed assistance of men representing diversified interests in an effort to work out a new tax system and went on record inviting assistance, but the house voted, 85 to 15, to veto the committee's plans.

Others On Way.

Proposals to tax sulphur, natural gas, theatres, chain stores, tobacco and gross cash value of assets of foreign and domestic corporations were in the legislative hoppers and others were on the way.

There were three bills proposing a tax on sulphur, fixing the levy at 50 cents, 75 cents and $1 per ton. There were two natural gas bills, one proposing a graduated scale ranging from one-fourth of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet to two cents, according to volume, and the other fixing the tax at one cent flat per 1,000 cubic feet. Tobacco would be taxed one cent on each ten cents of the retail selling price.

Prison Problem Back.

Penitentiary reorganization and concentration was back in the limelight with bills proposed by the two factions that fought to a draw during the fourth called session—centralization near Austin and rehabilitation of the Huntsville headquarters plant and improvement of farms.

BIDS REJECTED

BIG SPRING, Feb. 21—All bids were rejected on the construction of the school building to be erected at Vealmoor, sixteen miles north of Big Spring. New bids will be received up until March 7. The building will be built of frame and will be 28x40 feet, according to Miss Pauline Cantrell, county superintendent.
