MISS DARLENE BRITT

Miss Britt Visiting Grandparents

Miss Darlene Britt of Shreveport, La. is visiting here with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Williams, 3008 Forty-second Street. Darlene has just returned from 10 days in Chicago, Ill. where she was grand recorder and grand representative to the state of Rhode Island of The Rainbow Girls. She was grand page to the Grand Worthy Advisor for the state of Louisiana held in New Orleans and is past Worthy Advisor of The Rainbow Girls in Shreveport. Accompanying her to Chicago was the Rev. McNair and Mrs. Smith of Shreveport. While there the group met with representatives of Rainbow from 50 states, Puerto Rico, Venezuela, Switzerland and all other countries where The Order is active.

Miss Britt was home less than a week from her 15 day trip when she decided to come to Snyder to be with her grandmother, who broke her leg and hip on Oct. 24th. Mrs. Williams is able to be up and around now with the use of a walker.

Nut-Brown Dressing

1/2 teaspoon each salt, dark brown sugar and paprika
1/4 cup olive oil
1 1/2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 small clove garlic (peeled and bruised)
In a small jar with a screw top cover shake together thoroughly all the ingredients. Refrigerate for several hours or longer before using. Allow to come to room temperature, remove garlic and use as dressing for mixed green salad. Makes about 1-3 cup dressing.

Bargain Buys In Vegetables Now Available

By The Associated Press
Okra is the big bargain at Texas produce centers as farm prices drop to the low point this season, the Agriculture Marketing Service reports.

The increased supplies likewise make sweet corn, cabbage, lettuce and tomatoes good vegetable buys. Only a few fresh vegetables are cheaper at the whole level than a week ago. These include cabbage, celery, egg plant, yellow onions and potatoes.

Thompson seedless and cardinal grapes and peaches have changed very little in price.

New arrivals at Texas markets include New Jersey blueberries and western plums. Turkeys, eggs and cheese are the most plentiful protein-rich foods. Broilers and pork are slightly higher. Beef prices are about stable.

Good discount prices on package sales of canned peaches can be expected since the new pack will soon be ready to process.

Troops In Combat

BERLIN (AP) — About 1,500 troops of the U.S. garrison in Berlin were deployed to combat positions today in a readiness test. Such surprise practice alerts are sprung on units of the Berlin brigade from time to time as part of their normal training.

For a Summery Coffee Party, A Cool Mocha Cheese Mousse

As many beautiful desserts come from the refrigerator as come from the oven these days. No one will dispute the fact that frosty desserts are a blessing, particularly in summer.

This Mocha Cheese Mousse is one of the best. The flavor is a delicate blend of chocolate and coffee, a combination virtually everyone adores. It's easy to serve and just the right size when you're having a few couples over for coffee-and-dessert.

No matter how high the temperature, you can be relaxed and cool-looking when your guests arrive. With the Mousse prepared ahead of time and safely stored in the refrigerator, all you have to do is put a large pot of coffee on to brew. Makes entertaining a pleasure any time of year.

- 1-3 cup Dutch process breakfast cocoa
- 1 1/4 cups sugar, divided
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 2 cups strong coffee
- 2 eggs, separated
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
- 1 cup heavy cream

Combine cocoa, 1 cup sugar, gelatin and coffee in saucepan. Beat egg yolks slightly. Stir in. Stir over low heat until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Add vanilla. Cool. Whip cream cheese until smooth and fluffy. Beat in cool gelatin mixture until frothy. Add remaining sugar slowly while beating until soft peaks form. Fold egg white mixture into cheese mixture. Whip cream; fold in. Spoon into oiled 6-inch spring form pan. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream. Serves 8.

The program was initiated in 1957 through a grant donated by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation. The grant covers the students' living expenses while they are taking part in the program and provides funds necessary for administration of the work.

Dr. Willa Vaughn Tinsley, home economics dean, said the program gives the students a chance to observe teachers in action, become acquainted with teaching materials, and to try out their chosen profession.

General Clay, Hero Of Berlin, Urges West To Stand Pat

By SAUL PETT
AP Staff Writer

The man who broke the Stalin blockade of Berlin warns that the Kremlin must understand and believe the West will resist with force if the Russians go too far in their drive to evict the Allies.

"Unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they're going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war," says Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative to Berlin.

But Clay is optimistic that war can be prevented and that some day—puts no date on it—there will be a reunified, free Germany.

Clay's views are set forth in an exhaustive question-and-answer exploration of the perennial Berlin crisis: once again pushed into the headlines by Premier Khrushchev's demands.

This is the second of two sections of the exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

Q. General, before you went over last September you said you thought there might be some room for give and take toward a Berlin solution. You made clear you felt this might be an area not involving our basic rights. Do you still feel that way?

A. I think there is room. If the regime in Germany is so involved in policing the highways that they would insist on taking over this responsibility from the Soviet troops not doing it, then there is a possibility this could be made an international highway. If it could be set up under international police with complete freedom of movement on the highway, except as controlled by international police for both Allies and Germans, I would think this would be a trade we could well accept.

Q. Has this area been explored?

A. This is one of the areas which we have been exploring. I am sure, with our allies. It has not yet been explored with the Soviet government because the talks have not progressed to that degree.

Q. Is the West prepared to react instantaneously to any new Soviet aggressive move?

A. The machinery to get prompt Allied reaction has been greatly improved. And for a great many contingencies there could be and would be instant reaction. There are still fields in which the contingency planning does not cover immediate action in Berlin. These are in the cases which are so close to the instance which would cause war as to be almost certain. There are still fields in which the contingency planning does not cover immediate action in Berlin. These are in the cases which are so close to the instance which would cause war as to be almost certain.

they did?

A. Well, I think it would be very difficult for me to say that it didn't follow that kind of pattern because it's too well known that my own views have been that we must always take a strong stand in dealing with the Soviet government, a stand which they can understand and believe. Now this is to me essential to prevent war because unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they're going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war. Therefore I think we have to make them understand that any step they take over a special line—of course, this is getting down to a much clearer definition than actually exists—that it means they're going to be met with force, that they can only cross that line by using force. If we can establish that understanding then I think war is most unlikely. I think that what we have in our minds pretty well drawn that line. But I'm not too sure that the entire Allied organization accepts the same line.

Q. Is there any possibility of the wall coming down now short of meeting Moscow's demands?

A. No. I don't think so. If it did come down, there would be a mass migration from East Germany into West Germany. This is something that would destroy completely the Ulbricht regime and the East German economy.

Q. Since it's too late to bring it down by force, we're not likely to negotiate it down?

A. I think that what we have got is the possibility of working out an arrangement on a humanitarian basis where at least families from West Berlin can go over and visit their relatives in East Berlin and return in safety. This is all I can foresee as likely to happen in the immediate future.

Q. Looking far into the future, what do you think ultimately will be the status of Berlin?

A. Well, West Berlin has now lived for 17 years behind the Iron Curtain. Since 1947 it has lived in an atmosphere of a Communist regime. In that period, it has grown and prospered and become again a great city. It has been able to do this for 15 years. I see no reason why it shouldn't continue to live and prosper as a free city until there is a final solution even though it takes a great many years. Ultimately, it seems to me that with peace in the world there is certain to come a day when we have a reunified Germany, reunified in the new sense of a free and democratic Germany as has developed in the Federal Republic. Now when and how this will come about is certainly something that I would not want to prophesy.

TO EASE BERLIN TENSIONS

Rusk To Go 'All Out' At Geneva

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk plans to make a major effort at Geneva to get Russia to shelve its demands for withdrawal of U.S., British and French forces from West Berlin.

Rusk and President Kennedy are known to feel that if U.S.-Soviet negotiations on the Berlin dispute can be moved beyond this issue, there may be some hope of at least getting an "agreement to disagree" and reduce the danger of periodic East-West crises over Berlin.

Rusk is scheduled to leave for Geneva at midnight. He is due there Friday afternoon.

His immediate reason for making the trip is to join with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and top representatives of a dozen other nations, including Red China, in signing accords on the neutralization of Laos.

But this ceremonial function will be overshadowed by the talks he and other Western foreign ministers have with Gromyko on Berlin and the equally deadlocked issue of nuclear testing.

The whole complex of disarmament problems, including a test ban, is now before a 17-nation disarmament conference at Geneva. But Rusk is expected to urge Gromyko that the Soviet government should reconsider its opposition to any kind of international inspection as a means of safeguarding disarmament agreements.

In the case of nuclear testing the United States is reported to have decided against accepting a Mexican suggestion that the big powers set an automatic cutoff date of Jan. 1 for nuclear weapons explosions. Since the Russians are planning another series of tests probably later this year with unpredictable results, U.S. leaders feel that to agree now to a cutoff date would in effect be giving the Soviets a "blank check" in the nuclear arms race.

The U.S.-Soviet Berlin talks have been stalemated for many weeks. From the western point of view, the reason is Soviet unwillingness to discuss any issue other than withdrawal of troops from West Berlin.

In the circumstances, Rusk sees no prospect of working out with the Soviet government any kind of Berlin settlement formula.

What he does consider possible is some kind of understanding between Moscow and the West on a live-and-let-live policy with respect to Berlin. That could at least be talked about, he believes, if the Soviet government would put aside or ease off its troop withdrawal demand in the interest of discussing other issues related to Berlin. Such issues could include arrangements for minimizing friction which arises between East and West Berlin at border points and for handling the problems of West Berlin supply lines which cross 110 miles of Communist East German territory.

'Get Tough' Policy Is Instituted

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eastern Air Lines is telling its striking flight engineers to report for work by next Tuesday or face the loss of their jobs.

Bargaining talks between the carrier and the Flight Engineers International Association ended abruptly Wednesday night, apparently at a dead end. The Labor Department, which had been trying to get the two sides together, said no new sessions were scheduled.

Earlier, in New York, Eastern said it would make its final settlement offer by letter to all striking engineers in the hope they would accept and let Eastern put its planes back in the air.

Thus, the line, grounded since last June 23, attempted to bypass the leadership of the union.

The engineers were told they would be allowed to elect whether or not they wished to take jet flight training to be eligible for jet assignments.

"If you do not elect to take such training you will be restricted to propeller aircraft," the letter said. "Those who do not report by that date may be replaced and any who are re-employed thereafter will be restricted to propeller aircraft."

The engineers and the Air Line Pilots Association are locked in a dispute over cockpit job rights when the airlines reduce jet crews from four to three men, as contemplated.

The end of negotiations at midnight Wednesday night came as somewhat of a surprise. A few hours earlier, Eastern and the engineers were reported near agreement. For the first time, Eastern President Malcolm MacIntyre participated directly in the talks with the engineers.

Weather Over Nation Fair

By The Associated Press

Mostly fair weather prevailed over a large portion of the country Thursday and where there were exceptions it rained.

There were some widely scattered thundershowers in the Carolinas, Florida, the east coast of Louisiana, over southern Oklahoma, southeastern Arizona, New Mexico, North Dakota and Minnesota.

In a six-hour period starting late Wednesday, nearly two inches of rain fell at Jamestown, N.D., about an inch fell during the same period at Fargo, N.D., and Alexandria, Minn. About 1 1/4 inches fell at Fort Sill, Okla.

In the Northeast Wednesday, many sections had their first measurable rainfall in several weeks. Rain fell over New York City in a measurable amount for the first time in 21 days. Other sections, including Newark, N.J., and Williamsport, Pa., had more than 1/2 inches of rain.

Early Thursday temperatures were mostly seasonal—in the 50s along the upper tier of states; in the 60s and 70s over most of the rest of the country; some readings in the 80s were reported in the central South and southern Texas and in the 90s in the southern Plateau.

When In Egypt, Do As Egyptians Do, Liz

CAIRO (AP)—The United Arab Republic has refused to grant actress Elizabeth Taylor an entry visa because she has adopted the Jewish faith and supported Israeli causes, the newspaper Al-Ahram reported today.

Richard Burton, Miss Taylor's costar in the movie "Cleopatra" and her constant companion in Rome, arrived here Monday and said she also is trying to come for final outdoor scenes for the movie. Otherwise, he said, they will have to be filmed elsewhere.

Miss Taylor is in Switzerland.

Bon Voyage: Don't Forget To Phone

NEW YORK (AP)—"Hello, ma Guess where I am? I'm 40,000 feet over Cleveland."

Telephone calls from commercial airliners will become a reality starting next Wednesday when Trans World Airlines inaugurates its Skyphone service on an experimental basis.

Passengers flying eight miles high at 10 miles a minute will be able to phone ground stations when the new service is given a trial run on a jetliner between Chicago, St. Louis and the East Coast.

Churchill Due To Leave Hospital Soon

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill spent another comfortable night in Middlesex Hospital and ordered a bottle of champagne with his lunch today.

The 87-year-old statesman is making such good progress in his recovery from a thigh fracture that his doctors are expected to let him go home next week.

From me to you
A DAILY VIEW
Rev. R. Charles Spivey

"He who keeps you will not slumber. Behold, he who keeps Israel will neither slumber nor sleep."
Psalm 121: 3, 4.

Israel of old must have been a frightening place at night in reading the Psalms and other parts of the Bible, many verses say something about being protected during the night time. There were many strange and marauding beasts that attacked at night. Armies moved at night, capture cities by surprise. Under cover of darkness all manner of evil things happened. And, although we have been able to control many of the terrible "spirits" that move at nighttime, we still have some fears about the darkness, and things we can not see.

The Psalmist says we need not fear, though. God who keeps you will not slumber. He does not take his eyes off you. He continually and forever cares for you. He will not let any harm befall you. You are his, and regardless of what may happen to you, you are still his—He will not let you go.

'All Work, No Play' Not The Rule At Camp Cobra

BY RICHARD STARNES

CAMP COBRA, Thailand—Where Bravo Company acquired that pig is something of a military secret.

Wherever it came from, it was a lovely pig, a pig of dignity and stature, a highly motivated pig, a dedicated pig. It was introduced to the pig by the noncoms of Bravo Company who had invited both of us to a luau, which is a Hawaiian-type barbecue.

By the time I had reached the undergrowth safe from foragers of other companies of the 27th Infantry, the pig had been revolving contentedly over a charcoal pit for about eight hours.

Actually the roasting animal had an expression of fatuous delight, which immediately reminded me of Master Sgt. Joe (CQ) Gasser of the Headquarters Company. This isn't meant to suggest that the pig looked like Sergeant Gasser. Quite the contrary. This Sergeant is typical of the noncoms who are the backbone of any good fighting outfit.

Gasser is a good-looking soldier, a major in the Reserve and the sort of chap who can get things done when they're plainly impossible—like finding an airplane for a wandering reporter or somehow managing to fabricate a beautiful Martini in these unlikely surroundings.

The pig made me think of Gasser because of the expression I'd heard him use a couple of days before. The sergeant was out of sorts with a young soldier and he was so stating "Oh, said the private (1st class, "don't get unhappy, sarge."

"Unhappy?" the sergeant roared. "Why, son, I'm as happy as a dead hog in the sunshine. If I ever get unhappy, you'll know it."

So, anyway, here was a dead hog in the sunshine who obviously had gone to whatever Valhallas are reserved for barbecued pigs in a happy frame of mind. Therefore, it made me think of Sergeant Gasser.

The men of Bravo Company also had a barrel of cold beer, a mysterious goodie they described only as "long rice" and slices of fresh pineapple. Besides the pig, Maori Commandos, who are with a small New Zealand unit stationed nearby.

Combat troops play as hard as they fight. Bravo Company has two of the Wolfhounds' best hand-to-hand fighters, and these two gave a demonstration that impressed the Maoris, who are good at this sort of thing.

It was a fine party, and it wasn't until the pig was eaten and the jungle dark was relieved only by the glow of the charcoal pit and three flickering gasoline flares, that one realized these were all terribly lonely men, far from home, working hard at having fun so they could forget for a moment the corrosive emptiness of their lives.

Somebody from Bravo Company had a guitar and the Maoris and Yanks all seemed to have splendid voices for the sort of songs men sing when they're far away from home. They sang rousing songs, songs like "Waltzing Matilda," and they sang sad songs that speak of distant lovers.

I looked through the flickering torch light at the face of a young lieutenant who had been married just four days before the Battle Group was ordered to Thailand nearly three months ago. I tried to read his thoughts. I decided it was none of my business, no more than were the thoughts of a skinny hawk-nosed buck sergeant who had told me earlier that he and his wife had wanted children for nine years—and that three weeks ago a son was born to them in Hawaii.

I could see him looking into the dying embers of charcoal and wonder what a first-born son looks like. And I wanted to walk over and tell him that they look pretty damn good, but I didn't.

Eventually the singing stopped and the men began to drift away to their tents, some stumbling from too much beer and the rough ground in the dark.

I walked back to my tent, still seeing faces I'd been watching in the firelight. I turned back my mosquito net and took off my boots by the light of a flashlight.

It was then that a huge, malevolent tarantula crawled out of a crack in the tent floor and stood paralyzed in the light of my flashlight. Suddenly the great obscene spider

Hole In The Ground Can Be Profitable

By HAL BOYLE

TOWNSEND, Tenn. (AP)—Fortune is where you find it, but it takes a lot of imagination to see a profitable future in a worthless hole in the ground.

Two mountain boys here had that kind of imagination—and the kind of courage that enabled them to follow a dream that made them the laughing stocks of the valley for years.

But today Harry Myers and Bill Vananda are the proprietors of Tuckaleechee Caverns, one of the country's successful commercial caves.

The age-old cavern and its bubbling brook haunted the childhood of the two friends.

"We played Tom Sawyer in the main passage as kids," recalled Myers. "We explored it for three quarters of a mile, sometimes wriggling on our bellies, and lighting our way with home-made lamps—pop bottles filled with kerosene."

In 1949, while drinking coffee in a Maryville College hangout, the pair fell to reminiscing about the cavern and decided to try to turn it into a tourist attraction.

The project did take a lot of gumption. Nobody would lend them money. Each of the young men was married and had two children. They went to Alaska and labored on construction jobs there to raise funds.

After four years of lonely toil—the two men carried in hundreds of tons of sand, cement and gravel on their backs to build steps and passageways—they opened the cave in 1953.

That first year the cave had only 2,000 visitors, and Myers and Vananda glumly wondered whether those who had laughed at them were right after all.

But they stubbornly worked on widening passageways, and the next year discovered one of the largest cavern rooms in the East. That turned out to be their real bonanza.

The cave now draws 30,000 or more visitors annually and as Harry wryly observed, "The same fellows who called us fools now say, 'I knew you had a good thing there when you started.'"

What is the biggest headache of a commercial cave proprietor? "It's that one out of every 150 visitors—and usually it's an adult, not a teen-ager—who wants to break off one of the rock formations for a souvenir," said Harry.

"Water has to drip 100 years to make a single cubic inch of stalagmite. It may take nature 10,000 years to form just one small crystal spire—and then some joker comes along and breaks it off in a single second."

"And when he gets it above ground what does he have? Just a piece of worthless stone. It has no meaning except in the cave where it grew."

which seemed nearly as big as my hand personified all the evil and horror felt by lonely frightened men at war.

Junior Editors Quiz on BOOKS

QUESTION: Who invented pages in a book?

ANSWER: Among the first books were tablets of clay (A) made in Ninevah and Babylon about 3500 B.C. The writing was done by pressing a triangular tool into the clay and then baking to make the marks permanent. Later the Egyptians made paper, or "papyrus," from reeds. They wrote on long scrolls which one had to unwind in order to read. The Greeks and Romans also followed this system. By about 300 A.D. parchment or animal skin was in use instead of paper, and monks in monasteries, who had to write their books by hand (B), began to fold parchment into sheets, put them together into a group called a "gathering" and then sew a number of gatherings into a book. These were the first pages, but they were not the first printed pages. Printing written characters on paper was invented by the Chinese—there is a scroll made by them in 568 which is said to be the first printed book. The first printed pages of the kind of book we know about came into being in 1456, when Johannes Gutenberg printed his famous Bible, using the new discovery of movable type. These printed pages soon made knowledge available to everybody.

FOR YOU TO DO: Make your own book of your writings and drawings. One easy way, fold a number of pieces of paper of the same size in half and punch four holes through the folded edge, using a hammer and nail. Thread string through the holes and tie the ends with a bow knot.

Dr. Soblen's Attorneys File Appeal

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert Soblen's attorneys plan to file an appeal today against a court decision upholding the British government's detention of the convicted Soviet spy until it can expel him from Britain.

A three-man high court rejected Wednesday the 61-year-old psychiatrist's plea for liberty, made in an attempt to escape a life term in the United States for passing U.S. secrets to the Russians.

However, the judges granted his petition to appeal their decision to a higher tribunal. This may take six weeks or more. In the meantime, the government, in effect, is barred from shipping Soblen out of the country.

Rejection of his appeal would leave Soblen one chance to escape U.S. justice—his petition to the Home Office for asylum as a political refugee. Granting of asylum is considered unlikely.

If both the appeal and the asylum petition are denied, he will be turned over to El Al, the Israeli airline, which would return him to New York.

Soblen maneuvered his case into the British courts by slashing a wrist and his abdomen July 1 while aboard an Israeli airliner carrying him back to New York from Tel Aviv, Israel, where he had fled after jumping $100,000 bail.

When the airliner touched down at London, Soblen was rushed to a hospital for emergency treatment. But the Home Office maintained he was not given official permission to land and consequently could be detained until he was able to travel out of the country. The court agreed.

Union Filed Against By Candidate

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A Republican candidate for congressman-at-large who battled the Teamsters Union for 2½ years—has brought a slander suit against the union and one of its officials.

Desmond Barry of Houston, President of Galveston Truck Lines, filed the suit in district court Wednesday.

He named M. J. Dusty, Miller regional director of the teamsters' 14-state Southern Conference, as a defendant.

Miller spoke at the state AFL-CIO convention here earlier in the day and accused Barry of not telling the truth in Barry's account of the fight that started seven years ago.

The suit, states Miller called Barry "an unmitigated liar" in the speech. It asks $1 actual and $500 exemplary damages.

In the speech, Miller challenged Barry to file the suit and said he would prove the untruthfulness of the candidate's statements from the witness chair.

Barry spoke at a meeting of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education Tuesday, as did all other statewide candidates.

The other candidates discussed campaign issues. Barry spoke against the teamsters, so AFL-CIO President Hank Brown gave Miller equal time.

Kent Creek Watershed Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Agriculture Subcommittee heard a plea Wednesday from Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., to approve a $339,000 Kent Creek watershed project for Briscoe and Hall Counties.

The project involves construction of eight grade stabilization structures, nine miles of channel improvement and seven storage dams to slow rapid runoff of flood waters in the Texas Panhandle area.

Heavy rains send torrents of water gushing from high plateau areas, along with great amounts of sand and gravel that damage farmland, Rogers said.

Soil Conservation Service representatives said local interests would contribute $98,740 of the cost and the federal government $240,260. They added the local interests already have done much of the soil conservation work which ordinarily would be included in such a project.

Peru Rioting Under Control

By THOMAS J. STONE

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Demonstrations continued in Lima Wednesday night but were broken up quickly by the military junta, whose seizure of power brought sharp rebuffs from hemispheric allies.

The armed forces clamped dictatorial rule on the Andean nation and appeared in complete control—at least for the moment—after overthrowing the constitutional government of President Manuel Prado.

Sporadic demonstrations, which were sparked by students and teenagers, broke out in the capital in protest against the military takeover of the government to nullify the June 10 national elections.

Troops, firing submachine gun bursts into the air and tear gas and police using water cannon and welding truncheons, dispersed the demonstrations.

Three students were reported wounded during the day.

A bigger threat to the junta came from the giant Confederation of Labor, whose leaders were reported considering a general strike in protest against the military seizure of power. The confederation controls 75 per cent of the nation's labor force.

The United States quickly denounced the coup, suspended diplomatic relations with Peru, and halted further Alliance for Progress aid, which has been pouring into the country at the rate of $75 million a year.

The U.S. action stopped short of a full break in diplomatic relations, and U.S. Ambassador James Loch was ordered to remain in Lima to report developments. Such consular relations between the two countries as issuance of visas and commercial arrangements will continue.

U.S. aid projects already underway—school lunches, road, water and sewage works, and income housing—also will continue but no new U.S. help can be negotiated until Peru gets a government the United States recognizes.

Four Latin American nations—Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic—also refused to recognize the military regime and suspended diplomatic relations. Brazil, Mexico and Panama said they were studying the situation.

Venezuela proposed a meeting of the foreign ministers of the American republics for a joint protest against the military takeover. There was doubt that the suggestion would make much headway, however, for fear of charges of intervening in the internal affairs of Peru.

Prado, 72, denied to the last the military chief's charge that the elections had been rigged. Unconfirmed reports said he was being held aboard a warship at Callao, Lima's seaport.

Several other officials were reported held with him.

Victor Raúl Haya de la Torre, front-runner in last month's presidential race and the military's longtime chief target, disappeared amid reports he had taken asylum in the Venezuelan embassy.

Now 67, he spent five years in the Colombian embassy after Gen. Manuel Odría's coup in 1948.

Gen. Perez Godoy, the 56-year-old head of the 12-man junta, pledged in a broadcast to the nation that "honest and clean elections" will be held next June and civilian government will return by July 28, 1963, a year to the day after Prado's elected successor would have taken office.

Perez Godoy said the military had taken power because "a group of politicians who place party interests above national interest" has carried out a great electoral fraud in the June 10 elections.

He said the junta members renounce "any present or future political ambition" and have a "concrete and inflexible determination not to remain in the government longer than necessary for carrying out new elections."

The government radio broadcast two decrees by the Junta. One dissolved and declared null and void the electoral boards that supervised the June elections, in effect cancelling the election results. This left the nation without a congress, since the term of the previous congress has expired.

The second decree called for elections on the second Sunday of June, 1963, and ordered a review beforehand of all registration rolls in the country. The military had charged previously that Haya's APRA party had falsified the rolls in provinces where it is strong.

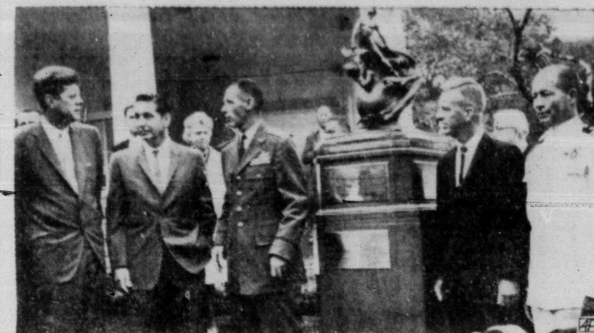

Prado, when he surrendered to military arrest, left behind a defiant message to the nation insisting the elections had been held under government watch with strict impartiality and in "absolute freedom." He said the coup had annulled the ballots of 2 million voters.

In the election Haya de la Torre was the high man, with Fernando Belaunde Terry second and ex-captain Odría third. Haya, however, did not get the one-third of the total vote required for election and under the constitution the new congress, elected at the same time, was to choose a president.

In an attempt to avert a military coup, Haya agreed this week with congressional representatives to elect Odría to elect the president. But the agreement came too late to stop the military.

Though tension was high at some points in the capital and in some circles the bulk of the more than 8 million Peruvians—including 1.3 million largely illiterate Indians—appeared to accept the coup quietly.

The government palace seized by the military when President Prado was carted away before junta seized power.

Lease Rights In Unusual Hands

HOUSTON (AP)—The Houston Post reported today the new landlord of the New York Yankees is Rice University.

Lease rights to Yankee Stadium in New York were given Rice earlier this year by John W. Cox, a wealthy Chicago businessman. He was graduated from Rice in 1927.

The stadium is the home of the American League leading Yankees.

Cox bought the primary lease on Yankee Stadium, in 1953, from Arnold Johnson, owner of the Kansas City Athletics. The stadium is under a 25-year sublease to the Yankees.

The lease dates from Dec. 17, 1953, when Johnson and associates bought the stadium from the Yankees and resold it to the Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic fraternal organization.

The Knights of Columbus sublet the facilities back to interests of Del Webb and Dan Topping, owners of the Yankees.

The Post said in a copyrighted story that the lease from the Knights of Columbus to Johnson was purchased by Cox from Johnson in 1953 and given to Rice earlier this year. Under the lease, the Knights of Columbus receive $182,000 a year.

The Post said the 25-year sublease to the Webb and Topping interests reportedly calls for payments totaling $11,500,000, or about $460,000 a year to the holder of the primary lease, now Rice University.
