Liberia's Doe may resign

■ With U.S. ships ready to rescue Americans and, if asked, President Samuel Doe, the Liberian leader has agreed "in principle" to resign under certain conditions.

Associated Press

MONROVIA, Liberia — Embattled President Samuel Doe has agreed in principle to resign, political sources said Tuesday. Rebels battled government troops in the capital's suburbs.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Doe agreed to step down only on the condition that his safety and that of his minority Krahn tribe are guaranteed.

But they said few people believe that rebel leader Charles Taylor, a former Doe aide who fled when he was accused of embezzlement, would be able to restrain his people's desire for vengeance.

Four U.S. warships are off the Liberian coast, and the United States has said it would evacuate Doe if he asked. The presence of U.S. Marines, even if there ostensibly to guard Americans, could be seen as a controlling influence on the rebels.

Doe's adminstration has asked the United States to intervene on several occasions, but Washington has declined.

U.S. officials in Washington said Tuesday they believe Doe's government could collapse within days. The officials, who asked not to be identified, said there had been a number of desertions from the elite unit that protects Doe.

A rebel leader in the United States, Tom Woewiyu, said the insurgents would not oppose a U.S. evacuation of Doe, who has ruled Liberia for a decade.

"If they can help him, God bless him. If they can't, we'll get him," Woewiyu said. "If they can send a hook from the heavens to pull him up and take him out, fine, we wouldn't mind that. We can try him later."

A rebel source in neighboring Ivory Coast, meanwhile, said 800 insurgents were involved in attacks on Monrovia on Monday and several thousand more were advancing, bringing heavy artillery with them.

There were no reports of fighting Tuesday in Monrovia itself, where Doe was holed up in his heavily fortified executive mansion.

But the fighting continued two miles north of Monrovia's port, and further west on the road to Sierra Leone near the Hotel Africa — the city's biggest hotel complex.

Sounds of those battles could be heard in the city center.

There also was fighting in Paynesville suburb, which is within eight miles of Party power

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party leaders said Tuesday they will fight calls to turn over some of its enormous wealth, saying such demands are intended to cripple the party in its struggle with emerging political groups.

Preparing for what promises to be a fierce fight over its trove with opposition parties, reformist Communist factions and elected legislatures, the ruling party also set a value on its property for the first time — 4.9 billion rubles ($8.2 billion at the official rate).

Lanson dies

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Snooky Lanson, the smiling crooner of "Your Hit Parade," television's pop music show of the 1950s, has died at age 76.

Lanson

He died Monday night at St. Thomas Hospital, where he had been a patient since Saturday, said hospital spokeswoman Elise Shelton. The hospital did not release the cause of death.

Lanson sang on "Your Hit Parade," a spinoff of radio's "Lucky Strike Hit Parade," from 1950 to 1957. The TV show featured elaborate production numbers of the week's seven most popular songs, with No. 1 always presented last. Other singers on "Your Hit Parade" included Dorothy Collins, Polly Bergen, Gisele MacKenzie, Eileen Wilson and June Valli.

Cooling off

Cooler, wetter weather moving into New Mexico helped fire crews battling a series of fires across the state, and forest officials said they hope the dry lightning that sparked blazes most of last month is winding down.

But fire officials said the Independence Day holiday, with its traditional fireworks, inevitably means new trouble.

"We always worry about the Fourth of July," said Bob Pena, Lincoln National Forest zone coordinator for the interagency dispatch center in Alamogordo. Fireworks are forbidden on all national forests.

Weather watch

After six days when the temperature soared above the century mark — ending June 28 with a high of 101 — as of Tuesday the Midland-Odessa area has enjoyed six days of below 100 degree temperatures, according to the National Weather Service.

However, arid conditions continued as no measurable rainfall was reported for the 19th consecutive day.

Firefighters extinguish oil unit fire

■ A Tuesday afternoon fire at a Pasadena petroleum plant was extinguished in about five hours, with no evacautions necessary and no injuries reported.

Associated Press

PASADENA — A crude oil unit at Crown Central Petroleum Corp. exploded Tuesday, igniting a fire that billowed black smoke visible miles from the Houston Ship Channel.

The fire broke out shortly before 2 p.m. and was declared out about five hours later, according to the Pasadena Fire Department. Al Caldwell, vice president of refining for Crown Central, said company officials had accounted for all employees working in the area.

"It's all clear. There were no injuries and that's the best part," fire department dispatcher John Bordelon said.

Debbie Taylor, spokeswoman for Pasadena Emergency Preparedness, said there were no evacuations called in the area.

"It puts out a lot of black smoke, but it looks worse than it is," Ms. Taylor said of the fire.

Crown Central spokesman Jim Taylor said gas and other material in the crude unit were ablaze, but not crude oil. "It's not refined yet," he said of the material inside the unit. Taylor declined to provide further information.

Caldwell said the explosion occurred about 1:50 p.m.

"The crude unit charge pump blew a seal causing the initial fire which subsequently affected some overhead fin fan coolers," Caldwell said. "The unit charge and lines were secured within 20 minutes. At 2:30 p.m., the fire was confined to the overhead fin fan exchangers of the dehexanizer tower."

Company spokesmen would not elaborate on details of the structure or the fire. But Taylor said the unit would be allowed to burn itself out, with firefighters containing the blaze.

At least eight units from the Pasadena Fire Department pumped water onto the fireball in the structure of the plant.

Outlook for farmers 'grim'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The rain on the plain is mainly gone again.

And that goes for every valley, hill, ridge, cranny and nook in South Texas.

Sure, it rained this spring, but the National Weather Service said it really didn't help much.

Although rainfall in most parts of South Texas measured 125 to 175 percent or normal totals during the first four months of the year, the NWS said the spring's wet weather was "in the overall picture, useless."

Searing heat during June has literally baked away almost all of the moisture in the soil, leaving huge cracks in many areas. The average temperature for June in San Antonio was 87.5 degrees, 5.6 degrees above normal.

Events focus on family

Staff Report

The highly touted Ranch Rodeo is far from the only entertainment option available to holiday revelers.

Beginning at 9:30 a.m. today the Old Fashioned Fourth of July Family Fun Day at Hogan Park will offer entertainment, food, games and contests and a flea market, all coordinated by the Downtown Lions Club.

The merrymaking is scheduled to continue until 10 p.m.

At Windlands Park and the Mabee Memorial Swim Center at 10:30 a.m. the Midland Junior League's Fab-Duck-ulous Family Fun Fair will take to the water.

The fair, benefiting the Junior League's "Building for a Better Midland" capital campaign, will last until 1 p.m. and also will feature the Daughters of the American Revolution's 28th Annual Children's Sidewalk Parade at 9 a.m.

Texans have varied plans

Texans have planned a day of barbecues, soap box derbies, concerts and political picnic stumping for this Fourth of July. But it will cost more to get to them and firefighters are worried about what might happen when you get there.

Communities are planning to cap off the evening with old-fashioned fireworks displays. And firefighters prefer that Texans limit their fireworks to watching the big shows.

Forward Midland urges caution on half-cent tax

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

The city and Midland County Hospital District agreed to reconsider their rival rush for the last half-cent of sales tax after a Monday night meeting with Forward Midland.

Mayor Carroll Thomas said that he and council member J.D. Faircloth, as well as representatives of the hospital district, attended the meeting hosted by the chamber of commerce's economic development task force.

"Forward Midland is concerned that we are acting too hastily by going into the half-cent tax now," Thomas said.

He said the group had suggested that both entities back off from putting the sales tax issues to a vote Aug. 11, pending a consideration of other alternatives.

While neither the city nor the hospital district had a quorum present to make a formal decision on the fate of the tax issues, representatives for both groups said they would take the suggestion back to their colleagues.

Prior to July 12, the deadline for putting the issues on the ballot, the City Council will discuss its position during two readings of the sales tax proposal and the hospital district board will meet to reconsider its June 27 decision to place the sales tax proposal on the ballot.

The city wants the sales tax to boost economic diversification, while the hospital district wants it to pay for debts associated with indigent health care.

State law says the city's economic development issue would win should voters approve both sales tax initiatives.

"We're asking that they not be in a hurry," said Doug Henson, a member of Forward Midland. "We think there's a good possibility for delay on the election."

He said there was not enough time to evaluate what combination of taxes and services would best serve Midland before the proposed election date.

Ray Branson, president of Midland Memorial Hospital, said one alternative Forward Midland proposed is to petition the Legislature to allow quarter-cent sales taxes when it convenes in January 1991.

"If the Legislature would allow our half-cent to be split into two quarter-cent taxes, it would make the use of the sales tax more flexible," Branson said.

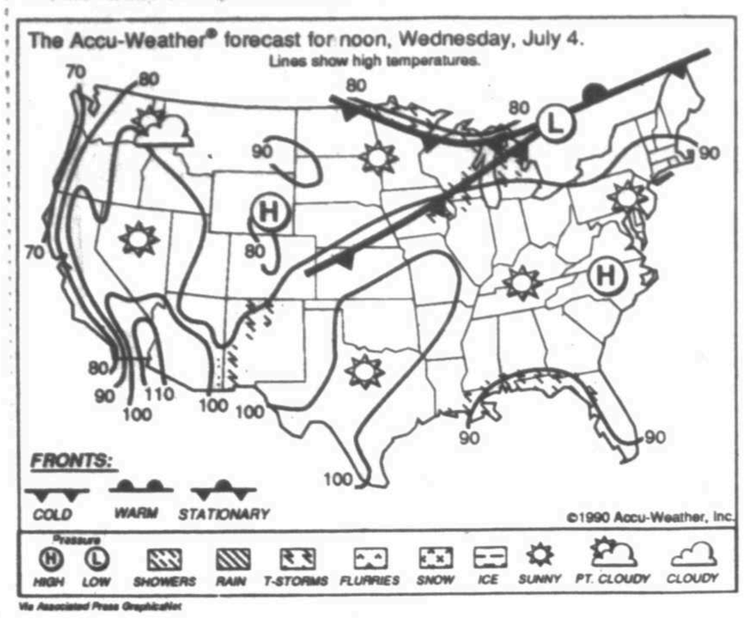

He said a quarter-cent sales tax would eliminate the annual shortfall for indigent care.

However, Branson said it would take months for the Legislature to consider the split tax request.

"If it's not going to the voters Aug. 11, it effectively means it's not going to them for 12 months," he said.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Sunny skies expected today

Staff Report

Forecasters at the National Weather Service predict sunny skies for this Independence Day, with a high in the upper 90s and winds from the south at 10 to 20 mph.

Fair weather should continue through tonight, with a low near 70, NWS officials said. In addition, Thursday should see continued fair weather, with more sunny skies and a high in the 90s, the officials said.

The record high for Tuesday's date was set in 1983, the record drought year in which the temperature reached 106 degrees. The lowest temperature on record for today's date is 60 degrees, set in 1972.

STATE

A stranger rode into some parts of Far West Texas and South Texas on Tuesday — rain.

There were scattered rainshowers from northeast of the Guadalupe Pass to southeast of Marfa. There were widely scattered thunderstorms near the coast in extreme South Texas.

But in other parts of the state, the skies were clear to partly cloudy.

The winds were from the south over most of the state.

Wind speeds were generally 5 to 15 mph, although they were slightly higher across the High Plains.

The extremes were 78 degrees at Guadalupe Pass in the mountains of the Trans-Pecos and 102 degrees, recorded at both Waco and Wichita Falls. Most of the state was reporting high temperatures on Tuesday in the 90s.

It will be hot as a firecracker on the Fourth of July in many Texas towns. Most of the state will have highs in the 90s, but the temperatures will shoot up to 10 along the Rio Grande and western portions of the Red River Valley.

There may be some isolated thunderstorms on Wednesday in the southern half of the Piney Woods.

NATION

A massive high-pressure zone kept the weather hot and dry in the central United States on Tuesday. Temperatures topped 100 degrees in some states.

Showers and thunderstorms fell mainly over the Southeast, from Florida and southern Georgia to southeastern Louisiana.

In Jacksonville, Fla., thunderstorms dropped an inch of rain in the six hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT.

Dry weather prevailed across the rest of the nation. A few showers fell in northern Maine, upper Michigan, New Mexico and Arizona.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

DOE: Liberian leader sets conditions

(From 1A)

Doe's fortified Israeli-built executive mansion overlooking the Atlantic ocean.

Western military sources said rebels who surrounded the city's landward sides Monday had not advanced. It was unclear whether the rebels were regrouping, or if they were awaiting reinforcements.

Soldiers sent to put down the rebellion have turned on civilians from the Gio and Mano tribes — to which many rebels belong — pillaging homes, killing and raping. Rebels have retaliated by killing Krahns and those of the wealthier tribe of Mandingos, accused of supporting Doe.

Diplomats said that at the country's Coca Cola factory on the outskirts of the Paynesville suburb, rebels who advanced past the bottling plant Tuesday were hunting for Mandingos and Krahns.

The same thing happened at the U.S. government's Omega tracking station — one of only seven of its kind in the world — just north of Paynesville.

Diplomats said rebels demanded that staff at the station hand over Mandingos and Krahns, but went away when they refused.

For Monrovia residents, who have been without water since last Wednesday and without electricity since Friday, life got more difficult. Shops remained shuttered and barred. People went out briefly to search for food and water before retreating to the safety of their homes.

Diplomats expressed fears for more than 6,000 refugees of the Gio and Mano tribes who had taken refuge against troop reprisals at five churches and at the Japanese ambasssador's residence.

A statement from the diplomatic corps demanded that the government halt further abuses of human rights, cease the murder of innocent civilians, and end army harassment of refugees at the centers.

Soldiers have been firing shots in the vicinity of the church centers at night and throwing bottles and other missiles into them, the statement said.

Three workers at the Saint Peter's Lutheran Church were taken away by soldiers Monday evening to an army base in Paynesville which has been under rebel attack since Monday, according to the Geneva-based International Committee of the Red Cross.

Peter Lutolf, a Red Cross representative, said those abducted included the church coordinator, identified only as Lavallah, and two assistants.

Unruly troops, many drunken or drugged, looted several shops Monday night under cover of a dusk-to-dawn curfew, shopkeepers said.

On Tuesday, they terrorized the city, shooting from commandeered cars and extorting money from passers-by.

Among the only vehicles to venture into the streets, apart from a few diplomats and relief workers, were cars and pick-ups crammed with heavily armed soldiers, some riding shotgun and others sticking their automatic rifles out of windows.

Dry desert, rowdy revelers have firefighters on edge

By Suzanne Gamboa

EL PASO (AP) — To most, July 4 is Independence Day. To firefighters in El Paso and nearby rural areas, it is just plain war.

About a week before the holiday, firefighters take up strategic points outside the city limits and stake out a common enemy: fireworks stands.

Using binoculars, they watch for people who buy fireworks on the outskirts of the city or in New Mexico and try to drive back into El Paso with their cache.

Anyone caught driving back into the city, where shooting fireworks is banned, is stopped and ticketed. Fines range from $35 to $2,000.

"It's like being in a war on the Fourth for us," said Fire Chief Andy Miehl.

Firefighters around the state generally are dreading the fireworks that come along —h the July 4 holiday.

Searing June heat that brought consecutive days of 100-plus temperatures and virtually no rain have left many areas dry and brittle.

"It's been so dry and so hot that everything is ready to go," Miehl said. In El Paso, many of the fires occur off TransMountain Road, which cuts through the Franklin Mountains. That area is dangerously dry this year, Miehl said.

"If we had a fire up there (this year), it would be like pouring gasoline on it," he said. This year police will help patrol the road.

Ralph Dominguez, secretary of the Montana Vista fire department, calls this week "Hell Week."

On July 4, people throw fireworks from cars that line the sides and median of Montana Avenue, which cuts through stretches of the desert east of El Paso.

Last year, Montana Vista volunteers answered 186 fire calls in three hours. Often a call came in while a truck was heading to another fire.

"They think Montana Street is out in the wildlands and there's nothing out here to burn. But people don't realize it's grown and we do have some businesses and residences here," Dominguez said.

The 28-member department is responsible for 136 square miles.

Firefighters also had to fend off bottle rockets and fireworks that were thrown at them while they tried to douse brush fires.

"What I told my guys this year is we have to go out there and do the best we can and pray that luck stays with us," Dominguez said.

Already, his station has put out six brush fires since fireworks went on sale last week. One was a fire at a family's horse stable. The fire, started by a bottle rocket, killed some of the family's horses, Dominguez said.

Miehl, a member of Texas Firefighters Association, said the group plans to lobby the Legislature next year to seek a statewide ban on fireworks. He said he expects a tough fight against the fireworks industry lobby.

DRY: Spring's large rainfall of little use

(From 1A)

Following on the heels of severe drought conditions the past two years, residents in South Texas have not experienced such dry times since the mid 1950s.

Farmers had been optimistic after receiving so much rain this spring, the NWS said. But NWS officials now characterize the outlook in a single word: grim.

What appeared to be solid stands of crops have dried up and fallen over in McMullin, Live Oak, and Bee counties. Agricultural officials in Uvalde County expect they will harvest about 50 percent of their normal yield of cotton.

A freeze last December already had taken a huge toll on the Rio Grande Valley citrus crop. The drought and heat are putting stress on the trees that survived, the NWS said.

The city of Corpus Christi is one of the areas being hit the hardest. Very little runoff from April floods made it down the Frio and Nueces Rivers into the Choke Canyon Reservoir and Lake Mathis.

The Lower Rio Grande Valley also is particularly dry. The area was missed by the heavy spring rainfall. It received a couple of showers over the past week, but it probably comes too late to help grain sorghum and cotton crops.

The Valley's water supply is nothing but grim. Amistad Dam has slowly been declining the last three years and now stands at more than 26 feet below the pool level of 1,117 feet.

The heat has been boiling away the lake water. Falcon Lake fell more than 6 feet during June. Falcon dam reported daily pan evaporation rates of .6 inches or greater on some days.

TAX: Group fears city moving too quickly

(From 1A)

Henson said both entities have selected ad agencies and are prepared to push their issues to the voters.

If one group supports the sales tax, chances are good that both will.

"If the hospital decides to go with it, the council feels obliged to the city to give it the opportunity for the use of that tax for economic development," Thomas said.

"There's no guarantee that the district will rescind its previous action (to call for the sales tax election)," Branson said.

Thomas said the half-cent sales tax is the only vehicle the city has to promote economic development.

"We're limited to 1 percent of the general budget for economic development. We don't have any money to use for industrial development programs besides the sales tax," he said.

Several of the cities Midland competes against have passed the sales tax already, and Thomas predicts that they will have a better chance of attracting industry than cities without the tax.

"We need to let the voters know what the situation is. If they vote to spend half a cent on indigents without considering economic development, we'll be up to our maximum," said Thomas.

The maximum sales tax rate is 8.25 percent, 2 percent of which is set aside for local taxing entities. Midland's current sales tax stands at 7.75 percent, with 1 percent earmarked for the city and 0.5 percent tagged for the county.

"Each agency has needs, there's no question," said Ray Branson. "In terms of economic diversity, there's a need for money to help support economic development and the hospital district has no problem with that thought.

"But the hospital district without question has to fund indigent care costs. Legislatively the board has a duty to do that and costs continue to rise."

The hospital district will use the $5.8 million in property taxes collected this year to pay Midland Memorial Hospital for indigent care costs, which are expected to reach $7.5 million this year.

The $1.2 million shortfall, after Medicare discounts are deducted, may be passed on to paying patients or cause a 33 percent increase in property tax rates if no sales tax passes, Branson said.

FOURTH: Activitites quite varied

(From 1A)

"I know how much people enjoy fireworks," said Austin Fire Lt. Scott Reynolds. But "with everything being so dry and brittle, if people would refrain (from using fireworks) and go watch public displays, it would probably save a lot of needless injury and fire damage."

Many Texas cities outlaw fireworks within city limits, which sends some people to rural areas to set them off. Firefighters are prepared to battle brush blazes.

At least one dealer said customers are showing some concern.

"A lot of people are safety-conscious and they won't buy skyrockets — anything that comes back down with a flame — because they're afraid of starting fires," said Kevin Walkup of Austin. "But then again, you get these other people that will shoot 'em in the middle of a grass field."

Political candidates are planning appearances. Republicans will hold a barbecue in Houston, and among the prizes is the chance to spend a weekend with GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams and his wife, Modesta.

Democrat Ann Richards will appear at a Democratic picnic at Waco.

Musician Willie Nelson is bringing back his annual Fourth of July picnic after a three-year absence. But organizers say it will be a much more mellow event than it has in the past, when there were complaints of excessive drinking and occasional nudity.

Getting to the picnics is more expensive this holiday. The American Automobile Association says gas prices are up 10 cents since Memorial Day, although they're only a penny higher than last Fourth of July.

Clarification

The proposed monthly night court for uncontested divorce hearings between parties represented by pro bono attorneys will convene at Casa de Amigos, 1101 E. Garden Lane.

A story in Sunday's Reporter-Telegram incorrectly reported another location. We regret the error.

Sunday's Midland Reporter-Telegram reported in the court records section that 19-year-old Shannon Lee Bray was sentenced to five years in state prison for violation of probation in a previous burglary of a building conviction.

Confusion over names has apparently caused embarrassment and inconvenience for Shannon Jo Bray, a 19-year-old woman who lives at 7503 S. County Road 1270.

Shannon Lee Bray, whose last known address is 3611 Thomason Drive, is described in court records as a white male.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the misunderstanding.

Marcos celebrates with co-defendant

NEW YORK (AP) — Imelda Marcos, acquitted of federal charges that she helped her husband loot the Philippine treasury, celebrated at a noisy party with co-defendant Adnan Khashoggi.

Marcos

Marcos spokesman Willie Padrone said Mrs. Marcos hasn't decided to return to Hawaii, where she has lived since she and her late husband, President Ferdinand Marcos, fled a popular revolt in the Philippines in 1986.

Another aide to Mrs. Marcos, Roger Peyuan, said Mrs. Marcos might stay in New York for a while to do things she wasn't able to do while she was on trial.

Khashoggi, whose acquittal freed him of restrictions on his movements, headed for Palm Beach, Fla. The 54-year-old financier said he would fly to France, then to his native Saudi Arabia to visit Islam's holiest shrine at Mecca.

Mrs. Marcos slept in Tuesday after Monday night's party. Early Tuesday evening, she left Manhattan for the Hillsborough, N.J., home of her friend Doris Duke, the tobacco heiress, Peyuan said.

Miss Duke lent Mrs. Marcos her Manhattan apartment and reportedly paid legal fees including $5 million for her main defense attorney, Gerry Spence.

Peyuan said Mrs. Marcos might stay at Miss Duke's home overnight or possibly for several days.

Don Robinson, an attorney who represents Miss Duke, quoted her as saying: "When I posted the bail for my friend Imelda a year and a half ago, I did it because I knew she was innocent. Now that 12 good citizens, after hearing all the evidence, have agreed with me, I am overjoyed. God Bless America."

The jury on Monday rejected the government's allegations that Mrs. Marcos had helped her husband loot their country's treasury of $222 million to secretly buy New York buildings and other luxuries.

It acquitted Khashoggi of charges he faked documents to show that he, rather than the Marcoses, owned the properties before a federal court order froze their assets in 1986.

In post-verdict interviews, jurors made clear they felt the pair shouldn't have been tried in the United States. One juror, Thomas O'Rourke, called the case "totally silly."

Miner freed by guerrillas returns home

Heimdal

"It's a great feeling" to be home, said Heimdal, 27, upon arriving in this western Illinois city. Except for a celebration Saturday, Heimdal said his only plans for this week were to "take it easy."

Wearing an "I Love Peoria" T-shirt, Heimdal stepped off a plane late Monday with his mother, Marge, who had flown to Ecuador June 18 to negotiate his release after the Colombian guerrillas refused to free him even though they had been given the money.

Heimdal had been working as a miner in Ecuador when he was kidnapped April 28 near the Colombian border.

His family raised $60,000 in four days of public appeals. Bars and banks took up collections, children sold lemonade and nursing homes held bake sales.

Heimdal said he intends to return to Ecuador. "It's really a wonderful country," he said.

Earlier Monday during a stopover in Miami, he identified his captors as members of the communist People's Liberation Army. He said they treated him with "great respect" and wished him "good luck" on his release.

TV camera lights, reporters' questions and a jubilant crowd of about 100 well-wishers deluged the Heimdals as they entered Peoria airport.

Heimdal received a bouquet of roses from Trudy Maloof, wife of the town's mayor, a family friend. Outside, a blue van was decorated with balloons and a sign saying, "Welcome home Scott and Marge."

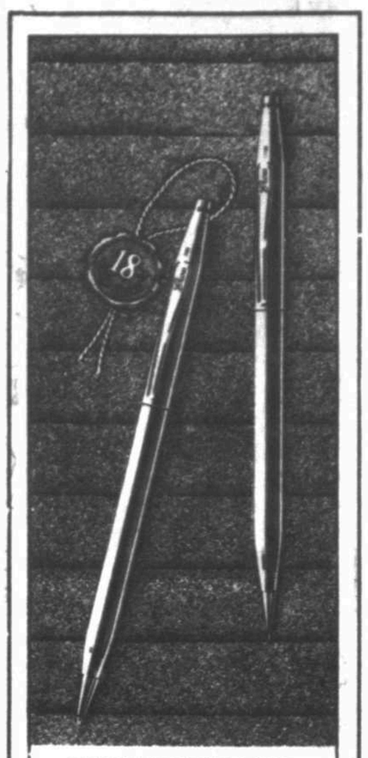

In Miami, Heimdal recounted his kidnapping, which took place while he was returning to the Ecuadoran capital of Quito.

"We were going down river in a 30-foot Indian dugout canoe when three men attacked us. They killed the driver, wounded the other guy and took me hostage. They were looking to kidnap a North American," he said.

Heimdal said that he initially feared for his life but that his captors treated him well. He said he was often moved about and was guarded by up to 25 guerrillas. The group kidnapped him to finance its war with the government of Colombia.

Originally his captors wanted far more money for his release, but Heimdal said he convinced them his parents could not afford it.

Blacks finding solution lacking

Several leading black scholars are now challenging the value of affirmative action programs, which use racial preferences and other means to assist blacks in terms of jobs, education and other economic and social advancement.

There have long been misgivings among some blacks that affirmative action may actually hinder their progress. Economist Thomas Sowell and sociologist William J. Wilson, among other blacks, are now criticizing the programs with renewed vigor.

These critics contend that the "implied inferiority" contained in affirmative action is self-destructive because it lowers black esteem not only in their own eyes but those of some whites. It also causes antagonism among whites who do not benefit from such preferences.

This antagonism has most recently arisen on college campuses in confrontations between black and white students. These have led to ugly scenes that have dealt setbacks to racial harmony.

Most black leaders favor affirmative action. They maintain that blacks still need such special legal and other help if they are to participate fairly and equally in society.

This raises two questions: Is such aid now a permanent part of society, and when will blacks stop blaming most of their problems on racism and accept more responsibility for their own failures?

The fact that this debate is taking place with renewed interest among blacks indicates that criticisms of affirmative action are now being considered by them. Affirmative action has never been the panacea that many blacks have made of it. Perhaps it is beginning to be obvious that black progress should depend less on federal law and preferences and more on the initiative of blacks.

Most thinking people recognize that without affirmative action opportunities for blacks would have been even slower coming than has been the case with affirmative action.

Even so there's more to the issue than that and it is good to see more black leaders are realizing that.

Crime pays for some enforcement groups

Crime does pay, at least for the law enforcement agencies who helped run Operation White Tornado in San Augustine last year.

Last week, federal officials disbursed property valued at $727,306 confiscated in a June 2, 1989 drug bust to the Texas Department of Public Safety, Port Arthur and San Augustine police departments, Liberty County and San Augustine sheriff's departments and the Shelby County District Attorney's office. ...

U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham said more than $100,000 in seized property remains to be parceled out.

Drug dealers are fast finding they can plan on losing everything if they get caught: their fancy cars, big houses, even the gold-nugget jewelry on their fingers. It's probably one of the most effective tools law enforcement has to persuade would-be entrepreneurs they should seek other fields in which to make their fortune.

Those who sell such poison deserve to lose their ill-gotten gains. Maybe the example set there will convince others that selling dope is a bad idea.

Mega Borg spill already subject to some revision

As the fire and oil spill from the supertanker Mega Borg recede into the past, it seems to us that a good deal of revisionist history of the incident already is in the making.

Texans and people outside the state are breathing a collective sign of relief, as if to say, "Well, now, that really wasn't so bad after all."

The agencies involved in fighting the fire and dealing with the oil spill already are doing a lot of boasting and self-congratulation.

But people are forgetting how close the region truly did come to disaster. Some things should not be forgotten:

Texas still does not have a written, comprehensive oil spill emergency plan.

Private businesses required to develop oil emergency plans have no single state agency to which to report.

No federal or state action has been taken to base oil spill cleanup equipment on the Texas Gulf Coast.

It is too early to gauge the full impact of damages from the Mega Borg.

America remains far too dependent on foreign oil.

And this is the scary part: It is only a matter of time until another spill occurs, and the next one may be much worse.

Will insurance probe stir memories of S&L scandal?

Word that a pending investigation into insurance fraud could turn up a savings-and-loan-type scandal is troubling news for Texas taxpayers. Law enforcement officers and lawmakers must do all they can to investigate and prosecute individuals involved in this latest reported breach of public trust. ...

The loss to Texans and taxpayers who will ultimately pay for the folly of a few dishonest individuals is likely to be high. Officials should press the investigation to assure that no guilty party evades justice.

JACK ANDERSON

East German spymaster 'trapped'

EAST BERLIN — For decades, Markus Wolf was the brilliant spymaster of East Germany. He was so good at it that he inspired the character of the fictional communist spymaster "Karla" in John Le Carre's espionage novels.

Anderson

But with the historic unraveling of the Iron Curtain, Wolf's flamboyant career seems to have caught up with him, leaving him only three choices: prison, defection or permanent exile in the Soviet Union.

Our U.S. and West German intelligence sources say German police are building a case against Wolf that might charge him, in effect, as an accessory to terrorist assassinations.

The 66-year-old Wolf doesn't know how much the West Germans have on him. But he's gotten the hint, and took an extended family vacation to the Soviet Union in February, where he's spent much of his time since.

In 1987, Wolf mysteriously retired after 33 years as the head of East Germany's HVA foreign espionage service, part of the Ministry of State Security. He cited ill health for his departure, though he was healthy.

Within two years, the canny Wolf had donned sheep's clothing. He published memoirs in which he criticized hard-liner chief of state Erich Honecker and sided with the reforms of Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev.

He became a champion of the East German opposition that eventually ousted Honecker last October and, following a Nov. 4 rally in which Wolf was a speaker, brought down the Berlin Wall five days later.

Wolf had good reason to side with the winners during the struggle; he harbors political ambitions. Privately he reckoned that if Yuri Andropov, a former KGB chief, could become head of the Soviet Union, and George Bush, a former CIA director, could become president of the United States, then there is a place for him as the leader of a unified Germany.

But Wolf has overestimated the value of his latter-day reformist credentials, American and West German intelligence officials told us.

For one thing, the officials say his commitment to communism is "very deep." He is the son of a communist doctor who fled Nazi Germany in 1933 to settle in Moscow, where the younger Wolf picked up fluent Russian. As a Jew and a communist, Wolf had twice the reason to fear and hate Hitler.

Soviet intelligence officials trained him and made him a spymaster in the postwar East Germany. He sent about 80 percent of his secret service's information and defectors to the KGB. "He was always the KGB's main man in the Ministry for State Security," a West German intelligence official confided.

All of this makes Wolf's most viable option exile in the Soviet Union as a hero of that state, whose citizenship he's never relinquished.

For the same reasons, he is unlikely to defect to Western intelligence agencies, even though the extent of his knowledge of East German and Soviet intelligence operations is breathtaking.

A change of heart could be worth his while. One U.S. official said that if Wolf were a sincere defector, brought files with him and allowed round-the-clock debriefings for months, the U.S. would pay "millions of dollars" for the information. Wolf recently told a confidant that the West German intelligence service, BND, has already offered him more than a million marks, over $625,000, for his defection. He declined.

Wolf likely would prefer to continue leading the life of an author, celebrity and bon vivant in Berlin. That could have been possible if his past in espionage — even outlandish feats involving blackmail and sexual traps — were all that stood between him and the West.

But West German officials have come to believe that Wolf was involved in extra-espionage episodes that cannot be forgiven. There is growing evidence that Wolf countenanced several assassinations and murders of West German citizens by his own agents or left-wing terrorists, some of whom received cover in the East. There is even evidence that Wolf had advance knowledge of and maybe even assisted the Libyan-aided bombing of a West Berlin disco in 1986, in which two Americans were killed. One West German intelligence official told us, "He had to have been part of these real criminal acts."

Help wanted — S&Ls need managers

They always tell you when the government is taking over a bankrupt savings and loan institution, but they never tell you who in the government is doing it.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is charged with stepping in when a bank collapses and trying to separate the junk from the bonds.

Buchwald

Unfortunately, there are so many S&Ls going under, that the FDIC is running out of employees to do this.

During my talk with Worldly in his office this suddenly became very clear to me. He was handed a fax message that he read aloud, "The Forget-the-Alamo S&L has gone down for the third time, and they're sending us the keys to the men's room by UPS. We have to have our own team in place by tomorrow morning."

"You must be used to that."

"We're out of people to take over banks," he said. "When it comes to surplus staff, we are not the Defense Department."

At that moment there was a tinkling of a bell outside the office. The coffee cart was coming down the hall.

"You want coffee?" Worldly asked.

"Yes," I replied. We both went out into the hallway where Big Sam was pouring coffee into paper cups for people who were standing in line.

"Wait a minute," Worldly exclaimed. "Something just hit me." He went up to Big Sam and said, "How would you like to run the Alamo S&L in Texas?"

Big Sam answered, "No, thank you. This is a good job and it keeps me moving."

"But you would be handling billions of dollars of debt, and trying to salvage a corrupt system recently run by knaves, curs and scoundrels. Doesn't that appeal to you?"

"There must be something wrong with it if you're offering it to me."

"Big Sam, you are very much part of this agency. We couldn't straighten out our savings and loans problems if we didn't have our coffee breaks. Your decisiveness, particularly when it comes to knowing who gets black and who gets cream, makes you a perfect candidate to run a billion-dollar bank."

Big Sam said, "I don't know how to run an S&L."

Worldly told him, "Neither does anybody else in this country. As a matter of fact, the less you know the easier it is to keep the bank afloat. Believe me when I say that there's nothing to it. You give customers money and then they give you back more — and the difference between what they borrowed and returned is your profit."

Big Sam asked shrewdly, "If it's that simple why did so many S&Ls crash?"

"I guess the FDIC was just lucky."

"I'd rather stick with selling coffee and bagels. It's a cash business," Big Sam said.

"Big Sam, what if I told you that the President of the United States wants you to take over the Alamo S&L?"

"Why does he care?" Big Sam laughed.

Worldly replied, "It's not for him, it's for his son."

Here's why I get no kick out of soccer

Twenty-one reasons why I hate soccer and wouldn't pay attention to a World Cup match if it were going on in my backyard and the beer was free:

1. There are only three final scores in soccer. They are 0-0, 1-0 and in a real scoring orgy 1-1.

Grizzard

2. Being able to bounce a ball off one's head isn't that impressive to me. I've seen countless seals do the same thing on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

3. Soccer breeds fan violence because it's very dull and when the fans get bored they pass the time by trying to kill and maim one another.

4. Nobody ever throws a high, inside fast ball in soccer, baseball's answer to killing and maiming.

5. A man named Phil Woosnam, then president of the North American Soccer League, once bragged to me, "In 20 years, soccer will be bigger than pro football in the United States." That was 25 years ago.

6. Soccer is responsible for soccer-style kickers in American football. I agree with the late Norman Van Brocklin, who was asked his reaction to the game, after his Atlanta Falcons had been beaten on a last-minute field goal by some guy from Yugoslavia or Afghanistan.

Van Brocklin said, "They ought to tighten the immigration laws in this country."

They ran up and down the field again for an hour or two and then the ball hit a player in the head and went into the goal completely by accident, and the final score was 1-0. When the game was over two guys came on the screen and analyzed it for 45 minutes.

Centennial rekindles Ike memories

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — When Dwight Eisenhower came to town, there was always a commotion.

The band would play, and the flags would wave like wheat in the wind.

Bill Jeffcoat would get his camera out, and Eulalia Biggs made sure her hotel was in its typical spick-and-span condition. Lena Benson broke out the paddle when Ike dropped by her restaurant on his birthday.

This year's centennial celebration of Abilene's most famous son rekindles fond memories for residents of this north central Kansas town, where the Chisholm Trail ended.

Although Eisenhower was born Oct. 14, 1890, in Denison, Texas, this is the town he called home. He was less than a year old when his family moved to Abilene. He left in 1911 to attend West Point Military Academy. On his death in 1969 his body was returned for burial near the library and museum devoted to his life.

During the intervening years, he made frequent visits, as general, as president, as senior statesman.

"He always had a soft spot in his heart for Abilene," says Jeffcoat, who owns Jeffcoat Studio and Camera Shop. He is publishing a 60-page book of photographs of Eisenhower in Abilene entitled "Dwight D. Eisenhower: Abilene's Favorite Son."

Jeffcoat figures he took 150 to 200 photos of Eisenhower in Abilene. He recalls he would join the press photographers, but Jeffcoat's pictures ended up in the president's hands, not in the newspaper.

Jeffcoat says he always mailed Eisenhower the photos, and he always received a thank-you note.

"School kids would bring him stuff, pictures they made, birthday cakes," Jeffcoat recalls. "He'd always appreciated that."

That's how Abilene Mayor Wade Phillips met the man. It was shortly after the war and Phillips was a Cub Scout

"We were petrified," he says. "We really thought this was a hot deal, which it was for a kid that age."

Pedestrian malls in downtown now obsolete

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some cities have decided to make downtown look like downtown again.

They are doing away with their pedestrian malls, bulldozing the kiosks, trees and benches that replaced streets 20 or 30 years ago. They are welcoming back the fumes and noises of once-banished traffic.

It turns out, said Lawrence O. Houstoun Jr., that converting traditional shopping districts into a pedestrian malls worked — but only for a while. Houstoun is an urban development consultant in Cranbury, N.J.

Dry rot has set in again in many central cities, he said, because office buildings — which provide many of the shoppers — have been erected on cheap land too far away for a lunch-time shopping stroll.

"The pedestrian malls had some initial success because they were the first thing that looked good downtown, but they didn't deal with the basic problem," Houstoun said.

"The problem wasn't that people wanted to walk in the streets; the problem was that downtown wasn't convenient or became inconvenient."

So, a number of the 200 or so cities that took the plunge in the late 1960s and the 1970s have undone or down-scaled their malls or are considering it, Houstoun said. He reported his findings in Planning, the magazine of the American Planning Association, and elaborated in an interview.

Kalamazoo, Mich., which called itself "Mall City," is reopening two blocks of its four-block mall to traffic. Eugene, Ore. removed the kiosks, playgrounds, restrooms and plantings from two blocks of its pedestrian mall.

New London, Conn. brought back the cars. Three Illinois cities — Danville, Champaign and Rockford — have given up their malls.

Norfolk, Va.; St. Joseph, Mo. Springfield, Mo., and Tulsa, Okla. kept theirs, but in smaller configurations. In the capital of New Jersey, cars will return to part of Trenton Commons.

But some cities find their malls still work well. The mall in Boulder, Colo., is a standout. And traffic-choked New York City is considering going the mall route by "pedestrianizing" 10 blocks of Broadway.

Expert says fireworks may soon be extinct

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enjoy shooting off those Fourth of July fireworks in the back yard while you can. Pyrotechnics specialist John Conkling says this hallowed family tradition is on America's "list of endangered species" and may be headed for extinction.

"We could have a video game Fourth of July in the not-too-distant future, sitting in our living rooms and watching animated fireworks displays on our television screens," he said.

Conkling, executive director of the American Pyrotechnics Association, blames a "totally irrational campaign" by lobbyists who want to ban all fireworks except for public displays by licensed professionals.

The way things are going, he said, "the prospects are frighteningly real" that families won't be able to celebrate Independence Day by lighting old-fashioned goodies.

"If that happens, I'll feel sad that a prohibition was adopted that isn't warranted, that the forces of exaggeration had won, that a 215-year-old American tradition had died and one more individual freedom had perished," he said.

Conkling, 46, is a jovial chemistry professor at Washington College at Chestertown, Md., with a scholarly passion for fireworks. He published the first authoritative textbook on the subject, "The Chemistry of Pyrotechnics," in 1985, and a Conkling article on fireworks appears in the July issue of Scientific American magazine.

Conkling's message is that backyard fireworks are safe if used with a little common sense.

The industry council said fireworks injuries have declined in recent years, from 12,600 in 1986 to 9,700 last year, according to estimates by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Moore says denying Barry cost her contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rasheeda Moore testified at Marion Barry's drug and perjury trial Tuesday that she lost a city contract in 1988 because she refused the mayor's request for oral sex. She said Barry told her "You refuse, therefore you refuse the contract."

Finishing five days of testimony, the woman who aided the FBI sting against Barry said the contract had been speedily approved in 1986 "because the mayor told me it would be."

Moore answered prosecution questions seeking to counter Barry defense attempts to show the mayor was illegally enticed into smoking crack cocaine the night of his arrest.

Moore said she turned Barry down at a downtown Washington hotel where they and another woman, Maria McCarthy, had been using drugs and discussing Moore's contract for a program to build self-esteem in city teenagers.

After she rejected the mayor's sexual advance, Barry told her "because I refused, 'I can't promise you the program this year,'" Moore testified.

"My contract had not been signed" and approved by city officials, Moore said of her conversation with the mayor. "I asked him if he could make some calls."

"He did ask me to have oral sex with him," Moore testified later in the day.

"Did you comply?" asked Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin.

"No," said Moore.

Barry then told Moore, "You refuse, therefore you refuse the contract," Moore testified.

The $180,000 contract for Project Me was not renewed that year, said Moore.

She said the incident took place in the summer of 1988 at the Vista Hotel soon after she ended her sexual relationship with the three-term mayor. The hotel was later the site of Barry's Jan. 18 arrest for allegedly using crack cocaine.

Barry lawyer R. Kenneth Mundy brought out earlier grand jury testimony in which Moore said she had been heavily involved with drugs in the summer of 1988 and was in no condition to carry out the program. But she also testified about the sex aspect to the grand jury.

Barry, 54, is facing 10 misdemeanor cocaine possession charges, one misdemeanor cocaine conspiracy charge, and three felony counts of lying to a grand jury about his alleged drug use.

Moore has said the two used drugs together more than 100 times between 1986 and 1988.

Moore also recanted earlier testimony that she had violated FBI instructions in the sting operation that led to Barry's arrest.

She had admitted to Mundy last Friday that she "overcarried" FBI instructions by steering her conversation with Barry to drugs and that she twice invited Barry to come up to her room.

But on Tuesday, she said Barry was eager to meet with her at the hotel and that he brought up the subject of drugs the minute he walked in her hotel room.

"Is it still your testimony that you went beyond your instructions," asked Retchin.

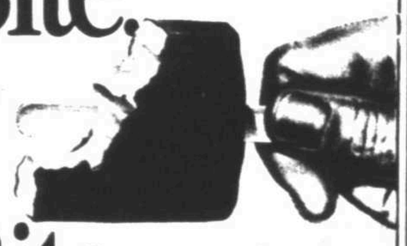

"No, it's not," said Moore.

Mundy, attacking Moore s motives and credibility, said she has received more than $32,000 in aid from the government. But that allowed Moore, under later prosecution questioning, to tell jurors she was in the Justice Department's witness protection program because the government contends it has evidence a $100,000 contract has been put out on her life.

Twenty-one cited for selling alcohol to minors

■ Warrents resulted from a sting operation conducted by the TABC and Midland police in May and June.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Law enforcement officials handed out county court arrest warrants to 21 people in Midland Tuesday morning for selling alcoholic beverages to minors, officials said.

The warrants were the result of a sting operation conducted in May and June by the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission (TABC) and the Midland Police Department.

"We had gotten a lot of complaints on people selling to minors," L.D. Adams, DPS assistant district supervisor, said.

Eighty-six businesses — convenience, liquor and grocery stores — that sell alcoholic beverages were targeted in the sting operation. Two 19-year-old Midland city employees were able to buy alcoholic beverages at 21 of the establishments without being asked for proper identification and verification of their ages, officials said. The minimum legal age to purchase alcoholic beverages in Texas is 21.

The operation was the first of its kind in Midland.

"We've observed sales (to minors) all along but to send someone in, this is the first time," Adams said.

"We were surprised that there were so many" people selling alcohol to minors, Adams said, adding that such operations will be conducted in the future.

Most of the stores approached were convenience stores because there are more of those than grocery or liquor stores, Adams said.

A similar operation recently was conducted by the Odessa Police Department and the TABC. On June 27, law enforcement officials in Odessa began handing out arrest warrants for selling alcohol to minors. In all, 70 warrants were issued as a result of 106 establishments solicited.

The warrants, in both sting operations, are for the clerks that sell the beverages, not the store management, Adams said.

If the clerk has been certified through the TABC server training school, he or she is solely responsible for violating the law, Adams said.

But if the clerk doesn't meet these qualifications, the business also can be punished by having its liquor permit suspended or receive a civil fine.

Any person found guilty of selling alcohol to minors, a Class B misdemeanor, can face penalities of up to one year in the county jail and/or a fine not to exceed $500.

Odessa Chamber named in lawsuit by 'whistle blower'

■ Former chamber employee Edith Wheeler claims she was fired after reporting one of her superiors for illegal drug use.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

The Odessa Chamber of Commerce and its director are defendants in a $2.5 million lawsuit filed in Travis County this week by a former chamber employee, court officials confirmed Tuesday.

Edith Wheeler, a former chamber administrative assistant, claims she was fired by Executive Director Russell Autry after "blowing the whistle" on one of her superiors for illegal drug use.

Ms. Wheeler claims that around April 5, she discovered one of her bosses in possession of "what was believed to be cocaine" and reported the incident to Autry.

Although supposedly informed by Odessa police officials that Ms. Wheeler's superior could be searched and subjected to a drug test, Autry took no action, the suit claims.

After reporting her boss to Autry, Ms. Wheeler claims she was "ostracized and moved to another department" and later fired.

Autry and the chamber's attorney, Jack Tidwell, could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Ms. Wheeler claims that Autry and the chamber violated Texas' so-called "Whistle Blower's Statute" by firing her for reporting a violation of the law.

"It's kind of one of those 'don't kill the messenger' things," said Eva-Marie Leahey, one of Ms. Wheeler's attorneys at Odessa's Melissa Hirsch law firm. "She also had reported to the director that her superior had admitted to her previous controlled substance abuse."

Ms. Leahey said Ms. Wheeler also was wronged when Autry allegedly failed to take any action against Ms. Wheeler's boss.

"He said he would take strong action, immediate action, and instead nothing was done within any reasonable time," Ms. Leahey said.

The suit was filed Monday in 167th District Court in Austin.

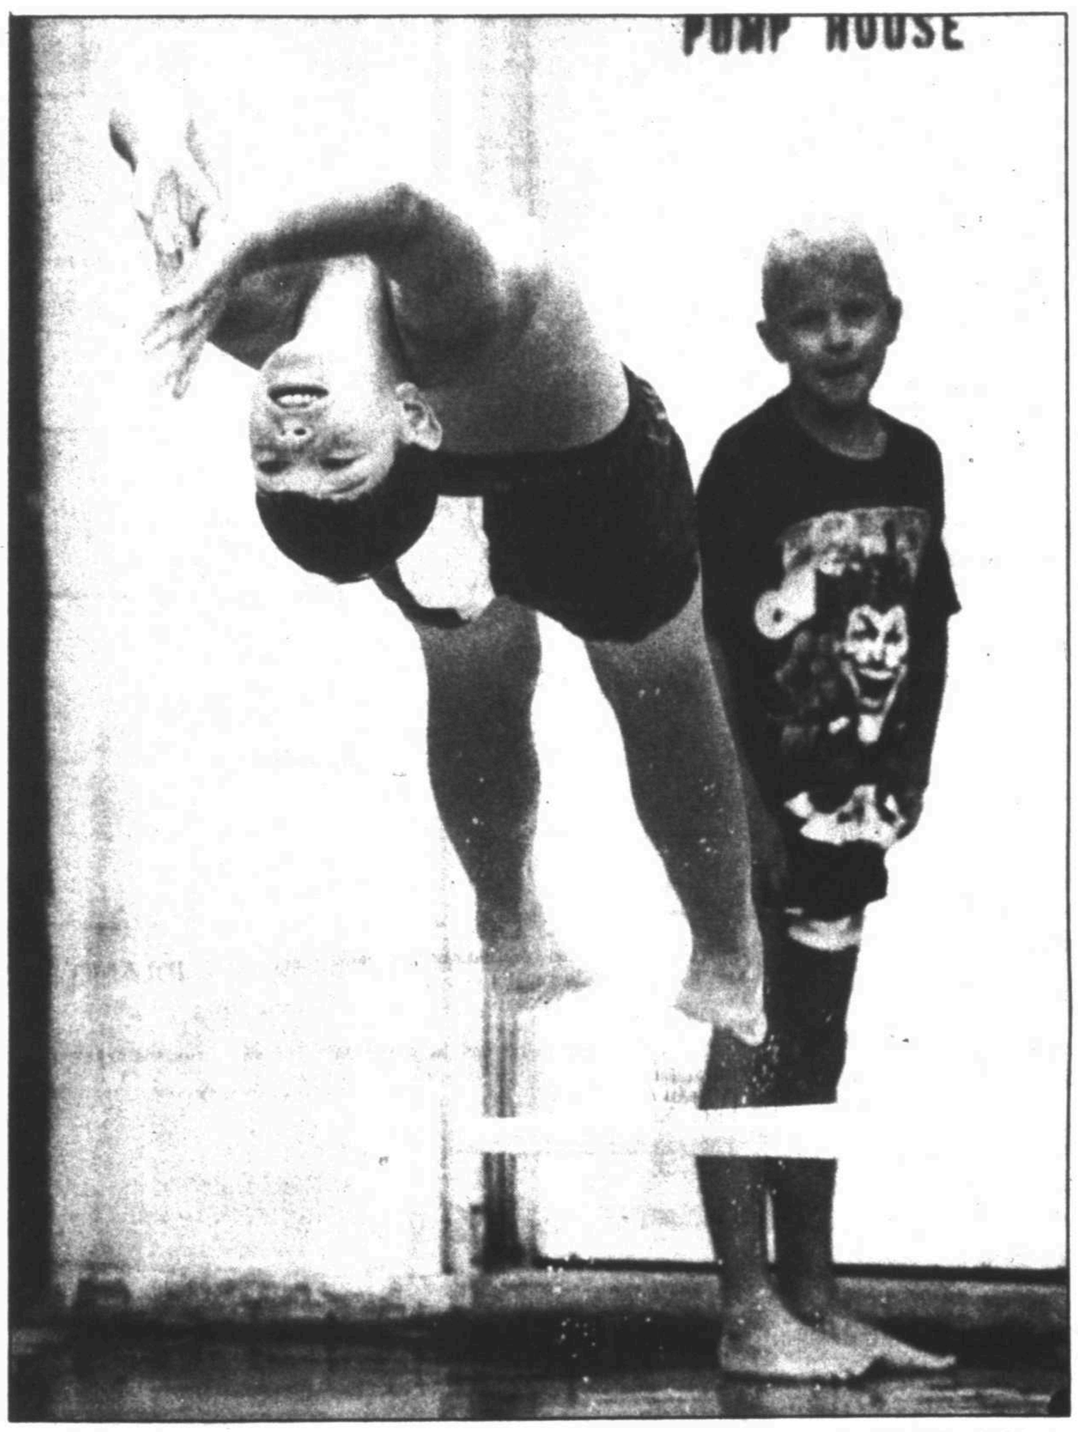

"We just decided that it was in the best interest of our client not to file it in Ector County," Ms. Leahey said. "Under the Whistle Blower Statute, we are allowed to have venue in Travis County."

She said Ms. Wheeler was more likely to find an impartial jury outside of Ector County.

Ms. Wheeler is seeking $500,000 in punitive damages for alleged Whistle Blower Statute violations, $1 million in damages for "fraud and misrepresentation," and $1 million for "intentional infliction of emotional distress," the suit shows.

She also seeks to be re-hired at her chamber job, back wages and attorneys' fees, the suit shows.

Ms. Wheeler could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Suspect still in local jail in assault

Staff Report

A Midland man remained in jail Tuesday night in connection with the aggravated sexual assault of a 41-year-old woman Monday afternoon, police officials said.

Jan Jerrot Allen, 27, 4411 Versailles Drive, was arrested about 10 p.m. Monday at the Junction Apartments, 1902 N. Midland Drive. Bond was set at $50,000 by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Allen is suspected of attacking the woman in her apartment at the Sandstone Apartments, 4315 Neely Ave., where he stabbed her numerous times before she was able to disarm the suspect and flee, police said.

The victim crawled down the stairs from her apartment, where she was discovered by neighbors.

The woman was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital where she remained in serious condition Tuesday.

Ector County plans appeal in Neal case

Staff Report

The Ector County District Attorney's office is expected to file a petition this month requesting a hearing before the U.S. Supreme Court in a 1982 car bombing case, officials said.

John Shelton was acquitted in May by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for the car bombing death of Odessan Joe Neal.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Griffin said his office is appealing that decision to the U.S. Supreme Court and probably will file with the court by July 13.

Getting shots in summer bargain in several ways

■ Parents can get immunizations for children this summer before prices go up, and avoid the crowds they will find if they wait until the last minute.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

While summer sales abound, there is one bargain children probably hope their parents won't take advantage of — getting immunizations before prices go up in August.

Not only will prices go up, but parents may have to face crowds if they wait until the last minute to get their children immunized.

"August is our peak month," said Monette Burke, administrator for the Midland County Health Department.

The health department clinic, 501 Andrews Hwy., offers immunizations from 8-11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Mondays. Beginning this Friday an additional clinic will be offered from 8-11 a.m. It will be open on Fridays through Aug. 31.

"The Friday clinic will catch the overflow of people we don't get to on Mondays," Ms. Burke said.

"I can't stress enough for people to get in as early as possible," said Ms. Burke. Costs for injections are $10 per child, no matter how many shots are needed. Costs increase to $12.50 per child in August, which the health administrator said is "another incentive to come in early."

State law requires students to have the proper mumps, rubella, measles, polio and diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis (DTP) inoculations before they enter school.

"Most parents keep their children's shots up to date," Ms. Burke said. "One positive outcome of last year's measles outbreak is that parents became more concerned about keeping immunizations up to date."

One vaccine which pediatricians are recommending is the HIB, a vaccine for Haemophilus Influenzae Type b Disease. These bacteria can cause serious disease, especially in children under 5, according to information from the Texas Department of Health. The bacteria do not cause the "flu," but do cause about 12,000 cases of meningitis (an infection of the covering of the brain) each year, according to the state health department.

About one child in every 20 dies from meningitis caused by Haemophilus b and about one out of four has permanent brain damage. The bacteria also can cause pneumonia and infections of the blood, joints, bone, soft tissue, throat and covering of the heart.

The HIB vaccine is recommended for children under 5. Annette Hansen, Midland Independent School District nurse, said, "The HIB is not required by the state, but I strongly recommend it for children in preschool or day cares."

Ms. Hansen said students need to get their injections before enrolling, not just because they pose a danger to other students, but because they also expose themselves to diseases.

"It's the parents' responsibility to see that their children get immunizations," she said, adding that students who haven't received their immunizations may not be permitted to enroll.

However, Ms. Burke said there was no reason for students not to get their immunizations.

DPS troopers try to reduce death, injuries

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

All available Texas Highway Troopers will be on the road for the Fourth of July holiday as part of Operation CARE, according to Texas Department of Safety officials.

Operation CARE (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) is a nationwide effort by state police to reduce accidents, injuries and deaths through strict traffic enforcement, DPS Trooper Erwin Ballarta said.

"It (DPS in full force) makes it harder for people to violate the law," Ballarta said.

Because of an expected higher volume of cars on the road during the holiday, the likelihood of accidents increases, Ballarta said.

Although there will not necessarily be a greater number of people drinking and driving on Independence Day, driving while intoxicated (DWI) and speeding offenders will be a priority for troopers, Ballarta said.

DPS officials have estimated that as many as 15 people will die in traffic accidents in Texas during the Fourth of July holiday. A 30-hour fatality counting period began at 6 p.m. Tuesday and will continue to midnight tonight.

Last year's counting period ran for 102 hours, with 34 fatalities occurring. DPS officials had estimated 52 fatalities.

Beechcraft looks at local operation

Company officials are interested in the Tiger Charter facilities

■ The purchase is still under negotiation with Rich-Air Co. for hangars.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Cutter Beechcraft Inc. officials have expressed interest in launching full-scale operations at the Tiger Charter facilities at Midland International Airport, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

The aircraft manufacturing and distributing company would be a fixed-base operator here, selling fuel and airplanes, leasing hangar space and providing repair services, Cutter Beechcraft spokesman Ron Sanders said.

Negotiations are under way with Rich-Air Co. for the purchase of Tiger Charter hangars and also with the city of Midland for use of the property, he said.

"Things are still in the process of negotiation," said Sanders, who has been a locally based sales representative for Cutter Beechcraft for about 13 years. "Right now there's not much else to talk about."

Tiger Charter facilities, which have been under Rich-Air ownership for about two years, are located at the airport's south end and along State Highway 80.

In addition to Rich-Air negotiations, Cutter Beechcraft officials are working with the city of Midland on agreements for leasing the property on which the hangars sit, Sanders said.

The item is expected to go before Midland city councilmen during a Friday meeting.

Rich-Air's acquisition of Tiger Charter in August 1988 made the company at that time the largest single fixed-base operation between Dallas and Los Angeles.

But Richard Henderson, Rich-Air president, said his company now has no use for the 63,700 square feet of hangar space at the site.

"We felt it would be better to sell it at this time," said Henderson, who declined to disclose further details of the potential deal with Cutter Beechcraft. "We're not utilizing it, and it's in excess of our needs."

Henderson said negotiations with Cutter Beechcraft have appeared to be going smoothly.

"We're talking about a potential sale," he said. "If everything goes right, it will probably go through.

"I don't know if we need the extra competition, but we all believe in competition."

Rich-Air, a fixed-based operator, sells fuel and airplanes, leases hangar space and repairs private, corporate and even military aircraft.

Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas said Cutter Beechcraft, which is based in Albuquerque, N.M., would be a welcome addition to the aviation industry in the Permian Basin.

"It's a pickup I'd say in the private aviation activity," Thomas said. "Cutter is going to be more like the size of Rich-Air. They're a high-quality service organization."

Henderson said Cutter Beechcraft isn't the first company to show interest in moving into Tiger Charter facilities.

"There have been a lot of people interested in the property over the years," he said.

Two aircraft museums also have expressed interest in setting up shop in Tiger Charter, he said. The moves would have been made in conjunction with the Confederate Air Force's planned move to Midland, he said.

Combat Jets and the Lone Star Flight Museum, both of Houston, studied the property and considered moving their aircraft here, Henderson said. However, the two organizations' interest never went any further, he said.

DEATHS

Billy T. Seales

Services for Billy T. Seales, 58, of Midland, have been set for 9 a.m. Friday at Ellis Chapel under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery.

He died Tuesday at a local hospital.

He was born March 7, 1932, in Midland, where he was reared, and graduated from Midland High School in 1949. He attended Texas A&M University.

In September 1952 he joined the Marine Corps and served two years in Korea. He was discharged in 1956, returning to Texas A&M and earning a degree in Agriculture Economics in 1957. He met Arlene Krueger while at Texas A&M and they were married January 19, 1957, in New Braunfels. They lived in Midland from 1957 to 1959, when they moved to New Braunfels, where he worked for Krueger Motor Company as a salesman and service manager.

In 1979 he returned to Midland and in 1981 joined Adobe Oil Company. He was a Mason and a member of the Texas A&M Century Club.

Survivors include two daughters, Terri Seales of Washington, D.C., and Pamela Mayes of Houston; and a grandson, Kyle Mayes of Houston.

The family requests memorials be sent to Texas A&M Scholarship fund or to the charity of one's choice.

The family will be at the funeral home Thursday from 7 p.m. until 8 p.m. for visitation.

Willie E. Robinson

Services for Willie E. Robinson, 81, have been set for 1 p.m. Friday at Ellis Chapel with Steve Edwards officiating. Interment will follow at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at a local hospital.

She was born February 18, 1909, in Brown County, where she was reared and educated. She married Tom Robinson on May 6, 1925. They moved to Midland in the 1950s, where her husband was involved in oil and gas. She was a former member of the Baptist Church of Welch, Texas.

Survivors include: a son, Tommy Robinson of Cuba, N.M.; two daughters, Leta (Mrs. Max) Richardson of Midland and Bobbye Robinson of Odessa; a brother, Floyd Reed of Wichita Falls; a sister, Myrtle Eppler of Vernon; 10 grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Ocie Wright

Services for Ocie Wright of Midland were held at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. M.R. Thomason officiating. Interment followed in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Crockett decendants hold reunion

Associated Press

"Born on a mountaintop in Tennessee.

Greenest state in the land of the free.

Raised in the woods so's he knew ev'ry tree.

Kilt him a b'ar when he was only three.

Davy, Davy Crockett, king of the wild frontier."

- The Ballad of Davy Crockett

GRANBURY, Texas (AP) — Davy Crockett probably wasn't born on a mountaintop in Tennessee. And nobody really thinks he shot a bear when he was only 3.

But that doesn't take anything away from the legend, at least for the 180 Crockett descendants gathering in Texas this week.

"Those kinds of things are interesting to read about, but they don't necessarily reflect the real David Crockett," said Leonard Stasney, one of the Crockett descendants holding their fifth biennial reunion at this town, 30 miles southwest of Fort Worth. Davy's widow settled in Granbury after his death at the battle of the Alamo in San Antonio in 1836.

"The myth was bigger than the man," said descendant Sandra Weaver of Granbury, who wore a cloth Crockett doll with a real coon tail on the cap, the whole thing pinned to her shoulder like a huge corsage.

Ms. Weaver and Crockett kin traded tales about their famous ancestor Tuesday at the clan picnic, swapped gossip and argued over the best place to get a genuine coonskin cap.

They debated how often a fighter could fire the muskets of Davy's day and whether Crockett was killed in action or, as some historians say, executed by the Mexicans after surrendering the Alamo.

"Davy Crockett went down swinging a rifle — he wasn't no coward," insisted Charles Edward Crockett Sr. of Falls City, Ore.

"It just doesn't matter," Ms. Weaver said. "All the men who died at the Alamo were heroes."

For the descendants gathered at Granbury's Plantation Inn, it's the search for a "real" Davy Crockett that matters most.

And according to them, that's not the Davy Crockett a generation of Americans knew from the Disney TV series that made the buckskin-clad actor Fess Parker an instant celebrity and prompted millions of youngsters to buy coonskin caps.

The show became one of the biggest overnight hits in television history. Ninety million people watched the TV Davy swing his rifle as Santa Anna's troops attacked the Alamo, according to Disney productions. "The Ballad of Davy Crockett," the theme song of the series, sold 18 million copies in 1955, Billboard said.

Joy Bland, the new president of the descendants' group, dismisses all that as Hollywood glamour.

"They don't stick to the real facts. I never could sit through the whole program. It was awful," said Ms. Bland, of Paris, Tenn. "The clothing was too modern; the story line was unrealistic."

Only one descendant donned a coonskin cap for the reunion, and he was in period costume to demonstrate the rifles and muskets of Crockett's era.

There was at least one Davy Crockett in attendance — the pioneer's great, great grandson from Reading, Penn.

"It gaves you name recognition," the Pennsylvania Davy said. "But you know, I got so mad one day. There was this secretary in San Antonio who didn't know how to spell it. Can you believe that? From San Antonio!"

About 200 people belong to the non-profit corporation Descendants of David Crockett, based in Tennessee. Members must be blood relations to Crockett. Associate memberships are extended to cousins, historians and others who revere the pioneer.

"It's kind of exciting to talk to all the people that you are related to that you don't really know," Stasney said. "It's just exciting to know that we can share the little bits and pieces of information and learn a little more about who we are."

Some said it's simply a relief to tell people they're Crockett descendants and be believed.

Toni Daigle of Whitecastle, La., said she takes pictures and documents to her children's school to convince classmates they really are related to the famous frontiersman.

DWI: Fewer deaths likely

(From 1B)

Of last year's fatalities, either DWI or speeding was a contributing factor in 59 percent of the cases; 79 percent of those killed were not wearing seat belts.

Because July Fourth falls on a Wednesday this year, officials believe there may be fewer motorists than if the holiday was on a weekend.

Midland Police Department will not increase traffic patrols for the holiday, officials said.

Crime Stoppers needs help solving burglary

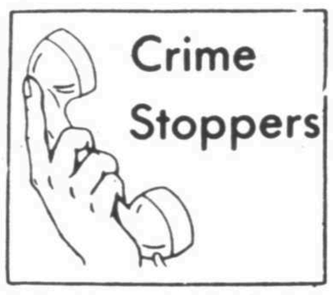

Staff Report

This week Crime Stoppers is asking the public's help in solving the burglary of the Warda residence, located in north Midland County off State Highway 158.

Sometime between 6 p.m. June 8 and 3 p.m. June 9, unidentified suspects entered the residence by breaking out the far east window. Once inside, the suspects began ransacking the house, going through each room taking anything of value.

The suspects took two rifles, a shotgun, two televisions, a videocassette recorder, a stereo system, recording equipment, two guitars and more than 700 cassette tapes as well as eight-track tapes and albums, most of which contained Turkish music. Items such as platters with Greek scenery painted on them also were taken.

A coin collection containing rare coins such as a 1776 silver dollar, four gold-plated 1976 half dollars, and nickels and silver dollars dating back to 1900 were also taken.

This is just a portion of all the items taken in this burglary. The estimated value of all the stolen property is about $20,000.

Crime Stoppers is offering up to $1,000 cash reward this week only for any information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the persons responsible for this burglary.

Crime Stoppers in Midland can be reached at 694-TIPS and in Odessa at 333-TIPS. All callers can remain anonymous.

SHOTS: Students should get shots before they enroll

(From 1B)

"Service is given before pay is received. Services will be received regardless of ability to pay," she said.

Students who have an incomplete immunization record may be allowed to enroll at the discretion of the principal. But they must complete their immunizations within 30 days, according to Ms. Hansen.

"However, some principals may take a hard-line stance and not allow students to enroll without their shots," she said.

Ms. Burke said the health department prefers that children with colds or fever wait until they have recovered to get inoculations. Students under 18 must be accompanied by a parent or a guardian with a signed note from a parent.

The school district requires children to have three doses of polio immunization, with at least one dose after the fourth birthday. They must have three doses of DTP vaccine with at least one dose after the fourth birthday and at least another within the past 10 years.

They must have three doses of DTP vaccine with at least one dose after the fourth birthday and at least another within the past 10 years. Children under 12 must have a rubella vaccine, while those under 11 must be inoculated for mumps.

Seismic cable reported stolen

Staff Report

Some $20,100 worth of seismic cables were stolen from a Midland geology firm sometime between Monday evening and Tuesday morning, Midland County Sheriff's Department reports show.

The 67 cables, each approximately 240 feet long, were taken from Western Geophysical at No. 15 Barry Road in Midland, reports show. An unknown person or persons apparently gained access to the cables by cutting a fence.

Each cable was worth approximately $300.

Guyana man pleads guilty

Staff Report

A Guyana man pleaded guilty in federal court Tuesday to one count of escaping from federal custody, Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery reported.

Edward Persaud, 30, was a federal prisoner serving time in the Midland City Jail in June 1989 for transporting illegal aliens when he walked away from an outdoor work assignment.

He was apprehended in El Paso last month and returned to Midland, Beery said.

People call about hurt puppy

ROANOKE, Texas (AP) — Many have called to offer money and support for an 8-month-old puppy who apparently was seriously injured by being dipped into hot tar.

A few want to do even more.

"Some said they wish they could catch the person who did this and do the same thing to them," she said. "There are some pretty angry people."

The puppy, called Sam, suffered burns on about 20 percent of its body when dipped in the tar last Thursday. He was struggling for his life after an infection set in, but began feeling better early this week.

Volunteers at the Humane Society of North Texas shelter, where the dog is being nursed, put together a $500 reward toward the arrest of the person who hurt the dog.

Joint study undertaken in Veracruz

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A U.S.-Mexican diving team Tuesday began a joint diving probe of a U.S. Navy ship sunk during the Mexican War that both countries claim as a historical treasure.

The U.S. Navy brig Somers gained a reputation as a ghost ship after its captain hanged three Navy trainees suspected of planning a mutiny during an 1842 trip to Africa. Author Herman Melville based his novel Billy Budd on the incident.

In 1846 a squall sank the brig in the port of Veracruz during a U.S. blockade of the harbor in the Mexican-American War.

Divers began the week-long exploration in the Gulf of Mexico off Veracruz when a patrol boat carrying 14 U.S. and Mexican investigators left for the site on Tuesday.

"This is the first time that the U.S. and Mexican governments have conducted an investigation of a sunken ship together," Mexican Adm. Florencio Aguilar said in a telephone interview from Veracruz.

San Francisco underwater explorer George Belcher discovered the Somers' well-preserved remains in June 1986.

"It's literally a time capsule from its period," Belcher said from Veracruz. "It has everything a U.S. warship in 1846 would have had on it."

Belcher and his brother Joel are in Veracruz to guide a crew from the Mexican Navy, the National Anthropology and Archeology Institute and the U.S. National Park Service to the wooden ship, Belcher said.

The brig is about five miles off the coast and partly buried in the sand under 110 feet of water, he said.

It contains swords, pistols, cannons and deck equipment, Belcher said. At least six of the ships' 10 cannons — as well as an anchor, crystal wine glasses and wine bottles — could be seen on a previous dive to the vessel, he added.

The Mexican government claims the wreck is the property of Mexico.

Rice University moves out for summit

HOUSTON (AP) — On the eve of the International Economic Summit, host site Rice University has the look of an unfinished house whose owners already are moving in.

Sidewalks are being paved. Huge meeting tables are being installed in some rooms. Furniture is being shuffled. Light fixtures are being moved. Trees and bushes are being taken from one place to another. Even the outdoor stands for the dignitaries are being air-conditioned.

Wooden booths for television anchor teams are sprouting on the lawn like weeds, along with bleacher-like risers meant to hold hundreds of photographers and reporters who will converge on the campus as President Bush plays host to the leaders of Great Britain, Japan, West Germany, Canada, Italy and France, July 9-11.

Classrooms have been turned into meeting rooms. Meeting rooms have been turned into holding rooms. Walls have been moved. More than 400 large flower pots have been brought in for color.

"There are lots of big desks and lots of big credenzas," says Barry Stephens, supervisor for Cotton Moving and Storage Co.

Stephens' crews removed the Rice furniture, are installing the summit furniture, then will remove the summit stuff and return the Rice items.

And just so everything gets returned to its proper place, movers took pictures of the rooms before anything was taken away so they can restore the places to the original condition.

"When the students come back in the fall, they'll never know the summit was here," Rice University spokesman Scott Andrews says.

Rice President George Rupp has been booted out of his office. Another George — George Bush — will be using it.

Woman fights mountain lion with flip-flops

HOUSTON – A Houston woman says she defended her dog with a pair of flip-flops when it was attacked by a mountain lion as she was camping alone in Big Bend National Park.

"I jumped out of the tent and tried to beat (the lion) to death with my flip-flops," Katherine Page said. "I don't know what I was thinking."

Page on Wednesday criticized a national park law banning firearms, saying she had no defense against the lion. "I started taking my tent apart to use the aluminum poles," she said.

Two neighboring campers scared the lion with a flare and pulled the mixed German shepherd-collie from the lion's jaws.

"When (the lion) was wrapped around my dog, all I saw was her tail," Page said, adding that the dog's entire head was in the lion's mouth. The dog, K.C., is recovering with gashes on its head and stomach, Page said.

It was chained outside her tent in the Basin Area when the lion attacked about 12:15 a.m. Wednesday. Park officials told her they had been tracking the lion, and Page said they should have warned campers it was in the area.

"This could have been a child," she said. "If that lion had turned on me, I wouldn't have had a chance."

But Big Bend spokesman Roy Given said this is the first mountain lion attack "in years" and that campers with guns would endanger animals living in their natural habitat.

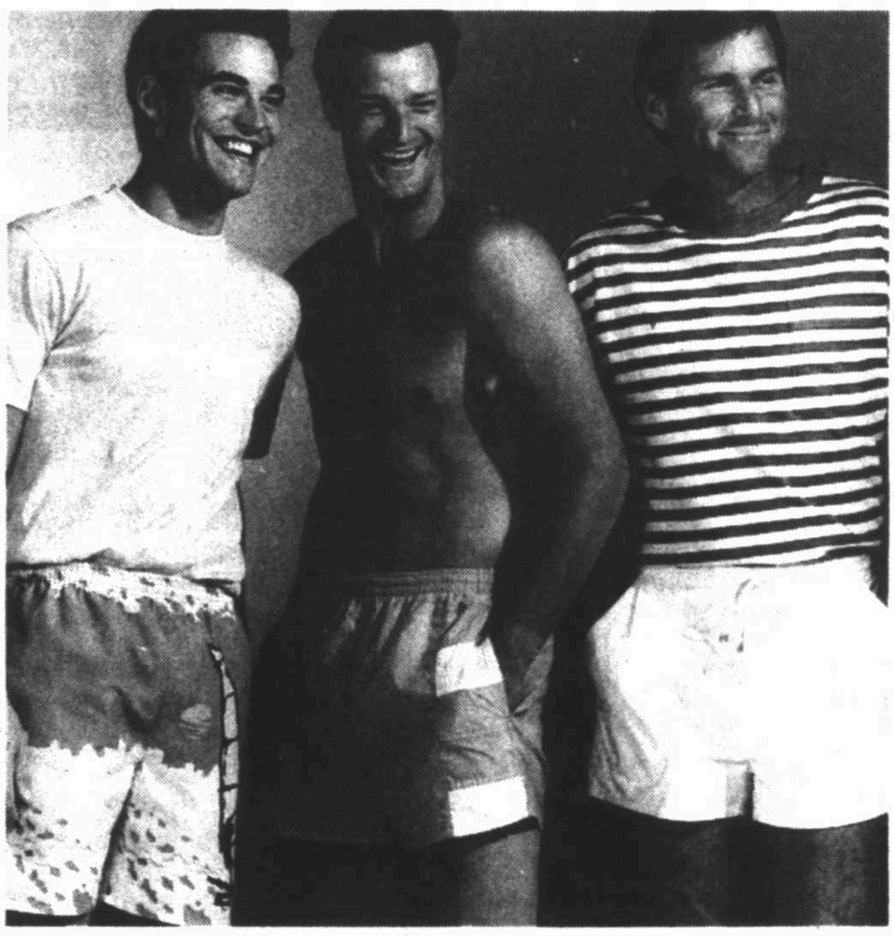

He said rangers had not publicized the lion's whereabouts because it did not pose a danger to humans and that "what we try to emphasize in a situation like this is let's not scare the hell out of people."

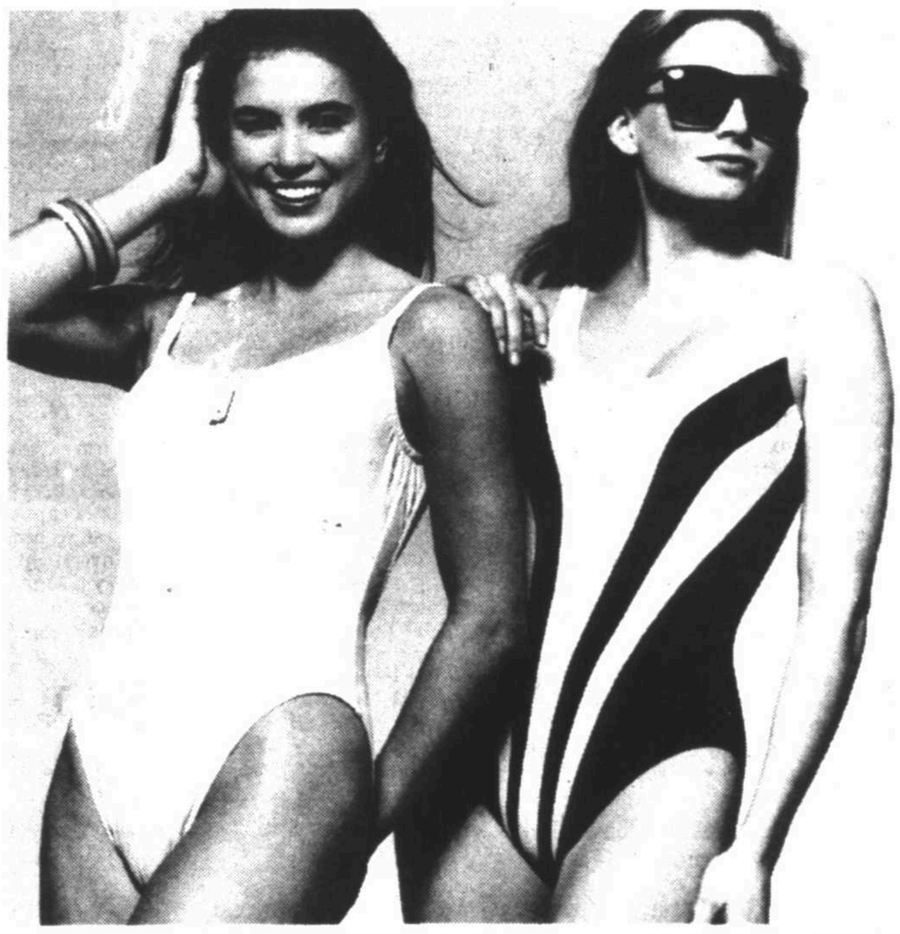

The 60-pound lion may have been hungry or attacked because the dog was smaller, Given said. Mountain lions are usually scared of humans, he said.

Officials captured the lion Thursday by baiting a trap cage. They moved it to another area and are monitoring it by radio collar.

STATE IN BRIEF

Fire destroys 7 businesses

FORT WORTH (AP) — A cleaning store employee suffered minor burns and a firefighter suffered smoke inhalation Tuesday in a fire that destroyed a strip shopping mall here.

Fire officials say seven businesses in the Meadowbrook Shopping Center were destroyed in the blaze, which started at about noon on the east side of Fort Worth.

Employees of the Meadowbrook Cleaners tried to put out the fire with fire extinguishers but could not. By the time firefighters arrived, the blaze was out of control, fire Lt. Kent Worley said.

Officer surrenders

McKINNEY (AP) — A Texas Department of Public Safety trooper surrendered to police early Tuesday after holding authorities at bay for almost 14 hours at his home in McKinney.

Richard Lenoir, 43, surrendered at 3:28 a.m. and was taken to North Texas Medical Center for observation and evaluation, McKinney Police Sgt. Tim Warden said.

Police were called to Lenoir's house at 1:48 p.m. Monday by a woman who said he was standing outside holding a gun to his head.

Warden said Lenoir, a 19-year veteran of DPS, was upset over personal and financial problems.

Two shots were fired inside the house during the standoff, but no one was injured. Police negotiators talked with Lenoir by telephone.

Man shoots transit bus

WACO (NYT) — Waco Transit System bus driver Tommy Forbes, 45, hailed officer Stephen January about 2:30 p.m. in East Waco and said a man had just fired a gun at his bus. The left front window had a bullet hole in it.

January had seen a group of men walking briskly down a nearby road moments before. He drove there.

"When I drove up, one of the men turned and chunked a blue steel revolver into the weeds," January said. "I saw the wood handle and the six-inch barrel. I drew down on him, handcuffed him and recovered the weapon. It had one spent shell in it."

Sgt. Kenneth Porterfield said a nine-shot .22-caliber pistol was confiscated.

Porterfield said police do not have a motive for Monday's shooting.

Four passengers were on the bus, said Lt. Harold Stieg. A boy was showered with glass, but was not injured in the shooting.

Kevin Donnell Greenwood, 19, has been charged with attempted murder.

Woman joins fight

DAYTON (AP) — A Houston city councilwoman told demonstrators waving plastic skeletons and protest signs that she would fight a proposed hazardous waste dump near Lake Houston.

"This poses a danger too great for our citizenry," said Councilwoman Eleanor Tinsley. "I will do everything in my power to bring the full force of the city behind this."

Ms. Tinsley met the protesters Monday as she toured the 6,500-acre site six miles from Lake Houston. The lake supplies 40 percent of Houston's drinking water.

"We must prevail in this instance," she told the group of about 100 residents. "Houston does not need Superfund Site No. 19."

Hunter Industrial Facilities Co. plans to dump 500 tons of hazardous materials daily into underground salt caverns near Dayton.

Ms. Tinsley said the city has commissioned a $10,000 study of the plan to be conducted by Rice University environmental expert Phil Bedient. The study will investigate the viability of toxic waste storage in the caverns, as well as whether runoff from the site might contaminate the lake.

Novelist claims money

AUSTIN (AP) — A record $12 million in lost money has been returned to rightful owners this fiscal year, including more than $14,000 to novelist Kathleen Windsor, according to State Treasurer Ann Richards.

Ms. Richards, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, as treasurer administers the program that searches for the owners of unclaimed money and property. She said Tuesday the amount returned for fiscal year 1990 is $1.8 million more than previous annual periods.

More than 11,000 owners so far have had unclaimed property returned this year, 600 more people than during the 1989 fiscal year, said Ms. Richards.

Ms. Windsor, whose best-seller "Forever Amber" made headlines in 1944 and was made into a movie, was recently told by the state treasury that $14,889 is waiting for her to claim. The money is from oil land her late ex-husband had left in her name, Ms. Richards said.

Hospital must pay

TYLER (AP) — A Nacogdoches hospital has been ordered to pay $50,000 to an indigent woman and her lawyer after a federal judge ruled that the hospital was guilty of "patient dumping."

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ruled Monday that Memorial Hospital of Nacogdoches was guilty of "patient dumping" when it told Rebecca Owens, then 16, to go to John Sealey Hospital in Galveston after she went to the hospital Aug. 3, 1987 and said she was having labor pains.

Court records show that Dr. Bruce Thompson examined the woman and told her to go to the Galveston hospital.

The baby was not born at Galveston and the couple returned to Nacogdoches where the child was born on Aug. 7, 1987, according to court records.

In his ruling, Justice said that the hospital engaged in "patient dumping" and exposed the woman and her child to serious danger by sending them so far away.

Five counties face emergency drought plan

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials in San Antonio and in cities in five counties will be asked this week to approve tough measures to limit water use through an emergency drought plan.

The approval of the emergency drought plan proposed Monday by the Texas Water Commission would prevent the federal government from taking over control of the aquifer that provides municipal water for San Antonio.

Under the plan proposed by the commission, water rationing would begin as soon as affected cities approve the plan. The proposal came at a fourth water summit meeting attended by about 60 public officials and civic leaders who represent cities in a five-county area over the aquifer.

"We're looking at some very stringent measures here," said City Councilman Weir Labatt, leader of the Bexar County negotiating team. "The drought management plan that we passed last April is unacceptable because, as it was designed, the rainfall trigger condition doesn't work."

In addition to San Antonio, other cities in Bexar, Comal, Hays, Medina, and Uvalde counties will be asked to approve the emergency drought plan, which takes effect when the aquifer drops to 628 feet above sea level.

Because of the underground reservoir's drop, Texas' largest spring, Comal Springs in New Braunfels, have slowed from a discharge of more than 250 cubic feet of water per second to a trickle. They are the source of the Comal River, geologists said.

Tougher restrictions would be adopted under the plan if the aquifer drops to 612 feet. But some water officials say the restrictions come too late to save the springs, and probably San Marcos Springs, Texas' second largest.

Has anybody seen invasion of killer bees?

By Lou Hudson
New York Times News Service

They're heeeere.
No they're nooooooot.
Take your piiiiiiick.

In one of those wonderful it-can-only-happen-in-government events, the left hand of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has failed to check with the right hand of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A report issued last week by the department's offices in Washington said that the Killer Bee invasion of South Texas may have begun.

"Some may have arrived in southern Texas even as you read this," the report says.

On the very same day, the department's Honey Bee Research Lab in Weslaco, way down there in South Texas, said the invasion has been delayed.

That's because of the drought in northern Mexico and South Texas. It's also because of the hard winter in northern Mexico, which killed off a lot of the vegetation the bees get their sustenance from, scientists said.

"There's no vegetation that is blooming to provide nectar for the bees to build up their population," said Anita Collins, head researcher at the lab. The harsh conditions also may have killed some of the bees.

Well, so there you have it.

The killer bee invasion is quickly becoming an event that rivals the last appearance of Halley's comet: all blow and no show.

Remember Comet Kohoutek in 1973? Going to be the brightest thing in the skies since July Fourth? Hype for nine months before its arrival?

It was a nice sight all right — if you happened to be aboard Skylab at the time. Us mere Earthbound mortals never got so much as a rosy glow in the nighttime sky.

The killer bees may get here about the same time as the tar balls from the Mega Borg.

Besides, those killer bees probably aren't that bad anyway. I know a couple of bumblebees that could go in and clean up the place with one wing tied behind them. These particular bumblebees have taken over my barn and I have to get permission and pay a toll to enter, and only then if I'm properly respectful.

We better hope the killer bees aren't as bad as these dive-bombing yellow and black menaces, anyway. If they are, we might as well move to Sitka.

Everyday items can be turned into weapons

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Whether it's plastic, glass, metal or wood, crafty prison inmates can turn everyday items into weapons.

Law enforcement officials can remind themselves that the deadly weapons could be turned against them one day by viewing a collection of the paraphernalia at the Potter County Sheriff's Office.

The collection is mostly for instructional use by law enforcement trainees, said Lt. Jim Tipton.

Items as innocent as a toothbrush or a ballpoint pen can become wicked devices used to maim or kill others.

A fragment of a mop bucket lid, sharpened on one end, wrapped in cloth on the other, can become a slashing weapon. The bucket's wire handle, curled to fit a fist on one end and spiked on the other, can be transformed in:o a stabbing tool.

"This was a bolt," Tipton said, sorting through the collection. "In the old jail, they bolted the bunks together. The inmate was trying to sharpen this when they took it away.

"The concrete floor is a good abrasive. They'll sit there and rub and rub a piece of metal against it until it's sharp."

Another weapon that found a home in the collection is a homemade billy club of sorts.

"They take their sock and knot a bar of soap inside it. They can beat a guard or another inmate over the head with it," Tipton said.

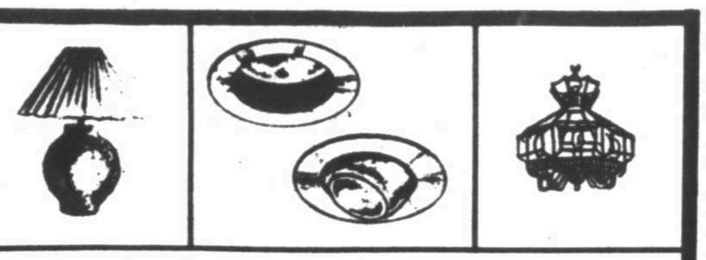

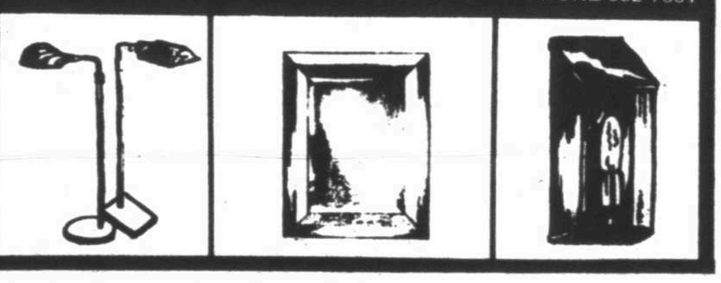

A smaller weapon, but just as vicious, is a staple, straightened and positioned erect into a melted plastic toothbrush handle.

"He probably got the staple out of legal papers sent to him by his attorney," Tipton guessed. "He can stab your eye out with that."

Sometimes the weapons are not made by the inmates, but stolen or sneaked inside, Tipton said. Guards have confiscated hacksaw blades, buck knives and other tools from the prisoners.

Battery-operated tattoo needles are another item guards frequently confiscate in shakedowns. Tipton said the inmates make them using components of electric razors and mechanical pencils.

Attacks on Gorbachev shatter unity

WORLD

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev's hard-line Kremlin colleagues on Tuesday sharply attacked his reforms of the ailing Soviet economy, politics, the military and diplomacy.

"There are forces in our country fighting against socialist order, against the Communist Party," warned conservative Politburo member Yegor K. Ligachev, rejecting attacks on party hard-liners and their allies in the army.

His remarks drew thunderous applause from the 4,657 delegates at the 28th Communist Party congress. Gorbachev, the party general secretary and president, sat stone-faced behind the speaker's platform in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses.

Opponents, Ligachev said, "applaud things that are directed toward the breakup of socialism in our country, toward undermining the party, presenting them as innovations, as real perestroika."

Gorbachev told the delegates that four top party officials submitted their resignations, further undermining the traditional public unity of the collective Kremlin leadership. Gorbachev increasingly has been the target of public criticism by his colleagues.

The four officials included nonvoting politburo member Alexandra Biryukova, the highest-ranking woman in the leadership. She was responsible for consumer goods, and Gorbachev gave no reason for her resignation.

Gorbachev's critics did not mention him by name, in keeping with tradition. But the resignations and the abuse heaped on his policies raised doubts that he has enough support at the top to push further reforms.

When the 10-day congress is over, it will have elected a party leader and Central Committee, and will have approved a new platform and party rules.

The harsh speeches by Gorbachev's colleagues on the ruling Politburo — the first allowed at a congress of this type since 1921 — were televised nationally after a delay.

A Gorbachev ally, Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, praised the reforms, and countered conservative criticism that he had signed unfavorable arms control treaties with the West and too much was cut from the military budget.

Gorbachev appeared unperturbed by the criticism. Acting as congress chairman, he cracked jokes and laughed.

After Communist leaders aired their differences, about 4,000 reformers gathered across the Moscow River and gave the congress a bad review. Braving a steady rain, they rallied at the main gate of Gorky Park, shouting, "Down with the Communist Party!" and "Down with the KGB!"

Many waved the red, white and blue flags of czarist Russia.

Inside the red brick walls of the Kremlin, the 69-year-old Ligachev railed against three of Gorbachev's reforms: his plan to put factories and farms in private hands, his farm investment policy and his anti-alcoholism campaign, which has been abandoned.

Ligachev also said Gorbachev's 5-year-old perestroika reform program was marred by "limitless radicalism" and "improvisations" that have brought little good.

KGB Chairman Vladimir A. Kryuchkov, in a speech laden with Marxist-Leninist ideology, criticized economic reforms he said have produced "property stratification" among the population and "a whole layer of millionaires."

He said some people want to import capitalism, bringing with it the many ills of that system.

"We hear assertions that in the West, everything is good and here everything is bad. We are drawn to Western experience. ... But can we allow that along with useful experience, the negative in the world of capital has also been transferred into our life?"

He listed the ills as mass unemployment, rampant crime and drug abuse.

Gorbachev repeatedly has praised Western economies, especially during his trip to the United States last month, for providing incentives to workers and fostering high living standards.

Another conservative, Defense Minister Dmitri T. Yazov, rejected demands by Communist reformers to eliminate party cells in the armed forces.

Albanians converge on embassies

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Rioting broke out in the Albanian capital of Tirana, and diplomats said Tuesday that hundreds of people stormed foreign embassies there trying to flee Europe's last bastion of hard-line communism.

Italy's Foreign Ministry, in a statement in Rome, said Albanian security forces used firearms to try to turn back the refugees. A Greek government communique reported shooting and unconfirmed accounts of "victims among the population."

The Albanian government confirmed the rioting and acknowledged people were wounded at one embassy.

A statement by the official ATA news agency said 300 to 400 people, including "vagabonds, former prisoners ... as well as some deceived adolescents," tried to storm the unspecified embassy Monday night.

The statement, telexed to The Associated Press in Vienna, said the crowd threw stones and bricks at police, blocked traffic and broke shop windows. It said security forces restored order and detained people. It said some people were "slightly wounded."

Diplomats said about 200 Albanians sought refuge in at least a dozen embassies since late last week. The greatest concentration, 86, appeared to be in the West German compound.

Hanns Schumacher, deputy West German Foreign Ministry spokesman, said in Bonn the refugees' motives were not completely clear, but he assumed "this is the outbreak of dissatisfaction with the existing political realities in Albania."

WORLD IN BRIEF

1,400 deaths in Mecca confirmed

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A stampede that killed more than 1,400 Moslem pilgrims inside a crowded pedestrian tunnel was touched off when seven people tumbled off a bridge outside, the interior minister said Tuesday.

Prince Nayef put the death toll at 1,426, making it the worst tragedy at the annual pilgrimage, or Hajj, in recent history. In previous years, the celebration was marred by terrorist attacks and riots.

The air-conditioned tunnel, connecting Mecca with the tent city at Mina, was packed "multiple times beyond its capacity, with some 50,000 people inside," he said. The temperature outside hit 112 degrees on Monday.

AP

"The fall of the seven (from a bridge above the mouth of the tunnel) spread terror, and the tremendous throngs of the pilgrims caused them all to tumble onto each other," Prince Nayef said on state-run television.

"Old people first began falling under the feet in panic and terror," an aide to Prince Nayef said. "No one could go back or forth ... the pilgrims were falling on each other, the bodies piling on each other ... there was a mad rush and screaming."

Witnesses said the panic began after power inside the tunnel was cut off. Most victims suffocated or were trampled in the ensuing stampede.

Breach investigated

LONDON (AP) — An apparent security breach at the house being built for the Duke and Duchess of York is under investigation, Buckingham Palace said Tuesday.

The Daily Mirror said a part-time security guard escorted a reporter through the house in Sunninghill Park adjoining Windsor Great Park, 22 miles west of London.

It said the guard had approached the paper asking for a $12,000 payment in exchange for a tour of the house and security system. The paper said it refused to pay him anything.

The Mirror said the $9 million house included a bulletproof room for emergencies, electronic monitors inside and outside, and alarm buttons installed throughout.

Queen Elizabeth II's second son, Prince Andrew, and his wife, the former Sarah Ferguson, are expected to move into the two-story house in October.

French controllers strike

PARIS (AP) — Air traffic controllers, complaining they are overworked and underpaid, began a three-day strike Tuesday that forced cancellation of about two-thirds of all flights in and out of Paris at the start of the summer vacation season.

About 90 percent of the controllers at France's largest flight control center, Athis-Mons, south of Paris, reportedly joined the strike.

The Dutch airline KLM and Swissair were among the foreign carriers that announced they were either canceling all flights into Paris for the duration of the strike or reducing them drastically.

Mass grave located

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — A mass grave discovered last week in northern Yugoslavia may contain the remains of 40,000 people executed by victorious Communists in 1945, a newspaper reported Tuesday.

Most appear to have been Ustasha soldiers of the defeated Nazi puppet state of Croatia, Vjesnik said.

The victims apparently were executed after surrendering to Communist partisans or being deported to Yugoslavia by the Western allies from Austria, where many had sought refuge at the end of World War II.

The Ustashas were an elite, SS-type military unit accused of murdering hundreds of thousands of Jews, Serbs and Gypsies after the so-called Independent State of Croatia was created under German auspices in 1941.

Oil inches up

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy futures finished mixed Tuesday as wholesale gasoline prices retreated after a modest advance.

A pre-holiday atmosphere prevailed and trading activity was subdued on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Financial markets and many businesses will be closed Wednesday in observance of Independence Day.

The contract for August delivery of West Texas Intermediate rose 8 cents to settle at $16.80 per 42-gallon barrel. The contract tumbled 35 cents on Monday.

Brokers said continuing uncertainty over production and labor problems in the Norwegian North Sea encouraged crude buying. A day-old strike by Norway's oil workers ended Monday when the government issued a back-to-work decree.

In natural gas trading, the August contract advanced to $1.525 per 1,000 cubic feet from $1.519.

Dollar drops

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar ended mostly lower Tuesday in quiet pre-holiday trading, while the British pound continued to gain strength on worldwide markets.

Gold prices rose here and abroad. On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold bullion for current delivery traded at $362.10 a troy ounce.

Currency dealers said trading was thin on the eve of Independence Day, when U.S. financial markets will be closed.

Sterling rose to $1.7800 from $1.7635 in London, and to $1.7765 from $1.7715 Monday in New York.

Dollar rates in New York: 1.3930 Swiss francs; 5.5400 French francs; 1,211.00 Italian lire; 1.16245 Canadian dollars.

Gold rose in London to a late bid price of $361.75 an ounce from $357.55 late Monday. Silver prices were mixed. On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery settled at $4.919 a troy ounce.

Factory orders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to factories for manufactured goods in May regained their 2.1 percent loss of a month earlier, the government reported Tuesday, and analysts said industry may be starting to recover from its slump.

"The manufacturing sector seems to have gone through the worst and has a slight upward tilt," said Robert G. Dederick, chief economist with the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago.

The Commerce Department said orders for both durable and non-durable goods rebounded 2.1 percent to a seasonally adjusted $240.9 billion.

Norwegian firm acquires Dual Drilling

■ The acquisition of Dual Drilling by a Norwegian company is not expected to affect the Odessa office, a spokesperson says.

Staff Report

DALLAS — Dual Drilling Co., a Dallas-based offshore drilling company, has announced that its parent company, Bechtel Investments of San Francisco, has sold its controlling interest in Dual Drilling to Mosvold Shipping A/S of Kristiansand, Norway for U.S. $170 million.

"As far as the operations, I think it's just another giant step in the growth of Dual," Dual Drilling Co. president L.H. Robertson said in a recent Dallas Business Journal article.

Susan Burton, Dual Drilling Company's Odessa office spokesperson said there will not be any changes made in the Odessa office. "There will be changes made on the board of directors and the rigs will start flying Norwegian flags, but that's about it," she said.

Mosvold intends to keep Dual's directors, including company founder Robert Priddy, but intends to add two positions to the board. The Norwegian firm also plans to keep the existing management team and will keep the company headquarters in Dallas, the article stated.

Dual Drilling Co. is an international offshore and land drilling contractor which provides drilling and engineering services to the petroleum industry. Dual is headquartered in Dallas, Texas, with operating offices in Broussard and New Orleans, La.; Mt. Pleasant, Mich.; Ventura, Calif.; Jakarta, Indonesia; Worli, Bombay, India; Singapore; Malaysia; and Brazil as well as Odessa.

As one of the world's largest offshore drilling contractors, Dual Drilling operates in the Gulf of Mexico, the U.S. Pacific coast, Brazil, India and Indonesia. Its fleet consists of 32 rigs — 10 deep drilling, self-contained platform rigs, seven deep water jack up rigs and 15 land rigs.

Industry analysts say Mosvold's acquisition signifies a trend among Norwegian firms to invest in offshore drilling. Tax laws in Norway allow companies to offset profits by reinvesting in the same industry. The Norwegians have been actively acquiring interests in drilling for some time according to the Dallas Business Journal article.

Mosvold Shipping AS is a publicly-held company on the OSLO stock exchange, and is the holding company of the Mosvold Group. Mosvold has been involved in the shipping industry for 80 years, with the company's main area of business directed toward shipping and more recently offshore drilling. The addition of Dual Drilling Company increases Mosvold Shipping A/S presence in the United States and international drilling markets.

Following the acquisition of Dual-Drilling, the breakdown of Mosvold's assets are 64 percent offshore rigs, two percent land rigs and 14 percent ships. Cash and equivalents will amount to 20 percent. In light of this acquisition, the Mosvold Group will employ approximately 1,800 people.

Northwest explores Eastern buy

■ Northwest Airlines chairman Alfred Checchi says he is exploring the possibility of buying Eastern Airlines.

By Tony Kennedy

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Northwest Airlines Chairman Alfred Checchi wants to meet with the Machinists union to discuss the possibility of Northwest buying Eastern Airlines, a union spokesman said Tuesday.

"Everything is just exploratory at this point," said Jim Conley, a spokesman for the International Association of Machinists in Washington.

Union officials for Northwest's pilots and flight attendants and other observers said Eastern's routes and hubs would benefit Northwest. But pension liabilities and labor issues would make a merger difficult, they said.

"It's a fairy tale," said Rich Siakel, a spokesman for Northwest's pilot's union. "There are pieces that make sense, but not the whole thing."

Conley said Machinists officials met Monday in Washington to discuss the problems integrating Eastern employees into Northwest's operation. He said the meeting was a prelude to one with Checchi, but said he does not know when that meeting will take place.

Robin Matell, spokesman for Miami-based Eastern, said a June memo to employees said Pan Am and Northwest had shown interest in buying Eastern, but meetings and discussions were not an indication of an imminent takeover.

"Eastern's desire is to create a successful, independent airline, but it's impossible to rule out a merger or buyout," the memo said.

Officials at Eagan, Minn.-based Northwest, the nation's fourth-largest carrier, would not comment on whether Eastern is a possible takeover target. But Checchi repeatedly has made public his intention to expand Northwest, possibly by buying an entire airline or parts of one.

Eastern, the nation's ninth-largest airline, has been reorganizing under bankruptcy court protection from creditors since March 1989, when Machinists walked off the job. Pilots and flight attendants initially did not report to work, but they called off sympathy strikes last November.

Hot dog!

Patsy Ross, a 7-Eleven test kitchen manager, puts the finishing touches on a few hot dogs at a test kitchen in Dallas. No doubt quite a few hot dogs will be put on the grill as Americans celebrate the Fourth of July which, coincidentally falls during National Hot Dog Month.

Insilco launches recapitalization plan

Staff Report

Insilco Corporation, owned by Midland based Wagner and Brown, has filed a registration statement for an exchange offer with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The recapitalization plan consists of a combination of cash and a new debt security for its existing senior subordinated notes and a combination of the new debt security and equity for its subordinated discount debentures.

Under terms of the exchange offer, holders of 15 percent senior subordinated notes due 1999 would receive $250 of cash and $400 principal amount of new 12 percent senior subordinated notes due 1998.

Holders of subordinated discount debentures due 2001 would receive a package consisting of $63 principal amount of the new 12 percent senior notes due 1998 and 38 shares of convertible preferred stock, convertible into Insilco Class B common stock.

According to a recent Forbes article the proposed recapitalization plan has some senior noteholders thinking they're getting the short end of the deal.

They complain that they are being asked to take a 60 percent hit while Merrill Lynch, Wagner and Brown's investment banker and holder of over 50 percent of the discount debentures, take an estimated 45 percent hit in exchange for notes an equity.

The senior creditors get no such equity benefit. The article noted that Merrill Lynch will see its stake rise to 30 percent if all the debt is exchanged plus receive a $5.4 million fee if the exchange occurs.

Primary Medical building second clinic

By Mella McEwen

McEwen

Construction has begun on a new PRIMARY MEDICAL CLINIC at 3400 Andrews Highway. Completion is expected around Dec. 7. This will be the second Midland clinic for the Odessa-based corporation. The first one is located in the Agora III shopping center at Garfield and Loop 250.

Don Shelton with Primary Medical explained that the owners saw an opportunity, and decided to build the new location.

He described the clinic as a family practice with extended hours and minor emergency facilities.

DIAMOND COMPUTER has relocated to 26 Village Circle, the former Crystal Palace location, from its old store at 4322 Andrews Highway.

Sales Manager Travis Bennett said the new location is more than three times the size of the old store, and offers Diamond more space and more retail area. He added that it is also a more central location with better access to both downtown and the medical community.

Bennett primarily works with The Medical Manager, a program that helps physicians manage their practice with a computer.

Owner Ken Bryant, Bennett said, specializes in Novell computer networks. Diamond is a Novell Gold dealer and an advanced Medical Manager dealer.

In addition to those two services, Diamond sells, supports and services computers.

MID-TEX PARTNERS, a new corporation headed by Alan White, Paul Renz and Sam Blanck, has been formed to purchase Mid-Tex of Midland from its former owner, Floyd Miller. The company assumed ownership of Mid-Tex the first of May.

All three are long-time employees of Mid-Tex, with Blanck being part-owner of the old company.

Mid-Tex was founded in 1941 and specializes in carpeting, tile, cabinets and interior remodeling for both commercial and residential clients. The company has volume in excess of $4 million annually and employs 50.

MIDLAND PARK MALL is gearing up for the Fourth of July holiday.

Susan Perkins, marketing manager for the center, said that on the Fourth of July, shoppers can get a free mylar stars-and-stripes balloon with an $8 Food Court purchase. The mall's hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The mall is also gearing up for its summer sidewalk sale, set for this weekend.

A new tenant has been signed for the mall — THE NFL MAN, set to go into the former Foot Action location next to Musicland. Foot Action has moved to a larger store across the way, and has opened a Foot Action For Kids.

***

THE HORNE COMPANY, which manages several properties in Midland, has undergone a name change.

The company is now known as Westlake Realty Corp., reflecting its association with the Westlake Group.

Westlake Group is engaged primarily in the petrochemical business in the U.S. and internationally. Westlake Realty will remain in property and asset management and leasing.

***

GRANDY'S, with a Midland restaurant at 3201 Andrews Highway, has begun a new complementary dinner roll program in its Midland and other West Texas locations.

"Granny," Grandy's dining room hostess, will serve the homemade yeast rolls during lunch and dinner.

The program is part of an enhancement program that includes new menu boards, employee uniforms and focus on customer service.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted at higher levels this afternoon in sluggish trading on the eve of the Independence Day holiday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which gained 18.57 points on Monday, was up another 8.91 at 2,908.17 with two hours left in the session.

Advancing issues led decliners by a margin of about 8 to 7 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 774 up, 659 down and 499 unchanged.

Volume on the Big Board came to 96.79 million shares as of 2 p.m. on Wall Street, compared with 88.53 million shares at the same point on Monday.

Trading was relatively light today as the U.S. financial markets are going to be closed Wednesday in observance of Independence Day.

Analysts attributed the rise in stocks to seasonal readjustments of investment portfolios along with the start of the third quarter. Institutional investors such as pension funds were looking for good values among blue-chip stocks as part of mid-year reallocations of funds.

In economic news, the Commerce Department said orders to factories for manufactured goods rose 2.1 percent in May, offsetting a revised 2.1 percent decline the previous month.

Among active issues on the NYSE, Philip Morris was up ⅞ at 48, American Telephone & Telegraph was unchanged at 38⅞ and American Express was up ⅛ at 31⅝.

Several utility issues were also actively traded, with Central Maine Power unchanged at 18⅝, Entergy up ⅛ at 20 and SCEcorp down ⅛ at 37⅜.

General Instrument was up ½ at 45⅝. It agreed Monday on a buyout at $44.50 a share by the investment firm Forstmann Little & Co.

July Fourth no holiday for businesses

N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — July Fourth is a one-day holiday on the calendar, but for productivity-minded businesses it may seem to last the whole week.

"In your mind you think of it as a long vacation," said Mindee Nodvin, who works at Hutcheson-Shutze, an Atlanta advertising agency. "It's hard to take only one day."

Independence Day falls on a Wednesday for the first time since 1984. By splitting the week in half, many employees and managers alike said it may be nearly impossible to get the productivity fireworks going — especially Thursday and Friday.

"It'll be pretty hard to get back in the swing of things," said Rick Thompson, who works at the Georgia State University bookstore.

Some businesses don't fight the slowdown syndrome, scheduling factory shutdowns.

Phil R. Mooney, a human resources manager for Oxford Industries Inc., said his company has given most employees the week off rather than chance slowdowns.

Ford Motor Co. has closed its Hapeville plant for two weeks. "It's a logical time because a lot of people take vacation then anyway," said a Ford spokesman.

Productivity researchers for the U.S. Labor Department said the effects of midweek holidays on productivity have not been quantified, but said the issue figured in decisions to permanently move some federal holidays to Monday.

Management consultant Emanuel Weintraub said businesses just have to accept a certain amount of slowdown, otherwise "it's like trying to stop Niagara Falls."

But managers willing to try may heed the advice of consultant Lawrence Holpp:

"Plan special meetings and let people know that they're critical and that they need to prepare."

Southland may go public under restructuring

DALLAS (AP) — Southland Corp. stock would return to the public markets under a restructuring proposed to keep the world's largest convenience store chain out of bankruptcy court.

Under a restructuring proposal broadly outlined announced last month, holders of $1.8 billion of Southland bonds would receive $550 million in new bonds, plus shares of a newly issued common stock.

The details of the swap were disclosed Monday in a filing with the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

In the filing, the company said it would swap one share of common stock for 10 shares of new stock issued to current bondholders through the restructuring. The stock would be listed on the over-the-counter market.

"We feel that would be a key point to the bondholders, who would like to see some liquidity in the shares they receive," Southland spokeswoman Cecilia Norwood said.

Southland, which owns the 7-Eleven chain, has been staggering under debt accumulated when the founding Thompson family took the company private in a $4.9 billion leveraged buyout. Cash has been sapped by higher-than-anticipated interest rates the advent of oil company-owned competition.

The company already has missed $69 million in interest payments and could be forced into bankruptcy on July 15.

In March, the company proposed a restructuring that included a $400 million infusion from Ito-Yokado Inc. and 7-Eleven Japan Co. in exchange for 75 percent ownership of the company.

Holders of about $1.8 billion in bonds also would receive new securities worth about $550 million as well as common stock.

Bondholders objected, however, in large part because the Thompson's retained about 15 percent ownership in the restructured company.

A revised proposal was presented last month, decreasing Thompson holdings to about 6½ percent and raising bondholders' share from about 10 percent to about 18½ percent.

The revision also increases interest paid on the new securities and shortens the maturities.

NORTHWEST: CEO wants to meet union

(From 1C)

Since April, Eastern has been run by court-appointed trustee Martin Shugrue, who was an adviser to a group of investors led by Checchi in a $3.65 billion buyout of Northwest last year.

The leader of the machinists' union at Eastern, Frank Ortis, said a Northwest-Eastern merger "would be a great marriage."

"It's speculation, but in our opinion, it would be a great merger and a great buy," he said. "Northwest is a great airline. Mr. Checchi appears to be very good with public relations and labor relations."

The Machinists form the largest union at Northwest and Eastern, representing nearly 24,000 workers at Northwest and 8,500 at Eastern.

Siakel, of Northwest's pilots union, said an Eastern acquisition would invite the kinds of service problems Northwest encountered with its 1986 takeover of Republic Airlines.

When Northwest and former Republic employees were working side by side and earning vastly different wages, a deterioration of morale and service gave rise to the nickname "Northworst."

William Genoese, head of the airline division for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said Checchi's primary interest in Eastern is acquiring its Atlanta and Miami hubs.

Northwest's only existing southern hub, in Memphis, "is not producing the way they thought it would. It doesn't have the traffic," Genoese said.

But Shugrue is only interested in selling Eastern if someone buys all of it, Genoese said. "I don't see anything really developing," said Genoese, whose union represents flight attendants at Northwest.

Northwest also would benefit from Eastern's routes on the East Coast.

INVESTORS' GUIDE
Bond purchase date doesn't set interest

By Bill Doyle

Q. I bought $15,000 of municipal bonds, which pay tax-free interest in May and November. My first interest payment arrived on May 5. Does the date of purchase determine the amount of interest paid? For instance, if I should buy some of the same bonds two months before an interest payment date, would I receive a full interest payment?

A. The purchase date does not determine the interest payment's size. However, it can and usually does determine the total amount you pay when you buy. In most cases, your purchase price includes the bond's market value plus accrued interest from the bond's previous interest payment date or, in the case of a recently issued bond, accrued interest from the bond's issue date.

Doyle

This is because most "marketable" bonds — those bought and sold in the market place — are traded on an "and interest" basis. The exceptions to this general rule are bonds traded "flat" — without interest.

The interest portion of your purchase price goes to the person who sold the bonds. Then, you collect the next full six-month interest payment.

Let's use your example in which you buy bonds exactly two months before the interest payment date. Let's say six months' interest is $600. When you buy, you pay the bonds' market price and $400 accrued interest. When the interest payment arrives, you have net interest income of $200 — the $600 interest check minus the $400 accrued interest you paid at the time of purchase.

Q. What types of bonds trade flat, without interest being added to the purchase price?

A. Two kinds: Bonds in default of interest payments and "income bonds," on which interest is paid only if the project financed by the bond issue earns enough money to meet the interest payment.

Q. I bought two different municipal bonds through the same brokerage house three months ago. I received one of those bonds shortly after I purchased it and, soon after that, an interest payment. I have not received the other bond.

I have written and telephoned the brokerage firm about this and was told I will get the bond "when it is available." How could they sell it to me, if it was not available?

A. When you say "bond," you obviously mean a bond certificate — an engraved sheet of paper. All bonds don't come in that form anymore. Many now are in "book-entry" form, with ownership recorded on computers and no certificates printed. If that's the story with your "missing bond," your broker should have explained things to you.

Even when certificates are printed, delivery to buyers does not happen immediately. If the person who sold the bond had possession of a certificate, he or she had to send the certificate to his or her broker and the certificate had to be sent to your broker for delivery to you.

And, if the bond is in "registered" form, with the owner's name on the certificate, there was another step in between. The certificate had to go to the bond trustee, where the old certificate was destroyed and a new certificate issued in your name.

All this takes time, but three months is far too long a wait. Ask your broker if a certificate can be issued for that bond. If the answer if yes, give the broker one more chance to deliver the certificate — within one week. If you don't get it, complain to the National Association of Securities Dealers.

Q. The statement I received from my broker after buying a municipal bond showed the brokerage firm had possession of the bond. Shouldn't I have received the bond certificate right away?

A. Not necessarily. I have to assume that statement indicated the brokerage had the bond in inventory. That didn't mean a certificate was available for immediate delivery. The bond you purchased might have been in book-entry form, with no certificate available, or in registered form, requiring a new certificate to be issued.

Garrison ends Seles streak

■ Enigmatic Zina Garrison derailed Monica Seles' hopes for a Wimbledon title in quarterfinal action.

Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Roses to thorns, nightmares to dreams. Zina Garrison bounced from inexplicable defeats to unanticipated victory Tuesday against the hottest player in tennis, Monica Seles.

Garrison, a case study for sports psychologists since a 1984 emotional blowup at Wimbledon, searched deep inside herself and found what had been missing for so long.

Shaking off a first-set loss, a third-set injury and a match point against her, Garrison weathered the torrent of Seles' groundstrokes and grunts, and ended the 16-year-old French Open champion's 36-match winning streak 3-6, 6-3, 9-7.

Seles innocently gave Garrison a bouquet of roses before their match a year ago at the French Open, just as she had given flowers to other opponents. Garrison, feeling mocked, flew into a rage at the gesture by the Florida-based Yugoslav and refused the roses. Seles went on to beat her in straight sets.

Garrison's nightmares continued in the Australian Open in January when she lost the first of four matches this year after holding match point against players ranked far below her.

Her win Tuesday was a psychological triumph that meant more to her than a berth in the semifinals against two-time defending champion Steffi Graf.

"What goes around comes around, that's for sure," Garrison said.

For Graf, who beat Jana Novotna 7-5, 6-2, it meant losing the chance to meet Seles in the semis to avenge her only two losses this year, in the finals of the German and French Opens.

Now it is the Graf-Garrison winner who will play for the title, something Garrison has never done in a Grand Slam event. The other semifinal will match eight-time champion Martina Navratilova against Gabriela Sabatini.

Navratilova beat Katerina Maleeva 6-1, 6-1 to set a record for Wimbledon singles victories at 97 — one more than Chris Evert's old mark — and Sabatini beat Natalia Zvereva 6-2, 2-6, 8-6.

In men's play, Ivan Lendl had another tough match before subduing Alex Antonitsch 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 to set up a quarterfinal match against Brad Pearce, a surprise 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 winner over Mark Woodforde.

For Garrison, seeded No. 5 and seemingly always a step away from greatness, the quarterfinal victory over No. 3 Seles was a reminder of how far she's come in controlling her emotions in big matches.

It hasn't been easy for Garrison, a product of the public parks program in Houston and one of the few black players in professional tennis.

In her prime six years ago at 20, Garrison sobbed uncontrollably after a second-round loss here to aging but very popular 1977 champion Virginia Wade of Britain, then almost 39.

"Psychologists used me as an example of emotionally getting upset under pressure. I just couldn't handle it," Garrison recalled as she took stock of her progress after beating Seles. "I think since then I've grown a lot. I've learned a lot of discipline on the court and have been able to compose myself a lot more.

"I've been in situations to win it and I didn't win it," she said. "I just kept saying to myself that I was overdue. I was just going to keep hanging tough."

Doing so paid off at the most unexpected time, with Seles holding a match point on Garrison's service in the 14th game of the final set — just before Garrison reeled off 11 of the final 12 points.

Seles had taken the first set by pounding two-fisted forehands and backhands deep into the corners and buzzing passing shots by the net-charging Garrison.

Bauer widens Tour margin

MONT ST. MICHEL, France (AP) — After a day of protest and rain, calm and sunshine returned to the Tour de France on Tuesday. However, one thing remained the same — the overall leader.

Canadian Steve Bauer finished 50th in the fourth stage, a relatively flat 126-mile course from Nantes to historic Mont St. Michel. But he still managed to increase his overall lead to 12 seconds over Frans Maassen of the Netherlands.

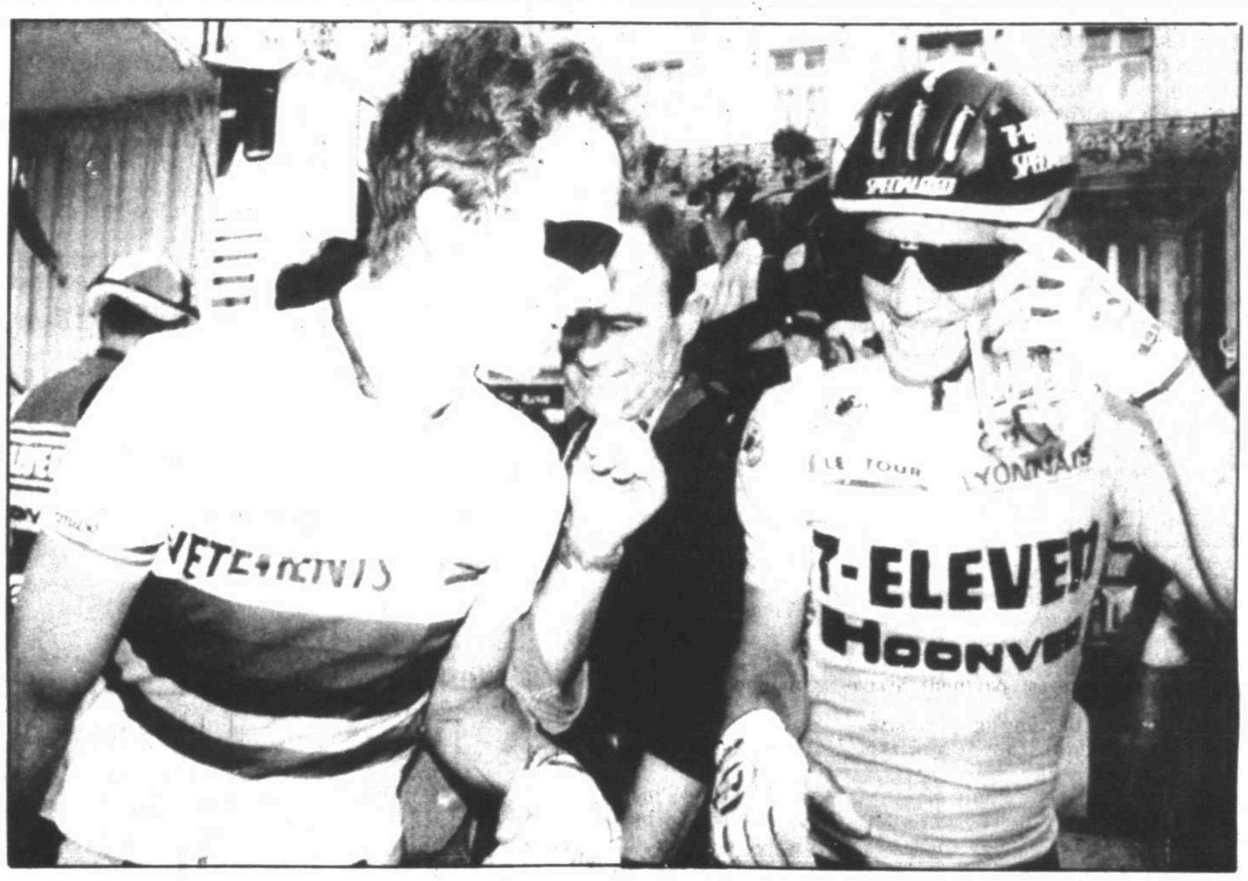

Ronan Pensec of France is third overall, 30 seconds behind Bauer.

Two-time champion Greg LeMond, who finished 41st in Tuesday's stage, is 10½ minutes behind the leader in 24th place.

On Monday, the race was disrupted by sheep farmers who blocked the route to protest falling meat prices. There were no such problems on Tuesday, when crowds lined the roads to cheer the riders.

Despite a few breakaway attempts, the main pack finished together, with Johan Museeuw of Belgium taking the individual first in 5 hours, 23 minutes, 33 seconds.

Maradona paces Argentines

■ Argentina ended Italian chances of winning the World Cup at home with a semifinal win that was decided by penalty kicks.

ROME (AP) — A classic matchup produced a classic game as Argentina beat host Italy 4-3 in penalty kicks Tuesday night, ending the host team's bid for an unprecedented fourth title and sending the defending champions into the World Cup final.

Diego Maradona, the hero of Naples for leading the local team to two Italian championships and a European Cup title, put in the deciding kick before the fans who adore him — when he plays for Napoli. He was no hero to them this night, but he was the idol of his country once more.

"This is for all of Argentina," Maradona said. "It is a great achievement.

"Neapolitans showed tonight that they are Italians all the time. But they did not jeer us and they treated Argentina fairly."

Maradona must share the spotlight with goalie Sergio Goycoechea, a backup who has come on since the second game and made all the big saves. He made two of them in the shootout, on Roberto Donadoni and Aldo Serena, then leaped into the arms of his charging teammates.

Meanwhile, Italy's players sat on the turf, some crying, others just staring in disbelief. After five straight victories, the dream of a world title before the home folk was gone.

"This is worse than four years ago because we lost at home," Giuseppe Bergomi said."

"We leave this adventure with a clear conscience," Coach Azeglio Vicini said, "because we gave it all. Italy deserved something better, but this is football."

The game had everything: creative attacks, superb goals, aggressive defense, excellent goalkeeping and plenty of controversy.

Argentina lost Ricardo Giusti midway through the overtime when he was ejected for fouling Roberto Baggio. Referee Michel Vautrot did not see the incident and had to ask his linesmen before issuing the red card.

That left Argentina with 10 men for the rest of the game. It survived, getting to the shootout, where Jose Serrizuela, Jorge Burruchaga, Julio Olarticoechea and Maradona were successful.

"It is important for us to have played well, finally," Coach Carlos Bilardo said. "It is very satisfying for us to be in the final again."

In regulation, which ended 1-1, Salvatore Schillaci had given Italy the lead. But a second-half goal by Claudio Caniggia, the first allowed by the Italians in the tournament, tied it. But Schillaci never was selected for the penalty kicks.

Italy goalie Walter Zenga set a World Cup scoreless minutes record with 518. But he could not make a save in the shootout, the second straight won by the Argentines — they ousted Yugoslavia in the quarterfinals.

"The goal was not Zenga's fault," Maradona said. "A goalie must come out in those situations and Caniggia beat him to the ball.

"We played the way we had to play. We had 120 difficult minutes against Yugoslavia and we had to come back from that and play another 120 ..."

While Italy and Argentina played magnificently in Naples, officials in Turin were getting ready for an influx of English and German fans who carry a nasty reputation.

And an ugly recent history.

English fans have been involved in confrontations with locals and police on the island of Sardinia and the seaside resort of Rimini in the last month. German supporters clashed with police and Yugoslav fans in Milan.

The situation is even more touchy because 39 fans, most of them Italians and rooters for Juventus of Turin, died in rioting caused by English fans supporting Liverpool during the European Cup of Champions final in Brussels in 1985.

Britain's Sports Minister, Colin Moynihan, toured the 80,000-seat Communale Stadium Tuesday and oversaw plans to keep as many rival visiting fans apart as possible for Wednesday's game.

"We are conscious that there is potential trouble coming from both directions," Moynihan said. "We are as concerned about the Italian Ultras (fans) as about the West German hooligans."

And what about the English rowdies?

"It would appear that a lot of English fans are staying down in Sorrento tonight and, if Italy beats Argentina, the locals will be out in the streets celebrating," Moynihan said. "There was trouble involving English and Italians in Alghero (Sardinia) and in Rimini after Italy had played."

He also remembers the so-called "Battle of Turin" at the 1980 European Championships, when English fans wrecked dozens of bars in Turin after their team's 1-1 tie with Belgium.

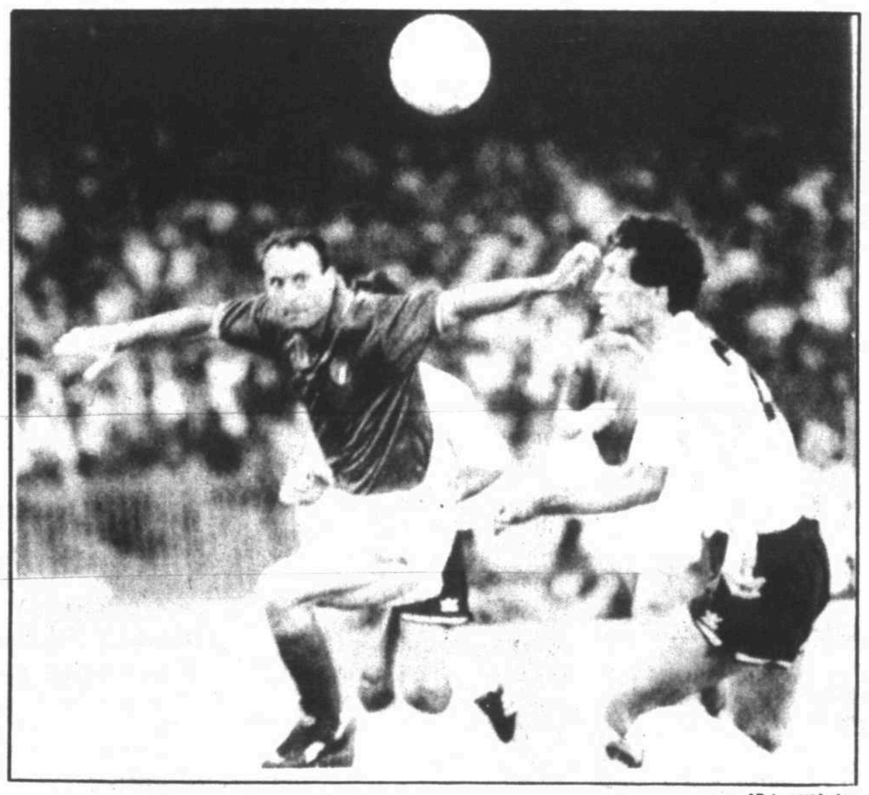

Some 5,000 police will be deployed in Turin to monitor the fans' behavior.

Moynihan said English fans behaved "exceptionally well" during their five-day stay in Naples, where England gained its semifinal place with a 3-2 victory over Cameroon. He said he was encouraged that out of the 5,000-6,000 English fans who had traveled throughout Italy for the competition, there had been just 55 arrests.

"Fifty-five arrests are 55 too many, and I deplore each and every one," Moynihan said. "But given the long time the English have been here, the security arrangements have worked very well."

FIFA said Tuesday that Refik Sabandzovic of Yugoslavia and Lubomir Moravcik of Czechoslovakia have been fined $14,285 and suspended for one game after being expelled during World Cup quarterfinal matches. They will serve those suspensions during European

OU hires coach

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Larry Cochell of Cal State-Fullerton accepted the job as baseball coach at Oklahoma on Tuesday and promised to make the Sooners competitive nationally.

"If we do our job, there's no reason we can't compete with anyone," Cochell said.

Cochell, 50, becomes the seventh baseball coach at Oklahoma. He replaces Stan Meek, who coached on an interim basis last year following the retirement of Enos Semore.

The hiring still must be approved by the university's regents.

"Donnie Duncan has convinced me that the administration is committed to having a nationally ranked program," Cochell said. He said the university had the resources to make that happen.

Cochell said his priorities as the Sooners' coach are to win the Big Eight Conference title, then the NCAA regional title and the national championship.

Mets play longball with hapless Astros

Associated Press

NEW YORK — There was a lot of scoreboard watching going on at Shea Stadium on Tuesday night. It wasn't the scores the fans were watching, though.

Darryl Strawberry hit two of New York's four home runs, including a towering shot off the scoreboard, and Frank Viola became the National League's first 12-game winner as the Mets mashed the Houston Astros 12-0.

"The key to this game was Kevin McReynolds' homer in the first inning," Strawberry said. "That got us going."

New York started the July 4th fireworks early when Strawberry delivered an RBI single and McReynolds hit a three-run homer in the first off Mark Portugal (2-8). Portugal, 7-1 last season, allowed six runs and eight hits in four innings.

"They thumped us," Atrsos manager Art Howe said. "Strawberry has all sorts of power and tonight he displayed what he can do."

Strawberry made it 5-0 with his 18th homer in the third, but that was nothing compared to what he did in the fifth.

Leading off against Xavier Hernandez, Strawberry hit one of the longest home runs in Shea Stadium history, a high, majestic drive that struck nearly 30 feet up on the scoreboard in right-center field. The distance was estimated at about 450 feet from home plate.

"When you hit a home run you don't concern yourself with how far they go," said Strawberry, who is doing his negotiations for a new contract on the field.

"I saw Richie Allen hit the light tower in left field here," Mets manager Bud Harrelson said. "Strawberry's was a beutiful thing to watch."

With one out in the fifth, Daryl Boston hit a home run off the base of the right-field section of the scoreboard to make it 8-0. The Mets have hit four home runs in a game three times this year, all against the Astros.

"Boston tried to show me up," Strawberry joked. "It shows all the guys are playing with confidence."

Viola (12-3) pitched a five-hitter for his third shutout of the season. The Mets have won 20 of 23 overall and 11 of the last 12 at home.

"It's nice to pitch when your teammates are hitting home runs off the scoreboard," Viola said.

Viola beat Houston for the third time this season. He walked three and struck out five in his 14th career shutout.

"Even though I had a big lead I didn't want to let up," Viola said. "When I was we the Twins, we blew a 10-0 lead against Cleveland."

Strawberry has 15 home runs and 36 RBIs in his last 34 games. It was the second time this season he has hit two homers in a game and the 22nd time in his career. Strawberry's 19 homers tie him for second in the NL, five behind Ryne Sandberg.

The Mets added four runs in the seventh off Jim Clancy to make i 12-0 on Viola's run-scoring grounder, Dave Magadan's RBI double and Gregg Jefferies' two-run single.

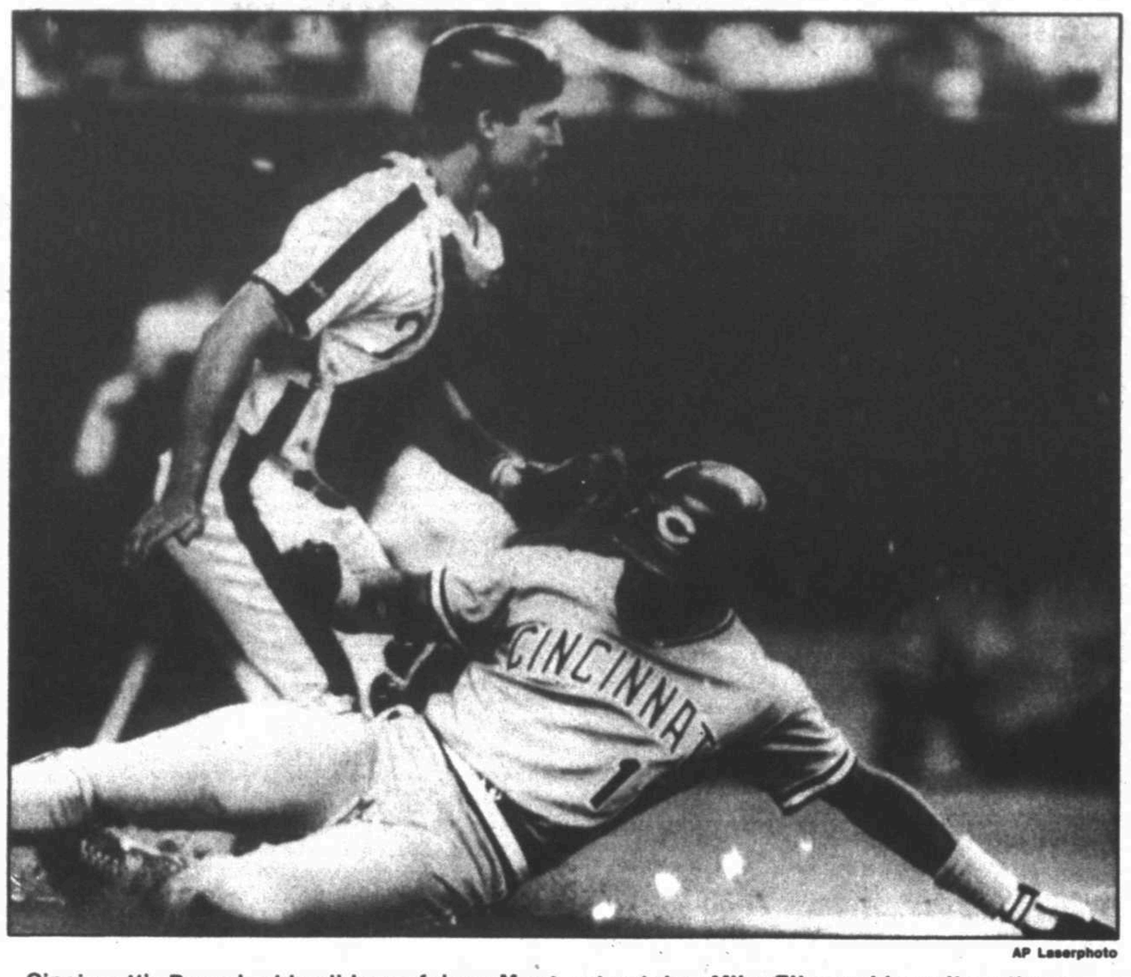

Howard Johnson, who had a 10-game hitting streak stopped, had an RBI grounder with the bases loaded in the fourth.

"We're not this bad," Astros second baseman Bill Doran said. "I don't know how good we are, but we're not this bad."

The Astros have lost 15 of their last 16 road games.

"No one wants to get beat like this," Howe said. "But you can't dwell on it."

Phillies 5, Braves 1

Reliever Jeff Parrett pitched five innings in his first major-league start and Dennis Cook got his first big-league save to lead the Phillies.

Parrett gave up one run on four hits, striking out five and walking three. He started in place of Ken Howell, who did not pitch because of pain in his right armpit.

Parrett (3-6) earned his third victory of the season, all against Atlanta. He is 6-1 lifetime against the Braves.

Phillies manager Nick Leyva had said he thought Parrett was close to pitching out of his season-long slump, and felt a start might be the best way to snap him out of it. Parrett, who has been in the majors for four years, had not started since 1986 at Class AAA Indianapolis.

Cook allowed one hit in four innings. He lost his spot in the starting rotation earlier this season and was sent to the bullpen.

The Phillies won for the fourth time in five games since returning home from an 0-6 road trip.

Marty Clary (1-4) lost in his first start since May 24, a span of 10 relief appearances. He went 5 1-3 innings and gave up four runs on four hits.

Lenny Dykstra led off the Philadelphia first with a single, advanced to third on a single by Tom Herr and scored on Charlie Hayes' sacrifice fly. With two outs, Randy Ready singled home another run.

The Braves cut it to 2-1 in the second on a single by Jim Presley, a passed ball and Andres Thomas' two-out single.

Philadelphia made it 4-1 in the sixth. Hayes walked and Carmelo Martinez singled and reliever Kent Mercker walked John Kruk to load the bases. Dickie Thon blooped a two-out single. In the seventh, Herr hit his fourth home run of the season.

Reds 2, Expos 0

Tom Browning retired the first 16 batters and combined with Randy Myers on a three-hitter as the Reds sent sixth loss in seven games.

Browning (8-5), who pitched a perfect game in 1988 against Los Angeles, did not allow a runner until Spike Owen singled with one out in the sixth inning. Mike Fitzgerald and Junior Noboa s[illegible]led in the eighth.

Myers relieved with one out in the ninth after Browning issued his first two walks. Myers got his 16th save, retiring Fitzgerald on a hard grounder with the bases loaded to end the game.

Browning struck out four. He had yielded 11 runs and 20 hits in 9 1-3 innings in his previous two starts.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first against Zane Smith (4-6) when Barry Larkin doubled into the left-field corner and came around when the ball caromed past Marquis Grissom for a two-base error. The hit was Larkin's 12th in 28 at-bats against the Expos this season.

Cincinnati made it 2-0 in the fourth when Glenn Braggs, who had singled in the second, lined a 1-0 pitch over the left-field fence for his third home run for the Reds. Since being traded to Cincinnati from Milwaukee on June 9, Braggs has hit safely in all of the 13 games he has started.

Indians take frustration out on the Mariners

Associated Press

There's nothing like an easy win to take your mind off an ugly loss.

"After a tough loss on a screwed-up play, this felt good," Cleveland's Mitch Webster said Tuesday night after he drove in three runs with a triple and two singles as the Indians beat Seattle 9-4 Tuesday night, ending the Mariners' five-game winning streak.

The night before, Webster was charged with an error for dropping a ninth-inning fly after a collision with Candy Maldonado that let the winning run score as California edged the Indians 2-1.

The Indians took out their frustrations on Seattle, scoring five runs in the first inning, highlighted by Webster's triple.

"We didn't hit much hard," Webster said. "My triple wasn't hit very hard. Everything just went to the right places."

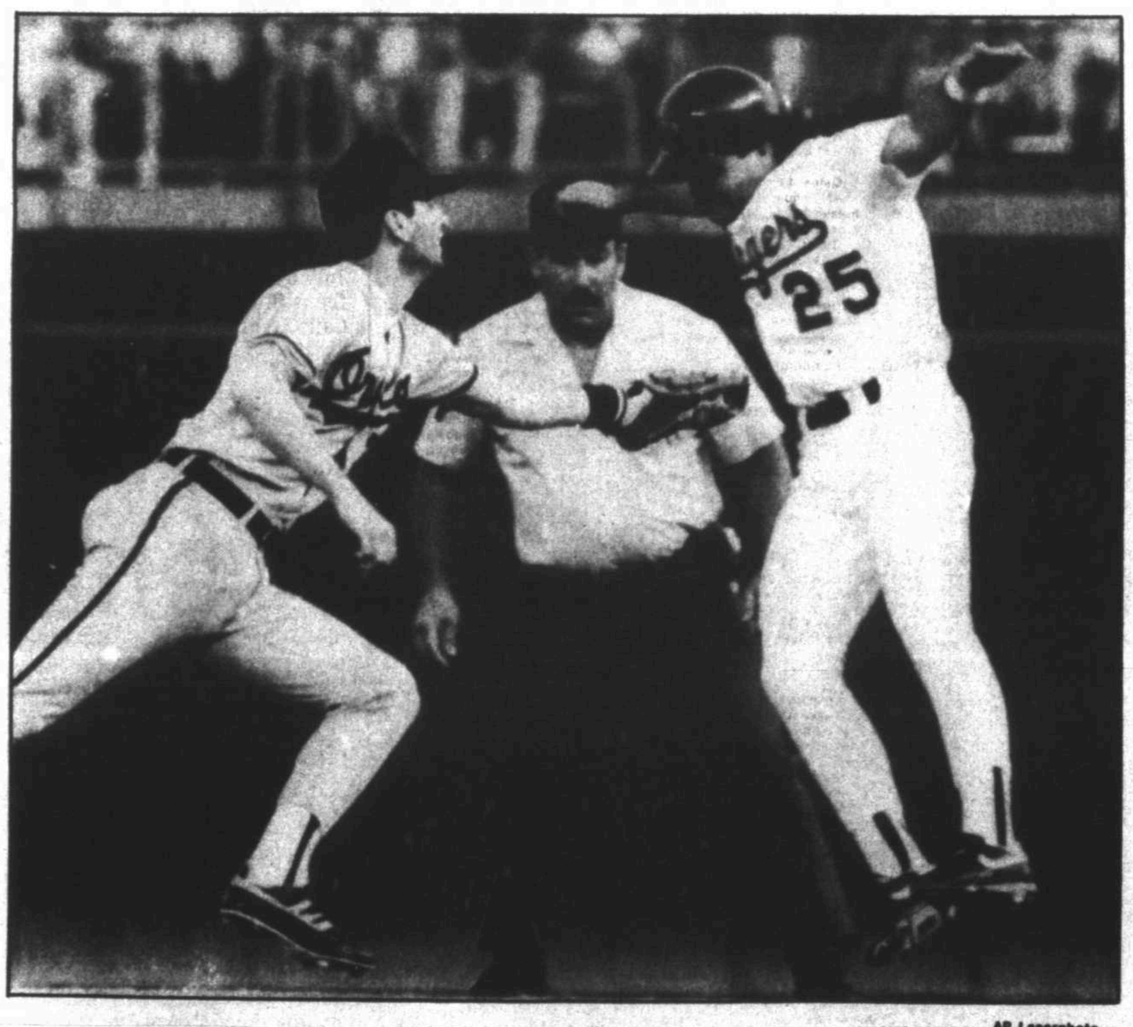

Jerry Browne had three hits and scored three runs for the Indians, winners of seven of their last 10 games. Al Nipper won his second straight start with his new knuckleball, giving up three runs and seven hits in five innings.

Nipper is 2-1 in three starts since he was recalled from Class AAA Colorado Springs. He was waived by the Chicago Cubs in March 1989 and then had knee surgery, missing the entire year before Cleveland signed him as a free agent.

Reliever Rudy Seanez pitched three-plus innings, allowing one run and striking out four, and Doug Jones pitched a scoreless ninth.

Loser Matt Young (2-9) put himself in a deep hole in the first when Cleveland scored five runs on six hits and a walk.

"That's one of the ugliest, stinkingest innings I've ever seen," Young said, agreeing with Webster's assessment of the Indians' weak hits. "It was like my season in a nutshell there. It's frustrating. I think I would rather have been hit real hard."

Baltimore's Billy Ripken tags out Texas' Rafael Palmeiro during Tuesday's game.

Each of the Indians' first four batters got a hit and scored. Browne led off with an infield hit and Webster tripled. Tom Brookens hit an RBI single, Maldonado singled and one out later, a wild pitch advanced the runners.

Brook Jacoby was walked intentionally, loading the bases, and Cory Snyder's sacrifice fly and RBI singles by Sandy Alomar and Felix Fermin produced the final three runs of the inning.

Rangers 7, Orioles 2

Texas' Bobby Witt snapped a personal five-game losing streak against Baltimore with a six-hitter and Jack Daugherty went 3-for-4 with a pair of doubles.

Witt (5-8) was 0-2 with an 11.33 ERA in his first two outings this season against Baltimore. He struck out seven and walked four in pitching his first complete game of the season.

Baltimore got a run in the first on Joe Orsulak's seventh homer but Texas came back with three in the bottom of the inning on Harold Baines' RBI single and Pete Incaviglia's two-run double.

The Rangers, who had five doubles in their first seven hits, scored three more times in the third for a 6-1 lead. Daugherty doubled for the second time in three innings and scored on Rafael Palmeiro's single. Ruben Sierra's RBI double chased John Mitchell (0-2), who gave up six runs and six hits in two-plus innings.

Royals 6, Yankees 1

Bo Jackson homered, singled and doubled and Frank White moved into second place on Kansas City's all-time hit list.

White's single in the second inning was hit No. 1,978 of his 17-year career, putting him ahead of Amos Otis on the career chart. He also doubled in the eighth.

Steve Farr (6-3), making just his third start of the season, held the Yankees to a run and four hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Loser Tim Leary (3-11) suffered his seventh consecutive loss. He gave up five runs and seven hits while walking four and throwing three wild pitches. Two of the wild pitches resulted in runs.

Kevin Seitzer had two hits for the second straight night and gave the Royals a 1-0 lead in the first when he singled and scored on Jackson's double.

Jackson singled in the third, went to second on an infield out and scored on a single by Gerald Perry. He hit his 14th home run and fifth in eight games leading off the seventh against Lee Guetterman.

Athletics 5, Brewers 0

Curt Young and three relievers combined on a seven-hitter as Oakland moved back into first place in the American League West.

It was Tony La Russa's 900th managerial victory in the majors and gave the A's a one-game lead over the Chicago White Sox.

Young (4-2) went 5 1-3 innings and is 5-0 lifetime against the Brewers. He survived a shaky start when Milwaukee loaded the bases with two out in the first inning but couldn't score. The Brewers lost for the 28th time in 39 games.

Todd Burns relieved Young in the sixth after a double by Dave Parker. He walked Rob Deer but Greg Vaughn hit into a double play. Rick Honeycutt replaced Burns with one out in the seventh and, after giving up an infield hit to Edgar Diaz, retired the next two hitters.

Tigers 13, White Sox 7

Lou Whitaker drove in five runs with a homer and triple and Cecil Fielder had three RBIs with his 27th homer and a single to lead Detroit.

Whitaker hit his 11th home run with two on in a five-run fourth, extending his hitting streak to 10 games, and he tripled two runs across in the fifth and scored on a double by Tony Phillips.

Fielder, who leads the majors in homers, connected in the first inning after Phillips singled. Fielder also singled a run home in the fourth.

Blue Jays 5, Angels 2

Junior Felix hit a two-run single in the third inning and tripled and scored the lead run in Toronto's three-run fifth.

Winner Todd Stottlemyre (9-7) gave up 10 hits and walked three in five innings but stranded 10 baserunners. He equaled his career-high with eight strikeouts.

Frank Wills pitched three innings but left after giving up a single to Johnny Ray and a double to Wally Joyner to start the ninth. Tom Henke notched his 14th save in 14 opportunities by retiring Dave Winfield and Max Venable on pop fouls and Lance Parrish on a grounder.

Twins 7, Red Sox 3

Rookie Kevin Tapani scattered seven hits in 7 1-3 innings in outdueling Roger Clemens and Gary Gaetti hit a two-run triple for Minnesota.

Tapani (9-5) had a shutout until the eighth when the Red Sox scored on a one-out walk to Wade Boggs, Jody Reed's single and pinch-hitter Kevin Romine's sacrifice fly off John Candelaria.

Rick Aguilera retired Tom Brunansky on a fly ball and went on to earn his 19th save. He gave up two runs in the ninth on Carlos Quintana's RBI double and Boggs' RBI single.

Boddicker puts Red Sox success ahead of his own

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Boddicker and the Boston Red Sox are both on a roll. But Boddicker says the team's success is much more important than his personal 10-game winning streak.

"I don't care about streaks," Boddicker said. "If the club has a streak, I like that."

Boddicker outpitched Nolan Ryan on Monday as the first-place Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 3-2 and increased their AL East lead to 4½ games.

"He's as tough as there is in the league," Rafael Palmeiro of the Rangers said. "He doesn't have the greatest stuff, but he keeps you off balance. He had everyone of us out in front or taking fastballs in. He did a great job."

Boddicker, primarily a breaking ball pitcher, even had more strikeouts (9-7) than Ryan.

"It was a battle against one of the best of all time," said Boddicker, who has 112 career wins. "I love watching Nolan Ryan. He's definitely a Hall of Famer and I knew I had to pitch well to keep us close."

Boddicker twice won six games in a row for Baltimore, the second time in 1984 when he finished with 20 victories and led the league with a 2.79 earned run average. But his current winning streak is the longest of his career.

SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT
TEXAS
MIDLAND COUNTY

Residents of Midland County:

The following safety tips are for children who are home alone for any period of time. Please teach your children the following items to increase their safety.

1. Proper telephone conversation -- The child should understand that they should never tell anyone that they are home alone.
2. Instruct children the importance of keeping all doors and windows locked when they are alone.
3. Teach children to dial "911" in case of an emergency and also have numbers of trusted friends clearly posted near the telephone.
4. Children should be taught the proper way to report an emergency over the phone and to stay on the line until help arrives.
5. Children should know their home telephone number, address, and where their parents work.

For more information contact Sgt. John McDaniel or Deputy Phillip Buys at 688-1014 or 688-1015.

What lockout? All's normal in baseball

By IRA BERKOW
c.1990 N.Y. Times News Service

The lockout that was the plague and scourge of America during much of the month of March seems to have receded into the mists of history, like the Peloponnesian War. At most, a reference to it is occasionally made.

And fans, once professing a sickness unto the stomach with, as they saw it, both the grasping players and the rapacious owners, are now going about their business: that of yelling for their winners and assailing their losers.

Tim McCarver on a baseball broadcast mentions that there will be a few games played next Wednesday, the day after the All-Star Game, normally an off day for all teams.

Games are being tucked into assorted off days to get in the full 162-game schedule of a baseball season that was slightly truncated by the late start.

Someone else wonders, though not for long, if the profusion of no-hitters so far this season has anything to do with the abbreviated spring training.

On the contrary, David Cone, Mets' pitcher, says that the lack of a full spring training might have hurt endurance. "At first," he said, "I could only go five or six innings. Now I'm going my normal seven or eight."

"In the first week after the strike," said Paul O'Neill, the Cincinnati Reds' right fielder, "we'd hear some fans in the stands hollering at us about the lockout. They'd be grumbling about this or that. But now we don't hear any of that. I think they're just happy that we're nine games in front in our division."

It is close to the midway point in the season, and attendance at ball games is good — not just good, record-breaking. As of Tuesday morning, 878 playing dates in both the American League and the National League have been tallied, said Carole Coleman of the baseball commissioner's office, and the total number of fandom that has piled into the 27 big-league ball fields is 22,644,948.

This is an increase of 621,184, or 2.8 percent, over last year after 878 playing dates. And at regular season's end last year, 55,173,095 fans paid to see major league ball games in the flesh, setting an all-time attendance record.

This was more than 2 million better than the 1988 season, when 52,173,095 spectators clicked through the turnstiles, which also set a record, and that was about 1 million better than the 1987 season, which set a record, which was 4.5 million better than the record-setting 1986 season, and likewise the season before that.

"I remember during the lockout this spring when people I knew told me, 'That's it, I've had it with baseball,'" Coleman said. "But I think the facts are pretty clear. Baseball fans are hooked."

All is forgiven, if not forgotten.

A poll is taken recently in which New Yorkers are asked about George Steinbrenner. Most have a visceral feeling about the Yankees, and Steinbrenner, and baseball. They hate or love with a passion that goes to the depths of their soul.

The Cincinnati Reds' fans can't believe their luck that Lou Piniella, sprung loose by Steinbrenner and his Yankee horde, has their darlings way in front in the standing, a welcome relief from the angst of last year, the dismal Pete Rose season.

The California and Kansas City and San Diego teams, which plunged into the free-agency market like boys in puddles after a rainstorm, and got soaked, have nonetheless each drawn over a million fans so far this season, much of it generated surely by the excitement of their winter buying sprees.

In Shea Stadium last Saturday afternoon, in the brilliant sunshine, close to 50,000 fans, the largest gate of the season for the suddenly hot Mets, showed up for a big game against the Reds.

Most of them also wore the free Met painter caps, courtesy of Carvel ice cream, that were handed out at the turnstiles. A stadium full of people seated in those hats, which were fluorescent orange, looked like a convention of fireflies.

In the mezzanine, a man came with two sons and one baseball glove, like so many others there, in case, of course, a foul ball was hit to them. The father sat throughout the game with the glove on, leaning forward in anticipation like an outfielder before every pitch.

By the sixth inning, he appeared exhausted from his exertion. The kids didn't seem to mind that the old man hogged the glove. They had their hands full with hot dogs.

Behind them sat a man named Peter and his son Paul. They discussed the merits of Carreon over McReynolds in left field, and the advisability of replacing Cone with Musselman.

At the seventh-inning stretch, Peter, who was born in Austria but came to America at age 10, stood with the crowd as "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" was played. The fans sang and waved their orange caps.

"This is America," he said. "People in other countries don't understand this. But this is America."

And he sang and waved his cap, too, one of the legion of formerly disgruntled fans.

McKeon wants to drop one hat

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Padres manager Jack McKeon says he has notified team chairman Tom Werner that he would like to give up his job as manager and work solely as the club's vice president of baseball operations.

"I told him my desire is to do just one job," McKeon said. "Manager was never a longtime goal of mine, anyway. I think a lot of people realized I wouldn't be managing here after this season.

"I was happy to help out and I always said when a time came that I didn't feel like managing, I'd let them know."

Werner did not make any promises to McKeon during their meeting Monday, but he said he would evaluate the situation and consider the request.

"Obviously, things are not going like we want, but we don't want to be forced into making a decision, either," Werner said. "We'll see what happens and go from there."

McKeon's decision comes on the heels of the Padres' worst slump of the season, in which they've lost 14 of their last 19 games. Pittsburgh's 4-3 win in 14 innings Monday night was the Padres' sixth straight loss and dropped them 11½ games behind the division-leading Cincinnati Reds.

"Right now, I'd say I'm going to be the manager for the rest of the year," McKeon said. "Then, at the end of the year, we'll decide what happens. You can put it this way, though. I don't want both jobs next year."

Midway through a tough season, however, McKeon has decided that if San Diego's new ownership wants him to return to the dugout next year, he's ready.

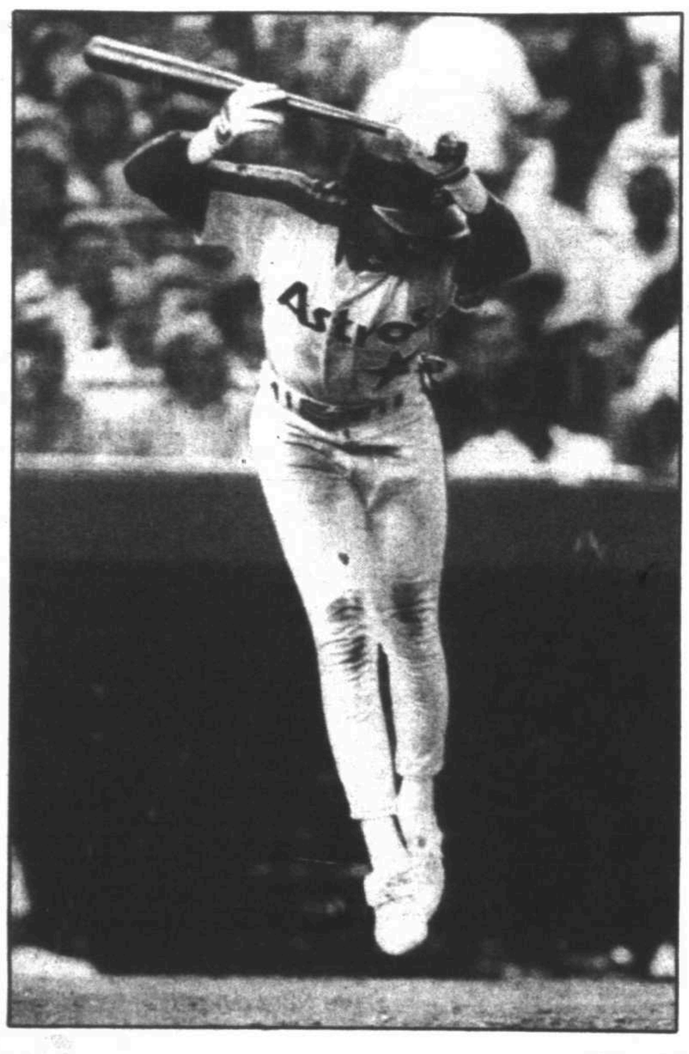

"Just because we hit the skids doesn't mean I have to get out," he said. "I just think it's time. It's still going to be tough leaving this office. I've got a great bunch of guys here and have great rapport with them.

"There's no reason we still can't win here. It's a good club. It's a damn good club. I know I'm not ready to give up on it."

McKeon previously managed the Kansas City Royals from 1973 through July 1975 and the Oakland A's during parts of the 1977 and 1978 seasons. He joined the Padres' front office in 1980 and returned to managerial duties on May 28, 1988, replacing the fired Larry Bowa.

The Padres finished the 1988 season 67-48 under McKeon, who was rewarded with a three-year, $1.2 million contract that extends through the 1991 season. If he relinquishes his managerial duties, the team still will be required to pay his annual $400,000 salary through next year.

McKeon, who has compiled a better winning percentage than any of the Padres' 11 previous managers, was returned to the dual role of manager and vice president-baseball operations on Dec. 2.

Lee, Abbott lead Angels to win over San Antonio

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — Lead-off hitter Wiley Lee had two RBIs and a pair of hits to lead the Midland Angels to a 6-1 decision over the first-place San Antonio Missions in Tuesday night Texas League action.

Pitcher Kyle Abbott had one of his better outings of the year, throwing 7⅔ innings while allowing just three runs and six strikeouts. The one Mission run that did score was unearned. Abbott, who improved to 3-6 on the year, walked five San Antonio batters.

ANGEL NOTES: Relief pitcher Frank DiMichele was released by the California organization and quickly signed by San Diego Tuesday. According to Midland manager Eddie Rodriguez, DiMichele will report to Wichita of the Texas League. DiMichele appeared in 34 games with Midland, posting a 2-3 record and a 5.36 ERA ... Shortstop Kevin Flora and starting pitcher Mark Holzemer were placed on the disabled list for an undetermined length of time. Replacing the two will be a pair of pitchers, lefty Mike Hook of Class A Quad Cities, and right-hander Don Vidmar, a starter for Class A Palm Springs ... Due to a fireworks display in San Antonio Wednesday night, gametime will be moved up an hour to 6:05 p.m., 5:50 p.m. airtime on KCRS (550 AM).

It's been an ugly year for Cards' Magrane

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Even Joe Magrane's 26th birthday could not brighten what has been "an ugly, ugly year" for the St. Louis pitcher.

Magrane became the first 11-game loser in the National League this season when the San Francisco Giants beat the Cardinals 3-2 Monday night.

Magrane (4-11), who led the league in earned-run average two years ago, gave up three runs on six hits over seven innings.

An 18-game winner last year, Magrane has already lost two more games than he did in 1989.

"It's been an ugly, ugly year," said Magrane, who has not beaten the Giants in Candlestick Park since 1987. "I'm seven games under .500. That's pathetic."

The Cardinals have not been much help to Magrane this season, having scored a total of 22 runs in his 11 defeats. St. Louis, the lowest-scoring team in the NL, has been held to two runs or less in 30 of its 77 games through Monday night.

"This is the type of ballclub that's not going to score a tremendous amount of runs," Magrane said. "You've got to minimize your mistakes, and I made enough of them (against the Giants)."

In the third inning, St. Louis second baseman Jose Oquendo threw wide at first on what should have been a double play on Rick Parker's grounder. After a walk to Will Clark loaded the bases, Magrane got Matt Williams on a weak fly ball that would have ended the rally.

Instead, Litton came up with two outs and drove in San Francisco's first two runs.

It also underlined the kind of year Magrane is having.

Charged Redbirds want court case

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Three St. Louis Cardinals players have rejected an offer to settle disorderly conduct charges against them, their lawyer said Tuesday.

Lawyer Jim Kidney said catcher Tom Pagnozzi and pitchers Frank DiPino and Greg Mathews rejected the offer because they want their names cleared. They were arrested May 19 for a fight a few hours after a game against the Cincinnati Reds.

The players said they were coming to the assistance of a woman who was being attacked by an unidentified man.

"These fellows are heroes, not villains," Kidney said. "They came to the aid of a woman being attacked by an unknown assailant."

The players are scheduled for trial in a Kenton County court Aug. 27, but Kidney said there's a good chance charges will be dismissed before then.

Tournament fishing can be made easier

By BUD BAKER

Summer has arrived in West Texas. The signs are unmistakable. The lakes are suddenly overrun with skiers, jetboats and assorted other watercraft. The heat is stifling enough to send the most dedicated angler home dizzy. And, tournament fishing is downright tough.

There are three main problems faced by summertime tournament anglers. First, most bass feeding this time of year takes place at night when tournaments aren't. Second, many bass move deep after spawning, becoming difficult to find and catch. Third, with bait-fish populations at their peak for the year, living is easy for the many bass that do stay shallow. They are lazy and selective about what they eat, making them difficult to fool with a bait.

But, these shallow, finicky bass can be caught. In my most recent tournament outing, that last day was a 108-degree scorcher which saw over 80 percent of the tournament field fail to weigh a single fish. In spite of these conditions, I was able to bring in a limit of bass, all caught in four feet of water — or less — and my best fish was caught just before noon. All were caught on my favorite summertime bait — a spinnerbait.

While topwater baits are undoubtedly the most exciting way to catch summertime bass, there are many days when a bait worked just under the surface will result in fewer missed strikes and, therefore, more fish on the tournament scales at weight-in time. Enter the spinnerbait.

There are a few simple rules to follow when summertime spinnerbait fishing. First, pick your water carefully. The bass that are most likely to stay shallow are the ones on large feeding flats with lots of cover and baitfish. Fish which spawned in these areas in the spring will be there all summer if they have adequate cover and plenty of food.

Keep in mind the old Amistad summertime saying: "If you're out of the wind, you're out of the fish." Summertime fish in windy water are usually the most active. Working a spinnerbait through thick cover while attempting to maneuver your boat in choppy water can be very trying, but not nearly as trying as fishing all day without a bite.

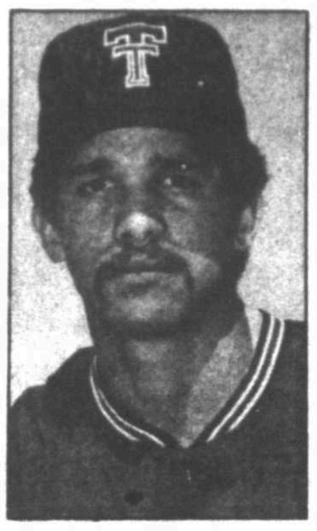

Match the size of your bait to the conditions. In windy water, I like to throw a half ounce spinnerbait with two No. 5 willow blades and a large trailer. In calm water I usually throw a quarter-ounce short arm bait with a single small Colorado blade and a small trailer.

Hernandez

Midlander's son signs pro pact with Rangers

Staff Report

Tom Hernandez, 25-year-old son of Al Hernandez of Midland, was signed by the Texas Rangers over the weekend and sent directly to the team's Class A farm team in Gastonia, N.C.

Hernandez is a graduate of El Paso Coronado and Texas Tech University where he played third base and shortstop. The Rangers, however, short on talent behind the plate, picked up Hernandez as a catcher, a position which he played sparingly at his most recent stop in baseball, the Dallas Amateur Baseball Association.

Hernandez, residing in Garland when the Rangers called, was in his third campaign with the DABA when the Rangers called. He hit .370 in 1988 and .364 in 1989. In '88, Hernandez led the team in RBIs and game winnings RBIs. He was second in doubles and hits, and third in runs scored.

Excalibur slices up soccer foes

Staff Report

CANUTILLO — Excalibur, an under-14 boys soccer club from Midland defeated teams from Arizona, New Mexico and the Republic of Mexico last weekend to lay claim to the World Cup edition of the Kinney International tournament.

Excalibur, the longest-running under-14 group in Midland, defeated the Juarez Cobras 1-0 in a Sunday matchup of the two bracket champions when Midland's Toby Walker fired a direct kick from 25 yards out with just two minutes left in the match.

The championship win was especially sweet for Excalibur considering the seriousness with which the Cobras take their soccer. The 14-and-under Cobras represent part of the direct feeder program into the Cobras Professional Football Club.

The Midland team landed the spot in the championship after defeating the Juarez Delfinos, 7-0, in Saturday's semifinal.

Excalibur first defeated the Phoenix (Ariz.) Golden Eagles, 4-0, and the Las Cruces (N.M.) United team, 2-0, in quarterfinal action on Friday.

Members of Excalibur include Jeremy Hernandez, goalkeeper and co-captain; Stephen Williams, sweeper and co-captain; Jason Faught, Kyle Smith, David Stark, defenders; B.J. Barrus, Tyler Krueger, Robby Vardeman, Toby Walker, Sean Parnell, David Weathers, mid-fielders; and strikers Jessie Fontenot, Dustin Fellows, Ross Hunter and Clay Garner.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JULY 4, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Bear down harder in business negotiations and you will get the terms you want. You have a combination of talents that nobody can match. Act confident in September and others will seek your services in November and December. A loved one's encouragement means a lot in early 1991. Financial worries should become a thing of the past by February. Form new alliances or launch a commercial venture next May.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: President Calvin Coolidge, twin sisters Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren, talk host Geraldo Rivera.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Getting involved in too many projects at one time could dilute your work performance. Your intuition can be affected by your fears. Find a neutral sounding board. A phone call gives you hope.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Rushing into things leads to unnecessary complications. Flirtatious person may be unusually direct. Do not let vanity blow matters out of proportion. Avoid taking loved ones for granted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your plans will be questioned and may have to be altered. Capitalize on your gift of self-expression. Your anxiety about a group is largely unfounded. Postpone a decision; wait for more data.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your friends are very supportive. Avoid clinging to the past or you will miss out on current opportunities. Get several bids if home repairs are necessary. A friend may be sending you a message.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you are too conservative, you may need experts' advice. Focus on creative work. A chance encounter with an old friend could lead to an interesting disclosure. Do not believe everything you hear!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Adopt a conservative approach to investments. Cut back on luxury purchases. Cooperation is the key to a successful partnership. Postpone a social event if your work is not complete. Mate is understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not allow others to steal your glory. Safegaurd your ideas and contacts. An authority figure is impressed by your ability to work under pressure. A raise or promotion is in the offing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A change of attitude will open up new horizons. Take time to socialize with people who make you laugh; your outlook will improve. Team effort boosts the bottom line. Romance makes you sing!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A favorite project gets the green light from an influential party. Give work your best shot. A newcomer is neutral, not hostile. Take your cue from your mate. Romance merits top priority.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cooperation may be difficult to obtain at work. Stick to solo projects. Power must be put in the right hands. A small package brings great delight. A new friendship enriches your life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Open up new lines of communication with your co-workers. Have a frank talk with someone who always takes but seldom gives. A hunch could be both valid and premature. Avoid financial speculation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Face a tough financial dilemma squarely. Your intuition is right on target where a new love is concerned. Try not to show surprise at what your romantic partner has to say.

TODAY'S CHILDREN will be conscientious about their schoolwork. They welcome new responsibilities and want to help around the house. Drawing and painting will keep these youngsters quietly content for hours. Their excellent memory will be especially helpful in a journalism or public relations career. These Cancerians are open-minded and will show a strong interest in psychic phenomena. A late marriage will probably be best for these choosey souls born today; they are unwilling to settle for second-best.

Opening lead: Two of ♡

We have written often about life imitating art, and about bridge players finding that extra chance that spells the difference between victory and defeat. This theme cropped up recently in the Reisinger Team-of-Four Championship, New York's premiere team event.

Most modern players treat a three-spade bid by North as competitive, not showing any great strength. They would consider the North hand as a borderline jump to game on this auction, but would undoubtedly settle for three spades because of the doubleton diamond, the worst possible holding in the enemy suit. Under the circumstances, South's four spades was a bit of a stretch.

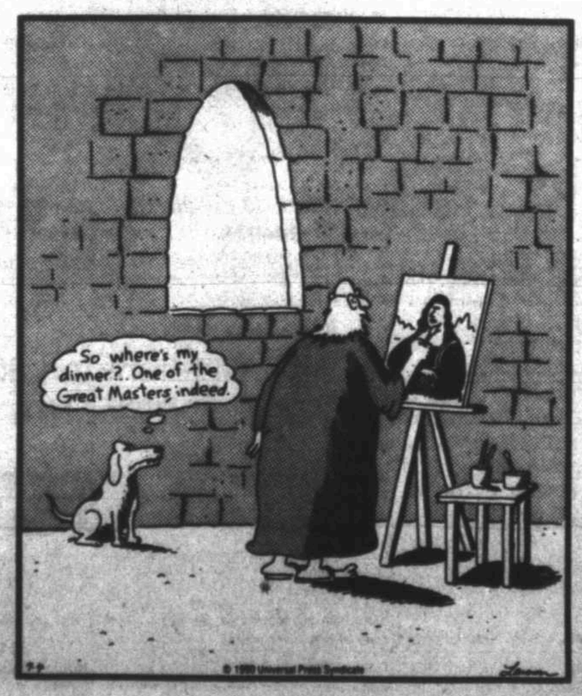

West elected to lead the two of hearts, an obvious singleton to everyone at the table. Declarer let that ride around to the closed hand, capturing East's queen with the ace. In an effort to stop a heart ruff, South cashed the ace of spades and continued the suit to West's king, as East discarded the three of clubs.

An underlead of the ace of diamonds put East on lead with the king, and the marked heart return permitted West to ruff and cash another diamond. Down one.

Declarer was unlucky to find West with three trumps to the king, but he should still have made the hand. After cashing the ace of trumps, it costs declarer nothing to play off the king and ace of clubs. If only low cards appear, declarer reverts to trumps and hopes for a favorable development. But when the queen of clubs drops, declarer can sluff a diamond on the jack of clubs. Even though West ruffs, the defenders can score no more than two trumps and a diamond.

Rodeo cowboys killed in crash

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — A pilot flying four top rodeo cowboys to Canada said he couldn't see a cloud-shrouded Mount Rainier just minutes before his single-engine plane hit the mountain, killing all aboard, a state official said Tuesday.

The Cessna 210 smashed nose first into the Kautz Glacier Monday at the 12,500-foot level of the 14,411-foot mountain about 50 miles southeast of Seattle.

Bowen

Dierlam

Killed in the crash were the pilot H.R. Card, of Pendleton, Ore.; Dave Smith, 31, of College Place, Wash.; David Bowen, 28, of Yoakum, Texas; Randy Dierlam, 29, of Seadrift, Texas; and Mike Currin, 25, of Hermiston, Ore.

Their bodies were brought down from the mountain late Tuesday afternoon by Army helicopter.

The cowboys had chartered the plane to go to a rodeo in Ponoka, Alberta, about 100 miles north of Calgary, said Doug Ankney Jr., a flight instructor and charter pilot for Aero West Aviation of Pendleton.

"The pilot was asked by air traffic control if he had Mount Rainier in sight and he said no he didn't," said Bill Hamilton, assistant secretary of the state Department of Transportation's Aeronautics Division.

Hyland said Bowen, Dierlam and Smith were calf ropers, and Currin competed in calf roping and steer wrestling.

Bowen was sixth-ranked Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association calf roper last year, and rookie of the year in 1986. Dierlam was the 10th-ranked calf roper last year, Currin was PRCA Resistol rookie of the year in 1987, and Smith was the 18th-ranked PRCA calf roper last year.

Hyland said Smith won the $50,000 top calf-roping prize at the Calgary Stampede in 1988, and Bowen won the calf roping national finals in Las Vegas last year.

The wranglers were mourned by their friends and fellow competitors Tuesday and their deaths were observed at rodeos.

"A lot of guys are not wanting to rodeo right now," said Herb Theriot, the calf roper ranked fifth in the world by the Colorado-based PRCA.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Former Prime Minister Menachem Begin was in good condition Tuesday after a two-hour operation on a broken right hip, hospital officials said.

Devorah Weissman, spokeswoman for Jerusalem's Shaarei Tzedek Hospital, said Begin would be moved to the orthopedic ward on Wednesday. He is expected to make a complete recovery, said the hospital's director, Dr. Yonathon Halevy.

Begin, 76, tripped and fell in his living room, Ms. Weissman said. The bone was vulnerable from a earlier break, when Begin fell in the bathroom of his home while he was prime minister in 1981.

Tuesday's hospitalization was the second for the former prime minister at Shaarei Tzedek this year. He was admitted with pneumonia on May 16 and released two weeks later.

Begin, who founded the right-wing Herut Party, the precursor to the Likud bloc that now heads the government, stepped down as premier in September 1983 without explanation. Since his resignation, Begin has lived in seclusion.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America will honor singer-songwriter Michael Jackson with a new humanitarian award in his name.

Jackson

"The prestigious award was created and named for Michael Jackson in recognition of his humanitarian effort for all mankind," the Los Angeles Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America said Monday.

Jackson, 31, has raised thousands of dollars for such charities as the Make-A-Wish Foundation, The Prince's Trust, the United Negro College Fund and Child Help USA.

Michael Eisner, chairman of the Walt Disney Co., will preside over a Sept. 14 dinner at which the reclusive pop star will receive the Michael Jackson Good Scout Humanitarian Award.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Less than thunderous reviews for the stock car racing movie "Days of Thunder" haven't diminished Tom Cruise's pride in his starring vehicle.

Cruise

"I don't read reviews, even the good ones. They don't affect me or the film," he said Monday. "A lot of filmmakers whom I respect have called me to say how much they liked the movie. They were actually surprised."

"Days of Thunder" was No. 1 at the weekend box office but grossed $15.5 million, a slower start than "Dick Tracy," "Total Recall," "Another 48 HRS.," "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" and "Back to the Future Part III."

"You can buy yourself an opening by putting your picture in 3,500 theaters and spending a lot of money," Cruise said. "The important thing is to have 'legs,'" the industry term for staying power.

Championships qualifying.

The international soccer body also fined Frantisek Straka of Czechoslovakia and Thomas N'Kono and Roger Milla of Cameroon $7,142 and suspended them for their next international game for receiving a second yellow card.

In Bologna, Federico Cane, the 19-year-old son of retired Italian boxing champion Dante Cane, has been charged, along with another man, in the death of an English fan hit by a car on June 2.

David Monaghan, 26, of Coventry, died of head injuries after being hit by a passing car while fleeing the ax-wielding Italians, said Bologna police spokesman Salvatore Surace.

A Greek student was hospitalized overnight in Milan with head and back injuries after he was mistaken for an English fan and was beaten and kicked by a gang of Italian youths, the Italian news agency ANSA said.

Florence shopowners, disappointed at the lack of business in what they expected would be a bountiful June, have started their summer sales a month early in an effort to get rid of merchandise on overstocked shelves.

The Florence merchants association said shops had been hurt by the "World Cup failure."

Trump testifies in contract flap

Boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — As the James "Buster" Douglas-Mike Tyson heavyweight title fight progressed, Donald Trump recalled telling Don King that the promoter was a sure winner.

"I said, 'Don King, you can't lose on this,' and he said, 'I can't lose,'" Trump, who has staged several high-profile fights at his Atlantic City casino, testified Tuesday during King's breach-of-contract suit against Douglas and his manager, John Johnson.

That testimony was given under cross examination, and when Trump was asked who he was rooting for, he replied: "Tyson."

Asked who King was rooting for, he said, "I assume Don King was rooting for Mike Tyson." Asked whether he heard King yell, "C'mon Mike, C'mon Mike," Trump said, "It made no impression on me."

Trump also said he didn't see King yelling at Jose Sulaiman, president of the World Boxing Council.

Earlier in the day, Shigeru Kojima, executive director of the Japan Boxing Commission, also testifying for King, said he thought the promoter protested a long count when Douglas was knocked down in the eighth round. Asked what he based his opinion on, Kojima said through an interpreter, "I could understand by his gestures and by his words: 'long count.'"

King bases his breach-of-contract suit on the fact that Douglas and Johnson signed a contract with Steve Wynn's Mirage Casino and Hotel in Las Vegas to fight for the Mirage, should Douglas get out of his promotional arrangement with King.

Douglas has filed a breach-of-contract suit against King in federal court in Nevada charging that the promoter tried to overturn the result of Douglas' 10th-round knockout of Tyson on Feb. 11 at Tokyo on the basis that Douglas should have been counted out in the eighth. The Douglas suit has been stayed pending the outcome of the New York trial.

King has contended he merely was trying to build interest in a Douglas-Tyson rematch.

Trump testified that he began talking to King about a Douglas-Tyson rematch as early as the fifth round of the Tokyo fight to replace a Douglas-Evander Holyfield bout which Trump had bought for $12.5 million and tentatively scheduled for June 18 in Atlantic City.

"After the fight, I continued to talk to Don about a rematch," Trump said. "It looked like it would be one of the greatest rematches you could have.

"We shook hands right after the fight on the rematch. It was going to be for $12.5 million. It was going to replace the Holyfield fight, a fight that was no longer viable."

The Mirage has signed a Douglas-Holyfield fight for a purse of $32.5 million. It is scheduled for Sept. 21 but that date is likely to be changed and the fight itself could be affected by the outcome of this trial.

Kojima said that, during a video showing of the fight in Tokyo shortly after the match, King "pointed to the fingers of the timekeeper who is giving the signal and said, 'This is it, this is where the misjudgment was.'" Kojima said referee Octavio Meyran failed to pick up the timekeeper's count at three and instead began his own count at one.

Kojima said, however, that King said nothing about reversing the outcome of the fight.

TENNIS: Garrison goes for kill at the end against Seles

"She was hitting the ball unbelievably in the first set," said Garrison, who suffered a break in the second game when Seles was at her most powerful. "At that particular time, I just saw no way that I could get back into the match."

But Garrison stuck to her plan, looking for opportunities to charge the net, trying to move the taller, lankier Seles in and out by alternating drop shots with deep groundstrokes and taking pace off the ball to avoid playing to Seles' power.

Seles, who gave up only five points in five service games in the first set, finally cracked a little when she served for the second time in the second set. At 15-15, Garrison outdueled her in a long rally of brilliant shots by both players and won on a lunging backhand that flew by Seles. Garrison raised her racket as if to chalk up the point and say, "That one was mine!"

Garrison won the next three points for the game as the packed crowd roared its support for her, then held serve the rest of the set.

"She served a lot of strong serves," Seles said. "I was just pretty scared to hit the second serve because a couple of (my shots) went long."

Garrison seemed in control now and Seles appeared to be weakening after an unbroken roll that began in March and carried her to titles in six tournaments through the French Open.

"At the beginning of the first set, I think even the second set, I was controlling the baseline play," Seles said. "In the third set, I was just hitting a lot more balls shorter, and she got to attack more with her backhand."

Seles managed only two points in losing her first three services of the third set as Garrison took a 4-1 lead with her service coming up.

Suddenly, Seles found a new source of strength and a bit of luck, and Garrison's nightmare revisited her. She began to crumble just as she had done so many times before.

Seles broke her to 4-2 with the help of one of her few volleys, a backhand shot just inside the baseline. Seles then held and put the set back on serve by breaking Garrison again with four incredible shots: a blazing forehand, a return that dribbled over the net cord, a cross-court forehand that raised chalk on the sideline and a backhand that dusted the baseline.

This time, though, Garrison didn't quit even after she was briefly injured.

Garrison glanced to her family and friends on the side of the court, looked down at the ground, and took a deep breath. Somehow, she found the resolve to fight back. In the next three rallies, in circumstances that once might have overwhelmed her, Garrison blasted three forehands that stunned Seles.

When Seles' final backhand drifted beyond the baseline, ending the match, Garrison pumped her fist in the air.

TOUR: LeMond falls back

From 1D

LeMond's major rival, Laurent Fignon of France, lost about 44 seconds to Bauer and LeMond when he was slowed by a fall in the pack about 3 miles from the finish.

With almost 200 riders bunched together, it's easy for riders to get in trouble. Both Fignon and 1988 champion Pedro Delgado of Spain have been involved in falls over the first few days.

"I'm nervous out there," LeMond said. "It's dangerous to stay in the pack when we're all together like that. That's why I like to stay near the front."

Bauer, a 31-year-old from Fenwick, Ontario, gained the lead after the first stage.

Most meats great for grill

By Jan Norris
N.Y. Times News Service

You can take away the electric can opener, the food processor, even the blender — but don't mess with a cook's grill.

The summer-only backyard barbecue grill of the '50s has come a long way, finally earning a place in serious kitchens — from the white-linen restaurants to the weekend gourmet's apartment.

The burger griller is now adept at flipping shrimp, endive-wrapped goat cheese, or a duck quarter. And the $39 charcoal grill those shrimp are sizzling on now costs $139, and is probably gas — not charcoal — fueled.

The Barbecue Industry Association, a trade group that keeps watch on grill activities across America, says hamburgers are the favorite grilled foods. Maybe that's because they're one of the easiest, though most of us know of some cooks whose grilling techniques approach nuclear technology.

There is life on the grill beyond burgers, however. Butchers offer special cuts of alternate meats that are great for the grill, and savvy cooks know you can cut almost any meat to make it easier to cook on the coals.

If you keep in mind that grilling is a form of searing, and foods need to be fairly thin in order to cook through without burning surface areas, you'll be able to produce great char-grilled foods.

Most meat can be cut into steaks or fillets. Poultry can be cut into pieces, or split through the breast or backbone to lay flat on the grill. Try Cornish game hens that way. You'll be pleased with how little time it takes to cook them over a medium fire.

EVEN TURKEY parts cook great on the grill, and offer a good alternative as a low-fat grill item. Choose thin cuts, or slice them yourself to within 2½ inches.

Grilled chickens are an economical way to entertain a crowd. Buy packages of drumsticks, breasts or wings and cook them a dozen or so at a time.

A tip: When cooking quantities for a crowd, cover your grill surface with as much food as much as possible. Put the lid down, and the foods will cook faster. By using the same-sized pieces, you can be assured of all of them being done at the same time.

Another tip: Glazes and barbecue sauces should be added during the last quarter of cooking time. The sauce will burn before the foods are cooked through if put on too early.

Kebabs are another alternative for quick-grilling. They offer a chance to get some pretty vegetables to help dress up the plate.

Don't overlook the unusual foods. Chicken livers can be grilled, and get a taste boost from the charcoal. Other liver lovers might find calves' liver kebabs a treat.

Pork chops and ribs are the ultimate grilled food, but many cooks shy away from them. Pork is no more difficult than any other meat, however. The secret is that pork meat turns pink when char-grilled or smoked, and most people were taught that pink pork is unsafe. That isn't so.

If you're afraid of undercooking, use a meat thermometer to get the pork to 165 degrees internally. It will continue cooking slightly off the grill.

CURED MEATS, such as ham steaks and sausages, are grill favorites in some areas of the country. Since they are precooked, they need little time on the coals — only enough to warm them through and cook off some of the fat. Grilled kielbasa served with a honey mustard is standard appetizer fare in some circles.

Lamb and veal chops can be a wonderful change when prepared on the grill. Get the tiniest lamb chops you can find. Not only do they cook quickly, but they also are juiciest, and make great finger food.

Here are ideas for your next meat or chicken cookout.

MARINATED ORIENTAL SHORT RIB BARBECUE
(Marinating time: 4 to 6 hours ahead, or overnight)
4 pounds well-trimmed beef rib short ribs — see note
FOR MARINADE:
1 cup sliced green onions
½ soy sauce
½ cup water
¼ cup Oriental dark-roasted sesame oil
2½ tablespoons packed brown sugar
1½ tablespoons toasted sesame seeds, crushed
1 tablespoon minced garlic
1 tablespoon grated fresh ginger
½ teaspoon ground red pepper
⅛ teaspoon crushed red pepper pods

Combine marinade ingredients; pour into plastic bag. Place ribs in plastic bag; turn to coat.

Close bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 4 to 6 hours, or overnight, turning occasionally.

Remove ribs from marinade; reserve marinade.

Place ribs on grid over medium coals; cover.

Grill 10 to 12 minutes, turning once and brushing with marinade before turning.

Note: Do not use leftover marinade at the table.

Makes 12 servings.

Note: Beef rib short ribs can be special-ordered from the butcher. They are cut ⅜-inch to ½-inch thick and come from the six, seventh and eighth ribs. Each rib should contain three crosscut rib bones.

Not every meat cut has to be expensive. Even the cheapest cuts benefit from charcoal cooking.

GRILLED TURKEY DRUMSTICKS
4 turkey drumsticks
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
Salt and pepper to taste
Apricot glaze (recipe below)

Prepare a medium fire, with coals to one side of grill.

Brush drumsticks with oil and season with salt and pepper. Place drumsticks on oiled grill on side away from coals. Cover and cook for 30 minutes. Turn drumsticks, cover and cook another 20 minutes.

Turn again and baste well with apricot glaze (recipe below). Cover and cook 30 minutes more, turning and basting every 10 minutes with glaze.

APRICOT GLAZE
1 cup apricot jam
½ cup cider vinegar
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon prepared hot (spicy) horseradish
1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce

Prepare glaze: Combine jam, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, mustard, honey and brown sugar in saucepan. Simmer over low heat, stirring until jam and sugar melt. Remove from heat and stir in horseradish and hot pepper sauce. Cool to room temperature.

Note: This sauce also can be used on pork, chicken and shrimp.

Grilling tips are for safety, convenience

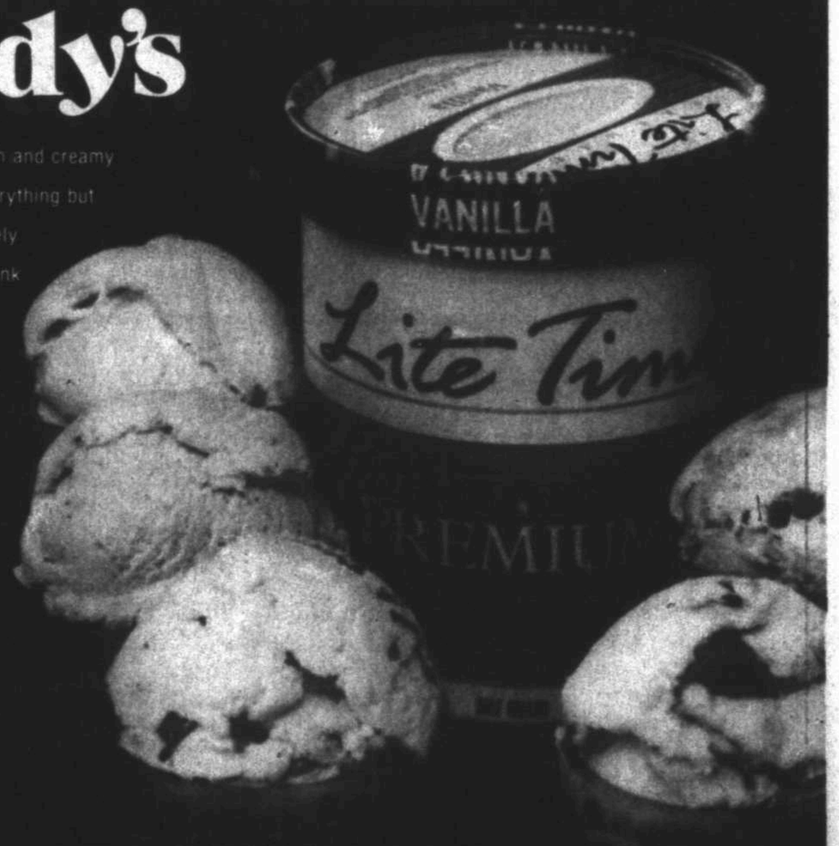

N.Y. Times News Service

Here are basic grill-safety and food tips to make your next barbecue go more smoothly:

- Meat cuts should be no more than 2½ inches thick for best results, unless you're smoking them. Thick roasts and other foods can cook in smokers for long periods because the heat builds gradually and actually steam-roasts as it smokes, so the effect is different.
- When stuffing chops on the grill, include a slice of cheese in the stuffing. When it melts, your meat is cooked to the center.
- Spread coals about 1 inch beyond the width of your food for perfect cooking. More than that, and you're wasting your fuel.
- Clean the grill's gas burners to make efficient use of propane, and replace rusty burners that are unsafe.
- Never squirt charcoal lighter onto already hot coals. Never spray vegetable coating spray on grill racks over a flame or hot coals. The cans for both may explode in your hands.
- Never use gasoline to start a fire. Gasoline can cause explosions.

Hot dogs are summer favorite

N.Y. Times News Service

Hot dogs are the mongrels of the culinary world.

Epicureans look down their noses at this lowbrow dining experience. But like a puppy looking at you with big sad eyes, hot dogs are hard to resist.

According to the Consumer Affairs Division of Oscar Mayer Foods Corp, more than 14 billion hot dogs are eaten every year in the United States, an average of nearly 65 per person.

The hot dog has a colorful history. According to some historians, the first wiener-in-a-bun was served at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904 by a Bavarian sausage peddler, who sold weiners as "red hots." Because his red hots were too hot to handle, he gave his customers gloves. But gloves were expensive, so he hit upon the idea of making a bun to fit the sausage.

Some time later, sports humorist Tad Dorgan was at a polo game where vendors were hawking weiners as "red hot dachshund sausages," since they resembled this breed of dog. They gave Dorgan the inspiration for a new cartoon — a talking sausage. He called his character "hot dog" because he couldn't spell dachshund.

Since then, the hot dog has inspired all kinds of variations. They have been made extended to footlongs, smothered with chili, relished and plumped and cheesed. You can buy weiners made from pork or beef or even turkey.

Hot dogs aren't health food. Weiners are high in fat and sodium and they contain cholesterol. So they're never going to be a staple in a heart-healthy diet. But as a once-in-a-while treat, they are hard to resist.

CONEY ISLAND HOT DOGS

½ pound ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1 can (8-ounce) tomato sauce
1 teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 package (16-ounce) wieners
10 hot dog buns

Cook beef and onion in skillet over medium heat, stirring often until beef is browned. Add tomato sauce, seasonings and wieners. Bring to boil; turn down heat. Simmer 10 minutes. Serve wieners in buns; top with sauce.

CHEESE HOUNDS

4 slices bacon
4 wieners
2 slices process American cheese, each cut into 4 strips
4 hot dog buns

Cut lengthwise 4-inch pocket in each wiener; stuff each with 2 strips cheese. Wrap each stuffed wiener tightly with 1 bacon slice; secure with toothpicks. Place on broiler pan; cut-side down. Broil 5 inches from heat for 6 minutes. Turn over; broil 4 minutes more or until cheese melts and bacon is crisp. Remove toothpicks. Serve in buns.

Easy-to-fix salad is perfect for cooling down summer

NEW YORK (AP) — Nothing suits summer better than foods that are light and easy to prepare.

PINA COLADA FRUIT SALAD

DRESSING:
1 cup unflavored yogurt
1 2-ounce jar crystallized ginger
⅓ of a 6-ounce can frozen pineapple juice concentrate, thawed

FRUIT SALAD:
1 pineapple, cut into chunks
1 cantaloupe, cut into chunks
3 navel oranges, sectioned
3 kiwifruit, cut into slices
1 cup shredded coconut, toasted

Combine yogurt, crystallized ginger and pineapple juice concentrate in container of an electric blender. Blend until smooth. Cover and refrigerate until needed.

Combine pineapple, cantaloupe, oranges and kiwifruit in serving bowl. Cover and keep chilled. Just before serving, stir dressing into fruit salad. Sprinkle coconut over top. (Recipe from DowBrands)

DEAR ABBY

Breaking up is hard to do — especially if there are two

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I met "Joe" I fell head over heels — but when I met his 4-year-old son from a previous marriage, I fell twice as hard. Not only is "Billy" cute, he is also the sweetest little boy in the world.

Van Buren

We formed a very special relationship. When Joe was busy, I would take Billy places — to the beach or the movies. I even took him to see Santa. (No one else seemed to have the time.) Billy often told me he loved me, and I certainly loved him.

It now appears that Joe and I are through. That in itself is breaking my heart, but losing Billy makes it hurt twice as much.

Abby, how do I get over this? It's really killing me. I realize now that I shouldn't have gotten so attached to the boy.

I'm only 19 and have never experienced anything like this before. Please tell me how I can get over this. — BROKENHEARTED TIMES TWO

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: Start by keeping busy with other activities until time has reduced the pain of this disappointment. Send Billy a note telling him that you will "always be his friend." But do not expect to continue the relationship with him.

You are a generous and loving young woman who has just learned one of life's most difficult lessons — that sometimes we must let go of people we love, and survive it. The experience is painful, but it will make us stronger. Trust me.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about short men? I am a model, 5 foot 10, very attractive, and I don't "need" a tall man to make me feel comfortable.

My favorite person in the whole world was Sammy Davis Jr. He was only 5 foot 3 and far from handsome, but he had talent, style and personality like no one else. I doubt that his height bothered him — he had too much else going for him.

People who think they are better than others because they're tall are usually very short on personality. I have a friend who is always bragging about how tall her son is — as though it were some kind of accomplishment. (The kid is a clod.)

Many female models with whom I work talk about their gentlemen friends. And the ones who get the "raves" are usually short men. — CHICAGO MODEL

DEAR MODEL: When one sees a short man with a tall woman, it's a pretty good bet that the man is confident and self-assured, and so is the woman. And that's what I call a well-matched couple.

DEAR READERS: Have a safe, happy holiday. And to my twin sister, Happy Birthday, Eppie!

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Cooking fish on grill requires delicate handling

By Jan Norris
N.Y. Times News Service

The fisherman next door comes in with a nice catch that includes a swordfish. Being a nice guy, he gives you three lovely steaks. The oily fish is perfect for the grill, you think.

The ashes are gray, and the fish goes on. You cook, look, and cook some more. After a lengthy time, the fish comes to the table, but it's so dry and chewy a whole ocean couldn't moisten it now.

What happened? You committed the most common mistake of grillers, and fish cookers everywhere: You overcooked the fish.

Fish flesh is more delicate than any of the red meats we cook and needs to be cooked carefully, slowly and for only a short time.

Start with the right fish. If you're new at fish grilling, some kind of fish steak is a good choice. This is a piece that has been cut about 2 inches thick vertically from the fish as opposed to a fillet, which is a lateral, flat slice of fish. Saltwater fish are more likely to be offered in steaks because of their size.

An oily fish also will make your job easier. Salmon, mackerel, swordfish and fresh tuna are some of the oily fishes you'll find in our seafood markets; they retain moistness best.

A marinade will help out any of the non-oily fish, as will a simple coating of oil (use herbed mayonnaise for good flavor).

A medium-hot grill — not one that's white hot — works best for grilling fish straight over the coals. (Different techniques are needed for smoking a fish. Consult the handbook that was packed with your smoker for those tips.)

ONCE THE coals are medium hot — you're still able to hold your hand over the grill for a few seconds without burning it — put the fish on the grill. You may find a fish basket helpful, but it's not necessary unless your grill grate has extra-large spaces. Sear the steak briefly on one side, and use tongs and a spatula to flip it and repeat.

Cook, using your finger as your cooking gauge. Do not depend on flakiness of the flesh. That's the technique that gets many cooks in trouble. By the time a fish steak easily flakes apart, it usually has cooked too long. A fish steak will continue cooking after you remove it from the grill, unlike fish fillets.

Grill until the fish begins to "give" when you push your finger into it. The flesh will not be gray-white, but more toward the pinkish white. A pink tint doesn't mean it's raw or undercooked (red does, however). Flip, and repeat on first side, if 2 inches thick or more. For thinner steaks, one-sided cooking may be enough. Total cooking time will probably take no more than 10 to 12 minutes.

Baste with a sauce, and remove to the warming section of the grill, or to a plate. The fish should be moist, which means a better grilled flavor since the moisture is where the grill taste collects.

Foil or a grill pan are needed to cook the thinner fillets because they are so fragile. Use heavy-duty aluminum foil, or the top of your oven broiler pan, inverted. Punch holes in the foil, and oil it. Flip the fillet carefully with a spatula over medium or hot heat. Cook only a few minutes — no more than 5 — for best results. Again, use your finger as a doneness gauge. The fish should be soft, and pink-white.

Shrimp and shellfish are a breeze on the grill: They take about 5 minutes each. Thread shrimp, shells intact, on pre-soaked bamboo skewers. Grill over hot coals for about 5 minutes, turning once. Baste with oily, spicy marinade for best results. Shellfish should be grilled until their shells pop open, and flavorings added afterward.

Use these ideas for your next fish cookout.

STUFFED SWORDFISH

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon, plus 1 teaspoon chopped fresh tarragon, or 1½ teaspoons dried
4 6- to 8-ounce swordfish steaks, about 1-inch thick
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
2 ounces Jarlsberg cheese, cut into thin strips (about ½ cup)
1 cup finely chopped fresh spinach leaves
4 strips bacon, cooked crisp and crumbled

Prepare medium-hot fire. In small saucepan, heat butter, oil and 1 tablespoon tarragon (1 teaspoon dried) over low heat, until butter melts.

With sharp knife, cut a small deep incision in side of each fish steak, and carefully swivel knife blade to form a pocket.

Season outside of fish with salt and pepper.

Mix remaining tarragon with cheese, spinach and chopped bacon and stuff each pocket.

Brush each side of fish with tarragon-butter mixture.

Place swordfish on oiled grill set 6 inches from coals. Grill, turning once and brushing with tarragon butter, until fish is just cooked through and cheese melts — about 8 to 12 minutes.

Serve immediately, with any remaining tarragon butter drizzled over fish.

Makes 4 servings.

ITALIAN GRILLED TUNA

¾ cup extra-virgin olive oil
½ cup minced parsley
½ cup commercially prepared marinated roasted red peppers, drained and diced
½ cup thinly sliced scallions
¼ cup fresh lemon or lime juice
2 tablespoons capers, drained
2 tablespoons minced fresh oregano, or 2 teaspoons dried
¼ teaspoon salt
6 8-ounce tuna steaks, about ¾-inch thick
⅛ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

In medium saucepan, combine ½-cup olive oil with parsley, red peppers, scallions, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, capers, oregano and salt.

Simmer over low heat 5 minutes, stirring occasionally, to blend flavors. Remove from heat and set aside.

Place tuna in single layer in glass baking dish. Drizzle remaining ¼ cup olive oil and 2 tablespoons lemon juice over fish. Season with pepper. Turn to coat both sides. Cover with plastic wrap and marinate at room temperature 30 minutes.

Prepare a hot fire. Place fish on oiled grill set 4 to 6 inches from heat. Reheat sauce by placing saucepan on grill to one side. Grill tuna, turning once, until opaque throughout but still moist, about 8 to 10 minutes. Transfer to a serving plate and spoon sauce over each steak.

Makes 6 servings.

Turkey steaks provide delicious, low-fat addition to meats for grill

NEW YORK (AP) — Turkey steaks have robust flavor, yet are low in fat.

According to the National Turkey Federation, boneless, skinless white-meat turkey contains just 1 gram of fat per 3-ounce cooked portion.

Especially good for grilling are quick-cooking boneless cuts like turkey breast tenderloins, cutlets and dark-meat thighs. For the most steaklike effect, cut a thick slice of breast meat, or look for ready-cut turkey steaks.

You can douse the turkey with your favorite herb, tomato or lemon barbecue sauce before grilling.

The following recipe for Kentucky Bourbon and Spice is provided by Perdue Farms:

KENTUCKY BOURBON AND SPICE

1 to 2 tablespoons bourbon whiskey
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 large onion, cut into ¼-inch slices
1 1-pound package fresh turkey breast steaks
¾ teaspoon coarsely ground or cracked black pepper

In a medium-sized, shallow bowl combine all ingredients except turkey steaks and pepper. Add steak to bowl and turn to coat with mixture; marinate 30 minutes or longer, refrigerated.

Preheat grill at least 30 minutes before cooking, adjusting grid to 5 to 6 inches from coals. Remove turkey from marinade and place on a cutting board. With the palm of your hand, press pepper into sides of steak.

Grill steak 3 to 5 minutes on each side. Like all steaks, turkey steaks will be done when outside is dark; juices should run clear when meat is pierced. Remove onion from marinade and add to grill in last 2 to 3 minutes. Serve steak garnished with grilled onion rings. Makes 2 servings.

Note: Steaks also may be broiled. Place 5 to 6 inches below heat source and cook 3 to 5 minutes on each side.

Walnuts add taste to grilled pork

NEW YORK (AP) — The walnut is a staple used by creative cooks, complementing everything from appetizers and salads to entrees and desserts.

The walnut responds to the ingredients it is paired with; so it can taste sweet, nutty or slightly bitter. The walnut also offers texture and visual appeal.

Walnuts are a good source of nutrients, particularly copper and potassium. A handful of walnuts contains 130 calories. The fat content of walnuts is mostly polyunsaturated and monounsaturated.

Over two-thirds of the world's trade in walnuts, and virtually all of the United States commercial crop, is produced in California.

California's walnut industry totals 195,000 acres, centered in the Central Valley from Redding to Bakersfield. Production exceeds 205,000 tons annually.

Eighty percent of California's walnut production consists of four varieties: Hartley, Franquette, Payne and Eureka.

The following recipe is the creation of Nancy Oakes of L'Avenue restaurant in San Francisco.

PORK SALAD WITH FIRE-ROASTED WALNUTS

6 to 8 cups baby mixed lettuces
Sour cherry vinaigrette dressing (recipe follows)
1 cup fire-roasted walnuts (recipe follows)
1 pound prepared pork tenderloin (recipe follows)
Polenta (recipe follows)
¼ cup shredded Parmesan cheese

Toss the lettuce with the sour cherry vinaigrette dressing and walnuts. Reserve some of the walnuts and dressing to spoon over the pork slices.

Divide the lettuce among four plates and arrange the pork slices in a half circle with the polenta turned as diamonds above the pork.

Sprinkle with the Parmesan cheese, reserved walnuts and cherries. Drizzle some dressing over the pork slices. Makes 4 servings.

PORK TENDERLOIN

1 tablespoon garlic, chopped
1 teaspoon cumin powder
1 teaspoon fresh marjoram or dry oregano
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 pound pork tenderloin

Combine garlic, herbs, oil and pepper. Rub on the pork and allow to marinate for 4 hours.

Brown pork in a hot skillet coated with olive oil. Finish cooking in a preheated 425-degree F oven for 10 to 15 minutes.

Allow to rest before slicing into medallions.

SOUR CHERRY VINAIGRETTE

¼ cup dry sherry
½ cup dried cherries
4 tablespoons sherry vinegar
8 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and pepper

Heat sherry until it boils. Add cherries and remove from heat. Soak for 15 minutes.

Put mixture in a bowl and allow to cool completely. Add sherry vinegar and whisk in olive oil slowly. Salt and pepper to taste.

POLENTA

2 cups water
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ cup polenta
⅛ cup grated Parmesan cheese
3 tablespoons parsley, thyme and basil, chopped

In a heavy saucepan, bring water and salt to a rolling boil. Pour in polenta slowly while whisking; stir 2 or 3 minutes until polenta is well mixed and comes away from the sides of the pan.

Simmer for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cheese and herbs.

Pour out onto a sheet pan, spreading to a ¼- to ½-inch thickness. Allow to cool before cutting into 1½-inch squares. Polenta may be grilled, pan-fried or heated in the oven.

FIRE-ROASTED WALNUTS

2 tablespoons walnut oil or olive oil
2 cups walnuts, toasted (see note below)
2 tablespoons kosher salt
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon ground cumin
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper

Heat the oil in a skillet. Add the toasted walnuts and toss 1 minute. Add the remaining ingredients and toss until nuts are coated. Drain and allow to cool on a paper towel.

Note: The natural tannin of walnuts can be removed by plunging the walnuts into a pot of boiling water, turning off the pot and allowing to stand for 2 minutes. Drain and spread on a baking sheet. Toast in a 375-degree F oven for about 10 minutes.

Soviet emigres learn meaning of July 4th

By Beth J. Harpaz

NEW YORK (AP) — An English class for recent Soviet emigres tackled the meaning of the Fourth of July.

Among the big questions Tuesday: Did Lincoln sign the Declaration of Independence? Why do some New Yorkers raise Italian flags instead of American ones? Can you really feel free with no job and no money?

Igor Leybovich had this query: "What is mean barbecue? I bought barbecue sauce. Very nice sauce, but I can't find in dictionary."

His classmate Lyubov Tereschenko came up with the rough equivalent: "American shashlik!" — which most Americans would recognize as shish kebab. Her classmates smiled and nodded.

Turned out Leybovich had been using barbecue sauce correctly all along — on hot dogs. "I eat a lot of hot dogs," he explained. "They are cheap enough."

Leybovich and Ms. Tereschenko are among nearly 20,000 Jewish emigres from the Soviet Union who will be settled here this year by the New York Association for New Americans.

NYANA, which is funded by the federal government and the United Jewish Appeal, a private philanthropy, helps the refugees find jobs and apartments. It also holds dozens of English classes each week where American culture is taught side by side with grammar and vocabulary.

When the pre-Fourth of July discussion in this one turned from barbecues to freedom, Alexander Trakhman, who worked as an electrical engineer in the Soviet Union, said: "Now I don't feel free because I haven't any money. I haven't any job."

But Sofya Reyfman, a former computer programmer who has been here for 20 days, disagreed. In broken English, she said: "I feel freedom in America. I feel that I am not Jewish — I forget about this. In Russia, in the bus, in my work, I feel that I Jewish. I grow with that think. But now I am free."

Others helped Ms. Reyfman explain that in the Soviet Union, Jews are constantly reminded of their identity, whereas here they are treated like everyone else.

"I was afraid to be Jew in Russia," said Leybovich. "But now I'm happy because I can be a Jew."

Ms. Tereschenko, who was a medical student in the Soviet Union, said that because she was Jewish, she had to change her last name to the common Ukrainian name. Otherwise, she said, "I couldn't stay in school."

NYANA has had reports of Jews receiving death threats from anti-Semitic groups that are growing along with the political and economic turmoil in the Soviet Union.

David Frutkoff, who taught Tuesday's class of emigres who have been in the United States less than two months, skillfully mixed the heady debate about freedom with some basic American history. For example, who signed the Declaration of Independence?

"Lincoln?" said one student. "Washington?" said another.

Finally, the right answer from a third student: "It was signed, Declaration of Independence, by first American congress."

"That's the passive construction," Frutkoff said. "Don't use it. Say, 'The first American congress signed the Declaration of Independence.'"

How many years ago was that, asked Frutkoff.

"Twenty? I mean 200," called out one student.

"1793?" ventured another.

"That's more like France," Frutkoff said, writing "1776" on the blackboard.

"And what do people do on July 4?" the teacher asked.

"Poof!" said one man, throwing his hands up to indicate an explosion.

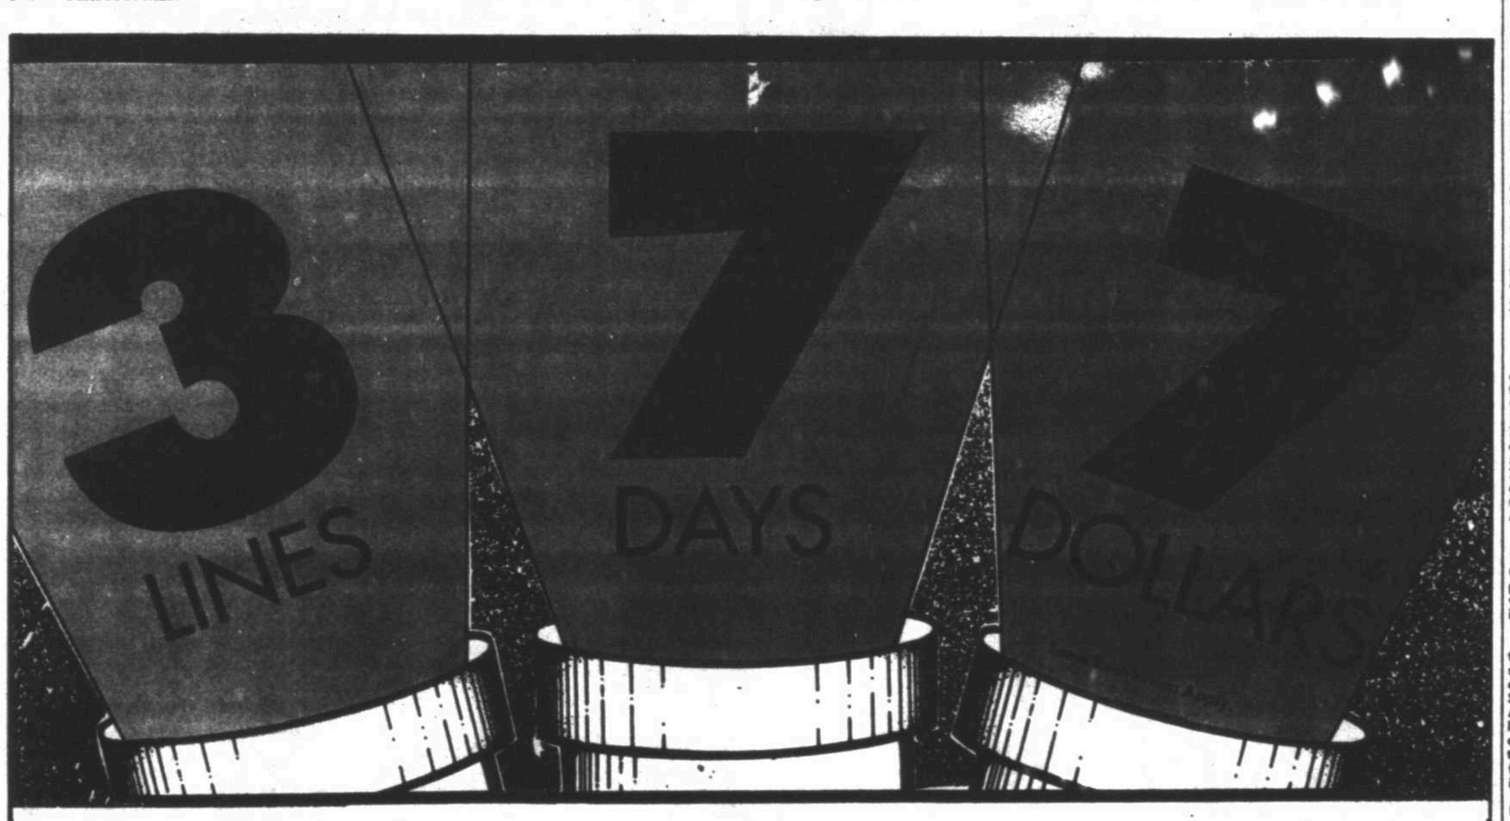

"Fireworks," said Frutkoff.

Asked if they had noticed many flags up in observance of the holiday, Yelena Dreyzim said: "Yes, I see many flags are on the walls in my neighborhood, but not American — Italian."

Puzzled, Frutkoff asked: "Where do you live?"

"Bensonhurst," she said. Frutkoff explained that was understandable, since the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn is primarily Italian-American.

As for how they planned to spend the day that finds most Americans using barbecue sauce and watching poofs, Ms. Reyfman said she would watch TV.

HOW TO PLACE A GARAGE SALE AD

Follow these simple instructions to get the most from your garage sale advertisement.

(1) Decide the address and dates where the sale will be held.

(2) Compile a list of the major items you want to advertise (furniture, appliances, speciality items, specific sizes or types of clothes) along with a few smaller items (pictures, kitchen utensils, etc.) If more than one family will be participating in the sale, ask each family to write out a list of the items they want to sell.

(3) Combine the lists of items to be sold, the complete address, the day and times the sale will be held. Remember, the best days to advertise for your sale will be at least the day before and each day of the sale. The deadline for placing your ad will be before 5:00 the day before you need your ad to appear, Monday - Friday.

(4) NOW - Call Classified at 682-6222 with the days of the sale and the items you want to list.
We offer two types of ads: word ads and space ads.
EXAMPLE WORD AD:

1234 MAIN Street. Saturday 9:00 - 4:00. Kids' clothes: boys 2T-4T, girls 6x-14, dining room set and lots of miscellaneous.
