President unveils bipartisan Contra aid plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, unveiling a bipartisan Contra aid plan as the first plank of his emerging foreign policy, appeared with congressional leaders today to outline a multi-million dollar effort that commits his administration to support Central American peace efforts.

"We will be speaking with one voice," Bush said, striking a sharp contrast to what was perhaps the most divisive issue of the Reagan administration.

Flanking Bush were Democratic House Speaker Jim Wright and other congressional leaders of both parties.

"Insurgent forces have the right to reintegrate into their homeland" under the agreement, Bush said.

Congressional Democrats, in turn, agreed to support Bush's request for an extension of humanitarian aid to the Contras for another year.

"The burden of proof is on the Sandinista government to comply" with democratic overtures, Bush said.

Bush mentioned no specific figure for continued aid to the rebels, but Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell said the money was to flow at the current rate — about $4 million a month, putting the aid package at roughly $40 million.

The accord called for Congress to extend aid to the anti-Sandinista Contra rebels, now scheduled to end after this month, through Feb. 28, 1990.

In exchange, the administration pledges to support peace efforts of the five Central American presidents and the eventual reintegration of the rebels into Nicaraguan political life.

The agreement, in the works for the past month, came together after a series of meetings Thursday between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Democrats and Republicans on both sides of the Capitol.

"I want to salute the speaker," Baker said in introducing the Democratic leader who was at odds on Contra policy with the previous GOP administration.

"We are trusting the administration, and they are trusting us," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis. "I do think the administration is legitimate on this."

"If we have learned anything from the division of this decade in Central America," it is that no policy can survive without broader bipartisan support, said Mitchell.

Contra supporters say the continued presence of the 11,000 fighters along the Nicaraguan border with Honduras will maintain pressure on the leftist Sandinista government to restore political freedoms and hold free elections early next year.

Decision on whether Dixon can run still not determined

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

A decision on whether Robert Dixon, a 56-year-old field representative for Equifax, will be allowed to run for city commissioner of Ward 3 was still not settled through press time this morning.

Two Dixon supporters contacted the Secretary of State's office in Austin and then reported to The Pampa News that attorneys Fortunato Peredes and Melanie Best told them the city secretary's decision regarding Dixon's application was incorrect.

City Secretary Phyllis Jeffers said Dixon entered her office at 4:50 p.m. on Wednesday, the last legal day to file for the upcoming May 6 election.

She said Dixon's application was not complete at 5 p.m., the legal deadline, because it did not have his voter registration number. Jeffers said she caught the omission at approximately 4 minutes before 5 o'clock and gave Dixon the use of her office and phone to find the needed information.

Dixon did not find the number until two minutes after 5, according ing to Jeffers and a city attorney, Glen Hackler. Therefore, his application was denied.

Sharon Hanko, director of the legal section for the Secretary of State, said the issue was not as simple as it might appear.

"In certain instances, a city charter can supersede state law" regarding the right to run for office, she said.

Included in those instances, according to Hanko, is the situation in which a city charter specifies a person must be a registered voter to run for local office.

Hanko said if a city charter does include that clause, it would be necessary to prove a person is registered on the application. She said that issue precluded most discussion of what time the application was completed.

However, she also said, in her opinion, state law does necessitate that an application be completed by 5 p.m.

City Attorney Don Lane said it did appear the city charter does include such a provision regarding being a registered voter.

Hanko said she could not comment on differing opinions that other attorneys in her office might have given to Dixon supporters. She also said office regulations prevented the other two attorneys from talking with the press.

City Attorney Don Lane said city officials are looking into the situation and will seek an opinion from the Secretary of State's office.

Dixon said he believes he should be allowed to run because he was in the office before 5 p.m.

Negligent homicide charges filed in relation to accident

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Criminally negligent homicide charges stemming from the death of a 68-year-old Miami woman following a traffic accident March 15 have been filed in Gray County Court, Department of Public Safety officials said today.

DPS Trooper Danny Pierce filed the charge Thursday naming Frances Emma Gregory, 37, 338 N. Banks, driver of one of the vehicles involved in the fatal accident. Gregory was also cited for operating an unregistered vehicle and for not having liability insurance, Pierce said.

Sarah Hellen Grantham died at 3:22 a.m. March 16 in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo from injuries she suffered in the accident several hours earlier.

Mrs. Grantham was a passenger in a 1981 Toyota driven by her son, James Loren Grantham, 43, of Amarillo, when the vehicle collided with a 1973 Dodge Club Cab pickup driven by Gregory at about 7:30 p.m. March 15 at the intersection of U.S. 60 and Texas 152 east of Pampa.

Grantham and Gregory were both treated and released for nonincapacitating injuries at Coronado Hospital Emergency Room. Mrs. Grantham received initial treatment at the Pampa hospital before being transferred to Amarillo.

Gregory told investigating officers that she was unable to stop at the stop sign at the intersection because the brakes on the pickup failed. She said she had taken her husband to work at Texas Feeders and was returning to Pampa when the accident occurred.

Grantham said he noticed that as the pickup approached the intersection, it appeared to slow but would not be able to stop. Although Grantham said he tried to slow down and steer to the left to avoid an accident, the pickup struck the Toyota on the right passenger side where Mrs. Grantham was sitting.

Pierce said the truck went into the Toyota approximately 30 inches. Mrs. Grantham was not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the accident, he said, adding, "I don't think seatbelts would have made any difference in this case."

In his case report filed Thursday with the county along with the homicide charges, Pierce stated, "There is absolutely no doubt that a total lack of care and maintenance on the brake system of the Gregory vehicle resulted in the death of Sarah Hellen Grantham of Miami.

"A total lack of disregard of the brake system on (Gregory's) vehicle is nothing short of criminal negligence," he said in the report.

Inspection of the truck showed the master brake cylinder leaked and was low on brake fluid, Pierce said, but the primary problem was in the right front disc brake which had "nothing left" of the rotor or pads. The left front disc brake was also in "very poor" condition, he said, as well as both rear brakes, which were "worn to the point of being inoperable."

His investigation also showed the Gregorys had owned the vehicle since July 1988 and that the truck had not been inspected since it was bought, he said.

Criminally negligent homicide is a class A misdemeanor, Pierce said, which carries a penalty of up to $2,000 fine and/or one year in jail.

Gregory has been notified by mail but had not responded to the charges by press time today, said Donna Brown of the Pampa DPS office.

Government reluctance to disclose terrorist threats criticized

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government reluctance to make public an air terrorism threat in Europe is bringing new calls from relatives of the Pan Am Flight 103 bombing victims for disclosure of all serious threats against commercial aviation.

White House, State Department and Transportation Department officials all attempted on Thursday to downplay the hijacking threat against U.S. airlines in Western Europe. Still, some officials, Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner in particular, expressed anger that it was released to the public in leaks to British news media.

But several relatives of victims of the Dec. 21 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland said they believe the way the government handles terrorism bulletins warns diplomatic and military personnel while keeping other potential passengers uninformed about risks.

British investigators have concluded that a terrorist bomb concealed in a radio-cassette player blew up the Boeing 747 over Scotland, killing all 259 people aboard and 11 others on the ground in Lockerbie, Scotland.

The relatives, in telephone interviews, criticized government failure to provide the public with information about terrorist warnings, such as the

See related story, Page 16

March 16 memorandum sent by the Federal Aviation Administration to airlines, airports and European security officials.

The FAA acknowledged the existence of the memo, but declined to discuss its contents, which were nonetheless reported by the Daily Express and other London news media.

The newspaper said a hijacking by three Palestinians was threatened during the Easter weekend. U.S. officials denied that the bulletin contained any reference to this weekend. They also denied the newspaper's assertion that U.S. diplomatic and military personnel were warned of the threat.

"We don't think they should use the American public as live bait," said Colleen Hermann, of Huntington, N.Y., whose brother John Michael Ahern was killed on Flight 103.

Bert Ammerman, a spokesman for the relatives of Lockerbie victims, said the group is not calling for general public announcements every time there is a terrorist threat.

But he said that until "prudent security measures" can be taken to protect American carriers throughout the world, a telephone number should be set up for travellers to call to get information on any threat against a flight they plan to take.

"I don't think that's going to paralyze the aviation industry," said Ammerman, of Demarest, N.J., whose brother, Tom, was killed in the Pan Am bombing.

Some of the relatives noted that Pan Am warned passengers of a New York-Paris flight last week of a bomb threat and gave them the option of taking another plane. Pan Am said only 17 of the 200 passengers left the plane, and 11 of those flew the same flight the following day.

Tim Cole, a Washington aviation consultant, said if all threats were made public, they might become so commonplace that people would simply ignore them. "With 600 or so threats a year, you'd be crying wolf all the time," he said.

Officials say all but a handful of threats are hoaxes.

Meanwhile, authorities in London, Frankfurt, Rome and Brussels said security had been tightened after they received the FAA warning, but authorities in Paris, Amsterdam, Athens and Madrid reported no additional precautions.

Skinner said the unauthorized release of an FAA bulletin compromises intelligence-gathering efforts and "jeopardizes the lives of airline passengers." He ordered an investigation to find out who leaked the bulletin.

Continental attendants decide to end strike against airline

HOUSTON (AP) — Striking flight attendants today ended their walkout against Continental Airlines, saying their protests had accomplished the union's goals.

The Union of Flight Attendants said its executive board ended the strike at 9 a.m. Union officials were notifying attendants to report for their work assignments.

The strike, launched over working conditions and pay, began Monday.

"This strike accomplished the objectives we set out to achieve," Carla Winkler, union president, said in a prepared statement.

"We have been able to bring to the public's attention the disparate treatment between the wages and working conditions of Continental flight attendants and flight attendants at other carriers in the industry."

When the strike began on Monday, some attendants on the picket line said it was intended to last only 96 hours, a figure Winkler then refused to confirm.

Continental officials said 180 attendants refused to report for work during the job action and were replaced. The Houston-based airline lists its flight attendant workforce at 6,440.

"We feel really good that we enjoyed the support of so many of our flight attendants," airline spokesman Dave Messing said today. "Not a single cancellation occurred as a result of the union activity."

"It (the strike) just didn't have the support needed to cause disruptions."

Messing said the 180 strikers had been permanently replaced but would be subject to recall when job openings become available and would have seniority over new applicants.

Some union officials said the walkout, which was approved last November but delayed by promises of more negotiations, was not linked to the ongoing Machinists strike at Eastern Airlines, Continental's sister carrier. Both airlines are owned by Houston-based Texas Air Corp.

Others, however, said the timing was designed for maximum exposure while Eastern's labor problems were receiving heavy media coverage.

The flight attendants union has not had a contract with Continental since the carrier filed for bankruptcy protection in 1983. The union has been seeking a three-year deal that would boost the lower end of a salary scale by 5 percent and the upper end of the scale by up to 35 percent.

"The objective we wanted to achieve first was to let the public be aware we do have problems here at Continental," union spokeswoman Myra Clayton said. "Our working conditions are far below other competitors and industry standards. And we wanted to disrupt service."

Clayton insisted more than 1,200 flight attendants refused to work during the job action and disputed the airline's statement that no flights were affected.

Celanese power outage still studied

Officials with Southwestern Public Service and Hoechst Celanese Corporation said they still do not know what caused the electrical outage that shut the plant to shut down for five hours on Wednesday.

Charles Williams, supervisory engineer for SPS, said electrical equipment feeding the plant is so massive that it will take several days to find the root of the problem.

"It's difficult to run the plant and get to all the equipment at the same time," Williams said. "To check it would mean the plant would have to come down again, and we don't want that."

He said SPS and Celanese would have to find the root of the outage to make sure it does not happen again.

"We would rather be able to fix it under controlled circumstances than have the plant come down again and say, 'Gee, now we know what it is.'"

Williams said SPS will be conducting a series of tests on Monday that includes replacing equipment and having it checked for defects.

"Even the smallest question about whether equipment will be replaced it," Williams said.

He said SPS will be working with the chemical plant to determine schedules for taking down certain portions of the plant long enough to replace equipment in question.

Plant Manager Brent Stephens said there was never a time when the electrical outage, which totally shut down the plant from 11 a.m. to around 4 p.m., caused a potential hazard to the public or to Celanese employees.

Dixon

and did make a good faith effort to get the proper information.

"I think on (Jeffers') part, she was carrying out the letter of the law," Dixon said. But he feels ultimately the decision will be changed and he will be allowed to run.

"The 5 o'clock time holds for people not being in the office," Dixon contends. "It's like when a person is in line to vote at 7 p.m.; they are still allowed to vote if they are in line. It's just part of our process. In spite of the fact that I waited until the last minute to file, it is a right." Hanko said the Secretary of State cannot make an ultimate ruling on the situation but will issue an opinion to the city when requested to do so.

"Our position is advisory," Hanko explained. "We'll tell them what we think. Ultimately, if (Dixon) thinks it was improper (and is still denied the right to run), he would have to go to district court and file a suit. A district judge is the one who would make the decision."

Lane said he was uncertain if the Secretary of State's office could have an opinion on the situation by today because the office was closing at noon.

Jeffers said if the state opinion and city decision is to allow Dixon to run, she will gladly go along.

City officials could not comment yet on what will happen regarding places on the ballot if Dixon is allowed to run.

Ballot positions were drawn Thursday and since, at that time, incumbent Ward 3 Commissioner Joe Reed was still unopposed, his was the only name listed.

Hanko said she would have no idea how long issuing an opinion would take until she reviews the situation with Pampa officials.

Chilean grapes returning to shelves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh Chilean grapes are being trucked across the country today after a two-week absence from store shelves because of a cyanide poisoning scare, industry leaders say.

Consumers may see slightly higher prices on the produce initially, but prices are expected to drop back to pre-scare levels in a couple of weeks when supply catches up with demand, they said.

Losses to Chilean exporters and to U.S. fruit importers as a result of the cyanide scare over grapes and other produce are estimated at $240 million, Ronald S. Bown, executive director of the Chilean Exporters Association, said Thursday.

Some of those losses may be offset by a plan being developed by the Chilean government to compensate U.S. importers, wholesalers and retailers as well as Chilean growers and exporters, Bown said.

Officials at the Chilean embassy in Washington did not return telephone calls for comment on the plan Thursday.

An estimated $50 million to $75 million worth of Chilean fruit is being destroyed under the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's advisory that was issued after the agency on March 12 found traces of cyanide in two grapes from Chile.

Earlier in the month an anonymous caller to the U.S. embassy in the Chilean capital of Santiago had threatened to inject cyanide in export fruit.

Some 2 million to 3 million crates of the fruit — grapes, berries, pears, nectarines, peaches, melon and apples — had been removed from store shelves or were being held in warehouses until the FDA concluded last week that it would have to be destroyed because it could not be readily inspected.

The FDA then announced a plan for stepped-up inspections of Chilean fruit at the docks and on ships to clear the way for the Chilean exports to get back into the stores with safety assurances.

Bown said the Chilean fruit industry is anticipating a "sustained level of consumer demand" in the United States and is doing all it can to ensure that fruit coming from Chile will be "fresh, nutritious, of premium quality and available at a reasonable price."

The reason, he said, is simple: "The U.S. is by far our biggest and best customer — and we want to keep it that way."

Exporters are concentrating their efforts on returning table grapes to U.S. markets, since they constitute 70 percent of Chilean fruit exports. Pears and nectarines will follow, and should be on some store shelves by the weekend, Bown said.

Indecency charge investigated

Pampa police have arrested a 30-year-old man on charges of indecency with a child.

The offense allegedly occurred while the man was driving a bus for a local church on Wednesday evening.

Chief of Police Robert Eberz said the parents of a female juvenile came into the police station and filed the report against Larry Eugene Shuck, 309 Anne, who was later arrested at the police station.

Details on the case were unavailable and Eberz said his department would be turning over their information to the county for disposition.

Shuck was released on $5,000 bond, pending further action in the courts.

Spirit of Truth to have dance drama

The Spirit of Truth Church, 1200 S. Sumner, will be presenting Dance of the Butterflies at 7 p.m. Saturday at the church.

Dance of the Butterflies is an original musical drama of hope, love, change and joy. Participating in the Easter season production are the Dance, Drama, and Praise and Joy ministries of the church.

An allegory, the musical drama production symbolizes the death and resurrection by using a caterpillar from its chrysalis stage to becoming a beautiful butterfly.

The caterpillar is dwelling on the Tree of the World when it notices a number of beautiful butterflies around the Tree of Abundant Life. Admiring their flight and beauty, the caterpillar decides it would like also to be a butterfly.

A group of butterflies tell the caterpillar it can become like them by following certain steps, so the caterpillar decides to visit the Tree of Abundant Life. Passing through the Valley of Decision, it meets the Scorpion of Fear and is saved by the Praying Mantis.

The caterpillar then is invited by friends to the Swamp of Deceit to be set free. But the caterpillar now succumbs to pride, delaying its journey until it meets some Fire Ants that give it a lesson on pride versus God's Will. It then approaches the Tree of Abundant Life.

The public is invited to attend the performance. For more information, call 665-3272.

District attorney decides not to retry Randall Dale Adams

By SUZANNE GAMBOA
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — As Randall Dale Adams arrived home to rousing cheers from well-wishers, the Dallas County district attorney declared he will not retry the one-time drifter convicted in the 1976 shooting death of a police officer.

That decision prompted Adams' defense attorney to proclaim the former death row inmate finally vindicated.

"It's almost impossible to find sufficient, credible evidence to try a case that is 13 years old," District Attorney John Vance said at a Thursday afternoon news conference.

Convicted and sentenced to die in 1977 for the murder of Dallas police officer Robert Wood, Adams was released earlier this week on a $50,000 personal recognizance bond following the Texas

Court of Criminal Appeals' reversal of his conviction.

He came within three days of execution in 1980 before his sentence was commuted to life in prison. Adams, who has maintained his innocence, was featured in the Errol Morris documentary movie The Thin Blue Line.

"I've been standing a twilight zone for the past 12½ years," Adams said after his arrival Thursday at the Port Columbus International Airport in Columbus, Ohio. "I was in that twilight zone until the door opened. Thank God it did."

About 100 people, including family members and Morris, greeted Adams. He and his mother, Mildred Adams, embraced after he stepped off the plane.

"You're supposed to have a resurrection around Easter," Mrs. Adams said. "I guess this is it."

Morris had to battle a swarm of reporters and photographers to get close to Adams. Then he and his movie protagonist embraced.

Adams was skeptical when told of Vance's announcement in Dallas.

"I'll wait until I hear it from my attorney," Adams told reporters. "I'm not supposed to talk about the case."

Meanwhile, in Houston, Adams' attorney Randy Schaffer said his client's name has been cleared and that Adams has been vindicated.

"I'm now satisfied the final chapter has been written," Schaffer said.

The national attention given the case probably forced Vance to drop it, Schaffer said.

"My perception is the publicity for his office had gotten so bad in this thing — after the games they played before a national audience and the public outcry was so outraged by their conduct — they finally realized they were losing credibility," he said.

But Vance defended prosecutors' actions, including a legal fight earlier this week that temporarily held up Adams' release.

"The easy route would have been to release Mr. Adams immediately. However, my obligation is not to the media or to play the part of the hero," Vance said. "My responsibility in every case is to the victim, his family, Dallas County citizens and the state of Texas."

On March 1, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals threw out Adams' conviction, stating he had not received a fair trial because prosecutors suppressed evidence and witnesses lied on the stand.

Vance said a motion to dismiss the capital murder charge against Adams had been filed with state District Judge Larry Baraka, who in December recommended Adams be retried.

Jessica TV movie ready to begin filming

MIDLAND (AP) — It's a movie about the dramatic rescue of toddler Jessica McClure from an abandoned well in the West Texas city of Midland.

But as the filming of the television movie starts, most of the scenes are not being shot in Texas.

Viewers around the nation will only see the hospital and city hall in Midland when they watch the ABC film Everybody's Baby: The Rescue of Jessica McClure, scheduled to air May 21.

Filming of the drama began last week in the back yard of a suburban Los Angeles home, a spokesman for Interscope Productions said.

Trapped for 2½ days in October 1987 in a 22-foot-deep water well, 18-month-old Jessica captured the attention of the world, which focused on Midland as her saga was broadcast nationally and internationally.

Film crews, consisting of several hundred people, including many who helped in the rescue, will be in Midland April 21-22.

Patty Duke will star as Carolyn Henry, a victim's assistance volunteer; Beau Bridges will portray Midland Police Chief Richard Czech; Pat Hingle has been cast as Midland Fire Department Chief James Roberts; Roxana Zal will portray Cissy McClure, Jessica's mother; and Will Oldham will portray Jessica's father, Chip McClure.

Toddler twins Laura and Jennie Loesch will take turns portraying Jessica. The underground shaft will be recreated in a Hollywood film studio.

"The production company has really gone all out to ensure every bit of authenticity. We have been in constant touch with Midland and have hired a Midland geologist (Will Murley) as a technical consultant," Bremer said.

Drilling equipment used as movie props has been provided by Flow Products of Midland, the company that donated equipment for the actual rescue, the Odessa American reported.

Filming of a movie detailing the rescue sparked controversy when two separate participating groups signed contracts with different film production companies.

Highland Communications in California signed one group and Interscope signed another. A community panel settled on Interscope, the Midland Reporter-Telegram said.

Although he was a rescue leader, Roberts said he has not been contacted about the movie.

"I really don't know anything about it," Roberts said. "Most of us (the rescue workers) just kept involved with the movie end of it in the hopes that it would be good for Midland."

The production company was the choice of the mayor's committee and Jessica's parents, he said.

"I just hope it sheds a favorable light on Midland," Roberts added.

Captured fugitive to be returned to Amarillo

AMARILLO (AP) — A fugitive convicted killer who also is a former police officer will soon be headed back to Texas following his recapture in California, authorities said.

FBI agents apprehended Lafayette Russell Wynne on a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. Authorities said Thursday they were arranging his return to Texas.

His arrest Wednesday came after he eluded authorities for more than three years following his conviction in a 1982 shooting. Wynne was being held in the San Diego County Sheriff's Department as he awaited his return to Potter County.

A former captain of the Amarillo Police Department detective division, Wynne was found guilty in 1985 of shooting Amarillo oilman Erle Winston Mathis.

An appeals court overturned Wynne's original 1983 conviction in 1984, more than a year after he started serving a 50-year sentence.

In a new trial, he was convicted again in September 1985, but he disappeared before the jury handed down a 55-year sentence.

Authorities listed Wynne with Interpol as an international fugitive and received reports he had been spotted in El Paso, New Mexico and Colorado while on the run.

A source in Amarillo led FBI agents to Wynne, living in a mobile home park in Spring Valley, Calif., under the name Wayne Nail, said Potter County district attorney Danny Hill.

Tracking down Wynne was difficult, Hill said, because the fugitive's law enforcement experience made him familiar with tactics authorities would take to find him. Meanwhile, Wynne's wife, Margie, could face charges of harboring a fugitive, Hill said.

On Wednesday, the state Court of Criminal Appeals heard arguments in the legal dispute over Mrs. Wynne's refusal to testify before a Potter County grand jury seeking information about who might be helping her husband remain a fugitive.

Mrs. Wynne was subpoenaed in January but refused to appear before the grand jury, claiming the law could not require her to testify against her husband.

State District Judge Patrick A. Pirtle held Mrs. Wynne in contempt of court and had her jailed. She applied to the appeals court for a writ of habeas corpus.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

No congressmen? What a thought!

The courts are supposed to protect both the constitution itself and the rights and liberties of citizens who are harmed by an unconstitutional use of power by government officials. Few would dispute that they have done a spotty job at best, but sometimes the courts get an opportunity to fulfill the historic mission the founders hoped they would undertake.

In last November's election, and for the second straight election, 98 percent of incumbents in the House of Representatives seeking re-election won their races. Thanks to taxpayer-funded free mailings ($64 million in 1988), gerrymandering and limits on campaign contributions that hurt challengers, it has now become all but impossible for an incumbent to lose a congressional race. A job allegedly representing the American people is now safer than sitting on the Supreme Soviet of the Soviet Union.

Last month Congress tried to pull a flim-flam to give itself a 51-percent pay increase. But thanks to unprecedented public outrage, the honorable members were forced to deny themselves. Americans realized they were being ripped off on a vast scale. Families forced to suffer high taxes, inflation and oppressive legislation just could not sympathize with congressional lamentations of the difficulties of getting by on $89,500 per annum.

Now Americans have been treated to the spectacle of senators and former senators revealing how our congressmen really live. John Tower, the former chairman of the Senate armed services committee, has had his libidinous and bibulous proclivities aired in public. Sen. Sam Nunn, the current armed services committee chairman, has admitted that he committed a hit-and-run offense when he was a young lawyer.

Then more information came out about House Speaker Jim Wright's involvement in the troubles of the savings and loan industry; 40 percent of insolvent S&Ls are in Wright's native Texas. The Chicago Tribune quoted former Federal Home Loan Bank Board chairman Edwin Gray that, in 1986, Wright "raised the issue of a federal regulator's sexual orientation when discussing complaints about aggressive supervision of Texas savings and loans."

Other professions have been hit by scandals, of course. In recent years some businessmen and preachers have shown that sin still exists. But there's a difference. Those oily businessmen misused, at most, $100 million or so, the bad preachers a few million. But our congressmen misuse a budget of $1.2 trillion a year.

Former Sen. Barry Goldwater, in his feisty old age, put it best: "If they chased every man or woman out of this town who shacked up with somebody else or (got) drunk, there'd be no government." What a great thought. Let the investigations continue.

Senate now ignores principles

WASHINGTON — Let us talk for a while about principle — the principle that no person should be put twice in jeopardy for the same offense.

In bringing Judge Alcee Hastings to trial, the Senate is about to trample that venerable principle underfoot. Ridding the bench of this troublesome fellow isn't worth the precedent that will be set.

My guess is that Hastings is done for. On March 16 he came in person to the well of the Senate. There he pleaded eloquently for dismissal of the main charges against him. It was a moment of high drama, but it failed in its purpose.

Senators voted 92-1 to proceed with Hastings' trial. A committee of 12 senators will hear the evidence; barring some amazing turnabout, the committee will recommend conviction; the full Senate will then vote, two-thirds concurring, and there goes the judge. Justice may triumph, but Justice will come out of this fray with her robe badly soiled.

By way of background: In the summer of 1981, the FBI received a tip that a Washington, D.C., lawyer named William Borders was involved in a scheme to bribe Judge Hastings. The idea was that in return for $150,000, Hastings would grant lenient treatment to a pair of Miami racketeers. Borders was caught red-handed in a sting operation arranged by the FBI.

He was tried and convicted in March of 1982. The case against Borders was open and shut.

Hastings came separately to trial early in 1983. The case against him was not open and shut at all. This time the government relied upon a chain of circumstantial evidence to show a pattern of guilt. The trial by jury wouldn't buy it. Hastings was acquitted.

Two of Hastings' fellow judges were appalled

James J.
Kilpatrick

by this outcome. They were convinced that Hastings had lied under oath. They set in motion an investigation that led finally to Hastings' impeachment by the House last August.

The key point to keep in mind is that the major charges brought by the House are the identical charges on which Hastings already has been tried — and set free.

Prosecutors on behalf of the House insist that the principle of double jeopardy does not apply to impeachment. Their argument is that impeachment is not a criminal proceeding; it is a "remedial" proceeding. The argument is unimpressive.

The very language of the Constitution refutes this position. The provisions dealing with impeachment do not speak of "remedies." These provisions speak of "high crimes" and "misdemeanors" for which persons are "tried." The Constitution speaks three separate times of "conviction." This is the language of criminal law.

Back in 1957 the Supreme Court addressed the issue of double jeopardy. The case involved a second trial for Everett D. Green on charges of murder as a consequence of arson. Justice Hugo Black traced the "elemental" principle of double jeopardy to English common law:

"The underlying idea, one that is deeply ingrained in at least the Anglo-American system of jurisprudence, is that the state with all its resources and power should not be allowed to make repeated attempts to convict an individual for an alleged offense, thereby subjecting him to embarrassment, expense and ordeal and compelling him to live in a state of anxiety and insecurity, as well as enhancing the possibility that even though innocent he may be found guilty."

"In accordance with this philosophy it has long been settled under the Fifth Amendment that a verdict of acquittal is final, ending a defendant's jeopardy."

All this applies to Alcee Hastings. Six years ago the government used "all its resources and power" to convict him on the bribery charge. No evidence is available to the Senate today that was not available to the government then. Since then Hastings has indeed suffered "embarrassment, expense and ordeal," coupled with "anxiety and insecurity," even though the trial jury's verdict supposedly was final, "ending a defendant's jeopardy."

In the long run, it is more important to preserve the Fifth Amendment than to oust a federal judge. Principles endure; judges come and go. Hastings is not my idea of a federal jurist. He is a flamboyant fellow, a Democratic political activist; my own immaterial opinion, based upon hours of reading the House record, is that he lied through his teeth at the trial.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio was the only senator to vote to dismiss. This was the first time the senator and I ever have agreed on a substantive issue, and that fact gives me pause. I have thought it over, and I still think I'm right.

"How does it sound, John — ambassador to Lubbock?"

Are treated jewels less real?

Arizona skies are reflected in turquoise jewelry.

Turquoise from the various mines is respected by the Navajo and the Zuni for its variety of matrix and color.

Any of us who are fascinated by these beautiful stones recognize that much of the stuff airports sell is junk jewelry.

Ground up, dyed and reconstituted turquoise may have enhanced color but little or no character.

My fondness for Indian craft led me to a profound disrespect for "color enhancement."

Imagine my dismay recently to discover that some of the finest jewelry — rubies, sapphires, emeralds, pearls — from the most exclusive jewelry stores ...

That this most elegant and expensive jewelry is likely to have been "color enhanced."

So what's this to you and me?

We are not in the jewelry business.

You and I may buy a diamond once in a lifetime but even for that one purchase there are some things we need to know.

So ...

Let me distill the essence of my fascinating recent research.

The ancients of India used to clean dirty pearls by adding them to the feed of a hungry rooster in the evening.

In the morning a search of the rooster's droppings would reveal a pearl which had been cleaned in the bird's crop — and with an enhanced whiteness.

The use of shiny metal foils to face-lift gem-stones dates back at least to Minoan times (2000-1600 B.C.)

Paul
Harvey

It can only be guessed when the enhancement of gemstones by heat treatment first evolved. Such treatments were in full use in Greece and Rome well before the Christian Era.

In the tomb of King Tut, dating to at least 1300 B.C., carnelian has been recovered which had been "heat treated."

We have written accounts of such treatments dating back 2,000 years.

The most ancient chemists and historians report using some of the same treatments practiced today: crackling and dyeing, foil-backing and oiling of emeralds.

C. Plinius Secundus, who died during the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A.D., wrote, "To tell the truth, there is no fraud or deceit in the world which yields greater gain and profit than that of counterfeiting gems."

So improving on nature in the jewelry business is not a new science.

We have come a long way from the days when opals were rubbed with oil to increase their luster and rubies were made a redder red by heat — to today — when pink pearls are dyed that color and lasers are used even to disguise blemishes in diamonds.

Those who defend our updated methods of enhancement insist that rough gemstones, since the beginning, have been made as lovely as possible ... but by cutting and polishing. Why not by coloring?

Will precious stones which have been altered retain their value?

Jewelers of America Inc. answers that question like this: "Gemstones will retain their value because of the limited supply."

But is it limited?

By the middle of the 19th century, gemology became a science.

In the 20th century, radiation was added to the gem producer's "tools" of enhancement.

Although some of the simpler treatments were known in antiquity, there has been a tremendous advance in the understanding of solid-base physics and chemistry in recent years, all leading to a variety of new and sophisticated treatment techniques.

Ivory, pearls and coral are frequently "bleached" to improve their appearance. Likewise, the color of such gems as tiger's eye is often "intensified."

All the wealth of Croesus could not have bought a ruby so red as what you can buy ...

In all the crown jewels in the Tower of London there is not one emerald so brilliant as the ones you can buy ...

But are yours less "real"?

Gaudy hotels invade island of paradise

By ROBERT WALTERS

KOELE, Hawaii (NEA) — Once the headquarters of a thriving ranching and farming operation, this community on the Hawaiian island of Lanai is a ghost town today.

Still standing are only three of the town's original structures — the headquarters building of the Koele Co.; a house that provides shelter to a pair of aging cowboys; and a church awkwardly relocated to the front lawn of a hotel now under construction.

Both the relocation and the construction are the work of the Castle & Cook Co., which owns 98 percent of the 141-square-mile island and for much of this century has devoted its Lanai holdings almost exclusively to agriculture.

With 14,000 acres planted in pineapple and an annual harvest that accounts for one-fifth of the crop's global production, Castle & Cook boasts that the island is "the world's premier pineapple plantation."

Now, however, that is changing.

Scheduled to be completed next year are the 102-room Lodge at Koele on the cool upland slopes at the center of the island and the 250-room Manele Bay Hotel on a bluff overlooking one of Hawaii's most spectacularly beautiful but least visited beaches.

Those hotels will drastically change the character of a bucolic island that never has had phony luau, ersatz hula dances, fast food restaurants, sidewalk jewelry peddlers and other manifestations of "civilization" that have overwhelmed portions of other Hawaiian islands.

At the center of the controversy over the future of tourism in the state is hotel developer Christopher Hemmner, Hawaii's answer to Donald Trump. Like Trump, Hemmner is a master of compensating for tastelessness with gaudiness. Like Trump, he is making money almost faster than he can count it.

Hemmner's $350 million Westin Kauai has an immense reflecting pool that covers more than two acres and houses seven life-size marble horses constantly bathed by a 60-foot-high geyser of water spewed from a 54-ton fountain.

The hotel on the island of Kauai also has a $2.5 million collection of Oriental and Pacific art, five Jacuzzis, dozens of Clydesdale-drawn carriages, swarms of live swans and artificial islands being stocked with cranes, gazelles, wallabies, kangaroos, zebras and llamas.

But Hemmner's most extravagant project is the newly opened $360 million Hyatt Regency Waikoloa, which modestly describes itself as both the most expensive hotel ever built and "the most spectacular resort on Earth."

Standing atop a lava bed on the island of Hawaii, that hotel has eight restaurants, 11 lounges, 20 massage rooms, 27 live pink flamingos and 1,640 transplanted palm trees. Guests are ferried around the resort in mechanically propelled boats or on a monorail train.

Tourists willing to pay the fees can sign up for a safari to hunt wild boar on the slopes of Mauna Kea, a helicopter visit to the windswept mouth of the active Kilauea volcano or a romp in the water with the hotel's eight dolphins.

Meanwhile, an Australian firm, Qintex Ltd., has paid almost $58 million for control of the Sheraton Mirage Princeville Hotel and a surrounding 7,000-acre resort on the north shore of the island of Kauai.

Although that hotel is only 3½ years old and charges at least $200 a night for most of its rooms, Qintex will spend $250 million to renovate it into a lavish resort catering to even wealthier tourists.

Here on Lanai, the two new hotels are likely to strain the island's limited water supply while the need to import employees has exacerbated an already intolerable housing shortage.

As the state's economy becomes increasingly dependent upon tourism, it becomes more desperate to increase its visitor count every year. In the process, however, it is endangering its natural resources and obliterating much of the natural beauty that originally inspired travelers to come here.

Cocaine addict kills two, rapes two before killing himself

By STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press Writer

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — A man with an insatiable appetite for cocaine killed two women with a semiautomatic gun and wounded two deputies and a hostage before killing himself during 10 hours of rape and terror, authorities said.

Eugene Thompson Jr., 20, of Littleton, was armed with a MAC-11 assault pistol when he broke into a woman's suburban Denver house early Thursday and began his crime spree.

The rampage, during which he raped two women, ended in a gun-battle at a townhouse as 100 officers searched house-to-house for him.

Thompson opened fire on the two officers who burst into the townhouse, hitting one in the chest and neck and the other in the leg, authorities said.

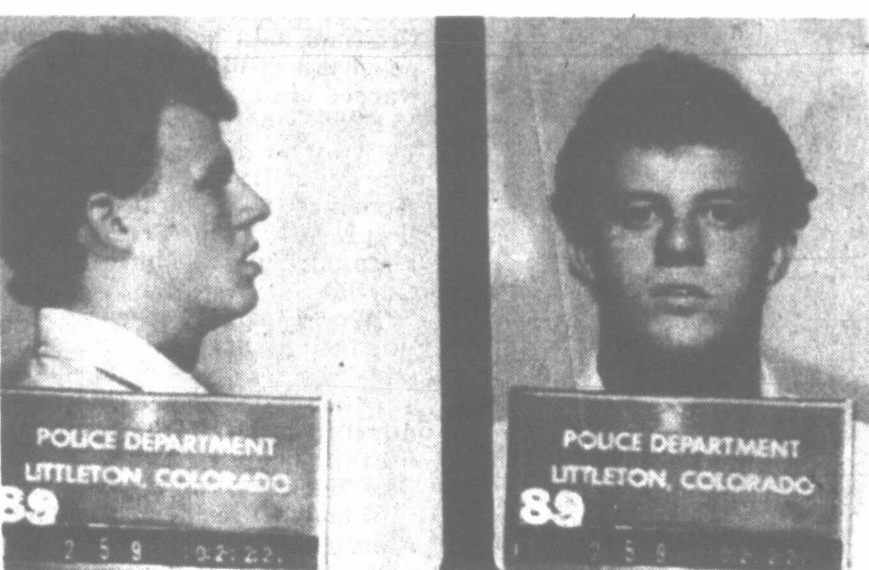

He then shot 18-year-old Jake Carper four times in the back, went upstairs and shot himself in the head.

"A madman, it appears, is what we have," said Douglas County Sheriff Steve Zotos. "We were hoping it wouldn't end this way, but I don't know of any other way it could have ended. There is just no reason to this whole thing."

Thompson died at a hospital three hours after he shot himself. Carper, who lives in the townhouse, remained in critical condition.

Arapahoe County Deputy Arthur L. Hilton, 37, was in serious condition with wounds to the chest. Deputy Daniel Thomas, 36, was released after treatment.

Thompson, a suspect in at least 140 thefts and burglaries, was wanted on arrest warrants that were issued Monday for his failure to appear in Golden District Court for probation revocation, authorities said.

Thompson is shown in police file photo.

He had been enrolled in a cocaine residence treatment program as part of his probation for thefts but was kicked out after being caught stealing, said

George McGlynn. It wasn't known if Thompson was on drugs during his rampage — an autopsy was pending.

The trouble began around 5 a.m. when Thompson broke into 47-year-old Beverly Swartz's house in Littleton, authorities said. She called for help, but hung up before she could give her address.

Authorities traced the call but when they arrived she and her car were gone. Her husband, Ralph, summoned from work, arrived at the house and was talking with investigators when the telephone rang.

It was his father, Oscar Swartz, calling for help.

Thompson had driven the woman to her in-law's home outside Littleton, broke in at gunpoint and tied up the three — Beverly, Oscar and his 68-year-old wife, Janice.

"He raped the younger woman downstairs, then executed her," Sheriff Zotos said. "Then he executed the older one upstairs."

Thompson then stole a car, and drove about 10 miles to Douglas County south of Denver, where he broke into a house, held a man, woman and child at gunpoint and raped the woman, Zotos said.

About 30 minutes after leaving the house, he crashed a stolen car into a fence and fled, setting off the manhunt.

Officers tracked Thompson to Littleton, where he broke into Carper's house and shot him and the officers.

Minimum wage battle shifts to U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — House passage of a plan to raise the minimum wage shifts the partisan battle to the Senate, where the leading proponent of an increase is urging President Bush to refrain from further veto threats while Congress settles on a final bill.

The House voted 248-171 Thursday in favor of legislation that would raise the minimum wage from the current $3.35 an hour to $4.55 by October 1991, with the first increase taking effect later this year.

The House then joined the Senate on an Easter recess that ends April 3.

High on the Senate agenda when it returns is a bill sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would raise the minimum wage to $4.65 by 1992.

Kennedy has said he is open to amending his bill, and in a statement issued after the House vote he asked Bush, who has threatened to veto any attempt to raise the hourly minimum above $4.25, to keep an open mind until the House and Senate agree on a bill.

"This is an excellent opportunity for Congress and the administration to demonstrate that they can work together and in doing so achieve a fair increase in the minimum wage and an honest training wage," Kennedy said.

Bush has insisted that a six-month sub-minimum training wage covering all newly hired employees be created in any legislation to raise the minimum wage, a provision he said will help offset potential job losses caused by raising the minimum.

Sponsors of the House bill, while disputing GOP projections of massive job losses, added a provision allowing a sub-minimum wage to be paid to new hires for two months provided it was their first job.

That falls far short of the White House demand and, with Kennedy also opposed to Bush's training-wage proposal, that issue likely will be a major sticking point in any attempts to reach a compromise.

Several Republicans insisted that Democrats were going to have to give in to Bush — who appears to have the votes to sustain a veto — or let a ninth year pass without any change in the minimum wage.

Two students carry signs Thursday in Boston outside a fast-food restaurant during a demonstration against a proposed training wage supported by some businesses and the Bush administration.

Pilgrims praying in Jerusalem on Good Friday

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hundreds of Christians from around the world today walked along the Via Dolorosa in Jerusalem's Old City, praying and singing to retrace Christ's path to his crucifixion on Good Friday.

The procession to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where Christians believe Christ died on the cross, was led by 20 Roman Catholic Franciscan monks in black robes tied with white rope belts.

The crowd seemed smaller than in recent years. Pilgrims were seen dragging only about a half dozen large, wooden crosses along the narrow, cobbled street in the walled Old City.

Because of the 15-month Palestinian uprising against Israeli occupation in the territories, hundreds of police, border police and army soldiers were on duty, clustered in groups of six or eight on the Via Dolorosa.

No major violence was reported.

Meanwhile in the Philippines, at least 11 people were nailed to crosses and thousands of Filipinos drew blood by beating themselves on the back today to symbolize the suffering of Christ.

In the village of San Pedro Cutud, about 5,000 people, including foreign tourists and U.S. servicemen from nearby Clark Air Base, gathered on a rice field to watch men dressed as Roman centurions hammer nails into the palms of seven people.

The crucifixions have been an annual ritual for decades in the village 40 miles north of Manila. They have become tourist attractions in recent years, complete with stalls selling food, soft drinks, straw hats, fans and other souvenirs.

In Jerusalem, about 600 pilgrims marched behind the monks. The marchers included groups carrying Canadian and Australian flags, as well as the French fleur-de-lis. A guitarist led a group of Spaniards.

Thousands have marched in past years.

One of the largest crosses today — about eight feet long — was carried by Palestinian Christians from Jerusalem and the nearby West Bank cities of Ramallah and Bethlehem. About a dozen Palestinians carried the large cross on their shoulders.

John Eberlein, 56, of Manassas, Va., said he was deeply moved to see Christians gathered together from around the world.

"You just feel you are part of a tremendous movement, this Christian religion, no matter what denomination it might be," he said.

Crucifixion

Chito Sangalang, left, and Mario Castro have themselves nailed on the cross in Cutud, Philippines, north of Manila, as they reenact the crucifixion of Jesus Christ on Good Friday. A total of seven people were nailed on the cross at this village alone as the predominantly Roman Catholic nation observes the highlight of the Lenten season.

Cristiani willing to meet leftist rebels

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President-elect Alfredo Cristiani said he would accept peace talks with leftist rebels but warned of any U.S. interference in El Salvador's civil war.

"We are willing to open doors to the guerrillas to incorporate them in the Salvadoran democratic process," said Cristiani, the victor in Sunday's presidential election.

"We are willing to work with the United States," Cristiani added in remarks made available Thursday, "but this partnership must be based upon mutual respect and working together, not as an imposition."

Although President Bush congratulated Cristiani on his victory, some congressmen have said his right-wing Republican Nationalist Alliance party, known as Arena, should demonstrate it has become a democratic institution before more U.S. aid is provided. Human rights groups, diplomats and others have linked Arena to far-rightist death squads.

The president-elect said the leftist Farabundo Marti Liberation Front "must interpret for the first time the feelings of the great majority of Salvadorans, that they no longer want violence, that they want peace."

"If the guerrillas want to solve the Salvadoran people's problems, they must come and express themselves publicly and peacefully so that the people can judge whether what they offer is valuable or not," he said.

He made no specific proposals for talks, however. Before the elections, rebels asked for a six-month postponement to give them time to participate.

The government and Arena both objected to the plan, and peace talks never got under way.

According to the final results, Cristiani won with 54 percent of the vote in an election boycotted by the rebels. Francisco Merino, also of Arena, was proclaimed vice president-elect.

Fidel Chavez Mena, presidential candidate of the incumbent Christian Democrats, received 36 percent of the vote. President Jose Napoleon Duarte, suffering from terminal cancer, by law could not run for re-election.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

What vision this living water would be to a desert wanderer! The nomad and the lonely prospector may dream of running water, but they depend on wells and canteens for their meagre day to day supply.

Most people dip their little store of joy in life from an evasive source and try desperately to store enough to last until the next oasis. What a vision a living eternal source of joy would be to them. Why, they would say, it's like being born again; like having a new life!

Christianity says that deciding to trust in God and trust in the day by day life He gives is like finding living water in the desert. And more, he who drinks from this water will never thirst again. Come to Him then who gives you life. Trust Him and live.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and restore. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

The Galatis

New Life sets four-day series with evangelist

Evangelist Dominic Galati Jr. and his wife Pamela, of Racine, Wis., will be ministering at the New Life Worship Center from Sunday morning through Wednesday night.

Sunday services will be at 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m., with Monday through Wednesday evening services at 7 p.m. daily.

Galati formerly served as president of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International in the Racine-Kenosha areas where he now resides. As an evangelist, he travels full time sharing his life-changing message nationally in Christian Business Men's Committees, Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowships, Women's Aglow Fellowships, Joy Fellowships, and churches of all denominations. He also has been a guest speaker on radio and television.

His wife Pamela ministers alongside her husband with her gift of music. She has ministered with many well-known artists and teachers, such as Roger and John McDuff of The McDuff Brothers, Lulu Roman of Hee Haw, Gov. Al Quie of Minnesota, and Marilyn Hickey. Mrs. Galati has recently released her second album, Heaven's Sounding Sweetener.

Early in his career before becoming an evangelist, Galati was in the life insurance business. He was among the top 20 producers in the National College Division of his company.

Raised as a Roman Catholic in an Italian-American home, he thought he had everything — a promising career, friends and family. But he found himself disillusioned with life and searched for more. His search led him to become involved with the drug culture of the early 1970s.

But, he recalls, one day he found Jesus Christ. "I found my life was filled with things, and not meaning," he says. "Jesus Christ has made the difference."

He has attended North Central Bible College and is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the Assemblies of God Graduate School.

The congregation invites the public to attend these special services.

First Christian to have sunrise Easter service

Easter Sunrise services are to begin with a trumpet fanfare at 7 a.m. Sunday in the shadow of three crosses placed south of First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson.

Dr. Chris Diebel, interim minister, is to deliver the message, "That Magnificent Morning," with scripture selections from Mark 16:1-8.

Trumpeters are to be Jim Dugan and Art Owen. Special music will be presented by Jackie Harper singing "A Morning Like This," and Eddie Burton performing "They Could Not."

Immediately following the outdoor worship service, First Christian's Christian Youth Fellowship are to serve breakfast in Fellowship Hall. CYF'ers will be preparing the breakfast under the guidance of sponsors, Scott and Jamie White.

Sunday School classes begin at 9:40 a.m. followed by morning worship at 10:50 a.m. Dr. Diebel is speak on "God of the Living" based on Matthew 28:1-10.

The Chancel Choir, directed by Fred Mays and accompanied by organist Sue King, will present "He Is Risen" as the call to worship and "Easter Song" and "Lenten Song" as the anthem. The bell choir, directed by Robbie Pepper, will play "Crown Him With Many Crowns," during the offertory.

Nine young people who attend the recent Pastor's Class made their confession of faith Palm Sunday. They will be baptized and placed in the membership of the church during the Easter morning services, also.

The public is welcome to attend.

Religion

Pampa Chapel

Rev. and Mrs. Amos Harris, of Bayard, Neb., will be in revival services at the Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester, beginning March 27, at 7 p.m. The Harrises were pastors when the Chapel was built in 1968-69 and served until 1973, when they moved to Bayard. They had previously pastored several congregations. Rev. Harris was raised in the Kingsmill Community.

Singing each night will be The Evergreens, a Pampa-based trio under the direction of Janae Harris, daughter of the Rev. Harrises. She will be assisted by Wendel Harris of Kingsmill, and Russell Ball of Buffalo, Okla. The group writes and/or arranges much of the music they sing.

Ms. Harris, a former Pampa resident and school student, attended Arizona University and served several years as music instructor at the Apostolic Faith Bible College in Baxter Springs, Kan.

Pastor Howard Whiteley invites the public to attend services nightly at 7 p.m.

As part of the Easter Sunday worship celebration, the Pampa Chapel will have an Easter sunrise service at 6:15 a.m. Sunday. The public also is invited to attend this special service.

Calvary Baptist plans community Easter service

Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, will have its Annual Community Easter Sunrise Service in "the shadow of the crosses" at 7 a.m.

Church Music Director Dicky McGahen will lead congregational singing and provide appropriate special music.

A message of "Hope and Life" by Pastor John Denton will be followed by donuts, coffee and juice in the Fellowship Hall.

The public is welcome.

Religion roundup

CHICAGO (AP) — Protestants gave a bigger percentage of their income to churches back before World War I and in the Great Depression of the 1930's than they have in the last 20 years, a study finds.

It was submitted for a forum sponsored by the Independent Sector and the United Way Institute.

The historical analysis by researchers John and Sylvia Ronsaville of Urbana, Ill., says that in 1933, when U.S. per capita income was at a low, Protestants gave 3.3 percent of income to churches.

While per capita income has ballooned 213 percent since then, Protestant church members in the 1980's have given only around 2.5 percent of it to churches, the study says.

Youth Ministries schedules training for youth workers

AMARILLO — Youth Ministries Television Network will present five "live" video teleconference training events for youth workers at San Jacinto United Methodist Church in Amarillo in 1989.

Youth Ministries Television Network (YMTN), an ecumenical youth ministries update, will present "live" 3½-hour youth ministry resource review and training teleconferences offered via satellite with America's leading youth ministry authorities for the most up-to-date youth ministry information available today.

Each of the five broadcasts will be hosted by J. David Stone, author, national seminar leader and noted Christian educator, and will be shown on Saturdays on the following dates:

April 1 — "Family Life Ministry"

May 20 — "Youth/Sex/Sexuality"

Sept. 23 — "Stressors, Escapes, and Hopes"

Nov. 4 — "Creative Programming"

Dec. 9 — "YMTN Youth Rally 'Live' '89"

Participants will review the latest in youth ministry resources across a broad spectrum of denominational lines. They will experience the most up-to-date youth ministry information by America's leading youth ministry authorities as well as get an update of statistical data on what's going on with youth today.

There will be an opportunity to review current teen music, videos and movies, a chance to improve counseling skills and share practical ready-to-use ideas. There will be an opportunity to CALL IN "live" with questions and comments and talk personally with youth ministry experts.

Special guests include Ken Davis, Keith Olson, Jim Burns, Rich Van Pelt, Stephen Arteburn, Yohann Anderson, Madeline Manning Mims, Wayne Rice, Thom and Joani Schultz, Peter Benson, Jerry Goebel, Don Kimball and Rich Bimler.

For more information or to register for this event, call the Network Affiliate coordinator, Francie Pittman, at 806-655-2851, or write to Francie Pittman, First United Methodist Church, 1818 4th Avenue, Canyon, TX 79015.

Warnke to be in Amarillo

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Christian comedian Mike Warnke will be supporting his latest release, One in a Million, with a concert at the Amarillo Civic Center on Friday night, April 7.

Warnke is a former satanic high priest who, in addition to his work as a comedian, has authored the best-selling The Satan Seller and appeared on Oprah Winfrey, Larry King Live and 20/20.

During Warnke's last trip to Amarillo, the Civic Center experienced one of its best turn-outs in years.

The rotund Warnke keeps an appearance that belies his accomplishments, not to mention his status as a grandfather. He wears his hair long and keeps up with the latest fashion trends in order to keep his lines of communication open to young people.

In discussing the need to relate to cowboys in West Texas and on his horse farm in the south, Warnke recently said he saw the need to carry a round can in his back pocket.

Since he could not abide "chew," however, he decided to run several dozen Tootsie Rolls through the pencil sharpener and then pack his can with them.

"Those cowboys think I'm really tough. Not only do I chew — I swallow!" Warnke stated.

Warnke also tells stories about guardian angels, how to be baptized in a way to please every denomination and what it must have been like for the people who saw Jonah after he was released from the stomach of the whale.

"Can you imagine what the people of Ninevah saw when the whale belched him out on that beach? His skin was bleached white. Most of his clothes were eaten by the acids in the stomach of the whale."

"If you or I saw something that looked like that, we'd repent too!"

A $3 donation will be accepted at the door to cover the cost of the concert and renting the Civic Center.

In addition, a free-will offering will be taken during the concert for Warnke's "War on Satanic Crimes," an off-shoot of his ongoing ministries and his home for troubled teen-agers.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Do you want to become a Christian? This is God's love story, offered in Christian love to you.

For God so loved the world ... John 3:16a

God loves you. No matter who you are, it's a fact. Do you doubt that God can possibly love you in spite of your weaknesses and vices? He created you in His own image; why would He do that for someone He doesn't love? God loves you.

... for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God ... Romans 3:23

Sin is any action or attitude that blocks God's interaction of love with you. The deep sense of spiritual estrangement you feel in the very core of your soul is the evidence of the Holy Spirit at work. He is busy explaining to you that you are a sinner.

For the wages of sin is death ... Romans 6:23a

No amount of good intentions or changes for the better on your own part give you any relief from the spiritual discomfort.

This wrenching of guilt is a painful but necessary part in the process of rebirth; you are going through spiritual labor pains. The Holy Spirit is encouraging you to face the fact you are alienated from God and completely helpless to save yourself and therefore in need of the Savior.

But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us. Romans 5:8

Don't get bogged down in the enormity of your sinfulness or in your inadequacy to do anything to change yourself. God still loves you; He's never stopped even though He knew you were a sinner before you did.

He made preparations for this very moment in your life when He sent Jesus into this world two thousand years ago. He stands gladly ready and able to relieve you of your burden of sin.

If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just and will forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness. 1 John 1:9

Give your burden to God. With all your heart, and the best you know how, tell Him your sorrow and shame. God's forgiveness is guaranteed and His cleansing is complete.

(Note: The moment of repentance and the act of salvation are so nearly simultaneous, no clear distinction is possible. However, for your greater understanding of the scriptures, I have dealt separately with them. Please read on.)

For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. John 3:16

God knows you can't maintain sinlessness and as a result can't get past the obstacles which separate you from Him, so He came to you in the form of Jesus. Jesus is God's only Son.

He loves you so much, He sent His much-loved Son to pay the terrible price for your sinfulness; Jesus was sacrificed on the cross that your debt to God might be paid. And Jesus was resurrected to life and glory so that you may know the joy of abundant life and the assurance of eternal life.

For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith — and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God — not by works, so that no one can boast. Ephesians 2:8-9

The spiritual urging you feel at this point is evidence the Holy Spirit is still on the job. He is convincing you the scriptures are true, and He is instilling in you a great desire for what Christ has to offer. However, knowing that Christ has the power and stands offering the gift of salvation isn't enough; you must receive the gift.

If you believe in you heart that Jesus is the Son of God and He alone can forgive your sins and escort you, clean and worthy, into Almighty God's presence, tell Him so in grateful acceptance.

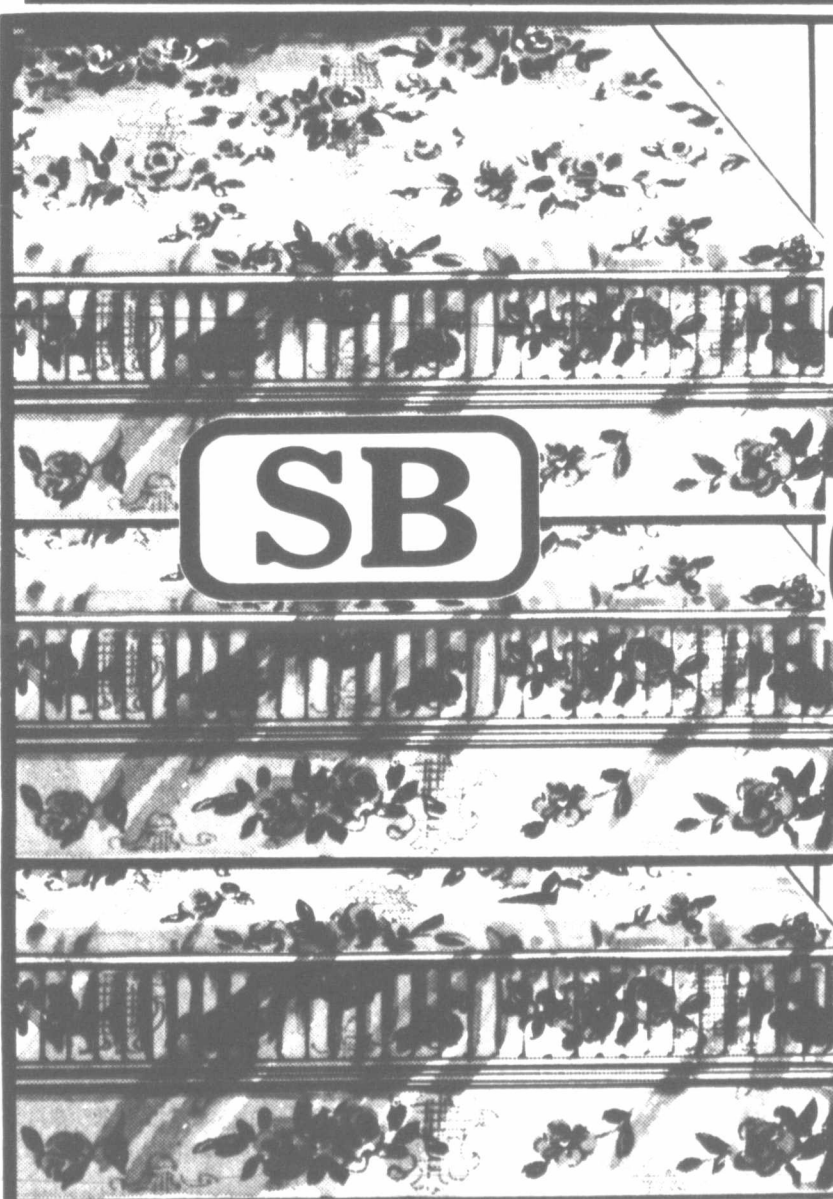

Your simple believer's prayer of faith slices through the spiritual complexities of eternity and bonds you forever with Jesus Christ.

You are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus ... Galatians 3:26

If you prayed the believer's prayer, praise the Lord in holy celebration! You have been born again!

Engineers: Humans most important factor for air safety

By JOHN A. BOLT
AP Business Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Eyeballs, not instruments, are the best detectors of airplane structural problems, according to members of a task force formed to determine how to insure the safety of the nation's aging aircraft fleet.

"The most important thing you can do today is to be around an airplane and be alert," said Ben Cosgrove, engineering vice president of The Boeing Co., whose planes have been involved in some widely publicized incidents involving structural failure.

"Eighty percent of all damage is found by eyeballs," he said.

Cosgrove and other members of the task force formed by the Air Transport Association spoke at an aircraft maintenance and ground support trade show in Dallas.

NEA says salaries rising for teachers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Education Association says the average salary for American teachers grew slightly faster than inflation in the past year, rising to $29,567 for the current school year.

The figure represented a 5.6 percent increase over the $28,044 average salary during the 1987-88 school year, the group said. Inflation over the same period hovered at about 4.5 percent.

Current average salaries range from a high of $41,693 in Alaska to a low of $20,480 in South Dakota.

According to the teachers union, the average gain in real purchasing power for public teacher salaries is estimated at 12.3 percent for the period 1978-79 to 1988-89.

That's an inflation-adjusted gain of $1,844 over the decade.

The task force was formed last year after a section of fuselage ripped off a 19-year-old Aloha Airlines Boeing 737 over Hawaii. One person was killed and 61 injured in the incident, which focused public attention on the increasing age of the nation's airplanes.

There have been several other highly publicized incidents recently, the most serious also occurring over Hawaii and involving a Boeing plane.

Last month, a section of the fuselage of a United Airlines Boeing 747 tore off a plane that had just left Hawaii. Nine people died when they were sucked out of the airliner.

"Current economic and market conditions have resulted in the use of airplanes beyond their original economic design goal," said Clyde Kizer, engineering and maintenance vice president of the Air Transport Association. While the public has become aware of the age of the planes, estimated to average 12.7 years, the United executive who chaired the task force says age alone has little to do with an airplane's airworthiness.

Instead, Bob Doll, United's vice president for technical services, said the number of flights, environment in which the planes operate and attention to regular maintenance are important contributors.

"I don't see why there would be" a limit to the operational age of an aircraft, providing it is properly maintained, he said.

Boeing's Cosgrove said the company has inspected 20-year-old aircraft that look as if they just rolled off the assembly line, and other, much younger aircraft in much worse shape.

"It's really down to the guts of an airline's organization," Cosgrove said. "Inspection and maintenance of an aircraft, whether it is one year or 20 years old, is important."

Whether closer visual inspection would have averted the Aloha disaster is unclear, indicated Joseph Trippe Nall, the National Transportation Safety Board member who is leading the investigation.

Nall said investigators had found stress fractures around screw holes near the damaged area of the Boeing's fuselage.

As a result, the NTSB — although not ready to release its full findings — already has recommended that some screw holes be redesigned on the 737s to change their stress point.

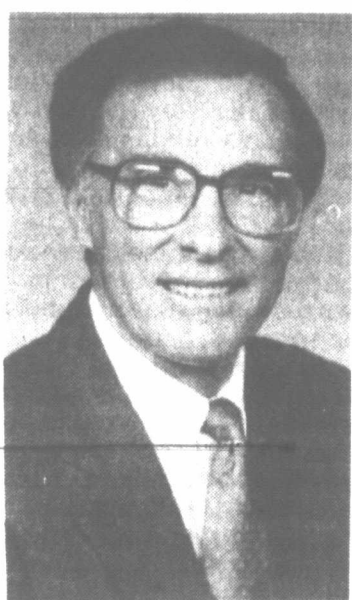

Nall said the NTSB's Aloha findings likely will be released May 9 when the board has its next regular meeting.

Meanwhile Doll said the task force was concerned about the varied levels of maintenance practices it found throughout the industry.

Although he defended United's inspectors, Doll said the task force was working on how to raise expertise industrywide.

Astronautics Lab commander retires

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. — Seeking another "opportunity to excel," Col. James Ross Nunn, Commander of the Air Force Astronautics Laboratory, will be launching a civilian career upon his retirement.

Col. Nunn is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. John Kenney of Skellytown. He is a graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon.

His 26 years of military service has seen a broad spectrum of rocket propulsion technologies ranging from his early days in the Air Force as a BOMARC launch officer at Otis AFB; working at NASA/Johnson on Gemini and Apollo spacecraft reentry; and at Vandenberg AFB where he worked on launch support and performance analysis for THOR, Titan, Scout, Delta, and Agena missile launches.

His career first touched the Astronautics Lab, known then as the Rocket Propulsion Lab, in 1971, when he worked in the Technology Division on plume phenomenology and advanced concepts before becoming Deputy Chief of the Lab's Operations Office.

Assigned to the Air Force Systems Command Headquarters, he served as Propulsion Staff Officer to the Deputy Chief of Staff for Science and Technology, working on both the Rocket Lab's rocket propulsion programs and Aeropropulsion Lab's ramjet development program.

Following a stop at the Defense Systems Management College's Program Management Course, he was named Chief of the Program Management Division for Munition System Program Office at Eglin AFB where he was also responsible for evaluation of foreign weapons.

Col. James R. Nunn

During this time he brought over the first foreign weapon to be bought in quantity for the Air Force, the French Durandal Runway Buster. He continued his career at Eglin establishing the Stand-Off Attack Weapon System Program Office and later served as Director of the GBU-15/AGM-130 System Program Office.

He served as Director of Propulsion Test at Arnold Engineering Development Center in the latter years of his career before returning to the Astronautics (Rocket) Lab at Edwards AFB as Deputy Director in June, 1986.

He was named Commander of the Lab on August 6, 1986 prior to its renaming as the Astronautics Laboratory in March 1987.

Col. Nunn guided the lab during its transition from the Rocket Propulsion Lab to its new expanded mission as the Astronautics Laboratory. This transition included a reorganization of the lab, streamlining its people and facilities to become a center of expertise for space and missile propulsion, space transportation, space power, and spacecraft technologies.

The lab with facilities valued at more than one billion dollars is showing results and benefits of that guidance and streamlining with new programs and projects ranging from the Advanced Launch System, a joint AF/NASA program; SDI's Space Based Interceptor work, spacecraft integration facilities, theoretical studies into High Energy Density Matter and Antimatter showing the path to tomorrow's propulsion methods, Solar and Electric propulsion, and Composite Lab research on spacecraft and rocket materials ranging from nozzles to space platforms.

Col. Nunn led his 450-member "Team on the Ridge" to make the lab's 65-square-mile advanced research facility a center of excellence and a national asset.

Honoring his retirement, a barbecue luncheon hosted by the Lab's "Top 4" Sergeants Association, was held Feb. 23 at the Lab Gym for Col. Nunn and the lab's employees.

Col. Nunn's retirement ceremony and the Lab's Change of Command were held on Feb. 24 at the Astronautics Lab Headquarters. Maj. Gen. Thomas R. Ferguson Jr., Air Force Systems Command's deputy chief of staff for technology and requirements planning, presided over the retirement ceremony.

Maj. Gen. Robert R. Rankine Jr., vice commander of Air Force Space Division, presented Col. Nunn with the Legion of Merit medal in recognition of his services to the Air Force. Col. J.R. Johnson, commander of the Air Force Space Technology Center presided over the Change of Command.

Col. Nunn's successor has not been named as of this date. Major General and Mrs. John Schoepner attended the ceremonies on behalf of the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB.

A formal retirement dinner honoring Col. Nunn and his wife, Yvonne, was held Feb. 24 at the Edwards AFB Officers Club.

Teen's idea of home company makes parents hit roof

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and consider myself a man. I work full time, live with my parents and pay room and board. My question: Shouldn't I be allowed to have my girlfriend sleep over in my room? She's 19 and my one and only girlfriend.

I believe that since I am paying for this room and am of age, I should be able to have overnight company here if I want to. My parents disagree. They think I should live by the house rules they set before I turned 18. I always respected their rules and never complained.

I love my parents and enjoy living with them, but think they should not put any restrictions on what I can do in my room as long as I am paying rent. What do you think? Must I move out to avoid a hassle? This is the only thing we ever argue about.

A MAN WITH LITTLE BOY RULES

DEAR MAN: Obviously your parents are not comfortable with the idea of their son sleeping with his girlfriend under their roof, and I can certainly understand their feelings. But since you can't, I suggest you rent a room or apartment elsewhere for complete independence and privacy. The next move is yours.

DEAR ABBY: You should have told that man signed "Hurting in

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Waukegan" what you told me when I had the problem of a cheating spouse. I have carried it in my wallet for years and could probably recite it from memory. No truer words were ever written. It helped me a lot. Maybe it will help "Hurting" if you want to pass it along. Please print it for others.

DEAR MINNIE: That item was clipped by them, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Why will a married man pick up a tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp?

MINNIE

DEAR MINNIE: A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is no better than he is. In her company he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a lady. He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp because he feels that by degrading her he will bring her down to his level. This makes him feel guilty, so to get even with his wife for making him feel guilty, he keeps right on punishing her.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going steady with this girl for two years, and every time we go out I am expected to pay for everything we do. She never offers to chip in for the entertainment, food, gas or whatever.

We both make the same amount of money. I have asked her why she never offers to chip in, but I never get a straight answer.

Don't you think she should offer to treat me once in a while? Answer in the paper. I know she reads your column. Maybe if she sees it in print and coming from you she will loosen up a little. If you think the man should always pay for everything, just tear this up and forget it.

A. IN BROCKTON, MASS.

DEAR A: I agree with you.

Your girlfriend is behind the times. There is no reason why she shouldn't chip in or treat you occasionally. In fact, many couples go "Dutch" when their paychecks are equal. I'm all for it.

DEAR ABBY: Over the years, you have been very rough on smokers. It may surprise (and interest) you to know that smoking is endorsed in the Bible: "Let him that is filthy be filthy still." (Revelation 22:11)

by bernice bede osol
It's fortunate that you enjoy lots of activities and involvements because the year ahead could be a very busy one for you. You're likely to earn more than you have in the past, but you will also have to work for it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are too dictatorial today, it will provoke unpleasant responses from others that you will find difficult to contend with. A nasty incident could result. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 94128, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Discipline may be required to focus on important details today. There's a chance you might be a trifle absent-minded and do something forgetful, like locking your keys in your car.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something quite unexpected could suddenly develop in your financial dealings today, especially if friends are involved. Should a misunderstanding erupt, be sure it's settled as promptly as possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Using pressure tactics in order to get your mate to do your bidding today could misfire. Your mate might make motions to comply, but when not in your presence do just the opposite.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) No matter how cleverly you try to camouflage neglected work, you're apt to be discovered today. Your best course is to do the tasks instead of designing cover-ups.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A relationship you have with a close friend is under more strain than you may realize. If you want to maintain a harmonious association, root out the underlying problems today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Companions could be annoyed with you today if they cannot pin you down to a definite decision that affects them as well as yourself. Don't be a victim of paralysis from overanalysis.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're a very clever and resourceful person, but today you might insist upon doing something that won't work, even when the flaws are obvious to you as well as to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to get yourself involved today in an acquaintance's complicated financial affairs. Think carefully before making a loan or even offering advice or suggestions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are amply endowed with stick-to-it qualities which usually serve you well. Today, however, these attributes might not be operative and you might quit at the first sign of resistance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you are subjected to some unexpected additional tasks today, don't let your imagination make more of them than they actually are. Instead use your ingenuity to dispense of them quickly.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't take gambles on things today where you have to rely upon information that comes to you through an unfamiliar channel. There's a chance the facts could be wrong or you may misinterpret them.

Virginia's John Crotty scored 14 points and dished out eight assists.

Virginia shocks top-seeded OU

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Virginia, by doing the little things well, moved one step closer to college basketball's big show.

The Cavaliers took good shots, rebounded well and played sound defense in beating top-seeded Oklahoma 86-80 Thursday night in the NCAA Southeast Regional.

Now Virginia, the No. 5 seed, must beat third-seeded Michigan in the regional final Saturday to earn a trip to the Final Four at Seattle. Michigan, behind 34 points by Glen Rice, beat No. 2 seed North Carolina 92-87 in Thursday's other semifinal. Virginia did most everything right against the high-powered Sooners, who ended the season 30-6 in failing to repeat last year's visit to the Final Four.

The Cavaliers, 22-10, made things miserable for All-America center Stacey King in the first half while opening as much as a seven-point lead, then had the poise to stay in their offense when the Sooners made second-half runs.

King took only four shots in the first half and scored two points. The Sooners' 5-of-13 shooting from 3-point range in that half wasn't enough to loosen Virginia's sagging defense, and set the Cavaliers up nicely for the final 20 minutes.

Coach Terry Holland told his team at intermission that, while Oklahoma was having some success from outside, "King only has two points, and we have 42 and they have 37."

Harvester tracksters take third at Guymon meet

The Pampa Harvesters track team turned in its finest performance of the season Thursday evening, amassing 86 points to finish third in the eight-team Guymon meet. Pampa competed against teams from Liberal, Kan., which won the overall title—Randall, Guymon, Dalhart, Borger, Spearman, Stratford and Beaver, Okla.

"Our running events really took over for us," said Pampa coach Mike Shklar, whose squad moved up five places in the track events after finishing in last place in the field events. "I was real pleased with our hurdles and dashes, because we were running right into the teeth of a strong south wind."

Senior Michael Shklar ran a personal best 15.0 to win the 110-meter high hurdles and captured the gold medal in the 100-meter dash as well in a time of 11.12. He finished third in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles (40.1).

Pampa's 400-meter relay team, consisting of Wayne Cavanaugh, Jason Cameron, Cornelius Landers and Heath Parker, took the silver in a time of 44.3.

"I was extremely pleased with our 400 relay," Shklar said. "We ran our best time of the year and we've got three underclassmen on it. That was the thing that sparked us, because we were in last place at the end of the field events."

Robert Perez ran his best time of the season in the 800 (2:01) to pick up the bronze medal, and less than half an hour later competed in the 1600. Fifteen minutes later he ran a 52-second split time in the 400 in Pampa's fourth-place 1600 relay (3:37).

"Robert Perez ran a tremendous quarter-mile for us in the mile relay," Shklar said, "especially after running the 800 and 1600 right before that. That's a lot of running in a 40 minute span."

The other members of the 1600 relay were Wayne Cavanaugh, Dolvin Briggs and Reggie Williams.

"We had a real good lineup for the mile relay," Shklar said, "but we could only let our guys enter three running events by Texas UIL rules. In Oklahoma, they are allowed to run in four events, but we had to comply with Texas rules, so we shuffled our relay around a little."

Nathan Rains, in his first track season, placed sixth in the high jump (5-10). "He couldn't clear 5-6 three weeks ago, but he's already real close to clearing 6-0," Shklar said.

Pampa also took five freshmen, who compiled 36 points in the freshman division. Bert Carrillo took third in the 3200 (11:40) and ran an outstanding 5:11 in the 1600.

"Bert has the potential to be an excellent distance runner,"

Shklar said. "He's gonna be an exciting kid to watch."

Pampa will host the Top O' Texas Relays next weekend, April 1, at Randy Matson field. Eight teams, including Guymon and Liberal, Kan., will compete in that meet.

Following is a list of individual finishers from the Guymon meet.

Varsity
100 — 1. Michael Shklar 11.12; 3. Heath Parker 11.29.
200 — 3. Jason Cameron — 23.2; 4. Cornelius Landers 23.5; 7. Wayne Cavanaugh.

Dewey sparks Randall past Pampa 7-4

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

AMARILLO — Kevin Dewey earned his wings Tuesday afternoon as Randall High School's fledgling baseball program finally took flight in a 7-4 District 1-4A victory over the Pampa Harvesters at Randall Field.

Dewey, one of two Randall players from Canyon's 1988 state semifinal team, went 3 for 4 from the plate, including a double, triple and two-run homer, and gave up only four hits on the mound to lead the Raiders to their first conference win in three outings. Overall, the Raiders improved to 3-4.

Toby Weatherly (ss), the other member of last season's Canyon team, touched Pampa pitcher Brandon Knutson for two hits (single, two-run homer) and reached base on walks during his two other at bats. In all, the Raiders collected nine hits off Knutson, who lost his second game in as many starts. The Harvesters now stand 2-2 in district and 3-4 overall.

Dewey, Randall's top catcher and pitcher, ran his mound record to 3-0, giving up four hits and seven walks, while striking out ten. He and Weatherly, the only Raiders with varsity experience, proved there's no substitute for state tournament experience. Between them they drove in five of Randall's seven runs and led a four-run rally that clinched the win in the fifth and sixth innings.

"We've got some good top-of-the-order hitters, especially Dewey and Weatherly," Randall coach Stacey Conway said. "Those two kids always hit the ball and they've led us all year. They come through when the pressure is there. They both went to Austin with Canyon last year, and with the kind of season we've been having, it would be easy for them to have a bad attitude. But they never let up."

Weatherly walked in the first inning and Dewey followed him with a homer over the left-field fence to put the Raiders up by two. In the bottom of the second, Craig Payne reached base on a Pampa error and Knutson walked Chris Roberts before Weatherly connected for a single that scored Payne. Dewey flew out to end the inning with Pampa down, 3-0.

The Harvesters got their first hit of the day when Brandon McDonald tripled in the third, but it was all for naught as Knutson and James Bybee both flew out to leave him stranded.

"I can feel a storm coming on, I just don't know when it's going to hit," Pampa assistant coach Steve Porter said between the top and bottom of the third. He didn't have long to wait as Knutson struck out three straight batters, including Randall first baseman Greg Hathcock, who entered the game batting .700 and didn't get a single hit Tuesday.

Pampa's offensive storm rolled in during the fourth inning. Matt Brock walked and designated hitter Tory Peet smashed a triple to score pinch runner Barry Coffee. David Doucette rapped a single, scoring Peet, and first baseman Mike Cagle followed with a walk to put two men on.

Brandon McDonald, who went 2 for 4 to lead all Pampa hitters, cracked a line-drive single, sending Doucette and Cagle home and propelling Pampa to a 4-3 lead. Randall weathered the storm and stranded two Pampa runners when Dewey struck out Bybee, who entered the game as Pampa's top hitter (.565) but couldn't connect on four tries.

"I was very pleased with the way the kids handled themselves," Pampa head coach Rod Porter said. "We got behind, but we came back. We've got quality kids up and down our lineup, up and down the bench, but this is such a disappointing loss. I feel like you have to beat the Randalls, Frenships and Borgers if you want to make the playoffs in this district, and our goal is to make the playoffs."

In the bottom of the fifth, Weatherly walked for the second time and Dewey followed with a line-drive double to center. Hathcock drove in Weatherly and Paul Griffin flew out to deep center, giving Dewey time to tag up from third and score what would be the go-ahead run.

"Dewey's gonna get his hits," Rod Porter said. "They're a one-dimensional team, but you've gotta take care of the batters before him, and we put Weatherly (who bats just before Dewey) on base two or three times."

Weatherly exploded for a two-run homer in the sixth and Dewey followed with a triple but was left stranded when Griffin stepped over the plate and was called out to retire the side. Knutson singled in the seventh but the next three Pampa batters grounded out to end the game.

"We're gonna get our wins," Rod Porter said, "but we're struggling with morale problems right now. We've got four kids batting over .500 and four under .200. We'll give Estacado a good fight."

Pampa travels to Lubbock to take on Estacado on Saturday. The game begins at 2 p.m.

A long road to state tournament

FROM THE NOTEPAD: 3A state champion San Antonio Cole was the only boys team to go through the season undefeated (30-0). In three of their four state championship years the Harvesters were unbeaten: 1952-53 (26-0), 1953-54 (28-0), and 1958-59 (31-0). A total of 360 playoff games were necessary to reach the five boys state championships... The Jayhawk League in which the Amarillo Texans will play this summer has teams in Hays, Hutchinson, Wichita, and Liberal, Kansas; Red Oak and Clarinda, Iowa; and Nevada, Missouri. First home game at Amarillo's Memorial Stadium is June 5 with Hays' Larks in the summer college-player league... An Oklahoma City woman was given a 25-year prison sentence last week after admitting stealing a rare 1954 Mickey Mantle baseball card... Bob Derryberry, hired by Robert McPherson as his assistant when he first went to Sam Houston State, is expected to be named new head coach at the Huntsville school, taking over from embattled and embittered Gary Moss... Rumors are that Jeff Mullins, who brought the UNC-Charlotte program to great success, is the frontrunner for the U-Kentucky post.

NCAA officials will meet shortly in Kansas City to discuss dividing Division I basketball along the lines of football, into I-A and I-AA. Somehow it is expected to produce greater TV bucks... Speaking of bucks, the third annual Borger Rotary Club Classic Car Show April 1-2 will feature Coors' Extra Gold Street Rod, a technically advanced car valued at $1 million. Also among the 250 vehicles expected will be Junior Johnson's Budweiser NASCAR stock car, and a 1989 Thunderbird driven by Terry Labonte in the recent Daytona 500... Georgia has voted out spring football drills for high school programs, allowing students to be kids again. Only six states continue the abuse, including Texas, which allows a 21-day period (the longest of any state) for Class 5A... The most recruited high school basketballer next season will likely be 7-4 Shawn Bradley of Castle Dale, Utah. Other 7-footers who will be seniors are at Elizabeth, N.J., and Indianapolis... Mississippi State and Ole Miss have been offered $1 million each, plus expenses, by the Florida Citrus Sports Association to switch home games against U-Florida to the Citrus Bowl in Orlando in the 1991 and 1992 seasons.

A chip off the old block! Like his dad Dory, Sr., former world heavyweight wrestling champion Terry Funk is full of ideas, mostly good. "That movie about a white horse was a bomb, but I'm working on a video now that will really sell," he tells me. "And Amarillo ought to build a Professional Wrestling Hall of Fame in the city. It would be a natural, and I'm sure they could get some big financial assistance." Sounds like an excellent idea, Terry, with all the current stars and champions who can claim the area as home territory... The Palmar, Iowa 103-game winning streak, fourth longest schoolboy in history, ended in the state semifinals. Passaic, N.J., ran off 159 undefeated games in 1919-25. Wouldn't that be borrrr-inggg, boorr-inggg, winning all the time? Not really, as PHS fans found out through 72 straight...

Personable, popular and capable Earl Diddle was in town last week offering a scholarship to join his Eastern New Mexico basketball program. Diddle was the one who pulled Larry Bird off a French Lick garbage truck when Earl was an assistant at Indiana State.

The 21st annual Women's NIT is underway in Amarillo, but defending champion DePaul isn't all that happy about being there rather than the NCAA. "I'm tired of Amarillo," said last year's MVP Diana Vines when told of the invite. "You spent a week in Amarillo during three days last year." Coach Doug Bruno joked with her. Bruno did condescend with "the NIT is a well-run tournament, and we'll try to defend our championship." Title game is tomorrow night... Texas State Senator Carl Parker (D-Port Arthur) wasn't all that enthused with the recently passed recruiting violations bill. "We're not criminalizing the bribery of football players. We're just regulating the price," he said... How soon they forget. A major Chicago-area Savings and Loan association has signed Bear coach Mike Ditka to a 2-year, $100,000 per year contract to be TV spokesman for the 66-year old firm. It was only two years ago the Hall of Famer was picked up for DWI, and isn't he also the guy who stole the last can of Chunky?... "Sky," "Stretch," "Helicopter," "Hawk," "T-Love"? Those are Mookie's teammates on the OU Sooner basketball team.

While his football program was trying to dig out of its fall from grace, OU's Barry Switzer was skiing in Vail. He also fell there, too, undergoing knee surgery and eight weeks in a cast... As with the tie in the District 1-4A football race last fall, the baseball 6-6 deadlock between Hereford and Dumas could have major implications on the playoffs by season's end, providing a half-game plus to each team. Seems district rules should cover determining a winner when they next meet... Cub pitcher Al Nipper says of new teammate Mitch Williams, acquired from the Rangers: "If you put his brain in a blue jay, it (the bird) would fly backwards."

Elliott paces district win

PLAINVIEW — The Pampa High boys' golf team captured the early lead in the District 1-4A race, shooting a 304 Thursday in first-round play.

Second-place Borger was far off the pace, 16 strokes behind Pampa.

Pampa senior Mike Elliott shot an even-par 71 to take the lead in the medalist race.

"Elliott played down to where I knew he could. He's been in a slump, but yesterday he was swinging the club smooth and his tempo was real solid," said Pampa coach Frank McCullough.

Ryan Teague and Mark Wood backed Elliott up with 75 and 76 respectively.

"When there's three scores like that and the other one comes in at 82, you're going to be in good shape," McCullough said.

Dax Hudson shot an 82 and Russ Martindale 86 for the Harvesters, who enter the Amarillo Relays Friday and Saturday.

"One of the players' goals is to win the Amarillo Relays. We won it two years ago and we feel like we've got a good chance to win it again," McCullough said.

Pampa's second district round will be played April 8 at Dumas.

Pampa's junior varsity team is in a three-way tie for fourth at 344.

District 1-4A (first round)

1. Pampa, 304; 2. Borger, 320; 3. Levelland, 324; 4. (tie) Pampa JV, Borger JV and Randall, 344; 7. Hereford, 349; 8. Dumas, 354; 9. Hereford JV, 363; 10. Frenship, 380; 11. Frenship JV, 416; 12. Randall JV, 463.

Medallists — 1. Mike Elliott, 71; 2. Ryan Teague, Pampa, 75; 3. Darin Waters, Levelland, 75; 4. Mark Wood, Pampa, 76.

Pampa JV — 1. Matt McDaniell, 80; Cary Timmons, 84; Willie Carlisle, 89; Tyson Paronto, 91; J.W. Earp, 92.

Super collider fund dependent on foreign nations' assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will not agree to build the super collider unless the Department of Energy secures cost-sharing commitments from foreign contributors, says the influential chairman of a House appropriations committee debating funding for the $4.6 billion atom smasher.

Rep. Tom Bevill, chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development, said Congress will insist on knowing how much foreign countries are committed to spending on the collider before authorizing construction.

"They are going to have to put their name on the line," said Bevill, D-Ala. "We like to talk in specific terms and Congress likes to hear specific figures. I don't like to be vague about it."

But Energy Secretary James D. Watkins said foreign countries are waiting for Congress to signal its commitment to building the high-energy physics project in Texas before they chip in.

Watkins complained it's a "chicken and egg situation this year" and said that everyone "is looking for the next person to make the next commitment."

Bevill countered there won't be much incentive for other countries to participate once the United States takes on the funding.

When Congress agreed to spend $100 million on the super collider last year, "that's getting pretty serious, that's pretty committed," Bevill told Watkins, noting the department always underestimates the final costs of its major projects.

Bevill has vowed not to put the super collider "on the credit card" and not to sacrifice all other important energy research to pay for it.

The mood of the country and the mood of Congress "is not too keen on undertaking on a project of this size," Bevill said, if Congress has to foot the whole bill.

Asking Congress to approve the project without knowing exactly how much is coming from non-federal sources is "asking for trouble," Bevill said.

Bevill said Congress agrees with the concept of the super collider and the need for building a scientific instrument with the potential for putting the country at the forefront in high-energy physics, but he must have "a good-solid case" for construction when he takes the appropriations bill to his colleagues.

"I'd like to be able to say this country has agreed to do this, and that country has agreed to do that. I think we would have a good case and I think Congress would accept it," Bevill said.

The Energy Department is proposing $1.8 billion toward the cost come from non-federal sources, including $1 billion from the state of Texas.

But even Texas is not willing to begin spending its share if Congress is not committed to construction, and wants a refund clause in case the federal government backs out.

Energy Department officials have testified potential foreign contributors are waiting for Congress to authorize construction before they commit funds. India is the only country that has signed a cost-sharing agreement.

President Bush has proposed a $250 million appropriation for next fiscal year, including $160 million for construction. Congress restricted last year's appropriation to research and development.

The DOE has chosen a site near Waxahachie for the super collider, a 53-mile underground tunnel in which beams of protons would smash into each other with 20 times the energy of today's most powerful accelerators.

Easter weekend hijack warning memo confirmed

LONDON (AP) — American military personnel, diplomats and their families have been warned of a possible plan by Palestinian extremists to hijack a U.S. airliner in Europe on Easter weekend, British and American officials said.

The London tabloid Daily Express said the possible hijack threat was detailed in a Friday-dated secret memorandum from the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration and that it had been given a copy.

The British domestic news agency, Press Association, quoted an unidentified FAA spokesman in Washington as saying the alert was sent out to American airlines and airports worldwide.

The news agency quoted the spokesman as saying the alert "is very, very urgent. It is coded 'information credible though not confirmed from a reliable source,' but I can't go into details."

In Washington, FAA officials declined comment on the report. But other officials, who demanded anonymity, confirmed that the memo had been issued.

The Daily Express said: "American military personnel and diplomats and their families have been told of the threat, which centers on U.S. airlines. They were advised to alter routine plans to return home from Europe for Easter."

The news agency quoted the FAA spokesman as saying he could not confirm anybody had been told to change travel plans.

Another British tabloid, Today, said the FAA warning was issued after a plot was discovered by agents who infiltrated terrorist cells in Europe. It gave no other details.

The Daily Express said the FAA memo "warns all airlines and security forces in the U.S., Britain and the rest of Europe. It was passed to the Department of Transport in London ..."

It quotes "security sources" as saying a copy of the memo arrived at the London offices of International Aviation Security, a company owned by Trans World Airlines.

The Department of Transport said in a statement: "We don't discuss security matters. We would automatically have anything like this assessed and take any necessary action."

The front-page reports come as Parliament debates whether airlines were properly informed by Transport Secretary Paul Channon about the discovery of a new type of bomb before Pan Am Flight 103 was blown apart over Lockerbie, Scotland on Dec. 21, killing 270 people.

The radio-cassette bomb, seized in late October by West German authorities when they arrested 13 alleged Palestinian terrorists, was similar to the device that later downed the Pan Am jumbo jet over Scotland.

In West Germany, meanwhile, the Hamburg-based Bild newspaper said Samir Khadar, a 39-year-old Arab linked to terrorist attacks in Italy and France, "directed the Lockerbie attack."

The report said Khadar traveled to West Germany in December "to prepare for Lockerbie," and that he was now in Bonn.

A West German official denied Khadar was being sought in connection with Flight 103 attack.
