Animals, animals everywhere

"Critters" were all over at Burnet Elementary School Friday afternoon. Mice showed up, as did sheep, fish, dogs, cats and birds. Even a peacock or two came for the festivities — a pet show. In the photo above, 10-year-old Tonya Watkins affectionately holds "Dot," her fuzzy kitten. Man indicted for selling secrets to Libya kills self

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Department intelligence analyst Waldo H. Dubberstein, charged a day earlier with selling U.S. secrets to Libya, was found dead Friday in a suburban apartment building with a shotgun next to his body. Officials said he apparently killed himself.

Police said the body of the 75-year-old Dubberstein was found sitting upright in a chair in the basement of an Arlington, Va., building that overlooks the Potomac River just across from the capital where sources said he apparently lived with a 32-year-old East German girlfriend.

Dubberstein became the third person connected to the case of ex-CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson, to die under suspicious circumstances.

The body was discovered only hours after Dubberstein failed to appear at an arraignment Friday morning in federal court in Alexandria, Va.

After waiting two hours for Dubberstein, U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. had issued a bench warrant for his arrest, noting there was "sufficient cause to consider flight."

Chief Prosecutor Theodore Greenberg and Dubberstein's attorney, Howard Bushman, both said they had been told that Dubberstein had left his residence that morning.

The federal sources said Dubberstein was last seen by his girlfriend, Renata Strelau, 32, about 8:30 a.m.

FBI Spokesman Norman Hieronymi said Dubberstein's body was found by Arlington County Police, who had been called to an apartment building in the early afternoon and found in the basement the body of an elderly man shot in the head, with a shotgun and shotgun shells next to the body.

Police spokesman Tom Bell said there was no note near the body but officers found nothing in their investigation to indicate anything other than a suicide.

However, the federal sources said several handwritten notes, which they characterized as "suicide notes," were located and were being checked to see if they were in Dubberstein's writing.

When Dubberstein failed to appear in court, Bushman said his client "is 75 and has heart problems. I'm worried."

Greenberg said that if Dubberstein were convicted on all the charges against him, he could face a maximum penalty of 57 years in prison.

The prosecutor also said Dubberstein was known to have money, a valid passport and to have visited the Middle East within the past 60 days.

A federal grand jury in Alexandria had indicted Dubberstein Thursday on charges of selling secret U.S. data about the Middle East for $32,000 to former CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson and to Libyan intelligence officials.

Reagan comforts officer

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston motorcycle officers collided in a motorcade escorting President Reagan into downtown Houston Friday, delaying the president about 10 minutes as he left his limousine and comforted an injured policeman.

Reagan, accompanied by aides and Secret Service agents, got out of his armored limousine, picked up a police service revolver from the street and handed the weapon to a bodyguard. He then walked about 100 yards to where the officer lay in the street with ambulance workers tending the injury.

Sgt. Ralph Gonzales said later that when Reagan appeared at his side, "I thought I was dreaming."

"He was very kind, what I remember. I think he asked me was I OK and I told him I was sorry that I'd blocked the motorcade," the officer said in a telephone interview from Memorial Hospital Southeast.

"I don't think I was in my right mind," Gonzales said. "I do recall seeing Mr. Reagan, the president. I didn't realize I'd actually had a wreck until I was in the ambulance."

Gonzales, 32, suffered a sprained neck and bruises. He was released after about three hours of treatment and observation, emergency room supervisor Marilyn Peoples said. The other officer in the accident, Harold Prothro, refused to go to a hospital, spokeswoman Dorey Zodrow said.

When Reagan went to comfort Gonzales, Secret Service agents surrounded the president and shouted "Get back, get back" to reporters and cameramen who ran to the scene.

Police spokesman Larry Troutt said apparently Prothro and Gonzales intended to seal off the same intersection.

After the accident, Reagan bent over Gonzales and talked to him for several minutes. Then Reagan got back into his car and resumed the ride to downtown, stopping at Cenikor Foundation, a drug rehabilitation center.

"I was very honored that the president stopped the motorcade and made sure I was all right, because he didn't have to," Gonzales said. "It was my responsibility to get him where he's got to go and I expected him to continue. I didn't expect him to stop."

Reagan was in Houston to speak Friday night at a dinner honoring U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

"It didn't look like they were going to let him get out," said Marilyn Davis, who works nearby. She said after Reagan got back into the car, it took several minutes to clear the wreckage before the motorcade could continue.

The accident occurred shortly after Reagan arrived at Hobby Airport about 2:20 p.m.

Gonzales apparently was thrown from his cycle into a street sign, said police Lt. E.J. Smith. A parking sign was knocked down.

Deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver told reporters that as the accident occurred Reagan said, "My God, I think he hit the sign."

Deaver said Reagan insisted on getting out of the limousine when it stopped.

'Robin Hood' armed with computer

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Stanley V. Slyngstad stole from the state and gave to the poor, armed with a computer instead of a longbow as he dispensed $17,000 taken from the government agency where he worked.

He gave an unemployed carpenter $600 for a truck, $1,200 went to a welfare mother for car repairs and children's clothing, $400 a week went to another welfare mother who thought she was on salary for computer training.

"I used my own money until it ran out," said Slyngstad, 44, who had been a sought-after and highly praised computer programmer with the state Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. "Then I used the state's — an unlimited supply. I was blatant as hell."

Slyngstad pleaded guilty to first-degree theft. He faces up to 10 years in prison, and has been ordered to keep away from state computer terminals pending sentencing.

"What I'm hoping is that we discovered everything he took," said State Patrol Lt. Fred L. Pilon. "With the computer system the way it is, who knows?" But Pilon added that security has been "greatly tightened since then."

Slyngstad had been a farmer in the 1960s but poor crops and a storm left him destitute.

"I'm a thief, but I'm not a criminal," he said. "I'm just a feller who likes to help people. There's a ton out there that could still use it.

"There were times I wished somebody would give me money when I was down and out."

The unemployed carpenter backed up Slyngstad's story about the $600.

"He told me I couldn't pay him back," said Calvin John Brooks, 34. The Seattle Times reported.

As a state employee, Slyngstad programmed a computer to manage millions of dollars for vocational rehabilitation.

He stole $17,000 by telling the computer to issue at least 25 false benefit-check authorizations, Pilon said. Slyngstad said he then distributed the fruits of his labors.

Slyngstad, who lost an arm in a childhood accident, spent his evenings drinking beer and dispensing charity at Charlie's Tavern in Olympia, state troopers said.

Lacey police were tipped late last year by one suspicious recipient of the bogus state checks, but Slyngstad had erased the evidence from the computer when they checked.

Slyngstad was born in Montana, and his father died when he was 5, he told a reporter for The Seattle Times. A run-in with a washing machine wringer forced amputation of his left arm when he was 7. He spent seven months in prison after he burglarized a home in 1958.

He farmed for six years near Salem, Ore., but wound up destitute because of poor crops and a storm that blew down his chicken coop.

In 1967 he graduated with a computer degree from Oregon's Chemeketa Community College.

John A. Tawney, data processing manager for the Oregon State Police, said there is no evidence he stole anything during the 10 years he worked for Oregon's Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Washington state hired Slyngstad away from Oregon, said Leslie F. James, director of Washington's rehabilitation division.

"Slyngstad's probably one of the best programmers I've ever worked with," James said. "If he hadn't started drinking, I don't think this would have happened."

Slyngstad's lawyer, Susan A. Dubuisson, said he is a brilliant programmer who needs a computer job — one "that doesn't involve dealing with money."

Oil, gas price drop hurts GOP's relation with industry

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two aticles dealing with current conditions in the oil industry.

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — After passage of the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act, Bill Saxon, Robert A. Hefner III and J.D. Allen rode a geyser of gas, oil and money out of Oklahoma's Anadarko Basin, gambling and winning on wells running three or more miles deep into the ground.

The 1978 act removed federal price ceilings on gas from such deep wells and, backed by bankers and investors with an unquenchable thirst for a piece of the action, the three independent oilmen made fortunes both immense and fragile. Their money flowed into the Republican Party.

Saxon, according to Federal Election Commission reports, gave $87,000 from 1979 though 1982, including $30,000 to the Republican National Committee (RNC), $23,000 to the Republican Senate and House committees and $13,000 to committees backing President Reagan. Allen, former co-chairman of the Oklahoma Republican Party's finance committee, handed out $73,750 in a similar pattern. Hefner and his close relatives, once Democratic Party loyalists, gave $55,200 to Reagan and to Washington-based Republican committees.

Moving outside the political arena, Saxon stunned colleagues in the petroleum industry in October 1981 with the announcement of his pledge to Oklahoma University of $30 million toward the construction of an energy research and training institute.

Saxon said at the time that he knew he "couldn't spend it all...I don't mean to sound braggadocious, but it does not strap me or hurt me to do it."

At that moment, Saxon and his colleagues in the independent oil and gas industry, were on a winning streak that seemed to have no end. Their growing wealth was accompanied by growing political influence as their contributions to the Republican Party escalated.

The end of that streak came suddenly with the collapse of oil and gas prices last year, with severe consequences for the industry and its alliance with the GOP.

The price of deep natural gas, the only kind that was fully decontrolled, began to dive late last year, in large part because of the recession. From a high of $9.77 a thousand cubic feet — the price equivalent of oil at $57 a barrel — the market price has now dropped to the $3 range, if there are any buyers at all, wreaking havoc in the Anadarko Basin.

Saxon's firm, the Saxon Oil Co. in Dallas, has reported losses totaling $90.9 million for 1982, almost half of that, $41.1 million, in the fourth quarter. The firm is currently struggling to restructure $84 million in debts to InterFirst Bank of Dallas, and to win approval from a committee of drilling contractors, service companies and other suppliers for a special plan to pay off another $54 million in debts. Saxon, according to a company spokesman, is not responding to inquiries about the $30 million pledge to Oklahoma University.

J.D. Allen's company, Longhorn Oil and Gas, was one of the first to get caught in the undertow from the collapse of the Penn Square National Bank in Oklahoma in June 1982. Last February, Allen petitioned the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for a Chapter 11 reorganization, declaring that he owes $9.88 million in loans and personal guarantees to his companies, including Texas Oilfield Supply and Longhorn Oil & Gas.

More than 100 bankruptcies have been filed by oil drillers and producers over the past 12 months. "Producers who were overextended now have to pay off loans at the bank," said Julian C. Martin, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners (TIPRO).

Already battered by the drop in oil and gas prices, the independents were jolted politically by President Reagan's proposal Feb. 28 to remove price controls on gas. While some independents would benefit from decontrol, others, including those who specialized in deep gas, gas below 15,000 feet, would be hurt.

The result is a deep split in the industry. Hefner, whose Oklahoma City firm escaped the fates of Allen's and Saxon's companies, has become an aggressive critic of President Reagan's plan. Complaining that its main benefits will go to the major oil companies at the expense of most independents, he has formed the Independent Gas Producers Committee to defend the independent producers' interests.

A major element of the dispute is how deregulation will deal with the most important categories of natural gas. Gas discovered before 1977 is considered "old" gas under Section 104 of the 1978 natural gas legislation, while most gas discovered after that is termed "new" gas, under Section 102 of the act.

"The major oil companies are the ones that have most of the old gas and they are the ones that are going to get most of the benefit," said Lew Ward, an independent oilman from Oklahoma.

The Reagan decontrol plan is likely to provoke "a war between the 102 boys and the 104 boys," said Martin of TIPRO.

"For gas producers, proposed decontrol involves a redistribution of economic benefits on a grand scale," according to Deborah Warhoff, an industry analyst for Paine Webber Mitchell Hutchins Inc. The firm found the following:

If the price of oil is $30.30 a barrel in 1985, natural gas, a competing source of energy, could be expected to sell for an average wellhead price of $2.85 for each 1,000 cubic feet. Under existing regulation, old gas, which makes up 43 percent of the supply, would have to sell for $1.52, while new gas, which has a rapidly climbing ceiling price and makes up 57 percent of the supply, could rise to $3.84, to produce the $2.85 average.

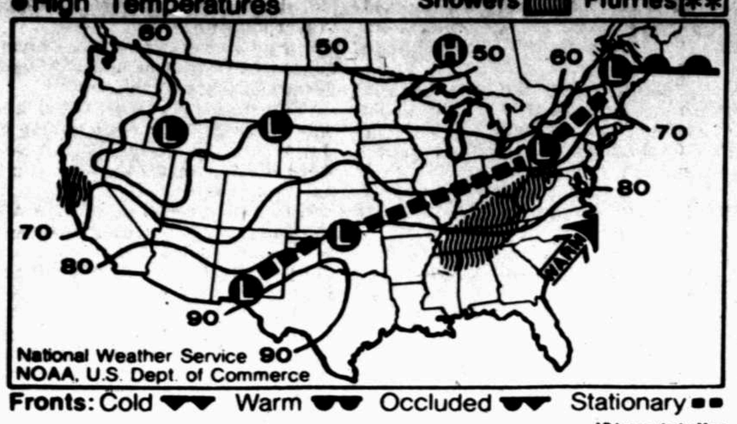

With deregulation, however, old gas could rise immediately to the competitive price of $2.85 and new gas would be forced down to the same $2.85. The gain from deregulation to old gas producers for just one year would be $5.92 billion, while the loss to new gas producers would be $5.84 billion.

The change would impose a $2.78 billion loss in one year alone on the independent oilmen, who own an estimated 76 pecent of the new gas and only 28 percent of old gas. The majors, who have 24 percent of the new gas and 72 percent of the old, thus would get a $2.86 billion bonus in one year.

GOP, oil industry relation changes

In addition, those who would be hurt the most would be the deep well drillers of Oklahoma's Anadarko Basin, whose prices would fall the furthest.

The consequences for the Republican Party are likely to be significant.

"Somebody's got to be able to explain those things, and right now a lot of people are just now beginning to say 'What in the world is wrong?' " said Lew Ward, a Republican National Committeeman who donated $38,500 from 1979 through mid-1982 to Washington-based Republican committees.

"Right now we don't have the answers," he said.

Just three years ago, Ward said, there were probably 140 contributors who gave at least $10,000 annually to the Republican National Committee — the "Eagles," as the GOP terms them. "I'd say the number has declined to probably 50. They are still supportive, but they are kind of sitting back and just kind of wondering a little bit, wondering if they (members of the administration) are ever going to listen," he said.

At the same time, a number of Republican fund-raisers said privately that while they expect continued support from the oil industry, they no longer see it as a growing base of support. Instead, they said, increased GOP attention is expected to focus on high-technology industries.

If a significant segment of the independent oil industry has a large stake in regulation, the same is true in spades in the tax arena. The independent oil industry has repeatedly fought for, and often won, amendments to tax legislation that give the industry an advantage over major oil companies, in contrast to the independents' customary appeals for deregulation and free market policies.

When the cost of these tax breaks is calculated from the time of enactment, it isabout three quarters the size of the federal government's $8.2 billion contribution to the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, a basic welfare program:

— In 1975, Congress repealed the special minerals depletion allowance for major companies, but retained it, at declining levels, for independent oil companies.

— Most independents are allowed to "expense" or write off in one year 100 percent of such "intangible" drilling costs as labor, hauling, ground clearing and site preparation, rather than having to spread the deductions over a number of years, as is required for most capital investment.

— During the 1980 battle over the windfall profits tax, independent oilmen won a series of special tax rates that signficiantly shifted the burden of the tax. As initially reported by the House, the measure would have required independents to pay $57 billion over 11 years. After an intense lobbying effort of the House-Senate Conference Committee, however, liability falling on the independents was reduced to $22.5 billion out of a total of $227.3 billion, a $34.5 billion reduction.

— In the 1981 tax bill, the independents won further relief from the burden of the windfall profits tax. The tax rate on newly discovered oil, which is much more important to the independents than the rate on old oil, was phased down from 30 to 15 percent at a cost to the federal Treasury of $113 million in 1982, rising to $1.8 billion in 1986.

Some Democrats, angered by the Republican bias of oil money, are looking carefully at these tax breaks as a way to both raise money and to penalize opposition. Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, has asked the panel's oversight subcommittee to begin an inquiry into all the special tax breaks received by independent oil.

Another faction of Democrats, however, is struggling to bring oil back into the Democratic fold, at least partially. Two Texas Democrats, Reps. Charles Wilson and Kent Hance, have been seeking out oilmen, trying to persuade them to give either directly to Democratic candidates, or to the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (DCCC).

In a Jan. 6, 1983, letter to "about 75 independents that I consider to be above average in political judgment," Wilson wrote: "It is perceived by the House leadership, as well as the vast majority of Democrats, that the oil and gas industry only supported Republicans in the last election, with the exception of a few oil-state Democrats.

"This comes at a bad time — not only because the House will be much more liberal this session, but also because we are threatened with all manner of violence concerning gas pricing, as well as our customary defense of depletion, intangibles and our concessions under the windfall profits tax."

In a direct meeting, Wilson said, "I've told them, you've got to stop trying to change the world or you are going to get hurt." Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the DCCC, who represents oil interests in his district, has joined in this drive to pick up Democratic oil support, which has produced an estimated $250,000, a tiny sum in comparison to the amount of oil money flowing into GOP coffers.

There is now a reaction among some prominent oil producers against the sharp swing by the industry toward the Republican side in 1980 and 1982. L. Frank Pitts, one of the most influential oilmen in Texas, former president of TIPRO and now its chairman of the board, earlier this year withdrew from the board of the Dallas Energy Political Action Committee, one of the most aggressive oil PACs channeling toward the defeat of vulnerable liberal Democrats.

In the 1982 elections, DALLENPAC and many of its supporters went beyond funneling money against marginal, anti-oil Democrats and helped finance the campaigns of Republican challengers to some firmly pro-oil incumbent Democrats, including Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., who had wrung a written promise from President Reagan to veto any legislation placing a windfall profits tax on natural gas.

"Some of the PACs, including DALLENPAC, may have gone overboard in the percentage of contributions to Republicans," Pitts said. "The industry is perceived as having tilted toward the Republicans. That's not good in the first place. Not just perceived, but rightly perceived."

It has been a long fall for the independents since 1980, when their political power was at a peak and their economic prospects looked limitless. There are signs now, however, that the fall may have reached bottom.

The decline of the industry over the past two years has also made it a less attractive target for tax increases.

"The guys who want to go after oil couldn't have picked a worse time," a congressional aide close to the prospective tax battle noted.

In addition, there is a strong possiblity that the final outcome of the deregulation debate will be a continuation of controls on old gas, as congressional Republicans from Kansas, Missouri and Illinois — where utility rates have risen sharply — have become increasingly worried about the impact of full decontrol on utility costs.

Under this scenario, which is subscribed to in many quarters, independent oil will emerge out of the first session of the 98th Congress largely untouched by Democratic retribution, and prepared, once the market revives, to resume its role as an elite participant in the congressional bargaining process and in the financing of American party politics.

Antique show appears to be giant dollhouse

By DAVID LEE FORREST
Lifestyle Writer

Viewed from the upper level of Chaparral Center, the Act IX Antiques Show appears to be a giant dollhouse without a roof. Even after descending to the show floor, the feeling of being inside a life-size dollhouse persists while wandering through the different luxuriously, but eclectically, furnished rooms.

The show, to raise money for Midland Community Theatre, was called "well-known nationally" and was described as having "added great luster to this area" by Wendell Garrett, editor of "The Magazine ANTIQUES" and an expert on Early American decorative arts.

During his lecture on American decorative arts from 1700 to 1800, which opened the show Friday morning, Garrett said a feeling for antiques and history could help one "face an uncertain future" with roots "in a celebrated past."

The past is celebrated in the show with a variety of antiques.

Some of the more unusual items are displayed in a cabinet of medical implements from the 1800s, including a tiny knife used for smallpox vaccinations and a frightening assortment of amputation saws.

Across the aisle from the old doctors' tools a more gentle art of antique rugs is displayed.

"Oh, don't worry, it has been walked on for a hundred years," Berg Boghossian, said when someone hesitated before walking toward him across a large $50,000 rug from northwest Persia.

Boghossian, born in Soviet Armenia, is a dealer from Dallas who exhibited the assortment of antique rugs from Persia, Turkey, France, England and the Caucasus region of Russia.

"I support this show," he said, "because it is a great educational program. Not to fool anybody, I am here to do business also."

Lacey Greer from Tulsa, Okla., has a display she titled "Treasures of Imperial Russia." It centers on Russian religious icons — highly revered paintings of Russian Orthodox saints — dating from the 17th through 19th centuries and Czarist-era Russian enameled boxes and vases, all of which have an exotic Asiatic style to them.

First day of the Act IX Antiques Show held at Midland College's Chaparral Center to benefit Midland Community Theatre was Friday and attracted numerous people. The show will continue through Sunday.

"I do better in larger cities," she said, "but Midland is an exception. There's a high level of sophistication here, probably because people from here travel widely."

A display of old jewelry ranging from dainty pins to heavy, ornate bracelets attracted the attention of many women at the show. Dr. Reuben Leass who came from Old Brookville, N.Y., with his wife, Shirley, proudly showed some of the exhibit's choice pieces, including an original Faberge obsidian elephant with glittering diamond eyes.

"Midland never had a real high quality antique show until this one was first held three years ago," he said. "It is surprising how well people have accepted all this. We enjoy it here."

Other dealers also have more familiar antiques, such as sturdy Early American furniture, a weathered "Burma Shave" sign, quilts, old prints, maps and paintings.

One homey item nestled in the dollhouse of exhibits was a 19th century bird cage modeled after a house in Maine from wood, wire, paper and stones. That particular piece of whimsy could be carried home for $1,400.

The antiques show sponsored by the Act IX auxiliary to the Midland Community Theatre will continue today, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Sunday, noon to 6 p.m. Tickets are $4 at the door.

Pornography shop workers arrested

ODESSA — Ten pornography shop owners, operators and clerks were arrested this week and warrants were issued for another seven people for commercial obscenity, according to Ector County Sheriff's Department investigators.

The six-month-long investigation by the sheriff's department intelligence unit led to the arrests, beginning Wednesday, a spokesman said.

According to the spokesman, the Odessa men and women arrested were released on bonds ranging from $1,250 to $6,000. Arrested were Richard Leeland Wright, Harold Dean Norman, Marshall Wadley, Nanette Marie Marshall (personal recognizance), Marie and Joe Mathis, Bryan A. Baize, Jimmy W. Wright, James E. Coran and Jimmy Leon Carroll.

Shops that were involved were identified as the 16th Street News and Adult Bookstand, 5800 W. 16th St.; B&L Bookstore, 5930 W. University Ave.; Art Flick Theatre, 6311 Andrews Highway; and Adult Entertainment Center, 4721 Andrews Highway.

Commercial obscenity is a Class A misdemeanor, carrying a maximum sentence of one year in county jail and a $2,000 fine.

Police investigate four robberies

Midland police were investigating four separate house burglaries Friday.

Carol Cornelius of 4205 Ferncliff reported cameras, a television and jewelery taken from her home about 1:15 p.m. According to police reports there was no sign of forced entry and the door in the garage was left unlocked.

About 5 p.m. Friday, Gary Woods, 2903 Aurora Lane, told police jewelery and coins valued at $2,930 were taken from his home. Police said entry is suspected to have been gained through a rear window.

Two hours later, Sammy Havercroft, 506 S. H St., reported a stereo, television and digital clock valued at $525 taken from his residence.

Shortly after 7 p.m., police were called to 3604 Boyd. Dean Schieckedant told police jewelery, a television, stereo and ostrich boots were taken from his home. The items were valued at $3,000 and entry was through a bedroom window, police reports stated.

Bond set for robbery suspects

Bond of $150,000 has been set on each of three men accused in the Wednesday morning armed robbery of Canton's Decorating Center at 4600 Sinclair.

Justice of the Peace Robert Pine set bond Thursday on 33-year-old Gerald Fred Chapman, 34-year-old Richard Lee Uptain, both of Phoenix, Ariz., and 44-year-old Joe Lee Corbin of Texarkana.

The trio was arrested at Midland Park Mall about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday. This was about an hour after the owner of Canton's Decorating reported that he, his daughter and an employee had been robbed at gunpoint of $56,000 in cash and jewelry.

Police spotted the getaway vehicle and pursued it to the mall, where three men jumped out and attempted to flee on foot. They were quickly captured, however, and remained in the city jail Friday night. Most of the items were recovered, according to police.

Turkish general dies in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A Turkish Air Force general died of an apparent heart attack here while on a NATO-sponsored tour of this country, an Air Force doctor said Friday.

Lt. Gen. Necdet Hizel, 53, was found on the floor of a room at Randolph Air Force Base's visiting officers quarters Thursday morning, according to base spokesman Doug Moore.

The cause of death appeared to be a heart attack and members of Hizel's traveling party said the general had a history of heart trouble, according to the base's clinic commander, Col. Lowell C. Suckow.

Party-crasher shoots 'carnie'

EL PASO (AP) — A 27-year-old "carnie" who worked as a bouncer for a traveling circus is in stable condition after being shot by a female party-crasher, El Paso police say.

The party-crasher, identified as Tammy Jo Hodson, 21, of Phoenix, Ariz., was charged with attempted murder after shooting Patrick Hogan in the forearm, police said. Hogan has undergone reconstructive arm surgery,officials said.

Police said the woman tried "to crash" a party held Friday for carnival employees. When Hogan reportedly evicted her, she turned and shot him through the forearm, officials said.

Bill would abolish life sentences

AUSTIN (AP) — The House on Friday gave final approval to a bill abolishing required life sentences for three-time felons.

The bill by Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, now goes to the Senate, where a similar measure has stalled.

Under the Smith bill, jurors would set the sentence for defendants convicted of a third felony. The minimum punishment would be 20 years in prison.

Bill protects eaters of kosher food

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans who eat kosher food would be protected by a measure approved Friday in the House.

Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, who is Jewish, won voice vote OK for his measure making it illegal to advertise non-kosher food as kosher. To qualify as kosher, food must be prepared in connection with Jewish laws.

The Colbert bill also says that "kosher-style" food (which is not kosher) must be labeled as such.

Horse stolen

ROWLETT (AP) — Lynne Carey, 17, was all set to ride her priced horse in the Lone Star High School Associations finals on May 28. But thieves stole Zan's Little Win, the bay quarter horse she's had since last October. The robbers also took a trailer, another horse and riding accesories.

Police don't have a clue.

Former Waco man convicted in girlfriend's death

BOSTON, Texas (AP) — A jury took 35 minutes Friday to convict David Leslie Culverhouse of murder despite his repeated cries of "I didn't do it. I didn't kill her."

The Bowie County jury took only 18 minutes to assess him a life sentence, the maximum penalty allowed. He was immediately turned over to state officials who took him to the state prison at Huntsville.

Jurors convicted Culverhouse, 27, in the Jan. 9 shooting death of his former girlfriend, Donna Loren Ray, 24 of Carthage. He was arrested Jan. 10 after holding more than 100 law enforcement officers at bay for 16 hours outside a Jacksonville Holiday Inn.

After the verdict was returned, State District Judge Donald Ross broke for lunch before returning for the punishment phase of the trial.

Rusk County District Attorney William Ferguson sought life imprisonment for Culverhouse, a former Waco resident.

Culverhouse, shackled after he attacked his defense attorney Thursday, showed no emotion as the jury delivered its verdict, staring motionless at the floor. But it was an emotion-packed final day of testimony.

Culverhouse was ordered bound and gagged after he repeatedly hit his court-appointed attorney, Joe Shumate, with a metal water pitcher the day before. He knocked Shumate to the floor, breaking his cheekbone and bruising his nose.

As the final testimony began Friday morning, Shumate asked the judge if he could withdraw Dallas psychiatrist Dr. David Hubbard as a defense witness because he " would be more harmful than helpful to the defense."

According to Shumate, Hubbard examined Culverhouse about a year ago.

Culverhouse had asked to testify on his own defense after both the state and defense rested their cases and the jury recessed. Judge Ross granted it.

As in past hearings, Culverhouse had outbursts of temper. This time, he sobbed and shouted uncontrollably.

"Do you know you're on trial for murder in this cause," Shumate asked him.

"I didn't do it, Joe," Culverhouse said softly. Then he began to cry.

"Do you understand what it means when the State of Texas has charged you with murder and has indicted you on that charge," Shumate asked.

"I didn't do it," Culverhouse repeated.

"Whether you did it or not, do you understand what it means to be charged with murder?"

Choked and sobbing, Culverhouse repeated, "I didn't do it, Joe."

He would not respond to any of Shuman's questions except to try to defend himself.

"You're supposed to help me, Joe," Culverhouse sobbed. "Joe, you're supposed to be helping me, Joe!" He lowered his head and continued to cry.

"I didn't kill her, Joe!," Culverhouse told Shumate and sobbed.

"Do you know a young woman named Donna Ray," Shumate aked.

Culverhouse lowered his head and cried. "Yes," he answered.

"Were you engaged to be married?"

"I didn't kill her, Joe!"

"Answer my question, David," Shumate said.

Culverhouse nodded his head. "I loved her, Joe," he said.

"David, do you know who killed Donna Ray?"

"I think I do — I didn't see him," Culverhouse answered.

During cross-examination, Culverhouse told District Attorney William Ferguson, "I wasn't the one."

"You didn't see who killed her only because you weren't looking in the mirror," Ferguson said. "If you were looking in the mirror, you'd have seen yourself in it."

Ferguson grabbed one of the AR-15 rifles from a courtroom table and asked Culverhouse, "What pet name did you have for this? Was it Black Beauty? You were so proud of this."

"Are you trying to say that you let someone borrow Black Beauty and go kill her," the District Attorney asked, shaking the weapon at Culverhouse. "What did you kill her for?"

"She didn't tell me,"Culverhouse answered.

"She didn't tell you what, David? That she was leaving you and going home to mama? How many tears did you shed over killing Donna Ray?"

"I didn't kill her!" Culverhouse shouted.

Bomb-like device hidden in McAllen school

McALLEN (AP) — Student pranksters probably hid a ticking bomb-like device at McAllen High School and planted the notes that demanded $7,000 for information about the location of other devices, said Superintendent Rodney Cathey.

Classes were canceled at the high school about 8 a.m. Friday after authorities found one device, a small metal box with a light and wires attached, hidden in a student locker.

A bomb disposal squad summoned from Fort Hood attempted to detonate the object, but found it contained no explosives, Cathey said.

No other devices were discovered, he said.

Virginia Zook, wife of McAllen High School Principal Gary Zook, telephoned authorities after she found messages taped to her kitchen window, the front door of her home and attached to her vehicle about 5:30 a.m., Cathey said.

Lt. Gary Miller of the McAllen Police Department said the messages — photocopies of a note made from letters cut from a magazine and pasted on paper — demanded $7,000 in exchange for information about the locations of two other bombs that allegedly were planted in the high school.

The notes demanded the money be placed near the school's football stadium, but did not specify a time, Miller said.

Classes were canceled for the day Friday while authorities attempted to detonate the device and searched the building for other objects, Cathey said.

Cathey said the school has received bomb threats in the past, but none asked for money and no device ever has been found.

The threats, he said, have "always" come from students.

Cathey said he does not consider the lastest threat more serious because of the extortion notes.

"It was a student prank pure and simple...It's that time of year," he said.

Legislator pushes for dart guns

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee is trying to decide if Texans should have the right to bear Tasers — a futuristic weapon now used by some Texas police.

"I'd a heck of a lot rather have them using a Taser than a .38," said Rep. Ed Emmett, a Kingwood Republican pushing a law that would allow Texans to plunk down their $400 and buy the weapon.

The Taser looks somewhat like a flashlight and shoots two small darts. Thin, 14-foot wires trail behind the darts and lead to the Taser. Basically, the Taser immobilizes a victim with a low-amp, 50,000-volt jolt. The darts have very little penetration power, and the idea is to get them stuck in a victim's clothing.

At a recent House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee meeting, the Taser's force was demonstrated on Roy House, a Houston policeman who volunteered to be the "Taseree." House shook and crumbled to the floor when the charge was put to him.

He quickly rose to his feet and said he felt OK, but a little shaken.

"It's very humane," Emmett said after the startling demonstration. "Although it does look very violent."

The legal problem, according to Emmett, is that no one is quite sure if a Taser is a firearm as defined and regulated by Texas law.

"It's like trying to make airplanes function under traffic laws," he said.

There's apparently no doubt that police can use the weapon. Emmett said Houston Police SWAT teams are Taser-equipped, as are a Houston constable's deputies.

But now Taser Systems Inc. of California is pushing the Taser as a self-defense device.

"Maybe tomorrow's headline will convince you to buy a Taser," says a company brochure that calls the device an "electronic defense weapon."

"We believe the Taser is the first means of defense that does not depend on the destruction of living tissue or vital organs to be effective. If you fire it at a fellow human, you are not left with irrevocable consequences for the rest of your left," says the brochure.

Taser inventor Jack Cover told the committee that the electric impulse leaves no lasting damage.

Department of Public Safety Col. Jim Adams, who saw the demonstration, said he doesn't believe it would be a good idea to let Texans buy Tasers for self-defense.

"I was concerned when I saw the prompt effect of it on a human being," Adams said.

The DPS director said the Taser can be a good law enforcement device (although DPS has none), but, "My concern would be in the area of having these available without any restrictions as to their use in the civilian market.

"I can visualize a highway patrolman walking up to a car and some drunk in there with this type of device," he said.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union, in a rare occurrence, shares some of Adams' concerns. But TCLU goes further and questions whether even the police should have electronic weapons.

"The potential for the abuse of the thing is real great by police officers," said TCLU Director John Duncan. "But it's clearly a preferable weapon to a club or a gun when you are attempting to restrain someone."

Duncan said the High Plains chapter of the civil liberties union has complained about the use of a similar device by Pampa police.

A letter of complaint sent to Pampa officials said the use of such a device is "cruel and unusual punishment, as well as punishment without due process."

Lauren Donder, administrative assistant to Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingswood, holds an electric dart gun called a Taser. Emmett is pushing a proposal that would allow Texans to buy the weapon, which resembles a flashlight and shoots two small darts to immoblize an assailant with a low-vamp jolt.

Turner Broadcasting System gets out of red, transmits in black

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post New Service

ATLANTA — Ted Turner's flamboyant antics usually get attention, but with little fanfare the sports and television entrepreneur's Turner Broadcasting System Inc. finally appears to be on the verge of making money.

Plagued by the start-up costs of two cable news services and running money-losing professional baseball and basketball franchises here, TBS has been in the red every year since 1978.

All the while, the company's flagship, WTBS-TV, Atlanta's Channel 17, the first and most successful of the satellite-distributed superstations, was growing by leaps and bounds.

It is WTBS and its emphasis on the Atlanta-originated broadcasts of its so-called "America's teams" and collegiate sports as well that have kept the whole operation in reasonable health.

Revenues at the station rose to $96.6 million last year, almost triple what they were in 1980, with operating income about $31 million. Bonnie M. Cook, a long-time Turner analyst with J.C. Bradford & Co., a Nashville brokerage house, estimates WTBS revenues will rise to $142 million this year, with operating income up to $52 million.

The development of WTBS and staff reductions to cut losses at Cable News Network and its sister operation, CNN Headline Service, have put Turner's empire into position for a turnaround.

"There is the potential for a tremendous turnaround in earnings in 1983," said Cook. In a report published earlier this month Cook predicted the company, which has reported three successive profitable quarters, would make $25.5 million ($1.25 a share) this year, after losing $3.3 million (16 cents) in 1982, and posting losses of $13.4 million (66 cents) a year earlier.

"We're just carrying out our plans and delivering what we said we would deliver," said Robert J. Wussler, executive vice president of TBS and president of WTBS.

Wussler said the prognosis for CNN, which has lost more than $34 million since 1979, is sharply improved. Although it recorded a loss of $6.4 million last year, most of that came from the fledgling headline service, which just got off the ground last year.

The round-the-clock, more detailed news service is making money "enough to cover our losses this year from the headline service," Wussler said. "They may even make some money," he added, although Cook predicts a $3 million 1983 loss for CNN.

That's not to say Turner stock is a terrific investment at this point. "The stock is a volatile, high-risk situation," Cook said.

"The company is in fine shape, but the stock is grossly overpriced," contends John Reidy, media analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., who said he unloaded holdings he managed in TBS several weeks ago at $24 bid during a run-up in price prompted by Turner's recent efforts to merge his operations with those of another major communications company.

TBS shares closed Friday at 18 1-2, however, and Cook and other analysts say the company's stock is not a good short-term investment. There is little trading in the stock, and Turner himself holds 86 percent of its 20 million outstanding shares.

The reason for the winter pickup in the stock's price — the merger effort — has been abandoned for now, Turner announced last week. In a letter to stockholders Turner said he has concluded that, for unstated reasons, the company will continue operating on its own. While noting that TBS will "give careful consideration to any opportunity to strengthen our position," Turner said the company does not "anticipate a combination of business interests."

There are other items on the company's agenda. Late last week Turner was in New York City, offering the management of major league baseball $1.2 billion for rights to distribute the league's national television package over WTBS. (His startlingly large offers for major sports events have raised angry eyebrows across the industry.)

Recently, Turner took on the Copyright Royalty Tribunal, which raised the fees cable systems must pay for satellite signals like those of WTBS, which now reaches some 25 million homes. Turner had sought a congressional amendment limiting the effect of the tribunal's decision.

Turner told a congressional committee that the ruling, which went into effect almost six weeks ago, would cost him 1 million subscriber homes and could put him out of business. It now turns out that only a handful of cable operators dropped WTBS despite the rate hikes, which could run as high as 500 percent. According to Wussler, only 30 systems serving about 200,000 homes dropped the "superstation."

These systems are particularly important to national advertisers who pay a high premium to reach a large urban audience, and that's why Turner officials are considering whether to intensify their congressional lobbying effort.

But the copyright problems, if not immediate, could be more significant long-term, as newly built, generally high-density urban cable TV systems [illegible] whether or not to off[illegible]

Royal family gets salary increase making yearly total $6.8 million

Copley News Service

The British are giving Queen Elizabeth II and her family a 4.7 percent raise as the old gal soothes her nerves after putting up with the likes of rain-sodden West Coasters.

The royal family, the biggest British tourist attraction, was given an allotment of nearly $6.86 million this year, up from $6.55 million last year. Her majesty will haul $5.64 million back to the palace, but two-thirds of her allowance goes for staff salaries.

Not bad for a job — and all that smiling, waving and ribbon-cutting is work, we are told — that you can't get an application for.

Most of us land our jobs the old-fashioned way — we EARN them.

Articles that I've collected during the past two years show this is how we are keeping up with the Windsors:

— Paul McCartney made $48.2 million in 1980, making the singer-songwriter the top-paid entertainer that year.

— David P. Gardner, president of the University of California, will be paid $150,000.

— Ted Bruinsma, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, is paid $150,000.

Yogi Baird, 32, is the "dancing fiddler." He was found in an Austin park practicing his act of playing a fiddle while performing contorted yogo positions. One of his positions is to place one leg around the back of his neckwhile dancing on the other leg and playing the fiddle at the same time. Baird said he is preparing himself for appearing on the ABC-TV show "That's Incredible" in Spetember.

People believe in spa's curative powers

MARLIN (AP) — Lewis Smithwich makes no promises about the curative powers of hot mineral water.

But many people bring their aches and pains to Smithwich's spa in Marlin, there to soak their bones and cares away in a tub of naturally heated mineral water.

People who come to bathe in Marlin share a belief in the water as medicine.

Smithwich believes the mineral baths may boost Marlin's economy as they did in the early 1900s, when Marlin was a health mecca.

"They really believe it works, and they get results," he said. "What it is I don't know. We don't tell anybody it will cure anything.

"People have come in here crippled and walking on two walking sticks, and by the time they leave, they're walking on their own without any help," he said.

"Oh, I could just go on all day telling you case after case like that."

Early in the century, Marlin's economy was built around the mystical properties of foul-smelling water that flowed up to the town from a mile down.

During the early 1920s, as many as 200 people a day went through the bathhouse Smithwich now owns, he said.

Bathers afflicted by different diseases came from across the United States in hopes of leaving their aches and pains in the hot mineral water.

Belief in the therapeutic properties of such water dates to the time when early Greek physicians used mineral water extensively in their treatments.

Some historians believe the hot springs of Arkansas were the "fountains of youth" of early American legend.

Marlin residents became part of the mineral water legacy in 1893 — totally by accident, Smithwich said.

"There's an old story — I don't know how true it is — that when they drilled the well they were looking for drinking water for the town," he said. "But when it (the well) blew out it was this bad-tasting water.

"The townspeople were disappointed and just let it run down the steets into the gutter," he said.

"Well, supposedly somebody with a real bad skin condition got to sitting in it (the water) and soaking their feet in it, and it cured them. And that's how they say it all got started."

After the water was discovered, Marlin began to grow rapidly as a resort city.

Four sanatariums were soon built, and several hotels sprouted under the rain of tourist money.

The flow of people to Marlin's baths slowed to a trickle, however, as the Depression began to focus people's attention more on their next meals than on their arthritis.

One of Marlin's four bathhouses managed to survive the economic problems of the 1930s and 1940s.

Since that time, Marlin has based its welfare on more than tourism, but has not recovered the boom-town atmosphere of its early days, Smithwich said.

With the proper advertising and restoration, the city's mineral water could again become a major tourist draw, he said.

"It could be better than it ever was — even back in the old days," Smithwich said.

Earlier, the mineral water was enough to entice Conrad Hilton to build his eighth hotel in Marlin. But it went bankrupt in 1934.

Mineral baths brought the New York Giants baseball team, which had its spring training grounds in Marlin during the team's glory years, 1902-1932, when it won the National Baseball League pennant 10 times and the World Series three times.

Smithwich bought the bathhouse and former Hilton Hotel, which sits across the street, in 1968. The wealthy rancher said he sold it in 1977, and recovered it in 1980.

He then began a major restoration and remodeling program both at the hotel and in the bathhouse. Smithwich said business has picked up considerably since the bathhouse was reopened in August.

Falls Health Spa now offers male and female customers separate weight rooms and bath facilities. An aerobic dance class is taught at night.

Many frequenters of the spa, most of them older people, still go for relief of their arthritis, rheumatism and other ailments, Smithwich said. Younger people are beginning to bathe there for a different reason.

"We're beginning to get businessmen here from Dallas and Houston who just come to spend a weekend and relax, and they go back to their jobs feeling a lot better," he said.

That appeal, the baths' relaxing air and soothing effects, may be the basis for the hoped-for business boom, Smithwich said.

"We're about half a tank of gas from six major cities," he said. "There are literally millions of people that we're right at their doorstep.

"Many of these people are looking for relaxation, a place to get away from it. I think someday it's going to be the making of Marlin being a big resort."

Budget cuts threaten weather-data station

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP) — The clustered satellite receiving dishes on Virginia's Eastern Shore dwarf the plain, brick building where government technicians gather the raw data that feeds the nightly weather forecasts.

For 18 years they have worked in near anonymity, collecting pieces of the Earth's weather mosaic for those who hope to predict what will happen tomorrow.

But now the Command and Data Acquisition Station at Wallops Island is threatened by a Reagan administration plan to sell the nation's weather satellites to private companies.

The plan announced in March could close the isolated station about 10 miles from the Maryland state line and throw its 105 National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration employees out of work.

The administration contends the move could save taxpayer money and reduce government involvement in a field where it believes private enterprise could operate more efficiently. The station's staff disagrees.

"It makes us annoyed when someone says he can do it better," said David Beatty, an engineer responsible for training the station's technical staff.

"We're manned with some dedicated civil service employees. We think we're doing a good job," said station manager Russell R. Vollmers.

The station, and a similar one in Fairbanks, Alaska, keep track of satellites taking pictures of the Earth's cloud cover.

In 1982, Vollmers noted, the station recovered 99.2 percent of the information it was asked to retrieve from its two polar satellites.

The information is relayed to a government computer center in Suitland, Md. From there it goes to the National Weather Service in Washington, which distributes the photographs and weather maps shown on nightly television weather forecasts.

In addition to the polar satellites, which move in a nearly polar orbit 540 miles above the Earth, the Wallops Island station also monitors two geostationary satellites, which stay 22,300 miles above one spot by matching the speed of the Earth's rotation.

These satellites are particularly useful in tracking a tornado or hurricane, Beatty said. While the polar satellites scan a local storm system only once every 12 hours, the geostationary satellites can provide pictures of a specific area every half hour.

The station, with a $4 million annual budget, has operated 24 hours a day, seven days a week, since it opened in 1965.

During the Carter administration it had as many as 121 employees, but Reagan budget cuts have reduced the staff.

Although the National Weather Service is the station's prime customer, it also gathers information used by the Departments of Agriculture, Defense, Energy and the Interior.

Industries, universities, state agencies and other countries use data gathered by the satellites.

For example, the satellites can track the Gulf Stream, providing information shipping companies can use to plot their ships' courses, Beatty said.

Companies engaged in mineral or oil exploration pay to have the satellites track data from the companies' ground sensors, he said.

The Wallops Island employees pride themselves on repairing and calibrating their own equipment, making the station a self-sufficient operation and avoiding work delays that breakdowns otherwise would cause.

"Most of the people out there can do just about anything on the equipment," Vollmers said.

The station still employs 20 of its original 50 staffers, he said.

Peggy Ward, a 17-year employee of the station, said too many people believe the government workers have it easy.

"If they commercialize this place," she said, "they'll find out what we're doing."

NOAA said it is acting on the assumption it needs congressional approval before it sells the satellites, and the Senate has passed a resolution prohibiting any sale without its blessing. Hearings already have been held in the House on the issue and more are planned there and in the Senate.

The administration has sought to assure worried House members that the nation's weather service would not be affected by the proposed sale.

"I want to make this absolutely clear. We are not dismantling, disbanding, selling or in any way harming the National Weather Service," said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, whose department operates the satellites.

Water bills to get more action

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Senate Subcommittee on Water has sent four measures dealing with the Senate's "Water for Texans Program" to the Natural Resources Committee for further action.

The package includes a proposed constitutional amendment, SJR 41, and enabling legislation, SB 1309, sponsored by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, which would authorize the issuance of $200 million in state general obligation bonds to create an agricultural water conservation fund, and authorize loans for agricultural water conservation investments.

SB 895, sponsored by Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, and SJR 40, sponsored by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, also were sent to the full committee.

SB 895 relates to protecting and conserving fresh water in connection with activities associated with oil and natural gas exploration.

SJR 40 is a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of an additional $300 million of Texas Water Development Bonds.

Microfilm legislation approved

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House of Representatives gave tentative approval Wednesday to legislation by Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, relating to microfilm preservation of records made or received by local governments.

The bill would allow the State Library and Archives Commission to accept donations to build and operate microfilm-storage facilities and would create a microfilming service within the commission to assist local governments with copying and storing records.

An analysis of the bill notes there are some 24,000 archival depositories around Texas but all are running out of space to store local records of historical, legal and other research value.

The bill was approved by the House with no apparent opposition, following a brief explanation by Gibson.

Work bids being accepted

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation will accept bids until 9 a.m. May 10 on an estimated $63,000 worth of overpass repair work at the U.S. 385 overpass at State Highway 158 in Ector County.

The project is estimated to take 45 working days to complete.

Project engineer is Vernon Wilkinson of Odessa.

THE BETTER HALF

"I warned you—never go grocery shopping before you've had dinner!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, May 1, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This was the birthdate of World War II General Mark Clark, Arkansas Governor Winthrop Rockefeller and artist George Inness. Also sharing your birthday: actor Glenn Ford, author Joseph Heller, former Tonight Show host Jack Paar, singers Judy Collins and Rita Coolidge and Kate Smith—who made "God Bless America" a second national anthem. You could be the power behind the throne in the months ahead. Think it over. Would you rather be out front taking the bows or behind the scenes pulling strings? Although money is easier to come by now, expenses are on the rise. Business travel enjoys favorable influences.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You find an opportunity to get a family project off the ground today. A child's good work should not go unnoticed. An explosive romantic situation needs to be brought under control.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You are in good spirits today and ready to follow loved one's suggestions. Do something that will increase the value and beauty of your home. Romance rolls merrily along.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Romance is happier for singles than for married couples. A lack of money slows things down. Look for new outlets for your energies. Do what you can to help mate unwind.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Immerse yourself in a useful, creative project that will benefit the whole family. Sports activity is favored. Friends seek advice. Be a good listener.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Romance brings new sunshine into your life. Those who have been giving serious thought to marriage should not delay. Partner is in a receptive mood.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A particularly rewarding day for those who are in love. Make good use of your artistic talents. A phone call cheers a relative who feels down in the dumps.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Steer clear of an argumentative relative at a family get-together. He/she will try to stir up trouble. Think about returning to school. New social doors open to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Show your faith in a friend. Romance should be set aside until you set things straight within the family circle. The answers you need are at hand. Control your temper.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An unconventional approach helps you solve a financial problem. Family members are sympathetic but short of cash. Touch base with someone from your past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ignore those individuals who talk about you behind your back. Romance could be on a collision course with family interests. Curb entertainment expenses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discuss a problem only with those who are directly involved. A leisure-time idea tickles your fancy. Set ground rules for children and insist they be obeyed.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Reviving a romantic relationship will not be easy, but it is worth a try. Your optimism is contagious. A mother gets a pleasant surprise when her child returns home from college.

'Angels' make movie

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — One definition of a nightmare, the old joke goes, is having your car horn get stuck when you're driving behind a pack of Hells Angels.

"That's probably a pretty good representation of how people see us," says long-time Angel Sonny Barger, president of the group's Oakland chapter.

"But we're just a bunch of guys who like motorcycles and like to hang around together," he said.

BARGER, 44, and Sandy Alexander, 40, founding president of the group's New York City chapter, were in town for the world premiere of "Hells Angels Forever," a movie on the renegade bikers group.

Why San Antonio for the premiere?

"I don't know," shrugged Alexander, who works as an actor and stuntman. "We hear the Southwest is a good market for biker films."

ALEXANDER dreamed up the idea for "Hells Angels Forever" in 1972, acted as co-producer and is featured in the film.

"It's the first Hells Angels movie that isn't a Hollywood script," Barger said. "It's the first time we get to show our side of it."

The 90-minute movie, in Dolby stereo, also showcases country stars Willie Nelson and Johnny Paycheck, rhythm and blues artist Bo Diddley and Jerry Garcia of The Grateful Dead.

The Hells Angels started in San Bernardino, Calif., in 1947, but both men refuse to say how many members or chapters now exist.

"Why should we help the government out?" Barger said. "Why not let them figure out how many Hells Angels there are? The police call it a gang... We call it a club."

Barger, who said he works in a health club, spent almost six years in a California prison for possession of heroin.

"We're the easiest ones to frame," he said, gesturing at himself and Alexander. "Our names are in the papers all the time.

"They've got rising crime in the United States and they (the government) can't do anything about it," he said. "But when they throw a few of us in jail, everyone feels better. They take groups like us and bring up outrageous charges."

FCC may run out of channels

WASHINGTON (AP) — If a current trend continues, the Federal Communications Commission will run out of vacant commercial TV channels in the nation's 100 largest cities in less than two years, a report shows.

The report, produced semi-annually by the FCC's Mass Media Bureau, shows the number of available channels allocated for regular commercial use in the largest cities declined from a total of 43 to 31 during the six months ending last Dec. 31.

The FCC has allocated a total of 619 VHF and UHF television channels to those 100 cities, the report shows, and 588 were either in use or had already been applied for as of Dec. 31.

Unless the commission decides to change its technical standards, there is little likelihood of many new channels being assigned to the top 100 cities.

The FCC's report, entitled "Television Channel Utilization," deals only with TV channels that have been assigned to cities for regular full-power use. It does not attempt to track the number of vacant TV channels available for low-power TV stations, which have a very limited operating range.

Glenn seeks advice from Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Sen. John Glenn met privately with former President Carter on Friday to seek "counsel and advice" for his bid for the presidency in 1984.

The former president emerged from the two-hour meeting at his home to say he would support the Ohio Democrat if he is the party's nominee, but said it would be "inappropriate" for him to get involved in the campaign before a nominee is selected.

Calling Glenn "a longtime friend," Carter added, "Senator Glenn supported me in my campaign and I intend to support him if he's nominated."

Before Glenn's arrival, Carter told reporters he "might express a preference" in the Democratic race but would not campaign actively for any candidate.

7-year-old boy wins $70,000 suit

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — A 7-year-old boy who sued his former adoptive parents for immersing him in scalding bath water, causing first- and second-degree burns, has been awarded $70,000 in a court settlement.

John and Betty Downey of San Carlos, accused of battery and negligence in a lawsuit filed on behalf of the boy, Timothy, agreed Monday to pay the sum. The money will be placed in a trust fund until Timothy turns 18.

According to court records, Timothy suffered first-degree burns on 60 percent of his body in January 1981 when the Downeys forced him to stay in a scalding bath.

Jury rules dog killed by accident

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A savings-and-loan executive who severely mangled a neighbor's dog with a lawn mower ran over the pet by accident, a jury in a civil case has decided.

The Pinellas County jury ruled Thursday that M. John Roess, 44, didn't have to pay any money to his neighbor, Wilfred H. Cundiff, for the loss of 12-year-old Sonny, a barkless African basenji.

Roess claimed he was only trying to shoo the dog away from his property as he mowed his lawn on Nov. 2, 1981. After chasing Sonny behind a bush with his riding mower, Roess said, he stopped the machine, thinking it was in neutral.

Teens admit to raping, killing lady

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three teen-age gang members from Watts have admitted abducting a postal worker, raping her repeatedly, then murdering her by shooting her in the head.

Bobby Appleberry, 19, and Barry Lee Brookins and Ernest Grandberry, both 18, pleaded guilty Thursday to first-degree murder, rape in concert and other charges.

The victim, 40-year-old Colleen Hawkins of Compton, had been talking with a co-worker in his car at a park last Feb. 16 when the armed teen-agers approached, prosecutors said.

Men die from oil-tank fumes

LAKEWOOD, N.M. (AP) — Two men died after they apparently were overcome by fumes in a tank used to hold spilloff from drilling activities in oil fields, authorities said Friday.

The bodies of James Lewis, 52, and Donald Kornegay, 55, both of Artesia, were found Thursday by a truck driver, Eddy County Sheriff Jack Childress said.

The men died Thursday between 10 a.m. and 12:35 p.m., when the bodies were found in the tank four miles northeast of Lakewood, Childress said.

Man jailed for assaulting former CIA director

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man charged with assaulting former CIA Director Stansfield Turner at a House hearing was ordered jailed Friday for 10 days after a judge ruled he violated probation.

Harry Zain, who was led away by a U.S. marshal in the city's Superior Court, was on probation for unlawfully entering a Senate hearing last December.

"You have broken faith with this judge," said Judge Byron Sorrell, who imposed unusual probationary conditions upon Zain after the Senate incident.

The judge ordered Zain last March not to communicate with public officials in person or by telephone for the next two years, not to send them letters, and to refrain from entering areas of the Capitol reserved for committee witnesses and members of Congress.

Zain, who has lived in Charleston, W.Va., has crusaded across that state and in Washington against abortion and in favor of lowering the marriage age for girls to 12.

On Wednesday, Zain grabbed Turner's arm as he was starting to address a House armed services subcommittee.

Zain announced to Turner and startled spectators and congressmen he was making a "citizen's arrest" charging Turner with the deaths of Sen. Lee Metcalf, Rep. John M. Slack, and Sarai Ribicoff, a niece of former Sen. Abraham Ribicoff.

Metcalf, D-Mont., died of apparent heart failure on Jan. 12, 1978, in Helena, Mont.; Slack, D.W.Va., died of an apparent heart attack in Alexandria, Va., March 17, 1980; and Ms. Ribicoff was murdered during a holdup in Los Angeles on Nov. 12, 1980.

Zain, acting as his own lawyer, said his right to make a "citizen's arrest" took precedence over the right of U.S. Capitol police to charge him with simple assault and unlawful conduct on the Capitol grounds. Zain pleaded innocent to both charges, misdemeanors that each carries a maximum one year in prison.

"You might trifle with senators and congressmen. But the court will become judicially impotent if this judge permitted you to walk free at this time."

When he was sentenced last March for refusing to leave a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sorrell gave him a 10-day suspended sentence in addition to the other restrictions, and placed him on two years of supervised probation.

It was that 10-day sentence that Sorrell ordered Zain to serve.

'These are the times that try Washington's soul'

CHICAGO (AP) — After winning what he called Chicago's "most trying election" Harold Washington claims City Hall on Friday as the city's first black mayor. But for Washington, the trying times may just be starting.

Like most big-city mayors, Washington will grapple with powerful municipal unions demanding more pay, school bills piling up at an alarming rate and buses and trains that don't get enough from tokens to pay their way.

Like the first black mayors of New Orleans, Detroit or Atlanta, Washington also will confront racial fears — aggravated by a bitter, dirty campaign and his own appeal to blacks that "It's our turn."

And, like the woman he succeeds, Jane M. Byrne, the two-term congressman who campaigned as an outsider will enter a sometimes hostile political environment. Unlike Mrs. Byrne, Washington has not embraced the Old Guard, saying instead that he will be a reformer.

"He does not have a rosy start," says Louis Masotti, an urban affairs professor at Northwestern University who headed Mrs. Byrne's transition team four years ago.

Washington, 61, won with the near-unanimous support of blacks — who make up 40 percent of the population. They will expect a greater voice in City Hall and more attention for their neighborhoods, parks and schools.

At the same time, whites will want reassurance. Less than one in five voted for Washington. Some fear he'll take their patronage jobs, others fear he'll put low-income housing in their neighborhoods.

"What you're going to see for the immediate future is some delicate tightrope walking as a black mayor tries to convince his constituents he's got to be realistic and convince whites he's not going to destroy their services," said Masotti. "He's got a tough job."

The job is tough enough. Since 1970, Chicago has lost an average of 14,000 jobs, 200 factories and 500 shops each year. Employment fell by 20,000 during the first two years of the Byrne administration. Unemployment stood at 12.4 percent in Chicago in February; black unemployment has been estimated at 25 percent.

Mrs. Byrne says she is leaving the city in good shape. Bond rating agents, who determine the credit of cities and corporations, rate economically diversified Chicago favorably but not at the top.

Among immediate concerns are the city's perennial financial crises — an ailing public school system with a projected $202 million deficit and a regional transit agency with a potential deficit of more than $100 million.

Neither is in the city's $2 billion budget, but both have long been considered the mayor's domain.

Washington's advisers claim expenditures will exceed revenues by $120 million in the budget year ending Dec. 31. In addition, the federal government is demanding the city return $28 million in community development funds it says were misused by Mrs. Byrne to meet school deficits and finance temporary part-time jobs during her reelection campaign.

During the campaign, Washington did not propose any costly new programs — nor did he talk about the possibility of cutting budgets. Instead, he said the state should increase its aid to the city.

But last week, after visiting Springfield to urge a hike in the state income tax, he concluded that state finances are "much, much worse than I thought" and that little help could be expected there.

Gov. James R. Thompson has proposed a $1.9 billion increase, which would generate about $30 million for Chicago public schools and provide money to overcome the transit authority's deficit.

Washington also faces powerful city unions whose contracts expire soon, including public school teachers who supported his campaign. The teachers' contract, which expires late this summer, provided no pay raises this year.

The transit workers' contract expires next year.

Student finally completes school

WILLINGBORO, N.J. (AP) — When Donald Scarry began attending Rutgers University, crew cuts were in style, freshmen wore beanies and Dwight D. Eisenhower was in the White House.

Twenty-four years, four college campuses and four night-school degrees later, Scarry is finished with his education and ready to catch up on all the novels and TV shows he's missed over the years.

He spent 17 of those years taking courses, and most of the time he was also teaching. Or working. Or both.

"For a year, I plan to do nothing except work at the job that I'm at. That, to me, would be a real luxury. And then I would like to teach; keep my job and teach part-time," said Scarry, now research director to the New Jersey Business and Industry Association.

He worked on his doctoral dissertation while teaching at Western Kentucky University from 1967 to 1969. Then he moved back to New Jersey for a classroom job at Rutgers' New Brunswick campus and received his Ph.D. in 1972.

Three Walesa aides detained

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish authorities detained several aides to Lech Walesa Friday and warned he faces an investigation into his personal finances.

"They are harassing my friends because they want me to be lonely," Walesa said by telephone from his apartment in Gdansk. "But they don't realize how many friends I have and how faithful they are."

Police detained Walesa's bodyguard, Henryk Mazul, his secretary, Bozena Rybicka, and her husband, Maciej Grzywaczewski, according to spokesmen at the Walesa household.

Soviet unsure about arms talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Soviet Ambassador Victor Issraelyan said Friday he does not share U.S. optimism that substantial progress is near in the 10-year-old multilateral talks on a chemical arms ban.

"Americans show more interest in (banning) chemical arms than in anything else," Issraelyan told reporters when asked about comments by U.S. chief delegate Louis G. Fields Jr. at a press conference Thursday. "I am not optimistic."

Fields had explained his optimism was based on indications of greater Soviet flexibility in the debate on how to ensure compliance with a future treaty. The talks have been stalemated for years because of disagreement over the issue of verification.

Trade chief: Economies recovering

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — U.S. trade chief William Brock and his Canadian, Japanese and Common Market counterparts said Friday the world is moving "towards economic recovery."

They added that in two days of informal talks, they agreed on the need to fight protectionist sentiments to "enhance the prospects for global recovery."

The officials said since their last meeting in February in Tokyo several positive factors, such as lower inflation rates and oil prices, "have made it possible to move towards economic recovery."

But they cautioned, "At the same time the debt burden of developing countries continues to be a major problem for the global economy."

French students protest government's policies

PARIS (AP) — About 8,000 people staged a three-hour march through the Left Bank district Friday to protest the government's educational policies. The demonstration ended with a bloody clash between masked students and police.

Police said most of the marchers dispersed peacefully, and the battles broke out when about 200 protesters, their faces masked with scarves, tried to storm across the ornate Alexandre III bridge that spans the Seine River and leads to the Champs-Elysees on the Right Bank.

Spokesmen for the police and demonstrators said at least 30 officers and seven students were injured in the melee and there were 40 arrests.

A spokesman for the students said two of the injured marchers were hospitalized. Authorities said the police suffered only minor injuries.

It was the third day of student protests in Paris and other cities against the Socialist government of President Francois Mitterrand. The demonstrators oppose plans to tighten educational requirements, reducing the number of students, and give authorities more control over the classrooms.

Friday's demonstration started in the Latin Quarter on the Boulevard Saint-Michel near Sorbonne University. The students wound through the narrow streets of the Left Bank, long a center of disaffected intellectuals, to the Esplanade des Invalides, the large plaza in front of Napoleon's Tomb.

Many left at that point, but about 3,000 remained, shouting insults at the hundeds of policemen blocking the bridge and at Education Minister Alain Savary, who announced the proposed reforms in October.

"You know what you can do with your reform program!" the students chanted.

At one point, about 200 masked militants raced to a nearby construction site and grabbed rocks to hurl at the policemen, equipped with helmets, shields and riot batons.

Police were under orders to use restraint, following complaints that too much force was used in a clash with students outside the National Assembly Wednesday, and they waited about 20 minutes before firing tear gas into the crowd.

Officers pursued bands of youths through the side streets and as night fell small groups of students roamed through the city, throwing rocks at police and yelling insults. Many of the smaller scuffles occurred in the Latin Quarter, which received that name in the 13th century when many students spoke Latin in the streets.

The growing student protests come during a period of trouble for Mitterrand, whose popularity has slipped to its lowest point since his Socialist victory in May 1981 ended 23 years of conservative rule in France.

Savary's reform program would make the university system more competitive by preventing the lowest-ranking students from going past the second year of studies.

Government officials have said they want to improve the quality of education and ease overcrowding in school programs and job markets. The students contend the proposasls would rob universities of their independence.

Spurs jingle, jangle

Moore's 3-pointer nips Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets had given San Antonio point guard Johnny Moore the outside shot all evening, daring Moore to shoot while their defense collapsed on the inside. Although not known as a perimeter shooter, Moore just kept connecting and finally buried the Nuggets with a three-point basket.

Moore's clincher, with 12 seconds remaining in overtime, capped a career-high 39-point performance and led San Antonio to a 127-126 National Basketball Association playoff victory Friday night.

San Antonio now holds a commanding 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series. Game 4 is scheduled here Monday night.

"I wouldn't say we're dead yet," said Denver Coach Doug Moe. "We're more like someone buried alive who is hoping someone can find us."

Two free throws by Kiki Vandeweghe had given Dennver a 126-124 lead with 25 seconds to go in overtime. San Antonio then called time out.

"We talked about shooting a three-pointer in the huddle, but we first wanted to work it inside to Artis (Gilmore)," said Spurs coach Stan Albeck. "I said if you have a solid three-pointer, go ahead and shoot it. Johnny Moore is a very gutsy player. He never quits.

"This series isn't over yet. We still have to win one more game. But I like our position better than theirs."

Moore said Mike Dunleavy, the league's best three-point shooter, was the first choice to take the three-point attempt. But Denver brought in 6-7 Bill Hanzlik to guard the 6-3 Dunleavy, making it difficult for Dunleavy to get off a shot.

"When I got the ball," Moore said, "I saw I was so far out that I might as well step back and take the three. I wanted that shot. As soon as I let it go, I could tell it was in. I've been shooting with confidence and I really wanted that last one."

Moore, who averaged only 12 points a game during the regular season, now has scored 24, 26 and 39 points in three playoff games. He also has dished out 17, 20 and 12 assists, with the 20 representing an NBA playoff record.

After his three-pointer, Denver worked for a winning shot, but Dan Issel's long jumper bounced off the rim as time expired.

Neither team, 5th graf

Neither team led by more than five points until the final quarter. Denver led 35-33 after the opening quarter, 62-60 at the half and 94-90 after three quarters.

Alex English and Issel, both of whom were doubtful for the game because of injuries, sparked Denver to its biggest lead, 110-104, with 5:19 to go in the fourth quarter.

Maryland gives slap to Driesell

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Coach Lefty Driesell was reprimanded by the University of Maryland Friday and apologized to a student who claimed he tried to pressure her into dropping a complaint against one of his basketball players.

"Violations of university standards will not be tolerated," Chancellor John B. Slaughter said at a crowded press conference. He said Driesell's actions constituted conduct "unacceptable and contrary to my expectations for university personnel."

Slaughter also said the coach was given "instructions for his future conduct," but would not say what those instructions were.

THE DECISION to reprimand Driesell followed a month-long university inquiry into the matter, including interviews with 16 people, Slaughter said.

Driesell, who has coached at Maryland for 14 seasons, publicly apologized to the woman and admitted he telephoned her. But he said he never meant to harass her.

"At no time in this matter did I ever intend to harass or intimidate or mistreat anyone, and I don't believe I did," Driesell said. "I do realize some of my comments made in the heat of the moment were not appropriate and if my calls to the young woman upset her, I apologize."

The woman, who has not been identified, had filed a misconduct complaint with school officials against junior co-captain Herman Veal claiming he tried to force sexual attentions on her last fall.

A student judicial board heard the case and declared Veal ineligible two days before Maryland's last regular-season game.

Driesell admitted Friday he telephoned the student three times on March 4, the day he learned Veal was ineligible.

AFTER RECEIVING the phone calls, the woman complained to university officials that Driesell harassed her and that he said "her name would be dragged through the mud."

Slaughter, using information obtained from a faculty investigating committee, said that Driesell had known the student for more than a year.

Richard Dull, Maryland athletic director, said the student told the committee Driesell did not try to intimidate her.

But William Salmond, the student's attorney, said, "The effect of these calls on my client has been both real and devastating, contrary to the impression conveyed at the news conference. My client's previous contacts with Mr. Driesell were both infrequent and brief at best."

The faculty committee also found that Driesell had not been kept fully informed about the Veal incident. Driesell testified he believed the judicial process ended in December when Veal was kicked out of a campus dormatory, the committee reported Friday.

MC women near title

Chaps suffer no Region V casualties

By CHAD PUERLING
Sports Writer

Perfection.

It's the appropriate word to discribe the Midland College women's tennis team in the opening day of the Region V junior college tennis tournament at the MC courts.

After drawing first round byes, all four of the Chaparral ladies won their second round matches in straights sets.

"We couldn't be any better," MC tennis coach Leon Dulin said. "All our girls are in the finals."

Today's final round will be a showdown between Midland and McLennan College, both of which have eight points after yesterday's action. Cooke County is third with five.

LIZ ALVARADO and Therese Devine made things miserable for Cooke County as Alvarado eliminated Lisa Lovett, 7-5, 6-1, in Division I and Devine beat Kay Izzard, 6-4, 6-3, in Division IV.

Keeping in mind the tie, the victories by Kym Somerville and Jodi Wertenberger were made more important since their wins came over McLennan women.

In Division II, Somerville defeated Janet Wheeler, 6-2, 6-3, and Wertenberger took Kay Izzard, 6-4, 6-3, in Division III.

IN WHAT CAN best be described as a justified point system, each win is worth one point. But someone who gets a bye doesn't get any points unless they win their second round match, at which time they recieve two points (one for the bye and one for the win).

In the 11:00 a.m. finals, Midland College has all four women left, McLennan and Cooke County two each. South Plains and Odessa College have been eliminated.

The critical MC-McLennan matchups will have Alvarado facing Nandini Rangarajan and Devine taking on Tanya DeJong. Somerville and Wertenberger will tangle with Cooke County's Heidi Narbough and Linda Tanner for their respective division championships.

DOUBLES WILL be key to a team victory as the Midland and McLennan teams square off in semifinal action at 9 a.m. The Chaps haven't scored in doubles, again because of two first round byes. McLennan on the other hand won both their first round matches giving them two points.

Each match McLennan wins today gives them one point and leaves Midland empty handed. Each one Midland wins means two points for the Chaps.

"That point system could be costly because our number one doubles team is our weakest position," Dulin said. "We need to eliminate a McLennan girl (or team) somewhere."

Alvarado will team with Lynda Braynt to take on Rangarajan and Wheeler in Division I and the Wertenberger sisters, Jill and Kym, face DeJong and Gina Gistinger.

If Midland College wins the two second-round matches, it would wrap up the team title and a trip to Ocala, Fla., for the national junior college championships.

IN THE men's competition McLennan is the early leader with 11 points. Odessa College, the Western Junior College Athletic Conference champion, was hurt by the first round bye-followed by a loss, syndrome and finished the day with six points.

For Midland, Rick Fernandez was the only singles player to get beyond the opening round. Fernandez, playing in Division VI, drew a bye in the opening round then defeated Connor McCoullough of Cooke County for half of Midland's four points. He will play Chuck Lewis of McLennan in the finals.

With a victory, Fernandez will advance to nationals since all division winners in single and doubles qualify as well as the top two men's and women's teams.

Midland's Craig Anderson (Division I), Russ Coffee (Division II), George Schuldberg (Division IV) and Richey Houdek (Division V) all took straight set losses in the opening round.

Things went a little better in doubles as two Chaparral teams won first round matches. Anderson and Fernandez beat McLennan's Brown-Jeffries, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 and in Division III, Brown and Harwell defeated South Plains Elliot-Odell, 6-0, 6-4.

Going into today's final rounds, McLennan holds a two-point lead over Cooke County with New Mexico Military Insitute third with eight.

Lee-MHS: Mere atonement or layer by layer torture?

Following the first District 4-5A meeting between Midland High and Midland Lee earlier this month, Bulldog head coach Tim Whalen was heard to say, "Do you think that ole guy is going to skin me alive next time?"

Bulldog assistant coach Rick Wood replied, "No. I think he's going to peel you layer by layer."

Whalen agreed. He has a lot of respect for that "ole guy," Rebel head coach Ernie Johnson. Whalen knows that Johnson would like to get revenge after that 14-2 defeat.

Johnson's chance for revenge has arrived. Today, Lee hosts Midland High at 2 p.m., and Whalen expects the Rebels to use every trick in Johnson's book.

"When you play Ernie's team, you have to review everything from the sacrifice bunt to the squeeze and four different double steals," Whalen said Friday afternoon. "At least he had four when I was at Lee but he's probably got more by now."

Of all the coaches in the 4-5A, none knows Johnson better than Whalen. For 4½ years the two were cohorts on the diamond and spent a lot of their spare time together, "hunting and fishing." They talked a little baseball, too.

"I think we get along so well because we both like to get our revenge," joked Whalen. "We only hold grudges until we get our revenge.

"He dies hard. He's going to came after us. That wasn't a characteristic Lee team we beat. It should be a good ball game."

While Whalen sees revenge as a strong motive for the Rebels, Johnson is playing it down.

"We were stung pretty good then and we'd like to get them this time," said Johnson. "We'd rather use the word atone."

FOR MIDLAND HIGH, today's game will be the last one of the season. At 4-9, the Bulldogs have been eliminated from the state playoffs, but they would still like to go out in style.

"We would like to finish the season in the fashion that we expected to at the beginning of the year," said Whalen. "At the begining of the season, we expected it to be us and Lee playing for the title. Due to unforseen circumstances, we're playing for pride and Lee is getting ready for the playoffs."

Lee, with a 9-4 district record, has clinched a playoff berth and still has a shot at winning the 4-5A crown, depending on what San Angelo does today against Big Spring. The Bobcats have a 10-3 record.

"We've got to take care of our business and not worry about San Angelo," said Johnson. "We won six straight games at the start of the year but have won only three of seven since. I'd like to see us go into the playoffs at .500 (win four of the final eight games). We're ready to go. We won't have any excuses if we lose."

Both coaches are putting their best starting pitchers on the mound — Jose Carrasco for the Bulldogs and Craig Ray for the Rebels.

If it goes beyond the starters, Johnson should have the edge with Kerry Robertson and John Denton waiting in the bullpen. Pitching depth is not one of Midland High's stronger points.

"Craig Ray pitched the last game last year (against MHS) and he beat them," said Johnson. "If he pitches as good now as he did then, he'll beat them this year too because he pitched real good then."

Carrasco, who has seen 52 innings of duty in 13 district games, has lost a little zip on his curve ball but still has his coach's confidence. "He's getting a little tired but he told me he wants to pitch," said Whalen.

THE REBELS, with a .324 team batting average, have several .300-plus hitters led by Barry Blackwell at .523 and Steve Woodlee at .421. Dennis Matta, Sergio Ochoa, Ted Leps, Rob Walker and Darren Webb are all in the .300 range with 20 or more at bats.

Blackwell can go 0-for-2 and still finish at .500 but needs at least one hit in three or four at bats to hold the magic number. Beyond four at bats, the number of hits needed increases to two.

The return of Tim Davis to the MHS lineup has vastly improved the Bulldogs' power. Davis has collected eight hits for a .421 average since returning from the disabled list, including two home runs and two doubles. Even though he's played in only five league games, he's second on the team RBI list with 11.

Designated hitter Keith Clay moved to the top of the RBI list with his grand slam and two-run single Tuesday for 12 on the season. His average improved to .314. Jose Carrasco holds a .405 average and Wade Perry comes in at .306.

Banks hurls Cubs by Dodgers, 4-1

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland Cubs, behind the three-hit pitching of Darrel Banks, evened their series with the San Antonio Dodgers at one-game apiece here Friday night with a 4-1 victory.

Banks, who was working on a shutout through five innings before Tom Beyers doubled in the sixth inning to score Mark Sheehy, faced only 29 batters in recording his fourth win in five decisions.

The Cubs ended Dodger pitcher Ken Howell's shutout bid in the fifth inning, scoring one run and added solo tallies in the sixth, seventh and ninth frames.

Before leaving the game after seven innings of duty for reliever Shayne Hammond, Howell was working on a five-hitter, but had sent four Cubs to first base with walks that led to three of Midland's runs. Howell fell to 2-3 with the loss.

MIDLAND CATCHER George Borges led the Cubs' attack with two hits in three attempts, including a double while Bill Hatcher and Don Chaney collected doubles for their only hits of the game.

Hatcher, Tom Lombarski and Jim Walsh each drove in runs with their hits.

Banks walked only one batter in his near-perfect performance and struck out five Dodgers over his nine inning span. In a rare statistic, the Dodgers did not leave a runner on base and Midland had no double plays. Only four Dodgers reaced base safely all night against Banks. One scored and three others were cut down on the base paths.

Midland's victory leaves the Cubs in third place, 2½ games behind the Dodgers and one game away from .500 on the season with a record of 10-11. San Antonio is 13-9. The Cubs have three more games to play in San Antonio before returning to Midland Tuesday to face El Paso in a five-game stand. Following the El Paso series, the Cubs begin a 20-game swing through the East Division.

MCC partners close as usual

The Midland Country Club's annual Partnership golf tournament got off to its usual tight start Friday as two teams fired a 68 to grab the first day lead and five others are within two strokes of the lead.

John Shepperson and Jim Mundell paired for one set of 68 while Jobe Moss and Mike Williams matched that mark.

Bill Skeen and Dennis Sledge fired a 69, only one stroke off the pace heading into today's second round of play. Action runs through Sunday.

Randy Geiselman and Steve Whiteside, both former champions in this tournament, head the list at 70. Andy Shapira, a former champ, is teaming with Mark Branum and they also own 70.

Two more teams came in at 70 Friday. Turning the trick were the teams of Hensley-Jones and Snyder-Sewell. Four other teams came in at 71.

The four-man team of Staley, Tierce, McKinney and McKinney combined for a 54 to win Thursday's four-ball play.

Brant's 264 takes title

Helen Brant shot a 264 to win the low gross title for the 54-hole Hogan Park Women's Golf Association tournament this week.

Toni McMillaitook low net title with 202 while Florence Mailey won low putts with 99 and Martha Farris was second with 105.

Milwaukee up on Celtics, 2-0

BOSTON (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks, capitalizing on the absence of flu-stricken Larry Bird, rallied from a 15-point halftime deficit and whipped the Boston Celtics 95-91 Friday night to take a commanding 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal playoff.

Sidney Moncrief scored 20 points, Marques Johnson 19, Junior Bridgeman 17 and Bob Lanier 13 in leading the Bucks to their second triumph in a row in the best-of-seven series.

With Bird fighting a fever that reached 104 degrees at his home, the Celtics jolted the Bucks by taking a 28-22 lead after one period, and then building the advantage to as much as 17 points in the second quarter before settling for a 57-42 halftime lead.

However, Milwaukee withstood Boston's torrid shooting and threw up a tough defense that held the Celtics to 44 points after the intermission.

The Bucks closed to within 82-74 at the three-quarter mark, and then rallied for the victory.

Boston scored only four field goals in the final 12 minutes. Milwaukee pulled away from an 88-88 tie on a field goal by Lanier with three minutes remaining and held on the rest of the way.

Danny Ainge and Scott Wedman picked up the scoring slack in the absence of Bird. Ainge hit a career-high 25 points, all but two in the first half, while Wedman had 18.

Moncrief scored 14 of his points in the second half, while Johnson and Bridgeman had 9 each after the intermission.

Gallagher sets record

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — East Texas State's Mike Gallagher set a new meet record in the shot put and Angelo State's Tranel Hawkins set a meet standard for the 400 meter hurdles Friday in the first day of the Lone Star Conference track and field championships.

Rangers tote big guns

By The Associated Press

Dave Hostetler drove in three runs with two singles and Bobby Johnson added a three-run homer as the Texas Rangers drubbed the New York Yankees 8-3 Friday night.

The Rangers, who had scored only six runs in their previous 10 games, broke the game open with five runs in the fifth inning off New York starter Shane Rawley, 3-1, for a 7-1 lead.

With the bases loaded and two out, Hostetler singled to score two runs. Texas' designated hitter had been benched for three games after striking out 11 times in 17 at-bats. Johnson followed Hostetler with a towering shot into the left field stands to chase Rawley.

Winner Rick Honeycutt, 3-1, allowed one run and four hits in seven innings as his major league-leading earned run average dropped to 0.72. Jon Matlack yielded two runs in the ninth, one on a homer by Don Baylor.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on Honeycutt's balk with runners at second and third. The Rangers went in front 2-1 with two out in the third on Buddy Bell's single, Larry Parrish's RBI double and Hostetler's first single. Texas added a run in the seventh on consecutive doubles by Billy Sample and Bell.

New York Manager Billy Martin, who lost arguments with two different umpires in each of the first two innings, was ejected in the third. Martin yelled at plate umpire Drew Coble from the dugout and returned to the field with his cap on backward. After a few words, he was ejected for the second time this season. Martin kicked dirt on Coble as he left.

White Sox 9, Blue Jays 3

Ron Kittle slammed a three-run homer and Rudy Law doubled home two runs to pace the Chicago White Sox to a 9-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Kittle, a rookie, hit his fifth home run of the season and ran his RBI total to 19 to highlight a four-run seventh inning that the White Sox a 9-1 lead.

Chicago broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the fifth. Carlton Fisk singled, Vance Law beat out a bunt and loser Luis Leal, 0-3, walked Scott Fletcher to load the bases. Rudy Law, batting only .176 with just one previous RBI, drove in two with his double and Fletcher scored on a grounder by Tony Bernazard. Chicago added a run in the sixth on an RBI grounder by Fisk.

In the seventh, Bernazard doubled and scored on a double by Harold Baines. After Greg Luzinski was walked intentionally, Kittle followed with a towering shot over the center field fence off Roy Lee Jackson.

Winning pitcher Richard Dotson, 3-1, was relieved by Dick Tidrow at the start of the seventh inning. The only run off Dotson came on Willie Upshaw's first-inning homer. That made it 1-1. Chicago having scored in the top of the first on Bernazard's double and a single by Baines.

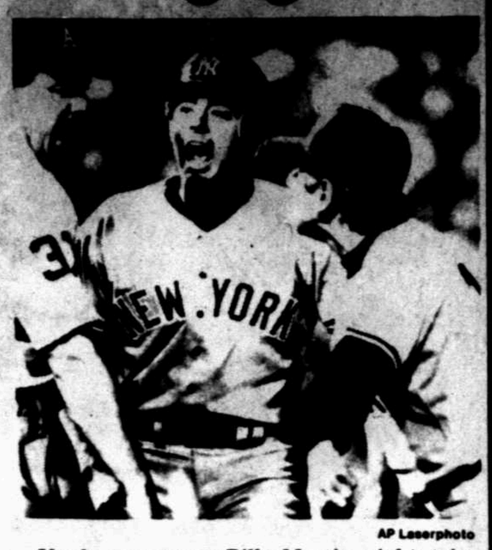

Toronto's Jesse Barfield and pinch hitter Mickey Klutts hit consecutive home runs off Tidrow in the seventh.

Royals 6, Indians 5

U.L. Washington's bases-loaded single through a drawn-in Cleveland infield in the 11th inning gave the Kansas City Royals a 6-5 victory over the Indians.

Andre Thornton had tied the score 5-5 against Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry in the ninth inning with the first home run by a Cleveland player in 15 games since April 9 and only the club's fifth of the season. It was Thornton's third.

Joe Simpson walked with one out in the Royals' 11th and went to third on a single by John Wathan. Loser Dan Spillner, 0-2, intentionally walked Willie Wilson, setting the stage for Washington. The winner was Mike Armstrong, 2-1, who pitched one inning.

Wathan triggered Kansas City's comeback from a 4-0 deficit with a leadoff double in the sixth and the Royals then strung together six straight singles.

The Indians took a 4-0 lead in the first inning off Vida Blue, who walked the bases full, surrendered a three-run triple to Pat Tabler and let Tabler score on a wild pitch.

Cleveland starter Len Barker cruised into the sixth with a two-hit shutout. After Wathan's double, Wilson, Washington and George Brett stroked singles, with Washington and Brett getting RBIs.

Juan Eichelberger, 0-1, relieved Barker with two runs home and runners at first and third and watched Hal McRae rip his first pitch for a run-scoring single. Brett scored on a single by Willie Aikens and Frank White singled McRae home with the fifth run.

Blue, 1-0, was relieved in the seventh by Quisenberry, who needed a lucky break to escape a bases-loaded jam. With runners at second and third and one out, Thornton was intentionally walked to load the bases. Tabler smacked a grounder in the hole between first and second, but the ball glanced off Thornton's leg on its way into right field. Thornton was out, the runners returned to their bases and Quisenberry ended the inning by getting Broderick Perkins on a grounder.

Twins 7, Brewers 4

Mickey Hatcher's first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the first inning, Gary Ward's two-run double and John Castino's two-run triple powered the Minnesota Twins to a 7-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Minnesota starter Brad Havens, 3-1, scattered six hits and allowed two runs before giving way to Len Whitehouse with one out in the eighth.

Minnesota jumped on top 2-0 against Bob McClure, 0-4, in the second inning when Gary Gaetti doubled and Hatcher homered.

The Brewers got one run in the fourth when Robin Yount singled, went to third on a throwing error by first baseman Kent Hrbek and scored when Ben Oglivie grounded out.

Cougars upset Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Third baseman Dan Larson hit a two-out triple in the top of the eighth to bring Houston to a 3-3 tie to aid the Cougars to a 4-3 win over No. 1 ranked Texas in Southwest Conference baseball play Friday.

Riley Epps followed with a single for the Cougars to cinch the win.

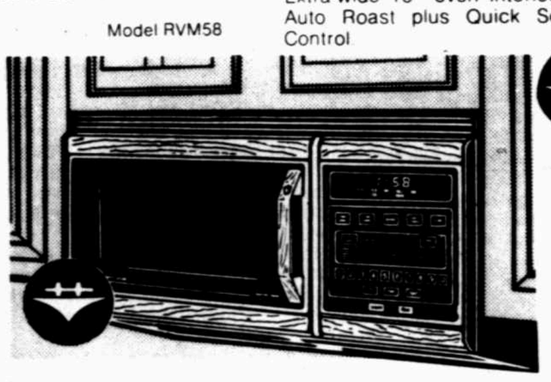

Texas first baseman Jose Tolentino hit a solo home run to break a 1-1 deadlock in the bottom of the sixth. The Longhorns added another run in the seventh as Mike Brumley hit a single with Bill Bates on second.

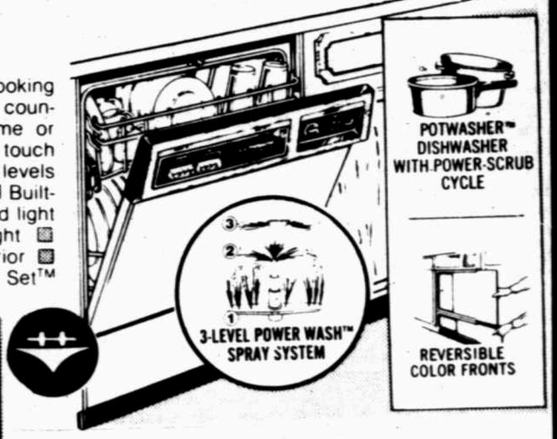

Larson delivered his triple after Raynor Noble singled with one out and Corkey Swindell singled with two outs. Doug Drabek, 12-2, picked up the win for the 41-12 Cougars.

Roger Clemens, 9-3, took the loss. Texas is 45-9 and 14-2 in SWC play. Houston is now 12-7 in conference.

Garner's single beats Carlton

By The Associated Press

National League

Phil Garner lined a two-run single with the bases loaded in the top of the 10th inning to lead the Houston Astros to a 6-3 win over the Philadelphia Phillies Friday night.

Reliever Frank LaCorte, 2-2, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the ninth, was the winner while Steve Carlton lost his second game in five decisions. Right-hander Bill Dawley retired the Phillies in the 10th inning.

Pinch-hitter Kevin Bass opened with a single. Carlton then struck out Omar Moreno but Tony Scott lined a single off third baseman Mike Schmidt's glove. Ron Reed then relieved Carlton and walked Dickie Thon, loading the bases. Garner then lined a one-two pitch to right center field for the game-winning hit. Jose Cruz then hit a sacrifice fly for the third Houston run of the inning.

Alan Ashby hit a two-out homer in the top of the ninth, his second of the year, to tie the score at 3-3.

The Phillies had loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth with one out before LaCorte struck out the last two batters.

Carlton struck out eight and walked two to increase his major league-leading total to 54. He now has 3,488 career strikeouts, trailing only Nolan Ryan's 3,509 and Walter Johnson's 3,508.

Mets 6, Braves 5

Mookie Wilson's seventh-inning homer, the third of the game for New York, snapped a 3-3 tie and sent the Mets to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

George Foster and Dave Kingman also homered for the Mets, who handed Atlanta right-hander Rick Camp his first defeat in four decisions this season.

Foster hit his third homer of the season to lead off the second, but the Braves came back with two runs against Mets right-hander Craig Swan in the third on a two-run single by Brett Butler. Chris Chambliss homered leading off the fifth to give the Braves a 3-1 lead.

The Mets scored an unearned run in the fifth on Atlanta shortstop Rafael Ramirez's error, and Kingman tied the score in the sixth with a two-out homer, his fourth.

With two out in the seventh, Wilson picked on an 0-2 delivery from Camp for his first homer of the season, and when Camp walked Hubie Brooks, the Braves brought in reliever Rick Mahler. Mahler walked Kingman and Foster to load the bases, and the Braves' third pitcher of the night, Terry Forster, gave the Mets their fifth run with a wild pitch.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3

Ken Landreaux, whose two-run home run in the sixth inning tied the game, doubled in the eighth and scored on a wild pitch by reliever Lee Smith to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Landreaux, who also had doubled in the first, opened the eighth with a double off loser Bill Campbell, 1-1, and went to third on a deep fly by Dusty Baker. Smith then relieved and uncorked his wild pitch as Landreaux scored the tie-breaking run.

Reliever Alejandro Pena, 3-1, picked up the victory.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a walk to Ryne Sandberg, singles by Larry Bowa and Leon Durham, and a sacrifice fly by Ron Cey.

Mike Marshall opened the Dodger fifth with his second homer, but the Cubs came back with one in the bottom half of the inning on successive doubles by pitcher Paul Moskau and Sandberg.

Moskau walked Steve Sax to open the Dodger sixth and Landreaux followed with his second homer to tie it at 3-3.

Expos 9, Reds 6

Tim Wallach emerged from a slump with two hits, including a two-run home run in a five-run first inning, and reliever Jeff Reardon got the last out in ninth-inning uprising to give the Montreal Expos a 9-6 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Wallach, who entered the game with a .176 average and with only one hit in his previous 15 at bats, belted his first homer off Reds starter Frank Pastore, 2-3. The homer provided Montreal with a 4-0 lead, and the Expos, who sent nine men to bat in the first, added another run in the inning when Warren Cromartie walked and Tim Blackwell followed with an RBI double.

Before Wallach's homer, Tim Raines scored on Andre Dawson's sacrifice fly. Raines, who had three hits and two walks, had walked and moved to third on a single by Bryan Little. Little, who alertly took second on the sacrifice fly, advanced to third on Al Oliver's single and scored on a passed ball by catcher Dann Bilardello.

Stars still shining bright

By The Associated Press

USFL Roundup

The Philadelphia Stars, who thus far have waltzed their way through the United States Football League, seek revenge today against the one team that stopped the music.

The Stars, 7-1, are in Tampa Bay to play the 6-2 Bandits in an 7 p.m., CDT, game that will be televised nationally by ESPN, the all-sports cable network. The Bandits handed the Stars their only loss, 27-22 on March 18 at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia.

In Sunday USFL games, Birmingham will be at Washington, Chicago at Los Angeles, Michigan at Boston and New Jersey at Denver. On Monday night, Arizona will play at Oakland.

Today's game marks a collision between Tampa Bay's pass-oriented offense and Philadelphia's "doghouse defense," which has limited opponents to 73 points in eight games and a touchdown or less in five of those eight.

"I've never been around a defense that comes through like this week after week after week," says Philadelphia Coach Jim Mora.

"We're really not a team that's going to flat out crunch you every time physically. We do give ground, but we somehow come up with a way to keep them out of the end of the end zone."

Jim Jordan is expected to continue as Tampa Bay's quarterback for the injured John Reaves. Jordan passed for 345 yards in last week's victory over Washington and wide reciever Eric Truvillion caught nine passes for 133 yards and all three of Jordan's touchdown passes.

The game in Los Angeles marks George Allen's return with the Chicago Blitz to a stadium where he coached the Rams to a 49-17-4 mark between 1966 and 1970. The Blitz, expected to be one of the USFL's powers, beat the New Jersey Generals 17-14 in overtime Monday night to make their record 5-3, a game behind Tampa Bay in the Central Division. The Express, who lost 20-14 to the Blitz in Chicago last month, are 4-4.

SWC fires ref Nesrsta

HOUSTON (AP) — The dean of Southwest Conference football officals says he has been fired because of his disputed call in the fourth quater of last year's Southern Methodist-Arkansas game.

"It's a rotten deal and it's unjustified," Horton Nesrsta told the Houston Chronicle in a story published Friday. "It's a form of intimidation for the officials next year. If they'll fire me over a call (Arkansas Coach) Lou Holtz doesn't like, the officials next year are going to darn sure know what can happen to them."

Holtz was in Atlanta and could not be reached for comment.

Nesrsta, a back judge with 21 years experience in the SWC, flagged Razorback cornerback Nathan Jones for pass interference on SMU quarterback Lance McIlhenny's attempt to throw a sideline bomb with less than five minutes to play.

THE MUSTANGS picked up 40 yards on the play to the Razorback 17. SMU took the ball in for the tying score, ending the game 17-17 and giving the Mustangs the conference title.

Holtz complained later that SMU receiver Jackie Wilson ran over Jones on the play. The call was criticized by reporters and Arkansas fans, but officials defended Nesrsta.

Hale leads Chap golfers at regional

WACO — Midland College's Emil Hale led three Chaparral freshman competing for medalist honors in the in the Region V junior college golf championships here.

Hale, a Lee graduate, got better every round as he shot 80-75-74 for a 229 total on the Lake Oaks Country Club Course.

Jeff Crawford had rounds of 76-74-83 for a 233 and Mike Schwartz shot 76-79-82 for a 237. None of the scores were good enough to finish in the top five but Midland Colege athletic director and golf coach Delnor Poss was pleased none the less.

Four in Legends hunt

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Australians Peter Thomson and Kel Nagle, bolstered by Thomson's seven-birdie binge which included five in a row on the back nine, locked the Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf into a four-way tie Friday with a best-ball 7-under par 63.

Thomson and Nagle joined the teams of Billy Casper and Gay Brewer, Jack Fleck and Fred Hawkins, and Roberto De Vicenzo and Rod Funseth at 10-under par 130 in the chase for the $100,000 first place prize.

Purtzer, Donald take Nelson Classic lead

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Purtzer and Mike Donald, taking advantage of a golf course that suddenly played easier, each shot a 7-under-par 64 and tied for the second-round lead Friday in the $400,000 Byron Nelson Classic.

Purtzer, whose lone tour victory came six years ago, and Donald, not yet a winner as a pro, completed 36 holes over the new Las Colinas Sports Center course in 135, seven strokes under par.

Lanny Wadkins, winner of last week's Tournament of Champions and the first-round leader here, managed a 69 despite an inconsistent putter and was a single stroke back at 136 at the tournament's halfway point.

"The course didn't play nearly as hard as it did yesterday," Wadkins said. "The winds were about 20 miles an hour less, and they had the tees up on some of the holes."

As an example, Wadkins said he birdied the first hole with a driver and pitching wedge Friday, and played the hole with a driver and 3-iron Thursday.

"I'm a little surprised I didn't shoot a little better," he said. "I just didn't make the putts. I played well. I'd like to think I could have scored a little better.

"But it happens. Sometimes the putts just don't fall."

Ed Fiori had a 66 and was tied with Wadkins at 136.

Mark Hayes and Brad Bryant were next at 137. Hayes shot a 67 in an occasionally drizzling rain and Bryant had a 68.

PGA champion Ray Floyd, who bridied his last hole for a 65, topped the group at 138, three back with 36 holes to go in the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

Also at 4 under par were Victor Regalado, John Fought, Mick Soli, David Edwards and Hal Sutton, winner of the Tournament Players Championship earlier this year. Sutton had a second-round 66, Regalado 67, Edwards and Fought 68 and Soli 69.

Stacy passes Whitworth

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hollis Stacy holds a one-stroke lead Friday over defending champion Kathy Whitworth after the second round of the $175,000-dollar CPC International women's golf tournament.

Stacy finished the round with a 1-under-par 71 for a two-day 138, 6 under par.

Whitworth shot a round of 70 and moved to 5-under 139 for the tournament. She was in second place Thursday at 3-under.

Stacy had moved up to a commanding 8-under-par lead before she suffered bogeys on the 17th and 18th holes.

"You have to take your bogeys and just take them, 'cause there's lot's of birdies out there," she said.

Local favorite Beth Daniel, who is from nearby Charleston, and Donna White were tied at 142. Daniel shot a 69 Friday and White had the best round of the day with a 4-under 68. Amy Alcott, who shot 71 Friday, and Janet Coles, who hit an even 72, were at 143. Patty Sheehan, Kathy Hite and Jan Stephenson were at 144.

Seventy-six golfers, including seven amateurs, are playing on the 6,200-yard Devil's Elbow golf course at Moss Creek Plantation.

Celtic playoff hopes jolted by Bird loss

The Boston Celtics' hopes of evening their playoff series with the Milwaukee Bucks were jolted Friday night when star forward Larry Bird was sidelined with a virus. Trainer Ray Melchiorre said that Bird was confined to his home in nearby Brookline with a temperature that reached 104 degrees. Bird, the Celtics' leader in virtually every category, was subpar Wednesday night when the Bucks walloped Boston 116-95 in the opening game of the NBA Eastern Conference semifinal.

Football

University of Tennessee punter John Warren signed with the Dallas Cowboys as a free agent, team officials said Friday. Warren was signed to a series of one-year contracts, said Cowboys spokesman Greg Aiello. Warren will report to training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif., on July 10.

Former Miami Dolphins running back Mercury Morris, imprisoned on a cocaine conviction, has been thrown for another loss, this time by the 3rd District Court of Appeal in a civil case. The court ruled Tuesday that Dade Circuit Judge Jack M. Turner was correct in withholding a $1 million jury award to Morris in a suit against a local garbage company. Morris won the civil judgment, which was reduced to $500,000 because the jury found him 50 percent negligent, in Turner's court last year.

Golf

Miller Barber, winner of $106,890 last year, was honored as Golf Digest's Senior Player of the Year Friday at the Legends of Golf tournament in Austin, Texas, where he is playing. Barber, 52, won four events in 1982, his second year of competition on the PGA Senior Tour. His biggest victory came last March when he edged Arnold Palmer by one shot to take the $40,000 top prize at the Vintage Invitational.

Baseball

Carl Yastrzemski, 43-year-old Boston Red Sox captain, was given hospital traction and physical therapy today after leaving the team earlier in the week with painful back spasms. Team physician Arthur Pappas said no surgery was planned but it wasn't known how long the veteran slugger would be hospitalized, according to Sara Patten, spokeswoman for University of Massachusetts Medical Center. Yastrzemski missed Tuesday's game against the Mariners in Seattle and said he woke up Wednesday in considerable pain.

Frustrated writers: Here's a chance to rewrite the Bard

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent

Mulligan's Stew

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — "All the world's a stage," as that master psychologist and media megastar William Shakespeare allowed, and now's your chance to get into the act.

Heigh-ho. Forsooth. To wit. Enter all with torches, tapers and typewriters.

Mulligan's Stew's fourth annual "Do It Yourself With a Bare Bodkin" contest takes you to another part of the forest and beseeches you to update the language of one of the Bard's meatiest (high ham content) soliloquies from his happiest comedy.

In previous premediated assaults on the linguistic riches of the Elizabethan age, readers by the hundreds have rushed in where purists dare to tread and provided souped-up mod versions of Romeo and Juliet's balcony scene, Mark Antony's funeral oration for Julius Caesar and Hamlet's "To be or not to be" suicidal ponderings.

Ripped untimely from their Stratford settings, the four centuries-old tragedies became even more tragic when parodied in the parlance of Rodney Dangerfield, John Wayne, CB broadcast chatter or whatever occurred to the irreverent rewriters trying to render the stanzas more relevant to our times.

HEY NONNY-NONNY (updated to "here's Johnny"), the chance has come to yuk up one of the comedies.

So if "As You Like It" is not as you like it, this year's contest provides the opportunity to recycle its archaic iambics into the punchier, more with-it phraseology of the computer age or perhaps the sensual script-tease of the daytime TV soaps and the inane prattle of the prime-time sitcoms.

Specifically, readers are invited to shake up Shakespeare's famous "seven ages of man" speech in Scene Seven, Act II, of "As You Like It," which begins with the familiar:

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being the seven ages of man."

FROM THERE, the Bard swiftly and satirically sketches our average life span, beginning as an "infant, mewling and puking in the nurse's arms" and ending up "this strange eventful history" in second childhood "sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything."

This totally awesome picture of our passage through life may seem beyond the vulgate of today's Valley Girls or the zap and pow monosyllabic utterances of those whose vision of the future is framed in a Pac-Man screen, but it has been the inspiration for a number of famous parodies, over the centuries.

Not all have been humorous. Some, in fact, have been savagely serious.

Malcolm Muggeridge in the second volume of his memoirs, "Chronicles of Wasted Time," mimicks this Shakesperian soliloquy to attack our age's preoccupation with sex, which he sums up as "the seven ages of lechery":

"THE PIMPLY schoolboy creeping willingly into his sex-instruction classes; then the youthful, zestful sex-instructed lover. After him the grown man, bearded like the pard, twin-slitted coat, motel habitue, with contraceptives to hand, stoking up nature's fires with bottled ones; followed by the seasoned veteran, round-bellied, full of wise saws and modern instances culled from his (James) Bond, his Clockwork Orange, his Last Tango (in Paris). Finally, the lean and slippered pantaloon, with spectacles on nose, squinting into his TV screen; and the last scene of all, a second childishness and mere oblivion, sans teeth, sans taste, sans everything; even — the ultimate desolation — sans telly."

CLOSING DATE for this year's audacious assault on Shakespeare is June 15.

In previous contests, authors of the five best parodies received a cassette of the columnist reading from his award winning works. This year, since I have joined "The Players," a New York club for actors, journalists and similar keepers of the cultural flame founded by Edwin Booth, the great tragedian, I am going to ask some of my colleagues who have trod the boards professionally to speak the speeches chosen by our judges, who with their usual courage prefer to remain anonymous.

As the Bard bids us then in "As You Like It," let us by the earliest post have "the retort courteous...the quip modest... the reply churlish..."

Bonanno writes about 'family' life

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Reputed underworld leader Joseph Bonanno Sr. says he made his living as a "venture capitalist," investing in various businesses at the request of others, and retired to Tucson to "leave my reputation behind."

But he says in his new autobiography that law officers here victimized him in a "Grand Inquisition."

In "A Man of Honor, The Autobiography of Joseph Bonanno," Bonanno, 78, whom the FBI calls a semi-retired but still-powerful crime syndicate figure, describes his life in "the Family." He also talks about his move to Tucson, where he has lived since 1968 and intends to be buried, and years of alleged illegal harassment by authorities.

The book, written with former reporter Sergio Lally, tells of growing up in Italy, illegally entering the United States and setting up his "family" in New York City.

Bonanno says he decided to retire here after his third heart attack, but that his retirement "turned into an inferno."

"I repaired to Tucson thinking that perhaps I might leave my reputation behind," the book says. "I voluntarily came to Arizona to get away from my world and not to establish a branch of it in Tucson...There has never been what Americans call a 'crime family' in Tucson."

Bonanno discusses many friends in Tucson, particularly a well-known relationship with retired Arizona Supreme Court Justice Evo DeConcini, father of U.S. Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Bonanno said the two were longtime friends, though their relationship has cooled since the younger DeConcini entered politics. Evo DeConcini has maintained he knew Bonanno only as a cheese company executive and had no knowledge of any criminal ties.

"What sticks in my craw is the family's hypocrisy," Bonanno writes. He says he never told DeConcini "I'm duh boss." But he adds, "It is an insult to Evo's intelligence to say that he didn't really know who I was. Evo would have to be a dunderhead not to have a pretty good idea of who I was."

Bonanno also emphasized, "It should be abundantly clear, however, that Evo and I had a clean relationship."

Bonanno says he made a living as a "venture capitalist," having become a stockholder or partner in a funeral home, cheese factory, laundry and coat-manufacturing firm.

He writes that others had sought him out to invest with them "because they knew with me as a partner their business would grow...I developed connections."

In his longtime role as leader of one of five major New York "families," he said, he tolerated no dealings in narcotics or prostitution.

Besides, "only a minority of my Family members were engaged in full-time illicit activity," he writes, and that he did not control the activities of its other members.

Border Patrol stops alien transporters

LAREDO (AP) — The transporter, his knees hunched close to his chest, rocked back and forth slowly as if to ward off a chill.

When he began to tremble, a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service anti-smuggling investigator asked him if he had been using drugs.

"No, no," the transporter answered.

"I think he's just scared," the investigator said to his partner.

And well he should be. The 14-year-old boy was taken into custody by the Border Patrol near Freer for transporting illegal aliens.

"It's not unusual to see them this young," said one of the investigators.

The investigator, who asked that his name not be used, said smugglers are recruiting younger transporters because they know U.S. authorities will not prosecute a juvenile.

That's not always right, he said.

"The people running these outfits don't care if they lose a load or a transporter. They're paid up front so it doesn't bother them when these people are caught," explained the other investigator.

The boy, clad in dark brown pants, scruffy black shoes, dark T-shirt and a baseball cap, candidly admitted to the two investigators that he had been told to flee by the man who hired him.

"He said to throw the car into the brush and for me to run if the 'migra' tried to catch me," he said.

Border Patrol agents say that is the pattern they are seeing more and more.

Agents fear that sooner or later, some aliens will be killed when a car rams into a fence, or hits a tree.

What looked like easy money brought the 14-year-old boy more trouble than he ever imagined.

Born in Laredo, he was raised in Nuevo Laredo and has little education. Although he has an older sister and four younger brothers, he is the sole support of his family. Their father abandoned them years ago and "we haven't seen him since," the boy told investigators.

The boy worked as a dishwasher and then as a cook at a small restaurant here, but was let go several months ago. Unable to get a job, he sought employment in Nuevo Laredo and had been working at a garage.

He told investigators a man known only as "Fito" promised to pay him $400 to ferry a group of aliens to Houston.

Sometime during the day, the boy crossed to this side together with several other people. They were met by a man who, the boy said, lives near the river. A short time later, two other unidentified men came for them.

The aliens already were inside the car when he arrived at an undisclosed location, the boy said. He slipped into the driver's seat of a Mercury Cougar and joined the convoy. At the head was one man in a Cherokee who was serving as a scout, followed by a pickup with about 34 aliens.

The Cherokee was stopped for questioning by the Border Patrol about 2 a.m. and the pickup quickly passed them up. The driver of the pickup tried to ram the vehicle into a fence before stopping. Most of the aliens escaped.

The boy was taken into custody, along with the aliens remaining.

Capitol crumbles after Reagan's speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — The day historic preservationists had dreaded, but knew was coming, has arrived. A huge chunk of the deteriorating West Front of the Capitol has crumbled, dropping tons of stone to the ground.

The collapse of almost 100 square feet of stone veneer — moments after President Reagan had addressed a joint session of Congress inside — brought new urgency to the decades-old debate over how to fix the Capitol's crumbling facade.

"If the American people really knew the condition of their Capitol, they'd be screaming for us to take action," said Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., on Thursday. "Our Capitol is falling apart."

About a dozen large sandstone slabs, each about 8 inches thick, crashed into an inner courtyard terrace from the west wall of the House of Representatives wing between 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday, less than an hour after Reagan's speech in the House chamber.

"I was sitting in my office when the wall gave way," said Bill Melton, a technician in the Capitol clinic, located in the West Front. "There was a tremendous crash. I thought we were under either a heavy thunderstorm or a heavy bombing attack."

The collapse exposed a section, about 6 feet high and 15 feet wide, of an original wall built in 1806 or 1807, said William Ensign, deputy architect of the Capitol.

No one was injured in the crash. The inner courtyard, a level below the main terraces, is not usually visited by the public. The Capitol does not appear marred when viewed from a distance.

Repairs have lagged because no decision has been made as to whether the wall should be restored as is or a new portion should be built to add office space. Reinforcement with steel rods is estimated to cost $66 million. Extending the building 22 feet and adding 147,000 square feet is estimated to cost $73 million.

A House Appropriations subcommittee earlier this week approved $70.5 million for the 22-foot west extension. It is supported by Capitol Architect George White, who argues the extension would fulfill plans drafted in the mid-1800s.

But historic preservationists, including the American Institute of Architects, support the other plan. Their allies are in the Senate, which has previously killed extension proposals.

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee in charge of the Capitol, said in a prepared statement Thursday that he was "personally unconvinced" the extension was warranted.

"It would seem to me that we might be better advised to restore our beautiful Capitol rather than encircle it with a new facade," D'Amato said.

Meanwhile, several sandstone slabs that remained in place are bulging away from the inner wall and Ensign said they will be pulled down shortly to protect people below. The exposed inner wall will be covered with plastic until permanent repairs can be made, he said.

Company helps people write love letters

Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — As founder of The Write Place, Betty Stielau runs a "complete writing service" for consumers, small businesses, corporations, civic organizations, unions, creative artists and lovers.

Yes, that's right, lovers.

In addition to writing resumes, brochures, press releases, letters and advertisements, Stielau helps people write love letters.

"I help bridge the gap for people who have deep feelings, but are afraid, or don't know how, to put those feelings on paper," she said.

She began writing love letters for customers and friends as a favor several years ago. "It sort of evolved" from the normal routine of business, she said. Her husband, Edward, owns Ample Air Conditioning Co. and Stielau has handled all his public relations and bookkeeping. She currently is writing a book called "How to Pick a Plumber."

Contractors she met through the business would often ask her help.

"Since I'm a small business woman and a writer, I could really relate to their professional needs. Most of them couldn't afford to retain a big ad agency so I started handling their small accounts."

The former newspaperwoman, both for dailies and weeklies in San Francisco and San Diego, also helped out friends and neighbors. "They knew I was a writer, so they would ask me for help with resumes, press releases for their clubs, letters to their congressmen, complaint letters to companies."

The son of one friend came to her because his boss wanted him to write down the reasons he felt he deserved a raise. "I helped him write a justification. He got a raise and a promotion."

The daughter of a friend asked Stielau to help her out with a dental school application. "There was a section where she was supposed to explain why she wanted to become a dentist. She knew why, but was having trouble putting it in her own words. I helped her out." She was accepted into dental school.

As is her practice, Stielau did not actually write the letters. She merely interviewed the friends' children and helped them sort out their thoughts. "I won't take a test for anyone or write anything that is supposed to reflect their own abilities. If it's something they are to be judged on, they have to do their own work. I just ask questions."

What started out as an avocation soon became a vocation. "I was spending so much time helping to write letters for friends and businessmen, my husband said, 'Why not get paid for it?'"

So this year she started The Write Place. As her clients got to know her, their requests grew more personal. That's when she started writing sympathy letters, thank you notes, personal invitations and apology letters. Love letters soon followed. She charges about $10 per personal letter (including the paper), depending on the amount of time and research involved.

One client wanted to write a marriage proposal. Stielau sat him down in the small office she maintains in her home and asked him what he wanted to say. She asked him what he liked about his girlfriend. As he spoke, she took notes. "I use what I am told. I just put it in readable form."

A few days later, she presented him with a letter. In part it read, "I love the sparkle in your dark eyes. I love your smooth skin and silky hair."

The letter goes on to praise the woman's warmth, sensitivity, sense of humor, the way she looks when "tears come to your eyes when you watch a sad movie. And your free laughter when you watch a funny one. I've loved you from the moment I met you." Then, after excusing himself for not being a poet, the writer offers his marriage proposal.

"When I showed him the letter, he said, 'I said that, didn't I?' I think sometimes men are amazed that they are capable of such emotion."

Noting that most of her love letter clients are men, Stielau said, "I will give them something to start with. Many men don't even know where to begin. I provide them with a roadmap of their own feelings.

"As they write it over in their own hand, they will think of things to add or change," she added. She stressed that the words in any letter come from her clients and she merely "polishes" them. She doesn't draw the letters from her own imagination. "It doesn't come out on my letterhead. They don't copy it word for word. I always tell people to be sincere. I can help you, but you must be sincere."

Men, she said, tend to need more coaxing than women. "A man will say, 'She has nice eyes.'

"I'll say, 'Nice in what way?'

"He'll say, 'They're blue.'

"I'll say, 'How blue?'

"He'll say, 'Deep, gorgeous blue.'

"That's when I start writing."

She has been asked to compose some "steamy" letters. "I reserve the right to set limits," she said with a smile.

She is currently working on a letter from one spouse to another. "They have been married a long time. One of them almost died. The other one wants to express some deep feelings about almost losing the loved one." She declined to elaborate further, saying, "Confidentiality is really important."

Stielau enjoys writing love letters because, "I'm an incurable romantic. So is my husband. After all these years, he still brings me flowers. And I give him candy. I'm always on a diet and can't eat it."

The Stielaus, married 25 years and the parents of three grown sons, fell in love through letters. After one blind date, Edward was shipped out to Greenland with the Navy. He corresponded with Betty for three months until he could see her again.

Customers eat free at restaurant if poor

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — There's no cash register in William Land Jr.'s new restaurant — the poor may eat there free.

His Cozy Kitchen Cafe, which seats 15, is simple in fixtures and furniture. A microwave oven and commercial coffee maker sit on a shelf behind the counter. A covered metal pan marked "Donation" hangs on a wall near the back door.

Land opened the Cozy Kitchen in his Belleville home some three months after he met a woman who had been forced to feed her children cooked potato peelings because her food stamps had not arrived.

"The thing that bothered me was the tears in her eyes," Land said Wednesday. "I told my wife, 'Let's start being a doer.'"

A hand-painted sign in the restaurant reads, "No charge for food items. This restaurant is operated on donations only, so that no one who comes leaves hungry because of a lack of money. Donate only if you can."

Land began planning the restaurant just after he sent the crying woman on her way with some food. He said it took three months to complete the paperwork. But Land got his restaurant license and now must keep records to show that sales tax has been paid on food purchased and food sold.

Land, a retired boilermaker, said he, his wife, Dorothy, and their foster daughter, Cindy, are financing the restaurant out of their $1,700 monthly income.

The menu includes sandwiches that can be heated in the oven, chips, soda, coffee, milk and tea. For breakfast there are doughnuts and cereal. Wednesday's menu at noon featured country ham and beans that Land said he had cooked Tuesday night.

"This is not strictly for St. Clair County," Land said. "This is for hungry people. I don't care if they come from New York or New Orleans."

The cafe is open between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. daily, but Land said he would reopen anytime, day or night, for hungry people.

"Bill's heart is not one that's trying to get an advantage for himself," said the Rev. Ray Hinchman, pastor of Faith Alliance Church, which Land attends.

Hinchman said Land began attending the church about a year ago because of a special program offered there on prison ministry. Land apparently became interested because of his own experience.

He said he spent five years in federal prison more than 20 years ago, but would not talk about it.

Romanians can be fined for typewriter use

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Romanians now must seek police permission for owning a potentially dangerous weapon — the typewriter.

The law, signed by President Nicolae Ceausescu last month and put into effect Thursday, apparently is designed to curb clandestine leaflets critical of his Communist government.

The typewriter decree has not been announced in the state-controlled media. As a result, most Bucharest residents seemed unaware of the heavy fines prescribed for illicit use of the keyboard, although a district police official confirmed it has taken effect.

State-owned resale stores did a brisk business as usual Thursday on used typewriters. Prewar German portables were selling for about $110.

New Olivetti machines were priced at $256 — more than the average Romanian monthly salary. However, new typewriters have not been available here for more than a year.

Buyers were asked to show their identity cards and list their names and addresses on receipts, which were left at the store. But clerks did not explain the new rules unless asked about them.

Under the new procedures:

—Typewriter owners must submit written applications to police for permission to keep or buy a machine, then wait for an answer.

—If the application is approved, the owner must submit a type sample of numbers and letters for registration with authorities.

—If the license is withdrawn, owners must sell their machines within 10 days to a state-run shop. Private sale is forbidden, but the owner is allowed one appeal.

—Typewriters will be denied to people who have a criminal record or pose "a danger to public order or state security."

—Police must be notified within 24 hours of the loss or theft of a typewriter, and their rental or use outside the homes is forbidden.

Boy found bathing in baptismal pool

NEW VERNON, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Richard Brown is accustomed to finding overnight guests in his unlocked church. But he wasn't expecting to find a teen-ager bathing in the baptismal font.

Brown, who rose before 6 a.m. on Saturday to prepare the auditorium of the Carpenters' Corner Church of Christ, came in to find the uninvited visitor dressing after his early morning bath.

Man risks imprisonment to earn living fishing

NEMURO, Japan (AP) - Although he has spent more than three years off-and-on in Soviet jails, Kunio Watanabe continues to risk imprisonment to earn his living the way he has for 35 years, fishing for crab.

Three times since the end of World War II, the Soviet Union has seized boats with the 55-year-old Watanabe at the helm, accusing him of violating centuries-old fishing grounds around four small islands that are claimed by Japan but occupied by Soviet military forces.

The islands off the eastern coast of Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido — Kunashiri, Etorofu, Shikotan and the Habomai group — constitute Japan's "Northern Territories." The dispute over them is the major irritant in Japan-Soviet relations, and the reason the two countries never signed a peace treaty after the war.

Tokyo insists that the islands, seized by the Soviets when Japan surrendered in 1945, historically were Japanese and demands their return. Moscow says they are Soviet and there is no territorial question to discuss.

Japanese fishermen often venture into disputed waters around the islands in search of turbot and cod, aware that they may be captured and their boats and equipment confiscated. Since 1945, 1,200 boats and 8,500 fishermen from Nemuro have been seized,

Jackson considering running for president

Jesse Jackson

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson will be "testing the political waters" for a possible presidential bid when he visits New Hampshire Sunday and Monday, according to an aide.

Jackson, head of Operation PUSH (People United to Serve Humanity), is scheduled to meet with a number of Democratic leaders in New Hampshire, the first state to hold a presidential primary, PUSH press secretary Frank Watkins said Friday.

On recent occasions Jackson has indicated that he is "seriously" considering running for president, but he has stopped short of making an announcement.

Jackson is to deliver a sermon at a Methodist church in Meredith, N.H., on Sunday morning, then meet with the New Hampshire State Democratic Committee in Laconia in the afternoon, Watkins said.

A private reception with state and Democratic leaders "who are interested in a possible Jesse Jackson candidacy in 1984" will follow the committee meeting, Watkins said.

On Monday, Jackson will address high-school students in Tilton, attend a luncheon with more state political leaders in Portsmouth and meet with a group opposing nuclear-energy plants in the state.

Beverly Sills

MOORHEAD, Minn. (AP) — It's not likely to become the national sport anytime soon, but Beverly Sills, general director of the New York City Opera, says she still wishes audiences would treat opera more like football or baseball.

Speaking at Concordia College Thursday, the 51-year-old retired coloratura soprano said, "I can't predict that opera will replace baseball or football on television. But it's a national art form here, not a European art form only. There's an awful lot of educating today. Many communities all over have companies. I think opera is thriving."

Miss Sills spoke out in favor of more exposure of opera on television, more opera education and more English-language performances.

"It would help if people did a little homework before seeing an opera performance," she added. "People learn the rules and regulations of football before they watch it. It would be nice if they learned the names and numbers of the players in the opera, too."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Unlike Ann Landers or her sister, who writes "Dear Abby," Steve Austin started his advice column with 10 years' experience helping people with their problems — as a bartender.

"Why shouldn't I relate to past problems or experiences I've had, so the reader will know I don't get something sitting in an office reading a book," said Austin, 31, author of a column called "Straight Up With Steven the Bartender."

"People write to advice columns because they often think their problem is unique and that no one else has had that problem before," he said. "That just isn't the case."

When the High Point bartender first got the idea for the column, he was turned down by 100 newspapers. Now he has the column, a daily local television show and national exposure.

Austin says he's currently negotiating to nationally syndicate his radio segments, which usually last two to four minutes and are taped at Act I in High Point — where he still works as a bartender.

HONG KONG (AP) — Princess Anne arrived here from Tokyo Friday, beginning a four-day private visit to this British colony.

Residents gave a rousing welcome during her one-hour tour of a new public housing estate on an outlying island. Hundreds lined her route and followed her as she visited two families in their new apartments and met children at a local kindergarten.

This is her first trip to Hong Kong since 1971.

She plans to unveil a plaque at the Hong Kong Observatory on Saturday and meet with government officials on Monday before leaving for Pakistan.

David Crosby

DALLAS (AP) — A state district judge has postponed for the 11th time the cocaine possession trial of rock musician David Crosby.

But Judge Pat McDowell said Crosby, who is free on $4,000 bond, will eventually stand trial

"It's just a case where there are a lot of people involved, and it's hard to get their schedules coordinated," McDowell said.

Police said they found Crosby, a founding member of the Crosby, Stills and Nash band, "free-basing" cocaine on April 13, 1982, in the backstage room of a North Dallas nightclub.

Crosby was indicted on charges of possessing cocaine, a second-degree felony punishable by up to 20 years in prison and fines of up to $10,000, and carrying a .45-caliber pistol in a bar, a third-degree felony that carries up to 10 years in prison and fines totaling $5,000.

Widow wants more warnings on cigarette packs

SEATTLE (AP) — Saying that heavy smoking contributed to Barney Clark's death, the widow of the artificial heart recipient will testify in Washington next week on behalf of a bill requiring more warnings on cigarette packages.

"I think that had his lungs been healthier, he may have been alive today," said Una Loy Clark.

Mrs. Clark, who never smoked, said in a recent interview that Clark quit smoking 12 years ago after research convinced him of its harmful effects. But she said she believes his 25 years of smoking before that contributed to the heart disease that prompted the artificial heart implant.

The 62-year-old retired dentist from the Seattle suburb of Des Moines survived 112 days with the world's first permanent artificial heart implant and died March 23.

At the request of the American Lung Association, Mrs. Clark said, she will fly to Washington to testify before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee on proposed tobacco legislation.

The Comprehensive Smoking Prevention Education Act would require four health warnings on cigarette packages and require tobacco companies to tell the government which chemicals they add to cigarettes.

"I want to do it because I think the bill is necessary," Mrs. Clark said. "He (Clark) was very much concerned about the habit and I feel certain he would really want me to go and help out this committee.

"All I can say is that I am for anything that educates the people as to what they're doing. I think they should be properly advised of what they're taking into their bodies."

Clark smoked up to a pack a day, and felt that quitting was the "hardest thing he ever had to do," Mrs. Clark said. "He said the only thing to do is just throw them away and that's just what he did. But he said it was hard."

Mrs. Clark said her husband held up a cigarette and firmly announced, "This is my last one. I'm quitting and throwing them away. This is it."

After the heart implant, lung problems were largely responsible for keeping Clark in the University of Utah Medical Center at Salt Lake City, according to his doctors.

"He just couldn't get off the respirator," Mrs. Clark said.

75 cats will soon be up for parole

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — If you'd like a pet with a past instead of a pedigree, Stateville Correctional Center has a few that might interest you.

An estimated 75 cats are serving time there — for unlawful entry of the prison.

But now they're up for parole, prison officials say.

"I don't know how they got in," Superintendent Tom Morris said, "but it only takes two or three and pretty soon you've got a houseful."

With the cat population growing steadily for the past three years, Warden Richard DeRobertis said, both the Department of Health and the Department of Corrections internal auditors urged that they be removed.

"We feel the cats create a sanitary hazard," said DeRobertis, who stepped up measures to get rid of the cats after a recent rabies scare in the county.

Some of the cats are wild, but most are friendly and all roam so freely through prison tunnels and corridors that traps must be set to round them up.

Many have become pets of inmates, who lavish their own spending money on food for them and keep the animals in their tiny cells.

Now the inmates have been told that they may send a cat home with their relatives, and many have done so, Morris said.

The Will County Humane Society is trying to find homes for the rest.

Judy Tomich of the society said she was trying to line up animal organizations that will care for the cats. "I don't want any of these animals killed," she said.

Hong Kong residents need new ID cards

HONG KONG (AP) — In an effort to curb illegal immigration from China, the Hong Kong government plans to re-register and issue what officials call "near counterfeit-proof" ID cards to almost everyone in this crowded crown colony of 5.2 million people.

All Hong Kong residents 11 years old or older must appear in person at the Immigration Department and hand in their present identity cards for new ones.

Backed by modern computers, a battery of terminals and up-to-date instant photographic equipment, the ID card project will take four years and an estimated $59.7 million to complete. The new registration begins Monday.

To speed up the paperwork, the Immigration Department has recruited 900 people to work in eight new registration centers.

Immigration officials said the new ID cards, unlike the present ones, were designed by the Bank of England with holders' photographs printed on specially manufactured paper containing watermarks.

"They are almost as difficult to fake as currency notes," senior immigration officer Kan Wai-sang said. It is hoped that during the registration, illegal Chinese immigrants holding fake or altered ID cards would be found, he said.

The first group of residents to be given new cards will be males born in 1964, followed by those born in the previous year.

Kan said registration for men aged between 19 and 35 is expected to be completed by the middle of next year.

He said the main reason for these residents to register first is that "most of the illegal immigrants caught and repatriated were men falling into this age group."

The project is the latest effort by the government to stamp out illegal immigration from China which officials say has put a strain on housing, education facilities and social services. Immigrants from China make up about one-fourth of Hong Kong's population.

In October 1980 the government granted a three-day amnesty for Chinese living here illegally to register with the Immigration Department. They were issued identity cards and allowed to stay.

But all illegal immigrants found without ID cards after the expiration of the amnesty were deported.

At the same time, a law was enacted requiring all Hong Kong residents over 11 years old to carry ID cards at all times.

Police are empowered to question, search, apprehend and bring before the courts anyone without an ID card. Persons failing to carry ID cards are liable to a fine of $150. It also is an offense, punishable by one year in prison or a fine of $10,000, for employers to hire people who do not have proper identification.

Kan said some 11,000 illegal immigrants were caught and repatriated in 1981 and the number increased to 13,000 in the following year. In 1980, 80,000 illegal immigrants were rounded up and sent back to China.

It is difficult to determine how many illegal immigrants from China have escaped detection.

"Estimates vary," Kan said. "Border patrols believe for everyone caught another goes free while police believe for everyone arrested three go free.

"The fact is that we don't know. This is probably why the government has to carry out such an ambitious program to weed them out."

Authorities here said they also are considering ways to crack down on illegal immigrant children since younsters are not required to possess ID cards.

Marine Regional Commander Peter Clarke recently said some 5,000 children have been sneaked into Hong Kong in the past 18 months by syndicates to join their families, many of them illegal immigrants.

A police spokesman said many children, some under five years old, were brought surreptitiously into Hong Kong "under dangerous and traumatic conditions."

Hong Kong has been an attraction for residents of the Chinese mainland since the Communists took over in 1949. It consists of the mainland area of the New Territories, leased by China to Great Britain for 99 years in 1898, and Hong Kong Island and Kowloof Peninsula, which China ceded "in perpetuity" to Britain in the 19th century.

In the United States, Congress has been considering steps to curb the flow of illegal aliens but the idea of a national ID card has encountered strong opposition. The proposed legislation contains a mixture of worker identity cards and stiff penalties for employers who hire illegal aliens.

Poetry recital is a hit with deaf gathering

WASHINGTON (AP) — Riding a white Arabian horse, actor Lorne Greene led deaf and hard-of-hearing youngsters on a proud march through the capital on Friday to launch Better Hearing and Speech Month.

But the hit of the day was "They Say I'm Deaf," a poem written by Saul Kessler when he was a student at Washington's Gallaudet College, and recited by Diane Hottendorf, director of the Gallaudet Dance Company:

They say I'm deaf
Those folks who call me friend.
They do not comprehend.
They say I'm deaf
And look on me as queer.
Because I cannot hear
They say I'm deaf.
I, who hear all day
My tumbling heart at play,
The songs the sunset sings,
The joy of pretty things,
The smiles that greet my eye,
A brook, a tree, a bird.
Who says I have not heard?
Ahh, though it must seem odd
At night I oft hear God.
So many times I get
Happy songs and yet
They say I'm deaf.

While Miss Hottendorf recited the poem — verbally and in sign language — two Gallaudet dancers acted out the words.

Greene, who has a hearing problem himself, said the nation has 22.5 million people who are affected by hearing, speech or language disorders.

THREE OF A KIND

At this point they're not very different from one another. Similar markings . . . all cuddly . . . identically impelled with a desire to explore the world.

Later they'll begin to show individuality . . . and respond to the personalities of those humans who soon become their world.

The human process of growing up has parallels. Only gradually does individuality become evident. And the developing child will be strongly influenced by those close to him who likewise become his world.

Our churches and synagogues in their ministry to families build upon this principle. While strengthening family relationships they help children to grow spiritually at their own pace. Their emphasis on truth and commitment makes the example of grown-ups more effective, more inspiring.

Your children deserve — your family needs — God's ministry to YOU.

Paul finds spadework difficult, but results wondrous, far-reaching

RELIGION

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third installment of a five-part series about the brilliant, energetic Paul, a contemporary of Jesus, initially a brutal foe, later a dauntless, roving advocate. This part deals with a history-making decision.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The spadework had been hard, but it accomplished wonders. "Like a skilled master builder I laid a foundation," Paul writes. But now it could be wrecked. In city after city, despite threats, lashing, stoning and illness, he had labored ceaselessly to raise the new banner, lifting hope and hearts. Now it could be struck down, cut off from its roots.

He glanced worriedly about the packed hall in Jerusalem. The 12 apostles of Jesus sat on stone seats along the platform with tabernacle chests of the Torah and scrolls of the prophets on a shelf behind them. They had assembled in emergency council to rule on the revolutionary strategy of the controversial Paul.

As the proceedings began, whispered suspicions and occasionally shouted attacks on him quieted. Asked to explain his unorthodox tactics, Paul stepped quickly to the empty chair beside the reading stand, a man of "slight stature," partly bald, in faded blue-striped robe.

"I AM NOT ashamed of the gospel — it is the power of God for salvation to every one who has faith, to the Jew first and also to the Greek...For God shows no partiality." That was the burning, critical issue, whether this faith was open to all people, including uncircumcised Gentiles. On that matter hinged the future impact of Jesus in the world.

"Is God the God of Jews only? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yes, of Gentiles also, since God is one." That was Paul's unwavering certainty, as it was for Judaism, with its singular devotion to one, universal God through the ages, its unflagging monotheism in a mocking sea of polytheistic idolatries.

He repeatedly stressed his own adherence to Judaism's traditions, but didn't want to exclude the people of other customs.

It was a fundamental, history-making question and not just a remote, marginal quibble over incidentals as subsequent generations have sometimes viewed it. It was basic, far-reaching and also explosive.

The core stamp of Judaism since its beginning, the mark of its distinction, was circumcision, the "seal of the covenant" with God to be a "light to the nations." Jesus himself had been circumcised, as were all Jewish boy babies. It was a tangible sign of their commitment to God, of their very identity, the backbone of a people.

BUT NOW PAUL challenged that age-old rampart. "He is not a real Jew who is one outwardly, nor is true circumcision something external or physical." The contentious, migrant Paul, a Greco-Roman Pharisee, expert in Jewish law, struck at a central nerve of his cherished Judaism.

But he rationalized it painstakingly in his many writings. "He is a Jew who is one inwardly, and real circumcision is a matter of the heart, spiritual and not literal." That was his core thesis.

"Then what advantage has the Jew? Or what is the value of circumcision? Much in every way. To begin with, the Jews are entrusted with the oracles of God...God has not rejected his people whom he foreknew."

That point, although obscured through ensuing centuries of prejudice, has swelled anew in late 20th-century Christianity. That term, "Christian," never appears in Paul's writing. It apparently was coined by pagan opponents in ridicule of the "Christ-ers," or in Greek, the "Chrestianoi" or "Chrestini."

The epithet first arose in Antioch, capital of Syria, third largest city of the Roman empire, next to Rome and Alexandria. It was the center of Roman government in the east, a potpourri of idolatry, and the base of Paul's far-traveling excursions.

From there, he ranged throughout Asia Minor and the edge of Europe. With the pivotal conflict swirling around him from the start, he made his first drama-packed, 1,000-mile journey about A.D. 46, prior to the decisive council in Jerusalem.

ACCOMPANIED BY Barnabas, a trusted ally of the apostles, and Barnabas' nephew, John Mark, Paul had headed for the island of Cyprus.

He and his partners sailed first to Cyprus, center of the cult of Aphrodite, preaching from Salamis at the east end to Paphos at the west, exposing a magician's trickery, converting the Roman governor.

Back on the mainland, Mark quit them at Perga, apparently irritated at Paul's courting of Gentiles. Mark later wrote the gospel bearing his name, but Paul resented his desertion and afterward refused to travel with him.

From the swampy coasts into the rugged highlands of Pisidia (modern Turkey), Paul and Barnabas taught in numerous cities, stirring such tensions in one of them that Roman officials ordered them whipped with rods and expelled. Paul's unspecified "thorn in the flesh," possibly malaria but supposedly migraine, plagued him.

Returning to Antioch, they found the work thriving but shaken by complaints of Jerusalem delegations about uncircumcised participants.

The chief apostle Peter, after a vision in which God counseled him that no food or person was "unclean," had accepted and baptized an uncircumcised Gentile, the Roman officer Cornelius. But when Peter visited Antioch, conservative critics belabored him into withdrawing from meals with Gentiles.

IT WAS A letdown to Paul since in his earlier private visit with Peter and James, they agreed that he and Barnabas should go to the Gentiles. "They gave me and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship," Paul writes.

But since then, much had happened to dim Paul's chances before the council in Jerusalem. The apostle James had been slain by orders of the Judean puppet, Agrippa I, and another James named among the 12. It was the strictly orthodox James the Just, a kinsman of Jesus, who now presided.

However, the determinative council was divided. Conservatives trusted only established ways which had held Jews together through ages of persecution and conquest. Liberals saw promise in the new. Though still uncertain, it stirred greater vitality among more people.

The room dissolved into hubbub, with outbursts on both sides. The apostle Peter reared back his shoulders, thrust out his grizzled chin and growled that God "made no distinction between us and them," the Gentiles. Why "put a yoke upon the neck of these disciples?"

THE ROOM FELL silent. Paul related details of the grateful devotion evoked among Gentiles on his trip. Gradually the mood changed and unified. Sensing this, the scrupulous James gazed about, then pronounced the decision.

"Brethren...My judgment is that we should not trouble those of the Gentiles who turn to God, but should write to them to abstain from the pollutions of idols and from unchastity and from what is strangled and from blood."

The Newspaper BIBLE

HAVE YOU EVER SEEN A FAITH LIKE THIS?

When Jesus had finished his sermon He went back into the city of Capernaum.

Just at that time the hightly prized slave of a Roman army captain was sick and near death.

When the captain heard about Jesus, he sent some respected Jewish elders to ask Him to come and heal his slave.

So they began pleading earnestly with Jesus to come with them and help the man. They told Him what a wonderful person the captain was. "If anyone deserves your help, it is he," they said, "for he loves the Jews and even paid personally to build us a synagogue!"

Jesus went with them; but just before arriving at the house, the captain sent some friends to say, "Sir, don't inconvenience Yourself by coming to my home, for I am not worthy of such honor or even to come and meet You. Just speak a word from where You are, and my servant boy will be healed!

"I know, because I am under the authority of my superior officers, and I have authority over my men. I only need to say 'Go!' and they go; or 'Come!' and they come; and to my slave, 'Do this or that,' and he does it. So just say, 'Be healed!' and my servant will be well again!"

Jesus was amazed. Turning to the crowd He said, "Never among all the Jews in Israel have I met a man with faith like this."

And when the captain's friends returned to his house, they found the slave completely healed!

Church Women United to celebrate fellowship day

May Fellowship Day, observed Friday in communities across the country, is an annual celebration sponsored by Church Women United. Observed each year on the first Friday in May, this celebration unites Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox church women in a worship experience designed to develop creative and healing relationships between all people.

May Fellowship Day events will be held at First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall, corner of Main Street and Illinois Avenue. The program, presented by Ethel Emmons, Frances Walker, both of First UMC, and Margie Titus of Hollowell UMC, will begin at 10:30 a.m. A covered dish luncheon will be served at 11:30 a.m.

This year's May Fellowship Day service was written by women of black denominations related to CWU. They take their theme from the spiritual "There is a Balm in Gilead," and their inspiration from the lives of black women who have left their mark on our country's history — Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman, Mary McLeod Bethune, Nannie Helen Burroughs, Abbie Clement Jackson and Rosa Parks.

Catholic editors think women should be ordained, poll reveals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A poll of editors of Catholic weeklies and other publications finds 49.9 percent think the church should ordain women. Only 39.6 percent oppose it. Also, 53.8 percent favor relaxation of the requirement for priestly celibacy.

It found that 53.8 percent think the church should reconsider its ban on contraception and 55.5 percent think use of nuclear weapons is "inherently immoral." About 60 percent oppose U.S. military aid to Central American states facing leftist revolutions.

UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

FREEDOM

REASON
UNDERSTANDING

WHO ARE WE? The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland was organized in April, 1954. Our first building, constructed in 1958, was sold in 1981. Plans were then begun to build the present structure at the corner of Neely and Midkiff.

Our church is a member of the Unitarian Universalist Association. We have no creed to which members must assent, but our faith does have some historical centerpoints. These are: the unity of God, the humanity of Jesus, the integrity of every person, and the freedom and responsibility of each individual in a religious quest.

We take our inspiration from the literature of the world. We base our faith on the belief that every human being has a spark of the Divine within, and that "salvation" is a growing process of awakening to that realization. Membership in our church is open to all who agree to unite with us in the free quest of high values in religion and life.

3301 Neely 694-4308

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION in our church is founded on the conviction that human nature, rather than alienating us from God, binds us to our universe and all that sustains it. We believe that a child's religion grows out of sensitively reflecting upon the wide variety of experiences of daily life. Religion is something to be nurtured and encouraged as a child's life unfolds.

These are values we cherish for everyone. Our religious education classes and adult forum begin at 10 a.m. every Sunday. Worship and nursery begin at 11 a.m. During these times, we focus upon aspects of those creative and life-sustaining values and attitudes, and attempt to better incorporate them into our individual lives and the life of our community.

Commission honors Graham

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham has received the distinguished service award of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission for leadership in areas of social ethics such as race relations and peace.

Graham said the "total Gospel" means both proclaiming it and implementing it, adding, "I am not for unilateral disarmament but I am for toning down the rhetoric and ... doing away with all weapons of mass destruction."

Women's Aglow meets Wednesday

ODESSA — Two local guest speakers will be featured at the Odessa Chapter of Women's Aglow Fellowship meeting Wednesday at Villa Vagabond Inn in Odessa. Meeting time is 10:30 a.m.

One of the speakers is Nelda Scott, whose husband owns and operates Quality Body Shop. Mrs. Scott is the mother of two daughters. She and her family own and show quarter horses.

Mrs. Scott is a graduate of Southwest Texas University with a degree in home economics.

She served as student council president at Odessa High School during her senior year. During that time she and a group of her classmates, after reading Dave Wilkerson's "The Cross and the Switchblade," rented the coliseum and held a rally which centered on learning more about Jesus Christ.

Both Mrs. Scott and her husband, Terry, were raised in Christian homes, but, as she states, "It wasn't until 1980 when Terry was hospitalized and almost had his leg amputated that we really experienced the healing power of God in our lives."

The other speaker will be Linda Bothwell. Mrs. Bothwell and her husband, Don, came to Odessa from Lubbock in 1971.

Of her Christian experience, Mrs. Bothwell states that "it was four years ago when we experienced a real hunger for the word and realized that it was written for us."

An optional salad luncheon will be served following the meeting at 12:30 p.m. Nursery facilities are avaliable at Morning Star Fellowship Church, 325 W. County Road. Mothers are asked to send a sack lunch with their children.

In addition, a number of Midland and Odessa women will be attending a retreat May 13-15 at Fort Davis. For more information call Alice Patterson, 1-367-1176, or Melba Sykes, 1-362-4764.

Man campaigns against illiteracy

BUFORD, Ga. (AP) — John Hutchins' one-man campaign to "stamp out Bible illiteracy" has convinced the editors of some encyclopedias and dictionaries that their publications needed revising.

Hutchins, a 56-year-old Buford resident who publishes pamphlets on English grammar and writing, says he's "concerned about people who talk about the Bible from an authoritarian standpoint who have never read it.

"It bugs me to see so-called Bible scholars who are not familiar with the Biblical text," he said in a recent interview. "I'm not trying to embarrass anybody. There's something almost sacred about the record. I just want to keep it straight."

Hutchins' crusade began in October 1980 when he was watching a television game show in which a contestant was asked the name of the dancer in the Bible who requested the execution of John the Baptist.

The contestant answered, "Salome," and the emcee declared the answer was correct.

But Hutchins disagreed and called the producer of the show, who stood by the answer, citing standard reference sources.

Hutchins said showed several dictionaries and encyclopedias gave the name of the dancer as Salome, and some cited Scripture after the entry. But Hutchins said the name Salome does not appear in the Biblical story about an unnamed dancer asking for the execution of John the Baptist. And he began informing reference book editors.

Hutchins said he has received letters promising revisions of entries on Salome from Columbia University Press, Keter Publishing House in Jerusalem, The Encyclopedia Americana and The World Book Encyclopedia.

"You just look in the Bible and he was right," said Daniel O. Zeff, humanities editor for World Book.

The encyclopedia's entry read, in part, "Salome...is the Biblical character who is said to have caused the beheading of John the Baptist. According to the Biblical story, Salome danced at a birthday party for Herod."

"Sometimes these things creep in," Zeff said. "My gut feeling is that this is an article that is so old that maybe some of our preventative maintenance measures weren't in place."

Zeff said the text of the encyclopedia would be revised to remove any direct reference to Salome as a character named in that part of the Bible.

In many countries, beliefs are deadly

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Religious rights are being trampled in 24 of the world's nations, but there are scattered areas of improvements, says a summary of data gathered from around the globe.

While suppression has increased in some countries, it has lessened in others, making 1982 "on balance, a good religious year," the report says.

Nevertheless, in some places "your beliefs could still cost you your life," says the report compiled by A.D., an official monthly published jointly by the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church.

The third such annual study, it was based on questionaire responses from governments, religious centers, denominations and councils, academic researchers and human rights groups, as well as news reports and staff interviews in many countries.

"This year's survey is the most thorough we have ever done," says James A. Gittings, the magazine's editor-at-large who compiled the report.

It lists 13 "worst cases" — nations where "citizens are extremely curtailed in their capacities to be faithful to dictates of their faiths:" Albania, North Korea, Iran, Afghanistan, Guatamala, Ethiopia, El Salvador, Czechoslovakia, the Soviet Union, the Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Turkey and Pakistan.

These "worst cases" display mixed grounds for oppressing religion or aspects of it, the report notes, with "supposed religious links to political or revolutionary struggle" claimed in Guatamala, El Salvador and the Philippines.

On the other hand, the listed Communist nations "apply a systemic bias against religion," while in Turkey and Pakistan ethnic hostilities figure in the difficulties for Christian minorities, the report says.

Besides the "terrible 13" countries, the report says religious freedom also is "severely abridged in at least 11 additional states, including Vietnam, Burma, Guyana, Nepal, South Korea, South Africa, Taiwan, Syria, Israel, Chile and Uruguay.

For a change, Argentina no longer was listed as oppressive because "the intensity of politically derived repression of religious leaders has mitigated in that country since the loss of the Falklands war," the report said.

But the Philippines, previously listed as free, was put on the "worst" list because of the government jailings and beatings of priests for social protests, the report said.

New saint falsely labeled anti-Semitic

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

He objected to attacks on Jews. He sheltered hundreds of them after the Nazi invasion of Poland. Like many of them, he was slain at Auschwitz, volunteering to die to save a fellow prisoner. Yet he's been labeled "anti-Semitic."

That is the strangely incongruous, yet smudged image stirred up about Roman Catholicism's newest saint, the Polish priest Maximilian Kolbe. But an investigation by two researchers finds the slurs against him are basically false.

"He's been smeared with a lot of unjustified abuse," says Warren Green, director of the St. Louis Center for Holocaust Studies. "Inherently, by his conduct as a man, he was not anti-Semitic. His actions, the true test, prove the contrary."

Green, a Jewish historian of the Nazi era, this week presented findings of the detailed inquiry to the National Workshop on Jewish-Christian Relations in Boston, termed the largest dialogue yet between the related faiths.

The investigation, carried out with co-researcher Daniel L. Schlafly Jr., a St. Louis University historian, after a gust of charges about the Polish priest-hero, concluded they were either groundless or misrepresentative.

"They're flat wrong," says Schlafly. "Claims that he promoted racial hatred or political action against Jews are totally false. He showed love and respect for all people as children of God, including Jews."

THE ISSUE, AIRED in some U.S. newspapers and religious weeklies on the basis of an article in an Austrian opinion journal, Wiener Tagebuch, aroused concern before and after Kolbe's canonization last Oct. 10.

The accusations "are spurious," says Patricia Treece, author of a vividly moving book about Kolbe's life, "A Man for Others," published by Harper & Row and based on accounts of those who knew him.

Rather than currying favor with the Nazis by supporting their anti-Jewish campaign, she says, he fed and housed about 1,500 Jews in his monastery, begged clothing for them, provided medical care and told others to help them.

"All men are our brothers," he told a neighbor who questioned his activity.

Kolbe, arrested by the Gestapo in early 1941 as an enemy of the Third Reich, was one of 3,646 Polish Catholic priests sent to concentration camps and one of 2,647 who died there, about a third of the Polish priesthood. Tortured, often beaten on work details, Kolbe was No. 16,670 at Auschwitz.

After a prisoner escaped in August 1941, the camp commander picked 10 others from a camp lineup to be starved in reprisal. One, a Polish army sergeant began sobbing about his wife and children. Kolbe stepped forward, cap in hand, asking to die in the man's stead. He did.

PRIOR TO HIS being sainted last fall, the Austrian journal charged that Kolbe "stood for rabid, racist anti-Semitism," citing an alleged 1934 article calling Jews "indecently clad" on the beaches, and an alleged Polish government complaint about him.

The researchers, after combing through 396 existing articles, radio sermons notes and other materials by Kolbe and 1,006 letters, say there is no record of such an article, and that moreover, he was then on a trip in the Far East.

They also examined other source materials in Polish, Italian, Latin, German, French and Yiddish, as well as contacting Catholic and Jewish scholars in Poland and elsewhere, finding no basis for the alleged government complaint.

The researchers, interviewed by telephone, say that when Kolbe was asked to hire a known anti-Semite on his publications, he refused. They also cite a directive to an editor cautioning against stirring anti-Semitism.

GREEN AND SCHLAFLY say the overwhelming proportion of Kolbe's writing was spiritual, only a tiny fraction of it mentioning Jews, and then usually along with Protestants, in hopes for their conversion.

However, the researchers say scattered references also show Kolbe accepted, as did much of Polish society, the notorious 1905 forgery, "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion," about a Jewish-Masonic-communist conspiracy for rule.

'Church turns its back once marriage breaks up'

LONDON (AP) — A stir has risen in the Church of England over charges by a member of Parliament that the church fails to show Christian concern for wives deserted by their Anglican clergy husbands.

"The church turns its back on them (the wives) and their children once their marriages have broken up," says Frank Field of the opposition Labor party and a noted anti-poverty campaigner.

Britain's rising divorce rate has affected the 13,000 clergy in the state church and about 180 of their marriages break up each year, Field said in a report last month to the House of Commons Ecclesiastical Committee.

Similar trends in the United States also have occasioned increased clergy divorces, but most U.S. churches recognize civil divorce and its settlement terms, and divorced Protestant clergy usually continue as clergymen. But the Church of England does not accept divorce, although civil law does.

Consquently, when clergy marriages break up, the clergymen quit their church role and wives are left in something of a limbo, according to Field's report. It details the experiences of 24 deserted wives and urges the church to alleviate their financial plight and seek homes for them.

"Their treatment was pretty horrendous," Field told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. He said when a clergyman leaves his wife, he invariably resigns his post and moves away. His wife is then forced out of her church-provided home to make way for incoming vicars.

"Most were given between one and three months to leave the houses tied to their husbands' jobs, which are needed for the incoming clergymen, and only two were offered accommodation," Field said of the women in his study.

"There was little or no financial help, little pastoral support from church authorities and no church pension in their old age. Only one felt she had been decently treated."

Field, former director of the Child Action Poverty Group, added: "This is not the treatment you would expect from a Christian organization. The church is sweeping the problem under the carpet..."

Church authorities responded cautiously.

The Rt. Rev. Ronald Bowlby, bishop of Southwark in London, admitted that a lack of housing had caused problems. "The situation needs solving because it is happening much more often," he said in a radio interview.

FBC has special events Sunday

The First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., has several special events planned for Sunday.

A special groundbreaking ceremony will be held for a new education building at 12:05 p.m. followed by "Dinner on the Grounds."

The church will also present the life of Christ in a production called "Resurrection" at 7 p.m. Sunday. This musical drama will be presented by the church's 100-voice Adult Choir, a 25-piece orchestra and the church's drama department.

The 60-minute program will portray the life of Christ through choral music, soloists, drama and orchestra. Over the past 20 years, Gail Storrie, drama director, has directed, among others, Handel's "Messiah," Dubois' "Seven Last Words," Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Christ will be portrayed by Dr. Vernon Stokes. The disciples will be played by Carl Trim, Tom Vance, Mark Withrow, Ralph Len, Doug Saylor, Reg Lyle, Mike Reeves, Don Gatlin, Keith Poe, Mike Roberts, Bill Williams and Phil Rogers as Judas. Scott Hammond will portray Simon Peter, Rhonda Lacy, the woman at the well, and Max Black will sing the part of Pilate. James Nance is the minister of music at First Baptist.

This Sunday marks the Rev. Daniel Vestal's seventh anniversary with First Baptist. Vestal has led the 6,000-member church to give over 42 percent of its income to missions.

The public is invited to attend these special events.

City councilman sacrifices to find peace as woman

ST PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Robert Sylvester had it all — a prominent reputation, political power, a six-figure income. But he sacrificed everything, including a 10-year marriage, to become Susan Elizabeth Kimberly, and find peace for the first time since early childhood.

For a time during the 1970s, Sylvester was a rising political star in St. Paul. As a city councilman, he became chairman of the Housing and Redevelopment Authority and chairman of the Finance Committee. He was elected council president.

Later, he left politics for investment banking. But all the while, Sylvester was repressing an insatiable desire to be a woman.

"I didn't mean to lie. I didn't mean to hurt anyone. But things weren't what they appeared to be," said the 43-year-old, who legally changed names March 28 and hopes perhaps to marry a man some day.

Although the sex-change operation has not yet taken place, Kimberly was "born" on Jan. 1, after a ceremony that friends described as a wake for the old Sylvester.

The man and his ex-wife, Mae, sent invitations to friends, including Mayor George Latimer, for a ceremony to "commemorate the departure of Bob Sylvester and the arrival of Susan Kimberly."

"It was very much like a (funeral) service in the feeling the people had," said Latimer. "Certain people would stand and testify to their love for Susan and Bob, their acceptance and prayers ... I found it a moving, draining experience."

Sylvester began hormone treatments about a year ago and has undergone about 150 hours of electrolysis to remove facial hair. After a year of speaking, dressing and living exclusively as a woman, Kimberly will undergo surgery, at a cost of about $6,000. The entire sex change will carry a $35,000 price tag.

Kimberly, who now works at a lesser paying job as a financial consultant, traced gender frustration back to early childhood.

"My major reaction from the time I was 6 was, 'God, no one will ever know' — and no one ever did," Kimberly recalled in a copyright story published Thursday in the St. Paul Dispatch.

As a boy, he was careful to conceal cross-dressing episodes, venturing outside on a few occasions and only after dark.

"It wasn't a lot of fun," Kimberly recalled.

Later, at the University of Minnesota, he began researching transvestitism.

"I would ostensibly go to the library to find out if anyone had been cured yet. If I found someone, I'd go do that, I'd go out and get cured," Kimberly said.

In July 1968, Sylvester landed a job as editor of a small-town Minnesota newspaper. The next spring, he met Mae Seely.

He told her he was a transvestite, a man who enjoys wearing women's clothing. He later learned he was also a transsexual, a person who identifies psychologically with the opposite sex.

"At first, Mae tried to help me," Kimberly said.

In 1970, he consulted a psychiatrist.

"He acted like it was just like quitting smoking, and told me to just quit," Kimberly said. "So I had a ritual wardrobe burning, and just quit. He also agreed that getting married was a fine idea."

Sylvester and Ms. Seely were married in July 1972.

Late in 1977, Sylvester sought professional help again, and finally told his female therapist, "I want to be a girl."

"And she said, 'Well, then, why don't you get on with it?'" Kimberly said.

Kimberly began going out in public in women's clothes in 1978. But keeping two personalities separate was difficult, so Kimberly installed a separate phone with an unlisted number "so that when the phone rang, I'd know who I was supposed to be."

Candidates not talking

ROCK RIVER, Wyo. (AP) — Some election campaigns are noted for mud-slinging oratory, but the mayoral candidates in this southeastern Wyoming town are saying hardly anything at all.

"I don't have any issues," mayoral hopeful Ted Nelson told a reporter asking for an interview.

"I have no comment," said incumbent Mayor James Waring. And the two other candidates agree the hottest campaign issue for the May 3 election is rehabilitation of the town's water system.

Collector acquires Coke memorabilia

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The den at Mark Lawrence's home is a shrine to the pause that refreshes — a massive collection of Coca-Cola signs, Coke bottles, Coke radios, pillows, umbrellas, trays, curtains and even a Coke machine.

"I hate Pepsi," says Lawrence, 30, an elementary school teacher and member of a national group of Coke-aholics called the Cola Clan.

Lawrence is so effervescent about Coke that instead of getting apples from his students, he gets additions to his Coke collection — such as a Coca-Cola eraser that smells like the soft drink.

"My students think I'm nuts," he said.

His wife, 29-year-old Jeanne Boyer, is a bit more diplomatic, even though she thinks things go better with iced tea.

"I try to show a wifely enthusiasm," said Ms. Boyer. "... At least it keeps him off the streets and into the junkyards."

Ms. Boyer even accompanied Lawrence to a national Cola Clan convention several years ago in Minnesota.

"The people were nice," she conceded, "but I didn't fit in."

Lawrence said the conventions are "fun. Besides, I meet people as crazy as I am."

Coke definitely is the real thing for Lawrence. Among the items in his collection are toy Coke trucks, Coke thermometers, a Coke bedspread, Coke keychains, matchbooks, flashlights, salt and pepper shakers, tool kits, knives, shoelaces, door locks, tie tacks, ties, school boxes, lighters, checkers, ice picks, pretzel dishes and yo-yos.

There are Coke signs that rotate, light up and simply hang on the wall.

Ms. Boyer said she made her husband confine his collection to the den because "I couldn't take all that stuff in the living room."

Unlike some purists who want only antiques, Lawrence will settle for any Coke collectibles.

Lawrence's oldest item, for which he paid $100, is a small 1906 tip tray painted with a sweet young woman drinking a Coke. His newest acquisitions, costing a total of $12, are a Diet Coke pen, a pewter Coke bottle opener, a Coca-Cola toothbrush and a Coke Rubik's cube.

Foat thinks she'll be cleared

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Feminist leader Ginny Foat said Friday she is confident she will be cleared of a 1965 murder charge because she has "a lot of faith in the system," but she said the accusation has ruined her life for a second time.

"I hope I will be able to put everything back together again and continue my work," said Ms. Foat, on leave as president of the California chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Asked at a news conference whether she would resume her NOW presidency if acquitted, she replied, "I really don't know at this time."

The news conference was held at her lawyers' office in New Orleans, where she worked as a go-go dancer and barmaid in the French Quarter 18 years ago. Questions about the case or about her early life were not allowed.

John Reed, one of Ms. Foat's two lawyers here, said lawyers are studying whether the trial could be barred by a statute of limitations.

"That's a legal issue that isn't entirely clear at this time," he said. "The law has gone through a number of changes since 1965 and the effect of all those changes on the status of this case aren't entirely clear. It may be an issue we will raise. We have 30 days to make that decision."

Because the slaying of visiting Argentine businessman Moises Chayo took place in 1965, Ms. Foat was charged under the law in effect at that time. The Legislature has changed it several times since then because the U.S. Supreme Court said its death penalty provisions were unconstitutional.

"I have a lot of faith in the system," Ms. Foat said. "I know the facts of the case. I know I am innocent and I have to believe that those 12 people that will sit on my jury will also find me innocent."

The charge against Ms. Foat is based on accusations by her ex-husband, John Sidote, who was convicted in 1977 of manslaughter in the 1965 killing of Donald Fitting at Lake Tahoe. Sidote, sentenced to 25 years, refused at the time to testify against Ms. Foat in both the Nevada and Louisiana cases, and charges against her were dropped.

But in 1981, back in prison on a parole violation, Sidote implicated Ms. Foat in both cases and agreed to testify for prosecutors.

"When I was dismissed on the Nevada charge, we contacted Louisiana. Nevada authorities were present during that contact, I was present, my attorney was present and I was told at that time it was a dead issue," Ms. Foat said Friday.

She said she didn't know why Sidote has now agreed to testify.

"I have been trying to figure that out. We have a lot of different reasons we are working on. That is what I have two attorneys for," said Ms. Foat, who was freed Wednesday on $125,000 bond.

"This wrecked my life in 1977," she added. "I lost my business. I lost my home, and now here it was, five years later, suddenly resurrected again on the morning of Jan. 11."

She was arrested that day at an airport in Burbank, Calif., on the Louisiana charge, and remained in a Los Angeles jail for four months fighting extradition to Louisiana.

Asked if she the case had destroyed her life again, she replied: "Right now, inside, I feel that it has. I have been through a very difficult experience. I still have a long time to go."

NOW chapters in Louisiana and elsewhere in the country have been quiet about her case "because we asked them to," she said.

However, she said she has received a lot of support by mail, including over $40,000 for her defense fund, plus one proposal of marriage.

Reed said he expects next week to obtain court permission for her to travel. Ms. Foat said she would go first to New York to see her parents and a sister, then return to California "to try to get my life into some sort of order."

Mark Traweek was named Friday as the Outstanding Young Farmer in Midland County for this year by the Midland Jaycees.

Chicago's first black mayor takes oath

CHICAGO (AP) — A somber Harold Washington was sworn in Friday as the city's first black mayor, vowing to freeze hiring and fire recent political appointees to ease a fiscal crisis that he called Chicago's biggest chaglenge since the Great Fire of 1871.

Surrounded by thousands of guests spanning the political and ethnic spectrum, the 42nd mayor of the nation's second-largest city took the brief oath of office and cracked his mayoral gavel for the first time.

"This is a very serious vow I have taken before God and my fellow man," he said. "...To solve the problems facing us, it will have to be decided between you and me."

Washington said in contemplating his new office on the eve of his inauguration, he had relied on the Bible and a report on the city's finances.

"I have no good news. The immediate problem facing Chicago is both enormous and complex," he said.

Washington said the city general fund faces a $150 million potential shortfall this year, and said hundreds of city jobs had been passed out and hundreds reassigned in the last days of Mayor Jane Byrne's administration.

When the crowd gasped, he said he made the remark "with malice toward no one," but just to keep the record straight.

Mrs. Byrne, who had smiled earlier after Washington completed his oath of office, sat expressionless through the speech, which included several references to mismanagement in her adminstration.

The new mayor also cited prospective $200 million deficits in both the school and transit budgets, which are outside the general fund.

"The only greater challenge in the history of Chicago was 110 years agp when Mayor Joseph Medill looked over a city burned to the ground and called for a great outpouring of civil responsibility," he said.

Washington promised to eliminate several hundred of those last-minute jobs, outlined a programs of job cuts and salary reductions, and renewed his call for a higher state income tax.

Washington was narrowly elected April 12 after a bitter, racially divisive campaign against Republican Bernard Epton. He took note of the darker side of that campaign in a passing reference of his inaugural address.

"Our minorities are ambitious and that is a sign of a prosperous city on the move," he said. "Racial fears have hurt us in the past, but I believe that that is a situation that will be overcome."

The former Democratic congressman came into office 30 years after he started public life as an obscure city legal adviser.

His inauguration broke with tradition with a ceremony at Navy Pier on the city's lakefront instead of the usual City Hall ceremony.

Three thousand invited guests attended, including other black mayors, Republican Gov. James R. Thompson, Illinois' congressional delegation, state legislators, and defeated candidates in the mayoral race.

Argentines could put Britons on alert

By The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

LONDON — A coincidence of dates is likely on Monday to result in a full-scale attack alert for British forces guarding the Falkland Islands.

On that day a ship carrying Argentinian mourners who wish to visit soldiers' graves on the islands is expected to nudge Britain's 150-mile exclusion zone around the South Atlantic islands. This would happen on the first anniversary of the most controversial event of the war, the British torpedoing of the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano.

Defense analysts see this as a possible scenario in which the Argentines would attempt a propaganda coup that, as its mildest effect, would create unwelcome publicity for Britain.

Britain has made it clear that Royal Navy ships patrolling the exclusion zone would turn away the vessel Lago Lacar if it attempted to cross the 150-mile limit, thus forcing the 250 bereaved Argentines to hold a memorial service at sea.

Another dramatically more drastic possibility being considered is that in turning back the Lago Lacar, Britain might present the Argentines with motivation for a quick air-to-surface missile attack on a British ship.

The General Belgrano was sunk outside the "total exclusion zone" by the nuclear-powered submarine Conqueror on May 2 last year as it headed for its home port of Uschaia. Three hundred and sixty eight of the cruiser's 1,100-member crew died.

The Argentine mourners are expected to sail for the Falklands today, although the International Committee of the Red Cross has withdrawn its support. Britain has made it clear that the unarmed civilian vessel would not be granted access to the Falklands. The Lago Lacar could be in the vicinity of the exclusion zone sometime on Monday.

The British government has always insisted that it had no objections to a visit to the Falklands by the Argentine mourners, provided it was organized and supervised by the Red Cross as a purely humanitarian gesture.

But the Red Cross had judged arrangements for the trip, including the presence of reporters, to be unacceptable "for reasons for principle."

Osvaldo Destefenis, who is leading the mourners, has promised that there would be no confrontation on the limits of the 150-mile zone.

Falkland Islanders said Friday that they would be both "surprised" and "angry" if the Argentinian mourners were allowed ashore. "No one believes the relatives will be allowed to land. If they did, there would be a lot of suprise and some anger — not at the Argentinians, but at the British for letting them do it," said Brian Paul, a snack bar owner in Port Stanley, the Falklands capital.

Paul said there was some sympathy for the Argentinian relatives among the Falkland Islanders.

LUXURY FAIRGATE TOWNHOMES FOR $92,500

If you're like most renters, the tax man's got you down and you're ready to cry uncle. You have no interest to write off, and, to make matters worse, you don't own a home. Each month those rent dollars go out the window with no hope of retrieval.

LIVE-IN TAX SHELTER

At Fairgate you'll enjoy a beautiful home and tax relief. You can deduct a considerable amount of interest expense from your income tax, and because our homes are priced below market value but presently sell for $92,500, you have built-in equity.

DISTINCTIVE 2 & 3 BEDROOM FLOORPLANS

Besides saving you money, at Fairgate you'll get some great extra features as standards. A fireplace. Appliances. Ceiling fans. And much more.

To visit Fairgate in northwest Midland, take Wadley Avenue west to Midland Drive; then north to Fairgate and the models.
