Costs Force Businesses To Curb Air Conditioning

By NANCY DORN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

SUMMERTIME will seem hotter this year regardless of the weather, as rising energy costs force area businessmen to turn down air conditioning in offices and factories.

Don Chastain, building manager of the First National Bank said the bank is paying the same amount in cooling costs that it did several years ago even though thermostats have been significantly raised.

The bank lobby is kept about 75 degrees in summertime and 68 degrees in wintertime, Chastain said. Conservation efforts were initiated three years ago when timers were installed to shut off air blowers when the building is not in use.

"We have cut down on kilowatt hours one-third to one-half some months," he said. "But the cost is still the same."

"The customers are all fussing at me but I think they are just going to have to get used to it," he said.

Even the South Plains Mall, which used to advertise a perfect shopping climate of 72 degrees, has upped the temperature to an energy-conserving 74, said general manager Richard Colby. Thermostats were lowered several years ago, he said.

"When we get a large number of people in here, it can get up to nearly 80 degrees," Colby said.

Individual stores, however, still regulate their own heating and cooling at the mall, he said.

A Hemphill-Wells maintenance man said there have been no policy changes regarding store temperatures this summer. The temperature at the South Plains Mall store is usually between 74 and 76 degrees, he said, but "it depends on who set the thermostat."

One of the oldest office buildings in the downtown area may be one of the most energy-efficient. Kenneth Gaut of the Metro Tower office building said the 25-year old structure conserves more on energy per square foot than any other in the downtown area.

Temperature in the Metro Tower is kept around 75 degrees, Gaut said. He said refective glass installed several years ago helps keep the building cool in summer and warm in winter.

Production areas of Devro Industries, as well as office areas, are kept at an energy-saving 78 degrees, said spokesman Paul Evans.

"We've been maintaining 78 degrees or better since the Arab oil embargo (in 1973)" he said adding that he expects the regulation temperature to go up to 80 degrees soon.

The 78 degree cutoff for cooling is a company policy and applies across the board to production areas and offices alike.

In "hot spots," the company tries to increase the air velocity by putting in fans and air blowers, Evans said.

The company, a branch of Johnson and Johnson, is located on east Loop 289 and employs more than 200 people.

"The employees recognize for the most part what we are trying to do," Evans said, adding that few employees

Tax Boost Ban Claimed Step Closer

By SYLVIA TEAGUE

LUBBOCK PROPERTY Owners Association officials say they have more than enough signatures to force the Lubbock City Council to call an election on proposed charter amendments to hold city taxes at their current level.

LPOA chairman Bob Green said the group has collected more than 15,000 signatures on petitions which began circulating 16 months ago in the heat of the local tax revolt.

Green wanted to present the petitions to the Lubbock City Council at its meeting Thursday, but was told by Mayor Dirk West that it would be difficult because of Texas Open Meetings Law requirements.

Advance Posting Required

That law says all items on the council agenda must be posted 72 hours in advance of the meeting.

However, West said he told Green "if he felt like it was an emergency" the item could be placed on the agenda.

Green "said he would call me back" on whether it could be classified an emergency, West said, but Green had not called before 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Reportedly the group will attempt instead to present the petitions to the City Secretary while the council meets Thursday. But West said the City Attorney has said the petitions only can be presented to the council.

Green said the group had enough signatures "within two to three weeks" after the petition drive began in February of last year, but the association had "been sitting on top of them."

"To show it was not just a fluke, we just went on gathering signatures," he said.

Green acknowledged there was "quite a bit of strategy" involved in the request for an election now. Although he refused to elaborate, the submission of the petitions coincides with the tax office's annual revaluation of property which sparked last year's tax revolt.

The petitions also are being submitted one or two months prior to city budget deliberations.

The LPOA petitions would limit the city tax rate to the current $1.12 per $100 valuation and limit the assessment ratio to the current 60 percent of market value.

Also, the proposed charter amendments would require approval of city voters if the city lowered the tax rate or ratio, then attempted to raise it.

Numerous constitutional questions have been raised about the proposals and it appears one of the amendments could be in direct conflict with a recently-enacted state law.

A portion of tax reform legislation sponsored by Rep. Wayne Peveto of Orange requires all property to be taxed at 100 percent of market value — not 60 percent.

Ghana's Regime Executes Pair

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI) — Ghana's new military rulers executed two former military heads of state and four other senior officers Tuesday in the latest move of their promised campaign to stamp out corruption in the west African republic.

Those executed included Gen. Fred W. Akuffo, 42, chairman of the former ruling Supreme Military Council, toppled June 4. Akuffo escaped after the coup, but he later surrendered to the new rulers.

The junior officers, who now control Ghana, are led by Flight Lt. Jerry Rawlings, 32, who promised a "cleansing" of the armed forces to wipe out corruption and punish the former rulers he blamed for Ghana's chronic economic problems.

The other former chief of state to face the firing squad Tuesday was Lt. Gen. Akwasi A. Afrifa, 43. He played a leading role in the February 1966 military coup that ousted Ghana's late strongman, Kwame Nkrumah.

The remaining four who were executed were all former members of the Supreme Military Council that ruled from 1972 until June 4: Maj. Gen. Robert E.A. Kotei of the army, Air Vice Marshal George Yaw Boakye, Adm. Joy Amedume and Col. Roger Felli, a former foreign minister.

The new executions followed the June 16 executions of Gen. Ignatius K. Acheampong, 47, the former head of state who was ousted by Akuffo in a palace coup July 5, 1978, and former border guard commander Maj. Gen. E.K. Utuka.

A government statement issued after the executions said all six officers were convicted by a special military tribunal of offenses ranging from illegal acquisition of wealth to sabotage of Ghana's economy.

The ruling Armed Forces Revolutionary Council led by Rawlings, the fighter-pilot son of a Scottish father and a Ghanaian mother, went ahead with the executions despite pleas for moderation by such leaders as British Prime Minister Mrs. Margaret Thatcher and Nigeria's military leader, Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo.

(In Lagos, a spokesman for Obasanjo said the new executions "could lead to something near to a total break in diplomatic relations between us.")

SKYLAB BLOOPER CLAIMED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The imminent fall of Skylab is an indication of the failure of the nation's leaders to support a clearly defined, comprehensive space program, the private National Space Institute charged Tuesday. "Skylab did not have to fail," said NSI presdeint Hugh Downs.

Mennonite Measure Facing Long Wait

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

EVERYONE involved with congressional legislation that would allow the 653 Mennonites living near Seminole to remain in the country agrees that "it's just a matter of time" before the legislation is acted on, but there is sharp disagreement as to exactly how long that "matter of time" might be.

The legislation, which would grant the Mennonites permanent resident status, currently is awaiting a date for hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee. U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., the sponsor of the bill, has asked Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of that committee, to act "as quickly as possible" on the bill. But a spokesman in Kennedy's office told The Avalanche-Journal that Bentsen's bill isn't "priority legislation" and could be postponed indefinitely.

"The committee has a lot before it this summer," said Chris Maher. "And a lot of it is big, complicated legislation. The Mennonite deal might have to wait quite a while."

Not On Calendar

The earliest date the bill could see any sort of action is July 10, at the next scheduled meeting of the Judiciary Committee, but it hasn't been placed on the calendar yet, and isn't expected to be added. The committee meets weekly, barring cancellations such as one which forced the next gathering to be kicked back until the second week in July, and the bill technically could be acted on at any time.

But it may never be acted on, either. Bentsen and Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., a former chairman of the same committee, attempted to enact a similar bill two years ago, but failed when the bill died in committee.

"Realistically, we feel we have a 50-50 chance of the bill passing," said Brent Budowsky, Bentsen's legislative assistant in charge of handling the Mennonite bill.

"Most of these type special bills don't pass," he admitted. "But I don't think this one is very controversial. It's tough to be against it just because of who the Mennonites are."

Support Predicted

"Once this bill comes out of committee, it'll go off like a roman candle," Budowsky predicted. "The press will pick it up, and the Mennonites will be back in the news. They'll be instant celebrities all over again, and we should be able to build some solid momentum."

All preparatory work on the bill has been completed. Bentsen last week sent a report to Kennedy asking the committee to act as quickly as possible. And both Budowsky and Rosalie Helms, secretary of the Judiciary Committee, told The A-J they know Kennedy has been made personally aware of the bill.

Carter Unveils Oil Scheme For West

2 Million Barrel Cut Per Day Asked

TOKYO (UPI) — President Carter will ask Big Seven leaders at their economic summit to agree on a detailed plan to cut their oil imports by 2 million barrels a day, the administration said Tuesday.

Announcement of the U.S. plan came as President Carter and Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira wrapped up two days of pre-summit talks. The two leaders did not disclose whether they had agreed on any joint proposals to meet the world energy crisis, leaving the announcement instead to Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal.

Blumenthal told reporters at a briefing he was certain Japan will go along with the energy savings plan when it is brought up Thursday before the rest of the Big Seven powers — Britain, Canada, France, Italy and West Germany.

He said he expected agreement from France and Canada, too, and predicted eventual agreement among all seven nations.

Last year's economic summit called for a 2 million-barrels-per-day cut in oil imports by the Western allies and Japan, but Blumenthal said that program was too vague. The Carter plan would commit each country to specific conservation figures to achieve that goal, he noted.

Shirtsleeve Conference

Carter and Ohira emerged in shirtsleeves from their second meeting Tuesday in the charming seaside resort of Oiso. Strolling through the manicured gardens of the villa where they had met, both perspired heavily in the 90-degree heat and high humidity.

"We've saving energy," Carter joked to reporters.

Administration officials said the Carter-Ohira talks had advanced the "mutual trust and friendship" between the United States and Japan and deepened their "productive partnership."

Carter was scheduled to take his olive green Marine 1 helicopter to the historic port city of Shimoda Wednesday to attend a town meeting in a high school gymnasium. Four thousand police were assigned to protect the president in Shimoda, a town of only 22,000.

Japanese government sources said Carter and Ohira might hold an extra session of talks Wednesday night on the Indochinese refugee problem.

Oiso, 50 miles from Tokyo, was locked in the iron grip of Japanese security for the two leaders' discussions Tuesday. Police stood virtually shoulder to shoulder as Carter's motorcade approached the meeting site. Armed vessels patrolled offshore and police in full riotgear carrying steel shields combed nearby beaches.

"What are they expecting, an invasion by sea?" asked one flabbergasted White House staffer.

On the health front, both First Lady Rosalynn and 11-year-old Amy were fully recovered from the intestinal bug that forced them to miss some of the excitement of the president's first day in Japan Monday.

Rosalynn said she felt "just fine" and plunged back into a schedule highlighted by meetings with U.S. Embassy staffers and members of the Japan-U.S. Friendship Group, an organization started by Carter to expand contact between people of different nations.

CDA Advisory Group Okays 1980-81 Plan

THE Community Development Advisory Committee Tuesday night approved the rough outline of the 1980-1981 Community Development Plan, which will be aimed at fostering increased citizen input and participation.

The proposed plan, which must be submitted to the City Council for approval July 12 and to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development by July 15, will be fleshed out by city staffers and submitted to committee members individually for final review.

Community Development is a federal grant authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The money, which for Lubbock will total $3.3 million for the next program year, will be spent for such projects as housing rehabilitation, neighborhood revitalization, improvement of public facilities and promotion of public and private participation in economic development activities.

The proposed plan for the next program year incorporates what the city staff and CDAC members believe to be remedies to "deficiencies" noted by HUD.

Most of the nine areas of weaknesses in past plans, as spotlighted by the federal department, emphasize further citizen participation in the full process of deciding how the money will be used and keeping citizens informed of progress and plan changes.

To remedy some of the deficiencies, the CDAC agreed Tuesday it will meet on the second Tuesday of every other month, rather than only during the fall as it has in the past.

Telephone surveys and door-to-door surveys also will be included in the new plan.

Hospital Board Ousts Bosworth

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

FOLLOWING a stormy 1 1/2-hour executive session, Lubbock County Hospital District board members took only a moment to end Gerald Bosworth's term as executive director of the financially troubled district.

The vote not to renew Bosworth's two-year contract (which expires Saturday) came in the last few minutes of a lengthy called meeting, although the actual decision was made hours earlier in a closed session.

The public vote was unanimous, but board chairman Jack Strong admitted the vote in executive session was divided. Board members agreed to vote unanimously for the record in calling for Bosworth's dismissal.

Sought Unanimity

"I wanted it to be 100 percent," Strong said, "That's about as much as I can say." Strong has been a staunch supporter of Bosworth, despite recent criticism of the director, but he predicted last week that Bosworth's dismissal by the board was imminent.

The board voted to continue paying Bosworth for 90 days beyond his contract expiration date.

Strong said there was a "good deal of argument" during the executive session, which Bosworth sat in on. The executive director was present for all but the last 10 minutes of discussion on his contract, when one board member reportedly asked him to leave.

Unpaid Bills Blamed

Bosworth's dismissal comes as a result of the district's mounting financial problems in running Health Sciences Center Hospital. The teaching facility for the Texas Tech School of Medicine has amassed a $7 million backlog of unpaid bills and has had little success at collection.

In earlier action, the board voted to authorize Bosworth to begin staff layoffs — starting with about 60 nurses.

The decision to lay off hospital personnel is based on a series of cash flow projections through 1980. The layoffs are an attempt to forestall what might mean a closing of the hospital's doors in the next few months if the rate of financial loss continues.

The hospital is filling only about 67 percent of its 170 beds. Hospital officials hope to drop the number of open beds to 120, reducing the staff proportionately. Many staff positions will be eliminated through attrition, according to the cash projection plan.

Chairman Strong said the search procedure to find a replacement for Bos-

Far-Reaching Repercussions Seen In Court's Libel Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in two significant libel law rulings Tuesday, cleared the way for trials in a suit against Sen. William Proxmire and one filed by a man who says he was wrongly identified as a Soviet spy.

Each decision may carry far-reaching repercussions for the future of libel law.

In Proxmire's case, the justices ruled 8-1 that members of Congress may be sued for libel for statements they make in news releases or newsletters to constituents.

They also ruled that persons receiving public funding are not necessarily "public figures" who have to meet more stringent standards of proof when they sue for libel.

The second case, potentially more ominous for the news media, yielded an 8-1 ruling that persons charged with crimes also are not necessarily "public figures" under libel law.

The Freedom of Information Committee of the Society of Professional Journalists called the decision "an unfortunate retreat" and said "to the extent that it inhibits free and open coverage of criminal proceedings, it represents a setback to the goal of an informed citizenry."

Under a landmark 1964 Supreme Court ruling and subsequent judicial edicts, public officials and public figures suing for libel must prove "that the statement was made with actual malice — that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not."

Private citizens who sue for libel must prove only that the statement was false and that it caused them some injury.

The "Soviet agent" case came to the nation's highest court after a federal appeals court dismissed a libel suit filed by Ilya Wolston of Arlington, Va.

Wolston, a Russian-born immigrant, has lived in the United States since 1939. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II and after the war held various government jobs.

Jack Soble, Wolston's uncle, pleaded guilty in 1957 to espionage charges and was sentenced to seven years in prison.

During that period, Wolston was ordered on several occasions to testify before a federal grand jury in New York City. On one occasion, he failed to appear before the panel.

For not complying with the subpoena, Wolston was charged with criminal contempt. He pleaded guilty and received a one-year suspended sentence.

At no time during the FBI's investigation or the criminal prosecution of Soble was Wolston implicated in any wrongdoing.

But two years later, a book written by an associate of Soble's quoted Soble as identifying Wolston as a Soviet agent. The book's author noted that Soble was a "confirmed liar."

In 1960, a published FBI report identified Wolton as a Soviet spy. It is not clear whether the report's sole source was the 1959 book.

John Barron, then an associate editor for Reader's Digest, began research in the late 1960s into the Soviet spy network. His work led to a 1974 book: "KGB: The Secret Work of Soviet Agents."

The 460-page book made one reference to Wolston, identifying him as one of several Soviet agents "convicted of espionage or falsifying information or perjury and-or contempt following espionage indictments."

Barron's statement was based on the 1960 FBI document.

Wolston sued Barron and his publishers, but the suit was dismissed by a trial judge who ruled Wolston was a "public figure" and had not proved that Barron acted with "actual malice."

High Court Ruling 'Fleeces' Proxmire

WASHINGTON (AP) — His targets have included a $46,000 study of how long it takes to break an egg, a $27,000 study of why prisoners want to escape from jail and a $67,900 study of the body measurements of airline stewardesses.

Along the way, Sen. William Proxmire's Golden Fleece award has become one of the most successful and visible gimmicks in the nation's capital, as scientists and bureaucrats alike fear the sting of Proxmire's satiric barbs.

HUTCHINSON

PROXMIRE

The 4-year-old award is given monthly to the federal project the Wisconsin Democrat decides is the best example of wasted taxpayers' money. But on Tuesday, the Supreme Court cleared the way for one of his targets to fight back — in court.

Ronald Hutchinson, a Kalamazoo, Mich., scientist, says Proxmire and an aide libeled him in 1975 when the senator awarded Hutchinson a Golden Fleece for his study of why "rats, monkeys and humans clench their jaws." Hutchinson is asking for $8 million in damages, and the Supreme Court said Hutchinson can present his case in court.

It is not the first time Proxmire has been under attack. Some critics say the senator sometimes takes advantage of the funny title and ignores serious reasons for projects or research.

"In academic circles, the Golden Fleece award is the next best thing to a Pulitzer," said one recipient.

But aides argue that the awards are carefully researched to be certain they are examples of government waste.

And after the Supreme Court's decision, Proxmire vowed that, 'Nothing in the court's decision will inhibit me. The Golden Fleece will go on."

Among the recipients over the years:

•A $279,000 project by the Commerce Department and the Department of Housing and Urban Development to build a "rural community center" in Michigan. The center was never used and was so isolated that it collapsed under a heavy snowfall without anyone noticing.

•A $3,000 study of whether Air Force men should be permitted to carry umbrellas.

•An Agriculture Department research project in which pregnant pigs walk on treadmills to ease boredom and "psychological stress."

•A $97,000 sociological study of a Peruvian brothel. However, the scientist involved said the study was done on his own time while working on another project in Peru and was accomplished for less than $50 in grant money.

•A $6,025 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to allow a Pittsburgh artist to make a film of crepe paper being dropped from an airplane.

•A $225,000 study by the Transportation Department on transportation needs in 2025 if another Ice Age occurs. Or if the country becomes a dictatorship. Or blossoms into a "hippy culture."

•A $2,500 study by the National Endowment for the Humanities on why people are rude on tennis courts.

•An $89,000 project by the Smithsonian Institution to produce a dictionary of Tzotzil, an obscure Mexican language. The dialect in the dictionary is spoken by only 10,000 peasants in southern Mexico. The Smithsonian called the dictionary "a piece of basic research."

Proxmire's supporters argue that the awards make those spending government money more aware of its source and perhaps more careful that it's spent well. The awards also make taxpayers aware of abuse of their money, they say.

Student In Trouble Over Plastic Hand

OLD BRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — Michael Matthews says he only wanted to liven up his commencement. But when the school superintendent reached out to shake Matthews' hand and was left holding a plastic substitute, the students were the only ones laughing.

Superintendent Patrick Torre stuffed the hand down Matthews's back. Vice Principal Donald Petzold was so offended he refused to give the 18-year-old his diploma.

Now school officials have ruled that Matthews must publicly apologize to Torre at a Board of Education meeting in July before he can get his diploma.

Matthews said he would apologize; he plans to enlist in the Navy in September as an electronics specialist and needs the diploma.

Effort To Sell Infant Probed At Big Spring

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Events leading up to alleged attempts by a Louisiana couple to sell a baby here last week are under investigation by the Department of Human Resources.

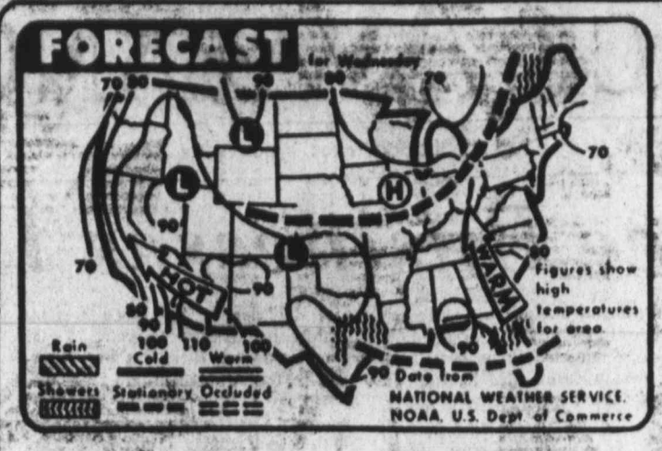

Tom Hoosier, child placement supervisor for the Big Spring-Midland area, said that the 3-month-old baby girl is healthy and is in foster care here.

Her alleged parents, Yvette Margaret Wierson and Robert Lee Gibson, both of Leesville, La., remain in custody in lieu of $10,000 bond each set by City Judge John Coffee.

The couple has been charged with attempted sale of a child. A first offense is a Class A misdemeanor, punishable by a $2,000 fine or one year in jail or both. A second time offense is a felony, punishable with a penitentiary term, according to Howard County attorney Harvey Hooser.

Hooser said an investigation is being conducted to determine if the child is actually the daughter of the suspects and to piece together the events that caused them to offer the child to several employees at a Big Spring truck stop June 20.

According to the employes, the couple was asking $30 for the infant.

Naming Juvenile Offenders Affirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 8-0 Tuesday that states may not make it a crime for a newspaper which lawfully has obtained the information to print the name of a juvenile who gets into trouble with police.

This knocked down as unconstitutional a West Virginia law prohibiting newspapers from publishing — without a judge's approval — the names of youngsters involved in juvenile court proceedings.

The statute only affected newspapers — not other news media such as radio stations — and provided for fines of up to $100 or jail terms of up to six months for violators.

It already had been struck down by West Virginia's top court, and the Supreme Court's affirmation of that decision was viewed as so certain that some observers thought the justices only took the case as a gesture of their support for basic press freedoms.

"If a newspaper lawfully obtains truthful information about a matter of public significance, then state officials may not constitutionally punish publication of the information, absent a need to further a state interest of the highest order," Chief Justice Warren Burger wrote.

He said the rationale for the West Virginia law, to protect the anonymity of juveniles so they can be rehabilitated, was not strong enough to justify the criminal sanctions it imposed on the press.

All the states have statutes providing in some way for confidentiality of juvenile proceedings, but only West Virginia and four others impose criminal penalties on nonparticipants in a case who publish the juvnile's identity, Burger said.

The West Virginia law was challenged when the Charleston Gazette and the Charleston Daily Mail printed stories Feb. 10 naming a 14-year-old boy who had been charged with the fatal shooting of another student at a junior high school.

Both newspapers, which obtained the alleged assailant's name from witnesses, went to West Virginia's top court and won relief after they were indicted by a Kanawha County grand jury.

The Supreme Court did not reach the question of whether the law constituted a "prior restraint" on the press, as the West Virginia court concluded. Burger also noted the ruling did not involve "unlawful press access to confidential judicial proceedings."

"At issue is simply the power of a state to punish the truthful publication of an alleged juvenile delinquent's name lawfully obtained by a newspaper," Burger wrote. "The asserted state interest cannot justify the statute's imposition of criminal sanctions on this type of publication."

Justice William Rehnquist joined in striking down the West Virginia law, but said he thought similar statutes, if applied to all media, would be constitutional.

Justice Lewis Powell did not take part.

Highs Near 90 Expected In Area Today

Heavy rains clobbered south and central Texas again during the day Tuesday, but the South Plains remained dry and seasonably warm.

Temperatures rose into the upper 80s in and around Lubbock Tuesday, and are expected to climb a few degrees higher today. Highs across the area should reach about 92 today before dropping off to about 65 for a overnight low.

The winds should blow from the southeast at 5 to 10 mph throughout the day. No rainfall is expected.

A large stationary front responsible for the rains of up to six inches across the state's midsection is acting as a large buffer zone for the South Plains, preventing other air masses from entering the area and maintaining the placid weather.

RAIL MERGER FAVORED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman and chief executive officer of the Chessie System Inc. testified Tuesday that a merger of Seaboard Coast Line with the Chessie would avoid severe management problems like those that derailed some earlier mergers in the industry.

AWAITING THE BOMBSHELL — Mana Saeed Al Otaiba of the United Arab Emirates and president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil cartel, left, is surrounded by newsmen in Geneva as they await word regarding oil prices. $20 Per Barrel Seen For Oil

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is near agreement on an oil price of $20 per barrel as a compromise between moderate and extreme members of the cartel, conference sources said Tuesday.

Members ended the first day of meetings without formal statements and were expected to announce their price decision at the end of the conference Wednesday.

The official base price of OPEC crude now stands at $14.55 a barrel, but surcharges imposed by most members bring the average price to about $17.

An increase to $20 a barrel could raise the prices of gasoline and heating oil in the United States by as much as five cents a gallon.

In Tokyo, President Carter was reported ready to ask major industrial countries at the summit meeting to set individual targets for limiting oil imports through 1980. The plan would aim at reducing global imports by about 2 million barrels a day, the amount by which demand now exceeds supply, U.S. Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal said.

OPEC oil ministers did reach a decision Tuesday on one issue. They agreed to add $800 million to the cartel's special fund to help under-developed countries meet a sharp price increase. The fluctuating fund now stands at $240 million. The decision to expand the fund must still be approved by finance ministers of OPEC's 13 member nations.

Although some members said the new price might be higher than $20 a barrel, a source close to a key delegation said he expected Saudi Arabia to hold the line there. The Saudis have been holding out for a price of $17-$18 per barrel.

Price-hawk Libyan Oil Minister Ezzedin Ali Mabruk said in an interview he believed the Saudis would compromise. "I think they will go up too."

Some observers said it was still possible that Saudi Arabia — OPEC's biggest exporter and most moderate member — might continue to balk at $20 oil and force the organization into a two-tier pricing system, with the Saudis at one price and the rest of the cartel at a higher price.

Mana Saeed Al-Otaiba, OPEC president and oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, warned of a "dramatic worsening" of the world's oil supply system before the mid-1980s because of an expected sharp increase in Soviet imports from Arab producers.

He told a Zurich newspaper, "It is time to sound the alarm bell and start implementing conservation measures and opening other sources of energy, like coal, solar and nuclear energy."

Otaiba, considered a moderate, said he favored a price of $20 per barrel and added OPEC must return to a unified price, "without which there will be no return to stabilization."

One source said he felt Iran and Libya, which have been asking for prices of $23 and $27 a barrel respectively, would settle for the $20 price.

Over the past several months, as cuts in the supply of oil from Iran caused world oil markets to tighten, OPEC's members found buyers for their oil at almost any price and began adding surcharges to the base price to take advantage of the situation. These surcharges, some as low as 60 cents a barrel, leapfrogged over several months and now are as high as $6 a barrel.

Nicaraguan Congress To Convene

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza met with his Cabinet and legislative leaders Tuesday as battles raged in the slums of the capital. In Washington, the State Department said it sees no chance of compromise if Somoza clings to power.

Somoza and the other Nicaraguan officials decided to convene a special session of the Nicaraguan Congress on Thursday. This prompted speculation Somoza was preparing to step down, but Nicaraguan officials denied he will quit and said the session was simply "to get the government back in operation."

U.S. Embassy sources said some Nicaraguan officials were getting U.S. visas for their families, and the national guard called on all eligible Nicaraguan men to report for service.

In the battle for Managua, the national guard claimed a victory in the eastern slums. Sandinista guerrillas who want to topple Somoza told residents to expect new rebel attacks.

In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State Viron P. Vaky said there is no chance for peace in Nicaragua unless Somoza goes.

"No negotiation, mediation or compromise can be achieved any longer with a Somoza government," he told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. "Too much blood, too much hate, too much polarization have occurred for this to be possible ... the killing must stop."

Vaky said the United States "will not contemplate" either direct or indirect military intervention in Nicaragua.

He said the United States was studying the provisional government named by the Sandinista guerrillas, but he could not say whether the United States would recognize it.

He also said that for the United States to break diplomatic relations with the Somoza government "would be to back away, and not be in a position to assist in the formation of a new government."

Vaky said he had "no hard evidence" of Cuban troops in Nicaragua. "There are allegations, but I can't say that is the case," he said. He said the flow of money and arms from Cuba to the Sandinistas "has increased in the last few weeks," but added:

"Cuba is not the only or even the most important of the supporters of the anti-Somoza rebellion. ... Nicaraguans and our democratic friends in Latin America have no intention of seeing Nicaragua turned into a second Cuba.

"Overwhelmingly, the nations of the hemisphere believe a change must occur. They favor an interim government, broadly based to reflect all groups in Nicaraguan society, to lead a transition to democracy."

Last Saturday, the Organization of American States called on Somoza to resign by a vote of 17-2 with five abstentions, and Somoza refused. Only Nicaragua and Paraguay voted no.

The national guard said Tuesday it had driven rebels from the eastern Managua area of Belo Horizonte, one of their key stronghold.

OPEC Still In Driver's Seat

NO MATTER what happens at the OPEC meeting in Geneva, it won't be good as far as the U.S. and the Free World are concerned.

Any price increase for crude oil will mean another round of inflationary price boosts on everything from gasoline to food.

There had been hopes that Saudi Arabia's more conservative approach to pricing, including a standard agreed-upon level for all OPEC suppliers, would prevail. Instead, the Saudi Arabians themselves came under terrific pressure for another upward spiral.

WHILE THE OPEC ministers were deciding how much to "stick it to the West" in Geneva, another high-level conference was underway in Tokyo.

There, President Carter and other members of the Big Seven industrialized nations were mapping what they hoped would be a program to cut down on dependance on foreign oil.

In a way, it seems too bad the two groups weren't meeting in the same town and talking to one another. As it is, even members of the Big Seven—the U.S., Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy—are hardly seeing eye to eye on how to handle the growing energy crisis.

MR. CARTER'S hope is that the Western nations will adopt some sort of common goal and program to cut back on use of OPEC oil.

The problem is that certain nations, Japan and West Germany particularly, rely almost entirely on oil imports and can't conveniently come up with other alternatives.

The U.S., on the other hand, with its own oil reserves as well as numerous alternatives—has made little progress in using those other sources in the past five years, so can not hold itself up as a shining example.

THE TRUTH of the matter is that while the Tokyo conference can make some progress in discussing ways and means to combat the rising cost of survival, until some concrete ways of either cutting back on use of energy or finding alternate sources, the West will remain at the mercy of the OPEC price gougers.

The bald fact is that the U.S. has not moved to make use of its vast coal reserves—as a raw product and for manufacture of gasoline as South Africa has been doing for years—nor has it utilized other sources, such as shale and offshore drilling to the extent it could.

In brief, while deregulation of prices will help, if fully implemented, everything from solar power to coal must come into the picture on a crash-program basis. After all, you can't run a car or an industry on talk alone.

AN EDITORIAL:

No 'Recess' From Recession

A RECESSION is upon us and the way to fight it is to reduce taxes by about $20 billion, leaders of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee said this week.

The warning, and the recommendation, was made just as other Congressmen were pressing ahead with their demand for higher taxes—on oil—rather than for lower taxes.

Is it any wonder the American public is confused, with so many conflicting and contradictory "findings" and recommendations coming out of Washington?

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, chairman of the JEC, appears to have solid reasons behind his recommended tax cut, however.

IN THE FIRST place, the Joint Economic Committee's realization that the country is in an economic recession jibes right well with what most economists and practically all knowledgeable private citizens have been saying for at least six months.

If there's not too much gloom and doom associated with the slower rate of economic activity, however, it will be good rather than bad for the country. The economy never goes in a straight line for long; it has to pause and catch its breath.

The fast way out of such a recession is to encourage economic productivity. Sen. Bentsen's proposal is that one-half of a $20 billion tax cut be in the form of incentives to business and the other half be in the form of individual tax relief to offset increases in Social Security taxes.

It is a far better approach than the normal one that Washington takes by increasing spending in order to create make-work jobs for those who become unemployed as a result of the business slowdown.

A TAX CUT, UNLESS it is in tandem with counterproductive handout programs, will encourage business investments requiring the creation of more jobs in the private sector.

The result: More people working at productive jobs and more taxes being paid, in the aggregate.

This is precisely opposite of the approach being taken to discourage oil production by slapping on a so-called "windfall profits tax" that would take away the incentives for investments that create jobs.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Part Of 'Real' America Alive, Well In Lubbock

LUBBOCK, Tex.—After a decade and a half of newspapering in the Midwest, I changed my residence a couple of years ago to Washington, D.C.

I made the move, I tell my friends, in order to be near my money—a goodly portion of which is in the hands of the Federal government.

From time to time, however, I find it necessary to get back on American soil, to re-charge my batteries and find out what the real people are thinking. It's an experience I would recommend to others who are locked into the Washington syndrome.

In the nation's capital, too many of us accept the notion that what the Federal government does is important, in a positive sense.

The daily battles over national policy, the internal power struggles, the endless grind of paper-shuffling, are all-consuming. The illusion is fostered that Washington officials actually know what they are doing, as they set about in ponderous style to solve the problems of a troubled nation.

YOU NEED ONLY get out of Washington for a couple of days to realize how much of this is nonsense. Out in the country where the real people live, you find the nation is still quite sound—far sounder than anyone could guess from the perspective of our Federal Oz.

The problems people confront, far from being solved by anything occurring in the capital, are generally those created by the government and its constant interference.

In recent days I have been fortunate to visit a number of American towns where the Washington syndrome is weak to non-existent: Minneapolis-St. Paul, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and Grove City, Penn., Hobbs, N.M., Lubbock.

In these places you find that people are working to solve their problems very nicely, thank you, without too much assistance from the Federal government.

IN THESE TOWNS of the real America, industries are humming, people are working, homes are well-maintained. The average citizen, you discover, still believes in doing a day's work for a day's pay, doesn't wait the government to support him, and doesn't look to Washington as a remedy for his ills.

In many cases, indeed, he perceives the distant Federal Leviathan as a strange, and often hostile, beast.

There are difficulties, of course. In most communities, people are concerned about taxes, about the cost of living, about getting gasoline, about regulations that increase the cost of doing business.

They are also concerned about what they see as an uncertain U.S. performance in the realm of foreign policy: SALT agreements, what we are doing in Africa, the Panama Canal. In the usual case, however, these are difficulties created by the Federal government, not cured by it.

YOU ALSO DISCOVER that many people in the United States believe in traditional notions such as limited government and free enterprise—ideas long since forgotten in the nation's capital.

Moreover, there are numerous and increasing efforts to spread awareness of these traditional conceptions. In my recent travels, I have encountered many Americans who are working hard to communicate the facts of economic life to an ever-wider audience.

In Missouri, for instance, the work of the state Chamber of Commerce, Farm Bureau and Junior Achievement to explain the workings of the free enterprise system to high school students has reached awesome dimensions, with thousands of youngsters having participated.

At Grove City College, there is a thriving Institute on Public Policy and Private Enterprise.

At Macalester College in St. Paul, the Taft Institute presents a well-balanced program on the nature of the American system.

HERE IN TEXAS, the Center for Business and Economic Education at Lubbock Christian College has an excellent series of programs on the free enterprise system.

In Hobbs, N.M., 100 miles away, the College of the Southwest puts on a number of lively programs about our economic system, featuring speakers from the business community and the academy. In all these cases, the independence and energy of the responsible parties is impressive.

From the standpoint of the real America, it is possible to affirm that the country, despite its recent troubles, is still fundamentally strong. It's a pity you have to get away from our nation's capital to find out as much.

"WHAT'LL IT BE—ODD OR EVEN?"

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Is MX Son Of B-1?

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—As President Carter was landing in Vienna to sign SALT II, Sen. John Culver of Iowa was on Capitol Hill giving critics of the new arms treaty reason to suspect that administration sponsors of the MX missile are plotting to place it beside the B-1 bomber on the defense scrapheap.

Culver's most renowned achievement in the Senate was junking the B-1. He is considered Carter's most effective SALT proponent on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Consequently, when Culver vigorously fought specific MX instructions in the supplemental defense authorization bill, a devious administration game was suspected.

The next morning Culver receded, averting a deadlock of the Senate-House conference on the supplemental.

Before agreement was reached, however, Culver's actions aroused concern that the administration is using MX to win defense-oriented senators over to SALT but is wiring a self-destruct mechanism to it that would doom the new weapons system through excessive costs.

At the heart of the hideously complicated debate is this simple chilling fact: the land-based U.S. Minuteman missile has become vulnerable to huge, increasingly accurate Soviet missiles. Minuteman vulnerability is around 10 percent today and is expected to be 90 percent by 1981.

The answer is the big MX missile placed in a basing mode—that is, a position to fire—that will enable it to survive Soviet attack. At best, this would not be ready until 1986; from then on it would greatly reduce U.S. vulnerability.

But Carter's recent approval of the MX was unsettling to defense specialists because of no announced basing mode. He certainly did not endorse the system preferred by the military: the so-called "vertical" system, under which missiles would be shuttled among empty silos.

The problem with this is that Soviet negotiators in Geneva have claimed it would be barred by Article 4 of SALT II which bans new land-based fixed launchers.

The shellgame merely adds new silos, but the Russians still have a point. Ever since SALT I, both sides have talked about launchers and silos as identical.

THIS HAS LEFT Carter's SALT negotiators with an agonizing dilemma. If they accept the Soviet point, they would admit that SALT II prohibits the U.S. from adopting the best system to protect this country from sudden nuclear destruction; that would kill the treaty for sure.

But the alternative would be to define "launcher," a task for which six months in Geneva might be insufficient.

The administration solved the dilemma by finessing it. It has instead gone to a less efficient "horizontal" basing mode. One form: long trenches with missiles moved on railroad tracks.

The "horizontal" system over 10 years would cost at least $10 billion more than the "vertical" and perhaps double that.

THE POLITICAL reality that this exorbitant cost might cause the entire program to self-destruct—long after SALT II is ratified—raises suspicions about the President's true designs for the MX missile.

Culver was "loving it to death," complained one adversary. He fought language adopted by the House requiring the President to give Congress the full reason if he does not choose the "vertical" method recommended in the bill.

House conferees, led by Rep. Richard Ichord of Missouri, insisted that language stay in. As Air Force One put down in Vienna, House conferees almost walked out in Washington.

But Culver, who can be Capitol Hill's most bruising antagonist, turned up in a jovial mood next morning and suddenly receded.

ACTUALLY, THE agreement does not absolutely require the "vertical" system. But the House conferees wanted an "audit trail"—requiring the President to record all his actions if he rejects the best system for protecting the nation's deterrent and accepts one that turns out too expensive to build.

Behind the unusual demand for an "audit trail" is the critics' convictions that President Carter, Sen. Culver and the arms control community truly consider a mobile MX basing mode to be destabilizing, provocative and subversive of detente.

These critics believe MX is a ploy to ratify SALT II, a belief inadvertently reinforced by John Culver when he pleaded behind closed doors not to squeeze the President for top-grade protection of the nation's vulnerable land-based missiles.

ANDREW TULLY:

Dig For Our Own

WASHINGTON—They were a gloomy bunch of high muckamucks gathered in Franklin D. Roosevelt's White House office. FDR listened impatiently to the verbal hand-wringing over the loss of overseas sources of rubber caused by the outbreak of World War II.

Finally, Roosevelt exploded. Pounding his desk, he said he would issue one simple order: "Go out and get to work!" he roared. "We're going to make our own rubber."

And we did. In less than nine months, with Reconstruction Finance Corp. money, the first two of many synthetic rubber plants were in operation. The product was so successful that private industry eventually bought the plants and expanded into the commercial sector.

TODAY, ALL WE hear from both government and industry is how long it would take to produce a flow of oil and gasoline from coal and oil shale—about five years.

The only way we can overcome our dependence on the OPEC gang for half of the oil we consume is, in Roosevelt's words, to "make our own."

You can bet that if the program were financed by government loans—to be repaid in installments from profits—our industrial giants would fall all over one another to get the job done a lot faster.

But, one can hear the objections: Wouldn't the cost to the federal treasury be exorbitant? Well, gentle folk, this is a war we're fighting—or should be fighting—against the apparent determination of the OPEC gang to destroy our economy by pricing us into penury.

DON'T BE misled by the gangsters' pious claims that they're just trying to conserve their resources by forcing us to burn less oil. They could do that by turning off the spigot. But that would reduce the flow of money to assorted royal princes and greedy, authoritarian politicians to a trickle.

As for the cost, the OPEC squeeze is now draining a whopping $65 billion a year out of the American economy.

Even if federal synfuels subsidization cost the taxpayers $10 billion a year for five years, we'd still be $15 billion ahead—and probably even more if, as expected, OPEC keeps raising its prices.

Besides, you can be sure that the private sector would buy out government in a hurry once the synfuels project became commercially profitable.

IN 1978, U.S. industries' spending on research and development was a paltry $23 million for shale and $178 million for coal—totals that included some federal subsidies.

President Carter is asking only $285 million in fiscal 1980 for all syncrude projects—$70 million less than in fiscal 1979.

And yet, the process of extracting oil from coal and shale has been successful. During World War II, Germany produced 100,000 barrels a day of airplane gasoline made from coal.

It's a funny—not ha-ha—situation. The U.S. spent $50 million to put a man on the moon, a feat that paid off mostly in national pride. Surely, heating our homes and fueling the furnaces of our industries are just as important as stashing pieces of moon rock in a glass case.

JAY HARRIS:

The Fear Of Flying

DESPITE ALL the furor over the safety of certain planes and the publicity accorded the Chicago tragedy, air travel is still by far the safest way to go.

And considering that the industry isn't all that old, its record in retrospect is phenomenal indeed.

Yet, despite the fact commercial airlines in the U.S. carried 286 million persons last year alone, 32 million more than in 1977, it is estimated that roughly 25 million people still have an overwhelming fear of flying.

Probably there are few persons in the nation who have an appreciation for those who "wouldn't get on a plane if they hogtied me" and those "who wouldn't go any other way" than we do. After all, we've had it both ways.

BUT, FORTUNATELY, it is the latter which prevails.

For us, air travel is the "Sesame" which opens "Aladdin's Door."

But, for millions the "fear of flying," which has nothing to do with Erica Jong's sexy book, is real and won't go away regardless of all the reassurances of friends and travel folders.

Helping people get over their flying phobia has become a business for some, including organizations on opposite coasts. In San Mateo, Calif., two women run what is known as the Fear of Flying Clinic. In 2 1/2 years, they have helped some 200 persons in a 10-week classroom course. The women pinpoint seven areas of flight fright.

They are: "Not being in control" of things, claustrophobia, acrophobia, turbulence, noise, separation from loved ones and dying. To combat these phobias, the class is given a thorough study in how the plane flies, gets to meet the pilot and finally makes a day-night "graduation" flight.

ON THE East Coast, Carol Cott Gross of New York City directs Travel and Fly Without Fear.

Mrs. Gross also cites the business of "loss of control" syndrome as a prime factor in many people's fear of flying. Such persons often are afraid of bridges, tunnels, elevators and trains, she says.

For such persons, jet age flying is some sort of "magical mystery tour" in which it seems impossible that a plane as huge as the 747 is going to get off the ground. Actually, it's one of the most comfortable planes in the business.

Anyway, Mrs. Gross says, the passenger walks through a tunnel some place, gets into the plane and after a given period of time "walks out at the other end" in Israel or Hong Kong.

Tranquilizers, a belt of alcohol and other such things, even hypnosis, might offer some help for the white knuckle crowd, she says. But, gaining personal confidence in oneself and the plane are the more reliable and long-lasting "cures."

ACTUALLY, THE statistics tell a convincing story about air safety.

According to the Chicago-based National Safety Council, scheduled airlines in 1977 reported 0.04 deaths per 100 million passenger miles. Railroads reported 0.05 deaths; buses, 0.13 deaths; and passenger autos, 1.33 deaths per 100 million passenger miles.

In 1978, there were 25 mishaps reported by commercial airlines, the lowest number on record. Six of the accidents involved fatalities. Ten years earlier, commercial airlines carried a much smaller number of people, but were involved in 71 accidents, 15 of them causing fatalities.

In the last decade, the industry has not only made major improvements in planes and airport facilities, but in the training of those who maintain and fly the aircraft around the globe. And the quest goes on.

The Air Lines Pilots Assn. has been among the more vocal groups seeking to improve conditions. Others include the Air Transport Assn., the NTSB and the Federal Aviation Administration.

ONE MAJOR factor in safety, "human error" has also come in for increasing attention.

It doesn't matter if one has the best plane, airport and controllers in the business, the man in the cockpit in the final analysis is the key. By the same token, all the rest of it has to work, or the man in the middle is up the creek.

It is because of those factors that pilots and others continue to push for improved standards in aircraft approval, better landing systems, a third pilot to flight crews and easing of airport congestion, among others things.

Actually, the airline industry has come a long way in its short history, particularly in trans-Atlantic and other foreign travel.

It was only 40 years ago Thursday that Pan American Airways launched scheduled flights across the Atlantic, with its Dixie Clipper taking off from Port Washington, N.Y., to Lisbon. Things have never been the same since.

HOWEVER, IT was not until the late Fifties when safe and efficient jet service was launched that air travel supplanted ocean-going liners as the main way of getting there.

Today, if one is in a hurry, there is no other choice. One can leave Lubbock on any given morning and be half way around the world less than a day later.

There are those who deplore the advent of cut-rate fares abroad. One of them is Prof. Paul Fussell of Rutgers who argues that "travel" is no longer possible, having been replaced by "tourism." Perhaps, but to us it's still an adventure.

As for fear of flying, it was a Brazilian pilot who solved the problem for us. After we returned from the point of no return 950 miles out in the South Atlantic after a "minor" engine fire, he said: "We will try again. I have flown this route 300 times. I have a wife and five children at home and I always have faith we will make it...

"I don't know what sort of god you worship," he added. "You can worship a God of Faith or a God of Fear. But, it doesn't just apply to flying. It applies to your whole life..." And indeed it does...

Truckers' Strike Threatening Food Supplies

By ROBERT GLASS
Associated Press Writer

California farmers plowed up fields of rotting lettuce and potatoes, and meat-packers laid off more employees Tuesday as the independent truckers' strike brought threats of food shortages and panic buying to the East.

The violence that has marked the truckers' protest, now in its third week, continued with reports of shootings, truck burnings and roads being booby-trapped with nails and broken glass.

While in some parts of the country the truckers' protest appeared to be moving into low gear, blockade and picketing were still effective at gasoline stations and appeared to be threatening supermarkets, especially on the East Coast.

In New York, a food industry spokesman said the city's supermarkets would run out of fresh meat by the end of the week if the truckers continued to block deliveries from the Midwest.

"How big is your freezer?" asked Howard Tish, spokesman for the Greater New York Food Council. "Meat is in very short supply."

In Pennsylvania, independent haulers blockaded a food distribution center and two oil-company facilities over the weekend, and some supermarkets in the Pittsburgh area reported Tuesday that shoppers were making a run on the stores.

"There's definitely been panic-buying," said Tom Hopkins, manager of Shop N Save in Carnegie, near Pittsburgh. "Some people have been buying $150 to $200 worth of groceries. Even when we get deliveries, the merchandise goes out as fast as we can put it on the shelves."

In Washington, the Interstate Commerce Commission announced that it was increasing the fuel-surcharge it allows truckers to charge their customers to 7 percent. A 5.6 percent increase was announced two weeks ago. It was increased to 6 percent last week. The commission said the increase was based on increases in fuel prices.

At a Washington news conference, William Hill, a leader of a coalition of truck driver organizations, said the strike would not end until demands were met for higher speed limits, rate increases and greater supplies of fuel. "This country is heading for an emergency," Hill said. "We're going to have riots in the streets as far as I can see."

Hill also urged Congress to nationalize the oil industry. Hill, president of the Fraternal Order of Steel Haulers, blamed the shutdown on the oil companies, which he called "highway robbers."

In earlier testimony before the House Small Business Committee energy subcommittee, an Energy Department official said the government is prepared, if necessary, to require oil refiners to increase production of diesel fuel "in the very near future."

The truckers want a guarantee of 100 percent of their diesel-fuel needs, higher rates to compensate for higher fuel costs, increases in truck weight and load limits in 10 states, and an increase in the 55 mph speed limit so they can make deliveries faster.

Deregulation of the trucking industry also has been a key element in the protest, although the independents appear to be divided on the issue.

Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons told the Senate Commerce Committee on Tuesday that deregulation of the trucking industry would flood the highways with thousands of independent truckers, threatening the safety of motorists. Fitzsimmons' organization represents 500,000 organized trucking employees.

With no way to get their crops across the country, California farmers were dumping their products on West Coast markets. As a result, melons, lettuce, tomatoes, potatoes and mangoes are piling up in the Los Angeles Produce Market, said Marge Jensen, spokeswoman for the California Council of Growers in Los Angeles.

"There is a glut of produce on the West Coast market," she said.

In southern California, temperatures have hovered around 100 degrees for the past few days, accelerating the ripening of crops. Tom Hadden, a Bakersfield-area farmer said he plowed under 240 acres of rotting potatoes Monday and predicted $100 million worth of fruits and potatoes would be lost in the Bakersfield-Fresno area in the next few weeks, unless the transportation situation improves.

In Nebraska, Cornland Dressed Beef Co., a meat-packing house in Lexington, was able to resume operations Tuesday after obtaining trucks to ship its beef out to consumers. About 75 workers had been laid off Friday. B.C. Dressed Beef of Omaha laid off 400 workers Monday and Tuesday because of a truck shortage.

Colonial Provision Co. Inc., a Boston-area meat processor, reported the layoffs of 100 of its 750 workers since Friday.

And in Tennessee, many farmers were unable to move pigs of meat. Shortages could begin showing up in the supermarkets in a few weeks.

"We just can't get pigs out of Tennessee," said a spokesman for the Putnam County Livestock Association.

In other developments, between 30 and 60 independent truckers who had threatened a shutdown of Long Island, N.Y., backed up traffic for about five miles Tuesday morning by slowing their rigs on the Long Island Expressway.

Shootings were reported Monday night in North Carolina and Missouri, but no one was seriously injured in either incident.

A third suspect sought in the shooting death of an Alabama truck driver last week turned himself in Tuesday to authorities in Sheffield, Ala. Curtis Ray Sheffield, 33, of Tuscumbia, was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Robert Tate, 31, a Birmingham trucker who was shot to death by a sniper.

Seven trucks were burned Monday night along Route 20 in Worcester and Shrewsbury in central Massachusetts. Officials termed the burnings "susipcious."

In Michigan, truckers slowed deliveries at some oil depots Tuesday, and one oil terminal reported nails and broken glass were strewn in the path of trucks Monday night.

Officials in Arkansas, Illinois and South Carolina, however, reported the trucking situation appeared to be improving Tuesday with blockades at oil terminals and elsewhere having been dismantled.

Florida Convicted Killer Wins Indefinite Stay Of Execution

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Convicted killer Charles W. Proffitt won an indefinite stay of execution Tuesday, just 17 hours before he was scheduled to die in the electric chair.

U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges of Jacksonville indefinitely postponed the execution after attorneys argued Proffitt had an incompetent attorney during his trial for the knife slaying of a Tampa man in 1973.

Hodges directed a magistrate to review the trial transcript and report as to whether an evidentiary hearing or other proceeding would be necessary.

On Monday, a federal judge in Fort Lauderdale ordered an indefinite stay for Robert A. Sullivan, condemned for the 1973 shotgun slaying of a restaurant-motel manager in Homestead.

Both Proffitt and Sullivan had been scheduled to die in the electric chair Wednesday morning. The state attorney general indicated Tuesday the state would not immediately appeal the stays.

Hodges, who also granted a stay of execution last month to convicted murderer Willie Darden, reviewed Proffitt's case overnight before postponing the execution.

Hodges said he agreed with the recent observation by Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist deploring the pressure of last-minute petitions on judges, but "the court's jurisdiction has been properly invoked and it has a constitutional and statutory obligation to entertain and decide the petition on its merits."

After what he called a hasty review of the court records, Hodges said it may not be necessary to order another trial, but Proffitt's claim that he had an incompetent attorney is new.

The same argument had been made in state courts, including the Florida Supreme Court, which rejected it Monday.

"I'm just so thankful. You all just don't know how terrible this is. I think I'll go in and tell the family now. I don't think they know about it," said Susan Cary, a leader of the death penalty opponents protesting at the Starke prison.

The death warrants for Proffitt, 33, and Sullivan, 31, were signed last week by Gov. Bob Graham and expire at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Proffitt's case was the test which the U.S. Supreme Court reviewed for a 1976 landmark decision that upheld Florida's capital punishment law and reinstated the death penalty in the United States.

On May 25, Florida became the first state in 12 years to execute a man against his will when convicted murderer John Spenkelink was electrocuted. Graham has pledged to expedite the executions of the remaining 130 men and one woman on Death Row.

In Tallahassee, Attorney General Jim Smith indicated state lawyers will not mount the frantic, cross-county legal battle they did in the final hours before Spenkelink was put to death.

Meanwhile, Graham won enough support in his cabinet to commute the death sentence of two inmates to life imprisonment. However, he did not immediately explain why he supported the mercy pleas of Learie Lee Alford of West Palm Beach and Clifford Hallman of Tampa.

Alford, 33, was conviced of the 1973 murder and rape of a 13-year-ol girl. Hallman, 29, was sentenced for slashing the throat of a Hillsborough County barmaid whose family later won a negligence award from the hospital where she died.

Hallman's attorneys argued their client should be spared because the victim, Eleanor Jean Groves, would not have died except for hospital negligence.

Alford's attorneys said they had located witness who could testify Alford was not the man who murdered Carole Lynn Blevins.

Scuffle Causes Delay In Henley Trial

CORPUS CHRISTI (UPI) — A man claiming to be the father of one of the 27 victims of the 1973 Houston mass murders Tuesday initiated a loud scuffle between television cameramen and bailiffs, forcing a temporary postponement of final arguments in the retrial of Elmer Wayne Henley.

The short affray occurred about 9:30 a.m. inside a courthouse corridor only minutes before the jury in the highly publicized trial was to return to the courtroom.

After the incident, Judge Noah O. Kennedy met briefly with prosecution and defense attorneys, then ordered a recess until 9 a.m. Wednesday.

James Rowe, a spokesman for the judge, said the corridor fracas began when a trial official recognized Walter Scott of Houston as a man who had reportedly tried to attend Henley's 1974 trial in San Antonio while possessing a gun.

Rowe also said Scott, who claims his teen-age son was a victim of the Houston sex-and-torture ring for which Henley reportedly procured young boys, had recently made threats against defense attorneys Will Gray and Ed Pegelow.

Scott was escorted to an adjoining elevator by baliffs and was pursued by two Houston television cameramen. The baliffs and cameramen first exchanged heated words, then engaged in a short scuffle.

Scott later returned to Nueces County Attorney Mike Westergren's office allegedly to file charges against the officers, but instead held an impromtu news conference.

"As God is my witness, I've never had a gun on my person," said Scott.

The 1972 disappearance of Scott's son, Mark, has never been linked to the Henley case. Scott, however, claimed a Houston district attorney once showed him Mark's house key that was found among items belonging to the victims.

"Where do you go for information," Scott said in explaining his reasons for wanting to attend the trial.

Henley is accused of killing Billy Ray Lawrence, 19; Charles C. Cobble, 17; Marty Ray Jones, 18; Frank Aguirre, 18; Homer Garcia, 18; and Johnny DeLome, 16, during his years of allegedly procuring youngsters for Dean Corll, who headed the gang.

Mayors Of Three Cities Due Honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Institute for Public Service is honoring the mayors of Baltimore, Detroit and Newark for working to stop the decline of their cities.

Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer, Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young and Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson were among 10 winners of the institute's 1979 Jefferson Award for public service achievements.

In a statement, the institute said the mayors had established "a national symbol that our cities can be saved, that neighborhood deterioration can be reversed and that urban revitalization is attainable."

U.S. Refugee Center Proposed As Vietnam Exodus Continues

HONG KONG (AP) — Twelve rickety boats deposited 1,579 more fleeing Vietnamese at docks in Hong Kong harbor Tuesday, swelling the refugee population at already jammed and makeshift camps in the British colony to nearly 57,000.

In Kuala Lumpur, Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie described the refugee problem as "the hangover" of U.S. involvement in Vietnam. He said Malaysia proposes a United Nations processing center for Indochina refugees be established in the United States or in U.S.-controlled territory.

A government spokesman in Hong Kong said the boats arrived throughout the day in groups and the refugees were taken to a ramshackle government dockyard already packed with 10,000 refugees.

The spokesman said that at the present rate Hong Kong would have more than 200,000 refugees by year's end.

Malaysia announced it had towed 652 new refugees out to international waters in nine boats bringing the total pushed back into the South China Sea since June 18, when refugee rules were tightened, to 13,618.

Earlier Tuesday two boats carrying 117 refugees slipped past patrol boats and landed on Malaysian shores — one on the central Malay Peninsula and the other on the north coast of Borneo.

A Malaysian refugee task force spokesman said the latest arrivals would be given food, fuel and other necessities and towed back out to sea.

Malaysia has 60,000 refugees in island camps awaiting transfer to other countries and more than 15,000 others scattered along the beaches of the east coast. The government threatened earlier this month to expel all of them, but after an international outcry said those in camps could stay until other countries accepted them. The new policy does not allw any new refugees to enter.

Ghazali, in proposing a refugee processing center in the United States, said refugees could be kept there until they can go to nations taking them for permanent settlement.

He spoke with reporters after meeting with Australian Industrial Relations Minister A.A. Street, and said Malaysia also was suggesting additional processing centers in countries such as Australia and the Soviet Union, where he sid there is ample space.

Other officials said the plan might be proposed formally at the International Conference on Indochina Refugees in Geneva next month.

Officials at the United Nations preparing for that conference declined to comment Tuesady on a statement made in Geneva by the Vietnamese ambassador there.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR JUNE 27, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 8, 19, 31, 42, 54, 65 ..... Energy can be off
Highs: 9-18, 32-41, 55-64 ..... Good jogging time
Lows: 1-7, 20-30, 43-53, 66-75 ..... Relax and restore energy

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 11, 25, 39, 53, 67, 81 ..... Instability can hurt
Highs: 1-10, 26-38, 54-66, 82-85 ..... It's a great day
Lows: 12-24, 40-52, 68-80 ..... Don't act rashly

INTELLECTUAL

Lows: 6-21, 39-54, 72-87 ..... Analytical powers dim

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

SHIPS COLLIDE — French freighter Emmanuel Delmas, foreground, and Italian Tanker Vera Berlingieri burn after colliding off Civitavecchia Tuesday. At least four died and several others are missing. (AP Laserphoto)

High Death Toll Feared In Ship Collision

FIUMICINO, Italy (AP) — A French freighter and an Italian tanker filled with gasoline collided in dense fog north of this fishing port Tuesday and burst into flames. Italian authorities said four bodies were recovered and more than 20 crewmen were missing.

Officials said the exact number on board the two ships at the time of the collision was unclear, but all but one or two of those unaccounted for came from the French ship.

Hours after the collision, the 5,000-ton tanker Vera Berlingieri was still ablaze, the 12,000-ton freighter Emmanuel Delmas locked against it. Rescue workers abandoned attempts to board the freighter for fear of an explosion.

"We do not know anything about the fate of the remaining 24 persons as both ships were locked together and there is danger that the tanker might explode at any moment," said Aldo Savelli, port captain of Civitavecchia and coordinator of rescue operations.

Rescue ships picked up 23 of the 24 crew members of the Italian tanker, many of them severely burned. Three of the 30-man crew of the Emmanuel Delmas were also rescued in the initial operations.

The collision occurred 14 miles offshore in the Tyrrhenian Sea, midway between Fiumicino, the site of Rome's international airport, and the resort town of Santa Marinella.

The tanker was carrying 1.5 million gallons of gasoline.

Vernon Presley, 63, Dies In Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Vernon Presley, 63-year-old father of late rock superstar Elvis Presley, died of heart failure Tuesday at Baptist Hospital, the same hospital where his famed son was pronounced dead less than two years ago.

Presley, a laborer until his son's success lifted him from obscurity, died in bed at 9:20 a.m. while a team of doctors worked over him trying to correct an irregular heart beat.

Presley had been hospitalized for nearly a month with his latest siege of heart trouble.

"We were working on him this morning and he went into cardiac arrest," said Dr. Nathan Salky, a cardiologist. Presley's regular phyician, Dr. Roger Cunningham, and another cardiologist, Dr. Bill Russo, also were present.

"This was the end stage of a very weak heart," Salky said. "The heart just finally gave out all at once, but he was going down for weeks and months. He was not in a comma. He just went out suddenly."

Doctors tried unsuccessfully for almost an hour to revive Presley with electric shocks and medication.

"He died of coronary arterio sclerotic heart disease," Salky said. "That's where coronary artery is blocked and damaged with the heart muscle along with congestive heart failure."

A diabetic, the elder Presley first suffered a heart attack in 1975, and had been hospitalized with heart problems three times this year. He entered the hospital for the last time May 29, complaining of irregular heart beats.

A spokesman at Memphis funeral home said funeral services would be conducted at Graceland mansion — the Presley estate where Elvis collapsed Aug. 16, 1977. Elvis was pronounced dead after being rushed to Baptist Hospital.

A mansion spokeswoman said a small crowd gathered outside the gates to the Presley estate upon hearing of the death of the elder Presley.

Until his death, the softspoken, white-haired Presley carried out the affairs of his son's multi-million dollar estate that is still swelling from movie and record royalties.

In the singer's will, Vernon Presley was named sole executor of Elvis' estate, most of which went to Elvis' only daughter, Lisa Marie Presley.

Born April 10, 1916, in Tupelo, Miss., the elder Presley and his wife, Gladys Smith Love Presley, raised Elvis in a two room shack. Presley was a carpenter, sharecropper and painter who frequently joined his wife and son singing at church, camp meetings and revivals.

In 1948, the family moved to Memphis where Presley continued to work as a laborer until Elvis launched his recording career and put his father on the payroll at $72,800 a year.

Presley, who lived in a three bedroom apartment added on to Graceland after his son's death, managed his son's affairs at the mansion and while Elvis was alive, traveled with him on tours — even going to Germany when his son served as a tank driver in the U.S. Army.

Mrs. Presley died in 1958.

In a secret ceremony at Huntsville, Ala., two years later, Presley married Davada Mae Elliot Stanley, a divorcee he met while in Germany. They had no children and were divorced after 17 years of marriage.

Survivors Of Crash At Canyon Remain In Hospital At Amarillo

AMARILLO (Special) — Eight survivors of a two-vehicle collision that killed six people remained in Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital Tuesday.

The accident occurred Monday morning when a car packed with 11 persons and a pickup truck occupied by a man and his two sons collided west of Canyon.

All six who died were riding in the same car.

Among the survivors was Rolando Moreno, 19, of Muleshoe, who was riding in the car. He was reported in serious condition with head injuries late Tuesday.

Two children remained in critical condition in the hospital's pediatric intensive care unit. They are Gabriel Moreno, 3, and Alma Gonzales, 4. Two other children, Mary Christine Moreno, 1, and Albert Moreno, 20 months, remained in serious condition.

Dolpha Dale Scott, 47, of Hereford, the driver of the pickup truck, was in satisfactory condition. His two sons, Michael Lynn, 12, and Jason Kyle, 8, were in serious condition.

Those killed in the accident were the driver of the car, Antonio Yuregas, 27, of Muleshoe; Roel Moreno, 8-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rolando Moreno of Amarillo; Raquel Moreno, 21, of Amarillo; Joanna Gonzales, 5, of Amarillo; Esther Moreno, 17, of Amarillo; and Yolanda Yuregas, 24, of Amarillo.

Department of Public Safety officials said the car driven by Yuregas was southbound on FM 168 when the accident occurred. Scott's pickup was westbound on FM 1062 when the two vehicles collided at the intersection.

Rites Planned For Wreck Dead

MULESHOE (Special) — Services for Antonio Yuregas, 27; his wife, Yolanda, 23; and her daughter, Joan Gonzalez, 5, all of Amarillo, will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Singleton-Ellis Chapel of the Chimes with the Rev. Tim Schwertner, pastor of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, officiating for Yuregas and the Rev. Hipolito Pecina, pastor of the Spanish Assembly Church of God, officiating for Mrs. Yuregas and her daughter.

Burial for all three will be in Bailey County Memorial Park under direction of Singleton-Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe.

The family members died as a result of an auto accident at 9:55 a.m. Monday near Canyon. They were riding in a car carrying 11 persons which collided with a pickup.

Yuregas, who was driving the vehicle, was pronounced dead at the scene by Canyon Justice of the Peace E.J. Hail. Joan was dead on arrival at Northwest Texas Hospital of Amarillo and Mrs. Yuregas died shortly after arrival at the same hospital.

Yuregas was a native of Littlefield and had lived in Amarillo one month after moving there from Needmore Community, where he was a farm laborer. He married Yolanda Gonzalez May 5 and was a member of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nestor Yuregas of Muleshoe; two sisters, Pilar Lopez and Jose Nunez, both of Muleshoe; and five brothers, Nestor Jr. of Dearborn, Mich., Joe of Needmore Community, B.C. of Farwell, Phillip of Fort Worth and Jesse of Hayward, Calif.

Mrs. Yuregas was a native of Pearsall. Her survivors include a daughter, Alma Gonzalez of the home; her father, Macario Moreno of Tulia; her mother, Josefa Reyna of Muleshoe; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Reyna of Muleshoe and Mrs. Luisa Cantu of Pearsall; one sister, Edna Moreno of Muleshoe; and three brothers, Ruben Moreno and Roland Moreno, both of Amarillo, and Robert Moreno of Muleshoe.

Joan's survivors include her father, Johnny Gonzalez of Waco; a sister, Alma of Amarillo; grandparents, Josefa Reyna of Muleshoe and Macario Moreno of Tulia; and great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Reyna of Muleshoe, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Rodriguez of Waco and Lucia Cantu of Pearsall.

Adopted Tots Trapped In War-Torn Nicaragua

SOMERSET, N.J. (AP) — Their pictures are taped to the refrigerator door. An empty room is waiting for them, filled with toys and clothes.

But Scott and Kristy Losey are trapped in war-torn Nicaragua, unable to leave their native land to meet the adoptive parents who are trying frantically to free them.

Bill and Pat Losey received pictures of the 3-year-old girl and her 6-week-old brother two months ago and were ready for their scheduled arrival in the U.S. two weeks ago.

But fighting between the Somoza government and Sandinista guerrillas in the Central American country shut down national offices and trapped the children in the capital before their visas could be processed.

Losey said Tuesday he has been battling with the U.S. State Department since last Thursday for his children's release, "but all I get is diplomatic and political double talk."

"We can't get them out because they are not American citizens, but they can't get Nicaraguan passports because all the offices have closed down," Losey said.

Robert and Kathleen Hoffman of Clark have adopted a 2½-year-old boy from Nicaragua and also are unable to free him.

Their adoption process has been completed except for one piece of paper, which must come from officials of a small town outside Managua. But the offices are closed and Joseph Louis Hoffman is trapped.

All three children are sheltered at the Inter-American Adoption Institute in Managua, which arranged the adoptions. The children are believed to be safe, said Losey.

Visas could be arranged in Managua at the American consulate, but the State Department told Losey it cannot order them processed until the consulate contacts Washington, he said.

"They said that if the consulate calls them for advice, they will tell him to process the visas. But they won't call him (the consul) directly," Losey said.

When contacted in Washington, a State Department spokeswoman said the department is handicapped and can send only a limited number of cables to Nicaragua because of the chaotic conditions.

Losey said the children are still considered Nicaraguan nationals and are at the bottom of the evacuation priority list.

"Those kids are ours," said Losey. "We bought a crib, a bed, toys and clothes for them, but we can't get them out."

Assault Charges Filed Against Slaton Man After Pair Knifed

Felip DeLeon, 29, of Slaton was charged with two counts of aggravated assault in connection with stabbings Saturday night of two men, one of whom remains in serious condition at West Texas Hospital.

DeLeon is accused of stabbing Julio Toralva Rodriguez, 18, and David L. Martinez, 20, during a fight at the Fiesta Club, East Fourth Street and Redbud Drive.

Rodriguez of 412 N. Elgin Ave. suffered stab wounds to the chest and remains in the hospital. Martinez was stabbed in the hand and lower chest, and was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital and released.

Witnesses told police Martinez and his wife were sitting at a table in the lounge when the suspect and a companion approached and asked to dance with Martinez's wife.

The suspect became angry when Martinez told him to leave, and the suspect pulled out a knife and attacked Martinez, police said.

Rodriguez was injured as the suspect, who was fleeing the lounge, started slashing him, police said.

Also, Monte Lee Bowman, 33, of 1507 46th St. was charged with aggravated assault. Bowman was charge in connection with a fight that occurred June 17 about parking space in the 1500-block of 46th Street.

Young Male Assaults Four In Apartment

Police were searching Tuesday for a young male, between 14 and 17 years old, who assaulted four persons inside an apartment early Tuesday, police said.

Anita K. Northcutt, 18, of 3001 S. Loop 289, No. 4R, told police the youth came to the apartment drunk and kicked the front door open. The woman said the young assailant struck her in the mouth, eye and nose.

Reports state the intruder also tossed around the other occupants in the apartment, including a 14-year-old boy, and two girls, ages 14 and 15. The suspect was last seen walking east on a South Loop 289 access road.

A 30-year-old truck driver said he was struck in the back of the head and robbed of $360 cash about 5 p.m. Monday when he walked out of a club in the 4900-block of Brownfield Highway.

Buck O'Neal of Tahoka said he was walking out the back door of the club when a white man, between 26 and 35 years old, with light brown hair and wearing a green cap, confronted him and asked if he could borrow 50 cents.

O'Neal said then someone hit him from behind. He fell and when he was getting up, he found his wallet, with cash and credit cards missing, on the ground.

The victim said he saw a green Ford pickup truck leaving the scene.

Two Lubbock businesses reported to police Tuesday that tires were stolen by burglars wearing tennis shoes.

Edward Poole, 28, of Lubbock Manufactoring Co., 401 N. Ave. H told police that someone cut a chain link fence surrounding the business and stole 12 tires and wheels from the parking lot.

Poole estimated the value of the tires and wheels at $2,795. He said the burglary occurred between 8 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Police found tire tracks and tennis shoes prints, about size 8, near the cut in the fence.

Another set of tennis shoe prints, about size 9, were found by police at the scene of a burglary at American Iron and Metal, 3202 Quirt Ave.

Dean Yeisley told police someone cut a wire fence around the building, and then broke down a door, sounding an alarm. Before police arrived, the burglars had stolen several truck tires, worth about $300. The burglary occurred about 3:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Services Pending For Mary Ethel Pew

BRYN MAWR, Pa. (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled Wednesday for Mary Ethel Pew, the widely known philanthropist whose father founded the Sun Oil Co.

Miss Pew, who died Sunday at her home here, was 95.

Acclaimed for her social, cultural and educational activities, Miss Pew was primarily responsible for the development of Lankenau Hospital in Lower Merion Township. She had served as a hospital board member since 1947 and developed the facility's research department.

Hospital president Ralph Moriarty worked closely with Miss Pew over the last eight years and described her as "very compassionate, very interested in the hospital and the quality of the care we rendered to patients."

"She took particular interest in those in dire financial straits and many times helped them anonymously," he added.

An honors graduate of Bryn Mawr College, she was a founding member of the Institute for Cancer Research and served on its board of directors.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Because the stock of a company in which I own 1,000 shares has dropped from $24 to about $20 in recent months, I think I would be better off on the short side, by "selling against the box."

I shorted stocks years ago, but never against the box. I remember paying dividends to the owners of the stocks I shorted. If I sell against the box, I assume I would continue to collect dividends on the stock I own.

My wife and I are over 65 and financially independent. She thinks I should keep my shares intact and free from stress and strain. What do you think?

A. I'll go along with your wife. Although the process of selling against the box preserves the value of your investment, there are costs involved. Also, because the stock you named in your letter is of top quality — with a long record of steadily increasing its dividend and prospects of continuing to do so — it's the kind you should simply hang on to. .

In a straight short sale, you sell stock you do not own. You borrow the shares involved through your broker. Sooner or later, you must "cover" your short sale by buying back an equal number of those shares and delivering them to the person who loaned the stock.

A short sale is normally done when you think a stock's price is going to fall. You sell short at one price and hope to buy back at a lower price, thereby "covering" at a profit. Of course, if the stock goes up, you have to buy back at a higher price and cover at a loss.

While you are short, you must pay to the person who loaned you the stock you shorted money equal to the dividends paid on the shares. You must pay interest on any loan you obtain through your broker to accomplish the short sale. And you must pay commissions to the broker on both the short sale and the repurchase.

When you sell against the box, you keep the stock you own but still go through the entire short sale procedure. You preserve what you started out with.

Meanwhile, you incur all the expenses that go with selling short.

Q. What protection do mutual fund shareholders have against loss, as a result of mismanagement by officers of the mutual fund?

A. None, if by "mismanagement" you mean poor business judgment such as picking the wrong stocks as investments for the fund.

But plenty, if you're talking about fraud or other hanky-panky. Every mutual fund is subject to the laws of the state in which it is incorporated, the laws of all states in which it sells shares and four federal laws — the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Investment Company Act of 1940 and the Investment Company Amendments Act of 1970.

No statutes can prevent all thievery. But the mutual fund business has a remarkably good record of being "clean."

Q. Just how reliable do you consider books telling people "how to" become a millionaire in stocks, commodities, diamonds, real estate, etc.? Personally, I'd have a better chance selling sand in the desert.

My first article was published when I was in grade school and I've had 10 children. So, I certainly don't lack imagination or derring-do. Yet, I can't bring myself to part with a very real $10 or more for a book promising to net me an imaginary fortune.

A. You said it as well as, or better than, I can. Most of those "millionaire authors" got that way on book royalties.

Here's a simple rule of thumb about such tomes. Their value can be calculated in an inverse ratio to the promises they make.

Priority Given Rural Survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richer neighbors quickly gobble up farms when they come up for sale, making it virtually impossible for younger and smaller operators to get their own stake in America's vast and expanding food-producing complex, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says.

This is one of the many things on Bergland's mind as he digs into what makes U.S. agriculture tick. He says big farmers, because of their size and efficiency, produce the bulk of the nation's food and get most of the federal subsidies and tax write-offs.

So Bergland has given top priority to a review of what he calls the "structure" of agriculture and rural life. Maybe, he says, federal policy should be inverted so more benefits go to a small farmer instead of the big one.

But even the mention of this, and the probe into what he says are the shortcomings of traditional farm policy, could mean that Bergland is putting his job on the line.

Bergland has spoken often about how, in his view, current and traditional farm programs do not work well to protect or enhance the smaller family farmer. He kicked off what he called a "national dialogue" on federal programs in a speech in Kansas City in March.

It is hard to pull from Bergland exactly how he thinks farm policy should be changed. The studies must be completed first, he says.

But it's easy to see Bergland feels deeply about the subject. And at times, as in an interview with The Associated Press, his usually mild voice takes on an edge. Not anger but close to it.

What would you do, given the authority, to help small family farmers more than is being done now, he was asked.

"There are things I would not do," Bergland replied. "And this is my own personal bias. I would not run the small farmers of this country out of business.

"I regard them as a very important part of our total fabric. There are a million and a half of them. And it's true they don't produce much of the market, but it is also true they are an important part of our system and society.

"There have been times when persons in this place (his office) thought that they ought to be dispensed with...get 'em out of the country, get 'em off the land, bulldoze the buildings, push down the groves and turn the land over to somebody that knows how.

"That kind of nonsense will not come from this secretary."

Bergland is concerned about the threats of agriculture being dominated by big conglomerate corporations, but not as much as he is about the superfarmers, the kind found in almost every community.

These are private holdings, operated as "family farms" in most cases, perhaps incorporated by the family as a convenient way to take advantage of tax structures.

If the threat of land takeover by huge corporations is discounted, Bergland was asked, is it time for the super-large farmer — including those who sop up virtually any land that is available — to think about leveling off; is this a part of his thoughts and study of agricultural structure?

"Indeed, it is," Bergland replied. "The question needs to be asked, do we continue to subsidize that larger operator who is getting bigger and buying all the land in the neighborhood?

"And we provide that kind of enterprise with enormous subsidies, and we need to look at whether or not it's in the public interest.

"I mean, that's a person who takes advantage of tax loopholes, the capital gains code, investment credit, accelerated depreciation. That's the person who is able to outbid any young family that is trying to get started in the business."

Bergland said he had talked with young tenant farmers, who, after owners died, wanted to buy the land. They couldn't afford to do so because prices were so high. Just the interest on an adequate loan, he said, would require as payment $1.50 from every bushel of grain sold.

"The land prices were run up by neighbors who were able to pay that price — and do it with federal subsidy, although they have it hidden, of course," Bergland said.

"They don't accept federal checks directly. They like the subsidy packaged in tax advantages and in other forms of assistance. I'm about to unhorse that one."

Bergland said his probe of structures will include a full analysis of tax advantages and all forms of federal subsidies to farmers. When this is done, he said, "we'll put a price tag on it and decide whether we want to continue" with such aid.

"We might decide it's a good idea and that we want to continue in the name of efficiency or whatever," he said. "But we ought to make a conscious decision — and not license these programs on the grounds that we're saving the family farm, because I don't think we are."

Bergland said his study sprang "from the constant banging I've taken the last two years over commodity policy" from some farm groups, including the American Agriculture Movement, who wanted higher federal prie supports to the 90 percent of parity level or higher.

Until he joined the Carter cabinet, Bergland was a three-term congressman from northern Minnesota and farmed on the side.

"I started thinking back to my own experience up home," he continued. "I was farming when wheat prices went to $5 a bushel. I saw what happened to land values in my community. I saw who bought the land. I saw who ran the price of land up."

Who did?

"It was big operators," he answered.

So, when people advocate higher price supports, translated into $5.50 a bushel for wheat, to help the family farmer, "I say nonsense, it won't do any such thing," Bergland said. "That's why I pulled the string on this thing and said it's time to look at it."

But why right now? Couldn't this full-scale probe into traditional farm programs backfire and result in unnecessary self-inflicted wounds as Carter heads into a re-election campaign in 1980?

"It could be," Bergland said. "It could be politically very damaging for me. I don't know, of course. It depends on how the forces line up...

"There are going to be many people who don't want these matters examined and they'll go after me. I dont know where it will come from. I don't know who they'll be, but I know that it will happen."

Rangers Look For Herbicide Ring Suspect

Texas Rangers, aided by other law enforcement officials on the South Plains, continued Tuesday to search for Marlin Ray Sasser, charged with burglary and theft and suspected of being a key figure in an extensive herbicide black market within at least a six-county area.

The 46-year-old Sasser, whose last known address was in the Lorenzo area, was charged Monday with a total of five counts of burglary in Lubbock, Floyd and Briscoe counties, and three counts of theft in Swisher and Hale counties.

The three counts filed in the Lubbock County District Attorney's Office were in connection with three separate break-ins at county chemical firms and warehouses and taking almost $100,000 worth of the weed killer.

Randy Hollums, district attorney for Briscoe and Floyd counties, said two counts of burglary have been filed against Sasser in those counties and that his office recommended a bond of $24,000 on each count.

Ron Felty, assistant district attorney for Hale and Swisher counties, said three counts of theft had been filed in his office against the still-at-large suspect. Those charges were in connection with two separate thefts of the expensive chemical in Swisher County and a report of stolen herbicide in Hale County.

Tulia Justice of the Peace S.G. Hooper set a $25,000 bond for each of those counts.

The Hockley County District Attorney's Office also is investigating the numerous reports of herbicide thefts, district attorney investigator Ted Holder said Tuesday.

The office of Jack Young, district attorney for Bailey and Lamb counties, is investigating the suspected burglary and theft ring. However, Young could not be reached for comment.

Local officials estimate that as much as $300,000 worth of weed killers may have been stolen by the same persons from numerous area warehouses during the past 18 months.

Area Firm Sells Controlling Interest

CANYON (Special) — Ron Kershen of the Kershen Triticale Company said 51 percent of the outstanding shares and controlling interest of the company has been sold.

Dallas investors Charles Hunter, Howard Sluyter and Robert Murchison were the purchasers. No immediate changes in management personnel are anticipated.

Kerchen said the financial abilities gained by this transaction should give the company the marketing strength to establish triticale as a major food and forage crop.

FmHA AWARDS CONTRACT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration has awarded a $250,000 contract to the National Academy of Sciences to study the gathering of statistics on rural conditions.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

KNOWLEDGEABLE TRADE SOURCES estimate, on a highly tentative and preliminary basis, that "effective" acres still standing in cotton on the High Plains may have been slahsed to approximately 3.8 million.

This would be down a whopping 600,000 acres or 13.6 percent from original plantings, estimated at an all-time high of 4.4 million in the 25-county area.

Cotton still may be standing on one-third to one-half of the 600,000 acres, sources said, but is in extremely poor condition.

Blowing sand, washing rains and hail last weekend may have inflicted varying degrees of damage on up to 200,000 acres of cotton, some sources said. Damage on a considerable portion of this, however, may be relatively minor.

LUBBOCK COUNTY FARMERS TUESDAY had filed about 125 cotton release requests at the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office. The requests covered an estimated 16,000 acres.

"We have thousands and thousands of additional acres that are marginal at best," said Alan Mackey, executive director of the county ASCS. "A lot of cotton that's left doesn't look worth 10 cents, and some farmers would nearly sell it to somebody for 100 pounds per acre."

Lamb County ASCS Executive Director Chip Martin of Littlefield said hail destroyed 2,000 to 3,000 acres there and damaged another 2,000 to 3,000 acres. He said some farmers in fringe areas were waiting to see what the damaged cotton would do.

Martin said Lamb County's losses for the season probably total about 25,000 to 40,000 acres off original plantings of around 295,000 acres. He said six scattered hailstorms have hit the county so far this year.

"Our cotton is two weeks or more behind where it should be," Martin said. "We have some late cotton that is about five inches tall and we have cotton planted a month earlier that isn't as big as the late-planted stuff."

INDIRECT REPORTS INDICATE the thunderstorm activity damaged about 25,000 to 30,000 acres in Lynn County and about the same amount in Briscoe County.

Gaines County reportedly had only 25-30 new releases on 1,000 to 1,500 acres, although sand was said to have damaged cotton throughout the county. Cotton abandonment there so far is estimated at 10,000 to 15,000 acres.

Veteran crop observers don't recall a year when the High Plains has had so much late cotton. On the plus side, the area has abundant subsoil moisture.

Guesses on yield prospects at this point, about as hazardous as anything can be, range in some quarters from 10 to 15 percent to as much as 20 percent below the 10-year average through 1977 of about 380 pounds per harvested acre.

COTTON FUTURES AT NEW YORK closed nearer lows than highs Tuesday, off 91 points in spot July to 26 points in new-crop December, largely on commission house long liquidation.

Floor brokers said a sharp jump in the speculative share of open longs to 75 percent, reported in commitments Tuesday, and a late fall in precious metals caused weakness.

Trading on Telcot totaled 2,303 bales. The average price was 54.60 cents, an average of 1,110 points over the loan. The basis has widened considerably recently. Buying emphasis still is on the higher qualities.

Livestock Futures Stage Sharp Rally

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 85 to 150 points higher led by October at the limit level advance Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market rallied after slipping 42 early. The limit advance followed a limit loss Monday and was the sixth limit move in a row.

Sales totaled 24,117 cars in local and commission house trade.

Short covering and other buying was touched off by the upsurge in beef at noon. There was also technical support after prices fell to the lowest since February on the early break.

There have been 229 deliveries thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to up 2½ at 104½ to 107 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were off $2 to up 50 cents with the best top $70 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 99,000 head. About 14,200 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Feeder cattle futures closed the daily limit of 150 higher with buyers over across the board most of the day.

Sales held to 3,223 lots with many unfilled bids at the close.

The market rallied sharply on discount of futures to cash and well sold up position of cash even though some prices slanted lower. There is good demand for cash feeder cattle.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Most grain and soybean futures closed slightly higher today on the Chicago Board of Trade in generally directionless trade.

Little outside news emerged to influence prices. Commercial selling early in the trading session triggered selling in nearby soybean contracts covering the 1978 crop, and selling by local traders helped erase some of the sharp gains of last week.

Corn and wheat futures fluctuated. Corn futures held gains throughout most of the session, supported partly by an Agriculture Department report showing corn export shipments last week were sharply higher than the previous week or the same week a year ago.

At the close, soybeans were 5 cents lower to 12¾ cents higher, July $8.31½; wheat was ¼ to 3½ cents higher, July $4.71; corn was unchanged to 3 cents higher, July $3.11¾; and oats were ½ cent lower to 2½ cents higher, July $1.70¼.

E.E.R.? I never worried about it until I found out what it meant.

When I discovered that an air conditioner with an Energy Efficiency Ratio (E.E.R.) of 10 was twice as efficient as one with a rating of 5, it got my attention. Because with electric power at its present price and likely to go higher in the years anead, twice as much cooling for my money makes real sense.

So shop for the higher E.E.R. rating when you buy any appliance and compare prices. Just remember that a higher E.E.R. means less electric energy required. And conservation of power is the only sure way to save on your electric bill.

OPEC Debate Affects Mart

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 6.59 to 837.66 after losing 4.85 on Monday.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, meeting in Geneva, adjourned for the day without having set a new price.

The present official price is $14.55, but with surcharges imposed by most OPEC members the average prevailing price is about $17.

A formal decision was expected today.

Adding to the generally gloomy atmosphere in the market was the government's report Tuesday morning that the consumer price index rose 1.1 percent last month, keeping inflation at a double-digit pace.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Santa Fe Music Festival To Visit Both Coasts

SANTA FE, N.M. (Special) — The Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival will embark on national residencies in Seattle and New York following its annual six-week season in Santa Fe, N.M. Highlights of the festival season will be the presentation of 19 festival artists — all celebrated soloists from around the world — plus a special week in Santa Fe devoted to the works of George Rochberg when the American composer will both lecture and perform and when members of the Concord String Quartet will be in residency to perform Rochberg's "Concord Quartets 4, 5 and 6" for the first time since their January New York premiere.

In Santa Fe the festival will present its seventh annual season of three or four weekly concerts, discussion and working rehearsals open to the public, lecture-performances and special event and activities July 1-Aug. 6.

Following the six-week season in New Mexico, the festival artists will travel to Seattle to present the Santa Fe repertoire in five evenings of concerts and pre-concert recitals and daily master classes Aug. 13-17. Performances will be on the University of Washington campus, with daily master classes at the university's School of Music.

After their Seattle appearance, the festival artists will travel to New York City for performances of the season repertoire in six evenings of concerts and pre-concert recitals in their New York debut. They will be presented by the 92nd Street YM-YWHA Aug. 25-30.

Twelve solists will appear with the festival for the first time in 1979. Among them are:

•Italian artists Enrica Cavallo, piano, and violinist Franco Gulli, who recently appeared as a soloist with the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra;

•Daniel Phillips, violin and viola, who at the age of 24 has already appeared with the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, the Spoleto Festivals and the Casals Festival;

•George Rochberg, the American composer and pianist from Philadelphia on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania;

Individual and subscription tickets for all Santa Fe Chamber Music Festival concerts and events in Santa Fe, Seattle and New York may be purchased by writing the festival in each city: Box 853, Santa Fe, N.M., 87501, or telephone 505-983-2075 or 505-982-2616; c/o Music Associates, Box 4151, Pioneer Square Station, Seattle, Wash., 98104, or telephone 206-623-8313; and Box Office, 92nd Street YM-YWHA, 1395 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y., 10028, or telephone 212-427-4410.

Real Bluesman Going Nowhere, While Imitators Hit Gold Mine

By WAYNE SLATER

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Reggie Stone doesn't know quite what to make of the Blues Brothers, who've hit it big with a parody of what he does for real.

Stone is a blues singer from Rock Island, a real blues singer. The Blues Brothers are a skillful imitation by comedians Dan Ackroyd and John Belushi of television's "Saturday Night Live."

The irony is that the imitators have hit a gold mine while the real bluesman is going nowhere.

"I tell you, man, it hurts," Stone said recently, nursing a beer in the half-light of a local bar. "Like I been paying dues for a long time, I been struggling, man. Then I see these guys making it and don't know what to think."

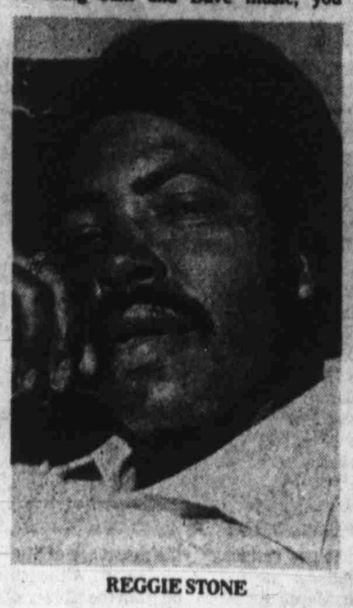

Belushi's and Ackroyds act, a tongue-in-cheek portrayal of a couple of black bluesmen "from Rock Island, Illinois," is a sellout on the road. Their album is doing very well, and appearances on TV are greeted with enthusiasm bordering on mania.

Stone, though, is still playing the smoky joints around Rock Island, dispensing authentic rhythum and blues, doing it for real. And doing lousy.

"I'm a soul man doing it right and I'm still trying to find that break,' he said glumly.

He recalls the first time he ever saw the Blues Brothers.

"It was on TV one night, on 'Saturday Night Live'," he said. "The music started and there was this introduction for these guys, the Blues Brothers from Rock Island, and this kickin' band started doing Sam and Dave music, you know The sound was there, the beat, everything, then I looked up and I was shocked."

REGGIE STONE

It was art imitating life. Reggie's life. And not doing it very well. There were Belushi and Ackroyd singing bogus blues, two young white comedians in grey suits, felt fedoras and sunglasses.

Still, Stone admits the act is clever and the parody appealing.

"Hey, I wish them well, you know, black or white or whatever," he said. "It's just that I been in this business for a long time myself and I'm still trying to find the door." Stone is a massive black man with thick arms, a bushy mustache and a gold ring. His hair is an extraordinary jungle, and his eyes have the soulful look of a man who has seen bad times.

When he is not singing in some west side haunt, he is making money to keep things together.

U.S. Inflation Rate Fails To Diminish

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steep price increases in May for gasoline and other fuels kept inflation swirling above a 13 percent annual rate, the government reported Tuesday, and a top administration economist held out little hope inflation would slow soon.

The rapidly rising cost of energy was the main contributor to a 1.1 percent overall rise in consumer prices during May — the fourth straight month that prices have risen by at least 1 pecent, the Labor Department said.

Continued large price increases also were recorded for housing, interest rates and new cars, but food prices showed the smallest increase in six months. Altogether, consumer prices have risen 10.8 percent since May 1978. So far this year, they have been rising at a 13.4 percent annual rate.

If consumer prices were to keep rising at the 1979 rate, inflation for the full year would be the highest since 1946, when the removal of price controls imposed during World War II sent prices soaring 18.2 percent. The last time inflation topped 10 percent was in 1974, when the effects of the Arab oil embargo resulted in a 12.2 percent rate.

"You can't look for any significant moderation of inflation in the next few months," the director of President Carter's inflation-monitoring agency told a congressional committee after the latest inflation report was released.

Barry Bosworth, outgoing director of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, told the Joint Economic Committee that energy has replaced food as "the most serious inflation problem we face."

No Hope

"I see no hope for moderating energy prices" in the near term as long as shortages for crude oil continue, Bosworth said in explaining his gloomy assessment of administration efforts to combat inflation.

Despite the latest sharp rise in consumer prices, the average worker was able to keep up during May, the Labor Department said in a separate report.

After adjusting for inflation and subtracting taxes, a worker's real spendble earnings remained unchanged from April, the government said.

But for the 12 months ending in May, workers' purchasing power declined by 3.3 percent, indicating they could not keep pace with inflation during that longer span.

Gasoline prices jumped 5 percent in May, following a 6 percent rise in April. So far this year, gasoline prices have been rising at a 55 percent annual rate, the government said.

Price rises for other fuels were equally dramatic. Home heating oil prices jumped 5.3 percent. Gas and electricity prices rose 2.6 percent.

Fuel Costs Widespread

The large increases for fuel contributed to a 1.2 percent rise in housing costs during May. Since May 1978, housing costs have risen 11.3 percent, the government said.

Food prices rose by 0.7 percent, down from a 0.9 percent increase in April and the smallest increase since last November.

Prices of grocery store foods rose 0.5 percent, the smallest increase since last August, the government said. Pork and poultry prices declined while beef and veal prices jumped 3 percent. Restaurant meals rose 1.1 percent and alcoholic beverages climbed 0.8 percent.

Food prices, which have risen 11.2 percent since May 1978, were expected to increase more slowly in May because of recent moderation of farm and wholesale food prices.

However, Bosworth said the May increase was still higher than the government had expected and raised concern about whether food prices later in the year would slow as much as the government is predicting.

Prices for clothing remained unchanged from April, medical care costs rose 0.6 percent for a fourth straight month and entertainment costs increased by 0.5 percent after rising 0.8 percent in April.

The 1.1 percent rise in overall consumer prices, the same rise as in April, boosted the Consumer Price Index to 214.1. That means a basket of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 cost $214.10 in May.

Separately, a congressional drive to give Carter authority to impose mandatory wage and price controls sputtered Tuesday when a caucus of House Democrats failed to muster a quorum to take action.

The president has said repeatedly that he does not want power to fight inflation with mandatory economic controls

Twenty Democrats had hoped to win caucus approval of a resolution endorsing immediate enactment of legislation giving Carter standby authority to place controls on the economy.

Korean Trip Raises Human Rights Issue

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Carter will be walking a tightrope during his visit to South Korea. He must support a longtime ally without endorsing its authoritarian government in a way that would antagonize human rights advocates.

U.S. officials said Carter will generally reaffirm U.S. support for South Korea. But dissidents fear that while doing so, he will directly or indirectly support President Park Chung-hee's government.

While the human rights aspect of the visit is being seized upon by Park's opponents here, it has also not escaped attention in Washington.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Carter should encourage South Korean officials to take "substantial and irreversible steps" to restore democracy here. He said the president should "disassociate the United States from the repressive policies" of the Park government.

Deterrent Force

One of the few things the government and South Korean dissidents agree on is the need to keep American forces here as a deterrent to a North Korean invasion. But Carter, ever since he ran for president in 1976, has talked about withdrawing U.S. ground troops. Such talk has strained U.S.-Korean ties.

Carter is not expected to make a decision about the future of the 31,000 ground troops in South Korea until shortly after his return to Washington next week, U.S. officials said.

The withdrawal proposals prompted Koreans to accuse Americans of racism, said a ranking western diplomat. "They said, 'you stay in Europe because the Europeans are white, but we are only yellow so you want to pull out.'"

Dissidents Protest

Former South Korean President Yun Po-sun and other prominent dissidents have demonsrated against the visit, claiming that just by coming Carter appears to be "the patron of a dictator."

"I don't expect much," said opposition leader Kim Young-sam, who has threatened to boycott a brief meeting with Carter because he said it is impossible to hold a serious discussion of Korea's human rights problems in a few minutes.

The Rev. Kim Kwan-suk, general-secretary of the South Korean National Council of Churches, said: "If we can hear from him a clear message, we wouldn't be disappointed. We don't expect military or economic support for human rights. We expect moral support."

Carter will meet briefly with church leaders and attend church services on Sunday.

Public Stand Forecast

U.S. officials said Carter would raise the human rights issue with Park but they don't expect any "confrontations" or "splash headlines." They said Carter will publicly stress the importance of moving toward improved human rights.

Despite any strains in U.S.-Korean relations, the Park government is planning to turn out tens of thousands to officially welcome Carter. The dissidents hope to hold their own demonstrations, although such gatherings are banned by a 1975 emergency decree. But a government crackdown could limit their numbers.

Opposition leader Kim said the government has clamped down harder on human rights since Carter's visit was announced in April. The Rev. Kim said he could give Carter a list of 338 political prisoners and 45 dissidents under house arrest.

The government claims it has limited constitutional freedoms on national security grounds. The opposition's Kim counters that "the strongest weapon against a North Korean invasion is a strong democratic system."

Supporters of President Park argue that compared to communist North Korea, this is a "free and open society." Kim argues that South Korea's human rights record should be compared to other capitalist countries among them the United States and Japan.

Carter will spend his first night at Camp Casey, headquarters of the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division, and will fly by helicopter to Hill 191, a South Korean outpost about six miles from the North Korean border on Saturday morning. He will then return to Seoul, the hub of South Korea's economic boom.

U.S. officials said that over the last 17 years, South Korea has had "the longest, strongest, most unprecedented growth rate" of any country in the world. They compare the Korean economy to Japan in the early 1960s.

"I have a feeling in the United States, there isn't enough appreciation for what has happened economically here," said one U.S. official. "Most people get most of their information about Korea from MASH," the long-running Hollywood television show about the Korean war, which divided the north and south.

Mennonite Measure Facing Long Wait

Service, which has thrice threatened to deport the religious colony, has completed and submitted its final supplemental report to the committee. Budowsky said that report contained no new information other than the confirmation of several more labor certifications.

Earlier this year, the INS told the Mennonites they could remain in the country if they found jobs that could be certified as skilled labor by the U.S. Labor Department. Since then, all the Mennonites needing jobs have found them.

Mrs. Helms said the Mennonite Central Committee submitted a complete report on the history and current situation of the Mennonites that "must have been at least an inch thick."

Mrs. Helms confirmed that the Bentsen bill is not on the committee calendar, but said, "It's better to have good reports and be delayed a meeting or a couple of meetings. The better the reports, the better they will be received."

Budowsky commented that an inherent problem in passing legislation through the Judiciary Committee is dealing with the committee itself. "That committee has an inability to get a lot done," he said. "They have to look over a lot of controversial legislation and work with Sen. Kennedy."

"We don't want everyone, especially those directly involved, to get all worked up," he continued. "This is a special bill, and has a long road ahead of it that will take quite a long time."

Should the bill pass out of committee, it would then be voted on by the full Senate. If it passes it would be sent to the House to undergo the same procedure. If it passes the House, it will be sent to President Carter to be signed into law. But any changes made or amendments added along the way would send the bill back to its starting place, where it very likely would die.

The legislation would allow the Mennonites to return to farming, which is their first love and an integral part of their simple, natural lifestyle.

To meet INS requirements they were forced to turn from farming because agricultural jobs cannot be certified by the labor department.

The colony lost its 10-section ranch near Seminole earlier this year after defaulting on a land payment, but keeps as its goal the chance to get enough land to start a self-sufficient agricultural colony where all inhabitants can live, work and worship together.

Bosworth's Hospital Role Ended

worth would begin immediately. The move for dismissal came rather quickly, motivated by the appointment last week of two new board members who immediately spoke out against Bosworth.

Bosworth's predecessor — Harold Coston — was pressured to leave in February 1977, when the hospital district was in the middle of still another crisis. Board members and medical school representatives had been battling it out for three years over the administration of the still incomplete hospital.

Hospital Opening In Doubt

Coston had difficulty in getting along with board members almost from the beginning of his term with the hospital district. Bosworth was reported to have been the unanimous choice of the board, as well as the medical school staff and administration, when he was hired in June 1977.

The board's immediate goal in hiring Bosworth was simply to get the hospital open. After postponing the opening date already, district officials were afraid the opening would have to be postponed again.

Under Bosworth's guidance, district officials settled their disagreements with the medical school and the hospital opened as planned in February 1978. But what had looked like a strong financial base in the facility's opening days quickly turned into a problem as the number of unpaid bills mounted.

Held Responsible

New board member Dub Rushing claimed Bosworth has to take responsibility for the hospital's depressing financial situation. Changing administrators, he said, is a normal business practice under the present circumstances.

Earlier in Tuesday's meeting, Strong had assembled a group of hospital doctors, nurses and volunteers to speak up for what he called "some of the good things that are happening" at the hospital. Recent publicity has created the impression that nothing positive is coming out of Health Sciences, he said.

Soviet Union Developing New Bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russian engineers are developing three new types of heavy bombers which could be ready for combat by the time the SALT II treaty expires in late 1985, according to U.S. government sources.

American officials have known of one new long-range Tupelov bomber under development, but they were surprised to learn of two additional Soviet heavy bomber projects being carried out by Ilyushin and Antonov designers.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said a Soviet negotiator mentioned the three bomber projects to U.S. representatives in Geneva, Switzerland, during technical talks that preceded last week's signing of the SALT II agreement limiting strategic weapons.

Defense officials said they were unable to explain why the Russians volunteered information on the bombers being developed. One of the new planes could be a cruise missile carrier, they said.

"It took our folks by surprise," one source said.

However, in the climactic Vienna summit talks, none of the senior Soviet officials spoke of the three new heavy bomber developments. It is not known whether President Carter or Defense Secretary Harold Brown raised the issue with the Russians in Vienna.

U.S. intelligence analysts have said previously the Russians were working on a single new type of long-range bomber, which they expect will take shape as roughly comparable to the supersonic U.S. B-1 bomber which Carter canceled two years ago.

The United States is carrying on only limited long-range planning and development looking toward a possible advanced intercontinental bomber in the distant future. The government sources said the Russians provided little specific information about the three new prospective bombers or their intended missions. None has yet been test flown, so far as American officials are aware.

Action Delayed On Andrews Disposal Plant

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission delayed action Monday on granting the Whalen Corp. authority to resume disposal operations for salt water and other materials from oil fields in Andrews County.

The commission delayed action indefinitely on the matter to give staff attorneys time to consult the Texas Department of Water Resources in connection with jurisdiction that agency might have in the disposal of salt water into Whalen Lake.

Staff attorney Rex White told the commission Texas law clearly indicates the commission has authority to grant permits for disposal of salt water, oil and other materials into lakes but the disposals must meet TDWR standards.

It appears, White said, that TDWR has a set of guidelines to follow in this area but no definite standards for these disposals.

Commission Chairman John Poerner suggested the commission have staff attorneys check with TDWR and find out what jurisdiction they claim in the matter and what water quality standards they might want to enforce in the Whalen Lake case.

Poerner said he has no opposition to the Whalen Corp., which filed its application in conjunction with Phillips Petroleum Corp., and the Petroleum Corporation of Texas, resuming its disposal operations as long as those operations cause no harm to the area.

The commission originally granted Whalen authority to conduct disposal operations at the lake in September 1977. Those operations, however, were shut down by order of the commission in October 1978, and an application to permit resumption of disposal was denied, White said.

White told the commission that evidence that disposal of salt water into the lake is conclusive that no harm is done to ground water in the area. He added that evidence of any harm to wildlife was "vastly inconclusive."

White did say the effects of any oil or grease that may be dumped into the lake with the salt water could be harmful.

Poerner said the disposal set-up at the lake is not sophisticated and he indicated equipment may need to be upgraded to meet his qualifications that no harm be done by the salt water disposal.

Belgium Paper Receives Haig-Assassination Call

MONS, Belgium (AP) — A telephone caller told a Mons newspaper Tuesday that a group named "Revenge and Freedom" had sought to kill U.S. Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. by exploding a land mine as his car crossed a bridge.

Haig, retiring supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was not injured in the blast Monday but two Belgian policemen and a U.S. Army guard in a trailing security car suffered minor wounds.

An editor at the newspaper La Province said a woman telephoned, asserted that "Revenge and Freedom" members had placed the mine and then hung up before she could be questioned.

Authorities said they had never heard of the group.

In Tokyo, President Carter was asked about the assassination attempt and said he considered it "an isolated incident." He added, "This is the first time we've had this type of overt attack on NATO."

Mons prosecutor Pierre Hambye and investigating Judge J. Popyn issued a joint statement, saying, "We have no clue for the time being." Other investigators told reporters, "We are mainly thinking of leftist circles as responsible for the attack."

Helping in the investigation were security personnel at NATO military headquarters and French, West German and British police.

Experts were examining a yellow plastic hard hat and walkie-talkie found beside a battery-powered device that apparently was used to detonate the mine by remote control.

Haig, speaking to reporters a few hours after the assassination attempt near Casteau, Belgium, said he had known for some time he was the target "of a specific terrorist organization," but he did not name the group.

He has been the supreme commander of allied forces in Europe since autumn 1974 and is to retire Friday. There has been speculation he might be a Republican candidate for the presidential nomination.

Haig bade farewell Tuesday to Belgian Prime Minister Wilfried Martens and will turn over his command of U.S. troops Wednesday to U.S. Army Gen. Bernard W. Rogers in a ceremony at Stuttgart, West Germany. Thursday he will have a final conference with the Council of Ambassadors of the 15 NATO members in Brussels.

Friday he will transfer the NATO command to Rogers in a ceremony at Casteau, where security precautions have been strengthened by NATO and Belgian state police.

Firms Make Thermostats Cut Costs have complained about the temperature of the plant.

Texas Instuments Inc., one of the biggest manufacturers on the South Plains, also is regulated by company policy on thermostat control. Temperatures range from 76 to 78 degrees in all parts of the building except those where extreme temperatures damage electronic parts, said Leon Whitsel, facilities director.

Even hospitals are concerned about restricting heating and cooling as long as patients are not inconvenienced.

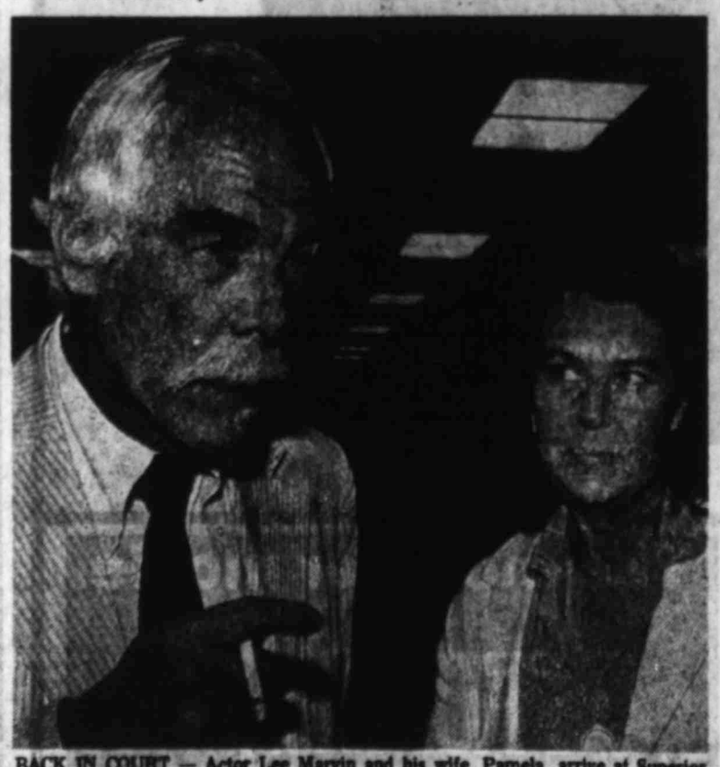

Max Hodge, assistant director of engineering at Methodist Hospital, said thermostats have been fixed at about 75 degrees in most office areas, although patient areas are cooled and heated as usual.

"But we can't cut back on anything that would cut back on the comfort of the patient," he said.

Efforts initiated in 1975 earned Methodist Hospital an award from the American Hospital Association for conserving more than 12 percent from the previous year in energy costs.

"We just eliminated waste from the building," Hodge said. He said timers were installed throughout the office areas to turn off power after business hours.

Anti-Pollution Unit Warranties Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is considering requiring automakers to warranty the anti-pollution devices on their cars and light trucks.

While warranty policies now vary among different firms, the new rule would require that the pollution controls be warrantied for five years or 50,000 miles of use starting with 1980 cars.

Under the proposal, for the first two years the warranty would cover any part of the car that affects emissions, while for the remainder of the time it would cover the emission control device itself.

The warranty would apply only if the car owner is subject to legal penalties if his vehicle fails to pass an emissions test.

Opinion on the proposed rule has been divided at public hearings. Some have favored it because of environmental and consumer protection benefits, while opponents have complained of government meddling in private affairs and warned of higher auto prices.

Politicos Target Fuel Crunch

By The Associated Press

Faced with 100-car lines in New York, industrial slowdowns and threats by retail gasoline dealers to close, political leaders in the Northeast pleaded, threatened and sued for gasoline supplies Tuesday.

Reports from some refiners indicated not much relief was in sight. Mobil Oil Corp. said its shipments next month will be 97 percent of what was shipped in 1978, but after making allowances for filling stations in high-growth areas, for state reserves and for agricultural and emergency cases, only 82 percent of last July's supplies will be available for general consumers.

Reports from five other oil companies in recent days showed their supplies of gasoline will be as much as 19 percent below last July's levels.

New York City Mayor Edward Koch reflected the frustrations of many city and suburban residents.

"Nobody believes Washington; nobody believes anybody. Everybody believes we are being ripped off by the oil companies. I believe it too," he said Monday.

Tom Anderson, executive director of the 3,758-member Pennsylvania Service Station Dealers Association, also was blunt.

"What this country needs is another Harry Truman. He'd have had those refineries under siege right now. They'd have never pulled this ... on Harry Truman."

Anderson says the members of his association will begin closing their stations Thursday and will keep them closed until the federal government relaxes its restrictions on fuel allocations or the maximum price of gas.

Some of the 500 members of the New Jersey Gasoline Retailers Association also were expected to join the shutdown.

Maryland, meanwhile, charged in a lawsuit that the federal government failed to allocate gasoline equitably.

State Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs filed suit in U.S. District Court, complaining the Department of Energy was not fulfilling the congressional mandate that petroleum products be distributed equitably nationwide.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey said that unless the federal government gets help to the state soon New York's economy could be sent "back to the brink."

Carey's energy commissioner, James Larocca, claimed he had proof that New York state was being short-changed on gasoline supplies and demanded the federal government correct its allocation system.

The president of the Automobile Club of New York also spoke of crisis. There is a "clear emergency," said Harold C. Meyers, adding that complex Department of Energy regulations were "a major contributory factor in the present emergency."

In Massachusetts, Gov. Edward J. King asked the legislature to suspend the state's laws which limit business activities on Sunday to allow for delivery of gasoline to dealers for the July 4 holiday.

One group of Massachusetts consumers was doing something to protect itself and others from gasoline station price gouging.

Richard Pelletier, an attorney, organized BIG (for Buyers Investigating Gasoline). The group's 150 volunteers watch gas prices, passing the information on to federal investigators.

Arthur Shaw, an federal energy department enforcement officer, said investigators used BIG's reports and found 70 percent of the stations in Springfield were selling gasoline at illegally high prices. Citations brought fines of $50 to $500, Shaw said.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey was also trying to ease tight supplies. Following Carey's lead, he asked major oil companies to get to retail dealers now some of the July gasoline supplies.

"We figure the situation will be very tight this weekend because the first of the month falls on a Sunday. The governor is asking that gasoline be advanced from the July allocations to ease the situation," said Joseph Santangelo, an aide to Byrne.

No County Help For Fuel Lines

HOUSTON (AP) — The Harris County tax office is offering no assistance to those who would like to circumvent the odd-even gasoline system that became effective Monday.

Betty Shepherd, assistant to Tax Assessor-Collector Carl Smith, said Tuesday several persons have frankly asked for new auto license plates "so the wife's car would have even-numbered plates and the husband's odd-numbered, or vice versa."

The county, she said, will have no part of such strategy.

Miss Shepherd also said there has been a slight increase in the number of reported lost or stolen license places since the odd-even system was announced.

To avoid aiding in any possible cheating at service stations, she said, stolen or lost even-numbered plates will be replaced only with even-numbers and odd-numbered will be replaced only with odd-numbers.

Half Gallon Prices Approved

AUSTIN (AP) — Gas stations that would like to charge $1 a gallon but are stymied because their pumps won't go higher than 99.9 cents got help Tuesday from Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

Brown issued emergency rules, effective July 3, that would allow stations to set their pumps on the price for a half gallon if their price per gallon exceeds 99.9 cents.

The agriculture commissioner is responsible for weights and measures.

Stations will be expected to have their pumps adjusted as soon as possible to reflect prices of $1 a more, he added.

He said pumps had to be readjusted about five years ago to show prices exceeding 50 cents.

Brown admitted at a news conference the rules "possibly could" result in some stations going to $1 gas sooner than they might have, but added, "I don't think it will encourage them."

"I think consumers will shop around. This (rule) has nothing to do with what the price is. It simply is how it is measured so the cnsumer will know what they are getting," Brown said.

He said he hoped gas wouldn't reach the $1 level.

"The industry has asked us to come up with some rules and regulations so they can cope with the situation in an intelligent manner if it occurs," Brown said.

He said trade associations involved in retail gasoline sales had sought the rule, but Brown said there had been "no contact with Exxon, Gulf or anyone like this. No lobbying."

About 90,000 Texas gasoline pumps — 90 percent of the total — can't show prices of over 99.9 cents.

Stations that take advantage of the new rule must put stickers on their pumps stating that the price shown is for a half gallon of gas. The price per full gallon must also be shown.

Each pump using the temporary system also must have a large poster attached to it saying, "This pump indicates price per one-half gallon. The total dollar and cent value to be paid by the consumer shall be two times the actual amount indicated on the pump."

TAMING THE KILLER CELL

Cancer Surgery More Localized

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth of 10 articles detailing the little-known story of the amazing progress being made against cancer in humans. It is the story of some battles won, some being fought, and some coming up. It tells about the skilled doctors, researchers and thousands of volunteers whose costly efforts to solve the incredibly intricate mysteries of the disease are backed by the faith and funds of America. The author, a retired Associated Press science editor, is one of the best-known science writers in the country.)

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Surgery, still the prime treatment for most cancers, has advanced remarkably.

Earlier detection of breast cancer now permits less extensive surgery than before. High cure rates may come through simply removing the breast in cases of extremely small and non invasive breast cancers. Trails are being developed to learn whether the breast itself can be saved, with just local removal of the tumor and treatment with radiation and drugs.

In lung cancer only part of a lung may have to be removed, not the whole organ. Instead of amputaion for bone cancers, now just portions of a limb may be removed and replaced by a person's own bone or metallic substitute or device, including an artificial hip or knee joint.

Plastic surgeons more and more are becoming involved as initial members of the surgical-medical team, consulted from the beginning on how best to preserve healthy tissue and make possible more successful reconstruction of a breast, nose, or other tissues. There are improved instruments now, including laser "knives" and fiberoptics which can bend light around curves. Also, better surgical techniques for pain control.

Very importantly, "surgeons are now more oriented toward returning patients to a high quality of life, and have greater recognition of the psycho-social impact of cancer and surgery. Measures for rehabilitation begin now before surgery," says Dr. Arthur I. Holleb, medical director of the ACS and himself a surgeon.

Eighth In A Series

Early cancer detection is more efficient. With new instruments, including flexible fiberoptics, doctors now can look directly at much of the gastrointestinal tract, including esophagus, stomach, duodenum, rectum and colon. Other organs can be inspected with injected dyes which show up on x-rays. And there are prospects for reliable blood tests for cancers.

Ultrasound can detect some cancers in the abdomen, including ovary and pancreas. Relatively new also is the CT scanner (computerized tomography)supplying accurate cross-sectional pictures of the body, searching for possible cancers of the pancreas gland, prostate, ovary, uterus, adrenals and brain.

Very early detection of breast cancers before they can be felt is coming about through mammography (a low radiation form of breast x-ray) and other techniques through a cooperative program of the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society.

Many other plusses are being put into the ledger.

Breast cancers, and some others, are found to have chemical "markers" or specific factors that can make threatment more exact and effective.

The NCI-directed cancer program has established 20 Comprehensive Cancer Centers across the country, developing in them the best methods of prevention, diagnosis, treatment and follow up. These centers of excellence pioneer new methods that become tomorrow's cures. From them, new knowledge and techniques are spreading out faster to community hospitals and family physicians, plugging them into the latest up-to-date methods.

Now , also, the trend is to form a whole team of specialists caring for each individual cancer patient — the family physician, medical and surgical cancer specialists, radiologist, skilled nurse.

Progress in anything depends upon having bright, trained minds of men and women tackling problems. For years the ACS has conducted training and fellowship programs to support and help attract young people into cancer research, treatment and care, programs made all the more important because of recent federal cutbacks on training programs.

Says Dr. Lewis Thomas of Memorial Sloan-Kettering: "Cancer research now is attracting more bright young investigators who no longer regard cancer as a hopeless cause. There are all kinds of possibilities now of approaching cancer. Now the idea is, we can get handholds on it."

HURLWOOD HOLDING PATTERN — Five structures and several hog pens are in the bid packages set for Thursday's sale of Hurlwood property giving way to a clear zone for Reese Air Force Base. The U.S. Corps of Engineers will accept bids on five structures, two to each of two parcels of land and one termed simply "concrete block building with hog pens." The small block building is the former Hurlwood telephone exchange vacated in the 1960s for larger quarters. A sow and her litter greet all interested bidders, grunting and squealing in the shelter (foreground). (Staff Photos by Gerry Burton)

Children Of All Ages Enjoy Circus, Says Man Who Should Know

By NANCY DORN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Kids of all ages watch the circus and fervently wish to join the lion or trapeze act or at least follow the show to the next town. Chappie Fox has spent a lifetime and made a career of chasing that dream.

Fox, the author of 10 books on the circus, is now the director of research and project development for the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus which will be in Lubbock July 13-15.

His fascination with 'The Greatest Show on Earth' began in 1925, when he saw his first circus, a side show circus with a scant menagerie called the 101 Ranch Wild West Show. He gave up the circus as a hobby in 1959 when he became curator of the Circus World Museum in Baraboo, Wis.

The museum, owned by the state of Wisconsin, collects memorabilia from circuses all over the United States and has historical documents on many acts and performers in the circus's colorful history, Fox said.

"But of course I had photographed and observed and studied the circus since 1935," Fox explained. He said that he spent many weekends and vacations following the circus while employed full-time with railroads.

He is now the official historian for the Ringling Brothers Circus and travels as an advance man for Ringling Brothers and as an expert on circuses in general.

"You know, the ringmaster starts each show with 'Ladies and gentlemen, children of all ages...'" Fox said. "Adults are children at heart, which explains why circus still holds that special fascination for people."

The Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus entertained 7 1/2 million people in 80 major cities last year, selling about two-thirds of the tickets to adults, Fox said.

Calling the circus the "most democratic form of entertainment," Fox said circus lovers come from all ages, colors and economic backgrounds.

"No matter what you do for a living, you can relax and get away from it all," he said. "Circuses still do that for people."

Circus is still G-rated entertainment, but Fox claims that it is the realism of the circus that appeals to crowds accustomed to celluloid action.

People who are used to watching television stuntmen take all the spills are fascinated by a man taming a lion before their eyes, Fox said.

"It's realistic, and that's what makes the circus so good," he explained.

Circus is one of the last surviving forms of family entertainment, Fox said proudly. "It's a tremendous compliment to never have been censored," he said. "Can you imagine having to censor a circus?"

The circus business is a never-changing, ever-changing business, Fox said. The high cost of showing under canvas was choking the circus business out until the 1960s, when many circuses moved indoors to public buildings and coliseums.

Ringling Brothers brought the Big Top to Lubbock for the last time in 1956. Fox explained that it took 1,500 men to put up the top that held 10,000 people. The circus would stay in town only one day and then would move its 100-railroad car train to the next town, Fox recalled.

CHAPPIE FOX

The circus was in the construction business to erect the tent and the seating every day, in the restaurant business to feed the roustabouts and performers and harbored a veritable zoo at the time, Fox said.

"We had more animals than the Dallas Zoo," he chuckled.

Economics forced the circus indoors. "Indoor performing is very successful, but some of the romance is gone," Fox conceded.

The Ringling Brother Circus now travels in a 38-car train and features 75 performers and a menagerie complete with 22 elephants, 30 lions and tigers and assorted horses.

Perhaps the gap left by the absence of the Big Top has been filled by acts that are changed and updated each year, Fox said. The Ringling Brothers Circus has added 176 new acts this year featuring new animals and an Evel Knievel-inspired motorcycle act.

The Barnum and Bailey Circus was started in the 1880s and had grown to a 60-car national touring circus by 1890, the expert on circus history recalled.

The Ringling Brothers had a "pitiful little start" in comparison to the big-time Barnum and Bailey circus, Fox said.

"In the beginning, they had a blind hyena and an eagle with a broken wing for a menagerie, but they kept growing," he laughed.

The Ringling Brothers bought out the Barnum and Bailey Circus in 1919 after both owners died.

When he is not traveling as a Ringling Brothers advance man, Fox appears on talk shows as a circus expert. He is also in charge of all the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey records and historical documents.

Fox said he has visited 10 cities in six months, answering questions and promoting the circus as one of America's favorite entertainment forms. And, Fox says, there is a lot of interest out there. After all, it's the Greatest Show on Earth, especially to Chappie Fox.

City's Sales Tax Take Up Over 1978 Figure

The City of Lubbock has received nearly $1.2 million in sales tax revenues for the month of June, bringing sales tax income for the first six months of 1979 to $3.8 million.

That represents a 5 percent increase through June of this year over the $3.6 million collected during the same period last year. Lubbock received nearly $1.1 million in June 1978, compared to the $1,175,936 figure for June of this year.

Texas cities shared $218 million in rebates from the 1 percent optional city sales tax during the first six months of 1979, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said in announcing the cities' June tax allocations.

Bullock said June allocations for the more than 900 Texas cities will be $67.7 million, compared to a 1978 statewide allocation of $60.9 million for the month.

Dallas will get a check for $7.9 million, bringing the city's year-to-date payments to $25.8 million.

Houston received the largest payment in June with a $14.3 million check. The city has received $45.8 million in tax rebates for 1979.

San Antonio's rebate for this month will be $3.5 million and Fort Worth's check will be $2.6 million, Bullock said.

Farwell, $3,518; Floydada, $13,888; Friona, $10,276; Hale Center, $5,448; Hereford, $59,498; Idalou, $3,465; Lamesa, $48,560; Levelland, $60,391; Littlefield, $34,034; Lockney, $6,257; Matador, $2,663; Midland, $517,657; Morton, $6,560; Muleshoe, $22,377;

New Deal, $880; Odessa, $652,743; O'Donnell, $2,679 Olton, $6,859; Paducah, $7,442; Petersburg, $3,261; Plains, $2,142; Plainview, $121,131; Post, $16,395; Quitaque, $2,396; Ralls, $5,751; Seagraves, $8,738; Seminole, $21,286; Snyder, $90,551;

Spur, $4,150; Tahoka, $6,611; Tulia, $15,911; Turkey, $2,049, and Wolfforth, $3,289.

Sales taxes are collected by merchants and other tax permit holders along with the state sales tax. The tax is rebated monthly to cities in which it is collected.

At Wit's End...

Editor's Note: While Erma Bombeck takes a one-week vacation, we are taking the opportunity to re-print three of her most popular previous AT WIT'S END columns. Erma Bombeck will resume writing next week.

By ERMA BOMBECK

For some reason, Americans cannot work up a scrap of compassion for (a) a Mercedes with a flat tire, (b) a price increase in polo scorecards, (c) the woman who holds down the homefront while her husband travels.

The first two I could understand, but why pick on a woman who is bravely shouldering the responsibilities of both mother and father? The women assure me it is true. A friend of mine kept a log of her week just to prove a point.

On Monday, she went to a parent-teacher conference alone to be told her son stole paper towels from the restroom (the girls'), wrote an obscene word in the dust on Mr. Gripper's car, and was flunking lunch. She said her husband travelled a lot and the teacher said she should be glad he was working.

On Tuesday, the dog got hit by a motorcycle, the house payment got lost in the mail and her daughter tried to crush a tin can with her hand like the bionic woman and required a tetanus shot. She told the doctor her husband travelled a lot and he said she was lucky she had a car.

On Wednesday, the television set blew a tube, the car developed a wheeze and she had to cancel a night out with the girls. Her mother-in-law said, "Be thankful you have the children."

On Thursday, as she was making a left-handed turn in her VW Rabbit, a car plowed into the back of her. As she sat there crying softly, "The rabbit died...the rabbit died..." a police officer stuck his head in the window and said, "You're lucky, lady. Nobody got hurt."

On Friday at the supermarket, so bored she was carrying on a conversation with a broom display, she went through the mechanics of shopping — lashing one kid to the basket, getting another out of the bean display where he found a hole in a bag of pintos, and on finding the third had eaten an unknown amount of fruit, offering to weigh him and anything over 53 pounds, pay the difference. The checkout girl in noting all the convenience foods said, "You're lucky to have your husband gone a lot. At least, you don't have to cook big meals."

On Saturday, she car-pooled it to Little League, two haircuts, one dentist appointment, baton twirling lessons, the cleaners, the post office, and a birthday party. As she pulled in at dusk, a neighbor yelled over the fence, "You're lucky. At least you get out of the house."

On Sunday, she dragged the brood to church. As she extended a limp hand to the minister, he said, "Glad to see you. At least coming to church gets rid of the kids for an hour. Incidentally, if you sleep during the sermon, I'll understand."

He was the only one who did.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

A little sunshine falls on the steady free bidder from time to time. Here we see him at both his worst and his best.

His two-notrump call shows him at his worst. He has responded with a bare seven high-card points and balanced distribution. His partner, North, has bid one and two clubs. Our bidder looks at his king of spades and decides he wants a lead up to it and will perform some feat of magic to bring home a notrump contract.

North raises to game. He is looking at seven tricks.

When dummy comes down, South sees that he is almost sure to wind up with just eight tricks, but he is not dismayed. He has been told that any time a good declarer starts with eight tricks he can find a ninth. So he rises with dummy's ace of spades and rapidly runs off the six good clubs.

Meanwhile, East and West are having their problems. East does make a heart signal by throwing the eight, but he doesn't do it soon enough. By the time he indicates heart strength West has jettisoned a spade and his two small hearts. So South cashes his king of spades, throws West in and makes his ninth trick with the king of diamonds.

Clip 'n' Cook

PEACHES 'N RIBS

2 tbsps. cooking oil
3 lbs. short ribs of beef
2 cups water
1 envelope onion soup mix
2 tsps. ground ginger
1 med. green pepper, cut into chunks
1 can sliced peaches, drained (reserve syrup)
2 tbsps. soy sauce
3 tbsps. cornstarch

In large skillet, heat oil and brown short ribs; drain. Stir in water, onion soup mix and ginger; simmer covered 2 hours. Add green pepper and cook 10 minutes or until crisp tender.

In small bowl, mix 1 cup reserved syrup and soy sauce; blend in cornstarch and add to skillet, stirring until thickened. Add peaches and heat through. Makes about 4 servings.

DISPOSABLE INCOME

Food takes a smaller part of disposable income in the U.S. than it does in other countries, even though food prices rose about eight percent during 1978, reports foods and nutrition specialist Mary K. Sweeten.

ENERGY SAVING TIP

Try using heat treated glass or ceramic dishes in your oven. You will be able to cook at oven temperature settings as much as 25 degrees lower than required for cooking similar items in metal pans. For a free publication or more information about energy in your home, contact Mrs. Jane W. Cohen, Extension Agent -Home Energy Program, 4232 Boston Ave., Lubbock, or call 792-4780.

LAMB GOOD CHANGE

If you enjoy lamb prepared by conventional methods, but have never tried it cooked over the coals outdoors, you've been missing an exceptional taste treat. Any lamb cut that can be broiled indoors can be successfully cooked on the grill. Lamb shoulder blade and arm chops take on special appeal when barbecued on the grill as do lamb kabobs, made with cubes of lamb and a variety of vegetbles. Lamb patties are also great on the grill. Don't overlook lamb roasts on the rotisserie for special occasions. Rolled and tied boneless cuts such as a boneless leg or shoulder are most satisfactory for they balance well on the rod and cook uniformly.

Young People Should Evaluate Personal Budgets

Editor's Note: This is the third of a five-part series on "What We Haven't Taught Our Children:" financial planning for young people. This series is a special report by Purdue University.

WEST LAFAYETTE, IND. (Special) — After establishing goals, young people and young families need to make realistic evaluations of their income and outgo.

"There is no better way to do this than through the use of a budget sheet for the income and expenses and the balance sheet for changes in assets and liabilities," says Leslie A. Bryan, a consumer economist on the staff of Purdue University's School of Management.

"One of the major uses of a budget and balance sheet is to identify and keep a controlling handle on debt and the burden of its repayment," he says.

The budget identifies the weekly, monthly or yearly income and expenses. Listing these items allows the family to observe the burden of debt repayment in the budget period and evaluate the wisdom of additional credit purchases.

The balance sheet lists a family's assets and liabilities. Like a snapshot of the family's net worth, these lists, made perhaps once a year, will help the family to recognize dangerous increases in the liability or debt side of the balance sheet.

Bryan describes the wise use of credit as a useful and necessary tool for modern living but warns it can also be a burden leading to family stress and unhappiness.

"Prospective homeowners do not realize that getting a mortgage loan often hinges as much on the amount of outstanding debt a family has as it does on total income," Bryan notes.

One lending institution indicates that it will not lend if the housing costs (payment on the principal of the loan, interest charges, taxes and insurance) plus debt obligations total more than a third of gross monthly income.

Thus, figures Bryan, a family with a $1,500 gross monthly income might qualify for a $45,000 loan (which would require monthly payments of approximately $500), but if a $200 per month debt payment is added to their budget, they might be hard pressed to qualify for a $25,000 loan.

"Although home ownership is usually the largest expense of all family purchases, it is not normally the first," Bryan says. "Breathes there a youth with soul so dead who never to himself said, 'I want to buy a car'?"

A Purdue survey indicates young persons lack a clear understanding of auto insurance and automobile costs. Buying a new car these days is almost like buying a house 20 years ago, Bryan notes, and one of the pitfalls is the four-or five-year loans now available for new car purchases.

"This may make monthly payments affordable, but because the car depreciates initially faster than the loan is being paid off, there is a period of time in the early life of the loan, lasting as long as several years in some cases, in which the car is worth less than the outstanding principal of the loan.

"This is a perilous time if one is forced to sell or becomes involved in a major accident," Bryan warns.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 23 years old, a college student, and I work at a part-time job. I have a wonderful husband and have had three beautiful children in three years.

The problem is this: My husband wants a very large family. I don't. But I can't bring myself to tell him because I'm sure it would upset him terribly.

When we have sexual intercourse he doesn't want me to use any contraceptives. Of course, HE never uses anything. When is the best time to have sexual intercourse without getting pregnant? My friends say a woman is safest right after menstruation. Is this true? I'm going to sign this letter — Tired Of The Delivery Room

Dear Tired: I would never presume to advise you on this subject. If, for example, your periods are irregular, I could put you right back in the delivery room.

You and your husband should have a talk with your gynecologist. If you've had three babies in three years, you could end up with a dozen before you are 34.

It is unfair (and selfish) of a man to insist that his wife have a large family if she doesn't want one. Women often change their minds about the number of children they want after they've had a few. You certainly have the right to change yours.

It's your body. You're the one who must carry the babies, deliver them, and for the most part you will be the one who will take care of them. If your husband is as "wonderful" as you say, he will allow you to make this decision.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me (and your many readers) why on earth you use valuable newspaper space to print a Confidential that is understood by only one person?

This makes very little sense to me. How about it, Annie? Why do you do it? — Neilsville, Wis.

Dear Neil: True, some Confidentials make sense to only one — but if I feel it is vitally important to that one, then I will use the precious newspaper space to help him. If YOU were the person who was desperate for advice and couldn't take a chance on having your problem appear in print for fear of being recognized, you'd feel differently, wouldn't you?

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: I am a practicing internist in Boston. I, too, suffered from bruxism (grinding of the teeth at night), but it wasn't a psychiatrist who helped me; it was a dentist.

I learned that joint dysfunction and a faulty bite often cause the problem. My muscle spasms and facial pains which resulted from the nightly grinding produced a great deal of emotional tension during the day.

Why did you suggest a psychiatrist? — M.D. In Brookline

Dear M.D.: I suggested a psychiatrist because grinding of the teeth at night is often a symptom of anxiety.

Since that letter appeared, however, I've been informed by at least one hundred dentists that the principal cause of bruxism is right in the person's mouth. I'm happy to print your letter for the benefit of others whose situations more closely resemble yours. Thanks to all who wrote. The altered advice reads as follows: "See a dentist first. If your teeth are not at fault, get counseling."

Dear Ann: My husband used to grind his teeth at night and it drove me nuts. I moved into the guest bedroom and told him he'd have to sleep alone until he did something about his nerve-wracking habit.

After three days, "Mr. Crunch-A-Bunch" went to a dentist and got a plastic gadget for his mouth. (It's like the ones prizefighters wear.) That was the end of the grinding. I'm signing this letter — Sleeping Side By Side Once Again And Loving It

Dear Loving It: How nice! Thanks for letting us know.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been taking tetracycline daily to clear up my acne. I am 19 years old, and for the first time in four years I have a clear complexion. How has it helped? I am told that the medicine is safe, but I have heard scare stories. The one that worries me is teeth discoloration. Is there a chance that my teeth will become less white as a result of taking this medicine? Also, what will happen if I stop taking it? Will my skin go back the way it was? — J.A.

Tetracycline is a "broad spectrum" antibiotic, an antibiotic being a medicine that fights off bacteria. A broad-spectrum-type is effective against many kinds of bacteria at once. Thus it helps to control deep acne, the kind that includes infected cysts. While it controls these infected cysts, it has little effect on other existing ones. For this reason the medicine has more of a "holding action" against acne during its most active stage. It is not a permanent cure and you may have to use it off and on as your doctor advises. Watch for signs of vaginal inflammation, although doses used for acne are seldom strong enough to cause it.

Now, as to the scare stories. They are partly true, but at your age I doubt the need for concern about your teeth. Tetracycline may cause permanent discoloration if used during tooth development. That includes to a baby if used in the last half of pregnancy, also from infancy up to eight years old. It may cause a yellow-brown-gray tinge. The drug can find its way into the milk of nursing mothers, so it should not be used by them.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: I read that hair dyes cause cancer. What about the hair color rinses? — B.B.

I wonder how many folks worry themselves into real problems after reading casual reports about this or that product, or this chemical or that?

Be assured that hair dyes do not cause cancer. Women (and men) have used hundreds of hair coloring products. So far as I know they run no more risk of getting cancer than do those who don't.

You may have heard or read somewhere that this or that study is underway involving this or that coloring product. There are literally thousands of chemicals in use today in untold numbers of products. The government agency responsible (Food and Drug Administration) is simply doing its job of screening them for safety and effectiveness. As you read this, hundreds of products (probably some hair products among them) are being analyzed for safeness. If one is found harmful, you will hear about it, most likely in the pages of this newspaper. Likewise, thousands of chemicals are used daily in medicines to treat serious diseases, saving millions of lives every year. But even these are subject to continuing review and testing by the agencies responsible. Few governments protect their public as assiduously as does our own.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 29-year-old unwed mother with a 110-pound, seven-year-old daughter. I work all shifts, so have little time with her. She spends a lot of time with her two grandmothers, who spoil her and feed her a lot. I was wondering if there was a summer camp for plump children. She needs strong supervision. — C.W.

Unless she is very tall she seems grossly overweight and you have a medical problem on your hands. I suggest you have the child seen by a pediatrician who has a special interest in overweight problems. Any local pediatrician should be able to start you off in the right direction in seeking one. This much excess weight in one so young usually means more than an overeating problem. There are special camps for such youngsters.

• • •

Dear Dr. Ruble: Will you please say something about the dangers of drinking raw milk? My mother has found a farmer who sells it and some of the health faddists around here are recommending that people drink it. — Mrs. W.M.

If the milk and the milk supply (the cows) are being checked regularly by the appropriate health authorities, there's nothing wrong. If not, it's not a good idea, because of threat of contamination and disease. Steer clear of unmonitored milk supplies.

Acne is a terrible problem for anyone growing up. If you are afflicted with it, or have children who are, write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hints from Heloise

HI THERE:

We've told you how to remove crayon spots from walls and furniture — now for garments!

The Soap and Detergent Association tells us that if the garment is washable and has only a few spots, do this:

Remove as much of the crayon wax as possible with a dull knife (a putty knife is perfect). Now place the stained area between paper towels and press with a warm iron. After you have done this, place the garment, stain side down, on a paper towel and rub any remaining stain on the back with dry cleaning solvent.

Let dry and launder as usual.

If the stains have spread to an entire load of clothes try this:

Wash the garments in the hottest water possible (be sure the temperature is safe for the fabric) using a laundry soap and one cup baking soda.

Removal of crayon stains as soon as they're discovered certainly makes the job easier. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My granddaughter fights her nap in the afternoon, so I put an alarm clock on the bedside table where she can see it.

I tell her "when the large hand gets to 1:30 (and show her where 1:30 is) and you are still awake, I will let you get up."

She always falls asleep before the allotted time, and even looks forward to nap time now. — Grandma Friend

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I read your article on the newlyweds' problem of sharing the bed covers.

Well, to all you out there who have been fighting a losing battle with your spouse for control of a fair share of the bed covers — the answer lies in PREVENTION.

As soon as you feel the first move on his-her part to turn over in bed, take a firm grip on the covers on your side, and hold on for dear life until the move is accomplished.

Works every time. — K.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

We have several "U-pick-it" farms around our part of the country.

If you will go there and pick your own fruits and vegetables you can certainly save a lot of money. Besides being economical, farm fruits and vegetables are much fresher.

The money it costs to deliver, package and check out the produce to you is money you have saved. Maybe you can buy a little something special with it for you or your family. — Tina Wood

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Who hasn't been frustrated trying to find keys in the bottom of her purse?

Finally (out of pure desperation) I used a large safety pin to secure a shower curtain ring to the inside of my purse, near the opening.

Now I just reach in and unsnap my keys with one hand.

Works great when my arms are full of packages! — Carolee

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a question for you.

What can you do with old business cards?

I have several boxes, 500 cards per box, that are of no use because of an address change. The cards are of good quality card stock and are blank on the reverse side. I hate to throw away anything! There must be something I could use them for. — Lauren Robertson

How about it, folks? Can any of you out there help Lauren?

My only suggestion would be to put them next to your phone and use the backs to jot down short messages or phone numbers. — Heloise

'Love Jet' Traffic Boosts Monthly Airport Traffic To Record

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Even though Lubbock International Airport showed record boarding figures for May, only two of the four major airlines serving the city reported boarding increases.

Through May, 196,461 persons have flown out of the airport, a record by 4.9 percent over the 1978 figure of 187,363.

The 31-day month also saw a record set this year, with 42,907 passengers boarding here. That figure is an increase of 5.2 percent over the previous May record, set only last year with 40,769 persons.

As has been the case since Southwest Airlines began service to Lubbock in the summer of 1977, that carrier led the way with 20,957 boardings in May, an increase of 16.3 percent over the May 1978 figure of 18,016 boardings.

Braniff International showed an even greater increase in percentage for May, although its total was smaller. Braniff flew 9,884 persons from Lubbock in May, up 17.9 percent from its May 1978 figure of 8,381.

Continental And Texas International Airlines both recorded drops in boardings in May. TI's figure of 3,495 persons was a drop of 9.1 percent from its May 1978 figure of 3,843 persons. Continental lost a whopping 28.4 percent in passengers in May, flying out 7,455 persons. The carrier flew out 10,407 persons last May.

Crown Aviation, Lubbock's oldest commuter airline, also dipped a bit this May as it flew three less passengers to Clovis, N.M., than it did in May 1978, reporting 119 passengers as compared to 122 last year.

The two new entries into the city's aviation market, Air Midwest and Permian Airways, recorded solid figures, but because they did not serve Lubbock in 1978, there are no comparison figures.

Air Midwest, which links Lubbock with 20 cities in Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, flew out 441 persons in May, while Permian, which flies between Midland-Odessa, Lubbock and Amarillo, flew out 556 during the month.

For the year, Southwest has flown out 97,031 passengers, more than twice as many as Braniff, its nearest competitor. Southwest currently is 28.8 percent ahead of the record it established for Lubbock last year.

Braniff has flown out 44,288 persons through May, an increase of 12.3 percent over its 1978 figure of 39,430, but not a Braniff record. In May 1977, BI flew out 48,421 persons from Lubbock.

For the first five months of the year, Continental has boarded 36,199 persons, a loss of 34.3 percent from the 55,073 it carried out through May 31, 1978. And, effective June 1, the carrier dropped all flights between Lubbock and Dallas, the route Southwest and Braniff are thriving on.

Crown Aviation has flown 588 passengers to Clovis so far this year, a pickup of 22.3 percent over the 481 it had departed at the same time last year.

Air Midwest has flown out 1,065 persons since March 1, and Permian has boarded 566 since May 1, but again, since the carriers did not serve Lubbock in 1978, there are no figures for comparison.

The 196,461 boarding figure for the first five months at Lubbock International is up 4.9 percent from the 187,363 of 1978. For the first five months, the airport averaged 39,292 departures per month, slightly lower than the pace needed to set a new record for the year. However, the summer months are traditionally very heavy months for air travel and departures are expected to rise enough to establish an annual boarding record.

Lubbock's May figure of 42,907 is higher than the May figures reported by Amarillo and Midland-Odessa International Airports. Amarillo reported 32,402 boardings in May, while Midland-Odessa charted 38,426.

For the year to date, Lubbock International's 196,461 remains well ahead of Midland-Odessa's figure of 171,360 and Amarillo's number of 149,565 passenger boardings.

Montford Seeks Pay Boosts For Staff

A preliminary budget proposal for the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's Office asks for an overall salary increase of 25 to 30 percent.

The proposal still was being prepared Tuesday, office administrator Hal Hensley said, and will be given to County Auditor Dale Gallimore sometime this week.

Criminal District Attorney John Montford currently has a staff of 35, including 14 attorneys.

Lubbock County commissioners last fall approved Montford's request for a budget increase from $390,000 to $490,000 for his first year in office. The proposed 1980 budget reportedly is for $600,000 to $650,000.

In addition to the salary increases, Montford will be asking an increase in operating expenses from $35,490 this year to about $60,000 next year. Part of the increase will be for automobile expenses of the seven office investigators. They receive a $50-per-month car allowance now, but would be paid 15 cents per mile each month under the 1980 proposal.

Swisher Fund Deadline Nears

TULIA (Special) — The Swisher Memorial Board is confident that the $262,000 needed by Saturday to receive an almost equal sum from the Mabee Foundation "will be in hand," said Mayor W.V. Swinburn.

Although Swisher County residents already have raised $202,000 for the construction of Phase II of the Swisher County Memorial Building — $30,000 within the past week — the board still needs an addition $62,000 by the June 30 deadline agreed to with Mabee Foundation.

The Tulsa-based organization agreed less than a year ago to donate $200,000 to the county building if Swisher County residents could collect the rest of the estimated $463,320 cost by the end of this month.

"We'll raise the money," said Swinburn, "we've got a number of pledges and two residents have agreed to give 20 shares of stock each to the project."

Swinburn expects to receive the money from the foundation shortly after the county reaches the deadline. Bids should be opened for construction of the museum and senior citizens center on July 10 and "we are planning to break ground on July 14 at 2 p.m.," said Swinburn, president of the memorial board.

The 10,000 people in Swisher County raised all but $27,000 of the $475,000 first phase, which took a year to construct.

The dream of a Swisher County Memorial Building began seven years ago, said Swinburn, "for a building dedicated to the pioneering spirit of Swisher County."

The third phase of the project includes a surrounding memorial park with windmills, wagons and other artifacts typical of the turn-of-the-century beginning of Swisher County. The estimated cost is about $200,000.

Youth Challenged At Convention

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The executive director of the Good Neighbor Commission of Texas Tuesday called on young people to begin taking a more active role in government policy decisions that will affect the burgeoning world population in the future.

Eddie Aurispa, addressing about 200 young people at the Youth Conference of the Mexican Baptist Convention being held this week in the Civic Center, told his youthful audience that the future is their biggest challenge.

"The opportunities (for the future) are yours and I challenge you to this task," Aurispa said, referring to maintaining the principals of freedom and human dignity.

Aurispa made particular reference to the "power and force" of young people in shaping this country's foreign policy.

"The youth have the right to speak out on human rights and social justice. And they should do it by setting a good example at home, where foreign policy begins." Aurispa said young people should 'mobilize talents and commitments to the unforseeable future," adding that this responsibility is growing with the "peculiar pressures" of modern life.

He said the voice of youth "speaks louder than any foreign army" and "enlarges our own opportunities for peace."

Aurispa said that the future of basic human rights and principals of freedom in the world depend on the examples Americans set at home.

"We have to show other countries how we care for our sick and share our plenty with starving nations." He said the energy and power of youth is the best channel for for these efforts.

The 29-year-old Aurispa urged young people to "learn and think and speak out" on foreign policy issues, especially those that influence Latin American countries.

"Our neighbors need your help now more than ever," he said, alluding to the epidemic proportions of poverty facing many Latin American countries today.

City Man Charged With Six Counts Of Assault

The man allegedly pointed a .38-caliber handgun at a Lubbock police officer, two former officers and three female companions while they were at Der Wienerschnitzel at Third Street and University Avenue.

A check with Lubbock County Jail indicated Rodriguez was not being held there.

The Criminal District Attorney has recommended a $10,000 bond on each of the six charges.

According to police reports the incident began when officer Tom Robison stepped out of his vehicle to ask Rodriguez what he wanted. Robison told officers the suspect was in a truck behind the vehicle he was occupying and was staring at him. When Robison addressed the man, the suspect reportedly jumped out of the truck and pointed a revolver at the six persons. The suspect later drove to the south side of the restaurant where he allegedly drew a shotgun out of a sheath.

When officers arrived at the scene they reportedly found the suspect standing there with a shotgun. The handgun and shotgun were found to contain live rounds.

In another case, David Knox Brown, 20, was charged with burglary of a building in connection with Thursday's break-in at Alamo Tune-Up, 2216 Fourth St. A bond of $7,500 has been recommended by the Criminal District Attorney.

Also, Gordon Grant Hughes, 17, of 3020 36th St., was charged with burglary of a vehicle and a $2,500 bond was recommended.

A PROVEN SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT PLAN FOR BEAUTIFUL, HEALTHY SKIN

If you are an average modern woman you have tried a myriad of cosmetics hoping to capture the clear luminous look of a Vogue model's skin. You have probably thought that the more expensive the make-up and the more elaborate the cleaning ritual, the better your skin would look. But no, that's not the way it works. Your expensive bar of soap only cleans the surface.

The DermaCulture philosophy for good radiant skin is very simple and basic — clean, pure skin is beautiful skin. With the scientific cleansing treatments, expert technicians, and naturally pure products of DermaCulture, you can literally grow a new flawless skin.

The 40 year old DermaCulture therapy procedure is a sophisticated and unique one. A steamy infra-red mask opens each pore to soften and purge unwanted accumulation of oil, make-up and dead skin cells. A vacuum process then gently lifts this grime and stimulates circulation.

Then replete with surgical mask and magnifying glasses, your technician deftly pulls out stubborn blackheads, whiteheads, and other debris. The final step is a clarifying and firming one called ionization, which consists of a patented facial electrode that carries a special moisture solution under the skin to firm up sagging undertissue — sort of a natural face lift with a clean tingle.

The results, after a few treatments, is skin with a procelain quality. Pores seem to disappear into fine textured complexions. Your own natural moisture will replace your expensive creams. Evened color tone and stepped up circulation creates a natural blush. Now you can stop worrying about a pimple suddenly erupting to ruin a week-end.

Several other good things can happen to you at DermaCulture, too. Besides feeling good about yourself and your appearance, you can also save money, even with the cost of the treatment, because now you're not buyng those expensive commercial products.

To make your first appointment, please call DermaCulture Studio in Terrace Shopping Center.

Paraguayan Posts Wimbledon Victory

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Victor Pecci, the little-known Paraguayan who has soared to tennis prominence in recent months, crushed Sherwood Stewart in straight sets Tuesday as the sun shone on Wimbledon.

Pecci won 7-5, 6-2, 6-3 and played the most consistent tennis seen on the famed center court thus far in the two days of action.

Since she defected from Czechoslovakia four years ago, Navratilova has tried in vain to get exit visas for her parents. She has not seen them in all that time.

After the rain and upsets of Monday, when three men's seeds were toppled, the courts were drier and the results more predictable.

Connors, who led by two sets to one overnight, completed a 6-2, 6-7, 7-5, 6-3 win over Jean Francois Caujolle of France.

Only one more seeded player fell Tuesday. Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, who squeezed into the seeding list at No. 16 but plays little on grass, lost a three-hour marathon, 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 4-6, 6-4, to Andrew Pattison, the Rhodesian now based in the United States.

Pecci, surprise finalist in the French Open early this month, has jumped from 49th to 18th in the world computer rankings in just two months. Against Stewart, he looked like a strong contender for the title. The American could not handle Pecci's serve or his stream of passing shots, hit down the line with pinpoint accuracy.

BY THE TIME the paper hits the porch, another chapter of Days Of Our Lives (Yankee Division) could be unfolding...

Lately, two things crop up with regularity: TV commercials and troubles among the New York Yankees. Both carry about the same impact, too. The latest Yankee switch or squabble rates right up there on the interest meter with manly after-shave, yellowing floors, brighter teeth, meaty dog food, and itchy scalp.

At last count, the Yanks had collected only about half a dozen more wins than losses this season, but they've gone through ten cases of chewing tobacco, two managers, seven locker-room squabbles, two training-room fights, three votes of confidence, 43 lineup changes, four "play me or trade me's," seven maids a-milking, and a bat night.

It's easy to overlook the first statistic, what with the managerial changes, the publicized waiver list, and the sparks created by the feuding and near-fights this season. But, if memory serves, that's what gets you into the World Series.

• • •

TO RECAP, TWO years ago, Billy Martin feuded openly with superstar Reggie Jackson. It occurred again last season, then Martin was fired-relieved-quit as the Yankees manager in the middle of the summer. This led to his angrily popping off about his employer and some of his players.

Bob Lemon came in, took a low-key approach — just the opposite of Martin's — and proceeded to lead the Yanks on an uphill scrap to the world championship. And this was after the management had announced that Martin would be back in 1980, and Lemon would take another position in the organization.

Last winter, Martin poked a Reno sports writer in the eye, then later settled the matter. But, about ten days ago, up cropped the rumor that Martin was to return as manager immediately. Lemon had little to say, the Yankee bosses very little more, and Martin couldn't be located. But, a couple of days later, Martin appeared on the field.

Then, Jackson went on waivers but was reclaimed.

Oh, yes, there was this fight — not involving Martin or Jackson — in the NY locker room earlier this season, which left a pitcher nursing an injured hand and unable to work. Why, even the year's most unselfish act, Ron Guidry offering to serve in the bullpen (after winning every game and award in sight last season), has gotten lost in all the adverse incidents involving his team.

NOW...

The entire world is waiting to hear what happens next. Or is it?

One wonders if, after three staight summers of listening to the soap-opera-like doings of the team, the average working guy who likes his baseball, hot

Astros Reveal NL West Success

HOUSTON (AP) — Sarcasm still was a part of Houston Astros fandom in early May despite a fast start that had the Astros in first place in the National League's Western Division.

One yarn supposedly went like this:

Well, look again, Dad.

Even the most confirmed cynic is finding it difficult to ignore the surprising Astros, who still are perched atop the standings in the final days of June.

They've never been in first place this late in the season either, and the baseball experts who predicted a typical second-division finish for the Astros this season are putting this strange phenomenon up for laboratory analysis.

It might begin with saliva tests for the Astros' pitching staff, which has survived on few runs and key hits and a team earned-run average that likely would be leading the league except for a pair of blowouts.

"Any discussion of our success has to start with the pitching staff," Astros manager Bill Virdon said. "We've had some injuries but we've been able to overcome them and still get the job done."

Ken Forsch got the pitching staff off to a rocking start with a no-hitter in the second game of the season. Forsch later became one of four Astros pitchers to spend time on the 21-day disabled list along with starters Vern Ruhle and Frank Riccelli and reliever Tom Dixon.

Randy Niemann and Rick Williams were summoned from the minor leagues to fill the injury gaps, and air-tight relief by Joe Sambito has kept the Astros aloft despite a lack of hitting.

Niemann has a 2-0 record and 2.18 ERA while Williams is 2-3 with a 2.53 ERA and both victories by shutouts. Sambito yielded a grand slam home run to St. Louis' Roger Freed on May 1 and has since appeared in 17 games and pitched 28 2/3 innings without allowing

Rangers Close In On Angels

By The Associated Press

Rookie Billy Sample hit his second major league home run in the bottom of the eighth inning Tuesday night, giving the Texas Rangers a 2-1 victory over the slumping California Angels.

The Rangers moved to within one game of the Angels in the American League West as they handed hard-luck Don Aase his fifth defeat against six victories.

After he retired the first two batters in the ninth inning, Bobby Grich doubled off Matlack and ace reliever Jim Kern came in to get the final batter as he notched his 12th save.

ASTROS 6, REDS 5

Jesus Alou's two-run pinch double in a five-run eighth inning propelled the Houston Astros to a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati, giving them a 6½-game lead over the Reds in the National League West.

Cesar Cedeno singled and Jose Cruz walked to start the burst against Paul Moskau. Two outs later, Denny Walling blasted his third home run of the season to to pull the Astros within one run.

YANKEES 11, BLUE JAYS 2

Jim Spencer's two-run homer capped a five-run first inning that powered Luis Tiant and the New York Yankees to an 11-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

ROYALS 7, A'S 6

ORIOLES 4, INDIANS 3

Rich Dauer looped a two-run double into the right field corner, keying a three-run fourth inning as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

TWINS 8, BREWERS 7

TIGERS 6, RED SOX 4

EXPOS 5, CARDS 3

Montreal Pitcher Ross Grimsley's two-run single snapped a tie in the sixth inning and the Expos beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 for their 12th victory in the last 16 games.

PIRATES 2, METS 1

Bill Robinson's tie-breaking home run in the seventh inning backed the combined four-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the New York Mets 2-1.

PHILLIES 5, CUBS 3

Mike Schmidt's three-run homer capped a four-run sixth inning and helped the struggling Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Sports Notes

Pinehills States Golf Tourney

Officials at the Pinehills golf shop reported Tuesday afternoon that 89 teams had already signed up to compete in the Saturday-Sunday event.

The first 120 teams that enter the marathon event will be allowed to compete in the tourney. The entry fee is $55 per team, and the deadline for entry is 6 p.m. Friday.

The action begins with shotgun starts at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m on Saturday and Sunday. The teams will be flighted on the basis of the first day's scores, reported host pro Courtney White.

Hillcrest Concludes Golf Tourney

Pan Am Golf Deadline Nears

The tourney is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at Meadowbrook golf course. Entry fee is $20 per person, and interested golfers can contact Rudy Moreno at 795-9053.

The field will be organized into four flights and Saturday's tee time is noon. Trophies will be presented to the winners and a closest-to-the-pin and longest drive contests will be sponsored.

Lady Bug Partnership Ends

Cathleen Oswalt and Jane Gray combined for a lowball 63 to win the Third Annual Lady Bugs' Partnership golf tournament at Hillcrest Country Club Tuesday.

Hillcrest Tennis Tournament Nears

Several Lubbock families are taking advantage of the warm weather on hand to prepare for an upcoming tennis meet at Hillcrest Country Club.

Of course, it's not just any tournament; it's the regional competition of the Equitable Family Tennis challenge slated for July 10 at Hillcrest.

Earlier this month, Jane and Amy Irons won the area mother-daughter competition, Kay and Greg Plumber of Seagraves took the mother-son play, Clarence and Barbara Baugh won the father-daughter event, Carlos and Carlos Rojas the father-son division, and David and Billie Hester won the husband-wife play.

These area winners now compete in the West Texas district tournament, also at Hillcrest, on July 10. Regional winners then advance to the sectional tournament in Dallas sometime between July 30 and Aug. 28.

And the sectional winners (there are 16 in the U.S.) will receive all-expenses-paid trips to the U.S. Open in September.

South Plains Signs Two Netters

LEVELLAND (Special) — South Plains College has announced the signing of two high school tennis players, Leslie Hall of Fort Stockton and Robert Chonoles of El Paso.

Hall, a state Class AAA tennis runner-up, won nine tournaments during his career at Fort Stockton. Chonoles, a graduate of El Paso's Austin High School, placed first in the James Donges Memorial and El Paso Fall Junior Open tournaments, and was second in the District 1-AAAA, El Paso Public Closed and the Burges Indoor tourneys.

AAU Action Comes To Borger

Four individuals in each of the events will qualify for regional competition. The winners in intermediate (14-15) and senior (16-17) classes, plus the next two best times or distances in all selected events, will qualify to compete in the Region IX Championships July 14 in Lubbock.

Winners at the Region IX Meet will qualify to compete in the National Championships.

ROSSIGNOL...
The Name Means Performance
In recent times, the sport of tennis has undergone tremendous growth.
The proliferation of materials, construction, technology and designs plus the variety of court surfaces have made racquet selection extremely difficult.
Rather than add to this confusion, Rossignol has designed a simple concept to allow players a simple formula in selecting the racquet to meet their performance needs.
Whether you're a tournament player or a sport player, come in and let us show you Rossignol's advanced technology and design.

Ali Sends Letter Resigning Heavyweight Title

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, the only man to win the crown three times, confirmed on Tuesday that he sent a letter to the World Boxing Association resigning his title, effective immediately.

"Yes, that's the truth," Ali told a news conference by telephone from his Los Angeles home. "I'm in a position that I can go no further in boxing."

Last week, Mike Mortimer, the chairman of the WBA Championships Committee, said in South Africa that he received the letter and that a copy had been sent to WBA President Fernando Mandy Galindez.

But Ali could not be reached for confirmation that he had actually sent a letter relinquishing his title.

"The only thing I can do to increase my popularity is to lose and win the title back for the fourth time," Ali said. "But I'm too old for that. I'm past 33, which has been the age most heavyweights retire. I'm 37, which is a record for heavyweights. I'm the three-time champ, which is the best way to be remembered."

Exhibition Bouts

Ali, who will fight Gov. Brendan Byrne and Jersey City Mayor Thomas Smith in a pair of two-round exhibition bouts in Jersey City Friday night, said he realizes this is the third time he has announced his retirement, but this time it's official. The other two times he also called the announcements official. However, this is the first time the necessary letter of resignation was sent.

"This time I'm thinking about my family, my children, the record books. I think about how Joe Frazier doesn't feel good every day when he wakes up, how George Foreman doesn't feel good, it's a terrible thing. It's just sports, but it can ruin your life. Every day I'm happy. Come back, for what?

"I have other battles to fight. I'm going to Russia in two weeks, I'm going to talk to President Carter, I want to set up headquarters in Washington. There are things more pleasing to do that beat up people."

The Headquarters In Washington

The headquarters in Washington presumably is for a group Ali has said he plans to form called World Organization for Rights, Liberty and Dignity, a non-political group that would foster good-will among peoples.

Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, defeated Sonny Liston for the heavyweight title on Feb. 25, 1964 in Miami Beach, when Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh round. Ali was stripped of the title in 1968 when he refused induction into the military but won it back in a stunning upset of George Foreman in Kinshasa, Zaire in 1974.

Ali lost the title in the ring for the first time last year to Leon Spinks, the 1976 Olympic light-heavyweight champion who had only six prior professional bouts. Ali won the rematch on Sept. 15 in New Orleans, taking a unanimous 15-round decision to become the first three-time champion. The Ali-Spinks rematch was recognized only by the WBA as a title match. The World Boxing Council recognizes Larry Holmes as heavyweight champion.

Ali Highlights

Sept. 5, 1960 — Won Olympic gold medal as a light heavyweight at the Rome Olympics.

Oct. 29, 1960 — Outpointed Tunney Hunsaker of Louisville, Ky., in his first pro fight.

May 25, 1965 — Retained title by knocking out Liston in first round at Lewiston, Maine.

March 22, 1967 — Retained title with seven-round knockout of Zora Folley in New York in what was to be his last fight for 34 months when he was banned from boxing for refusing to be drafted.

Oct. 26, 1970 — Returned to boxing and stopped Jerry Quarry on a cut in three rounds in Atlanta; appeal still pending.

June 28, 1971 — Cleared by the U.S. Supreme Court of the charge of refusing induction into Army. The vote was 8-0, with Justice Thurgood Marshall abstaining.

Oct. 30, 1974 — Joined Floyd Patterson as the only men ever to regain the heavyweight championship by knocking out George Foreman in the eighth round at Kinshasa, Zaire.

Sept. 28, 1976 — Retained title with unanimous but controversial decision over Ken Norton in Yankee Stadium.

Feb. 15, 1978 — Lost title on a split decision to Leon Spinks at Las Vegas, Nev.

Sept. 15, 1978 — Became the first man to gain the heavyweight title three times by outpointing Leon Spinks at New Orleans' Superdome. The fight was recognized by the World Boxing Association; Spinks had been stripped of the title by the World Boxing Council for refusing to fight Ken Norton.

"This time I'm thinking about my family, my children, the record books. I think about how Joe Frazier doesn't feel good every day when he wakes up, how George Foreman doesn't feel good, it's a terrible thing. It's just sports, but it can ruin your life. Astros Lead West

Knuckleball pitcher Joe Niekro became the first pitcher in the major leagues to win 11 games this season in a string that included a team-record nine victories in a row

"I used to get nervous about everything but now I block everything out, and it's only me and the batter," said Sambito. "Then when the game is over I can sit back and relax and look at what I've done and say, "Wow."

The Astros have not been shelling opposing pitchers. They are getting fewer hits than a year ago and rank near the bottom of the National League in team hitting. But the hits have been timely, and Walling has been the most punctual of all. He started this week with 10 pinch hits in 18 tries for the season.

"I'm elated about this whole team," said Walling, who ended last week hitting .556 as a pinch hitter this season. "I'm happy that I can contribute coming off the bench and I'm happy that we are coming together as a team. We were 14 games out of it by this time last year."

The Astros made key off-season acquisitions in obtaining shortstop Craig Reynolds and catcher Alan

JOE SAMBITO

JOE NIEKRO

Ashby and both have been factors in Houston's rise.

"This is a different lineup from last year,' Walling said. "It's not just Reynolds and Ashby, we've got (Cesar) Cedeno back in the lineup from his injury and we got a young bench that's doing the job."

Another new face is rightfielder Jeff Leonard, who was good enough to allow Virdon to move Cedeno from centerfield to first base and send Bob Watson to the trading block.

Despite their success, Virdon and the Astros have remained cautious.

"The time to talk about streaks is when they are over," said Walling. "I try not to get too high when I get a hit or too low when I don't get a hit. I'm just delighted to be contributing and I'm learning something every time I go to the plate."

"The really good teams are the ones that are consistent," Virdon said. "They don't let a little losing streak bother them. They come right back. We have a long way to go to September."

Ever since Abner Doubleday kicked dirt on an umpire at Cooperstown about a century ago, baseball has had its rhubarbs. They're as much a part of the game's appeal as Babe Ruth, RBIs, and spitters.

At times, they're amusing, at other times quite boring. A few years back, it was a regular occurrence for the Oakland A's to stage a squbble, fight or brawl. But, it came across as as a part of the team's makeup.

A fight would erupt, but when the mustachioed A's hit the field the next time, it was a forgotten incident, It only added to the color of the team, as if, "Hey, someone's looking, we gotta have a fight."

AS FAR AS the Yankees are concerned, their problems have taken on a different and tedious outlook, until finally, they cease to be so humorous.

Since it's in New York, we're led to believe that it's Big Deal (with capital letters), bigger than it really is. Let these squabbes crop up on the Braves or Blue Jays, and it rates right up there with a welterweight exhibition in Madrid.

Past history tells us that Martin is such a competitor as to stay just a degree or so below the boiling point at all times, NY owner George Steinbrenner has created his share of controversy — whether talking about players, manager, or long hair — and the Yanks themselves have seldom ducked away from a newsman's mike or notepad.

By now, the words are all smudged, blurred, out of focus, but keep them around; next year, you can dig them out, shake off the dust, change a few names, and the story is still there.

Boring, yes, repetitious, yes — but about the same in content.

Odessa Names Tennis Coach

ODESSA (Special) — Susie Smith Girard, a former University of Texas tennis standout, has been named tennis coach at Odessa College.

She will coach the men's and women's teams and assumes her duties immediately.

Mrs. Girard was the 1978 captain of the UT women's tennis squad and was a United States Tennis Association all-America in 1976 and 1977.

ders and big servers," Vilas said. "If I get through these early rounds, it will be good for me when I come up against the big players later."

The two top seeds, defending champion Borg and his young American rival John McEnroe, both cleared their first hurdles Monday. They were to play second-round matches Wednesday — Borg against Vijay Amritraj of India and McEnroe against Buster Mottram of ritain.

Navratilova was slow to prove her ability against Harford, a bouncy 20-year-old with a polished forehand volley. Harford broke the champion's service at love in the opening game. She still looked capable of winning until the sixth game of the second set, when she began to wilt against Navratilova's powerful groundstrokes.

"Winning Wimbledon last year was the greatest moment of my career," said Martina, "but this is one of the greatest moments of my life.

"When she came off the plane I didn't recognize my mother, she looks so good," said Martina. "We spent the evening talking but we still haven't caught up on all the news."

Ivanna Madruga of Argentina sprang the only upset in the opening day of women's competition. She ousted Sue Barker of Britain, the No. 12 seed, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 after trailing in the third set.

Evonne Cawley of Australia, the third seed, outstroked the 24-year-old Marcie 6-0, 6-3. Virginia Wade, the 1977 champion who is at home on the grass of the center court, brushed aside 18-year-old Peanut 6-0, 6-4.

Murcer Returns To Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer, once hailed as the man who would take Mickey Mantle's place with the New York Yankees, is returning to the world champions five years after they traded him away.

Murcer was purchased by the Yankees from the Chicago Cubs Tuesday after clearing major league waivers. In exchange for the veteran outfielder, the Yankees sent minor league pitcher Paul Semall and an undisclosed amount of cash to the Cubs.

"Financially it was a windfall for us," said Bob Kennedy, executive vice president of the Cubs. "The Yankees will assume his entire salary."

Murcer is in the third year of a 5-year, $1.6 million contract which pays him $320,000 annually.

The Cubs have been trying to deal the 33-year-old outfielder for some time and he is known to have vetoed a trade to San Diego. Philadelphia also had expressed interest in him before signing free agent Pete Rose last winter.

But Murcer has longed expressed the desire to return to the Yankees where he began his major league career as a shortstop in 1966. He was shocked when the Yankees, who had assured him he wouldn't be traded, dealt him to San Francisco Oct. 22, 1974 in a deal which brought Bobby Bonds to New York.

Murcer felt he had earned a permanent spot wih the Yankees after six years with the club during which time he succeeded the retired Mantle as center fielder and became one of the team's most potent offensive threats.

He hit 139 homers in those six seasons including 33 in 1972 when he batted .292. A year earlier, he had finished second in the American League with a .331 batting average.

But Murcer's days with the Yankees became numbered when Bill Virdon, then manager of the team, shifted him from center field to right field during the 1974 season. The change angered Murcer, who felt the switch to Elliott Maddox was unwarranted. At the end of the season, he was traded to San Francisco but stayed with the Giants only two years before being swapped to Chicago with third baseman Steve Ontiveros in exchange for infielders Bill Madlock and Rob Sperring on Feb. 11, 1977.

This spring, Murcer was named captain of the Cubs and in 58 games this season he batted .258 with seven home runs and 22 runs batted in. For his career, he has a .279 batting average with 217 homers and 898 runs batted in.

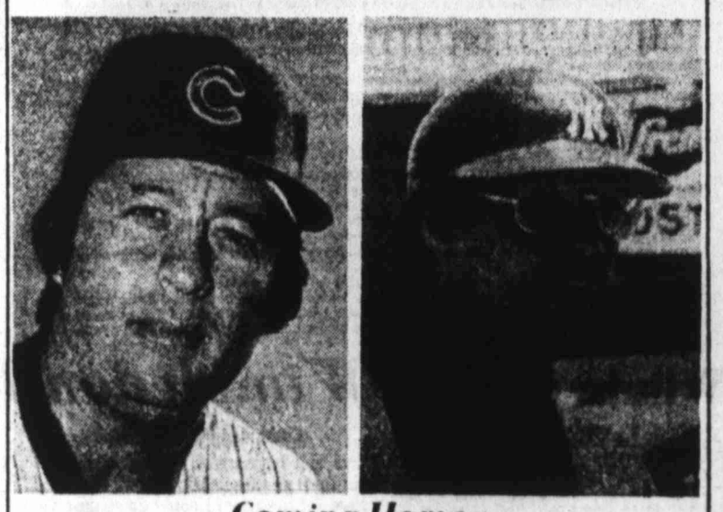

Semall was 6-3 in 13 starts at Columbus of the International League.

Murcer was listed in the Cubs' starting lineup for Tuesday's game against Philadelphia but was pulled out only five minutes before gametime when word of the deal came.

"He okayed the deal right away and was glad to get back to the Yankees," Kennedy said.

Murcer left Chicago immediately to join the Yankees in Toronto. New York Manager Billy Martin said he had no immediate plans for the veteran outfielder. "I'll have to talk to him first," Martin said.

Changing Pinstripes

Coming Home

The New York Yankees acquired Bobby Murcer, left, from the Chicago Cubs Tuesday, while Reggie Jackson finishes batting practice in an empty Yankee Stadium. Speculation built that adding Murcer might pave the way for trading Jackson, since the slugger doesn't get along with manager Billy Martin. (AP Laserphotos)

Gardner, All-Stars Near Pan Am Trip

By SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Although Scott Gardner is disappointed with his low selection in the recent professional baseball draft, he seems content with a more immediate goal he has set for himself.

The former Montery High School hurler is working towards a gold medal as a member of a special team of All-Stars selected to particpate in the Pan American baseball games which begins July 1st in Puerto Rico.

"Yea, I'm looking forward to winning a gold medal," said Gardner in a telephone interview from the Olympic Village training ground here. "Our team should be one of the favorites."

Gardner, who is entering his senior year on the Oklahoma baseball team, joins 19 other college players on the United States club. "Eight regional tryouts were held and two 20 man teams were chosen," explained the 6-5 pitcher. "We competed in exibition games in Venezuela from June 9-18," he added.

From those two groups one team of the top players was chosen to represent the United States in the Pan American games which will be played in San Juan.

"The competition was tough but I had a pretty good series in Venezuela and made the team," said Gardner, who compiled a 42-10 record in three years at Monterey.

"I don't know for sure what the starting rotation will be (in San Juan) but I'll be one of them," he claimed. The other starting pitcher is expected to be Tim Leary, who was drafted in the second round of this year's draft.

The Americans will face teams from 34 countries in the tourney including teams from Brazil, Argentina, Canada and Cuba. Cuba has won the international games four times in the last seven years. "They will be tough because they are like a major league team. In fact, we will have the youngest team here," exclaimed Gardner.

"The competition will be strong but our pitching will be tough for the opponents." And for his own role, Gardner plans to challenge the other teams with his fastball.

"The fastball has always been one of my strongest assests and I think I can challenge them with it. American players look for the fastball more but I think I can get it past most foreign players," said Gardner, who's fastball has been clocked at 93 mph. "I'm working hard on the curve ball now though because if the curve works I'll throw very well," he added.

But what about the draft?

"Sure I was disappointed with my selection in the draft," he said. (Gardner was not chosen until the 28th round by the Baltimore Orioles.) "But I had a slow start this past year at OU and the scouts just weren't too impressed." The hurler was 1-7 midway through the season but rebounded to win his last seven games and finish 8-7 while leading Oklahoma to the Big Eight title.

"I experimented with a new wind-up in the beginning of the season but it didn't work so I went back to the way I used to pitch in high school and my game has been much better," explained Gardner.

The former All-State performer is returning to Lubbock later this summer to play with the Lubbock Hubbers. Then he plans to return to the OU for his senior season and work towards the 1980 draft. Afterall, the last time Gardner was a senior—in 1976—he was selected in the 3rd round by the Milwaukee Brewers. "I'm a smarter pitcher now," said Gardner. "So I know I can make it in the majors."

Knight Seeks All-Star Team

CINCINNATI (AP) — Scoreboard reminders in Riverfront Stadium tell fans how to write in Ray Knight's name as the National League third baseman, but the campaign has been futile.

"I'm not surprised my name wasn't on the ballot this year," said Knight, whose batting average is second only to George Foster among the Reds' regulars. "They (the ballot makers) had no way to know I'd have this kind of year."

"It would be a great thrill to be named to the team, though. If I keep on hitting, I'd expect to be picked."

Knight is the only player among the seven Reds' regulars — Paul Blair and Cesar Geronimo are being platooned in center field — not included on the official ballot distributed at major league parks.

Tarkanian Heads Laker Coach List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry Tarkanian, the coach the National Collegiate Athletic Association wanted to ban, is the top candidate to replace Jerry West with the professional Los Angeles Lakers.

As far as can be determined, the current coach of Nevada-Las Vegas is the only man who has been interviewed by the Lakers' new owner, Jerry Buss.

It was Buss, who perhaps inadvertently, announced in New York on Monday that former All-Star West would not be coaching the club next season.

The announcement wasn't unexpected because West had said he didn't want to coach a fourth season. Buss had said he understood West didn't want to return.

"Jerry has indicated that he's tired of coaching and, therefore, we are currently looking for a new coach," said Buss who paid $67.5 million for the Lakers, Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League and the Forum where the two teams play.

Buss didn't mention Tarkanian, who has been under NCAA fire for reputed recruiting violations, both at Long Beach State and at Las Vegas.

Many feel the announcement might have been made already except for the murder of Victor Weiss, who had represented Tarkanian in negotations, first with Jack Kent Cooke, who sold the Lakers, and then with Buss.

Weiss disappeared after a meeting with the two and then was found a week ago in the trunk of his car, a victim of what appeared a gangland-type slaying.

West apparently will remain with the Lakers in some capacity, probably as director of player personnel. Buss has said that Bill Sharman, also a former coach of the Lakers, will remain as general manager.

It was in 1977 that the NCAA placed Nevada-Las Vegas on probation and wanted Tarkanian suspended. But the coach fought the edict and obtained a court order blocking the suspension.

The university, apparently seeking to placate the NCAA, appealed to the Nevada Supreme Court which reversed the original ruling and sent the case back to the District Court where it currently rests.

During West's playing days with the Lakers, the 6-5 forward was a strong rebounder and had an excellent outside shot.

In fact, he once hit a 60-foot two-handed push shot during a playoff game to keep the Lakers in the contest, which they finally won in overt me.

When he ended his career, West stayed close to basketball as a television commentator. However, he admitted that he missed the game and wanted to coach.

But West seems to change his mind about careers, and when the Lakers weren't playing team offense and defense this season, West's announcement to step down came as no surprise.

CAL JORDAN IMPLEMENT CLOVIS, N. MEX. 505-763-5517 6-21

Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works.
The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever — (Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

Heartline

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I am going to be 62 years old early next year. I work in private business so I am covered by Social Security. I am not quite sure what to do about my retirement. I can retire from my o at age 62 or I can stay until age 65. I realize that if I retire at age 62 I must take reduced Social Security benefits. Would you suggest doing this or should I wait until age 65 to draw my full benefits? — M.W.

This is one of the hardest questions you can ask yourself, but you are the only one who can answer it. There is not only the financial question, but the question of what you are going to do with yourself. Here are some factors to consider:

1. If you start drawing Social Security at age 62, you are receiving three additional years of income from it, but this income would be 20 percent less yearly than if you waited until age 65.

2. If you wait until age 65 to draw, you would receive full Social Security benefits, but the money you lost during the three years (from age 62 to 65) you did not draw Social Security benefits will take about 12 years of drawing to regain. This is based strictly on income from Social Security.

3. You must decide if a reduced Social Security benefit will be sufficient to meet your present and future monetary needs or if the full benefit will be necessary.

We also feel that there are other factors you must consider:

- The amount of money you would lose by leaving your present job.
- Your present health.
- Your desire to continue working.
- The effect of early retirement on your private pension plan, if you have one.

Since everyone's situation is different, there will probably be additional questions only you can answer. Weigh these questions carefully in your own mind and make the decision as to when to retire only when you have answered them.

Injured Musician Plans To Sue City

NEW YORK (AP) — Renee Katz, the 17-year-old musician whose right hand was cut off when she was pushed in front of a subway train, is preparing to sue the city for $10 million, her lawyer said Tuesday.

Attorney James Kramer said he will file a notice of claim for that amount. He is charging the city with negligence in failing to have a police officer or a platform man on duty at the busy subway station at 50th Street and Eighth Avenue where she was injured during the morning rush hour June 7.

The notice of claim is the first step in the court process. If the city is unable to reach a settlement with the claimant, a court suit can be instituted.

The teen-ager was on her way to the High School of Music and Arts when she was pushed in front of the oncoming train by a youth with no apparent motive. The assailant was never apprehended.

Miss Katz was regarded as a promising flutist and piano player. Surgeons doubt that she will regain sufficient use of her hand to resume that career.

'No-Tie Summer' Plan To Save Fuel

By The Associated Press

It's "No-Tie Summer" in Texas, and the buttoned-up, button-down look will be disappearing from hundreds of offices across the country under a federal plan designed to save energy by allowing temperatures to rise.

The plan would require thermostats in about 5 million buildings to be set no lower than 80 degrees Fahrenheit during the summer and no higher than 65 in the winter. It is designed to save from 195,000 to 390,000 barrels of the approximately 20 million barrels of oil the country uses a day.

Offices would be covered by the rule. So would restaurants, theaters and stores.

Congress gave President Carter the authority in May to order the limits and the Energy Department is working out details.

Gov. Bill Clements of Texas is ready for the federal order. In a formal proclamation, issued earlier this month, he wrote:

"Whereas, the shedding of the traditional necktie and long sleeve button-at-the-wrist shirt will become more symbolic of our determination to be practical during the hot months and at the same time to conserve energy ... I do hereby designate the summer of 1979 ... as 'No-Tie Summer' in Texas and urge all citizens of the state to enjoy the comfort of a relaxed dress code."

Not everyone liked the governor's idea. Said Reese Overcash of Dallas, president of Associates Corporation of North America: "We have not changed our dress code which is coat and tie. You build up certain policies within your company. ... We are going to have to be a little more uncomfortable before we break them down."

Things are less rigid at Intermatic Inc. in Spring Grove, Ill., 60 miles northwest of Chicago. Jim Miller, president of the company, which makes timers and heaters, said air conditioning cutbacks would raise the temperature from about 75 degrees to about 83. So he announced "Casual Dress Summer" and urged office personel to wear sport shirts, slacks and even, where appropriate, shorts. Ties can be left at home, Miller said.

Some companies haven't made plans yet. "Oh dear. Eighty degrees? I'm not sure what will happen," said Debbie Orchard of Occidental Life Insurance Co. of California.

The Los Angeles-based company is one of the few reporting a formal, written dress code among companies checked by The Associated Press. Men must wear ties and jackets — although they can leave the jackets off while at their desks. "We ask for a neat, busines-like appearance," Miss Orchard said.

At the Adolph Coors Co. outside Denver, Eric Riggle said higher temperatures would mean "attire would probably become somewhat more summery with looser and cooler clothing, short sleeves."

April Klimley of Citibank in New York said top personnel executives would be responsible for any changes in dress. "They'll do whatever makes sense," she said, adding that right now, "in the parts of the bank where there is customer contact, people are encouraged to wear appropriate dress — and that's a suit and a shirt."

Government buildings already have set thermostats higher on orders from Carter — a move that prompted rebellion by federal judges in four cities. In Washington, at the General Services Administration, Bob Fiser reported that under long-standing agency policy, "men may go without coats or ties in the summer unless they're in contact with the public. For women, it's limited to whatever is suitable attire."

Key Kahn Aide Says Everybody To Get 'Smaller Piece Of Pie'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living standards of Americans must decline if inflation is to be controlled, says the government's top inflation fighter. Does that mean tin shacks, soup and breadlines?

No, and it may not even mean giving up a vacation to a faraway place, if that's what an individual wants, says one official. But it probably will mean adjustments in living for most people, he adds.

"There is going to be a smaller piece of pie for everybody," says Peter Emerson. "It's not to say we'll all be living in shacks, or that sort of thing. But we cannot be as voracious consumers as we have been."

Emerson is a key aide to Alfred Kahn, President Carter's chief adviser on inflation. Kahn has said Americans face lower living standards as the price for controlling inflation.

"The sum total of the demands we are placing on this economy of ours ... somehow adds up to more than the economy is capable of supplying," he said. "There is no way of avoiding a decline in our average standard of living."

He said it is impossible when beef and oil are in short supply for Americans to continue to have as much as before, no matter how much they are willing to pay. Housing is another example of demand outpacing supply — and prices rising.

That is the process by which living standards are eroded. A family forced by shortages or high prices to switch from steak to hamburger has a lower eating standard. One forced to stay home on a weekend because it can't afford or get gas has a lower recreation standard.

Many families already lowered home thermostats in winter, and are using air conditioners less now, because of the shortage and high cost of energy, resulting in a lower comfort standard.

However, Kahn's prescription that lower living standards are necessary to cure the curren inflationary sickness hasn't won widespread endorsement from other economists.

Treasury ecretary W. Michael Blumenthal is one who disagrees, at least in part. "I don't think there's any reason to fear that there will be a declining standard of living for a few years," he said, although he acknowledged they won't grow as rapidly as before.

Gar Alperovitz of the National Center for Economic Alternatives said, "A very large number of things can be done long before asking people to take further cuts in their standard of living.... We could control a good chunk of inflation by putting controls back on energy prices."

Jack Carlson, chief economist of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said Kahn's statement showed the Carter administration "has given up on any reform of the government policies that are causing inflation." He said costly regulations and excessive government spending are at the heart of the problem.

American living standards approximately doubled in the 1950s and 1960s. Many families went from one car to two; a summer cottage was no longer just for the wealthy; and gadgets from electric toothbrushes to tape decks were accumulated with frenzy.

But so far in the '70s, there has been very little gain in the standard of living, and it has even faltered at times.

Commerce Department figures showed that after adjusting for inflation and taxes, the buying power of earnings and salaries declined 0.3 percent in 1978, the first decline in four years.

Weekly earning were down 2.6 percent in this April, the sharpest monthly drop in the 15 years the government has kept such figures. They were off 4.6 percent for the 12-month period ending in April.

And noting that consumer spending is down 3.5 percent this year, Blumenthal said the other day, "Quite clearly ... consumers do not have the money left to maintain the purchases they otherwise would because they are spending more on energy."

Each dollar hike in the price of a barrel of foreign oil drains $4 bilion from te United States, which becomes lost purchasing power to Americans. One way to make up for the loss would be to produce more, expanding the nation's total wealth. But this hasn't happened.

Productivity, rising at 3 percent annually not so many years ago, scarcely increased at all last year and actually dropped early this year.

The government hopes business investment will boost productivity, but inflation and the threat of recession are making businessmen cautious about investing.

"It is clear that unless we can increase productivity, which also requires bringing inflation under control, then we could not expect the standard of living to rise the way it has in the 50s and the 60s," Blumenthal said.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, noted that worker compensation from wages and benefits has gone up at a rate of 10 percent in recent months but the cost of producing goods, called unit labor costs, was up 11 percent. "The problem is that there is no growth in productivity in this country," he said.

Bosworth and Kahn have been trying to persuade unions to curb wage demands, even if it means falling behind the rate of inflation. Though this would mean a temporary loss of purchasing power, it is the price that must be paid to control inflation, they argue.

"We will pay it one way or another," Kahn says, or face continuing inflation, now at an annual rate of 14 percent, the worst in years.

Alperovitz said he is not so worried by lower living standards that require giving up a summer home or second car. He feels lower standards of living will hurt the poor and elderly the worst.

"A lower standard of living to me means that in some parts of the country, old people will be forced into very cold homes and it will literally increase the rate at which there will be pneumonia and health problems," he said. "Fixed income people and housewives will cutback on basic foodstuffs, lowering nutritional standards."

Emerson said the Carter administration is concerned that the poor and elderly not bear the brunt of a decline in living standards.

"If somebody wants to take a nice vacation, they may want to give up driving their Cadillac to work alone," he said. "Society has to decide how to distribute it so it doesn't impact all on the poor and on those with fixed incomes."

Philadelphia Fawn Rescue Attempt Fails

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three orphaned fawns — their parents killed by cars on a four-lane road in Fairmount Park — have been returning daily to the grassy curve where they last saw their mother.

The young deer, 4 to 8 weeks old, have been sighted so frequently that one return to the spot was recorded by a television crew.

"It's the last place they saw the doe," said state Game Protecor Rich Skubish. "It's part of their protection not to move (on)."

The fawns disappeared in the wooded area, however, when Skubish and three deputies hunted them with tranquilizer darts Monday in an attempt to save them from their parents' fate. The fawns were spotted on the curve again Tuesday.

The four-point, 140-pound buck was struck by a car and killed last week trying to cross the road. Saturday, the fawns' mother, a 100-pound doe, was killed at the curve just 100 yards away.

The buck, doe and the three fawns apparently moved down the wooded trails of Fairmount Park along Wissahickon Creek and crossed the park drive about a week ago.

"Evidently without the buck to guide them, they're a little lost," said Capt. Charles Lydon of the Fairmount Park police. "It's on a fringe area of the park close to the highway. Our concern is they are going to get hit.

"So far, no one's had any luck. It's a hilly area and they're small and can scamper off," Lydon said, explaining that efforts by the University of Pennsylvania and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to catch the fawns had also failed.

Skubish said he hopes to anesthetize the fawns with darts containing a quick-acting muscle relaxant and then remove them from the park.

"It's unusual to have three fawns," Skubish said. "One or two is normal. The only time you have three the habitat has to be mighty nutritious." The 1,500-acre northwest section of the park where the deer are roaming has water, he said.

The state game official estimated there are between 100 and 200 deer in the city. "There are no natural predators or hunters, so automobiles take their place," Skubish said, adding that 13 deer last year and eight so far this year have been killed by cars in Philadelphia.

"The deer move constantly through the park system," he said, as well as in private and city-owned properties adjoining the city.

Fairmount Park, the largest city park in the country, comprises about 4,000 acres. Divided into three sections, the main body of the park follows the Schuylkill River.

Skubish said he hopes to bring the fawns to the Schuylkill Valley Nature Center, a privately-owned reserve covering between 400 and 500 acres in the city and extending into neighboring Montgomery County.

READY TO ROLL — Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch closes the door of an 18-wheel truck early Tuesday as he began an 1,850-mile journey to the West Coast. Finch says he's making the trip so he can better understand the problems of truck drivers. (AP Laserphoto)

Southern Governor Herds Rig In Convoy

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch was joined by a convoy of truckers Tuesday as he guided an 18-wheel rig through Texas in the initial day of his firsthand look at the problems confronting the nation's haulers.

At a truck stop near Dallas Finch said he was tired and had experienced "a rough night," but that he was finding out what's behind the shutdown by independent haulers.

"I'm finding out why the truckers are being hurt. I could never have gotten this any other way," Finch said in a telephone interview from the restuarant of the Truck Stop of America at Mesquite, Texas.

Finch said he had been on the citizen band radio talking with haulers since he left Mississippi about midnight Tuesday. He said about 15 or 20 trucks had formed a convoy with the silver and blue Peterbilt rig he was riding and driving.

"I've found out that the lack of uniformity (in regulations) throughout the states is one thing that's hurting truckers. They have 80,000 pound loads in one state and they come to Mississippi and have to unload," Finch said. "They want fuel prices stablized — They just want to make a living."

Finch accepted a challenge Monday to ride and drive a tractor-trailer outfit to Los Angeles to see what's at the bottom of the protest by haulers.

The governor, before shoving off, signed an executive order temporarily increrasing truck weight limits — an action haulers and some industry officials had advocated.

"I drove until about 4 a.m., then crawled back into the cab and got me a little sleep. We had a hard night," said Finch, who is being escorted through each state by highway patrol units.

Finch, who is scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles either late Wednesday or early Thursday, said he will take what he finds out to President Carter and other federal officials.

"They (truckers) are law-a-biding citizens. We're finding out what these people are going through," said Finch, repeating the pledge he did not come on the trip for publicity.

"We need someone to stabilize the prices, not ride to California," Wilkinson said at a truck stop near Interstate 20 in Jackson.

Ken Johnson, another trucker from Florence, accused Finch of planning the trip to California before he was issued the challenge.

"He knew he was going before he even met with us," said Johnson, adding Finch's executive order increasing load limits would prove to be little help to haulers. "What would help us is getting diesel prices stabilized.

in order to receive testimony concerning the State of Texas Water and Waste Management Strategy and the State/EPA Agreement.
These documents have been prepared in response to a guidance document and policy statement prepared by the United States Environmental Protection Agency and published in the Federal Register March 21, 1979, under the authority of the Federal Clean Water Act, the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act, and the Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.
The State/EPA Agreement has been prepared through a cooperative effort of the Texas Department of Health, the Texas Department of Water Resources, and the Railroad Commission of Texas as a mechanism to coordinate response to health and environmental problems relating to water supply, solid waste, and water pollution control.
The Agreement integrates environmental programs conducted under the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act, the Federal Clean Water Act, and the Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act.
Preparation of the Agreement has been preceded by and closely linked to preparation of a strategy document which establishes goals for addressing problems over a multi-year period. The agreement translates the strategy into a management work program for fiscal year 1980.
Drafts of the State/EPA Agreement, Appendices to the Agreement, and strategy documents are available from Mr. Frosty Gray, Texas Department of Water Resources, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (512/475-3654); Mr. Wiley Osborne, Texas Department of Health, 1100 W. 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756 (512/458-7717); and Mr. George Singletary, Railroad Commission of Texas, P.O. Drawer 12967, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (512/475-4449).
