British Cheerful, French Gloomy As Date Of Reparations Conference Nears

PRE-LAUSANNE FEELING MIXES HOPE AND FEAR

English Observers See United Policy for Four Nations

MORE TIME SOUGHT

Extension of Hoover Debt Moratorium Favored By Britain

LONDON, Jan. 17. (AP)—Europe today entered the last week before the world reparations parley tentatively set for Jan. 25 at Lausanne in an atmosphere of mingled hope and fear.

Great Britain looked forward to the event with optimism. France saw nothing on the horizon but pessimism. Neither sentiment had any foundation in official statements, for both governments were preparing for the conference under a cloud of secrecy.

Writers Cheerful

The British optimism primarily was a product of political writers in responsible newspapers who drew from the evidence of the past week the conclusion that one vitally important point has been gained—that Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany will go to the conference with a united front.

This viewpoint found its chief expression in an article by the diplomat correspondent of the influential newspaper Observer. All four nations have agreed, he wrote, that the sequence of events at Lausanne will be as follows:

1. The conference will last a few days only.
2. The 11 countries represented will submit to Washington a proposal that the Hoover moratorium on reparations and war debts should be extended from July 1 to the end of 1932.
3. The parley will resume before the end of the year and will then seek a permanent settlement of the whole problem.

New Extension Favored

The Observer's opinion was echoed in other responsible circles which places emphasis on a belief the British government now has decided a further moratorium lasting more than a few months ultimately would do more harm than good.

In contrast with the attitude prevailing in this country, such Paris newspapers as Le Temps, which is credited with being close to the French foreign office, and the Nationalist Journal Des Debats looked at the situation as a whole and found the prospects gloomy.

Both papers took the view that whatever happens at Lausanne the key to the whole problem lies in the hands of the United States, but there is not the slightest reason to suppose the American government will plunge into the reparations tangle and straighten it out.

LAVAL EXPECTED TO DELAY PARLEY

PARIS, Jan. 17. (UP)—Premier Pierre Laval is expected to indicate to the chamber of deputies Tuesday whether the scheduled Lausanne reparations conference will be postponed.

The premier will face the chamber with his new cabinet, seeking a vote of confidence which it is generally believed he will win after a prolonged debate. Laval probably will explain the government's attitude toward the reparations settlement problem and open the way for general debate.

In the last few days it has become apparent the conference may be delayed because of the belief that "a successful settlement at present is unlikely in view of the German declaration of inability to pay and the attitude of the United States congress against cancellation of war debts.

If Laval announces postponement of the Lausanne conference, it probably will disarm the opposition because the premier will not be forced to challenge the German position at once, other than to the extent of a statement of France's "sacred rights" to reparations.

Soviet Seeks to Extend Banishment of Trotzky

BERLIN, Jan. 17. (AP)—A Telegraphen Union News Agency dispatch from Kovno, Lithuania, reported today that the Politbureau of the Communist party at Moscow had decided to demand a two-year extension of Leon Trotzky's banishment from Soviet Russia.

Trotzky, exiled Russian leader, formerly closely identified with Nikolai Lenin in the Bolshevik revolution and the establishment of Soviet government, has been living in Turkey.

Ruth Judd Attorneys Plan Case

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 17. (AP)—Attorneys for Ruth Winnie Judd conferred today behind closed doors, mapping the plea of insanity which they plan to take into the superior court Tuesday in an effort to save her from the gallows for the "trunk slayings" of Hedvig Samuelson and Agnes Anne Lerol.

The attorneys, Herman Lewkowitz of Phoenix and Paul Schenck of Los Angeles, said there would be other pleas in the defense structure, including one of self-defense, but their efforts will be centered mostly on proving insanity to account for the killing of Mrs. Judd's two friends last October and the sending of their bodies to Los Angeles in two trunks and a suitcase.

Prosecution attorneys worked secretly today drafting a plan of strategy which they hope will bring a verdict of first degree murder and a sentence of death from the jury.

The defense has subpoenaed three physicians to convince the 12-man jury—women do not sit on juries in Arizona—that slender, 27-year-old Mrs. Judd was mentally unbalanced.

Opposed to them will be two psychiatrists called by the state, Dr. Joseph Catton of Stanford university and Dr. Paul Bowers, Los Angeles, both of whom have appeared as experts in some of the most celebrated criminal trials on the Pacific coast.

CHILD KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Seven Injured in Lamesa Collision

LAMESA, Texas, Jan. 17. (UP)—A 5-year-old girl was killed instantly and a man probably fatally injured two miles east of here today when two automobiles collided and overturned at the intersection of the Big Spring-Gail highways. Seven other persons were injured.

Cynthia Ann Reed, 5, daughter of Louis B. Reed, Lamesa attorney, was killed as one of the automobiles fell on her. Roy Shipp, 21, of Higginbotham, was taken to a hospital here with brain hemorrhages with little chance to recover.

Dyrel Kirk, county attorney of Dawson county, sustained a broken rib and probable internal injuries. Mrs. Kirk and two Kirk children were bruised and cut. Don Burkett, who lives near Lamesa, was injured but not seriously.

An automobile driven by Kirk collided with one driven by Burkett. The Kirk family and the Reeds were riding together while Shipp was riding with Burkett. The Burkett car fell on the Reed child after she had been thrown from the one in which she was riding.

Three Killed in Spanish Anti-Catholic Clash

BILBAO, Spain, Jan. 17. (AP)—Three youths were killed and three were wounded today as Catholics and anti-Catholics came into conflict during a religious meeting presided over by a Catholic deputy.

Civil guards charged the combatants and dispersed them after a general fight that lasted an hour and greatly excited the populace. During the melee a group of anti-Catholics pushed an automobile belonging to an adversary into the estuary. Others paraded through the streets singing the "Internationale."

The situation finally was dominated by police and guards and authorities began an investigation.

HOOVER'S PEN AWAITS FINAL RELIEF VOTES

Two Most Important Bills Of Program Nearing Passage

PERSONNEL STUDIED

Directors of Huge Corporation to Be Named Immediately

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (AP)—Congress will get the first two and most important pieces of the emergency economic relief measures to President Hoover this week.

Millions for the nation's financial institutions and agriculture will be pouring out of the treasury before next Sunday for assistance which Democrats and Republicans on Capitol hill have joined in enacting to speed better times.

Conferences will be begun tomorrow to adjust differences between the senate and house on the bills authorizing the two billion dollar reconstruction finance corporation and recapitalization of the federal land banks.

Meyer Considered

President Hoover is ready to put each into immediate operation. He is seriously considering Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board and veteran relief administrator, to direct the gigantic reconstruction corporation. Bernard M. Baruch of New York is regarded as a certain Democratic member of the corporation and possible chairman.

The economic-minded congress which has kept steadily to the task so far of seeking to improve the national business and agricultural situation will go right ahead on the emergency legislative program, but some difficulty confronts other proposals advanced by Mr. Hoover.

Hearings will be resumed in both the senate and house this week on the measures to establish a home loan banking system to create a government corporation for the relief of closed bank depositors. A lot of discussion is ahead on each.

Economy Test Due

Meanwhile, the house will have opportunity to test out its promised economy plans on the first of the regular appropriation bills. The measure supplying funds for next

Jail Breaker in Archer Captured

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Jan. 17. (AP)—Earnest Sughrue, who escaped with Leo D. Wright from the Archer county jail last night, was recaptured today. Officers continued a search for Wright.

The men walked away while plumbers were repairing water pipes in the jail, and their absence was not noticed for an hour.

Wright was under a five-year sentence for violation of liquor laws. After conviction in 1926, he appealed his sentence, but did not appear when the case was affirmed.

He was captured recently by a detective of Wichita Falls and returned to Archer county. He claimed he had served three years in Arizona for automobile theft in his absence.

Sughrue was held for automobile theft.

Contributors to School Lunch Fund Thanked by P.-T. A. Head

Members of the Wichita Falls Parent-Teacher associations are jubilant over the results of the city-wide campaign for money for the school lunch fund which resulted in the goal being reached in 10 days and lunches assured for underprivileged school children.

The following statement was issued Sunday by Mrs. Paul Barnett, president of the city council of the parent-teacher associations.

"Almost every business house and civic organization in the city has contributed liberally to this worthy fund. It has been backed enthusiastically by The Times and Record News. Individual donations have been especially generous and prompt.

"In fact Wichita Falls has gone on record as standing solidly back of the council in the splendid manner of its response and cooperation to an appeal so vital, so necessary and so worth while.

"Officials state that deep appreciation is felt and grateful thanks heartily accorded to the staff of The Times and Record News, the managers of the Majestic, State and Gem theaters, for their liberal contribution; the Lehrack Dairy Products company for supplying free milk daily to the needy children of each school; to Dr. J. H. Massie, whose untiring efforts helped swell the fund; to Lester Jones of the Wichita State bank, who is official treasurer of this enterprise and who has worked zealously to accomplish its end; to the various other firms and individuals whose donations have raised this fund to its present proportions, including the Hardly Able Oil Operators and Map Makers, whose final donation put the drive over Thursday night.

"The milk bottle plan which provides for receptacles placed in drug stores, grocery stores and other places of business in order that the public can still donate to this fund, will be carried on, it is announced, until the close of the school year."

MURRAY EDGES INTO U. S. RING

Alfalfa Bill Airs Views in Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (US) Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma today cautiously edged his hat toward the Democratic presidential ring.

Disclaiming he was yet an "official candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination, Murray, sitting in his hotel room with his hat cocked on the back of his head, declared, amid puffs of a large cigar, that Oklahoma's delegation to the Democratic convention would be "friendly" to him.

He will decide later whether to enter the various presidential primaries.

For U. S. Only

After shyly treating his own candidacy, Murray, rising at times to thump a table vigorously with his first, proceeded to outline the platform on which the Democratic nominee should stand. He announced a four-square American policy, and lambasted the internationalists among the Democratic aspirants. In short, jerky sentences, he said:

"The League of Nations will only hasten the downfall of civilization. The Democratic platform should ignore it.

"I regard Newton D. Baker as a baby in foreign policy.

"Franklin Roosevelt doesn't meas-

Byrd Plans Submarine Base in Antarctic Area

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. (AP)—Rear Richard E. Byrd hopes to establish a sub-base in the interior of the antarctic continent on his forthcoming expedition.

Disclosure of his plans, the first occasion on which he has mentioned them publicly, was made casually last night at the 28th annual dinner of the Explorers club here.

"We have 35 tons of equipment at the Boston navy yard," the admiral said. "A friend has promised to furnish the ship." He did not, however, say when he would start.

The chief objectives of the expedition, he explained, are to determine whether there is a channel between the Ross sea, on the shores of which "Little America" was established, and the Wedell sea.

Eight Arrested After $50,000 Bond Fraud

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 17. (US)—On the complaint of August Dege, of Newark, who said he was victimized out of $50,000 in what detectives termed a "bond fraud," police today arrested eight persons allegedly connected with a ring dealing in reputed fake securities.

Other complaintants were S. C. Jones, an engineer, of Wilmington, Del., and Edgar Tobey, of New York. An attempt was made to swindle Jones, too, police said.

Jeff Sharum, 73, known on Broadway as "Little Jeff," was held as the reputed ring-leader of the gang which got Dege's $50,000.

Compromise Adjustment of Rail Wage Problem Seen After Parley

B. and O. Head Outlines Financial Emergency in Three-Hour Conference With Labor Representatives

CHICAGO, Jan. 17. (US)—Settlement of the railway wage question came a step nearer today when several points of differences were detailed in clear-cut discussion.

In the course of a three-hour session at the Palmer house today, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and chairman of the committee of railway presidents, outlined the position of the roads, detailed their financial difficulties due to decreased freight loadings, and explained succinctly the need of a downward readjustment in wages as a primary part of the retrenchment program.

This program, he made it clear, is imperative for rail employes and roads alike.

Discussions Amicable

But it was held significant that, at the end of the session, Mr. Willard announced the railway presidents committee was empowered by the 200 roads of the country to act with full authority in completing negotiations with the rail brotherhoods.

The discussions were amicable, and in the opinion of observers, constructive.

"I believe the railroads will cooperate in stabilizing employment and in giving some relief to the unemployed," said David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Leaders Encouraged

The close of the conference found leaders of both sides encouraged.

"Our discussions were frank and helpful," said Willard. "We have explained our situation in full. The rail brotherhoods' committee will have its turn to present its position to us tomorrow."

The 10 per cent wage cut did not come up for discussion, it was learned, although in all probability it will be the focal point of the conference tomorrow.

Short Day Up

"The railroads appear to be willing to give us full consideration to our stabilization problems," declared Robertson, adding, "and we have asked them to guarantee maintenance of a minimum force over a given period and to make no further reductions in the number of employed men. While the six-hour day was discussed, it was not taken up to a point where definite action was embodied in the railway presidents comment.

"In all probability, we shall have

Peiping Under Guard After Student Raids

PEIPING, Jan. 17. (US)—Martial law ruled Peiping tonight after 360 Chinese students raided newspaper offices in search of Japanese-manufactured newsprint. One editor, suspected of using Japanese paper, was clamped into a wooden cage and put on public display for several hours.

Newspaper publishers threatened to suspend publication if the raids were not halted. They declared they would organize their workers to battle off the raiders. Fearing rioting, the authorities thereupon arrested the student leaders and declared martial law.

HAWAII SEEKS CRIME CURE

Legislature Meets Today in Special Session

HONOLULU, Jan. 17. (AP)—Hopeful of providing Hawaii with new regulations designed to purge its law enforcement machinery of the political influences blamed for the recent wave of high crime here, the territorial legislature meets tomorrow in special session.

Action which will be satisfactory to congress has been asked to prevent the state and status of the territorial government from being changed. Fear has been expressed in some quarters that if conditions reported by the navy department, although disputed here by officials, were to continue the governor would be supplanted by a naval head as in the case of Samoa.

Police Commission

The first action of the legislature will be passage of a measure placing the police department under a commission to be named by the governor. The commission would appoint a chief of police who would be responsible only to the commission. It is not yet fully decided what will be done with the other

Veteran Kentucky Congressman Dies

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17. (AP)—John W. Langley, 69, former representative in congress from the 10th district of Kentucky, died at his home here today. He had been ill three days with pneumonia.

Langley was elected to congress 10 times, once while his appeal on a conviction of conspiracy to violat the national prohibition laws was pending. His wife, Mrs. Katherine Langley succeeded him in 1927 after he had served 11 months of a two-year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary.

Langley entered the penitentiary Jan. 19, 1926, and was paroled Dec. 18, of the same year. A few days later he was granted a full pardon by President Coolidge and his citizenship was restored.

Mrs. Langley was defeated for re-election in 1930.

Anti-Saloon League Pays Tribute To Bishop Cannon in Resolution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. (AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., was endorsed today by the anti-Saloon league in a formal resolution as "a great champion of freedom of conscience and intellect—a protector of the independence of the franchise."

The tribute, written by O. S. Poland, Boston, said only the resolution of the Southern Methodist clergyman and his sacrifice "stands between thousands of independent voters and social ostracism, financial ruin, serious physical harm."

"He is not trying to protect himself by refusing information," the resolution added. "He is protecting many who worked with or for him."

Poland explained later this referred to Bishop Cannon's refusal to permit names of many associated with him in the campaign against Alfred E. Smith to become known or to give information to a senate committee.

The resolution was announced as the league continued its biennial convention with warnings of its leaders that a fight for prohibition must be faced in the November elections. They appealed for support for all dry candidates, regardless of party labels, for national and state offices.

A full declaration of policy from the league, including its attitude toward prohibition legislation now pending in congress, is to be made public Tuesday night at the final meeting.

League officials already have advocated before the convention support for all dry candidates, no retreat from the policy of prohibition enforcement and opposition to legalization of beer, proposals to give states control of liquor and to a referendum.

Tomorrow a bill is to be introduced by Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, to permit more liberal prescriptions of liquor by physicians.

The senator said today in a state-

VICTIMS FLEE AS WALLS OF WATER MEET

Rescue Crews Take 2,000 Trapped Persons From The Tippo Basin

U. S. HELP SOUGHT

Six Major Leaks Send Delta Folks to Housetops and Wooded Hills

CHARLESTON, Miss., Jan. 17. (US)—Trapped in their flood swept homes, some 3,000 persons today faced death by drowning as the raging waters from six major breaks in the Tallahatchie levee system surged over the lowlands.

Approximately 2,000 persons have been taken from their homes by rescue crews, that worked all throughout the night.

Two walls of water rushing on into the Tippo basin from breaks in the Patterson bayou and Grassy lake levees last night met near here with a terrific force.

Refugees Panicky

Panic reigns today in this section, refugees by hundreds are being brought here. This town is completely cut off from the world with exception of telephone and telegraph connections.

Frantic appeals were sent out again today to Washington asking for aid first and investigation later.

The lack of boats is making rescue work difficult.

Many of the delta folk are living on housetops, where many of them slept last night. Others, who fled earlier, are camped in the wooded hilltops.

Sandbags Used

Greenwood, to the south, today prepared to meet the walls of water flowing down out of the Tippo basin into the Yalobusha and Yazoo rivers.

Thousands of sandbags have been placed on the new government levees that protect the town. East and north Greenwood are now flooded. A rise of more than two feet is expected. The rivers are now all above flood stage at Greenwood.

PLANES TAKE FOOD TO MAROONED INDIANS

WINSLOW, Ariz., Jan. 17. (AP)—Six army bombing airplanes from March Field, Calif., took the air at 8:30 a. m. today on a mission of mercy to snowbound and suffering Navajo Indians of this district.

By noon 10,800 pounds of rations had been dropped at widely separated points. The work continued.

The hungry and shivering red men rushed eagerly to each spot the instant the bundles of provisions struck the snow-covered earth. The parcels were torn open with ravenous haste and their contents distributed among the tribesmen.

Officials said at noon that the delivery of supplies will be slower henceforth, as the more remote settlements are reached.

ure up to the test of courage, whereby a public man should solve problems without caring what anybody thinks about it.

Opposes Cancellation

"Owen Young isn't even thinkable as a Democratic candidate.

"I oppose debt cancellation. I believe in every nation keeping its obligations.

"The platform shouldn't say anything about prohibition. The personnel of the party ought to be dry. Prohibition is a local question. The president hasn't anything to do with it. We shouldn't apply partisan or religious bias, prejudice or hate to prohibition.

"It is fundamental that all power rests with the people. The people, nationally, in the states, locally, have the right to change laws at any time.

Wants Good Navy

"We ought always to have a good navy.

"We ought to build the Nicaraguan canal.

"It is bad policy for any government to encourage loans to any nation for the reason you become interested in maintaining that government.

"We ought to have strong federal regulation of water power.

"Democratic members of congress should be pledged to impeach any federal judge who abuses his powers in injunctions. I guess that will stop government by injunction.

"The ultimate object of our laws should be to get one man in love with one woman and get them to own a home.

Hoover Blamed

"A remark of President Hoover on his South American tour was responsible for the revolutions in Bolivia and Argentine.

"It was indicated the substance of the president's remark was that it wasn't the function of American ministers to protect American citizens abroad."

Murray jabbed at President Hoover, saying:

"I don't think Hoover knows where he stands."

Murray came to Washington to testify before a house committee on financial legislation and to speak at the Anti-Saloon league convention tomorrow.

Preaches Sermon

Tonight the governor talked before the congregation of the Ingram Memorial Congregational church. When the Rev. Frederick Vining Fisher, pastor introduced him and intimated Governor Murray was a presidential possibility, the congregation rose and applauded.

"Alfalfa Bill" however did not preach politics from the pulpit. He gave an old-fashioned sermon. Pointing to the fall of ancient Greece and Rome he declared America must put greater emphasis on character as opposed to intellectuality.

branch of the law enforcement machinery, that of the city and county attorney's office. This possibly will be made a part of the office of the attorney general, who is named by the president.

Both the offices of Sheriff Patrick Gleason, present head of the police force, and that of City Attorney James F. Gilliland, have been under fire because of charges of being politically controlled.

Attorneys Won't Act

Gilliland said today Judge A. G. M. Roberts had definitely refused to become a special prosecutor in the retrial case of four men charged with assaulting Mrs. Thomas G. Massie, wife of a naval lieutenant, or in the case against Lieutenant Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie and two enlisted men, growing out of the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, one of those charged with the attack.

Gilliland said the community has so far been unable to induce any strong member of the Bar association to accept the responsibility of prosecuting the cases. He said Washington would expect a conviction of the four youths at the retrial. The original trial jury failed to agree.

Case Ready

Gilliland said he had nearly completed investigation of the Kahahawai case and would be ready to present it to the grand jury at its regular meeting Thursday or possibly sooner.

Telephone reports from Pearl harbor where Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Massie and the enlisted men, E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones are held, said Mrs. Fortescue was recovering from the nervousness that followed her arrest Jan. 8 when police said they found her driving the automobile containing Kahahawai's body. They said Massie and Lord also were in the machine.

DEATHS

Mrs. M. J. Kimbel, 79, a resident of Wichita Falls for several years, died early Sunday morning at her home, 2124 Bluff.

Funeral arrangements had not been made Sunday night. The body was in charge of Hines mortuary. A husband, daughter and grandson, A. G. McClung, assistant pastor of the Church of the Air, survive.

C. C. SHELTON

Funeral services for C. C. Shelton, 71, former resident of Wichita Falls who died Friday at his home in Fort Worth, were held there Sunday afternoon.

He died suddenly Friday, collapsing while at work in the Texas and Pacific mail room at Fort Worth. He had been employed by the T. and P. at intervals over a period of 35 years.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters.

If You Have a Strong Heart Here's Chance to Win $2.50 and Prize

Here's a chance to earn $2.50, a pair of shoes and a five-pound box of candy—simply by seeing a free movie.

But the catch to it is that the movie is "Frankenstein," the story of the man who made a monster, and C. H. Stewart, manager of the Majestic, gives his word that a more grotesque picture has never reached the screen.

Mr. Stewart will give $2.50 and a pair of shoes to the man and $2.50 and a five-pound box of candy to the woman who will sit through the entire picture at a private showing Wednesday night. The theater will be empty, with all lights out, the only light coming from the screen. The man must sit on one side of the house, the woman on the other, and they must not leave their seats during the show, according to the rules laid down by the manager.

The two persons selected to see the show will preferably be taken from the unemployed, Mr. Stewart said. The first man and the first woman to apply at his office after reading this article will be selected, he said.

Frankenstein opens its run at a midnight show Thursday night at 11:30 o'clock and the regular run starts Friday.

Here's the head of the monster in "Frankenstein" the grotesque picture which opens at the Majestic with a midnight show Thursday. The theater is offering prizes to the man and woman who will sit through the show at a prizate showing Wednesday night.

And a word of warning—persons with weak hearts are advised not to attend. No children's tickets will be sold for the midnight show Thursday.

year's operation of the agriculture department is about ready to be reported from committee.

A real relief row is impending on the LaFollette-Costigan measure in the senate to appropriate $375,000,000 for direct unemployment aid—a step firmly opposed by the president. This measure in all probability will reach the senate floor in the next six days.

The vital tax increase legislation will not get to the house until Feb. 1, and plenty of dispute is ahead on this controversial legislation.

Political Fireworks

All in all, congress is going to keep right on the stupendous economic avenue. There will be interludes of political fireworks from time to time, but the more serious job of relieving unemployment and getting money into the pocketbooks of the people will have right of way.

The house judiciary committee will conclude within a day or two the hearings on charges by Representative Pafman, Democrat, Texas, for impeachment of Secretary Mellon.

The house agricultural committee will start hearings on legislation to curb short selling operations on the stock and grain exchanges.

The senate manufacturers subcommittee will resume hearings on measures to authorize four per cent beer.

The Democratic tariff revision bill passed by the house is destined to rest a while longer in the Republican-controlled senate finance committee.

This will provide the setting for one of several political interludes ahead.

"The plan of the wets, state option but no saloon, is inconsistent," the committee said.

Episcopal Men to Present Minstrel

Old-fashioned minstrelsy using the latest popular song hits will hold the stage at the Episcopal parish house on Monday and Tuesday nights of this week when the Men's club of the Church of the Good Shepherd will put on two blackface shows under the direction of George Hodgins.

Intensive rehearsals have been under way for one month under the experienced hand of Mr. Hodgins, himself a veteran minstrel. Endmen Frank Haley, L. L. Lyle, Darrell Payne and Bill Hardy have been instructed to take extreme liberties with local citizens in concocting the wise-cracks to be projected from the wing positions, Mr. Hodgins said. Claude Woods will act as interlocutor.

Specialties will be given by a number of artists enlisted from outside the ranks of the Men's club. A male quartet from the high school is being furnished by Mrs. Hermione S. Vaughn, high school and Junior college director of music. Tap dances are to be given by Charles Doran, local instructor; and dancing by Felix Jr. and Miss Mary Jane Payne also is on the program.

Elaborate lighting effects have been provided for the minstrel. Those attendant upon closing rehearsals declare that it will be pulled off with up-town snap and finish. Performances are to begin at 8:15 p. m. The admission will be 50 cents. The minstrel is being given for the benefit of the Parish House fund.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Winter so far has been a fizzle—that is, of course, in our part of Texas. He has come, not like a majestic ruler clad in an ermine robe of snow and breathing icy blasts, but has only peeped round the corners, like a fickle flirt. Winter has borne just as much resemblance to our idea of real winter as the male who says "all-righty" to us, resembles a real man.

A sky that would be a task for an artist in its tones of silver gray and dark lead, hung over the city Thursday morning. The air reminded us of the misty, moisty mornings made famous by Mother Goose.

On such mornings in early spring, we have found the purple and golden crocus thrusting their vivid cups through brown earth and grass; on such mornings, we have seen a bluebird perch on a gray fence post; we have watched wood smoke curling from the chimneys of country houses, a sweet clean smoke compared with that from coke or coal, and beautiful in its misty coloring against a misty sky.

On such mornings, there's a sort of hush over the earth; things seem to stand still. The earth's movement leaves no trace; distances are hidden in fathomless shadows—yet there's a fragrant suggestion of life in the atmosphere that seems to speak more of spring than winter.

The seasons in rotation, moving calmly and effortlessly are only another example of the work of a Divine hand. Nature's tasks are accomplished without friction. Time passes without a great noise.

Time is to the very young, about the slowest thing in nature. But wait until they have attained maturity. Then though the days may move slowly, months and years fly by. A little further on—when people top the hill and start downward, time wears wings.

We overheard women talking of full days not long ago. They lived in a rush. One day lapped over the next, with things they had to do always blocking the road to relaxation.

"But I like it," one remarked. "I don't know what I would do if I were not kept busy all the time." There was a pause and one of the very busiest of the group looked up. "I don't," she said. "I would give anything if I could wake up one day and know there was nothing on earth I had to do."

There's a happy medium, that few of us attain. Women who can do things and who do the things they are asked to do, are always busy. As a rule we believe they are much happier than women who cook their meals, keep their houses clean, but have no outside duties that keep them in touch with the world.

We have an idea that gossip is born of idleness. And we have an idea that women who are rubbed against rough sides of life, come to have broader visions and more charitable outlooks than those who are sheltered by the pretty theories of the mauve decade.

Our Children

Fighting

All small boys—small boys are those from 7 to 10, with the fringes—fight. It is in them. Just what the urge is or what it means in their development is not quite clear but we know it is there and we know too that it serves a useful purpose in making the boy feel secure in his world. When he can hold his own with his two fists he feels that he is a fit and worthy citizen. That puts zest into everything he does. He eats and sleeps better. He works better. He enjoys living. For him it is all play.

This war spirit troubles teachers and mothers. Children hurt each other when they fight and it might be that such a hurt prove serious. We can comfort ourselves that seldom does a fist fight between boys of the same class do any harm. Usually it does some good. The usual small boy needs no coaxing to fight. All he needs is to be let alone. It doesn't do to tell him he is not to fight because if he is healthy he surely will. Nor will it do to applaud his fistic endeavors lest we lead him into seeking fights for the applause it brings him. Just tell him to go along and wash his face and suggest that a little of that sort of thing goes a long way.

The child who refuses to fight is not to be praised as a peace loving soul. He isn't anything of the kind, in most instances. He is usually a weak child who fears the battle. He is wishing that with all his heart that he could up and punch the head off the playground leader, but he knows he can't. The stronger ones discover his plight and take advantage of it to punch him all over the place. Then the teacher has to come to the rescue. Mother and father have to support their child against his enemies. That is a hard situation for the weaker child and he must be helped to feel strong by being made strong.

Take that child to the best children's physician you can find and ask him to search for the cause of this, child's weakness, his fear, whatever it is that holds him back when he ought to be going forward with might and main. Don't call the child names. Don't push him into a fight. Don't tell him that you will give him a licking the next time anybody licks him. That won't do him a bit of good. He wants to defend himself. He'd be happier than you about it if he could. He needs help. Maybe his vision is poor, or his hearing bad. Maybe his coordination is poor. Perhaps his glands are not doing their share. Maybe he is not getting nourishment from his food. Find out what is bothering him and help him.

The fighting phase soon wears itself out. Usually by 10 years of age the child ceases to pick a fight with his neighbor. After that when he fights it is because he feels that he has been injured, abused, trodden on, and he rises to defend himself and his ideals. The 9-year-old fighter fights for the sheer joy of battle. It is his nature. He is normal. The child who cannot defend himself is the one that is in need of direction and help.

The physician can help a great deal. In the meantime build up the weak child's constitution. Guard his hours of sleep. Give him plenty of play in the open air. Give him a fotball to kick about. Send him to a god teacher of physical training and have him taught to swim, ride and box. Any of these exercises are good for such a child, all three if he can have them. But don't taunt or punish him. Help him. Let the other one alone. His birthdays will attend to him.

Poor at Frederick Aided by Wood Pile

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 17.—Free fire wood is being furnished by the local charity organization to those who saw and split it. A wood yard has been opened at the city lots on South Eighth street in charge of J. F. White.

A score or so of men, both white and colored, go to the yard daily, with their own saws and axes, and saw and split as much wood as they want. Those who want to work for $1 a day are given a job of preparing fuel for widows and elderly people who can not cut their own supply. This is stacked in a pile and taken to the homes of those needing it.

Workmen not needing wood are paid in groceries which are furnished from the supply depot on South Ninth street, in charge of C. D. Vaughan.

Old Mail Driver Recalls Early Plains Country

HALE CENTER, Texas, Jan. 17. (AP)—W. L. Tharp, the first man to drive a mail hack between Amarillo and Estacado, believed to have been in what is now Crosby county, still lives on a farm near Hale Center.

Tharp drove the first mail hack in 1889 when it required an entire week to make the trip from Amarillo to Estacado and return. He spent the first night at Tulia, the second at Della Plains, 25 miles east of Plainview, and the third at Estacado. The return trip was made over the same route.

"There was just one wire fence on the route," Tharp said. "It was north of Tulia a short distance. The next fence south of that I can recall was on the Swenson Spur ranch.

"Tulia postoffice then was located on a ranch in Tule canyon. There were two stores and four or five dugouts at Plainview, and a blacksmith shop and a couple of stores at Lubbock."

A recent estimate of federal prohibition officials put the number of saloons in St. Louis, Mo., at 1,000 and beer flats at 3,000.

How Do Chorus Girls Manage?

The theatre knows no "sick list." Chorus girls just can't be "absent." Regardless of their monthly sickness, they must be in line, on time, on their toes, and smiling. How do they do it? Nature doesn't spare them. They menstruate, of course; but stop the pain for hours at a stretch, by the use of a perfectly harmless medicine called Midol.

It acts in seven minutes. Relief is complete. The pain is gone. You menstruate in comfort. Midol is not a narcotic and offers no interference with nature. All druggists; ask simply for Midol.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON.—More than a hundred years ago there appeared in a Boston paper a poem beginning:

"Ay, tear her tattered ensign down."

OLIVER W. HOLMES

Written by a youngster just out of Harvard, that bit of verse saved the frigate Constitution, "Old Ironsides," from the ship wrecker's hands.

A century later she still lifts to the surge of the blue waters where she made history, a glorious memorial to herself and the long dead brave who peopled her decks.

But that old, never-to-be-forgotten verse did more than that.

It set into American history a glowing page, all its own, for the name Oliver Wendell Holmes. Poet father and soldier-jurist son have kept it bright in American hearts for more than 10 decades.

They have kept faith with the patriotism the father sang, that the son wrote into the vital philosophy of American law. They have made a household word of the name they bore.

Never His Like

Now, his snowy head bent under his years but his heart ageless, the son has stepped off the bench of the highest court that, for all its great men, has never known just his like.

Yet in severing his tie of active service to the nation, to knew a little the honored retirement so long ago fully earned, Justice Holmes displayed once more that gallantry of spirit that in father and son alike has found responsive echoes in American hearts.

He spoke in his letter of resignation of the "absorbing interests that have filled my life."

"But the time has come and I bow to the inevitable," the old justice added. . . . "My last word should be one of grateful thanks."

There is something about those words that gives them emotional thrill, that harks back to the poet father.

They are of a piece with many another touch of poetic conception the son has found words to express within the cold, factual requirements of judicial utterance.

Unwavering

Justice Holmes is renowned for the philosophy of law that guided him, for the unwavering conception of the true purpose and meaning of democratic government under law he never failed to voice.

That made him known as the great dissenter, yet he always rejected that view of his place in American jurisprudence. He felt himself merely keeping faith with the spirit and purpose in which the nation was born.

And he ended his active career with a gallant gesture. It was like the greeting he invariably gave in court to comrades or foemen in old wars on the bench.

Finger tips rose to time-frosted eyebrow in military salute as he passed, and a twinkling glance added its own message.

Dallam County Votes On Road Bonds Feb. 11

DALHART, Texas, Jan. 17. (AP)—Dallam county citizens will vote Feb. 11 on a $360,000 highway bond issue.

The bonds would meet the county's share of the expenditure involved in paving its three main highways, including state highways No. 5 and No. 56 and an undesignated route known as the Old Field highway, or No. 41. The paving of the last mentioned route depends upon designation.

A bond issue for $850,000 was voted down little more than a year ago. The old estimate was made on concrete. State highway engineers submitted an estimate of $10,000 a mile maximum on caliche and asphalt top paving which will be provided for in the proposed issue.

The Great Liberal

IT SEEMS strange that Oliver Wendell Holmes should be leaving the supreme court because of the failing health that extreme age has brought him; for here, if anywhere, there seemed to be one man on whom age had no effect.

Conservatism often is the landmark of age—yet Justice Holmes is, and has been for many years, one of the nation's foremost liberals. Nearly 91 years old, he has managed to keep what many of us lose before we reach half that age; an open, inquiring mind, a forward-looking attitude that is ever ready to hail a new horizon, a willingness to recognize change and a desire to meet that change unhampered by too great reliance on the precedents of the past.

Could such a man be called old? In years, of course; he has gone far beyond the scriptural allotment of three score and ten. But mentally he has been one of the youngest men on the bench, and he has given the nation's supreme court a tradition of liberalism that has leavened it for years.

And now he is retiring; and few Americans of any time had a finer record of service to look back upon.

It is startling to realize what a long period his active life spans. He served in the Civil war, seeing much of the hottest fighting of that fearfully sanguinary conflict, and being wounded in action three times—near Richmond, at Antietam and at Fredericksburg. He returned to Massachusetts, the distinguished son of a distinguished father, to finish his education, to teach law at Harvard and to serve for 20 years on his state's supreme court, leaving it only when President Roosevelt elevated him to the United States supreme bench.

Few men have compiled so bright a record. And yet it is not the record alone that has endeared him to his countrymen. It is a thing harder to define, harder to grasp—a thing that is most easily summed up in the overworked word of everyday conversation as "personality." It is what he is, more than what he has done, that makes his final retirement such an unpleasant bit of news.

Heaven knows, Justice Holmes has earned a rest, and we cannot begrudge it to him. We can only regret that it finally became necessary for him to take it. In the quaint, old-fashioned phrase, "he has deserved well of the republic."

Paying Reparations

GERMANY'S blunt announcement that no more reparations can be paid may be the beginning of almost anything.

If that announcement had been made a year or more ago, there is little doubt that French troops would have been marching into the Rhineland inside of 48 hours. So far, nothing of that sort has happened—which may be an excellent omen for the continued peace of Europe.

Nevertheless, it is extremely probable that something big is about to develop. The treaty of Versailles, cumbersome since the day it was drafted, has grown rusty as well, and is creaking badly. It is not outside the bounds of possibility that this announcement about reparations may be the point from which ultimate revision of the whole treaty will date.

Prosperity and Mincemeat

GOOD news is not so plentiful these days that one can afford to overlook the fact that one of the country's largest producers of mincemeat, located in a small New Jersey town, has announced a pending increase in production to 350 tons a month—an increase which, it is said, merely reflects a greatly increased public demand.

If American citizens are eating more pie, it must be that things are a little bit better with them than was the case a short time ago. Surely, pie would not be more plentiful than ever in a land where business was getting worse instead of better.

Besides—it is always good to learn that the supply of anything like mince pie is increasing. Three hundred and fifty tons of mincemeat each month? That is none too much.

Texas Cotton and the Holding Movement

NOW it is said that nearly 50 per cent of the Texas 1931 cotton crop is held off the market by farmers and the holding movement by bankers. Furthermore that the crop has been practically gathered in all parts of the commonwealth except in the South Plains section. According to a San Angelo exchange from sheep, goats, wool, and mohair sold in 1931 the range country of West Central Texas is estimated to have received more than $15,000,000 even with prices at a very low level. Not so bad.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

JIM HOCKING—Jim Hocking, pathfinder of the Walkers' Club of America, and described as the "daddy" of America's competitive walkers, announced in 1905, when he was 50 years old, that he would walk on every succeeding birthday as many miles as he is old. He lived up to this promise until 1927 when he was hurt in an automobile accident shortly before his 72nd birthday.

Between these annual walks, the Grand Old Man of Walking participated in many competitive feats of pedestrianism, covering a total of 60,000 miles against time and competition. In March, 1921, at the age of 61 he walked from New York to Toronto, Canada, distance of 538 miles, in eight days and three hours.

CHAPTER LXI

In the deserted courtroom next door from which the afternoon reporters telephoned copy to their papers, Mikkleson and Osborne found Scotty doing a most indecorous dance indicative of extreme joy. It is not seemly for a stoutish gentleman who has been a police reporter for 20 years and wears a derby hat thus to conduct himself.

"Have you gone crazy?" said Osborne.

Scotty ignored him.

"He's been drinking kerosene again," said Mikkleson.

Scotty saluted him after an ancient and insulting custom.

"Listen, Scotty," said Osborne. "If you don't tell me what's the matter I will jolly well wade into you and you are too old and too fat to enjoy that."

"I don't see what you've got to dance about," said Mikkleson, puzzled. "That finishes your pal's chances. I told you they'd never dare put her on the stand. That's the end of them."

"Why, you poor fool," said Scotty, "you poor, blind, benighted little worm. That shows all you know about anything. The old man's got 'em on the giddy toasting fork. That was the break, you inglorious, misguided, unlettered, egregious moron, that was the break, the break, the break. Did you see the old man's face when he went out? Did you get that look in his old eagle eye? Mik, I am not a rich man, but I will bet you a week's salary we don't get worse than a hung jury."

"This man is made," said Osborne, shaking his head pityingly. "Too bad. I knew him well."

"I don't know what you're talking about and I don't think you do either," said Mikkleson, "but I'll take your bet. All I know is that the judge is getting too old to try big cases. He's letting Ashe get away with murder. Dolan's awful sore."

"And remember," said Scotty, "remember, if he's acquitted, 50 errors in the record don't do you any good. Can't appeal from an acquittal."

"All I know," said Mikkleson shortly, "is that they didn't put her on the stand and that was their only chance."

"Put her on the stand? What the hell for?" said Scotty jubilantly. "My boy, my boy, you don't understand these things. You don't know juries like I do."

Mikkleson stared at him and went on in to use the telephone.

Osborne smoked reflectively. "Do you think he planned that—scene for her?" he whispered.

"Planned? I don't know. Maybe. Maybe he just saw it and grabbed it. It didn't sound planned! But how he handled it! Can't tell about that old bird."

"And you really think—" Osborne's handsome eyebrows finished the question.

"Listen Osborne," said Scotty, "be reasonable. The jury knows she and Dwight Sutro were pals, don't they? They may not have had any prejudice that'd keep 'em out of the jury box, but they read the papers and every one of 'em knows there was gossip. Now the jury knows she wanted to tell something and Ace Wilfong wouldn't let her. Boy, that ain't law. That's drama. Did you see his face when he looked at the jury over her shoulder after she fainted? There isn't any actor in the country could have put that much expression into his face."

"But, Scotty, that isn't going to be enough. They've got one of the strongest cases against him I ever saw. His profession and his past career is against him. Everything's against him. You can't turn all that aside by one piece of drama."

"Maybe not. But you can sell more goods by one catch line than you can by a dictionary of facts and figures. All I say is, it was the break. And it went where it always goes, to Steve Ashe. I know how you've all been feeling. I know you've all been wishing the old man wasn't in there defending Ace. But I tell you something, Osborne, while Stephen Ashe is alive, it ain't safe to count him out. Wait for his argument!"

Osborne shook his head. "It'll have to be some argument," he said.

"Listen, Osborne. Do me a favor."

"Shoot."

"Go and take a look at Dolan's face."

Osborne did. The district attorney was eating spaghetti, which is no business for an Irishman, but even that could not have caused the deep frown that decorated his forehead. Certainly, Osborne admitted to himself, the district attorney did not look happy.

The moment for Stephen Ashe's argument had come. The courtroom waited breathless, it lay in that silence like the dry earth praying for a storm. Woman ate off their lip rouge and took out their mirrors and put it back on again. The wind made eerie noises against the window panes, the kind of noises that make children sob at ghost stories.

The fate of Ace Wilfong hung in its last balance, his last forlorn hope fluttered its tattered glory bravely, and the odds—as who should know better than the king of the gamblers?—the odds were against him. If he had been asked for odds, he might have put them as high as 10 to one against him.

"It's gotta be now," said Scotty in the press box to nobody in particular. "It has got to be now."

And he looked at Ace. But Ace's face was serene and untroubled.

Ace's face was serene and untroubled. He looked almost happy, as though the greatest suspense was over.

He looked almost happy, as though for him the greatest suspense was over. And perhaps it was, since there have been a few men who held life cheaply as compared to the honor or the happiness of a woman.

But Jan Wilfong, beside him, was a woman in a dream. She dared not move or look or speak. Her sharp little teeth were bolted through her lower lip to hold it in place.

Scotty looked at the jury, those 10 men and two women. Twelve votes for the life or death of his friend. Their faces were stolid; they were bracing themselves already against Stephen Ashe.

Stephen Ashe got up from the counsel's table. He walked very slowly around and stood before the jury box. His head was down. He knew as well as Scotty that it must be now. Of course he knew! The lines about his mouth were carved so deep you could put your finger into them. But his eyes were like stars; they were beautiful beyond words in his worn, white face. He made one gesture. He opened his arms. Oh, it was a great gesture, that, a grave one, and yet how terrified and bewildered and helpless! With it he shut out everything but himself and the jury; he shut them in together in a warm, deep intimacy, man to man.

How he did it, the jury did not know. But he was keen-edged, eager as a race horse at the barrier. The old Stephen Ashe? Beyond and beyond that. For can a man be greater than when he is being crucified?

And then began that plea whose like had never been heard before in those parts and will not soon be heard again—that miracle of a plea, that laid human souls naked, that stood alone as a fallen archangel against fact and sworn testimony and stern representatives of the state and powers even greater than the state.

The Record News Offers A Booklet on the Use Of Words

This is a concise guide to correct speech and writing in English, treating of words frequently mispronounced, misspelled, or misused by the average person. Because slips of the tongue are more numerous than slips of the pen, especial care should be taken to avoid them. When one speaks, one should speak clearly and naturally. Slovenliness in speech is a badge of vulgarity that can be removed only by eternal vigilance. Similarly, misspelling words reflects upon one who is guilty of it.

Poor Circulation of Blood

Many people suffer from poor circulation throughout the year but do not notice until the winter months—when the coldness and numbness of the hands and feet becomes especially uncomfortable. In some cases the trouble may be so serious that the natural pink color of the hands and feet becomes lost as the skin turns to tints of red, blue, or spotted mixtures.

A poor circulation cannot be considered a disease but must be regarded as a symptom which accompanies some impairment of the circulation of the blood and may be due to a number of things, such as the loss of vitality, lack of exercise, or some form of heart trouble. Also the prolapsus of abdominal organs or an abdominal tumor may cause a pressure upon the blood vessels which produces a stubborn coldness of the feet due to a blocking of the circulation. Poor circulation may also accompany other troubles, such as digestion, neurasthenia, constipation, hardening of the arteries, varicose veins, and diseases of the nervous system.

A poor circulation of blood may have a number of different effects upon the body; for example, those who are overweight will find that their obesity is caused to a large extent by a sluggish circulation and layers of fat tend to accumulate wherever the circulation is the most defective; baldness is an indication of poor circulation to the roots of the hair; fainting may be due to the lack of circulation of the blood to the brain; a pale skin is usually a sign of poor circulation to the skin of the face.

Those who do work at desks and do very little walking will always have poor circulations if vigorous exercise is not taken at some time during the day. You cannot expect a sluggish circulation to improve if you sit around and wait for it to do so.

The mental state has much influence upon the circulation. One who is happy will find the heart beating well and strong, the blood circulating well through the body, and the cheeks with a good color, while one who is worried and nervous will have a pale skin, cold hands and other signs that the blood is not flowing rapidly through the body.

The object of the blood circulating freely is to feed, oxygenate, and cleanse the living sells. Every cell of the body needs to have food and oxygen carried to it and wastes carried away quickly. This is done by an extensive system of transportation consisting of arteries, arterioles, capillaries, veip and lymphatics. While the blood circulation is shunted along by the beating of the heart and the contraction of the arterial walls, the venous and lymphs circulations are aided a great deal by muscular exercises and deep breathing. In fact the muscles of the body are almost as necessary to the circulation as the heart.

The amount of blood in any one part is not always the same but changes with the amount of work the part is doing. During walking, for example, larger amounts of blood are sent to the legs and the circulation through them is quickened, leaving them warm. Those who have a poor circulation may think that it is the fault of the hands and feet, but this is not true. Such symptoms are indications that the circulation is poor all over the body and the millions of body cells in other parts besides the hands and feet are being improperly fed and cleansed. One with a poor circulation should consider that his life depends upon the activities of these microscopic cells, hence he should not delay in correcting defective circulation.

Tomorrow—Improving the circulation.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rapid Growth Does Not Cause TB

Question—R. F. writes: "I am only 14 years old, but am 6 feet tall and very thin, weighing only 42 pounds. I have been told that there is a danger of getting tuberculosis. I feel all right but sometimes get worried about it."

Answer—Simply because you are unusually tall for your age does not indicate that you are in any special danger of getting tuberculosis. Your weight is not too low, considering your age, and the rapid growth you have made. Simply follow a regimen of good habits, correct diet, and use plenty of exercise and pay no attention to suggestions that you may be unhealthy simply because you are tall.

Losing Use of Muscles

Question—Mrs. J. Writes: "My husband, 56 years of age, is losing the use of the muscles of his arms and hands. It started in his right arm but seems to be spreading on both sides. Where the muscles are the weakest, they are also becoming thinner. What is causing this and what would you advise?"

Answer—There may be several different disorders which could cause the symptoms that are troubling your husband. It sounds as though he had some form of paralysis. I do not diagnose disease by mail, but, if your husband will have an examination and send me the doctor's report of his condition, I will be glad to send him my advice.

Soups Not Necessary After Fast

Question—Mrs. Etta D. writes: "I have been on a fruit juice fast for five days and want to know how I should break it. Should I use soups or gruels?"

Answer—Although many authorities on fasting have recommended using soups for the first few hours after a fast, my experience has shown that this is unnecessary with a short fast if the right combinations of food are used.

POLITICS STIR IN MONTAGUE

Election Year Promises Close Contests

By W. J. STEPHENS
Record News Correspondent
Special to The Record News.

SUNSET, Texas, Jan. 17.—The 1932 political race is on in Montague county. It is starting with unusually good interest and promises to become more interesting toward election day. In fact, present indications point to the closest contested campaign within the past several years.

The greater number who have entered the race are of such equal character and official qualifications as to cause present predictions of final results to be as uncertain as any other hazardous guess.

Some of the present office holders have already announced for re-election. Some of the candidates held office during former terms, while others have never asked for election to a county nor precinct office before this year. Altogether, the race for county and precinct offices will likely include the largest number of candidates that the Montague county citizens have had a chance to vote for within a long while.

Among those asking for re-election is Paul Finn of Sunset, present representative of Montague county in the Texas legislature. Mr. Finn believes that his experience in the office has enabled him to render much better service in the future than he could in the past, and desires to represent the citizens of this county during one more term. During his tenure of office he has served as chairman of some very important committees, such as the committee on banks and banking, state poet Laureate committee and others.

The Rambler's Corner

Athletics and Music

At this writing the Rambler is stretching and yawning, trying to recover from the slumberous effects of a rather weak Haydn symphony, played on the regular Sunday symphonic hour by the New York Philharmonic orchestra, and spread throughout the length and breadth of the land by the radio.

Perhaps it was all for the best that the Haydn symphony was dull and uninteresting. Had the orchestra played a stirring Beethoven symphony the Rambler would not have dozen and reflected, and hence would not have had the beginnings of his Monday morning column, which, if you must know, is the hardest one of the week to bat out.

Well, while trying to keep from snoring through the aforesaid Haydn groan the Rambler got to thinking of various athletic men he knows who have had some experience either in or with music; and the case of W. E. Metzenthin, chairman of the athletic council of the University of Texas, bobbed to mind.

You perhaps are well aware that music and athletics do not mix. It's like throwing a cat in a cage with five bulldogs. Speaking, of course, from the viewpoint of the public. Many and many coaches and players I know are very cultured musically, but they are very careful to let their athletic public know nothing about it. And the same applies to learning of any branch. The fans do not feel comfortable if they know their coach has a wad of degrees, and is a very learned fellow, indeed. They want their coaches to be of the regular army top sergeant type; cold fellows and hard, with a look that can freeze you in a minute, and they don't give a whoop whether he knows Aristotle from pork and beans. In fact they seem to respect him more if he doesn't know Aristotle from pork and beans.

But it is against music that the athletic public seems most prejudiced, and now we get back to the case of Mr. Metzenthin. Mr. Metzenthin spent his college days at Harvard. He was a football player and a good one. He was a quarterback along in the distant days of 1904, or thereabouts, and can tell you some tall tales of thrilling games.

He was an excellent student, and music was included in his studies. He played the piano, and even the pipe organ.

His college days over he looked around for a coaching job. Tulane then needed a good man, and sought Metzenthin's services. Metzenthin was highly recommended to the Tulane powers. His record showed that he was a very scholarly man. Well, Tulane didn't think so much of that. They read further and found that the applicant was a very capable musician—and that ended Metzenthin's chances of being their coach. They could have swallowed his learning all right, but the fact he was a musician immediately barred him from the job.

Why such conditions exist I cannot tell. I know many men, some of them even in this city and nearby cities, who are connected with athletics and who yet study music and whose knowledge includes some weighty matters, even ranging up or down, as the case may be, to china painting. For instance—

But I forbear. Should I reveal their identity my friends might lose their jobs.

High School Golf

A group of youths in the Wichita Falls High school, so I hear, are very interested in forming a high school golf team. Prominent in the group are J. G. Dixon and Rufus King, the trapshoot wizard. Some of their friends in San Antonio, the Alamo city, write that they have formed a team, and would like to play a Wichita Falls team some time this spring or summer. A local golf team should not be hard to muster, as there are a number of good players among the students.

About Eliasville

The Eliasville High school basket ball team, defending champions of Young county, have an excellent chance to repeat this year, according to L. G. Cook, Young county school superintendent. Mr. Cook writes of the Eliasville group as follows:

"The Eliasville high basket ball team, featuring Capt. Robert Glover lanky 6 foot 7 inch center, promises to throw another wrench into the machinery of some of the ambitious ball teams in Young county and the adjoining territory. Captain Glover is the tallest basket ball man in Young county and usually gets the tipoff at center. He is tall enough that he has a chance to shoot over the little men. The other players on the Eliasville team are not as tall as Glover but they are a good basket ball team and work together.

"The Eliasville team defeated the touted Olney Cubs for the championship last year and they promise to give them or any other team a battle before giving up in defeat this year. With all men working in good order they rate an equal with the Cubs. Coach H. Williams, who is a three-year basket ball man from Southwestern, has his team working nicely. They have lost only two games this year; one to Cisco, 26 to 20, and one to Abilene, 26 to 24.

"The Eliasville squad is made up of the following players: Captain R. Glover, center; Braddy, guard; Davis, guard; Dunnam, forward; Donnell, forward; Akers, forward; M. Glover, Greenstreet, G. Davis, and Warden, reserves.

CALIFORNIAN WINS $5,000

Newcomer Bests Veterans With Steady Game

By WILLIAM WARNE

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 17. (AP)—Fred Morrison, Culver City, Calif., won the world's richest golfing stake today, the $15,000 Agua Caliente open, by playing the final 18 holes in 73, one over par, for a 72-hole grand total of 284.

The $5,000 the good-natured professional's victory brought him marked his initial appearance in big money tournament play.

Rain or shine, Morrison who is 31 years old, was on top of his game during the four day's play. He shot a 69 in the rain and mud Wednesday to lead the field by one stroke, took a 74 the next day for a fourth place tie, and after rain forced a one-day layoff, he came back yesterday with a 68, to take the lead again.

Sarazen Comes Second

Two strokes behind Morrison, came Gene Sarazen, New York, who won the first Agua Caliente open in 1930, then worth $25,000, to take second place money, $2,500. Sarazen's final round was played in 72, even par, which with his previous cards of 70-72-72 gave him 286 strokes.

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Calif., a descendant of the California dons, finished with a par breaking 71 for the final round to take third place in the tournament and $1,500 of the prize money. He had 72-73-70 on the previous rounds, for a total of 287.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Chicago, after being in second place at the end of the third round, faltered on the final nine to take a 76 today, which added to his previous cards of 72-71-70 gave him a total of 289 and set him down in fourth place, with $900.

New Tourney Record

But even Cooper's 289, although it was five strokes above Morrison's would have been good enough to win either one of the previous tournaments here. Last year, George Von Elm, Los Angeles and Johnny Golden, Stamford, Conn., tied for first place with 293s. Von Elm had a 72-hole total of 294 this year, which placed him in a tie for eighth place and netted him only $260. Golden's final score was 297, which brought him $100 for a 14th place tie.

Tied for fifth place with totals of 290 were Charley Guest, the Deal, N. J., beau brummel, and Willie Goggin, San Francisco, which gave them $700 each.

Leo Diegel, the home pro who burned up the course on the first two rounds and blew up yesterday, finished today with a 76 for a total of 292 and seventh place. His earlier cards were 70-68-78, and his money, $500.

Paul Runyon, 23-year-old professional of White Plains, N. Y., and Willie Hunter, the veteran from Portland, Ore., tied with 294s in the eighth spot. Runyon's 76-68-72-76 at least gave him the honor of leading the youngsters in the play. His second round, made in four under par, placed his name with those of Diegel and Morrison as co-holders of the course record. Hunter's cards were 73-73-72-75.

Leads Aamteurs

To Fay Coleman, Culver City, Calif., went the honor of leading the amateurs in the tournament. He finished with a 73, which added to his previous cards of 75-76-72, gave him a total of 296, the 17th best score made. His nearest competitor was Joe Hunter, Pasadena, who finished with 298, and Johnny Dawson, Chicago, was the third ranking simon pure, with an even 300.

The prize winners and scores included:

Ben Hogan, Fort Worth, 73-75-74—295, $200.

Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, 75-76-76-72—299, $50.

Final round scores included:

Dick Metz, San Aneglo, Texas, 224-78—302.

Clarence Hubby, Waco, Texas, 232-75—307.

Jack Grout, Dallas, 232-77—309.

Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Texas, 232-89—312.

WINNER TELLS HOW HE DID IT

By FRED MORRISON

(Written for The Associated Press)

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 17.—When I placed my drive three feet from the pin on the 11th hole of the final round in the third annual Agua Caliente open golf tournament today I knew the $5,000 first prize money was mine.

It was shaky business starting out on the final round by taking a five on the tenth and I began to wonder if it would ever be my fortune to win a major championship, but I knew it was in the bag after that.

Playing better than I had ever played before, I took a 69 to start out, leading the field, which any player will tell you isn't a good spot. But I wasn't downcast after shooting 74 the second day to slip down to fourth, because I knew if I had been able to have saved myself from three-putting two greens I would have had a par round, which no player can kick about.

Yesterday I took more time with the putts, playing all of the long ones safe, and I think that was the answer to my round of 68 which equalled the course record. It was the three-putting of the first hole Thursday which caused me to slump that round, but of course the pressure of being the leader made me nervous and had a lot to do with it.

It is my privilege to have a greater cruising gait than a lot of players because of the tremendous carry I get with my woods. I have improved a great deal during the last year with my putting and my short game. I never went for the long putts all the final round, but played the ball up close for a sure two on the greens.

The excellent, but tricky greens and the fact that we could improve our lies on the fairways was responsible for the low scoring. We also got excellent support from the gallery on the greens.

The spot today was a real test, Gene Sarazen who is always a threat and Olin Dutra were playing with me and I knew that if I cracked either or both might jump into the lead. Gene plays such a fast game that a lot of the boys thought I might rush my shots too much and press a little, throwing me off stride, but I made up my mind to take my own time.

Gene, who likes to rib, kidded me a bit about this during the morning round, all in good fun, of course, but I think he was too busy worrying about the thousands he might lose with one misplay because he didn't have much to say on the last nine.

If I can continue on my game as I am playing now I hope to make the eastern tournament next summer and possibly take in the British open.

Six Games On Southwest Conference Card This Week

DAZZY VANCE IS HOLDOUT

Lyn Lary of Yanks Also Rejects Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (UP)—With eight holdouts already listed among players of the three major league baseball clubs in the New York area, more are expected in the next few days as players in distant parts of the country have time to mull over salary slashes.

Latest additions to the holdout squad were Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, speedball pitcher, who announced he would return his 1932 contract unsigned to the Brooklyn Robins, and Lyn Lary, Yankee shortstop, who sent his contract back unsigned.

Frank Hogan, the colossus of Somerville, Mass., is a semi-holdout, or "negotiator," as they are termed this season. Frank announced he will bring his contract to the Giants' offices early this week to argue about it.

Vance told the United Press at Homosassa, Fla., that there would "have to be some dickering about terms before I sign." He declined to reveal the salary given him, but the cut was understood to be about 40 per cent. Last year his salary was $22,500, the highest received by a national league pitcher.

Lary, who has been in New York all winter, explained he had driven in 107 runs last season and had a pretty good year. Consequently, he felt he did not deserve the cut the Yankees were asking him to take.

Other members of the holdout squad are Bill Terry, Fred Fitzsimmons and Fred Leach of the Giants; Babe Ruth of the Yankees, and Babe Herman of the Robins.

Central Texas League Formed

AUSTIN, Jan. 17. (AP)—Austin and Central Texas baseball men, in a meeting here today, organized the Central Texas Baseball league, electing Marvin C. Turner, of Austin, president pro tem.

A committee was appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws which will be patterned somewhat after those of the Hill country league.

The newly formed league will include teams from Austin, Camp Mabry and Taylor. Elgin is expected to join in the near future, while San Marcos and Lulling are considered prospective members, Turner said.

Rice Track and Field Men Start Training

HOUSTON, Jan. 17. (AP)—The Rice institute track and field men, defending champions in the Southwest conference have begun training for the coming season, confident they will repeat in the matter of the title.

Their veteran coach, Ernie Hjertberg, will send them into stiffer workouts as they gradually begin to round into condition.

Hjertberg, never an easy taskmaster, is bearing down particularly on Percy Burk, conference shotput champion. The old mentor fears for Burk the threat of Howard Sprague of Southern Methodist at Dallas. Burk nosed out Sprague in an upset in last year's conference meet, but the Mustang star is reported to have been able to add a few inches to his throw since that time.

The conference meet will be held here on May 13 and 14, but a number of prior meets perhaps will rather well demonstrate the prospective winner for the season.

Bandit Knocks Himself Out by Hitting Door

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17. (US)—John Nelson, 39, self-termed "globe trotter," today was in prison here, after what police called the "worst bungler" robbery attempt on record.

Walking into the Security First National bank through the janitor's door, Nelson demanded that a clerk working overtime hand him $5,000. The employe was reaching for the money when Nelson became so excited he started to run.

He banged his head into a door, knocking himself out completely. When police arrived, he was still unconscious and had to be carried to the patrol wagon.

Schmeling After Dempsey's 'Gag' Crown

German Champ Slips Promoter 'Works' Before Camera

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Once it was Jack Dempsey, the rough and tumble, good natured, practical joking champion of the heavyweights. Now the champion is Max Schmeling, and he seems to want all the extraterritorial laurels of the old mauler of Manassa as well as the title.

It has gotten so now that life among fighters is just one series of hazards after another, anyway. And to make it worse Schmeling imports his mechanical contrivances for purposes of upsetting dignity and creating turmoil.

His latest return to New York found him happy as a colt let out to fresh pasture, eager to pick up the friendships, and the golden trail he abandoned in July to hurry back to Germany after knocking out Young Stribling in Cleveland.

He showed his pleasure at being back, ready to tackle Mickey Walker in Miami Feb. 25 and Jack Dempsey either in the spring or fall, in various ways.

To Jimmy From Max

Right on the top deck of the liner Europa, for instance, dapper Jimmy Johnston, spats, derby, cane and all, was led to the sound cameras and flashlight batteries for a word of welcome.

Jimmy, promoting Schmeling's next two fights for Madison Square garden, walked in with his chin out, his guard down, and his right hand extended.

The grinning German promptly gave him the "business."

As the cameras ground, the lights played, and all was excitement and tension anyway. Schmeling officially shook the hand of the mighty promoter.

Shortly before the above photo showing Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, being welcomed in New York by his manager, Joe Jacobs (left), and Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square garden impresario, was taken, Der Maxie broke out in a rash of practical joking that hasn't ended yet. His first act was to make the dapper Jimmy almost jump from his spats with a trick handshaking gadget.

In the fighter's hand was secreted a mechanical contrivance, all wound up and set to go off with the whir of a partridge coming out of the brush, the moment it was touched.

"Whango" went the "business" and Johnston, spats, cane, derby and all, nearly left the top deck of the Europa for a cooling refuge in the bay.

Toting an elephant gun, first of the equipment gathered for an African hunting trip next year, a curly haired dachshuhd named "Pete," and more surprises, Schmeling trotted uptown to visit the offices of his manager.

As soon as the first greetings were over, Max toyed with a new fountain pen he had brought along.

Bill McCarney, one of boxing's landmarks, a smooth, witty veteran of many a practical joke himself, turned his head for a moment, Max shoved his hand, still holding the pen, under McCarney's chair, pulled some kind of a trigger, and the pen turned into a pistol loaded with a blank cartridge.

A 'Mortar' Goes Off

McCarney, who had been around more serious explosions that were not in fun, let out one frantic bellow and started ceilingwards. In order to reassure him they had to throw water under Bill's desk.

Dempsey, at the height of his game, was even more playful but he usually expressed his exuberance with left hooks, head locks, and rough and tumble stuff that left his pals in various states of disrepair.

But he too was an addict of rubber frankfurters, matches that wouldn't light, and golf balls that wouldn't putt.

19 TEAMS IN MUNDAY MEET

Basket Ball Tournament Opens Thursday

Special to The Record News.

MUNDAY, Texas, Jan. 17.—With 19 teams definitely entered, preparations had been virtually completed Sunday for the second annual basket ball tournament sponsored by the Munday High school which will open Thursday night and continue through Saturday.

The entry list was closed today. Schools in addition to Munday that will participate include Rule, Benjamin, Seymour, Knox City, Tanner Point, Hamlin, O'Brien, Goree, Lone Star, Throckmorton, Allendale, Sunset, Roby, Vera, Woodson, Bomarton, Rochester, Moran, and Truscott.

Other teams in this section desired to enter the tournament, expected to be one of the largest in West Texas, but their petitions had to be refused owing to the large number of teams entered, according to H. H. Riley, scheel superintendent.

It was originally planned to open the tournament Friday, but the long list of entries will force an early start Thursday evening, officials said. Trophies will be awarded first, second and third place winners, and to winners of the consolations.

'Frankenstein' of Ring Shows World Of Fury and Color; May Succeed Firpo

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1932 by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Mid the most palatial surroundings in which the manly art has ever been perpetrated in these parts, your correspondent the other night viewed a series of brisk shindigs, one of which disclosed a potential successor to old Senor Luis Angel Firpo, the celebrated wild bull of the Pampas.

This potential successor is even wilder and more of a bull than that strange character from the Argentine who was so aptly titled by the immortal Tad, "Dead Pan Looey." I always thought Firpo one of the greatest figures produced by the boxing game in many years.

The new Argentino's name is Vincent Parrile. The galleryites immediately tagged him "Frankenstein" as he thundered across the ring, his mouth agape in what semed to be a sinister snarl, but which turned out to be merely the weird effect produced by a mouthpiece that he had made in the Argentine.

He hammered a young man named Art Rodenback to the canvass with a strange assortment of punches. He smacked him down once with a belt in the small of the back. He knocked him over again with a blow behind the head, then "Frankenstein" flattened Arthur for another count with a left hand rip to the stomach.

He slugged his man everywhere. He pushed referee Gunboat Smith out of the way when he thought the gunner was cramping his style. He punched after the bell. I never saw a guy on such a punching spree. He seemed mighty green in spots, but "Frankenstein" had one grand idea, and that was to keep punching, and to punch for the body.

But unlike Firpo, Parrile seems to have two good hands, and is at his best fighting inside, Firpo had an upright, stately stance. Parrile bobs a lot to get inside, and once inside he keeps blasting. However, he will have to learn something about defense, or he will be a mark for an uppercutter.

It is the fire and fury of his attack that impressed me. He got mad when he was hit. For a 210 pounder he struck me as extremely fast on his feet. He took some good wallops on the chin and kept steaming. He doesn't seem to be the deadly one-punch finisher that Firpo was, but more of the steady battering type like Dempsey, piling one punch on top of another, until the cumulative effect bogs 'em down.

He probably isn't ready for the best competition as yet, and even against ordinary competition may suffer the fate of a lot of young fighters I have boosted. But he strikes me as a guy who has what it takes—fighting fury, and a world of color.

CITIES LOSE FIRE RATING

Losses Increase in Memphis And Quanah

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Jan. 17.—A report compiled this week by Fire Chief M. G. Ray reveals the fact that Memphis is likely to lose a part of its good fire rating. The net fire loss during the year 1931 amounted to $38,036.15, a considerable larger sum than the $26,665.97 loss during 1930, he stated. During 1931, 29 fire alarms were answered, 27 being inside the city limits and two outside, one at Giles and one at Estelline. This is a decrease over the 40 answered in 1930.

Memphis received the benefit of a 12 per cent good fire rating credit on the insurance rate during 1931 as compared with 15 per cent in 1930. This saving was approximately $10,000. A fire loss of approximately $35,000 per year is all that is permitted in order to carry the good rating credit.

The new rate for Memphis, if there is to be one, will be made known in March for the state fire insurance commission, Chief Ray stated, pointing out the fact that the fire loss this year is beyond the good rating credit.

The fire loss in Memphis for 1932 is already approximately $3,500, Chief Ray stated.

QUANAH LOSS IS $42,954.94

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Jan. 17.—Quanah's fire loss during 1931 totals $42,954.94, the number of fires being equally divided in each six months' period. Thirteen fires the first six months brought a loss of $21,191.35, and during the last six months the 13 fires totaled $31,763.38 in losses.

Quanah had earned a previous reduction of three cents in fire insurance rates, but this reduction has been lost, and it is probable a further increase in the key rate will be put on the town.

The several fires already occuring in 1932 indicate this year will surpass 1931 in losses.

The large majority of the fires have occurred in the night, and quite a few were outside the water protection area.

PETROLLE AND RAN TO FIGHT

Welterweights Collide at New York Friday

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. (AP)—Two of the hardest punchers among the welterweights, Billy Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., and Eddie Ran of Poland, collide in the feature match of this week's national fistic card.

They will fight 10 rounds or less in Madison Square garden Friday night with Petrolle the heavy favorite chiefly on the score of his long experience.

But experience failed to save Tommy Loughran against Steve Hamas last week and Petrolle will have to watch out for the dynamite in the young Pole's fists. Ran, in his last two starts, gave Franta Nekolny a terrific trouncing and knocked out Jimmy McNamara. Petrolle, who seems to improve with age, knocked out Billy Townsend in his last garden appearance.

At Philadelphia tomorrow night, Tony Canzoneri, double title-holder, will defend the lesser of his two crowns, the junior welterweight championship, against Johnny Jadick, Philadelphia. The bout is at 10 rounds and Canzoneri's lightweight championship will not be at stake.

Racers Hurt in Automobile Crash

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17. (US)—Ernie Triplett and Charles Gleston, automobile race drivers, were seriously injured in a crash on Ascot speedway this afternoon, when three cars tangled on a turn during the main event.

Triplett, leading in the 40-lap feature, skidded at the end of the first lap. "Howdy" Wilcox, close behind, went over the rail in trying to avoid Triplett's car. He was not hurt.

Gleston, who came next, crashed into Triplett's machine, smashing it against the rail. He was seriously injured when his car turned over.

Long Distance Call Saves Woman's Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. (AP)—A long distance call from Buffalo, N. Y. saved a woman from suicide today.

At 4:15 police headquarters received a call that "my sister Elsie Cook, 326 West Forty-seventh street, is in trouble."

A patrolman went at once to the address, and gained entrance by breaking glass in the door. Through gas fumes he made his way to the kitchen, where he found Elsie Cook, 26, a nurse, unconscious on the floor.

She was revived after half an hour's work by a respirator crew, but refused to say why she had attempted to take her life. Police said she probably had notified relatives in Buffalo of her intention, and they had called New York.

PONIES MEET RICE TONIGHT

Champion Frogs in Form as Race Gets Hot

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 17.—The Texas Christian champions have returned to form in the nick of time because the 1932 Southwest conference basket ball campaign offers a heavy program this week.

Scheduled to battle the up and going Texas Longhorns Wednesday night at Austin, the Texas Christian basketeers sounded their warning in the nature of a 47 to 22 victory last night over Rice. With the 1931 champions in form, the conference race is ready to settle down to the business of determining who is who for 1932.

Program Opens Tonight

Trimmed in their only conference game this season by Texas, the Southern Methodist Mustangs will attempt to balance their won and lost column tomorrow night at Dallas against Rice. This will be the first of this week's six-game program. The complete schedule:

Monday at Dallas—S. M. U. vs. Rice.

Wednesday at Austin—T. C. U. vs. Texas.

Friday at Fayetteville—S. M. U. vs. Arkansas.

Saturday at Fayetteville—S. M. U. vs. Arkansas.

Saturday at College Station—Baylor vs. Texas A. & M.

Saturday at Houston—Texas vs. Rice.

Rice's defeat by Texas Christian smashed the two-way tie for first place between Rice and Baylor. Having trimmed Texas Christian in a conference opener, Baylor is favored to take Texas A. & M. but may get an unexpected strong game from the Aggies.

Steers Real Contenders

The Texas Christian and Texas game is a natural. Texas split a two-game series with Arkansas and stopped Southern Methodist. The Longhorns were not expected to reveal so much scoring power this season. They have established themselves now as a real contender for the crown.

Southern Methodist failed to produce against Texas and critics have ranked the Mustangs as probable losers in their three games this week against Rice and Arkansas.

Predicting probable winners this week is a pleasant job to pass along to some one who likes that kind of business. Just to help out here's the conference results to date:

Arkansas, 24-25; Texas 21-27.

Baylor 32, Texas Christian 24.

Rice 40, Texas A. & M. 29.

Texas Christian 47, Rice 22.

Texas 35, Southern Methodist 29.

Dietzel Stars

The feature of last week's competition was the playing of Adolph Dietzel, Texas Christian center, who scored 24 points against Rice. It was within two points of his conference record of 26 points in one game.

The conference standing:

Team—	W.	L.	Pct	Pts	Op
Baylor	1	0	1.000	32	24
Texas	2	1	.667	53	78
Texas Christian	1	1	.500	71	54

Rice	1	1	.500	62	74
Texas A. & M.	0	1	.000	29	40
Southern Methodist	0	1	.000	29	35

"George, we've got to face the truth. There's nothing wrong with the customers. We're to blame. Ever since we cut down on our Classified Advertising, you know, the LITTLE Ad that we were running under the "BUSINESS SERVICE" Classification in the Daily Times-Record News, we've been cutting down on our number of customers. They're going over there, George, where they're invited every day."

Yes, customers are busy everywhere looking for some "BUSINESS SERVICE" which MUST BE dependable and reliable.

DANIEL TALKS ON PROHIBITION

Speaker Reviews Pledges to Aid Dry Cause

Pledges of support to the national prohibition laws registered in 1931 by various organizations in this country were reviewed by Roy J. Daniel before members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

"The hope of the future rests in the ability of Christian people to unite their efforts in defense of civilization's progress, and to translate the principles of Jesus into the practical problems of public and private life," said the speaker.

The address in part was as follows:

"Saturday was the 12th anniversary of the 18th amendment to our federal constitution. One of the U. S. senators from Texas, Hon. Morris Sheppard, is the author of the prohibition amendment, and since that fact is true I deem it apropos to include in my remarks to you a few on the subject of national prohibition. For the past 12 years there has been a steady decrease in the amount of liquor consumed by the American people. During the recent Christmas holidays fewer drunks were arrested than ever before in our history. There is no doubt but that Americans drink less per capita than any other nation on earth.

"Let me give you a few happenings during 1931 that put heart, if any was needed, into the dry cause. During 1930-31 44 state legislatures met. And in those 44 state legislatures wet legislation was introduced to impede, repeal, or modify prohibition enforcement. But in every such state legislature where introduced the legislation was defeated.

Al Capone Falls

"For years the big bootlegger 'shot' of Chicago was Al Capone—'Scarface Al.' Now Al got to be a big man in a financial way—wore silk underwear, wore tailored clothes, bought a swell winter home in the land of the Everglades, worked hand-in-glove with the political bosses of Chicago and Illinois. But during 1931 the federal government demonstrated that Uncle Sam is bigger than the biggest bootlegger even if the only way to get 'Scarface Al' was a sentence hung onto him for evasion and lying in his income tax return to the federal government.

"Judge Clark, a federal judge in New Jersey, handed down a decision that the 18th amendment was unconstitutional, and therefore the amendment, the Volstead law, the Jones five and ten, and all related laws were null and void. An appeal to the supreme court of the United States reversed Judge Clark, and that august dignitary was taught a lesson in constitutional law.

"For some time the wets in the United States have waged a very aggressive and effective campaign with money and every means in their power to bring about some modification in the Volstead law. And in connection with their program and campaign Augustus Busch, who used to be a wealthy brewer and is still wealthy but no longer a lawful brewer, has been exposed as the gunner behind the guns of the wets.

"During 1931 the president received many and all kinds of delegations at the White House. Almost every day you saw in the daily papers pictures of the president standing with some group or delegation as they try to smile and have their pictures taken. One such delegation that was received personally by President Hoover was a delegation from the Women's Christian Temperance union, which handed the president a list containing a million names of Americans between 14 and 30 years of age who pledged total abstinence and law observance.

"The women of our country who are against prohibition have organized the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. That organization has a large wet slush fund. During 1931 it became known that that wet organization offered one woman a quarter of a million dollars to work at undermining the constitution in a single southern state. In the United States there is a General Federation of Women's clubs and that federation numbers twelve million members. During 1931 the Federation of Women's clubs through its national executive committee re-affirmed its support of the 18th amendment.

Farmers Dry

"A million farmers in 34 states comprise the National Grange, and during 1931 for the 11th time it expressed its support of prohibition and repudiated the claim that real sure enough beer would relieve farm distress. The parents and teachers of the United States have an organization called the parent-teacher organization. It has a large membership. At its 1931 national convention that association affirmed again its whole-hearted support of prohibition.

"The National Education association is made up of more than 200,000 school teachers—mostly school superintendents and school executives. At its last meeting a wet school-man from New Jersey was almost howled down as he sought to introduce a resolution condemning prohibition. The national association re-affirmed its active support of prohibition and made plans to continue with its educational program. The women of our country and public education were the two most active agents in securing the 18th amendment from the very beginning of the fight.

"You may be interested to know that during 1931 fifteen thousand mass meetings were planned and held by 31 national organizations supporting and defending the 18th amendment. You have read and heard many wise-cracks and jokes the past year about the president's commission on law observance and law enforcement. But the official report shows that that able commission with but one dissenting vote declared for maintenance and enforcement of the 18th amendment.

"Let us bear in mind that the year 1932 has come in with indications that it is going to be one of the most decisive periods in history. Let us realize that the forces of reaction and selfishness are lining up as at no previous time. Let us remember that the hope of the future rests in the ability of the Christian people to unite their efforts in defense of civilization's progress and to translate into the practical problems of public and private life the principles of Jesus Christ.

"And in our lesson this morning we have brought to our attention one of the great principles of Christ. 'Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.' Nicodemus was a Pharisee and one of the Jewish rulers. He was a popular public leader. So one night he went to see Jesus, and said, 'We know you are a teacher come from God because no man can do the miracles you do unless God be with him.' Jesus replied that except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus did not understand how a man could be born again and said so. Jesus explained to Nicodemus that He meant a spiritual birth—a birth of the spirit—not a physical birth, not a birth of the flesh. A man born of water means that a man undergoes baptism as an outward sign of the spiritual change inside for the better and nobler way of living. Jesus told Nicodemus not to marvel about being born again, and explained that where the wind pleased it blew, and that although he could not tell where it had come from nor where it was going. So with a man reborn in the spirit—you can see the change for the better in the man due to God's spirit of love but you can't tell where the spirit came from nor where it is going because it is invisible.

"Nicodemus said, 'Still I do not understand.' Jesus replied: 'Are you a great teacher in Israel and yet you do not know that a man must be reborn in the spirit? Let me tell you that we Christians speak that which we know, we testify that which we have seen. Yet you do not receive us nor believe us. I tell you about earthly things and you do not believe. Now if I tell you about heavenly things how will you and how can you believe?' Jesus said further: 'No man has ascended up to heaven, but I the Son of Man have come down from heaven. You recall that Moses in the wilderness raised up a serpent and all who turned their eyes toward it were saved. Likewise, I am going to be raised up on a Cross, and whosoever wants to be saved must look toward Me on that cross and believe in Me.'

"It is the natural desire of man to live forever. The pharaohs of of Egypt built the pyramids so that their names and deeds might live until the end of time. The Roman emperors constructed their triumphal arches and magnificent tombs in the effort to be remembered after death. Napoleon at the heighth of his greatness feared his glorious deeds would fill only a meager page of world history. If we want to live forever, both in this world and the next let us remember, and so conduct ourselves obediently to God as we remember:

"'God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' So mote it be."

Knob Knockers Fail To Conquer Safe Here

Knob knockers were unsuccessful in an attempt to open the safe of the G. R. Kinney Shoe company, 822 Indiana avenue, Saturday night.

Intruders entered the store through an upper rear window which opened into the place from a fire escape. The knob of the safe was battered off, but the door refused to yield to the knob knockers' efforts. Stock of the store was unmolested, according to Chief of Police Dick Morris, who expressed the opinion that the "job" was attempted by amateurs.

Controversy Over Prices Endangers Stars' Appearance

Albeit contracts have been signed for the appearance of Billy Rose's "Crazy Quilt" at the Memorial auditorium for one night, Friday, Jan. 29, a controversy over prices arose between the producer and Manager H. C. Cheshire of the local playhouse, that threatened to disrupt the booking of the Brice-Baker-Healy combination.

While Cheshire is loath to admit that any difficulty over the tariff had arisen, it was learned Sunday that Rose's advance representative demanded a price of $4.40 for the choice main floor seats. To this, the local showman would not agree.

The buck was passed to Rose in New York. The producer backed his agent, holding that the show sold for as high as $6.60 per capita at the Forty-fourth Street theater, New York, during its last season run, that the cast and production are identical with those seen on Broadway, and that the expense of operating on tour is measurably greater than when "standing-still" in Manhattan.

But Cheshire stood pat. Rather he would suffer cancellation than charge more than three dollars for best locations.

That the local showman had his way is evident from the announced scale of prices. Those who are in a position to know, assert that the New York producer was unwilling to forego the ample guarantee Cheshire posted to insure the local booking. Oklahoma Graveling Standard Shrinks

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 17.—The Oklahoma highway commission standard depth for graveling has shrunk from four inches to one and a half, Tillman county learned, when construction began on state highway 14.

The more shallow covering is economical and satisfactory when repaired and patched every 12 or 18 months, according to D. E. Powell, county engineer. Contractors have brought labor in from out of the county, and are using mechanical loaders, so that only a scant number of men in the surrounding community have been able to get work on the project.

DR. WOOD TALKS TO GRADUATES

Baccalaureate Sermon Given Sunday Morning

Three questions were submitted to about 60 high school graduates in a baccalaureate sermon by Dr. H. T. Wood at the First Christian church here Sunday morning. The answers to those three questions should help all young people solve the problems of life, Dr. Wood told the students and congregation.

The three questions so fundamentally emphasized are "Who Am I," "What Am I Here For?" and "What Claim Does God Have on My Life," the speaker stated in his sermon, "Problems of Life."

Dr. Wood described the theme of his talk as Jesus Christ's answer to Pontius Pilate, "I was born to be a king. I came into this world that I might bear witness to the truth." He declared that life itself is a mystery and that when such a scientific person as Thomas A. Edison gives up trying to solve the mystery, it is time for all ordinary Christians to give up also.

Two Definitions

The minister mentioned two definitions of life. "Life is a veil between the cold peaks of eternities" was one definition. The other the speaker noted was "Life is the kind of divine motion flowing as it has opportunities into the channels of human thought."

But as no human being will ever unveil the mystery of life, it is the duty of a Christian to accept the belief that God made life, he continued.

The first question of importance, "Who Am I?" was described as a question of personality of the origin of things. The speaker advised the graduates that "your interpretation of life is going to depend largely on the motives of life you hold."

In answer to the second question, Dr. Wood said, "God giving us our different personalities, has placed us in the world for different purposes. No two of us can occupy the same place at the same time. Some of us react to different things. Those who have reared a splendid family have won. Ask yourselves, 'Have I filled that place honorably in the sight of God?'

God Inescapable

"You can't evade God!" exclaimed the minister in answer to the third question. "The claim of God on life is fundamental. You are here in the providence of God."

At the last of the sermon, the preacher advised the young people, "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." He told them to choose religion.

"To every man there opens a highway and a low."

Music during the services included an anthem by the choir, "Blessed Is the Lord," and the offertoire, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," sung by R. E. Shepherd. Mrs. R. E. Strange was at the organ.

Preceding the sermon, Paul Barnett Jr. made an announcement concerning the Older Boys' conference sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. to be in session in this city Jan. 29-31.

Many Reject 'New Birth' for Lack Of Material Reasoning, Says Martin

"Thousands of people are rejecting the 'new birth' spoken of by Jesus because they can not explain it like the working out of a problem in algebra," declared Judge P. A. Martin in his talk Sunday morning before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

The most commonly misunderstood word in the New Testament, the speaker said, is the "whosoever" used in John 3:xvi. Each race and each denomination, he continued, contains many persons who think that they alone constitute the "whosoever" spoken of by Jesus.

One of Hardest Lessons

Judge Martin's address in part was as follows:

"It seems to me that the people who selected the international lessons for this month, certainly intended to get Bible class teachers into some of the deepest waters in the Bible and this lesson today is one of the deepest of all; in fact it is by all means the hardest of all lessons for the layman, without any special theological study to understand and explain in a satisfactory way.

"So if my presentation of the lesson fails to meet your particular views, you need not be surprised. Better and brainer men than you and I have disagreed about it in the past and probably will in the future.

"Nicodemus was an educated Pharisee and a ruler among the Jews. He was a friend and admirer, if not a follower of Jesus. He is mentioned just three times in the Bible and only in the gospel of John. On one occasion he took the part of the Nazarene when he was being condemned without a hearing by his brother Pharisees and then, when he died on the cross, Nicodemus brought a hundred-weight of aloes and myrr to be used in embalming the body before he was laid in the tomb.

Feared Public Opinion

"But Nicodemus was afraid of public opinion, so he came to Jesus by night seeking to know the way of life. He began with words of fulsome praise, but Jesus, knowing what was in his mind, at once cut him off with the astounding announcement 'ye must be born again.' 'Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God.' The wondering Israelite ruler, in the deepest perplexity said 'how can these things be?' And then Jesus said 'art thou a master in Israel, and knowest not these things?'

"Now the masters in Israel, if they had understood the prophesies of the Old Testament would have understood that the kingdom of God was a spiritual kingdom, set up in the hearts of men, and Nicodemus would not have been so dumbfounded by the suggestion of a new birth, but the learned master had a very modern idea: a throughly materialistic view of the Christ, so in the very nature of things he could not understand what Jesus was talking about.

"And do you know that there are thousands of men everywhere in the world today who have the same difficulty that Nicodemus had? You may meet them in the pew and in the pulpit as well; men who are trying to apply human learning and human reasoning to this vital subject; blindly asking 'how can these things be?' And they are rejecting the new birth because they cannot explain it like the working out of a problem in algebra. And yet all around them and among the most common manifestations of nature, there are things they cannot explain by the rules of any book or any science. No man has ever yet explained why it is that the same soil will produce roses of different colors or flowers of different odors. No man has ever fathomed the deep mystery of electricity or why the wavelengths, those wonderful messengers of the air propel the tones, or Big Ben from London, across the wide Atlantic to the listener at a radio in far-away Texas and on around the earth. And yet we know these things are true, even though we cannot account for them by any system of human reasoning.

Rescue Complete

"'That which is born of the flesh is flesh and that which is born of the spirit is spirit,' said Jesus. Spiritual life must have a beginning just as natural life has a beginning and this is the new birth. The whole process is contained in the lesson of the day. Born of water indicates the 'outward sign of the inward grace' a baptism of repentance as thought not only in the Old Testament but taught by John the Baptist in the wilderness of Judea. He said 'I indeed baptize with water; but He shall baptize with the Holy Ghost and with fire.' And thus the saving circle is complete and a ransomed soul is born to a new life in the kingdom of God. Oh, yes, it is a mystery. No wonder the inquiring mind asks 'how can these things be?'

"I can easily imagine that it was with a touch of sadness that Jesus said 'if I have told you of earthly things and ye believe not how shall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things? But, Nicodemus, in your study of the old Bible you remember how Moses lifted up a brazen serpent when the forefathers were in the wilderness at the command of Jehovah, the great God of the Israelites, and how every one who looked upon the serpent was cured of the venomous bite of the wilderness snake? Even so the Son of Man shall be lifted up: that whosoever believeth on him shall not perish, but have eternal life. With all your learning, Nicodemus, you surely remember this.'

"And then to forever clinch the argument Jesus gave a reason for these things in the best loved and most widely quoted and yet perhaps the most misunderstood verse in the whole Bible and our golden text for the day, 'for God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'

A Misunderstood Word

"The most misunderstood word has always been that wonderful word 'whosoever.' John himself did not understand it fully when he first heard it, for he was one of the council at Jerusalem that called Paul to account for believing and preaching that 'whosoever' included Romans and Greeks and other Gentiles. Catholics did not understand it in the early days of the reformation. Prostestants did not understand it even in the days of Blackstone when Catholics were persecuted in England. The Pilgrim fathers of Plymouth did not think it applied to Quakers. And I have known Methodists who seriously doubted whether the word 'whosoever' had any reference whatever to the Baptists and the Disciples. And I have known hundreds of them who were perfectly satisfied that no Roman Catholic or Episcopalian was included in the meaning of the term. And there are yet thousands of men and women who think the word only applies to the white race. And they are not all primitive Baptists either. I have heard many a good Methodist say he did not believe in spending a cent to take the Gospel to the Heathen beyond the seas.

"In this age of crass materialism, there are thousands of men who like Nicodemus, ask the question 'how can these things be?' The answer is in human experience. As Jesus said 'we speak that we do know and testify that we have seen.' Our fathers, the saints of other days, did not hesitate to testify to the truth of he new birth at the altars of the churches and neither should we hesitate. Of course we cannot fully explain it: Jesus Himself did not explain it further than to liken it to the winds that blow. Language fails when we enter the realm of the spiritual.

"The lesson of the day is peculiarly applicable to you and me as laymen in a church preparing for an evangelistic campaign in a city where not 50 per cent of our people ever go to any church. But in our presentation of the spiritual kingdom let us be careful that those who enter have the real experience of a new birth, as taught in this lesson. There is a vast difference between 'accepting by Christ' through repentenc and faith. Those bitten by the serpent of sin must know that the only cure is to be found in a savior, 'lifted up' on the cross of Calvary, 'as Moses lifted the serpent in the wilderness'."
