Government To Defend Abscam...

Conviction Thrown Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is heading into court again to defend the legality of the FBI's famed Abscam investigation after a judge overturned the conviction of a Florida congressman caught in the corruption probe.

Hours after a federal judge Friday condemned the FBI's tactics and threw out the Abscam conviction of former Rep. Richard Kelly, R-Fla., the Justice Department set its future course.

"The acquittal of Mr. Kelly will be appealed vigorously in the full expectation that the original verdict will be reinstated," a department statement declared.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant dismissed all criminal charges against Kelly, wiping out his Jan. 26, 1981 conviction by a federal jury for bribery, conspiracy and other federal crimes.

Byrant, saying "our public servants are not recruited from the seminaries and monasteries," ruled that Kelly had been the victim of impermissible government entrapment.

The judge said government undercover agents went too far when they continued to bait Kelly after he initially turned down a bribe.

During the Abscam operation, agents posing as Arab sheiks attempted to lure members of Congress, videotaped by hidden cameras, into accepting bribes in return for legislative favors.

Six members of the House and Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., were convicted in Abscam.

What Bryant's ruling means for others convicted in Abscam is uncertain, but the judge's 25-page opinion offers plenty of legal ammunition for other conviction appeals.

"The techniques the judge condemned have been examined by other federal judges, including the U.S. courts of appeals in Philadelphia and New York which issued rulings in our favor," the Justice Department said.

The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York City upheld an Abscam conviction of a former Immigration and Naturalization Service employee last March.

And the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia last February reversed a federal trial judge's illegal-entrapment ruling that had thrown out the Abscam convictions of two Philadelphia city council members.

The appeals court reinstated the convictions of George Schwartz and Harry Jannotti. Both men have appeals pending before the Supreme Court, which has never ruled definitively on the legality of the government's conduct in Abscam.

Unless and until the high court rules, lower courts may continue to differ over whether Abscam convictions can stand.

County Has Good Planting Moisture

Recent rains have put Scurry County farm land in excellent shape for planting, but cotton farmers are being urged to hold off for another week.

May 24 has been designated as the uniform planting date this year. This date was set because it has been determined that cotton planted on or after May 24 is not expected to develop soon enough to sustain a crop of boll weevils. Thus, a weevil cycle could be broken, reducing the menace of this insect to the 1982 crop.

Billy Roach, county extension agent, said traps in the county had caught some boll weevils recently, and it is hoped that they can be prevented from producing another generation.

"I know it is hard to pass up an opportunity like this to plant a few days early," Roach said. "But I believe all will be better off if they wait a week for two reasons."

Not only is the May 24 more desirable because of the boll weevil situation, but the soil temperature should be much better also, according to the agent.

Roach said he had been in contact with some farmers in Dawson County who planted two weeks ago and their cotton still had not sprouted at the end of the past week. This was attributed to the low temperature of the soil. Normally, this area has enough hot days by this time to provide good planting conditions, but that has not been the case this year.

"We need a few hot days to get good germination," Roach said. Moisture-wise, Scurry County's cotton land is ready for planting, although some spots were still too wet for planting or plowing at the end of the week.

July 4 Plans Make Progress

Plans are moving along for Snyder's annual July 4 celebration, which will be a two-day event this year.

Since Independence Day falls on Sunday, the local celebration will include activities on Saturday and Sunday, with the big fireworks display set for Sunday night.

The arts and crafts show, the art show, concessions and other activities will be open both days in Towle Memorial Park, said Murray Anne Ray, the Snyder Chamber of Commerce July 4th Chairman.

There will be a $20 fee this year for concession booth sites, and organizations planning to operate concessions during the celebration this year should get their requests in and pay their fees early at the chamber office. The sites will be designated on a first come, first served basis.

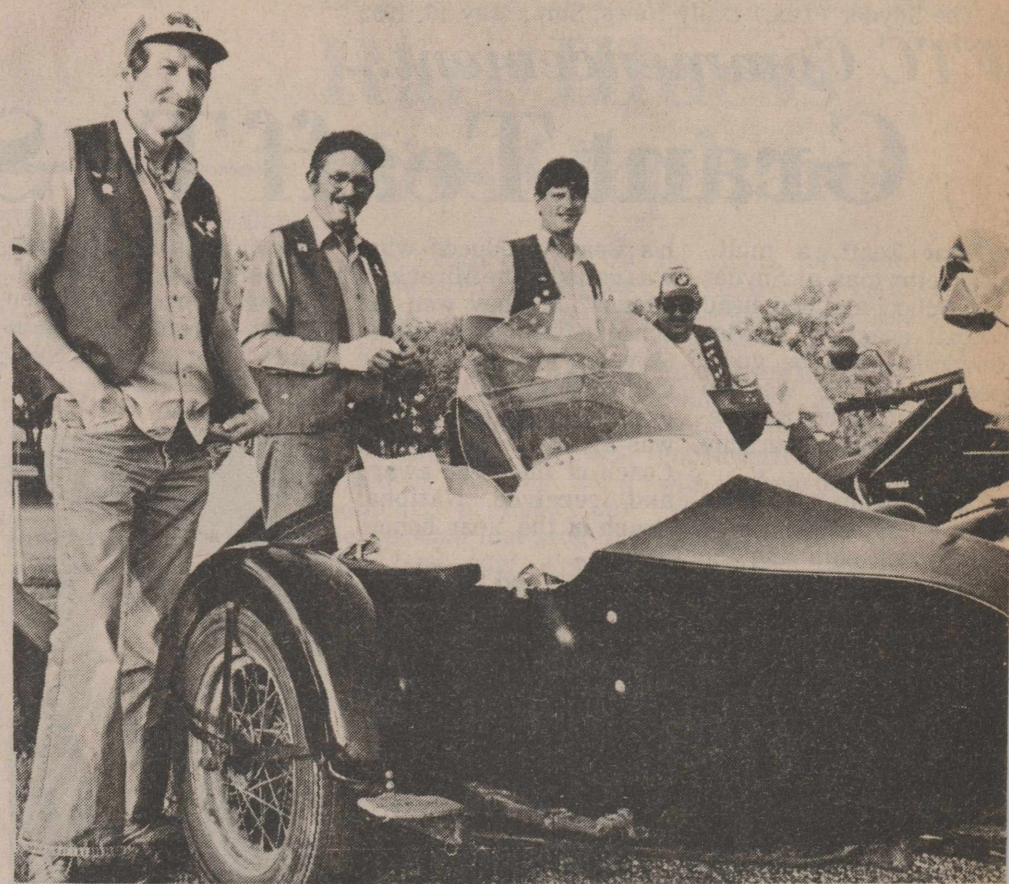

Organizations planning to sponsor queen candidates also should get their nominations in soon.

Tickets for the queen's contest will be ready for distribution on June 4, and the contest will end July 4 shortly before the crowning ceremony and fireworks display. The nominee who has the most tickets purchased in her behalf will be the Independence Day Queen.

Plans also are underway for the tractor pull and the annual July 4 Tennis Tournament, and this year a racquetball tournament will be added. Kathy Chavez heads the racquetball committee, while Mike Boles heads the tennis tournament committee.

Jaycees will operate their fishing rodeo for youngsters again, and Jaycees-ettes will have the bike-decorating contest for the parade.

A special feature Sunday evening will be a program of music sponsored by the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance. It will be a gospel-patriotic concert featuring several different groups.

EARLY ARRIVALS—Bob Berry, Joe B. Bynum, Chuck Wells and J. R. Lewis were among the first out of town riders to show up in Towle Park for the second annual Spring Run and Bike Show sponsored by the Snyder Roadriders Motorcycle Club. Bikers Converge For Annual Weekend Rally

The west end of Towle Park was beginning to fill with motorcycles and tents Friday evening as some of the expected 300-400 touring riders began to arrive for this weekend's Second Annual Spring Run and Bike Show sponsored by the Snyder Roadriders Club.

Saturday's scheduled events for the riders included a morning 100 mile run and various field events plus judging of the bike show.

Participants in the rally left on a 100 mile tour around West Texas at 9 a.m. Saturday morning. All the riders returned to Snyder by 3 p.m. for the start of the competition in the so called field events.

According to Snyder Roadriders president Nick Spels, contestants in the field events assembled on the parking lot of the National Guard Armory where they competed in contests designed to display riding skills.

Among other events, riders tried to throw frisbees and washers into buckets while mounted on moving motorcycles. Winners of the field events were awarded prizes at an awards presentation set for 7 p.m. in the armory.

The bike show got underway at 4:30 p.m. with machines being judged in 10 classes and trophies awarded for the first two places in each class.

In order for bikes to be eligible for the show prizes, they had to be either ridden to the rally or ridden on Saturday morning's run. Classes for the show included Gold Wing, Harley Davidson, 0-750 cc, 750-1000cc, 1000cc and up, sport models, bike and trailer combos, tricycles, sidecars and a separate class for dealer owned machines.

Also slated for special awards at the Saturday evening presentations were the oldest rider, youngest rider, youngest participant in the morning run and the pair riding in from the longest distance. The long distance male and female riders were also slated for individual awards. Special awards were also presented to the ch riding in from the longe distance as well as the cl with the largest number riders in attendance.

Weekend update

May Spare Insects' Lives

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Protestis students holding 15 million important insects say they will spare the lives of their tiny captives if area farmers support attempts to get government money for the agriculture schools.

However, student leaders said Friday they will continue to hold school director Rigoberto Delgado Per hostage in his office until members of their board trustees negotiate about funding for the financial ailing school.

Farmers have pleaded with the protesters to free t laboratory where the insect larvae have been he hostage since the students took over it, the Herman Escobar school and three local government office Tuesday. Students had threatened to disconnect t system that keeps the tiny larvae alive if their deman were not met.

Row House Fire Kills 10

BALTIMORE (AP) — A fire swept through a row house early today, killing at least 10 people only hours after residents began using candles and a kerosene lamp because their electricity was shut off, authorities said.

Of the 10 confirmed dead, three were adults and seven children, said police officer R.M. Gaston. Three people were injured, he said.

The blaze broke out at 12:30 a.m. in the city's northeastern section and was declared under control an hour later, said Fire Chief Francis Ticha.

The fire, the most deadly row house blaze in the city at least 30 years, may have been ignited when kerosene lamp tipped over, said fire department spokesman Capt. Patrick Flynn. The family's electricity had been shut off at 11 a.m. Friday because of no payment of bills, Flynn said.

Construction Funds Sought

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Budget Board says lawmakers should put $160.6 million into interim fund to pay for college construction until a permanent source of money is established.

The Legislature meets in special session beginning May 24 to tackle the college construction funding question. Until 1979, the 17 universities outside the Permanent University Fund depended on the state proper tax to pay for construction.

The state stopped collecting the tax after the 1979 Legislature reduced it from 10-cents per $100 to .06 cents.

Pope Ends Trip

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Apparently unshaken by a rebel priest's attempt to kill him, Pope John Paul winds up his four-day trip to Portugal today with a helicopter tour that will take him from a mountaintop shrine to the birthplace of port wine.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Friday, 56 degrees; low, 54 degrees; reading at 7 a. m. Saturday, 56 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation 1982 to date, 6.24.

The SDN Column

They say on-the-job training is the best, and Snyder people got about as close to it in preparing for storms as they wanted Tuesday afternoon.

For a few moments it appeared that a clearly-defined tornado was going to move through at least a portion of town. Fortunately, the dreaded funnel lifted back into its base cloud after only a couple of moments (it seemed like half an hour to viewers), and storm damage here was limited to that which was inflicted by some king-sized hailstones here and there.

We were fortunate, local officials involved in Civil Defense, agreed. We were fortunate that the tornado did not touch ground and that we got a dress rehearsal in preparations and response to emergency warnings.

Local schools, the hospital and other agencies have emergency plans, and they even stage drills once in a while. But there is no substitute for an actual situation that offers the threat of danger.

We got it Tuesday, and over-all, the results appeared good. In retrospect now, there probably will be changes in a few details of the operation. Although Civil Defense sirens sounded and hundreds, or perhaps thousands, actually saw the funnel cloud, one problem developed in the overall warning system. By the time the warning sirens sounded, phone circuits were jammed and local officials could not get through to KSNV Radio. Moreover, for some reason, the warning from the U. S. Weather Service to the radio station did not come through, although local Civil Defense did get a call. These little problems got some attention as soon as the situation cleared and all hope they will not be repeated next time—if there is a next time.

On the brighter side, schools and the hospital carried out their emergency plans with dispatch. We had several calls here at the SDN commending local school personnel and pupils for their response to the warnings. Also, local law enforcement agencies were on the job keeping eye-ball contact with the weather situation.

This is the first time that the warning sirens have sounded except for testing and drills. City Manager John Gayle says the sirens functioned properly, but that the city probably will install a couple more to improve coverage in some areas.

The criteria for sounding emergency sirens are visual contact with a funnel cloud by an officer or spotter, or notice from a U. S. Weather Service station that a tornado in the immediate area is showing up on its radar screen. They are not sounded for an ordinary thunderstorm. So, if you hear the warning sirens, you know it is the "real thing."

Sales Tax Rebates Show Gains Again

Snyder's city sales tax rebates continue to run well ahead of other cities of similar size in West Texas, according to Bob Bullock, Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts. Also, Snyder's increase in retail sales over last year continues far above the state average, based on the sales tax rebates.

Snyder's rebate check for the period ending May 9 amounted to $142,709, pushing the total for the year to $432,830. This represents a gain from $351,684 at this time last year. The increase of 23.07 percent is well above the average of 13 percent for the state as a whole.

Bullock's office collects the city sales tax of one percent along with the state sales tax and then rebates their portion to the cities.

Newest figures for other West Texas cities in Snyder's population bracket, with the total for the month and total for the year, in order:

Levelland, $100,024 and $334,027; Sweetwater, $91,648 and $275,512; Pecos, $88,270 and $249,378; Andrews, $81,650 and $258,611; Brownfield, $73,709 and $218,760; Monahans, $72,735 and $255,014; Lamesa, $70,167 and $237,568.

Figures for other area towns include Colorado City, $32,681 and $104,551; Post, $28,019 and $86,798; Rotan, $12,218 and $29,186; Roscoe, $6,318 and $17,280; Roby, $2,854 and $7,371.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP—Mrs. Evelyn McLaughlin Davies, president of the Diamond M Foundation, is shown presenting a check from the Foundation to John Gibson, Western Texas art instructor, for a college scholarship. The scholarship will be known as the McLaughlin Art Scholarship in honor of Mrs. Davies' parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McLaughlin, and is to be awarded starting with the 1982 fall semester.

Ask Us

Q.—Can, by law, a bank or a merchant charge a fee for returning a check for any reason, or can a merchant charge you a fee of $7.50 to pick up that check?

A.—Yes. District Attorney Pete Greene says a check may be considered a contract. Also, merchants are not required to accept checks in the first place, and there is nothing to prevent them from charging a fee for those returned by a bank.

WTC Commencement...

Grant Teaff To Speak Here

Grant Teaff, a multi-sport letterman at Snyder High School and now head football coach at Baylor University, will be guest speaker for the Western Texas College commencement exercises Thursday night.

The program is to begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Scurry County Coliseum and the public is invited to attend.

Teaff became the Bears' 20th head coach in 1972, taking over a program that some said should drop out of the Southwest Conference. Baylor football had a 3-28 record in the three years before he arrived, but worse than the on-field performance was the negative attitude that pervaded the program.

Despite all that, Teaff received SWC Coach of the Year honors in just his first year. Two years later, his Bears produced what was called "The Miracle of Brazos" as they won the school's first league title in 50 years and went to the Cotton Bowl for the first time. That season, Teaff was again given the SWC Coach of the Year award and received National Coach of the Year honors too.

The 1979 and '80 seasons were other Teaff success stories. In '79 he took a team that was picked near the bottom of the SWC and finished the year with an 8-4 record and a Peach Bowl win over Clemson. Again, Teaff was named Coach of the Year.

Experts picked the 1980 Bears sixth and that's where they finished the regular season. But instead of being sixth in the SWC, they were sixth in the nation with a 10-1 record, 8-0 in league. Both were school bests. Overall, the Bears broke 28 other school records and again Teaff was named SWC Coach of the Year.

Last season was one of

the most disappointing in Teaff's career as the Bears fell to 5-6. It was one of those years where a break or two going the only way could have made the story completely different.

Teaff played two years of junior college football at San Angelo College after graduating from SHS, then transferred to McMurry College where he was an All-Texas Conference linebacker.

His first coaching stint came at Lubbock High where he was an assistant coach. McMurry then called him to be head coach and he took the job as the nation's youngest head football coach. After a successful year there, he went to Texas Tech as recruiting coordinator and assistant football coach. His next move was to Angelo State, where in three years he posted a 19-11 mark, including a 7-3 record in 1971.

In 1972, he was called to Baylor to begin the challenge of his life. "Baylor football hasn't been the same since," one observer noted.

Teaff's coaching philosophy places emphasis on personal development of the individual athlete and motivation to gain maximum performance. He has coached nine players to first team All-American status and dozens to All-SWC honors.

He is one of the country's most highly sought-after speakers, and is considered one of the top football clinic speakers anywhere.

Grant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Teaff of Snyder. He and his wife, Donell, have three daughters, Tammy, 24, Tracy 22, and Layne, 17.

PROCLAMATION SIGNED—County Judge Preston Wilson signed a proclamation designating May 16-23 as Soil Stewardship Week in Scurry County. Looking on, from left, are Charlie Henderson and Walter Stirl, members of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors; the Rev. Raymond Dunkins, Dave Downey and Glenn McCathern, representing area ministers; and Burl Belew, member of the SWCD board. (SDN Staff Photo)

Soil Stewardship Week Observance Begins Here

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is joining in observance of Soil Stewardship Week, beginning today, according to an announcement by Leon Sterling, district chairman.

The theme for this year's celebration is "A Time for Tenacity."

"This is 'A Time for Tenacity' in our faith, in concept, in communication, in cooperation, in the political arena, in experiments and research, in leadership, in priorities, and in total commitment," cites the National Association of Conservation Districts in the 16-page Soil Stewardship Week booklet. The foreword for the publication was written by President Ronald Reagan. NACD has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

A number of the churches in the district are scheduling special Soil Stewardship services. On May 6, the district hosted a luncheon for ministers serving churches in Borden and Scurry Counties. At that time, Soil Stewardship material was presented to the ministers by district directors.

Soil Stewardship bookmarks are also being distributed to all elementary school pupils in the district.

"We hope," said Sterling, "that during Soil Stewardship Week, millions of Americans will pause for a moment to consider their responsibilities for the protection and proper care of the Lord's Earth."

Program Set For Seniors

North Elementary School students will provide a musical program for the entertainment of senior citizens in the Senior Center at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

All county residents 60 years of age and older are invited to participate in activities at the center each weekday. These include a luncheon at noon Monday through Friday.

The center opens at 8:30 each weekday morning and remains open until 4:30 p.m. It is also open on Thursday evenings.

One of the center's annual special events, a recognition program, is scheduled May 27.

Senior citizens who would like to have more information about the center are invited to visit or to call the office at 573-0435.

International Museum Day Observation Set

International Museum Day will be observed locally on Tuesday with open houses at both the Diamond M Museum and the Scurry County Museum.

Hours for the open house in each location will be 2-4 p.m., and the public is invited to attend.

The Diamond M Museum, located at 911 East Highway, is featuring an exhibit titled "The Horse," made up of selections from its own collection, the Art Museum at the University of New Mexico and the Scurry County Museum.

A collection of graphics titled "Morning Sun" is being featured in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College. The prints from the 1920s and 1930s were selected to represent the life and style of those years.

The exhibit is on loan from the Evansville Museum of Arts & Sciences and is presented with the support of the National Endowment for the Arts and the Indiana Arts Commission.

International Museum Day is a project of the International Congress of Museums.

Students interested in enrolling in the cosmetology class starting June 1 at Western Texas College are requested to contact Judy Border, instructor, this week.

Cosmetology students must have a high school diploma or a GED. Students receive 1,500 hours of training within a 12-month period and upon successful completion of that training are ready to take state examinations for licensing.

Mrs. Border will be off campus from May 25-28, so it is essential that prospective students contact her before that time. She may be reached in the cosmetology department or by calling 573-8511, extension 267.

Best Way Is Found To Aid 'La Turista'

HOUSTON (AP) — Medical researchers say a new study indicates an antibiotic can eliminate most cases of "La Turista," diarrhea contracted by almost half the American tourists to Mexico, within 24 hours.

Dr. Herbert DuPont, director of clinical microbiology at the University of Texas Medical School here, said the antibiotic TMP-SMX is now the best treatment and has none of the minor side effects such as rashes sometimes caused by other antibiotics and Pepto-Bismol, the previous drug of choice.

Two years ago, DuPont's research team said Pepto-Bismol, an over-the-counter remedy for stomach problems, could effectively ease the discomfort.

Guerrillas Kill 15 People

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Leftist guerrillas killed 15 men, two women and three children and burned 20 houses and a clinic in the central highlands village of Salacum, 177 miles north of Guatemala City, the army said.

An army statement Tuesday blamed the Guerrilla Army of the Poor for the attack. Leftist guerrillas trying to overthrow the military regime have been active in the mountains of the ginger-growing region.

Rare Illness Hits Orphans

NEW YORK (AP) — On a recent afternoon at the Hospital for Special Surgery, Dr. David Levine showed 13-year-old Melissa Gruber two X-ray pictures of her back.

She glanced at the films, looked at the floor for a moment, propped one sneaker-clad foot atop the other and said weakly, "It's getting worse."

Her spine should have shown up as a broad, white band running straight up and down through the middle of the X-rays. But what she saw instead was a white band twisted to the right in an S-shape, marking the curvature of her back. In the preceding year, the curvature had become worse.

The problem is one consequence of a rare genetic disorder called familial dysautonomia. The word "dysautonomia" means failure of the autonomic nervous system.

Melissa is one of perhaps only a few hundred Americans with the condition, also known as Riley-Day syndrome. It's sometimes referred to as an "orphan disease," a disorder so uncommon that it has been mostly overlooked by medical researchers, federal health agencies and charitable foundations.

The disorder strikes one in 10,000 Ashkenazi Jews, a group of central and eastern European ancestry. One in 50 Ashkenazi Jews is a carrier.

Melissa is beset with a variety of curious symptoms. When she cries, she sheds no tears. She is scarcely able to feel pain, or to tell between hot and cold. Many of the tastebuds that should cover her tongue are missing.

Some of the problems shared by Melissa and others with dysautonomia have been traced to what's called the autonomic nervous system — the network that controls the body's glands, internal organs and certain muscles. Those nerves seem not to have developed properly.

Because of the failure of that system, Melissa has had trouble swallowing since she was a baby. When she was younger she had no gag reflex — she didn't cough.

Her feeding problems became so severe that she did not grow. Food often became trapped in her lungs, sparking recurrent cases of pneumonia.

Throughout her short life she has been plagued by bouts of vomiting, lasting from three days to three weeks at a time. For a time she had trouble talking and walking.

She has almost completely overcome those coordination problems with the help of therapy.

Because of her success in overcoming her physical disabilities, Melissa's symptoms are not readily apparent. She smiles often, with a little girl's shyness, she is able to attend school and she seems to understand and to be able to cope with her affliction.

The curvature of her spine is the only immediately visible sign of her condition. Once or twice a year, she visits the Hospital for Special Surgery, where orthopedic surgeons led by Dr. David Levine conduct a monthly clinic to evaluate the bone and back ailments of dysautonomia patients.

It's not unusual for patients like Melissa to be misdiagnosed for years. The disorder is so unusual that most doctors never see it, and they often do not recognize it.

Melissa was lucky enough to be born at a time when a handful of doctors and researchers are improving the outlook for such patients. Until recently, half of the victims died before they were 5 years old. Now more than 80 percent survive that anniversary, and for the first time many are reaching adulthood.

The National Institutes of Health, the federal government's principal backer of medical research, has contributed tens of thousands of dollars to fight dysautonomia.

Asylum Granted

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thirteen Guatemalan leftists have been granted asylum in Mexico after losing their bid to force the Guatemalan government to acknowledge their allegations of official persecution of native Indians.

The leftists, who arrived here Friday, had occupied the Brazilian Embassy in Guatemala City, taking 10 hostages. They held the embassy for 30 hours in an effort to gain official recognition of their charges. Guatemala's ruling junta refused to bargain with the leftists, but agreed to grant them safe conduct out of the country.

Prosecution Says...

Witnesses Predisposed Toward Insanity Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A prosecutor attempting to convince a jury of John W. Hinckley Jr.'s sanity has suggested that a defense psychiatrist was looking for mental illness when he examined Hinckley after he shot President Reagan.

"You were trying to find evidence that Mr. Hinckley was mentally ill?" Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger M. Adelman said Friday, jabbing his finger at Dr. William T. Carpenter Jr. during a rapid-fire cross-examination.

But Carpenter, testifying at Hinckley's trial, held to his diagnosis that the defendant was mentally ill when he shot the president March 30, 1981, and was unable to conform his conduct to the requirements of law.

Hinckley, who is accused of wounding Reagan and three other men outside the Washington Hilton Hotel, has acknowledged firing the shots but has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The psychiatrist, who first saw Hinckley May 19, denied that he approached the examination with a predisposition toward finding the defendant mentally ill.

"The whole point of the evaluation is to determine whether mental illness is present" and then to form a diagnosis, said the University of Maryland psychiatrist.

Adelman asked Carpenter whether he was showing the assailant a diagnostic manual.

Drug Ring Figure Gets 55 Year Term

HOUSTON (AP) — One of five brothers implicated in a South Texas drug network has been sentenced to 55 years in prison for a conspiracy a prosecutor says imported vast quantities of heroin and cocaine.

Matias Montemayor, convicted last month on federal charges of participating in a continuing criminal conspiracy, was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge James DeAnda.

Two of Montemayor's brothers, Muynardo and Manuel, were convicted of similar charges earlier and received sentences of 15 years.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney John P. Smith said he doubts that the convictions have shut down the drug network.

"There are still two brothers in Mexico," he said.

Benito and Reyes Montemayor were also indicted in the investigation, but they have not been brought to trial. Smith said Benito and Reyes are in Mexico and cannot extradited to face the charges. Both are Mexican citizens and Mexico does not permit extradition of its citizens to face criminal charges in other countries.

The five brothers were named in a complex multi-count indictment, said Smith, that charged them with operating a large network importing illegal drugs from Mexico. The assistant U.S. attorney said the ring imported vast quantities of heroin and cocaine for distribution throughout the United States.

Matias and Muynardo Montemayor also face indictments on Internal Revenue Tax evasion. A preliminary hearing on these charges is set for June 11 in Houston.

Peace Talks At Critical Stage...

Britain Bombs Airfield

By The Associated Press
British carrier-based fighter-bombers raided the main Falklands airfield again and the Argentine junta warned its citizens to brace for possible mainland bombings as U.N. peace efforts were reported at a critical stage.

The Soviet Union threw its weight behind Argentina in the crisis Friday and the British government summoned its United Nations and U.S. ambassadors home for weekend consultations. Argentina, meanwhile, launched an intensive search for a missing cargo ship. An Argentine news agency quoted military sources as saying the vessel might have been hit by a British missile.

No casualties or damage were reported in Friday's reported air strikes.

An Argentine communique claimed anti-aircraft fire repulsed two British Sea Harrier jets that attacked the airstrip at the Falklands capital of Stanley.

A British Defense Ministry spokesman said the raid was successful and called it "part of a continuing series of operations." A ministry statement said Sea Harriers were mounting "combat air patrols" around the islands, 250 miles off the Argentine coast.

Argentina also reported a toll of 20 sailors known dead and 301 others "disappeared" following the May 2 sinking of the nation's only cruiser, the General Belgrano, which was torpedoed by a British nuclear-powered submarine. The communique said 770 men were rescued. There was no explanation why the figures added up to more than the initial report of 1,042 crewmen.

A total of 23 British men and an estimated 400 Argentines have been killed in action since Argentina seized the disputed South Atlantic archipelago April 2 after 149 years of British rule. Argentina calls the islands the Malvinas.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Conservative supporters in Scotland Friday that peaceful settlement of the dispute may be "unattainable."

In that case, "we should have to turn to the only other course open to us," she said, adding that the Argentine occupation "must be ended. It will be ended."

Britain summoned its U.N. and U.S. ambassadors home to brief Mrs. Thatcher and her Cabinet — a move U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar called a clear sign of "interest in a peaceful settlement."

British spokesman Roderick Lyne told reporters at U.N. headquarters that Ambassador

Sir Anthony Parsons would return to New York Monday and U.S. Ambassador Sir Nicholas Henderson was expected back in Washington the same day.

Perez de Cuellar said no formal set of proposals was being carried back to the British government for consideration but added that he expected Parsons to bring back "specific instructions from his government."

The secretary-general said a U.N. framework for peace was emerging but "some rather complicated questions" remained unsolved. Argentina insists on eventual sovereignty over the Falklands while Britain maintains the 1,800 British-descended islanders should be allowed to choose their own government and way of life.

Moscow stepped into the diplomatic fray Friday by declaring Britain's war zone in the South Atlantic "unlawful." It did not mention Argentina's own blockade in the region.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry protested

"provocative" British warnings to the Soviets about the zone — recently extended to within 12 miles of the entire Argentine coast — as "absolutely unacceptable."

Britain said it has not decided whether to reply.

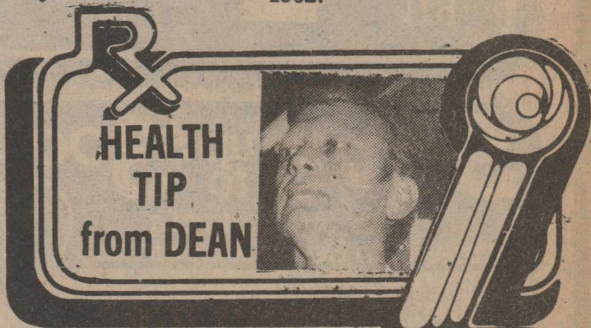

Class Slated In Defensive Driving Ways

Defensive driving will be offered through the Continuing Education Department of Western Texas College in evening classes on May 24-25.

Students will pay fees of $20 each for the eight-hour course and must attend both sessions to qualify for certificates of completion. Classes will meet from 6-10 p.m. in room 101 or the Learning Resource Center. Dr. James Palmer will be the instructor.

To reserve space in the class call 573-8511, extension 240.

Jamaica became independent of Britain in 1962.

AUTOS & CHILDREN
Auto accidents are the leading cause of death and injury among children. In a crash, or even a sudden stop, children can go flying about inside the car. It happens so fast, not even the strongest parent can prevent a youngster's violent impact. Holding a child in your arms can be most dangerous. Even in a low-speed crash, the adult may be thrown forward, crushing the child. A pamphlet comparing child-restraint devices is offered for 25c plus stamped, self-addressed envelope from Physicians for Auto Safety, 50 Union Ave., Irvington, N.J. 07111. Consumers Union also reports on child restraints.

Beat Spurs 118-110...

Lakers Go Three-Up In Series

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The red hot Los Angeles Lakers were to go for their eighth straight National Basketball Association playoff victory Saturday, attempting to eliminate the San Antonio Spurs from the Western Conference final series in four straight games.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar poured in 26 points and snared 10 rebounds Friday night to spark the Lakers to a 118-110 triumph that put the Spurs within one defeat of elimination.

The game wasn't as close as the final score indicates, because the Lakers dominated the contest and held a 17-point lead, 117-100, with 1:18 left when San Antonio coach Stan Albeck dejectedly emptied his bench for garbage time.

"We've got our backs to the wall," the frustrated

Albeck said. "But we're not packing it in. We'll be here (tonight) and play the best we can. We are playing one of the greatest teams in the league and most of those guys have been through this before. We're not going to give up. We've got to go out and win a game."

Jabbar said Los Angeles wants to eliminate San Antonio in four straight games, the same fate the Lakers dealt the Phoenix Suns in the semi-final series.

Eight straight playoff wins would move Los Angeles within one of the NBA playoff record of nine compiled by the 1950 Minneapolis Lakers.

"I don't remember a Los Angeles team playing this well," Abdul-Jabbar said. "We're going for it (tonight)."

"What happened last year was a fluke," the towering center said of Houston's defeat of the Lakers in a 1981 first-round mini-series. "We're a lot different team now than then. We've been turning in a consistent team effort, that's the key."

Part of the consistency Friday night was Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who pulled off another "triple double" with 10 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists. Cat-quick guard Norm Nixon and backup forward Bob McAdoo also hit 22 points apiece as six Lakers scored in double figures, running their fast-break almost at will.

"We're a team, on and off the court, and it shows," Johnson said. Nobody's been taking us seriously, so we're just trying to play good basketball."

"We're playing real hard," Nixon added. "The key has been our intensity. The secret is that there has not been one minute in our past 7 or 8 games that our guys have relaxed. That's what happened to Phoenix; they relaxed for a few minutes and we blew them out. We just have to keep playing that hard."

"We are going to try and stop the break by putting the ball into the basket," said George Gervin, who led San Antonio with 39 points on 15 of 31 shooting. "If you believe anything, anything can happen. You can't use the word never until it's all over. We're going to keep our heads up and come out tonight. I think they are playing at the top of their game right now."

Nixon completed a three-point play with 2:42 left in the first period that gave the Lakers the lead for good.

Los Angeles led 29-24 after on period, 61-48 at halftime and 89-79 after three quarters. San Antonio never got closer than 7 points after halftime.

Although the Spurs' "Bruise Brothers" won the rebounding for the first time in the series, 62-42, they hit only 42 percent of their field goal attempts. Los Angeles sank 10 more free throws than the Spurs in the physical contest.

Sampson Will Stay At Virginia, He Says

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) - Two-time All-American Ralph Sampson, saying "it's what I really want to do," for the third year in a row turned down a chance to enter the National Basketball Association early and said Friday he will remain at the University of Virginia for his senior season.

"I did a lot of soul-searching, but I have decided to stay for my fourth year," the 7-foot-4 Sampson said. "It got down to what I really wanted to do. Would I be happy in going? I wanted to come back another year."

But Sampson, spurning a chance for a multi-million-dollar professional contract, admitted his decision was "hard because of the teams I had to deal with - LA, San Diego - playing on the West Coast. It was hard because that had a lot more to do with it."

Sampson, the national player of the year in 1981 and 1982, said, "I finally sat down and looked at it this morning and I came up with the answer that I wanted to stay in school."

Sampson, whose statements were contained in a taped interview with the University of Virginia Sports Information Department, said he was not worried about the money aspects of turning professional because he felt he would get what he wanted next year.

"I don't really think you lose it (bargaining power) because going into it any way you have to bargain to get how much money you want," Sampson said.

Also, he said he felt very close to his teammates, and he admitted the fact Virginia has not won the NCAA championship "was in my pros and cons about it."

Sampson met with his teammates at 4 p.m. and told them of his decision.

"They were pleased, I think. I played with them for a little while and then let them know really, and once I told them, they were pleased," he said.

Tae Kwon Do...

Locals Vie In Tourney

Snyder Tae Kwon Do students competed well in Jon Chu's Southern Association's Memorial Cup Tournament, held in Lufkin recently.

Tae Kwon Do means hands, feet and mind and is a form of Korean karate. Instructing the local classes is Steven Alcala, a black belt, and an assistant, Brenda Fritz, also a black belt.

Classes meet Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. at the Stanfield Elementary Gym and are open to anyone from age six to 65.

Accompanying the group to Lufkin were Steven Alcala and his wife. Among those winning awards at the tournament were Donna Gafford, first in beginning women's free sparring and second in the yellow belt division in forms. Competing in yellow belt, medium weight division free sparring were Rudy Garza, first; Greg Gafford, second; Santos Chaidez, third; and Darrell Clements, fourth. Chaidez also won third in free yellow belt, middle weight free sparring.

Others included Eric Nelson, third in mini-peewee, forms; Kevin Nelson, first in mini-peewee forms and second in junior free sparring; Curtis Cox, second in peewee free sparring and third in peewee forms; and Steven Alcala, Jr., second in red belt forms and second in mini-peewee sparring.

Those interested in learning more about Jon Chu's Southern Association are urged to attend a class.

Flynn Gets Key Hit...

Rangers Edge Toronto

ARLINGTON, TEXAS (AP) - Texas second baseman Doug Flynn is known more for his fielding than his hitting. But it was Flynn's bat that made the difference in Friday night's 4-3, 11-inning victory over Toronto.

Flynn, a Gold Glove winner in 1980 but a lifetime .240 hitter, tied the game with a ninth-inning single, then won it with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly. It was his first appearance since he was injured in Detroit 10 days ago.

"Before he got hurt, he was struggling," Ranger Manager Don Zimmer said of Flynn, "so this has to be a big lift for him."

"I was just looking for something to hit hard," Flynn said. "The main thing is to win the game. You can overlook a lot of things, like batting averages, when you are winning."

It was the first time since April 20 that the Rangers had won two straight games.

Paul Mirabella, 1-0, was the winner, pitching the final 11-3 innings.

Hosken Powell's pinch-hit double and Ernie Whit's pinch-hit single in the ninth gave Toronto a 3-2 lead, but Texas tied the score in their half of the inning on singles by Parrish, Roberts and Flynn.

Toronto starter Luis Leal had a three-hitter and a 2-1 lead going into the eighth inning, but he walked Bill Stein and was replaced by Joey McLaughlin. Pinch-runner Billy Sample advanced to second on Mark Wagner's sacrifice and scored the tying run on Lee Mazzilli's single.

Clements Holding Lead In Colonial National

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - If Lennie Clements became a bit nervous on the first tee box in the third round of the $350,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament, the tour unknown had good cause.

Chasing him from one to two shots back, respectively, when play began Saturday were perhaps the greatest player who ever lived, the leading winner on the PGA Tour in 1981, and two former U.S. Open champions.

Jack Nicklaus, the winner of 68 tournaments including 19 majors, and Tom Kite, leading money winner and Vardon Trophy two-stroke average holder, were only a stroke behind Clements.

Andy North and Jerry Pate were just two strokes back after 36 holes over soggy Colonial Country Club.

Clements, the last player invited into the 102-player field, battled gusty winds for a 1-under-par 69 Friday and a two-day total of 5-under-par 135.

Nicklaus, who called his putting touch "terrible," struggled to an even par 70 while the steady Kite shot 68 to finish at 136.

North, winner of the 1968 U.S. Open at Cherry Hills in Denver, notched a 69 while Pate knocked his bright orange golf ball around in 68 strokes for 137.

Clements showed tremendous grit Friday when he got his score to 7-under and suffered near-disaster in a three-hole stretch.

Rotary Planning Running Events

The first White Buffalo Stampede, sponsored by the Snyder Club of Rotary International, will be held July 3, announced Rex Robinson, club president, and Jerry Vestal, incoming president.

C.L. (Bunk) Casey will be the race organizer. He is active in the Abilene Roadrunners Club.

The multi-division event will be held in conjunction with the chamber of commerce Fourth of July Celebration.

Races include a One Mile Fun Run, a run of five kilometers and a run of 15 kilometers. There is no charge to enter the Fun Run (except for T-shirts). The other races are $7 apiece and include T-shirts and winner's trophies.

Men's divisions include 20 and under, 20-30, 30-40 and 40 and up. Women's divisions are 20 and under, 20-30 and 30 and up.

Walkers, joggers and competitive runners are welcome. Entry blanks and other information will be made available in the near future.

Cavazos Brothers Each Make Own Mark

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Of all the King's men, Lauro Cavazos was in many ways the most remarkable.

For nearly half a century he was as identifiable with the King Ranch as the Kings and Klebergs who founded it and the cattle and coyotes who occupied it.

On a ranch bigger than some states, and as historic as many, he was the "cow boss" of the showcase Santa Gertrudis Division.

By today's standards, Cavazos was under-educated, overmotivated and church-mouse poor. He was also loyal, proud, patriotic and hard-working.

It seems appropriate then, nearly a quarter century after Lauro Cavazos's death, to see how that legacy, passed to his offspring along with his genes, has endured in their lives over the years.

Lauro Cavazos was a man of pride, all right. Once, when renegade Mexicans put a bounty on his head, he was more than slightly irritated. What bothered him was the price—a mere $25.

He was tall, lean, tough and, if necessary, mean, when he arrived at the King Ranch in 1912 at age 18. He never really left the ranch. He lived, worked, married and died on that storied South Texas spread.

At his death, in 1958, he left five children.

Fate and football led three of them across the state to the South Plains, where they left their stamp on Texas Tech University as indelibly as Lauro left his on the King Ranch.

One son, Bobby, an All-

American running back, drifted naturally into ranching. Another, Lauro — Larry — an educator, one day returned as president of the university. The third, Richard — Dick — a military student, became a war hero and a general.

"The boys idolized their father so much," a daughter-in-law said recently. "They would do anything for him. Were he alive today, he would be beside himself with pride."

A fifth-generation Texan, Lauro F. Cavazos was a descendant of the man awarded the original Spanish land grant that embraces the southern divisions of the King Ranch, by some estimates 350,000 acres.

"My great, great, great, great-grandfather sold the land to Richard King for 10 cents an acre," says Bobby Cavazos, the rancher. "If I ever meet him, in heaven or hell, I'm going to say, 'Thanks a bunch!'"

At the heart of the King Ranch is the vaquero tradition, a Spanish culture of horsemen and cattle. The ranch families are known as Kinenos, "the King people." Lauro Cavazos was a leader, for nearly 40 years a division foreman.

With King descendants Richard and Bob Kleberg, Lauro Cavazos played a key role in developing the first American breed of cattle, the Santa Gertrudis.

Except for a voluntary combat stint in World War I, the ranch was his life. He met his wife there and each of his children was born there. The first, Sarita, was the only daughter. Then came Lauro, Richard, Bobby and, seven years later, Joe. Sarita got her degree at Texas A&I in Kingsville and Joe at St. Mary's in San Antonio.

But it was Larry, Dick and Bobby, the three middle children, who became widely known in Texas as the Brothers Cavazos.

"I guess we were poor," recalls Gen. Dick Cavazos. "In those days, the 1930s, the ranch was not wealthy at all. The oil hadn't come in yet. But we had all we wanted to eat. On a ranch, you have your garden, and all the beef you can eat and milk you can drink. It was just a super place for a youngster to grow up."

Like their father, the brothers Larry, Dick and Bobby became crack shots and gifted horsemen and outdoorsmen. Recalls Bobby: "We had dogs, chickens, rabbits, raccoons. We even tried to raise armadillos. Once we brought home five or six baby wildcats. It was always like a zoo out there."

With Sarita nearing highschool age, the elder Cavazos moved his clan to Kingsville, a town encompassed by the ranch.

"Dad built a house in town," Larry says. "In his constant insistence on our getting an education, he built that house two blocks from the elementary school, one block from Texas A&I College and within walking distance of the high school."

City distractions aside, the ranch remained dominant in the family's life.

"It was a very special place at that time," said Larry. "The ranch was quite isolated and self-encompassing. There were thousands of ducks, geese, deer, javalinas ... all a part of the beauty of that country."

There were hard times as well—times of drought, of burning spines off prickly pears to feed the cattle, times of floods.

Says Dick: "It really is a hard, hard land and it makes for good, good people. Your word, your behavior, your handshake, they all meant something."

"The vaqueros indelibly impressed upon me the idea that there was no reason why a man should ever tell a lie."

From their mother, now 82 and living in Kingsville, the Cavazos siblings inherited strength and determination, says one family friend. "She did anything to keep the family going." But it was primarily their father who shaped their early lives.

"He was singularly the most impressive person I've ever known," says Bobby's wife, Nancy.

He fought in the last major Texas gunfight before World War I, Bobby recalls, the Battle of Norias. He and a handful of men fought off raiding Mexican bandits who crossed the Rio Grande and attacked a King Ranch camp.

"South Texas was wild then," says Nancy Cavazos. "The bandits in Mexico printed up posters of Bobby's daddy and offered $25 for him, dead or alive. He and Bob Kleberg would laugh about him being worth only $25."

For the Kinenos, Cavazos often served as "the judge, the jury, the whole shebang," says Bobby. He recalled that his father packed a pearl-handled Colt .45. "When a ranch hand got drunk and rowdy, dad would knock him in the head and tie him to a tree until he sobered up."

Regarding his own children, Cavazos stressed two things. He wanted them educated and he wanted his sons to observe their military duty. "There's been a Cavazos in every war," says Bobby. "We're proud of that."

The Cavazos brood is proud as well that all got college degrees, all married college graduates, all stayed married.

"Son," Lauro once told his namesake, "educate yourself. It's the one thing nobody can ever take from you ... It is forever." The message took.

"I have pushed hard on that, especially with minority groups," the Tech president says now. "I am convinced that education is the key to many things. If you have sufficient education, you can solve almost any problem in the world. Famine. Ecological problems. Nuclear problems. Racism. They're all solved with education."

Dick was between Korean and Vietnam wars when his father died. The memory is still vivid.

"Friends of Dad's came from all over the world, friends we hadn't seen in years."

"But we could not grieve. We felt it was such a privilege that he had lived, and that he lived his life to the fullest. He had done everything he set out to do. He was such a fine, fine man, and he had been such a great example to us."

Instead of mourning, the family barbecued a steer and celebrated not death but life. "It turned into a first class party," says Dick. "I have since told my wife that when I go, I want a big barbecue."

Squalene is a substance derived from the livers of deepsea sharks. It is processed into capsules, known as Marine Gold, and used by the Japanese as a treatment for everything from old age to cancer.

OBITUARIES

E.M. Ramirez

Funeral service has been set for 10 a. m. Monday in the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Epimeno Morales Ramirez, 78, who lived at Snyder Oaks Care Center. He died at 11 p. m. Friday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

A native of San Marcos, he was a retired farmer and had lived here seven years.

The Rev. Ruben Ramirez of Lubbock will officiate at the funeral service, and burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Surviving are a son, Eli Ramirez of Sweetwater; a brother, Chrispin Lopez of San Antonio; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Felony Theft Investigated

Snyder police investigated one felony theft reported Friday morning.

Ruby Price called police around 10:15 a.m. Friday and reported the theft of two beds and four other items of furniture from an apartment at 1910 Coleman Ave. Police later managed to clear this theft report by recovery of the missing items but no arrests were made in the case. Value of the missing furniture was listed at $210.

Police also received a report of a misdemeanor theft around 11 a.m. Friday. Randy Taylor of 2005 Avenue N reported the theft of a 10 gallon water can valued at $60 from his pickup sometime Thursday night.

Two minor traffic accidents required police attention late Friday evening.

The first accident occurred in the Varsity Square parking lot around 9:30 p.m. Involved in the mishap were a 1973 Oldsmobile driven by Isidoro Garcia of Rt. 3, Snyder and a 1965 Ford driven by Opal Eades of 118 Milburn. Only minor damages were listed to both vehicles.

The intersection of 25th St. and College Avenue was the scene of the second accident around 11 p.m. Involved in this mishap were a 1978 Dodge driven by Walter Lynn Guynes of Rt. 1, Snyder and a 1963 Chevrolet driven by Terry Wayne Lee of 201 Chestnut St.

Minor to moderate damages were reported in this accident.

"I guess we were poor," recalls Gen. Dick Cavazos. "In those days, the 1930s, the ranch was not wealthy at all. The oil hadn't come in yet. But we had all we wanted to eat. On a ranch, you have your garden, and all the beef you can eat and milk you can drink. It was just a super place for a youngster to grow up."

Newspapers In Poland Say That Solidarity's Strike Call Failed

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish newspapers played down clashes between police and demonstrators and proclaimed the suspended Solidarity union's anti-martial law strike call a failure. But the government arrested 679 people in connection with the protests.

The nation apparently was calm Friday after protests Thursday in which police used tear gas, clubs and water cannon to scatter 10,000 demonstrators in Krakow and 1,000 in Warsaw.

The state-run press claimed there was limited response to a call by the banned Solidarity trade union for protests Thursday to mark the five-month anniversary of martial law. The Dec. 13th military crackdown halted 16 months of labor unrest and social protest.

Underground union leaders appealed for 15-minute factory strikes and a minute-long traffic standstill. Workers apparently were restrained, though there were reports of a few factory actions.

Newspaper headlines read: "Workers Say No to Anti-Socialist Provocateurs" and "Working Class Did Not Succumb to Calls for Strike."

The press generally said the lack of major protests indicated Poland was heading toward stability, and a possible shortening of martial law.

Warsaw television reported Friday that 43 of the 679 people arrested Thursday were interned, 50 drivers lost their licenses for flashing car headlights or honking horns, and 176 other drivers were cited for misdemeanors. The evening news gave no other details.

In Washington, the State Department deplored "the use of force against peaceful demonstrators."

"The young people who were beaten with police clubs were only asking for a restoration of the basic internationally recognized human rights in Poland," it said. "The 15-minute protest strike was a demonstration of the Polish peoples' continuing resolve to restore the freedoms won between August 1980 and Dec 13, 1981."

Two American diplomats expelled by the Polish government for allegedly receiving "materials against the interests of the Polish Peoples' Republic" from a Polish scientist, arrived in London Friday with their families.

Science attache John W. Zerolis and James Daniel Howard, first secretary for cultural affairs, refused to discuss their meeting with the scientist, Ryszard Herczynski.

The State Department denied the Polish government allegations and said the two diplomats went to Herczynski's apartment to try to set up a meeting with a National Science Foundation official scheduled to visit Poland next week.

Snyder Student Wins Scholarship

Rebecca Ann Musick, a Snyder High School senior, has been awarded an "early bird" Permian Honor Scholarship to attend Western Texas College.

Permian Honor Scholarships provide a minimum of $1,600 to highly qualified students who wish to attend an area college and the University of Texas at the Permian Basin over a four-year period.

Rebecca Ann Musick

Only those applicants from among 1982 graduates who score higher than the average of the 1981 grantees are eligible to win 1982 "early bird" Permian Scholarships. Additional scholarships will be awarded before June 1, according to J. Conrad Dunagan of Monahans, president of the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation, Inc. Also, an alternate will be named for each grantee in case a grantee should drop out for any reason. Students reaching the university level may be eligible for additional funds over and above the $400 per annum grant at that time.

Miss Musick, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Musick, is a member of the National Honor Society, served as president of the Kenneth A. MacFarland Chapter of Texas Future Teachers of America, was recipient of a West Texas Science Award in 1981 and has participated in University Interscholastic League competition in science, band and ensemble contests, spelling and mathematics.

IRA VALEDICTORIAN—Kevin Huddleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Huddleston of Ira, has been named valedictorian of the class of '82 at Ira High School. Kevin, currently vice-president of the senior class, has been active in student council, football, track, basketball, journalism and speech and drama during his high school career. Awards and honors he has earned include numerous acting awards in UIL one-act play contests, regional qualifier in debate competition for four years, regional qualifier in journalism contests for two years and honorable mention, all-district recognition in basketball in 1982. Huddleston also served as a class officer all four years in high school and was student council vice-president his senior year. He plans to continue his education at Western Texas College and then at Southwest Texas State University where he will major in speech-communications and drama. (SDN Staff Photo)

IRA SALUTATORIAN—James Crowder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Crowder, has been named salutatorian of the 1982 graduating class of Ira High School. Crowder has been active in basketball and football during his high school career and has been named to all-district teams in both sports. He was also invited to participate in the state all-star basketball game. Crowder has also served as a class officer for all four years in high school and has been active in the Ira FFA and was named outstanding Ira agriculture student in 1980 and 81. He plans to forego college and enter the local job market after graduation. (SDN Staff Photo)

JUNIOR HIGH HONOR STUDENTS—Tom Brown (right) and Bruce Strickland (left) have been named valedictorian and salutatorian of Ira Junior High School. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim R. Brown, has earned first place awards in district UIL ready writing and number sense contests and has been a finalist in the county spelling bee for the past two years. Strickland, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Strickland, has been involved in football, basketball and track for the past two years and this year served as president of the Junior High Student Council. (SDN Staff Photo)

TOP RANKING JUNIORS—Julie Kellner (left) and Kelly Bryant (right) are this year's top ranking juniors at Ira High School. Kellner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kellner, is an active athlete, cheerleader and competitor in various UIL literary competitions. This year, she earned the second place medal in the state finals of the UIL poetry interpretation contest. Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bryant, is an accomplished student athlete and active in the Ira Future Homemakers of America. (SDN Staff Photo)

Biafra...

Correspondent Recalls 'Long Night Of War'

ONITSHA, Nigeria (AP) — Biafra. The name had a ring of death to it. A little over a decade ago Biafra evoked frontpage horror pictures of hollowed, staring children with matchstick legs and washboard stomachs dying by the thousands every day of protein starvation.

Biafra. You hardly hear the word any more. Even the Bight of Biafra is gone from the maps. The furthest reach of the Gulf of Guinea on the old West African slave coast is now called the Bight of Bonny. It is as if the cartographers had tried to wipe out the memory of the cruelest of all civil wars, which claimed 2 million lives and shattered the federation of Nigeria, Black Africa's showpiece democracy.

"That was a long night ago," mused The Most Rev. Brian "Boru" Usanga, the bishop of Calabar, with an audible sigh. "Brother fighting against brother. Fortunately, Africans don't ruminate. We get on with life. You never hear the word Biafra any more, except in a derogatory way. In the heat of argument, a politician might call his opponent 'a Biafran,' meaning a dissident or a secessionist, even a traitor."

The bishop and I were having breakfast in the Hotel Presidential in Enugu during Pope John Paul II's visit to Nigeria. Enugu was the first capital of the breakaway Republic of Biafra. The hotel, once the most luxurious in Africa, had been stripped by looters when the city fell to federal forces a few months after war broke out in July, 1967. It had been restored to some of its old elegance. I was surprised to find "The Collected Speeches" and "Random Thoughts of Gen. Emeka Odumegwu Ojukwu" on sale in the lobby.

Oxford-educated Ojukwu was the leader of eastern Nigeria's predominantly Catholic Ibo people, known for their closely knit, success-oriented family structure that put a premium on education. Before the war, the Ibos had more than a million children in parochial schools run mostly by Irish missionaries. They held more than 50 percent of the civil service jobs and 75 percent of the army commissions throughout Nigeria, although Ibos numbered less than one-fourth of the nation's Moslem-dominated 55 million population.

Ojukwu called them back to their eastern homelands and proclaimed the Republic of Biafra on May 30, 1967, after mutinous Moslem troops, mostly from the have-not, rival Hausa tribe, had slaughtered 30,000 Ibos. These grisly massacres, occurring over a period of months, were the culmination of several coups and counter-coups begun ironically by young Ibo officers pledged to rid the government of corruption.

It all did seem "a long night ago," but for this reporter, who covered the war and returned for the surrender, a half-remembered landscape glimmered out the window on the 65-mile bus ride to Onitsha, a later Biafran capital where the pope said Mass on a forgotten battlefield.

Out there was "the bush," the endless green savanna of baobab and palm-oil trees where those listless staring children with the strangely copper-colored hair waited to die of the protein deficiency disease called kwashiorkor, a Ghanan word meaning "red man." A Swiss Red Cross volunteer told me then that once the hair turned red, it was too late to save the child. Now the roadside was littered all the way with tin cans, auto wrecks, oil drums, untreated garbage, the shocking refuse of the oil boom that has made Nigeria the world's sixth largest producer and resulted in more abandoned farms than the war ever did.

Once again Biafra, lush enough to feed the nation, is importing food to feed its own people, although not with rickety relief planes braving Soviet-made MiGs and British anti-aircraft guns to land at Uli, the kerosene lamp-lit stretch of highway known to the pilots as "Airstrip Annabelle."

During the war, I had landed at Annabelle from Sao Tome, then a Portuguese island, in a rusting Dakota leased by Caritas, the Vatican relief agency. Hours before we took off, the pilot had borrowed my typewriter, then asked me to witness his will. The runway lights came on for only 30 seconds, but we landed without hearing a shell fired. Uli once billed itself as "Africa's busiest airport," with upwards of 40 flights a night bringing in food and arms, often on the same plane. In the year beginning March 26, 1968, when the first relief plane landed on the jungle strip, Caritas alone flew 1,900 flights with a total payload of 40 million pounds of food.

Young Man Combines Show Business, Brains

NEW YORK (AP) — Faster than a speeding microchip (sometimes), a consummate show-off (always), a crack backgammon player (compulsively), Arthur Benjamin is also somewhat of a lyricist, a magician, a comedian, and a master of chutzpah.

This 21-year-old cluster of hyperactivity is a senior at Carnegie-Mellon University where he's studying mathematics — and the school is studying him.

Arthur ("You can call me Art") Benjamin, it seems, can multiply 462 times 318 (or any other three-digit combination) times a three-digit combination faster than a calculator. He can also spout out the square of a three-digit number in about one second and grinds down to 30 seconds when he's asked to come up with the square of a four-digit number.

All, of course, without pencil or paper.

His mother, back in Cleveland, once told a reporter Arthur was a genius and he still grins about that, apparently unaware of a mother's inalienable right to label her first born as such. Arthur insists he is not a genius, but having been interviewed once or twice already, has learned

D. Condron To Receive Scholarship

CANYON—Debra Condron, a sophomore physical education major from Snyder, has been awarded a $100 scholarship for the 1982-83 academic year from the West Texas State University Recreation Club.

She is one of four students to receive the scholarships in honor of Mary Hill, WTSU assistant professor of physical education and Recreation Club sponsor. Condron also has been elected president of the 1982-83 Recreation Club. She is the daughter of Deane Condron, 3203 Hill Ave., in Snyder.

In the tin-roofed "state house" at Uli, my passport was stamped "Enugu," although the capital had fallen a year before, and a health officer checked immunization records while customs men went methodically through the baggage. To the very end, the bureaucracy taught them by the British lived on in dying Biafra.

Policemen in crisp khakis directed what little traffic was left. Bewigged and robed justices held court in jungle clearings. Radio Biafra urged citizens to "take a flutter at Biafran football pools."

The veneer of normalcy kept people's minds off the MiG fighters and Ilyushin bombers and Soviet rockets that were shrinking Biafra from twice the size of Ireland to the size of Delaware, while the world argued the moral question of whether it was more humane to run the blockade and feed the children at the expense of arms flowing in too, or shoot down the relief planes and bring about a quick end to the suffering.

Onitsha, where the pope in his outdoor Mass prayed for victims of the war, showed few remaining signs of the 30-month struggle. The $20 million Niger river bridge, destroyed at the outset of the war, had been rebuilt. Its towers loomed out of the yellow smog in the distance beyond the pope's altar."

The pope blessed the sick at St. Charles Borromeo Hospital, which had been badly damaged by bombs and rockets during the war. The patients included a number of war-time paraplegics, but no red-headed victims of kwashiorkor.

"Some of the starving children you saw who managed to survive are walking around now with permanent brain damage," said a nun at the hospital. "There is nothing we can do for them."

SLIDES UNDER — John Wilson slides under the outstretched arm of David Smith during fifth inning action of Friday's game between Snyder and Lamesa. Snyder ran the basepaths with ease, stealing five times during the game. The Tigers won 14-4 in seven innings, allowing only four hits but rapping 14 of their own. (SDN Staff Photo)

Host Pecos On Monday...

Tigers Explode Past Lamesa, 14-4

LAMESA -- Snyder's Tigers kept their winning streak intact here Friday, ousting Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes 14-4 over seven innings.

The Tigers, who have won 14 straight games now, get set for Monday's key game with Pecos. The Eagles defeated Odessa Ector 7-2 Friday to force next week's shootout with Snyder. Both teams are 4-0 in second-round district play. Snyder could wrap up the overall District 2-4A championship with a win over Pecos, but a loss would probably force a loop playoff situation. Snyder won the first half of district play with a 6-0 record.

Friday's loss was the eighth in a row for Lamesa, which falls to 0-5 in second-round action and 7-15 for the season. Snyder is 22-5 for the year.

Tommy Gressett picked up the win here, pitching four innings of near perfect baseball before Coach Albert Lewis gave Gerald Don Hicks a look in the fifth inning. Hicks had his share of problems - in part due to the fact that Lamesa interjected its three top hitters into the ballgame - and John Wilson came in to close the show with the final two and two-thirds innings.

Snyder had little trouble hitting off of Lamesa starter Lasaro Arredondo. Brent Roemisch opened the game with a single and his teammates continued the trend as the Tigers posted a 4-0 lead early on.

Wilson sacrificed Roemisch to second and Jesse Hernandez hit into a Lamesa error. Britt Vincent then cracked a single and David Rios followed with another to provide the runs.

The second inning was a near repeat as Curtis Gafford walked and Roemisch doubled him home. Wilson then walked, Hernandez reached on an error and Barry Davis lined a single into the outfield. Designated hitter Trey Harlin walked, Vincent found first base on an error and Rios added another single before Lamesa brought in pitcher Steve Teague to find a third out. By that time, the score was 8-0.

Snyder got runs nine and 10 in the fourth stanza. Vincent singled and Rios walked. An error, combined with a single from Gafford, scored the runners.

The fifth produced one run as Wilson singled and later scored on an error, making the score 11-0.

Hopefully heading into a bi-district playoff in less than two weeks, Coach Lewis wanted to give his other pitchers a look. He brought in Hicks to pitch the bottom of the fifth. Hicks, a left-hander, opened with a walk to Tony Cervantes before Tony Lara hit into a fielder's choice. Next up Ben Morales was thrown out, but Gilbert Arredondo - the leading hitter in the district - singled. Leroy Rodriguez then walked to load the bases and Lewis brought Wilson to the mound.

"Hicks didn't have his stuff, but to his defense, Lamesa put in three players who hadn't started the game (including Arredondo and Rodriguez) because of disciplinary reasons," explained Lewis. "Originally, I had planned to look at Tommy, Gerald Don and John and maybe another of our pitchers, but at that point (in the fifth) we wanted to go for the shutout. It didn't work out that way, but John got in two and two-thirds innings and we wanted him to get some work before Monday."

Wilson, who came in without warming up, walked Blake McKinney to score Lara, then gave up a two-run single to Tim Thompson before he struck out Teague to end the inning.

When the dust cleared, the score was 11-3.

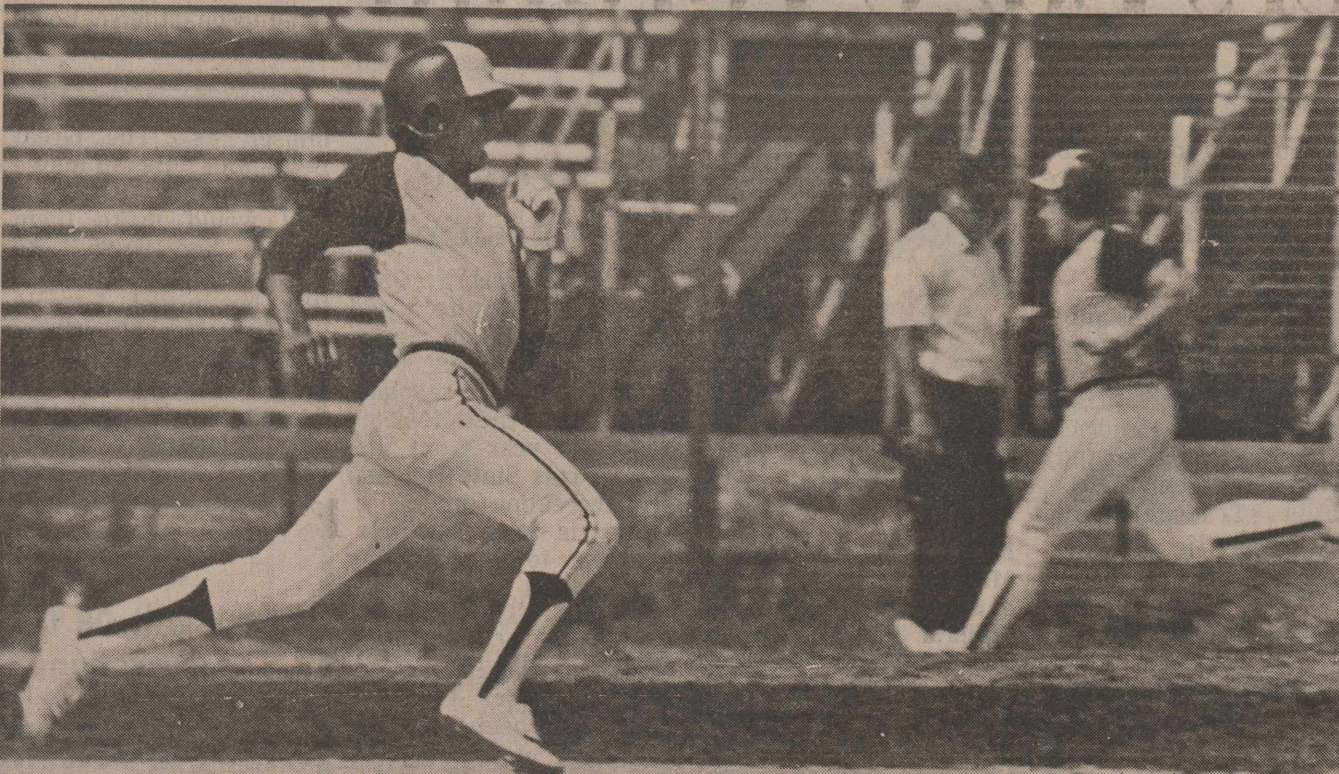

Each team scored again. Snyder got three runs in the top of the seventh as Gafford walked, Wilson singled and Hernandez doubled them in. Harlin later singled in the final run.

Lamesa scored as Gilbert Arredondo singled and scored on a basehit from Thompson.

Snyder collected 14 hits offensively and played no-error defense to key the win. Lamesa got four hits; none from Gressett, one from Hicks and three from Wilson.

Top hitters for the Tigers were Rios, two-for-

Estacado, Ector Do Well...

Schoolboy Results

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — James Lott of Refugio set a state record in the high jump and won two other first place medals Friday to lead the defending champion Bobcats to the Class 3A schoolboy track championship.

Lubbock Estacado won the 4A title over Dallas Lincoln, 52 points to 39. Lott, a junior, sailed 7 feet 1½ inches in the high jump to break the record of 7-1¼, set last year by Ramiro Molina of Laredo United.

Lott also won the 300 meter hurdles in 38.0 seconds, captured the long jump with a 23-2 effort and finished fourth in the 110 meter hurdles for 34 of Refugio's 44 points.

Teammate Ray Hutchinson got Refugio's other 10 points with a conference record 13.6 in the 110 meter hurdles. Linden Kildare was second in class 3A, eight points behind Refugio. Eddie Dowell won the 100- and 200-meter dashes for 20 of Linden Kildare's 36 points.

Estacado picked up only one first place - James Collins' victory in the long jump. But Collins took second in the 300 meter hurdles and ran on Estacado's second-place 1,600 meter relay team to lead his team to the championship.

Jimmy Phillips of Burkburnett set a 4A record in the 3,200 meter run in 9:18.6.

Charles Ricks of Odessa Ector tied the 4A record in the 100 meters in 10.4 and became a double winner with a time of 21.5 in the 200.

Mitch Long of Kenedy, the defending 3A pole vault champion, tied his 1981 conference record at 15-3.

In class 5A, Lonnie Simmons of Fort Worth Southwest had a steady performance to win the long jump, an event in which defending champion Elton Slater of Port Arthur Lincoln failed to place.

Simmons, who was second to Slater at the 1981 state track meet, soared 24 feet 5½ inches on his winning leap and had three other jumps of over 24 feet. Slater, who won last year in 24-5½, scratched on his first two attempts, went only 21-9¼ on his third try and failed to make the finals. Slater's first jump appeared to be over 25 feet, but he stepped past the line in launching the jump.

James Parman of Kerrville Tivy defended his 4A discus title with a throw of 184-7, much better than his winning toss last year of 175-8.

Cooper Claims 5A Golf Title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Abilene Cooper won the Class 5A state schoolboy golf championship on Friday by 12 strokes over Denton, 590-602, while San Antonio Churchill was third at 607.

Jeff Maggert of Conroe McCullough had a low individual score in Class 5A with a 36-hole score of 144, winning a playoff with Mitchell Cole of Denton on the first extra hole.

Paris won in Class 4A with a score of 617. Austin Westlake trailed by four strokes, and one stroke back in third was Cleburne.

Paris' Roque Baecker had a low individual score in 4A of 147.

Hardin-Jefferson won the 3A title with a team total of 462, followed by Comanche at 470 and Columbus at 485. Comanche's David Burttschell won medalist honors.

San Saba won the 2A title with a total of 486. Bullard was second at 505, and Mart third at 507. Bob Brewer of Mart won medalist honors.

Salado won the class A championship with a total of 502. Throckmorton was second at 515 and Rankin third at 521. Scott Mitchell of Sanderson won the medalist title.

HOUSTON (AP) — Doubles by Bump Wills, Bill Buckner and Gary Woods, and a triple by Larry Bowa fueled a five-run sixth inning that carried the Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 triumph over the Houston Astros Friday night.

SWC Baseball

'Horns To Face Hogs

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas was to square off against the Arkansas Razorbacks in Southwest Conference baseball action tonight.

Texas, trying for a fourth consecutive SWC crown, beat Texas A&M 12-7 and Arkansas held off the University of Houston 9-6 in Friday's first round action.

The Longhorns took a 3-1 lead in the third inning on hits by Tracy Dophied and Randy Day. Texas added its lead to 5-2 but the Aggie bats of Clint Heard, Joe Szekely and Bobby Beach evened the score at 5-5.

But Texas wasted little time in jumping back on top and pushed three runs across in the top of the seventh to take a 8-5 lead.

The defending SWC champs padded their margin with four more runs in the eighth and coasted to the first round victory.

In Friday's other contest, Razorback shortstop Chris Shaddy hit a three run homer in the top of the fifth inning to Arkansas' past Houston.

Arkansas built up an early 8-1 lead by slugging eleven hits off four Cougar pitchers in the fifth inning. Houston made charge late in the game with four runs in the seventh inning, but it wasn't enough to overcome the Razorbacks.

WTC Students Chosen For Who's Who Honors

Twenty-eight students at Western Texas College have been named to Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges for 1981-82. Who's Who students are selected on the basis of their academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential. Listed in the new Who's Who are the following at WTC:

David Appleton of Clermont, Australia, and Snyder. He is active in video for WTC and has qualified for the National Finals Rodeo. A welding major, he has been named the president's list three times. He was named Mr. WTC for 1981-82 and was a nominee for the Trailhand title. Following graduation from WTC, he plans to work professionally and try to qualify for the national finals in December. A graduate of Clermont High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Appleton.

James Clyde Baldwin I. A graduate of Snyder High School, he has majored in auto mechanics at WTC and has been named the president's list. He plans to continue his studies in business management. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Baldwin.

Jimmy Boyd of Mineral Wells. Boyd is a sophomore pre-pharmacy major and a member of Phi Theta Kappa, national honor fraternity for students in community and junior colleges. He plans to attend WTC one more year and then transfer to either Southwestern Oklahoma University, or the University of Texas. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Boyd.

Robert D. Carmichael of Angelo. A graduate of an Angelo Central high

CAB Awards London Routes

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines gained a highly prized Dallas-London route lost by grounded Braniff International and pledged to honor all tickets for the trip sold by its once bitter competitor.

The Civil Aeronautics Board gave American temporary authority Friday over the Dallas-London route. Eight other airlines had sought the route.

Braniff lost the route when it suspended all its domestic and foreign flights Wednesday. The debt-ridden airline the filed for protection from its creditors Thursday under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws.

Thomas G. Plaskett, American's senior vice president of marketing, said all passengers holding Braniff tickets from Dallas to London would be protected in the route switch.

"They won't be standby," he said. "We will accord equal status for reservations for American and Braniff passengers ... no matter how the tickets were issued."

He said American officials were "obviously delighted" to get the London route.

"American has long wanted to serve the London market and has been actively pursuing authority there for some time," said Thomas G. Plaskett, the airline's senior vice president of marketing.

The inaugural flight from the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport to London's Gatwick Airport has been set for Wednesday, Plaskett said.

The service initially will operate out of Dallas every day but Monday and Tuesday, becoming daily June 1, he said.

He said American's fares would be "totally competitive" with those set by the two main previous route rivals, Braniff and British Caledonian.

American's interim authority over the Dallas-London routes is effective until April, but Plaskett said he expected the CAB to extend that expiration date after a route investigation.

He said some furloughed American employees would be recalled to handle the additional traffic, but estimated the number of workers needed would be under 100.

Braniff's route between Houston, New Orleans and Venezuela was given to Continental Airlines. Seven other carriers also sought the route.

Eastern Airlines, which under a previous agreement is flying Braniff remaining routes to South America, was awarded the carrier's Dallas-Mexico City route.

Home Will Not Act Yet

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The home of the shipyard building the new Trident ballistic missile-firing submarines has refused to act on a resolution calling for a freeze on the deployment of nuclear weapons.

The Town Council said Monday night it should concern itself with local matters and leave national matters to Congress.

More than 20 Connecticut towns have adopted nuclear freeze resolutions, and about 50 others have such resolutions pending.

The Trident submarines are built at the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. in Groton.

The largest floral clock in the world is at Niagara Falls, Ont. It contains more than 25,000 flowers.

No diet cures arthritis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother and husband read an article about a diet cure for arthritis, called the nightshade diet. It recommended avoiding white potatoes and tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and foods that contained these as well as avoiding spices. It also stated you should eat red meats and eggs, fresh fruit but no fatty foods.

My husband now sees his doctor at least once a week and has spinal arthritis. Muscles tightened near the vertebrae until they locked his back for three weeks in the hospital. Now he takes physical therapy twice a week.

Both my mother and my husband are going wild on this nightshade diet. Both were told to avoid red meat. Which is the best way for them? White meat and mild or no seasoning or white potatoes or what? I am thoroughly confused.

DEAR READER — First of all you need to know that the Arthritis Foundation and qualified authorities on arthritis say there is NO special diet that cures arthritis and recommend only dietary measures to avoid obesity or to manage other separate medical problems that may exist independent of arthritis.

Now, that applies only to arthritis. Some people confuse osteoporosis (dissolving bones) with arthritis, which it is not. It is helped by increasing calcium consumption, or at least being sure to avoid a calcium deficiency.

You also need to know that ripping off the public with multiple quack cures for arthritis is a multimillion dollar business. It is disgraceful. Some cures by unscrupulous clinics, such as those beyond the jurisdiction of the United States, provide medicines to patients that are actually harmful.

There is no validity to the so-called nightshade diet as a cure for osteoarthritis or rheumatoid arthritis or any other form of arthritis. I would strongly recommend that your husband continue his program under his physician and that both your husband and mother should follow a sensible well-balanced diet.

To give you more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative or Wear and Tear Arthritis. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am considering trying to get in better shape and want to start an exercise program. Should I have a stress test first to determine what condition my heart is in? Heart trouble runs in my family and I have high blood pressure.

DEAR READER — If you have no symptoms, an electrocardiographic (ECG) stress test may not be very helpful. A good study of ECG changes with exercise by multiple universities showed that in individuals without symptoms it really didn't add much. The ECG changes were significant if a person already had symptoms of heart pain. If changes occurred in a person who had no symptoms the changes usually were misleading and unrelated to any changes in the arteries to the heart.

I think the risk factors: blood pressure, smoking and cholesterol levels are more important. And how you train has a lot to do with it. Let your doctor guide you but don't push your exercise until your blood pressure is at a reasonable level. Walk, walk, walk while you get your body weight under control and your risk factors are better. Then gradually increase your level of exercise, trying never to overdo it.

DEAR DR. LAMB — We would like to know if there are any calories in the following vitamins that we take: natural C, B complex, Multiple Vitamins plus iron, vitamin E and calcium with vitamin D? I am 56 and my husband is 61. We are both in good health but take these as a supplement.

DEAR READER — I get this question frequently. There are no calories in vitamins. They do not provide energy. Some of the vitamins are important in the enzyme system in your body. Here they aid in your cells' complex reaction of breaking down your energy containing foods, carbohydrates, fats and proteins. The energy (calories) comes from the food, not the vitamins. Of course, if you are vitamin deficient and the calories from the food are not released then you will be tired.

You don't need all those vitamins. The multiple vitamin is quite enough and contains all the RDA levels of the important vitamins you need. If your diet is adequate you shouldn't even need that. And your calcium supplement is far below your daily calcium requirements. You should try to get enough calcium by using fortified skim milk daily.

Expansion Began Troubles

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Braniff International's fall began with the largest expansion ever attempted in the industry, and was hastened by a loss of public confidence that turned a decline into a nosedive.

It ended Thursday at the Fort Worth home of U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John Flowers, where chairman Howard Putnam and attorney Michael J. Crammes had arrived in the dead of night.

The judge noted on the petition that he officially received the bankruptcy papers at 12:01 a.m. Thursday.

"We took the action at a very unusual hour for fear of any credit action against us," Putnam said. "Our company was very vulnerable to credit action, be it an involuntary petition that might have been collectively filed against us or individual attempts to seize and hold our assets."

In late 1978, then-chairman Harding Lawrence was convinced his airline could not survive deregulation unless it was big enough to defend its markets. He added 16 destinations that year and 15 in early 1979.

But the expansion put Braniff in a stall, and with the added weight of increased fuel and labor costs the stall became a dive.

The airline lost $9.8 million in the third quarter of 1979, normally the industry's most profitable.

From that first loss in 1979 until the end of 1981, Braniff's operating loss was $263.5 million. Between 1979 and 1981, the company paid a total of $172 million in interest charges. At the end of last year, it was in the hole an estimated $90 million.

In the last few weeks, company executives pinned their hopes on the upcoming vacation travel market.

"We were in a race for summertime," Putnam said, "and we lost."

Braniff suspended operations at 5 p.m. Wednesday, ordering its worldwide fleet home. The last plane arrived just before dawn Thursday.

Officials conceded that low passenger levels became intolerable as the airline's problems mounted. The cash flow slowed to a relative trickle.

"Nobody pulled the plug," Putnam said, referring to Braniff's major creditors, who had deferred the airline's payments on $733 million in debts.

It was, said Putnam, simply a matter of running out of money to pay bills.

Money. That became Braniff's nemesis. The more money they lost, the more the flying public, mostly businessmen, began looking elsewhere. There were late flights and flights flown but not posted on schedules. Passenger confidence fell.

Vice President Sam Coats offered no explanation for a final loss of confidence by the flying public.

"It just happened," Coats said. "Traffic weakened in April but fell precipitously in the last few weeks."

Braniff took its first step toward the bankruptcy petition Tuesday.

That's when M. Philip Guthrie, Braniff's chief financial officer, laid down the airline's books and telephoned Putnam in New York City.

"Guthrie said the drop in load factor (percentage of airline seats filled) was so dramatic he didn't see any way we could get through this week," Putnam told reporters Thursday in Braniff's world headquarters at Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

He said the bankruptcy filing was "absolutely necessary" and was the "only action we could take to preserve and protect our aircraft, the material assets..."

"There was absolutely no need to keep going on another day or so, further jeopardizing what assets we have."

Putnam said the Chapter 11 bankruptcy petitions will permit the airline to reorganize and perhaps fly again.

Elderly Have Clothing Problem

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Finding clothes they like that fit is one of the biggest problems older men and women have, says Carolyn Flowers.

An assistant professor in home economics at Oklahoma State University, she is doing research on clothing and the elderly for her doctoral study.

After interviewing persons 65 and older in Minnesota and Oklahoma to find what they like and want in clothing, she feels myths about what the old can't do or wear need to be debunked.

"The elderly are not different than anyone else the moment they hit the magic age of 65," she says. "They don't suddenly become cripples. Many of them do things 100 percent better than I can and they still want attractive, comfortable clothing."

Because of her study, and action by older persons themselves, Mrs. Flowers hopes clothing manufacturers will create pleasing clothes that fit men and women whose figures change as they age.

She explains that effects of gravity over the years cause figures to compress — making people shorter and their waists bigger.

"For women who stay slim and trim all their lives, finding suitable clothing is usually a problem unless they are willing to shop in the Children's or Junior Misses departments," Mrs. Flowers says.

Older women's necks tend to become crepe-like but designers are making dresses and blouses with no collars — only notches that don't flatter aging necks, she says.

"As men age, their waists tend to thicken and they develop pot bellies, creating the need for jackets that cover up these figure changes," Mrs. Flowers points out.

"Older men also need, but can't often find, pants with an extra-long crotch to accommodate their larger abdomens," she explains.

elderly as having fitting problems, not handicaps.

"By working toward developing functional clothing for changing figure types, clothing manufacturers can provide the elderly with clothes that fit and satisfy them," she says.

Noting that about one person in 10 in this country is 65 or older, Mrs. Flowers says, "That's quite a large market needing to be satisfied."

diamonds at trick one and waited for his trump trick. There was no score since South's 100 honors made up for the 100-point penalty.

Had South bid the slam in diamonds East-West might actually have wound up with a profit. If East opened his singleton heart, West could take the first diamond and give his partner a heart ruff to beat that slam also.

RYE PANCAKES

If you have rye flour left over from bread baking, this is a good way to use it.

1 1/4 cups rye flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 large eggs, separated
2 cups buttermilk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 tablespoon honey

On wax paper stir together the flour, soda and salt. In a medium bowl slightly beat the egg yolks; add the buttermilk, butter and honey and beat until blended; add the flour mixture and stir just until smooth. In a small bowl beat the egg whites until stiff; fold into the batter gently but thoroughly. Drop by 1/4 cupfuls, several inches apart, onto a greased griddle heated to 375 degrees. Bake until a few bubbles appear on tops and undersides are browned; turn and brown other sides. Good served with heated honey. The batter rises high on the griddle but the pancakes are a scant 1/4-inch thick after baking and 3 1/2 to 4 inches in diameter. Makes 20. Adapted from "Whole Grains" by Sara Pitzer (Garden Way).

South didn't really have enough for his forcing two bid but the game was rubber bridge and the players were far from the expert class.

North had a rather doubtful hand for a positive response, but he did have eight high card points including an ace.

The positive response drove South crazy. Not only did he burst right into Blackwood, but after North showed an ace, South bid the slam in hearts with no idea North held even one heart.

West had made a proper decision by not doubling. He expected to beat six hearts, but for all he knew they might run to six no-trump and find it a lay down. Not only would he have been out, but he would have been out of clubs lead by West could beat him several tricks.

West cashed his ace of

Foundation Searches For Innovative Products

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Safety pins and zippers are staples of life, but if they were invented today, would anybody be willing to manufacture and market them?

Maybe, says Bonnie Cashin. But, she adds, other inventions, perhaps as relevant to present and future lives, are stillborn for want of commercial receptivity to creative concepts.

Out of the designer's belief that today's commercial climate discourages creative minds and works against the design and manufacture of the useful, practical and beautiful, a new foundation has been formed.

The Innovative Design Fund—Ms. Cashin's baby which has been adopted by other creative individuals in the fashion, home furnishings and design fields—has been formed to seek out innovative products.

"We hope to begin making grants by the end of the year," said Ms. Cashin at her New York studio. "We are interested in creative ideas from uncommonly creative persons in all fields, including what we wear and use and what we live in and with."

The idea for a foundation to encourage creativity came to her, some years ago. "I used to call it my impossible dream," she said. But she began working to establish such a group only about two years ago when a relative urged her to set up the foundation if she believed in it.

The designer and her board of advisors, which includes others in the design field, representatives of museums, foundations, business and the media, have a sense of urgency about their goals.

"We feel an intensive but-will-it-sell attitude is eclipsing valid design. We believe some of today's consumers are more adventurous than manufacturers."

"If business is bad, and it is bad, it's because the available products do not answer consumer needs. The creative and innovative person is, furthermore, a member of an endangered species," she said.

The fund, which received a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, is presently raising funds so that an awards program can be implemented. The fund plans to make available small grants as well as its expertise to individuals with a creative idea. The grants will finance building of a prototype product. Anyone with a good idea will be eligible for consideration.

"We are not going to put anybody in business, but we will offer some money and the advice and aid of established individuals who care," explained the designer.

As the winner of virtually every major fashion award over more than 30 years, Cashin has been called "one of the most inventive master craftsmen in the world of fashion."

"a fashion original," and "an inventive master of form."

Her concept of layered dressing for comfort and warmth has entered the history books, and the designer has prospered in spite of the absence of any foundation to support her work. But, she said, the role of a creative loner in the world of commerce is difficult. For every individual who succeeds, retaining her ideals and genius, many are discouraged, turned back and ultimately lost to the society which needs them.

"Buckminster Fuller, the honorary director of the Innovative Design Fund, told me once it takes about 20 years for an idea to reach the public. We want to shorten that span of time for some creative ideas that can contribute to our surroundings."

What sort of products could she imagine future award winners might create? Off the top of her head, she offered a few suggestions: "Objects as ordinary as the safety pin or as glamorous as a solar chip, fabric, gossamer light yet warm ... or shoes with a new construction that would enable women to walk comfortably.

"Everyone agrees good design can make economic sense, but they forget someone is needed to spearhead good design. It doesn't come out of a committee, it comes from one human being, working solo."

TERMITES

Spring is the time for termites to swarm.

Perhaps nothing is more alarming than for homeowners to suddenly find hundreds or thousands of small winged insects flying around outdoors, particularly around night lights. What is worse, is to find these termite swarms indoors, almost always indicating an infestation somewhere in the house.

Swarming is a naturally occurring phenomena for termites. It's the way well-established colonies extend and perpetuate their own kind. Termites swarm outdoors regularly and in the spring, with swarms coming from dead trees, fallen logs, fences and out-buildings.

When swarms are found indoors, homeowners should take a calm, reasonable approach to solving the problem.

First, make sure the winged insects are termites, since ants commonly swarm at about the same time. The two insect identifications are easily confused. There are four distinguishing differences. (1) The Antennae of the termite is not elbowed, but the ant's antennae is. (2) The two pairs of wings of the winged adult are of equal length, the ant's wings are unequal in length. (3) Eyes are absent on the termite, but present on the ant. (4) The termite has a thick waist, the ant has a very thin waist.

After making sure you have termites, call a professional, a commercial pest control operator who offers a termite control service. In fact, contact two, or three such companies and ask for an inspection of your premises.

Before signing a service contract, be sure you understand the terms of a termite control job. Always ask for a written or graphic description of where infestations were found and what will be done to solve the problem. This way, you will be sure of getting your money's worth.

Unless you are experienced in insect control of this type, I suggest you turn termite problems

Nevada Needs State Symbol

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada already has an official animal, flower and even a fossil, but still could use a state symbol, a lawmaker says.

State Sen. Lawrence Jacobson of Minden said Wednesday at a Legislative Commission meeting that a lapel-button symbol of some type would have "promotional" value.

Commission members didn't leap at the idea, though some staffers suggested possible symbols of a blackjack hand, a bearded miner, and a miner's pick and pan superimposed on an outline of the Silver State.

Sen. Keith Ashworth, D-Las Vegas, suggested the symbol of a slot machine or "an atomic bomb going off" to commemorate the state's role as a nuclear test site. Assemblyman Joe Dini, D-Yerington, said if a miner is depicted, his jackass should be included too.

Church Sets Fellowship

An all-church fellowship to honor a visiting missionary will be held Sunday night following the evening worship of the 37th Street Church of Christ.

The fellowship will be held in the Towle Park Barn. The event will honor Carlos Esteves, missionary from Brazil, who has been visiting in Snyder for the past two weeks. The 37th Street Congregation supports Esteves in Brazil.

over to professionals to take advantage of their experience, specialized equipment and guaranteed work.

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Unfinished furniture, bought fully assembled, or in kit form, fills a gap for the budget-minded and the creative "do-it-yourselfer," says Clark Garner, a specialist in design and environmental analysis for Cornell Cooperative Extension. Garner says consumers can save from 30 to 45 percent by buying unfinished furniture, with the greatest savings realized in buying pre-assembled pieces available locally, rather than ordering kits which must be assembled.

He advises doing comparative shopping, looking for pieces of high quality, with good construction, woods and craftsmanship.

If the wood is tacky or resinous, rather than smooth, it will affect the appearance of the finish, he warns.

Beta Sigma Phi Meets

Nineteen members were present for the regular meeting of Lambda Kappa chapter of Beta Sigma Phi May 11 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Barbara Hamlett, president, made committee assignments for 1982-83 and thanked the social committee for its efforts in the Mother's Day Luncheon held recently. Jackie Buckland, ways and means chairman, announced that the Western Dance will be Oct. 2 at the National Guard Armory.

The chapter voted to participate in White Buffalo Days in October and hold a Christmas wrapping paper sale. Twila Polk read a letter she wrote to the international office in Kansas City requesting a change in ritual procedures and Nancy Ballinger, service chairman, reported that the chapter raised $525 in the recent door-to-door campaign for the American Cancer Society.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. Hamlett announced that the International Beta Sigma Phi theme for next year will be "The Golden Key to Friendship."

Hostess for the evening was Bette League and the door prize was won by Margaret Corkran.

The next meeting will be the annual Revealing Party on May 18 in the home of Margaret Corkran. The supper will begin at 6:30 p.m. at Mrs. Corkran's home, 4017 Irving.

HONORED—A reception was given in honor of Mrs. Margie McNair May 13 in the home of Betty Courtney. Mrs. McNair has been a teacher in Snyder schools for 28 years and is retiring with a total of 33 years in the teaching profession. (SDN Staff Photo)

DAR Program On Conserving Energy

The Martin Preuitt Jr. chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met May 4 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with 16 members present. Mrs. Clyde Hall Jr., vice president, conducted the business meeting and led the pledge to the flag.

Mrs. Paula Matthews, a representative of Texas Electric of Sweetwater, gave the program on "How to Conserve Energy." She commented that heating and cooling use more energy than anything else in our homes and suggested a number of ways to conserve in this area. She recommended that although lights don't use a great amount of electricity, they should be turned out when not needed, as any small saving can help. Also, fluorescent tubes use less electricity than incandescent bulbs.

Best foot forward

Walking is one of the simplest, most enjoyable forms of exercise. Follow these tips to get the most benefits from your daily stroll. To keep your body aligned and your posture straight, as you walk imagine that you feel an invisible tug at the crown of your head. Also, pay attention to the way your feet fall — weight should transfer from heel to toe. Since the bulk of the pressure is carried by the balls of your feet, it's a good idea to cushion them with foam rubber insoles or moleskin. Put a little swing in your stride — use your arms to propel yourself, allowing them to swing freely and easily.

"Homesick Restaurant"...

Funny, Sobering Tale

DINNER AT THE HOMESICK RESTAURANT. By Anne Tyler. Knopf. 303 Pages. $13.50.

An old woman edging toward death reflects on her marriage and children, and the responsibilities her family has heaped upon her during her lifetime.

Pearl Cody Tull is 85. She married Beck Tull, a traveling salesman, when she was 30. They had three children, Cody, Jenny and Ezra.

Then Beck told Pearl he didn't want to stay married. He promised to send her money, but he said he didn't want to visit the children.

"Dinner at the Homesick Restaurant" is Anne Tyler's bittersweet account of Pearl Tull's life, and the terrible effects the unseen presence of Beck Tull has on the entire family. It is Anne Tyler's ninth novel. It is intricate and sobering, funny and sad.

After Beck abandons her, Pearl pretends to everyone, including her children, that her husband is on one of his long business trips. But she is forced to take a job as a cashier. Where she grew up, a woman expected the men to provide. And Pearl sometimes accuses her children — aged 14, 11 and 9 — of being lazy and ungrateful.

Cody is jealous and competitive with his younger brother, Ezra, planning all sorts of tricks to divert his mother's love away from Ezra and toward him.

Cody, who becomes a traveling businessman, eventually steals Ezra's fiancée away from him. Jenny marries three times. Ezra never marries. He stays at home, taking care of his mother. He becomes the owner of a restaurant he calls the "Homesick Restaurant." Cody realizes, in later years, that every time the family gathered at Ezra's restaurant, they were never able to finish a meal. Someone always got angry or upset or left.

As Pearl is dying, she wonders why her "simple error in judgment," marrying Beck Tull, should have had such far-reaching consequences.

"You would think," she muses, "that life could be a little more forgiving." Carol Deegan Associated Press

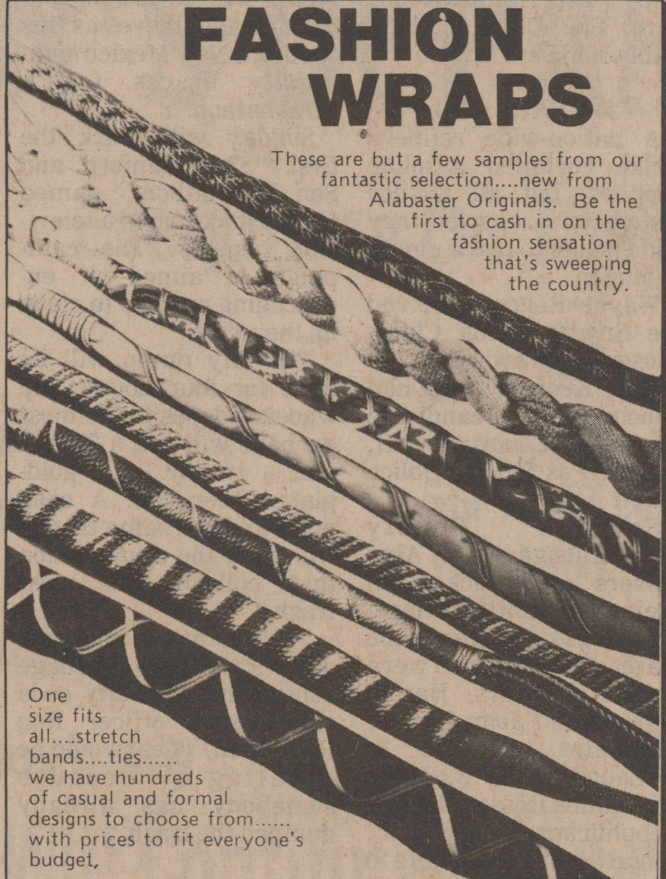

In 1926, a 19-year-old American, Gertrude Ederle, became the first woman to swim the English Channel.

PRESENTATION—Evelyn Mebane, treasurer of Snyder Palette Club, presents a $300 check to Mike Thornton, chairman of the fine arts division at Western Texas College, to benefit an art major at the college. The club also gives $150 to a Snyder High School graduating senior who plans to major in art. The funds are a result of the Spring Art Show held by the club which is a non-profit organization. synfuels not dead Exxon's decision to abandon its big shale oil recovery project in Colorado is a blow to the new "synthetic fuels" industry, but certainly not a fatal one, according to recent reports.

Sooner or later the oil locked up in western shale deposits will be needed. In due time, the cost of extracting it will not price it out of the market, which is now the case.

Exxon looked at the latest projections of the supply and price of crude oil and decided there were too many uncertainties to justify completing the $6 billion Colorado project. The same projections had given the federal government second thoughts about the $1.1 billion in loan guarantees which were to subsidize the Exxon project.

The Reagan administration is taking a more cautious approach than the Carter administration toward subsidizing new oil production technologies. The world oil surplus and decline in prices has diminished the sense of urgency in developing so-called synfuels.

Cost estimates for the Exxon project have almost doubled in the last year, driving up the prospective price that the shale oil would have to command to make the plant profitable. It is significant that a rival in the field, Union Oil Co., is proceeding with its own shale plant in Colorado and expects to see the first oil flowing next year.

Union claims that its plant employs a more efficient technology than that which Exxon was planning to use, reducing by half the investment per barrel to production. Another factor is that Union has a different kind of government subsidy—a contract to supply diesel and jet fuel from the plant to the Department of Defense at a guaranteed price that is likely to be higher than the market price for oil for several years.

The administration believes there is less risk in subsidizing synfuel plants with oil purchase contracts than with construction loan guarantees. Exxon's difficulty in controlling the cost of its plant seems to justify that policy.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A little league baseball team is one with 5 would-be pitchers and 10 outfielders."

Last week we discussed job opportunities, and a fellow brought by a clipping that suggests that ambition, imagination and initiative are ingredients for success.

The young have often been told that the way to obtain success and fame is to "build a better mousetrap." If the world is going to beat a path to your door, then ideas have to be put into action.

The story brought to us concerned a young man in New York who turned an idea into a profitable venture.

He reasoned that people are generally tidy. He found that Americans in particular spend a sizeable amount each month for such things as toothpaste, deodorant, hair spray, eye shadow, makeup, nail polish, etc.

Americans take an above-average number of baths and showers, and they send their clothes to dry cleaners.

With cleanliness next to godliness, he wondered, why do folks drive around in such dirty cars.

The 19-year-old Brooklyn native goes to the extreme in the cause of auto hygiene. He dons a diving mask and protective clothing to slide underneath a car on a dolly and attacks engine grease with toothbrushes and solvents.

He cleans the door jams and he removes the wheel covers to scour the wheel wells. He removes the chrome trim to get at dirt behind it. He puts silicone on the tires.

This clean routine has a touch of artistry, he explains, and customers pay for his work. He charges about $100 for a complete wash and polishing. Time required is about one day, letting the engine cleaned another $100.

Does he have any customers? In New York, he has developed a clientele of some 50, including a judge and several corporate executives.

Jimmy is a real entrepreneur. He believes in working overhead. His work is accomplished in a no parking zone across the street from his apartment building. He sometimes uses water from a nearby city hydrant.

There are some drawbacks. He says washing cars outdoors in winter is less than fun. The only solution is to work fast.

If there is some advice we could give this week's graduating seniors, it might follow the idea expressed by the fellow in Brooklyn.

Dare to dream, be bold, be humble, take a chance and be willing to laugh at your mistakes.

Price Mathieson of Abilene was the winner of the second annual Ministers Golf Tournament held at the Snyder Country Club. Runnerup was Jack Riley of Snyder, and finishing third was R. C. Hester of Friona.

Scurry County candidates winning nomination in the first Democratic Primary included Wayland G. Holt, district judge; Keith Collier, sheriff, and Don Adams, tax assessor-collector. In runoff were Marion Dabbs, incumbent, and Eldon Perry for Commissioner in Precinct No. 1, and Thayne Mebane, incumbent, and Charlie Yoast for Commissioner in Precinct No. 3.

For the first time in years, Snyder High School football players were in spring training as a result of the school being moved up to Class 4A by the University Interscholastic League.

Gary Patterson of Snyder High School won both the low hurdles and intermediate hurdles in the state UIL track meet at Austin.

For whom does Ma Bell toll? Not for us, it sometimes seems.

Take her long distance rates, for example. I keep seeing and hearing these advertisements about how we can call some far away place, such as Washington D.C. or Europe or even Australia. I assume, and talk for so many minutes for some paltry little sum. That's great. But who do I know in Washington, and I don't speak a word of European and am not comfortable with kangaroos. They look too much like rats.

Now try calling some place like Lubbock, or Colorado City 25 miles to the south, and see what happens. You can almost hear Ma Bell chuckling.

Those damn recordings make me crazy too. I called Snyder from Sweetwater the other day and I was a bit rushed for time. I dialed 0 and told the operator the number. She said that would be one dollar and then asked if I knew I could make the call myself. Okay, I hang up and dial direct. On the third try a recording tells me to please deposit one dollar.

Telephones are only a small part of Ma Bell's homestead, I understand. Everything from the national news in this paper to computerized messages across the oceans are made possible by AT&T technology. Even our national security is enhanced by the system. Every day new heights are reached in sophistication, efficiency and innovations.

I'm impressed. So how come she can't build a pay phone smart enough to make change?

Remember the phone booths of yesteryear? To you unfortunate, pre-superman era kids, they were made of a sturdy red wood and had character. They added flavor and a touch of class to an otherwise bland street corner. Even more important, they also protected the customer from the elements. Best of all, they provided privacy. Remember privacy?

And the way those telephone books are attached is ridiculous. Who can use them? A midge maybe. But pay phones are still too high for

You can tell a lot about a person just by how he or she gets up in the morning.

You show me a woman who hears the alarm, reaches over, shuts it off and gets out of bed and I'll show you a wonderful woman with a practical head on her shoulders who is able to face reality.

On the other hand, you show me a man who hears the alarm, pounds it senseless with his fist, resets it and shouts, "Ha! Ha! Scum! I lied to you last night. I got another five minutes!" and I'll show you a lunatic.

There are some people in this world who refuse to give in to routine. They should never marry and above all should never have children.

Have you any idea what it's like to hear an alarm go off four or five times in a single morning? It's like sleeping in a bus station.

People who can't get up in the mornings have an entire metabolism that is out of sync. The only time my husband ever felt at home was at the Cincinnati zoo when we walked into a house for nocturnal animals. His eyes adjusted to the pitch dark within seconds and as he looked at the hamsters, bats and owls, he said sadly, "Why can't it be this way for me?"

Night people go through their lives bumping into the shower, grappling for the soap, shaving with the wrong aerosol can, stabbing at their eggs and kissing anything that stands still goodbye.

When the sun goes down they come to life. They're animated, bright-eyed, make phone calls, cook, play games, play with the dog and consider Carson "prime time."

Their lives would be a visit to Shangri-la were it not for that small clock by the bedside with an alarm that shatters their sleep like a knife twisting in their eyeballs. It is their only natural enemy and stands between them and five more minutes of morning slumber.

The other night as I slept, I opened one eye to the room flooded with light. My husband sat playing with the alarm clock. Finally, he laughed and turned off the light.

"What's so funny?" I asked.

"I've really put one over on it this time," he said. "I set the alarm for 3:30. And here's the kicker! I didn't turn the alarm on!"

The man is certifiable. COPYRIGHT 1982 FIELD ENTERPRISES, INC.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Your Birthday

May 16, 1982

This coming year, friends and alliances will play significant roles in your affairs. Look for a Scorpio in particular to be especially lucky and helpful in establishing some lasting new relationships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Important agreements should not be entered into lightly today. Once you make a commitment, the other party will expect you to carry it through to the letter. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in each of the seasons following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Where your work or career is concerned it might prove luckier for you to proceed independently of others today. Associates may lack your capabilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This will be a very enjoyable day if you don't turn into work something that should be fun. Save your serious thoughts for other matters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In ventures today that involve others, don't take any disruptive measures if all is running smoothly. Change for change's sake is a no-no.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Have the courage of your convictions today. Once you make a decision you believe to be right, don't let others less well-informed dissuade you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could be quite lucky in getting a big return for your efforts today, but you're not likely to get anything if all you have to offer are ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Competitive games should be played just for fun today. Don't let anyone entice you into making bets.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be luckier today from things others originate rather than from ventures you conceive. Get on the bandwagon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to feel more comfortable today in familiar surroundings with old friends rather than going somewhere different with a new acquaintance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even though you may want to devote this day to your more frivolous pursuits, don't ignore business matters. You could be quite lucky.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your possibilities for success are very good today provided you don't let unexpected developments rattle you. You'll be a winner if you keep your head.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something rather fortunate could develop today, but you'd be wise not to discuss it prematurely. Wait 'til it's on firmer ground.

May 17, 1982

Members of the opposite sex should prove extremely lucky for you this coming year in your business or financial affairs. Make it a point to maintain good relationships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Treat others generously today, but don't let yourself be used by one who knows how to play upon your emotions to get what he or she wants. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your possibilities for achieving your goals are good today, but you must be mindful of details. Small mistakes will impede your progress.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Let someone with your best interests at heart proceed today in the manner he or she envisions. Your suggestions may not work as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're very perceptive today and it will be easy for you to spot the flaws in the behavior of friends. However, it's best to keep your observations to yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Judge associates today the same way you would like them to judge you. They'll not find excuses for your actions if you fail to excuse theirs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you find co-workers a trifle difficult today, there is a chance that the basis for the disharmony could be laid at your doorstep.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally you treat your duties responsibly, but today this splendid quality could desert you. You might breeze off to play when there's work to be done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you schedule your time properly today, you'll be capable of substantial accomplishments. However, a loose agenda and last-minute efforts spell unproductiveness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In dealing with loved ones today, it will be the nice little things you do that really count. Recall this if you want to make points with those special people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Larger financial issues will be handled prudently today, but your small extravagances could unbalance your budget. Be pennywise, as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something profitable could develop today due more to the efforts of another, but you might feel you're entitled to the lion's share.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful when speaking to a sensitive friend today. There's a possibility you may inadvertently say something to wound his or her feelings.

Interest Levels Going Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest levels are headed back up to their 1981 highs, when the prime rate topped 20 percent, says the chief economist for the Wall Street investment house Salomon Brothers.

Henry Kaufman, interviewed Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" program, said a business recovery in late 1982 combined with a big federal deficit would force up the cost of borrowing.

Snyder High School Bands Set For Monday Night Finale

Snyder High School bands will present their final program of the year Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Jerry P. Worsham auditorium.
The jazz ensemble will open the program with a variety of selections, including everything from ballad to disco.
Second on the program will be the concert band under the direction of Clifford Franklin. Selections will include "United Nations" march by Karl King, "On Broadway" arranged by Paul Jennings, and "Windstar" by Claude Smith.
Closing out the program will be the symphonic band. The program will be "Introduction" and "Fantasia" by Mitchell, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach, "Globe and Eagle" march by Sousa, and "Mannin Veen" by Wood.
Of special interest to local music lovers will be the performance of the "Globe and Eagle" march. This edition done this spring by Mark Rogers is dedicated to the Snyder High School Band, and this concert will be the first public performance of this number for the local audience.

During this concert, special recognition will be given to the seniors who will be performing for the last time for SHS. There is no admission charge.

Young Son's Older Love Makes Parents Age Fast

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I'm so heartbroken I don't know where else to turn.

Our handsome 19-year-old son, whom I'll call Rick, graduated from high school at 17 and went to college 200 miles from home. He came home for the Easter holiday with a 34-year-old woman he has been sleeping with for the last year, unbeknownst to us. The woman (I'll call her Lucy) is a widow with a 2-year-old child! Lucy and Rick say they are in love and want to marry.

Abby, my husband is 38 and I am 37 — just three years older than Lucy. Rick told us that she is the only woman he has ever slept with, so it is obvious that she seduced him.

My husband and I want so much for Rick at least to try dating girls his own age instead of tying himself down to a woman who's old enough to be his mother.

This is tearing us apart. How can we get our son out of Lucy's clutches?

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Don't try. The more you talk against her, the more fiercely Rick will come to her defense. That's the surest way to drive them into an early marriage. Get to know Lucy better and give her a chance. Most important, try not to show your "heartbreak" and disappointment. Let nature take its course. Regardless of the outcome, it's not the end of the world. And here's a day-brightener for you: At least 98 percent of the things we worry about never happen.

DEAR ABBY: My college-educated 23-year-old daughter is ruining her life, and I am helpless to stop her.

She says she is in love with a married man who plans to divorce his wife and marry her.

Abby, the man has three grown children and a grandchild. And he's 54 — that's 10 years older than her father! I didn't know what to do so I rang up this man's wife. She was shocked and said she had no idea her husband was planning a divorce.

I'm so afraid my daughter will get mixed up in an ugly scandal. I can't talk any sense into her head. I tried to teach her right from wrong, but I must have failed. She lives in an apartment with two other girls and thinks that just because she supports herself, she can live her own life without any interference from me. What can I do?

A MOTHER WHO FAILED

DEAR MOTHER: A 23-year-old self-supporting woman can't be controlled by her mother or anyone else. If you tried to teach her right from wrong, you haven't failed, she has.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from a middle-aged professional woman, married with a grown family, who had become involved with an alcoholic, prompts this letter.

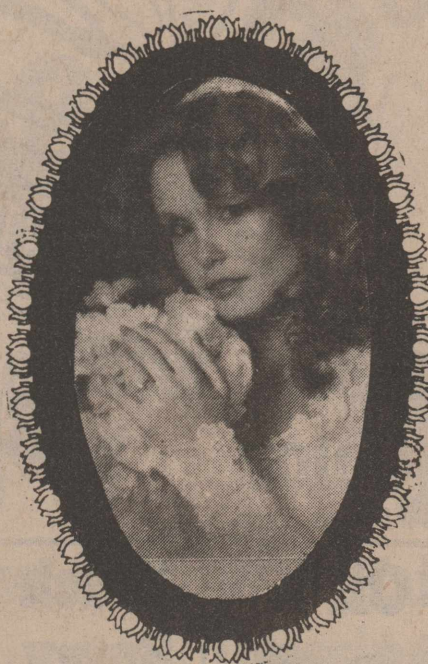

As a retired hospital teacher and rehabilitation counselor, I have seen many such unfortunate situations. As noted, the alcoholic is often a charming, intelligent, personable individual when sober, but weak, manipulative and sometimes dangerous when drinking. My mother once told me that in the old country they had a saying to the effect that no girl should marry a man until she has seen him drunk. Somewhat cynical, but realistic, as then she will know what she is getting and getting into. Alcohol is a fairly effective truth drug — it strips off the veneer and shows what is beneath.

HAROLD J. IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR HAROLD: About that old country saying: I'd rather marry a man I had never seen drunk than marry one I'd seen drunk too often.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Agricultural occupations are the most hazardous line of work, says the American Council of Life Insurance. There were 2,000 work deaths and 200,000 injuries among farmers during 1980, moving agriculture from a long-standing position as the third most hazardous occupation to top spot on the danger list.

Due To Postal Costs...

Fundraisers Suffering Setbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as federal officials look to private charities to take up more of the nation's social burden, fundraising by those groups has suffered a sharp blow in postage costs.

Budget cuts have reduced government payments to the postal service, and that resulted in rate hikes Jan. 10 affecting a variety of subsidized second-, third- and fourth-class mail.

"It's killing us," complained Joan Holmes, executive director of the San Francisco-based Hunger Project.

The higher rates have killed Sign magazine, a Roman Catholic monthly that folded this month after 61 years of publication.

And officials of the American Kidney Fund say the higher rates may have been associated with the death of a Virginia woman because every dollar paid in additional non-profit postage is taken from those waiting for financial help to obtain treatment.

"The relationship between non-profit postal rates and deaths from kidney disease is direct and real. In January, after the abrupt and staggering increase in postal rates, a woman on our waiting list died," Ellen Kay Hatch, executive director of the fund told a House subcommittee.

While she did not name the patient involved, Ms. Hatch noted that her organization raises 99 percent of its funds via mail, and the rate increase meant that in January it had $16,000 less to spend assisting individuals.

The woman, she said, had died that month while awaiting assistance from the foundation. It was the first fatality on the group's waiting list, which grew to about 500 people last fall, Ms. Hatch said.

Subsidies holding down the rates for certain classes of mail had been scheduled to be phased out gradually by 1987, but the Reagan Administration convinced Congress to end the subsidized rate early.

Known as "revenue foregone," the subsidy for 1983 was proposed at $500 million by the administration. However, the House postal operations subcommittee has recommended a subsidy of $913.2 million, which would roll back the rates to the original schedule. The question is now before the House Budget Committee.

Under the administration cuts, non-profit organizations soliciting money now have to pay 27 cents a pound for bulk mail, up from 15.8 cents. And those using second-class mail to distribute publications that contain little advertising saw the per item charge jump from 0.9 cents to 4.5 cents.

The rates for first-class mail and most for-profit magazines and newspapers were not affected, having gone up last November. The January hike did involve an increase for some newspapers, those circulated within one county. That rate went from 3.4 cents to 3.9 cents per pound, or 1.3 cents to 1.9 cents per item.

"People are going to have to cut back on the amount of mail they send out. That's going to affect their returns," observed Clyde Shorey of the March of Dimes.

A 2.1 cent increase means an extra cost of $2.5 million in mailing 120 million solicitations, he said.
