How's that?

Lunch break

Q. Can a company work employees 8-15 hours without a meal or rest break?

A. Yes, according to federal and state labor officials.

Robert Fortman, assistant area director of the U.S. Department of Labor in Dallas, said no federal laws limit the amount of hours an employer demands of a worker, nor are there any regulations mandating meal and rest breaks.

Some states have such regulations, but not Texas, according to Larry Kosta, director of the Labor/Licensing Enforcement office of the Texas Department of Labor and Standards. A state law limiting the work hours of female employees was declared unconstitutional in the 1960s.

John Rogers, public relations director of the state AFL-CIO office in Austin, said a worker's only guarantee of fair treatment in this regard is a union contract specifying breaks and work-hour limits.

Senate signs Blue Law death

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texas senators put their signatures on the death warrant for the state Blue Law on Friday.

Led by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, Blue Law opponents showed on Thursday that they controlled sufficient votes to repeal the law that bans the sale of certain items on consecutive Saturdays and Sundays.

They failed to suspend a rule to allow a final vote on Thursday, but they came back

Friday morning with a 23-7 vote to suspend the rule and a voice vote for repeal.

It was a big victory for Farabee, whose large district includes Mitchell and Scurry counties. In previous sessions he had opposed repeal but said this time he switched because he is convinced most Texans dislike the law.

West Texas senators split on the issue, with Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, siding with the losing effort to keep the Blue Law. Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, joined Farabee on several motions but favored an amendment that would have rewritten the Blue Law and suspended it only during the Christmas buying season.

Final approval sends the bill back to the House, which voted two-to-one for repeal in early May. If the House accepts some Senate amendments, as expected, the legislation would go to Gov. Mark White for his signature or veto. His approval would repeal the law as of Sept. 1.

White said he will sign the repeal bill if it protects employees from having to work seven days a week or on days set aside for religious worship. He said he believes the present bill contains those protections.

The bill was changed to satisfy White's concerns, including a provision that any employer would accommodate a worker's religious beliefs in making work assignments on weekends unless it could be shown that the accommodation would be "an undue hardship on the conduct of his business."

LULAC disputes decision

Vice principal pick questioned

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

The naming of a new assistant principal at Big Spring High School led to a confrontation between the League of United Latin American Citizens and the Big Spring school board Thursday night.

LULAC spokesman Linda Arsiaga asked for a list of names of applicants for the job. Superintendent Lynn Hise read a list, including Roland Atkins, Terry Robertson, David Reynolds, Tom Adams, Bud Baker, Steve Waggoner, and Johnny McGregor. McGregor was the only out-of-district person considered for the job.

Arsiaga asked, "Whom do you consider the best man for this position?"

Hise replied, "Tom Adams." Adams, a staff member at Big Spring High School, has worked in the office for the past two years and is chairman of the social studies department.

Arsiaga asked, "Professionally, and I'm not saying this because he has lived here all his life, professionally is he the best qualified?"

Hise replied, "In my opinion, yes he is."

Arsiaga asked, "Are you aware that...you have a man who has a life superintendent and life principal certification? Also he has had previous experience as a principal and...he is Hispanic, a minority, a population that has never been considered in an administrative position here in Big Spring."

Arsiaga was referring to Bud Baker, a high school teacher whose mother is Hispanic and whose father is Anglo. Baker is bilingual.

Hise said there was more than one applicant with superintendent and principal certifications. He denied that a minority candidate had never been considered for administrative positions.

School board president Jimmie Anderson said he and other members of the school board had faith in Hise and, "We can't please everybody. The decision was made for the benefit" of the whole district.

School board member Billy Pineda said, "I would like to see more minority representation" in

A San Angelo development company has torn down the first of two buildings it has scheduled for demolition.

Only dirt remains from the vacant gasoline station in the 400 block of Gregg where Larry Lumpkin and Associates plan to build a Cousin's convenience store, according to city building permits records.

Also scheduled for demolition is the former Big Cheese Building at 208 Gregg, records show.

The San Antonio developers plan to construct a Wendy's Hamburgers fast-food restaurant on the site, according to records.

The city has not granted building permits for either structure yet. According to the building permits clerk, the company has delayed filing building permits until after it settles the closure on purchase of the land.

The developers brought in plans at the time they received the demolition permits but they did not have an engineer's seal, she said.

• Remodeling is underway at the former Downtown Auto Clinic, a vacant Art Deco-style converted gasoline station, at 204 Johnson.

According to a building permit filed in April, owner Tom Rose received a permit for cosmetic remodeling of the structure. Construction work is estimated at $1,000.

The building permit did not indicate what kind of business was planned for the site.

Legal aid office to open here

Attorney David Sullivan of Midland believes the law was written for everyone.

He works for West Texas Legal Services, and beginning in June, he will visit Big Spring once a month to represent persons who otherwise could not retain a private attorney.

"We will handle civil cases for those in need of help," Sullivan said.

Those in need of help, Sullivan said, are battered wives and children, people treated unfairly by a business or government agency, and tenants with complaints against landlords.

West Texas Legal Services is expanding its services despite federal budget cuts in 1982.

"We got hit very hard from Reagan's cuts in the legal services budget. But now, we're attempting to reach out to people in the outlying areas," Sullivan said.

He said people in smaller towns or rural areas such as Big Spring have not been receiving government legal services at all.

"This is a convenience now to those people," Sullivan said.

Sullivan's office in Midland covers 13 counties. Legal service attorneys travel through these counties conducting interviews with persons in need of help. Sullivan said in the legal circles, this action is called "circuit riding."

"It enables us to come in contact with people we couldn't before," Sullivan said.

Sullivan said that although he is not bilingual, his secretary would assist him with Spanish translation.

Interviews in Big Spring will be conducted on the first Monday of each month at the North Side Community Center located at 110 N.E. 8th.

Sullivan said if needy persons can also travel to Midland and in-

Hotel Settles: 'So far, so good'

By KEELY COGHLAN

In his own words, San Antonio developer Gil Cuadra has been "a good boy."

Cuadra Thursday paid off 1984 property taxes on the Hotel Settles, sending checks to Howard County Tax Collector-Assessor Dorothy Moore and Big Spring Independent School District Tax Assessor-Collector Don Green.

Moore said a certified check for $3,401 "and odd cents" was hand-delivered to her office at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. The check arrived in Big Spring at 3 a.m. via a courier service, she said.

According to Moore, the check will pay the 1984 college district, county and city taxes on the property. It is the first installment of taxes under an agreement Cuadra made to pay off back property taxes for the building.

"I feel like things are looking good. It's a big shot in the arm for the county to get these taxes," she said.

Moore said she also received payment from Cuadra for the court costs in the civil lawsuit he filed in 118th District Court against M Bank of Dallas. That money will be turned over to District Clerk Peggy Crittenden, she said.

Green said he received a check for "roughly" $2,070 for the 1984 school property taxes.

"It was right on schedule," he said, referring to an agreement he made with Cuadra, similar to the one with Moore, to pay off the back taxes within a year.

"I've seen one payment. That's all he's promised to do so far. So far, so good," Green said.

"We've been meeting our obligations," Cuadra said Thursday afternoon during a telephone interview.

The demolition work inside the hotel has been completed, he said, and construction crews are preparing the walls for painting. Cuadra said he has talked to architect Joel Mills about plans for the restoration of the historic 55-year old hotel, built by oilman W.R. Settles at the end of the boom.

Work inside the Hotel Settles lobby continues on schedule, according to San Antonio developer Gil Cuadra.

Big Spring cools off under showers

Big Spring received a modest share.

But in Luther, it poured. A steady downpour which lasted over an hour dropped half an inch of rain in the city late yesterday afternoon. The storm rolled in from the west of Big Spring soaking much of the Crossroads Country area.

The National Weather Service at the Midland-Odessa Regional Air Terminal is predicting more rain over the weekend.

Nancy Martin of Luther said she registered 1½ inches of rain on her gauge after yesterday's shower.

"The roads are pretty well washed out," Martin said this morning about last night's rain activity.

The U.S. Big Spring Field Station registered .53 of an inch of rain. This year's rainfall continues to exceed the normal rate. Big Spring has now registered 7.61 total inches of rain. The normal rate at this time of year is 5.23 inches.

Martin said it had already rained last night when she arrived home from Midland.

She was gone most of the day and missed the rain.

"I checked the rain gauge yesterday morning and it was empty, so obviously it rained that much," Martin said.

Red Thomas of 106 E. 13th said he received a ¼ of an inch.

In Coahoma, a neighbor of Commissioner Paul Allen spoke with the Allens this morning and said he received .4 of an inch of rain on his gauge.

Wayne Allen of Coahoma said this figure was registered about a mile northeast of Coahoma.

Jarrett Hopper, 2, looks up at the rain during a break in the action at a Little League baseball game last night. The steady rain which fell across the city and Crossroads Country area doubles the amount of rainfall for the Howard County compared to last year.

Farmer J.B. Shockley of Knott said he registered ½ inch of rain on his gauge.

Kathey Bayes, a bookkeeper at the Farmer's Coop Gin in Knott said she didn't see any lightning in the area during last night's rainfall.

"Lightning helps crops if it strikes the soil," Bayes said.

She said lightning adds nitrogen to the soil.

Meanwhile, a large thunderstorm front dropped heavy rains in parts of West Texas. South Texas and the Hill Country was under a flood warning.

Much of West Texas was hit by torrential rains last night.

Streets flooded in San Angelo and Snyder. San Angelo and Lubbock reported about 1.5 inches of rain, while just over a half inch fell in Abilene. San Antonio drew 1.68 inches, while Bandera was drenched by 2.37 inches of downpour, the weather service said.

Heavy rains pounded South Texas and the Hill Country early today, flooding some low water crossings and causing an overflow at the damaged Upper Guadalupe Lake Dam in Kerrville, authorities said.

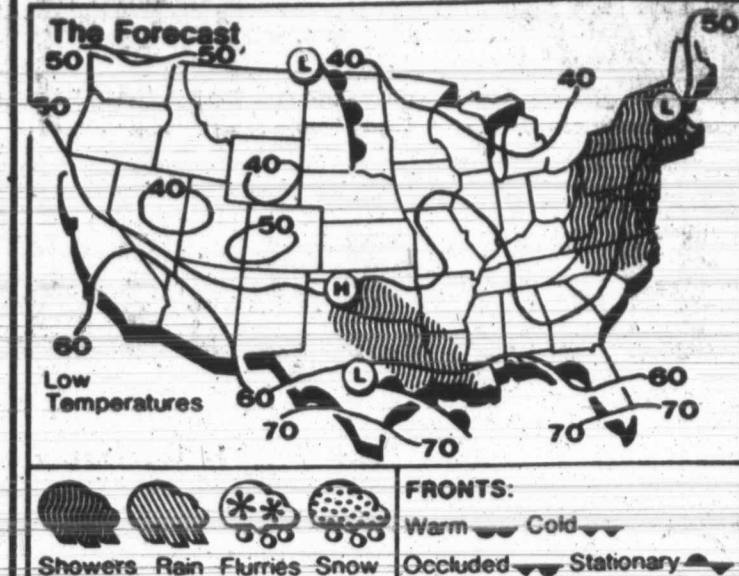

Water had risen 4.5 feet over the earthen core dam early today, but the "structure itself appears to be holding," said Bernie Bruns, general manager of the Upper Guadalupe River Authority.

The dam was damaged in a New Year's Eve flood that sent waters 10 feet over the barrier.

Repair work has been ongoing since then and the dam held Feb. 23 when waters rose 4.5 feet above the structure after heavy rains, Bruns said.

"We're in pretty good shape unless we get a gully washer," Bruns said.

Local

A 60 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms is in today's forecast. Highs will be near 80 with northeasterly winds blowing 5 to 15 miles per hour. Tonight, temperatures will be cooler with lows in the mid 50s and northeasterly winds blowing 5 to 15 miles per hour. A 40 percent chance of thunderstorms is forecasted. By Saturday, highs will be in the upper 70s with easterly winds blowing 5 to 15 miles per hour. A 20 percent chance of rain is forecasted.

State

Heavy rains hit the Texas hill country early today, filling rivers to overflowing, flooding streets and sending campers scurrying for higher ground.

The National Weather Service said nearly 6 inches of rain fell at Kerrville Thursday night and early today, and golfball-size hail pounded the area during the storm.

The Guadalupe River above Kerrville had risen 13 feet by daybreak and was expected to go higher as new runoff water flowed into the stream. A flood warning was issued for the Kerr County area about 4 a.m. Those living near the Guadalupe River were urged to seek higher ground.

A flash flood warning was issued for the San Antonio area, and a flash-flood watch was posted for southwestern portions of North Texas, the hill country and adjacent areas of the Edwards Plateau and Central Texas.

U.S. Highway 377 was closed south of Junction because of more than four inches of rain in Kimble County.

Much of West Texas was hit by torrential rains Thursday night. Streets flooded in San Angelo and Snyder. San Angelo and Lubbock reported getting about 1.5 inches of rain, while Abilene reported 0.55.

Police have identified a suspect in a sexual assault Wednesday of a Big Spring woman, according to Lt. Jerry Edwards.

The investigating officer, Sgt. Pam Jordan, is in the process of obtaining a warrant for the man's arrest, Edwards said.

Wednesday's sexual assault is not related to any other sexual assaults under investigation, he said.

The assault occurred between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in a residence on the west side of town, according to the police report. The incident was reported at 1:20 p.m. Thursday, the report showed.

The woman suffered no injuries other than the assault, Edwards said.

A gasoline hose on a 1973 Ford van was cut at 4 a.m. Saturday or Sunday morning at St. Mary's Episcopal School at 118 Cedar, according to police reports.

Police arrested Ricky Lin Wallace, 19, no address listed, at 1001 E. 13th on suspicion of criminal trespass.

According to police reports, Ricky Wallace refused to leave the house at the request of the owner, Sharon Wallace of 1001 E. 13th. He also refused a police officer's request to leave the premises and was arrested.

Board delays action on parole hearings

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Staff Writer
A final determination is still pending for two persons who had parole hearings Thursday in Howard County.

District Parole Officer David C. Harman said that the cases of Roger Turner, 34, of Sand Springs and Jerry Hopper, 29, of Colorado City "are still pending review reports by the board before final determinations are made."

Turner was sentenced to the Texas Department of Corrections in 1983 for a theft offense. He was released in Dec. 1984 and was recently arrested for suspicion of indecency with a child.

Harman said that seven witnesses testified during the four-hour hearing. Other evidence reviewed during the hearing included polygraph tests and statements that Turner made.

Harman said that both he and Parole Officer Ted Welch recommended revoke at the hearing's conclusion.

The indecency with a child charge is still pending before a Howard County Grand Jury, Harman said.

A parole hearing was also conducted for Hopper who was arrested on May 2 at the Howard College woman's dormitory for disorderly conduct.

Harman said Hopper was on parole from prison after being convicted for a burglary of a habitation with intent to commit rape.

Hopper's parole officer Stoney Blackraven of Abilene listened to testimonies from four persons, Harman said.

"He (Blackraven) recommended revoke at the hearing's conclusion. Parole officer Welch made no committal regarding recommendation," Harman said.

The disorderly conduct charge is not pending before a grand jury since it is a misdemeanor. Both parolees remain in Howard County jail, Harman said.

He and City Public Works Director Tom Decell will meet shortly to discuss the architect's plans for the building, Cuadra said.

Since work has begun on the hotel, Cuadra said he has received calls from local drilling companies, florists and restaurants about renting space in the building.

"The response has been fabulous. It's real exciting," Cuadra said. "We haven't decided on the tenant mix yet. As soon as we determine that, we'll get back in touch with them."

Cuadra also has met with Fire Marshall Jim Ryals to discuss the layout of fire escapes in the building. Ryals, who confirmed the meeting, said they discussed the number of fire exitways needed but had not determined where they should be located.

Cuadra also said he planned to place a 75-unit hotel on the upper floors, and also would offer meeting facilities for conventions and clubs in town.

"We're still on target for opening in August," he said.

On July 4, the lights on the outside of the hotel will be turned on in a special ceremony, he said.

To increase parking, the buildings between the hotel and the Greyhound bus station will be demolished and made into parking spaces, he said.

"Our next step is to find a new location for the Boys Club to grow into and swap out the property," he said. "That's not an ideal location for them and we will need more parking."

People fill out an application to qualify for low-income status. West Texas Legal Services does not charge its clients.

"When someone knows he can't afford a lawyer, there's a temptation to run over him. With our services — we hope to attempt to balance it out," Sullivan said.

Sullivan first came into contact with West Texas Legal Services while he was a law student at the Western New England School of Law in Springfield, Mass. He applied for a summer work program in Fort Worth in 1981 and served as a briefing attorney for Judge Richard Countess.

He said West Texas Legal Services is a non-profit corporation in contract with the Legal Services Corp. in Washington, D.C. The federal office distributes money according to a formula of $7.60 for each person defined as poor by the national criteria.

"You contract in return to meet the legal needs of poor people who live in your area," Sullivan said.

He said the money he receives from Washington is an "inadequate amount."

"We don't pretend we are helping a majority of people. But we try to guarantee safety," Sullivan said.

Gov. seeking clemency

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Deciding the fate of a 75-year-old man sentenced to life in prison for shooting his senile wife is "a matter of mercy," not politics, Gov. Bob Graham said after requests poured in for him to intervene.

An attorney for Roswell Gilbert said he expected to deliver a formal request for executive clemency to Graham by Monday.

"We are seeking at this point release, commutation of the sentence," attorney Harry Gulkin said in a telephone interview Thursday. "He (Gilbert) is hopeful. He's praying someone will answer his prayers to be released."

Graham has asked his legal staff to research the possibility of clemency for Gilbert, who said he shot his wife Emily, 73, out of compassion because of her suffering from Alzheimer's disease and a bone disease.

During an impromptu news conference Thursday, Graham said he would wait until he had more information to make his decision about clemency.

'We Are the World' rolls

NEW YORK — A $6.5 million royalty check from the "We Are the World" hit record will send the rock music collaborative's first plane load of food, clothing, and medicines to famine-stricken Africa next month.

With a wide smile, USA for Africa President Ken Kragen said, "I'd be happy to take that" as a Columbia Records executive handed him the check at a news conference Thursday in Manhattan.

"This is only the first in a number of checks to follow," said Al Teller, senior vice president of the CBS subsidiary.

USA for Africa plans to charter a 747 cargo plane, Kragen said, which will carry 240,000 pounds of goods, including high-protein biscuits, vitamins, intravenous solutions and rehydration salts, tents and blankets to Africa.

47 injured in pileup

OMMERCE, Calif. — At least 47 people were injured in a chain-reaction accident involving a tractor-trailer truck, a bus, a commuter van and two cars, officials said.

Most of the victims were on the Rapid Transit District bus, said transit district spokesman Marc Littman. Most of the injuries appeared to be minor, according to officials at the scene.

The accident occurred Thursday afternoon when the tractor-trailer, carrying 78,000 pounds of apples, collided with the bus which then struck a commuter van, said California Highway Patrolman Charles Neuberger. Two other vehicles sustained minor damage.

Littman said 35 bus passengers were taken to hospitals. He said the bus bound from downtown Los Angeles to La Mirada 20 miles away was carrying a more than 40 passengers.

United we strike

Pilots for nation's largest airline walk out

By The Associated Press

Union pilots struck United Airlines today, stranding passengers and forcing the nation's largest air carrier to cut off service to 89 airports. United vowed to continue flying with non-union pilots.

Talks between the company and the Air Line Pilots Association, meeting with federal mediators, had stalled over United's proposal to pay beginning pilots at a lower salary scale than the one currently in effect.

Negotiators met in Boston Thursday for a fifth straight day and continued until about 2:30 a.m. EDT today. No time was set for a resumption of talks.

After the midnight EDT deadline by United's 5,300 pilots passed, picket lines went up in Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, Denver, Portland, Ore., Honolulu, Los Angeles, Newark, N.J., Boston and Seattle. It is the airline's first pilot strike since 1951.

"Most of us have made preparations to stay out for a long time if necessary," said Douglas Nolker, a DC-10 pilot. "We're a united group of pilots like I have never seen in my 18 years at United."

"I expect to see at least 98 percent of the United pilots honor the picket line," Nolker said.

Even before the strike was announced United canceled 155 flights, about 10 percent of the airline's system, because pilots called in sick at higher than the normal rate, said Chuck Novak, a spokesman for the Chicago-based airline.

"United Airlines, in the face of a strike, will continue daily operations. Operations initially are scheduled to serve 50 airports, and we will temporarily discontinue service at 89," Novak said.

"The focus of the service will be on major hub airports in Chicago and Denver, with service flowing through those hubs," Novak said.

United, the primary carrier at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport, with 55 arrivals and departures daily, revised its schedule there to four flights a day, all to Chicago.

Pilots still wearing their uniforms began picketing after 9 p.m. PDT in Seattle, where a 9:25 p.m. flight was canceled and passengers mobbed the United ticket counter.

"Our phone lines have been jammed and about 95 percent of them have been about this (strike)," said Ron Kyles, supervisor of United's Seattle reservations office. "We've been advising them to hold onto their tickets and will inform them of a new schedule." He said ticket-holders would be protected by re-routing or re-booking.

Telephone lines to the information desk at United Airlines at Logan International Airport in Boston were busy early today, but a man who identified himself as the manager of the lost baggage department said three of the day's 14 scheduled flights would take off, all bound for Chicago, he said.

All-United flights out of Baltimore-Washington International Airport were canceled, said airline spokesman Larry Dunn at the airport. United normally has a dozen flights in and out of the airport daily.

As pickets told signs outside the terminal at Los Angeles International Airport, United executive Alan Kline said United will work with other airlines to ensure that flight plans of passengers will not be compromised.

"I made these travel arrangements a month ago and I don't know what I'm going to do if I miss my connection in New York," said Los Angeles resident Lydia Delarosa, who was en route from Los Angeles to Europe.

Gloria Hornecker, of Vettura, Calif., said, "If my flight doesn't leave on time tonight it's going to cause a lot of problems in Baltimore. I have my family waiting to meet me at the airport there."

"I've been trying to reach the airline since last night. I haven't been able to," said Daniel Cubik of Stamford, Conn., stranded today at LaGuardia Airport in New York. "Now we get to the airport at ten after one this morning and no one came out here to explain to us what was going on at all. Now (at 7 a.m.) we're on a line. Six different flights were canceled, one at a time. Now we have two people working up here. They don't even know what's going on."

Since Monday, the airline and the ALPA negotiators have focused on United's proposal to start new pilots at $21,600 a year, instead of the current $22,452, and to slow their raises. United captains with 20 years' flying experience make up to $152,000 a year.

Soviets fight alcoholism

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities have announced plans to stamp out alcoholism by raising the drinking age from 18 to 21, making liquor harder to buy and increasing penalties for drunkenness.

The nation's Communist leadership has launched periodic, less vigorous campaigns against alcoholism for generations, with little success. Until a few years ago, throwaway caps were put on vodka bottles because it was assumed they would be emptied at one sitting.

Thursday's announcement was preceded by a growing campaign in the news media against absenteeism from the job. Statistics were published blaming drink for 75 percent of murders and rapes, 80 percent of robberies, 90 percent of general hooliganism and most divorces.

Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who took over the Soviet leadership in March, set greater productivity as one of his main goals. In April, the Communist Party's ruling Politburo announced that new measures would be proclaimed to combat the "social evil" of alcoholism.

Group threatens officials

BEIRUT, Lebanon — An anonymous telephone caller claiming to represent the shadowy Islamic Jihad group today said the Iran-linked extremists plan a major attack against U.S. diplomats.

The message, telephoned to a Western news agency in Beirut, came the day after the Reagan administration declared it will not negotiate with the group, believed composed of fundamentalist Shiite Moslems, for the release of kidnapped U.S. citizens held hostage in Lebanon.

"The American government should await the largest military operation it has ever known," the anonymous caller said.

"The organization has been preparing for this surprise for a long time, the caller said. "Refusal of our demands will mean hell for its (America's) diplomats across the world."

Mine explosion kills 5

TOKYO — A gas explosion ripped through a coal mine in northern Japan today, killing five miners and trapping at least 48 deep underground, authorities said.

Takeshi Hashiba, a spokesman for the Yubari Police in Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost main island, said 336 miners were underground when a gas explosion rocked one of the Minami Oh Yubari mine's deepest shafts, about a half-mile below ground level.

Of those accounted for, five miners were killed and nine were listed as injured in a nearby hospital, Hashiba said. He said he did not know the exact condition of those injured. The rest escaped unharmed.

School workers charged with selling drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — A 28-year-old teacher was among four school employees arrested and charged with selling marijuana, cocaine and heroin to undercover agents at a junior high school, authorities said.

"It is difficult enough to raise children in New York City, and for the very people charged with educating and protecting them to be involved with drugs is a disgrace," District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said Thursday.

A 'great patriot' got just reward

Sentencing former Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Thayer and Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris to four-year prison terms, which they are now serving in Big Spring, sends exactly the right signal: White-collar crime will be treated seriously by the courts, even if it's committed by those with friends in high places.

Thayer masterminded what federal prosecutors called one of the biggest and most "egregious" inside-trading schemes ever uncovered by government. In 1981 and 1982, while serving as chairman of the LTV Corp. of Dallas, a major defense contractor, and as a director of Anheuser-Busch Co. and of Allied Corp., Thayer leaked secret plans of corporate takeovers to Harris and others; those who were tipped off made over $3 million in illegal stockmarket profits.

When the Securities and Exchange Commission began investigating the case, Thayer repeatedly lied. Indeed, as recently as last August he sought to persuade his girlfriend, Sandra Ryno, to "recant the truth" about how she had profited from the scheme.

Thayer's plea for mercy was original, if nothing else. He hadn't personally made any money, Thayer told the court; he was merely building a nest egg for Ryno, presumably to keep her off welfare and in mink. Just before sentencing, Thayer told Judge Charles Richey that he's paid an awful psychological price for his sins. "I don't like myself as well as I used to."

Richey ignored clemency please from a host of prominent friends. Somehow, the judge was able to resist the contention that the former Reagan administration official was, in the words of one of his friends in high places, a "great patriot" who became rich and prominent "in the classic Horatio Alger style."

Such attempts at persuasion are familiar, even if the roster of those doing the persuading — including former President Gerald Ford — was not.

Reconciliation ... for some

Since this is a period of reconciliation and the President is in a forgiving mood, I called one of his close associates and asked him, "Now that President Reagan has forgiven the Germans for what they did in World War II, do you think he might forgive the American air traffic controllers who went out on strike?"

"The President would never go that far. You have to remember what the air controllers did. When they walked out on their jobs they committed an atrocity against every man, woman and child in the United States."

"I know it was a despicable thing to do," I said. "But I thought after Bitburg, it would be the perfect time for the President to heal the wounds here at home."

"The President is the first person to let bygones be bygones, but to my knowledge he has never forgiven anyone who has gone out on an unauthorized strike."

"Okay. For the air controllers. Do you think in his present mood of reconciliation Mr. Reagan might forgive the mother in Chicago who chiseled on her welfare?"

"How could he forgive her?" "Maybe the President could fly to Chicago and lay a wreath in front of the liquor store where he claims she bought a bottle of vodka with her food stamps."

"Too many people in this country have suffered because of that welfare mother in Chicago. It's one thing to forgive people you fought against during a war — it's another to turn the other cheek to those who cheat on their food stamps."

"I guess there is no way for the President to reconcile with the American farmers who went bankrupt due to bad management."

"By reconciling with the farmers at this time the President would be sending the wrong signal to the agricultural community. The Germans may have made some mistakes in World War II, but you could never accuse them of looking for a bailout from Washington when they couldn't sell their crops."

"I don't imagine that the President would be willing to make a gesture of reconciliation toward the congressmen who voted down aid for the contras fighting in Nicaragua."

"How can you compare what the people buried in the Bitburg cemetery did to left-wing spiteful legislators who exterminated Mr. Reagan's foreign policy in Central America?"

"My mistake. Since this is National Reconciliation Week I thought the President might want to forgive those who voted against him on Nicaragua, just so he could get his budget package through."

"Nicaragua is a moral issue, and Mr. Reagan will never compromise on a moral issue for political gain. That was the message of Bitburg."

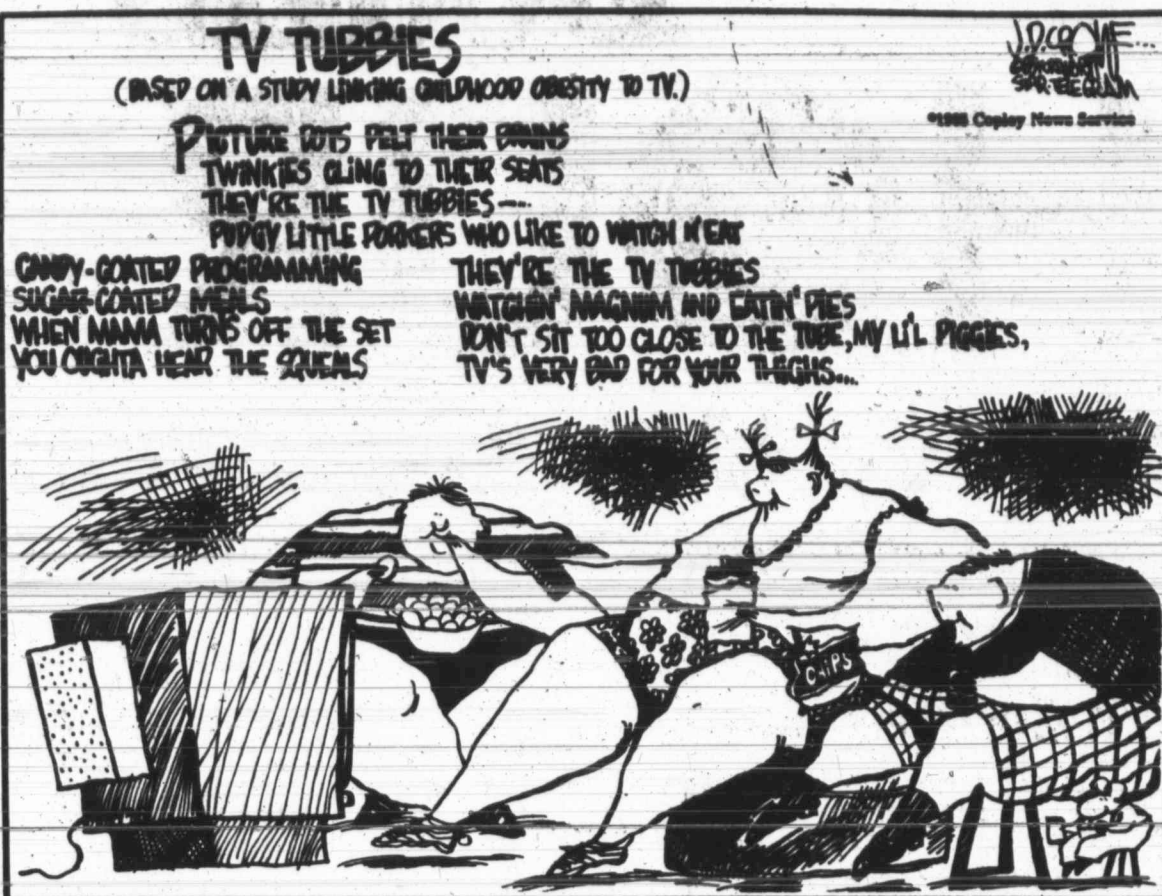

"Is there any possibility the President would want to make peace with the big spenders in the Senate who for the past 40 years have driven this country into debt with their wild socialist schemes?"

"It's much too early to offer an olive branch to them. Although everyone who fought on the German side in World War II is no longer alive, there are many big spenders walking around scot-free who have never answered for their economic crimes. Someday they will have to face a higher judge when the President of the United States."

I asked, "Do you think it's too soon for the Reagan administration to bury the hatchet with those people in the media who have blown the Nazi thing way out of proportion to what it really is?"

"If you're asking the President to pardon them for what they have written about Bitburg, the answer is no. Their stories are too fresh in this administration's mind. Mr. Reagan still believes in 'collective guilt' where the journalists of this country are concerned."

Keeping a secret in Oman

WASHINGTON — A high-hush Pentagon contract involving U.S. military bases in the strategic sultanate of Oman has become a bit of a sticky wicket, thanks to the influence of British advisers to the country's ruler, Sultan Qabus bin Said.

As we reported earlier, the British persuaded the sultan to insist that the contract for maintenance and operation of the bases be awarded to a British company, Airwork Ltd.

Even though Airwork has agreed to take an American firm as a partner in the contract, security-minded U.S. officials are leery of giving foreigners access to the extremely sensitive equipment that will be positioned in Oman. They remember the damage done in the past by the likes of Klaus Fuchs and Kim Philby, who had the highest British security clearance while they spied for the Soviets.

Are the Oman bases worth all the concern? You bet they are.

One of the installations, at Al Khasab, forms the southern wedge of the strategic bottleneck known as the Strait of Hormuz, through which most of the oil from the Persian Gulf is carried to the Western world. From Al Khasab, it is just 24 miles across to Iran.

The most important of the four bases is on Masirah Island. It is being built up as an airfield and staging area for use by the U.S. rapid deployment force in the event of a crisis in this vital area.

"Omani facilities could be very important for sea control and support of naval forces, and could serve as staging bases for land-based tactical fighter and mine countermeasure operations to protect the Strait of Hormuz and the Arabian Sea," Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger explained in a secret report.

The report didn't even mention the highly sensitive communications facility the Air Force plans to build on the island. Its top-secret code machines and other equipment will provide instantaneous communication with Ninth Air Force headquarters in South Carolina, as well as other U.S. military facilities and orbiting satellites.

The importance of such a sophisticated communications base was illustrated by its absence during the 1980 attempt to rescue the hostages in Tehran. The rescue team had to rely on airborne command posts and other radio transmissions that were intercepted even by ham-radio operators in the area.

Obviously, anyone with access to the Masirah Island communications would know the condition, readiness and placement of U.S. military forces in the area at any given time — including AWACS planes on surveillance patrols. Such information could be devastating if it fell into the wrong hands — such as arms smugglers or terrorists — or a country targeted for U.S. military action.

The civilian contractor charged with maintaining the communications base — no American military personnel are allowed to be stationed there permanently — "is expected to receive messages from the Air Force from time to time telling him to break out certain of the assets and make them ready for the U.S. military forces," a source explained. By assets he meant tanks, trucks, planes, ammunition and other hardware stored at the Omani bases.

"Such a message could indicate either an exercise in a war game or it could indicate a serious deployment given an incident," the source said. "That information should not be available to anyone who does not possess the required clearances and a need to know."

In fact, the security precautions are not merely theoretical. The Pentagon is already using Omani bases, but keeping it quiet lest the friendly sultan suffer the fate that befell a previous U.S. ally, the Shah of Iran. Four different military exercises have been conducted from the Omani bases, and Navy P-3 Orion anti-submarine planes fly out of Masirah. Oman was also the secret area for the aborted hostage rescue mission.

A CHANGED MAN: Dennis Banks, who earned his reputation — and a prison sentence — as a hothead of the American Indian Movement, is winning a new nickname: St. Dennis. Banks, who is serving a three-year sentence for assault and inciting a riot before the 1973 Indian takeover of Wounded Knee, has emerged as a leader respected by inmates and staff alike at the South Dakota state penitentiary in Springfield. He had been a fugitive until last October.

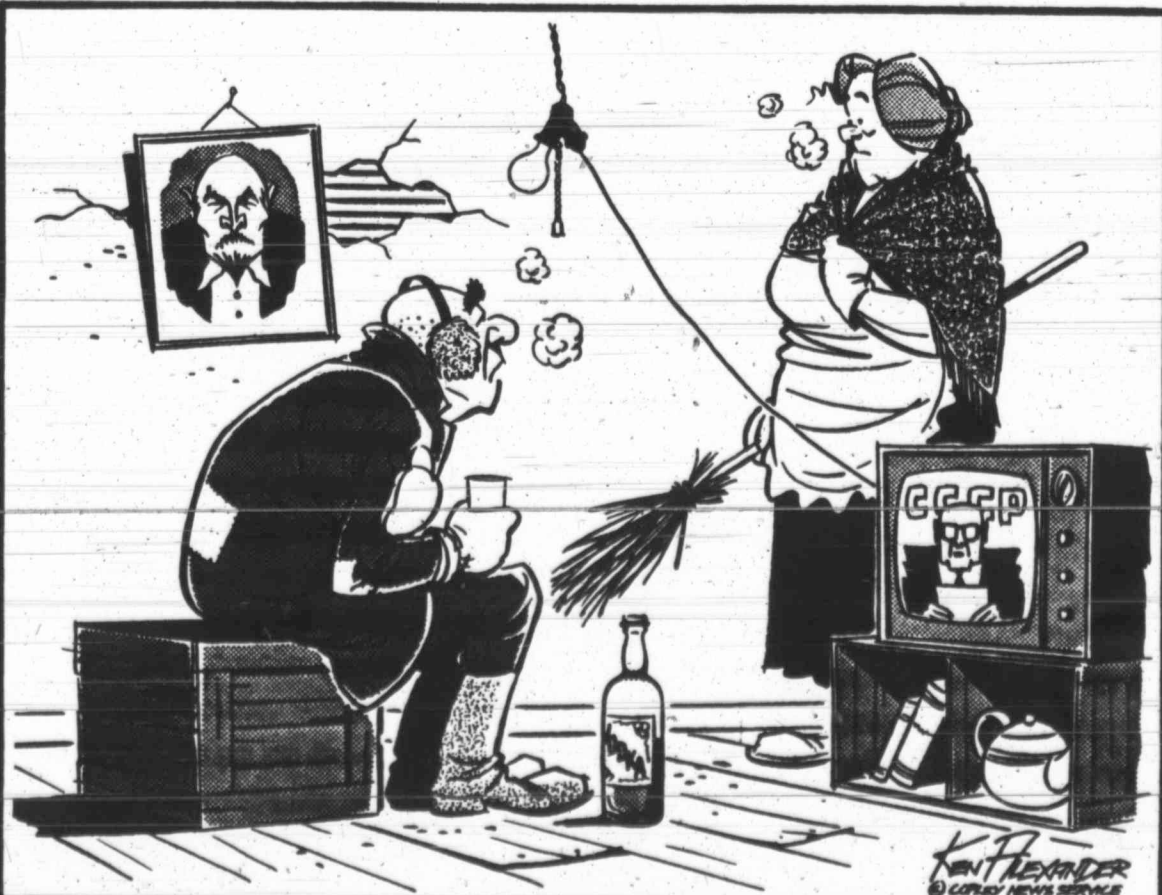

A few weeks ago, after a tornado destroyed homes and farms in the area, Banks was among the first to volunteer for cleanup work. He has also been instrumental in having a traditional Indian "sweat lodge" built at the minimum-security facility.

But the incident that drew near-veneration from Indian prisoners occurred when he was still at the main prison in Sioux Falls last Christmas Eve. A young Indian prisoner had a hysterical fit and screamed that he was going to kill himself. He called repeatedly for "Mr. Banks."

Guards got Banks, and he took along a handful of "sweet grass," a haylike weed used for centuries by Indian medicine men. Banks talked to the suicidal prisoner, then burned the grass and had the young man rub the ashes on himself. The patient's heavy sweating stopped and he began to breathe more easily. Banks proceeded to convince him that suicide would mean he didn't love his parents, who had suffered for him.

The prisoner, though far from happy, is still alive. Warden Herman Solem confirmed the story.

Around The Rim

Waking up to the world

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Move or help somebody move. You can play truck driver for a weekend and work some muscles that otherwise are going dormant. You can zoom on wide open highways and pretend you're a mad saint like Jack Kerouac or Neal Cassidy.

Put on them denims and identify with Bruce Springsteen lyrics.

A friend of mine from Oregon came to visit last week and I thought it an opportune time to move. He could help me.

When I asked him if he would provide assistance, he said, "Sure — if you organize the move."

We left Big Spring on Friday night at 9 p.m. for a pleasant six hour drive to El Paso. The moving and storage company in El Paso said I had to move my stuff out before 8 a.m.

Upon reaching El Paso at 3 a.m., we checked into a hotel. I immediately bunked down. My friend had some M-TV to catch up on.

I picked the truck up at 8:30 a.m. My friend remained back at the hotel, in bed — dead to the world. An employee at the moving and storage company showed me how to move the items but he didn't assist me.

I called my friend at 10 a.m. He remained dead to the world.

I arrived at the hotel at 12:30 p.m. and dead to the world my friend still remained.

He showered after he had arisen. We lunched and then it was off to Big Spring. I had planned a divine revelation party that night.

He drove the car. I mowed 'em down with a truck that couldn't exceed 60 m.p.h.

We never saw each other on the highway. He stopped in Fort Davis and spent a glorious afternoon there catching some sun.

Back in Big Spring, I moved such delicate items like Grandma's old sofa into the new place by myself once again.

I didn't resent my friend's actions when he arrived later for the party.

It was significant Bruce Springsteen had married the weekend I moved. Jack Kerouac's novels remain very meaningful to me.

It was I — who had awakened to the world.

Dear Abby

'Classmates only' reunion causes rifts

DEAR ABBY: This has become a hot issue in our home. What do you think of a "classmates only" party for a 20-year high school reunion?

I am on the planning committee that decided the first night should be for classmates only, and the second night a lovely dinner dance with spouses. All 18 members of the committee voted in favor of the idea.

Abby, we figured that the first night we would all be so excited to see each other after 20 years, our spouses would be too bored (or jealous) to enjoy themselves anyway.

We are not lust-hungry — we are friend-hungry — and after 20 years, don't you think we classmates deserve one evening together without our spouses? My husband is furious.

GRANT HIGH GRAD, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR GRANT HIGH GRAD: I can understand your husband's resentment, but since the planning committee voted unanimously for a "classmates only" party, the excluded spouses can unite for a "get even" party and have even a better time than the Grant grads. Take nothing for granted.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is marrying a girl whose parents are putting on the wedding. The bride's mother told me that we could invite 100 people to the wedding, so I made up a list and sent it to her. (We live in the same town.) She sent the list back with some of the names crossed off! She crossed off my daughter and her husband because she didn't like them. Abby, my daughter is just as dear to me as my son who is being married.

When I was told that we could invite 100 guests, I didn't think they had to be approved by the bride's mother.

Please tell me how to handle this. I don't want to make a fuss, but I can't allow our daughter and son-in-law to be snubbed this way.

HEARTBROKEN PARENTS

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: If you haven't spoken to your son and his fiancée about this, do so. The bride's mother has no right to cross anyone off your list. If your son and his fiancée can't persuade this unreasonable woman to include your daughter and son-in-law, it's up to you and your husband to insist upon it. Please be gentle with her. She sounds disturbed.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Miscellaneous shower fetes bride-elect Jennifer Foster

A miscellaneous bridal shower was given for Jennifer Foster, bride-elect of Paul Hutchings, May 6 at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Hosting were Ramona Harris, Jean Morris and Shirley White. Out of town guests were from Stanton and Midland.

Corsages made of kitchen utensils and pink baby net and burgundy ribbon were given to the bride-elect, her mother Carolyn Foster, the prospective bridegroom's mother June Stone, and his grandmother Vena Fortune.

Guests were served from a table draped with a pink cloth and centered with a bouquet of burgundy and pink flowers. Gifts were displayed on a table with pink cloth and a gray vase of pink flowers. Janet Foster, sister of the bride-elect, registered guests.

The couple will wed at 2 p.m. May 25 at the First Church of God.

Dr. Donohue

Is there life after estrogen?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My doctor finally agreed to give me estrogen to ease my menopause symptoms, chiefly the hot flashes. They were getting to be a drag on my existence. He told me he would try it as a trial, just to see how I fared. I am faring quite well, thanks. Now I'm wondering what will happen when he takes me off the estrogen. Will the flashes, etc. return? Is there life for me after estrogen? — Mrs. W.A.Z.

Chances are your symptoms will return when your body returns to its previous hormone level. I know that's not good news for you, but it's not the end of the story. Your doctor may, if he wishes, place you on a very low dose of estrogen and add some progesterone, a hormone that reduces the chances of adverse effects of the prolonged estrogen-only therapy.

Many factors enter into the decision to continuing hormone therapy — the severity of symptoms, the woman's family history of certain types of cancers, or whether, in fact, some other treatment would accomplish the same goal. For example, a woman using estrogen supplementation to prevent development of osteoporosis sometimes fares as well with a combination of appropriate exercise and calcium. And sodium fluoride is being tested for its effect in regarding osteoporosis.

Having trouble getting to sleep at night? In his new booklet Dr. Donohue examines the insomnia problem and offers some ways to help you get your needed rest. For a copy of "Why Can't You Sleep?" send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Albert attends meeting in Israel

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

Water, large bodies of that chemical concoction that seems scarce in arid West Texas, are what Deloris Albert enjoyed most about her recent trip to Israel with the Salvation Army World Wide Congress.

"It was a treat to me to be near the big bodies of water," she said with gleaming eyes. "We went over the Sea of Galilee in a boat, and got to go floating in the Dead Sea. You don't swim in the Dead Sea. It's full of salt." She also visited the Jordan River and waded in the Mediterranean Sea.

Albert, accounts receivable clerk at the Big Spring Herald, recently returned from a 10-day trip to Israel with the Salvation Army meetings in Jerusalem, the Garden Tomb where it's believed Jesus Christ was buried, at a Kibbutz and Caesarea. However, most of the time was spent sightseeing throughout Israel except in the dangerous areas to the north.

Fourteen hundred members from Austria, Netherlands, Great Britain, Japan and the United States attended. Albert was one of four from Big Spring and West Texas area in the Texas delegation of 24. She was joined by Capt. and Mrs. Carroll Braun and their son Sean Braun, also of Big Spring.

The four spent six nights in Jerusalem, one night in Tel Aviv, and one night in a Kibbutz on the Sea of Galilee. Salvation Army has its World Wide Congress about every five years, Albert says. National Congress occurs more often.

During their Christian Witness March in Jerusalem, the Salvation Army members marched by the Russian Embassy and on to the Garden Tomb. Members of Israel's military escorted them.

"There is no Salvation Army in Israel. For a group of people to come in and call themselves an army, we were well received," she said. "Crowds were enthusiastic about the March and joined in singing the words of songs they knew. It was the only time the people of Israel got to see us in one group."

About nine months ago Albert was accepted for the trip and began planning immediately and saving money. Aside from the SOUVENIRS — Deloris Albert, left, shows fellow employee Dana Wagner wood carvings and a Jerusalem newspaper that she bought while traveling in Israel. The bus wreck photograph she is pointing to in the newspaper is from an accident that occurred ahead of her tour bus.

$1,400 cost of the trip, she carried $400 for her expenses and ended up running out of money and borrowing $10 from Capt. Braun to eat on.

Albert saw sites from before and during Christ's time including: the church built upon the site believed to be where Christ was born, the ruins of King Solomon's horse stable and King David's areas, the Walling Wall, the Garden Tomb, Mesada and more.

There are places where one can see layers of earth and wall structures from different periods of history, she said. Each civilization — the Romans, Crusaders and Turks — built their structures on top of the others and used different designs and building materials. Today, these sites are being excavated from the earth fill which has preserved the ruins of each civilization for centuries.

Turks would fill in buildings with dirt and rocks or destroy them, she said. "They didn't want anything about Christian ways to be known."

"I was impressed by the way (the Israelites) were working their soil," Israelites are learning to irrigate and terrace the mountainsides to hold soil and water, she said. "We complain out here in West Texas about the soil and rain problems, but out there are worse conditions in soil and water. They've learned to use what they had and are building the land up real good — good crops, good vegetation, gardens and flowers."

"I did get to see some of their cotton crops in growing stage. In the news, it said Israel is irrigating with salt water in cotton crops and the United States is studying this. They've got some very green cotton fields." While in Jerusalem, she followed the tradition of planting a tree when entering the Holy Land by planting two trees.

"You would be terribly suspicious of people because of war, but we didn't have any problems," she said. "I didn't feel I was in any danger." She noted that the country's strict laws and punishment make for fairly safe streets.

Albert is active in the Salvation Army as a corp sergeant major. "In absence of the corp officers here (Capt. and Mrs. Braun) I'm responsible for all the church services, ministry plus social work."

She works with the youth in Salvation Army as a Sunbeam leader for girls ages six to 12, as a counselor for the Corp Cadette — a young people's Bible study group that encourages leadership development, as a Sunday School teacher for teenagers, and as assistant band instructor. She also works with adults and is on call for any assistance, such as hospital and home visitations, disaster relief and planning senior meetings.

"We do an awful lot of youth work in Salvation Army, all phases from feeding to babysitting. We work with the young people to give them a better foundation to go with because they come in contact with people so much that don't have a good home."

This week was National Salvation Army Week. Locally, the Army is in the midst of its fundraiser, the Big Spring "Light of Hope" Campaign. The Army is close to reaching its goal of $750,000, Albert said. The J.E. and Le Mabey Foundation will grant $250,000 to the Army if it comes up with $553,000 in local pledges. So far, it has raised $408,000 in pledges and gifts. The money will go toward a new activity center, which will expand the Army's resident services and allow new programs for underprivileged families, youths, senior citizens and handicapped. It also will go toward renovation of the present social service center and family lodge, construction of a new Salvation Army Thrift Store and support of the Army's officer education and retirement fund.

service at the Howard College Auditorium. She said that the attendance was good, the music superb, the speakers inspiring, and the response great.

Rich Roney, chief of Chaplaincy Services at the Veterans Administration Medical Center said that computer printouts listing patients by denomination are available in his office. Also, a 30-minute Sunday School class starting at 8:45 a.m. is in need of volunteer staffing.

Bibles for use in the Big Spring High School Bible classes were purchased by the Fellowship in memory of Elizabeth Johansen, first and long-time Bible teacher who recently died.

The next meeting will be Monday at 12 p.m. at the Golden Corral.

Missionary Union has annual tea

The Woman's Missionary Union of Salem Baptist Church held its annual Friendship Tea for area women May 7.

Congregational singing was led by Mrs. Stella Brooks with Mrs. Lewis McKee and Mrs. Ryan Walker providing music. Mrs. J.L. Baugh recognized and welcomed the 44 women in attendance, many of whom were over 70 years old. Mrs. Jerrold Walker, W.M.U. director, gave the devotion with guests being registered by Mrs. L.C. Gibbs and Mrs. Robert Honeycutt.

Refreshments were served from a table draped with a blue cloth with a hand-crocheted overlay. The table was centered with a blue floral arrangement and a hand-made grandpa and grandma figurine. A scrapbook of snapshots and newspaper clippings from past teas was on display.

Davis to lead Baptist Temple revival

Baptist Temple Church, 400 11th Place, will have a revival Sunday through Friday with Dr. Rick Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Stanton, as evangelist. Leading the music will be Jerry Lewis, youth director of the First Baptist Church, Stanton. Services will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday. On Monday through Friday, services begin at 7:30 p.m. Nursery will be provided. The public is invited.

A 24-hour prayer vigil will begin at 8 a.m. tomorrow until 8 a.m. Sunday at the church. Public invited.

Funerals topic of fellowship program

Paul Peterson of Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home spoke at the April 15 meeting of the Howard County Ministerial Fellowship.

There is no such thing as a "traditional funeral" in this day, said Peterson. Some families want a funeral with the body present, some want cremation, some earth burial, some in a mausoleum, some send the remains to a satellite and some don't want the body present.

The purpose of the funeral director is to get the family back into the mainstream of life as quickly as possible. Efforts to please the survivors are important, said Peterson.

Trustees approve renewal of two teachers' contracts

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Big Spring school trustees recommended the renewal of contracts for two district personnel Thursday.

They are Linda Miracle and Ruby Lee Pike, both teachers at College Heights Elementary School.

Trustees also approved the hiring of Tom Adams as assistant principal at Big Spring High School. Billy Pineda voted not to hire Adams, and Al Valdes was absent from the meeting.

Resignations were accepted from Wanda Buske, David Drake, Jeffrey Felty, Lola Kilman, Ruth Salisbury and Cynthia Zertuche.

Bill Brooks was named as a delegate to the Texas Association of School Boards assembly on Sept. 28 in San Antonio. Billy Pineda is alternate.

An application for funding for the Head Start program was approved. The application will be submitted to the Department of Human Resources.

The district is requesting $347,123 from the funding agency and will supply a match of $69,424 for a total project of $416,547.

Trustees also approved a funding application for the Chapter 1 and Chapter 2 programs, programs which supply special services for needy students. The total Chapter 1 application for expenditures is $441,204, with carry over funds of $26,510.

The Chapter 2 application is for $43,676.

Several bids were approved Thursday. They include a bid of $4,556 for carpeting in the high school band hall from the Carpet Center; a bid of $155,000 for roofing repairs at College Heights and portions of the high school; and bids from Gandy's and Rainbo Bread for milk and bread products for the district.

District attendance records show that the district has 4,551 students enrolled. That figure is down by only eight students over the same period during 1984.

Trustees were reminded of the next board meeting on June 13 at 5:15 p.m.

Graduation ceremonies are 8 p.m. May 30 at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

the administration. He told the crowd that he had asked Hise if a minority member would be considered for an administrative post.

Pineda said Hise replied, "Not only because they were a minority would we give them a break."

Pineda said, "Times are changing. We only have one minority administrator. We are changing. We can't stay 20 years behind."

Arsiaga then asked about the suspension of a high school student.

Arsiaga showed pictures of a freshman student who had been beaten up in a fight on school grounds. The student was suspended for 10 days.

"The teachers allow them (students) to fight," Arsiaga said.

Arsiaga said the student had been told to leave school by an administrator and that proper procedure was not followed in the suspension.

Both administrators and LULAC members later agreed that proper procedure had been carried out when the mother of the student said she had received a letter stating that her son would be suspended for 10 days.

Pineda said, "This is why we need a minority counselor. I don't think a minority (student or parent) would come to a white counselor."

Following the meeting, Arsiaga said she was not satisfied with responses received from the school board.

"Hise and Anderson were doing all the talking," Arsiaga said. "The rest were not saying much of anything." Because the board represents the community, "I was trying to get them to respond," Arsiaga said.

She said she wondered if the board looked over applicants for the assistant principal's position.

"They should take some time" and study applicants, she said.

5th-ranked Ravens rip Hawks, 11-1

COLLEGE STATION — A pair of birds of prey went at each other in the second round of the Texas Junior College baseball tournament with a less than storybook ending for the Howard College Hawks Thursday at Texas A&M's Olson Field.

The San Jacinto Ravens ripped Howard pitching for 11 hits in 6 and one-third innings to take an 11-1 victory over the Hawks and advance to a third round matchup against seventh-ranked McLennan Community College.

It was a miserable day for Hawk pitcher Doug Myres, who came into the game with a sparkling 7-2 record, but could not subdue the heavy hitters from San Jacinto. The Ravens starting lineup features no less than seven players who have already been drafted by pro teams and they wasted no time showing the Hawks why.

Raven power hitter Danny Fertitta served an early notice to the Hawks that it would be a long day with a first inning solo home run. San Jacinto batters belted 5 extra base hits on the day, while winning pitcher Scott Sorensen held the Hawks to five singles.

Howard scored its lone run in the top of the second inning on a single by Joey Ortiz that drove in Mark Howell. Howell had singled and advanced to second on a sacrifice fly by designated hitter Joe Cuellar before rounding the bases to tie the score at 1-1.

Myres pitched himself into a jam in the bottom of the second, walking in one run and giving up a bases loaded sacrifice to Fertitta before Hawk coach Bill Griffin pulled him in favor of long relief man Brian Willis midway through the inning.

Willis shut down the Ravens for an inning and a half before being tagged for 6 runs in the fourth and fifth innings. The freshman righthander experienced some control problems in the fourth, coupled with two Hawk fielding errors, that forced in one unearned run. San Jacinto held a commanding 9-1 lead going into the bottom of the sixth.

Short relief specialist Alex Lopez came in for Willis in the sixth but was unable to stop the Ravens from taking their second straight 10 run-rule game. San Jacinto plated the two runs needed to end the game on two walks and a pair of RBI singles by Sorensen and Wilkins to end the game after only one-third of the inning had been completed.

Howard must now win four games in a row, starting with today's 4 p.m. tilt against Texas Southmost, who drew a bye after defeating Panola in a Thursday morning losers bracket game.

Edmonton, Philly in Cup final

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rarely does one play in a 60-minute hockey game mean so much. When Dave Poulin intercepted a pass, skated down ice and scored with his Philadelphia Flyers short two men, it meant everything.

It meant breaking the spirit of the Quebec Nordiques. It meant clinching the Wales Conference final with a 3-0 victory. It meant a berth in the Stanley Cup finals, a first for all but one Flyer (Brian Propp).

"I think because of the potential it had for them — they were looking at scoring one, maybe two goals and going ahead — it had to be demoralizing," said Poulin, who was the first Flyer ever to score in a playoff game with his team two men short. "But it was a big lift for us and we got the momentum and never lost it."

Poulin's goal, at 2:11 of the second period Thursday night, was preceded by Rick Tocchet's tip-in of Mark Howe's wrist shot in the first period. Doug Crossman slapped in a 40-footer at 11:07 of the middle session on a power play and the Flyers completely shut down the Nordiques. Quebec got only 15 shots on goal, the fewest the Flyers have yielded in a game all season. Only a handful caused goalie Pelle Lindbergh the slightest trouble as he recorded his third post-season shutout.

But it was Poulin's play which made it clear the Flyers were headed for a championship round meeting with the defending National Hockey League titleholders, the Edmonton Oilers. Edmonton eliminated Chicago Thursday night.

Chicago Black Hawks' KEN YAREMCHUK and Edmonton Oilers' KEVIN LOWE chase the puck during Edmonton's 8-2 win over Chicago. The Oilers clinched the Campbell Conference championship with the win.

Black Hawks 2

Jari Kurri ended the evening the same way he began it — with a goal. And now the Edmonton Oilers, seemingly overloaded with devastating sharpshooters, have the Stanley Cup finals in their sights for the third straight year.

Paced by four goals from Kurri, Edmonton beat the Chicago Black Hawks 8-2 Thursday night in the Campbell Conference finals to capture the series 4-2. The defending Stanley Cup champions will now play the Flyers for the Stanley Cup, starting Tuesday night at Philadelphia.

Several playoff records fell Thursday night. The 10 goals boosted the total for the six-game series to 69, breaking the old record of 62 goals the Black Hawks set with Minnesota in the Norris Division finals earlier this year.

But it was Kurri who accomplished the most.

"These teams can really put the puck in the net," said Kurri, who enjoyed his third hat trick of the series and fourth of the playoffs, both playoff records.

"A record is important only if your team wins," said Kurri, who got assists on all four goals from Wayne Gretzky.

Kurri and Mark Messier opened the scoring in the game with first-period goals against Chicago goaltender Murray Bannerman.

Then the Oilers broke the game open with four goals in the second period.

Messier began the barrage with his second goal, on a power play, with a second consecutive assist by Glenn Anderson.

Then Kurri slapped the puck over Bannerman's shoulder at 13:28.

"After I got my first two goals, I knew I was close to the record (for hat-tricks)," Kurri said.

Lee Fogolin scored a minute later. Then Kurri got behind the Chicago defense, took a perfect pass from Gretzky just inside the blue line and scored short-handed on a breakaway, giving the Oilers' a 6-0 lead at 18:05.

"When I got that third goal I really felt good inside because no other player in NHL history had done it," he said of his records, "and there have been a lot better players than me."

Kurri had shared the record of two hat tricks in a series with Doug Bentley of Chicago in 1944, Norm Ullman of Detroit in 1964, and Mike Bossy of the Islanders and teammate Mark Messier, both in 1983.

Houston nips Mets, 1-0; Rangers lose sixth straight

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astro right-hander Mike Scott says he hopes he's back to his early season form after suffering from a pair of disappointing performances.

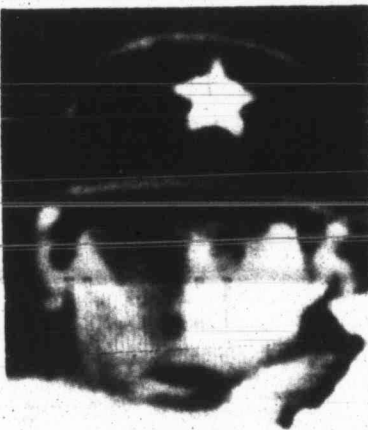

"I was in the groove early in the season, but then I had a pair of bad outings. Hopefully I'm back in the groove now," Scott said after giving up five hits in 8-23 innings and leading the National League Astros to a 1-0 shutout of the New York Mets Thursday.

Scott, 2-1, had lasted a total of eight innings in his last two starts and gave up 13 hits and 8 runs.

"This was my best game this year," Scott said. "I got my fastball where I wanted it, and I was getting ahead of hitters so I could throw my split-finger pitch effectively."

The shutout was the fourth of Scott's major league career and his first since 1983.

"That's the best I've ever seen Mike Scott pitch," said New York's Keith Hernandez. "In the ninth inning, when I hit I was hoping someone else would be in there. He's become a pitcher. Earlier in his career he was just a thrower. I have to tip my hat to him."

Scott retired 15 straight batters before Mookie Wilson singled with one out in the ninth. After retiring Hernandez and walking Mets catcher Gary Carter, Houston reliever Dave Smith came to force Danny Heep to ground out.

The save was Smith's fifth of the season.

Sid Fernandez, 1-1, was the loser, giving up only two hits in seven innings.

"Sid's breaking ball was his most effective pitch," said Carter. "He was getting it over consistently. He only made one mistake all night, and that was to (Jose) Cruz. But you've got to give Cruz some credit because he went out and got the pitch."

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the first, when Cruz hit a Fernandez pitch into the gap in right center field for a double, scoring Bill Doran from second. Doran had led off with a walk and moved to second on Phil Garner's flyball to deep left.

The Mets threatened the Astros in the second, after Danny Heep led off with a double. Two outs later, Rafael Santana lined a single to center and Houston center fielder Kevin Bass made an outstanding throw to cut down Heep at the plate.

"I was out," Heep said. "If the ball had been off to the side or taken a bad hop I could have made it. But he made an excellent throw. It was right there."

NEW YORK (AP) — The ninth inning epitomized the futility of the Texas Rangers' season.

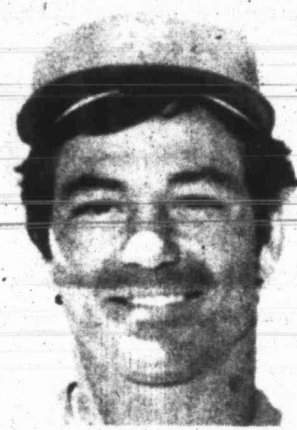

Frank Tanana had blown leads of 2-0 when New York's Don Mattingly hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the first and 4-2 on Bobby Meacham's two-run double in the sixth. Don Baylor homered off Dave Stewart in the eighth to tie it for the third time.

It was a 5-5 standoff when pinch-hitter Ron Hassey opened the bottom of the ninth with a grounder that skipped off second baseman Wayne Tolleson's glove for a single. Hassey's 13th hit in 17 at-bats against Texas over the past two seasons.

Stolen base king Rickey Henderson, who didn't start because of a bruised elbow, ran for Hassey and danced off first as Meacham worked the count to 1-1 against Stewart. "I was going, and he knew I was going," said Henderson.

Before Henderson could go, Stewart balked him to second.

"He (the umpire) called what he saw," Stewart said. "I didn't feel that I barked. He said that I broke my front knee and that my front shoulder was leaning toward the hitter. He said it was giving the runner the impression I was going home."

BOBBY VALENTINE ... new Ranger manager

Meacham sacrificed Henderson to third and it was decision time for Texas Manager Doug Rader, who reportedly is about to be fired. The batter was Willie Randolph, only 4-for-27, with runners in scoring position but a good bunter.

Stewart's first delivery was a pitchout.

"I thought they'd squeeze," Rader said. "There was no doubt what I'd do."

What he did then was order intentional walks to Randolph and Mattingly, loading the bases for Dave Winfield, runner-up in last year's American League batting race with a .340 average but mired at .244 so far in 1985 with only three homers and 14 RBI.

Dave Rozema relieved Stewart and Winfield took a strike.

"He quick-pitched me with a fastball," Winfield said. "I was looking for a fly ball and I got a pitch to do it and didn't pull the trigger. Then he threw a good curve and I got a piece of it."

A little piece, but it produced a chopper to the left of the mound. Third baseman Buddy Bell cut in front of shortstop Curtis Wilkerson, who was playing back for a double play, but getting Henderson at the plate was out of the question. Bell flipped to Tolleson for a forceout but Winfield easily outlegged the relay — he was 0-for-5 but got the game-winning RBI.

Four tied after Colonial 1st round

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fresh from a Japanese odyssey and drowsy from jet lag, Mark O'Meara resumed his bid today for a third 1985 golf title at the $500,000 Colonial National Invitational.

"I guess what I need to do is jump on a plane and fly eight hours every week," he laughed after an opening 4-under-par 66 Thursday earned him a share of the first round lead.

"I woke up at 2 o'clock in the morning raring to go," he quipped, noting that there's a 14-hour time difference between Tokyo and Texas.

O'Meara collected five birdies and a bogey en route to a 33-33-66 and a tie for first with Willie Wood, Corey Pavin and Jim Thorpe in a wide open chase for the $90,000 top prize.

O'Meara took a week off to fly to Tokyo and win the Fuji Sanke Classic, then returned Monday with $31,000, a new car and a renewed desire to pursue his quest for the PGA money crown.

With victories at the Crosby Pro-Am and Hawaiian Open, he ranks fifth on the money winning list with $242,311, roughly $155,000 off the torrid pace set by Curtis Strange.

"My goal is still to try to get to No. 1," he said. "Curtis is going to be hard to catch but I'm going to give it my best shot."

Meanwhile, a near-record 45 players in the select field of 102 broke or matched par on the testy 7,096-yard Colonial course overlooking the serpentine Trinity River.

"When you catch a golf course in mint condition like this the scores are gonna be lower," said Thorpe, who played almost flawlessly under perfect playing conditions.

"I think this may be the best round I've shot on tour, because WILLIE WOOD hits out of the sand trap on the eighth hole during the first round of the Colonial National Invitational tournament in Fort Worth. WOOD was tied for the lead with three others with a 4-under-par 66.

this course is so tough."

Wood could have seized the lead outright except for a bogey at the 18th hole, but he wasn't complaining after firing an amazing eight birdies to more than offset four bogeys.

"I love it," he grinned.

A stroke off the lead was a quintet headed by defending champion Peter Jacobsen, who won a year ago in a playoff with Payne Stewart, who shot a 71 Thursday.

"The odds are against me repeating, since Ben Hogan is the only one ever to do it," said

Jacobsen. "But I'm just strange enough that maybe I'm the next one."

Hogan nailed back-to-back victories in 1950-1951 and won five Colonial championships, which explains why they call this course "Hogan's Alley."

Jacobsen would like to make it "Peter's Alley."

"It's good to come back to Colonial," he said. "I love this course."

"The one thing I had to fight was just trying too hard. You want to pick up where you left off...I was kinda going for the jugular when I started out.

"Then I finally settled down...It was the type of day where a 67 was a good round, but with a couple of turns here or there it could have been a 64."

A number of his colleagues were less fortunate, including 1977 Colonial champion Ben Crenshaw, who shot 79, and two-time winner Al Geiberger, who joined Tom Watson and last week's Byron Nelson kingpin, Bob Eastwood, at 74.

Perhaps a quick trip to Japan would work wonders.

Hawks sign Tyler star

Howard College head coach Ed Sparling announced the signing of Tyler Lee basketball standout Trey Hughes to a scholarship Thursday. The 6'4" 185 pounder led his Lee Red Raider team to a 20-11 record this past season while garnering 13-5A All-District first team honors and being named an Honorable Mention player on the All-East Texas High School basketball team.

Hughes averaged 11.7 points, 5.8 rebounds, and 5.5 assists in his senior season at Tyler Lee. Sparling plans to use Hughes at a small forward or shooting guard position next year for the Hawks.

"Trey comes from a real basketball family, and was one of the most heavily recruited players in East Texas," commented Sparling. "I am delighted to have a player of Trey's caliber joining our program. He should make a definite contribution his freshman year."

Stephen F. Austin leads Div. II golf

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Bill Langston helped Stephen F. Austin post a 6-over-par 300 and stretch its advantage to five strokes over Florida Southern going into today's final round of the NCAA Division II Golf Championship at Waterwood National Country Club.

The Lumberjacks amassed a three-day total of 896, while Florida Southern grabbed a 304 Thursday to land in second place at 901. Host Sam Houston State, which shot a 302, was third at 904.

Hugh Royer III of Columbus College in Georgia led individual standings with a 70-71-72-213 total. Par for the 6,872-yard course is 71.

Shawn Baker of Central Connecticut was second with a 216, while Langston was third at a 218 total in the national championships.

The 23rd annual tournament ends today with 18 holes.

Pepsi meet offers more than Lewis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's more — much more — to the Pepsi Invitational Track and Field Meet Saturday at UCLA besides Carl Lewis' attempt to break Bob Beamon's world record in the long jump.

Sure, Lewis' assault on Beamon's revered mark of 29 feet, 2½ inches, set during the 1968 Olympics in the high altitude of Mexico City, has commanded the most preface attention.

"I feel it's attainable," Lewis said. "I feel that I can jump that far, and that I can do it at sea level. I've been going over 28 feet for five years, and now I feel it's time for 29."

However, he added, "It's difficult to shoot for records. For me to say that I'm going to break the world record is difficult. There's no way for me to guarantee that, but I can guarantee that I will be prepared to turn in a good performance."

Lewis' performances in the Pepsi meet the past three years have been outstanding.

Last year, he had a legal jump of 28-7, and another attempt that was about a foot farther, but on which he fouled by less than an inch.

In 1982, he leaped 28-3 in the Pepsi meet, and in 1983, he jumped 28-1. The three legal jumps rank among the top dozen winning performances in history.

If Lewis, however, falls short in his quest of Beamon's record, there are several other competitors capable of overshadowing him.

Included in the group are Jar-mila Kratochvilova of Czechoslovakia, Joaquim Cruz of Brazil, Valerie Brisco-Hooks, Steve Scott, Greg Foster, Pierre Quinon of France, Mike Tully, Brian Oldfield, Dave Laut and Dwight Stones.

Kratochvilova, the 34-year-old Czech "Wonder Woman," is doubling in the 400 and 800 meters, the two events in which she is the world record-holder and which she won at the 1983 World Championships.

The muscular Czech has said that this will be her last season of competition.

Last year, Kratochvilova was bothered by a sciatic nerve problem and wasn't as dominant as she had been in 1983.

Even so, she beat Brisco-Hooks, the Olympic 400 champion, three times in Europe.

Brisco-Hooks admittedly suffered a post-Olympic letdown in Europe after winning gold medals in the 200, 400 and 1,600-meter relay in the Los Angeles Games.

Brisco-Hooks is passing up the 400 Saturday, but will compete in the 200, against the 2-3 finishers in the Games — Florence Griffith and Jamaica's Merlene Ottey-Page.

Brisco-Hooks has said that one of her goals this year is to break the world record in the 200 of 21.7 seconds, held by East Germany's Marita Koch.

Pictured is Tim Binder, 37, with his unicycle that he used to ride to his job as a claims authorizer with the Social Security Administration in Richmond, Calif. Binder was fired from his job last week after the agency learned he had sent anonymous gifts of $50 in cash to 39 teenage girls whose files he had access to.

Benevolent benefactor

Bureaucrat fired for playing out give-away fantasy.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bureaucrat who says he was a fan of the television show "The Millionaire" has been fired by the Social Security Administration for using confidential files to send anonymous $50 cash gifts to 39 teen-age girls.

Tim Binder, 37, says it was just a "little giveaway fantasy," but it cost him his $28,000-a-year job as a claims authorizer.

Social Security fired him after learning he used case files he had access to at work to determine his beneficiaries.

"I started picking out young ladies who had tragedies or hardships early in their lives," Binder said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Binder, who sent the cash in cards on the girls' birthdays, said he began sending the money in late 1983 and stopped in February of this year.

All told, he gave away $1,950 to the girls, most of whom were about 14 years old and lived in Colorado.

"I wasn't trying to establish any kind of contact with these kids. I was just trying to play out my own little giveaway fantasy," he said.

Binder, who sports a beard and used to ride a unicycle to work, said he was a fan of the television show "The Millionaire" when he was young and always had a secret desire to give away money to people who had a tough life.

"I just kind of decided to do it," he said.

But Binder's supervisors at the Social Security Administration's regional center in Richmond, Calif., were not amused and he was dismissed last week.

They contend the gestures constitute a violation of federal privacy laws.

"He was fired for misuse of confidential Social Security files," said Howard Dentz, a Social Security spokesman in San Francisco.

Dentz would not comment further on the firing because Binder has said he will appeal the decision.

Officials discovered Binder was the secret benefactor when one mother hired a private detective to track down the post office box number he included on an envelope. "She thought it was strange" that her daughter got the money in the mail, Binder said.

After Binder's superiors received a complaint, he was questioned by agents from the inspector general's office. "I told them all about it and I thought the whole thing was over," he said. "Then I got fired."

Divorced, with no children, Binder said he also donates money to Child Help, a project for missing and abused children, and a foster parents program for care of a boy in Guatemala.

Birth rate drops for teen-age girls

ATLANTA (AP) — U.S. health officials say the birth rate for teen-age girls is going down, but pregnancy rates continue to increase.

The U.S. Public Health Service in 1980 set a goal for the nation of no unintended births to girls under 15, and fertility rates of 10 per 1,000 for 15-year-olds, 25 per 1,000 for 16-year-olds and 45 per 1,000 for 17-year-olds.

"It cannot be certain" whether those objectives will be reached, the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

But the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report that between 1974 and 1980, the fertility rate for 17-year-old girls dropped from 57 births per 1,000 girls to 52, a decrease of 13.2 percent, putting the fertility rate for that age group nearly halfway to the 1990 goal.

The fertility rate for 15-year-olds dropped 11.8 percent, from 16 births per 1,000 to 14; the rate for 16-year-olds dropped 14.9 percent, from 36 per 1,000 to 31.

For all females aged 15-19, the CDC said fertility rates dropped from 58.4 births per 1,000 in 1974 to 53 in 1980, a decline of 9 percent. For girls under 15, the fertility rate fell from two births per 1,000 to 1.9, a drop of 5 percent.

While fertility rates are falling, pregnancy rates — counting both births and legal abortions — are going up.

The pregnancy rate for females 15-19 rose from 81.8 per 1,000 in 1974 to 88.5 in 1980, a jump of 8.2 percent. For girls under 15, the pregnancy rate rose from 3.9 per 1,000 to 4.3, an increase of 10.3 percent.

The CDC noted that in the 11 years before 1983, the estimated percentage of Americans 15 to 19 who had never been married and who had engaged in sex jumped from 27 percent to 42 percent.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 18, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to be sure that you handle whatever faces you of a practical or monetary nature in a conscientious way for considerable mistakes could be made if you try to slough off responsibilities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be careful not to get into any arguments with others or you could get into serious trouble. Be wise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use tact, not force with others if you want them to join you in some activity whether of a creative or entertainment nature.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have so many duties that you hardly know where to begin, but plan to do them intelligently and they are soon behind you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Some friend may try to force you to see things his or her way, but you do not approve, so resist.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at personal affairs that need completing and avoid outside matters that could get you into trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't run away from duties ahead of you but patiently handle them efficiently and avoid trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use tact so that you do not have a battle with your mate, since this could become very serious.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you postpone that talk with a partner who is as stubborn as you are over some issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It may be a bit hard to handle all the duties ahead of you, but if you get an early start, they are soon behind you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget some entertainment that may be altogether too expensive for you. Await better time to amuse yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid any arguments at home or these could reach royal battle proportions that could end sadly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You may find delays in taking little trips for either personal or business reasons today, but take this in your stride.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she should be taught early that nothing in this world is really easy to do, and then your progeny will not have as much trouble as others in school because of the willingness to work. Give courses that will be helpful in trouble-shooting professions at which your progeny can be very proficient.
